Plans Going Forward For Big Scrap Rally Day In Lamesa, Saturday, Aug. 29

Plans are going forward to make Saturday, August 29, a big day for Lamesa and Dawson County, as that day has been designated as Scrap Rally Day, according to C. M. Burton, scrap chairman for the county.

Every citizen in the county should take part in this Big Rally Day and bring in all the scrap iron, steel or other metals that are now scattered about their homes.

The need of scrap iron and steel is more critical than most of us supposed. Farmers of the county have cooperated well in getting in scrap metal in previous drives, but there may be several tons that were overlooked as inconsequential. That is needed, Mr. Burton said.

"Every farmer is urged to look in the corner of the field in the weeds along the fence row, everywhere there might be a stray plow share, or sweep, an old cultivator beam or wheel, or any piece of metal that can be turned into a gun or a bomb for our boys who are now on the aggressive against the Japs in the Pacific, and the Nazis elsewhere. Our boys are fighting, now it is up to us to dig up the scrap metal needed to arm them with guns and other fighting equipment.

The materials needed are scrap iron and steel, other metals of all kinds, old rubber, rags, manila rope and burlap bags, and waste cooking fats.

The salvage collection is the greatest opportunity for civilians participations in the war. Everybody wants to do what he can to help win the war; and here is the chance for every man, woman and child to prove his patriotism.

Midland Offers Large Purse In Calf Roping

The official calf roping championship of the world and a purse of $2,000 will be at stake when Toots Mansfield of Bandera, Texas, and Clyde Burk of Comanche, Oklahoma, meet in a matched calf roping contest at Midland on Sunday, September 13. The event is sponsored by Midland Fair, Inc.

Fifty per cent of the net proceeds will be donated to the army emergency relief fund.

Mansfield has held the calf roping championship of the world for three consecutive years, the only man to hold that distinction. Burk, one of the world's top-notch ropers, twice has been world's champion. The contest between the two outstanding ropers was matched at the recent Cheyenne, Wyo., Rodeo. The contestants will rope 12 calves each.

Other special matches will pit James Kinney of Comstock against Troy Fort of Lovington, N. M., and Sonny Edwards of Big Spring against Jim Espy of Fort Davis. Jackpot calf roping also will be staged, with cowboys of the area invited to enter.

General Rainfall In Dawson County

According to information reaching this office, Dawson County was blessed with a general rain Saturday, August 15. Rain fell in varying amounts from one-half up to three inches. While parts of the county were not in need of moisture other parts were in the dry area and the much needed moisture will be beneficial, especially to the feed crop.

Dawson County farmers are beginning to poison for leafworms, which are reported to be active and continued rains will aggravate this situation. Estimates on the 1942 cotton crop run all the way from 40,000 to 60,000 bales, depending on weather conditions for the remainder of the growing season.

It is believed by many that the crop prospects in Dawson County are exceptionally bright at this time, and in many instances better than last year.

Sgt. Ellis McCarty who has spent the past 10 days here visiting with relatives and friends left Monday for El Paso, where he is stationed.

Diversified Occupation Trains For War Emergency

September 1935 marked the beginning of careers for several alumni of Lamesa High School. In that year students selected occupations and started specific training for them as a part of their high school course, for this was the year Diversified Occupations was installed in the curriculum. For seven years students have been working their ways into full time jobs through Diversified Occupations and have earned while learning on the job. It is likely that these first and subsequent students little realized what the outcome would be when they embarked upon this new course. A check of records maintained of this group reveal some interesting facts. The lowest salary of any of the group is $56 per month. The highest is $350 per month. The average for the group including recent graduates is $152.90. Three out of four, exclusive of girls, are serving our country directly in the war effort. Two-thirds of those working directly in the war effort are in the defense industries. Most of these found that the training they received in Diversified Occupations fitted them for work in the defense industries. A few have found it necessary to take supplementary training. One-third of this latter group are with our armed forces. One-half of those in our armed forces have obtained rating higher than private first class. This includes recent enlistments.

Saturday, August 22, is the Second Primary election day in Texas, and Dawson County Citizens will again go to the polls and cast their votes for their favorite candidates.

Lamesa merchants and business men have played a vital part in this training program by furnishing jobs for gaining experience, development of skills and initiative and for their practical instruction. They are to be commended for the service they have rendered our country and these young people.

Training in practically every occupation followed in Lamesa will be open to boys and girls this fall, who have a scholastic standing of Junior and who are 16 years of age or before Jan. 15, 1943. Before students may be enrolled in the course they must be promised jobs and for that reason application for admission to Diversified Occupations should be made at once. Jobs are secured by the High School after conferences with individual students and their parents. An effort is made to determine the interest and abilities of the student and an occupation requiring these is secured for him. Application forms may be secured from Mr. Chas. T. Hatchett in room 201 at the High School.

Army Engineers Turn A Miracle In Panama

By CHANDLER DIEHL
 Wide World Features

BALBOA, Canal Zone — Over an area fully half the size of the continental United States — ranging from steamy jungles to rocky mountains, Army engineers today are rushing to completion new and greater defenses of the vital Panama Canal.

Many thousands of Army engineers and civilian crewmen recruited from all three Americas are doing an immense job—working 10-hour shifts, seven days a week — but because most of the task consists of constructing emplacements for military secrets at various and widespread military secret locations, the full extent of this job must remain unpublicized for the present.

It is possible to state, however, that the engineers and their bulldozers and their power shovels have gone into areas where even Indians have never lived, where only the mean black panther and the mortally poisonous bushmaster have found a habitat, and there the engineers have carved military positions from the wilderness.

Indians Help

And they've gone too to jungles where Indian tribes hold sway and there they've made friends with the aborigines and trading bright colored cloth and food for labor, constructed emplacements in record time.

Modern warfare, as exemplified by giant bombing planes, made the work of the engineers corps necessary. At one time great coastal guns at the canal entrances were adequate protection for the shipping lifeline between Atlantic and Pacific.

"Now that war has taken wings, defense of the canal has become a gigantic problem," an Army spokesman pointed out.

Pre-War Dual Control

"The roads alone, which the engineers have built in recent months to serve these positions, would make a two-lane highway from Baltimore to New York.

"But far beyond the Canal Zone, spread over an area half the size of the United States, there must be stationed an outer ring of the canal's defenders. There too there must be airfields, gun positions, barracks, warehouses, magazines, roads, wharves, water supply."

Before the United States' entry into the war, two organizations were at work on military construction in the Panama Canal Zone—the Department Engineers and the Constructing Quartermaster.

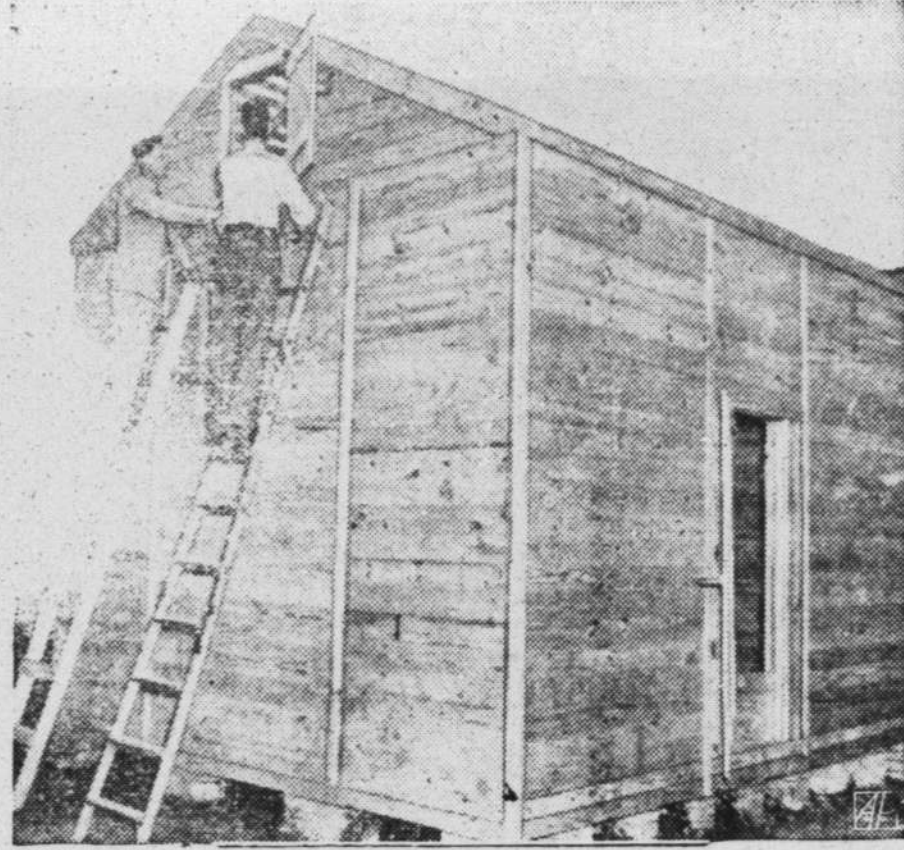

After December 7, Army authorities decided to fuse the two constructing organizations to obtain the greatest and speediest results from material and man-power on hand. Named to head this program was Col. Gordon R. Young of Washington, D. C., veteran of 29 years in the Army Engineers Corps.

"War developments pointed out the trend of our work," Colonel Young recalls. "It showed a need for a cast increase in airfield construction and airfield dispersal. It showed a need for additional aircraft warning service locations and a strengthening of our close-in defenses."

Some Lives Lost

As on any frontier job of such magnitude, there has been a cost too in lives lost. Some men have died under overturned bulldozers,

Prefabricated Wheat Bin

This is one of 2,500 prefabricated wheat bins being constructed for Texas wheat farmers. The bins will hold 1,843 bushels each and will be sold to farmers through the AAA at a cost of approximately 14c per bushel capacity. B. F. Vance, chairman of the Texas U. S. Department of Agriculture War Board, and J. K. Eicholberger, manager of the project, are shown inspecting the bin in Austin.

Sturgeon Fishing New Industry

Wide World Features

MUSCLE SHOALS, Ala. — The war—particularly the Russian situation—has created a new industry for about 30 men who fish Wheeler and Wilson Lakes, reservoirs created by TVA dams nearby.

Imports of Russian caviar have dropped to almost nil, but the big, ugly spoonbill sturgeons to be found here are taking up some of the slack in supply.

TVA officials estimate that Wilson lake alone has yielded some 420,000 pounds of dressed sturgeon, others in the wild swing of a giant shovel. Some few have gone out on long reconnaissance missions never to return — victims either of wild Indian tribes or the jungle itself. Three men at one camp were victims of a raid by sharks upon a swimming party.

But most of these hardy, resourceful men of the engineer corps become more hardy, more resourceful work on this frontier.

Ray Gunn, "cat-skinner" from Texas, proved his mettle when his bulldozer, uprooting a jungle tree, sent a bushmaster angrily flopping on him from the quivering branches overhead. Gunn grabbed a machete that had been given him and beat the poisonous reptile to the knockout blow.

Frontier "delicacies" have been added to the frontier menus. Superintendent Tom Garey of Washington, D. C., shot an 800-pound tapir, and there were steaks for all. Another party headed by John J. Hoehl, civil engineer from Chicago, fashioned a harpoon from a large rattail file and nabbed several large lobsters for soups and stews.

And the important military construction goes on—with many projects completed ahead of already drastically shortened schedules.

"I'd have been surprised six months ago at the way these men are rushing these jobs to completion," Colonel Young states, then adds with quiet pride in his men, "I count on it now."

the other lake about 330,000 pounds. The catch of the past year has been worth about $42,000.

The spoonbills which are caught on snag lines—they are caught not with bait but by swimming into bare hooks suspended from lines stretched across section of the lake—are peddled to buyers at 10 cents a pound.

Buyers wash and pack them in ice before shipping them to New York where they are smoked and marketed. Sturgeon eggs are saved and sold for caviar.

The best single day's catch—by three fishermen—was about 1,800 pounds. The largest spoonbill caught weighed a little more than 51 pounds and dressed down to 38 pounds. The average weight is 30 pounds.

HE DIDN'T STAY FOR "JUST ONE MORE"

MAZATLAN, Mexico (AP) — A blessed event is rocking the west coast of Mexico. Two boa constrictors have lived for years in the patio and lower floor of a seaside hotel here. They keep down the rats and amuse the tourists. Then one day there were 20 or 30 young boas, about 18 inches long, and they showed up most any place. One night an American tourist, who had just arrived and knew nothing of Mazatlan life, stopped in the hotel bar for a nightcap. Suddenly he practically had d.t.'s under the bartender's startled eyes. A young boa had wrapped itself around the tourist's leg. He left on the next train, but Mazatlan dismisses him with a shrug as not "simpatico" and is still mighty proud of its mass blessed event.

Instructions Given For Making Home Grape Juice

No Sugar Needed. High quality grape juice can be made from thoroughly ripe grapes of improved varieties without the addition of sugar. With inexpensive home equipment grape juice can be made during late July and August.

Use Varieties Best Suited For Juice—Wild Mustang grapes contain very little natural grape sugar, and yield only half as much juice as the improved varieties. However, Mustangs may produce juice of fair quality when blended with juice of improved varieties. The Black Spanish, Bailey, and Wine King varieties will be found on the markets in the West and Central North Texas. South and East Texas will have America, Black Spanish, and R. W. Munson varieties. The Carmen grape, a popular variety, grows throughout the state, but its juice should be blended with other varieties for highest quality.

Blending Improves Quality of Juice—Better flavor and more attractive color are obtained by mixing juice of different varieties. Thus varieties with a deep red color may be used in combination with light colored grapes in proportion of 75 to 25 per cent, and tart and sweet varieties may be blended for flavor. Here are some suggested blends:

Carmen 75 per cent (light and sweet) and Mustang 25 per cent (dark and tart).

Carmen 50 per cent and Black Spanish 50 per cent (for a deep, wine color).

America 50 per cent and Carmen 50 per cent.

Supernong 75 per cent and America 25 per cent.

Blending should be done after extraction of the juice and prior to processing and bottling. A bushel of America, Black Spanish or Carmen grapes will yield three gallons of juice and a bushel of Mustang about 1 1/2 gallons.

Materials Needed—For a small quantity of juice made at home: an enamel or aluminum dishpan, a clean meal or sugar sack, 1-2 yard of cotton flannel for filtering, a bottle capper and bottle caps, or corks which have boiled in paraffin. For making juice on a larger scale, add a crusher, fruit press, saccharimeter (for testing the sugar content of the juice) and several large aluminum or wooden containers.

Steps in making juice:

1. Wash grapes on the stem thoroughly and crush into aluminum, wooden or earthenware vessel. DO NOT USE TIN, IRON OR STEEL CONTAINERS.

2. If highly colored juice is desired, heat the crushed grapes, stirring constantly, to 145 degrees F. Most of the color of the juice comes from the inner skin. Heating the crushed grapes and pressing while hot will produce a rich wine color.

3. After heating, extract the juice by pressing, or hang up in a drain bag and squeeze.

4. Filter the juice through cotton flannel cloth or jelly bag and blend or sweetened if necessary.

5. Pour into bottles or fruit jars, filling to neck or bottle of jar and cap or cork.

6. Place in pasteurizer (may be a large pot or wash boiler) having a false bottom, and cover with water completely. Heat and hold at 165 degrees F. as follows:—

Pint bottles or jars—30 minutes.

Quart bottles or jars—35 minutes.

1-2 gallon bottles or jars—45 minutes.

1 gallon bottles or jars—60 minutes.

7. Place bottles or jars on side when removed from pasteurizer to test for leaks and to sterilize caps and lids.

8. Store in cool, dark location until all settling and precipitation in the bottles or jars has taken place. (Four to eight months).

9. If a perfectly clear juice is desired, uncap bottles after all settling has taken place, filter, re-bottle and pasteurize.

CAUTION:—When first heated with stems on the grapes, avoid higher temperatures than 145 degrees F. since a higher temperature will extract tannin from the stems and tartaric acid from the seed, giving the juice an undesirable flavor. In pasteurizing, temperature should not go above 165 degrees F., as this tends to destroy the natural flavor of the juice.

Commando Tricks In Water Taught Penn Students

Wide World Features PHILADELPHIA — University of Pennsylvania students aren't merely learning how to swim, but they're learning to conduct themselves in something of "commando" style under the tutelage of Jack Medica, former University of Washington Olympic star.

Here are some of the things Medica puts them through in order to better prepare them for service in the armed forces:

Swim 75 feet underwater.

Dive off the 10-foot board.

Climb a rope ladder 25 feet over the pool and drop into the water.

Recover a 30-pound weight from under 10 feet of water and bring it to the side of the pool.

Swim 50 feet with hands and feet tied.

Jump into the pool fully clothed, remove shoes and remain in the water wearing the rest of the clothes for 20 minutes.

Swim a quarter mile using side or breast stroke.

Medica feels that when the students can meet those requirements they'll be pretty much "at home" in the water.

Making Rubber Last Is Vital Necessity

Now that this nation's enemies control 90 per cent of the world's area where rubber can be grown, the current shortage is far worse than many people think.

Louise Bryant, specialist in home management, explains that "our biggest stock of rubber is in tires on the country's roads and highways," so taking care of tires is one of the best ways of prolonging the rubber supply.

"When you drive," she says, "hold your speed under 40 miles an hour, turn curves slowly, and look out for bumps, holes, and curbs." It pays, too, to start and stop the car slowly.

Garage attendants can help keep the wheels in line and see that the brakes are properly adjusted. They can assist also in keeping the correct amount of air in the tires, repairing the tires properly and checking the valves often. One way to prolong the life of a set of tires is to put the rear tires on the opposite front wheels every 5,000 miles. The spare should be rotated, too, if it's in good condition.

Aside from these tips, the specialist urges car owners to use their cars as little as possible, plane their

Hay Harvesting At Right Time Makes Good Hay

To make good quality hay, cut the crop before it matures, says G. G. Gibson, assistant dairyman of the Texas A. and M. College Extension Service. Sudan, Johnson and other grasses cut for hay before they head will be higher in protein, more palatable and higher in digestible nutrients than if cut after heading, he adds. But in order to obtain quantity as well as quality, growers should wait until as near heading time as possible before cutting.

On the other hand, the crop should be mature to make good silage. As the greater part of the Johnson grass now is ripening it will be best to put it into the silo. Johnson grass stubble will sprout and produce another crop if rain comes. The second growth will make extra quality hay if it is cut before head-shopping and marketing to save rubber and to "share and swap" rides and hauls with neighbors.

Her last reminder is: "Take all your scrap rubber to salvage stations. Remember, it takes rubber from 120 automobile tires to furnish a 28-ton tank."

Guard Your Baby's Food

Wide World Features
C-L-E-A-N-L-I-N-E-S-S spells health for your baby. If you can, nurse your baby, as breastfed babies have a head-start toward health. If you can't, the sanitation of the utensils you use in preparing baby's feedings is more important than ever. They should be used for nothing else and kept on a tray or shelf by themselves. Your equipment should include a double boiler, a bottle-brush, as many bottles as the number of feedings in 24 hours, corks or rubber bottle caps, a glass measuring cup, a glass funnel for filling the bottles, fine gauge to use as strainers, a dozen nipples and a bottle sterilizer.

Every morning you should boil for 20 minutes the bottles used the day before. They should be washed with soap, hot water, and a brush immediately after nursing and placed in the sterilizer or a large covered pan reserved especially for the boiling. Rinse the nipples in cold water after feedings and drop them in a jar kept for used nipples. The next morning wash them with soap and water, turn them and rinse in hot water. Drop them in boiling water and let boil for two minutes. Then place in dry, sterile jar and cover.

Doctors now recommend cod-liver oil for most babies. The foods usually given during the first year at different times according to doctor's directions are: orange or tomato juice, egg yolk, strained cereals, vegetable pulp, baked potato with butter, prune pulp, apple sauce and scraped broiled steak.

Where You Can Eat Your Way To A Diploma

Wide World Features
NEW YORK — Ever hear of an eating school? There's one run by Adolph Flashner, a gourmet who became so bothered at the sight of tasty morsels being untouched as the result of ignorance that he decided to do something about it.

This academy of higher eating teaches people to wield a knife and fork adeptly — but it also emphasizes the value of food conservation in line with war-time economy measures.

You Must Have Respect
The eating schools insists on a proper respect for food. "Check your worries at the door," it counsels. "Forget grievances; pass up arguments and discussion of problems at the table. Otherwise you'll let yourself in for a first-class case of indigestion."

Under the head of eating problems the school rates artichokes, fried chicken, corn on the cob and other delicacies that defy deft handling. But lobster is the main subject.

Flashner, who has never eaten meat but manages to stow away a supply of seafood three times a day, has launched a crusade to persuade people that the best part of this crustacean is its body. Most lobster-lovers concentrate on the claws, spurning the most delicious portions.

Get In There And Claw!
This condition has a psychological basis. Teacher Flashner maintains. Women are afraid to mar their daintiness by using the proper muscular approach, and men want to prove their ruggedness by fighting the claws tooth and nail.

To break down the inhibitions, Flashner provides bibs for his pupils. With no fear of splattering on themselves, they then can heave to with a will, using the various instruments essential to proper lobster-eating. These include a knife and fork for the shelled body, a lobster-cracker to pierce the claws' shells and a small fork to remove the meat. This succulent meat is worth all the trouble you must undergo to get at it, Flashner is convinced.

Flashner himself is a genial man who was born in Haifa and began his career at the famous Marguery in Paris as bus-boy, and worked his way up through a number of distinguished European restaurants.

You Can Get Lit Up Now For Operations

By H. W. BLAKESLEE
Wide World Features
NEW YORK — The surgeon now can light up your body with an internal glow, the better to see certain important facts about where to operate.

The glow is produced by fluorescein, a common drug, which fluoresces under ultra violet light. Drs. Kurt Lange and Linn J. Body of New York Medical College describe the drug.

In some major operations around the abdomen it is necessary to remove tissues which have lost too much of their blood supply. But they appear no different than healthy tissues around them.

The surgeon injects some fluorescein into a vein and in a few seconds, usually much less than half a minute, the color shows up all through the body, carried by the circulating blood. But it does not appear in the diseased area and lack of fluorescent glow tells the surgeon what he wants to know.

The glow is yellow-green. It is not ordinarily visible, but shows up under the rays of an ordinary ultra violet lamp.

The drug is also used to find out how long the blood takes to circulate throughout a human body. In normal adults is 15 to 20 seconds. In some heart cases the time may run a minute or longer.

ing. Hay cut during September and October is more palatable because spring and early summer cuttings dry excessively.

Gibson suggests that the early crop of grain sorghums should be put into the silo. In some cases, he explains, it may be advisable to cut off the heads and put the stalks into the silo. The second crop of grain sorghums, and also the late crop, could be cut and cured for dry bundle feed.

Cattle need some hay or dry feed along with green pasture and with silage. The better the quality of hay bundle feed the more good it will do cattle.

"There is plenty of room for improvement in the quality of the hay and dry bundle feed in Texas," Gibson declares.

Navy Calling For Radio Operators, And Repair Men

An urgent call for men interested in radio work was issued today at the U. S. Navy Recruiting Station at Big Spring.

Operators, repair and service men and technicians between the ages of 17 and 50 years are especially wanted for enlistment in petty officer ratings with beginning pay ranging from $78.00 to $96.00. Inexperienced men between the ages of 17 and 28 years may be enlisted as apprentice seamen with beginning pay of $50.00 and, if qualified in accordance with standards for entrance in Navy schools, be assigned to Navy radio school upon completion of recruit training. Men who fail to qualify for or in radio school will be retained in the naval service in rating and pay in which qualified to hold.

All enlisted men of the navy receive 20 per cent addition to base pay for sea service or foreign duty. Married men are also allowed extra pay for their family.

Regulation "W" Explained For Benefit Of Public

What is regulation "W"?

1. Regulation "W" does not interfere with your use of your regular charge account or the amount of monthly credit that is extended you. BUT it stipulates that your credit in a given month must be paid in full by the tenth day of the second month before you can continue the use of the account. For example, if you buy a coat for $50.00, and a hat for $7.50, and a pair of shoes for $10.95 during the month of August, you will owe $68.45 which you MUST pay in full by October 10th (or sooner). If any part of your August purchases are unpaid by October 10th your account becomes "frozen," and the retailer IS NOT PERMITTED by the Government to make any further charges to your open account until you cure or unfreeze your account.

2. Regulation "W" permits time or instalment account. A down payment of 1-3 on apparel is required by the Government before merchandise bought on this basis can be delivered to you.

3. Regulation "W" permits the extension of credit on longer terms to those whose income is of a seasonal nature, such as farmers, ranchers and others who receive their income semi-annually.

4. Regulation "W" does not apply to purchases made on the Deposit-Account System (Lay-away Plan). You may continue to reserve merchandise by the deposit of the customary percentage of the purchase price.

HOW DOES REGULATION "W" AFFECT YOU?

Retail credit in the United States has always been extended on the theory that 99.99 per cent of the customers were honest. That's why credit authorization was so prompt. Now, since July 10th, it has become necessary for every retailer in the country to check the status of any account before the charge purchase can be delivered. This results in much slower service, to be sure, but a situation which is unavoidable and for which public forbearance is solicited. You may be irritated and inconvenienced at times when you find your account "frozen" because of an insignificant outstanding balance. But try to remember, please, that your retailer is only carrying out a regulation of our Government—a regulation designed to curb inflation. We think we speak for the Retailer when we say he is keenly alive to his responsibility during this National Emergency, and, as the Public's Quartermaster, he will lend his entire support to carrying out the spirit of this Regulation as well as the word.

Collier Parris Now Hotel Victory Garden At Lubbock As Navy Recruiter

DALLAS, Aug. 12. (Spl.)—Collier Parris, former sports editor of the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal publications, has been transferred from the U. S. Navy Recruiting station at Dallas to the Navy substation at Lubbock, and has assumed his new duties under the direction of Chief Quartermaster J. E. Calloway, officer in charge.

This announcement was made by Lieutenant L. H. Ridout, Jr., officer in charge of the Dallas District Recruiting station, following a three weeks period of training and indoctrination for Parris at the Dallas station. He was enlisted as Yeoman, third class petty officer, after resigning as sports editor of the Lubbock newspaper—a position he had held for twelve years.

As a fourth member of the Lubbock substation recruiting staff, Parris has been assigned public relations and publicity duties, in addition to regular recruiting service both inside and out of the Lubbock office. R. L. "Dick" Yeargin and Neill Walker, yeomen, second class petty officers, in addition to Chief Calloway, are veteran members of the Lubbock staff.

Recruiting officers of the Lubbock substation will continue to make regular calls at established stations of the 15-county South Plains area making up the Lubbock recruiting territory—appearing in Taijoka each Monday, Brownfield on Tuesday, Levelland on Wednesday, Littlefield on Thursday, Plainview on Friday and Floydada on Saturday.

Men interested in taking advantage of the wartime opportunities offered by the Navy are invited to contact the recruiters when they visit those towns, or to come to the Lubbock station for interviews and information.

An enlistment quota of 180 men has been set for the Lubbock district for the month of August, and it is only through the willingness of men to "join up" and serve their country, at the same time help themselves, that the quota can be attained. Age limits are 17 to 50.

Jitterbug Pilots Got Rhythm

Wide World Features

PORTLAND, Ore. — From the jitter palaces of America may come control of the fighting air, thinks Duward J. von Zeuthen, who is not without the background to judge.

Says this casualty of the China skies, "good flying is a matter of rhythm. The Japs don't have rhythm in their systems, but America's young jitterbugs have lots of it. They get it from their jazz and boogie-woogie dances and they are making the world's best fliers."

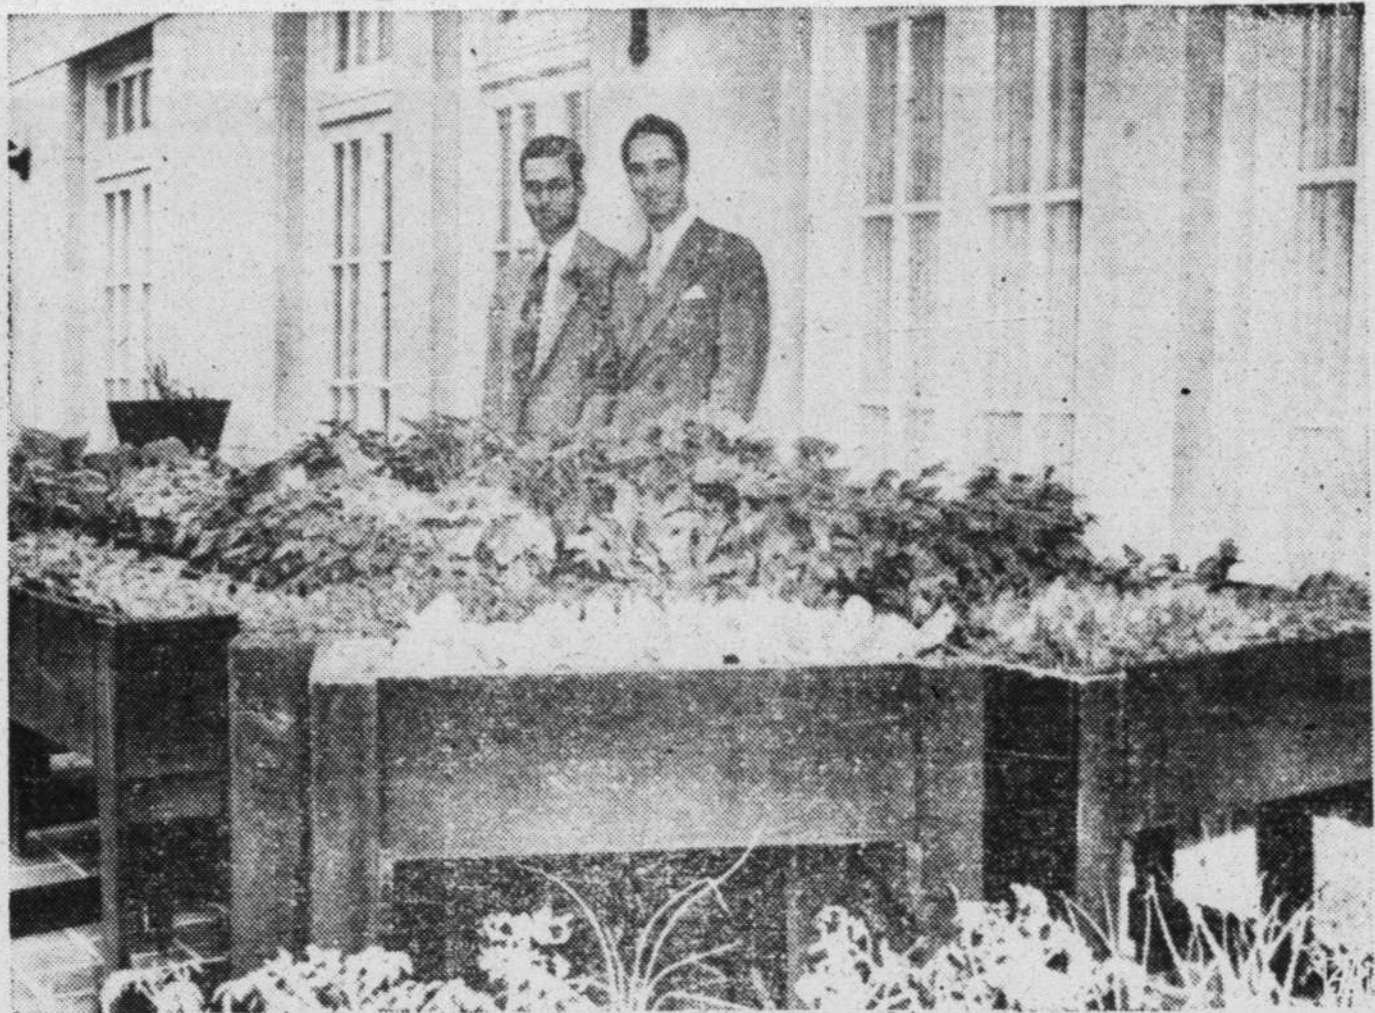

Van Zeuthen fought Japs over China in 1937 and 1938, leaving a position as junior engineer in the great Crown Mines, Ltd., at Baguio, the Philippines' largest gold mining operation, to fly for Chiang Kai-shek. For 16 months he gave the Japs the best he had as a pilot for Gen. Andrew Wong. He rose to the rank of major.

But a guy's luck doesn't last indefinitely in that business and one day a Zero pilot put a handfull of small-calibre bullets through von Zeuthen's P-40 and himself. He fell into the Whang-Po north of Shanghai from which a Chinese family rescued him.

ARABIAN PRINCE IN U. S. ARMY
FORT KNOX, Ky. (AP) — The Free French lost a prince of a soldier when the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor.

That is true literally as well as figuratively, because Alfred H. M. He is enrolled in the officer candidate training school.

(Continued from Front Page) Exhibition bronc riding, steer riding and bulldogging by nationally known performers will be staged as added attractions.

Cancellation of the 1942 Midland Rodeo, due to war conditions, recently was announced by members of the rodeo committee of Midland Fair, Inc., who also announced plans for bigger and better Midland rodeos after the duration. They expressed appreciation to all citizens of West Texas and New Mexico, who have supported Midland Rodeos and who have had parts in making Rodeo one of the outstanding cowboy attractions of the nation. While the matched calf roping card will in no way replace the Midland Rodeo, officials feel that the roping card will afford soldiers and other new comers to this section an opportunity to witness a bit of West Texas cowboy showmanship. Soldiers will be admitted to the roping at half price.

Thousands of workers continue to apply for their social security account number cards in person, according to Adams, who pointed out that while a personal call might be necessary in some instances, most applicants may readily secure their original or their duplicate cards by mail. "This not only saves the applicant time and money but aids the war effort through reduced use of automobiles and public transportation facilities," Adams said. The following suggestions were offered to workers who desire to obtain their social security numbers by mail:

1. Obtain Form SSS-5, "Application for Social Security Account Number," from the nearest Social Security Board office either by telephone or letter. Application forms are also available at all post offices and United States Employment Service offices.
2. Carefully read the instructions for filling in the form. These in-

Farmers To Be Paid For Using Cotton Bagging

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — Cotton farmers who wrap their bales in cotton bagging henceforth will receive payment for seven pounds in addition to the gross weight of their bales, the National Cotton Council announced today.

Under agreements completed by the Council between mills, trade associations, and cotton exchanges, all trading rules governing the buying and selling of cotton have been amended to compensate the seller for use of cotton bagging in place of burlap, jute or other materials.

"These agreements," according to Hugh M. Comer, cotton mill executive and chairman of the Council's committee on cotton bale covering, "reverse the former procedure which the farmer was penalized for use of his own product. They indemnify him completely for the difference in weight between cotton bagging and jute bagging, and remove the last obstacle to the adoption of cotton wrappings for cotton bales throughout the entire industry."

Mr. Comer said, that serious shortages of jute and burlap for use on cotton bales had made it imperative that protection be given to farmers in time for the movement of the current crop. In recognition of such shortages, the Department of Agriculture has subsidized the manufacture of sufficient cotton bagging to cover four million bales, or approximately one-third of the 1942 crop. Under previous practices, the difference in weight between these cotton coverings and the heavier jute would have resulted in direct cash loss to farmers in excess of $5,000,000.

Associations and exchanges which have added the seven pound allowance plan to their trade rules for the benefit of farmers using cotton wrappings are the American Manufacturers Association; the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers; New England Cotton Buyers Association; American Cotton Shippers Association; the Southern Cotton Shippers Association; Texas Cotton Association; Oklahoma State Cotton Exchange; California-Arizona Cotton Association; the Memphis Cotton Exchange; Houston Cotton Exchange; New Orleans Cotton Exchange; Galveston Cotton Exchange; Augusta Cotton Exchange; and Little Rock Cotton Exchange.

"This addition to the trading instructions are given on the reverse side of the form itself.

3. Each item on the application form must be filled in. If the information called for in any item is not known, write "unknown."

4. Print (in blue or black ink) or use typewriter for all items except signature.

5. Use full names and not initials unless it is an initial name in which case draw a line after each initial to indicate that it is an initial name.

6. If the employee has ever had a social card before he must fill in item 11 of the application in full. He should also write his old number on the application if he has kept a record of it.

7. Women who have married since they obtained their first card and who have not changed their name on our records should obtain a "Request for Change of Records" (Form OAAAN-7003) rather than Form SS-5. Upon the basis of this form they may obtain their duplicate card and change their name on our records at the same time. They should place their old number on the form and return it together with their old card if they have it.

8. The mail address on the application must be correct as this is the address to which the card will be mailed.

Sign applications as name is usually written.

10. Mail application to nearest Social Security Board office.

"Clerks assigned the duty of processing mail application see to it that immediate action is taken on all such applications," Adams said.

U. S. CITIZENSHIP SPEEDED FOR SOLDIERS

FORT MASON, Calif. — Seven American soldiers walked into the superior courtroom in the Hall of Records at Martinez, Contra Costa County.

They were a diversified group. There was the Russian, with straw-colored hair and mustache and pale blue eyes; there was the dark Venezuelan with shining black eyes and the white smile.

rules is a much more satisfactory plan than was the net-weight trading law proposed through legislation," Mr. Comer explained. "With the allowance established in the trading rules, a farmer who takes to market a bale of cotton wrapped in cotton bagging will have seven pounds added to the gross weight of his bale, whereby under a net weight law the buyer would be required to deduct 22 pounds from the gross weight of a jute covered bale and 15 pounds from a cotton covered bale."

In addition to Chairman Comer, the committee that worked out the new procedure consisting of the following members: A. K. Winget, Albenarle, North Carolina; W. A. Floyd, Greenville, South Carolina; Robert R. Coker, Hartsville, South Carolina; N. C. Williamson, Lake Providence, Louisiana; T. W. Steiner, Gonzales, Texas; L. T. Barringer, Memphis, Tennessee; Charles W. Shepard, Jr., Gadsden, Alabama; and J. M. Locke, Houston, Texas.

NO SHORT CUT TO THE ARMY

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — Stanley Norman, shoe clerk, was employed in a store only a block from the Army's induction center in Tacoma when he was ordered to report for duty. Army regulations, however, prevented him from walking over to the center to take his examination. Instead he had to go to his former home in Bellingham and then return to Tacoma with two other selectees, traveling approximately 250 miles instead of one block.

Between these two were a Pole, a Yugoslav, a Scot, a French-Canadian and an Englishman.

Ten minutes later they emerged from the courtroom, no longer nationals of seven different countries, but citizens of the United States—thanks to the new stripped-for-action naturalization process which the government offers men in military service.

It was done in one session, without the usual first papers, second papers and long wait between. Their officers vouched for their characters and good standing, the men answered the necessary questions before an examiner, signed the necessary forms and took the oath of citizenship.

Every time a ton of scrap iron or steel is used, more than four tons of iron ore, coal, limestone and other natural resources are saved.

THANKS TO YOU---

19 years ago we came to Lamesa and started in the Auto Parts business. Our first building was a small wooden building on the northeast corner of the square. Later we Moved to a location on North First

This was a larger building, but with the increase of business this building became very crowded.

Now we are located on South Dallas Street in one of the nicest buildings in Lamesa. We have one of the largest and most complete stocks of any Auto Parts house in West Texas, and are enjoying an excellent business. For all this we are thankful, and we wish to thank our many customers, and as we enter our twentieth year we want to promise to each of you the same courteous and friendly service in the future as in the past. Visit us in our present location.
