BOTH HOUSES RUSH PASSAGE OF COTTON BILLS

Drainage, Marketing And Colonization Set As Goals Of Valley Development

250 ATTEND MASS MEETING TO PLAN WORK

Greever Authorized to Name Committee of Seven For Program

LEADERS PLEDGE AID

Opportunities Here Finest In Entire Country Says Remington

Appointment of a committee of seven persons to formulate a tentative program designed to bring about adequate drainage, year-round marketing facilities, and small-farm colonization of the Wichita irrigated valley was authorized by about 250 representative citizens of this county assembled at the Kemp hotel Thursday afternoon for an open discussion of the problem.

B. B. Greever, who acted as chairman Thursday, was instructed to select the seven committee members at the earliest possible hour, and the meeting asked that the committee's report be made the occasion for a county-wide mass meeting to be held in this city in the near future.

Kell Gives Views

Action of the body in authorizing the appointment of a planning committee followed a series of short talks by Mr. Greever, Burton Stayton, G. A. Remington, Dr. W. P. Bolding, R. S. Fidler, and Frank Kell. Mr. Kell declared in closing his belief that "a great deal can be done, by organizing closely, to work out this problem to the end that this irrigation system will be as much an asset to our community as any such system is to any community in the United States." Cooperation, intelligent advice, persistence, and patience will be required for the successful formulation and execution of a plan, he said.

Speakers who addressed the assembly here Thursday emphasized the importance of the three objectives assigned to the planning committee as the goal of their endeavors. It was pointed out that adequate drainage is invariably a requisite to successful operation of an irrigation system. The need of a dependable and profitable outlet for produce was declared, and much stress was placed upon the desirability of small farms, saleable at lower than current prices.

While the meeting was brought about primarily through efforts of local business men who are active on important committees of the chamber of commerce, the discussion quickly revealed the purpose of the gathering as one common to the entire community.

All parts of the county were represented, and it was indicated that several hundred additional representatives of both rural districts and cities in Wichita county may be expected when the planning committee's report is ready for presentation.

Reflecting the thought emphasized by Mr. Kell, it was indicated in discussion of future development of the movement that each of the seven committee members probably will head a separate organization of citizens assigned to the study of one particular phase of the problem. Departments for promoting drainage, marketing, colonization, etc., separately were suggested in the recommendations offered.

Greever States Problem

In opening the meeting, Mr. Greever declared that the irrigated val-

Commission Frames New Order To Hold East Texas In Check

AUSTIN, Sept. 17. (UP)—A new oil order for East Texas setting a maximum production figure for the "world's biggest field" as well as an individual well maximum, had been drafted here tonight by the state railroad commission on the eve of an oil conference to be held here tomorrow. Commissioner Thurman Hill of Kansas, Cicero Murray of Oklahoma and other attendants will be present.

The new order was drawn today. Absence of Commissioner Pat M. Neff prevented final action.

Both Chairman C. V. Terrell and Commissioner Lon Smight refused to reveal the proposed limitations. It was reported about the capitol that unless they revise their estimates that the well allowable will be 185 barrels a day and that the field will not be permitted to run over 400,000 barrels a day.

Existing limitations are 225 barrels per well per day, with no field maximum. Recent reports have shown a daily field run of around 425,000 barrels a day.

Commissioner Smith admitted that an attempt will be made to fix a field maximum. He said it had not been determined what that maximum should be. He reiterated a former statement that the field should not be allowed to run "over 400,000" barrels a day.

28 Stores to Unveil Windows Tonight In Annual Display of New Fall Goods

Four Bands to Play in Business Area During Evening; Judges To Select Best Windows in Contest

All is in readiness for Wichita Falls merchants to unveil their display windows, showing new fall merchandise, Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock, in the annual window display contest, it was announced Thursday.

A total of 28 business houses had entered the contest Thursday.

Hundreds of shoppers are expected to throng business streets Friday night to view the displays, which, at this season, are more beautiful than at any other time in the year. Particular care is taken by merchants to create the most attractive displays during the annual contest.

Candy for Children

Preceding the unveiling of windows, band concerts will be heard on the streets. Four Wichita Falls bands will play at various corners until 7:30. At the moment for unveiling, the shrill-throated siren whistle atop the Fort Worth & Denver roundhouse will announce the opening of the fall shopping season.

All stores will be closed Friday night, although representatives of contesting merchants will distribute hundreds of sticks of candy to children who are downtown with their parents to view the displays.

Awards will be made in the contest according to merchandise classifications, which are women's ready-to-wear, millinery, shoes, men's wear, boys' wear, furniture, hardware and electrical supplies, jewelry, drugs, books and stationery, and piece goods. For each classification there will be a first prize of $2.50, a second prize of $1, and a third prize of honorable mention.

Judges in the event will be Emil Hermann, artist; Mrs. Newton Maer, representing the Woman's Forum; Mrs. Harry ten Brink, representing the parent-teacher associations; Don Haynes, representing

35 TO FACE DRY CHARGES

Liquor, Autos and Supplies Seized in Raids

Complaints will be filed before United States Commissioner M. E. Peters Friday morning at 9 o'clock against 35 persons, including 12 women, who were taken into custody Thursday morning by federal and city officers in a sudden and extensive prohibition raid.

The entire group of suspects were placed in the Wichita county jail late Thursday afternoon. Many of them had been held in the city jail during a portion of the day. The raid was made so rapidly and so early in the day, that much confusion resulted among relatives of the prisoners. Frequent calls, both personal and telephoned, were made at the office of Deputy United States Marshal J. T. Bentley Thursday in search of missing men and women.

The drive made Thursday shortly after daybreak was directed by Claud B. Cooper of Dallas, prohibition enforcement administrator for the northern district of Texas. Four prohibition agents and city officers A. L. Stubblefield, George Garrett, Tom Poe and Bob Miller, assisted him. Two weeks of quiet preparation preceded the raid, it was said.

Six automobiles were seized, five of which will be held for possible confiscation by the government, Mr. Cooper said. Approximately 100 gallons of liquor was taken. It included whisky, home brew, alcohol, wine and supplies. Several new five-gallon pressure containers, the first of the type he has seen, were reported by Mr. Cooper as among the property seized Thursday.

Twenty-four places were raided. The largest single quantity of liquor taken was a lot of 12 gallons of whisky found in an automobile standing beside a house where two women were arrested, officers stated.

Missionary Dies After Lion Fight

CAPE TOWN, Union of South Africa, Sept. 17. (AP)—The Rev. Myron Taylor, a member of a mission operated by the American Brethren in Christ, died today at Choma after a furious struggle with a wounded lion.

The beast had escaped from a trap and the missionary fired after it three times with his rifle, but missed. The lion charged and Taylor's gun jammed. His native crew fled and the lion leaped upon the missionary.

Trying to ward off the attack he thrust his hands toward the beast and both hands were bitten off. The lion clawed him horribly and then made off. When the natives returned Taylor was unconscious.

Moyle and Allen May Be Flying To Nome or Tokyo—Or Still on Isle

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 17. (UP)—Cecil Allen and Don Moyle, the transpacific aviators who turned up alive a week after the world had given them up as dead, may be flying to Nome tonight.

Or perhaps they are skimming toward Tokyo. Again they may be on a Russian boat off the Siberian coast. And finally, they still may be marooned on an island in one of the most desolate regions remaining in the world.

The steamer Buriat, which first sent a vague wireless message yesterday saying they were safe, relayed another almost equally as vague a message today, saying the fliers were prepared to take off, but neglecting to give their destination.

"Plane refuelled from the Buriat," said the bulletin. "Fliers expect to take off today from the island, weather permitting."

Government radio stations at Cordove and St. Paul's island attempted in vain to contact the Buriat for further details. The fact that the Buriat's operator knew no English and the American operators could not send in Russian added to the difficulties.

Moyle, who faces a Los Angeles jail sentence for reckless driving, and Allen, who says he has no further reason for living since his fiance was killed in an air crash last March, landed on Navarit island, near Cape Navarin, the Buriat revealed.

The island is closer to Alaska than it is to Siberia. Hence aviation enthusiasts here believed Moyle and Allen probably would head their second hand plane for Nome, rather than for Tokyo.

STERLING MAY LEAD PAY CUT

Governor Offers to Slash His Own Salary

AUSTIN, Sept. 17. (UP)—Gov. Ross Sterling tonight led the movement for reduction of state salaries with an offer to take a 10 per cent cut in his $4,000 a year salary, if the reduction bill is put through.

The governor is one of several officials whose salary is set by the constitution. Voluntary reductions alone can affect them.

"I am speaking only for myself," said the governor. "It would not be contingent on other constitutional officers to da the same," he said, in laughing reference to proposed reciprocal cotton legislation.

"Some of them have salaries so low they could not take a cut."

Tonight 98 house members were pledged to the agreement for a 10 per cent cut in salaries over $1,800 a year. The governor said his agreement to submit the topic for legislation at the special session was dependent on 100 house members agreeing and 21 senators. He said he had no indication from the senate so far. There were 97 names on a reduction bill from the house and an additional members was reported to have agreed.

CANNON BACK FROM EUROPE FULL OF FIGHT

Bishop Will Oppose Candidacy of Roosevelt For President

WANTS JURY PROBE

Militant Clergyman Shows Improved Health On Return

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—Bishop James Cannon Jr., storm center of a senatorial investigation, came home from Europe tonight with a plea that a grand jury be compelled to investigate his disposal of funds in the last presidential campaign and with a vow he would work for prohibition "till I die."

As he walked down the gangplank of the liner Mauretania with a smile on his face, he appeared not at all the invalid he was when he sailed seven weeks ago. Then he carried a crutch. He lost it in a taxicab in Paris, he explained, but he insisted he had no need for it anyway.

Nothing to Say

"I have nothing to say about anything," he told reporters who found him, as the liner approached quarantine, in a modest tourist cabin he had occupied with three young men.

Several questions were asked, however, and the bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, spent the next 45 minutes answering them in characteristically forceful manner, as he finished some last minute packing.

He accused Tammany hall of being in alliance with the underworld. He said he would under no circumstances support Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt for president, because "he's an out-and-out wet."

Favors McAdoo

He will support President Hoover for re-election if the Democrats nominate a wet, he asserted, but prefers to see the Democrats put up William G. McAdoo, who he said he was sure could be elected.

The bishop said he never had diverted any money turned over to him for political purposes to his own personal use.

Regarding investigation of his handling of anti-Smith funds by the Nye committee he said:

"If Senator Nye thinks I am going to neglect my church work to attend his meetings, which are illegal, he is mistaken. If he wants to see me I will see him.

"But if there is to be any investigation let be in legal order and by the grand jury. I have asked time and again for a grand jury investigation. I want and will welcome such an investigation, but we can't seem to get it."

Texas Senators In Double Danger, Bugs Baer Says

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

TAKE THAT BACK SUH, OR ELSE—

Texas senate adopted a resolution calling Governor Long of Louisiana a consummate liar.

Which is far worse than calling a southern gentleman a bad judge of liquor.

That's a fighting word down in Texas unless honor and chivalry have been affected by the general depression.

The usual parliamentary procedure is to insinuate that the esteemed contemporary is slightly mistaken. Then you smack him with a gavel and dodge the ink well.

But when you call a man a liar down there you want to be sure the back door is open.

The action of the Texas senate calls for a duel under the old oak tree. Which is a proceeding dangerous to life and limb. For, even if the aim is bad under the old oak, the squirrels are nearsighted and hungry.

Bank of England Governors Demand Definite Stand Against Election

Secret Conference Held With MacDonald to Present 'Grave Condition' of British Exchange Situation

LONDON, Sept. 18. (Friday) (UP)—The Daily Mail said today that the board of governors of the Bank of England paid "an unprecedented visit" to Prime Minister MacDonald in the house of commons last night and "informed him of the precariousness of the exchange situation."

The newspaper said that affairs of Britain were "most grave," chiefly as a result of the recent unrest in the navy and talk of a general election.

The Daily Mail said the board of governors predicted an "alarming fall" of the exchange rate of the pound sterling unless the government definitely announces there will be no general election immediately.

A cabinet meeting was called to consider the situation, but when it was dismissed at midnight no announcement was made. The Daily Herald, labor organ, confirmed that the bankers visited the cabinet meeting. MacDonald was described as urging a definite decision for or against a general election. The Liberal party leaders met and directed Sir Herbert Samuel, secretary of state for home affairs, to inform the cabinet they opposed a general election.

Since the coalition government was formed to meet Britain's na-

Pretty Wife of Professor Drowned By Husband, Coroner's Jury Holds

HAMPTON, Va., Sept. 17. (US)—The coronor's jury investigating the death of pretty Mrs. Jennie Graham Kane, this afternoon found that she "came to her death at 11 a. m. on Sept. 11 at Grand View beach from drowning at the hands of her husband. It was a deliberate and premeditated murder."

A four-day coroner's hearing followed the arrest last Sunday of Prof. Elisha Kent Kane, after the funeral for his drowned wife.

The coroner's verdict came as a blow to the influential relatives and friends of the young professor of language at the University of Tennessee, whose family is one of the oldest and proudest in Pennsylvania.

The case against Prof. Kane took a sensational turn just before noon when Dr. George K. Vanderslice, coroner, appeared in the circuit court and charged that another woman had suggested to Professor Kane that he get rid of his wife, so they "could go to unusual places and do unusual things."

Dr. Vanderslice told the court he had the contents of one letter to Professor Kane, signed E. H. D., in which the writer urged him to hurry with the plans for a trip to Europe.

It was disclosed that when Professor Kane was arrested last Sunday after the funeral, he had his bags packed and had $1,000 worth of his dead wife's jewelry in his pockets, according to testimony before Circuit Judge C. Vernon Spratley this morning.

Dr. Vanderslice told the court he

SENATE KILLS LONG PROPOSAL BY 19-9 VOTE

House Passes Finally Its One-Third Acreage Measure

CONFERENCE LIKELY

Both Bills Aim at Holding State's Production to 50 Per Cent

AUSTIN, Sept. 17. (UP)—Bills to restrict the cotton yield of Texas for the next two years to half its normal size were pushed rapidly through both houses of the "farmers' session" of the Texas legislature late today.

The state senate rejected Gov. Huey Long's "cotton baby," a bill asking for a complete cotton holiday next year, by a 19 to 9 vote. Its action left before it a bill restricting the cotton planting of 1932 and 1933 to 25 per cent of the tilled soil in the previous year.

The house passed finally its bill restricting cotton planting for the next two years to one-third the cultivated land by vote of 86 to 32.

Watch Other States

Despite the variance in percentage figures in the two bills, both aim to hold the yearly cotton yield for 1932 and 1933 to approximately 2,500,000 bales. Differences in the two bills will likely be ironed out by a conference committee.

Tonight both houses looked beyond the borders of the Lone Star state in an effort to see possible action of other cotton growing states. An amendment to the senate bill, which would annual provisions of its measure if states producing 75 per cent of the cotton crop failed to follow in Texas footsteps by Jan. 15, was defeated 26 to 4.

"Even if other states failed to adopt similar legislation, Texas would be better off to let its cotton law stand," Gov. Ross Sterling commented tonight.

"However, I'm not worrying about other states. They will follow the lead of Texas."

Repeal Section Killed

After finally passing its reduction bill the house adopted a resolution asking other cotton states to take similar action. A clause of the resolution pledging members to petition the governor for a repeal session in case states raising 75 per cent of cotton do not respond, was stricken out.

A resolution to send a Texas committee to urge action in other states was also defeated.

Resolution asked the federal farm board to hold its cotton off the market until Jan. 1, 1930, and one requesting congress to arrange a billion dollar foreign loan to increase commodity purchases, were adopted.

Representative A. P. Johnson, chairman of the house committee that handled the Texas house bill, said that passage of a "Long plan"

GOALS SET FOR VALLEY

County-Wide Mass Meeting Scheduled Later

ley admittedly comprises a serious problem for the entire county.

"Most of us realize," he said, "that the situation may be catalogued in one of two ways. Either our system is a failure, and if so, we should begin now to salvage all of value from it that we can; or it is potentially successful, and it is high time for us to apply high-powered energy to the fuller realization of that success."

Mistakes made early in the history of the irrigation work here, he said, included lack of drainage, over-valuation of lands, failure to secure enough experienced irrigation farmers, and lack of proper organization among land owners and producers. Mr. Greever also stressed the importance of ascertaining more definitely just what may be grown satisfactorily in this section.

"Wichita Falls always has gone after whatever it needed," said Mr. Stayton, "and it will do the same thing now. This can't be done in a hurry. But within a few years we shall be able to look back upon this present problem from the viewpoint of successful solution."

Mr. Remington, general manager of the Wichita County Water Improvement Districts Nos. 1 and 2, reviewed briefly the history of irrigation. He stated that the first such development in the United States was the system installed at San Antonio in 1715 by the Spanish settlers. Those ducts still are carrying water, he said. Concluding his sketch of irrigation development, he said:

"Opportunities in this district can not be excelled anywhere in the entire country. There are projects in the northern parts of the United States, constructed by the government, which never should have been built. Some are 25 years old, but have never paid for themselves. But in six or seven years, we have paid $979,000 on our bonded debt of a little more than $6,000,000.

"Our great needs here are drainage and colonization," Mr. Remington continued, "but both these depend upon agriculture. We must first successfully develop paying crops; something besides cotton. We must show people where they can make a living before we can successfully colonize this land. It then will go to $300, $400 or $500 per acre. This problem can not be unwound overnight; it will come gradually, but in time this valley will be one of the garden spots of the earth."

Dr. Bolding declared that "a little of everything" is the key to success in farming, and that this principle must be followed by those who cultivate irrigated land in the Wichita valley.

"Cheap land, small farms, diversification, markets, are the four fundamentals," he said.

R. S. Fidler, manager of the J. C. Penney company store, said that in this irrigated district, as in others, there perhaps are two types of farmers; those who irrigate, and those who cultivate. Neither of those practices is sufficient in itself, he said, but must be properly blended to produce results. He emphasized the importance of developing a market within Wichita Falls, so that visitors to this area may see just what the outlying parts of the county will produce.

Mr. Kell, in his talk, also cited instances in which other irrigation systems have had troubles with improper drainage, and told how those conditions have been corrected to bring about successful and profitable farming.

Appointment of the committee authorized by the meeting will be made this week, Mr. Greever announced Thursday evening.

tional financial emergency, there have been many conflicting reports on the time at which the Labor party, now led by Arthur Henderson, would pit its strength against the Liberals and Conservatives in an effort to win a majority in parliament. The Daily Herald recently predicted an October election, but well informed sources scoffed at the report.

SAILORS WARNED OF PUNISHMENT

LONDON, Sept. 17. (UP)—The government warned British sailors tonight that further insubordination would be dealt with severely, but indicated that it would not prosecute seamen who paralyzed the Atlantic fleet for three days protesting against wage cuts.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, loudly cheered by all sections of the house of commons, declared that "the past is past and it is to the interest of every one in and out of the navy to forget."

"I am not looking back," the first lord of the admiralty said. "I am looking forward, confident that we will go forward together in the service of our country."

Chamberlain's declaration climaxed a day of rapid developments in which the coalition government of Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald sought to prevent the dissatisfaction over pay cuts from spreading to other branches of the navy, to police, school teachers and various civil servants.

act would be considered legislation in line with that of Texas.

Alabama, Arkansas, Georgia, Oklahoma and Mississippi are the only states other than Texas that raise over a million bales of cotton. Action by four of them would give the 75 per cent of all American cotton which is sought. Based on 1930 reports, the other cotton states are South Carolina with 833,000 bales, Louisiana with 797,000, North Carolina with 767,000, Tennessee with 504,000, Virginia with 47,000, Florida, 29,000. Arizona, New Mexico and California raise small amounts, comparatively.

The house one-third restriction bill was under fire throughout the day by lawmakers who wished to revise or tack on new clauses.

Senate Debate

In the senate amendment guns were trained on the 25 per cent restriction clause. Efforts to change it to 40 and 50 per cent were defeated. Senator Charles S. Gainer of Bryan offered a substitute plan for the entire bill. He proposed a "cotton sabbath" for 1932, a 25 per cent restriction for 1933, and rotation of crops thereafter. His plan was buried in a 21 to 9 vote.

Senator J. W. Stevenson of Victoria sought to replace the senate bill with a plan calling for simple rotation of crops. His amendment was tabled, 19 to 11.

The senate bill was amended, however, to exempt cotton experiment stations in Texas. This amendment, by Senator W. K. Hopkins, was adopted without a roll call.

believed the letters were from a woman named Etta Dodd, or Betty Dodd, said to be a broadway dancer. There were also letters between Professor Kane and his wife, all said to be in affectionate terms.

Besides the action of the coroner's jury in returning a verdict of murder, Professor Kane was held for the grand jury charged with "deliberately premeditated murder."

The coroner's investigation determined that the death of Mrs. Kane had been caused by drowning, although Dr. Evans O'Neill Kane, father of the professor, and a famous surgeon of Kane, Pa., believed the son's wife might have died of heart disease.

Avoid thin hair!

.. get rid of DANDRUFF

When loose dandruff gets the upper hand, hair begins to fall out. Baldness often follows.

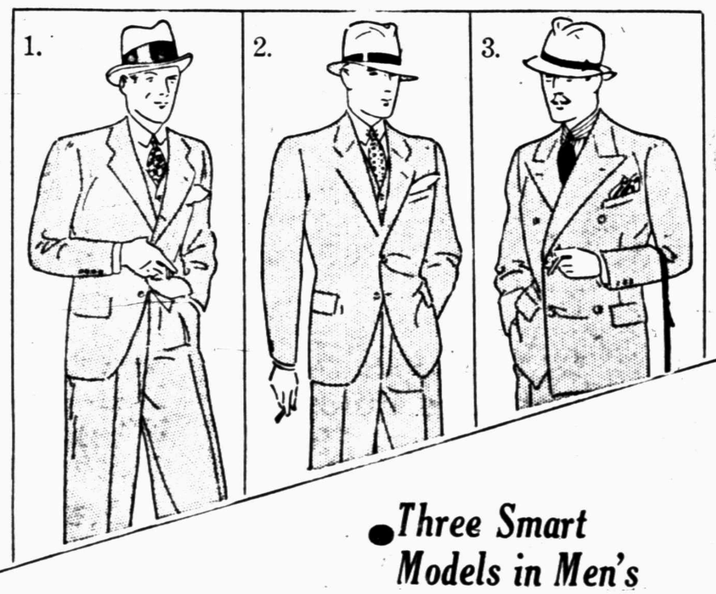

A quick, pleasant treatment for a dandruff condition is full strength Listerine, used systematically several days. You simply douse it on the scalp full strength and massage vigorously, using a little castor or olive oil when scalp or hair is excessively dry. Keep this treatment up for several days. You will be amazed at the quick improvement.

If infection is present on the surface of the skin, Listerine attacks it. A powerful germicide, it kills bacteria in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Listerine helps to dissolve oily crusts and quickly removes them, as well as horny scales. And Listerine quickly relieves that burning, itching sensation. It soothes inflamed or irritated areas of the scalp.

If scalp is excessively dry, a little olive oil may be used in connection with the Listerine shampoo, or independent of it. The oil aids in dissolving crusts and scales and keeps hair from drying out. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Missouri, U. S. A.

BYRNS WOULD TAX WEALTHY

Tennessee Demo Opposes Reed's Proposal

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—A Democratic house leader, Byrns of Tennessee, today said he favored legislation in the next congress to make those in the higher income tax brackets "pay their just proportion of the nation's taxes."

Representative Byrns is the ranking Democrat on the house appropriations committee, and probably would become its chairman if his party should organize the next house.

Opposes Sales Tax

He said he opposed the plan put forward by Senator Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, for a general sales tax.

"Why should we levy on the necessities of life that the average man and woman have to buy, when those with huge incomes are not paying what they should in taxes?" he asked.

The Tennessee Democrat said he favored in general the plan outlined by Representative Bacharach, Republican, New Jersey, under which those with incomes of more than $100,000 a year would have their taxes raised. Byrns, said however, that he saw no reason to exempt those with an income of $50,000 a year.

He said it was "economically unsound and politically immoral" to pass on the debts incurred by the extravagance of this generation to future generations. He added that he favored a balanced budget to take care of current operating expenses but that some of the debts incurred in building and road programs might well be passed on to the future since generations then would inherit some of the benefits.

Note Issue Unwise

Byrns said he thought the recent issue by the treasury of $1,600,000,000 in long term notes was unwise, and added that he opposed meeting the deficit by even short term notes if a revision in higher income tax brackets would meet the treasury deficit.

One way to meet the deficit, Byrns said, was to drastically reduce expenditures. He said that prospective savings announced by President Hoover were steps in the right direction but that the amount apparently would do very little good.

"The last congress was one of the most reckless and extravagant I ever saw," he said, "but even so were about $40,000,000 under the budget put forward with President Hoover's approval."

Federal Real Estate Loan Agency Urged

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Representative Bowman, Republican, West Virginia, today suggested to President Hoover that a governmental agency be created modeled on the Federal Reserve and the Federal Land bank system to rediscount loans secured by mortgages and deeds of trust on real estate.

The home owner Bowman said, finds his property deflated and no place to which he can go for relief because state banks and building and loan associations alone are left to handle such transactions and "in the present deflation of property these latter institutions find themselves unable to cope with the situation."

WICHITA FALLS SOCIETY AND CHURCH NEWS

District Mission Study School Well Attended

Music, reports and inspirational talks featured the meeting of representatives from 21 churches when approximately 75 women were present at the Y. W. C. A. Thursday in the district mission study school of instruction of the Methodist Woman's Missionary society. Mrs. C. L. Bounds, district superintendent, presided in the morning meeting which convened at 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Austin F. Leach gave the opening devotional, using as her theme "Workers Together With God," and Mrs. C. W. Coffey, accompanied by Mrs. Mode, sang "The Holy City." Both musicians were from Electra. Mrs. Bounds addressed the group on plans for mission study, outlining programs for work with the new book, "Challenge of Change," in an interesting manner. All groups will begin study of this book on home mission work and carry it through on comparatively the same plan.

Mrs. H. W. Barton, district secretary, presided in the afternoon session, opening at 1 o'clock, when Mrs. A. O. Basham of Electra gave the inspiring devotional on "Prayer."

Mrs. Stanley Raub sang, "Past It On," as a special musical number with Mrs. J. E. O'Brien at the piano and Mrs. Barton's message to the group was an enlightening talk on work to be done this autumn. Mrs. J. A. Curtis, who talked on children's work, stressed it as of more real importance than the senior work because it is the foundation on which the latter is built.

The closing message of the school was an inspirational talk given by Mrs. C. M. Simpson and was an encouraging note for the fine work in the district and the conference. To date, the missionary work is ahead of that done last year, and the speaker breathed courage, hope and promise for the district. She stressed all that women may do in their homes and churches to help, save and accomplish during the days of depression and used a story of Van Dyke's to illustrate the point that the real source of help is from above.

Members of missionary societies from the entire district were present at the meeting, which was held in the parlors of the Y. W. C. A.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Bruce Barton tells of a time when as he reached the death scene of a heroine in one of his boyhood's novels, some one in the next room began to sing "Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt," which he had never before heard. "That's my crying song," said Mr. Barton, "what is yours?"

Every one must have a song tangled with threads of sadness in his memory and I have many that range the plaintive theme. Songs that were sung to me by my mother make me sad because I think of the days when her voice was young and lilting and remember the days when suffering kept her from song.

Then I remember "Galilee," a hymn that once lifted me out of my young self to tread the shores of Paradise; the picture of that girl in memory brings tears to the eyes of a middle aged woman.

"Juanita" that some one else sang just as I knew first that people were not always honest and upright and truthful. Still a girl, not yet trained to sheathing her heart, her face to the skies and hurt by falsehood.

Then "Oh, That We Two Were Maying," which always makes my heart swell for no other reason than the sentiment and the exquisite melody. What fools we mortals are. Still, when I have no sentiment left, I would rather not be here.

There are some millions like myself who went to old fashioned meetings at church and heard audiences sing "My Faith Looks Up to Thee" and mean it. And who in missionary meetings, sang of "India's Coral Strand," with faint dreams of snow tipped mountains and roseate sands—feeling themselves loiterers in a land without beauty.

Without beauty! I was grown before I saw a sunset and glimpsed the moon and stars. The astounding miracle of nature dawned on me one night when I lay abed and listened to rain dripping on the roof.

I am a very poor woman and yet a very rich one. For the moments now when nature's beauty fills my soul I would make no price. I wish that I were able to give to young people the ecstacy of spirit that fills me when my eyes and ears see and hear beauty.

I have pictures as wonderful as any of Corot's best locked in my brain. I have seen the mist rise over the low lands round the winding Ford Deer river; I have stood at the side of a road and looked far away to where blue smoke curled from cabin chimneys and the haze of Indian summer glorified the earth.

I have driven for miles through woods that walked in majesty; yellow like beaten gold, red like dripping blood, maroon like a king's robe—the leaves of frost-touched forest trees danced down in the autumn; danced down to where a little later chestnut hunters would swish through their crisp thickness.

I have pictures of trees and hedges when rain had frozen and then snow had fallen and the sun had come out and made a be-diamonded landscape. And I have a vision of trees haunted by a mist of color—of sweet and sudden stillnesses when nature held her breath before spring come over the hill.

Poor—yes—but rich. I would not sell even the memory of one of my crying songs.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your headaches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

AIR RATES GIVEN SLASH

Two Planes Daily Between Wichita and Oklahoma

A double schedule between Wichita Falls and Ponca City, Okla., will be effected Friday over the Oklahoma-Texas air line, it was announced Thursday by R. H. Tarbutton, owner and operator. Two planes will be operated daily each way, instead of one as in the past.

Faster service will be available with the new schedule, it was declared. The flight time to Oklahoma City from Wichita Falls will be reduced 15 minutes and to Ponca City, 45 minutes. A reduction of 10 per cent on round trip fares will also be effected Friday, it was announced.

The use of four-place Cessna cabin types, with cruising speeds of 135 miles per hour, maximum 170 miles per hour, will result in the faster service, it was explained. Five-place ships previously have been used.

Schedules were announced as follows:

Flight No. 1, northbound, (daily) leave Wichita Falls 8 a. m.; leave Lawton, 8:15 a. m.; arrive Oklahoma City, 8:55 a. m.; leave Oklahoma City, 9 a. m.; arrive Ponca City, 9:45 a. m.

Flight No. 2, southbound, (no Sunday flight), leave Ponca City, 10 a. m.; arrive Oklahoma City, 10:45 a. m.; leave Oklahoma City, 10:50 a. m.; leave Lawton, 11:30 a. m.; arrive Wichita Falls, 11:45 a. m.

Flight No. 3, northbound, (no Sunday flight), leave Wichita Falls, 12:30 p. m.; leave Lawton, 12:45 p. m.; arrive Oklahoma City, 1:25 p. m.; leave Oklahoma City, 1:30 p. m.; arrive Ponca City, 2:15 p. m.

Flight No. 4, southbound, (daily), leave Ponca City, 2:35 p. m.; arrive Oklahoma City, 3:20 p. m.; leave Oklahoma City, 4:20 p. m.; leave Lawton, 5 p. m.; arrive Wichita Falls 5:15 p. m.

Don't Suffer So... This Medicine will Help You

Her Nervous Prostration

DO you know her... this poor woman who wakes up as tired as she went to bed?

Her head is still aching... her nerves are ragged... she's on the verge of tears as she faces another day of work.

"I can't go through it again... I can't. Oh, what is the matter? What shall I do?" she cries.

How many young women are fast approaching a nervous breakdown because they let suffering due to female weakness rob them of their strength and health.

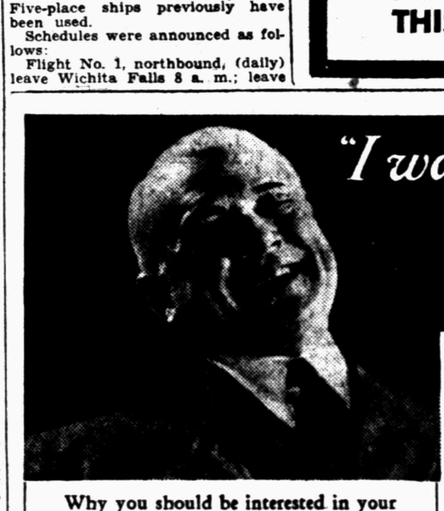

In offices or in their homes, they drive themselves, working "on their nerve." Hoping against hope that tomorrow they will feel better... but instead they become more and more prostrated.

Nature did not mean women to suffer so cruelly. If they would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound! It has befriended women against their "peculiar" troubles for over 50 years.

It brings soothing, comforting relief... gently corrects through its strengthening tonic action.

Give it at least one chance to help you. Get a bottle from your nearest druggist today. Or, try it in the new, convenient tablet form.

NEW! Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablet Form

—worth knowing:

—let's pause a moment to give those vital red cells the consideration they deserve. They mean so much for better health and happiness.

It is not fair to expect one to like work or to enjoy play with a "lowered" blood count.

So often the reason is simple—that good body of ours has "run-down" under the strain of our way of living... pressure of work and worry.

If this is your trouble why not take steps to overcome it—remembering that a "tired feeling" may be a warning... so are pimples, boils and paleness. A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health.

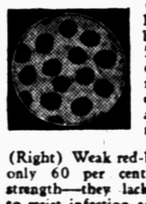

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants your giving it a good trial.

Why not start taking S.S.S. today?—the larger size represents a price saving.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

It is important to know that the red-blood-cells are the "ships" that sail in the blood stream and carry nourishment and oxygen to all parts of the body... they build and sustain—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

Whenever the number of red-blood-cells is materially reduced, lowered vitality ensues and the system becomes more susceptible to the ravages of various diseases. It is a great protection to health and physical well-being to keep the red-blood-cell count up to normal.

(Left) Microscopic view of healthy red-blood-cells. The blood stream should contain about 5,000,000 of these cells to the cubic millimeter. They carry nourishment and oxygen to every part of the body—they also remove impurities from the tissues.

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength—they lack the power to resist infection and disease or to rebuild flesh and to carry away the impurities. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

"FRENCH FRIED" but... don't endanger his digestion with the WRONG fat!

Do you think you have to wait for your frying fat to smoke before it's hot enough to fry in? Then — beware. Smoke tells you that fat is burning. And a burnt fat is a decomposed fat. Why risk painful indigestion with a decomposed fat?

Fry with Crisco and treat your digestion kindly. Crisco is a pure vegetable fat, made by Crisco's own secret process to keep sweet and fresh and digestible.

Don't wait for Crisco to smoke.

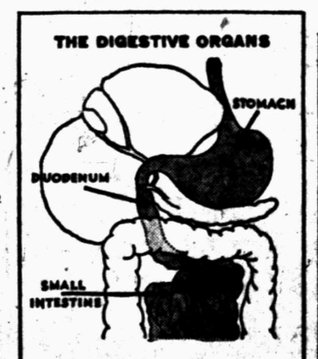

Crisco does not smoke at correct frying heat (see directions in recipe). It is sweet and pure and digestible when it gets into your stomach, duodenum and small intestine. These are the danger points where a burnt fat may irritate and cause indigestion.

You never ate such delicious and digestible French-fried Potatoes as you'll get when you fry with Crisco—the vegetable fat.

RECIPE for the best French-fried Potatoes you ever tasted!

You're going to find that French-fried Potatoes are delicious and digestible—IF—they're fried in Crisco. Crisco is a pure sweet vegetable fat that makes foods taste better, digest more easily.

Pare 5 or 6 potatoes. Cut into strips ½ inch thick. Soak in iced or chilled water one hour. Drain. Dry thoroughly between towels, so they won't sputter. Fill ordinary saucepan two-thirds full of Crisco, the digestible vegetable fat. Heat Crisco. It is correct frying heat when inch cube of bread browns in 60 seconds (395° F.). Fry potatoes to rich brown. (OR—fry potatoes in the morning to very delicate brown. Then, just before mealtime, reheat Crisco and finish frying.) Drain on unglazed paper. Sprinkle with salt. My, how good they'll taste because Crisco is a sweet, digestible vegetable fat! Don't throw away the Crisco you fry with. Strain it—and fry with it again and again. Crisco does not carry the flavor of one fried food to any other.

At these 3 danger points, ordinary pall fats may cause digestive troubles. Crisco, a vegetable fat, digests easily.

Why does CRISCO digest easily? It is a Pure Vegetable Fat

Poison Alcohol Ends in Fatal Shooting of Man

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 17.(UP)—A poison alcohol orgy in Oklahoma City's river bottom "jungle" ended in a fight that resulted in the killing of Blackie Cook, 45, police said today.

Cook's body was found today, lying in the weeds of the "jungle," a hangout for transients. A pickax handle was found lying across his battered body.

Police sought Joe Dean, named by other participants in the party as Cook's assailant.

J. W. Moriarity and Thomas Stowell, who slept on pallets at the scene of the party, said Dean and Cook engaged in an argument that led to the fight.

The two said they went to sleep without knowing Cook was dead. This morning they discovered he had been killed.

Cook was understood to have had relatives living in Pawhuska.

Bull Fight Planned by Mexicans Ruled Out

HOUSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—It looks like the big bull fight, planned here for Sunday by the Mexican population to round out their celebration of Mexican independence, is off.

Humane society leaders called on city authorities today to protest and were told, they said, it would not be held, even though it had been described as a "scientific bull fight" where no animal would be killed.

GERARD BACK FROM GERMANY

Country in Apple Pie Order Statesman Says

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, arrived today on the liner Paris, saying Germany was now in "apple pie order" and that American bankers ought to begin helping America.

"In Germany, I have found, it seems to have been good business since 1924 to 'go bust'," he said. "They have paid ten billion marks in reparations, and their public and private borrowings amount to about eighteen billions, so they are about eight billions ahead, but are still complaining about how poor they are.

"I do not think that Germany will establish a dictatorship within the year. There is a solid body of German citizens who are neither Hitler nor Communists, and they will never be heard of until a crisis. Germany is really in apple-pie order. She has built stadia, swimming baths, and all sorts of magnificent housings on borrowed money, and the balance she has lent to Russia. It is time that American bankers aided America. If we are to do business with Russia, let us do it directly and take the profits, and not do it through Germany."

Fifty police officers of 24 Kansas cities were "graduated" from a training school at Wchita, sponsored by municipalities.

Texas Facts

By BILL EDWARDS

Texas counties and districts have issued $721,925,076 in various kinds of bonds since 1893, including more than $100,000,000 for school improvements, mostly new buildings.

HELPING BUILD TEXAS

Development of the radio industry is accredited with reopening of the Texas cinnabar mines in Brewster county, which used to have to depend largely on the medical profession for taking of their output. Four mines are now in full production there, daily totals being from 30 to 35 flasks. It is one of the three districts in the world in which production is going on. Quicksilver plants are vitally concerned in the development of the mercury boleri, experimental use of which on a large scale started a couple of years ago with results so satisfactory in both economy and operation that a still larger unit is in course of construction with the electrical world watching the development closely for future use. Extension of the mercury boilers will largely increase the demand for quicksilver, and Texas mercury, by the way, brings from $96 to $98 each at present prices—in other words the daily output of the Brewster county mines at present rate of production and prices is bringing into Texas nearly $1,000,000 of new money annually.

Magnitude of the war department's plans for making Randolph field, San Antonio, the "West Point of the Air" is seen in the announcement that the total cost of the completed project will be $14,000,000 instead of $10,000,000 as at first reported. Its completeness as well as its size is reflected in the letting of contracts for refueling systems to cost $97,000 and for a flood-lighting equipment to cost $20,000. . . . Contract for lighting of the 343 miles of the Amarillo-Tulsa route to permit of regular night flying is to be let Nov. 1. . . . Port Arthur plans to use land reclaimed from Sabine lake for a close-in landing field and seaplane base.

Farm Board Bars 'Walla Walla Plan'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (UP)—The federal farm board intends to follow a policy of gradual liquidation of its surplus wheat supplies instead of embarking on a program designed to clear away the two-year accumulation in a single operation.

The board's policy was set forth last night in a letter rejecting the "Walla Walla plan" for wheat surplus control which had been advanced by a delegation from the state of Washington, headed by Representative Summers, Republican.

The Walla Walla group left early today, leaving behind a statement criticising the board for its action. In rejecting the plan, the statement said, the board contradicted its own policy. It added the board will wait in vain for a "perfect plan" for disposal of its surplus wheat holdings.

"It is the plan of the corporation to market the wheat which it holds in such a way as to impose the minimum of burden upon domestic and world prices, and we believe this can best be accomplished by a gradual liquidation of its holdings," the board said in its letter.

Helping the Helpless

IT IS a great deal easier to feel sorry for one person than to feel sorry for 500. It is also easier to extend help if the need can be made dramatic and exciting.

A few days ago a Chicago woman, suffering from a rare and deadly disease, lay at the point of death. Her doctors said that she would quickly die if she could not be given a certain type of gland extract. There was none of this in Chicago—the only available supply was in Buffalo.

Observe, now, how readily distant strangers acted to save this woman's life.

A Buffalo scientist put the extract at her disposal. Buffalo policemen rushed it to the airport, and officials of an air transport company, notified of the proceedings, telegraphed from Washington was to wait for the medicine no matter how badly it disrupted the schedule.

Reaching Chicago by air, the medicine was hurried to the hospital by police escort. There it was administered, and the woman's life was saved.

Upwards of a dozen total strangers, most of them living far away, had co-operated in the winning fight. Their sympathy was concentrated on one suffering individual. The case was dramatic, exciting, from start to finish.

But how different it all is when we have, not one sufferer but several hundred—or several thousand—in circumstances that are not dramatic but simply depressing.

A great many men, women and children will be in danger of death this winter through unemployment; not only because of hunger and cold, but because of sickness aggravated by poverty. We shall save most of them, of course—but we shall have to be stirred by elaborate campaigns, speeches, advertisements and radio talks before we can do it.

At this minute starvation and disease are creeping up on scores of children in the soft coal fields, where a disastrous strike is in progress. You can almost count on your fingers the number of people who are really emotionally moved by that fact.

So it goes. We will do almost anything for one individual. When a group is involved we are apt to be indifferent.

They Could Have Killed Him but—

WARDEN R. E. Davis' nerve stopped a prison mutiny in Utah that might have claimed many lives and have done damage running into the thousands.

The outbreak was well underway, the prisoners had gained the upperhand and had even kidnaped two guards whom they threatened to strangle. Then the warden acted. He walked into a prison courtyard, alive with rebellious convicts. They might have killed him easily enough but they didn't touch him.

Such lack of fear awed these frenzied convicts into submission and at his command to "get back to your cells, you men," they scurried for the cell house.

How much better was this warden's plan than standing on the prison walls aggravating the mutiny by pouring a stream of bullets at those convicts. Men the world over respect a brave man. And when it comes to bravery and to handling men this warden certainly knows his onions.

They'll Work if They Eat

WILLIAMSON county's grand jury wants prisoners put to work, rather than left lying out sentences in the comfortable shade of the jail. The body recommends restoring what has come to be known as the chain-gang, that is, use of prisoners on county roads. It wants prisoners to work if they are to eat at county expense.

This type of labor hasn't proved very useful, at best. Old abuses of hiring out prisoners to private enterprise have been abolished permanently.

The main effect would be upon the prisoners themselves.

Compulsory work would make Williamson county considerably more unpleasant for the vagrant, the prowler, the petty criminal, than the prospect of resting up at county expense in a comfortable jail. The men would come out in better shape. The county would be a little better off. Nobody would be deprived of employment. On those terms, the grand jury has the right idea.

Outlawing Machine Guns

GOVERNOR ROOSEVELT of New York proposes that the legislature pass a law making it illegal for private individuals to own machine guns; and the only surprising thing about the request is its revelation that such a law does not exist already.

Whatever may be said in favor of allowing ordinary citizens to possess revolvers, it is almost impossible to extend those arguments in favor of machine guns. There cannot be any circumstances in which any one not a member of the police or military services is justified in using such weapons; a law making their possession illegal would be nothing more than plain common sense.

EXPLANATIONS OF YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

THOMAS J. LENNON, THE BELOVED JUDGE OF CALIFORNIA—Justice Lennon of the supreme court of California, popularly known as "The Beloved Judge," was so highly esteemed by his fellow citizens of the Golden State that on Aug. 31, 1926, they gave him 263,818 votes for chief justice of the supreme court out of a total of 737,654, despite the fact that his death on Aug. 14 of the same year was announced in headlines throughout the state. He had a majority in eight counties. It is indeed singular that the affection of a commonwealth for one of its lost leaders and friends should be shown by such a tremendous "complimentary" vote at the polls.

NEW YORK TO LOS ANGELES ON $11.22 WORTH OF FUEL—In August 1931 a Cummins-Diesel test truck made a trip from New York to Los Angeles, a total distance of 3,214 miles, with a total load of 16,000 pounds, and used only $11.22 worth of fuel, at the same time setting a new record for coast-to-coast truck trip of 97 hours 20 minutes. The truck was equipped with a duplicate of the engine used in the 500-mile race in Indianapolis.

MEXICO SEEKS SILK MARKET

Sericulture Goes Forward in Republic

EL PASO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Steady development of sericulture, or the raising of silk worms, continues in northern Mexico with active support of the government.

Quintin Ochoa, former professor of light industries in the federal agricultural school in San Jacinto, D. F., said recently the principal need of sericulturists was a market.

"Our need is a market, first, and then more mulberry trees," he said. "Quality of raw silk produced in Mexico is comparable to the best that can be imported.

"The work is still experimental, however. The only silk factories of any size are at San Luis Potosi and Guymas, and they produce only small articles in small quantities.

"The Mexican government is seriously interested in the progress of the silk industry in this country. If a market is obtained, it will send a man to Juarez to take charge of instruction and propagation."

The first serious attempt to raise silk worms in Chihuahua was begun at Villa Ahumedal, 100 miles south of Juarez, by Jose G. Matua, of the federal preparatory school, in the fall of 1929. The most extensive experimenting station still is at Villa Ahumeda.

In November, 1930, the cocoons had increased until silk could be extracted and worked into skeins. Small looms were made and articles such as handkerchiefs manufactured.

The Juarez Chamber of Commerce has pledged its best efforts in the search for a new market for Mexican-grown silk. Urbano Zea, manager, said the organization would aid experimenters in the Rio Grande valley, where it has been found sericulture is practicable.

Tulsa Detectives Face Assault Trial

JAY, Okla., Sept. 17. (UP)—Six Tulsa detectives will face trial on charges of assault with a dangerous weapon and transportation and possession of liquor at the January term of the Delaware county court.

Charges of driving while intoxicated were dismissed late yesterday by County Judge I. W. Ingram, who held the evidence was insufficient to hold them for trial on that charge.

Charges were preferred against the men in Delaware county after they had arrested Willie and Charles Elms for Rogers county authorities. The men escaped from jail there. J. P. Duncan was arrested and charged with harboring fugitives from justice at the same time.

Only two of the six detectives were tried on the drunken driving charge. They were Harry Beckham and John Burnett. They will face trial on the other two charges.

The other officers who will be tried in January are George Collins, George Stewart, Britt Pigg and Lloyd Miller.

RUBIO WANTS U. S. IN LEAGUE

Mexican President Urges Our Cooperation

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 17. (AP)—Hope that the United States would enter the League of Nations and align itself with Mexico and other countries in efforts for "betterment of the world" was expressed today by President Pascual Ortiz Rubio.

In a signed article in El Nacional, organ of the official national revolutionary party, the president said the cooperation of the United States is necessary to obtain a "universal economic equilibrium."

Discussing Mexico's reasons for joining the league, he ignored mention of the Monroe doctrine.

"We are going to Geneva to place our efforts, great or small, but always serious, at the service of a betterment of the world," he said. "If Mexico has been isolated from an organization that can do so much good providing the governments so determine, it has been for reasons not of her choosing.

"Now that we are in it our desires are to see there also, siding in the same noble task, the countries that still are outside—the United States, without whose cooperation it is difficult to imagine a universal economic equilibrium; Argentina, which is a factor of first order in South American relations; Brazil, which due to its importance and magnitude still holds a world of possibilities, and each and all of the countries which by their own peculiar conditions can take a very appreciable part in this collaboration."

GRATITUDE

PITTSBURGH.—Mrs. Minnie Perry is a generous soul and she had been keeping three men in food for weeks at her barbecue stand. But they, showing gross ingratitude, walked in the stand recently, held her up, struck her and robbed the cash register of $5.

There May be Poison in YOUR Bowels!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other mild ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels cause that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The great difference it will make in your feelings over night will convince you of its merit.

AMERICA'S ONLY REFINER OF GERM PROCESSED OIL OFFERS....

$10,000 IN CASH PRIZES

FOR THE BEST ANSWERS EXPLAINING THE

MYSTERY OF THE "HIDDEN QUART"

AND TELLING HOW THIS QUART BENEFITS MOTORISTS

Fact No. 1—Thousands of motorists and service station men have observed that after a car has been given its first fill of Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil and is driven 200 to 350 miles, a look at the crankcase gauge shows that about one quart of oil is apparently missing . . . but

Fact No. 2—These same people have noticed that on the second and later fillings with Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil, scarcely a drop of oil will disappear during the first 350 miles and practically none at 500 and up to 1,000 miles!

THE above facts have been checked by actual tests with cars that use six quarts of oil for the crankcase, cars in good mechanical condition and driven at ordinary rates of speed. These facts will also prove true for your car, in proportion to the amount of oil your crankcase usually holds, your car's mechanical condition and the speeds at which you drive.

What becomes of the "hidden quart"? The answer is easy if you study the Facts given above and keep in mind the things that only Conoco Germ Processed Motor Oil can do. The explanation of the whereabouts of the "hidden quart" is simple — no technical knowledge of motors or oil is necessary.

Remember — The "hidden quart" of Germ Processed Oil does not escape through leakage . . . does not burn up, wear out nor evaporate. It is "present but unaccounted for." Fact No. 2, given above, proves all this.

After you've found where the "hidden quart" goes, you can easily see the special benefits it gives the motorist—advantages that no other oil can give.

THE GIRL WHO WON

BY MAY CHRISTIE

CHAPTER I

Nollie Day—at 6 o'clock on a sultry afternoon of May—swung up the three stone steps that led to her aunt and uncle's front door, let herself into the dark and stuffy hall of the stifling little house that was exactly like a thousand other little red brick houses in this town, and went straight up to the small hot room at the rear she shared with her cousin, Lil, and sank on the shabby, lumpy old bed in sheer exhaustion.

Heavens! it was hot. The soft brown hair clung to Nollie's forehead in little points of interrogation.

What a day it had been! Her slim young body ached with weariness and her brain felt like a vacuum.

She had been on her feet all day both in and out of uncle's poky, choky little paint-and-odd-job shop, for now that spring had come in a belated blaze of heat, there were a whole sheaf of unexpected orders.

In her status of jill-of-all-trades, Nollie had been here, there and everywhere at once, pernicketty instructions, answering the phone, advising and placating customers and running dozens of errands.

She had been to the bank three times, as well, about uncle's overdraft and that urgent loan he wanted of $500.

Poor uncle was more than a bit of a fool—and slow. For the umpteenth time in the five years she had worked for him, it struck Nollie that her services were worth more than his financial rating of her.

Twelve dollars a week—and she was 19 years of age—oh! going on 20 soon—and after she'd paid the $9 a week that Aunt Sarah asked for her board and lodging (which meant half Lil's bed) there wasn't much left for Nollie.

Lil would be drifting in any minute now—18-year-old, boy-crazy, discontented Lil of the prima donna airs and disagreeable manners.

Aunt Sarah worshipped Lil, though they incessantly bickered, did those two. What a gulf divided the younger generation from the older!

There were Sam and Joe, too—squabbling boys who occupied the little middle room between their parents' and the girls'—tonight Nollie felt she hated every one of those relatives-of-adoption.

Her parents having died in an automobile accident 10 years ago, she—and the small insurance they had left—had been taken over by "aunt" and "uncle" Green, and here she'd dwelt for a decade as an adopted child, though in the last year or two, every one of them, with the exception perhaps of Uncle Cy—("sigh" was right — he sighed all day—she was sorry for the henpecked, lugubrious little fellow) — had become increasingly more alien to her.

If she could only leave it all and get out into a wider world of beauty and opportunity!

There was a lovely world outside of Yapahunk, where youth and beauty had a chance to flower . . . where brains found their big chance . . . where an ambitious girl could find the right "milieu."

But if she ran away tonight—and God knows that she wanted to—where would she even find her carfare?

She'd loaned Lil $15 in the last four months, and with Lil out of a job (by choice) there was small chance of its repayment. As she lay on the lumpy bed, Nollie looked with distaste at the cluttered dresser top that bore a trail of Lil's spilled powder, soiled and greasy puffs, rouge paste that had melted in the heat and trickled in a bright red stain on the linen "runner" Nollie's own clever fingers had finished. There was a fuzz of hair on Lil's comb, too—that had lost half a dozen prongs—and Lil's eyelash brush, thick with mascara, had toppled from its box and made another stain on the linen cover.

The picture of Lil's latest "heart"—a weedy and anemic-looking youth—was stuck into a corner of the dresser mirror. In an uneducated hand it bore an inscription to "the best sport in the world." . . . Nollie's lips quirked quizzically as she thought of Lil out every night till 1 and 2, and even 3 a. m. on these spring nights . . . of surreptitious scufflings in the hall . . . of muffled whisperings in the dark that floated up till all hours from the old front-parlor.

It wasn't her affair, of course, but how could Lil make herself so cheap, or worse than cheap? Uncle Cy slept like the dead all through the night, as did the boys . . . but if ever he queried Lil's conduct, her mother would always defend her.

"Leave the girl alone!" "Let the child have her fun!" "How is she ever to get married with you interfering?"

The room reeked of Lil's cheap scent. A pair of soiled stockings with a run in them lay upon a chair, and shoes with run-over heels rested on top of them. Lil's brassiere was on the floor, one of its straps fastened by a safety-pin, and face down beside it, with leaves bent back, lay a library copy of a very sexy novel.

The pretty little chintz curtains Nollie's nimble fingers had run up—material purchased out of her meager salary from the five-and-ten—hung by the open windows limply. It was unconscionably warm today. The air was full of a still and saturating humidity.

A fretful baby wailed next door. The walls of the shoddy little house were thin. One could hear every movement, almost every spoken word of the neighbors.

The radio shrilled off-key, each note going through Nollie's head like red-hot needles. And children yelled and yahooed in a yard across the alley.

"Lord, but I can't stand this. Let me fall in the tub before the kids come home"—and Nollie got up from the bed, dug under it for her suitcase, in which she kept her own Turkish towel and a cake of her own soap, undressed rapidly, slipped into a kimona and went into the bathroom.

The lock was broken, as was most things in this house. But Nollie had her own device for privacy, in a small, triangular block of wood she had shaped herself, which she stuck under the door.

There! Now no one could burst in on her!

She'd a 10-cent packet, too, that she had bought luxuriously and extravagantly at the five-and-ten today, of bath-salts of pine-and-balsam that, flung into the water, gave out a clean and purifying odor.

"Diogenes in the tub!" she mused, with that humorous little quirk at her sweet mouth, as she relaxed in the refreshing water.

Lying like this in his marble bath, hadn't some of the best thinking in the world been done by the ancient Greek philosopher?

She'd got to think too . . . and to some purpose even more practical. Nearly 20 . . . (and come to analyze it she'd only stayed on here because of a kind of pity for poor irritable Uncle Cy, to whom she was a kind of buffer and a real help) . . . she must break loose from this carping, soul-deadening environment.

She felt so utterly "apart" from all of them, some way. Often it was as if they did not even speak the same language.

This "difference" served to make aunt Sarah furious.

"Who d'you think you are, my girl? A fine lady? A duchess?"

"And yet I work all day for Uncle Cy, and then pay back practically everything he gives me in the way of salary to aunt Sarah, and do all kinds of odd jobs around the house!" So mused Nollie, keyed up at the injustice.

Aunt Sarah was bitterly jealous about Nollie being prettier than Lil . . . at Nollie's refined and dainty ways, which were such a sharp contrast to those of her "cousin."

And because of this, and because of a certain delicacy in Nollie's winsome face and chiselled little nose . . . (the direct antithesis to Lil's plebian pug) Aunt Sarah in all manner of mean, small ways would try to get even with her.

She knew quite well that Nollie, somewhere or other, had "good blood" in her. That blood did tell. That Nollie wouldn't stoop to lies or deceit or "snooping" around," nor did she seem to be the least affected by her aunt's insinuations.

When something sharp and unjust was said, Nollie had a way of lifting her long black lashes and looking directly at the speaker with very blue and very lovely and quite honest eyes, that was really disconcerting.

Infuriating, too. It made one feel—although Nollie didn't say a word—as though one were about the size of a peanut!

Lying luxuriously in the tub, Nollie's brain was now working rapidly.

Money! If she could only get some! If she could only leave Yapahunk behind, and get out into that magic world of opportunity!

She'd studied shorthand for the past nine months, from little books she'd bought. Had translated whole pages of magazine stories into curly hieroglyphics.

Her speed on the old typewriter in uncle's shop was good, and she figured she knew more about bookkeeping than he did.

If only she'd her car fare to New York! If only—!

Best not dream. Get up and do. Nollie slid out of the pine-scented water and dressed in clean underthings and a fresh little linen dress she'd laundered herself early this morning.

"My goodness! you're as pernicketty about your clothes as though you'd got an honest-to-goodness beau!" Lil had jibed at her.

To which Nollie could have retorted that her pernicketiness extended to beaux as well, and she'd sooner die than be seen out and about with the specimens Lil favored.

But for answer Nollie had merely raised an eyebrow and shrugged her slim young shoulders.

Which had infuriated Lil, who thought her cousin was "stuck up," and did not hesitate to say so.

Her dressing finished, Nollie dabbed a fluff of powder on her nose and chin and regarded herself in the mirror.

She saw a pale and pretty face. Sweet mouth. A rounded out firm chin. Straight little nose. And eyes that were the exact color of a bit of tourquoise.

Those eyes of a lovely blue were the most noticeable feature in that small and heart-shaped face whose clean-cut outline was softened by thick wavy hair of a quite ordinary brown—what Lil, who peroxided her own locks with rather odd results—was wont to describe as "mousey."

But Nollie—and of this the girl herself was unaware—had the makings of a real beauty in her eyes.

Vivacity! Sparkle! Glow! Just now the small face lacked all these, the warm and vivifying glow of some bright sun to make this flower bloom as nature and her own attributes had intended her to bloom, transplanted from this dreary backwater.

The doorbell rang. A letter slid through the slot and landed with a plop on the dim floor of the hallway.

As though she had a premonition it might be for her—though Nollie seldom did get mail—she ran softly and swiftly down the stairs and lifted the envelope.

It was addressed to her! Miss Nollie Day, 1826 South street.

Typewritten, too. She raced up to her own room with it.

From the Morning Appeal! Good heavens! (her hands shook as she read the printed tidings) she'd won a prize of $50 in that funny newspaper competition she'd entered!

Good heavens! She'd won a prize of $50 in that funny newspaper competition she'd entered.

Kind of a modern version of the cross-word puzzle it had been. Nollie had done it to amuse herself . . . felt she hadn't a ghost of a chance when she competed.

But here was their check! The first she'd ever received in all her life! She examined it, thrilled and still half incredulous.

Never before had she had the promise of so much money at one time! Why . . . why . . . wasn't it possible now that she could get away with this as magic key? Wasn't this check an "open sesame" to the wide, free road of opportunity?

A gladness at her heart. The day's weariness and irritation gone. A dozen plans raced through her brain as she slid the precious scrap of paper in the bosom of her little belted dress and stared at her own reflection in the mirror.

Vivid she looked since this grand news! Transformed! A lovely pink had crept into her soft cheeks, and her eyes were as blue as delphiniums.

There was a sparkle to them too that they had lacked before. She closed them for a moment, her soul wrapped in shimmering vistas.

Freedom! Escape! A grand world beckoning her, charming her.

She opened her eyes, stared happily at the image in the glass, said breathlessly: "Why, Nollie Day . . . you're beautiful . . !"

Her aunt's sharp voice from down below, chiding the boys, Lil's nasal drawl. Her uncle, querulous.

What did any of it matter, now she had this check? She'd go . . .

"Hi, there, you upstairs! If you want anything to eat, come down right now . . ."

She descended to earth from dreams on Mount Parnassus.

As she went through the dark little hall to the kitchen at the rear, she grabbed the Morning Appeal from the hatrack where Uncle Cy had left it.

Into the living room quick . . . tear out the page that surely bore her name . . . in their perusal of the newspaper during the day, pray heaven that he and aunt had overlooked it!

"Yes, it was there, her name. She ripped the sheet away . . . shoved it out of sight under the piano.

Then to the evening meal, a gathering of the clan she usually hated.

But she was gay tonight. With an appetite too. She even took a second helping of Aunt Sara's greasy potato salad.

"Come into a fortune, huh?" sneered Lil, toying in prima donna manner with her food, her jealous and suspicious eyes upon the face that—specially tonight was so much prettier than her own. "You look as though you owned the earth? What's happened to you?"

CHAPTER II

A song of freedom in her heart and a bright plan forming in her mind, Nollie was immune tonight to the squabblings at the Green's supper table.

The shriek of the cheap radio next door combined with the raucous yells of some hooligan lads in the lane outside fell on deaf ears, as did the querulous rebukes of her aunt to the younger members of the family.

"Come on upstairs. I want to speak to you." At the conclusion of the meal, when Nollie was about to help her aunt with the clearing of the table and the washing of the dishes, Lil beckoned her from the doorway.

Nollie made a shrewd guess what the request would be. Reluctantly she followed Lil to the room they shared together.

"Gowd!" isn't it hot?" Lil fanned herself as she swayed back and forth in the broken old rocker by the window.

"What is it, Lil?"

"Come in. Sit down. Don't be upstage. Can't we ever have any conversation together?"

This in an unwonted gracious tone from the family prima donna.

But Nollie knew just what it meant. A request for a loan of some sort or other.

She sat down on the edge of the bed and waited for Lil's cue.

It came indirectly. That was true to form. "Aren't you sick and tired of this old dump?" asked Lil with an attempt at affability.

Nollie said nothing. She knew better. Any affirmative reply she might be inveigled into making would be used as evidence against her in the next family squabble.

"You can't blame me for wanting to be out and have a little fun?" continued Lil on the same plaintive note. "Believe me, the first real chance I get I'll be off from here and you won't see my heels for dust. An'—an' I hope, like me, you'll soon get a beau of your own, Nollie."

"Thanks for the kind interest." Nollie half turned her head away so that the well-wisher might not see the ironical little smile that played about her lips at this. "I s'pose tonight you've a date with Jake Tippett?"

"Yep." Lil's too small eyes narrowed and her mouth tightened as she stared at Nollie. What was in Nollie's mind? Hadn't Jake expressed undue interest, more than once, in this same cousin of hers?

But now he never spoke about her any more—or if her name came up, he dismissed it with the remark that Nollie was "to high-hat and stand-off-ish."

"Listen, old dear, I haven't a decent hat to my name, and I was wondering if you'd let me wear your red? Oh, just this once? An'—and Nollie, darn it all, I haven't a pair of silk stockings without a run in 'em!"

"You can have a pair of mine I washed today."

"Oh, thanks, An'—and the hat, Nollie?"

"Well, I don't know. Your headsize is bigger than mine. It's a good hat. I saved up for it two weeks. It cost $5."

"But you'll let me have it just this once?" Lil got up from her rocker and came over and faced her cousin. She pleaded: "Jake's so durn particular—about style, you know—and—" she ignored her previous boast—"to look well tonight mean a whole lot to me—with him, I mean, Nollie—"

"Oh, very well." Nollie didn't feel particularly gracious. She disliked the idea of lending intimate things she wore.

She added, now: "Since you like pretty things, why don't you get a job again and have your own weekly pay envelope?"

"That's just what I was coming to," said Lil eagerly. She bit a finger-nail—hesitated—stared nervously at Nollie. "I'm planning to go over to the Five-and-Ten and ask them for my old job back till I—till I can land something better. But, right away—I mean, for tomorrow night I'm in a kind of a fix—you see, it's the big night at Dreamland—"

So? Another loan? Well, some people had a lot of nerve! thought Nollie.

"There's a dress at Schimbel's in pink tulle that's marked down in their sale tomorrow at $14.95. It was $25 all last week, Nollie—"

"Yes?"—indifferently.

"I've got $6 of my own, and I thought—if you'd be a sport and loan me the $8.95—I'd pay you back with my first week's salary—"

"I haven't got the money."

"You have. You must. This—having the dress I mean—is a big thing for me. You see I think Jake's going to invite me to the dance so please don't hold out on me, Nollie!"

"But if I haven't got the cash—" Which was quite true. It was only the paper check she had with her.

Yet Nollie felt disturbed. Out of her $50 prize, ought she to give this sum to Lil?—who already owed her $15?

She couldn't afford that hole in the little nest-egg that was to take her into the wide world of Opportunity . . .

She would need every available penny!

Her cousin Lil was peeved, despite the loan of the red hat and the stockings.

In silence she started making up her face before the looking glass, penciling below her too-small eyes and putting great daubs of mascara on the lashes.

She rouged her cheeks to the exact color of the hat, carmined her lips to the same bright red, ignoring Nollie.

Nollie went down to the living room, where her uncle sat alone with the Morning Appeal on the table beside him and in his hands the evening paper. The boys had gone out on their own devices, and Aunt Sarah was making a great clatter in the kitchen with the dishes.

Take the bull by the horns right now! Broach the subject of leaving Yapahunk and taking a job in the big city!

With hands that shook a little, Nollie lifted the Morning Appeal and pointed to a New York employment advertisement.

"A chane for me . . . you understand? . . ."

But Uncle Cy was dreadfully taken aback at the idea.

"You'd go? After being here these years? And how'd I and the shop get along, I'd like to know?" He was upset and plaintive.

He wouldn't listen to her plan. No . . . she was all wrong . . . there was plenty of need of her right here in his store, and plenty of room for her in his house . . . and they couldn't get along without her.

Finally, to put an end to the discussion, he got up, quite huffed, and went off to finish his evening at his lodge, the 'Bisons.'

Lil came tripping down the stairs, dolled up to beat the band in Nollie's bright red hat. She gave a look at Nollie as much as to say that she wanted the parlor vacated.

Nollie went out to help her aunt, and when a ring came at the front door bell, it was Aunt Sarah—at a call from Lil—who went to answer it.

Lil draped herself elegantly in a chair with her back to the door—pretending to read the evening paper.

She would not rush to let Jake in. Or gush. She would receive him in a nonchalant, queenly manner.

Yes, it was he. She heard his voice, the sound he made as he put his swanky cane in the rack while her mother padded back to the kitchen.

Then his footsteps coming up behind her as she did not rise or turn her head. She leaned back in her chair with only Nollie's red hat showing . . .

From behind came Jake's two hands across her eyes holding her, whispering exultantly: — "Caught, Nollie! At last I've got you alone, Nollie darling!"

CHAPTER III

Little furious, jealous shivers ran through Lil at Jake's hot words.

"Nollie darling . . . got you alone at last . . ."

So it was Nollie, not herself, Jake fancied!

Glimpsing Nollie's hat, but not her face, he had quite understandably, but hatefully, mistaken Lil for her pretty cousin!

God! she hated Nollie . . . hated Jake, too, at this moment for his swift, bold action.

She struggled to get up, trying to push his hands from off her eyes, panting with indignation.

But Jake held on. More, he bent right over the back of the chair and put his face under the floppy, concealing red hat and kissed her!

"Now for the forfeit!" he exclaimed stealthily but triumphantly, while Lil jumped up. She swung round on him with blazing eyes. "So that's what you do with Nollie, is it?"

He blinked, amazed and disconcerted.

"Why, Lil——"

"You—get away from me—you—" She clenched her hands till the long, highly-varnished nails dug into the palms in ridges.

"Why, Lil—of course—I knew all the time it was you—"

"You called me Nollie!"

He pulled himself together, gave a hollow laugh. "Tush! I was only having a little game with you, honey."

"Strikes me you've played those games before! And in this house, too—or out of it—with my cousin!"

"Nonsense! Don't let a little joke get your goat. C'mon, Lil, gimme the forfeit!"

He made as though to pull her to him, but she glared at him angrily under Nollie's big red hat.

"Nix on that! The universal lover doesn't make a hit with me!" She tossed her head in a prima donna manner.

"C'mon, kid! Nollie. What's-her-name's nothing in my young life. C'mon out. My car's waiting."

His car! Indignant as she was, and furiously jealous too, the last announcement impressed her.

None of the boys she knew, to date, had cars! Jake Tippett then, had more money than she had imagined . . . !

"You'd go after being here these years?" said Uncle Cy.

Lil was still deep in sleep when Nollie awoke and dressed next morning.

The red hat lay upon the floor. On top lay Nollie's best silk stockings that she'd loaned over-night to her cousin.

Nollie dressed rapidly. She wanted to get down to the office of the Morning Appeal before starting her day's work with her uncle.

The Morning Appeal would surely cash the check they had awarded her?

She didn't want it cashed in uncle's bank, because of his overdraft there and his dealings there, and because she didn't want any of the Green family to know of her unexpected winnings.

The cashier at the newspaper office gave her 10 crisp $5 bills in exchange for her check. He congratulated and smiled at the pretty, eager-eyed young woman.

The morning at the paint shop seemed interminably long and hot. But Nollie was buoyed up by the thought of her money.

Go to New York! Of course she would! And at the very first opportunity!

She'd tackled uncle again today, once she got him in a more amiable spirit.

After he'd returned from his midday dinner she ran home—as was her custom—for what was left of the meal.

"And don't stay long!" he barked after her. The thought of his right-hand help wanting to quit both roof and shop made him doubly irascible.

There were only eight! Two $5 bills out of the precious ten were gone!

Nollie, as she passed through to the rear of the house, saw that Lil was reclining full length on the sofa in the parlor with a novel.

"She has it pretty soft, I'll say!" thought she. She was unaware of Jake's "faux pas" of the previous evening.

Lil took no notice of her greeting. "Peeved because I wouldn't fork out that $8.95 for her, I suppose."

Well, who cared about Lil's moods? Pretty soon she'd be far from Lil's orbit . . .

After her mid-day meal she went up to her bedroom and locked her money in her suitcase.

Then back to work. Uncle Cy kept her busy for a solid three hours on his accounts.

At half past 4 she went to do some errands for the shop. Shortly after Nollie had gone the bell of the little paint store tinkled as Lil entered.

"Nollie here?"

"Nope. She's gone out."

"I'll wait for her." Lil went into the cubby-hole at the rear where the accounts were kept on Nollie's desk, and the telephone.

It rang shrilly, soon.

Lil took the receiver off its hook and listened.

Over the wire drifted none other than Jake Tippett's tones . . .

"That you, Nollie?"

A wave of sickening anger in her heart. Lil "uh-uh"—ed. She'd get to the bottom of this, this time! Nollie was to blame, of course! Nollie had encouraged Jake! He'd never act this way, if Nollie had not egged him on, if Nollie hadn't been mean and underhand and predatory!

"Listen, Nollie, I was wondering if you'd come to the Dreamland dance with me tonight? And could you meet me somewhere away from the house? Say . . . listen . . ."

Out came Jake's plan!

Lil's heart grew hot within her as she heard.

But she wouldn't let Nollie get away with this! By hook or by crook she'd get even with her too attractive cousin . . .

Pitching her voice to a high key she said: "Hold on. This is a customer taking Miss Day's place. If you leave your phone number I'll have her call you again."

Fifteen minutes later Lil, in her own natural voice, called him up.

"That you, Jake? This is I, Lil. One of dad's customers just gave me your message. 'S'awfully good of you to invite me to Dreamland for the dance tonight! I'll be glad to go."

What could he say? How dare confess that it was Nollie he had wanted, on the sly? Confound the idiotic customer who had tangled up the message! Well, since he couldn't get hold of the elusive Nollie, he would just have to take her cousin!

Her errand done, a little more than an hour later Nollie reached home and went straight up to her room.

Lil wasn't there. An urge to look at her much-needed money made Nollie draw her suitcase from below the bed, unlock it, count the magic bills . . . oh, God! there were only eight! . . . two $5 bills out of the precious 10 were gone!

CHAPTER IV

A hateful scene with Lil over the missing $10. Nollie had not accused Lil. Had merely stated the fact of the money having disappeared from their room, at the same time keeping her quiet blue eyes on Lil's tell-tale countenance.

"So you think I steal, in addition to my other sins?" Lil had spat out, her face, under its rouge, splashed with color.

"I don't think anything at all, except that two $5 bills that were here at noon have disappeared from my suitcase."

"And you claimed you couldn't even lay your hands on $8.95? You refused to help me out on the dance dress?"

Nollie explained her winning of the check, of how she'd gone down to the Morning Appeal and cashed it, following their conversation. "In any case I couldn't have let you have the extra money," she had added quietly, "you already owe me $15."

And at that phychological moment Aunt Sara had appeared at the bedroom door with a square cardboard box with Schimbel's label on it, and instinctively Nollie knew that this was the coveted dress!

"So you did get it after all?"

Lil only hesitated for a second, then she flew into a violent tantrum. Considering she'd gone downtown and borrowed the necessary $8.95 from a girl-friend, she shouted, who, thank the Lord, wasn't as stingy as Nollie, why shouldn't she buy whatever she wanted?

What business was it of Nollie's what she did? Nollie was jealous because she hadn't a beau of her own, and was trying in vain to take Jake Tippett from her. But Jake was wise to Nollie and her kind and he hadn't a particle of use for her!

To top all this, Nollie—here Lil swung around with the accusation to her mother—Nollie dared to call her own cousin a thief!

Aunt Sara joined in the fray, and mother's and daughter's voices were raised high. Uncle Cy came padding up the stairs in his carpet slippers to find out the reason of the row. He tried to side with Nollie, who claimed she had made no accusations at all, merely stated the fact of the money being missing . . . but his voice was drowned in the general deluge.

At half past 12 that night, Nollie—who had got herself and the clumsy suitcase that contained her few belongings stealthily out of the house and down to the railroad station—boarded the night train for New York.

She found a temporary nest for herself in a diminutive hall bedroom in one of those fading "brownstone fronts" in the West Forties, at $7 a week.

She was dazed, albeit thrilled, by this pulsating town that is like no other city on earth.

Buildings towering into blue heaven. The elevated roared beneath her window. Street cars clanged. There was the incessant thunder of the traffic and the honk-honk of automobiles.

Added to this, less than a block away, workmen were dynamiting the foundations of a new building . . . the explosions being varied by the sound of the electric drill.

And it was hot! As hot as Yapahunk those first two solitary days, when Nollie sought a stenographic job in vain. She seemed less than a grain of dust in this great, heedless running city.

Her third day in New York drawing to a dreary close, and not a job in view. Her tiny nest-egg rapidly diminishing.

Nollie was scared. With her courage at low ebb she went down the four flights of shabby stairs that led from her hall bedroom to the street, and into a "one-arm lunch" for a solitary supper.

Broadway tonight—the sight of all those wondrous signs in jumping electricity—had lost its thrill. It seemed so vast, so utterly indifferent to her.

Soon she found herself in that block under the elevated, east of Broadway, at Fifty-third street.

The gay scene was all changed here. So near to brilliance and sparkle, yet sordid and depressing. There were lean alley-cats aprowl. Nollie felt a queer kinship with them.

Old women with bedraggled petticoats were here, emerging from dirty, gloomy basements. The uncurtained, grubby windows seemed ot leer at her. She hastened her footsteps.

Columbus Circle! Pregnant name! She—a female Columbus—had come to plan herself in a new world—and the new world wanted none of her! The green loveliness of Central park attracted her. She walked in its winding paths until, at a turn of the road, a long slinky car drew stealthily in to the side and a fast-looking man accosted her.

"Want a ride?"

She turned her back on him and hurried away, her chin held high.

But she was lonely and heartsick and frightened, and she felt that she could cry.

"Look here, child, we have 150 applicants on our waiting lists, and don't you realize that you are inexperienced?"

This in a typewriting office where stenographers were placed. Oh, Nollie had heard this kind of thing for a whole week now!

But she must work, or starve . . .

Already she was cutting down strenuously on meals.

It was so hot at nights she couldn't sleep. And when she did drop off, the roar of the elevated below her window awoke her.

But she hadn't got the means to find a better room. And when her remaining few dollars were gone, what would happen to her?

On her eighth day in New York, which proved equally fruitless, a girl in the room next hers spoke to her on the stairs.

"I know you're looking for a job. Ever done any work in the chorus?"

"No. But I'd try anything—and I can sing a little."

CHAPTER V.

Nollie awoke in an unfamiliar room. A little breeze was blowing on her.

Slowly she opened her eyes, coming up from her deep spell of unconsciousness.

What had happened? Where on earth was she?

A straw fan advertising someone's ginger ale was being waved to and fro in front of her.

A hand with plump white fingers ending in extraordinarily long and claw-like nails—varnished a bright red—was attached to the handle of this cooling instrument.

Nollie felt deathly tired and weak. Even to lift her eyes was an effort.

The voice of the owner of the hands came sibilantly. "The poor kid!"

Came a man's tones from the rear. "What the goil needs is a good drink."

The clink of ice against glass. Something pouring from a bottle.

Then the owner-of-the-white-hands' voice: "No, you don't, Bill. That last lot from your darn bootlegger sure was poison!"

Nollie was lying on a bed, a soiled Spanish shawl flung across her.

She raised her eyes now, and saw a face that was painted like a water color bending over her.

The face was plump and pretty, in a garish way, and topped by a mop of hair in a peroxide yellow.

Sort of look of Lil? Only this woman was much older, and—what was the word?—flabbier . . .

"Awake, dearie?" The movement of the straw fan stopped, and Yellow Hair came into fuller vision.

"Yes. Why—how—?"

"You fainted, dearie. We found you on the sidewalk. This dump of mine was near. So Bill and I brought you home."

Nollie struggled into a sitting position.

"No, don't do that. You stay still and rest. I'm going to make you some coffee."

Bill volunteered his drink. Nollie had leaned back, suddenly giddy again. She did not see his face. Her eyes were closed.

"You take that booze away, Bill. D'ya hear? I'm not going to have this kid poisoned . . ."

A whispered conference from the kitchenet. Then Yellow Hair beside her again, sliding an arm about her shoulders, raising her.

"You drink this coffee, dear. It's good and strong. It'ull put new life in you."

There was buttered toast, too, which Yellow Hair insisted that she eat. In her own past life, Yellow Hair had experienced and understood the symptoms of acute hunger.

Bill disappeared into another room, where presently—by the sound of male voices—another man joined him.

Yellow Hair sat down beside the bed where Nollie lay, insisting that she eat every crumb and every drop of the viands offered.

"Out of a job? I know! Say, kid—" this when she had extracted some of Nollie's story— "you can stay right here with me until you land something."

Nollie—ignorant of the warm-hearted impulses of people of the theater—was startled and uncertain.

"Now try and take a little sleep. You'll be a different girl after a rest. You need it."

And away went Yellow Hair into the other room, leaving Nollie in solitude.

She felt better now—and grateful, too. It was true that for the past few days she'd cut down terribly on rations.

And that had made her weak, and—combined with the heat, the lack of sleep, and her anxiety—had brought about a fainting spell. It was lucky she had met a Good Samaritan . . .

Such a garish room! And tawdry, too! Nollie's eyes took in the long divan against the other wall, with its bright, soiled cushions . . .

A screen of hanging glass-bead chains divided the bedroom from the living room. The furniture was of bamboo. There was a tremendous array of make-up material on the dressing-table.

An actress? Yes? What they called "resting," doubtless?

And yet—and yet—Nollie felt uncertain about her.

The apartment was cooler than her own hall bedroom.

Voices drifting from the living room were mingled with the honk of automobiles . . . the clatter of the streets . . . She was so tired it was all like a lullaby.

Nollie's weary eyelids drooped. She dozed. She dreamed of being in some restful, wonderful country.

She awoke to a dim room. Someone had drawn down a shade. She glanced at her small, cheap wristwatch. It was nearly 7!

There was an eerie silence in the little flat. Then the clop-clop of feet that were shod in mules. Yellow Hair came in. She had heard Nollie stirring.

"Awake, dearie? You slept like the dead. I've been out and got something for us from the delicatessen."

Yellow Hair was wearing a heavily embroidered orchid peignoir that was none too fresh. But she smiled kindly at Nollie. It was evident that she enjoyed her role of benefactress.

Nollie slipped off the bed, pushing the soft hair back from her face.

"You sit in that chair by the window till I fix our supper," ordered Yellow Hair, "and I've put a clean towel in the bathroom if you'd like a wash."

"How kind you are!" said Nollie when the two were seated at a little table in the diminutive living room that seemed no bigger than a handkerchief.

"Oh, bosh! I'm kind of lonely too, though New York's a grand town," conceded Yellow Hair, "I'm in the show business—but you guessed that, of course?"

"Not working now?"

"Nope. Just loafing." Yellow Hair shot her a queer, quick look as she helped herself to a turkey leg.

Nollie was grateful for the woman's kindness and her company. She told her about the morning's fiasco of the audition. She added, smiling ruefully: a" 'Fraid I'm not cut out for the stage!"

VERNON SEEKS 1,000 PICKERS

Wilbarger Cotton Crop to Yield 35,000 Bales

Special to The Record News

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 17.—An appeal for 1,000 cotton pickers has been issued by the Vernon Chamber of Commerce. L. A. Wilson, secretary of the organization, says they endeavored to use local labor and that the demand was so great they were unable to find enough for the farmers.

Mr. Wilson states that most of the farmers want families and have houses in which they can live while working. The average price for picking is 40 cents and the cotton is good. The Wilbarger crop is placed at around 35,000 bales this year.

About 50,000 Canadian farmers and other land owners are in the maple sugar business.

Mexico will tax foreign cigarets twice those made at home.

AIR SERVICE FRAUD BARED

Bench Warant Out for Arch M. Poston

HOUSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—A bench warrant for arrest of Arch M. Poston, who was indicted for using the mails to defraud in connection with the Commercial Air Service of Galveston, has been issued by Circuit Judge J. C. Hutcheson, it was learned today.

The order, signed Aug. 31 at request of United States Attorney Henry M. Holden, was issued on the ground Poston had failed to comply with terms of his parole. He was ordered to show cause why his probation should not be revoked and sentence imposed.

Poston, who was an advertising man and later opened what was known as the Commercial Air Service, was indicted at Galveston Jan. 10, 1928, on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Arraigned before Judge Hutcheson, then a district judge, he pleaded guilty and imposition of sentence was suspended.

Later he was paroled with provisions that he "make some positive showing in the way of payment of the sums received from persons subscribing to his aviation course—such payments to be made to H. H. Black, postoffice inspector—and not to be less than $25 per month."

United States Attorney Holden said today the provisions had not been met.

Young Suspect Held In East Texas Robbery

TEXARKANA, Texas, Sept. 17. (INS)—A 22-year-old suspect is held in jail at Clarksville and others are being sought in connection with the robbery yesterday of the First National bank at Avery in which $1,500 was taken.

Although Cashier W. J. Bryan was unable to identify the suspect as one of the robbers, a customer in the bank at the time of the robbery declared he resembled one of the bandits.

Officers continued to search Red river bottoms today for the bandits.

Omaha Savings Bank Robbed of $10,000

OMAHA, Sept. 17. (UP)—Three men today held up the South Omaha Savings bank and escaped with from $10,000 to $15,000 in cash.

Two bank officials, a girl clerk and two customers were forced to lie on the floor while the robbery was in progress.

Eldorado Schools Open at 7:30 a. m.

Pupils of Schools to Pick Cotton in Afternoon

Special to The Record News.

ELDORADO, Okla., Sept. 17.—Eldorado schools are now operating on an early schedule which became effective Monday morning at the request of the local school board. Under this early schedule the schools open at 7:30 a. m. and close at 12:45 p. m., enabling the school children to assist in gathering the cotton crop, which due to the intense heat and dry weather is more than half open.

The early schedule allows the children to keep up their school work and at the same time devote almost half of every day in the cotton fields.

This plan was first tried out in Eldorado schools last year, when a careful record was kept by teachers of the amount of cotton picked by each pupil from day to day to determine the extent of benefit to farmers the plan might afford. These records proved that thousands of dollars were saved to the farmers and it was at their request that the plan was put in effect again this year.

School records last year showed that instead of falling down on school work the children who picked cotton half of each day maintained their average grades while many showed slight improvement.

Nautilus to Arrive In Bergen Saturday

BERGEN, Norway, Sept. 17. (AP)—The submarine Nautilus, on her way home from her polar voyage, will arrive here Saturday, she informed the marine station today by radio. The message said the Nautilus would stay here two days to take aboard provisions.

BISHOP ASKS NEW HEARING

Episcopal Clergyman Seeks Reinstatement

DENVER, Sept. 17. (AP)—A petition for reinstatement has been presented the house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church by William Montgomery Brown, who was expelled in October, 1925.

The petition, written by Brown, will be considered by the bishops sitting in council. The meeting will be secret, even secretaries of the house being excluded.

Brown, one time bishop of Arkansas, was expelled, when through his writings he denied the divinity of Christ and questioned the fundamental laws of the church. First presented, the petition was referred to the committee on petitions and memorials, but with the reading of the journal, it was noted the matter had been referred to the bishops in council. Leaders in the house indicated there would be no formal action on the petition.

Conditions in the majority of county jails in the United States were criticised in a report to the general convention today by the national council governing body of the church.

Women prisoners, first offenders, and persons held as witnesses in jails suffer from these conditions, the report said. The council suggested local agitation of a quiet and firm character as a remedy.

Hoover Enlarges Jobless Committee

WASHINGTON, Sept. 17. (UP)—President Hoover today appointed 18 more prominent citizens to the advisory committee of the Gifford unemployment relief organization, increasing the membership to 99.

Nine of the new appointees will be general members of the committee while nine others are to represent states.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Partial Blindness

Question—Louise writes: "Does absorption of the retina always result in blindness? Can it be retarded? Does removal of the gall bladder shorten an individual's longevity? Is it dangerous for one with gall bladder removed to go swimming or bathing?"

Answer—Absorption of the retina would cause a partial or complete blindness depending upon the extent of the absorption. The possibility of retarding the progress of such a condition would depend upon the cause which could not be determined without a careful examination. Removal of the gall bladder would not necessarily shorten a person's life. It is not dangerous for one with the gall bladder removed to go swimming or bathing if the operation has entirely healed.

Birth Control

Question—Mrs. V. L. says: "I am a married woman 28 years old and have six children, one of them is a cripple. My husband is out of work and we are very hard up. I would like to know some method of birth control."

Answer—It is illegal to give this advice through the mail, and I cannot write about it in my newspaper column. If your health is endangered, your family physician could undoubtedly advise you. I would also suggest that you write to the American Birth Control league, 152 Madison avenue, New York City. They may be able to give you some information on this subject.

McCABE BLANKS BARONS, 3 TO 0, TO SQUARE DIXIE SERIES

JIMMY WALKUP LOSES DUEL

Play to Be Resumed At Houston Saturday

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 17. (AP)—Dick McCabe, who by chance was thrust into the Dixie series, wrote the second chapter of the baseball classic of the South today by pitching Houston to a 3 to 0 victory over Birmingham.

The sturdy right-hander, borrowed from Fort Worth to replace Tex Carleton, injured Buffalo moundsman, silenced the Barons' heavy artillery to knot the count in games at one-all.

Jimmy Walkup, diminutive Baron southpaw, had easy sailing until the fourth when Houston put across a pair of runs. Hock led off with a single, was sacrificed to second and scored on a double by Carey Selph. The second run resulted from a well timed double steal. Medwick, cleanup man, grounded to Susko, who had to make a run for the putout, allowing Selph to go to third. Peel took a long lead off first and when Walkup tried to trap him, Selph headed for home. Peel was safe at second and Selph was home a jump ahead of Cortazzo's throw.

After fanning in two previous attempts, Guy Sturdy went to bat with one out in the ninth and unloaded a single. Joe Sprinz lined out and Sturdy crossed the plate for the third score when Joe Prerost made a desperate but fruitless effort to palm down Carey's drive into right field which went for three bases.

Walkup went down fighting and was the individual star for the Barons. He broke through McCabe's puzzling delivery for three of his mates' hits, two singles and a double.

So well did McCabe have the situation in hand that the Barons failed to get past second base.

The teams, accompanied by the 45-piece Birmingham Police band and more than 200 Magic City and Houston fans, leave aboard a special train tonight for Houston. They will reach there late tomorrow and the series will be resumed Saturday night.

Yanks Beat Browns Twice; Tie With Sens

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—The Yankees climbed into a tie with Washington for second place in the American league today when they defeated the St. Louis Browns, twice, 17 to 0 and 6 to 1, while the Senators were losing to Detroit. Charlie Ruffing and Vernon Gomez took turns hypnotizing the visitors, Ruffing allowing them nine widely scattered hits in the first game and Gomez yielding only three in the nightcap to register his 20th victory of the year. Northwest Texas Teams Open Season In Practice Games Today

COYOTES PLAY TEMPLE TIGERS

Real Curtain Raisers of Season on Hand

After some preliminary skirmishing with neighboring teams and with every outfit anxious to put in practice the grid lore learned in the training grind the last several weeks, every member of district No. 2, class A, of the interscholastic league will swing into action today.

The games today will be considered as the real curtain raisers of the 1931 football season, as those teams that engaged nearby rivals previously were almost without exception limited to the use of a few plays.

Admission to all coyote conference games this year will be 25 cents and 50 cents instead of 50 cents and $1, as in previous years, it was announced Thursday.

Admission to other games has not been decided, but the game Friday will cost each student one dime and each adult 25 cents, instead of 25 cents and 50 cents, as in the past.

Today, however, every eleven in the district is expected to empty its bag of tricks, and competition from now on will be tough in preparation for the opening of the championship race Oct. 10.

Coyotes Play Tigers

The Wichita Falls High school Coyotes will open against the Temple, Okla., Tigers on the school practice field here. The game will start at 3:45 o'clock.

While the Coyotes play here, Coach Bill Morris and a team recruited from the B squad will play the Nocona eleven at Nocona.

The Electra Tigers open against their famed rivals, the Olney Cubs, at Electra.

The Quanah Indians will be hosts to the Eldorado, Okla., team.

The Childress Bearcats will journey to the home of the Chillicothe Eagles.

The Vernon Lions will entertain the Olustee, Okla., eleven at Vernon.

In addition to the above scheduled games, virtually every high school eleven in Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma has a bout on hand today.

At least two of the teams are in this district smarting from rather mediocre showings in preliminary skirmishes with class B teams, and are anxious to wander around in the win column. The Wichita Falls Coyotes received two technical defeats, one at the hands of Olney and another by Archer City, and Electra was handed an out and out drubbing by the Chillicothe Eagles last week.

Pack Is Ready

Coaches Barry Holton, Charles Lindsey and Bill Morris whipped the Coyotes around in a final practice skirmish Thursday in anticipation of the Temple game. The Pack has been successful against Temple in the past, last year winning by a margin of about five touchdowns.

The probable starting lineups were announced as follows:

W. FALLS	Pos.	TEMPLE
Allen	L.E.	Bowen
Lucius	L.T.	Knight (c)
Reynolds	L.G.	Lipscomb
Holton	C.	Edwards
Mauldin	R.G.	Wilson
Sepkovitch	R.T.	Collins
Greenwood	R.E.	Parkey
Powell	Q.B.	Price
Withrow (c)	L.H.	Sanders
Jenkins	R.H.	Tarkington
Daugherty	F.B.	Trammell

Time: 3:45 o'clock Friday afternoon.

Place: Coyote practice field.

Officials: Earl Dayvault (Texas), referee; W. A. Franklin (Texas), umpire; W. J. Stone (Texas), head linesman.

ALVORD OPENS SEASON AT SAINT JO TODAY

Special to The Record News.

SAINT JO, Texas, Sept. 17.—The first football game of the season will be played here Friday when Alvord High school team comes over to blast the lid with the Saint Jo High Panthers.

Coach Jot Hodges of Saint Jo has the largest squad of boys to work with this year the school has ever known. Losing only six letter men by graduation last year, he had a fine bunch to build his line around, but his backfield will be all new men except Capt. Elbert Thompson, speedy quarter who scored most of his team's points last season.

WAIL OF WOE IS HEARD AT GRAHAM

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Texas, Sept. 17.—Gloom reigns in the Graham Steers' camp on the eve of the first game of the season here Friday with the heavy Bobcats of Seymour.

Coaches Kneif and Deacon spent many weary hours on the practice field this week in an attempt to find a quarterback to replace Wignall, last year star, who withdrew from school here recently and entered Lubbock High school.

To add to the coaches' worries, Dickson, 190-pound end, has been declared ineligible; Wheeler, speed merchant of the team, will be out at least two weeks with a torn finger; and Elliott, star guard, is out of the game with a badly bruised shoulder.

The starting lineup for Graham Friday probably will be as follows: Hughes and Daniels, ends; Bingham and Holcomb, tackles; Caldwell and Butler, guards; Jarnigan, center; Parsley and Nichols, halfbacks; Starbuck, quarterback, and McClusky, fullback.

STAMFORD ELEVEN PLAYS KNOX CITY TODAY

Special to The Record News

STAMFORD, Texas, Sept. 17.—Stamford Bulldogs' first clash of the season will be played on the home field Friday when the Knox City team comes here. This will also give the Stamford team a good chance to display the new turf of which they and the Exchange club are jointly proud. The service club was responsible for this improvement in the condition of the grounds.

On Sept. 25, Coach Lee Walker announced the Bulldogs will play the Breckenridge team at Breckenridge; on Saturday night, Oct. 10, Stamford will meet the Abilene Eagles in Abilene; Oct. 16 the Rotan team will come here; the team will go to Hamlin to meet the Pied Pipers on Oct. 23; on Oct. 30, they will play Merkel here. Nov. 11, Armistice day, will be celebrated in the annual classic between Anson and Stamford and will be played on the home field this year. Nov. 20 is the last game scheduled when the Haskell Indians will come to Stamford for the game.

Ten of last season's letter men are back in the harness and a promising group of new material has answered for practice. "Red" Bounds elected captain of the team at the colse of last season is entering his fourth year of high school football.

FAIR CROWD TO SEE EAGLES AND BOBCATS

Special to The Record News.

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Sept. 17.—Chillicothe Eagles are to meet the Childress Bobcats here Saturday, in what fans expect to be a hard fought game. This game is in connection with the Chillicothe fair, and a large crowd is expected to attend. Childress was defeated by the Gould, Okla., team last week, and expects to renew their fans' faith in the team by defeating Chillicothe. Full strength of the Bobcats is to be used against the local aggregation. The game will begin at 3 p. m. and as there are no players hurt from the Electra encounter, the boys are going into the game with more vigor and pep, to attach another victory. This game will be the first of practice games played on the local gridiron this year, and the second team to be skirmished with for the new year.

ESTELLINE BEAR CUBS TO PLAY HEDLEY TEAM

Special to The Record News.

ESTELLINE, Texas, Sept. 17.—The Estelline Bear Cub football team will have their first encounter on the local field Friday. Coach McBride has 15 men coming out for this popular sport and expects to develop a fast team, although his men are small. The Hedley Owls are the opponents Friday.

A number of the regulars of last year failed to transfer into this district in time for the scholastic money to be received by the schools of this district and are not able to attend the school. This fact has handicapped Mr. McBride somewhat but he is optimistic over the men he now has in training.

IOWA PARK PLAYS ARCHER CITY TODAY

Special to The Record News

IOWA PARK, Sept. 17.—The Hawks will go into battle for their first time of the season Friday afternoon at Archer City. This is expected to be a good game.

In practice scrimmage during the past few days the boys have rounded into shape much better than was expected.

VERNON BLASTS LID WITH OLUSTEE TODAY

Special to The Record News.

VERNON, Texas, Sept. 17.—Coach Weir's Vernon Lions will open their 1931 campaign Friday afternoon at City park with the Olustee, Okla., High school. The Lions have been at work for three weeks and are all primed for the Oklahoma lads.

Coach Weir and his assistants have been faced with the problem of building a backfield for this season out of new material. Only two letter men of last year are back. He has been giving all the candidates a chance in scrimmage and Friday afternoon most of them will get an opportunity to work.

Visitors have been kept from the field during practice except one afternoon each week. The fans are very much impressed with the showing and the type of plays given the team this year.

More tha 300,000 persons visited the new Chicago board of trade building during its first year of operation.

Webb Sets New Major League Doubles Record as Red Sox Split Twin Bill

BOSTON, Sept. 17. (AP)—Earl Webb, Boston right fielder, set a new major league record for two-base hits as the Red Sox divided a double-header with Cleveland today. The Sox took the opener, 9 to 2, but lost the nightcap, 2 to 1. Webb tied George Burns' old doubles record in the first inning of the first game when he hit his 64th two bagger in the season. Burns set the mark when while with Cleveland in 1926. In the second game, Webb made his 65th off Jablonowski. Scores:

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (AP)—An opening decline which carried prices into new low ground for the season was followed by rallies in cotton here today on trade buying and covering, but after selling up from 6.67 to 6.80 for December, or 5 points net higher, the market eased again under increased offerings in the late trading which appeared to come partly from the South. December closed at 6.72 or 8 points off from the best, with the market barely steady at net declines of 3 to 5 points.

There was considerable covering during the middle of the day which came partly from houses with Wall street connections. The South which had sold early was not much in evidence as a seller during the middle of the day and the rally extended to 6.58 for October and 7.09 for March, or 4 to 6 points net higher. The buying then tapered off, while there was a renewal of southern selling and liquidation in the last few minutes, which accounted for closing reactions of about 8 to 10 points from the best prices of the day.

Yesterday's late developments in the Texas legislature with reference to acreage control measures appeared to be without much effect on the market and no more definite action in that quarter had been reported here up to the close today. Exports today 40.753, making 475.546 so far this season. Port receipts 23.433. U. S. port stocks 2.846.844.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 17. (AP)—Cotton ruled very quiet most of today but prices showed a tendency to improve slowly.

After an opening drop of 8 to 10 points which carried prices down to new low levels for the season, despite favorable Liverpool cables, the market started to rally on the belief the Texas legislature would finally pass a measure providing for a material decrease in acreage for the next cotton crop.

October which had declined to 6.46 at the start rallied to 6.55, up 9 points from the lows and 1 point above yesterday's close. Trading was held in check by the delay in Texas over the acreage bill. The market ruled steady most of the afternoon and December made a new high for the day, 12 points above the low. In the late trading, however, the market eased off 4 to 5 points on hedge selling and closed steady at net declines for the day of 3 to 4 points. Liverpool is due tomorrow 1 penny point up to 1 down on new Orleans.

Liverpool came in as due to 1 penny point worse than due. Private cables stated that there had been hedge selling and liquidation. Manchester cabled that in the cloth market the Chinese demand was sustained and there were improved sales to the continent.

Just When Pessimism Was Taking Strangle Hold, Stocks Stage Rally

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 17. (US)—The stock market today staged a rally which developed just when pessimism seemingly had reached its most fantastic hopelessness.

This phenomenon is entirely in line with previous experience, when the market actually improves in the face of virtually universal depression.

Certainly, there was nothing in the day's news to bring cheer to the harassed market. As a matter of fact, the intense bearishness itself provided the principal stimulus to the market, since it created an internal condition which required but the most modest of new buying to achieve an advance.

Since the early part of the week, moreover, there had been an occasional sign of what is described as important short-covering. Mainly, such covering was induced by the recognition of the universal acceptance of the idea that the downward trend of the market was to continue without interruption and that the short side afforded the best profit-making opportunities.

In the early trading the market had attained a new low level, but it was noticeable from the opening that offerings were more easily absorbed and without material recessions in prices, although many issues descended to new lows for the bear market.

Underneath the surface, however, there was noticeable a confidence that the market would suddenly be relieved from the persistent recent pressure, even if but temporarily. In almost half a dozen important financial quarters the forecast was made in the morning that prices would rally before the close.

The ensuing improvement caught unprepared only that portion of the short interest representing "the public." Big shorts had substantially reduced their commitments during the recent heavy liquidation. Their attitude, as so frequently expressed here, was not that they expected absolute bottom in the market, but rather that technical conditions were working toward the creation of a base for possibly a substantial rally.

And it was evident during today's upturn that prices moved relatively as rapid on the way up as they have recently moved downward.

Coupled with the sizable short-covering, there was some increase in long-term buying for the account of investors, some large and some small, but, it was generally conceded, the main incentive for the upturn came from short-covering.

There was a revival of the report that Steel corporation will announce its long-expected reduction in wages and at the offices of the corporation there was the same disinclination to discuss the matter as heretofore. The market seems anxious to get this wage cut out of the way, and the more important interests seemingly agree that a new and significant class of buying would be attracted with such action.

There were all sorts of stories broadcast, of the usual character for a bear market. The street kept an anxious eye on the British naval disorders, but so long as the pound sterling remains relatively stable there will be an attitude of hopefulness. There is no question but that artificial support is being extended to the pound.

Issues which have been under heaviest bear pressure enjoyed the largest recoveries, a performance which served to emphasize that technical influences were playing a leading role in the market's upturn.

American Can, in which bears have been exceedingly aggressive, recovered more than two points net, and Steel Common was up 1½ at the close. General Motors rallied over a point, and Westinghouse 2⅛. The latter still harbors an enormous short interest, although important buying has been taking place only in limited amount. The best grade of buying throughout the list is evident only on a scale downward.

Most of the public utilities rallied with the remainder of the list, but Utilities Light & Power "A" showed distinct weakness, breaking to a new low where the yield on its $2 dividend approached 13 per cent. The stock has been heavily offered since the last pool held the stock almost at double the present price. The stock seemed to be in supply even at the lower prices.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 17. (AP)—Disturbed anew by an oscillating stock market and faced by fresh low-record prices for cotton, grain averaged lower today, especially corn. Relative steadiness at times was imparted to wheat owing to an active export demand for wheat from North America, with Europe estimated to have bought more than 1,000,000 bushels this side of the Atlantic. Black sea shipments of wheat, however, including Russian exports of 5,040,000 bushels, were heavy for the week, more than double those of a year ago.

Wheat closed irregular at ⅛c decline to ¼c advance, corn ⅝@1¼c down, oats unchanged to ¼c higher and provisions showing 2c to 12c setback.

Corn ran into speculative selling after a steady start. A good shipping demand here for corn helped to rally prices somewhat in the late dealings. Oats values were stiffened by vessel charters for 300,000 bushels to go to Buffalo. Provisions sympathized with lower quotations on hogs.

Pleading guilty before Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law Thursday afternoon to a charge of theft under $50, a man who left the Bungalow Tourist camp here about 3:30 a. m. by truck was fined $1 and costs, which brought the total assessment to $31.85, according to County Attorney L. The defendant had been a resident at the tourist park for more than two months, it was said. About 30 pieces of bed linen were said to have departed the camp via his truck. TEST TO DRILL TO 6500 FEET

Deep Oil-Lindsay Well To Be Deepened

To drill to a depth of 6500 feet in an effort to pick up the Oklahoma City pay horizon will be undertaken by the Deep Oil Development-Lindsay Drilling company by the deepening of their No. A-5 L. F. Wilson test in block 75, A. T. N. C. L. survey, Archer county, according to General Manager Harry Hines of the Deep Oil Development company.

This test, the deepest hole so far completed in North Texas fields, was finished Tuesday to the contract depth of 5500 feet, total depth being 5510. During its operation three different pay formations were encountered, but owing to the stipulations required to validate many leases these were passed up to complete the hole to the contract depth.

At 2200 feet the first pay was hit and after drilling 19 feet of sand and marking several flows this stratum was shut off. At 3614 feet another sand was found and when bailed showed the earmarks of a 60 to 70-barrel producer. The third formation was the Ranger lime saturated. This was drilled 55 feet and carried a nice show of oil.

When the hole was completed the Ellenberger lime had been encountered. This will be drilled with the hope of finding a break that may carry oil at approximately the same depth as the Oklahoma City field. Failing to find this formation at the required depth, the hole will be plugged back to the Ranger lime, where a shot will be given in an effort to make it produce, and in the event of no response, the crew will plug back to 3614 feet and complete.

With the completion of the well in the 3614-foot pay the same company will put down a 50-foot offset for the purpose of drilling to the 2200-foot production which was passed up as a 1,500-barrel well in the A-5 Wilson.

The eight-inch hole is in perfect shape to continue operations, but drilling is delayed on account of water shortage, and no further work will begin until a source of supply is secured.

GREGG COUNTY GUSHER

W. R. Duke of Wichita Falls brought in his No. 1 Boles well two miles east of Gladewater in Gregg county flowing at the rate of 40,000 barrels per day. The well, which is located in the H. H. Edwards survey and a little northeast of town, is producing from the usual 3600-foot sand, and by its performance is one of the largest producers brought in from this section of the county.

NORTHEAST OF ARCHER CITY

Paul Trahan and associates have cleaned out the hole dry to the 2200-foot sand in their No. 1 Coleman test in block 74, A. T. N. C. L. survey, in Archer county, and will drill further into the sand in an effort to make a producer. This test, an absolute wildcat three miles northeast of the Chalk Hill deep wells, in the past ten days has created plenty of interest due to its location, and in the event of a well will open up a new deep sand in this portion of the county.

COOKE COUNTY DEEP TEST

Harris & Haun's No. 1 Exstein, located in the center of the Exstein 1093-acre farm about 10 miles northwest of Pottsboro in Grayson county, but in Cooke county, and a rank wildcat, is drilling ahead at 2785 feet.

WEST OF MEGARGEL

Watalla Royalty company's No. 1 J. D. Lester, located in the east half of section 2451, T. E. & L. survey, southwest Archer county, has reduced and is looking for the sand at 1450 feet.

Social Service Ideals Explained by Jaynes

Modern methods of social service have been made necessary by the increasing complexity of advancing civilization, and are the only means by which welfare problems may be solved, Frank E. Jaynes, educational director of the community chest campaign, told members of the Rotary club Thursday.

That certain members of society inevitably gravitate to lower social strata is assured, Mr. Jaynes said, while others in lesser number just as surely rise to superior positions.

The speaker was introduced by Walter D. Cline. A solo by R. E. Shepherd, tenor, was included in the program, Mrs. Shepherd playing the accompaniment.

Visitors introduced by A. E. Kelly included a number of Electra and Bowie Rotarians.

BAR MEMBERS FAVOR REPEAL

Bar Asociation 'Wet' In National Vote

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Sept. 17. (UP)—The American Bar association voted at its annual convention today to go on record as favoring repeal of the 18th amendment.

Charles A. Boston of New York announced the result of the referendum during his speech opening the annual convention. The announcement was received with a burst of applause.

Compromise on Marriage Questions Presented to Episcopal Conclave

DENVER, Sept. 17. (AP)—A compromise on questions of marriage and divorce confronting the Potestant Episcopal church was presented in the house of bishops of the general convention today.

The Rt. Rev. Charles Fiske, bishop of Central New York, advocated the establishment of ecclesiastical courts to consider questions of the annulment of marriage. In one sense, the proposed Fiske canon would be more rigid than the present regulations, which allow a priest to remarry the innocent party to a divorce granted on grounds of adultery.

Priests would not be allowed to marry any persons party to a prior marriage until the case had been passed upon by the church court under provisions of the resolution introduced by Bishop Fiske who does not fravor further liberalization of the divorce and remarriage regulations.

The proposal was referred to the commission on divorce and marriage which has yet to make its report to the convention. It was considered likely Bishop Fiske's proposal would be incorporated in the report.

In the main, the commission's report is understood to contain the same revolutionary suggestions which already have stirred sharp debate. Principal points to the proposed canon are to permit priests to marry divorced persons regardless of grounds on which the divorce was granted and recognition of ecclesiastical courts to pass upon petitions of divorced persons to be married again in the church.

The report must be adopted by both the house of bishops and deputies before it becomes a church law.

WHIST?

Negro Fined $25 For Weilding Bucket In Game

Whist is now being played with a bucket among the colored devotees of the game, according to charges brought against a negro man Thursday in a complaint taken by County Attorney Louis V. Abernathy, and to which the defendant pleaded guilty before Judge Irvin J. Vogel in the county court at law.

The accused and his girl friend were whisting Wednesday night against the defendant's sister and her husband. But this comparative consanguinity was no guarantee of peace. The inevitable debate became vituperative. The defendant swung a bucket, and made a clean hit atop the head of his luckless sister. She remained at a local hospital throughout the night after receiving treatment for a lengthy scalp wound. After telling it to the judge Thursday morning, the bucket-whist exponent went to the Wichita county jail to serve out a fine of $25 and costs.

Mr. Jaynes spoke at the first general assembly of the Wichita Falls High school and Junior college of the present school session.

The first assembly program was indirectly sponsored by the Girl Reserve organization and Miss Gene Hunter, president of that group, made the address of welcome.

Velma Rogers, a new student of the college, replied to the welcome of new students. Homer Donohoe of the college also spoke.

Musical numbers on the program were two solos by Miss Margaret Bone. She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. George O'Brien.

Miss Jean Hunter announced that senior students may obtain or order their senior rings from her or from Paul Barnett or James Lee, who are also on the ring committee of the senior class.

CHILLICOTHE FAIR OPENS

Many Fine Displays Show Wealth of Valley

Special to The Record News.

CHILLICOTHE, Texas, Sept. 17.—The first Chillicothe Valley fair opened here this morning with hundreds of visitors from sections in this community present at the fair grounds to view numerous farm exhibits and other attractions.

Many booths were having the finishing touches put to them Thursday and by Friday noon an exceptionally large number of additional displays are expected to be seen.

Parade Opens Display

The exposition opened with a parade through the business streets of Chillicothe. The procession was led by Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Ayres, pioneer residents of this section. Floats followed, representing schools and business concerns.

During the afternoon a major feature of entertainment was a baseball game between women teams from Vernon and Chillicothe.

A point of much interest was the relic department, which opened Thursday afternoon. Scores of relics, dating as far back as 185 years, were on display.

Many beautiful displays were on exhibit at the fine arts and domestic science department, although all entries had not been received. The agricultural department is to open Friday morning, with 11 communities participating in the exhibitions.

Thursday night's entertainment consisted of music, readings, dancing and vocal selections.

As the cavalcade, en route to Chillicothe, reaches Iowa Park it will be joined there by a delegation of business men of that place. The two groups will continue the journey from Iowa Park, arriving at Vernon at 9:30 a. m., when a third delegation will join the ranks.

All members of the party will be supplied with badges and banners, and in addition to carrying good will greetings to the communities represented at the Chillicothe fair, they will advertise the Wichita County Free fair to be held at Iowa Park Oct. 8-10.

MAJESTIC: Will Rogers, in "Young as You Feel," with Fifi Dorsay and Lucian Littlefield. "Strange as It Seems," Terrytoon, "Her First Egg," scenic feature "Bridges the World Over" and Majestic talking news.

STATE: "Chic" Sale and Walter Huston leading all-star cast in "Star Witness." Sennett novelty, Lloyd Hamilton comedy and latest news.

GEM: Wally Wales in "Flying Lariats"; chapter nine of "Heroes of the Flames"; Silly Symphony cartoon, "Springtime."

I have just seen Chic Sale as "gramper," in "Star Witness," playing at the State, lead a triumphal march to the courtroom where his bravery rebuked his family. The old man had my heart in my mouth in a shooting scene just preceding the rescue. But he did not stop a bullet; his rheumatic leg just buckled under him, and when a police man jerked it straight, he charged up the stair with as much fury as ever in a civil war battle.

A picture with quite a new theme leaves no dull moments. Walter Huston however, as the prosecuting attorney, might as well take a back heat; Gramper and his two small grandsons are the stars of the story.

Members of an ordinary American family, seeing a gang murder beneath their windows, are torn between the fear of destruction at the gang's hands and their knowledge of their duty in identifying the murderer. And all of them save the old man hold family before country.

The majority of Americans in the audience must feel a deep sympathy with the old man who asks the judge, "What would Abe Lincoln ha' done with such dang, dirty furriners? They can crowd an American just so fur. Just so fur."

Gramper's flute, handled in a masterly way so far as the tune of Yankee Doodle goes, is a leading factor in the play. It was the motif that brought about his grandson's rescue and at the last moment, one sees the old man, undaunted by visions of unmarked soldiers' graves still playing his battle hymn.

It is not a gang picture, although it introduced some of the elements of gang life; but it is a lesson in patriotism. More Americans than the old veteran wish to make this country fit for boys to grow up in.

FAMILY RELIEF ADDS WORKER

Mrs. T. B. Smith to Take New Post Oct. 1

Mrs. T. B. Smith, for 13 years an executive in the American Red Cross organization here, accepted the position of case-worker with the Family Relief association Thursday to become effective Oct. 1, according to Mrs. R. P. Willis, who will assume charge of the office on that date.

Mrs. Smith resigned her connection with the Red Cross about two years ago, but has continued to make her residence here. By her experience with that organization she is well fitted to take up the position with the Family Relief association, Mrs. Willis said.

Mrs. Effie McHam, executive secretary for the past five years, will leave on Oct. 1 to take charge of relief work in Bartlesville, Okla. Mrs. Willis' appointment as acting secretary in charge was made shortly after Mrs. McHam's resignation was accepted.
