Menus for the Family

BY SISTER MARY

Breakfast—Grapefruit sections, broiled bacon, poached eggs with spinach on toast, rolled oats muffins, milk, coffee.

Luncheon—Mock oyster cream soup, croutons, date graham bread and butter sandwiches, sliced oranges, milk, tea.

Dinner—Tomato bouillon, mock sausage, potatoes au gratin, buttered cauliflower, jellied fruit salad, rye bread, milk, coffee.

The date bread and butter sandwiches are served with the oranges suggested in the luncheon menu. The term "sliced" oranges is rather misleading since oranges properly prepared in this manner are not really sliced at all. The fruit is carefully peeled and then each section is freed from skin. These smooth sections of orange are the "slices".

Mock Oyster Cream Soup

One bunch parsley, 1 cup chicken or veal stock, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon pepper, 1/2 teaspoon celery seed, 1 egg, 1 cup thick cream.

Wash and scrape parsley and slice into acidulated water. Drain and put into sauce pan with "Scrape cold water. Bring to the boiling point and simmer until vegetable is soft. Rub through a colander and return to sauce pan with stock. Rub butter and flour together until perfectly smooth. Work in salt, pepper and celery seed. Add to soup and stir until mixture boils. When ready to serve add cream and egg beaten together. Stir over the fire until very hot but do not let boil. Serve at once.

SIXTEENTH ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF W. M. S. CLOSES; ABILENE CHOSEN AS MEETING PLACE FOR NEXT YEAR

More than 300 delegates who have been in attendance at the sixteenth annual conference of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North West Texas conference for the past three days, left for their homes today following the adjournment near noon. Unfinished business was transacted at the morning session and Miss Christine Abilene, returned missionary from Africa, one of the speakers of the conference, conducted the morning devotion.

Abilene was chosen as the meeting place for the 1927 session yesterday afternoon after an invitation had been given by the Abilene delegation. Other invitations were withdrawn before the place of meeting was voted upon.

Two addresses were given Thursday evening and a message, "Coke Blind," was given by the Lubbock Auxiliary. Dr. P. W. Horn, president of the Tech, and Mrs. Jessie Daniel Ames, Georgetown, were the speakers of the evening.

Miss Annis Owens played a violin solo and Mrs. Carl Scoggins, soprano, sang at the evening service. Mrs. Ames talked on the racial problems in the South, saying that through educating the negro much of the trouble with negroes would be eliminated. She said that this is a missionary problem of the church and that the living conditions among many Southern negroes are extremely sordid.

Dr. Horn talked on "Peace," saying that all nations should have a respect of love toward one another rather than one of hate. He said that true Christianity teaches all men to love one another and live in peaceful relationships.

Seven Essays On Postal Service Submitted Here

Seven essays on "How Postal Service in Lubbock can be improved" have been turned over to Postmaster John L. Vaughan by Supt. M. H. Duncan of the Lubbock public schools as a result of the announcement recently that the Postmaster had offered $5 cash as prizes for the three best papers submitted by high school students.

The contest was initiated by Mr. Vaughan after a visit through the postoffice here by three members of a local luncheon club, who upon Mr. Vaughan's suggestion, expressed hearty approval of the scheme to acquaint the public with the operation of the postal department. Following this, the students were selected from the English department of the high school, and they in turn were shown through the office.

The committee that will judge the essays is composed of the three members of the luncheon club that made the first inspection, and it was said here Friday that announcement of the winners probably will be made Saturday. The winning essay will be published, and it is the plan of Mr. Vaughan to send all the papers to the Postoffice department, where they may be used as publicity matter if desired.

COLD WEATHER, ACCIDENTS AND ILLNESS REAP BIG HARVEST IN MAJOR LEAGUES; 4 GAMES PLAYED

BUGS PATE GIVES WASHINGTON TWO HITS IN SIX AND TWO-THIRDS INNINGS AS ATHLETICS WIN; O'DAY HAS APPENDICITIS

(By The Associated Press.) Cold weather, accident and illness are interfering with the major league baseball season.

Already low temperature have brought postponement of six contests. At Philadelphia yesterday Harry Riddick, Braves' third baseman, suffered a fractured right leg in a slide into the plate. It is likely to be out of the game for some time.

O'Day Goes To Hospital
At St. Louis the veteran umpire, Hank O'Day, was stricken with appendicitis just before the start of the game and sent to a hospital.

With the Brooklyn-New York, Chicago-Cincinnati, Yankees-Red Sox and Cleveland-Detroit games postponed on account of cold, the Philadelphia clubs claimed attention. The Athletics defeated the Senators after two defeats and slugged out a 9 to 3 victory, while the Phillies continued in their winning frame of mind and downed the Braves, 4 to 4.

Trades Are Tested
It was day of experiment for the managers eager for vindication of winter trades. The Braves started George Mogridge, formerly of the Senators, and he journeyed to the showers before the ninth inning had been completed. Washington tried Joe Bush, obtained from the Browns, and the also failed. So did Tom Zachary, former Senator left-hander, when he attempted to officiate for the Browns.

Joe Pate, a 32 year old rookie from the Texas League, allowed only two hits in 6 2-3 innings after relieving Baumgartner against Washington. The American League champions made five errors in their first defeat of the season.

White Sox Beat Browns
The White Sox displaying an unexpected hitting powertramped the St. Louis, 11 to 4.

The bats of the Collins squad, coupled with their errorless performance, gave Ted Blankenship an easy time. Cy Williams was the hero of the Phillies' third straight conquest, rushed into the contest in the ninth inning with three on bases, he belted a homer. It was the second of the season. This was the second time in the young season that a pinch hitter had delivered a home run. Jimmy Johnston of the Braves having shot out a long blow that was all in vain on opening day.

Keen Wins Over Pirates
Vic Keen, formerly of the Cubs, went to the mound for the Cardinals and returned with Hornsby's second victory of the year over the Champions, 2 to 0. Hornsby regained the batting eye that he had lost on Wednesday and hammered out a double and two singles.

Three Athletic Teams Sally Forth Today

As the Tech College Matador baseball crew returned home today from a four-game road trip with three victories and one tie game dangling from their belts, three other athletic teams of Lubbock were embarking on making plans to embark on a rally for the day.

Coach Higginbotham's Matador track and field team left this afternoon for Canyon, where tomorrow they engage the Canyon Normal Buffaloes in a duel meet. Coach Von Tungen's high school Westerner baseball nine went to Lufkin for a session against the high school there, and Skipper Sled Allen herded a bunch of his amateur ball chasers together for a round with the Slaton High School Tigers on Tiger field at Slaton. The three teams left almost simultaneously in the three directions.

Matador Baseball Squad Returns From Successful Road Trip To Face Heavy Program At Home Next Week

The Tech College Matador baseball squad returned home Friday morning after wandering over the face of West Texas on a road trip on which they went astray considerably from their schedule. The trip originally called for four games at Brownwood, two with Daniel Baker and two with Howard Payne, but the Yellow Jackets, apparently sensing defeat after they had scouted the Daniel Baker games, politely excused themselves from participation in the contests in which they were scheduled with the remark that the athletic department had no funds, and they could not play.

Thus Tech left stranded, but gained some relief when the McMurry College Indians agreed to entertain them in a couple of games the same days that they were to have met the Yellow Jackets.

Aside from this fact the trip was very successful, as the club returned with three victories and one tie

SYNTHETIC STEAKS

A manufactured beefsteak, chemically correct as a food, is promised by science. The cost would be at the rate of about 5 cents a pound as compared to the 40 cents paid for the meat that we eat. It is interesting if true. However, it is most beyond the average lay mind to conjecture, though science has made other food preparations that have been quite acceptable.

The cowman, however, won't have much to fear in this regard. Just returning to normal again after a hectic period in the industry, a synthetic beefsteak might throw a scare into the ranchers, but folks will be hard to wean away from the succulent T-bone and other delicious cuts. Beef consumption last year reached its peak, according to recent government reports, and that's the most heartening thing the cowman has heard in many a moon. It means demand for their product, and demand means greater profits.

And until synthetic steaks really arrive, there is little for the rancher to worry about in West Texas other than will the moisture come at the right time to keep the range and bring on bumper crops.

TRAFFIC CODE

Hoover's "Save Your Life" conference is ended but his work has just begun. The next steps lie with the Legislature of 46 states and the people who live in them.

A traffic code has been drawn up. It will be interesting to watch what the states will do with it. There will be plenty of battles over this code, plenty of political grubbing and oceans of talk. If they should all pass it at once, and in its present form, it would be the surprise of the age.

The thousand men and women of those states who took the trip to Washington at great personal expense and some inconvenience, are to be thanked by their home states and communities. They have tried to do something worth while.

BURBANK'S BELIEFS

We should not be too harsh in judging the religious philosophy of the late Luther Burbank.

In the first place, Burbank was an old man with all an old man's life. In the second place, he was the merest dabbler in the matter of theological discussion. In the third place, whatever questions there may have been in his mind have been answered already by the Architect of the universe.

Burbank was undoubtedly the greatest plant wizard the world has seen. He added more and better plants to the catalog of achievement than any man that ever lived. His researches and findings meant literally billions of dollars to the agricultural and horticultural interests of the world.

No one was entitled to rise in his place and dispute with Luther Burbank about anything affecting the field in which Burbank was supreme. On the other hand, the veriest sub preacher was entitled to dispute with him the things concerning the spiritual life. A wizard in the plant world, Burbank was a child in the realm of theology. He was out of his element as a deliver into the field of religion. He simply did not know, no more than the average preacher would know about subjects peculiar to the field in which Burbank was supreme.

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

MR. BROWN WAS NOT SO VERY FAR OFF, AT THAT

By CHARLES P. STEWART
NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON. — Herbert Janvrin Browne, the weather prophet who declared last fall that the summers of 1926 and 1927 wouldn't be summers at all, but that we might expect to shoot our fourth of July fireworks in the snow, got himself pooh-poohed for his assertion.

But just look at the spring we've had! Browne himself is not a scientist, and doesn't pretend to be. For the strictly scientific information he requires, to enable him to peer into the meteorological future, he relies on specialists.

Originally Browne's interest in the weather was purely incidental to other activities he was engaged in.

He began his career as a newspaper man—a Washington correspondent. Now there are undercurrents in Washington — changing undercurrents — which it pays "big business" throughout the country to know all about. Early knowledge—if possible, advance knowledge—of the changes enables "big business" to avoid losses and make more money.

A good Washington correspondent becomes sensitive to these changes. Browne did. So presently he became a purveyor of such "inside" information to a select list of "big business" clients.

Browne's theory was that the earth's weather depends on the sun. He went to Sol's observatory for advice. The sun's heat varies, they said—not by very many degrees, but perhaps enough to count a great deal, translated into terms of terrestrial temperature.

However, with a cool sun, some times the earth was warm. The scientists had noted that. And it often happened, with the sun getting in its best licks, that the weather here was cold. They'd observed that, too.

Browne was a sailor as well as a newspaper man.

All for himself, he evolved the idea that the ocean warms up and cools off, as the sun's heat varies, and that the ocean's currents spread the difference around.

It takes three years, he estimated, knowing the currents as he does.

THESE WOMEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY
At the opening of the story today, AUDREY MORTON has just seen her guardian, HARRY MORTON, with whom she is in love, enter the Bon cabaret at midnight with a gay party of women. She has asked JOHN PARRISH, Morton's secretary, to take her there, having overheard Morton make an appointment for the place.
Morton has tried to interest her in Parrish. He also has tried to disgust her with him by a violent flirtation with NONA, a Chicago stage girl, who is in love with him.
Morton has been a mystery to the gossip of Peoria for 15 years, since he first went there with Audrey, then a little child. Rich, handsome, unmarried, he maintains a costly apartment in Chicago, dividing his time between them. His business, and his past are unknown to his friends and neighbors.
Audrey offers Parrish the money for their meal.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
(The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)
CHAPTER XVII
Audrey lifted the little sick and velvet bag that she had brought on her arm, drew from it a fifty dollar bill, and passed it to her secret. She did this without once taking her eyes from Morton, on the other side of the room.
Parrish caught the direction of her glance, and with a quick look, settled back in his seat.
"Haven't we better go?" he asked, leaning over toward her.
She made a negative motion of her head. "I want to stay," she told him. The manager of the restaurant himself was escorting Morton and his party to a table, that stood directly alongside the dance floor. Removing his shoulder.
He merely looked amused.
"Let's go," again proposed Parrish, who had not lost any of the details of this scene.
Audrey apparently did not hear him. Her eyes were fixed on the man and girl across the room. Her jaw was set a little forward, as if she were filled with some deep resolution.
Morton turned his head and whispered in the girl's ear. She laughed delightedly, and turning to her companions, apparently repeated what Morton had said. They all roared. The strange man reached across the head of one of the girls, and patted Morton on the back.
The girl who was sitting at Morton's left had been watching him, almost as intently as Audrey. Now she leaned toward him, took the other girl's hand, removed it from his shoulders, and placed her own arm around his neck. The Auburn-haired girl moved in quick protest. She clasped both her arms around him. There was a quick struggle, which Morton ended by rising to his feet, and backing away in mock dismay.
Audrey could see him turning to one of the girls, and then to the other, as if entreating them to behave. When he resumed his seat, each of the girls locked an arm through one of his, and the noisy conversation went on as they dipped gingerly into the plates of soup that now were before them.
Once Morton's glance crossed the room, and rested for a moment apparently on Audrey. However, his face was unaltered, and Audrey decided that he had not seen her.
"I think we can go now," she said to Parrish.
Rising, he helped her to don her fur coat, and motioned to the waiter to come. He stood patiently until the man returned with his change. Laying a half-dollar beside his plate, he was starting out, but Audrey stopped the sign "RESERVED" from a bouquet of flowers that stood in the middle of the cloth, the manager patted out Morton's chair for him. Morton waited until the girls in his party were seated and then gave a rapid order to the restaurant man.

"Cocktails," said Audrey, briefly. Parrish looked at her with interest. "How can you tell?"

Audrey, watching, saw one of the liquor agents in the corner of the room disappear, and promptly return with a small package. In a few moments a waiter brought to Morton's table a tray of after-dinner coffee cups. Morton, bowing to his party, lifted his own cup, as if pledging his companions.
"I bet they're drinking whiskey," murmured Parrish.
"Cocktails," said Audrey, briefly. Parrish looked at her with interest. "How can you tell?"
"Daddy has never taken me to any of these places, but he has told me about them," she said. "They always serve cocktails in those little coffee cups. That's so nobody can see what's in them."
The girls who were with Morton were strangers to Audrey, but the other male member of the party was the man who had spoken to Morton in front of the art store, the day before.
Paying almost no heed to Parrish, she continued to watch Morton's table. The waiter brought her dish after dish, each of which she pushed away. Parrish was making a good meal out of the small portions that were set before him.
"Don't you want to eat anything?" he asked her.
"I think not," she said. "I may take some coffee."
In Morton's group the conversation was becoming lively. Two more trays, with the little cups, had been brought. One girl, who was sitting at Morton's right, was laughing almost continuously.
The girl was ruddy—whether artificially or naturally, Audrey could not tell at that distance. Her hair was a rich dark red, and her cheeks were blooming. She had the round face of a child, and a child's round, inquiring eyes. Her arms and shoulders were bare, and on her left wrist was a long platinum chain, wound around and around to serve as a bracelet.
As Audrey watched, the girl upset a tall glass that the waiter placed before her. She giggled hysterically, and drew back, as the waiter sopped up the liquid with napkins from an adjoining table. When she pulled her chair close again, she turned to Morton as if apologizing. Leaning nearer and nearer to him, her arm stole over the back of his chair, and finally over

"I am quite sure you will not take her to any place she ought not to go," the cool, even voice went on. "At least, unless she asks you to take her there herself."
Parrish shifted uneasily, and again there was a question in his eyes as he looked at Morton. There was no visible answer in the older man's face. He only continued his instructions. "If you take her to restaurants, take her to those where the food is good. You have not been around the world much—I believe I am right in saying that. Always be certain to see the waiters liberally."
Parrish hastily arose to his feet. "You saw me—you saw us!" he exclaimed.
Morton's eyebrows raised in apparent surprise. "I am afraid you are talking in riddles. That's a bad habit. You evidently have something on your mind that I don't want to inquire into. If you want to dance, Miss Morton can show you about as well as any teacher. I guess that's all."
Parrish regarded him doubtfully, and seemed about to ask again if Morton had seen him the night before. The other man waved him away. "If you have a guilty conscience about anything, I don't want to know it. Always be certain to see the waiters liberally."
"But I'm not guilty of anything," Parrish protested.
"You act as if you were," Morton said, taking the other by the arm. "But I suppose it's merely my imagination. Now you go ahead to the office, and make sure to ring Miss Morton about noon. I'm afraid she will be lonesome."
There was amusement in his eyes as he watched the young man depart, and he shook his head slightly, as he pushed a button beneath the edge of the table.
"Ask Miss Morton," said if she has arisen yet," he told the butler.
A minute later that household of fight came running down the stairs, his face agitated.
"Miss Morton's maid says that she isn't there—she wasn't here last night—her bed isn't disturbed!"

WOOL REPORT

BOSTON, Apr. 16. (P)—The Commercial Bulletin tomorrow will say: The Eastern wool markets continue very quiet. Apparently there is nothing in the immediate outlook to give any one much confidence. Business at the Mills is slow and generally unsatisfactory.

In the West, buying has been less general and a small volume of wool has been sold. In Montana, 25 cents has paid, partly on manufacturer's account for bulk half-blood clip, although most growers have been asking 40 cents. In other sections there has been little change. One or two choice clips in Nevada and Texas have been purchased at a half cent advance in the grease, but probably at satisfactory clean costs. Some buyers have withdrawn virtually from the market, quoting lower prices.

The foreign markets are fairly steady.

TODAY'S MARKETS

Cotton Markets

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, April 16. (P)—With the appearance of more favorable weather in the South, selling became a little more active in the cotton market today.

Liverpool was lower than due and the opening here was at a decline of 1 to 2 points, active months soon showing net losses of 5 to 8 points, under Southern, local and commission house selling.

The latter was attributed to the liquidation of long accounts while the Southern selling was supposed to include hedging.

Offerings were not particularly heavy and enough buying by trade or speculative shorts steadied around 18.75c for May and 17.25c for October (toward the end of the first hour).

The selling movement tapered off from the early decline of about 5 to 8 points and the market was quiet later in the morning.

Except for covering there was little demand; however, prices were within a point or two of the lowest at mid-day.

The afternoon market turned easier under Wall Street, local and Southern selling, which probably included considerable liquidation of long accounts in anticipation of good weather in the belt. May broke to 18.75 and October to 17.25c, active months showing net decline of 4 to 14 points at 2 o'clock.

NEW ORLEANS REPORT

NEW ORLEANS, April 16. (P)—The cotton market opened easy owing to better weather in the belt. First trades showed losses of 10 to 14 points and prices continued to ease off after the call on the belief that the better weather conditions would permit the speeding up of new crop preparation for planting. May traded down to 18.02c; July to 17.58c; October to 16.56c and December to 16.68c, or nine to ten points under yesterday's close. At the end of the first half hour the tendency was toward the low levels.

Following the early spurt of selling based on the better weather, the market quieted down and prices fluctuated narrowly. May trading at 18.01c, July at 17.58c, and October at 16.67c. Hester's Pointer for weekly mill takings of 237,000 to 247,000 bales was bearish, but exerted little influence on the market. Towards noon the market was steady and 1 to 4 points up from the lows, the near months being a little more in demand.

SAYS CONGRESS CAN OKEY USE OF CIDER AND WINE IN HOMES AS WETS END THEIR TESTIMONY

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, April 16.—Congress has the power to permit and legalize the use of cider and wine in homes, Representative Hill, Republican, Maryland, declared yesterday before the senate liquor committee. Hill, a leader of the wets in the house, based his statement upon decisions of the courts in the case brought against him by the government, to allow him to manufacture such cider and wine in his home.

The case, he said, was tried under section 29 of the Volstead Act, permitting the manufacture in the home of non-intoxicating cider and wine. The jury held liquor of this alcoholic content was not intoxicating and the government did not appeal.

Closes Case For Wets
Representative Hill was the first of a number of members of the House who appeared to close the case for the wets.

At the outset it was agreed that the wets could take up the remainder of their time with argument at the close of the presentation by drys.

Hishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, interpreted some objection, suggesting that the drys have the closing. But Senator Goff, Republican, West Virginia, said wets had the affirmative and under the usual practice they should have the closing.

Still Are Brought In
While Representative Hill was talking, Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, came into the room and there was brought in a number of fancy stills.

Senator Reed then announced that he had not finished his examination of Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement. He picked up a steam pressure cooker and asked General Andrews if that could not be used as a still.

The general referred the Senator to Dr. James Dorn, chemist of the prohibition unit, who conceded that the cooker would make a still, but a rather imperfect one.

Dorn Has Still, Too
Dr. Dorn had a still of his own, consisting of a copper pot, with a tube leading off and a condenser. It was described for the record.

Then Reed produced a gallon capacity charred keg, which it was conceded could be used to "age" liquor.

"Do you know anything else they are used for?" asked Reed.

"No, sir," said Dorn.

"Is there any law against their sale?" "I'm not sure of that."

"Ripeners" Are Shown
Next Reed produced a small package containing charred oak sticks, these are sold in Washington, and Dr. Dorn said they could be used to "ripen" whisky.

Corn sugar, from which Reed developed yesterday that liquor could be made, next was produced. Dorn identified it as such by tasting.

"Do you know whether production of this corn sugar has increased with-a few years from one and one-quarter million pounds a year to 300,000,000 pounds?"

"I know enough about it to know that those figures are wrong. There has been a large increase. It is used generally in the home now."

"Alcohol is made out of it."

"To some extent."

"Would you say use of this sugar as an edible product has increased four-fold?"

"It has increased, but I could not say how much."

"They make whisky out of malt don't they?"

"No," said Dorn.

The crowd laughed, and the witness added:

"I'm talking now of distilled whisky."

"It could be used, couldn't it?" pursued Reed.

"Certainly, but I don't know it is used for that purpose."

"Don't put your beliefs in, I know it is used for that purpose," said Reed.

Reed Produces Report
The Senator then produced a report showing that corn sugar consumption had advanced from 152,870,000 pounds in 1919 to 527,909,513 in 1923.

Playing extracts for rye and bourbon whisky and Holland gin were put in evidence.

The legend on one of the bottles was read. It concluded with the statement that "Nothing is more delicious than plum pudding with brandy flavored by this extract."

Dorn said he doubted whether there was any extensive use of the extracts by bootleggers.

"Isn't this stuff used to doctor up bootleg liquor?" persisted Reed.

"I don't think so. The stuff made in this small still is such vile stuff that they don't try to doctor it up."

"I'm talking about the little stills," returned Reed. "I'm talking about the big stills and their output."

Dorn agreed that the big distillers used it.

Turning back to the General Andrews Senator Reed asked for and the witness agreed to furnish this information:

Prosecutions Shown
The number of liquor prosecutions in the past twelve months, together with the number of search warrants issued and the number sustained over the same period.

The production of grapes by years before and since prohibition, together with a contrast of prices over the years.

The number of persons killed or wounded by federal prohibition agents and the coast guard.

The actual amount of liquor seized by federal agents, including the coast guard.

A referendum on prohibition was urged in a statement filed by Representative Mary T. Morton, Democrat New Jersey, declaring prohibition and temperance "have no relation to each other."

"It would seem that there is but one solution to the horrible condition in our country today—a referendum to the people and allow them to decide definitely whether or not they are in favor of prohibition," she said.

(By The Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Apr. 16.—The prohibition war that has been raging before the Senate investigation committee seems certain to occupy a permanent place from now on in debate on the floor of the Senate itself.

As a result of the speech yesterday by Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, challenging those who are campaign-

Husband Asks Blood Tests

Rudolph Modell of Chicago has filed suit asking that his blood and that of his wife, Marcelle, be tested to show whether or not he is the father of her five-month-old child. He says he did not see his wife for over a year before the baby was born. Photo shows Mrs. Modell, who insists Modell is the child's father, holding the baby and conferring with her attorney William J. Kelley.

ing against the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act, the modifications are expected to renew as soon as opportunity offers their argument for a change.

The Senate looked forward to the intriguing prospects of a possible pitched battle on the floor some time soon between Senator Borah and Senator Reed, Democrat, Missouri, another of the Senate's ablest debaters and one of the leaders of the wet cause.

Borah's Speech Important
Senator Borah's speech yesterday attracted unusual attention, and his arguments for respect for the dry law led dry Senators to break Senate precedent by joining in the applause. His utterances aroused even more attention, when members had an opportunity to weigh more carefully his challenge to the wets.

The Idaho Senator quoted the Eighteenth Amendment, referred to the binding interpretation placed upon it by the Supreme Court and continued: "Amendment is Binding"

"The amendment binds every official and every citizen, and so long as it remains there, it is the first duty of good citizens to respect it and seek to uphold it. We are now engaged in a great campaign to find a way by which to evade the constitution without apparently doing so; to find a method or a means by which we can counteract or nullify terms without specifically repeating this part of the constitution or without modifying it directly.

"No one contends that those who are opposed to prohibition have not the right to carry on a campaign for the purpose of changing the constitution but so long as it remains a part of the constitution, it is the duty of every citizen to support and maintain it, not only in letter but in spirit."

He Quotes Buckner
Quoting from the testimony of District Attorney Buckner of New York, before the prohibition committee, Senator Borah characterized as "cowardly, contemptible testimony" any proposal to let the states define and enforce the dry law.

"The great Civil War was fought over that principle," he said, "to my mind it is treason! It is a deliberate evasion of the constitution. It is disloyalty to the first principle of a Federal union and a violation of the oath which every federal officer takes when he takes office."

West Texas Boys Represent State In Penn Debate

AUSTIN, Tex., April 16. (AP)—Ed Gossett of Post, and Otis Rogers of Canadian, outstanding Texas University debaters, tonight at Philadelphia will debate Pennsylvania University's team. This contest will be the first of one of the most ambitious programs arranged for any Texas University team, athletic or otherwise.

Saturday night, the Longhorn debaters will oppose Columbia University at New York; and Tuesday they will meet the Dartmouth College speakers at Hanover, New Hampshire.

In each debate, the Texans will uphold the affirmative of "Resolved: That Congress adopt Colonel Mitchell's Plan for a single department of national defense with equal branches of army, navy and air."

In three debates in which they have worked together, Gossett and Rogers have the unusual record of not receiving the unfavorable vote of a single judge. On their eastern invasion, the Longhorn debaters will seek to equal the record made in 1921 by Judson Francis and Jack Blalock who in New York City defeated Columbia University, three votes to none.

27 Babies Given Examinations In Clinic At Slaton

Twenty-seven infants and preschool children were weighed, measured, and given complete physical examinations at a baby clinic held Thursday afternoon at Slaton under supervision of the Public Health Nurse of the county, Miss Anna Bruckner said Friday morning.

Dr. M. C. Overton, of Lubbock, well known Lubbock baby specialist, was in charge of the examinations, and he was very ably assisted by Mrs. Hardesty, Mrs. Harry Stokes, and Mrs. Towery, of Slaton, and Mrs. F. Stonebaker, of Lubbock.

A kindergarten class of the city of Slaton attended the clinic on masses, Miss Bruckner said, and during the clinic an effort was made to improve upon the minds of parents present the importance of having births of all children registered.

The clinic was held in connection with the annual clean-up and better health campaign now under way at Slaton, and today a committee of ladies from the Civic and Culture Club of Slaton canvassed the city, inspecting all markets, fountains, and other places where food is handled to see that the sanitary laws of the state are being followed.

ing 1918 to 1919, and a steady downward trend from 1920 to 1925.

"I don't say that alcohol causes tuberculosis," Dr. Emerson, but added that improved economic conditions among the people under prohibition had contributed to the decrease.

Questioned by Senator Reed, Dr. Emerson said one of the things accompanying prohibition was the reduction in the number of sanitariums for the treatment of alcoholics.

"Has there been increase in the use of drugs since prohibition?"

"There is no evidence of an increase in the drug habit," replied Dr. Emerson. "On the contrary there is evidence of a reduction."

WASHINGTON, Apr. 16. (AP)—The Senate liquor hearing, which has developed thus far, and the testimony Wednesday of Assistant Secretary Andrews, have come in for more or less comment from prohibitionists in various parts of the country.

Pat Neff, former Governor of Texas, in a speech last night before the International Council of Religious Education at Birmingham, in his reference to the hearing, expressed the opinion that the liquor interest were using Congress as a "sieve to flood the nation with propaganda for readers of the press."

Despite the statement by Mr. Andrews yesterday that, in giving his opinion in reply to a hypothetical question that sale of non-intoxicating beer for consumption in homes and hotels with meals might aid enforcement, he was not advocating a change in the prohibition law, Dr. A. C. Graham, superintendent of the Kentucky Anti-Saloon League, has announced that his organization will "demand" that the President remove the enforcement chief from office. He quoted Mrs. Ullie Gray Pickett, Kentucky state president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, as saying similar action would be taken by her society.

Mr. Neff touched on the same subject in his speech, but did not mention Mr. Andrews or United States Attorney Buckner of New York, whose testimony also roused the ire of some prohibitionists, by name.

"No one," he held, "should be in charge of prohibition enforcement who does not believe the law can be enforced or who is not in favor of the law."

Mr. Andrews made it clear that "it is my task to enforce the law as written, and to that end I am giving my sole attention."

WASHINGTON, Apr. 16. (AP)—The call of the hour is for such a thorough-going work of moral persuasion and legal enforcement, as will give the policy of prohibition an adequate opportunity to demonstrate its full value to the nation and the world, said a statement presented today to the Senate liquor committee by the administrative committee of the Federal Council of Churches.

This declaration by the spokesmen for twenty-eight Protestant denominations marked the opening of the drive by the drys in response to the assaults on prohibition which have been made by the wets during the past ten days. The statement was read by Dr. William H. Weaver, of New York, secretary of the American Bible Society.

Evils Are Discounted

"If serious evils have sprung up since prohibition," the statement said, "they are far less than the evils which arose from the liquor traffic prior to the Eighteenth Amendment. The liquor traffic with the accompanying saloon was allied with political corruption, crime, gambling and prostitution. It meant the wreckage of men and the degradation of families."

"The policy of prohibition was not adopted hastily nor was it foisted upon the country by a Puritanical minority. It was first voted in most of the states separately and then nationally, because the people had become convinced that the liquor traffic was an evil of such magnitude that it had to be destroyed."

Amendment Is Upheld

"The Eighteenth Amendment was made a part of the constitution by the regular methods which the founders of the Republic devised with a view to making the amendment of the constitution difficult rather than easy. Yet this amendment was adopted more promptly than any other change in the constitution ever proposed."

"The proposal to modify the Volstead Act so as to permit the sale of beer and wines presents insuperable objections. It would make enforcement more difficult. It would inevitably mean the return either of the saloon or something equally undesirable."

Bootlegging More Menacing

"Bootlegging is stronger liquor would become more menacing because it would tend to operate through the places where the milder intoxicants were sold. Moreover, there is not evidence to justify the contention that to permit wine and beer would reduce the consumption of ardent spirits. The teaching of experience is to the contrary."

Methods of control short prohibition, such as taxation regulation, and the governmentally controlled systems of some of the Canadian provinces, Norway and Sweden, have all proved inadequate to cope with the evil.

The one path for advance is for all good citizens personally to observe the law and to support the great enterprise, born the idealism of the people, of completely ridding the nation of as a demoralizing business as the liquor traffic has always proved itself to be."

At the opening today it was announced that the continued illness of Senator Means, Republican, Colorado, the chairman, had compelled him to withdraw from the committee.

Senator Harold, Republican, Oklahoma, was designated chairman, and Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts, another dry, was named to replace Senator Means as a committee member.

When At The Table

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, Bishop James Cannon, Jr. of the Methodist episcopal church, South, and Mrs. E. A. Yost, legislative superintendent of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, sat at the end of the committee table at today's session to direct the presentation for the drys.

Dr. Haven was sworn and stood while he read the statement of the Federal Council.

The statement described as "a dissonance and a snare" the personal liberty plea of those who oppose prohibition. "All law is in infringement of personal liberty for the sake of the public welfare," the statement continued.

Freedom Is Defined

"One of the blots upon our national character is due to the utterly misleading conception of personal freedom which rejects control and defies authority. How else can we account for the swollen lists of divorces, robberies, murders, the notorious deeds of public pollution and financial dishonesty; the unlicensed altitudes of the press and its exaltation of rogues by the publicity it gives their trial and execution when they are brought within the reach of tardy justice?"

"They say that prohibition was foisted suddenly upon an unwilling people. As a policy, entitled legal suppression of the liquor traffic, in one form or another, is seventy years old in the United States. During that prolonged period the traffic was given repeated opportunity to reform."

Asks For Square Deal

"Give prohibition a square deal. What homes has it blighted, what lives has it brought upon us. What shame and sin, when compared with those under use of intoxicants during those centuries?"

Dr. Charles C. McFarland, secretary of the Federal Council of Churches, read a telegram from T. Albert Morris, secretary of the United Church of Canada, saying that under restricted licenses in Canadian provinces consumption of liquor and bootlegging had increased, and that home conditions were worse than they had been under prohibition.

Dr. Leow Beatty, superintendent of the Madison Square settlement, New York City, told the committee that conditions in his section of New York had improved under prohibition.

Banks Replace Saloons

"The saloons that used to do a land office business are gone," he said. "Banks and other business houses have replaced them. There is not a speak-easy in that section."

In a solitary home, on the third floor of a tenement, Dr. Beatty said, he had smelled home brew.

"The good lady there said conditions under prohibition were terrible," he said. "I then visited the 93 other homes in the block, and I did not find a single family engaged in home brewing."

Mrs. Helen H. Green, a member of the Cleveland, Ohio, city council, told the committee that the dry people she represented wanted no modification, but wanted "teeth put into the law."

"Despite the increase in population of Cleveland and the arrival of foreigners and negroes from the South," she said, "there is less crime in our city today."

LUBBOCK BANKS IN GOOD SHAPE

The loans show an increase over the same time last year largely due to the inability of the farmer to meet his obligations last fall on account of the partial crop failure, and the consequence that banks were forced to carry the loans over. Mr. Posey said, and in view of the fact that bank officials have been forced to call a halt at a certain limit in the loans, the farmer is now turning his attention to the "Cow, Sow, and Hen" slogan that has been so constantly before the country in the past few years.

"Prospects Bright"—Posey

"I cannot recall a time during recent years that this country has faced such bright prospects for a good crop," Mr. Posey said, "and the man who lives at home this year, and makes a good crop, is going to have money, not only to pay his debts, but to live comfortably until the next crop without calling on his bank for financial assistance. Our land has all been broken up, and much of it reseeded. We have had sufficient rain for an excellent season, our farmers are generally in the best of spirits, and I look upon conditions as exceptionally favorable."

"The short crop of last year has served not only to check our ideas of 'get-rich-quick,' but it has served as a means to drive home to the farmer the idea of bankers and agricultural leaders for more diversification and a live-at-home program. For this reason, I believe farmers who have not yet adopted the live-at-home program may yet be brought to a realization of the importance of such a step. If every farmer would raise his meat, butter and eggs, etc., which he can very easily and economically do, then extend his plans a little beyond this so that he may have a little produce to bring to town with him each time he comes, we will all be in much better condition."

Ignorance of Women Voters Is Attacked

CHICAGO, April 15. (AP)—The ignorance of many women voters is appalling," says Mrs. Bertha Baur, unsuccessful candidate for Republican Congressional nomination, who takes her defeat with a smile. "They are ignorant of politics," said Mrs. Baur, speaking of members of her sex she met at the polls. I saw many come in vote without ever having registered. Some wanted to take their ballots. Some wanted their relatives to go into the booths and help them to mark the ballots."

Spectators Watch Volcano Eruption

HILTO, T. H. April 15. (AP)—The volcano Mauna Loa belched forth in another spectacular eruption at 8 o'clock last night and thousands of spectators watched great streams of lava surge to the summit and start down the 12,000 slopes, toward the villages in the Kaa district.

Observers say great activity is oc-

WORLD LANGUAGE TO BE TRIED FOR RADIO

NEW YORK, April 16. (AP)—A world language of electricity, which will enable radio fans the world over to discuss their hobby in common terms is one of the problems to be worked out at the ten-day convention of the International Electro-Technical Commission that began here yesterday.

National committees in the various countries which will send delegates to the convention have been developing studies in this field and will report to the commission.

"Radio expansion," said Dr. Clayton Halsey Sharp, president of the United States Committee of the Commission, "has increased the demand for common terms and symbols. Electricity is becoming a powerful instrument of concord among all peoples, and apart from all scientific consideration, it is important to commerce that there be standardization of terms in the electro-technical field so that people in different lands can know what they are talking about."

"The new international tongue may in part consist of symbols. It is essential that there be standards for rating, for designating sizes and performances of electrical machinery. Standardized requirements need to be used in asking for bids and tenders in business."

Delegates from Great Britain, France, Germany, Norway, Russia, Poland, Spain, Belgium, Holland and Switzerland will attend the meeting.

CHARGE OKLAHOMA KLAN IS ACTIVE

OKMULGEE, Okla., Apr. 16. (AP)—R. L. Seaman, secretary of the Okmulgee chapter of the Ku Klux Klan, today denied knowledge of a visit of fifty Muskogee klansmen to this city.

Several Okmulgee citizens, however, reported that they saw a cavalcade of motor cars bearing Muskogee license plates on the highway East of Okmulgee this morning.

A run-off election to select a candidate for mayor was in progress as neither received a majority in the regular election last week.

The motor cars left the Muskogee chapter at 4:00 o'clock this morning without a light being shown. Headlights were turned on when the hall was well behind.

The klansmen gathered, it was reported, in response to a call for volunteers made by officials.

The Klan was defeated last week in the Muskogee city election.

CHINESE ARMY IS LEAVING PEKING

PEKING, Apr. 16. (AP)—The Kuomintang or national army, which has been in command of Peking today began evacuating the city, concentrating immediately to the North.

The retirement of the Kuomintang troops from Tunchow, which began this morning, was accomplished orderly. There were no disorders in Peking. It was reported that a contingent of troops of Marshal Wu Pei Fu has entered the capital from the South.

State Will Support Public Playgrounds

DALLAS, Apr. 16. (AP)—The State of Texas today through Governor Miriam A. Ferguson officially pledged support for parks and playgrounds at the annual conference of Southwest Recreation Workers under auspices of the Playground and Recreation Association of America.

Playground workers from Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana and South Kansas heard a brief talk by Mrs. Ferguson who said that the movement was still in its pioneer stage in Texas.

Taxi Fares In Gay Paree To Be Higher

PARIS, April 16. (AP)—Taxi-drivers, known to tourists as one of the cheapest pleasures of Paris, will cost more for American visitors this summer.

Day rates, pending the installation of new meters on the cabs, have been increased by one franc and night rates will be double the present meter readings. Chauffeurs agitated for months to get the new scale of tariffs arranged, using increased prices they had to pay for tires and gasoline as their principal argument.

As a compensation for the passenger, the police have received order to prevent chauffeurs from bargaining or charging excessive fares late at night, which has been a scandalous abuse in Montmartre where cabarets and night-clubs do not close until four and five o'clock in the morning.

Insurance Companies Cancel Oil Policies

LOS ANGELES, April 16. (AP)—The Los Angeles Times says that the recent disastrous oil fires on the Union Oil company tank farms at San Luis Obispo and at Brea have been followed by the cancellation of insurance on approximately 10,000,000 barrels of oil of all grades in storage in Southern California.

Wireless Received From Polar Plane

Governor Is Not To Call Special Term

DALLAS, April 16. (AP)—Governor Miriam A. Ferguson said here today she will not call a special session of the legislature about the disputed road bonds, because lawyers are so widely disagreed on remedies for the situation.

"It would be unwise," she said, "to call the Legislature until some remedy or relief which will meet the approval of the best judicial minds can be carried out."

Dead Rattlesnake Bites Young Boy

TUSCON, Ariz., Apr. 16. (AP)—Walter Fenton, 14, a Michigan boy visiting here, is recovering from the effects of a bite from the severed head of a rattlesnake.

The boy yesterday killed the snake and severed its head. Curious about the arrangement of its poison fangs, he pried open its mouth which closed on his finger, burying the fangs deep in his flesh. He was hurried to a doctor and received first aid treatment, and was then removed to a hospital where he was reported in no danger today.

CHINESE REBELS EVACUATE

TIENSIN, Apr. 16. (AP)—Wireless dispatches from Peking state that the Kuomintang or National army, has evacuated its positions East and South of Peking but that the Ninth Division occupies the capital which is quiet.

NEW YORK—Lucresia Bori of the Metropolitan Opera spends more than $25,000 a year on her stage wardrobe and $15,000 for other clothes. And so, she says, that's why she's always poor. The company would provide costumes for her, but she prefers to design and buy her own.
