THE SNYDER DAILY NEWS

VOL. 26 NO. 1 SNYDER, TEXAS (79549) THU., MAY 1, 1975 2 SECTIONS 14 PAGES 10c

The SDN Column

Twenty-five years ago today (or perhaps tonight would be more accurate) the first issue of The Snyder Daily News rolled off the press.

Snyder, described by some observers as being "a sleepy little county seat town of 3,000 or 4,000 people" just two years earlier, was in the midst of an oil boom—the last of its type this country experienced.

It had boasted newspapers for over 60 years, weeklies and semi-weeklies, and at one time there had been a daily published temporarily, but this was to be the town's first full-fleged daily with press wire service and other facilities employed by modern newspapers.

Publisher Herbert Feather recalls that it was about dark that day before the first, eight-age issue of The Snyder Daily News made it to press on Monday, May 1, 1950.

Here, according to that first issue, are some of the activities that kept people busy in booming Snyder in the spring of 1950.

There was a meeting to discuss proposals for establishing a youth center.

There was a "mass meeting" of Scurry County "drys" who heard Dr. Walter McKenzie of Dallas, executive secretary of the United Texas Drys. A local option election was coming up the following Saturday.

Police officers throughout the state were searching for a prisioner who had escaped from the Scurry County jail by removing several bricks from beneath a window in the "outer run-around."

A lot of inquiries were being made concerning a new city ordinance setting up regulations for operation of trailer house parks within the city. They were not called mobile homes in those days. In fact, nobody was making the elaborate, movable homes such as those turned out here by Wickes.

And history may be repeating itself, in a manner of speaking. Twenty-five years ago a Scurry County delegation returned from Austin after delivering a petition to the Texas Highway Commission requesting that the Clairemont Road be disignated as a state highway. This was subsequently granted and the road now is Texas 208. Another delegation in Austin today is seeking designation of U.S. 84 as a "Port-To-Plains" Highway.

★ ★ ★

On the state scene in that Snyder Daily News issue of May 1, 1950, there was a picture showing a census taker counting the Allan Shivers family in the governor's mansion. The governor and his family were duly enumerated as they gathered in the bedroom of the eldest son, John Shary, who was recuperating from an illness.

On the world scene, Berlin made it through May Day without any riots, and in Moscow, prime minister Joseph Stalin reviewed thousands of cheering Russians in a mammoth parade.

Nationally, President Harry Truman mapped plans for a 6,400-mile train tour to make speeches boosting his "Fair Deal."

Meanwhile, drilling rigs were punching out oil wells at a fabulous rate in Scurry and Borden Counties. That's the way it was on May 1, 1925, the day this newspaper was born.—WACIL McNAIR.

HMO Bill Gets House Approval

AUSTIN (AP) — A compromise bill clearing away the legal barriers to creation of health maintenance organizations (HMOs) won easy House passage today, 128-4.

The once-controversial measure now returns to the Senate for expected approval of a minor amendment. That act on would send the bill to the governor for signature.

Representatives also gave quick passage to another Senate bill, which provoked loud and long debate when it was up for preliminary approval Wednesday, setting up a new system for updating voter registration lists. The vote was 102-30.

A "party purity" amendment added on a 73-70 vote Wednesday is expected to generate much controversy when brought before the Senate for approval or rejection.

The amendment would require a voter, upon registering, to state his party affiliation or designate himself as an independent.

Confusion Still Reigns On U. S. Economic Front

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

It's hard to tell sometimes when the economy strikes out and when it gets a walk.

On Wednesday, for example, it looked like every ball thrown to the consumer was followed by a strike.

The government outlined how tax cuts would show up as more take-home pay starting today, but a General Motors official said GM's 1976 models would cost more. President Ford delayed an oil tariff hike, but that didn't mean he'd given up plans to cut fuel consumption by raising prices.

An Associated Press survey showed supermarket prices dropping, but an Agriculture Department report indicated the drop might not last. The stock market was up — an 18.30 rise brought the Dow Jones industrial average to 821.34 — but Ford Motor Co. said it recorded a loss in the first quarter.

And finally, government economists still saw bright signs for the rest of the year but warned wage demands may rekindle inflation.

The increase in take-home pay may be delayed for some workers in the switch of tax schedules. But for most, starting today checks will show weekly increases like these: $1.44 for a single person earning $10,000 yearly; $2.94 for a childless married couple earning $20,000 a year, and $4.73 for a worker with a family of four who earns 215,000 a year.

Another break for consumers —at least gas prices won't rise right away — came in President Ford's delay of a $1 per barrel hike due Thursday in the tariff on imported crude oil. The 30-day delay is aimed at giving Congress time to pass an energy program.

But the delay in the already once-postponed hike doesn't guarantee an end to price rises. Ford also said he would take executive action to remove, over a two-year period, price controls that now keep the price of domestic crude oil from wells in production more than three years at $5.25 a barrel, about half the world market rate.

At the supermarket, The Associated Press marketbasket showed prices down an average of 2.9 per cent during April, but an Agriculture Department report that farmers got 4 per cent more for their goods between March 15 and April 15.

House Rejects Ford Aid Plea

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $327-million aid bill that President Ford said was "desperately needed" to take care of approximately 70,000 Indochina refugees was rejected today by the House.

Ford said House approval of the bill would be the fastest way to get the money and said the authority still contained in the legislation for him to use military evacuation forces in Saigon no longer has meaning.

"The evacuation has been completed," Ford said. "The Congress may be assured that I do not intend to send the armed forces of the United States back into Vietnamese territory."

But opponents, including House Democratic Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, said Congress should act quickly on a new bill and not approve use of military troops that could set a precedent for the future.

The bill was defeated 246 to 162, drawing cheers and applause from opponents.

Rep. Donald W. Riegle, R-Mich., said Congress does not know how much money will be needed to take care of some 70,000 refugees.

"This bill doesn't address that," Riegle said. "This bill just gives the President a blank check."

But House International Relations Committee chairman Thomas E. Morgan, D-Pa., said the evacuation authority was moot because it applied only to evacuating Americans from Saigon and those Americans are out.

"There is nothing in this report that gives the President any authority tomorrow, the day after tomorrow, or any time in the future to send one Marine back into Vietnam," Morgan said.

"The authority in this report died the day the last American was evacuated," Morgan said. "The issue here is money to take care of these poor people."

Speaker Carl Albert had said earlier he expected interruptions before the vote because of opposition in the House to considering the measure, since it still contains authorization for the military evacuation of Saigon.

A stall began immediately after the House went into session. Rep. Philip L. Burton, D-Calif., forced a time-consuming roll-call vote on whether to read the previous day's journal.

Ford said in a letter to Congress that provisions for him to use military forces for an evacuation, still contained in the bill, "have been overtaken by events and have no further utility."

School Office Is Discussed

The Scurry County School Board elected officers and discussed future operations of the County Superintendent's office at a meeting Wednesday afternoon, but took no action on future plans.

The board is scheduled to meet again on June 9 to give further study to the superintendents office. County voters approved a proposal to abolish the superintendent's office on April 22. However, the election mandate is not effective until Jan. 1, 1979. Roy Carter, county superintendent, has expressed a desire to reduce operations of the office and gradually turn it over to the board and ex-officio superintendent.

Marvin Hanson was re-elected chairman of the county school board and Ray Fulford was re-elected vice chairman.

Protestant Win Seen In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Hard-line Protestants opposed to sharing power with the Roman Catholics were expected to win a majority of the seats in elections today for a convention to draft a new governmental setup for Northern Ireland.

By mid-afternoon there were no major incidents reported at province's 546 voting stations.

A victory by hard-line Protestants would offer no prospect for a political settlement to end the 5½ years of religious warfare in Northern Ireland, and direct rule from London is likely to continue indefinitely.

The British government, which suspended parliamentary government in the warring province three years ago, said it would only approve constitutional arrangements acceptable to the "broad mass" of the people, including the Roman Catholic minority.

This means some form of coalition between the Protestant majority and the Catholics. But the militant Protestants are as opposed to power sharing as they were when they toppled the province's first coalition government last summer.

Thousands of British troops and police were on full alert, guarding the 546 polling stations at which Ulster's voters were electing 78 representatives.

The United Ulster Unionist Council, a powerful alliance of militant Protestants opposed to sharing power with the Catholics, was expected to win a majority in the convention. It fielded 60 of the 165 candidates.

The principal Catholic party, the Social Democratic and Labor party, was just as adamant that it would accept nothing less than cabinet posts in any new administration. It entered 30 candidates.

British hopes that moderates from the nonsectarian Alliance party, ex-Premier Brian Faulkner's Protestant Unionists and the Northern Ireland Labor party could win enough seats to form a majority in favor of power-sharing have vanished in the violence that has continued despite a cease-fire Feb. 10 by the Irish Republican Army's Provisional faction.

Snyderite Sees His Brother Evacuated

Franklin Pruitt of Snyder, who had been watching all reports on evacuation of Americans from Saigon, South Vietnam, still has no direct word from his brother, Ray Pruitt, but he is certain that his brother has been evacuated.

While watching scenes of the evacuation on television a couple of days ago, Pruitt suddenly saw a close-up of his brother on the screen.

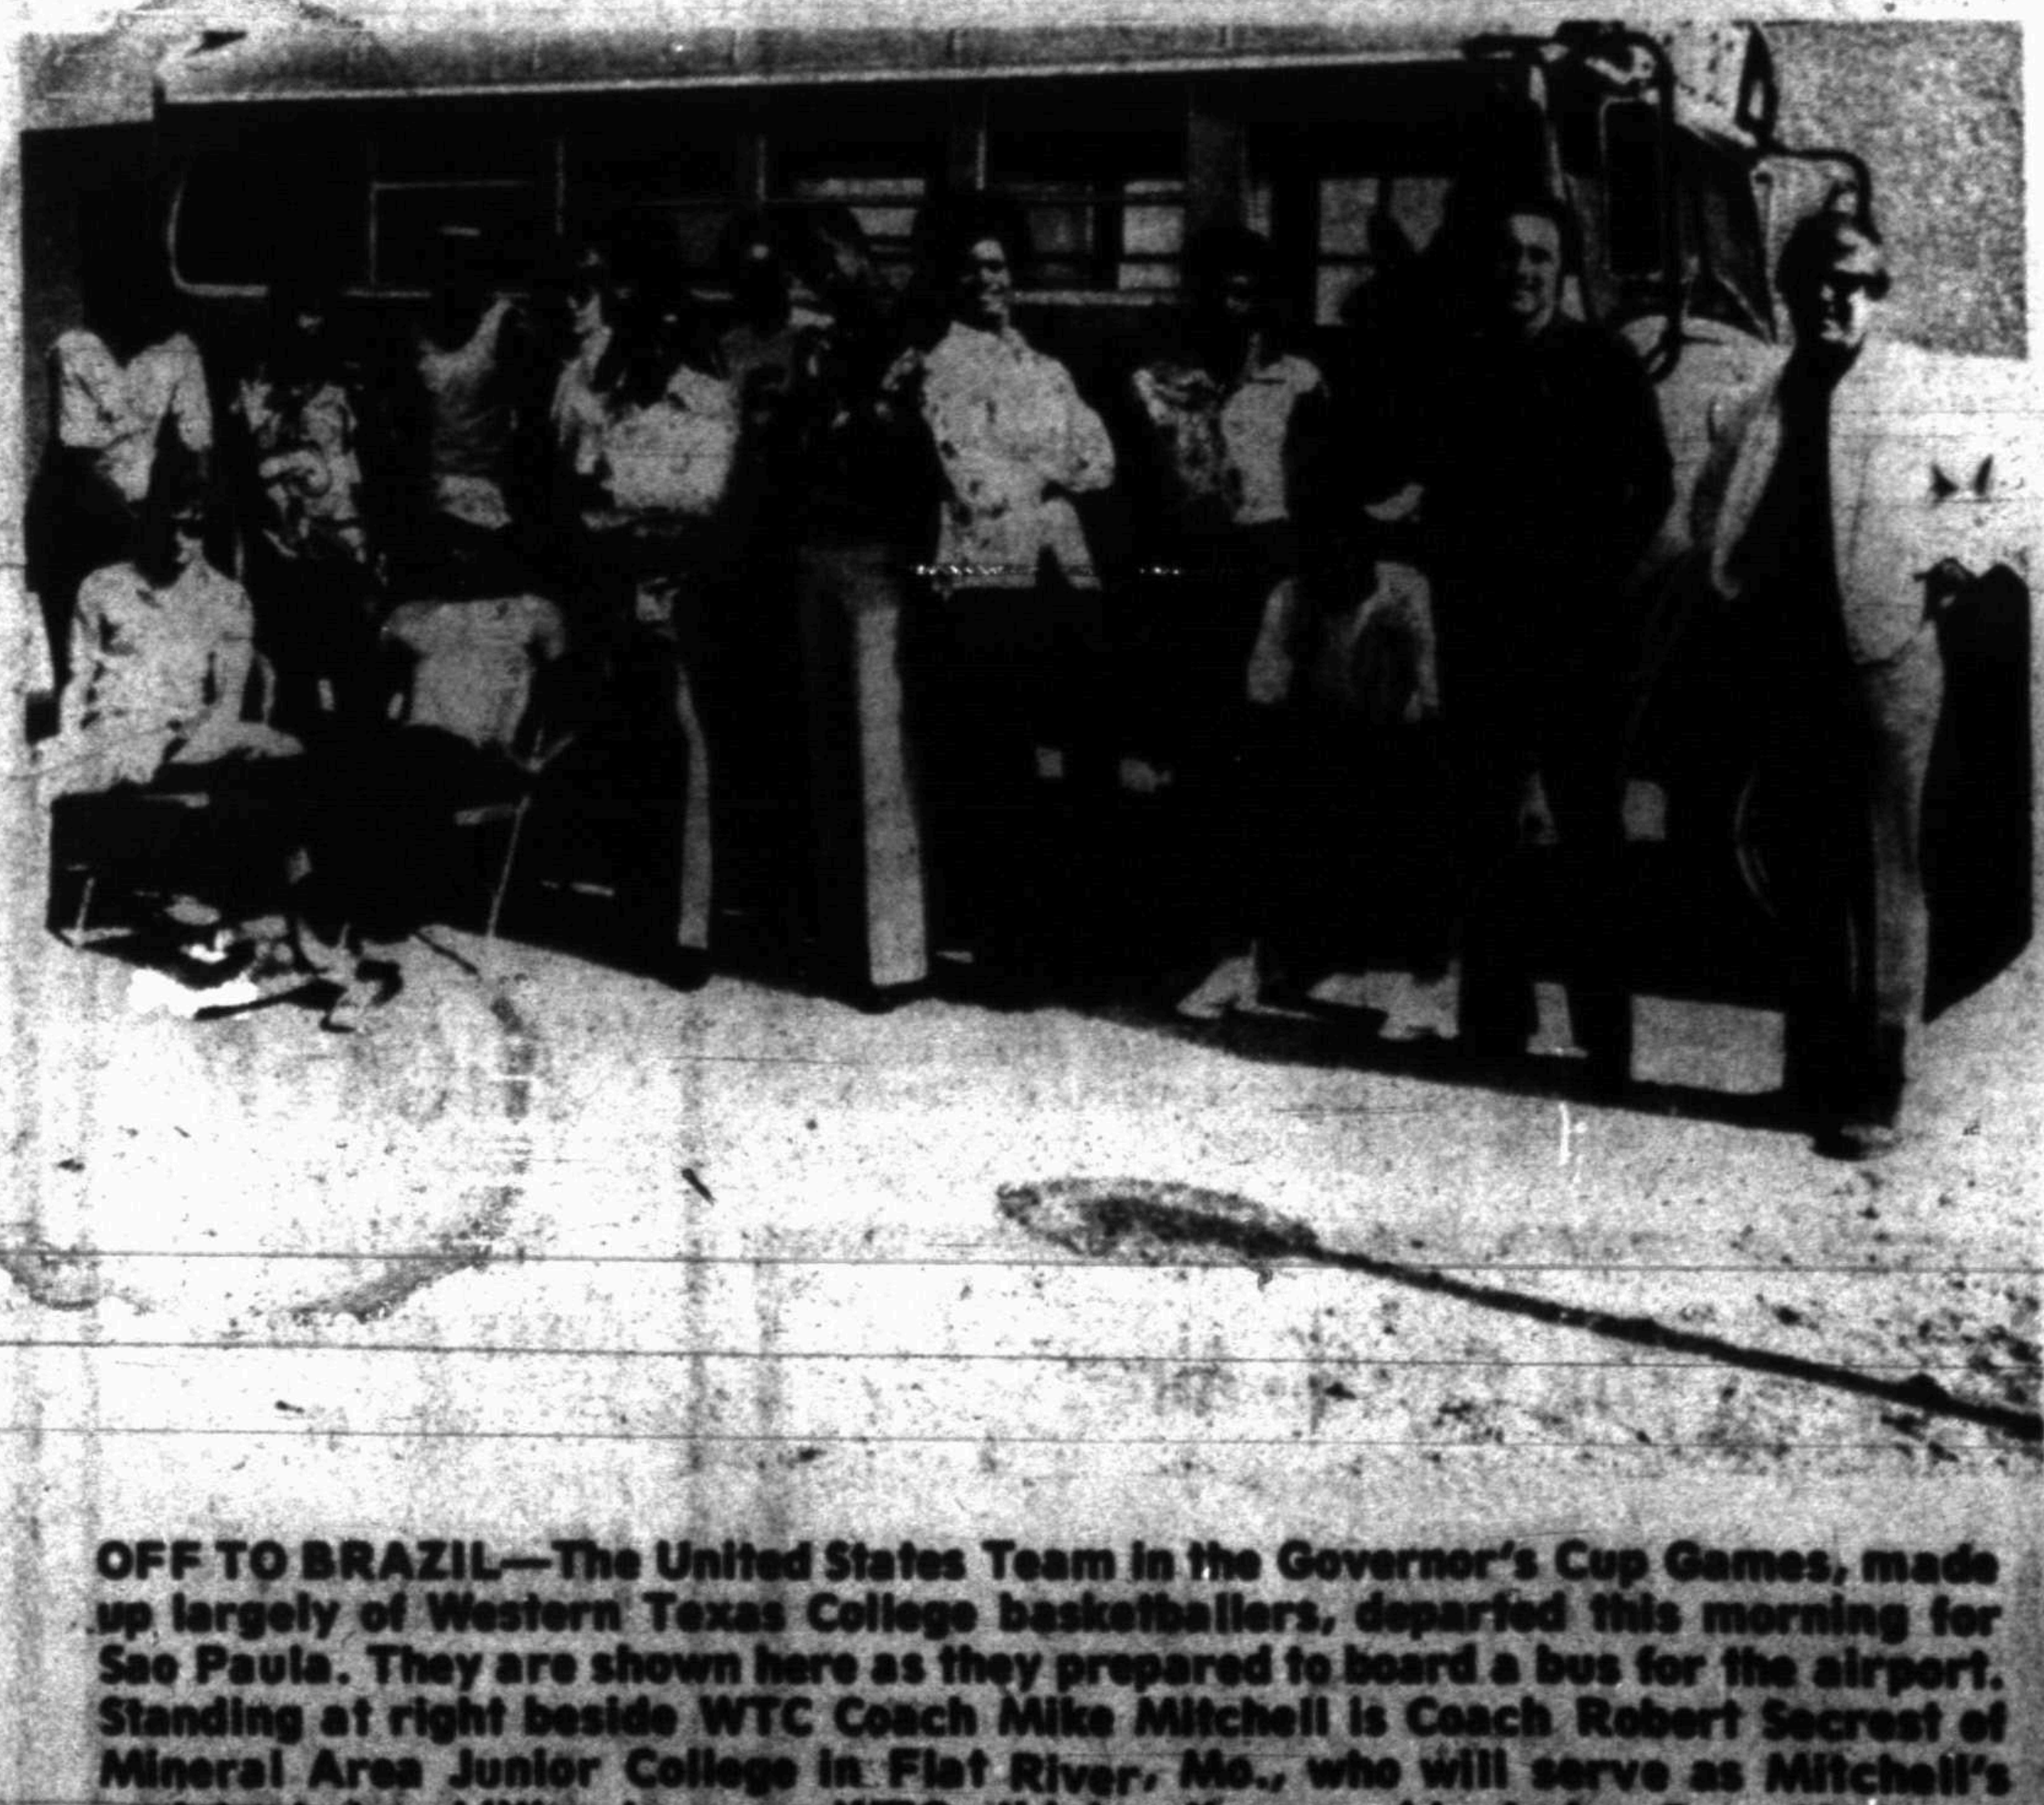
"We could not tell whether they were getting on a helicopter or stepping off on the deck of a ship," said Pruitt. "But there was no turmoil around the helicopter in the picture, nothing to indicate any trouble."

Pruitt was in contact with a Lubbock television station later and it ran the scene again on a later newscast and Pruitt said there was no doubt at all that his brother had been evacuated.

It may be several days before he will be able to contact his family, but Pruitt said they were relieved when they saw him among a group being evacuated.

Ray Pruitt was assigned to the Defense Attache in Saigon, having been there since U.S. military forces pulled out of the Vietnam War. He was home last Christmas, but communications between him and his family had been sporadic since then and there had been none at all in recent weeks.

It was known that he was among the last assigned to the Defense Attache to leave Saigon. It was learned that 50 from the office where Ray Pruitt worked were on the transport plane which crashed on April 4 and that 48 of them, including Ray Pruitt's secretary, were killed in the crash.



OFF TO BRAZIL—The United States Team in the Governor's Cup Games, made up largely of Western Texas College basketballers, departed this morning for Sao Paula. They are shown here as they prepared to board a bus for the airport. Standing at right beside WTC Coach Mike Mitchell is Coach Robert Secrest of Mineral Area Junior College in Flat River, Mo., who will serve as Mitchell's assistant. In addition to seven WTC athletes, the squad includes Gary Yoder of Southern Idaho, La Mont Turner of Forest Park, Mo., Ray Williams of San Jacinto College and Aloyo Bradley of Utica, Miss.

VIEWPOINT

30 Miles To The Cord?

What happens when we run out of oil and natural gas or, as is likely to happen first, they become prohibitively expensive?

No need to panic, says one authority. We have a renewable resource that can replace them-- at least to a degree-- and one that was, in fact, the traditional source for synthetic goods until the advent of cheap oil and gas: Wood.

All the essential chemical building blocks to make such things as plastics and synthetic rubber can be derived from wood, noted Dr. Irving S. Goldstein of North Carolina State University's school of forest resources in a paper presented at the recent 169th annual meeting of the American Chemical Society in Philadelphia.

"From a chemical point of view," he says, "the molecules don't remember where they came from."

The United States currently produces 18 million tons of synthetic materials a year, consuming between 3 and 5 per cent of all the petroleum used in the country. It would take roughly 50 million tons of wood to replace oil as the basis of the petrochemical industry, Goldstein estimates.

Not only is timber a renewable resource, the type of wood needed is low-grade timber, which exists in abundance. Much of it is now discarded in pulp factories.

Technically, wood could also be converted into fuel. The processing of wood alcohol is an ancient art. In research by the Bureau of Mines, wood was successfully converted into an oil that compared well with crude oil, both economically and chemically.

But while we have enough timber to meet the needs of the petrochemical industry, Goldstein doubts that there is enough to take the place of petroleum for fuel.

It might be a good idea to start planting trees, anyway.

Tip Off Was Too Late

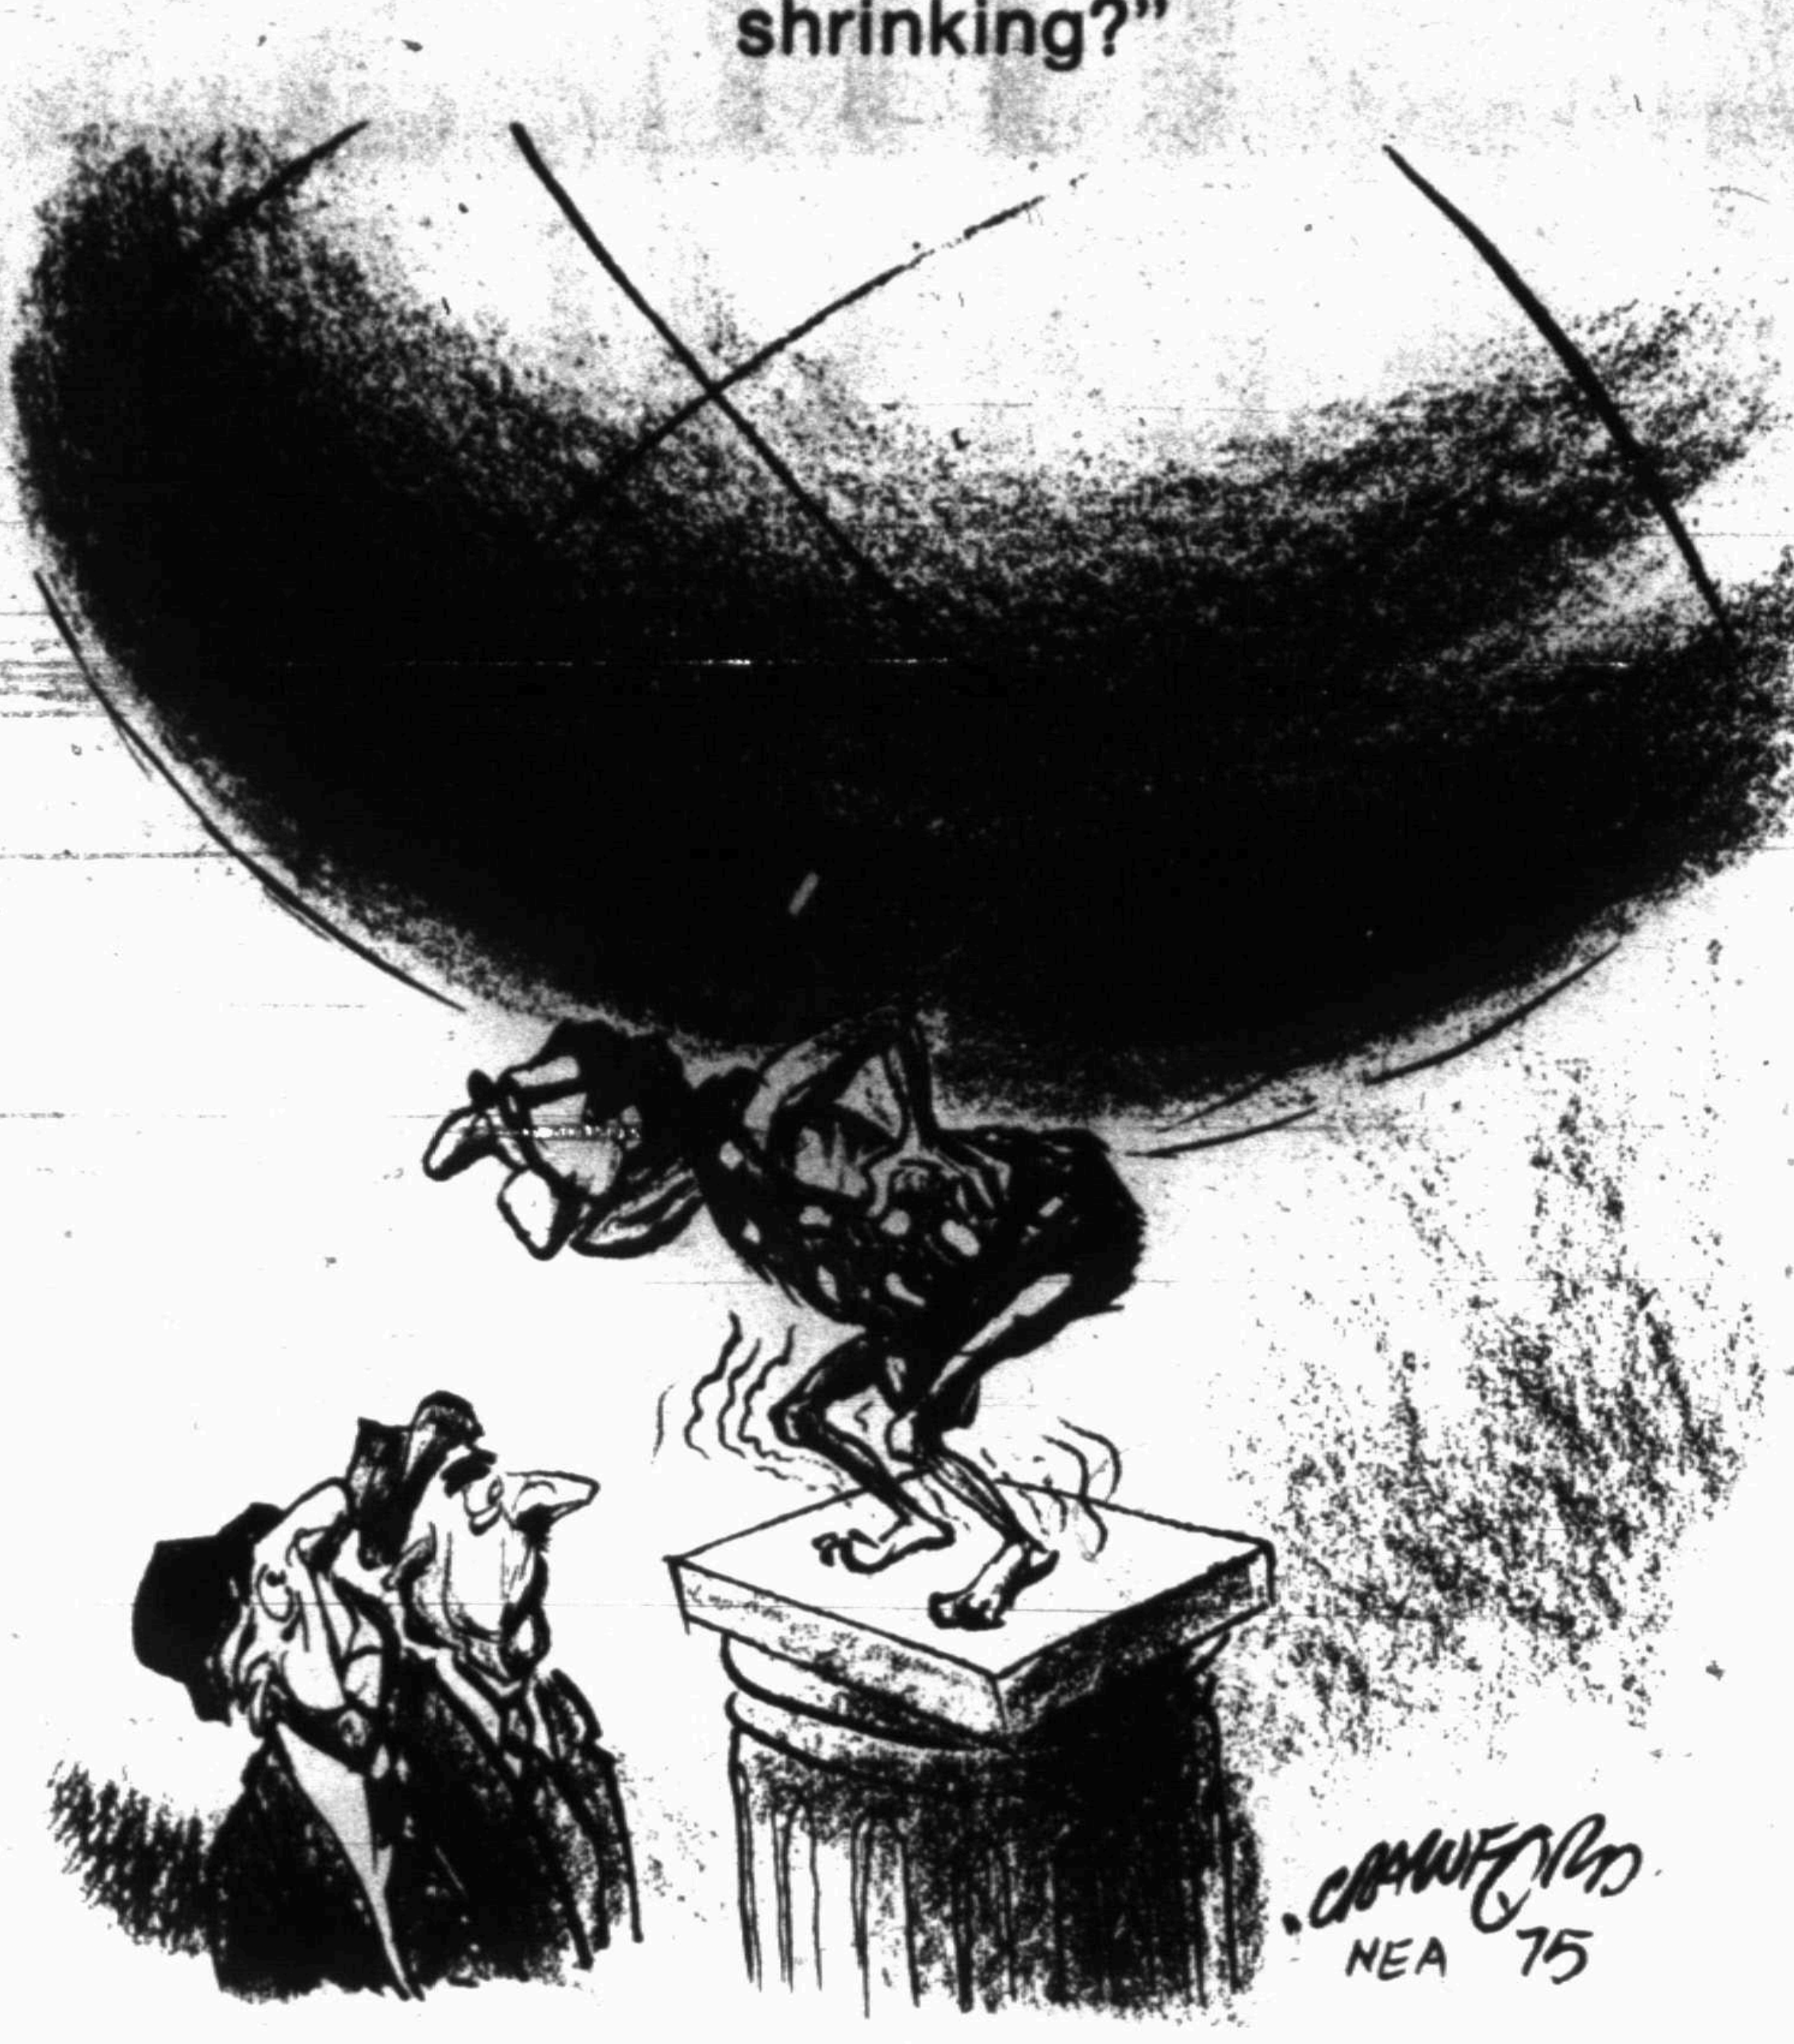
Perhaps Watergate came too late to tip off South Viet Nam. When the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese began to overrun that country, complaints arose that the United States was not living up to an agreement----a secret pledge---that this country would react with all of its military might if the communists should breach the Paris Accord that enabled American soldiers to pull out of the Viet-nam War.

The problem was, and is, that the agreement was exactly what it was called---a personal pledge. Congress was not asked to bind the nation to this agreement when the Paris Accord was presented to it.

President Thieu apparently relied heavily on the assurance he got from Richard Nixon. But when the chips were down, Richard Nixon was long gone from Washington.

Meanwhile, the American people had learned a few things about assurances made by Richard Nixon. Viet Nam didn't learn about them in time.

"Is the world getting bigger or is he shrinking?"



Security Is Energy Independence Factor

WASHINGTON (AP) — With gasoline in plentiful supply, and the nation having little difficulty paying for foreign oil, the national energy crisis has boiled down to a question of concern for national security.

Fear of the consequences of a repeat of the 1973 Arab oil embargo is behind the Ford administration's program to achieve energy independence by 1985, even at the cost of driving up domestic energy prices.

Most members of Congress share the administration's concern, but express greater worry over the economic impact of higher energy prices, especially during a recession.

John A. Hill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Administration, said in a speech Wednesday that "strong national security implies a strong economy.

"If we are overly dependent on a particular source of energy, they can manipulate our energy supply, and do so because they have a differing set of international objectives," he told the National Economists Club.

The administration has virtually written off any hope of getting substantially lower world oil prices, which are now higher than $10 a barrel. In fact, the State Department is seeking to get world agreement on a sort of price floor, possibly at around $7 a barrel.

But officials admit it is didficult to get public support for energy programs that will raise prices — such as Ford's proposed oil tariff and his plan to decontrol all oil prices at home — because the element of crisis is now lacking.

Hill, for one, said he was pessimistic about getting congressional approval of a comprehensive energy program.

The administration's goal is to reduce the need for imports enough so that the nation will only have to import about three to five million barrels of oil a day by 1985, an amount that would not cripple the economy if it were cut off.

It estimates that without any action at all, imports would rise to eight million barrels a day by the end of 1977 which would be 20 per cent above the amount imported before the 1973 oil embargo, and to 12 million barrels a day by 1985, more than 50 per cent of total estimated U.S. consumption of 24 million barrels.

Dr. Lamb

Word mix-up in heart problem

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—What is the difference between a heart attack and a cardiac arrest?

DEAR READER—The terminology is hopelessly confused. The term heart attack is not a medical term. It has come to be used for problems resulting from a sudden blockage of an artery to the heart muscle and usually means a myocardial infarction (damage to the heart muscle).

Heart attack is a term also used by the public for attacks of any sort that are sudden and involve the heart. That can include any number of heart irregularities, such as rapid heart action. It can mean a transitory pain correctly called angina pectoris.

A sudden attack causing damage to the heart muscle (myocardial infarction) may also be associated with a serious irregularity of the heart called ventricular fibrillation. This is the one you see on TV where the shock machine is used and big paddles are applied to the heart to get the heart back to normal. This serious and life-threatening irregularity is associated with no effective heart beat. The muscle literally twitches but doesn't contract. For this reason the episode is often referred to as a cardiac arrest. This irregularity can also occur without having heart muscle damage. It can result from inadequate circulation to the heart muscle from fatty-cholesterol deposits, even though the heart muscle is not damaged.

Then, to make matters worse, the heart can just stop—totally and completely. This is true cardiac arrest. It can be caused by reflex means. It is sometimes the cause of a person fainting. Often the heart resumes beating again on its own.

When I first started testing jet pilots who were healthy young men, I was startled to see the number who had complete stoppage of the heart with breath holding, or while being tested on a tilt table like those seen on film strips of testing astronauts after space flight.

The cardiac arrests sometimes lasted only a few seconds and somtimes did not even cause a faint. In other instances they were associated with fainting.

So, you can see from the above why I say the terminology is hopelessly confused. Cardiac arrest can mean at least two different things. Heart attacks mean almost anything, including cardiac arrest which may not be an arrest at all but really ventricular fibrillation. Confused?

DEAR DR. LAMB— What is a malabsorption syndrome? Is it a form of anemia?

DEAR READER—Mal means bad, as in the word malodorous, maladjustment or malfunction. So, it means bad absorption. It refers to poor ability of your digestive tract, specifically the small intestine, to absorb food.

When the poor absorption leads to an inability to absorb important vitamins, particularly vitamin B-12, it may cause anemia.

Malabsorbation problems often involve poor pancreas function. Or, should I say malfunction of the pancreas ?

For further information on heart attacks write to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, new York, N.Y. 10019, and ask for The Health Letter on heart attacks (number 2-10). Send 50 cents and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Bonds To Commemorate U. S. 200th Anniversary

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — At the same time it is sending tax rebate checks to American taxpayers, the Ford administration will be trying to sell new Bicentennial Saving Bonds.

If it looks like the government is offering to take back as savings the tax rebates it has encouraged taxpayers to spend on consumer items, that's exactly what it is doing, officials say privately.

But they said there is no calculated connection between the two actions.

"It's a Catch-22; we're damned if we do, and damned if we don't," said one official. He said the administration needs to support its Savings Bond program in addition to distributing money to stimulate the economy.

An announcement of the Bicentennial Bonds program was expected sometime today. President Ford was said to be considering inaugurating the campaign by buying a $200 bond at a White House ceremony.

A spokesman for the savings bond division of the Treasury Department confirmed that Ford was buying the first bond, but the spokesman said officials weren't sure what denomination.

The bicentennial bonds will be available in denominations of $25, $50, $75, $100, $200, $500 and $1,000 and will carry 6 per cent interest after five years.

Governors of the 50 states are also being urged to buy $200 bonds as part of the sales promotion. But officials said it was only a coincidence that $200 happens to also be the maximum rebate under the government's $23-billion tax-cut program.

One source said the Bicentennial Bond will be virtually the same as a regular U.S. Savings Bond, except that it will carry a special bicentennial design, such as George Washington crossing the Delaware River.

Duval County Fires 70 Employes

SAN DIEGO, Tex. (AP) — Duval County commissioners voted Wednesday to fire about 70 county employes, but even those still on the payroll can't cash the pay checks they received.

Duval County Commissioner Walter Meek said the commissioners voted to fire about 70 persons and add a few to the payroll. Earlier, County Judge Dan Tobin Jr. had announced the firing of all county employes effective April 30. But he said Wednesday that order was rescinded.

Earlier in the month, the First State Bank of San Diego announced that they would not honor the county's checks until it can be legally determined which of the county's two commissioner's courts is the valid governing body for the county.

The bank announced Wednesday that they have resigned as the county's depository for funds and will return more than $500,000 now held on deposit.

The politically volatile South Texas county has had two commissioner's courts since District Court Judge O.O. Carrillo temporarily removed Duval County Judge Archer Parr. The order was based on Parr's federal perjury conviction.

Judge Carrillo appointed Tobin to replace Parr, and Tobin in return appointed Manuel Amaya Jr. to fill the vacancy created by Tobin's elevation to county judge. Tobin, Amaya and Commissioner Ramiro Carrillo, the judge's brother, have operated as one court.

Although Parr has agreed to abide by a court order and stop acting as county judge, a second court composed of the two commissioners loyal to Parr and another recently appointed commissioner have acted as the so-called "Parr Court."

Asked what will happen with the pay checks the employes can't cash, auditor Meek replied, "They'll just have to hold on to them. It's going to be only a few days. It's going to work a hardship on some of them."

Land Subsidence May Cause Loss Of Lives

By DAN McDONALD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. A.R. Schwartz has again warned that continued land subsidence in Galveston and Harris counties could cause the deaths of thousands of people during a hurricane.

Schwartz, D-Galveston, speaking before the Senate Natural Resources Committee Wednesday, said the sinking land in the two counties has caused some highways to drop to five feet above sea level from an original height of eight feet.

"During a hurricane people may wait too late to go to safety thinking the water will not cover the highway," Schwartz said. "And it would take only a few stalled cars to leave thousands of people stranded in the heart of the storm."

Baytown mayor Tom Gentry said subsidence already is a major problem because a normal tide of 3½ feet puts water in many homes.

The committee is considering a bill sponsored by Sen. Bob Gammage, D-Houston, that would set up a local district to control the amount of water drawn from beneath the earth.

Gammage said subsidence occurs when underground water is removed for home and industrial use at a rate greater than it is being replaced— causing the ground to sink.

An almost identical bill received unanimous House approval, and the Senate version received a boost when Sen. Chet Brooks, D-Pasadena, said he was willing to work with the House bill.

Brooks is the sponsor of a measure seeking relief from subsidence through an existing state agency.

Robert Gabyrsch of the U.S. Geological Survey told the committee that 2,500 square miles of land in the general Galveston-Harris county area had dropped by one foot or more by 1973.

"The land affected is shaped like an inverted cone with the tip lying at Pasadena (a suburb of Houston)," Gaoyrsch said. "In Pasadena, for example, the land receeded only one foot between 1906 and 1943, but it has dropped 7½ feet since then."

"For all practical purposes, subsidence is irreversible," he said. "A recent California study showed that the chance of having the land rebound is limited to five per cent at most."

The House bill's sponsor, Rep. Bill Caraway, D-Houston, said his measure is an attempt to solve a local problem through a local effort.

Gammage asked the committee to send his bill to subcommittee to work out the differences between his measure and the House bill.

Miss Parsons Presents Senior Piano Recital

MELANIE PARSONS

Melanie Parsons, a Snyder High School senior, will stage her senior piano recital, Sunday, May 4, at 3 p.m. at the Martha Ann Woman's Club. The public is invited. A reception will follow.

The recital is being presented in partial fulfillment of the requirements for her senior diploma in piano. She graduated from Snyder High School in January at mid-term and is attending Western Texas College.

Time Heals Wounds But Sets Stains

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Laundry stains are becoming devilishly difficult to exorcise a today's wardrobe materials become increasingly varied and exotic. Man-made fabrics and finishes now account for about 80 per cent of all clothing sold, including a high proportion of washable knits and permanent-press fabrics that tenaciously retain stains.

Janet Butel, manager of Consumers Institute of General Electric Co. here, has as part of her job the constant updating of a stain removal guide. She says, "Successful stain and spot removal starts with the selection of a technique that is suited to both stain and fabric. Ultimate success depends largely on prompt action before stains are set by heat or age."

Miss Butel says that most stains can be successfully removed from white and colored cottons, linens and other washable fabrics by the use of liquid chlorine bleach or oxygen-type dry bleach dispensed about halfway through the wash cycle. Exceptions are spandex, wool, leather, mohair, nonfast colors, silk and many permanent-press fabrics requiring special care.

Cold water, especially coupled with enzyme products, used during the presoak cycle of modern washers, are particularly effective in removing such stains as blood, eggs, wine, food coloring, coffee or tea and some fruit and vegetable stains from all washable fabrics. However, they may not be effective on rust, ink or fat-based stains. Presoaking, for at least half an hour, also is effective in solving stain problems related to babies, such as milk, formula, chocolate, urine and mucus.

Permanent press garments pose a problem, Miss Butel says, because they stay fresh looking, so there is a tendency to postpone laundering. Once they become heavily soiled they are difficult to wash clean because of their stain retention. Therefore, Miss Butel recommends immediate laundering if staining oncurs.

Permanent-press fabrics with difficult stains such as fresh fruit juices, wine, vegetables or food coloring should be sponged with warm water as soon as possible. Any remaining stain should be treated with hydrogen peroxide or powdered bleach and the garment laundered.

Another common stain on permanent-press fabrics and washable knits is grass, foliage or flowers. Miss Butel says to dip the garment in warm, soapy water and rub the spot between your fingers. If the spot remains and bleach can be used on the fabric, soak five minutes in ½ cup bleach in a gallon of sudsy water, rinse well and launder as usual.

Chewing gum can be eliminated from fabrics by rubbing with ice and then scraping off as much as possible before cleaning with a safe dry cleaning fluid.

Graying comes from underuse or overuse of detergent and from improper rinsing. Yellowing is the result of a buildup of body oils. It can be prevented with hot water for whites and colorfasts and sufficient wash time. Polyesters should be washed frequently as they have an affinity for oils that cause yellowing.

Additional hints:

Identifying the stain. It will help to know whether it is greasy, nongreasy or a combination stain.

Combination stains should first be treated as nongreasy.

Avoid hot water on an unknown stain.

Taylor Resumes Filming

LONDON (AP) — Actress Elizabeth Taylor returns to Leningrad Monday to resume the filming of "The Bluebird."

Miss Taylor left Wellington private hospital Tuesday after 10 days of treatment for the flu. She appeared pale and much thinner than she was when she flew here from Leningrad for treatment.

"I'm much better," the 43-year-old actress told reporters as she left the hospital with businessman Henry Wynberg. "The treatment was successful, but I'm a little tired."

Some Women Overlook Tax Shelters

WASHINGTON (AP) — You don't have to be an oil heiress from Texas to take advantage of tax shelters.

"Just look into tax-sheltered annuity, which is so often overlooked by too many women," advises W. Scane Bowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Pioneer Western Corp., a financial services organization.

A tax-sheltered annuity is an investment vehicle, federally sanctioned, through which an employe of a nonprofit organization — such as a teacher or a nurse — can put a certain part of monthly income into a retirement fund without first having to pay income tax on that amount.

The interest which grows up over the years is also sheltered from income tax, as long as it remains in the fund.

Bowler said that more than 17 million persons are eligible for tax-sheltered annuities but that only 800,000 had taken advantage of the plan through the end of 1974.

He says that teachers and other school employes are the most numerous group taking advantage of tax-sheltered annuities, with nurses next. Then come workers for membership organizations and religious institutions.

PRESENT PLAY—The kindergarten class of Mrs. Forrest Beavers at West Elementary presented the program "Timothy, the Little Brown Bear" to the parents Wednesday morning in the auditorium. Later, the mothers treated the class to a picnic at the park pavilion. Mrs. Larry Lee is the kindergarten aid.

Bulls Slip Past Warriors 90-89

By JERRY LISKA
AP Sports Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — You'd expect Golden State's Rick Barry to be a hero under the gun. But lumbering Tom Boerwinkle of the Chicago Bulls?

Yet it was the 7-foot Boerwinkle who popped in the winning basket with two seconds left and Barry who faltered as the Bulls won a cliffhanger 90-89 Wednesday night. The victory enabled the Bulls to even at 1-1 their best-of-seven showdown with the Warriors in the National Basketball Association Western Conference final playoff.

Barry got possession with about 25 seconds left and the Warriors ahead 89-88. Instead of stalling out the 24-second clock and virtually clinching it for the Warriors, Barry took an errant shot and the Bulls took over with 10 seconds left.

The Bulls called time out and, after a quick out-of-bounds pass, Norm Van Lier rifled a toss to Boerwinkle under the basket for his easy layup which triggered bedlam among the 18,533 fans in Chicago Stadium.

Warrior Coach Al Attles explained, "Rick apparently thought that time had run out because I had told him to run out the clock. Then, realizing that time had not run out, he got caught between making a shot or a pass and he made a shot."

Boerwinkle said, "We set the last play to go to Bob Love. But Van Lier was open for a shot. Instead he passed to me. I'm sure glad I didn't have my back turned to be ready for a rebound if Norm had shot."

Until the dramatic finish, the Warriors seemed to be in control of a game in which the lead changed 12 times and the score was tied 12 times.

The Bulls, led by Chet Walker's game-high 28 points, were in front at halftime 43-40 but never got ahead after Golden State went in front at 62-61 late in the third quarter until Boerwinkle's game-deciding layup.

Jeff Mullins' basket gave the Warriors an 89-86 with 1:07 left. But with 45 seconds remaining, Van Lier drove in for a layup and the Bulls trailed only 89-88.

Even after Boerwinkle's go-ahead basket, the Warriors had a fleeting chance. On an out-of-bounds play, Walker tackled Golden State's Keith Wilkes for a common foul which again gave the Warriors the ball out of bounds with one second left. The ball was pitched to Barry, whose shot went wild at the buzzer.

Barry, who scored 26 points compared with 38 in Golden State's 107-89 opening win at Oakland Sunday, and the rest of the Warriors hustled out of their dressing room without showering or meeting the news media.

Explained Attles: "The players felt they should leave because they were pretty upset. They didn't want to talk to anybody and say anything that might be misconstrued.

"It was a game we just gave away. We didn't play very smart basketball. We just have to get ready to play Game No. 3 here Sunday."

Love tapered off from his 37-point effort Sunday to 20 points, while Charlie Johnson was the surprising Warrior runner-up to Barry with 23. Keith Wilkes, Golden State's Rookie of the Year, fell off from his opening 26 points to 16.

Tiger Baseballers In Crucial Tilt Saturday

This is showdown week in the District 3-AAA baseball race.

The league-leading Brownfield Cubs take on Lamesa Friday afternoon, then host Snyder's hopeful Tigers at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in Brownfield.

Brownfield can virtually eliminate Lamesa from the district race with a victory Friday. If the Cubs win, then they will have a full game lead over the Tigers going into their contest Saturday. If Lamesa wins, then Snyder and Brownfield would be tied for the district lead going into Saturday's crucial contest.

Brownfield is 5-3 in district play, Snyder is 5-4, and Lamesa is 3-6.

Coach Speedy Moffett of the Tigers said he probably would start Robert Alderete on the mound for Snyder. Alderete is 2-1 for the season, and he has about a 1.0 earned run average.

Brownfield probably will employ its pitching ace, Randy Rozean, who has beaten the Tigers three times this season. However, in his last outing against Snyder, he was beaten by Alderete.

Coach Moffett listed probable starters for the Tigers, according to batting order, as follows: Robert Alderete p, Kelly Ragland ss, Richard [illegible]var lf, Ernie Simons c, Sid Perry 2b, Phil Robinson cf, Danny Brumley 3b, Randy Gressett 1b, and Barry Blalock rf.

Bullets Take 2-0 Series Lead

By GORDON BEARD
AP Sports Writer

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Basketball is a game of instincts, and the Boston Celtics apparently are thinking too much. Mostly about how to stop Elvin Hayes of the Washington Bullets.

But Hayes goes right on scoring, Boston's defending National Basketball Association champions get more confused, and the Bullets have moved ahead 2-0 in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference finals.

Hayes scored 29 points Wednesday night, giving him 63 for the two games, pulled down 12 rebounds and blocked five shots while leading the Bullets to a surprising 117-92 runaway.

The series resumes Saturday afternoon in Boston, with the eventual winner advancing to the NBA title round against either the Golden State Warriors or the Chicago Bulls. The Western Conference finalists are tied 1-1 following Chicago's 90-89 victory Wednesday night.

"He's just shooting over our guys," Boston Coach Tom Heinsohn said of Hayes. "It's difficult covering him. We've tried doubling him, but that takes us out of our normal defense."

"We're thinking too much about our defense instead of just doing our thing," said Boston's John Havlicek, who scored only 11 points while hitting but four of 14 field-goal attempts.

With their vaunted fast break effectively shut off, partly because of Washington's 50 per cent shooting average, the Celtics hit only 37 per cent from the floor.

The Bullets opened up a 31-20 lead after one quarter and led by at least seven points the rest of the way. Phil Chenier, who played only 27 minutes before fouling out, had 25 points for Washington and Wes Unseld grabbed 16 rebounds.

Don Nelson topped Boston with 23 points, while Jo-Jo White and Dave Cowens added 18 apiece.

Nuggets Tie Series

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Denver Nuggets, 40-2 at home during the regular American Basketball Association season, "can forget about the home-court advantage Saturday night," says Coach Larry Brown.

One of those two losses was to the Indiana Pacers, who since have won two more at Denver in their West Division playoff finals.

But the Nuggets also have won two games at Indianapolis, including a 104-99 victory that tied the series at 3-3 on Wednesday night.

The seventh and deciding game is at Denver Saturday, with the winner of that game taking on the East Division champion Kentucky Colonels for the ABA crown.

"Our team showed a lot of class out there," said Brown, who admitted he was worried for a while when the Pacers scored three baskets to start the second half and built an eight-point lead, 52-44.

"The key to the game was when were were down by eight and within two minutes outscored the Pacers 11-2," Brown said.

"I didn't think it was our game. It could have gone either way."

The contest, before an ABA record crowd of 17,421, was close throughout. Denver was ahead most of the first quarter, the Pacers were out in front in the second period and the two teams exchanged leads the rest of the way.

The lead changed 15 times in the third period and six more in the final quarter before Mike Green put the Nuggets ahead to stay at 98-97 with under three minutes to go.

This is the third time Indiana has met Denver in the playoffs.

Army Brat Moves Too Much for Comfort

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1975 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: You are my last hope. My father is in the Army, and we always move just when I meet new kids and start doing well in school. I've never lived in one place longer than 18 months, except when we were in Europe.

My parents don't seem to realize that this moving around so much every year is what's tearing my life up. My grades are going downhill, and my chances of doing anything in school are ruined.

Kids tell me I should try out for cheerleading, but I can't because I know we'll be moving. I can't even have a boyfriend because just when someone gets interested in me, I have to move.

Abby, I am not the complaining type, but here I am, nearly 16, and I don't have any roots, and I am sick of it. Please tell me if there's a solution to my problem. Outside of running away, that is.

ARMY BRAT

DEAR BRAT: Forget "running away." That's a stupid trip. I know how frustrating it must be for you, honey, but look at it this way: You are making friends all over the world and seeing places that few kids get to see.

Concentrate on the advantages of moving, not the disadvantages. You'll soon be old enough to live alone, but for now, you belong with your family.

DEAR ABBY: My 16-year-old daughter received a phone call from a nurse at the Department of Public Health, who asked her to come in for some "tests." When my daughter asked, "Why?" she was told that a boy (I'll call him "Bill") who is being tested for V.D. said that he had been in contact with her.

Abby, my daughter is so upset, she doesn't know what to do. She swore on a Bible that she is a virgin and that she's never had sex with this boy or any other boy. She said she dated him twice and didn't even kiss him goodnight once. I know my daughter, Abby, and she is not lying.

Does she have to take those tests? It doesn't seem fair to me.

HER MOTHER

DEAR MOTHER: I think your daughter should take the tests. They won't hurt her. Perhaps the boy misunderstood the question and named all the girls with whom he had had contact—sexual and otherwise.

DEAR ABBY: Someone wrote to ask why a Catholic would wear a star of David—a symbol of the Jewish faith.

I am a Catholic who, during the war years, was closely associated with three of the finest men I have ever known. I shall never forget their integrity, patriotism and high moral standards. And today, when I am asked why I, a Catholic, wear a star of David, I waste not one second to explain that Mike Korman of Houston, Texas, Sid Kaufman of Steubenville, Ohio, and Jerry Goldberg of Ft. Lee, New Jersey, are worthy of being remembered for the years we spent in constant companionship as comrades in arms.

Ranching Center To Open Sundays

LUBBOCK—Texas Tech's Ranching Heritage Center—formerly the Ranch Headquarters—will be open for Sunday visitors beginning May 4. Visiting hours are from 2 to 4:30 p.m., and guides will be at the site to help interpret ranching history.

The Sunday visiting hours will be in effect through October.

For the first time this year, individuals will be taken on guided tours. A new program will serve weekday visitors. There will be two tours a day, each for 20 persons, served on a first-come, first-served basis. The first tour will start at 10 a.m. and the second at 1:30 p.m.

Organizations may make special arrangements for tours.

Despite heavy summer rains, more than 15,000 persons toured the Ranching Heritage Center last year.

The center authentically depicts the history of ranching in America's West, through the restoration and furnishing of notable ranch structures which have been moved to the site at The Museum of Texas Tech University, 4th Street and Indiana Avenue, Lubbock.

Demos Blast Ford's Plan To Lift Oil Price Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Key congressional Democrats are blasting President Ford's latest plan to take price controls off U.S. crude oil but are cheering a further delay in Ford's oil tariff increase as a sign of cooperation.

Chairman Al Ullman of the House Ways and Means Committee applauded Ford's announced delay of about 30 days for putting another $1-a-barrel increase in oil tariffs into effect.

"We fully expect to get (an energy tax) bill out of committee this week," and ready for House vote by the middle of the month, "so we can meet the timetable quite easily," Ullman said Wednesday.

That bill would roll back the President's power to raise import fees.

However, Chairman Henry M. Jackson of the Senate Interior Committee claimed Ford's announced intention to remove all price controls from domestic crude oil over a two-year span would cost the average American family about $250 a year. Jackson said he would introduce a resolution to block it, and Sens. Floyd K. Haskell, D-Colo., and Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., predicted Congress would pass it.

At the White House Wednesday, Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb said the $1-a-barrel increase in oil tariffs, due to take effect today, would be postponed about 30 days in the hope the House would vote on an energy program acceptable to Ford before the scheduled May 22-June 2 Memorial Day recess.

Zarb said the FEA would hold hearings before then on the President's proposed removal of price controls on U.S.-produced crude oil at a pace of roughly 4 per cent monthly over a two-year period. After the hearings, Ford would announce a program to go into effect five days later unless Congress voted in the interim to reject it, Zarb added.

Ford's $1-a-barrel oil tariff hike would take effect in about 30 days unless Ford decided sooner "there is just no hope" of getting the type of legislation he wants, Zarb said.

Earlier this year, Ford had fixed today as his target for an energy policy compromise with Congress. He had used his authority to put a $1 per barrel tariff on crude oil but voluntarily suspended two subsequent $1 per barrel tariff increases.

Although Ford did not recommend increasing the federal gasoline tax, a plan to hike the levy by as much as 23 cents per gallon over the coming years is emerging as the central feature of the Ways and Means Committee's energy tax bill.

County Court Pleas Heard

Several pleas were entered in county court this morning.

Antonio Gonzales, Phil Stanley Story and George P. Wallace all pleaded guilty to driving while intoxicated, first offense. Each received a $100 fine plus court costs and a 3-day jail term. Story was arrested April 25, Gonzales April 30 and Wallace April 28 by City Police. In addition, Wallace pleaded guilty to a charge of escaping from jail. On this plea, he received a $100 fine plus court costs. Charley Alvin Hoene and Jack H. Bevel both pleaded "no contest" to charges to driving while intoxicated. Hoene received a $100 fine plus court costs and a 3-day jail term. Bevel received a $100 fine plus court costs and a 3-day jail term. Hoene was arrested April 27, and Bevel was arrested April 22 by City Police.

Richard Castillo pleaded guilty to driving while the license was suspended. He received a $25 fine plus court costs and a 72-hour jail term. He was arrested April 27 by City Police.

Yesterday, Pedro Rios changed an earlier plea of innocence to "no contest" on a charge of driving while intoxicated, first offense. He received a $50 fine plus court costs and a 3-day jail term. He was arrested April 13 by City Police.

Refugees Couldn't Have Come At A Worse Time

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. (AP) — Who are these emigrants, this first big wave of Vietnamese refugees arriving in the United States?

And what is going to happen to them? Many officials fear they couldn't have arrived at a worse time, in the middle of a recession.

An estimated 70 per cent of the 1,500 persons living in "tin can" quonset huts and tents at this sprawling Marine base are dependents of Americans who worked in South Vietnam as contractors, engineers, employes of the Agency for International Development (AID) and other U.S. agencies.

They include wives, children and in-laws.

The rest are mostly "people who worked for us or associated with us," an immigration official here said. "High risk cases — prime targets for execution by the VC."

He explained he meant Embassy and consular personnel, teachers, politicians, journalists and employes of concerns with military contracts.

The "real hard core refugees," the ones from a cross-section of Vietnamese society that begged, bought or stole their way aboard American mercy flights and have few if any of the proper immigration papers, are not expected to be here for several days, he said.

Preparations have been made to house up to 20,000 persons each at Pendleton, Ft. Chaffee, Ark., and Eglin Air Force Base, Fla. The largest and longest emergency airlift of humans in aviation history began Tuesday.

Other than the American dependents, the Vietnamese arrivals so far are "not your average rice-paddy farmers, you know," said an AID official at Pendleton to help process the refugees.

"Oh, I guess we have a few of those, too. But mostly these people here are — were — wealthy middle-class types.

Most are merely happy to have escaped.

"I am lucky," said Rene Ngo, 29, former professor of French at the University of Saigon. "My brother-in-law is an American and was sponsor for my wife and I to come to the United States. We left everything behind."

WTC Journalists Earn High Ranking

Western Texas College journalists won overall first place in Division I of the Texas Junior College Press Association's 1975 Newspaper Contest, announced Dr. David Bowers, executive director and professor of journalism at Texas A&M University.

Western Texas earned 32 points for championship honors, while Texarkana College scored 23 for second; Grayson County College, 22, third; and Paris Junior College, 18, fourth.

Other colleges competing in the division, for colleges under 2,000 full-time enrollment, were Angelina, Bee County, Blinn, Cisco, Cooke County, Henderson County, Lee, Midland, Navarro, Schreiner, and Temple. Cooke won last year's sweepstakes.

Individual categories and places include: Jeff Box, San Angelo Freshman and sports editor, first and honorable mention in sports feature, second in picture page, and first and fourth in both sports writing and sports column.

Also, Paul Gilbert, Snyder Freshman and staff and Daily News photographer, first, second, and third in sports photography, first in picture page, tie for second in news photography, and honorable mention in feature photography. Jill Groff, Colorado City freshman and news editor, received honorable mention in news writing.

All will receive certificates of recognition and the college will be presented with the championship plaque during the fall conference at A&M.

This was the second year for WTC to compete in the TJCPA contest.

"The outcome speaks for itself. I am extremely proud of each and every Western Texan staff member. The state title for smaller junior colleges is but one of the many reasons why this has been an outstanding year for WTC!" said Mike McBride, publications adviser.

Bell Accepts Decree

DALLAS (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. has accepted a City Council decree to prevent the utility from seeking another rate hike before August 1976.

Jim Patillo, Southwestern Bell spokesman, said the company filed with the city secretary's office Wednesday its acceptance of an ordinance adopted by the council authorizing a $19.9 million annual rate hike.

The approval included a two-year moratorium on further rate hikes, retroactive to August 1974, when the just-passed rate hike was submitted.

Patillo said Bell customers in Dallas will begin paying the higher rates with bills sent out May 8. The new rates are effective today.

Man Indicted For Bigamy

HOUSTON (AP) — After four women claimed him as their husband, a night watchman has been indicted on charges of bigamy.

A Harris County grand jury returned the indictment Wednesday against Danny Nolan Kizer, 27, who was being sought.

The four grand jury witnesses ranged in age from 20 to 24.

One of them described Kizer as having "beautiful blue eyes and blond hair and sometimes a mustache."

Two of the wives said they met while visiting a sick friend. The other two wives were discovered shortly afterward.

TECHNICAL CREW—These students comprise the technical crew for the SHS one-act play which will compete in the state finals Friday in Austin. The Snyder entry is scheduled for around 9 p.m. Friday. HAS CAST IN AUSTIN

SHS Drama Director Accustomed To Success

Snyder High School drama students under the direction of Jerry Worsham will be representing District 3-AAA in the UIL state one-act play contest Friday in Austin with "The tempest."

For Worsham, this is one in a long series of successful one-act play seasons. Worsham came to Snyder High School in 1966 from Corsicana High School where his production of "Pygmalion" had avanced to state competition.

Since beginning work with Snyder High School, Worsham and his students have won state titles four times and also received Best Actress and Best Actor awards and the Samuel French Award each time.

Winning productions were "The Crucible" in 1968, "Elizabeth the Queen" in 1970, "Maira Stuart" in 1971 and "Ondine" in 1972. Snyder High School competed in Class AAAA in 1973 and 1974.

This year's Best Actress award at District and Regional competition went to Junanne Brock, a junior student, the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ben Brock. Dr. Brock, now vice-president of Western Texas College, was principal at Snyder High School when Worsham was hired there.

Named to the All-Star Cast in the 1975 production at District level were Greg Kane and Susan Sears, while Patrick Martin and Kim Massingill received Honorable Mention.

At the Regional contest, Kane and Dane Witherspoon were named to the All-Star Cast and Martin, Massingill and Miss Sears received Honorable Mention.

Production of the one-act play is a major undertaking under Worsham's guidance. It begins with the selection of a script, which is carefully revised by him to fit into the time limitation for one-act plays, and continues through the making of costumes and props. The number of actors and crew members is limited by Interscholastic League rules, which makes each person involved a vital part of the overall production. No stand-ins or back-up people may be included in the company, so everything must work almost to perfection to even get the play on stage. Winning a one-act play contest is, therefore, a coveted achievement.

Worsham is a graduate of North Texas State University and has done graduate work there.

WTC May Serve Three More Cities

Western Texas College has been given permission to operate extension programs in Post, Rotan, and Sweetwater beginning in the 1975 fall semester, Dr. Ben Brock, WTC vice president, has announced.

Requests for extension programs had been received earlier from public school superintendents in each of the three towns earlier in the year, Dr. Brock said. Approval was granted by the Coordinating Board of the Texas College and University System in its April meeting.

Western Texas College, which opened in 1971, presently offers extension programs in Haskell and Colorado City. Courses for educationally disadvantaged adults are also offered through WTC in Post and Colorado City.

The program in Post and Rotan are to include both selected academic courses, occupational-technical courses and non-credit community service courses. The program in Sweetwater will be limited to general academic courses since the Sweetwater branch of the Texas State Technical Institute (TSTI) already offers vocational-technical training.

Surveys will be taken in each of the towns to determine which courses will be offered. Generally a minimum of 15 students is required to form a class. Some courses can be offered on an individualized instruction basis, which makes it possible for students who cannot attend regular class sessions to complete some of their required work by special arrangement with the instructor.

Loyalty Day Observed By VFW Here

Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 8231 observed Loyalty Day today with a Flag raising ceremony at the Post home.

The flag was raised by Jack Farren, senior vice-commander and Americanism officer of the Post, and C.L. Doty, club manager.

Loyalty Day is observed each year by Veterans of Foreign Wars groups across the nation. On the special day, each VFW Post calls attention to the principles upon which this nation was founded and urge Americans to give thanks for the many freedoms they enjoy.

Farren said that VFW Post 8231, as a special project on this day, will distribute pamphlets, "Etiquette of the Stars and Stripes" to each high school and junior high school student in Snyder, Ira, Hermleigh and Fluvaanna. The pamphlet or booklet gives the history of the United States flag and how to display and respect it. Also distributed will be a copy of the Federal Flag Code.

Protestors Prevent Address

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Fifty to 75 chanting demonstrators prevented the director of Rhodesia's information office from addressing a meeting at Harvard University.

Kenneth Towsey was scheduled to address the Harvard Law School Forum in a public meeting Wednesday night. He later spoke to forum members in a private session.

The demonstrators protested Rhodesia's racial policies and urged support of United Nations sanctions against the African nation.

No arrests were made and the protest was peaceful.

"I'd expected some people from the opposing viewpoint to attend, but I hadn't expected them to organize a boycott of the meeting," Towsey said.

DOCTORS MAY REFUSE TO PAY

Malpractice Premiums Becoming Prohibitive

By LINDA KRAMER
Associted Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Many of the 4,000 Northern California doctors hit by skyrocketing malpractice insurance rates have vowed to take down their shingles today rather than pay.

More than half the doctors in the San Francisco Bay area were expected to refuse to pay what they termed "prohibitive" premiums sought by Argonaut Insurance Co., thus forcing many hospitals to curtail services sharply.

Argonaut, headquartered in nearby Menlo Park, offers malpractice coverage in 30 states and the expiration of its group policies in California on Wednesday was only the tip of the national malpractice crisis.

The firm had decided to get out of the malpractice insurance business, but later agreed to renew coverage for Northern California physicians on an individual basis for three-month periods at rates averaging as much as 322 per cent more.

High risk rates for anesthesiologists, which have been averaging $5,377 a year, will go to as high as $21,508. Rates for low risk practice such as that performed by psychiatrists and doctors of internal medicine will go from a low of $1,131 a year to a high of $4,912.

The soaring rates asked by Argonaut and other companies were prompted by huge awards in some malpractice suits. Argonaut says it has lost "millions and millions" of dollars writing malpractice insurance.

The California Hospital Association says paid losses from hospital malpractice claims increased from $1,903,686 in the state in 1971 to $3,944,105 in 1973. There have been individual malpractice judgments in excess of $1 million.

Doctors argue that only 14½ to 19 cents of every insurance dollar gets to the patient involved in lawsuits. They say the rest is absorbed by lawyer fees and insurance company operating costs not connected with malpractice suits.

Anesthesiologists in all eight Northern California counties affected by Argonaut policies face some of the highest rate hikes and the overwhelming majority have decided not to pay. This will mean a virtual suspension of all but emergency surgery at most private hospitals.

Officers of the Hospital and Institutional Workers Union and the California Nurses Association say their members face large-scale layoffs with the suspension of most surgery at private hospitals.

The hospitals and county medical societies have set up plans for referring patients of uninsured doctors. The California Medical Association called the health care situation "grim."

The California legislature was considering several bills to resolve the malpractice situation by setting up some form of insurance pool and Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. held meetings Wednesday on the issue.

16 Survivors In Critical Condition

EAGLE PASS, Tex. (AP) — Sixteen survivors of a butane explosion here Tuesday that took six lives were still in critical condition in San Antonio hospitals today.

Six hospitals, including one here and five in San Antonio, held 30 injured or burned persons today. All 16 of those in critical condition were being treated in San Antonio and two others there were listed as being in satisfactory condition.

Eleven persons hospitalized in Eagle Pass were in fair condition and two in poor condition.

The six dead in the explosion were identified as Robert Finley, 25, and Linda Finley, 30, both of Crystal City; Leopoldo Carrillo, 36; Lucille Longoria, 20, Juan Paul Garza, 27, all of Eagle Pass; and Jesus Verduzco of Piedras Negras, Mexico, the driver of the truck.

One of those listed in critical condition at San Antonio was Robert Finley, 4, son of the dead Finley couple.

Ten persons were treated and released Wednesday at Eagle Pass after suffering injuries in the explosion.

6 Arrested On Drug Charges

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Six persons were arrested Tuesday night by federal and local authorities who confiscated 1,200 pounds of marijuana and eight ounces of cocaine.

Phil Jordan, special agent in charge of the Phoenix office of the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, said the arrests came following surveillance of three vehicles pulling boats which had crossed into Arizona from Mexico earlier in the day at Nogales.

The marijuana was concealed in two of the boats, said Jordan. He placed the wholesale value of the cocaine at $12,000 and that of the marijuana at $120,000.

Jordan said U.S. Customs agents alerted his office after they detected marijuana in the boats as the crossed into the United States. The suspects were followed to the Phoenix area, where Phoenix and Scottsdale police, the Maricopa County Sheriff's Department and the state Department of Public Safety joined in the investigation.

Arrested at a Scotsdale residence were Lorna Alane Hughes, 18, Jenks, Okla.; Harold Oliver Wise Jr., 25, Scottsdale; Darrell Spence Downs, 50, Yuma; Steven David Foster, 19, Amarillo, Tex.; Larry C. Whitekiller, 26, Wagoner, Okla.; and John Roy Phillips, Wagoner, Okla.

All six were charged with possession of marijuana and cocaine for sale, said Jordan.

Troublesome Questions On Medicare Answered

"How do I get paid for services I receive under Medicare?" "Is there a special form I have to send in, and where do I send it?" "What can I do if I have a complaint about my payments?"

These can be troublesome questions to Medicare beneficiaries, according to Don Minyard, Social Security Branch Manager in Big Spring.

"The answers," he says, "can be found in the new edition of Your Medicare Handbook, which was mailed to Medicare beneficiaries and to health care professionals and facilities in late 1974." The new handbook contains a detailed explanation of the Medicare claims process.

"Under the hospital insurance part of Medicare," Minyard said, "the beneficiary does not have to apply for payment. The hospital, skilled nursing facility, or home health agency which provided the services submits the claim for payment.

"But it is important," he said, "that the beneficiary show his Medicare card to the facility so that it can copy down his health insurance claim number just as it's shown on his card."

Under the medical insurance part of Medicare, the claim process is a little more complicated. There are two methods of payment. The medical insurance payment can be made to the doctor or supplier who provided the services or supplies. This method is called assignment. Or the payment can be made to the beneficiary.

"Regardless of which method is used," Minyard said, "a Request for Medicare Payment form must be filled out and sent to the Medicare carrier."

The carrier is an organization selected by the Social Security Administration to handle medical insurance claims for a particular area. The new Medicare handbook contains a list of carriers and their addresses. Beneficiaries can get copies of the Request for Medicare Payment form from their doctor or supplier or from any Social Security Office.

"Under the assignment method, the doctor or supplier submits the claim for payment," Minyard said. "The beneficiary should complete and sign Part I of the form. The doctor or supplier will complete Part II and send the form to the carrier. Mediare then pays the doctor or supplier.

"If the doctor or supplier does not accept assignment, the beneficiary submits the claim, and Medicare will pay him. Again, he completes and signs Part I of the form. Then he should ask the person who provided the services either to complete Part II or to give him an itemized bill to send in with the form.

"An itemized bill must include the date he received the services, the place where he received them, a description of the services, the nature of his illness or injury (diagnosis), the charge for each service, and his name and health insurance claimnumber exactly as it's shown on his Medicare card. If the bill doesn't include all this information, payment will be delayed."

Under medical insurance, no payment can be made until the $60 yearly deductible is met. Minyard suggests that the beneficiary send in a Request for Medicare Payment form as soon as his bills come to $60. Then he should send in future bills as soon as he gets them so payment can be made promptly.

"It's also a good idea," Minyard said, "for beneficiaries to keep a record of their claim in case they ever want to inquire about it."

Whenever a claim is submitted under hospital insurance or medical insurance, Medicare will send the beneficiary a notice of the decision made on the claim. What can he do if he disagrees with the decision?

"Under the law, the beneficiary has the right of appeal," Minyard said. "If he disagrees with a decision on a claim—whether it's about the amount Medicare will pay or about the services he received—he has the right to ask for a review of the decision. The notice he gets from Medicare telling him about the decision on his claim explains exactly what appeal steps he can take."

The new Medicare handbook also describes the appeals process under Medicare.

Minyard suggests that beneficiaries keep their Medicare handbook handy so that they will have it whenever they need information about applying for payment. "But," he adds, "anytime they have questions that aren't answered in the handbook, they can call any social security office. They should also call us if they did not receive a copy of the new handbook."

Texas Delegation Seeks Funds For River Projects

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A delegation of Texas businessmen and local officials have completed a journey to Capitol Hill to ask for support for a series of water projects.

Testifying Wednesday before House and Senate public works appropriations subcommittees, the Texans asked that Congress approve the budget requests for the Trinity River and Brazos River projects sought by President Ford in his 1976 budget message.

The construction projects were supported by several members of the Texas congressional delegation, although one, Rep. Alan Steelman, a Republican from Dallas, repeated his opposition to a multi-purpose channel in connection with the Tennessee Colony Reservoir.

Opposition to the Trinity River project was also voiced by Edward C. Fitz, speaking for the Texas Committee on Natural Resources.

"The people of the Trinity River watershed have voted three times that we do not want the Trinity River project, particularly the navigation canal," he told the House subcommittee.

But support for the projects was unanimous among the businessmen and officials — mayors, judges, and county commissioners — who appeared before Sen. Bennett J. Johnston Jr., D-La., and Rep. Joe L. Evins, D-Tenn.

Judge N. R. Link of Anderson County said a special committee had been formed to support the Trinity River project because "we in the mid-basin are so convinced of the need for improvement."

"We're concerned with the quality of water in the (Tennessee Colony) lake and with waste treatment," he said. "We're concerned with prolonged flooding in the Trinity River basin."

"The Tennessee Colony Lake is a vital part in the Trinity River project," Link said, noting that 36 work days have been lost in 1975 because floods have covered grazing and crop land.

"Flooding downstream and in the mid-basin will never be controlled until the Tennesse Colony Lake is constructed," he said, repeating to the House subcommittee testimony he gave earlier in the day before the Senate panel.

Rep. Jim Wright, D-Tex., testified in support of the projects, singling out budget requests for construction of Aubrey Reservoir and Lakeview Lake.

"Both lakes are vital elements in the future water supplies of the entire Fort Worth-Dallas metropolitan area," he said.

Wright also said the Wallisville Lake, about three-fourths complete, "is vital to the water supply needs of the Houston metropolitan area."

He also supported the Tennessee Colony Lake, calling it "a keystone to the river development system."

"It is basic to flood control throughout the basin and will be a major water supply source for the future," he said.

Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Tex., testified in support of all of the projects and, in a statement in the House panel, said:

"The need for development of additional water supplies in the Brazos Basin is critical, and to meet that need, the San Gabriel Reservoir and the planned Millican Reservoir must be finished as soon as possible."

Paulus Denied New Trial

HOUSTON AP — A state district court judge has denied a request for a new trial for Lilla Paulus, convicted on a charge of being an accomplice in the Dr. John Hill murder case.

Mrs. Paulus was assessed a 35 year prison sentence following a February trial.

Judge Frank C. Price turned down the defense motion Wednesday and ordered Mrs. Paulus transferred to the Texas Department of Corrections at Huntsville.

Defense attorney Dick DeGuerin submitted two affidavits from jurors alleging jury miscondict during the trial. Prosecutor Bob Burdette presented five affidavits from jurors denying the alleged misconduct.

Hill, a Houston plastic surgeon, was shot to death by a hooded gunman in his home Sept. 24, 1972. Hill was under indictment on a charge of murder in the 1969 death of his first wife, Joan Robinson Hill. The indictment accused him of withholding medical treatment from her. He was tried once on the charge but the jury failed to reach a verdict. Another trial was pending at the time of his death.

During Mrs. Paulus' trial, Marcia McKittrick, a state witness, testified that Ash Robinson, wealthy Houston oilman, arranged the slaying of Hill, Robinson's former son-in-law.

Miss McKittrick, serving a 10-year sentence for her alleged part in the Hill slaying, said that Mrs. Paulus was the go-between and paid Miss McKittrick's boy friend, Bobby Wayne Vandiver, $5,000 to be the triggerman. Vandiver was shot to death in 1974 by a Longview policeman.

Robinson has denied any connection with Hill's death and has not been charged in the case.

Heroes Must Not Be Forgotten

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., said Wednesday the four Marines killed this week during the evacuation of Saigon are heroes and they and other servicemen are the last to blame for the loss of South Vietnam.

"This country must not forget those who sacrificed life or limb in serving their country in Southeast Asia," Mahon said in a House speech Wednesday. "They are Americans who came when called and served their country well."

"These Marines are heroes in my book, and deserve the gratitude and appreciation of the American people," the congressman said.

Two of the men were killed at Ton Son Nhut Airport Monday and two were killed Tuesday in a helicopter crash.

Lower Supermarket Prices May Be Short Lived

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

Supermarket shoppers found a wide range of price decreases last month, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey. But the family grocery bill still is 12.4 per cent higher than it was last year. A government report, meanwhile, indicates the savings may be short lived.

The AP survey showed the price of the marketbasket decreased during April in every city checked, with an average drop of 2.9 per cent.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture said in a report issued Wednesday that prices paid to farmers increased 4 per cent from March 15 to April 15, the first rise after five months of declines.

That could touch off another round of price boosts in food at the supermarket, but it often takes several months for increases or decreases at the farm level to filter through to the retail level.

Farm prices are still 7 per cent below what they were a year ago and although prices for both cattle and hogs went up from March 15 to April 15, farmers got less for eggs and milk.

Consumers never got the full benefit of the steady decline in prices paid to farmers, because middlemen, arguing that their other costs were rising, said they could not afford to pass on the savings.

The AP drew up a random list of 15 food and nonfood items, checked the price on March 1 [illegible] 1973, at a supermarket in each of 13 cities and has rechecked at the start of each succeeding month.

The latest survey showed continuing decreases in the price of sugar and, for the first time, the decline was reflected in the cost of items made with sugar. The price of chocolate chip cookies dropped in 12 of 13 cities checked, reflecting a cut by the manufacturer about a month earlier.

Other savings result from price cutting by some supermarket chains, particularly in Chicago where retailers are engaged in a virtual price war.

On the negative side, detergent was up in eight cities and there were scattered increases in the price of beef items like chopped chuck and frankfurters.

The items on the AP checklist were: chopped chuck, center cut pork chops, frozen orange juice concentrate, coffee, paper towels, butter, Grade-A medium white eggs, creamy peanut butter, laundry detergent, fabric softener, tomato sauce, chocolate chip cookies, milk, all-beef frankfurters and granulated sugar.

The cities checked were: Albuquerque, N.M.; Atlanta, Ga.; Boston; Chicago; Dallas; Detroit; Los Angeles; Miami; New York; Philadelphia; Providence, R.I.; Salt Lake City; and Seattle.

Unemployment Programs Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., urged Wednesday the passage of programs to reduce unemployment, which he said causing a $75 billion cost-revenue deficit in the government.

"The principal cause of the current budget deficit is a major loss of tax revenues because people are off payrolls," Bentsen said. "The culprit is recession."

Bentsen called on the Senate to approve legislation to provide additional public service jobs, emergency fiscal aid for state and local government and quick-impact public works projects.

Bentsen said tax revenues would be $60 billion higher in the coming year if Americans were working and paying taxes at full employment, while expenditures for unemployment compensation and other programs would be $15 billion less.

NEITHER STRIPES NOR STAR

No Flag Flies Over The Vietnam Embassy

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — No flag flies over the Vietnam Embassy, neither the stripes of South Vietnam nor the star of North Vietnam. Inside, the ambassador and his aides wait anxiously for news from South Vietnam officials and loved ones still in Vietnam.

"I have not heard from my brothers and sisters," Ambassador Tran Kim Phuong, his eyes brimming with tears, told reporters Wednesday. Nor has he had any word from the new regime or leaders of the South Vietnam government that fell Tuesday night to the Communists.

His first secretary, a strikingly beautiful woman and a former Fulbright scholar, cried unashamedly as she talked about her family and friends at home.

"It's so painful to lose your country," said Phung D. Nguyen, tears streaming down her cheeks and falling on her long, graceful Vietnamese dress called an ao dai. "I hope we don't have to endure any more humiliation. It's the pain, the agony, the sense of helplessness. What can you do for the hundreds of Vietnamese who call for help asking about their families still in Saigon?"

For the past few days, the Embassy has been besieged with hundreds of calls from Vietnamese begging for help in locating their relatives, Miss Nguyen said. And as she talked, a few people crowded into the tiny Embassy lobby, hungry for any new rumor or tidbit of information.

Le Chi Thien, the Embassy's economic attache, was more composed as he discussed his country's sad political situation. But his face twisted in agony when asked if his family had been evacuated.

"We are all waiting and praying for news," he said, slowly adding that his wife and two young daughters are here, but he has relatives who may still be in Saigon.

Sitting in the elegant drawing room of his embassy, furnished with fine silk upholstery, royal blue oriental rugs, handsome antique vases, rare lacquered panels and paintings of tranquil Vietnam scenes, the ambassador said he first learned of the surrender not from the White House or Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, but from radio news reports.

"I have not received communication from President Ford or Secretary Kissinger," he said, adding that only shortly after he heard the radio report, a high official at the State Department called him with the news. Asked if he expected to discuss the situation with Kissinger, the ambassador said with a slight smile, "The secretary is a very, very busy man."

Phuong's last communication with Saigon was Sunday night, and it only concerned routine business, he said. "I was surprised our government had to surrender so quickly. We have been defeated not by the Viet Cong, but by the North Vietnamese. And we must accept this defeat ...

Looking straight into the television cameras as if he were directing his words to the North Vietnamese, Phuong continued: "I will not serve the Communist government. And in the embassy here, all the staff would not serve the Communist government."

Charles Arrives In Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Britain's Prince Charles has arrived in south Florida for a sun-and-fun visit, including a black-tie dinner for charity.

The 26-year-old Prince of Wales was met by a heavy security guard when his Royal Navy aircraft landed Wednesday night at nearby Fort Lauderdale. Highway patrolmen escorted the prince to Miami for a supper at the home of his hosts, Robert and Nancy Greene.

Tonight's dinner will be attended by about 75 members of Miami's social set willing to pay $2,000 each to meet Prince Charles and help Variety Children's Hospital here and a British children's charity.

Prince Charles is a Royal Navy officer assigned to the commando carrier HMS Hermes. The ship is docked at nearby Port Everglades, where the prince will join his shipmates when his Miami visit is completed.

The Greenes are longtime friends of the royal family. Prince Philip visited their home in 1966.

The Liberty Bell cracked on July 8, 1835, while tolling for the death of Chief Justice John Marshall.

LOVED WILD FRONTIER LIFE

Daniel Boone Blazed A Trail For Early Settlers

By DON McLEOD
Associated Press Writer

During the American Revolution, Daniel Boone was captured by Indians and took to camp life so enthusiastically that fellow prisoners began to question his loyalty.

There was nothing wrong with Daniel Boone's patriotism — he was just having a good time. Boone dearly loved the wild life of the American frontier.

The wilderness was cruel to Boone at times. Indians tortured one of his sons to death. They cut off his brother's head while Daniel was running for his own life a few yards away. Another son died of an Indian bullet in the last battle of the Revolution.

But it was good to him, too. It provided a living. A good hunter could bring in several hundred deerskins in a season, with the market price sometimes as high as $5 dollars a skin.

And a man could breathe in the wilderness. Life close to nature was the next thing to heaven for Daniel Boone.

Two hundred years ago, as the American Revolution began, Boone was building Boonesborough, Ky., after cutting the Wilderness Road which opened the great American interior to settlement.

Boone was the complete Founding Father. He explored the land, blazed the trail, led in settlers, was elected to the provisional legislature that initially governed the new territory, and introduced one of the first laws enacted in Kentucky, a bill to protect the wildlife.

Then he did something which made him different from most explorers, the thing which made English America different. He went back and got his family. The frontier would be home.

Despite his reputation, Boone didn't enjoy fighting Indians. He liked them. But when it came to fighting, he could outshoot, outrun or outsmart just about anyone on the frontier.

Boone was a great soldier in one of the little known but dirtiest theaters of the Revolution, the western front where British officers and renegades led Indians against settlers.

While hunting food for a salt-making party, Boone was captured in 1778 by Shawnees heading for Boonesborough. Knowing the outpost was unprepared and could not survive the attack, Boone talked the Indians into settling for the salt party instead and then talked his companions into surrendering to save the settlement.

The brave pioneers so impressed their captors that the Indians adopted them. Boone became the son of Chief Blackfish.

Boone feigned cooperation and at the same time told the Indians such tall tales of the invincibility of Boonesborough that they would not attack for all the prodding of their English mentors.

When the Indians finally returned to the warpath, Boone escaped and raced 160 miles in four days through the wilds to warn Boonesborough.

Forewarned, the settlement was able to survive the longest siege of the frontier war. Boone's own family had returned already to North Carolina, but he stayed to help with the fighting.

Boone had done such a good job of beguiling the Indians that some of the white captives believed his act. He was court-martialed but cleared by the grateful settlers he had saved.

As a militia officer, Boone remained active throughout the war. He was captured at Charlottesville, Va., while a delegate to the state legislature, but was released on parole.

In August 1782, 10 months after Yorktown, Boone joined a force chasing British-led raiders near present-day Lexington, Ky. Despite his warning that the Indian trail was a little too obvious, the frontiersmen rushed into an ambush and 70 of them were killed, including Boone's son Israel.

Boone was born Nov. 2, 1734 near Reading, Pa., son of a Quaker immigrant from Exeter, England.

He lived to be almost 86, but he never grew too old for the forest. When he was 82, he wandered into Ft. Osage one day and an officer reported:

"We have been honored by a visit from Col. Boone ... The colonel cannot live without being in the woods. He goes a hunting twice a year to the remotest wilderness he can reach; and hires a man to go with him, whom he binds in written articles to take care of him, and bring him home, dead or alive."

Taxpayers Ask IRS

This column of questions and answers on federal tax matters is provided by the U.S. Internal Revenue Service and is published as a public service to taxpayers. The column answers most frequently asked by taxpayers.

Q. What should I do if I move before my tax refund comes?

A. Leave a forwarding address with the post office so that the refund can be delivered to your new address. Failure to do this has delayed the refunds of many taxpayers until a current address could be obtained.

Q. I got married last December. Can my wife and I file a joint return for 1974?

A. Yes, if you are married on the last day of your tax year, the IRS considers you as married for the whole year. So, you can file a joint return with your wife for 1974, but neither of you can be claimed as a dependent on the return of another taxpayer.

Q. I rent out some land to a farmer nearby. Should I include the rent payments I receive as farm or rental income?

A. Report the rent payments you receive on your land as rental income on Schedule E and attach it to your Form 1040 when you file. Unless you materially participate in the business of farming, the rents you receive are not considered farm income.

Q. My wife and I are filing separate returns. Can I itemize while she takes the standard deduction?

A. No. Married couples filing separate returns must handle their deductions the same way. If one itemizes deductions, the other must also itemize. Married couples filing separately must also take the same type of standard deduction. If one takes the standard deduction, both must take it.

ALTHOUGH PROFITS ARE UP

Steel Makers Concerned About Future Prospects

By D. BYRON YAKE
Associated Press Writer

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — Federal wage and price controls ended a year ago today, sparking steel price increases that along with banner production turned 1974 into a record profit year in the steel industry.

Steel profits represented 6.5 per cent of sales in 1974, a margin unseen since 1966. Shipments were second only to the record levels of 1973.

Now, 1975 first-quarter earnings reports are in and steel profits, despite a sluggish economy, remain relatively high.

But are steel profits really the bright spot in a recession-hit economy they appear to be? Steel companies and analysts say both yes and no.

Yes, profits are fairly good for an ailing economy; no, they are not adequate. Profits must improve if new steel plants are to be built and capacity expanded for expected high demand in the 1980s.

U.S. Steel and Bethlehem Steel, the two largest steelmakers, both doubled their first quarter earnings of a year ago, as did some smaller companies, such as Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp.

There were others who didn't match that level of performance, but Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp., for instance, still had a 25 per cent rise in net income.

Why are profits as good as they are?

The first quarter was simply an extension of the big-demand year in 1974, the companies say. Though steel shipments were off the first three months of 1975, the companies were building inventories.

Now, inventory reduction has begun and the result will be much lower profits the next two quarters.

"The decline in new orders will mean lower shipments, lower operating rates and substantially lower earnings in the second quarter" says Robert Lauterbach, chairman of Wheeling-Pittsburgh.

"Comparing the first quarter with last year is like comparing apples and oranges," said a Wheeling-Pittsburgh spokesman. "We had price controls last year and we didn't this year.

"But even after that, look at the return on sales for the first quarter. Where are we? Down."

Wheeling-Pittsburgh, the ninth-ranked steel producer, had a return on sales of 7.1 per cent in 1974, an excellent 8.5 per cent in the fourth quarter, but just 4.5 per cent in the first quarter of 1975.

"The results do reflect improvement over last year when price controls were still exerting an adverse effect on earnings," says Lauterbach.

U.S. Steel showed a better record, but it, too, had a drop in earnings based on sales. Its return in 1974 was 6.8 per cent, 7.0 per cent for the fourth quarter and 6.2 per cent for the first quarter of this year.

Agency Director Suspended

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Post says the director of the Texas Board of Private Investigators and Private Security Agencies has been suspended from his duties pending the outcome of an investigation of complaints against him.

The Post's state capital bureau quoted Board Chairman J. Mason Lankford Jr. of Fort Worth as saying Wednesday that Thomas W. Brown was suspended for 30 days with pay pending the outcome of a May 14 hearing.

Lankford declined to specify the complaints against Brown because he said "they have not been reduced to writing." The complaints apparently come from within the agency.

The action came at a closed meeting in the attorney general's office. Seven of the eight board members were present, Lankford said, and the vote to suspend Brown and call the meeting was unanimous.

In addition to hearing charges against the director, Lankford said the board will hear appeals of two high ranking officials whom Brown fired April 2.

They are Joseph O. McMurrey, a former assistant director, and James R. McWhirter, a former head of the licensing division.

Brown, who has been director of the agency since 1970 and a former Department of Public Safety officer for 22 years, could not be reached Wednesday for comment.

However, he earlier said there were differences of opinion over personnel matters.

OUR MAN ON BROADWAY

Dick Maurice

"Kojak" star, TELLY SAVALAS, may be a tough old cookie on camera, but his co-star, KEVIN ("Dt. Crocker") DOBSON, says his TV boss is "a cut-up." Dobson recalls one funny incident when Telly and Kevin had to jump into a squad car "for the cameras" in hot pursuit of an escaping criminal. Mid-scene, Savalas realized he'd forgotten to put his pistol in the holster. Telly shrugged and proceeded with the chase until the cops pulled up beside the speeding crook. Telly stuck his finger gun out the window and shouted: "Bang! Bang! You're dead!" And just at that moment, Dobson remembers, "the bad guy's tire blew out. The entire crew broke up in laughter."

ELVIS PRESLEY is now telling audiences all about his diamond rings during each of his performances, saying "You helped me buy them so I figured you ought to know about them!" Isn't that LIBERACE's line?

Did you ever wonder what VALERI HARPER's real life husband Dick Schall, really thinks of his wife doing those cozy scenes with DAVID GROH, a real-life bachelor who plays Rhoda's husband? Well, Dick guest starred in an episode as Rhoda's husband's old buddy and of all things, it was Rhoda who didn't get along with him. Now there's a switch! Sorry folks, but it looks like this year's success has done nothing to confirm any rumors about problems between Valerie and her adoring Dick. In fact, the Schaals have been working hard off camera to raise money for an experimental program to help rehabilitate prisioners accused of non-violent crimes.

"Hee Haw's" ROY Clark says his new diet is no laughing matter as he seriously believes it is "saving his life." It took two trips to the hospital from exhaustion to scare Roy into losing 48 pounds—and he's still got another 12 to go.

Comedian JACKIE GLEASON nets a neat $1 million a year from his popular mood music albums. Jackie's interest in music all started at the movies one night when, as a teenager, he was watching a film starring CLARK GABLE and CAROLE LOMBARD. When the screen lovers come together for the big tight close-up smooch—with romantic background music rising from nowhere—young Jackie got his first big brainstorm. He chuckles: "I figured that if those two needed music, then the poor guy in Hoboken or Hackensack, New Jersey, with his girlfriend needed music more than anybody else."

Even Hollywood's beginning to feel the pinch of recession. BARBRA STREISAND got rid of her expensive Mercedes, in favor of a modest Cougar, but she still loves luxury so Barbra has a uniformed chauffeur to drive her around in the yellow Cougar. Her boyfriend, JON PETERS, put his Ferari into storage and buzzes from Malibu to Beverly Hills in a Volkswagen now. . .PAUL NEWMAN is another big star driving a small car—he's always cruising around in a dented VW. Instead of gaping into Rolls Royces driving by, fans are keeping their eyes on the economy cars now.

Isn't it interesting how many newspapers and periodicals around the country are now referring to NBC's "Today Show" as BARBARA WALTERS 'Today Show.' Somehow. . .sweet, friendly, affable, likeable JIM HARTZ goes ignored.

Did you know when FLIP WILSON decided to give show biz a try, he had nowhere to go but up? It's true! Young Clerow Wilson was one of 24 children and grew up in extreme poverty. His childhood was dotted with one foster home after another and it wasn't until he ran away from home, and lied about his age to join the Air Force at the age of 16 that he found out he could have an effect on people by making them laugh. It was only a matter of time till he found his way into his favorite "foster home" - yours and mine. Keep it up, Flip!

NANCY WALKER (of "McMillan and Wife" and "Rhoda" acclaim) is one of TV's top bananas, but recently bemoaned the fate of young actors trying to break into the business today. "Today, I wouldn't know where to start," says Nancy. "Nobody has a place for young talent to start. I began on Broadway, but where would I start today?" Selling p, maybe??

Education System May Be Chalenged

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas school superintendent Nolan Estes says he will ask the 40 largest districts in Texas to join in a suit against the state seeking relief from what he called the "inequitable system of state aid to education."

Estes made his statement Wednesday during a meeting of the school board of trustees. Trustees already have asked the school attorneys to file suit against the State of Texas to correct "inequities now present in our state funding."

Trustees at the Wednesday meeting said also they will push for a meeting next week in Austin of the state's largest schoool districts to try to force legislative action.

Estes said the situation in the legislature, "never has been more chaotic and contusing." He said he has little faith the lawmakers would act in the five weeks remaining in the session to enact a new school financing system.

He suggested the school board travel to Austin next Wednesday in a last-ditch effort to get action from the legislators.

Estes also urged Gov. Dolph Briscoe "to veto any band-aid reform bills" which do not change the property tax assessment formula."

He added he would ask Dallas civic groups to join, the teacher organizations in an appeal for support of a new education bill.

"I am not sure parents realize we are talking about cutting school programs for kids and lowering school programs to mediocrity if the reform measures are not passed," he stated.

He told a meeting of the school board that without changes in the state's funding system, taxpayers will have a choice between higher local taxes or cutbacks in educational programs next year.

El Paso Marine Was Last To Die In Vietnam

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — "He was a good man, very, very dedicated to the Marine Corps and to his country."

He was Lt. Michael John Shea, possibly the last American to die in Vietnam, as he was described by his widow, Jenny, Wednesday shortly after she was told the young officer had died in a helicopter crash in the South China sea.

"I had been getting letters lately saying he was discouraged by what was going on over there," Mrs. Shea continued. "He couldn't believe that this country had let those people down like we had. He was very concerned about the children."

It was the sight of terrified Vietnamese children running through the streets, crying for their mothers, that so distressed Shea, a native of El Paso, that he wrote to his wife saying he was "glad he didn't have to live forever."

Tuesday, Shea and three other Marines were flying a rescue mission in a Martine CH46 helicopter when the chopper went down in the South China sea. Missing and presumed dead with Shea was Capt. William C. Nystul. Two Marine enlisted men on board the helicopter were rescued.

Shea's parents Mrs. and Mrs. Clarence Shea, live in El Paso.

His widow, the former Jenny McCabe, said Shea, "knew he was doing right by being in the Corps, and he would do whatever they told him.

"He didn't say anything about more fighting in the letters, but I know he felt that the war should have been fought to be won, not with all this messing around. He said he felt so bad for those children. He loves children."

The 25-year-old pilot was a mother's dream. He was voted El Paso's Parkland High School's Most Popular and Most Outstanding Boy in 1968, and was the captain of the varsity football team for the last two of the four years he played. He played on the basketball and baseball teams for four years and was on the track team for two years.

"He was a fine young man, really an all-around person," said his high school counselor, Harry Payne. "He was vice-president of his junior and senior classes."

In 1973, Shea graduated with honor from the University of Texas-El Paso with a bachelor of science in mathematics. There, he played back-up quarterback for the Miners.

"He was terrific, clean-cut, a very good student," remembers Betty Putnam. She and her husband, Judd, lived below the Sheas in student housing at UTEP. "We were all good friends. I gave Jenny a shower for her first baby."

The Sheas have two sons, Matthew, 3, and Mark, 11 months. Now, Mrs. Shea's main concern is "picking up our lives, getting them in order."

She said Matthew is still "too young to really understand death, but I've told him his father is with Jesus. He prays for him."
