Safety on highways is a major problem to the state and nation. Highway accidents have reached alarming proportions. It seems to do little good to warn drivers of the dangers of fast driving or drunken driving. Speed demons hog the road, they are in and out of traffic at terrific speed. They not only endanger their own lives but the lives of others who may be on the highway driving at a safe speed. The man who drives at a safe speed is not safe as long as the speed demons and the drunken drivers are on the highway. The man who is driving at a safe speed may become involved in an accident caused by a driver who is careless or speeding. What can be done about the problem so long as the car manufacturers build cars that will travel at terrific speed is one that is hard to solve. There are not enough highway patrolmen to patrol all of the highways.

Mayor Jack Walker gave us a card a few days ago that he picked up somewhere that reads like this:

Sing While You Drive

At 45 miles per hour, sing—"Highways Are Happy Ways"; at 55 miles, sing—"I'm But a Stranger Here, Heaven Is My Home"; at 65 miles, sing—"Nearer My God, To Thee!"; at 75 miles, sing—"When the Roll Is Called Up Yonder, I'll Be There"; and at 85 miles, sing—"Lord, I'm Coming Home."

There is no reason why anyone should drive faster than 50 to 60 miles per hour; if those speeds won't get them where they are going fast enough, an airplane is what they need.

NOTICE

Anyone who intends to build or repair a home or business building must have a permit from the City Secretary, otherwise they are violating a City Ordinance.

Light Rain Helps Row Crops

A light rain of nearly a quarter of an inch fell here Sunday night, beginning about 10:30. It was a good cotton shower. Though not enough for any lasting good, it will benefit temporarily most row crops.

Another half inch fell late Wednesday afternoon and during the early hours of the night, bringing the total, according to the measurement, to 7.19 of an inch. This was just right for cotton and maize crops and did not damage wheat, it will slow up wheat harvest, however.

Sound Picture Friday At Methodist Church

Vivid full color scenes from astronomy and natural science are featured in "The God of Creation", sound motion picture to be shown at 8:00 P. M. Friday, June 20, at the Methodist Church, according to the rev. C. N. Starnes, pastor.

Produced in Moody Institute of Science, West Coast department of Moody Bible Institute, by Irwin A. Moon, Sc. D., "The God of Creation" is the second in a series of evangelistic films. The first film by Dr. Moon, "They Live Forever," had a large showing in all parts of the country.

In the opening section of "The God of Creation" the audience takes a trip to the stars by means of solar photographs taken through the giant 100-inch telescope of Mt. Wilson Observatory in southern California, and views complex gyrations of our own solar system.

Lapse-time photography is utilized to demonstrate the beauties of natural science. The illusion of flower buds developing into full-blown blossoms in a few seconds is created through this time-compressing photo technique. The metamorphosis of a caterpillar through the various stages from worm to butterfly, and pollination of flowers are seen on the screen in full color.

Believed to be the first of their kind are the natural-color pictures of photosynthesis, the mysterious food-manufacturing process resulting from the action of sunlight on green leaves.

Through photomicrography the audience peers into the microscopic world of a drop of water and observes the complexity of tiny organisms, enlarged more than a million times.

"The God of Creation" will be shown by Mr. Percy A. Bagge, Moody film representative.

SIDELIGHTS FROM WASHINGTON

By George Mahon

Friends of the Army Air Forces and the cause of national defense won a victory in the House of Representatives last week which will be a warning to the world that the United States is not planning to surrender her position as the world's greatest air power.

The controversy over U. S. air power arose when the Appropriations Committee, the Committee upon which I serve, slashed $40,000,000 from funds recommended for the purchase of new airplanes. The request for the funds had been made of Congress by the Chief of the Army Air Forces, the Secretary of War and the President. The Committee then requested the House to approve the slash.

In Committee I had offered an amendment to restore the airplanes which had been defeated. When the bill came up in the House of Representatives I took up the fight again, re-offering the amendment to restore the funds for the airplanes.

The Republican leadership fought the amendment and the question was heatedly debated for a part of three days.

Finally, in the last half hour of the debate, Congressman Andrews of New York, the Republican Chairman of the House Committee on Armed Forces, took the floor in support of my amendment and in support of my contention that the Appropriations Committee had misrepresented the facts and the figures in regard to army air power. This broke the back of the opposition and shortly thereafter the amendment was accepted and passed the House. A number of Members of Congress from Texas were very aggressive in the successful effort to restore the funds.

I argued that it would be inexcusable for us today, or at any future time, to start down the road to a second rate air force and an inadequate national defense program. It was stated that the defeat of the airplane request would be a straw in the wind which would lead to dangerous international consequences. I pointed out that the army appropriations bill contained savings in funds to the extent of $475,000,000 and that the expenditure of the additional $40,000,000 provided in my amendment for army airplanes would not seriously interfere with the economy program.

Without my amendment there were already sufficient funds in the bill to provide 561 airplanes. With the amendment the bill provides for 749 aircraft of the latest type, the planes to come off the assembly line within two years.

Funds were not reduced for the National Guard, the ROTC units in high schools and colleges, and Reserve Officer training otherwise. No cut was made in funds required for the important work of research and development. The bill reduced War Department civilian personnel by 74,600 employees and officer personnel by 18,000, it

Capitol Hill Hears Earnest Request

Senate Chaplain Marshall Offers Challenging Prayer

By BAUKHAGE
News Analyst and Commentator.

WNU Service, 1616 Eye Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON — Many words spoken beneath the high-arched dome of the capitol become first page news. But seldom quoted are the words which appear beginning with the third paragraph of the first page of the Congressional Record. However twice recently they were quoted — a nd widely. They were preceded by two first paragraphs which for the past 10 years have varied only as to the proper names and hour mentioned therein:—

Baukhage

"The senate met at 11 o'clock a. m. on the expiration of the recess."

"The chaplain, Rev. Peter Marshall, D. D., offered the following prayer:—

"Then came 'paragraph three,' including the part of the prayer offered for that day that appealed to me:—

"Forbid it, Lord, that we should walk through thy beautiful world with unseeing eyes. Forgive us, our Father, for taking our good things for granted, so that we are in danger of losing the fine art of appreciation. With such dire need in every other part of the world, make us so grateful for the bounties we enjoy that we shall try, by Thy help, to deserve them more. Where we are wrong, make us willing to change, and where we are right, make us easy to live with."

I repeated that last paragraph on my broadcast because one of my associates had called it to my attention that morning. Since then I have been getting letters from all over the country asking for copies of that prayer. Earlier (though I had not noticed the items) Time magazine had carried a story about Chaplain Marshall, and Newsweek magazine had quoted part of another prayer:

"Help us to do our very best this day and be content with today's troubles, so that we shall not borrow the troubles of tomorrow. Save us from the sin of worrying, lest stomach ulcers be the badge of our lack of faith. Amen."

I think my choice is a fairer sample of Marshalliana. But both selections reveal one characteristic of the doctor's utterances, which perhaps is a reason for his popularity. He is able to reduce religion to the simplest and most understandable terms—his similes (like those of his Teacher) are taken out of our daily life.

Peter Marshall is an interesting person as well as a popular preacher.

Immigrant Boy Fulfills Ambition

Dr. Marshall's personal history is reminiscent of early Horatio Alger. He came to this country from a foreign land because he believed America was the land of opportunity. But his story is unique in this: He came, not with the dream of "making his fortune," but to fulfill an ambition for neither wealth nor power, but simply to get a theological education.

He was born in Coatsville in Lanarkshire, Scotland. His father died when he was little, and Marshall was raised by his mother and stepfather, who sent him to public school and later to a technical institution. On graduation, he took a position in a tube-manufacturing concern.

But he wanted to be a minister, and he decided it would be easier to obtain an education for this calling in the United States. He came to this country in his early twenties; found work in New Jersey, but soon had an opportunity to go to Alabama where he joined the business department of the Birmingham News. With the help of some friends who became interested in this pleasant Scottish boy with the intriguing burr and the inspired goal, he was able to enter Columbia Theological seminary, from which he was graduated in 1931.

He held two pastorates in Georgia, and made the acquaintance of the young lady who is now his wife. In 1937, he was called to the historic "Church of the Presidents" in Washington, a church which has numbered among its worshippers John Quincy Adams, Andrew Jackson, William Henry Harrison, James Buchanan, Andrew Johnson, Millard Fillmore, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and Abraham Lincoln, whose pew, left as it was when he used it, is a shrine for tourists.

Dr. Marshall was elected chaplain of the senate on January 4 of this year, and it might be well to record a bit of recent history as a background to his selection.

Dr. Ze Barney Phillips was chaplain of the senate for 15 years—from 1927 to 1942. When he died, many senators had favorite candidates for his job. They "auditioned" them, just like radio announcers—although the ministers didn't know they were being auditioned, and no senator would admit such a thing.

From among the candidates, Dr. Frederick Brown Harris, Methodist, emerged victorious, gossips say, because he delivered the shortest prayer. Later on Dr. Harris' prayers became longer, a common phenomenon among senate chaplains according to some of the old timers in congress. What they don't add is that in the speech-making body in the country, the affliction may be contagious.

Traditionally, filling of the chaplain's post is a majority party prerogative, and so when the Republican 80th congress convened, after disposing of the question of Senator Bilbo's qualifications, Senator Wherry arose to offer a resolution that Dr. Marshall be elected chaplain of the senate.

But Wherry's proposal touched off an argument occupying nine close-typed columns in the Congressional Record. (No chaplain would dare deliver a sermon THAT long.)

Democratic Sen. Alben Barkley maintained that Dr. Harris had done a fine job and should be retained. He added that politics should not be permitted to touch the office of senate chaplain. He opined that Republicans were "offering a very poor example for the time when the Democrats resume control of the body two years from now." (1948—?)

Republican Senator Bridges was shocked at the implication that politics might be involved. Why, he protested, he didn't even know Dr. Marshall's politics.

But the Republicans had their majority, Dr. Marshall got the job, and as far as I can learn, nobody has regretted the choice.

There are some Washingtonians who have read and listened to this Scottish boy whom America has awarded for achievement in a calling in which there are often few earthly awards, who feel that his presence in the Lincoln church is quite as "appropriate" as his appointment as chaplain of the senate. They feel that if the ghost of the Great Emancipator ever slips into his old pew of a Sunday, he smiles in approval of the simple, earthy, truisms, not too unlike his own, which come down from one pulpit in that friendly Scottish burr, with the same terse impact with which they echo from the rostrum of the senate.

SLIM CHANGE

WASHINGTON — Chances of a depression in the near future appear slim, in the opinion of a committee of congressmen studying the nation's economy.

In its report, the joint senate-house economic committee disclosed that most of the 583 persons who answered a survey expect a "mild recession" this fall. The committee concluded, however, that "answers to the economic questions do not give any real support to the theory that we are nearing a depression."

The survey showed "general agreement" that prices of most types of goods will fall and wage rates will rise between now and January 1, the report pointed out. Businessmen are unduly pessimistic about other people's trade prospects while encouraged about their own, it added.

Hearings on the nation's economic future will be commenced next week by the committee, which is headed by Sen. Robert A. Taft (Rep., Ohio). Taft said the committee wants to examine businessmen, economists, labor leaders, farm leaders, industrialists and contrac-

THREE YEARS AFTER DESTRUCTION . . . It has been just three years since American and Allied troops stormed the beaches of Normandy D-Day to begin the invasion of Europe. Streets like this one in Caen, France, raged with bullets and mortar shells, and it would have been impossible then for a little girl to walk along the sidewalk carrying bread for the family's dinner. But now the war looks far away.

NEWS REVIEW

Shipping Crisis Impends; Predict High Feed Prices

Fears of a minor crisis in railway shipping in mid-July have been expressed by federal transportation experts in view of an apparent slowdown in freight car construction.

Contributing factors are mounting industrial production coupled with increasingly heavy wheat export movements, and officials predict that the "minor crisis" could swiftly develop into a major transportation block unless steps are taken to ease the traffic slowdown or prevent it from occurring.

With fate of the now financially embarrassed Office of Defense Transportation still undecided, the Interstate Commerce commission has been requested to assume full responsibility for continuing orders requiring full loading of boxcars in the event that congress does not extend the life of ODT beyond its June 30 expiration date.

Meantime, ODT has sent investigators to freight car building companies to probe reports that allocated steel tonnages have not gone entirely into the 10,000-a-month car construction program.

Reports for the first half of May indicated that only 1,751 freight cars were built, 81 short of the number constructed during the corresponding period in April.

Explanation offered by the car builders is that inadequate steel supplies and strikes within the industry have been responsible for the grave decline in freight car construction. That view, however, is discounted by federal officials who point out that the government forced the steel industry to provide the necessary 290,000 tons of steel for the 10,000-a-month goal.

FEED PRICES:
Prospects for the 1947 feed crops will be an important influence on feed prices, according to a department of agriculture report.

The very strong foreign demand for grain is expected to continue to support prices through 1947 and into 1948; although if production of feed is as large as in recent years, feed prices probably will decline, at least seasonally, in the last half of 1947.

Corn prices this summer, the report predicted, will average higher than the June, 1946, ceilings, but lower than in the summer of 1946 after price controls lapsed.

The department's survey went on to reveal that reports in early May indicated that approximately 832 million bushels of 1946 corn would be marketed this season. That figure would be 50 per cent greater than the 1938-42 average and 14 per cent above the previous record sales from the 1944 crop. Farm sales of other feed grains from 1946 crops also ran generally larger.

SWINGBACK:
Braden Quits

Spruille Braden, longtime advocate of and principal force behind this country's hard-handed attitude toward Fascist-inclined Argentina, has resigned as assistant secretary of state in charge of Latin-American affairs.

To succeed him in that post, President Truman was expected to nominate Norman Armour of New Jersey, top-flight career diplomat. Armour previously served as American envoy in the Argentine and is well known and liked there. Latin-American reaction to his appointment was expected to be highly favorable.

Acceptance of Braden's resignation by President Truman was generally regarded as a strong implication that the United States is ready to swing back to a policy of appeasement in Latin America. It was anticipated that the changed attitude would take the form of "just a little appeasement" of Latin-American Fascist dictators, particularly Juan D. Peron, president of Argentina.

Braden, long a foe of Peron and his methods, told Mr. Truman in a letter that personal responsibilities compelled him to return to private business.

Departure of Braden from the state department followed closely on the heels of his being overruled by the administration on two basic issues in inter-American relations: Supplying of arms to Latin-American nations and formation of a military alliance with other republics in the western hemisphere.

It was anticipated that the changed attitude would take the form of "just a little appeasement" of Latin-American Fascist dictators, particularly Juan D. Peron, president of Argentina.

Braden, long a foe of Peron and his methods, told Mr. Truman in a letter that personal responsibilities compelled him to return to private business.

Departure of Braden from the state department followed closely on the heels of his being overruled by the administration on two basic issues in inter-American relations: Supplying of arms to Latin-American nations and formation of a military alliance with other republics in the western hemisphere.

Latin-American reaction to his appointment was expected to be highly favorable.

Acceptance of Braden's resignation by President Truman was generally regarded as a strong implication that the United States is ready to swing back to a policy of appeasement in Latin America.

It was anticipated that the changed attitude would take the form of "just a little appeasement" of Latin-American Fascist dictators, particularly Juan D. Peron, president of Argentina.

East, Too, Boasts Its Parks—Four Great Wilderness Areas

WNU Features.

When national parks are mentioned, one thinks instinctively of the Far West—the Rocky mountains, the High Sierras, the southwestern deserts. Everyone has heard of Yellowstone park, with its geysers and boiling springs, Yosemite valley, with its incomparable waterfalls and stupendous cliffs. The smallest schoolboy can describe the titanic gorge known as Grand canyon. To many people, however, it may be a revelation to learn that the eastern half of the United States contains four great wilderness parks comparable in interest with the national parks in the West.

In North Carolina and Tennessee is located Great Smoky Mountains National park, 19 miles wide and 54 miles long. Shenandoah National park, with its famous Skyline drive, is in Virginia. Acadia National park in Maine and on an island in Lake Superior, not far from the Canadian shore but included in the territory of the State of Michigan, is Isle Royale National park.

The eastern parks present a sharp contrast to the parks of the West. In the West the mountains are bald and bold, the outlines severe and rugged. In the eastern parks the mountains are older, worn down by eons of erosive forces, with contours smoother and gentler, although by no means lacking in crags and cliffs. In the West the giant peaks pierce heights where trees no longer grow, while in the East the lush forests sweep over the highest summits. In the West one may find icy glaciers and snowfields in July, or at lower altitudes brave shimmering deserts under canopies of azure sky, but the East will be carpeted in green while overhead there will be lazy, cumulus clouds.

National Parks Seventh In a Series

ISLE ROYALE National park, long a haunt of moose and caribou known only to fishermen and to the Indians of the Great Lakes region, is a real wilderness. There are no motor roads on the island, and one must travel on foot, by horse or boat. Actually an archipelago consisting of one large island and nearly 200 small islands, it is a fisherman's and boatman's paradise. The islands are densely wooded and contain many rare varieties of plants and ferns. To reach the park one takes a boat from Houghton, Mich., a journey of several hours across Lake Superior, or from Grand Marais, Minn.

ROCK HARBOR lodge, on Isle Royale, is open from June 15 to September 15. There are no overnight accommodations in Acadia National park, but the Publicity Office, Bar Harbor, Me., will recommend hotels and lodging houses in the many villages on Mount Desert Island. Likewise the Chamber of Commerce at Gatlinburg, Tenn., will furnish a list of hotels and tourist camps in the small towns bordering Great Smoky Mountains National park. Along the Skyline drive in Shenandoah National park from May to November hotels and cottages are operated. In all four of these wilderness parks, National Park service maintains free campsites, which may be used by all who bring their own equipment. And in all four parks one will find the familiar ranger-naturalists waiting and eager to answer all questions.

NORTHEASTWARD from the Great Smokies in Virginia lies Shenandoah National park, which includes a long section of the Blue Ridge mountains. To make this area accessible to visitors, a highway has been built along the crest of the mountains for the entire length of the park. This highway is known as Skyline drive and from it one may obtain breath-taking views of the fertile farmlands of Shenandoah valley and the Appalachian ranges to the west and of rolling foothills and the Piedmont plateau to the east.

The two parks have much in common. In the spring and early summer there is a succession of beautiful flowering plants and shrubs, such as dogwood, flame azalea, mountain laurel and rhododendron. In the fall the foliage is splashed with brilliant colors. There is good trout fishing in both parks and many miles of foot trails to attract those who like to hike.

ACADIA NATIONAL park covers a large portion of Mount Desert Island off the rocky coast of Maine and is connected with the mainland by a bridge and a causeway. Part of the park lies also on the mainland and on nearby Isle au Haut. Here the mountains rise abruptly from the sea, and one may ride or hike through the magnificent northern woods or bask in the sun while watching the ships far out on the blue Atlantic. Mount Desert Island is dotted with quaint fishing and resort villages and there are sea bathing, fishing, and boating.

Indian Lockout Rebuilt as Monument

FORT SILL, OKLA.—Intended as another monument to the Old West, a blockhouse used during the last century as a warning station at Fort Sill, which survived the Indian wars but was damaged by an artillery shell in the last war, is being rebuilt.

With its commanding view for 80 miles across the plains of southwestern Oklahoma, the blockhouse was used to alert Fort Sill to marauding Indian bands.

The fort received a special commendation by Gen. William T. Sherman of Civil war fame. Sherman once paid a visit to the fort and his party was spotted while it was still 30 miles away.

After surviving the hectic days of the Old West, the blockhouse was damaged when it was struck by a stray shell during maneuvers in 1942.

THE FICTION CORNER PERFECT STRANGER By JACK MOSHER

THE first thing Celia Brandon noticed about him was the way he sat. As if, she thought, studying the man at the corner table across the top of her menu, he had been propped up in his chair and was likely, at any minute, to go sliding off on the floor.

It was as if every word he spoke was scraped from the walls of his stomach, left some mark.

"Does he come in often?" "Yes-a, Miss," said her waiter. "Every night this-a week, he come. But he does not eat. He just-a sits and sits."

Celia examined her find more closely. Saw that his skin was stretched altogether too tightly across his high cheekbones for him to be in good health.

And his hair was greying much too rapidly, and his clothes were much too shabby for Garibaldi's, which was on 52nd just around the corner from the theatre district—a place where only the famous could afford to be shabby and where the really shabby rarely came.

"Perhaps," she said, "he hasn't the price of a meal."

"Then why does he come?" The waiter's attitude, Celia felt, was a coldly commercial one. The way most folks with something to sell looked upon those who had no money to buy. And determined to get the waiter in his place, she said, "I thought his face was familiar. Yes, of course! It's Freddy Malone. . . Tell him," she said, "that I'd like him to join me."

"Yes-a, Miss!" For a moment after the waiter had delivered this invitation uncertainty marked the man's lean features. There was a frightened expression in his deep-set eyes as they met hers. But when Celia countered with just the right degree of warmth in her own—the degree one would extend to a man friend not seen in many years yet warmly remembered—he rose and came toward her table.

He walked unsteadily and she wondered if he might be intoxicated. If that explained his propped-up appearance of a moment ago. Then he was alongside, bowing just a little from the waist, and she was saying, "It's so good to see you again, Fred."

"Yes, isn't it," he said. "Thanks for asking me over." His tones made her feel that he was hungry. It was as if every word he spoke was scraped from the walls of his stomach, left some mark. And now that he was closer she could not mistake the suffering which lined his face. It was the kind that comes to those who find themselves alone in the world's largest city when dark closes in.

More than food, she felt certain, was needed here. He needed good cheer. Someone to talk with. To make the joke with. To cry with. Someone who would supply the things people needed so badly here in New York during the long lonesome months of waiting for a break that sometimes never came.

"How about a coke?" she said. "A pepper-upper, as they say." He turned to the waiter, chuckling miraculously.

"A pepper-upper," he ordered, "for the lady." Then, when the waiter had gone off and leaning closer across the white tablecloth, "Look! It's nice of you. Having me like this, I mean. But I can't accept."

"Forget it," Celia said, trying her utmost to spare him. "I don't know about you, but I'm hungry. Let's concentrate on dinner."

"Yes, of course. The dinner." "How about some sea food?"

"Not for me." He made a wry face. "I've just come from there. Maybe you took notice of my roll." "I wondered what it was."

"IT'S THE genuine article," he assured her. "A Clyde-Mallory Line freighter just brought me back from the Far East. . . You see," he hurried on as if he had just so much time in which to tell it. "I struck it tough in Singapore. Went out there to work for a big oil company. It wasn't so big, because it folded a few weeks after I arrived. I was on the beach three months, broke to the wide, before I got this chance to work my way home."

"Forget that now," Celia said, judging from his tones that every word must be an effort for him. "This Spaghetti Italiane sounds mighty good to me."

"But I can't forget," he insisted. "And I think you should hear me out. Have you ever," he demanded, while Celia could find not a word with which to check him, "known what it is to be hungry, to starve?"

"Did you ever go for days without nothing but what black servants hand out at kitchen doors? Do you know what it feels like to be. . . . " "I can well imagine," Celia interrupted, more firmly this time. "I've heard New York is no different than Singapore if it comes to that. But let's get on with ordering now, eh?"

"Yes, of course. Ordering." He sounded the least bit let down. As if he were offended by her apparent lack of interest in his story.

But he bucked up as the meal progressed from soup through Spaghetti Italiane with meat sauce, as only Garibaldi's can make it, to dessert. He grew quite genial and mellow, in fact.

"I must see more of you," he said. "You do me good." "We do each other good, you mean."

"THAT'S IT!" He was an enthusiastic as a school boy attending his first grown-up date. "I could get a job in Mexico. There's a fellow—"

"But why not try here in New York?"

"In an office?"

"Not necessarily."

"Then what?"

"Had you ever thought of acting?" Celia said as the waiter returned with a small silver tray containing a half dollar and three thin dimes. "You know what they say? If you can't make a go of anything else you're sure to click on the stage. And it seems to me," she added, making a fine show of waving the waiter and the eighty cents away, "that with the experience you've had knocking around the world you could put a lot of punch into play-acting."

He smiled broadly. "Maybe you're right. In fact, I know you're right."

"What do you mean?"

"Simply," he told her, "that I AM stage. I've just been putting on an act here. Rehearsing for my new play. . . I need a girl to play opposite me. She's rich as all get out. Money doesn't mean a thing to her. . . That's exactly the kind of girl you are in real life. So how about coming around in the morning to sign a contract? I'm Noel Howard."

"Noel Howard?" Celia didn't spare the name mentioned with awe around casting offices where she had spent months trying to get a small part in his new production—in any production. "Then, listen you!" she flung at him. "How about buying me another dinner right now? I couldn't eat a bit of that one for thinking I'd spent my last five dollars. . . ."

"YOU"

What to Do With An Inferior Complex

You may think that you alone are in possession of an inferiority complex, but nine out of ten persons also have one.

Probably most inferiority complexes start in babyhood. There you were, small and weak and helpless and inarticulate, and you looked up. Above you, you saw a creature towering, your mother or father, strong, self-reliant, able, while you were so weak and dependent. Right then and there you acquired the beginning of an inferiority complex, and as you grew older, your complex became stronger.

Some psychologists, rather than see in the inferiority complex a personality handicap, actually look upon one as a good thing. They have, indeed, dubbed it the "golden complex," because as one of their number explains, "A personality complex is the spark that disturbs the cloud."

What he meant was that our personality complex makes us conscious of our shortcomings, causes us to set up resolutions to improve, to compensate for our inadequacies, and as we develop, we develop our mental and physical strengths. We really become somebody because of our complexes, don't you see?

What should you do right away with yours? Analyze to see where it started and when. And then go about getting rid of it for good.

Texas Editors Eat Turkey Steaks

AMARILLO, TEXAS, June 19.—Texas Editors in annual convention in this Panhandle City lunched here today on turkey steaks, a new taste treat, which is in the process of development in order to make turkey a year round instead of a seasonal delicacy. The editors, members of the Texas Press Association and the Texas Newspaper Publishers Association were guests at a luncheon at the Amarillo hotel.

Arrangements for the turkey steak luncheon were made by Ralph E. Janes, president of the National Turkey Federation, and C. S. Pryor, manager of the Amarillo Hotel. Shown above is Mrs. Oswald Wolf of the Alvin East Produce Co., of Austin, who processed the steaks.

Turkey steaks are boneless and there is no waste. The steak was developed by Texas A. & M. College, the Luling Foundation, and officers of the National and Texas turkey federations.

From The Top of Lone Wolf Mountain

By J. W. King, Sr.

The mountain columnist has been so busy recently trying to get lined up to build a home he has not had time to go to the country at all. You know it takes quite a bit of doing to get ready to build, especially when you do not have much money to put into it. We promised our wife 27 years ago that we would provide a place for her to live but doggone if it didn't look like we were going to fail to keep our promise, come July 1.

After much talk and planning we decided to build a little home. Even though the loan company will own a part of it for several years we are glad we decided to build. Maybe our friends will continue to patronize our paper enough that we can eventually call it ours. We thought for a while we would have to move to the teacherage at Bauman but our carpenter promises us he will have our home completed in time for us to move into July 1. That is a great relief to us because, to tell you the truth, we were a little afraid to move out there. Mr. Jess Lee, people tell us, is a very good neighbor, but— Seriously, we would enjoy living in the country if it were not so inconvenient to our work. Crops seem to be doing well, the few we have seen recently. Most of them are clean and growing. Wheat is just now getting ripe enough to harvest. Only a few fields have already been harvested.

W. F. Altman of Arlington spent Saturday night in the T. R. Bennett home.

RIDES WITH THE RECKLESS

One-fourth of all fatal accidents on the highways of our country and in the streets of our cities and towns are caused by speed. Reckless drivers—disregarding all the laws of traffic safety and common sense, urging onward automobiles catapulted by the power of a hundred horses—these were the prime killers in 1946.

Last year 33,500 persons—drivers, riders and pedestrians—died in automobile accidents. That's about one death every fifteen minutes. More than a million were injured, many of them maimed or crippled for life. This year the toll will be even greater, approaching an all-time high of 40,000 deaths—unless you, Mr. and Mrs. Driver, call off this daily rendezvous with Death.

You can do your part to help stop this highway slaughter by personally striving for an accident-free record. Drive carefully at all times. Be considerate of other drivers and pedestrians. Gauge your speed to highway conditions and traffic requirements.

Don't let Death hang over your shoulder and point the way to the morgue. Drive safely—and live!

Our Best

For Your Best

This spring there's a flood of gay, light-hearted clothes—Palm Beach, Gaberdine, Linens, and other fabrics that are so easy to wrinkle and hard to clean—and the just won't look right unless they are cleaned and pressed right.

We specialize in painstakingly removing stains and spots from these garments and restoring the bright freshness of fabrics that "first caught your eye". And in pressing we carefully smooth out the wrinkles and puckers—restore the smooth, pliable resilience of the fabric.

Call on us now! You'll find that you look your best—after we've done our best on your best summer clothes.

Only one-fourth the schools in Texas offer some form of safety and driver education, Alderson said. Yet, traffic fatalities for persons between the ages of 16 and 25 are nine times as high as for older drivers," he said. Safety education courses may be an effective method of saving these young lives—the "cream of the crop," Alderson declared.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. I am an honorably discharged World War 2 veteran, and would like to know of what benefit is a guaranteed loan if I purchase a home under the
G. I. Bill?

A. The guaranty provides or increases the security you have to offer for a loan by the amount of the guaranty; it tends to induce the lender to lend more nearly the full purchase price of the property and to give you a better rate of interest, and finally 4 percent of the amount guaranteed is paid to the lender by VA and is an outright gift to you.

Q. My wife and I plan to purchase a $9,000 home. We are both World War 2 veterans.
Can we acquire the property jointly and so increase the amount which may be guaranteed?

A. Yes, you may acquire the property jointly, but the maximum guaranty may not exceed 50 percent of the loan.

Q. I have a G. I. loan on my home and would like to know if I can have the loan extended?

A. Yes, you can have the loan extended if the lender is willing to give you more time, but the extension must provide for complete payment of the loan within the 25-year maximum period provided by law.

Q. What is the largest amount I can borrow under the G. I. Bill and still have the loan guaranteed?

A. There is no limit on the amount which can be borrowed under the G. I. Bill. The limitation by law is on the size of the government guaranty and not upon the size of the loan.

Your Electric Refrigerator GIVES YOU...

1. Constant Food Protection

Your electric refrigerator is waging a continuous war against food waste in your home by providing constant temperatures of forty degrees and below—the food safety zone.

2. Economical Operation

Electric refrigerators have long enjoyed an enviable record of economical operation. Operating costs of new electric refrigerators now making their appearance in ever-increasing numbers average well under one dollar a month.

3. Dependable Service

More than half the electric refrigerators now in use are eight or more years old. Many electric refrigerator owners have refrigerators that have never failed during their years of dependable day-and-night service.

HELPFUL HINTS FOR BETTER REFRIGERATION

- Don't place hot foods in your refrigerator. Let them cool first.
- Don't open the refrigerator door more often than necessary.
- Defrost frequently, at least once a week. Thick frost lowers efficiency.
- Leave space between refrigerator and wall to allow air to circulate.

Improved Uniform International SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE TRAGIC END OF A NATION

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 25:1-12. MEMORY SELECTION—Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Proverbs 14:34.

The end of the road! Down, down, down went Judah in its sinful refusal to keep God's Word, and ultimately came the final day of reckoning. It always does! The catastrophe which had long been approaching had arrived at last.

The fall of a capital city, which carries with it the empire, is a world-shaking event. The fall of Rome shattered the world for a thousand years. The fall of Berlin and Tokyo are within the memory of all of us, and the results are seen in a disordered world.

The destruction of Jerusalem, which our lesson presents, was even more serious for it was not only a national tragedy, but also one with deep religious significance.

The wicked king Jehoiakim was succeeded by his son Jehoiachin, a mere boy who reigned only three months. He gave way to Nebuchadnezzar, who appointed as his successor his uncle Zedekiah.

It is in the verses just preceding our lesson that we learn that Zedekiah turned against Babylon in an act of

I. Rebellion (v. 1). Zedekiah ignored his oath of allegiance (II Chron. 36:13), for which he was condemned by Ezekiel as a traitor (Ezek. 17:13-18). Zedekiah has well been called the vanishing point in a diminishing line of kings. It was an evil thing he did (II Kings 24:19), and one which showed his conceit, vanity and rashness.

True it was that he only followed what he had learned from his predecessors, but that is never a good excuse for a man foolishly to turn against God's will.

Observe that God was not just a disinterested spectator, and yet he had come to the place where he let Judah go down to its own awful doom. The worst thing that can happen to a man or a nation is to be left alone by God!

Zedekiah's act of folly quickly brought

II. Retribution (vv. 2-10). Jeremiah urged Zedekiah to surrender (see Jer. 37, 38) in order to save Jerusalem and himself, but he refused, and the city was besieged.

The king's refusal to hear God's prophet and his turning to Egypt for help speak to us of the manner in which unrepentant sinners reject God's mercy and then seek help at the hopeless cisterns of this world (Jer. 2:13).

The king tried to flee, but was taken captive. There came the siege of Jerusalem. For one and one-half years the enemy gradually closed in, while famine and distress grew apace in the city. Jeremiah went through this entire period sharing his people's trouble. The book of Lamentations is the record of this eyewitness.

Sin does its terrible work. Even as it can take a great city and turn it into a plague spot marked by cruelty, suffering and death, even so it can bring forth its inevitable and unspeakable results in the life of the individual who persists in resisting the voice of God.

Note also that the sin of Zedekiah brought quick judgment, not only on himself, but upon his innocent children (v. 7), and on many in the besieged city who were equally guilty of wrongdoing. It is again a picture of what sin does today in the homes and communities of our nation.

III. Removal (vv. 11, 12). The fall of Jerusalem prepared the way for the closing scene of the immediate history of the nation, as the people went into captivity. It also ended for the time being the history of the city that had once so proudly held a position of privilege and power, but was now brought down by its sin and rebellion against God.

We say rightly that history repeats itself. We see that any nation that lifts itself up in pride and forgets God will inevitably perish. We ask ourselves where our beloved country stands. As we consider its debauchery and drunkenness, its disregard of moral standards, its indifference to the things of God, we feel that instead of pointing a finger of scorn at Judah, we ought to be on our faces before God in penitence and shame.

Let us not assume that we hold a place of favor with God, which exempts us from the certainty of judgment. Israel was his chosen, and they still are, for his promises of ultimate blessing to them have never been withdrawn. But their sin brought certain punishment, and the same is true today not only of the nation but of the individual.

The Sunday school lessons will take up the history of Israel again at this point in April, 1948, when we consider the captivity and the partial return of the people to their land.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS On stormy days confusion is greatly diminished when looking for rubbers if mates are attached with snap clothespins which are labeled with the names of the owners.

Use an electric fan to dry your liquid stockings. While smoothing the film on your legs, let the direct breezes from a fan speed drying.

It is time to change your mind if you're one of those who think all furniture in your best room should match piece for piece. The smartest and most comfortable rooms we've seen were rooms with mixed furniture — mixed with taste. You need not have all "period pieces" or all modern to get a good effect. Blend and dark pieces go together very well and you may, for example, have a practical, functional table next to your old wing chair.

Grind small pieces of toilet soap in a food grinder for use in your dish pan. It makes lots of suds and is easy on your hands too.

If you sew the buttonholes of coat sweaters together before washing, they will not stretch.

An effective method for cleaning copper, brass or pewter is making a paste of equal parts of salt, flour and vinegar. Apply the paste, let stand for an hour, rub off, wash with water, and polish.

A box of stationery with a three-cent stamp on each envelope makes a nice gift for a friend in the hospital.

After you have washed your sweater, press it when it is almost dry. Lay it smoothly on the ironing board, placing a cloth over it. Use a warm iron and press lightly, then allow sweater to lie flat on a towel to finish drying.

WIFE'S A 'SONG'

Strange Town of Vetville Planned for Disabled G.I.s

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Life should be "a song" for hundreds of disabled war veterans if plans of Harry Revel, popular song writer, materialize.

His plan, which has received the enthusiastic backing of servicemen, civic officials and business leaders, embraces the founding of a town of Vetville solely for disabled veterans.

It would be a strange town, edged by the ordinary concepts of city planning:

A town of houses with extra wide doorways to accommodate wheel chairs, of sidewalks and ramps instead of curbs, of one story buildings with no steps.

A town with modern factories providing jobs that crippled fighting men can do; with back yard workshops; with land for farming; with its own civic center, hospital, open air theater, motion picture house, swimming pool, schools and churches.

A town in which a thousand handicapped ex-G.I.s for $5,000 each can have their own homes and raise their families, living their lives under the most favorable circumstances.

The inspiration for the unique town came to Revel while he was entertaining servicemen during and since the war. With a 10 by 15 foot scale model, he has been able to give others an accurate picture of the proposed city.

The model shows eight houses to the block. Back yards open into a central recreation area. Public buildings are on a wide main street running through the center of the town.

Revel will endeavor to raise money for the project through public gifts and benefit shows. Both fund raising enterprises and actual construction of the village will be in the hands of a committee comprised of civic, religious and screen personalities.

Hearty endorsement of the project has come from Veterans' Administrator Omar Bradley and from veterans themselves.

Typical of the reaction of handicapped veterans was that of Ed Sweeney, an ex-marine paralyzed from the waist down, who is a patient in Birmingham Veterans' hospital in Van Nuys.

"The boys in the hospital feel that Vetville is a wonderful thing. We can be together there and work for our living."

A national bank has promised to finance veteran loans. Several corporations, including a spark plug manufacturer and a nail polish maker, have agreed to locate factories in Vetville.

Off We Go! AVIATION NOTES

DUAL EVENTS Bozeman, Mont., will rank as a hub of aviation June 20-22, with planes coming in from every portion of the state, surrounding states and Canada to attend two big air events.

Montana Flying Farmers and Ranchers association will hold its annual convention at Montana State college June 20-21. On the following day Northwest Airlines will inaugurate flight service to Gallatin field with special ceremonies.

The flying farmer program will include a tour of the college to inspect agricultural work now being done, a display of army planes and of light airplanes suitable for farm and ranch work, and a speaking program covering planes, hangars and the many uses being made of planes.

Launching an aerial war against coyotes after the animals had made heavy inroads on farm livestock, Loren McDonald, H. F. Baker and Frank Tarter of Fredonia, Kas., have bagged 70 coyotes as a spare-time project. Baker, a veteran hunter, recalls his first shot from a plane, when he "missed at 10 feet." Now his marksmanship is as accurate from a plane as from the ground.

AVIATION ADVANCES

Flying has made rapid strides in northern Middlesex county, N. J., since its inception only a quarter century ago. Four new commercial airports and a sea base have been opened, most of them as a result of the postwar interest in aviation. The new fields are North Brunswick, Woodbridge, Ziegfeld and Forgate airport while the sea plane base is at Perth Amboy. Hadley airport, established in 1935, now ranks as one of the busiest in the state.

With aviation drawing many new cohorts, more than 650 persons in the county now are flying. The list includes instructors, commercial, private and student pilots. Figures show that there are approximately 130 ships at the various air bases.

An increasing number of small towns are providing airport facilities for benefit of local flying enthusiasts and visiting pilots. The need for this service is pointed out forcefully by the Slayton, Minn., Herald, in an editorial, which says in part: "The town will fall far behind the procession if it doesn't look out. A bond issue or a government grant isn't needed to fill the bill. About all that is required is a little initiative and organization."

STILL GETTING AROUND

American pilots got around during the war and they're still going places overseas. A check of foreign airlines has disclosed that flying rosters in many lands are dotted with names of former American military aviators.

Four France has 20 American pilots, co-pilots and navigators while Scandinavian Airlines system recently added 15 ex-army aviators to its roster. Linea Aeropostal Venezolana has eight American pilots and engineers. Chinese National Aviation corporation and Panagra use mixed American and foreign personnel.

'FLYING BOXCAR'

Nicknamed the "flying boxcar," the Fairchild Packet cargo plane is designed to transport heavy military cargo or airborne infantry. Scheduled for long over-ocean hops in the Pacific, the twin-engine plane has a range of 4,000 miles, cruising speed of more than 200 miles per hour and maximum cargo payload of nine tons.

STAND BACK, LADIES!

CHEYENNE, WYO.—A bill requiring women to stand five feet away from bars when drinking in public was introduced at the present session of the state legislature.

HOUSEHOLD MEMOS... by Lynn Chambers

Serve Simply; Keep Cool (See recipe below.)

Refreshing Meals

One of the biggest problems which we homemakers will be facing these warm days is that of keeping cool and at the same time serving refreshing foods to the family.

My own rules for keeping cool on these hot days include the following which you might find it helpful to adopt: Select foods which may be served chilled, or those which cook quickly; and another, choose foods that are colorful as they stimulate wilted appetites.

Never choose foods which are fussy and that take long to prepare. Mother can exert much better influence at mealtime if she appears cool and collected, and this is possible only if she has used as many shortcuts as possible.

For your main dish select food to be either broiled or chilled. Two raw vegetables in a salad are preferred to two cooked ones if you want to keep cool. And, as for dessert, try ice cream or fresh fruit and berries, thus cutting preparation time to a minimum.

Majestic Salmon Loaf (Serves 6)

2 cups canned salmon 2 packages lime gelatin 1/4 cup vinegar 1 1/2 cups boiling water 1 1/2 cups cold water 3 tablespoons lemon juice 1 teaspoon salt 2 cups finely shredded cabbage 3 hard-cooked eggs, sliced Place flaked salmon in bottom of loaf pan or mold. Dissolve gelatin in boiling water. Add cold water, vinegar, lemon juice and salt. Pour half of the warm gelatin over the salmon and chill. When set, fill mold with alternating layers of shredded cabbage and sliced eggs. Cover with remaining gelatin, chill until set. Unmold on crisp lettuce; garnish with potato chips, sliced cucumbers and lemon.

Broiled Lamb Steaks (Serves 6)

6 shoulder lamb steaks, cut 1 inch thick 3 tablespoons olive oil 6 tablespoons lemon juice 1 minced onion 1 teaspoon salt Mix olive oil and lemon juice. Add onion and salt and marinate lamb steaks in this mixture for two hours before broiling. Preheat broiling oven. Place steaks on rack three inches from heat. Turn oven regulator on high. When one side is nicely browned, season with salt and pepper and turn. When second side is browned, season and serve immediately. Allow 8 to 10 minutes for each side.

LYNN SAYS: Here are Tips For Picnics

Fried chicken which may be eaten with the fingers is an excellent food for picnics. Wrap each piece individually in waxed paper, place light meat on one side of the basket, dark meat on the other side, and then dole it out. Meat loaf is another good main dish for picnic. It is easy to carry in the loaf pan in which it was baked.
