MONDAY MORNING

Local Group To Argue For College Site

A large Howard County delegation will be at Terminal Monday to urge the selection of a site at the intersection of IS 20 and FM 1788 (just south of the Midland-Odessa airport) for the proposed new University of Texas of the Permian Basin.

Regents of the University system will conduct a hearing in the studios of KMID-TV beginning at 9:30 a.m., and will make final determination of the college site.

Odessa interests are submitting alternate sites in Ector County.

Big Spring and Howard County spokesmen say this community supported the new upper-level college in the belief that the Terminal area would be the site, and that its location should be as centrally located as is feasible so that students from this community can be served. Howard County Junior College has been cited as one of the major "feeder" institutions for the new upper-level college.

Letters and resolutions supporting the Terminal site have been prepared by the Chamber of Commerce, the City Commission, the County Court, the Junior College Board, the School Board, among others.

Howard County spokesmen are scheduled to be Dr. W. A. Hunt, HCJC president, and R. H. Weaver, chairman of the education committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Others planning to appear at the hearing include: Mayor Arnold Marshall, City Manager Larry Crow, District Attorney Wayne Burns, County Judge Lee Porter, Joe Moss, president of the school board, Sam Anderson, superintendent of the Big Spring Independent School district, George Zachariah, Walter Stroup, and Jimmy Morehead, city commissioners; Ray Nichols, Bill Tune, Simon Terrazas and Bill Crooker, county commissioners, Tom Eastland, Chamber of Commerce manager, John Currie, Bob Dyer, Harold Davis, George McAlister, Tom Barber, Clyde Angel, Adolph Swartz, Jack Worsham, Lester Morton, K. H. McGibbon, Lt. Col. Robert T. Deming, Bob Lewis, R. W. Whipkey, Wade Choate, Dewey Ray and Jeff Brown.

AROUND-THE-WORLD NEXT MONTH AFTER VIEWING SPLASHDOWN

Nixon Will Visit Behind Iron Curtain

NEW YORK (AP) — President Nixon embarks on a round-the-world trip next month in which he will watch the Apollo 11 splashdown in the Pacific, lay foundations for a post-Vietnam Asian policy and visit behind the Iron Curtain.

The visit to Communist Romania in early August will make Nixon the first U.S. chief executive to cross the Iron Curtain since the cold war began. He also will visit five Asian nations.

A high White House official indicated there will be other visits by the President to other Communist nations in the future.

The announcement of the far-ranging trip was made in New York by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who said the President will leave Washington July 23 and return on or about Aug. 3.

Nixon was in New York Saturday for a visit to his dentist, after a trip to the St. Lawrence Seaway and Montreal, Canada, on Friday.

In addition to watching the Apollo splashdown, Ziegler said, the President will fly to the John F. Kennedy Space Center in Florida on the eve of the July 16 launching to dine with astronauts Neil Armstrong, Michael Collins and Edwin Aldrin in the crew quarters. Their flight is to be the first attempted manned lunar landing.

President Nixon will watch the splashdown eight days later from the aircraft carrier Hornet. The splashdown is scheduled July 24, about 300 miles off Johnston Island in the Pacific, after the astronauts' planned walk on the surface of the moon.

From there, the President will visit five Southeast Asia cities: Manila, the Philippines; Jakarta, Indonesia; Bangkok, Thailand; New Delhi, India; and Lahore, Pakistan.

Details of this stage of the trip were not yet ready, Ziegler said. And he did not give the President's travel plans to Romania and beyond.

Nixon will be accompanied to the Philippines and Indonesia by Secretary of State William P. Rogers. Rogers will then go on to Japan, Korea, Taiwan, Australia and New Zealand.

Mrs. Nixon will accompany the President to the Asian nations and Romania, but she will not be along for the splashdown.

The visit to Romania is at the invitation of Nikolai Ceausescu, president of the Romanian State Council. It was extended through the Romanian ambassador in Washington either at the end of February or in early March.

One high White House official, asked if the subject of the recognition of Communist China would be taken up, said the United States does not intend to make any specific proposals but added that Romania is free to discuss the subject if she wishes. He did not pursue the point.

The Soviet Union, the official said, was not consulted in advance on the Romanian visit. "We feel under no obligation," he said, "to check with the Soviet Union before making visits to sovereign countries."

"We are not visiting Romania as an anti-Soviet gesture," he continued.

"The subject of East-West relations," he said, is "a central issue to peace in our times."

The Southeast Asia trip, according to Ziegler, is intended to emphasize the President's longstanding concern for peace and progress in Asia, to explore problems and opportunities for securing and sustaining a lasting peace.

COWBOY READY TO JUMP FOR CASH
Thrills at 36th annual Big Spring Rodeo

Young Ropes Biggest Check At 36th Rodeo

By SAM BLACKBURN

Olin Young, Peralta, N.M. cowboy, walked away last night with the biggest check paid out to contestants in the 36th Annual Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo. His victory in the heavily crowded calf roping field gave his winnings for the week a sizeable boost. His check was for $642.86. Young took top honors in the calf roping with an average of 23.4 seconds.

The rodeo came to an end Saturday night before the biggest crowd of the week. Ideal weather bruought out a large throng, exceeding, by a considerable margin, the opening night gate which had been the largest up to the final night.

MEAN CRITTERS

The animals were tougher and meaner than usual Saturday and a lot of hard working riders got nothing for their effort and their entry fees but a hard jolt on the not-so-soft sand.

No exceptionally good times were scored due to the toughness of the competition and to the general cussedness of things in general.

Leaders for the show announced in the calf roping, in addition to Young, were Larry Kelly, Fort Worth, with a score of 24.4; Tooter Waites, of Uvalde, with 24.8 and Gary Ledford of Comanche, Okla., with 24.9.

To show the rugged nature of the Seiner animals, the first four calf ropers Saturday night failed to score. Before the event ended they were joined by three othrs. Best time of the night in this event was a flat 10 seconds by Skipper Duncan of San Angelo.

Jim Calvert, of Clovis, N.M., was second with 12.8 and Jack Kirkpatrick, Post, with 13.1, was third.

CHAMP RACER

Final official averages for the bareback bronc riding were relayed and were not available. Jim Moore of Balmorhea, with a score of 66 led Saturday night's field. H. B. Johnson, Midlothian, with 62 was second and Claude Groves of Lubbock, third with 60.

Connie Wilkinson, Newcastle, was champion barrel racer for the four nights. Her average was 37.4; Mildred Farris, Addington, Okla., was second with 38.05; Frances Hanson, Odessa, was third with 38.4 and Debbie Ferguson, Petersburg, fourth, with 38.59. Miss Hanson's 19.3 was the best time of Saturday night.

Championships in the saddle bronc event were delayed and could not be obtained. Jim Moore, with a score of 74, was top man Saturday night; he is from Balmorhea. Claude Groves of New Deal, was second with 63; and Guy Weeks, Abilene, third with 58.

Bussy Kaul, Hereford, was champion in the steer wrestling for the show with 18.1; Menard Windham, Lamesa, was second with 21.2 and Bill Watts, Justin, third with 24.4. Jim Gillum, Odessa, wound up fourth with 24.8.

Kaul's 9.7 Saturday night was the best of the evening in the steer wrestling event. Tom McGill, Duncan, Okla., with 12.7 was second.

Gene Lyda, Somerset, was the champion bull rider of the week with 134. Bobby Steiner, Austin, was second with 130; John Conn, Wills Point, was third with 114 and Dan Thomas, fourth with 66.

Last night's best bull rider was Steiner with a neat 69 tally. Dan Thomas, whose home is in Hereford was second with 65 and Lyda third with 62.

Top Health Job Nod Goes To Egeberg

NEW YORK (AP) — President Nixon announced Saturday he will appoint Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, dean of the University of Southern California Medical School, to the nation's top health post for which Nixon rejected Dr. John H. Knowles.

Knowles' appointment had been opposed by the American Medical Association and Sen. Everett R. Dirksen, R-Ill. Like Knowles, Egeberg, 65, has criticized AMA policies. But the doctors' organization apparently did not raise objections to Egeberg's appointment.

When Ziegler was asked if Egeberg had been cleared with Dirksen, he replied only that Egeberg is a Democrat.

Robert H. Finch, secretary of health, education and welfare, appeared with Egeberg at a Washington news conference. Finch said Egeberg had not been cleared by the AMA, nor had he asked clearance from anyone on Capitol Hill.

Dirksen, the Senate minority leader, told a reporter he knew nothing of Egeberg and had not been contacted by the AMA about him.

The AMA has denied having an active role in blocking Knowles, the director of Massachusetts General Hospital whose appointment to the job had seemed almost certain last Tuesday. Finch backed Knowles for the appointment.

Egeberg was personal physician and aide-de-camp to Gen. Douglas MacArthur from 1944 to 1945. After World War II he became chief medical officer at the Los Angeles Veterans Administration Hospital and 10 years later moved to the Los Angeles County General Hospital.

In 1958 he was named medical director of Los Angeles County's department of charities. He recently served eight years as chairman of the California State Board of Health, and he has served in medical advisory posts for the last three presidents.

In 1961 he protested the AMA's opposition to the Forand bill, forerunner of medicare. He denied the AMA's contention that all who needed medical care were getting it.

Anti-Rockefeller Protests Expected

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's military government celebrated its third anniversary Saturday, while hundreds of police patrolled the capital to prevent fresh student and labor protests against government policies and Nelson A. Rockefeller's visit.

Rockefeller, governor of New York, will fly here Sunday on the first stop of his fourth and last fact-finding trip to Latin America for President Nixon. He will go later to Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Jamaica, Guyana and Barbados.

A Communist labor leader was killed and a policeman seriously wounded Friday night in one of a dozen or more demonstrations staged by leftist student and worker groups in Buenos Aires and three interior cities.

The death of Emilio Mariano Jauregui, former secretary-general of the Argentine Journalists Union, in a Buenos Aires demonstration raised to 21 the number of persons killed in a wave of antigovernment protests which have rocked this nation of 23 million since May 15.

Police said Jauregui, 28, was killed in one of a series of demonstrations near a downtown plaza.

Jaurgeui was identified as a member of the Peking-line Young Communists Federation and, according to police, had made trips to Communist China and Vietnam.

Arab Gunners Down Plane?

By The Associated Press

Israeli and Egyptian artillery blazed across the Suez Canal Saturday.

An Egyptian communique said Arab gunners downed an Israeli plane that was directing the battle in the Qantara region.

Military spokesmen in Tel Aviv said there were no Israeli casualties in the fighting and made no mention of any plane losses.

Along the Jordan River, Israeli and Jordanian forces exchanged tank cannon and artillery fire, according to a communique from Amman.

Jordanian authorities said the Israelis started the fighting by opening fire on Arab workmen who were repairing the East Ghor Canal. The canal was damaged in an Israeli raid earlier this week.

Reviewing the . . .

Big Spring Week

. . . with Joe Pickle

Through Friday, we had averaged 103 degrees for nine straight days. We have had longer stretches of 100-plus temperatures, but seldom have we had one that was more punishing. Had it not been for the April and May wet spells that had vegetation well along, the readings would have probably been five to 10 degrees higher. As it was, the searing southwest winds were beginning to add yellow to the area's green. Crops were holding on fairly well, something of a minor miracle.

* * * *

An upshot of the heat was discomfort because humidity from recent rains reduced effectiveness of evaporative coolers, also because these coolers reduce usually in ratio to the top temperature. Another effect was to rocket water consumption. In Big Spring this doubled to run consistently above 13 million gallons a day. The CRMWD's demands jumped one and a half times.

Contract for DataMate's new quarters off the Gamco complex was let last week in the amount of $194,000, and when paving and auxiliary contracts are let, the total will substantially exceed $200,000. The computer manufacturing company will have something like 22,500 square feet for offices and assembly. Gamco will add 5,000 square feet in order to move the Perceptive Development

Won't Rehire All Strikers

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — The second of two Charleston hospitals involved in a long and bitter strike refused Saturday to rehire all of its striking employes, a demand the workers said is essential to a settlement.

The refusal came from the Charleston County Council, governing authority for the County Hospital, in a day-long session with representatives of the striking workers.

It had been hoped the session would produce a settlement similar to the one reached Friday at the larger Medical College of South Carolina Hospital, where rehiring of striking workers was one of the major issues.

Spokesmen for the two sides said another meeting will be held Monday, with telephone contacts maintained Sunday in the event of developments.

J. Mitchell Graham, chairman of the Charleston County Council, said the County Hospital could take back 35 of the striking workers immediately—at last count there were 69—and he offered to find jobs elsewhere for the others.

LIKELY TO CLASH WITH TEAM ON SCENE

Nixon's Hope Of Troops Cut In Viet

SAIGON (AP) — Some time before the end of this year, President Nixon's hope to speed the return of American soldiers from Vietnam is likely to clash with the opinion of his command team in Saigon.

This looming disagreement is clearly sensed by ranking American officials in Vietnam.

The mood is consequently a bit edgy at the sprawling headquarters of the U.S. commander, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, and the glistening new embassy of Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker.

REALISTIC

Both agree that Nixon's order to pull out 25,000 men by the end of August was realistic and politically necessary, reliable officials say. They are also willing to accept a similar decision in August when Nixon has said the situation will be reviewed.

However, no one in the upper ranks in Saigon advocates anything like the proposal of former Defense Secretary Clark M. Clifford that 100,000 men be pulled out this year and the rest of the combat troops next year.

Nixon's statement that he hoped Clifford's rate could be exceeded sent a nervous shiver through American officialdom in Saigon. The explanation that Nixon was simply expressing a hope did not soothe everyone. Neither did an embassy explanation that Nixon was possibly talking about some development in the Paris talks making troops withdrawals less hazardous.

The word being received in Saigon is that little if anything is expected from the Paris talks in the next few months. A break in a few months' time is even viewed as problematical. The Americans speak of no new proposals on their part and South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu is reported to be deferring new initiatives until after August, when the effect of the first troop pullout might be assessed.

PAINFULLY SLOW

In this light, Abrams must weigh the military situation and judge how much can be spared. He sees the improvement in South Vietnam's armed forces as spotty and painfully slow. He gets less sleep than ever before and sees his problems growing, not disminishing.

When the question of troop withdrawals was seriously put to the U.S. Command in mid-1968, Abrams told Washington that several conditions would have to be met to make it practical.

Four of these conditions were:

1. A sharp lowering in the desertion rate that has always plagued the South Vietnamese.

2. The end of political promotions for faithful but bumbling combat commanders, mainly generals.

3. Marked improvement in some regular divisions, notably the 18th and the 5th, which were hardly more than 20,000 garrison troops commanded by ineffective generals.

HAVEN'T BITTEN

Although satisfied with the original withdrawal decision, Abrams has told aides: "We haven't bitten the bullet yet."

The bullet consists of that imponderable relationship between enemy intentions and strength on the one hand and on the other the strength and confidence of the South Vietnamese forces, which must do the fighting as the Americans leave.

4. Stricter enforcement of discipline to maintain the combat strength of infantry units where manpower is drained off by empire-building, malingering and other causes such as corrupt commanders selling what amounted to draft exemptions.

There were, of course, other considerations such as the provision of air and artillery support. These four problems, however, were those that the Vietnamese themselves could do something about.

As of now, there is little evidence that much will be done about them before the end of 1969, if then. This painfully slow progress, in the minds of U.S. commanders, makes each succeeding stage of troop withdrawal ever more risky.

Team To Inspect Armored Vests

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has appointed a team of specialists to look into "all of the facts and circumstances surrounding the procurement, testing and inspection" of armored vests for soldiers in Vietnam.

Laird wrote Rep. Margaret M. Heckler, R-Mass., that he had named such a team of quality control and engineering experts and instructed the group to report back to him before July 8.

Laird acted after Mrs. Heckler claimed serious defects had been detected in large numbers of armored vests sent to Vietnam.

He Doubts GOP Will Gain Control

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Sen. Warren G. Magnuson, D-Wash., says he doubts Republicans will gain control of the U.S. Senate in next year's election, but concedes the numerical odds would seem to be in their favor.

Magnuson, arriving Friday in Salt Lake City for a reception honoring Sen. Frank Moss, D-Utah was commenting on a prediction by Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., that Republicans would gain control of the Senate.

Of the 33 Senate seats up for election next year, 25 are held by Democrats and Tower predicted that 15 of the Democratic seats are "highly vulnerable."

"Numerically, they (Republicans) have an unusually better chance than for some time," Magnuson said. "But they forget about the seats that the Democrats can pick up."

Base Defenders, Foe Swap Fire For 28th Straight Day

SAIGON (AP) — Government infantrymen began clearing a vital supply route into the besieged Special Forces camp at Ben Het Saturday. Around the base, enemy artillerymen and allied pilots carried on the brunt of the fighting, exchanging fire for the 58th straight day.

Some 1,500 South Vietnamese soldiers, airlifted 130 miles from Ban Me Thuot, relieved other battle-weary government troops at Dak To and began their push to clear the 10 miles of Route 579 leading westward to Ben Het.

No significant resistance was reported and the battle for the small, frontier outpost in the central highlands continued to be fought primarily between North Vietnamese army gunners and allied warplanes.

The gunners, firing 85-mm howitzers, mortars and recoilless rifles, sent a record 236 shells whistling into the Special Forces camp Friday, and 43 additional rounds impacted there by midmorning Saturday.

In turn, allied fighter-bomber pilots, taking advantage of a break in the monsoon weather, doubled their sorties Friday in an unsuccessful effort to muzzle the enemy bombardment.

A U.S. spokesman said American pilots mounted 48 strikes and South Vietnamese pilots flew four compared to the 26 flown through towering storm clouds Thursday.

In addition, an AC119 "Shadow" gunship circled the fort through the night providing flares and firepower. Five raids by giant B52 bombers unleashed 900 tons of explosives on enemy positions and twin-engined C7 Caribou cargo planes completed six resupply missions dropping food, water, medicine and ammunition by parachute into the outpost.

Although two battalions of South Vietnamese mobile-strike force—MIKE — troops maneuvered south and north of Ben Het, only two ground encounters were reported by patrols venturing out of the camp.

In a broadcast Saturday, the Viet Cong said Ben Het is "doomed" and predicted the "fall will have an unusually important significance."

It said destruction of Ben Het would be "a deadly blow and a humiliating failure for the United States in its plot to de-Americanize the war and to use Vietnamese to kill Vietnamese in support of U.S. neocolonialist aggression in Vietnam."

Ben Het, actually a series of three adjacent hilltop outposts, one held by U.S. artillerymen and the other two by civilian irregulars and their American advisers, is seen by U.S. military observers as a rest of the South Vietnamese army's capability.

The two American artillery batteries are the only U.S. line units involved and the relief campaign is being conducted by some 4,000 South Vietnamese troops.

An estimated 3,000 North Vietnamese regulars have been committed by the Communist command to the battle for the outpost 280 miles northeast of Saigon and six miles from the border junction of Laos, Cambodia and South Vietnam.

Car-Train Crash Victims Named

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP) — An Abernathy, Tex., woman and her two-year-old grandson died Saturday when their auto was in collision with a train at a crossing in northeast Lubbock, police said.

The victims were identified as Mrs. Louisa Olguin, 50, and her grandson, Alsamo Olivas, 2, also of Abernathy.

Police said the driver of the car, Mrs. Margarita Olivas, 30, and her other son, David, were unhurt. They are also from Abernathy.

Authorities said warning lights were in operation at the railroad crossing at the time of the accident.

Burial Place Of Ike Draws Great Crowds

ABILENE, Kan. (AP) —With the summer tourist rush in full swing, the visitors some days outnumber the population.

They're coming by the thousands to the place where former President Dwight D. Eisenhower is buried—orderly crowds of solemn, silent and respectful people of all ages from all over the United States and many foreign countries.

In the less than three months since the state funeral, more than 270,000 persons have filed past the Eisenhower crypt in the Place of Meditation Chapel on the Eisenhower Center grounds. This is by actual count on meters operated by guards.

"The rush started on April 2, the day of the funeral, and it has been growing ever since," says Dr. John Wickman, director of the Eisenhower Library and Center.

Since schools let out the crowds have been ranging from 8,000 to 10,000 on weekends and from 5,000 to 7,000 on weekdays. It is expected the total will be around 325,000 visitors by the end of the long July 4 holiday weekend.

This great influx of visitors naturally taxes the facilities of a city with a normal population of 8,000. It has created problems in traffic control, parking, eating, sleeping and catering to demands of people looking for mementos and souvenirs.

Abilene stores and shops find it nearly impossible, for example, to keep up with the demand for Eisenhower postcards. Motels fill up for miles around.

But Abilene had a lot of experience in taking care of dignitaries and large crowds while its famous son was still alive.

"They don't all come just because they happen to be with their parents," said a guard. "They show a surprising knowledge and interest in the Eisenhower story."

Looks Like Whole Zoo Out Of Bag

ST. PAUL (AP)—Not only was the cat out of the bag, but it looked like the whole zoo was loose when the Minnesota Supreme Court handed down a decision Friday.

The 12-page decision, commenting on a 335-page district court case, held that cats aren't in the same class with dogs in vicious attacks.

In the course of explaining its verdict, the court referred to "wild beasts, tigers, milch cows, horse, coyotes, wolves, chimpanzees, deer, elephants, buffalo—even bees."

It also spoke of "other animals."

Police Surprise Couple Suspects

Not everyone closes the stable door after the horse has gone. Friday night police found the door to Carlos Restaurant, 308 NW 3rd, open. When they investigated, they surprised two suspects inside, whom they promptly took into custody.

Watson Is Named To H-SU Board

ABILENE — W. Marvin Watson, former Postmaster General of the United States and now president and chief administrative officer with the Occidental International Corp., has been named a member of the Hardin-Simmons University Board of Development. "His selection to our board is an outgrowth of a visit to our campus during spring commencement," said Dr. Erwin L. Skiles, president.

Counsels MIRV Critics To Hold Their Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield counseled critics of multiple-target missile development Saturday to lay aside that issue and concentrate on defeating deployment of the Safeguard antiballistic missile system.

The Montana senator said in an interview he regards as extraordinary the 10-7 vote by which the Senate Armed Services Committee approved a $794-million ABM authorization asked by President Nixon. He said the committee almost always has approved weapons programs unanimously.

"This divided vote is highly significant of things to come in the Senate," said Mansfield, an ABM critic.

When the authorization bill reaches the debate stage in the Senate some time after July 7, Mansfield said he hopes 41 senators who have been pressing for a moratorium on the development of multiple-target missiles—MIRV—will not inject that issue.

"I think we should disassociate MIRV from this bill so we can concentrate on ABM," he said.

He said he thinks ABM opponents have a two-vote edge as matters stand. But he has said repeatedly that the Nixon administration could win if it puts on the heat.

Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen said in a separate interview he has found no reason to change his forecast of a Nixon victory on the issue.

Mansfield said he assumes the Pentagon is "acting within the law" in going ahead with the development of MIRV. This is a missile that could carry a cluster of independently targeted nuclear warheads.

The Democratic leader said he supports efforts to suspend U.S. development of this weapon—if the Russians agree to a moratorium on it—while arms limitation talks are pursued.

SUMMER CLASSES IN SPEED READING SET FOR BIG SPRING

The famous Cutler AcceleREAD method of SPEED READING created by Dr. Wade E. Cutler, a Ph.D. in psychology, will be taught here this summer in day and evening classes. The average persons reads about 200 words per minute with 60 per cent comprehension. This course guarantees its graduates will read at least 1,000 words per minute with a definite increase in comprehension. Most graduates of the course far exceed the guarantee and should end up at 2,500 words per minute with a profound improvement in comprehension. Concentration, memory and pleasure will also be greatly improved. This means a person should read books of average length in 45 minutes or less and understand, remember, and enjoy them better than ever. The course is offered by ACCELERATED EDUCATION SCHOOLS which has permanent classes in Denton, Sherman, Tyler, Longview, Amarillo, Clovis, Roswell and some 30 other cities and towns in Texas, N.M., and Okla. The course has over 10,000 successful graduates due to its common sense approach and closely supervised professional teaching staff. A series of meetings have been scheduled for those who would like more details about the course. Wins Company Honors

Travis Starr, manager of Zales Jewelers in Big Spring, received national honors at his firm's 45th annual managers meeting in Dallas. Starr won the company's Diamond Z award on the basis of outstanding achievement in diamond merchandising and fulfillment of sales goals. Starr (left) is shown receiving his award from Burley Bullock, executive vice president of the Zale store division.

DEAR ABBY: How do you tell someone (a relative) that it's time she and her husband gave a party? When this couple moved to town three years ago, they didn't know a soul. We introduced them to all of our friends, and now our friends are their friends, too.

They are attractive, charming people and well-liked by all who know them, so they are very popular, but if they don't hurry up and start inviting some of these people back, they won't be popular much longer.

Since we did sponsor them, we feel somewhat responsible for their social sins of omission. What do we do? I can hardly hold my head up.

NO TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO: It's not necessary to stick your neck out in order to hold your head up. If you "like" this couple and are seriously concerned about their threatened loss of popularity as well as the reflection on yourselves, tell the lady in a nice way that if she's planning to entertain, you'll be glad to help her. If she doesn't get the drift, well, you've done your part.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: In a few weeks I am going to become an American citizen. What is the correct thing to do on this occasion? Do you send out announcements or invitations to the ceremony? It is open to the public, but does this mean family only?

Should I have cards printed? It is such a big event for me I want to do something, but I don't know what. Can you help me? FUTURE CITIZEN

DEAR CITIZEN: Why not have a private party and invite those with whom you'd like to celebrate the occasion? Printed cards are not necessary. A telephone call or a little note will do. Congratulations.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have enjoyed your column very much. I have never written to anyone for advice before, but now I feel I should.

First let me explain that we have been happily married for 27 years, have three wonderful children and five grandchildren, so we are not kids.

Now, the problem: I would just love to sleep on satin sheets, and now I see that they are for sale and I want to buy some, but my husband says that no man would sleep on satin sheets! We have decided to let you decide whether I should buy them or not. "YES OR NO"

DEAR YES: Buy one set! If your man sleeps on them with no complaints, buy more.

• • •

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069, and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

A Phone That 'Sees'

The Model II Picturephone set is now being manufactured for the Bell System by Western Electric. Bell hopes to introduce Picturephone on a limited basis in the 1970's.

Western Electric Working On 'See-Talk' Instruments

Western Electric, supply unit for the Bell System, is working on several dozen telephone sets that can "see" — after making more than 170 million phones that simply "talk."

While still in the developmental stage, the Picturephone is moving closer to the day of "see-while-you-talk" service, said Harry Sawyer, Southwestern Bell manager.

Already, early models of the Picturephone are "outmoded." A more sophisticated Model II Picturephone is due for production.

Sawyer said Bell has replaced the conventional camera tube — used in the first models — with its own development, a silicon target tube.

Sawyer said the pick-up surface of this tube is only a half-inch square, yet it contains 800,000 separate parts, called diodes.

"It is so sensitive that this special tube can transmit a picture from an almost completely darkened room," Sawyer said. "At the same time, bright light in one part of the room will not 'burn in' one part of the tube and shorten it's life."

Such features are important, Sawyer noted, because Picturephone sets are not designed for use by television engineers in professionally-lighted studios, but rather by anyone in home or office.

Sawyer said AT&T recently began a Picturephone service trial between Westinghouse Company offices in New York and Pittsburgh. Bell System hopes to offer Picturephone service on a limited basis in the 1970's.

on the Salvation Army Advisory board and has served as its chairman; has also been on the board of the Howard County Tuberculosis Association. A member of the First Christian Church, he has served for 12 years as deacon and elder, and was board chairman for two years.

He and Mrs. Canning, residing at 2704 Apache, have a son, Barry, who will be in Goliad Junior High this fall.

JOE PICKLE

Ranked by only two men in terms of tenure at The Herald, Pickle has made his career in the city which has been his home since boyhood. He graduated from Big Spring High School and Baylor University (majoring in journalism), and started with The Herald in the summer of 1931 as a cub reporter.

He has handled every conceivable sort of news item through the years, directed the editorial staff as managing editor, and served as interim publisher 1944-46.

IN MANY PROGRAMS

He has been one of the city's top leaders in civic affairs, working as a volunteer in innumerable worthwhile programs. He has served as president of the Chamber of Commerce, of the YMCA, the Downtown Lions Club, the Howard County Fair Association, and as district chairman of the Lone Star District for the Boy Scouts.

He has served on several special task committees for the City, including the first planning and zoning board. He also has served as secretary and treasurer of the Colorado River Municipal Water District since its inception 20 years ago.

Professionally, Pickle has been president of the West Texas Press Association and the Texas Associated Press Managing Editors Association.

He is a long-time teacher and board member at the First Baptist Church. Pickle is married to the former Lucille Rix, member of a pioneer Big Spring family, and they have three sons.

GLENN COOTES

Like Canning and Pickle, Glenn Cootes got his first newspaper indoctrination at The Herald, joining this newspaper first in November, 1953. He left to operate a weekly newspaper in Ohio, and later was at Deming, N.M., and Temple before returning to The Herald in June, 1959. He has been reporter, city editor and news editor.

Cootes was born in Handley, Tex., attended public schools in Dallas, and took some college work before entering the Marine Corps during the Korean conflict.

IN LITTLE THEATRE

Cootes also has been active in many of the community's civic and cultural affairs. He helped found the Little Theatre, was its first president and now is serving as president again. He is also president of the Cap Rock Chapter of the March of Dimes. He helped found and served on the board of the Y Men's Club (a service unit to the YMCA).

He has been on numerous Chamber of Commerce committees, has been active in many major fund campaigns, has served on the board of the Tuberculosis Association. He is a former chairman of the Big Spring Traffic Commission, is a member of the city's Master Plan committee, and has served on special municipal assignments, including a review board for firemen and policemen, and on a panel on jobs and wages.

Holder of a private pilot's license, he helped organize the Big Spring Flying Club and still holds membership.

He is married to the former Joyce Connaway, and they have two children, Heidi, 5, and Glenn Jr., 2.

Married On Their 50th Anniversary

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Thomas of Portland were married on their 50th wedding anniversary.

They were divorced about 44 years ago and each married again. Their spouses died—hers 12 years ago, his last summer.

They became reacquainted when Thomas telephoned their only child, Mrs. R. J. Oliver, and his former wife answered. On June 3 they flew to Reno and were remarried.

A wedding reception is planned Saturday, with four grandchildren and one great grandchild to watch them cut the wedding cake.

Go To Ranch

More than a dozen Boy Scouts left Midland Saturday morning for the Philmont Scout Ranch in northeastern New Mexico. They will hike over trails on the 128,000-acre ranch near Cimarron. In the group was Bob Priebe, Troop 16, Big Spring. All other boys were from Midland.

Auxiliary Adds To Fund For Legion's Expansion

By JOHN HILBIG

Friday Mrs. Roscoe Cone, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the American Legion, presented a $1,000 check on behalf of the Auxiliary to Dr. Halvard T. Hansen, commander of American Legion Post 355.

The donation will help defray cost of a new addition, currently under construction, to the Post building on US 87 South.

Hansen accepted the nomination as commander 16 months ago, with the understanding the Post was to be renovated and revitalized. Soon thereafter rocks were removed from the entrance, and caliche was hauled in to cover the 1,500 square foot parking lot. Then the meeting hall was panelled and the ceiling lowered to improve inside appearance.

In recruiting more members, Hansen emphasized attracting Korean and Vietnam veterans. Already membership has more than doubled over last year's lists.

The 3,000 square foot addition to the meeting hall has progressed under the guidance of Roscoe Cone, construction director, and Ray Dunlop, building superintendent, who have worked every weekend since the building started. All labor has been donated by, and material purchased through, members and interested friends.

The building's shell has been completed, and Hansen said the interior should be ready for dedication and open house by the end of August.

Double doors will be put in the north end of the meeting hall to open into the new 960 square foot lounge. Besides drinks, it will contain tables, stools and a dance platform, and will be open six nights a week plus Saturday and Sunday afternoons. The lounge floor is the only part of the addition that will be carpeted; the rest will be made of seamless plastic material.

Across the lounge, opposite the double doors, will be a 12 foot by 20 foot TV and reading room and offices for the Post's officers. A door on the left side of the lounge leads to a 720 square foot game room, which will contain pool tables and dominoes.

The rest rooms, a 10 by 10 foot for men and a 10 by 12 foot for women, will be located on the right side of the lounge, and the walls covered with red-flacked wallpaper. Behind them will be the kitchen, with a door to the lounge and a pass window to the meeting hall. Its 462 square foot floor space will mostly hold stainless steel cooking equipment.

A back door will open onto a barbecue pit that will be renovated, Hansen said. A retaining wall will be installed to keep the wind out; and eventually top soil will be brought in, grass planted, and picnic tables set up.

Makes $1,000 Gift

Mrs. Zelda Rea, treasurer of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion, and Dr. Halvard T. Hansen, commander of American can Legion Post 355, holds the $1,000 check which the Auxiliary gave the Post while Mrs. Roscoe Cone, Auxiliary president watches. The check will help pay costs of a new addition to the Post's present building.

The Post's revitalizing efforts and its cooperation with city officials, have caused it to be placed in the Texas Department of American Legion Hall of Fame, and Robert P. Walsh, department commander, visited Legion officials Friday.

Provision has been made on the Post's three acres so a mobile trailer can be hooked up, for caretaker-security personnel.

Hansen said future projects will include landscaping north and west of the building, a 3,000 square foot asphalt parking lot, sidewalks and a front drive that loops around a center circle, and perhaps in the distant future, a swimming pool.

Moon Landing Team Practice Going Smooth

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP)—Astronaut Michael Collins said Saturday the training for the Apollo 11 moon landing attempt next month was going "as smooth as glass."

He commented after practicing the door - keeping chores he'll next perform on the way to the moon.

Collins twice cleared complex hardware from a mock up of the tunnel which connects the Apollo lunar module with the Apollo command ship in orbit.

The astronaut's teammates on Apollo 11, Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin Jr., also spent Saturday practicing for a moon landing mission next month.

Armstrong "flew" the dynamic crew procedures simulator, a command module mock up which provides visual and electronic effects of flight.

Aldrin was at Langley Research Center in Hampton, Va. practicing landing on the moon. He worked Saturday in the lunar landing training facility at the space agency installation.

Wearing a space suit and helmet, Collins struggled through the complex job of clearing a three pronged probe and a man-hole-cover-like drogue from a mockup of the command ship tunnel.

The astronaut, who is the command module pilot on Apollo 11, will have the chore of opening and closing the tunnel on the moon flight. By clearing the tunnel, Armstrong and Aldrin will be able to transfer from the command module to the lunar module after the two spacecraft have docked in space. After the transfer, Collins seals off the command module with a hatch and Aldrin seals the lunar module with another hatch.

For the practice session, the probe, a cone shaped device which pulls the two spacecraft into a firm docking in space, was balanced with counterweights to enable Collins to handle its 50-pound weight.

"That's a pretty good simulation of a weightless condition," said Collins during the exercise. "The probe is suspended here perfectly balanced."

Drama Class For Youth Is Announced

A special Children's Theatre Workshop will be held during July, sponsored by the Little Theatre of Big Spring. Registration of youngsters, between second grade and junior high age, will be conducted all this week.

"The Little Theatre has always been interested in children's theatre," according to Glenn Cootes, president, "but we have not often had an instructor capable of conducting such a program."

Directors during a recent meeting voted to offer the program under the guidance of Mrs. Joy Shaver, who will be the instructor. Although the fee will be $10 for the eight session program at the time of registration, no youngster will be turned away due to inability to pay.

"Object of the workshop," Mrs. Shaver said, "will be to learn about the fundamentals of theatre, such as taking stage direction, make-up, costuming, sets, acting, etc. Highlight of the session will be trip to Midland for a tour of the facility and to see one of the children's stage productions."

Deadline for registration will be July 7, and parents interested in enrolling their children are asked to call Mrs. Shaver, 267-7500 or Cootes, at the Herald, 263-7331. The classes will be held at the YMCA.

Helping Odessa Drive

On-The-Green Activities Add To Globe's Festival

On-the-green festivities add to the atmosphere and enjoyment of attending the Shakespearean Festival now under way at the Globe Theatre in Odessa, according to Mrs. Bob Knight, one of the boosters in the Big Spring chapter.

The pre-curtain programs begin at 6 p.m. to precede each evening's performances, including fireworks, the firing of a cannon, and many other activities, similar to those that took place in Shakespeare's time.

The concession stand, built it the style of a 16th century gazebo, sells imported English trinkets, such as hand-made enamels, gaoler's keyrings, and Lavender sachet. Refreshments also keep in the spirit of old England, including a choice of Scotch shortbreads, daisy or almond cookies or strawberry cake and hot spiced tea.

Madrigal singers, in authentic English costumes, serenade patrons, and there is a harpsichord recital. English folk dances precede the entrance of the Festival Queen. All of these activities are only leading up to curtain time for the two Shakespearean dramas of the Festival, "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "The Taming of the Shrew."

Big Spring Nights for the two plays have been set for July 5 ("Shrew") and Aug. 2 ("Dream"). The chapter here is selling tickets at $1, and interested persons are urged to call Mrs. Paul Kionka, 263-3542, or Mrs. Garland Braun, 263-1556.

The festival began June 17 and continues through Aug. 24.

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (AP) — He possesses the benevolent air of a retired priest. The rheumy eyes narrow into slits, and he speaks in freshets of monologue about his concern for America, the generation of young and the future of literature.

In this seaside suburb of Los Angeles he resides in a two-story white strucco house surrounded by businessmen, doctors and other members of the upper middle class.

It seems a strange place for the great Bohemian Henry Miller, hailed by some as a liberator of American language and morals, assailed by others as a literary pornographer.

His early novels paved the way for the whole stream of sexually explicit works now coming off the printing presses. Like many a father, however, he is appalled by what he sired.

At 77, Henry Miller is finally being accorded honors he and his adherents long have felt were due him. His once-banned books are now sold in most communities.

The relaxed standards of films now permit his literary works to reach the screen. His "Tropic of Cancer" is being filmed in France by Joseph Strick, who directed the movie version of James Joyce's "Ulysses." A Scandinavian company is bringing forth "Quiet Days in Clinchy." Miller himself is starring in a full-length documentary, "The Henry Miller Odyssey."

"All this happens so late, so late," laments Miller, shaking his head. "Why couldn't it have happened sooner, when I could have enjoyed it more? Why does recognition come 30 years afterward?"

"Perhaps it was just as well. Success is much more destructive than failure. I've seen men ruined by success.

"I wrote 'Tropic of Cancer' in 1931, and it was three or four years before the publisher in Paris dared to print it. Not until 1961 was it printed in America.

"When I meet with young writers today, I hear them complain that they have a wife and family and they can't make a living from writing. I tell them that is unfortunate, but any serious writer must wait 20 years before his work will be recognized. Perhaps that is speeded up today, because there are more avenues for an author's work. But most of us must wait."

Does Miller feel responsible for today's frankness in books?

"Yes, I suppose I am, along with Joyce and D. H. Lawrence. But they liberated the novel more in a literary way, while I did it for the man in the street."

And what does he think of the result of this "liberation?"

"I am appalled. I could be a censor, but only on matters of taste and values. That is what is lacking in today's writing. But, of course, I would never impose censorship for any reason. I feel that any man is entitled to express himself with complete freedom. In time, perhaps, the writing will achieve taste and sensitivity. But it is liable to get worse before it gets better."

For Henry Miller, the waiting for fame began in Paris in 1930. He had known a harsh childhood in in Brooklyn, studied at City College in New York and at Cornell, then bummed around the United States in odd jobs before seeking the Bohemian life of a writer in Paris.

But even in prewar France, Miller's writings were considered too avant garde.

The war sent Miller back to the United States and greater poverty. His total assets on arrival: $10.

He settled in the mountainous Big Sur country near Monterey, Calif., living a primitive life as he tried to continue serious writing.

The war helped a change of fortune. American GIs discovered his works in France, and his publisher had amassed $40,000 in royalties, but Miller didn't go to France to collect the money. "I was having a fight with my wife and I didn't want to take her," he explains. He is now wed to wife No. 5, Tokyo-born entertainer Hiroko Tokuda, 30.

When Supreme Court rulings loosened laws against obscenity, Miller's books finally printed in his native land. "Tropic of Cancer" was published in 1961, and others followed. — too quickly, he believes.

"After a year, the sales dwindled. Now I rely on foreign publishers for my income. In France and Germany and especially in the Scandinavian countries, my books are very popular. There you find a much more literate population," he said.

When prosperity finally overtook Henry Miller seven years ago, he moved from Big Sur to his home here. He is oblivious to the affluent neighborhood but devoted to his house, particularly because it affords space for his four great interests — writing, painting, swimming and table tennis.

Miller, talking with an intervewer on a Sunday afternoon delivered numerous opinions in response to questions about his life and the world around him. Such as:

What do you think of the young people today?

"I think a lot of what they are doing, particularly on the campuses, is stupid and harmful. But I find them to be less bad than the adults. The young people may be going about it the wrong way, but at least they are trying to attack the hypocrisy and injustice in American life."

What is your view of America today?

"I think that in literature, in politics, in almost every phase of its existence, this country is going through a process of deterioration and disintegration. I see very little left of what inspired the founding fathers."

'WAITING FOR SOMETHING, SOMEONE'

Washington's New Mood

By KELLY SMITH TUNNEY

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Richard M. Nixon moved in and Lyndon B. Johnson moved out, one expected change in Washington—from Pennsylvania Avenue to Embassy Row.

Not every president can be expected to gobble tapioca pudding, mix scotch with branch water and kiss Sen. Everett M. Dirksen. Anymore than one expects every president's daughter to date movie actor George Hamilton.

NOT THIS YEAR

But switches in administrations are usually like switches in dance partners. Over the years, one finds the tempo doesn't change much after all. Gerry Van der Heuvel moves in, Liz Carpenter moves out, the British get a new ambassador and the Marine Band plays on.

But this year it didn't.

This year something happened that has not occurred during any change of administrations, for so long as Washingtonians can remember. Suddenly there were not so many parties, not so many dinners, not so much to read about in the local newspapers, and the caterers were operating in the red.

The new people didn't notice it. The old people can't define it.

"It's like everyone is waiting for something, someone," said one who has lived in the city social life for some 20 years. "I've never been so bored. I've lived here for years, and I've never seen this town sitting around on its thumbs before."

Said another woman. "It's like everyone is uptight—but they don't know about what. Someone tells a joke at a party and no one laughs. Instead of going out every night, we go out maybe once or twice a week."

Betty Beale, columnist for the Washington Star, and a lifelong resident of the city, called it "the silent spring."

"For years," she wrote, "the biggest social season was in April or May. Prominent party goers who might get 10 or 15 invitations during the rest of the year usually receive 20 to 25 invitations a week in these two months. But is this happening today? The answer seems to be a resounding no."

It should be pointed out that Washington at its peak can have as many as several hundred parties a week. An ambassador, at his busiest, attends two receptions and a black-tie dinner every night.

PACE SLOWED

This spring the pace slowed, then like an old record, faded.

Even the caterers, usually in a frenzy with canapes, dinners, and last-minute functions, cried in their dough and said if things didn't shape up they'd move to Miami Beach.

Washingtonians have lots of theories for the unusual quiet.

1. Concern over Vietnam. But Vietnam has been with administrations for several years, and if anything, it looks more hopeful today than several springs ago. People in Washington don't talk much about Vietnam during dinner anyway.

2. Guest List Complex. This theory holds that the White House has muffed it. That instead of inviting guests of varying backgrounds, the White House has aligned likes with likes: all diplomats at one function, all Republicans at another, so there's no true forum for meeting new people.

DON'T DRINK

"No one knows anyone to give a party in honor of," said one ambassador, "and the situation is not good. There are more than 100 of us, about a third of whom are in the race to get key administration officials to our dinner tables. But we can't find an opportunity to meet them."

3. Republicans don't drink. True, fruit punch has been served at White House receptions. But sources in the know say this theory would be hard to prove.

4. Republicans aren't party people. Some say maybe key Republican officials aren't coming out because they prefer to stay home with a good game of checkers, that they prefer crackers and Ovaltine to formal dinners. At least one Republican of note says, off the record, that he does.

SWINGERS GONE

5. The swingers have left town. This theory is supported by a spot check of some of the beautiful people who made headlines and fancy reading during previous administrations.

Yolande Fox, the dark-eyed Miss America of 1951, a widow who set Washington on its heels with her avant-garde clothes and false eyelashes, is now living quietly in the suburbs, accepts practically no invitations.

Cherif Guellal, the dashing dark-eyed Algerian ambassador who courted Yolande here and abroad, is no longer in his country's diplomatic service (Algeria has no relations with this country) and is also living in Washington, writing books, one a study of guerrilla warfare. He prefers to be private citizen Guellal.

Barbara Howar, the lovely, leggy blue-eyed blonde who was much on the scene of yesteryear, first as a Johnson intimate then a Johnson dropout, is divorced and working on a television talk show called Panorama.

She suggests the assassinations of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. and Sen. Robert F. Kennedy changed the town's mood considerably.

THEY'VE TRIED

Though Republicans get much of the blame for the quiet, it's not because some haven't tried.

One Republican hostess, a widow and the owner of a spacious mansion well equipped for parties, was asked why she hadn't given a large party.

"I'm dying to. I expected to. But who for? I expected to meet people—it's always been so easy. Now all these newcomers are here, from California or New York. What do you do, call up the Department of State and say 'I'm a fat-cat Republican and I want to give a party for you?'"

Why, asks a newcomer, are parties that significant? Why not work during the day and go home and get a good night's sleep?

PART OF WORK

Because parties are work in Washington. Because an opportunity for ambassadors, senators, businessmen, officialdom, to converse socially—perhaps a few words in the corner—has done much toward settling diplomatic bruises, reaching agreements, and negotiating war and peace in the past.

The White House, which during Johnson years was more crowded, more informal, more unpredictable and more backslapping, has appeared socially as sedate, pleasant, polite and extremely correct.

If the President is the social barometer, Nixon's comments to a congressional reception might be a clue. "We all tend to be quite provincial," he said, "Even in Washington, we are provincial."

ABM Will Not Set Off Race With Soviets?

DALLAS (AP) — Dr. Edward Teller, the internationally-known physicist, said Saturday he believes he can persuade Russian scientists that the United States would be justified in establishing self-defense through an anti-ballistic missile (ABM) system.

He was answering charges that U.S. deployment of an ABM network would set off an arms race with the Russians.

But asked whether the Russian government would consider an ABM start the signal for an arms race, the scientist asked, "Does the race begin when the Russians deploy or when we react?"

Teller said the United States would hold an advantage with its superiority in electronic computers should it begin an ABM defense system.

But he added, "At the same time, in the area of nuclear weapons, surrounded by the most formidable fences of security, the Russians have gathered a momentum which is bound to result in an impressive Russian advantage during the early 1970s."

Dr. Teller was in Dallas for Saturday night's American Academy of Achievement dinner honoring 49 American leaders and 200 high school pupils.

"I am going to a (physics) conference in Italy and expect Russians, among others to be there," Teller said in an interview.

"The ABM will not be on the agenda. But I believe I will be able to agree privately with my Russian colleagues that self-defense is justified."

The Senate Armed Services Committee approved Friday $794 million for a start on an ABM system by a 10-7 vote.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield estimated that Safeguard—the missile—has a 49-47 margin of votes in the Senate. Floor debate is due after the July 4 holiday.

Teller long has been an advocate of at least a start on deployment of an ABM.

At the same time, he has advocated less secrecy both in military policies and scientific information and he discussed both in the interview.

Of the congressional debate on the ABM, Teller said, "There should be more debate and enlightenment and less political heat," and he said American newspapers should demand an end to secrecy in government and science.

He repeatedly pointed out that the measure before Congress calls for a $794 million start, not the billions he said some opponents have cited as the eventual cost.

Surtax: What And Why

By The Associated Press

Surcharge: Under a law enacted last year, all individual taxpayers above the lowest brackets and all corporations are charged an extra 10 per cent of their income tax. The surcharge expires June 30 unless extended by Congress.

Proposal: President Nixon wants the surcharge extended at 10 per cent through Dec. 31, then at 5 per cent through June 30, 1970. The Treasury says this would yield $7.6 billion in the year beginning July 1 and result in a $6.3-billion budget surplus.

Purpose: To fight inflation, which the administration says is on the point of running away.

Backdrop: President Lyndon B. Johnson proposed the original surcharge when the country faced a $25-billion deficit. The Nixon administration says the continuation is urgently needed now. Opponents say the surcharge didn't check inflation, as demonstrated by constantly rising prices and interest rates. The administration says there are signs of leveling off and this is no time to release the brakes.

Politics: Congress is still controlled by Democrats. Some of them say they see no reason to give a Republican administration a surplus denied Democrat Johnson. Congress has started work on tax reform, but proposals to date do virtually nothing for the middle-income taxpayer. Dropping the surtax would. Surtax skeptics demand quick revenue-raising reforms backed by the administration as a price for a short-term surtax extension.

Prospects: The administration figures it will need 100 Democratic votes in the House to pass the Nixon plan, assuming it could hold, or slightly increase, the number of Republicans voting for the surtax originally. Outlook is uncertain.

Space Law: Of Global Gravity

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The Apollo 11 moon landing attempt will be watched with special interest by a little group of diplomats who were mainly responsible for extending international law to the celestial bodies through the 1967 space treaty.

For them the event will have double significance:

—It will represent the only important instance in the brief history of space law in which the diplomats moved faster than the scientists and technologists.

—It will be the first time that some of the basic provisions of the 1967 treaty actually become applicable.

Although this treaty represents a milestone in space law, it has had only limited application so far because it was designed essentially to govern the exploration of the celestial bodies.

Its major contribution has been the prohibition of the orbiting or stationing of nuclear weapons in space, but its broad objective — as stated by former President Lyndon B. Johnson — was "to see to it that serious political conflicts do not arise as a result of space activities."

If astronauts Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin successfully land on the moon's surface, for example, it will be perfectly clear under the treaty that they cannot stake claim to the moon as U.S. territory.

Legally, all the celestial bodies have been internationalized and all activities on them are under international law — including the charter of the United Nations.

Under terms of the treaty, the Apollo 11 crew and the crews of subsequent flights to celestial bodies will be obligated to carry on their explorations for the benefit of mankind and in the interest of all countries.

The treaty looks ahead to the day when traffic to the moon and beyond becomes commonplace and laws will be needed to deal with rights of access, communications and other problems which might cause friction.

Some of the terms are the treaty's prohibitions against the stationing of nuclear weapons on celestial bodies, the conduct of military maneuvers, or the establishment of military bases.

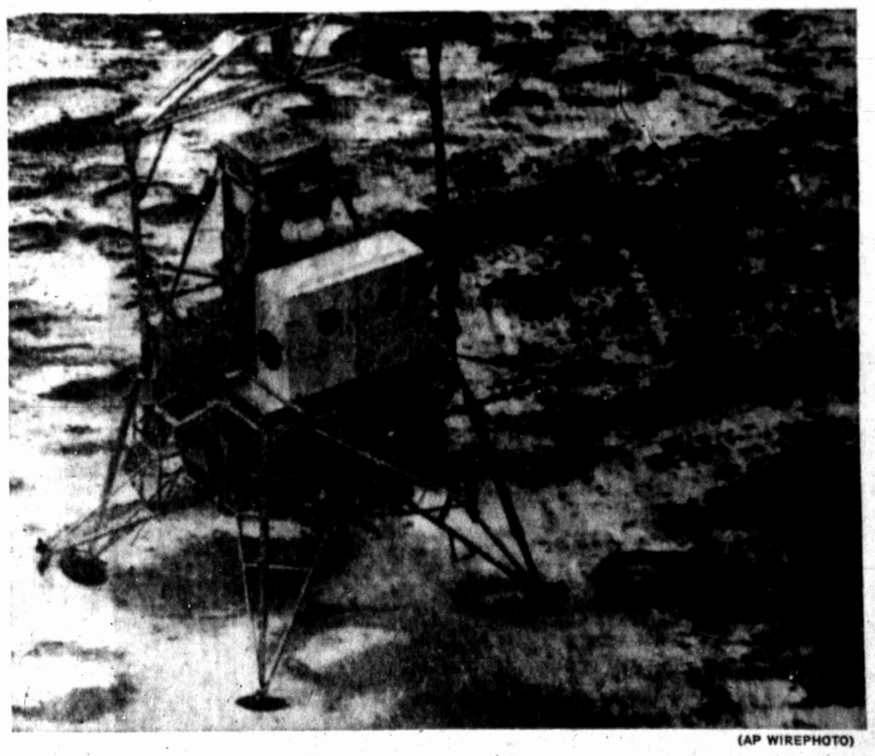

The regulation of space traffic is becoming increasingly urgent, as orbiting satellites mount in number and elaborate space platforms are about to join them. Added to this is the problem of controlling so-called space garbage.

Another problem is the lack of comprehensive regulations in the field of space comunications. Experts see the possibility of jamming, pirating of broadcast materials and other injurious uses of space unless international agreements provide for licensing and regluation.

More important for the future are broad questions of military espionage, possible conversion of space platforms into military vehicles and the definition of outer space.

The question of espionage is complicated by the fact that there is no definition as to where outer space begins, and by constantly improved methods of earth surveillance.

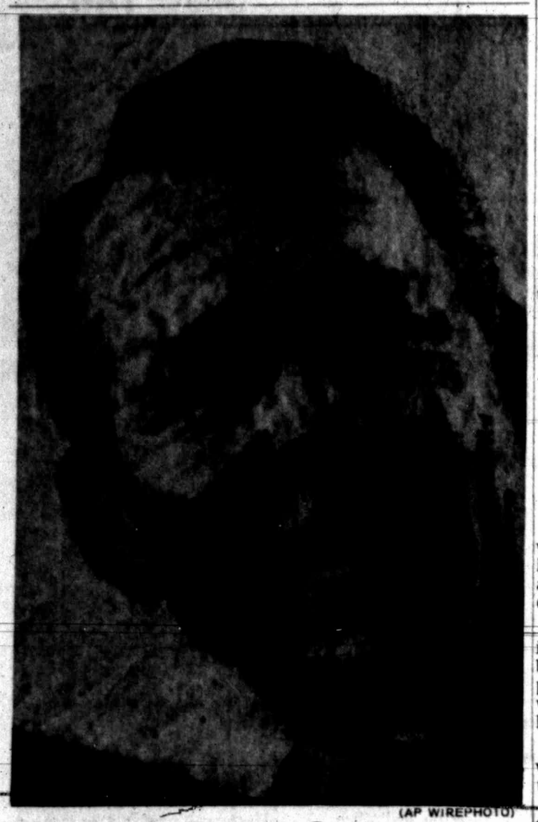

The definition of outer space is one of the priority issues now being studied by the legal subcommittee of the U.N. Committee on the Peaceful Uses of Outer Space.

Staying On

Secretary of Welfare Robert Finch tells a Washington news conference Saturday that he is staying on as a member of the Nixon Cabinet after losing in a power struggle over who is to be his assistant for health matters. Said Finch: "I may not win all my battles, but I plan to stay here and continue fighting them."

'I May Not Win All My Battles'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Welfare Robert H. Finch, freshly defeated in an intragovernmental power struggle, said Saturday "I may not win all my battles but I plan to stay here and continue fighting them."

"I have a four-year commitment," Finch said in denying published reports that he would step out because of his failure to win White House approval for the appointment of Dr. John H. Knowles as his top aide in health affairs.

"Sometimes when you lose one battle you are strengthened for another," the secretary told a jammed news conference.

The comments were the first by Finch since a brief statement Friday that brought an end to his 5½-month campaign to win presidential support for nominating Knowles as assistant secretary for health and scientific affairs.

Finch bowed to opposition from some American Medical Association leaders and from Senate Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois and picked instead Dr. Roger O. Egeberg, 65-year-old dean of the University of Southern California Medical School.

Egeberg appeared at the news conference with Finch and said that he admires the "forward views" of Knowles, who was opposed by some AMA leaders as being too liberal. Egeberg added "I hope I have forward views too."

Egeberg said he believes "the biggest problem I had is the delivery of medical care.

"If we add 40 million people as Congress has done we cannot put them through the same mill. We have to find a new way."

Anniversary For Trumans

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) —Former President and Mrs. Harry S. Truman observed their 50th wedding anniversary Saturday in the quiet of the white frame house they have called home since their marriage in 1919.

Truman, 85, and his wife, 84, decided against any extensive celebration because, as Mrs. Truman explained, he is not up to standing and shaking hands.

The Trumans let it be known in advance that the golden wedding anniversary celebration would be private with possibly a few friends and relatives visiting during the day.

Their 1919 wedding in tiny Trinity Episcopal Church came after Truman returned from Army Service in World War I. In the same church 37 years later the Truman's only daughter, Margaret, married Clifton Daniel.

The man who was later to be U.S. senator and president had met his bride when both were 6-year-old children attending Sunday school. Later Truman worked at several jobs in Kansas City and moved to his family's farm south of Kansas City before the couple became engaged in 1917.

Ex-Presidential Aide Takes Bride

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A former aide to President John F. Kennedy married the daughter of a prominent Republican leader in ceremonies here Saturday.

Theodore C. Sorensen, 41-year - old New York attorney, and his bride, Gillian Martin, 28, were wed in a late afternoon ceremony at the interdenominational Fountain Street Church before nearly 300 guests, including a Cabinet member and two top General Motors Corp. executives.

80 Persons Injured In Train Accident

GLENN DALE, Md. (AP) — One man died and more than 80 persons were injured Saturday when a 12-car New York-Miami passenger train was derailed in this community 18 miles east of Washington.

Del Malkie, a Prince Georges County spokesman, said one passenger, identified only as a priest, collapsed immediately after he walked out of a partially overturned railroad car. Malkie said cause of death appeared to be a heart attack.

The dead man was identified as the Rev. Annunzio G. Crescenti, 55, of Mount Carmel Catholic Church in Montclair, N.J. Father Crescenti was also a volunteer chaplain for the Montclair Police and Fire Departments.

Preliminary reports said 82 persons were taken to three hospitals. All available ambulances were pressed into service.

The train was the Penn Central Railroad's Silver Star.

The derailment broke the 12-car train into two segments. The first tore ahead about one-half mile toward Washington. While none overturned, only one of the cars in the forward group remained on the tracks.

Five of the six cars in the second segment overturned. Several were partially buried in the cinder and earth embankment along the right-of-way.

Rescuers had to smash windows in two of the cars to get people out.

A spokesman for the Maryland state police, who took charge of rescue operations aided by firemen from several jurisdictions, said six of the passengers were believed in critical condition.

Malkie said state officials and Penn Central authorities had started a preliminary investigation of the cause.

Malkie said tentative reports indicated the tracks buckled at a rail crossing on the outskirts of this rural town. Washington area temperatures were in the upper 90s.

Held Officers At Bay

Henry Koonce, 55, is taken to a police car after shooting a police officer before taken into custody in Dallas, Friday. Koonce had held off police officers until they talked him in going into a house he said he owned. One police officer tried to grab the man's gun and missed and was shot in the back.

Police Captain Listed In Critical Condition

DALLAS (AP)—A police captain, shot Friday as he and others sought to subdue a man claiming ownership of a house, became worse Saturday and was listed in critical condition.

The injured officer, Capt. Owen C. Box, suffered the wound as he struggled with Henry Stewart Koonce, 55.

Koonce once lived in the house but was evicted last year, a neighbor said.

Mrs. A. J. Head, whose family rented the small frame dwelling, said Koonce some days ago nailed a notice on the door ordering the Head family out.

Mrs. Head said she checked with the rental agent who said Koonce did not own the house.

Mrs. Head said Koonce returned about 4 p.m. Friday, waving a pistol and shouting, "Get out, get out! I'm going to kill you if you don't get out now!"

Mrs. Head fled and called police. Officers found Koonce crouched behind his car in the front yard.

After an hour, Box, Lt. H. D. Thomas and Sgt. A. G. Bliss persuaded Koonce to go into the house. They sat around a table talking.

Bliss gave this account:

"The captain and the lieutenant and I were all talking to him and the captain apparently thought the man had relaxed. The captain made a dive for the gun and missed it, and the man shot him."

Bliss said he and Thomas then subdued Koonce.

When the pistol shot was heard by officers outside, they swarmed into the house and helped hold Koonce.

Bliss said Box was hit once in the back. Later officers said Box had been shot with a .22 caliber pistol.

When Koonce was taken before Municipal Court Judge Joe Loving and advised of his rights, he told the judge that God had told him to occupy the house.

When told he was being held, Koonce said:

"I'd like to say that the one that got shot made a lunge at me. I feel like it was self-defense. . . There have been attempts to murder me several times in this town by uniformed officers. I couldn't take a chance."

'Astromonk' Starts Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —A pigtail monkey named Bonny rocketed into space today for a month-long earth orbit trip intended to set medical guidelines for astronauts who will fly lengthy space station and planetary missions.

The three - year - old "astromonk" from the jungles of Thailand was strapped securely in his spaceship cabin as hhe two-stage Delta rocket burst away from its launch pad at 11:16 p.m. EDT.

Punishing forces 10 times the pull of gravity pressed against the primate as the Delta thundered into space, the flame from its engines brilliantly lighting the night Floriday sky.

Bonny, named for his pleasant disposition, was to oribt for 30 days on the longest space flight ever attempted by a living creature. Scientists hope probes implanted deep in the monkey's brain, heart and other vital areas will provide data which could clear he way for future manned flights lasting for months or years.

104 Persons, Jet Skyjacked

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — An Eastern Air Lines jet with 104 persons aboard was hijacked to Cuba Saturday, the third airliner diverted to the Caribbean Island in a week.

The Boeing 727, en route from Baltimore to Miami, was flying along Florida's east coast just off Daytona Beach when the pilot announced he was being hijacked.

Jim Frazier of the Federal Aviation Administration at Miami said the pilot — Capt. John R. Brunning of New York — indicated there was just one hijacker but gave no other details.

The plane, Eastern Flight 173 with 97 passengers and a crew of 7, landed at Havana's Jose Marti airport at 12:28 p.m. EDT, an hour after it changed course for Cuba.

It was the 32nd time this year a commercial airliner had been forced to fly to Cuba. Six other attempts failed.

A total of 1,612 persons — including passengers, crew members and hijackers — had ridden pirated planes to the Communist island prior to Saturday's flight.

The last hijack was Wednesday when an armed man seized control of a United Air Lines DC8 over Riverside, Calif. The plane — flying from Los Angeles to New York — carried 58 persons.

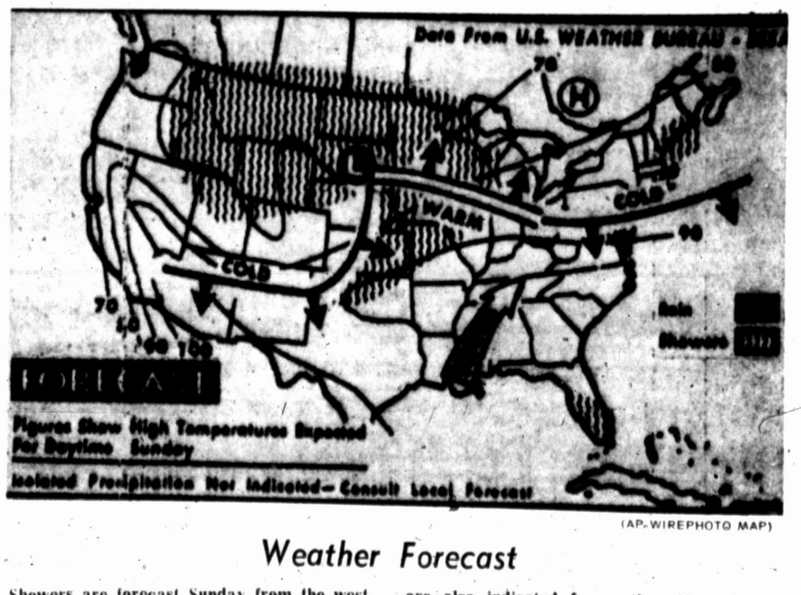

Federal officials said Wednesday's hijacker was John G. Marques, a 31-year-old cab driver with a political science degree. Police records describe him as an American Indian from West Los Angeles.

Eastern Air Lines has had 14 planes hijacked in the past two years. The last was Sunday when a Cuban exile, his wife and teen-aged daughter commandeered a DC8 with 89 persons aboard flying from Newark, N.J., to Miami.

Woman Receives Rib Injuries

Mrs. Vivian J. Maxwell, 3201 11th Place, was admitted to Cowper Clinic and Hospital with rib injuries Saturday after the car she was driving was in a collision with one driven by Jimmie Brunson, 808 W. 7th, at Monticello and Grafa. She is in satisfactory condition.

Friday, Gregory Boyer, 1208 Ridgeroad, told police his car door had been damaged while parked at his house. Police also investigated a minor accident at FM 700 and Birdwell, between cars driven by Jimmy O. Johnson, 1506 State Park, and Ella Strickland Gill, 106 E. 15th.

Showers are forecast Sunday from the western Lakes across the northern and central plains, into parts of the Rockies. Showers are also indicated for northern New England and southern Florida.

The Good Old Days

The good old days when you could angle park (top) on the east side of the 200 and 300 blocks of Runnels were only last week. City crews began repainting the parking stripes at 6:30 a.m. Friday, and by the time early-morning shoppers reached the area, angle parking was illegal.

New Vaccine Type May Halt German Measles

By JOHN HILBIG

Local doctors are hopeful a new vaccine to prevent rubella (German measles), licensed by the federal government in early June, will lead to the eliminatios of the disease within five years.

Dr. Louise A. Worthy, Hall-Bennett Memorial Hospital, said the disease can be controlled within that time, if enough supplies of the vaccine become available. Other doctors here agree.

The vaccine will be released within the next few months; but due to the limited amount, doctors will have to be selective in whom they vaccinate.

Dr. Floyd Mays, Medical Arts Clinic-Hospital, said the American Academy of Pediatrics recommends children aged 2-9 should be vaccinated first.

Doctors are concerned about rubella, not because it's dangerous for children, but because infected children can infect pregnant women. The disease can then cause defects in unborn children; the earlier the pregnancy, the greater the damage.

Dr. C. A. Aagesen, Cowper Clinic and Hospital, said young children should be vaccinated because they are most susceptible to catching rubella, and this could prevent a rubella epidemic.

The last rubella epidemic in 1964 caused some 50,000 abnormal pregnancies. The next epidemic, unless counter measures are taken, could occur as early as 1970.

Though the vaccine is 92-98 per cent effective, uncertainty remains about whether it is permanent. Because of this Dr. M. W. Talbot Jr., Malone and Hogan Clinic, said he would prefer giving the vaccination in the beginning to late teenage girls and young women rather than taking a chance on the vaccination wearing off.

Though none of the doctors would necessarily limit the vaccination exclusively to one age group, all agreed care must be taken so that a pregnant woman, or one who could become pregnant in two or three months, is not vaccinated. It could have the same effect as if she had been infected with the disease itself.

Dr. Mays says the vaccine may not be as valuable as polio vaccines, but it can be valuable, once enough vaccine becomes available.

The National Foundation-March of Dimes, which is dedicated to preventing birth defects, has invested over $600,000 in a study of the German measles problem. As early as 1958 a grant was made to Dr. Frank Lock, Bowman Gray School of Medicine, N.C., for a study of babies whose mothers had been infected with the disease.

During the 1964 epidemic, the New York University Medical Center received an initial grant for a Rubella Birth Defects Evaluation Project; most of what is known about the persistence of rubella virus in newborns and their mothers is the result of this project.

The foundation will conduct a major campaign to increase understanding of the vaccine. It has already mailed information to 145,000 physicians and other medical professionals, and nearly 3,000 chapters of the voluntary health organization will offer assistance to health departments and medical societies in fostering optimal use of the rubella vaccine.

JULY 4th

'Let Freedom Ring' Ceremony Being Planned

The fourth annual "Let Freedom Ring" observance will get under way at 6:45 p.m., July 4, at Memorial Plaza on the east side of the Howard County Courthouse.

The setting commorates the occasion of delivery of the Declaration of Independence, by a colonial scout, to a town crier who reads it to Colonial townspeople. After it is read, a four-minute ringing of bells throughout the city will be heard. Ringing of the bells begin promptly at 7 p.m. and will continue four minutes.

The Scout, Sheriff A. N. Standard carries the document of the Declaration of Independence from the old Texas and Pacific Railway Co. depot, followed by Minutemen from the ABClub and women in Colonial dress. He delivers it to Towncrier, Jim Baum, at the plaza, who reads it to the townspeople represented by members of the Gold Star Mothers Club, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the public.

Invocation will be offered by Dr. R. Gage Lloyd, and the Webb Color Guard will present the flag. High school musicians will provide music and trumpeteers. Mrs. Bob Knight and Mrs. Mamie Lee Dodds, co-chairmen of arrangements, said the "Spirit of '76" group would play Yankee Doodle and "Hail Columbia" will be presented during the procession from the depot.

The program will take place in front of a huge replica of Independence Hall.

After the four-minute ringing of bells, Connell Taylor will lead the crowd in the singing of the National Anthem.

Clear, Firm Statement On Integration Is Requested

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Texas congressman has asked the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to give Austin schools more time to comply with integration guidelines.

U.S. Rep. Jake Pickle, D-Tex., said in a letter to Secretary Robert H. Finch that Austin needs an extension beyond the present September deadline.

South Carolina has been given a one-year extension while the Austin School Board "was told that HEW could make no exceptions on the September, 1969, deadline," Pickle wrote.

"... Is South Carolina to be given an extension of one year while different and stricter rules are to be applied to my state?" Pickle asked.

He requested "a clear and firm statement as to what development we can expect out of HEW in this field for the next one or two years."

Pickle said there had been unofficial speculation about re-evaluation of guidelines and deadline extensions.

"What is needed now," he said, "is a firm statement on which our school board can rely unhesitatingly.

"We simply cannot expect a school board in any area to extend itself to the degree necessary to accept an HEW solution," he wrote, "when other boards across the country are going divergent ways and when there is the compounding uncertainty of rumor of an impending change of policy."

Pickle said the Austin school board had sought "to work out a solution of the issue and find an answer which will comply with the law and be readily accepted in the school district."

The board went along with an HEW recommendation to shut down three schools in Negro neighborhoods and bus students elsewhere.

This decision was greeted with protests from Negroes and whites alike, so the decision to close the schools was rescinded.

"If this course of action continues," Pickle wrote, "we are moving toward a head-on court fight between Austin and HEW."

Pickle said Austin began integrating its schools in 1954 and now has 53 per cent of its students attending mixed schools.

"This is strong evidence that the freedom of choice plan is working in Austin," he said.

Big Guns Rolled Up For Cotton Payment Limits

LUBBOCK — Big guns are being rolled to the front for a continuation of the battle over individual payment limitations on 1970 Government farm programs.

The fight broke out in the House a few weeks ago when Rep. Silvio Conte (R-Mass.) and Paul Findley (R-Ill.) introduced an amendment to the Agriculture Appropriations Act which would limit payments to any one farmer to a maximum $20,000. When the smoke settled on May 27 the House had adopted the Conte-Findley amendment on a roll call vote of 224 to 142.

On the same day the House passed and sent to the Senate the appropriations bill in toto by a vote of 321 to 50.

The bill has now cleared the full Senate appropriations committee, without the limitations feature.

And word came down from Washington June 26 that Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield (D-Montana) had secured unanimous consent in the Senate for debate to be held on July 1 and 2 and the vote to be taken on July 7.

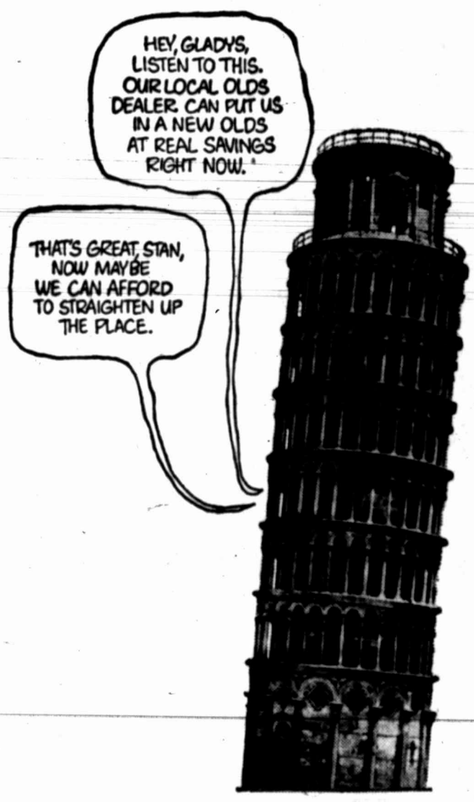

Appropriations Subcommittee Chairman Spessard Holland (D-Fla.), who will manage the bill on the Senate floor, had previously said debate was to be on July 7 and 8 with a vote following about July 9. Donald Johnston, executive vice president of the Plains Cotton Growers, urged all interested to contact their senators.

The new schedule is obviously a part of the strategy planned for passage of a payment limitations amendment. Majority Leader Mansfield has favored limitations in the past and by his failure to go along with Sen. Holland's recommended schedule he has indicated that he will continue that stand.

Key to the strategy, according to some observers, is to have both the debate and the vote on the appropriations bill come at a time when many senators will be absent — a condition almost certain to prevail on the days immediately preceding and following the July 4 recess. Not only is July 7 the first day of work for the senators after the Independence Day recess, it is also a Monday.

Rumor has it that Sen. J. J. Williams (R-Del.) will try for a $20,000 limit, then move on up to $50,000, $100,000, or even higher. If he is successful in getting a limitations amendment passed at any figure it will force the House-Senate Conference Committee to negotiate some sort of limit on payments. An unofficial poll of senators reveals 47 commitments to vote against a $20,000 limitation. And if all these are present for the vote, such an amendment can be defeated.

Two Veteran Conoco Employes Retire Here

Two veteran Continental Oil Company employes, with a combined service record of 80 years, are retiring July 1.

Their fellow employes, in company with Continental officials from the Midland office, feted the two men and their wives at a dinnner Friday night in Furr's cafeteria.

The honorees were David W. Roberson, maintenance man for the Continental properties in the Howard-Glasscock County fields in the Forsan area, and George H. (Bud) Pickett, production foreman for the company in the Ackerly-Garza fields.

Pickett went to work for the company Oct. 22, 1925. Roberson's tenure began Sept. 1, 1933.

A gift was presented each man from their fellow workers. Frank Elliott, division manager for Continental of Midland, presided at the dinner and lauded the contribution the men had made to the progress of the firm.

Pickett, now 62, was born in Courtney Flats, Okla. His first job with Texhoma (Conoco) was in Wichita Falls as a roustabout, and by 1927, he had been promoted to a supervisory position. Most of the years between 1925 and 1950, he was in the North Texas fields. In February, 1950, he came to the Big Spring district. He worked also in Hobbs, N.M., and Denver City.

Pickett, 3002 Navajo, was married to the former Virginia Humphries in Electra in 1939, and they have one son, J. G. Pickett, Monahans; and one grandson.

He is an enthusiastic golfer — left handed, at that. Golf will take up considerable of his idle time after retirement. For many years Pickett has been a consistent competitor in the annual tournament for left handed golfers held in Sequin. He is an ardent sports fan. Once he played baseball for Wichita Falls on the weekends.

Roberson, 65, a native of Strawn, began work with the company on Sept. 1, 1933, in the Big Lake area. He was transferred to the Howard-Glasscock field in 1934.

In the 34 years he has worked in the area, he has witnessed the complete evolution of the field from the old ways to the most modern of automation in oil production. The company has spent more than $5,000,000 in recent years changing that field over to the new methods.

Roberson still owns the farm in Palo Pinto County on which he was born. He and his wife grew up in the area and were married there. Now that he is to retire, Roberson proposes to move back to his old home and operate the farm.

The Robersons live at 4300 Connally.

An avid baseball enthusiast, he played his last baseball game at age 47 when he filled in because one team had only eight men. The eight struck out in succession, and he hammered out what should have been a home run. When he pulled up puffing at second, he knew his baseball days were over.

Mrs. Roberson is the former Josephine Beyer, to whom he was married in Eastland March 29, 1925. They have two sons, Robert L., Lamesa, and David Wesley Jr., Lubbock, and one daughter, Betty Jo Turner, Odessa. There are six grandchildren.

Beats Being Wiped Out

CROW AGENCY, Mont. (AP) — In June, 1876, Gen. George Custer and his men were wiped out. This year, they were rained out.

The annual re-enactment of the Battle of the Little Big Horn held near Hardin has been postponed from this week to July 4, 5 and 6 because nearly four inches of rain has fallen in the Hardin area since Tuesday.

The Weather Bureau wasn't promising much of a let up but the Crow Indians have scheduled sun dances beginning Friday and running to July 4.

George Elias, pageant director, said, "I'll put my faith in my red brothers. The sun will shine and the brave warrior will again have their day with yellow hair."

Summer Band

DENTON — Dale Martin Pless of Big Spring will perform in one of two North Texas State University Summer Stage Bands which will present concerts July 7 in the NTSU Music Recital Hall. Pless, a member of the percussion section, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn M. Pless, 609 Elgin, and a May graduate of Howard County Junior College.

THE WEEK

Laboratories here from St. Louis. This is welcome industrial expansion.

Good news came from Rep. Omar Burleson Friday. He reported that the General Services Administration is announcing Monday that the former post office here will be turned over to Howard County for educational purposes — i.e. the Howard County Free Library. This will open up a whole wonderful new world for the library — and it will answer the question about the fate of Peter Hurd's celebrated fresco mural.

Oil activities in this area are as hot as they have been at anytime within the past decade. Just east of Big Spring Amerada No. 1 Stringfellow flowed 312 barrels of oil in 24 hours from 7,614-7,652 in the Wolfcamp. Amerada No. 1 Marchbanks was testing in the Fusselman. Two miles north of the discovery well in this area and half a mile south of nearest production in the Big Spring Fusselman field, Texaco No. 1-D Howard Fee was staked as a 9,800-ft. venture. North of Coahoma, Texaco No. 1-C Read, appeared ready for completion as a second well in the Coahoma North-Fusselman field. John Ruwwe No. 1-D Read was staked in the same area.

• • •

Nor was activity confined here. In northwest Sterling County Continental No. 1 Sellars, direct north offset to the discovery in the Albaugh-Cole field, recovered 1,900 feet of 42-gravity oil on test and looked like a good producer. A direct east offset to the discovery rated 56 barrels. Albaugh staked a location as a northeast diagonal offset to the discovery, and a rank wildcat, his No. 1 Fee, four miles west and one north of the pool. Nell Brown turned operator and staked her No. 1 Carter as a 3,750-foot prospector near the depleted Carter (Clear Fork) and Rosemary (San Andres) fields in northern Glasscock.

Webb AFB has a new commander, Col. Harrison Lobdell Jr., who took over from Col. William C. McGlothlin in colorful ceremonies at the base Friday morning. Col. Mac and his wife, Mitch, won their way into the affections of Big Spring in their too short stay — and everyone expects the Lobdells quickly to become old timers, too.

Conoco had a party here Friday evening for two veterans who are retiring July 1. They are George (Bud) Pickett, who has put in 42 years with the company, and D. W. Roberson Sr., who has a record of 36 years. People who have tenure records like this also have a loyalty that is the mortar that holds companies together.

The city is faced with a hard decision on whether to delete 20 blocks from the current paving program. Dub Caldwell, contractor, reported that much of the property along these particular blocks has back taxes which makes the job marginal. Most of this probably will be dropped; perhaps there are other blocks which could be picked up on a supplemental program.

• • •

A public hearing has been set July 8 on a petition by Ben Bancroft, et al, to de-annex 89 acres adjacent to the Kentwood area. Already there were some other developers asking to be de-annexed, too, if the request is granted.

The Howard County Chapter of the March of Dimes, a vigorous unit for 35 years, is now part of the area MOD chapter comprised of Howard, Mitchell, Scurry, Borden and Glasscock Counties formed here last week. Glenn Cootes, formerly head of the local chapter, is chairman of the area unit.

The Big Spring State Hospital had a great 30th anniversary week in spite of abnormal heat. Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes earned a lot more friends when he carved his talk to the bone in the face of 104-degree temperature. Dr. John Kinross-Wright, state commissioner of Mental Health and Retardation, did. Dr. Preston Harrison, superintendent, the honor of making a second trip back Wednesday for a day in Dr. Harrison's honor. The superintendent's church (First Presbyterian) honored him, too, and employes put frosting on the cake with their awards program. And a posey to the florists in all this, for they furnished flowers for every occasion during the week. How nice.

"They asked me last night if the Queen would be mailed to them," said the boys' mother, Therese Wagner in Springfield.

Coody Clings To Slim Lead

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rangy Charles Coody fought off the challenge of Australian Bruce Crampton Saturday and clung to a two-stroke lead in the third round of the $110,000 Cleveland Open Golf Tournament, shooting a 71 for a 202.

Crampton, a 33-year-old tour veteran, was tied with Coody on three occasions, but finished with a one-under-par 69 and was alone in second at 204.

John Schlee, who started the day tied with Crampton four strokes off the pace, had a 71 despite two double bogeys and finished at 206.

Gardner Dickinson moved up with a 68, two under par on the 6,661-yard Aurora Country Club course and was in contention at 207.

Troubled Arnold Palmer and 49-year-old Julius Boros bolted out of the pack and became factors in the tournament. Boros had a remarkable 65 and Palmer a 66 and they are tied at 209.

Coody had two three-putt greens and double bogeyed the ninth when he hit a tree with his second shot and missed the green with his third. He rallied on the back nine, however, with four birdies, three from within five feet, and a single bogey.

Jack Nicklaus also had a 74 and was far back at 215.

Masters champion George Archer took a 75 for a 217. U.S. Open titleholder Orville Moody and Lee Trevino each blew to a 76 for 221.

Herman Evans Sets Pace As Meet Has 250 Entries

Herman Evans ran a 9.9 in the 100-yard dash, captured the 220-yard dash, then ran on two winning relay events for Big Spring in the senior division of the Texas Amateur Athletic Federation track meet here Saturday. He also took a second in the open 100-yard event, and first in the open 220-yard dash.

More than 250 boys and girls from a wide area took part, and Garland Braun, in charge of the program, said he was encouraged by the turnout to the point he hoped this could be made an annual event.

Besides Evans' two dash victories, Smart won the mile run for the Big Spring team, and the locals turned in 45.1 seconds to cop the 440-yard relay and then captured the mile relay in 3:44.6. Price took third in the high hurdles and Dean third in shot put. Cathey ran the anchor on a Big Spring team which captured third in the 220-yard dash.

Coleman captured first place in the intermediate shot put for Big Spring with a heave of 38-ft. ½-in.

Big Spring captured the 440-yard relay in the junior girls.

Pacca Ford, Big Spring, took the high jump for the girls' midget division and paced the 440-yard relay team to victory. She also took second in the 100-yard and the 50-yard dashes.

Braun expressed thanks to all who helped in any way to stage the meet, which was worked up on about a week's notice.

T.G. & Y., Knight Pharmacy, and Big Spring Hardware, all contributed to the concession stands.

Astro-Fighters Break Streak

HOUSTON (AP) — Atlanta scored three runs in the first inning and George Stone made them stand up as the Braves snapped Houston's 10-game winning streak with a 5-4 victory Saturday night in a game marred by a free-for-all.

Orlando Cepeda doubled in the first run for Atlanta and Felix Millan singled in two more against loser Don Wilson, 7-7. Tony Gonzalez' sacrifice fly scored Stone with a run in the sixth and Gonzalez doubled in the ninth and scored on Clete Boyer's single.

Stone, who came out of the fight in the second inning with a swollen eye, scattered eight hits and gave only an unearned run to raise his record to 7-2.

The fisticuffs erupted when Stone sacrificed and was tagged out by Wilson along the first base line. Stone was knocked down in the collision and came up swinging. Wilson retaliated, both dugouts emptied and for about two minutes the infield was filled with swinging, shoving players.

Cepeda, who squared off against Doug Rader of the Astros, had to be restrained in the next inning when he attempted to charge the Houston dugout.

Too Rough

Bruce Crampton, charging to overtake Charles Coody in the Cleveland Open, wandered into this wilderness and took a triple bogey on the razorback 8th hole. He finished the third round with 204, only two strokes behind Coody.

Seagren Barely Misses 18 Ft.

MIAMI (AP) — Handsome Bob Seagren—seeking to break through one of the athletic world's biggest psychological barriers—twice cleared the pole vault bar at 18 feet, ¾ inch Saturday, only to tip it off in his plunging drop to earth.

Clearing 17-6 easily as his chief rival, John Pennel, dropped out at that level, Seagren called for the bar to be raised atop the magic 18 feet.

On his first try, running into a hindering breeze, he seemed to be well across but as he fell he brushed the bar lightly with his arm and it quivered, then toppled.

The second time the California golden boy made bodily contact on his descent and as he walked back he told a friend: "I'll make it next time." But his third effort was his worst.

"It was a great disappointment," Seagren said. "It was discouraging to come so close in two efforts, then blow it on the third."

Declaring that he was getting tired of trying to realize his 18-foot dream, Seagren said he planned to retire after the U.S.-Russian meet in Los Angeles.

Pennel, who topped Seagren's 17-9 world record with a leap of 17-10¼ at Sacramento, Calif., a week ago, was never close on his three tries at 17-6.

Seagren said his first vault was his best.

"I felt that I was well over the bar," he said, "but I drifted a little to the right and flailed my arms like I was playing a drum. I gave it a good effort but it was not to be."

With a driving burst in the last 30 yards, unheralded ivory rockett of Southern Illinois nipped the favored John Carlos at the wire to win the 100-yard dash in 9.3 seconds.

"Carlos was pouring it on," Crockett said, "but I started coming through 70 yards into the race. I felt it right there."

The AAU record of 45.8 seconds for the 440-yard run was broken twice in the second heat and tied in the first of the preliminaries.

Tommie Turner of Murray State University and Larry James, unattached sprinter from Villanova, both were clocked at 45.7 in the last yeat, topping the meet record of 45.8 set by Ulis Williams in 1963.

In the first heat, Lee Evans of San Jose State equaled the meet mark.

The finals are scheduled Sunday.

Neal Steinhauer putted the 16-pound shot 67 feet, 4 inches, falling just one inch short of Randy Matson's meet record. Matson, who holds the world mark of 71-5½, finished second with a top heave of 66-6½.

Leon Coleman of the Southern California Striders and Willie Davenport of the Houston Striders, both equaled the meet 120-yard high hurdle record of 13.3 set by Davenport in 1966 and tied by him in 1968. Coleman was the winner in a photo.

Arthur Ashe methodically took out the aging but valiant Pancho Gonzales in the fourth round of the men's singles in the Wimbledon tennis championships in England Saturday. Ashe Beats Tiring Pancho, Three U.S. Netters Advance

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) —Arthur Ashe, the 25-year-old from Richmond, Va., blotted out Pancho Gonzales' hopes of becoming the second oldest man to win Wimbledon Saturday and after his four-set victory admitted:

"Sixty per cent of it was age. If Pancho had been one step quicker on each shot, the match might have gone the other way."

The oldest Wimbledon champion so far is Arthur Gore, who was 41 years, six months and two days when he won in 1909. Pancho will be 41 years, one month and 25 days on July 5 when the 1969 finals are played.

Ashe gained the quarter-finals by beating Pancho, Mexican-born tennis artist from Los Angeles, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3. And until fatigue took command in the third set, the veteran always looked capable of pulling it out.

Pancho thrilled the center court crowd with some fantastic retrieving shots and flashing winners in the second set, but tired visibly in the third and from then had little chance.

YANKS ADVANCE

Two other Americans joined Ashe in the quarter-finals. They are Clark Graebner, the power-server from New York, who defeated Andres Gimeno, the Spanish professional, and Bob Lutz, the 21-year-old student from Los Angeles, who beat the eager Australian teen-ager John Alexander.

There were three U.S.-Australia clashes in the fourth round, and Lutz was the only American winner.

The others, between Stan Smith and Rod Laver and Dennis Ralston and Tony Roche, both went to the Australians in five setters. With a little U.S. luck, both could have gone the other way.

OTHER WINNERS

The others through to the quarter-finals are John Newcombe, last winner of Wimbledon before it went Open last year, who beat fellow Australian Fred Stolle, 6-4, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3; Cliff Drysdale of South Africa, who beat Roy Emerson of Australia 6-4, 6-8, 0-6, 6-3, 9-7; and Tom Okker, the young Dutchman who had the easiest match of the round in disposing of Bobby Wilson, the veteran Briton, 11-9, 6-4, 6-2.

Peaches Bartkowicz and Julie Heldman pulled off a big upset in the women's doubles, defeating the second seeded pair, Mrs. Billie Jean King and Rosemary Casals.

Mrs. King, of Long Beach, Calif., and Miss Casals, of San Francisco, had both won singles matches earlier.

In the quarter-finals Laver plays Drysdale, Lutz meets Ashe, Newcombe plays Okker, and Graebner plays Roche.

Nancy Richey's Temper Flares, But She Wins

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) —Nancy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., was involved in a stormy scene Saturday before defeating Karen Krantzcke of Australia 4-6, 6-3, 7-5 and moving into the women's quarter-finals of the Wimbledon tennis championship.

In the 11th game of the final set Miss Richey double-faulted and was within a point of dropping her service.

She didn't like the umpire's decision and when Miss Krantzcke, who is eight inches taller than the American girl, said: "Aren't you going to continue?"

Miss Richey answered: "Shut up. You can take as long as you like over service."

The Australian waited a little longer and then said: "How long are you allowed to wait?"

"Shut up," Miss Richey shouted. "Big as you are, shut up."

A spokesman of the championships said afterwards that Capt. Mike Gibson, the tournament referee, had called for a report on the incident and had asked to see Miss Richey.

Gibson declined comment later.

Miss Richey and her partner, Winnie Shaw of Scotland, later scratched from the women's doubles. An official said it was because Miss Richey is still troubled by a leg injury.

Hendrick's Blow Rescues Orioles

BALTIMORE (AP) — Elrod Hendricks' three-run homer featured a four-run sixth inning rally that carried the red-hot Baltimore Orioles a 6-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers Saturday.

The Orioles, who have won 14 of their last 17 games, entered the sixth trailing Denny McLain 4-2, but with one out and one on, McLain left in the sweltering 98 degree heat.

Dave Johnson later made it 4-3 with a sacrifice fly and Hendricks hit his fifth homer with two out off reliever Daryl Patterson, 0-1, to put the Orioles ahead in the nationally-televised contest.

The victory put Baltimore 10 games ahead of second place Boston and 13½ in front of Detroit's defending American League champions in the East Division.

Worm Finally Turns As Devils Win First Game

It's a long, long season that has no turning, and it finally turned for the Devils Saturday night in the National Little League.

They upset the Lions 18-17 in a slugfest, and it touched off a wild celebration for the youngsters who had dropped 18 straight without a victory. Even the Lions were reasonably happy about it.

The Devils had put a six and five-run innings back to back and seemingly had it sacked up when the Lions broke loose for five runs in the last inning. It then took a three-run rally to retrieve the victory. John Wright, Don Addy, Hugh Porter, Jackie Romine each had two hits for the victors, and John Miller took a liking to Devil pitching with three hits, while Bobby Doe and Jerry Currie had two each.

Russell Felts was the winning pitcher, Bobby Doe the loser.

Two Homers Win For Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — Leadoff home runs by Don Young in the third inning and Willie Smith in the sixth sparked the Chicago Cubs to a 3-1 victory Saturday over the St. Louis Cardinals behind Bill Hand's three-hit pitching.

Smith pounded his sixth homer to break a 1-1 tie and the Cubs added an insurance run in the seventh when Don Kessinger singled, moved to second on a sacrifice and scored on Ron Santo's single.

Hands, 8-6, had a one-hit shutout going into the sixth when Curt Flood opened with a single and scored on Lou Brock's double. But Hands, who struck out eight, fanned Vada Pinson and Joe Torre and retired Tim McCarver on a fly to get out of the inning.

Close Games In Basketball Loop

Two exceedingly close games Thursday closed out last week's basketball competition in the league organized by the Citywide Recreation program. Two more are on tap for Monday when Team No. 1 meets Team No. 2 at 7 p.m. and Team No. 6 meets Team No. 8 at 8 p.m. in the Runnels gym.

No. 8 defeated No. 1 by a 72-70 count Thursday. At first, players thought the score was tied at the end of regulation time, but a recheck put No. 1 two points ahead. Delnor Poss was top scorer with 32, while Jimmy Farris led No. 1 with 27. In the second game, Team No. 3 closed fast on No. 5 but lost 73-71. Tommy Butler poured in 34 points for No. 3 and James Brown led the No. 5 team with 20.

Bob Clark Sacks NCAA Golf Title

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Cool, steady golf paid off Saturday for blond Bob Clark, as the junior from California State at Los Angeles won the 72nd NCAA Golf Championship.

Clark's score was 298 for the 72 holes, 18 over Broadmoor's tough par. But the 22-year-old California stuck to his guns as his closest rivals faltered in the finishing holes.

Ruth Jessen Is Leading

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — Plucky Ruth Jessen broke away from a field with a 75 Saturday and grabbed a two-stroke lead after the third round of the $30,000 U.S. Women's Open Golf championship.

The blonde Seattle-born veteran pro threatened to widen the gap even further with a sizzling 34 on the front nine, but fell to 41 on the backside for a 54-hole total of 220, one over par on the sun-baked, par 73 Scenic Hills Country Club layout.

First round leader Peggy Wilson also had 75 and maintained a grip on her ultimate dream of winning this most coveted championship in women's golf, with a three round total of 222.

But second-round lead Jo Ann Prentice, who started the day at two under, one shot in front of Miss Jessen, wilted in the 99 degree heat and wound up with 79 for 223 and a tie with charging Kathy Whitworth, who shot 69, and little Sandra Haynie who came in with 74.

IRON MAN

Williams May Beat Record Today For Straight Games

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams' head always seems too small for his body.

The opposite too often is true of some major league baseball stars of far less talent and, certainly, far less durability than the lean, sweet-swinging Chicago Cub outfielder.

Barring bad weather or injury, Williams will shatter Stan Musial's National League consecutive game record of 895 in Sunday's finale of a twin bill against, most fittingly, Musial's St. Louis Cardinal team.

That will mark the 896th straight game for the nine-season star, last missing from the Cub lineup Sept. 21, 1963.

Sunday's "Billy Williams Day" before an expected 40,000 in unbelievable zany Wrigley Field catches the coolest Cub of them all mildly excited.

"This will be my second biggest baseball thrill," said Williams, who celebrated his 31st birthday on June 15. "Strangely, my first also involved Stan Musial.

"That was in the 1962 All-Star Game at Wrigley Field, my second full Cub season, when Manager Freddie Hutchinson sent me into left field to replace Musial. I'll always remember the field announcer saying 'Williams now playing left field in place of Musial.'

"I hope I don't get too shook up Sunday, especially for the second game which is supposed to follow the ceremonies, whatever they may be.

"Actually, I'm expecting my third biggest baseball thrill also this year — when we get into the World Series."

Williams will get shook up all right. Fans, who have been wearing Billy Williams buttons since June 20, have been in a state of daily hysteria all week at the north side Palace of Pandemonium.

The buttons sold at 25 cents each, the money going into scholarship funds at two Alabama high schools in the area where Billy and his wife, Shirley, were raised.

Williams, also named to All-Star teams in 1965 and 1964, came closest to having his iron man skein shattered at Cincinnati two weekends ago.

He fouled a ball off his right instep and actually missed the starting lineup in three games. But Manager Leo Durocher kept the string alive by inserting Williams as a pinch-hitter.

Does his wiry, whip-like body ever get tired and ache for a rest on the bench?

"Over the past years, you feel like you need a rest," said Billy. "But I'm paid to play and that's what I've always tried to do. I'll tell you, though: winning is a great tonic. When you finish third, like we did the last two years, and when you may take it all, like this year, it takes your mind off weariness."

Williams, a .290 career hitter, admits he sometimes frets that his accomplishments seem taken for granted while other players get the headlines for sporadic hot performances.

It probably is the price the man from Whisler, Ala., has to pay for his lack of flamboyance and for being the quietest man in the Cub clubhouse.

His philosophy, however, probably explains why he has worn so long and so well in the big time. It's this:

I try to leave each game right here in the park instead of worrying about it all night.

"Sometimes you can't do that, but you want to try."

This Is The Year Of The Rabbit And Trunk-Slammers

CLEVELAND (AP) — This is professional golf's year of the rabbit.

The late Tony Lema put the name to them, these faceless young men on the fringe of the PGA tour who fight for spots in the rich tournaments in Monday qualifying rounds.

"They're always hanging around nibbling at the lettuce," Lema said.

A new name has come into being this year. It's doubtful that they care for it, either. Trunk slammer.

You can see them every Monday. The ones who fail to make it stalk to the parking lot, fling the clubs into the trunk of the car, slam the lid and drive on to the next spot.

The odds are long, long against them. But the lure is great.

About $6.5 million in prize money is up for grabs on the pro tour this year. In one eight-week period, starting two weeks ago, $1.3 million in official money is in the balance.

BIG PAYOFF

And should one of them break through to a major title, as in the case of Lee Trevino a year ago and Orville Moody this year in the United States Open, endorsements, appearances and fringe benefits can amount to $1 million.

But, oh, those odds. To be eligible for qualification at most regular tour events, the player must graduate from PGA school in West Palm Beach, Fla., surviving a demanding tournament there in which only the top few players are chosen.

Then they go on the tour. And attempt to qualify.

Exempt from qualification are the top 60 money winners of the previous year, all money winners in the tournament the week before, the top 25 money winners in that particular tournament the year before, all former PGA and Open champions, plus eight sponsor exemptions. It varies, but that's the normal formula.

LIMITED

With the usual field limited to 144, that leaves only about 20 spots open for the rabbits.

Each Monday some 150-200 of them go out and fight for those 20 spots in the 18-hole test.

More and more are making it. This year alone, there have been nine first time winners. Since the start of the tour a year ago there have been 21.

"Some of our more established players are getting a little older," was the succinct observation of Joe Dey, PGA tour commissioner.

"It's the money," said George Archer, the gangling Masters champion.

ATTRACTS MORE

"Look, in the last five years I've made almost $400,000," the 6-foot-6, 29-year-old said. "These kids see figures like that and think 'Hey, that's pretty good. I think I'll go out and get some of that.'"

Jack Nicklaus has his own observations.

"The way golf is developing, it's drawing better and better players. You're now getting athletes, guys who in years before would play football and baseball and basketball in college and, if they were good enough, go on to be professionals in those sports. Now these same people are playing golf.

"Consequently you're getting bigger, stronger, better players.

"In years to come it might not be unusual to see scores in the 50s."

Gipson Leads West To Victory In Atlanta Tilt

ATLANTA (AP) — The favored West, refusing to wilt in 96 degree-weather, rode fourth-quarter touchdowns by Bill Enyart and Paul Gipson to a 14-10 comeback conquest of the East Saturday night in the Coaches All-America Football Game.

Gipson, Houston's standout heading for a pro career with the Atlanta Falcons, scored on a one-yard burst with seven minutes left that gave the West its first lead.

Enyart, Oregon State fullback signed by the Buffalo Bills, powered over from the two six minutes earlier for the West's first touchdown.

The West's winning drive of 61-yards was helped by a pair of pass interference penalties against the East. Jim Marsalis of Tennessee State was called for one of the penalties, of 29 yards, and the West picked up 34 more yards on a penalty against Al Brenner of Michigan State.

The first West score was set up by a 21-yard pass by Bobby Douglass of Kansas to Jim Lawrence of Southern California. It was Douglass' first completion after 12 misses.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

Dempsey Battered Willard

NEW YORK (AP)—It was a hot day in the early summer and the blazing sun cut through the haze on Broadway. The asphalt was soft underfoot. Ice cream carts clogged sidewalk traffic on 49th Street.

Jack Dempsey sat in the dark coolness of his midtown restaurant, talking about another blistering 4th of July afternoon 50 years ago on the shores of Maumee Bay in Toledo, Ohio, when he won the world heavyweight boxing title from big Jess Willard.

"They said it was 102 at ringside," said Dempsey. "I don't know how hot it was. All I remember is Jack Kearns (his manager) telling me he could lick the guy himself. Then I climbed through the ropes and took one look at Jess. I said to myself, 'you're not fighting for the title, you're fighting for your life'."

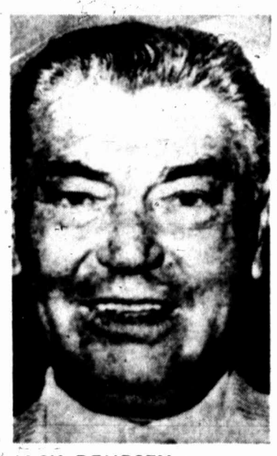

Willard was called the Giant of Pottawatomie County (Kan.). He stood 6-foot-6¼ inches and had weighed as much as 300 pounds. For this fight he was down to 245. Dempsey, 6-1 and 187½, was giving away 57½ pounds and six inches in reach but he had the big edge in age for he was just 24 and Willard was 38.

They fought in Toledo because New York was between boxing laws at the time. The Frawley Law that permitted bouts but no decisions has expired. The Walker Law, the basis for current rules, wasn't passed until 1920.

Ringside seats sold for $60. At least, that's what was marked on the tickets. Tex Richard, the promoter, may have done some last minute price slashing because only 19,650 turned up and 50,000 had been expected.

Willard, the defending champion, had only one real fight and a few exhibitions since he won the title from a reclining Jack Johnson in Havana in 1915, a fight that Johnson claims in his recently-published autobiography that he threw. Richard gave Willard $100,000 and Dempsey $27,500. According to Nat Fleischer's Ring Guide, Willard was the 6-5 favorite. Other sources claim Dempsey was a 7-5 choice.

"I thought I could win," said Dempsey, clenching a cigar in his fist. "He had been out for about three years and he didn't take the best care of himself. He was much older than I was."

JACK DEMPSEY
. . . Fighting for your life

Dempsey, in those days a tough pug with a bull neck, and close cropped dark hair and flashing dark eyes, came out in a crouch. Willard, an ungainly giant, stood up straight making an ideal target.

Ringsiders stripped off their jackets and watched in their shirtsleeves with the old stiff-edged straw skimmers to shade them from the sun. The referee, a Toledo man named Ollie Pecord, wore a slouch cap.

After a minute and a half of cautious sparring, with Willard's long jab unable to find the bobbing Dempsey, the challenger leaped to the attack with a furious barrage. Down went Willard.

Seven times in that first round a badly beaten Willard was on the canvas. Each time Dempsey, fighting with the fury of an untamed animal, stood over him waiting to smash him off his feet again.

At the seventh knockdown (they had no three-knockdown rule in those days), the referee counted out Willard. Dempsey leaped with joy and scrambled out of the ring on the way to his dressing room.

"I was about 20 or 30 feet away when I heard Kearns shouting 'come back, come back'. They got me back just in time before the next bell."

According to accounts of the fight, the timekeeper, Warren Barbour, later a U.S. senator from New Jersey, claimed he had rung the bell at the count of seven. The referee had not heard him but, advised of his error, called the fighters back for another round. There were reports that Kearns had bet $10,000 on Dempsey to score a first round knockout at 10-1.

"Kearns claimed he lost the bet," said Dempsey. "But I don't know if he ever bet anything."

Blood streamed from several cuts on Willard's face. His right eye was closed and two front teeth were missing but he fought on gamely through the second and the third rounds without going down again. At the end of the third his second threw in the towel.

"I knew it was just a question of time," said Dempsey. "He had a broken jaw at the end of the third round."

Dempsey scoffed at an old story that he had some foreign object in his gloves on that day in Toledo.

"Willard put his tape on in the ring so did I," said Dempsey. "He examined my hands and I examined his. You couldn't put any hard material in the glove or you'd break your hand."

In later years, Dempsey gave Willard a job selling whiskey. That reminded the Manassa Mauler of a story.

"I gave some of that whiskey to my dad," he said. "After he took the first gulp he said 'Harry (he always called me Harry) that's the first time my feet have been warm in 50 years.

"My Dad always said I was going to be a millionaire. I finally got a million and I went to a bank and got certified checks—10 for $100,000 each. When I showed it to my Dad he said 'is that real?' When I told him it was on the level he said 'if it is, you'd better put it in a bank before somebody takes it away from you'."

Dempsey still keeps up his interest in sports. An arthritic condition in his right leg gives him some trouble but, for a man who was 74 on June 24, he is remarkably fit. He still has his hair. His body is straight and when he clenches that left fist you still can see that old fire in his eyes. At 215 pounds (only 30 over his fighting weight) he remains the biggest name in boxing, one of the last of the super stars of sports golden age.

Jack is a seven-time grandfather, all girls. His two daughters live in California. A stepdaughter, Barbara Pieatelli, daughter of his fourth wife, was married recently.

Disraeli Is Race Favorite

A field of eight toprated entries will go to the post Sunday in the renewal of the "Flying Charm Allowance Stakes" at a distance of 870-yards. Honoring one of the greatest 870-yard mares ever to run at Ruidoso Downs, the slate will present a sentimental favorite in Senor Sam, a son of the famous mare.

Disraeli, with Walter Hodges up, is coming off a win but must face the strong challenge of Discriminator who streaked to a three-length victory in his last outing at this distance. Dawes Magic, with Johnny Cox aboard, will get strong backing in the three-year old and up field.

Others to go to the post are Top Baldy, Mona's Ben Jay, Tubac Kid and Diamond Master. The purse will be $3,000 added.

The co-feature of the day, "The Bob Wagner Purse" is a $4,000 to $5,000 claimer for four-year olds and up over one mile, honoring the popular sports editor of the Roswell Record. Vermejo, with James Curry in the saddle has been top-weighted al... with Air Duty, who is stepping up in distance from his last six furlong outing.

Dimmer, with Jerry Nicodemus in the irons, took top honors in his last mile race but is moving up in class and will carry a light weight of 112.

Homer Gives Sens Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ken McMullen drilled a leadoff homer in the 10th inning Saturday, giving the Washington Senators a 4-3 comeback victory over the Boston Red Sox.

McMullen slammed his sixth homer of the season over the left center field fence off reliever Vicente Romo, climaxing a late inning flurry for the Senators.

Trailing 3-0 in the eighth, they struck for two runs—one of them Frank Howard's 23rd homer—to chase Boston starter Ray Culp, then tied the game in the ninth with an unearned run before Romo pitched out of a bases-loaded, none out jam.

Indians Cuff Yanks

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians cuffed New York rookie Bill Burbach for three runs in the first inning Saturday and went on to batter the Yankees 7-3 behind a 13-hit attack.

Singles by Larry Brown, Tony Horton and Ken Harrelson, a walk, a wild pitch and Russ Snyder's sacrifice fly gave the Indians a 3-0 first inning jump and knocked out Burbach, 4-5.

They stretched the lead to 6-1 in the third against Ken Johnson on a walk, singled by Snyder, Max Alvis and winning pitcher Dick Ellsworth, and Jose Cardenal's squeeze bunt.

Soft-Spoken Hank Aaron Is Touted As Super Super-Star

ATLANTA (AP) — Soft-spoken Hank Aaron, who goes almost effortlessly about his work as one of baseball's all-time greats, may never receive the public adulation of a Willie Mays or a Mickey Mantle.

But the 35-year-old slugger for the Atlanta Braves is ranked by his teammates and rivals as a super super-star for his hitting, fielding and baserunning.

"I've been recognized by the players, and that is important to me," said Aaron, a shoo-in for selection to the National League All-Star team for the 15th straight year.

"I couldn't change my style to make me more popular with the fans," Aaron added. "That wouldn't be me. I just don't make basket catches and things like that."

Aaron does just about everything else that a baseball player can do, however, and he does it so flawlessly that Atlanta fans used to think he was loafing.

"Hank Aaron is the most consistently great player I have ever seen," said Clete Boyer, Braves' third baseman who was a close friend of the Yankees' Mickey Mantle when both played with the New York team.

"He's a super-super player," said Boyer. "He's the kind of player that other players come out to watch hit batting practice.

AGELESS

Aaron is such a standout, Boyer added, that "nobody on the team gets jealous of him. They know how good he is. And he's a great person-the kind of a guy you wish everyone was like."

Aaron, at the age when most players are starting to fade, is having one of his best seasons. He's batting .329, and had slammed 19 homers and driven in 40 runs through Thursday's game.

The lithe veteran in his 16th major league season is fourth on baseball's home run chart with 529 in his career.

He usually leads the Braves in stolen bases, had baseball's highest lifetime batting average for active players with a .314 mark going into the 1969 campaign, and needs just about 125 hits to reach his goal of 3,000 hits.

The honors, the $100,000-a-year salary and the records haven't changed him. He's still the most amiable super-star in baseball.

Vick was three for four in leading the Pirates, and Wiley, Anderson, David Travis and Robin Travis each had two hits. In fact, the top five of the Pirate batting order had 11 of their 12 hits. WHAT'S THE LIMIT?

Brutus Hamilton's Dream Records Long Since Broken

By JAMES O. DUNAWAY
Written For The Associated Press

Early in 1934, Brutus Hamilton, the great and beloved track coach of the University of California, set the track and field world on its ear with a list of "ultimate" performances.

The list was greeted with amazement. The world record for the shot put stood at 53 feet, 1-¾ inches, yet here was Hamilton saying that one day it might reach 57-1. Impossible!

Hamilton also reckoned that other miracle men might someday pole vault an inch over 15 feet, run a mile in 4:01, and even high jump 6-11¼. All were obviously impossible.

But somebody forgot to tell the athletes. While the experts were still scoffing at the idea of a human being putting a 16-pound shot 57-1, Jack Torrance, a shot putter at Louisiana State University, went to work on it.

'IMPOSSIBLE'

Within a few months, the 6-3, 304-pound Torrance broke the world record three times. And on August 5, 1934, in Oslo, Norway, he achieved the "impossible"—a put of 57 feet, 1 inch. That was only the beginning. Hamilton's goals seemed to spur a wave of record-breaking, in Ann Arbor, Michigan. Owens broke the world records in the broad jump, the 220-yard dash and the 220-yard low hurdles and tied the record in the 100-yard dash, all in the space of an hour and ten minutes.

In the next few years, Hamilton's fantastic ultimates were bettered in the high hurdles, the javelin, and the pole vault. It took World War II to put a damper on the record-breaking.

The world's athletes resumed the assault with a vengeance in the 1950's. Even barriers beyond Hamilton's marks (and even more "impossible") came crashing down.

AND THEN 60

Parry O'Brien put the shot past 60 feet. Impossible! Roger Bannister ran a sub-four-minute mile. Impossible! Charlie Dumas cleared seven feet in the high jump. Impossible!

What's more, the breakthroughs by O'Brien, Bannister and Dumas started an avalanche. Today, the four-minute mile, the 60-foot shot put, and the seven-foot high jump barriers have all been surpassed more than 300 times.

By 1962, all but two of Hamilton's "ultimates" had been eclipsed. Nothing daunted, he made another set of predictions, again setting the standards "impossibly" high.

What happened? You guessed it.

Within a year, John Pennel of Northeast Louisiana State College became the first athlete to break one of Hamilton's new standards by pole vaulting to a new world record of 16 feet, 6¾ inches. A month later, Adolph Plummer of New Mexico ran the 440-yard dash in 44.9 seconds, a tenth faster than Hamilton's year-old prediction of 45 flat, and the race was on again.

NEW ONES BROKEN

Today, only seven years later, all but four of Hamilton's 1962 predictions have been equalled or surpassed. In the long jump, Bob Beamon's amazing leap at Mexico City in the 1968 Olympics passed the 28- and 29-foot barriers literally in a single bound of 29 feet, 2½ inches. More than twenty pole vaulters have bettered 17 feet and are shooting for 18. And the only way one of our sub-45-second quarter milers could make the 1968 U.S. Olympic team was as a relay runner! Will the record-breaking ever stop? Can man keep running faster and faster, jumping and throwing higher and farther? Will there be a three-minute mile one day? A 100-foot shot put? A ten-foot high jump?

Impossible, you say? Okay, but not too loud. Remember, they laughed at Brutus Hamilton, too.

BIGGER, BUT NOT TOO BIG

Pressure On To Increase Stock Block Displacement

NEW YORK (AP) — Strong new pressure is being brought on the United States Auto Club to raise the cubic inch displacement for stock block engines used in the Indianapolis 500 race.

Part of the pressure is coming from Andy Granatelli, a Speedway driver and car builder for 24 years; Dan Gurney, whose stock blockers have been the only successful ones in the Memorial Day classic in recent years; and the automakers themselves.

Granatelli, the oil-additive king, gained his first victory at Indy this year when Mario Andretti drove a Brawner-Hawk turbocharged Ford to victory.

The USAC rules committee, responding to pressure, plans to meet at Indianapolis in July for a complete review of all championship car engine and chassis specifications.

The current displacement limit on stock block powerplants for championship cars is 320 cubic inches. An increase to 366 cubic inches—the level recently adopted by stock car sanctioning bodies to become effective in 1971—is sought.

HAPPY MEDIUM

The USAC rules committee is headed by Bill Taylor, who supervises the USAC stock car division. Taylor was a leading advocate of the change to smaller engines for his own circuit and for the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR). The aim in this case was to cut the costs of racing by ruling out the big 426, 427 and 428 cubic inch engines that have dominated stock car racing for years.

The idea now, one source said, is to arrive at an engine formula that could be adaptable to most forms of auto racing—Indianapolis (or championship) stock cars and the sports-racing cars. The 366 cubic inch level seems to be a happy medium.

Furney, who pioneered the modern use of factory-production engines at Indy, has said he will not take another stock block powerplant to the Speedway unless the displacement is increased.

O.K. BUT NO RACE

Gurney finished second to Andretti this year and also was runnerup to Bobby Unser in 1968, both times in stock cars.

"The stock block engines simply do not have the power to compete with the turbocharged Fords and Offenhausers," Gurney says. "If the stock block is to be competitive in championship racing they have to make it bigger. If they don't I won't take another one to the Speedway."

Granatelli introduced a stock block Plymouth at Indy in May. With veteran driver Art Pollard checking it out, the car lapped at speeds that would have made the race, but Granatelli sidlined it.

Gurney's 5.25 stock block engine produced 560 to 580 horsepower, depending on attachments and tuning. Granatelli's Plymouth was rated at about 560 horsepower. The turbocharged Fords and Offys rated a whopping 675 to 750.

Granatelli feels, however, that the stock block is the way to go at Indy in the future.

"The stock block engine should be a displacement of 366 cubic inches, the recommended size for 1971 stock car power plants," the rotund executive said. "There is no way it can be competitive at the Speedway in its present size."

By raising the limit, he added, "the automakers can intelligently plan a 366CID engine for stock car racing, for passenger car use and for Indy racing without having rules that vary a few inches and cost the manufacturers millions of dollars to meet."

COSTLY

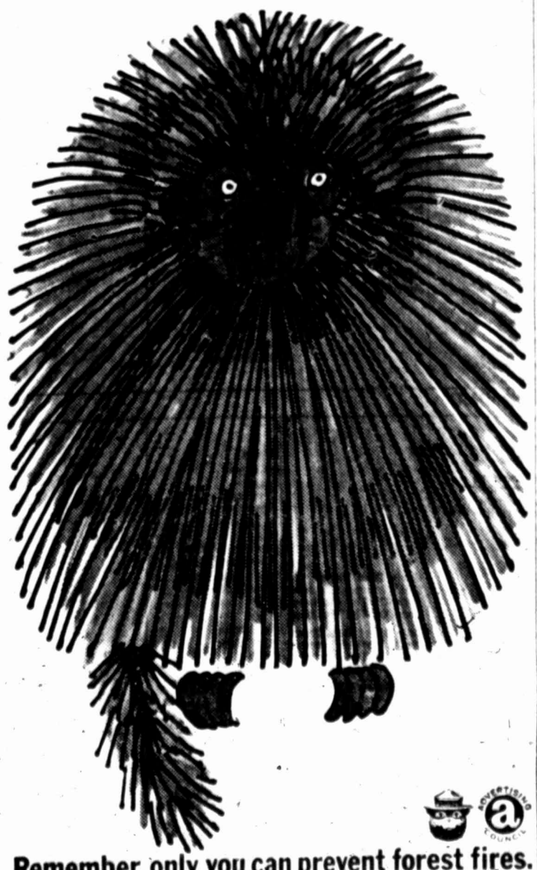

Granatelli said turbo Ford and turbo-Offy engines cost from $30,000 to $50,000 each.

Ford Motor Company executives already have hinted that they no longer will produce special, exotic engines for Indy.

Gurney also would like to see engine sizes reduced in the rich Canadian-American Challenge Cup series for Group 7 sports-racing machines. This road-racing series presently has no restrictions on engine size, or what can be attached to them to increase horsepower. Prices for the basic Chevrolet 427 cubic inch dry sump engine that has dominated the Can-Am series since its inception run more than $20,000.

Roger Penske, whose cars have been the only American threat to the European builders in the Can-Am series, already has said he will not field a car in that group next year unless costs are reduced. He also favors the 366 maximum.

His only protection against fire is you. Please.

Phils Win On Grand Slam

MONTREAL (AP) — Johnny Briggs's grand slam homer climaxed a six-run sixth inning burst and led the Philadelphia Phillies past Montreal 13-8 Saturday for their fourth straight victory.

The Phillies trailed 6-3 when Ron Stone opened the sixth with a single off Montreal starter Bill Stoneman. An error and a walk filled the bases.

Stoneman hit Tony Taylor with a pitch, forcing in one run, and went to a 3-1 count on Cookie Rojas before being yanked for reliever Elroy Face. Face completed a run-costing walk to Rojas and then was tagged for Briggs' grand slam.

The Expos closed the gap to 9-8 on Adolfo Phillips' homer in the bottom of the sixth and Bobby Wine's run-scoring single in the seventh. But Philadelphia countered with a run in the eighth and drew away with three more in the ninth, Briggs driving in the last run with his third single.

BOB BROCK FORD

500 W. 4th 267-7424

It's a big sedan that's a little wagon.

It's the Volkswagen Squareback Sedan.

It's a little bigger than the VW bug. And a lot smaller than the VW bus. (Although it holds five people plus their luggage.)

So if you have a medium sized family, get a medium sized Squareback. It averages 29 miles on a gallon of gas. And that makes it a happy medium.

Swedish Teen Takes To Texas

Compares Cultures

Miss Monica Barrdunge is enjoying her first trip to the United States where she will spend most of her vacation time in Texas. As a guest in Big Spring homes, she will have the opportunity to see how West Texans live in a town which is comparable in size to her hometown in Sweden. For the most part, she is enjoying the trip, but finds the hot Texas temperatures a far cry from the cool summer weather in Sweden.

By JO BRIGHT

Miss Monica Barrdunge is having her first heapin' taste of Texas hospitality —and it may be the last. Not that she isn't finding it palatable. It's just that seeing a rodeo is pretty expensive when you come all the way from Sweden to do it.

"I will probably never be in the United States again," says the slender, 17-year-old blond from Harnosand. "Traveling is fun, but too expensive!"

With charming candor, Miss Barrdunge thus dismisses thoughts of future visits, and proceeds to make the most of this one. For the past week she has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Boyd, 2711 Lynn, and, for the next two weeks, will be a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Pond, 2706 Crestline.

She is traveling under a Lions Club "exchange" hospitality program in which children of club members visit homes of members in other countries. She arrived in Dallas by chartered plane with about 150 other young Scandinavians, most of whom were to remain in Texas for several weeks. When the visits with their "adopted" families must end, the young people will reconvene in Dallas. On July 13, they will fly to Washington, D.C., for a week before returning to Europe.

Miss Barrdunge, who earned the money for her trip, was born and reared in Harnosand, where the population is about 25,000. She has one sister, Malou, 11, and a brother, Mats, 13. Her father travels for a company that sells menswear, and her mother, like most women in Sweden, does not hold a job. (Monica believes the main reason for this is low salaries.)

Modernly mini-skirted, Miss Barrdunge is entering the equivalent of the high school senior year in the United States. In Sweden, students are required to go to school for nine years, then have the choice of going three more.

"I don't know if I will go to the university," she said. "I really don't know what I will do with my life yet — I think I'm too young to know."

Possibly, this indecision is typical of all 17-year-olds. However, Miss Barrdunge appears more sophistocated than her American counterpart. She noted that in Sweden parents are more lenient than those in the United States.

"Our parents are not as strict," she explained. "Young people are more free to do as they please, and we are allowed to stay out later and use our own judgment."

To her way of thinking, this is good —because there are lots of things she likes to do. One thing she cannot do, however, is drive a car. One must be 18 years old to get a license in Sweden.

The family has a six-room summer house six miles from Harnosand where the scenery is beautiful and there is plenty of recreation. During the winter months, the family lives in an apartment, the most popular style of living in Sweden. Miss Barrdunge says she does not like athletics (for herself) other than a bit of volleyball and snow skiing.

Like teenagers everywhere, she likes dancing, movies and television.

"Many of our films are what you call 'sexy' so, of course, there is a rating system," she said. "There are only a few that one must be 18 to see."

Two TV channels, (neither in color) serve Harnosand, and both show many foreign films, including English and American. The programs are televised from 6 to 11 p.m., although on occasion, an educational program will be aired during the day. Her favorite program is "High Chaparral."

Young women follow fashion the world over, and Miss Barrdunge is no exception.

"Our skirts are shorter, but we do not wear shorts," she explained. At the moment, T-shirts and midriff blouses are popular with Swedish girls. — and so is short hair — but Miss Barrdunge prefers long straight tresses like her own. Swedish males currently wear their hair longer than those in the United States, and hippie types are called 'Mods.'"

Before returning home, Miss Barrdunge would like to see the late President John F. Kennedy's grave in Arlington Cemetery.

"He was a popular figure in Sweden," she said, "and many felt his death as a personal loss."

Miss Barrdunge is a sensible and charming young woman who chooses her words wisely —and speaks them in English.

We're just about ready to tie big pink bow on June and s it on as a pretty hot packe. Some of us have been nembering back to the days fore air conditioning and it us all hot and uncomfortable ain . . . until we could get k into the coolness of our nes or offices.

Don't we suffer now if we're cool? All but the golfers. ey are a breed apart. It sn't matter how hot the rmometer says it is, the fer says it wasn't too hot the course. The breezes alys blow there, it seems.

By JO BRIGHT

The Friday change of command ceremonies at Webb AFB afforded the community to say "hi" to Col. and Mrs. Harrison Lobdell Jr. and "bye" to Col. and Mrs. William C. McGlothlin Jr. Officially, it was a "white glove" affair, but after the formalities, everyone relaxed and enjoyed the fine fellowship the occasion afforded. Talk flowed so freely, hardly knew which way to listen!

Turned first in the direction of John Otis Cole who always has something exciting brewing. John, (dressed in a Cardin suit from Paris) is now a member of the National Council of the Metropolitan Opera and has been busy the past year serving in this capacity while in New York. Such a tight schedule — he was leaving Friday for Dallas to attend an "international student" party hosted by Mrs. Clint Murchison Jr. It was to end at 3 p.m., and he planned to be in Houston that evening to attend the Royal Ballet with his mother, Mrs. Doris Chalk Cole. In August, John will be in Buenos Aires for the opera season, and for September, he has leased the Jose Greco villa at Marbella in southern Spain.

Chatted with Mr. and Mrs. Jay Banks, and she was getting ready to leave for Poolsville for a family reunion, then to Garland to see their daughter, Mrs. John E. Puckett, and Fort Worth to visit her sister, Mrs. C. L. Brown. The Jerry Worthys are ready to travel, too. They are off for a vacation at Mrs. J. Y. Robb's cabin at Cloudcroft before going to their farm at Donie where Jerry wants to rebuild a log cabin on the property.

The Dee Jon Davises, who have received the same happy news as the John Burgesses and Mr. and Mrs. Lorin McDowell Jr., still have a stack of granite from the demolished Crawford Hotel. Mrs. Davis got rid of her hotel souvenirs, as I did mine, but it may be left up to Clyde McMahon Jr. to do something with that granite. The Davises passed on the bad news that Reginald McDaniel (husband of the former Cinderette Benson) is in an Arlington hospital suffering from a broken back following an accident.

Mrs. Jerry Grimes said little sister, Nancy Thomas, is still in Eruope but will be back in August, and has some big plans for the fall. Big doings are in store, too, for Mr. and Mrs. Ted O. Groebl Sr., who are touring the Pacific Northwest on the way to the Shrine national convention in Seattle. They will stay under the shade of those Douglas firs a little longer by driving to Lake Louise in Canada.

Did you see those big Mexican paper flowers at the wedding buffet for the former Cynthia Pond at the home of Mrs. Ann Gibson Houser? They were made by young Susan and Lisa Simmons, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Simmons of Little Rock, and granddaughters of Dr. and Mrs. Jack Woodall and Mrs. Ethel Simmons. The girls, along with baby sister, Carrie, will be here with their grandparents most of the summer while mama, the former Linda Woodall, completes work on her master's thesis.

There are youngsters in the Houser home, too, as Ann enjoys the company of the Jerry Houser's children, Steven, Baron and Ed, while the parents are weekending in El Paso with Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Houser. The men's brother-in-law and sister, Maj. and Mrs. Don Brinegar and children will leave July 1 for a three-year stay with the Air Force in Italy.

The Don Newsoms, who will be waving goodbye Monday to son, Gary Don, as he leaves for the United States Military Academy at West Point, stayed home this weekend while her sister, Mrs. Abbe (Margy) Ledbetter and children, Abbe and Russell, went to Ruidoso with the children's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Keaton.

Leaving tomorrow is Mrs. Russell Scott and children, Renae and Sandy, of Palos Verses, Calif., who have brightened the week for grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Nalley. Scott had to remain on the coast where he is an experimental test pilot for North American-Rockwell.

Off to Mexico City is Mike Robinson, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Robinson, who will join a geological mapping expedition sponsored by the Mexican government and the University of Texas. Mike is finishing at the university and just returned from Italy where he did some work on a doctorate.

Miss Sharon Kay Stroup Is Married To Robert Griffin

The Fourteenth and Main Church of Christ was the setting Saturday morning for the wedding of Miss Sharon Kay Stroup and Robert Wayne Griffin.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stroup, 700 Scott Drive, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack M. Griffin, 1320 Stadium.

C. E. Higginbotham, a Church of Christ minister and grandfather of the bride, performed the ceremony before an altar adorned with twin basket arrangements of white gladioli and white daisies backed with emerald palms. A church chorus directed by Dan Conley sang "More," "The Lord Bless and Keep You" and "Faithful and True."

The bride was attired in a street-length gown of silk organza and Chantilly lace, with long tapered sleeves and contoured neckline enhancing the Empire bodice. Scalloped Chantilly lace formed a redingote effect, and a gathered trapese back flowed from the slender A-line silhouette. Her shoulder-length bouffant veil of illusion was held by an organza bow, and she carried a bouquet of white miniature daisies with white rosebud cascade.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Thomas R. South of Fort Worth, was the matron of honor. She wore an orange silk tailored A-line dress styled with rounded neckline dropping to a square in the back. The sleeveless style was accented at the back with buttons and two deep side pleats. Her headpiece was a Dior bow of matching fabric, and she carried a small French bouquet.

T. Sgt. Kenneth N. Green of San Antonio, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man, and ushers were Jimmy Griffin, brother of the bridegroom, and Thomas R. South of Fort Worth.

RECEPTION

The bridal couple was honored with a reception in the Blue Room of Cosden Country Club where Miss Teresa Lynn Griffin, sister of the bridegroom, attended the guest register.

Members of the house party were Miss Janet Cowart, Lamesa; Miss Tammi Amaon and Miss Carol Inzer, both of Abilene; Miss Donna Reid and Miss Ann Heith. Rice bags were distributed by Miss Gay Humphrey.

Silver appointments were used on a refreshment table covered with a white organdy floor-length cloth trimmed with white satin bells. Centering the table was a silver epergne holding a massive arrangement of white carnations, gladioli and greenery. The three-tiered white cake was separated with columns and topped with a miniature bride and groom.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Higginbotham of Ruidoso, N.M., and Mrs. Kenneth N. Green of San Antonio.

SCHOOLS

Both Mr. and Mrs. Griffin are graduates of Big Spring High School who attend Abilene Christian College. He is pitcher for the ACC baseball team, and during high school, was a member of the baseball and football teams.

For a wedding trip to Ruidoso, Mrs. Griffin chose to wear a white linen dress with black buttons and scarf of yellow and black. Her accessories were yellow patent. Upon returning, the couple will reside in Abilene.

A LOVELIER YOU

Beat Heat Wilt By Meticulous Bathing

By MARY SUE MILLER

Many queries about the effective use of deodorants come to this column's mailbox. And here's a case where the best way to answer a question is with a question: Do you know that perspiration is essentially without odor?

It becomes a problem only when it is excessive or when it is permitted to linger long enough on the skin to become invaded by bacteria. Perspiration odor is produced by bacteria, present on all skins and most active under warm, moist conditions.

According to the American Medical Association's Committee on Cutaneous Health and Cosmetics, "The primary means of controlling both bacterial growth on the skin and body odor is personal cleanliness. This, of course, indicates that bathing is a primary method."

It follows that deodorant cleansers and soaps are of great value. Results often are cumulative. For instance, the routine use of a creamy liquid anti-bacterial skin cleanser checks odor by markedly reducing the bacterial count for many hours after baths.

This does not mean that deodorant bath products displace others. They're big boosters, really. Underarm antiperspirants and deodorant body powders must never go unused. Indeed, in summer, several applications daily would not be too many. Not if you want to feel fresh. Be fresh!

Webb Windsock

By MRS. LARRY McLAIN

Thoughts of summer produce images of leisure and relaxing days basking in a lazy afternoon sun and pleasantly cool evening. But for Webb families the summer moves along not nearly so languidly.

One place that steps up business in the summer, rather than slows down, is the Webb Youth Center. It keeps kids running in third gear with a variety of summer activities. Ten-week sessions of lessons in archery, ceramics, sketching, hand crafts, golf, bowling, tennis, fencing and swimming provide a creative and athletic diversion for many of the young set. These classes will begin their fourth week tomorrow. Throughout the summer, of course, the center has a number of dances and other social gatherings planned.

Between classes, Webb youngsters patronize the national game by participating in the base Little League. The diamond on base has been lighted practically every night as the boys engage in great contests that would rival any major league game for excitement.

Not all the faces seen at the game under over-sized caps belong to the boys, however. Shining smiles, far too pretty to hide behind a catcher's mask, belong to the teams' sweethearts. Ranging in age from eight to twelve, the girls have a vital position to play on their team. At the games, they collect the donations to the League which constitute an important money-making source.

The girls take their job very seriously. Each penny collected counts as one vote for them in the race for League Sweetheart. Wearing their team's cap are Shara Baker, Scorpions; Patty Besaw, Tigers; Bonnie Godwin, Wildcats; Debbie Martin, Colts; Betty Stanley, Falcons; Terri Swenson, Ravens; Shelley Alexander, Sabres; Cathy Baranik, Rockets; Lisa Jones, T-Birds; Cathy Lagor, Starfighters; Linda Lang, Talons; Sandra Wallace, Comets.

It may appear that the kids have all the summer fun. That's not quite so. The moms and dads each have their own softball leagues so that the whole family can keep active during lazy summer days. So, it seems fitting that the base athletic department sponsor a Fourth of July softball tournament. The double elimination play begins Friday, July 4, on the base diamond and continues through Saturday night. The Webb team will host squads from Reese AFB, Dyess AFB, Cannon AFB, N.M., in addition to seven civilian teams from Lubbock, Abilene, Odessa, Midland, Lamesa and Big Spring. The first game starts at 2 p.m., Friday, and continues every two hours with the last game starting at 10 p.m. Competition resumes at 11 a.m., Saturday; the final game will begin at 9 p.m. after which trophies will be awarded. Everyone is invited and it is hoped the crowds will be large.

Texas! Discovering the Lone Star State with... Frank Oliver

The Old Stone Fort

Students of Texas History at the booming Stephen F. Austin State College at Nacogdoches don't have to go very far to see where much of it began. For, standing smack in the middle of the beautiful pine-studded campus in sharp contrast to the construction erupting on all sides is one of the earliest known buildings in East Texas . . . the Old Stone Fort.

In quiet confidence, the musty old museum has survived the dignities and indignities of nearly two centuries. It was built in 1779 as a trading post by an enterprising Spaniard, who saw the potential of East Texas even then. It was the most important structure in the New Philippines. Like the fabled salt mill, la Casa de Piedras ground out a continuous stream of Texas history down through the years under eight flags, from the royal banner of Spain to the Stars and Stripes. As a fort, it gave refuge to settlers escaping Indians and one another. It was a hostel for the weary, the Capitol for several abortive early republics, a government house (where Jim Bowie, Thomas Rush, Sam Houston and David Crockett took the oath of allegiance two months before Santa Anna's siege of the Alamo) and a jail. As a military headquarters, it frequently changed hands as the result of numerous battles that raged around the old timbers for one reason or another. It was post office, bar, grocery, gambling den, courthouse and just about everything but a church.

Despite its prestige as a hive of history, the old fort hit a low ebb of disrepair and reputation around the turn of the century. The town split as to whether to tear it down as a blot on the landscape or keep it as a memorial to the glory of Texas. The teardowns won and the place was razed to make way for a new drugstore. Unable to sell the old stones and timbers, the new owner gave them to the Cum Concilio Club, a tenacious group dedicated to the memorial idea, which proceeded to rebuild the old fort on the High School campus. Alas, it was a poor job and didn't look much better than it did downtown. Besides, it was not authentic. In 1936, in honor of Texas' Centennial, the state took over. The structure was again razed and this time rebuilt in exact, minute detail with the original stones on the campus of SFA College.

Today, the old fort sits quietly in beautiful Nacogdoches, still grinding out history to all who enter its hallowed walls . . . relishing the frenzied activity it centers and supremely proud of the way things turned out in Texas!

County Marks 87th Birthday Tuesday

By SAM BLACKBURN

Tuesday is Howard County's 87th birthday but no formal observation is planned for the occasion.

It was on July 1, 1882, that the county's first officials held their initial meeting.

Just where that meeting was held is not clear. It is made evident in the minutes there was no official meeting place because one of the earliest orders the county commissioners issued was for the county clerk to find a home for the county's government.

He was authorized to spend up to $20 for furniture if need be.

Howard County was created in 1876 and named for Volney Erskine Howard, a native of Oxford County, Maine, where he had been born in 1809. Howard moved to what is now Texas and settled in San Antonio in 1844 and was a member of the commitee which drafted the first state constitution. He served two terms in Congress but at the end of his second term, he accepted a federal appointment by President Pierce in the state of California. He died in 1889 and, although he was alive at the time his namesake county became a political entity, there is no record that he noted the event or that he was ever in these parts.

Prior to July 1, 1882, although a sizable population (brought in by the building of the Texas & Pacific railroad in 1880-81) already lived in the county, it had no local government per se. For judicial purposes, it was attached to Mitchell County and it was the Mitchell County commissioners who authorized the first election in the county a few weeks prior to the July 1 organizational meeting held here.

This election also created the county officially and was held less than a year after the first passenger train rolled into the village.

The first county judge was R. B. Anderson. J. M. Anderson was district-county clerk. R. M. Morrow was the county's first sheriff. W. P. Lawson became the first treasurer. Other officials elected were A. S. Robinson, hide and animal inspector; and J. S. Reed, assessor.

The first county commissioners elected were William Howerton, precinct 1; J. J. Meek, precinct 2; P. T. Blake, precinct 3; D. M. DeVitt, precinct 4.

These officials were elected to serve only until the November, 1882, regular election.

Not all of the officials stayed with their posts that long. Probably the pay was not inviting enough. The commissioners and the county judge were paid $3 per day for each day they were in session. Other salaries were on a parity.

Keeping county judges seemed to be a special problem. Apparently the judges found it irksome to stay on the job. They also seem to have devoted themselves to other activities. There was a law which stipulated if a county judge was out of the county for 20 or more days, the office was declared vacant.

By Aug. 12, less than six weeks after he had taken over the post, Judge Anderson was reported as having been absent for the specified number of days to leave the office vacant.

D. Y. Portis was appointed to fill the vacancy. A month or six weeks later and Portis had disappeared from the political scene for the same reason and William Kennedy was the new county judge. On this occasion (evidently with an eye to lessening the need for so frequent replacements) the commissioners set the salary of the judge at $100 per month — which was a commendable remuneration in 1882.

No accurate population figures for the period exist, but it is doubtful if there were more than 1,000 residents in the county in 1882.

D. S. Riley Retires M-H Hospital Post

SCHLEY RILEY

D. S. (Schley) Riley is retiring July 1 as administrator of the Malone and Hogan Foundation Hospital, a post he took up 17 years ago. He will be succeeded by Norman L. Knox, who for the past seven years has been administrator of Medical Arts Hospital in Lamesa.

With the latitude that retirement will permit, he plans to catch up on visiting, travelling, yard work, and maybe learn to fish.

Although Riley was born in Callahan County, he has lived in Howard County much of his life. His father, D. C. Riley, moved the family to Coahoma when Schley was two years old and operated a general merchandise store. After graduating from high school there, he earned his BA degree at Abilene Christian College in 1926. More important than the degree, he met Maxine Allen, a Stephens, Ark., girl, at ACC, and they were married in 1927. He worked for a men's clothing firm there for several years, was transferred to Clovis, N.M., for two years when he accepted a post with the Security Finance Company here in 1933. His association with Malone & Hogan began Feb. 1, 1941.

"I did pretty much the same thing then as now, but there wasn't as much of it," he recalled. Indeed there was not, for there were 16 beds against 76 now. A handful of people comprised the staff; today there are over 125. The hospital has twice been enlarged and once remodelled since he became part of the official family.

The staff at the time he started consisted of Drs. P. W. Malone and John E. Hogan, together with Dr. Jack Woodall and Dr. R. O. Beadles. He had been hired at $200 a month ("more money than I ever had made in my life"), but he confessed he felt just a mite put upon when he discovered the junior physicians were making $50 more a month than he was.

Riley has been active in civic and professional affairs, having served as president (1941) of the Downtown Lions and as district Lions governor in 1948-49. Meantime, he had served as zone chairman and district deputy. He was one of the charter directors of the Texas Lions Crippled Children's Camp at Kerrville and is a life member of it.

He also is a past president of the Toastmasters Club and the Big Spring Credit Association, vice president of the Texas Hospital Association and past president of the Northwest Hospital Association. Since the Texas state board for hospital licenses was set up in 1961, Riley has been a member of it. He is a member of the Fourteenth and Main Church of Christ.

Knox Comes From Lamesa To Succeed Riley Here

NORMAN KNOX

Norman L. Knox, who will become administrator of Malone and Hogan Foundation Hospital Tuesday, got his start in this field while a college student, and he's been at it ever since.

Since 1962, he has held a similar position with the Medical Arts Hospital in Lamesa.

He is a member of the council on hospital service plans for the Texas Hospital Association, also on the THA insurance committee. He is a past president of the central Permian Basin division of THA.

Knox has been an active worker in community affairs at Lamesa, being the immediate past president of the Lions Club, a director of the chamber of commerce and of the Industrial Foundation. He has been on the finance committee of the First Baptist Church in Lamesa.

A native of Borger, Knox was attending Hardin-Simmons University when he got his first taste of hospital administration at Hendricks Memorial Hospital. Later he went to Snyder as assistant administrator at Cogdell Memorial Hospital in Snyder, then to Breckenridge in 1961 as administrator of the hospital there, and then to Lamesa the following year. His experience has all been in accredited operations.

He and his wife, Jane, have three daughters, Kerrie Sue, 10, Jean Alice, 6 and Leslie Ann, 7 months. They will make their home at 1400 Princeton.

'Pioneer Voyage' For Soviet Ship Linked To Peace

SEATTLE (AP) — The captain of the first Soviet ship to unload cargo in a U.S. port in 19 years says there should be closer ties between the two nations "so that we might live in peace together."

While crewmen of the 15,000-ton freighter Orsha unloaded 900 tons of sponge titanium, a strategic metal, Capt. Arkady Tabakar, 50, said he expected his "pioneer voyage" would lead to more Soviet ships docking at U.S. ports.

A dozen men and women from the Tacoma Servicemen's Center, a church-related organization, picketed the ship Thursday but didn't interfere with the unloading operation.

Led by Eddie Karnes, director of the center and a World War II veteran, the group carried signs saying, "Save Our Sons" and "Buy a Coffin for an American Boy."

The Coast Guard kept the ship under surveillance, but permitted visitors to board the vessel.

Water For Our Survival

Attention again is called to the very critical decision Texas faces in the special election of Aug. 5, when — as No. 2 on the ballot — there is offered the proposition of setting up and arranging financing for a State Water Program designed to meet this state's needs for another 50 years.

Basically, the constitutional amendment to be approved opens the way for water importation (which all experts say will be a necessity) and provides the state's share of financing. Approval of a $3.5 billion bond program is a part of the package, but it should be emphasized that these are not tax bonds, but would provide interim financing as various water districts were formed. The districts then would pay back the cost, from charges on the water. The bonds then become, in essence, revenue bonds.

The state program is expected to be supplemented by federal funds of probably $5.5 billion, but certainly this assistance will not come until Texas makes its own commitment. Texas' action will also open the way for the state to negotiate with other states involved in waterways from which the water must be imported.

Leaders throughout the state stress that this program is a "must" if Texas expects to grow further in population, in industry, in agriculture. Without water, we are stalemated in all areas of progress. It really is a matter of survival.

Aug. 5 is a date when people will be on vacations. We urge those to make plans to vote their absentee ballot on the State Water Program. We urge all organizations to give their public endorsement, and all citizens to think very seriously about the results if this program should not win public approval.

A Change In Command

Another change in command, and with it influence in military civilian relations, has occurred at Webb Air Force Base.

Col. William C. McGlothlin Jr. has completed an unexpectedly brief tenure and has moved to a larger assignment, and is now succeeded by Col. Harrison Lobdell Jr.

Throughout its history since the opening in 1951, Webb has had a distinguished group of wing commanders (many of whom won promotions for performance here) who not only ran an efficient military establishment, but had a singular awareness that Webb people and Big Spring people could work together in any given area.

The result has been a rather remarkable relationship between the two, with Webb people, in many instances, going beyond any ordinary test to indicate their interest in their "temporary" home town. Such an attitude, of course, starts at the top.

As did his predecessors, Col. McGlothlin became a real activist in community affairs, especially in the area of youth organizations. Our town has been better off for having had him and he has every wish for continued success.

Col. Lobdell, we are confident, will pick right up where Col. McGlothlin left off. We speak for the entire community in saying welcome to him and his family, and in assuring him of continued support on all common enterprises.

'Night' And 'Day' Governments

WASHINGTON — Everyone is trying to come up with a face-saving solution for the Vietnam peace talks in Paris. There have been many proposals, and I hope no one minds if I throw another one on the round table.

It is named the Freeman Peace and Face-Saving Plan, after a young man named Peter Freeman from Hollywood, Calif., who thought of it one day when he was stuck on a freeway for two hours and was listening to news reports from Vietnam.

THE PLAN HINGES on the fact that vast parts of South Vietnam are controlled by the Saigon government forces in the daytime and by the Viet Cong at night. This fact is well known to everyone and cannot be disputed.

It also is known that the South Vietnamese government, under President Nguyen Van Thieu, is adamant about participating in a coalition government with the National Liberation Front, the political arm of the Viet Cong.

At the same time, the NIF wants nothing to do with the Saigon government.

THEREFORE, the Freeman plan suggests that South Vietnam have TWO governments: a "day" government and a "night" government.

During the day the peasants would pledge their allegiance to President Thieu. They would sell their goods to Saigon and receive whatever aid is available from the Americans.

Posters of President Thieu, Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky and President Nixon would be hung in each village square, and the American and South Vietnamese flags would hang side by side from the district town halls.

BUT AS NIGHT falls the posters would all come down and be replaced by photographs of Ho Chi Minh, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap and Mao Tse-tung, and the flags of North Vietnam and the Viet Cong would fly from the town halls.

The "night" government of the NIF, or Hanoi, depending on who's running the show, could buy goods from the peasants in the evening. At night, the peasants would swear their devotion to Ho Chi Minh.

OF COURSE, there would have to be some ground rules so that the "night" government does not undo all the good work of the "day" government. By the same token, the "day" government couldn't institute laws that would sabotage the "night" government.

There would have to be a tax-sharing plan worked out and the draft in South Vietnam would have to be abolished so neither side could take advantage of manpower situations in the villages.

BUT I'M CERTAIN that once they discover how well the "day" and "night" governments work, the two might even start co-operating together on an unofficial level.

The beauty of the Freeman plan is that neither side has to give up anything. Both the NIF and Saigon government could say they are in control of the country (as they are saying now), and both would be right.

As for the South Vietnamese peasant, he probably couldn't care less who governs him at this stage. In that beleaguered country, if you've seen one "liberating" army, you've seen them all.

I am a teenager and do want to be a Christian but also want to be attractive to boys I like. How can I be popular and not compromise? — H.B.

The thing that attracts the average boy to a girl (permanently) is quality of character. And there is no conflict between good character and Christianity. If you must compromise your ideals to be popular, then popularity is too high priced. Popularity may be fun, but it is not long lasting. If I were you, I would go out for things that endure.

I receive letters from teenagers every week who have compromised their ideals, and the price they pay is tremendous. Few people are liked by everyone, and we tend to become like those we associate with. So select your friends carefully without a trace of snobbery. Someone has said that the only thing worse than being alone is to be with the wrong person. Pick your associates carefully and prayerfully.

The Christian young person is called upon to be "different" — to "stand out" of the crowd. When the right boy is serious, he will seek you out. Anyway, the ultimate choice of a husband is in God's hands. Trust Him and you will find unbelievable fulfillment! "In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy path."

Market Declines, But Prices Go Up

NEW YORK (AP) — With the stock market going down and the cost of living going up, about the only thing remaining constant is the division of opinion on whether the economy is beginning to cool or continuing to boil.

Economists are split in their interpretations of the effect, or lack of effect of the monetary and fiscal restraints imposed by the government in an effort to curb inflation.

Statistics also are at variance in their reflections of the economic picture.

The stock market, as measured by the Dow Jones industrial average, has fallen about 10 per cent in the last six weeks, mainly under investors' concern about the tight money situation. The cost of living has continued to escalate, climbing to an all-time high in May for the 28th consecutive month.

"VITALITY"

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York says in its current monthly economic review that business activity "after an unprecedented 100 months of sustained expansion shows a lot of vitality.

"Indeed, the major problem at midyear still is one of excesses in key sectors of the economy. While the rate of growth in physical terms has slowed, inflationary pressures show no letup as is evidenced by the steep climb in wages and prices and continuing pressure in credit markets."

The government's index of "leading" indicators of economic activity dropped one-half of one per cent in May to 147½ per cent of the 1963 average from 148 3-10 per cent in April. These barometers are considered important in foreshadowing future broad movements in the economy.

GNP DUE HIKE

On the other hand, the Commerce Department predicted that the gross national product — total of all goods and services — would post "another sizable gain" in the second quarter of this year.

In this year's first quarter, the GNP rose $16 billion to an annual rate of $903.4 billion. The Commerce Department didn't pinpoint the size of the increase it expects this quarter.

The midyear survey of the F. W. Dodge Division of McGraw-Hill, Inc., indicated that government attempts to stem inflation would slow the rate of new construction contracting in the second half of this year, particularly in the housing field.

In May, the cost of living climbed at an annual rate of 3.6 per cent. This was the smallest monthly gain since January but government economists said larger increases are likely in coming months.

DOLLARS SHRINK

The gain in May pushed the Labor Department's consumer price index to 126.8 per cent of the 1956-59 average, meaning that it took $12.68 to buy items that cost $10 a decade ago.

The latest price increase was on automobile tires and tubes with Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co. announcing boosts of three per cent.

Stock market investors were worried not only about tight money but about what Congress will do about extending the 10 per cent income tax surcharge, which is due to expire June 30. A vote is scheduled in the House of Representatives Monday on the Administration's proposal to continue the surcharge at 10 per cent until Jan. 1 and at five per cent until July 1, 1970.

COOLING OR BOILING?

- Dow-Jones averages show 10-point drop in six weeks
- But cost of living climbs to record, more due to come
- Economic indicators ease, but GNP still climbing
- Tight money will put brakes on residential building
- Dollar buys one-fourth less than decade ago

HAVANA (AP) — In a recent local newspaper interview three barbers complained that almost all the work is falling upon barbers over age 50, some of whom are so tired they shear clients from a seated position.

One barber, who said 20 haircuts is a normal day's work, added that many barbers do more.

Barbers from this region spend much of their time in the field, cutting the hair of sugar workers. Relief is on the way, however.

A school for barbers, set up last December, already has graduated six of its ten students — all women.

About Those Thick, Hard Toenails

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am the victim of thick, hard, and unshapely toenails and am led to believe this may be from some type of fungus.

If it is a fungus in your opinion, will you advise whether some medication could be used to correct it, or would surgery be the only solution?—C.L.

This can result from fungus infections, and in the last few years a couple of very effective drugs have been developed to combat fungus infections. They don't attack all types of fungus, but they do effective work with some prevalent types. Both are prescription drugs. There are numerous older medications which can be tried, too.

Therefore, I'd suggest that you have a podiatrist (specialist in foot problems) or your regular physician give you an accurate diagnosis. If it is a fungus, and if it does not respond to the available medications, surgery to remove the nails may be in order. The fungus, you see, can invade the tissues under the nail and be difficult to treat.

However, such thick, unshapely nails can be from quite different causes. In fact, this trouble, uncommon in young people, can cause a good deal of concern as we grow older.

Trauma over the years, especially from wearing snug footwear, can cause such trouble. Another cause, often overlooked, is inadequate pedicare.

Most people look after their fingernails but forget their toenails. Daily use of a nail file keeps material from acculating under fingernails. But how many people bother with toenails? As this material gradually accumulates, it hardens, and distorts the shape and size of the nails. After it has hardened, it cannot be dislodged by ordinary means. In such cases, it is well worthwhile to have professional attention, to get the nails back into more manageable condition.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I shocked a visiting cousin by stuffing a turkey the day before cooking it. (She said she stayed only because her will was in order.)

My family has always done this, and we're still around to pick at the bones. Is there a real danger? — E.McD.

Done wrong, such stuffing ahead of time can cause "food poisoning." Since you haven't suffered, I assume that you have been doing it correctly.

Stuffing should not be warm when put into the carcass.

Once stuffed, the bird should be kept cool, and preferably refrigerated, until roasting time.

The key to the whole matter is the fact that germs thrive in warmth and can multiply to harmful numbers in 18 to 24 hours — less time in extreme warmth, like potato salad or other foods kept in the hot hatch of a car for several hours on the way to a picnic in July.

I like the aphorism that Dr. Molner used to repeat: Keep it hot, keep it cold, or don't keep it at all.

The question isn't when you stuff the turkey; it's whether you keep it cold until time to cook it.

Around The Rim

The Hard-Working Employes Of 1872

In view of the status of the current labor market, there are stories that some employers have been heard to wish for a return to depression days, when people stood in line for a job — any kind of a job — and were happy to stay with it.

The stories probably are not true; no employer, even in his most harassed moments, wants the pendulum to swing back that far. Nevertheless, the smaller employer finds himself in a real squeeze these days to keep up with mounting costs, and in finding productive people within the limits of his salary and wage ranges.

APPARENTLY there was an era when the boss was really the boss.

I have been sent a copy of what purports to be "work rules" for office workers in a Boston firm back in 1872. These read as follows:

1. Office employes each day will fill lamps, clean chimneys and trim wicks. Wash windows once a week.

2. EACH CLERK will bring in a bucket of water and a scuttle of coal for the day's business.

3. Make your pens carefully. You may whittle nibs to your individual taste.

4. Men employes will be given an evening off each week for courting purposes, or two evenings a week if they go regularly to church.

5. AFTER thirteen hours of labor in the office the employe should spend the remaining time reading the Bible and other good books.

6. Every employe should lay aside from each pay day a goodly sum of his earnings for his benefit during his declining years so that he will not become a burden on society.

7. Any employe who smokes Spanish cigars, uses liquor in any form, or frequents pool and public halls or gets shaved in a barber shop, will give good reason to suspect his worth, intentions, integrity and honesty.

8. THE EMPLOYE who has performed his labor faithfully and without fault for five years, will be given an increase of five cents per day in his pay, provided profits from business permit it.

This employer is not identified, but it readily may be seen that he had put together an industrious, sober-sided, thrifty and moral crew — people who could look forward to two nights of courting a week (if they went to church), and could hold to the hope that if they walked a straight enough line, there would be a handsome raise in just five years.

YEAH, times do change. I cannot vouch for the authenticity of these rules, but the story is that just a few years ago a Boston office manager, cleaning out a file for his firm's move to a new location came across the copy as printed above. The story further is that he wanted to read them to his own office forces, but the members all were out on one of the day's several coffee breaks.

Perhaps that is not entirely fair. Maybe they were out after a bucket of water and a scuttle of coal.

The Court And Its Prayer Ruling

WASHINGTON — Tens of thousands of words in newspaper dispatches were sent across the land describing the ceremony here at which Warren Earl Burger was sworn in as Chief Justice of the United States. But the full text of the oath was omitted.

MAYBE IT WAS taken for granted by the press that people generally know what the oath contains. But surprising as it may be, the oath of office includes the words, "so help me God." Yet, the Supreme Court itself, just seven years ago, forbade students in the public schools of all the states in the union to speak aloud a prayer such as had been prescribed in New York State at the beginning of each school day. The prayer which was disapproved by the court read as follows:

"Almighty God, we acknowledge our dependence upon thee and we beg thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country."

THIS PRAYER was not related to any religious denomination but merely stated the same dependence on God as is contained in the oath of office taken by every chief justice as well as every associate justice of the United States on assuming office.

The Supreme Court, in its famous decision of June 25, 1962, while Chief Justice Warren was at the head of the court, declared that to encourage the recitation of prayer in schools was wholly inconsistent with that part of the Constitution which says that "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof."

BUT CONGRESS has never passed any law establishing a religion or adopted any statute which prohibits the free exercise of religion. The Supreme Court alone, in its historic decision, assumed the power to prohibit the free expression of one's religious beliefs in the school room. It was said that children had been obliged to recite the prayer. But there is no evidence that any teacher ever required a student to participate in the prayer reading if he or she did not wish to do so.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT, on the other hand, that Congress did pass laws which specify the wording of the oath of office to be taken by any person elected or appointed to any office in the civil, military or naval service of the federal government and also the wording of an additional oath to be taken by all federal judges and by the justices of the Supreme Court.

The entire ceremony took place in the Supreme Court building — which is just a few hundred yards away from the House and Senate chambers. Inscribed on stone in large letters across the front of the building are the following words: "Equal justice under law."

IT MAY WELL be questioned whether the high court's decision of 1962 — which is today the "law of the land" — is really "equal justice under law." For in the 1962 opinion the court said in a footnote that there was, of course, nothing in the decision inconsistent with the fact that "there are many manifestations in our public life of belief in God" and that "such patriotic or ceremonial occasions bear no true resemblance to the unquestioned religious exercise that the state of New York has sponsored in this instance."

Ever since the decision was proclaimed, many people who believe in God don't understand why there can be manifestations of a "belief in God" during ceremonial occasions of the utmost importance in public life, but these are forbidden to the children in the public schools.

Analysis Of The Withdrawal Plan

WASHINGTON — No one could have been more surprised by President Nixon's hot-and-cold reaction to Clark Clifford's proposal for phasing out America's ground forces in the Vietnam war than Clifford himself. With the dust still settling, to use the Achesonian phrase applied to the disaster of mainland China, it can nevertheless be said that Clifford has made a major contribution to de-escalation.

HE HAD THOUGHT of the article written for Foreign Affairs magazine as a confessional — an account of how one man had moved from a fixed belief that the war had to be fought to a conclusion to the conviction that the Americanization of the conflict was no longer either feasible or morally defensible. There was not the slightest intention to cast aspersions on the cautions policy of the Nixon Administration.

A careful reading of the article bears this out. It was, above all, put forward as an objective analysis of the profound change in the circumstances that had led the Johnson Administration to make such a massive commitment to a small war.

IN 1965 the regime in South Vietnam was on the point of collapse. The training and equipment of the Army of the South had been sadly neglected. The choice put up to Lyndon Johnson was between withdrawal and acceptance of defeat and a Communist take over or the addition of large numbers of American fighting men to hold the line.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES in South Asia supported the theory that the collapse of South Vietnam would touch off Communist triumphs elsewhere. In Indonesia the Communists with the sanction if not the encouragement, of the mercurial Sukarno were consolidating their hold. To divert attention from his failures at home Sukarno was whipping up fervor for a war against Malaysia. Such a war could only serve the cause of chaos and communism.

EVENTS HAVE MOVED so swiftly in the intervening four years that the most profound change seems an improbable piece of history. In 1965 Red China and the Soviet Union were to all intents and purposes united in support of Hanoi and the Communists. Soviet material for Hanoi was flowing across China without serious interruption.

Today the two Communist giants are at each other's throats. In the speeches of their leaders is the threat of impending war. Each day news is of border reinforcements, with invective in the Communist jargon hurled back and forth between Peking and Moscow. This is a 180-degree turn completely altering the picture.

THE MOST important change of all is in South Vietnam itself. Discounting the claims made for the Army of the South by half, the difference between 1965 and 1969 is tremendous. One of Clifford's contributions in his year as Secretary of Defense was to push the equipment of the South Vietnamese with the M-16 rifle and other modern weapons, as well as to spur their training. President Nguyen Van Thieu is saying with every outward show of confidence that they are ready to take over a major role.

In short, the nation's security is no longer involved in the outcome of the war in South Vietnam. The initial objective — to give the Vietnamese people an opportunity to choose their own form of government without outside intervention — is close to attainment. That being so, American boys can no longer be asked to die in Vietnam.

'The First Time'

Apprehensive youngsters in this Jet feature include, from left, Wink Roberts, Wes Stern, Jacquelyn Bisset and Rick Kelman.

'The First Time' Opening At Jet

"The First Time" is a story of three sixteen-year-olds at the moment of almost equal boy-man division.

The picture will open tonight at the Jet Theatre.

Starring in "The First Time" is Jacqueline Bisset, exciting English actress who is being hailed by some as this year's Faye Dunaway, although she's more like Katharine Ross — soft and sweet-looking with lots of fire underneath. In the past two years the young blue-eyed beauty has progressed from being the girl who didn't get Albert Finney in "Two For The Road" (she got chicken pox instead) to the girl who replaced Mia Farrow in "The Detective" and co-starred with Michael Sarrazin the "The Sweet Ride" and Steve McQueen in "Bullitt."

Playing the teenagers who seek to taste the pleasure of manhood are Wes Stern, Rick Kelman and Wink Roberts, three virtually unknown newcomers.

The screenplay of "The First Time" was written by Jo Heims and Roger Smith, based on a story by Bernard Bassey. The music score was composed and conducted by Kenyon Hopkins, whose credits include "Baby Doll," "The Hustler," "Lilith" and "The Fugitive Kind." The film was photographed by Ernest Laszlo, who won an Academy Award for "Ship of Fools" and more recently photographed Julie Andrews in "Star!"

The picture was filmed entirely on location in Toronto and Niagara Falls, Canada.

All-Star Film Set For Ritz

"Mackenna's Gold," starring Gregory Peck and Omar Sharif, opens Wednesday at the Ritz Theatre in Super Panavision and Technicolor.

Co-starred in "Mackenna's Gold" are Telly Savalas, Julie Newmar, Camilla Sparv, Keenan Wyn, Ted Cassidy and the gentlemen from Hadleyburg, in alphabetical order: Lee J. Cobb, Raymond Massey, Burgess Meredith, Anthony Quayle, Edward G. Robinson and Eli Wallach.

"Mackenna's Gold" was produced by Carl Foreman and Dimitri Tiomkin, and directed by J. Lee Thompson. Foreman's screenplay was based on the novel by Will Henry. Quincy Jones wrote the music.

Playgirl Writes

LONDON (AP) — Christine Keeler, the playgirl whose sexcapades rocked high society and the British government in 1963, has written a 70,000-word autobiography.

"I am perfectly frank about the facts, about myself—yes, I was promiscuous—and about other people," Miss Keeler, now 27, told an interviewer Thursday.

Eastwood's 2 Anti-Hero Films On Double Bill

For those lovers of western action fare who have heard about but have not yet seen that widely-acclaimed "new approach" to their favorite film entertainment as exemplified by its innovator Clint Eastwood, and for those who have already become habitual Eastwood fans and crave more of the same, there's good news.

Beginning Thursday, the Jet Theatre will present a special double bill consisting of the two films that catapulted Eastwood into world-wide fame and which are generally regarded as the first in the new genre of westerns. They're "A Fistful of Dollars" and "For a Few Dollars More," both in Technicolor. Clint is top-starred in both, with Marianne Koch providing feminine pulchritude and stellar support in the first and Lee Van Cleef and Gian Maria Volonte performing supporting honors in the second.

Billed as "The Man With No Name," Eastwood has attracted an enormous world-wide following with the two films because, it has been explained, he's the antithesis of the standard western hero.

Townfolk Almost Stopped Film Crew

One of Europe's oldest and most historic castles, after surviving fire and siege for nearly nine centuries, almost had its movie "debut" cancelled when a proud local citizenry became upset over its film fate.

The castle is the majestic rock edifice, Schloss Hohenwerfen, perched high atop a mountainpeak in the Austrian Alps near the village of Werfen, some 25 miles from Salzburg. It was built in 1077 by Archbishop Gebhard of Salzburg.

Its lofty location made it an easy choice among dozens of old castles inspected to play a key part in "Where Eagles Dare," starring Richard Burton, Clint Eastwood and Mary Ure. It ideally fitted novelist Alistair MacLean's description of his screenplay's castle — "impregnable and inaccessible."

The hitch came when a Salzburg newspaper reported how the movie story called for the castle to be set afire and blown up by a daring World War II team led by Burton and Eastwood. A special citizens' committee promptly called on producer Elliot Kastner, intent on withdrawing permission for use of their famous landmark.

"After what it had been through in the past, the Austrian gentlemen were not about to see their castle destroyed for the sake of a movie," Kastner recalled. "Some of the older men among them remembered how fire swept through it in 1931. Only its great bell and belltower and the naked walls were left. It took several years to restore."

It required several hours and considerable persuasion for Kastner to convince the committee that Schloss Hohenwerfen would remain in the same condition after their filming as before, thanks to a crack team of special effects and movie action experts.

"It would have been impossible without the outstanding men — Americans, Englishmen and Austrians — we had working with us," said Kastner. "Like Yakima Canutt, they were all top men in their field."

THE ARTS

Young Dramatists Stay Busy During Summer

Clark Frayser, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Frayser, 1404 Scurry, came home for the summer just in time to give the Little Theatre a big help in staging "Little Mary Sunshine." He not only played a part in the production, he helped erect the set, direct the lights, and a myriad of other chores.

Frayser is a senior at the University of Texas and will get his degree next spring in playwriting. Following graduation, he hopes to do some theatre writing and directing.

He has worked in more than 40 dramatic productions, he estimates, beginning in Big Spring High School and including Howard County Junior College, the Little Theatre, and the University of Texas.

• • •

Steve Compton, drama major at Sul Ross State University, will appear in five plays during the summer season of Sul Ross-Alpine Theatre of the Big Bend. The graduate of Big Spring High School is the son of L. W. Compton, 1302 Grafa.

In his second season of summer theatre work, he will play in "Three Men On A Horse;" "Personal Appearance;" "Night Must Fall;" "Mr. Bary's Etchings;" and the musical "A Funny Thing Happened On The Way To The Forum."

The Theatre of the Big Bend is a cooperative repertory project of Sul Ross State University, Alpine, and other Big Bend communities. The productions, which play Wednesday through Saturday nights, July 2 through Aug. 16, are presented free.

• • •

The third production of Dallas Civic Opera's fall season will be the Southwestern premiere of Giordano's romantic opera "Fedora."

Magda Olivero and Mario Del Monaco will return to star in the production. Although seldom performed in this country in recent years, "Fedora" is one of the most melodic operas in the repertory and is currently enjoying a vogue of revivals on the European continent.

"Fedora" will be performed for two DCO subscription series in the November season — Series A Nov. 26, and Series B Nov. 29. It will be the final opera of the 1969 season. "Aida" opens Nov. 1 and will be presented again for a subscription performance Nov. 7 and a student matinee Nov. 9. The other opera will be "Don Giovanni," with subscription performances Nov. 14 and 16.

It Was A Record Breaker, Has Stood Over 60 Years

By SAM BLACKBURN

June 30, 1907, fell on Sunday.

That morning 62 years ago, most of the little town's 2,500 residents probably arose early — earlier, that is, than would have been the case on most Sundays. They were up largely because the night had afforded them little rest.

Many slept out of doors on pallets spread in the yard. Even this didn't help much. The night never really cooled down. The preceding day had seen a searing hot wind sweep into the community and the temperature had climbed to a scorching 113 degrees. This had been preceded on June 28 by a temperature of 112. Now on Saturday night, the lowest the mercury dropped was an anything-but-chilly, 81 degrees.

The skies were clear at dawn. The sun came up an angry red on the eastern horizon. The hot wind which had augmented the discomfort of the previous day was still blowing. It was out of the south just as it had been the previous day.

There was nothing the people could do to combat the heat. The citizens wearily watched the sun climb higher and higher as the thermometers showed a steady climb.

At 3 p.m. the red in the tubes stood at 117 degrees.

"Never been this hot before," grumbled old timers. It may be added, it's never been that hot since.

Infants whimpered and anxious mothers fanned tirelessly with palmetto fans trying to ease the discomfort of their children. Men, stripped to their undershirts, sprawled listlessly against the walls of their homes in the shadiest spots to be found. Children found it too hot to play.

It being Sunday, little activity stirred in the small business district. The switch engines on the T&P tracks moved about their tasks — their black bulks radiating heat waves which shimmered in the air.

There were no artificial methods to alleviate the heat. If the town had electricity, which is highly unlikely, it was only in the homes of the extremely well-to-do. And even those homes had no fans nor air conditioners. It is doubtful if fans were even commonplace in the more populous cities. Air conditioners had not been invented. Here on the frontier, there was no way to escape the blazing sun. You stayed as still as you could and prayed for the day to end and night to come.

Probably that night's 80 degrees seemed cool compared to the 117 degrees which had roasted the community that day. And the next day it was 107 which must have seemed cool.

So June 30, 1907, went into the history books as a day to remember.

A day when the highest temperature ever recorded here was duly inscribed in the books — 117 degrees.

B. Reagan, the weather observer for the county, made no comment on the record in his reports. He merely jotted down the 117 high and the 80 degree low. He noted in the proper column that the wind was hot and that it came from the south. He had made an entry earlier in the year, though, which seems some how to set 1907 apart from the other years.

On Jan. 16, Reagan noted that the town had been struck by a mysterious "heat wave." Scrawled on the side of the record for January in Reagan's handwriting is the notation:

"The heat wave (it seems to have lasted only a few fleeting minutes, starting at 10 a.m. and ending at 10:05 a.m.) caused drops of water to gather on all pieces of furniture in houses when doors and windows were closed, as if they had been out in a heavy dew."

Big Spring's sizzling June 30, 1907, with its 117 degree reading has since been matched by two other Texas communities — Presidio and Memphis. Mount Pleasant once had a day when it was 118.

Two Texas communities — Quanah and Throckmorton, — have each had 119 degree readings.

But no town has matched the sizzling record of Seymour on Aug. 12, 1936. That day saw the temperature there at 120 degrees.
