$250,000 Discrepancy Found In Highway Board's US Funds

LEGAL BATTLE IN COURT IS ENLIVENED BY FLYING FISTS

District Attorney and Shields Hyser Fiight in Court Trial

ARE FINED $25 EACH

Judge Martin Assesses Them For Contempt Of Court

Fists, blood and a few other things mixed with hilarious abandon in the 89th district court room Thursday afternoon when District Attorney Ben Allred and Shields Hyser, the latter a defense attorney in a case before the bar, said it with uppercuts and right swings after acrimonious charges came from both sides.

The case was one in which John Skaggs was being tried on a charge of possession and sale of whiskey, it being alleged that last summer he had sold a quantity of intoxicants to one Blackie Knightstep, formerly a deputy constable under C. L. Bradford. Knightstep, wanted as a witness, did not appear in court and the lawyers were debating some legal question relative to his absence when the trouble started. Allred made a statement Hyser declared was an insinuation that the defense had purposely seen to it that Knightstep did not appear to testify against their client.

Were Pulled Apart.

Both attorneys were standing in front of the bench arguing their points and eye-witnesses said that after this interchange of commentaries, Hyser unloosed a right swing that caught Allred just above the eye and sent him to the floor. The district attorney, standing about five feet five and weighing around 125 pounds came up like a wirey spring and drove a straight right to Hyser's jaw. Then they both went down and tumbled around on the floor for a minute before baliff's, other attorneys and court attaches could pull them apara.

Judge P. A. Martin's sharp commands for order finally quieted things and he called the two culprits before him.

"You two gentlemen are each fined $25 for contempt of court," the judge said.

Allred Reseuts Fine.

"Your honor, I don't think I ought to be fined," the district attorney insisted, "Mr. Hyser hit me first and the only thing I know to do when a fellow hits me is just get up and knock hell out of him."

The court was adamant, however, and Allred finally dug into his jeans and produced $25 in cash which he handed the clerk. Hyser pulled out his check book filled in a blank and deposited it with the clerk also.

"Proceed with the case, gentlemen," the court instructed and it went on. All evidence was introduced and opening argument heard Thursday. The case will be concluded Friday.

Elks Revue Again Sunday; Two Shows

Announcement was made yesterday that two more performances of the Elks' revue will be held here Sunday afternoon and night at the Majestic theater, for the benefit of the Elks' Christmas fund. During its three-day run here the show met with an unusual success and it is in response to requests of those who did not see it at any of those performances that Sunday's additional shows have been arranged.

"Resolved that the honor system be used in the Junior high school," was the subject of the debate in the school yesterday when the affirmative taken by Morris Lee and Silas Joiner was unanimously awarded the decision of the judges. The negative was taken by Bill Kay and Harold Simmons.

Royal Diadem of Gems, Girdles and Gold Adorn Tut

Unwrapping of Bandages Around Skeleton Bare Ancient Pharoah Splendor

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 19.—(AP) The condition of the mummy of Tut-Ankh-Amen has been found to be such that it will be impossible to remove it from its gold coffin, Doctors Berry and Saleh Bamdi announced today in a report on the unwrapping of the mummy which has occupied seven days. The experts announce that the mummy is firmly glued to the bottom of its gold coffin with a dried pitch-like material. The mask reaching to the upper part of the torax, is also fixed to the coffin, making the removal of the mummy impossible. It also will be futile to attempt to make x-Ray pictures on account of the numerous layers of gold, faience and other materials covering the body to the knees.

A form of spontaneous combustion was found to have destroyed some of the bandages, causing the skin and underlying tissues to become extremely thin and brittle.

This condition exposed certain joints, enabling the age of the king at the time of his death to be estimated fairly accurately at about 18 years.

The king evidently was of slight build and the belief of the experts of the statues already found are really portraits finds confirmation in the face, which is now exposed.

A Royal Diadem.

The report says that the objects found with the body may be classified in threre catagories, amulic, or pertaining to charms, royal objects and personal belongings. These objects have made it possible to reconstitute the whole royal regalia of the eighteenth dynasty. The refined taste displayed in the jewelry equals anything previously known, the experts report.

The most important objects discovered with the body are:

On the head a royal diadem with insignia of vulture and serpent.

Around the neck amuletic figures and divinities.

On the chest numerous pectorals, including various amulets in sixteen layers. Of these some comprise many hundreds of sections of elaborate encrusted cloisonne work.

11 Bracelets on Arms.

On the arms eleven magnificent bracelets.

Besides those on the hands there are 18 massive finger rings of various materials.

Around the waist two girdles, to which are suspended two daggers.

About the limbs a royal apron composed of sections of inlaid gold work.

Each Toe in Gold.

Upon the feet golden funerary sandals. Each toe was encased in a gold sheath.

In addition a great number of amulets were found, the object of these being to protect the pharoah on his journey through the underworld. No traces of documents have thus far been discovered.

200 DROWN

HAVANA, Cuba, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Haitian steamer Villes Des Cayes with more than 200 laborers on board bound for Santiago de Cuba, for the sugar cane fields, sank Monday. The engineer and two seamen were picked up by the British steamer Wanderer and landed at Aux Cayes, Haiti.

Pour In Your Dollars And We'll Jump Out

"We'll jump out if you'll fill it with money!"

These Day Nursery youngsters are adding their appeal to that of other welfare organization beneficiaries who are to profit by the Community Chest cam campaign to be launched here next Monday.

It will take $55,000 to fill the chest this year, that much being required to perpetuate for another 12 months the valuable services organized welfare work has done in Wichita Falls. This is a ridiculously small sum to ask from a city this size when the subscription lists of other communities, some not as large, even, as here, are studied, say those behind the campaign.

One of the most appealing of the nine organizations in the chest fund is the Day Nursery and the youngsters above, all of whom were photographed at their Lamar avenue home, are typical examples of the 35 or 40 unusally found there.

WICHITA HEARS COOLIDGE AS HE SPEAKS IN N. Y.

Radio Brings President's Voice to Ears Of Texans

PLYMOUTH, Vt., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Colonel John C. Coolidge, father of the president, tonight transmitted through the Associated Press to the president the following telegram of congratulations on the latter's address in New York City:

"Dear Cal:

"Just heard you over radio. Congratulations on fine address.

"JOHN C. COOLIDGE."

Wichita Falls tuned in Thursday night to hear President Coolidge in an address before the chamber of commerce of the state of New York; and regardless of what the democrats may have thought of his remarks, he aided in giving another remarkable demonstration of the wonders of the radio.

How many receiving sets in the city plucked the president's voice from out of the ether isn't known, but the big set W. C. Ansley operates in the Wichita club rooms did a good job of it. The message came in with remarkable clarity and with only a sporadic burst of static to interfere. Every enunciation stood out distinctly. The applause from the listeners was frequent and clear; and on several occasions when the crowd laughed, those in front of the radio horn here laughed also.

One time was when the president was elaborating on war debts. He was talking in billions and hundreds of millions as he dealt with the British, French and Italian debts, and when he concluded with reference to Liberia's $26,000 debt everybody roared.

The local station tuned in on station WOC, Davenport, Ia., which was relaying the message as it was broadcast from WEAF, New York City. The president spoke in the grand ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria and a microphone carried his voice to the American Telephone and Telegraph company station in another part of the city.

MRS. COOLIDGE IS BUSY

Has Enjoyable Day in New York Where Husband Made Speech.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Coolidge passed a busy afternoon on her arrival in New York city today with President Coolidge. The shopping tour which it was thought she was to make was crowded off the program by a visit to the metropolitan museum of art and a tea at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Morrow.

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch.
Men and Cats.

Folks laugh a lot about our cats,
Two whiskered, white aristocrats
Who always choose the softest seat,
Select the dainties they will eat,
And act, when kindness you may do them,
As though they had it coming to them.
Of course they rub against your leg:
That's how the little beggers beg.
A cat is most affectionate
When supper seems a little late.
I've noticed this, and this regretted:
They purr, but only when they're petted.
So people think that cats are jokes;
And yet I know a lot of folks
Who always take the softest seat,
Select the dainties they will eat,
And act, when kindness you may do them,
As though they had it coming to them.
They somehow do not seem to see
That nothing in the world is free,
That they who are the greatest blest
Should strife the greatest for the rest—
Ah, no, when blessings are occurring,
You cannot pay for things with purring.
Although a "thank you" may be said,
A generous deed is only paid
With generous deeds—a good passed on
When he who did the good is gone.
We cannot always pay a brother
But we can always help some other.
Cats purr, men pay—good people, that's
The difference 'tween men and cats.
Men give without a thought of gain
Wherever there is grief or pain.
(Except a few (we all have met them)
Who purr (and only when you pet them.)

TEXAS CHIROS CAN'T BE FILED ON, SAYS RULING

Temporary Injunction Issued Against Moody Granted In Dallas

DALLAS, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A temporary injunction providing that no charge can be brought against any chiropractic in the state of Texas until the court can show cause for trial was granted by Ed R. Meek, associate judge of the federal court, district five, in the case of H. C. Allison versus Dan Moody et al, Thursday afternoon in Dallas. The action restrains prosecution of chiropractors in the state under the statute passed by the legislature in 1907, with amendments.

Hearing on the case brought originally by Allison, practicing chiropractor of Fort Worth, against Attorney General Moody will be held Tuesday in the federal court of Judge James C. Wilson in Fort Worth. Judge Wilson will pass upon the temporary injunction granted today and in the event he rules to make it permanent, action against chiropractors will be restrained until the supreme court rules on the case. However, if Judge Wilson does not make the injunction permanent, court proceedings in the original case may be brought to trial.

Ten Dallas chiropractors were to have been brought to trial for practicing their profession in Texas on Friday, while two more were billed for trial on Monday. The temporary injunction will stop court action against these defendants as well as action in every like case in the state.

'IT REVOLVES' SAYS LANHAM AS AN ANSWER

Highway Chairman Explains Discrepency as Shown Before Court

FUND FLUCTUATES

Sometimes in Favor of U. S., Other Times For State, He Says

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Frank V. Lanham, chairman of the state highway commission, told the Associated Press tonight that the federal aid highway fund was a revolving fund, in explaining the alleged discrepancy of $250,000 as testified by C. A. Schutze, federal aid superintendent in the American Road company suit in district court here today.

Chairman Lanham said that no federal aid money is spent on maintenance of highways; that federal aid money is spent only on new federal aid projects provided the state maintains those roads constructed with federal aid.

"At times," he said, "the federal government owes us as much as $1,000,000, and at other times we owe the federal government money," he explained that sometimes federal aid projects did not receive the money due because the contractor fails to bring them up to specifications and it is held up until the work is done right.

He said that in carrying out the federal aid work the fund was bound to fluctuate at times being in favor of the state and at other times in favor of the federal government.

"At present we appear in the red and in time the fund will revert as in the past," he explained.

Wichitan and Other GOP to Washington

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Interests of Texas republicans will be carried to members of congress and official respects of party members in the state will be expressed by six leading republican committee members who will leave soon for Washington to be present at the opening of congress, it was learned Thursday.

The delegation will be led by Rennie B. Creager of Brownsville, national committeeman. Other state leaders who will go to Washington are Eugene Nolte, Seguin; Orville Bullington, Wichita Falls; H. L. Thomson, San Antonio, and T. P. Lee, Houston.

BUCK WEAVER SUES

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A suit against the Chicago White Sox for $20,000 in back salary by George D. "Buck" Weaver former shortstop, who was one of those suspended in the sensational scandal in 1920, was dismissed in federal court today. In addition Weaver was ordered to pay the court costs. The suit was filed four years ago.

VERNON WOMAN FREED

Mrs. R. F. Green Acquitted in Ginger Case on Orders of Court

An instructed verdict of not guilty was returned in Federal court Thursday morning in a criminal case against Mrs. R. F. Green of Vernon, it being alleged she had sold Jamacia ginger in violation of the federal statutes. Judge William H. Atwell ruled when testimony was completed that the government failed to make out a case against the defendant and accordingly directed the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

DARROW IS DENOUNCED.

Acts and Talks Like Monkey, Baptist Convention Told.

MARION, Ala., Nov. 19.—(AP)—In an address here yesterday in connection with the dedication of an annex to Judson college by members of the Alabama Baptist association in annual convention vigorous denunciation of the atheistic views of Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney, was delivered in an address by Hugh Mallory of Selma, Ala.

Mr. Mallory said Mr. Darrow "talks like a monkey, acts like a monkey and will die like a monkey." He said the Christian faith would not allow for the view of Darrow and his kind.

CHIROPRACTOR FREED

AUSTIN, Nov. 19. —(AP)—O. H. Richardson, chiropractor, charged with having violated the medical practice act in practicing medicine without having obtained a license from the state board of medical examiners, was declared not bullty by a jury in the Travis county court late today.

J. N. Stanford of Bomarton last night reported the theft from in front of a Wichita Falls skating rink of his Ford roadster.

Ma Pays Her Lawyers Out Of State Cash

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—John Brady of Austin and Lon Curtis of Belton, two of the attorneys employed by Governor Miriam A. Ferguson to represent the governor and the highway commission as intervenors in the American Road company suit brought by the attorney general, were paid off late Wednesday, it was learned today at the treasurer's office.

A warant for $1,000 was drawn to each from the governor's law enforcement fund at the comptroller's department, which reduces this $10,000 fund, with other withdrawals, to about $3,500. Immediately after the warrants were drawn they were cashed at the treasurer's office.

HOFFMAN CO. RESTRAINED IN SAN ANTONIO

Temporary Writ Restrains Eastland Company From Receiving Funds

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—A temporary writ of injunction restraining the Hoffman Construction company from receiving money from the state under a Bexar county state highway maintenance contract wts received by Sheriff James Stevens today.

The writ was to be served on C. R. Starnes, designated as an official of the company.

The writ was issued in Austin following the filing of a suit by Attorney General Dan Moody, alleging that the contract had been entered into arbitrarily and capriciously and that the effect thereof was to impose an unreasonable and unjust burden upon the taxpayers.

Lynch Would Make Convicts Aid Roads

DALLAS, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Centralization of the state prison system and working of physically fit convicts on Texas highways would be advocated in his campaign for governor, Lynch Davidson of Houston declared here today. The former lieutenant governor said it was yet too early to make a detailed statement of his platform. He indicated that developments in the present highway maintenance controversy would govern his attitude on highway matters.

ONLY $249,000 OF $500,000 IS CREDITED SAYS ROAD WITNESS

Sensation Comes in Second Day's Trial Against American Co.

BRODNAX ON STAND

Former Official of Defendant Company Makes Impassioned Plea

AUSTIN, Nov. 19—(AP) Disclosure of a discrepancy of at least $250,000 in federal aid funds of $500,000 recently turned over to the Texas highway department to pay counties for completed federal aid projects was today's sensation in suit of the state against the American Road company. The disclosure paved the way for possible federal investigation.

Brodnax Pleads Vindication.

An impassioned plea for vindication made by W. Brodnax, stockholder and former official of the defendant company, and the first witness called by the defense after the state rested late today, and the aggressive prosecution of Attorney General Dan Moody was notable.

The day's proceedings were the most interesting thus far, many of the audience standing for hours, the better to hear the sharp clashes between opposing counsel and the testimony which was never dull.

Frank Lanham, chairman of hte highway commission, who, along with the other two commissioners and Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, was denied permission at beginning of trial to intervene for the state, sat most of the day with the individual defendants and conferred frequently with their counsel.

C. A. Schutze, superintendent of federal aid projects of the highway department, disclosed the discrepancies in federal funds.

He said that the government had turned over to the state treasury for the department $500,000 in federal aid funds; that the department had advanced less than $100,000 toward paying the government's share of the projects, and that there was today $249,500 to credit of the highway department in the treasury.

Calls it a Shortage.

"We are by no means certain the $249,500 in the treasury is all federal aid money, but assuming that it is, by adding the $249,500 to the $100,000, which, let us say, the department has advanced on the projects, there is a shortage of at least $250,000?" Moody asked.

"So it seems," Schutze answered.

Mr. Schutze explained that when a federal aid project was approved, a voucher for the entire cost was submitted to the United States bureau of good roads at Washington and that when the project was completed, he government paid half of the cost, depositing the money in the state treasury.

Contradicts Evidence.

When Eugene Smith, secretary of the highway commission was on the stand, the state developed the fact that in many counties in which the American Road company had been awarded surfacing contracts, the highway commission had also let maintenance contracts, which provide for upkeep of all state designated highways. Moody said this testimony was offered to contradict evidence, developed by the defense on cross examination, that the cost of "curing the asphalt surfacing might well have proved costly, consumed two years, and deducted considerably from profits.

After Smith had testified the department today had $149,500 in the treasury, Moody asked, "Mr. Smith, don't you know the American Road company has approved unpaid estimates against the department for $320,000, the Hoffman Construction company for about $300,000 and that the monthly bill for highway maintenance is about $250,000?"

Broadnax on Stand.

The witness said he could not answer the question.

Mr. Brodnax testified he had been in the road building business for many years, and "had started from the bottom." He said years ago in Louisiana he had helped build the first asphalt surfaced road ever built. "I do not want to appear egotistical, but I believe I've built more miles of road than anybody else in the world," he said. "I've built all kinds of roads, and under varying conditions. I was amazed today to hear expert witness called by the state testify that one cent a yard was sufficient under all conditions for cleaning roads preparatory to laying asphalt. 'Tis

Electra Matron With Holey Hose Raises Chain Fund

ELECTRA, Nov. 19.—Mrs. W. A. Gault entertained with a Federated Missionary Society chain social at which time everyone present reported the best party of the season. The hostess appeared wearing a pair of hose badly in need of mending and after explaining to her guests that she was too busy to attend her mending, she had decided to ask them to help her, and then passed a sewing basket full of hose to the various ones present.

They at first could not understand, but at length entered wholeheartedly into the game. A prize was given to Mrs. Bennie Miller for being the best mender, and an other prize to Mrs. O. C. Baker, who finished her work first. These prizes were sticks of candy, and Mrs. Gault then presented each lady with a lovely white embroidered handkerchief.

Several other amusing games were played and an old witch fortune teller added to the fun. Music was rendered through the evening. The refreshments were lovely and were in keeping with the house decoated wiht gold, yellow, red and purple plums chrysanthemums. Grapejuice was served first., followed by golden toast and olives, then apple sauce cake with pink whipped cream and last being hot chocolate and whipped cream. Those present were: Mesdames W. B. Babcock, O. C. Baker, Bennie Miller, Mary Jowell, Grace Jennings, Chas. F. Kolp and Butterfly Miller and the hostess.

An enjoyable social in the chain of Federated Missionary society socials was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Eland Stearns. The evening was spent in playing games of "42" and New Market, and at the close of the evening a "New Market" club was organized to meet the following Wednesday with Mrs. Ray Miller. Mrs. Stearns served a dainty plate luncheon to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Ray Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Wilbanks and Mr. Stearns.

WEDDING DINNER.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sanderlin of West Electra, met the train which brought the brids and groom, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Sanderlin to their new home, and entertained with a 6 o'clock dinner. It was also the celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sanderlin's 24th anniversary and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sanderlin's second anniversary. During the dinner, the bride told about the lovely shower given her by the faculty o fthe Masonic home on Thursday, November 12, and of the lovely gifts she was presented with. Those attending the dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Sanderlin, and daughter, Nancy Jane, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sanderlin and sons, Clyde, Olen and Fred and daughter, Francis. Messrs. Harvey, C. W. and Robert Sanderlin and the bride and groom.

TRAINING CLASS.

After prayer meeting Wednesday evening, a Sunday school teachers' training class was organized at the First Methodist church and the book to be studied is "The Worker and His Bible." This is divided into two sections. The training class will be held at the church each Tuesday evening at 7:15 and more members are expected to join the class. There were 18 to begin with and it is believed that much interest will be shown in the work. Those enrolling included: Misses Kate Jackson, Nell Jackson, Eloise Gafford, Lucile Jackson. Mesdames W. H. Stroud, Walter Baggett, A. O. Basham, A. J. Gafford, George Roever, P. M. Baker, W. J. McHurh, H. E. King, W. A. Hughes, Frank Terrell, and C. A. Linager, P. M. Baker, W. H. Stroud, Louie Mead and Rev. E. V. Cole will be the teachers.

CAL MEETING.

A call meeting of the Auxiliary of the American Legion will be held on Monday night, November 23, at the reception rooms of Dr. Wellers office, and each member is urged to be present.

PERSONALS.

Laten Whiteside of Bardwell, Texas, is expected to arrive in Electra for an extended visit with his son, B. W. Whiteside of the Magnolia lease.

Sam Williford is recovering from severe burns on his right hand received about noon Sunday at his home on North Waggoner street at the Parks rooming house, when he burned his hand while looking in the over of a gas range.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert McGann and Mrs. George McGann motored to Wichita Falls on Tuesday night to attend the Elks revue.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holmes of Toledo, Ohio, were week-end guests at the George McGann home, when they stopped over in Electra on their way to California to spend the winter. They will go by the way of El Paso, following the southern route.

Dr. E. B. Mouser is reported quite ill at his home, and up until Thursday morning is no better.

Health Good Says Report at Electra

ELECTRA, Nov. 19.—Dr. S. E. Cramer, city health officer made the following report of the illness in Electra. Up to date there are only six cases of scarlet fever, and these are slight cases, but any one knowing of any one of a case are requested to report it so that it may be quarantined. All school children have cold are asked to remain in until they are better, to stop the spread of diseases.

Better Than Whiskey For Colds and Flu

The sensation of the drug trade is Aspironal, the two-minute cold and cough reliever, authoritatively guaranteed by the laboratories; tested, approved and most enthusiastically endorsed by the highest authorities, and proclaimed by the people as ten times as quick and effective as whiskey, rock and rye, or any other cold and cough remedy they have ever tried.

All drug stores are supplied with the wonderful elixir, so all you have to do is to step into the nearest drug store, hand the clerk half a dollar for a bottle of Aspironal and tell him to serve you two teaspoonsful. With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it.

Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspironal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. Quickest relief for catarrhal croup and children's choking up at night.—Adv.

MINISTERS AT ELECTRA FORM NEW ALLIANCE

Plans are Made for Thanksgiving Service to be Held Next Week

ELECTRA, Nov. 19.—At a meeting of the pastors of Electra, a ministerial association was perfected, with Rev. E. M. Francis as presiuent; Rev. Byron Hester, vice president, and Rev. C. C. Dooley, as secretary. Provision was made for active and associate members. It was voted to hold a union Thanksgiving service this year, the first in several years, to be held at the First Methodist church, with Rev. C. C. Dooley, the Presbyterian minister, to preach the sermon, assisted by the other pastors.

STRIKE OIL SAND

NOCONA, Nov. 19.—The Pure Oil company drilling on the Jones ranch in the Nocona oil field, encountered an oil sand at 1,785 feet Monday that is reported to be a producer of about 40 barrels of oil per day.

NEW INVENTION SAVES MILLIONS

A Lamp That Burns 49% Air

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliaint, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, J. T. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 day's FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $250 to $500 per month.—Adv.

Presbyterians Are Successful With Electra Pledging

ELECTRA, Nov. 19.—The campaign for pledges is being actively carried on this week with every indication of success in the erection of a house fo worship for the Presbyterian congregation. The pledges are being made on the basis of actual construction, which it is hoped will be begun by Jan. 1, 1926.

The Presbyterians have practically doubled in membership in the nearly three years since organization, and have been worshipping in the Lebus hall.

Plans will probably be available for the public some time in December, and it is the purpose to build as commodious and attractive a structure as possible on the present site owned by the congregation on Waggoner and Harrison Avenues.

TOLL BRIDGE FEE UP.

What action, if any, the county commissioners of Wichita county, Texas, and Cotton county, Okla., may take for the regulation of charges made by operators of toll bridges across Red River and connecting the two states will be discussed Friday morning at a meeting between the two courts. Word was received here Thursday by County Judge B. D. Sartin that the Cotton county court would be in Wichita Falls today for a discussion of th eproposition. It was also said that officials of the Walters, Okla., chamber of commerce might be here also.

ELECTRA GINNINGS

ELECTRA, Nov. 19.—Up to date the amount of cotton ginned in this city, from a checking of the three gins, is 3,115 bales. The Farmers and Merchants gin is credited with 701 bales; the Electra gin with 839 bales, and the Red River gin, north of the city with 1,575 bales. It is estimated by the experts along this line at only 30 per cent of the crops remain to be ginned.

Plans For Budget Drive Of Electra C-C All Set For Teams On Monday Morning

Approval of Membership Is Placed on Proposal To Raise $12,500

ELECTRA, Nov. 19.—With membership approval the Electra chamber of commerce and agriculture, it now goes ahead with special funds which have been handled by the chamber consolidated in one budget and a campaign will soon be under way for $12,500 to finance the entire program of work for 1926. Although this amount is more than has been received from membership dues during the past year, it is slightly less than has been raised during 1925 in special subscriptions added to the membership dues.

The chamber's budget committee is composed of J. A. Brannen, E. M. Friend, R. B. Magee, G. F. LeBus, W. A. Hughes. Following is an outline as suggested by the chamber's special committee for the program of activities during 1926:

Good Roads—Secure, if possible, designation of new state highway from Red river through Electra, connecting with State highway No. 30 and route to Fort Worth by Mineral Wells.

Continu etrade extension activities.

Secure survey of irrigation possibilities along Red river below mouth of Pease river.

Continue agricultural development activities. Send agricultural exhibit to State fair.

Civic—Continue campaign for park. Promote home ownership. Improvement and city beautification.

Complete industrial survey and publish.

Extend rural mail service.

Hold open forum meetings.

The chairman of standing committees constituted thje committee outlining this program. They are W. A. Asbill; J. A. Brannen, S. B. Marchant; J. M. Hemby; W. A. Andrews, E. M. Friend, H Y. Newsum, W. A. Hughes, E. R. Brown

The committee in charge of the budget campaign has made arrangements for the budget drive The members of this committee are: E. R. Brown, E. V. Haltom, H. T. S. Totten, W. R. Andrews and Ed Moreland. The membership campaign will start at 9 o'clock Monday morning, Nov. 23, and the membership teams will meet at luncheon each day during the three-day campaign to report. Arrangements are being made for local business men to speak at each of these luncheon meetings emphasizing the necessity of expanding the chamber's budget in proportion to the growth of the city.

Turkeys Bring In Cash to Frederick

FREDERICK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Turkey shipments, after being handled in local produce houses, are forming the most prominent and remunerative industry in Frederick and Tillman county at this time. Daily thousands of pounds of picked turkeys are started rolling to the eastern markets, where they are to be devoured on Thanksgiving day, and through the holiday season.

Already approximately $100,000 worth of picked turkeys have been exported, acording to local produce men. Each car that has been shipped is worth $7,000 and over 16 cars have been sent.

Farmers are cashing in heavily on their year's turkey crop, the price remaining high despite a plentiful supply here.

24 CHARGES IN A-M ALLEGED FORGERY FILED

Chas. Felker Was Out On Bond in Eleven Previous Cases

BRYAN, Texas, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Charles A. Felker, former chief clerk of the experiment station of the Texas A. and M. college, was re-arrested today on 24 additional charges, including misapplication of public funds, fraudulent entries in the books of the department and forgery, folowing a report of auditors who have been at work on the college's books. He had been at liberty on bond in eleven previous charges.

Felker had been out on bond in the sum of $11,000, or $1,000 in each of eleven cases. The twenty four additional charges filed here today make a total of thirty-five. The case is to be taken into Judge J. W. Hamilton's justice court.

The new cases are divided as follows:

Twelve of misapplication of public funds; ten to cases of fraudulent entries in account books; and two cases of forgery between $10,000 and $15,000. The previous cases were based on charges of misapplication of funds involving around $26,000. A $1,000 bond in each of the new cases was set today, making the total bond $35,000. Felker said today he would be able to make the bond. The examining trial has been set for one day next week before Judge Hamilton.

A WORTHWHILE EDITORIAL

Chicago Journal of Commerce

BANISHED PLAGUES

The death of Dr. Juan Guiteras at Matanzas, Cuba, on October 28, recalls the years of yellow fever in the United States. This man was prominent in the work of ridding Cuba, by sanitation, of this dreadful disease. The present generation has been free from its epidemics so frequent previous to 1880.

Yellow fever is, or was, an American disease, unknown abroad before Columbus discovered America. It broke out, as a result of filthy habits of living, among the Indians in New England in 1618 and 1646. It was a hot weather disease that is killed by frost or freezing weather. In 1796 it visited the French colony at Gallipolis, Ohio, and half of the inhabitants died in 10 days. In 1878 the same town had another attack in which 51 persons suffered from the disease and 31 died.

The epidemic of 1878 was widespread in the south. Thousands of deaths from it occurred in Alabama, Louisiana, Tennessee, Mississippi, Missouri, Arkansas and Kentucky. Memphis and New Orleans were particularly hard hit in what was the severest visitation of the plague ever known in the history of the country. The fever was carried north by the towboat John Porter. Twenty-three persons died on her from the time she left New Orleans. On August 19 she was laid up at Gallipolis because of the breakdown of her machinery, and the disease spread from her to the shore. All along her voyage up the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, the news of the pest ship was featured in the papers and the boat everywhere denied a harbor except at Gallipolis.

Following 1878, medical science finally found the solution of the problem of killing the plague, and the world was practically freed of its ravages. With the conquest of smallpox also, and at an earlier date cholera, the three worst plagues known to the United States disappeared.

CONTEMPORARY PRESS COMMENT

Supply and Demand.

Many breweries in Germany have closed because the demand for beer has fallen off. In this country, where beer is not to be had, the demand appears to be tremendous. Folks always want what they can't have.—Des Moines Register.

But Rumor Persists.

Rumor of a prospective candidacy of Senator R. L. Owen for the Harrold seat does not match with his recent declaration that nothing could induce him to again hold an elective office. The statement made in Bartlesville was voluntary and informed and apparently deeply sincere. It is probable the rumors are wild and entirely untrustworthy.—Bartlesville Examiner.

What Makes a Real City.

One encouraging thing about American life is the intense local patriotism of most citizens. Nearly every man you meet is always ready to defend his home city or town, and on occasion to do all he can to make it a better place

Too often, however, we fail to have a good understanding of just what it takes to make a city a better place. Because it isn't simply a matter of getting more population, more factories, a new railroad or a deeper harbor.

It is something deeper—something that depends on the individual heart and conscience of the individual citizen. It can't be expressed in dollars or steel—few really worth while things can; but it makes the difference between a city that is stifling to intellectual and moral development and one that isn't.—Topeka Capital.

Tribute to a Hen-Governed State.

Hen No. 528 laid 315 eggs in the national egg-laying contest which has just been brought to a close by the Agricultural and Mechanical college of Texas. Three hundred and fifteen eggs make a lot of eggs. A rough calculation shows that Lady 528 must have violated a Sabbath or two in order to bring her record up to that level, for the calendar shows that there were not 315 week days in the year she has just rounded out.

Lady 528 isn't a citizen of Texas. She hails from California, but her performance in Texas shows whatever it does show about climate. You may argue that she was so much pleased with the change from just weather in California to the genuine climate of Texas that she resolved to lay all opposition in the shade. At any rate, that is what she actualy did. The only other hen in America to do better was one entered in the West Washington contest. Washington makes no pretensions to climate, so the implication of that bit of data isn't clear.—Dallas News.

A BOY PHARAOH

Howard Carter and his associates in the work at Luxor have just discredited the imagination of the world. It was not the old King Tut the fancy of many living men had created which the party unwrapped the other day in the ancient tomb, but a young King Tut, a boy Pharaoh, whose age at the time of his death was estimated by experts to have been 15 years. A Pharaoh none the less, as the gold of his crown and cerements attested.

Before such proof of error fancy must capitulate to fact. But what is to be done with the reams that were written and the pages that were filled with stories and quips and even verse which celebrated the romantic mummy as that of a venerable old monarch who lived and ruled and fell upon sleep in a remote and obscure day of the past?

We shall have to create a new Tut literature now, since the facts compel it. Surely the discovery of a youthful Pharaoh clothed in all the splendor of his state, will make strong appeal to the romanticists. Some of these might weave a story of color and beauty, born of sheer imaginings, which would outlast any reports the scientists will make.

Uncommon Sense

THE CASE OF PEGGY.

Peggy is a bright and fairly intelligent girl.

She is reasonably good looking.

She dresses as well as she can afford to, and has a trick of looking very well on a small expenditure.

Three years ago it became necessary for her to earn her living.

She was very much excited about the prospect of working.

She had been popular with other girls, and with boys too. She felt sure that she would have no difficulty in impressing employers with her value.

Today she is working at exactly the salary she started with. And she has had fifteen jobs since she began to work.

For some reason she can't understand, after she has been a month or two in a place the boss tells her that he is cutting down the office force for the sake of economy, and that she had better look out for another position.

Very often other girls who came after she did are allowed to stay on. Girls not half so bright. She wonders why, and is getting quite embittered.

Here is the reason.

When Peggy comes into the office she is longer in the cloak room than other girls, "fixing herself up."

After she starts work she remembers that she has forgotten to call up several other girls and boys with whom she has made engagements, so she does that, at the first opportunity.

Given a definite task she finds it hard to fix her mind on it, because there are so many more interesting things to think of.

If the work is needed quickly—and most work is needed quickly in offices—it is given to some other girl to finish.

That makes extra work for the other girl, but Peggy doesn't think about that. It never occurs to her that she is stealing their time by neglecting her own task.

She is always the first to begin to get her wraps on to go to lunch, and usually the last to come back.

Ten minutes before the hour for closing the office she is in the cloak room making ready for the street.

All through the day she is asking other girls for information that she could just as well get herself.

Most of them are obliging, and give it to her. Some of them are snappy, and complain about it, which Peggy thinks is not at all clubby.

This explains Peggy's failures, but Peggy cannot understand them.

Perhaps she will be married before long, for she is attractive. But the man who marries her will soon discover that she is far from an equal partner in the marriage.

He will be doing more than half of the housework, if he can not afford a servant. There will always be some reason why Peggy couldn't do it all.

Peggies are very plentiful in this world. And their male counterparts are just as plentiful. Which is why it is easier for others to keep their jobs and get ahead.

WHAT'S THIS WE READ?

The Atlanta Constitution, owned by Mr. Comen, Democratic national committeeman for Georgia, which gentleman was the very front and substance of the McAdoo forces in the last Democratic national convention, is out in a lead editorial recommending to the Democrats of the South that they turn a cold shoulder hence on their radical brethren from the West and friendly eye toward their conservative relations in the North and East.

Strange enough—or it may be simply co-incidence—this editorial followed quickly the visit of Mayor-Elect Walker, of New York City, to Atlanta where he was received in a most cordial manner and was entertained enthusiastically by the leading Democrats of the section. Strange enough, too, the editorial, lengthy and well thought out, is accepted by the Southern Democrats in the national capital as correctly interpreting real Democratic sentiment in the South.

"The incident," explains Mr. Arthur Sears Henning, political observer and writer of repute, "illuminates the fact that the Democratic party consists of three factions—the Democrats of the North and East, who are preponderantly wet and conservative; the Democrats of the South, who are dry and conservative; the Democrats of the West who are radical and dry. To unite any two of the factions is the Democratic problem."

"To unite any two," says the Tulsa World, "is not quite the Democratic problem, because that was accomplished in the last campaign with far from victorious success. Meaning that the South and the far West united does not even offer a hope of party victory.

"The Democratic problem is to unite the traditional home and stronghold of Democratic sentiment, the South, with the present stronghold of Democracy, the North and East—in particular the Atlantic seaboard. And it is quite evident that Committeeman Cohen with his Atlanta Constitution clearly perceives the only hope democracy has of becoming a winning national party once again."

"In view of this rather sensational editorial in one of the South's most stalwart papers, one wonders if the Missionary trip of Mayor-Elect Walker was the success thus implied? The answer may be discovered in a bulletin just issued by the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, of the Methodist Episcopal church, in which alarm is plainly stated at Tammany's flirtation with the South, and indignation expressed at the astonishing effrontery of Governor Smith," the World concludes.

THE FABLE OF THE BEES

Made to order by the news itself, a compact little fable is the story of the German bees as it is told in a dispatch from London.

They were Luneberger bees, these bees, living prosperously in North Germany. They liked the Luneberger climate and they liked the Luneberger gardens. They had no wish to visit France. But fate and the reparation clauses of the Versailles Treaty changed their lives. In the war some 30,000 colonies of French bees were destroyed by German armies; so 30,000 colonies of Luneberger bees were moved to France by way of reparation. A transfer of property as sound and right by the ethics of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth and a bee for a bee, as any transfer which can be imagined. But note this. After first inspection of their new homes the worker bees declared a hunger strike. Then the queens refused to lay the required thousands of eggs, and now France has 30,000 empty hives, Germany has a receipted bill and Europe has lost some honey.

Things which are right enough in theory sometimes turn out shabbily in practice for the reason that neither bees nor marks nor men in mines will perform away from home and for some one else the same labors which, in the routine of an established order, they normally perform at home.

What now? Will a cordon of French bees be thrown around each empty hive, on guard either till the end of time or until it produces honey?

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

Scorpio.

The planetary aspects which were overcast yesterday afternoon and evening, assume an adverse character today, and continue so until after sundown, when they become benign, although not actively auspicious. During the day there will be every incentive to become querulous and grouchy.

Suspicion and jealously will also make their presence felt. While there will be nothing tangible to interfere with the conscientious carrying out of customary obligations, there will be nothing to justify the exploration of unknown fields of endeavor. It is an unpropitious occasion for travel, signing contracts, or for the consummation of any act of importance.

Children born today will be gifted with good constitutions, and a remarkable ability to withstand the effects of illness. They will not be immune to sickness, but their marvellous recuperative powers will save them, where a weaker one might succumb. In disposition, they will be easily amenable to environment and influence. They will prove tractable and obedient. When, however, the obedience demanded does not fit in with their ideas of what is right and proper, they will show a disposition to sulk. They will not be brilliant at their studies, but will always manage to "get by." They will not show any special gifts of intelligence, but will always be able to get from the world that which they think it owes them.

If today is your birthday, you are, without being argumentative, very cocksure of your own opinions, and these are of a positive and rather extreme nature. You are naturally secretive, not only about your own affairs, but especially about those of others, and have never been known to violate the confidence of a friend. You are self-contained and self-sufficient, very rarely seeking or accepting advice. This is a natural result of your fanatical belief in yourself and your own ability.

You are thoroughly trustworthy and reliable, possessing exceptional intelligence and remarkable powers of concentration. You are also sincere, and never make any pretense of liking people who do not interest you.

Your home life should be very attractive, unless you have chosen or should choose, a mate who judges and measures love by words and caresses, and not by deeds and thoughtfulness.

Liberty Bell to Be Rung Over Radio

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Plans to have historic Liberty Bell rung for the first time over the radio from Independence hall at midnight Dec. 31, to usher in the New Year were announced today by Mayor Kendrick of this city.

Mrs. Kendrick, according to the plans, will sound the heroic chime with a rubber mallet selected after a series of tests showed ringing of the bell to be practicable provided a proper mallet was used.

MARIE PREVOST IS SUED.

Motion Picture Actress Delinquent in Income Tax Payment.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Marie Prevost, motion picture actress, has been added to the government's list of film stars delinquent in the payment of income taxes. A tax lien was filed against the actress in federal court for $788, reported to be due on her 1924 income.

SUNSHINE PELLETS

I want no dose in brimming cup
To keep my fagging spirits up;
All I want's a good cigar
And play the game—nine holes in par.

And another thing we could never understand is why it costs twenty-five cents to check a two dollar hat for a thirty cent lunch.

Who spends his nights in the cold, fresh air will have no use for the docor's care.

Cleanliness is next to godliness—which probably accounts for some of our ungodly pictures.

That Grand Pop, at eighty, will outlive his new born grandson is a fifty-fifty bet.

HOW IT STARTED

"Hot Toddy."

Even in these prohibition days, few of us are unfamiliar with the mixture of spirits and hot water popularly called a "hot toddy." The expression is a British one, so commonly used by the canny Scotsman that its origin has been assumed by many to be Scotch.

The fact is, however, that hot "toddy" is of East Indian ancestry, signifying originally the sap, usually fermented of various East Indian palms. The word "Toddy" harks back to the Hindu "tari," which is the juice of the Palmyra palm and to whose pronunciation in the native tongue "toddy" bears a close resemblance.

It is easily comprehensible how the term for the native fermented beverage should have become Anglicized by Britishers resident in India who carried it back to "Blighty" where it became a popular member of the language which is also our own!

POEMS THAT LIVE

Apparitions.

Such a starved bank of moss
Till, that May morn,
Blue ran the flax across
Violets were born!

Sky—what a scowl of cloud
Till, near and far,
Ray on ray split the shroud
Splendid, a star!

World—how it walled about
Life with disgrace,
Till God's own smile came out:
That was thy face!

Texans Back From Hunt in N. Mexico

A party of prominent Texans has just returned from Silver City, New Mexico, on a hunting trip. Included in the party were: Earl Clayton of Wichita Falls, Mr. Jones of Wichita Falls, Ed Hitchcock of Ranger; Claud Helf of Albany; John Brownlee of Electra; W. T. Wagner Jr. of Electra; Joe Prince of Electra; Dr. Daniels of Houston; Dr. Prince of Corsicana and Mr. Dearman of Corsicana. The party went from Silver City to a large camp in the mountains 12 miles away. Each man is bringing home a deer.

A. J. Carter and Guy Cooper of Electra brought in a 300-pound buck last Sunday.

Durkin The Killer Bids Chicago Adieu

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Martin J. Durkin, police slayer, who has eluded every effort to capture him since November 11, was reported today to have left Chicago after coming here a week ago from New York in a stolen automobile with Mrs. Harriet Galow, his cousin.

He waved a farewell as he left to his mother, to whom a suicide note, purporting to be from him was found last week, with bullet torn and bloody clothing on the Michigan Boulevard bridge.

SUB ROSA BY MIMI

Are You a Good Listener?

So much has been written on the subject of man's liking to talk about himself—and the necessity for every woman to be a good listener—that today we have thousands of young things practicing breathless interest before their mirrors.

It's seldom nowadays that you find a girl too dumb to stop talking when she realizes that Mr. Man is about to begin his celebrated lecture on: "The Way I Won the Great Game."

But the trouble with all these earnest social aspirants who want to prove themselves good listeners is that they haven't studied the definition of the word "listen."

When a boy is explaining to you carefully just how he won his way up from office boy to assistant manager, you needn't think you can get away with a few polite comments such as "Really?" "Marvellous!" "I don't see how you did it," or "yes, yes go on."

The first time you may get by, but after that your companion will decide that you're just a poor little sap who doesn't know what it's all about.

To show this particular youth just how intelligent and interested you really are, you've got to ask sensible questions as he goes along—questions that prove you to be listening and wide-awake and keenly interested.

If you don't understand what he's driving at, don't murmur: "I see," with a blank stare.

Fix your companion with a look of inquiry and say briskly: "Now I don't quite get that. Would you mind explaining that to me?"

He will love explaining that to you. He will begin all over again at the very beginning, if you give him half a chance—and if he thinks you're really keeping up with him.

You see the modern boys have so many opportunities for meeting all sorts of girls who are only too anxious to make a good impression—that they become fairly used to the sweet young thing who just pretends to be a good listener.

You can't impress a man these days by opening your eyes very wide and registering admiration, awe and surprise all in one closeup.

You've got to follow up this triumph of facial expression with a few snappy remarks to show that you're right there.

And to do this, you've got to make yourself genuinely interested in what your companion is talking about.

In other words, the days of the grand bluff are over—the modern boy is too apt to call you or to give you up entirely as a hopeless case.

You've got to listen not only with your ears, but with your mind.

And so training yourself to be a good listener needs more than a mirror and a few good facial expressions.

It means training the old gray matter to function properly. Start work today.

(Mimi will be glad to answer any inquiries directed to this paper provided a stamped, addressed envelope is enclosed. Also she will be glad to send food for conversation and how to overcome self-consciousness.)

Queens Quit Desert To Get Hair Bobbed And Teeth Repaired

LONDON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Pilgrimages to dentists and barbers has brought two queens from the seclusion of their desert harems to Jerusalem. They are the wives of King Hussein Ali of Hedjaz and Emir Abdullah of Trans-Jordania.

The Emir's wife, says a dispatch to the Daily Express from Jerusalem, soon will return to her husband with bobbed, and perhaps shingled hair. The Queen of Hedjaz has undergone treatment by the same beauty specialist but has submitted to having her hair bobbed.

SYNOPSIS

Connemara Moore, having dived from the deck of a mysterious yacht into Long Island Sound, and swam to shore, is surprised to meet David Lacy on the beach. Just before midnight Connie had disappeared from her Aunt Celimena's Connecticut home and escaped with Lacy, whom she had never seen before. Then followed hours of wild adventure, in the company of rum-runners—or revenue officers. Now Lacy is leading her on a five-mile jaunt to his farmhouse—for dry clothing.

CHAPTER XIV—Continued

By this time they were walking up the roadway to the house, and standing in the doorway, looking at them over her glasses, was "Miss Liddy" Parker, Lacy's cook-housekeeper. No need to say she was New England, the "Liddy" established that fact even before two minutes of conversation.

"Good morning, Mrs. Parker. This is—a friend of mine. We are in something of a plight, and we can tell you about it later if you will do what you can to find some clothes for her and then something to eat."

Mrs. Parker looked—and thought. Something was wrong, and should she allow herself to become involved? Who was this young woman, and why was she dressed in this manner? It was too unconventional. Mrs. Parker's life had never been that, and Mrs. Parker could see no reason why any other person's life should be. The pause became embarrassing.

"Don't you think you could find a dress of some sort for her?" Lacy was smiling sweetly and didn't seem as worried as he should have been. Mrs. Parker was a little reassured. In fact, she felt as though she could almost take a chance.

"I'll see what I can get her to wear," said Miss Liddy, "but I don't now what I can give you for breakfast. I ain't got a piece of pie in the house."

"Wake up, for Pete's sake, Sister," said the shrill young voice of Sweetie.

"Maybe you have some doughnuts, then, or we'd even take some poached eggs and toast and coffee as a substitute. As a matter of fact," went on Lacy, "I think some eggs held down with a nice piece of ham or some bacon would make an excellent substitute."

And so, after many questions which kept Connemara fencing for answers, Liddy Parker produced a not too badly fitting blue linen dress that belonged to her school-teacher daughter in Bayville, and then left Connemara to dress while she prepared breakfast.

Connemara found a broad blue ribbon belt, also the property of the absent daughter-teacher, and with it replaced the soiled and torn bandage with a turban so tightly and adeptly wound that Gloria Swanson would have immediately written for the recipe. Aside from the fact that she felt paralyzed from the hips down, Connemara was almost herself, but only food could have induced her to take another step.

Lacy was waiting for her at the breakfast table. The coffee and rolls and bacon and eggs were on the table. "Miss Liddy says she did have a pie," beamed Lacy, "so we will have that for dessert."

"How quaint!" said Connemara before she could stop herself.

Learning that there had been no word from McTish, and that no one around the place had seen him, Lacy after breakfast organized a small posse to move on to the hiding place of the Filomena. Before leaving however, he asked Connemara into the library and placed on the desk before her, three ten-dollar bills.

Connemara looked at them and then at Lacy. "Are you going to do a trick?"

"No—that's car fare for you."

"To where?"

"Home—that is, if you care to use it. I'm afraid the fifty 'grand,' as I believe it is called, would cause you some inconvenience—maybe trouble. This will simplify things for you. At three cents a mile it will take you some distance, and if I find you gone when I return I'll understand. But if you are the girl at Auteuil, as I am pretty sure you are, Connemara, I am going to find you waiting for me to take you home, wherever that is, and introduce me to your family, including Aunt Celimena—who really ought to be very grateful to me if I rescue her from the Swede."

And then without more words, or waiting to hear from her, he walked away and left her and the three ten-dollar bills where he had placed them. She heard him give Miss Liddy some farewell message—saw him enter a car in which there were four men, and once more she was left with a decision to make.

He had been very patient. She wondered if either Adams or Carrington would have been quite so patient. And then the past few hours flashed through her mind and she wondered how she would be able to explain to him when he returned all the jumble and tangle of wills and announcements, of drama, melodrama and farce that had been sandwiched into the brief time since her flight. Some night-lifer once said, "It's great to be crazy," but right then Connemara would have taken the negative. Certainly she had been crazy enough, and while it lasted she had had thrills galore, nice new exhilarating thrills, and they had left her with new problems to solve. Wouldn't it be much better for her—anyway, simpler—to take the bills in front of her and go back to Moorelands and whatever awaited her there? After all, wasn't that her fate? She was in the mood for punishment. She was so tired, she was ready to accept it. All her resistance was gone. She was ready to punish herself, so culpable did she feel. Almost in shame, she buried her head in her arms on the desk, and in that action all her troubles, worries, and problems ceased. The eyes closed and quicker than one can read she was asleep.

One would think, sleeping on such a troubled mind, she would dream of ships, pirates, million-dollar bills which would be changed into nickels and pennies, and having no pockets in her dress in which to put them, of jumping off boats and going down, down through a sea filled with all sorts of strange sea monsters dressed in slickers and wearing turbans. But Connemara was a most unusual girl and slept peacefully and almost comfortably. She never heard a step on the piazza outside.

The step was made on tiptoe, for a small, bedraggled figure, dressed in soiled white yachting flannels which hung in folds on it, was trying to make as little noise as possible. Not that it didn't want to waken Connemara, for after taking a look around to see that "the coast was clear," as they say in the drama, it reached in through the window and laid a hand on Connemara's shoulder.

"Wake up, for Pete's sake, Sister," said the shrill young voice of Sweetie in Connemara's ear. "You and me has got to have a talk private and uninterrupted."

CHAPTER XV

Rube Goldberg

By Rube Goldberg

Connemara rubbed her eyes, blinked a few times, and gazed at Sweetie. She waited for the rest of the motley crew to come up from behind. Sweetie, without Pooch and Doc and the Swede, seemed grotesquely unattached. The whole collection of savage beasts—there were millions of them dancing around, around in Connemara's brain—with their comic-opera accouterments, would come swarming into the room and start the thing all over again. Didn't they ever get tired of being rough? Why couldn't they sit down like regular people and read a book or work out a cross-word puzzle? Didn't villains ever take a vacation?

WILL M'GUIRE, BAYLOR COUNTY PIONEER DEAD

Drops Dead in Arms Of Friends Near Seymour Thursday

SEYMOUR, Texas, Nov. 19.—The whole community was saddened at noon today when the news came that Will McGuire had dropped dead about 11 o'clock. He has been a prominent farmer of the northwest part of the county near Vera, living there practically all of his life. He was born near Hillsboro 43 years ago and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McGuire who came to this county when the deceased was two years old. They were among Baylor county's earliest settlers, but now live at Farwell, Texas.

Will McGuire was married to Miss Della Bratcher of Vera and in this community they made their home until last year, when they moved to Seymour to put their children in the Seymour schools. He has been a salesman for Cope Cochran Cheyrolet company and was out in the country about four miles from town talking to Lon Morgan when without a dorw he dropped dead in his friend's arms. He is survived by his wife and six children, Marlyn, Roy, Williemarie, Doris, Wade and Mary Ann, only two months old. His father and mother, three sisters and five brothers also survive.

He was a devout member of the Christian church, being converted when a young man. He was a prominent Mason and Woodman. Funeral arangements have not been made waiting word from relatives.

Armour Revokes Hunting Permits; His Butler is Shot

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Each year, J. Ogden Armour, millionaire packer, grants twenty hunting permits allowing society members of Lake Forest to shoot game in his 2,000-acre estate, Melody Farm.

But there will be no hunting there this year.

A score of society women, armed with shot guns went rabbit and squirrel hunting on the estate yesterday. Mr. Armour's butler went along to help bring in the game. Instead the huntresses brought back the butler. He had been shot in the back by one of the nimrods.

Last night Mr. Armour cancelled all the permits.

Magazines Under Mothers' Attack

EL PASO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Texas mothers rapped American magazines and news stands when Mrs. C. E. Maddocks, president of the Texas Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers associations compared them with those of Canada here today at the annual convention of the organization. The convention will close tonight.

"Reports show all objectionable magazines sold in Canada are published in America," she said. "Of 30 periodicals barred from Canadian mails, 30 are American. We cannot afford to permit our young to read these things. Mothers owe a duty to their children that can be effected by letters proving to publishers that objectionable literature is unpopular in homes."

ELECTRA GROCER DIES SUDDENLY AS HEART FAILS

R. L. Hamm Drops Dead In His Store Hhursday Afternoon

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 19.—Another prominent Electra citizen died at 1:30 Thursday afternoon. R. L. Hamm, 55 dropped dead in his grocery store about one mile north of this city ofheart failure. Mr. Hamm apparently was in good health. He is survived by his widow and five children and two brothers. His sons are Walter, E. E. and Marvin Hamm of Electra, and his daughters are Mesdames Beulah Matlock of Electra and Vesta Burgin of Collinsville, Texas, who will arrive tonight for the funeral. Two brothers, J. A. Hamm, owner of a furniture store here and L. R. Hamm of Henrietta, will be here for the funeral.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed, awaiting the arrival of helatives, but the funeral probably will be held Friday afternoon, with Rev. Lonnie Whitworth of the Assembly of God church in charge, with burial in the local cemetery. Mr. Hamm was born in Tennessee in 1870 and came to Texas when a lad of 14. He has made his home in Electra since 1914, the last 5 years being owner of the Hamm grocery store. He has many friends in this community.

Methodists May Aid Drouth Area

WAXAHACHIE, Texas, Nov. 19.—(AP)—An effort to raise $4,000 for churches in the Texas drouth area as a part of a $40,000 special mission fund was delayed in the central Texas conference, Methodist church, South, today by failure to agree on a plan.

The proposal was made by the conference mission board, of which Rev. Alonzo Monk, Jr., of Mineral Wells, is secretary. The report of the board as read by Rev. Mr. Monk called for this conference to raise $40,000 as a part of the $750,000 special mission fund which the church is seeking in order to save its foreign mission fields.

CRAWFORD JURY PICKED

San Antonio Woman is Charged With Husband's Death

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The jury which will try Mrs. Suzanne Crawford on the charge of murdering her husband, Charles M. Crawford of Houston, was completed late this afternoon. Introduction of testimony will begin at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning, it was announced when Judge W. W. McCrory ordered a recess when the jury was completed.

Philadelphia Bank Raises Money Rate

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 19.—(AP)—After keeping financial circles in the third federal reserve district in suspense for two days the Philadelphia federal reserve bank announced after the stock market closed today that it had increased the rediscount rate from 3 1-2 to 4 per cent. The action was taken on Wednesday, but no intimation was given at that time.

The bank rediscounted at 3 1-2 per cent today, leading some to believe that it had not changed its rate. However close observers did not take this as a final indication of the bank's action and were not surprised when the announcement finally came.

TO WORK STONE MOUNTAIN.

Borglum's Successor Completes Model, To Resume Task Soon.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Augustus Lukeman of New York, who succeeded Gutzon Borglum as sculptor of the Stone mountain memorial to the Confederacy, has finished the memorial hall model and will arrive in Atlanta Monday to resume work on the mountain.

Memorial hall will be cut in Stone mountain, on the face of which heroic figures of the southern military leaders are being carved. In the center of the hall a symbolic figure representing the women of the south will be carved from an immense block of stone.

Garibaldi Red Shirt May Be Texas Mayor

BROWNSVILLE, Nov. 19.—(AP)—When Garibaldi went to the aid of the Sicilians, "with one thousand redshirted volunteers" in 1860, Commodore Louis Bobolini, today nominated for the position of mayor of Brownsville, was one of the one thousand.

Cobolini is now 81 years old, and is owner of a fishing fleet operatiug near here. He will oppose Mayor A. B. Cole, who defeated him in a mayoralty race in 1912, although Cobolini lost in the recount by only three votes.

The election will be held December 8.

SOCIETY

One of the most pleasing as well as instructive programs ever given by members of the Musician's club was on Thursday afternoon at the Wichita club when Miss Irma Nalle Voss was director, and folk songs, music and dances, were featured.

The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Lois Parker, vice president of the club, who introduced the leader, Miss Voss. The program was opened with an instructive paper on folk music, read by Miss Voss, and this was followed with a German folk dance given by a group of Austin school pupils in quaint costume, under the direction of Miss L. Ainsworth, one of the teachers of the school.

Mrs. J. Will Gray sang two numbers, "The Nightingale" and "Old Maids Song" and Mrs. Clyde Hamilton played a piano solo, "Hungarian dance No. 6 by Brahma. Miss Vician Railey gave for a violin number, Kreisler's "Paradise," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Lucile B. Huff, who also accompanied Mrs. Gray.

Following Miss Railey's number, a group of little girls from the Alamo school under their teacher, Miss Abilene Fields, gave a Swedish folk dance and Mrs. N. V. Cameron sang two English folk songs, "Barbara Allen" and "O, No, John."

The program was concluded with a piano fol knumber, "Shepherd's Hey" by Miss Katherine Kilander.

There were about 75 presinet, and each number was enthusiastically received.

TRAVIS MOTHERS CLUB HOLDS REGULAR MEETING.

Members of the Travis Mothers club met at the school Wednesday afternoon when an interesting program included a talk by Dr. J. W. Cantwell on "Giving the Child a Chance." Pupils of the second and third grades gave two songs. During the business session it was reported that $16 has been realized from the sale of quilts recently set and quilted by the club.

Mrs. A. P. Perry was elected first vie president to succeed Mrs. E. E. Brooks who has moved out of the district.

During the social hour, refreshments were served to Mesdames G A. Rickett, W. E. Perkins, C. O. Simmons, A. M. Cole, L. E. Harvey, Ferdinand Hernandez, L. P. Wilson, M. E. Chisborn, J. L. Webb, T. J. Laster, A. M. Mays, Earl McCullough, Bonnie Brewster, H. M. Marshall, Minnie Kelley, Nettie Mathews, J. D. Blankenship, B. W. Bell, C H. Bird, A. N. Wingfield, L. A. Travers, A. P. Perry, T. A Rogers, H. F. Taylor, C. Ray Williams, Rex Skelton, Birdie Howery, L. C. Burdette, Ellen Ogle, L. Van Schoick, W. C. Rowe, M. A. Perdue and J. O. Buster.

WENDAT CAMPFIRE GIRLS HOLD MEETING.

The Wendat Campfire girls held a meeting at the home of the guardian Wednesday afternoon when baskets, vanity sets, scarfs and handkerchiefs were worked on for the Christmas bazaar. The girls decided to make powder puffs and boudoir caps for the bazaar at their next meeting. Fines were collected from the members who failed to learn the Campfire Credo. A short business meeting was held with Agnes Mae Turner, vice president presiding in the absence of the president.

Those present were: Phyllis Creighton, Opal Longan, Marggerite McCord, Agnes Mae Turner, Therresa Kauffman and Mrs. Anna Barnhill, guardian.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Opal Longan, 1202 Travis street next Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock.

SAM HOUSTON MOTHERS HOLD MEETING.

The Sam Houston Mothers club met Wednesday afternoon with 136 present when a splendid program was given. Mrs. P. B. Curt led the devotionals; Mrs. Wayne Holmes sang "Angel's Serenade" with Mrs. R. E. Shephard at the piano; Mrs. Ira Gain gave an interesting talk on "The Influence of Good Music and Good Books"; Miss Walter Riddle's orchestra gave a number; Miss Ivo Wilson talked on the girl reserve work and Mrs. C. H. Hutchison talked on "Is a Child's Moral Training Developed Before it Starts to School." Mrs. John C. Kay made a few remarks, after which during the business session, a mother's birthday party was planned for December 9.

STUDENT NURSES ENJOY DELIGHTFUL PARTY.

Members of the staff of senior student nurses and their friends were delightfully entertained with dancing and bridge at the home of Mrs. Lillian Evans on Bluff street Tuesday evening when in the games, the high score woman's favor, a lovely hand - painted handkerchief, was awarded to Miss Wyatt. Mr. Kelly was fortunate among the men, and was given an ash tray. Miss Byars was consoled for low score with a novelty vanity, while Mr. Brown was consoled for low score among the men, was given a fancy deck of cards.

Refreshments were served to Misses Jones, Tanner, Shaw, Wales, Estridge, Byars, Simonton, Vandiver, Wyatt, Holcomb, Baker, Dawson and Messrs. Heath Brown, DeBlance, Newman, Aster, Smith, Elder, Huckleby Martin, Wales and Oggleby.

DRAMATIC ART CLUB HOLDS MEETING.

Meeting with their director, Mrs. Lloyd Young, members of the Dramatic Art club studied Shakespeare's "Macbeth" Wednesday evening, and Mrs. George Patterson gave an excellent and thorough discussion of the drama.

Miss Virginia Ely gave for a dramatic reading, "The Nel King," by Van Gothe, translated by Sir Walter Scott, and responded to an encmore with an Italian dialect reading, "All's Well That Ends Well," by T. A. Daley.

At the close of the program Mrs. Young was presented a shower of lovely handkerchiefs in behalf of the club, in appreciation of her services as their director and gym exercises were directed by Mrs. Eugene Nicholson in the absence of the regular director, Miss Odra Lee Jenkins.

Roll calls were answered with quotations from "Macbeth" and those present were Mesdames Thelma Scott Clark, Stump, Noe, Deathridge, Eugene Nicholson, George Patterson and Misses Estelle Stanfield, Virginia Ely and Lucile Ballard.

The next play studied by the club will be "As You Like It."

3 Things An Oil Must Do

Much of the harm that is done to a motor may happen during the first few revolutions of the flywheel—before the oil has had time to thoroughly cover all moving parts.

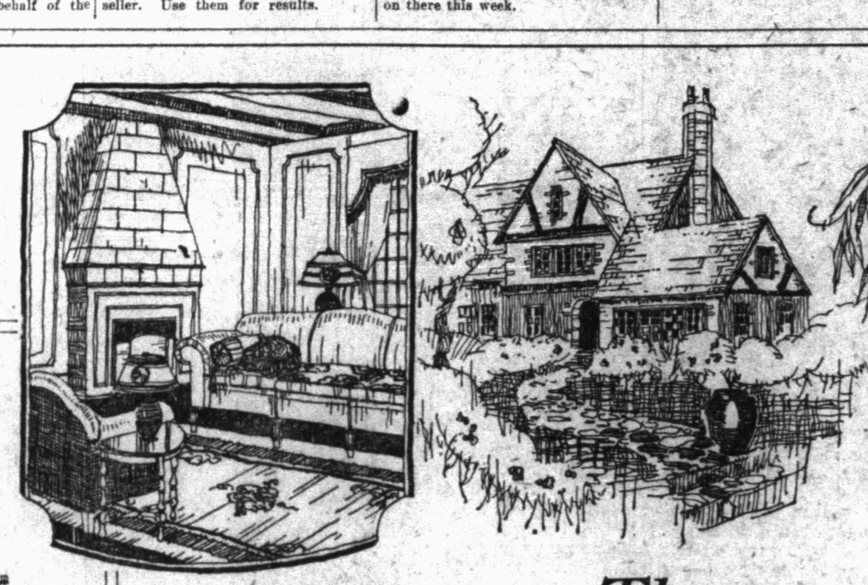

The above cross section of a motor shows the many points that must be protected by a film of oil. Only a few parts of the motor are continually bathed in oil. Some of the most vital parts depend on the "splash"; others can be reached only by a fine mist generated by the heat and speed of the motor.

When the motor is idle, there is no protective fluid film on the bearing surfaces. You must depend on the adsorbed film—that property which a good lubricant has of leaving a sufficient amount of greasiness on the bearings for safe lubrication, even in the absence of the fluid film. Ability to form and hold an adsorbed film is the supreme test of the worth of an oil.

Be on the safe side—look for the Humble Signs.

DOROTHY DIX ADVICE

The Woman of Tack Veers Away From the Family Skeleton Closet, She Admires Our Things That She Likes and Keeps Silent About the Rest, but Above All She Manages to Bring Out Our Own Best Qualities

The British ministry of health has advertised for "fifty women of tact" to act as assistant inspectors in one of their branches of work.

What is a woman of tact?

A very famous man once told me that his idea of a woman of tact was one to whom a man could be married for five years without ever finding out whether her hair was her own or not.

My idea of a woman of tact is one who never steps on our toes, and who skirts nimbly around our prejudices instead of running roughshod over them; one who has some sort of a sixth sense that enables her to perceive our "Keep-Off-the-Grass" signs even when we do not flaunt them in her face. One who can say "No" without giving offense or making enemies, and who can even tell us of our faults in a way that flatters our vanity instead of wounding our self-love.

The woman of tact has intelligence enough to recognize that it saves time and energy, and painful bruises to walk around a stonewall instead of trying to butt it down with your head. Therefore, when she has to deal with people who are, as the homely old phrase goes, "set" in their opinions, she does not argue with them about them. She lets them hold in peace to their own beliefs, as she does to her own. And just because she does not keep them perpetually on the defensive championing their own point of view, they insensibly modify it, and often come to her way of thinking.

Nor does the woman of tact ever drag forth into the family circle those topics that are like a red rag to a mad bull, and that inevitably precipitate a free-for-all fight. On the contrary, she keeps the forbidden subject locked up tight and fast in the skeleton closet and when she perceives any member of the household about to approach the door, she steers the conversation skillfully away to a discussion of Shakespeare and the musical glasses about which we all agree.

The tactful wife does not rawly henpeck her husband, and make him an object of derision for the ribald. She does not make him a person of small importance in his own home, and blantantly assert her own authority. Far from it. She exalts him so continuously as the head of the house that he never perceives that she really runs it.

When she wants a thing, she doesn't go after it hammer and tongs, and irritate a tired and busy man so that he refuses her what she asks just because he is weary and cross and feels like hitting something. She waits for the psychological moment when, fed and rested after a good dinner, he is at peace with all the world, and in a benevolent mood. Then she prefers her request and gets it.

If she is married to a self-opinionated man, she first suggests casually to him the thing she wants done, and after having sown the mustard seed, she comes back in a few days and camps in its shade, and says, "I have been thinking about what you said about sending John off to college," or "getting a new car," or "having the drawing-room done and I think you are right. Your judgment is always so sound."

If she is married to a stingy man, she doesn't try to wheedle pennies out of him. She goes and gets what she wants, and tells him that, of course, she has to dress well because she has to live up to having such a handsome husband, and that everybody expects it of the wife of such a prominent man.

The tactful woman never corrects her children in public because that humiliates them and makes them surly, nor does she continually nag them about their defects, because that breaks down their morale an dkills their faith in themselves. She encourages them to make the most of themselves by praising their good qualities.

She tells Mary how pretty she is when her face wears that lovely sweet expression, and Mary conquers her high temper for fear of breaking up that angel look. She tells Sally how graceful she is when she holds herself straight, and Sally throws back her shoulders and straightens her spine and quits slouching.

In the presence of strangers she asks John when some historical event occurred and casually remarks that John is a perfect shark about dates, and that starts John on a career as a student. She nails flighty Arthur to his tasks by praising him for his grit in carrying on when he once starts a thing. She teaches extravagant Tom to save by calling him the family savings bank and borrowing a little money from him occasionally. She makes her children feel that they have a reputation to sustain along certain lines, and consequently they live up to it.

The tactful woman has no servant problem. She incites an ordinary cook to make more effort by praising her good dishes and telling her that she has it in her to become a chef if she will only develop her talents. She never lets a good dish pass without a word of praise or fails to notice any little special efforts the servants make to please her.

She turns a sloppy maid into a spick-and-span one by a few judicious compliments on how nice she looks when she is dressed up and she even speeds up a slow one by telling her that she ought to hurry and get through with her work so that she will have time to go to the movies.

The tactful woman never loses a friends because she always does and says the right thing. She gives us enough and not too much of her society. She keeps her fingers out of our family pies. She doesn't attempt to force her religion, her friends, her doctor nor her dentist upon us.

She admires our things that she likes and keeps silent about those that she doesn't like. She tells us what a lovely new hat we have, without remarking that it is ten years too young for us, and she never, never asks us if we don't think we are putting on weight.

In a word, the tactful woman is the living exponent of the golden rule.

UPHOLDS NEWSPAPERS

Are as Good as They Can Be, Says Famed Sociologist

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Ordinary newspaper accounts of incidents in everyday life seem sensational because the reader knows so little of human life he is unable to interpret the events in life when he reads about them. The present newspapers are about as good as they can be.

These are the opinions of Professor Robert E. Park, University of Chicago, sociologist, whose analysis of the newspapers forms a part of the volume on the Modern City published by the university.

LAND OWNERS FAVOR 30-FOOT PARKWAY ROAD

Tax Payers Indorse Proposed Drive Through Muny Park

Endorsement almost unanimous in its scope was offered Thursday morning to the proposal to pave a 30-foot roadway through the city's new south side park and golf ground when a number of large property owners here met in the directors room of the City National Bank.

The meeting was called by Mayor R. E. Shepherd as a means of obtaining expressions from property owners and tax payers as to their attitude on a reques. from Fred Weeks, donner of the land on which the park is located, that the city spend about $20,000 more than originally intended in order to give a full-width, graded, curbed, and properly paved city street through the park. Mr. Weeks on his part offers to stand half the expense himself on the $40,000 project he seeks. The expenditure of $40,000, he points out, will insure a 30-foot street through the park instead of an originally proposed 18-foot strip of concrete.

P. P. Langford, W. M. McGregor, J. T. Harrell, W. B. Hamilton, J. M. Bland and other expressed themselves as favorable to the project and it is considered probable that the city council, taking note of these opinions, will agree to Mr. Week's request.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Turkey markets of Texas are not greatly changed this morning. Receipts are light at San Antonio on account of heavy roads and recent rains, but some stock that could not get in late yesterday is expected to arrive today and dressing should be slightly more active. The price to farmers for No. 1 birds varies from 28 to 30c liveweight but most birds are bringing 26c delivered the dressers with an effort to cut back half for No. 2's, and about 10 cents for old toms. At North Texas markets the predicament of having half cars of expensive turkeys on hand and a practical cessation of farmer deliveries has caused considerable alarm to cariot operators. The market there is firm, 26@29c liveweight for No. 1's, with an occasional load bringing 30c, and No. 2's, selling for 15@17c. Old toms are bringing 22 to 25c liveweight. After this week's business dressing will be slack.

San Antonio, receipts light on account of heavy roads. Demand good. Mostly around 29c. Occasional lot bringing as high as 30c for No. 1 stock. Old toms quoted at 19@20c.

Fort Worth turkey market continues fairly strong around 29c pound liveweight No. 1's, with receipts only moderate and mainly for local trade. Thanksgiving dressing about through and easier undertone to market.

Escapes Again; On One Occasion They Forgot to Kill Him

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Johnny Washington, negro murderer who escaped death in June because the warden forgot to execute him, side-stepped the electric chair again late today when Acting Governor W. J. Holloway granted him a two weeks stay of execution.

Dixie Special is Record Flour Train

COFFEYVILLE, Kan., Nov. 19.—(AP)—The Dixie Special No. 2, with two sections of 129 cars—the largest shipment in the history of American railroads—left Coffeyville today for Arkansas. The second section was of 111 cars, seven cars larger than that of Dixie Special No. 1, which comprised 104 cars. The first special was sent out on Jan. 9 of this year.

The first section bore mill officials and employes, railroad officials and Coffeyville men and women, and eighteen cars of flour. All of the flour was made from Kansas wheat.

Some of the flour will be exported to the Netherlands and Belgium.

CATHOLIC WOMEN ELECT.

Mrs. Arthur Mullen of Omaha Will Head the Council.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Mrs. Arthur Mullen of Omaha, Neb., was elected president of the National Council of Catholic Women, which concluded its sessions here yesterday.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. John N. Jackson, first vice president; Mrs. James R. Bach, Milwaukee, second vice president, and Mrs. Carlton J. H. Hays, New York, third vice president. Six women were elected to the board of directors.

Estimate Yield for State This Year of $3,980,000

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—George B. Terrell, commissioner of agriculture, tonight estimated the Texas cotton crop at 3,980,000 bales, for 1925, as compared to 4,851,000 bales for 1924.

This estimate of 3,980,000 bales is the largest single production of any state in the union, according to the report, which places Mississippi as second with 1,725,000.

Commissioner Terrell said that Ellis and Williamson counties have led in cotton production heretofore but Hunt county probably will lead this year because of the drouth.

"It is estimated," the report said, "that 80 per cent of the Texas cotton crop is picked.

"The average price for picking is $1.50 per hundred pounds. Several hundred hands are needed in western and northwestern districts to finish the crop which probably will not be done until after Christmas.

The report said a small top crop is reported in eastern and nortwestern districts while some damage from heavy rains has been done to unpicked cotton, by lowering the grade.

About 30 per cent more wheat and 40 per cent more oats are being planted this fall, with there being only about 50 per cent enough feed to supply the state next season. Nearly seventy-five per cent of the counties failed to make enough feed and only 25 per cent have produced a surplus, the report shows.

There will be a great deal of damaged and unspinable cotton produced in the entire country with the world being able to consume 15,000,000 bales of American cotton at the present rate of consumption it stated. Shortage of a million bales of cotton was predicted by the report.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Assertions that wheat crop losses in Argentina have reached an aggregate of 37,000,000 bushels gave a sudden hoist today to the wheat market here. Closing prices were strong at 2¾ to 4c net gain, new style, December $1.50¼ to $1.50½ and May $1.55½ to $1.55¾ with corn unchanged to ⅝c up, oats ¼ to ⅝c advance and provisions varying from 12 cents decline to a rise of 45 cents.

Corn was swayed chiefly by wheat. Indications of good weather over the weekend, though, kept corn prices from soaring much advance. Shipping demand for oats was better.

Provisions averaged higher as a result of the upturn in grain.

Mitchell Likely to Take Stand Monday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19—(AP)—Colonel William Mitchell's counsel prepared tonight to rest his case before the army court martial next week with the air officer testifying in his own behalf, probably beginning Monday.

At the same time the prosecution speeded preparations to offer voluminous testimony in rebuttal of every important issue developed by Colonel Mitchell in support of his charges that the army and navy are incompetent, negligent and almost treasonable in their administratio nof the national defense.

Income Tax Suits Before Court Here

Trial of income tax suits in which North Texans are seeking to collect refunds from the government on grounds of having paid assessments higher than should have been assessed against them were in progress throughout the day Thursday in federal court.

A case in which R. M. Waggoner of this city seeks a substantial refund from the government on income taxes paid several years ago was in progress Thursday afternoon, while during the morning, additional hearings were heard in a case in which M. J. Bashara sought a tax refund.

IRRIGATION

Effect of Root Rot on early and late cotton. It is the general impression that root rot does not attack cotton until along in July and August. It is a fact that it becomes noticeable about that time but it has been found killing plants as early as May.

This is accounted for through the fact that the disease is transmitted through root contact. Young plants do not have their root systems developed sufficiently to overlap.

One plant dying in a field does not attract the attention of the cotton grower to the same degree as a spot covering many square feet. So the disease does not become noticeable until the plants have grown root systems big enough to come in contact with the roots of other plants.

It has been noted in the black land belt that late planted cotton does not seem to be affected as badly as early planted.

Dr. Taubenhaus ascribes this greater degree of immunity in late cotton to teh shape of the roots systems.

Early planted cotton he says, gets the benefit of the spring rains. The roots spread laterally rather than going deep and thus come into contact, one with another sooner than late planted.

Late planted cotton on the other hand must send its roots downward seeking moisture as the rains have passed. Instead of a wide spreading system close to the surface they are narrow and go deep and are thus much less likely to come in contact.

This is not an argument for early irrigation we are independent of rain fall.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The cotton market was a quiet pre-bureau affair today with trading restricted mainly to evening up of commitments, liquidation by cautious longs and with fluctuations restricted to a very narrow range. The price trend was downward, but the market was more or less supported by the unfavorable weather in the belt and by some covering by shorts. After an early drop of 10 to 11 points the market rallied to a parity with yesterday's close, but gradually eased off during the day until prices reached low levels, 15 to 17 points under the previous close. The late months and December made new lows right at the end, one to thre points under the earlier lows and the close showed net losses for the day of 17 to 18 points.

First trades showed losses of 6 to 8 points and prices eased off right after the call to 19.90 for December, 19.17 for January and 19.43 for March or 10 to 11 points below the previous close. The market soon rallied to yesterday's closing levels on the unfavorable weather in the belt and these prices remained the highs of the day. The market gradually eased off during the day with occasional unimportant rallies being influenced by larger crop views issued by private authorities and most months made the lowest levels of the day right at the end with December at 19.82, January at 19.65 and March at 19.35. The market closed at the lowest.

Exports for the day totaled only 5,550 bales.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The cotton market showed a declining tendency today under further liquidation and some southern selling in the later deliveries. January sold up to 19.90 in the early trading, but broke to 19.73 late in the afternoon and closed at that figure. The final tone was easy, the market showing net declines of 10 to 25 points.

The opening was barely steady ata decline of 5 to 13 points under overnight selling orders and relatively easy Liverpool cables. Trade buying was reported at the decline which also attracted releasing by recent sellers and the market stiffened up. December worked up to 20.04 and March to 20.04, net advances of 2 to 4 points, but the demand seemed to be supplied around these figures and prices eased off a little durintg the afternoon.

A private report estimating the crop at 13,464,000 bales and ginnings of about 12,600,000 bales. These increased crop figures may have promoted some of the selling, but the market was under no great pressure. The decline was the result of comparatively light offerings in the absence of general buying interest. Later offerings increased somewhat when there seemed to be some southern selling in the late months and the decline was extended to 20.51 for December or 11 points net lower, while March sold off to 19.85 or 15 points net lower.

It was rumored that a few small lots of cotton were being brought here for December delivery, but the near month premium was increased to about 80 points over January, compared with 75 points at the close of the previous day.

Exports for the day were 5,350 bales, making 3,507,059 so far this season. Port receipts were 41,263 bales and U. S. port stocks 1,400,849 bales.

NEW YORK, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Speculators for rthe advance regained control of the price movement in today's stock market despite a renewal of selling pressure against the motor shares in the early trading. Rails were again in the forefront of the advance with a 7-point jump in Chesapeake and Ohio, which established a record high for all time at 120¾, as the outstanding individual stock.

Uneasiness over the money rate situation was reflected in the rediscount volume of trading. An increase from 3½ to 4 per cent in the Philadelphia reserve bank rediscount rate was announced after the market closed, but the governors of the New York federal reserve bank, who met today, voted to continue the present 3½ per cent rate.

Operations on the long side were aided by another series of favorable dividend announcements, including an extra dividend of $1 on Atlantic Coast Line common, an extra dividend of 75 cents on Texas Gulf Sulphur and an extra dividend of $2 on railway steel spring common with a proposal to split up the present stock on a virtual 3 for 1 basis.

Willys Overland preferred advanced nearly 3 points to 119⅛, a new high record.

Strong buying support developed for the standard industrials. American Can soared 8 points to 250 and then eased to 249; Baldwin closed nearly 5 points higher at 126 and U. S. Steel common showed a gain of over 3 points at 132¼. New peak prices in the industrial group were attained by May Department stores, American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Air Reduction, Calumet and Arizona, International Nickel common and preferred and U. S. Distributing common and preferred, the last named jumping 32 points to 210.

Heavy accumulation of the railroad shares reflected in part the extension switching of speculative accounts from certain industrals to the rails on the theory that the latter offered the better market possibilities for the immediate future. New high records in the rail group were established by Pere Marquette "Nickel Plate," Erie, and "Soo" common and preferred, the gains running from 1 to 8 points.

In all, nearly two score rails closed 1 to 5½ points higher. The list included Atchison, Atlantic Coast Line, Baltimore and Ohio, St. Paul preferred, Rock Island, Great Northern preferred, Louisville and Nashville, New York Central, New Haven, Norfolk and Western. Northern Pacific, Reading, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway and Wabash common and preferred A.

Motors were bid up 1 to 3 points in the early trading, broke 1 to nearly 6 points from their early highs on a renewal of selling pressure and then made irregular recovery under covering by bear traders. Chrysler showed a net decline of 2 points at 197⅛ and General Motors yielded fractionally to 125⅝, but Hudson, Mack Trucks, Studebaker and White closed 1 to 3 points higher. Willys Overland preferred advanced nearly 3 points to 119⅝, a new high record.

Revival of activity and strength in Pan-American B reflected the receipt of dispatches announcing the completion of another Mexican well, flowing 100,000 barrels of oil a day in a new section of the company's Tierra Blanca property. Other oil shares were mixed with most changes of a fractional character.

Call money renewed at 4⅝ per cent and then dropped to 4½. Time money rates were quoted at 4⅝ to 5 per cent instead of on a flat 4⅝ per cent basis and prime commercial paper held steady at 4 per cent.

Foreign exchanges displayed a firm tone, demand sterling being quoted at $4.84⅞ and French francs at 3.96½ cents.

Market Gossip

B. E. Flowerree and Co., brokers, Staley Bldg., today received the following market comment from Fenner and Beane of New York, New Orleans and Chicago:

COTTON.

Cotton values slipped a little today, mostly on account of liquidation of recent buyers in advance of the bureau. The weather outlook was generally classed as bad, but the forecast of ginnings and the crop issued today were the largest so far. These tended to discourage further accumulation of contracts and to encourage selling and liquidation. Spot demand white good in some sections slackened in others.

Today's ginnings forecasts ranged from 12,450,000 to 12,619,000, indicating possibility that ginnings for the period may be as large as for same period last year. The early forecasts indicated ginnings from 11,000,000 to 11,200,000.

The general expectation here is for small ginnings and for an estimate from the government around its last figures. Trading between now and Saturday is likely to be of an evening up character.

GRAINS.

Wheat: Sentiment seemed to be very bearish early for no other reason than that the Liverpool and Argentine markets did not reflect any bad news from the southern hemisphere.

After a brief period of weakness, immediately after the opening, the susceptibility of the market to foreign influences was amply demonstrated, just a hint of damage and prices started in an upward direction private cables further helped along the advance as they told of damage.

Export business believed to be considerable, as a good inquiry reported. Only argument bears can fined in the immediate situation is the fact that our December is at almost sufficient premium over Minneapolis to permit of profitable shipment to Chicago, but that is not very comforting with prices advancing rapidly and foreign advances becoming more bullish all the time. What if Minneapolis does ship some wheat here! It will serve at best only to relieve possible congestion in December.

Supplies and demand are closely balanced in the country, and it matters not whether the grain is in Chicago or 500 miles away.

Coarse Grains: Corn was under pressure at the start, but offerings were quite well absorbed at the decline and the tone was firm at the close, even though early losses were not quite regained. It seems to us that sentiment is unduly pessimistic as to the future of this market and some mighty important factors are being overlooked, not the least of which is the fact that visible and invisible supplies in commercial channels are practically negligible. Therefore, there is no reason why the holder of future should be uneasy over a possible increased movement.

STOCKS.

There was an absence of pressure on the stock market at the opening and stocks in consequence recorded gains. The betterment was well spread out over the list. The market was quieter and with less activity, and though there were alterations between strength and weakness, trading indicated that the liquidation had about run its course and that prices were ready to move upward again.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 19.—Conditions Thursday were favorable for an active and strong market for cattle and calves, receipts showing the arrival of 5,900—4,300 cattle and 1,600 calves.

Several receipts showed the usual predominance of she stock, and some improvement in the quality of butcher cows. Choice light calves advanced a quarter, and southern calves moved in an unusual number of full loads.

Beef steers were but scarcely represented, the run of steer cattle gravitating toward stocker and feeder cattle. Selling was conducted at steady prices, the spread ranging from $5.25 to $7.00.

Activity ruled the butcher cow trade, but early takings yielded nothing better than $3.35 in carloads. Small drafts ranged up to $4 and the bulk showed medium cows in great profusion, the spread here showing at $2.85 to $3.75.

Early rounds among the young cattle brought out heifers at $4.25 to $7.00, everything selling in liberal drafts. Scarcely anything was done in yearlings.

Bulls were generally on the canner to short weight bolognas taking from $2 to $2.75; here the trade was about steady.

Light veal calves with apparent quality ruled a quarter higher but the general calf trade was only steady. Southern calves featured the supply. Choice of the light weights moved up to $7.25, and heavies were going at $5.50 to $6.25.

The hog trade was almost a frost, two cars arriving. Outsiderp paid steady prices and packers took their portion at a decline of 25c.

Early sales of feeder yearlings at $10.50 were steady, in the sheep market.

Cattle, 5,000 including 1,400 calves; market steady on slaughter cattle, 25c higher on calves; beeves $5.50@8.00; stockers $5.00@7.75; fat cows $3.25@5.00; heifers $5.00@9.00; yearlings $5.50@10.00; canners $2.00@2.50; cutters $2.40@2.75; bulls $2.50@4.00; calves $3.50@7.25.

Help Fill the Community Chest

Co-operative Effort Succeeds

The present method of providing funds for charitable organizations and supervising their work has lifted this part of the city's business from the "dark ages" into the light of day.

With a single clearing house for 9 organizations, any citizen can find out anything he wants to know about any organization at any time.

He can be sure, too, that this clearing house is preventing the endless duplication of work resulting from the old system of "competing charity."

Wilbur is Asked to Fire Inquiry Court

WASHINGTON, Nov. 19.—(AP) As counsel for Mrs. Margaret Ross Lansdowne, Joseph E. Davis, asked Secretary Wilbur in a letter sent to him tonight to discharge the Shenandoah court of inquiry of further duties because of the manner in which it conducted the inquiry into the charges brought against its former judge advocate, Captain Paul Foley, by Mrs. Lansdowne.

Statements made before the Shenandoah naval court of inquiry by Mrs. Lansdowne were assailed twice today before that tribunal, first by Captain Foley and again by Lieutenant Commander C. E. Rosendahl, senior surviving officer of the wrecked airship.

Captain Foley entered emphatic denial that he had sought to sway Mrs. Lansdowne's testimony before the court

BURY D. J. FELLOWS TODAY.

Interment to Follow Services at First Methodist Church.

Funeral services for D. J. Fellows, who died at 10 o'clock Wednesday night at his home, 2303 Holliday street, will be held at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the First Methodist church, south. Services will be conducted by Rev. W. J. Johnson, pastor of the church assisted by Rev. W. D. Cook, pastor of th eYale Avenue Evangelical church.

Burial will follow in Rosemont park.

CORN HUSKING CONTEST.

Illinois Takes First and Second Places in Unique Exhibition.

BURGESS, Ill., Nov. 19.—(AP)—Illinois today won first and second places in the interstate corn husking contest here. Elmer Williams Toulon, Ill., was the victor, husking 2,564.3 pounds of corn in one hour and 30 minutes or an average of 250 bushels for a ten hour day. Walter Olson, Knox county, was second.

STUDIO OPENS SCOTT STREET PLACE TODAY

Oriental's Third Shop Is Model in Decorative Art

Formal opening of the new home of the Oriental Studios will form one of the interesting events today, when W. L. Davidson who established the studios here less than three years ago will ope nthe big shop at 916-918 Scott, the third home. Furnishings from the daintiest little gifts to exquisite tapestries, hangings, and furniure in any line may be found. It is said that the Oriental Studios carry a distinctive stock not found anywhere else south of Chicago. The 15,000 feet of floor space is used to advantage in the display the studios offer.

Visitors will be agreeably surprised at the suites of rooms which have been arranged for the formal opening today. Ideas carrying uot proper plans for interior decoration, just the right pieces of furniture, for the dining room, the bedroom or the living room are shown in varying styles.

Furnished to Perfection.

The master's bedroom, done in rosewood; the bedroom suitable for sisters in its Chinese blue lacquer with hand trimmings; the living room furnished with comfortable divan and chairs—each is worked out to a nicety—to perfection.

Then there are suites arranged to show the various woods, satinwood, mahogany, walnut, early maple, hand-carved and plain. Tea carts in natural woods and lacquer, in dull reds and other colors, and one exquisite Japanese lacquer tea cart table, with chairs to match are also displayed.

Wrought iron coffee tables with a marble top are features of the exhibit. Tapestries, handmade, and of the finest texture, in large and small sizes are carried in great numbers in the Oriental Studios. Living room suites in mohair, velour and frieze are also shown.

Lamps on Display.

Lamps, buffet lanterns, candelabras, each in abundance are features of the shop. It is said that the lamps carried by Mr. Davidson are of a variety and number not carried elsewhere in this section of the country.

In addition to the regular stock, is a line of miscellaneous gifts of tea sets, glass ware and other lovely things.

With the formal opening of the new home, announcement is also made of the coming of Miss Louise Hardin from Oklahoma City who is to be the interior decorator of the shop and to be located here permanently.

The Old Home Town

E. Duval of Munday was in Wichita Falls Thursday on business.

Robert Farmer who went to Houston last week to attend the funeral of a friend has returned to the city.

A. J. Catlin who has been ill with influenza is reported slowly improving.

Miss Betty Tribble, teacher in the San Jacinto school, was able to resume her work yesterday following several days' illness.

Miss Lucy Lee Young, teacher of low second grade of San Jacinto school is ill this week, and Miss Eunice Haynes is substituting for her.

One marriage license was issued Thursday by the county clerk's office. It went to H. C. Preston, Burkburnett and Miss Charlotte Mansfield, Burkburnett.

Scouting has been introduced among the negro boys of the city, and a troop organized. Harry Lee and George Streeter teachers in the Washington school are in charge.

The Salvation Army band will be at the Yale Evengical church this evening during the services which start at 7:15. The Salvation Army will have charge of the opening services. Rev. G. F. Aynes will preach the sermon.

Plans are being made to organize a troop in the Jewish synagogue here, Scout Executive Creighton said yesterday. The move is backed by Rabbi Phillips, and Louis Pink, president of the congregation of Temple Israel. A scoutmaster has been secured. Isadore Cohn and 12 boys of the congregation have signified their intention to join.

A membership luncheon of the Y. W. C. A. will be held in the association rooms at 1 o'clock Saturday. Invitation is extended to members and to those who are interested in the organization. Mrs. C. W. Snider is president of the Y. W. C. A., and Mrs. E. T. Duff is chairman of the membership committee. Girl Reserves from the schools will furnish the program.

Every troop of Boy Scouts in the city is to put on an exhibition of scouting a the quarterly jamboree which is to be held tonight at the First Christian church beginning at 8 o'clock. The troop with the largest percentage of boys in uniform, judging from the standpoint of numbers will be awarded a first class first aid kit offered by the P. B. M. company. The whole city is invited to see this exhibition, Scout Executive Creighton said yesterday.

BOUND TO WIN By Edwin Alger

THIMBLE THEATRE BY SEGAR

83 Years Old But He's Just One of the Boys— Seen at Olympic Thurs.

Fred Palmer and Jessie Huston lead a five-act vaudeville feature at the Olympic theatre this week. "Poppies," they call their skit but its more than that, in fact so good as to really merit further comment. An old man is the star, 83 he tells you is his age, but in the next breath adds confidentially that he's a fast stepper for all of that.

A lilt from a far off band reminds him of the days that were, of an army he fought with sixty years ago. He salutes an imaginary general and tries again to dance as he danced in those days. His rheumatism stops him, and he leaves the stage what he didn't want to be, an old man but with the full dignity of youth despite white hair and a palsied step. The act is exceedingly good, both from the standpoint of subject matter and the characterization of the two parts. There are both humor and pathos in the act, both laughs and tears.

Reno, Bodie and Reno are just what they are set up to be, pantomimic absudities. They are something new in acrobatics, and entirely novel tumbling stunt.

Some songs worth hearing come from the mouth of Miss Grear while "Keith" steps off the tunes with his violin. Their repertoire includes both popular and classical numbers.

Giddy and Giddy's crossword puzzle is good. Giddy and Giddy are two foreign artists en route from South America to Australia.

Jimmy Norton, English artist with an entirely new presentation of things English, has a clever song and dance act. In includes a Limehouse version of the "Charleston" which has to be seen to be appreciated.

The vaudeville acts are running in connection with a feature picture, "Souls for Sables," starring Eugene O'Brien, and will be at the Olympic both today and tomorrow.

"Merry Widow" a First Rate Film.

All the color and sparkle of a Continental court!

The romance of a little chorus girl who enters a Balken nation as a poor, stranded actress and becomes, the richest woman in Europe and then the Queen of the country!

The love affair of a democratic prince!

Are just some of the high points of Erich von Stroheim's production of "The Merry Widow," which is the long awaited screen sensation that comes to the Olympic theatre on Saturday.

Never before has such a perfect combination of story, director and players been assembled for the screen. And behind it were the resources of the largest studio and producing organization in the world. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had but a single aim in the making of "The Merry Widow," and that was to give the public the most fascinating film entertainment, in motion picture history.

Unusual Thriller At the Strand.

One of the most unusual thrills ever seen in a picture—a mighty avalanche of snow and ice that plunges down a mountain side into the heart a little colony buried in the valley—is on view at the Strand theatre today where "The White Desert." This tale of the fight of a railroad company to tunnel the Rockies is one of the most gripping shown here in some time.

Reginald Barker, famed thrill director made this picture. Claire Windsor, Pat O'Malley, Robert Frazer and a great cast play in the film which is based on Courtney Ryley Cooper's novel. L. G. Riby wrote the scenario from Monte M. Katterjohn's adaptation and Lew Lipton's comedy relief.

ROAD TRIAL

true I've paid as little as one cent a yard, but, too, I've paid as much as a dime a yard."

Shortly after going on the stand, the gray-haired contractor pounded the arm of the chair and said: "I'll admit I'm being tried here, Mr. Moody, but in justice to my family and friends I want to tell all of this as it happened.

Gives Him Full Sway.

"That's just what we want," Moody replied.

Brodnax said Chairman Lanham had come to him and E. S. Heyser, another stockholder of the American Road company, and offered them the contracts now under fire.

"This is Lanham's proposition," he emphasized.

Brodnax told of a three day's inspection over certain roads to be treated and of finding them in wretched condition because of the long drouth. He tatributed large profits of his company to unprecedented and ideal conditions cheap labor, and to the fact that asphalt cost two cents less a gallon than he had anticipated, when the price of 30 cents a square yard was decided on.

"The last time I saw a statement the company had a profit of $560,000. Since that time, the profits have become so large, I don't want to see any more statements," he said.

Tells "Understanding."

A fair and reasonable price for a one-course asphaltic treatment, under conditions existing when his company took the contract, was 14 cents a square yard, Mr. Brodnax said.

Mr. Brodnax said there was no written agreement existing between his company and the highway commission, for placing a second treatment of asphalt, but that it was his understanding the company was to place a second treatment, where needed, and where required of the company by th commission.

The attorney general sought vigorously to have Brodnax's statement of an unwritten understanding excluded. Addressing the judge, he said, "we have shown from this company's own books it did not live up to its contracts to place a minimum of half a gallon of asphalt to the square yard. We have shown from its books this company has realized enormous, unconscionable, unheard of profits. Why should an oral, contemporaneous agreement be presented at this time?"

On Cross Examination.

Judge Calhoun ruled the contemporaneous agreement could be admitted only as evidence of intent to perform.

On cross examination, Mr. Brodnax said he has never paid as much as ten cents a square yard for cleaning roadway except in Louisiana, where there was much more rain than in Texas.

"Mr. Brodnax, you said you considered 14 cents a square yard a reasonable price for the asphalt surfacing, did you not?" asked Moody.

"Yes," he replied.

"Then why did you not set up a reserve fund of more than seven cents a square yard for the second treatment?" the attorney general asked.

"Because we did not expect to have to retreat all the surface, Brodnax answered.

"Twenty-one cents then was a cost of square yard you anticipated for the two treatments, which would have left you a profit of nine cents a square yard?" Moody queried.

More Than 10 Per Cent.

"Well, I can't understand the contractors who figure only 10 or 15 per cent profit," Brodnax said.

"One has to get up into 300 per cent profit division to get into your class, I suppose?" asked Moody.

"Perhaps so," the witness answered.

When Moody referred to "enormous profits" of the company, Mr. Brodnax gave a detailed account of a project in North Carolina on which he had lost much money though at the time he got the contract he thought he could earn a large profit. He said a young man who was instrumental in getting the contract and who had invested considerable money in it, had gone broke.

"That's all very well. But in Texas no one seems to have gone broke, except the highway commission," Moody answered.

"Well let me tell you this, Mr. Moody," Brodnax retorted. "I am also vice president of the Smith Brothers Construction company. That company has recently lost $400,000 on state highway contracts. Just the other day some of the fellows jumped on me because the American Road company was getting all the money."

The attorney general developed from Mr. Brodnax that some of the contracts for surfacing were let to sub-contractors by the American Road company before Mr. Lanham wrote his letter of March 21, setting out specifications for performance of the surfacing.

Trio in Agreement.

Mr. Brodnax said that he, Mr. Lanham and Mr. Heyser, had reached an agreement to specifications and price before the letter was written.

Mr. Brodnax said the sub-contractors were competent.

"How can you explain, then, these contractors were willing to take the work for a so much smaller price a square yard than 14 cents, the figure you named as a fair price? Shouldn't they have known what a reasonable price was?"

"They should have known," Brodnax said.

Charles A. Wood of Houston, superintendent of construction for Haden & Austin, Houston road contractors, said 10 1-2 cents a square yard for a one-course treatment would have been a fair price for the state to pay the American Road company for surfacing.

Under cross examination by Joe Worsham, attorney for the defendant company, Wood said Haden & Austin had made a bid of 65 cents a square yard for a two-course asphaltic treatment in Liberty county, but was not awarded the bid.

Recalls no Emergencies.

Gibb Gilchrist, state highway engineer for the year ending in February 1925, said he regarded 9.5 of 10 cents a square yard a fair price for a one-course treatment. He said when he voluntarily retired February 8, as state highway engineer, after being with the highway department in various capacities for six years, no emergency existed on the highways.

"In January, 1925, I made practically a state-wide inspection of the roads in company with Mr. Bishop, chief of construction of the United States bureau of public roads," Gilchrist said. "We found the roads in good condition, and Mr. Bishop so reported in a formal report to me. Mr. Bishop came to Texas at our request."

The state sought to introduce the report of Mr. Bishop.

"The defense contends a necessity existed and this alleged necessity is used to justify the extravagant expenditure of funds," Moody said.

The court refused to admit reading of the report.

Worsham sought to impeach testimony of Gilchrist by pointing out he is a member of the Dallas engineering firm of Nagle, Witt & Gilchrist which has been employed by Dallas county to inspect and make a report of the maintenance of Dallas county highways by the American Road company. Mr. Gilchrist said Mr. Witt had been employed.

"Do you think you are qualified to give impartial testimony," Worsham asked.

"I always try to be fair," Gilchrist answered.

"With reference to this estimate of 10 cents being a fair price, for the surfacing. You've always acted as the engineer who sat across the table and tried to cut down the estimates of the contractors. You never been a contractor yourself " Worsham asked.

"Well I believe in watching public funds just as closely as I would my own," Gilchrist said.

Jarratt to Trial at Montague Today

Trial of Swell Jarratt of Montague, accused in connection with the theft of a Ford coupe here more than a year ago, is expected to begin in the court at Montague, Bowie county, today, local officers said last night.

Jarratt's arrest came about after Clarence Griffin, deputy constable here, rode in the luggage box in the rear of the car, from Wichita Falls to Montague. Here he bobbed up just as Jarratt was ready to turn the automobile over to another man, it is charged. Ezra Williams, accused with Jarratt in connection with the theft, recently was given a three-year sentence at Montague.

Jarratt is one of the three men recently held for investigation by the Wichita Falls police department in connection with the robbery of a hardware store at Bowie. The three were arrested by Night Chief W. W. Allen and Plain Clothes Men Carmichael and Donohue. They recently were turned over to Sheriff John Wales of Montague county.

"Love, Marriage and Other Perils" Forms Many Cracks for Creel

"Up to the dawn of the twentieth century, marriage was the only profession open to women. There was no difference in opinion then for only men had opinions," so said George Creel, nationally known humorist and satirist in a talk on "Love, Marriage and Other Perils," last night at the Junior college.

"In those days when a woman wasn't married by the time she reached 25, they took away her hunting license.

"I can remember thousands of old maids, shawl bearing, herbivorous maybe, who used to go to live with their married relatives and were called 'auntie' and given Tuesday off to be distinguished from the family help.

"Twenty-five years ago a painted face would have been prayed for in open church," he said, as he delved into the subject.

About Men's Blunders.

Speaking of the blunders of the men, Mr. Creel, better known as "Uncle Henry" of Collier's magazine, said the biggest one was not to avert the feminine revolt.

"The feminine revolt came when we put on hard boiled hats and soft boiled pants," he asserted.

"The situation was well in hand when the women wore corsets for they spent all their extra time in getting a full breath. When they went on the street they wore as many layers as a Bermuda on But now they have entered into trades, sports, business, and heaven knows what they did to politics."

In speaking of the political situation of America, Mr. Creel dealt sarcastically with the people who are indifferent concerning voting.

"People are afraid to vote for fear of being accessories to crime," he said.

For Children's Sake.

"More than 24 million people refused to vote in the last national election. If this indifference continues, elections will cease to be. There are some of the people who would put the elections off every few years. The reason is because their children, like all children ask questions, and they hate to say, 'My father votes.'

"Mudslinging is more of a national sport than baseball, and some politicians regret that they have not more than one lie to give to their country."

Of the Democrats and Republicans he had a bit to say, also.

"Quick results is the American ideal. We take more patent medicine than any other people in the world."

Secret of Greatness.

The secret of greatness concerning President Coolidge has been found the lecturer said, and he has aroused the admiration of America.

"It is his ability to keep his mouth shut. He wouldn't give a college yell except in writing. Keeping one's mouth shut is a short cut to making others think a person has brains. The Coolidge slogan is 'Do nothing, and do it now.'"

Mr. Creel touched on the question of the air service and on prohibition.

"It is not prohibition that people are against, but it is the secret in which it was done, never letting anybody know about it until it was done."

About Future War.

And then followed the question of a future war.

"How can a nation tell it is prepared until it fights? How can it test its strength until it goes into battle. There is a word of cheer, however. The next fighting will be done with gas, and when this country takes a deep breath, the war will be over in a day."

Mr. Creel, who during the administration of President Wilson was chairman of the committee on public affairs, conducted a round table discussion following his lecture in which numbers of questions were asked.

"What do you think of Ma Ferguson?" was asked from the audience.

His Opinion of Ma.

"I do not like to take part in local affairs," Mr. Creel answered, "but I do not know whether to call the governor of Texas he, she or it."

A short talk was made by A. K. Presson, president of the Teachers' association which sponsored the coming of Mr. Creel to this city, with the co-operation of the Woman's Forum. Dr. J. W. Cantwell, superintendent of schools introduced the speaker of the day.

Preceding the lecture, several numbers by the Wichita Falls high school orchestra under the direction of Miss Winifred Alvis, were given. Floyd Ard played two piano numbers.

Wichitan to Confess "Why I Fled From Kentucky"

Sensation Of The Year Expected At Reunion Of Former Citizens Of Blue Grass State

The sensation of the year is promised at the reunion of former residents of Kentucky at a banquet at the Wichita club at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, Nov. 24, when T. A. Bradley, prominent local advertising man, will confess, "Why I Fled From Kentucky."

Kentucky, famous for its fast horses, beautiful woman, stormy politics and statesmen, will be given a thorough airing at the reunion, which promises to be one o fthe most enthusiastic events of the year.

No Club Planned.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding, however, with reference to the purpose of the banquet," said one of the committee in charge last night. It is not to start a regular weekly or monthly club, because the city already has enough of them, but it is simply an effort to bring together upon one gala occasion all former Kentuckians residing in Wichita Falls and vicinity.

In addition to a program of speeches an excellent evening of musical entertainment has been arranged.

The announcement says:

"The only requirement necessary for admission to the banquet, which will be $1 a plate, is a former residence in the state of Kentucky. On account of the large number of persons who will want to attend the banquet, it is going to be absolutely necessary that those who desire to come make reservations either by writing or phoning Judge B. D. Sartin, or Frank Mercer at Perkins-Timberlake, or the manager of the Wichita club. All reservations must be made not later than 10 o'clock Monday morning and those who anticipate attending are urged to make their reservations at the earliest possible moment in order that ample provision may be made."

The Speakers.

"The following is a tentative program of the speakers, program which will be announced later:

"Why I Fled from Kentucky," T. A. Bradley.

"Kentucky in Politics," George A. Smoot.

"Kentucky Women," Frank Mercer.

"Kentucky Horses," R. E. Strange.

"Kentucky Statesmen," E. L. Duff.

"Early Kentucky History," C. E. Basham.

"Kentucky in Nature," Rev Milo Atkinson.

"Kentucky in Literature," Judge B. D. Sartin.

Toastmaster, Judge J. S. Dickey.

Majors Pay Nearly $10,000,000 for N. Texas Production In 1925

PRAIRIE LEADS, MAGNOLIA GETS SECOND PLACE

Prairie's North Texas Figure Bests $3,000,000 Mark

Sales of production to major companies during the past ten months and a half, that is during what has passed of 1925, will nearly reach $10,000,000. A list of sixteen of the most important transactions shows in itself a total of better than $8,000,000. The addition of several minor deals not included in the list below would undoubtedly dun the figure into the $10,000,000 mark. A list of the most important figures taken into consideration are those of deals whereby one of the major companies has gained control of production which otherwise would have remained in the hands of independent operators. Figures in almost every instance are approximate, and save in a few cases represent cash.

Prairie is to date the largest purchaser, getting about $3,000,000 worth of stuff, a portion of which, however, was out of the district. Magnolia is second with total of about $1,517,000.

The deals and figures follow:

Prairie Purchases.

Prairie Oil and Gas company purchased the holdings of the Shamrock Oil company, around 70 producing wells, making 2,700 barrels a day, consideration $2,300,000 cash. The property was entirely in the Swastika, southwest Archer county, area.

Prairie also obtained the holdings of Clark-Harbin-Baldridge at Swastika, with fourteen wells making about 500 barrels of oil, consideration $400,000 cash.

Prairie purchased the holdings of the Mahlestedt-Mook company in north and central Texas but only a small portion of this was in the Wichita Falls district, a small property in north Archer county. The consideration for the whole was $350,000.

Humble Oil and Refining company bought 145 acres with about ten wells making 800 barrels a day from the South Vernon Oil company, in the South Vernon field, Wilbarger county, consideration $1,100,000, of which $700,000 was cash and the remainder in oil.

Ragle Pool Sold.

The Texas Company purchased the holdings of the Consolidated Oil company (Knight and Hines) and the Panhandle Refining company in the Ragle pool, south Archer county, for a consideration approximating $1,500,000. The property included 36 wells making 2,300 barrels a day on 960 acres, by far the largest portion of which was undeveloped.

Magnolia Buys.

Magnolia Petroleum company purchased 500 acres with 57 wells making about 1,300 barrels a day for $1,100,000. The property bought was in five parts, including the Gembrell and Schlegel leases in the Gambrell pool, a small lease in the Harmel pool, and two small north Archer properties. All cash.

Magnolia purchased the holdings of the County Line Oil company in the northwest extension to the Harmel pool, 80 acres, ten wells, 220 barrels a day production, consideration $160,000, all cash.

Magnolit purchased the holdings of Hobbs-Chenault-Burleson at Swastika, southwest Archer county, with seven wels making 80 barrels a day, 40 acres, for a consideration of $68,000, all cash.

Magnolia purchased the Gwynn-Robertson-Muse-Cranfill holdings on the Lowe farm northwest of the Gambrell pool, with 160 acres, ten wells making 112 barrels a day, consideration $75,000.

Magnolia purchased the Archer Oil company lease in the Green and Flowers pool, southwest Archer county, one well making 45 barrels a day, consideration $30,000.

Magnolia purchased a ten barrel well from T. A. Norwood on the Rutty farm in north Archer county on twenty acres for $9,000.

Magnolia obtained production from Barkley and Meadows in the old Northwest field, northwest of Burkburnett for about $75,000 cash.

Texhoma O. & R. Co.

Texhoma Oil and Refining company purchased eight wells making about 250 barrels a day from Clark et al at Swastika for $250,000.

Texhoma purchased 31 acres with two wells making 75 barrels a day from George Pace in south Wichita county for $30,000.

Humble bought the Pols-Brittain holdings in south Wichita county, 275 barrels total production for $200,000.

Empire Gas and Fuel company obtained seven wells making 125 barrels a day and sixty acres from the Wilson Drilling company et al in the Barkley and Meadows area, central Archer county, for $275,000 of which $185,000 was cash and the remainder in oil.

Toward the close of last year Gulf Production company purchased from Maer and Staniforth approximately 100 acres with about 800 barrels flush production for about $300,000.

News of the Fields

Caldwell District

Pandam Oil Corporation's No. 1, Wilson in the ATSCL block 123, Caldwell area, central Archer county, had sand yesterday at a depth of 1,366 feet and was setting casing to test.

Chalk Hill

East of Chalk Hill in the northeast corner of lot 4, in block 75, ATNCL, north of Archer City, L. T. Burns No. 1, Wilson, had a sand yesterday at a depth of 1,461 feet and were setting casing to test. The sand showed some oil but looked like a water well.

Geraldine

In lot 41, Geraldine townsite, north central Archer county, Burns and Maxson have spudded and are drilling on their No. 1, Ella Brown, located about three-quarters of a mile east of production in the sunshine pool.

Sigler Area

Atlantic Oil Producing company's Sigler-Waggoner, in the southwest of the northeast of the northwest of section 51, block 2, H&TCRRCO survey, southern Wilbarger county, showed 65 barrels in 14 hours on the pump and looked like 100 for the first day's guage. Sandy line is at 2,454,63 feet.

Kentucky, Jackson

Kentucky Oil Corporation's No. 1, Annie P. Jackson, in the southwest corner of the school house lot, Aldridge survey, north of Archer City is showing some oil but too much water to make a well. It is believed that some of this water is coming from above and an attempt to reset the casing again is probable.

NE of Gambrell

Golding and Wilson have made a location for a test in the southeast corner of their tract in the southwest quarter of section 3, BBB&CIRRCO survey, abstract 51, northwest of the Mahlstedt-Mook well, Lanster lands.

Offsetting this well to the east M.& V. Oil company have about rigged up and should have spudded sometime yesterday.

Oldham Area

Consolidated Oil company has a dry hole on its No. 1, Oldham located some 750 feet southeast of the Texhoma's discovery well, Eliza Hubble survey, southeast of the Comac pool, southwest Archer county. The well had a foot of sand at a depth of 1,325-26 1-2 and might have made a well if the body had been thicker. It was high enough. At last report the well was drilling below 1,340 feet and no other sand yet.

South Vernon

Barkley and Meadows, No. 5, Stephens, in the northwest forty of the northeast quarter of section 85, block 14, South Vernon, started off Wednesday at a rate of about 500 a pair of 30-yard runs.

barrels a day, flowing, sandy lime at 2,322-2,375 feet. Casing was set at 2,254 feet. The No. 6 was drilling in yesterday, also.

Barkley and Meadows No. 2, Bond-Hawkins-Williams, on the ten acres in section 100, block 14, is a salt water well, in sand at 2,009-28 feet and is drilling deeper.

Wichtex-Dixie Area

Gulf Production company has abandoned its No. 1, Annie P. Jackson, in the southeast corner of block 131, Aldridge survey, south and a bit west of the Wichtex-Dixie well, north of Archer City. The well and the sand (do low at 1,561-68 feet, broken formation. It was abandoned at a depth below this.

W. J. Grisham No. 1, Annie P. Jackson, in the northwest of the east half of lot 65, Aldridge survey, southeast of the single producer was down yesterday to 900 feet and drilling. Hope for the district is pinned now more or less on the outcome of this test which will give the area to the southeast a chance to produce.

NW of Harmel

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 3, Cowden-Portwood, located 300 feet north of the No. 1, which is in the southeast corner of the northeast quarter of block 1581, TE&LCo survey, west of the Jones et al discovery, looked yesterday like a dry hole or a very small well at best. The hole has been swabbed, in the sand at 1,395 feet, and showed an inappreciable amount of oil. Another core was taken.

West of the No. 1, No. 2 swabbed 216 barrels in 24 hours. No. 1 is pumping at a rate of about 86 barrels a day. These two wells have to this time proven the cream of the northwest Harmel area, other tests drilled in the area having proven more or less disappointing.

Sul Ross Beats McMurray, 13-7

ABILENE, Texas, Nov. 19.—(AP)—The crippled McMurry college football eleven went down to defeat before the Sul Ross State Teachers college Loboes of Alpine here this afternoon, 13 to 7.

The game was bitterly contested throughout. The Loboes used a total of eight big and fast backfield men during the game. McMurry carried the ball to the one-yard line on successive plays at the opening of the game but lost the ball on downs. Their touchdown came when West intercepted a forward pass and ran 70 yards across the goal line. The Loboes scored their first touchdown on a short pass, Bell to Ford, and line bucks. Their second was made thre eminutes before the game closed on straight football, when Cowan and Townsend broke loose for

STUDY COURSES PLANNED

Beginning Monday evening at Lamar Avenue Baptist church will be a series of study courses, starting at 6:30 in the evening and closing at 9 o'clock with supper served. Two periods of instruction will be included, it was announced. Rev. H. J. Ballew will teach "Winning to Christ," and Rev. A. J. Holt, pastor will teach, "The Seven Laws of Teaching." The instructor for the Sunday school manual has not been announced.

C. E. ALUMNI ORGANIZE

Jack Hupperts of Dallas is in the city working in collaboration with W. J. Spreen of the First Christian church in the effort to organize an alumni organization of Christian Endeavorers. The two were making a census yesterday concerning the work. A banquet will be given at the church tonight when the plans will be definitely worked out.

Mr. Hupperts is secretary of the State Christian Endeavor.

PLEADS FOR PRAYER

"Every forward movement in God's Kingdom, is being wrought as a result of prayer on the part of God's people," said Dr. Holcomb in the 10 o'clock service Thursday morning. "Men have made plans and sought to carry them out and bring about revivals of the Christian religion, yet it remains for God to work through His own plan with man as His medium. There is no reason why we cannot have a stirring revival in this church and this city if we are willing to pay the price—prayerful obedience to our Lord's commands." Dr. Holcomb chose as a basis for his remarks, Acts 1st and 2nd chapters, leading the large audience to believe that a day of Pentecost can be experienced at the present time. Earnest, watchful, sincere prayer coupled with obedient work was what the evangelist urged of those present. Special emphasis was placed on united prayer and definite personal work in reaching the unsaved and unenlisted of the city.

More Truth Than Poetry

THE GLOOMY GOLFER

The melancholy days are come
The saddest of the year,
All day the autumn tempests hum
O'er fairways brown and sere.
Among the leaves that mat the ground
The questing caddie crawls,
And every time I play a round
I lose a dozen balls.

The snowflakes soon will fill the air
And desolate the scene,
The drifts will gather everywhere
On bunker, trap and green—
And though with eagerness I'm fired
I cannot start to play,
Till men with shovels can be hired
To clear the stuff away.

My hands today were numb with cold,
I topped and sliced the ball—
Alas, I found I could not hold
My trusty clubs at all.
I pressed and hurried, which I found
Wrought ruin to my game,
Because I had to get around
Before the darkness came.

The melancholy days are here,
The skies are like a pall,
And in a month or two I fear
I cannot play at all.
And when the deep and slushy snow
Is over everything,
I'll have to find some place to go
And hibernate till Spring.

ONCE UPON A TIME — THE PUMPKIN PIE PRINCESS—V

by W.J. ENRIGHT.

THE STORY UP TO NOW

ONCE THERE WAS A LITTLE GIRL WHO LIVED ALL ALONE IN A BIG PUMPKIN. ONE NIGHT IT FELL OVER THE EDGE OF THE WORLD AND LANDED ON THE MOON. THE MOON KING WAS VERY POLITE, AND ASKED THE LITTLE GIRL TO COME IN. "BUT I CAN'T LEAVE MY PUMPKIN," SHE SAID. "WHAT'S A PUMPKIN?" ASKED THE KING. "MOST PEOPLE MAKE PIES OF THEM," SAID THE LITTLE GIRL. "WHAT'S THAT?" ASKED THE KING. "SOMETHING DELICIOUS TO EAT," SAID THE LITTLE GIRL. "THEN WE'LL TAKE THE PUMPKIN IN, TOO," SAID THE MOON KING.

THE KING LIFTED THE LITTLE GIRL GENTLY IN ONE HAND.

AND THEN, TAKING THE PUMPKIN JUST AS GENTLY IN THE OTHER, HE SLIPPED DOWN THROUGH THE TRAP DOOR, WHICH CLOSED WITH A CLICK AFTER HIM AND THE SPOT ON THE MOON, IF ANY OF OUR ASTRONOMERS HAD NOTICED IT, WAS GONE.

WHEN THE TRAP DOOR CLICKED THE LITTLE GIRL LOOKED ABOUT HER AND SAW THEY WERE AT THE TOP OF A LONG SPIRAL STAIRWAY THAT WOUND ITS WAY DOWNWARD AS FAR AS SHE COULD SEE. "COME, WE'LL GO DOWN," SAID THE KING.

SETTLING HIMSELF, HE PLACED THE LITTLE GIRL AT ONE SIDE AND THE PUMPKIN AT THE OTHER. NO SOONER WERE THEY SEATED THAN THE STAIRS BEGAN TO MOVE DOWNWARD, SMOOTHLY AND QUIETLY, BUT FASTER AND FASTER.

TOMORROW—A STRANGE AND WONDERFUL RIDE.

Your big Southwest conference battles are held over until Thanksgiving day when the conference title will be decided at College Station, Longhorns and Aggies performing. S. M. U. plays Drake at Dallas. Rice takes on Baylor at Houston. Arkansas plays Oklahoma A. & M. at Fayetteville Saturday, and takes on Oklahoma university Thanksgiving at Norman.

Personally, we don't believe Gus Pappas, the "unhandsomest" member of the mat fraternity, can beat Ad Santell, the world's light heavyweight champion, in that match at the Majestic Theatre Tuesday night, but he'll probably give Ad a hard run before the curtain is rung down on the encounter.

The grinning Greek put Link Decker away the other day up in Oklahoma, and this Decker is a pretty tough baby himself. Decker took one fall with a headlock in what newspaper dispatches termed a sensational match, but Pappas came away the victor with a Japanese armlock for the second fall and took the third with a head scissors and combination toe hold. The Greek is an exponent of the wristlock used so often in matches here by Matty Matsuda.

A Lesson From Uncle George.

Jim Brown, another Balkan son, expects to put on a match or so in Vernon soon. Jim should prove a great drawing card in the Wilbarger city. He's a hard worker and is ever willing to mix it. His greatest fault, however, is that he loses his temper too often thereby weakening to an extent any advantage he may have gained over an opponent through cleverness and mat technic. This wrestler could take a lesson or so from Uncle George Simmons, 83-year-old youngster, who yesterday confided that he "hasn't been mad in three years and am still spry enough to jump a ten-rail fence—providing those rails are just about so high," and he bent over and measured off a distance of 12 inches.

A DEFI DEFIED.

There comes now Mr. Walter Bennett, the battling barber and champion of Deaf Smith county through right of conquest the other day, with a challenge to either of the heavyweight bimbos who performed on the legion card last night. And he's upped and averred he can smear it on any sports writer. Whoa, brother, time to turn around and retrace, don't you think? Such isn't being done—not to one scribe who frequents this sector.

FAMOUS SPORTING MEN.

Today we have E. E. (Scan) Scannell, famous for sitting and looking at the hole card and winning. Famous for giving 12 points on Vernon and losing. As a quail hunter he's the best. As a fisherman he can tell some of the best. The most famous thing he did was to go angling last summer with Harold Bell Wright and B. L. Fain, another famous man. We would publish Mr. Scanlon's portrait (he has an expressive expression on his map), but the rogues' gallery refused to give our star reporter a print.

SUCCOR! SUCCOR!

The Spudder baseball ship goes onto the rocks. R. O. Harvey has retired. President Gardner is out of town. And J. Will Gray is in sole charge of affairs. 'Stoo bad.

THE MALE BEAUTIFUL.

Speaking of Pappas, those fans who have never seen him in action and don't know what he looks like should drop in sometime during the day and take a slant at Charley Veros, genial owner of the Veros cafe, for Charley, they say, in facial appearance is an almost exact duplication of the comely Greek wrestler.

ONLY ACTING NATURAL.

Heh, heh. Harvard football team is chased from theater accused of being half soused. Although conclusive proof was furnished the athletes were not drunk or anything bordering such while participating in this particular party circumstantial evidence certainly would be against them if the judge took into consideration the Crimson performances on the gridiron the current season.

VERNON ENVOY INVESTIGATES STATUS OF COYOTE RESERVE AFTER INELIGIBILITY GROUNDS

Charge May Be Filed Against Bell, But it Won't Hold Water— Pack In Poor Shape

The Coyote horizon darkened again momentarily Thursday afternoon when it was learned Vernon officials were endeavoring to uncover grounds for another one of the ineligibility charges which have swept the district for the past two weeks. Joe Bailey Bell, Coyote reserve center who was used in the Electra game last week, it was presumed by a Wilbarger envay yesterday sent to Wichita Falls to laak up the records of this player was participating in his fifth football season. The Vernon man declared Bell played with Wichita Falls in 1921 against the Lions and aleo took part in a game against Frederick.

All Wrong.

Having satisfied himself that Bell had been used by Wichita Falls Coach Bud McCalum in a conference game since the recent turnover and re-play order issued this district by league headquarters, the Vernon sleuth declared that in all probability charges will be filed at league headquarters against Bell.

However, any such attack on the status of Bell will not hold water, for Joe Bailey did not play football in 1922 and he took part in no high school athletics during 1924. This season then is his third and not fifth.

The Coyotes toiled on Thursday afternoon oblivious to the ineligibility storm clouds brewing, in preparation to give the Sandstorm a warm reception Saturday at Spudder park.

They'll be in only fair condition for the Amarillo affair. It still is feared the Pack will enter the affray minus Buck Steed, halfback, who was injured in the Vernon tiff here Monday. Steed has been hampered with a bum side the greater part of the season and Monday's game put him almost out of the running.

Jot Hodges, Archer City find, it is believed has returned to the fold too late to be in condition to take a halfback position tomorrow. Hodges went out early in the season, but returned Wednesday.

Frank Rugeley or Fritz Taylor probably will be expected to hold down Steed's position should the side-stepping youngster be unable to perform.

Flippin Returns.

Bill Flippin, terminal knocked out of the Vernon game by injury received in the Electra contest of last week, will be back at his position, it was learned yesterday.

Dempsey Moore, crippled up a bit, however will be at full. Ed Powell will play quarter and Coyal Francis will hold down one of the halfback positions.

That sturdy forward wal which held so doggedly Monday when backed up on the goal is practicaly intact. Brown McCallum has the line in great shape. Dobson, tackle, however has a bad ankle. Zeke Taylor is out entirely.

Lots of Rooters.

A special train to bring Amarillo fans and players is being planned in the city of the Golden Sandstorm.

Amarillo, like the Coyotes, started late in the season to climb to the peak of its power, and both teams seem to be rising still. The Amarillo club started after an early loss to Plainview and since has been putting forth a powerful front.

Coach Hayes, of Amarillo, has had to form a new club around three letter men. Captain Dowler, fullback; Stockton and Miller, ends, are the three last year men who have returned.

MARTIN SLIPS SIESTA PUNCH OVER ON LEE

Monte and Murdock Beat Peoples and Martin Easily

Buster Martin, Wichita Falls heavyweight who has been doing most of his cauliflower work in Oklahoma the past several months, continued to plaster the good night poke in official and regulation form Thursday eve in the feature tiff of the Wichita Falls American Legion's weekly mitt fests.

Buster refrigerated George Lee, Heldenville big boy, shortly after the opening gong to the second frame of a scheduled ten-rounder. The sock which tucked Lee between the coverlets was a short right hook to the frontal piece following a southpaw feint.

Bus Gets Away Fast.

Martin got away to a speedy start in the opening chapter and seemed on the verge of getting it over all suddenlike. But Lee rallied late in the round and deposited sufficient leather on the Texan's eyebrows to even matters for the period.

Eddie Murdock won Referee Dick Griffin's decision over Redcap Martin in a four-round semi-final. Redcap is tough, and an exceptionally mean counter puncher. He caused Eddie quite a big of trouble but was not clever enough to get over for the verdict.

Monte Far Better.

Wildcat Monte completely outboxed Buckshot Peoples in another four-rounder. The Wildcat scored easily but couldn't land effectively enough to do any real harm. Buckshot went to cover too often.

Sam MiteLell, Electra negro heavy, won a decision over Zollie Combs, Wichita black bird, in a four-round mill. Mitchell scored four knockdowns.

Jack Frost and Tommie Ervin slapped it out to a four round draw.

Clara Cagers Get Better and Better

The Clara basketball team has been clipping off their practice sessions daily and are showing much improvement over their form in the loss to Harrold lately. They forced Harrold to go an extra period in this game by overcoming a great lead the Wilbargar county lads had piled up. Orien Walkup, Leonard Schroeder, Loy Nichols, and J. O. Seehon have been setting a merry club for the others to follow. Coach Belcher should be well pleased with the way Clara is showing improvement.

Matty Ready For Mason Match

Matty Matsuda, the little Japanese wrestler who thrilled Wichita Falls audiences with frequency in matches here for several weeks back, in a letter to The Record News sports editor last night declared he is in pretty good condition and is training hard for his match here Tuesday night with Charley Mason, champion middleweight of the northwest.

Matsuda is in El Paso at present. He said he expects to arrive in Wichita Falls Sunday night.

The Mason-Matsuda match will be a feature attraction with the Santel-Pappes light heavyweight mill scheduled Tuesday at the Majestic theatre.

WOMEN'S GOLF CUP CAPTURED BY WOODRUFF

Nancy Jane Harlan Wins Second—Mrs. Weldon Talks

Mrs. Faye Woodruff won the loving cup offered by Mrs. Leslie Stringer anda Mrs. Lee Haney of the Woman's Golf association in the final play yesterdeay at the Country club. The second prize was won by Miss Nancy Jane Harlan. She received a box of gold balls presented by the association.

In the play Thursday morning, Mrs. G. H. Hampshire made the best score in class A, while in class B, Mrs. Ike Upchurch and Mrs. A. C. Ludlam tied.

Shower to Mrs. Haney.

Following the luncheon, a linen shower was given Mrs. Lee Haney, who before her marriage last summer was Miss Adele Marcus. The gifts were given in a huge loving cup with Mrs. Fred Couper, chairman of the tournament committee presenting them.

Mrs. H. F. Weldon read a clever original poem of advice to a young golfer, and presented a placque, "Alice Blue Gown," the gift of the association to Mrs. Haney. The gifts were brought in and delivered by Mrs. W. W. Silk who was dressed as a maid.

The Guests.

The guests included Mesdames H. L. Ruehl, J. H. Fletcher, G. H. Hampshire, Luke McCrory, C. D. Shamburger, A. F. Kimmell, A. C. Ludlam, Ike Upchurch, Leslie Stringer, Dillard Anderson, A. Kahn, M. A. The PASSING HOUR

LINES TO COL. MATTY BELL

You will not cop a title when this season
Has rolled its final total for the year—
No matter how you dope it out or reason,
For championship, you can not get a cheer.

In other years, your record might have flourished
To win a crown, but queer is Fortune's smile—
It only looks as if your luck she nourished
To remark your schedule now is out of style.

No matter—crowns are tinsel-made and paper—
And if it does not wear the royal toga,
Your team has left some traces of the caper
It cut this year—we'll recollect the Frogs.

No Luck!

WHEN Saturday's conference games were over—the last before Thanksgiving—at least, one 1925 championship had already been decided. T. C. U. earns without question the medal as the hard luck team of the year. For if A. & M. should defeat Texas on Turkey Day, the Aggies will win the conference title over the only unbeaten eleven in the conference, and the team which defeated them.

The ruling must go unquestioned which charges a defeat to T. C. U. for its loss to Oklahoma A. & M. since it was made in advance of the campaign, but it now stands as a decided misfortune for the Horned Frogs who, when the game was billed, did not expect it to figure in the title race at all. Under the old scoring system of a few years back, T. C. U. would win this year's championship if Texas should lose Thanksgiving.

Peace to Matty Bell and his light, scrapping Frogs. No championship can crown their efforts but they deserve unstinted praise.

Saturday's three decisive games removed all possible clouds to the conference title this year. If Texas wins or ties A. & M., the Longhorns win, if the Aggies beat Texas, they win. Here are the leading possibilities under the tie game rule:

If Texas wins:

	P.	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Texas	4	3	0	1	.775
Aggies	5	3	2	0	.700
T. C. U.	4	2	1	1	.625

If Texas loses:

Aggies	5	4	1	0	.800
Texas	4	2	1	1	.625
T. C. U.	4	2	1	1	.625

If Texas ties:

Texas	4	2	0	2	.750
Aggies	5	3	1	1	.700
T. C. U.	4	2	1	1	.625

T. C. U. 3, Arkansas 0.

JOHNNY WASHMON will go down in Horned Frog history as a kicking star to rank with the Aggies' memories of Hamilton and Higginbotham—of Texas' stories of Kirkpatrick. For it is his accurate boots this year that have turned a ferocious wildcat defense into the realization of victory. He defeated both Texas A. & M. and Arkansas and on a muddy field successfully scored the point after touchdown that for a time threatened to beat Baylor. The field goal is a ridiculous survival of a primeval football, but while it is still a legal factor, it stands out as a notable individual feat.

Yet T. C. U. was lucky to emerge with a victory, penalties at critical moments, especially in one case, staying off the Arkansas, probably to Baylor, but as a fighting unit, it has no superior and thereby stands its great conference record. Unless a Texas victory Thanksgiving crowns an undefeated year, T. C. U.'s supporters will quite justly figure that their eleven is the real champion regardless of fool conference habits and rules of awarding championships.

THE AGGIES at Houston were back in their real stride and the game was marked by the reappearance of the Jap, Kishi, a superb knifing back, who has been out all year with an injured hand. That the injury does not handicap him is evidenced by his playing through and flashing a great game.

Another factor that may materially affect the Thanksgiving game was Hunt's development as a successful place kicker. The Aggie offensive was effective. Barring a successful 13-yard forward pass, early in the profession, the Farmers marched across the Rice goal line from their own 43-yard line on straight football. The second successful drive carried the greater part of the length of the field on a combination of passing and straight football.

Rice's overhead failed but it is a notable comment on the possibilities this game still holds that the failure was mostly due to grounding flings rather than the Aggie defense.

Rice has only proved this year a stumbling block to conference rivals, not an obstacle. Heisman's men have made them all fight.

S. M. U. 7, Baylor 6.

ALTHOUGH S. M. U. succeeded in registering its first conference victory by defeating Baylor, 7 to 6, the score was only achieved by the survival of one feature of primordial football, the point after touchdown over the other, the field goal. But for this it would have been the third tie for the Mustangs this year.

The fact that S. M. U. did not do much damage to the Baylor line indicates strongly the biggest defect in the team's play this year—weakness of the offensive line play. Morrison has a very strong defense in his forward wall but not much attacking power and this, with the natural inadaptability of the heavy powerful squad to the aerial attack has prevented S. M. U. from being much of a scoring power this year. However, a desperate overhead and a costly Baylor penalty won this game for S. M. U.

Baylor and Arkansas are now the only conference teams without a win. Baylor has a final chance in the Rice game, but Arkansas is through with its conference schedule and its remaining game with Oklahoma A. & M. can only count in case of loss, not of victory.

Texas 20, Arizona 0.

TEXAS got little more than a practice game in its 20-0 victory over Arizona and the game was of especial interest for the three-quarters' play of Stewart's reserves who made up most of the team for that time. The regulars were only used in the last period to warm up.

Followers of state interscholastic football will get a kick out of the fact that Joe King, the former Oak Cliff quarter, urged on the coach the use of his youngsters. Nearly all of the starting Texas lineup wore high school spangles in 1923.

COYOTE PUP--WILDCAT SCRAP ON SPUD PARK FIELD TODAY'S FEATURE FOOTBALL OFFERING

Juniors In Good Shape for Renewal of Feud With Strong Little Archer City Eleven

Monty's Coyote Pups yesterday were declared all set for this afternoon's battle at Spudder park in renewal of the junior squad's feud with Wilson's Archer City Wildcats. Game starts at ":30 o'clock.

That the club is in good condition was displayed Thursday afternoon when following a stiff workout at signal drill and rudimentary stuff, Montgomery pushed his lads through a rather rough scrimmage session, an added feature of the tapering off process.

Montgomery officiated at the game the other day between the Wildcats taken by Archer City, 25 to 0. Ad- and Iowa Park eleven which was mitting Wilson's outfit will prove tough competition for his youngsters the Junior high school mentor declared he has a fair line on the play of the Wildcats and expects to use this to good advantage this afternoon with, of course, the ultimate hope for a victory.

Carter May Play

It may be in order to remark that not so long ago Iowa Park defeated the Pups by three touchdowns. Since that day, the Wichita Falls club has improved considerably, however.

Dale Carter, Pup halfback, who has been limping around on a wrenched pedal extremity all week, may be in condition to play, according to the coach. It was feared early this week the little backfield flash would be left out of the game.

Ray George, another halfback who was injured in the Parker contest, has returned to the squad, but still is slowed up. It is possible he may not play the rest of the season. Monty right now, anyway, is attempting to develop a promising set of material for the 1926 season, George may fit into the scheme of affairs nicely.

Watch Morrison

Monty is well stocked with good wing material for this game. He has Giles, Goff, Herndon and Anderson. All rank about the same. All will see action today.

Monty's probable starting lineup: Giles and Goff, ends; Berry and Bains, tackles; Powell and Tandy, guards; Nichols, center; Fly, quarter; Brackeit and Beach, halves; Cap. Farris, full.

This lad Morrison, Archer City fullback, is the most feared member of the opposing club this afternoon. He is a good all-around back, can pass, run, kick, plunge and do almost anything else with the oval. The Pups will watch him closely.

TRINITY TIGER FALLS BEFORE PIRATES, 3 TO 0

Southwestern General's Toe Puts Ball Over 42 Yards

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Southwestern University defeated the Trinity Tigers of Waxahachie on Snyder Field, 3 to 0, today in a bitter battle on a wind blown gridiron. Blackburn for Georgetown made the lone score with a drop kick in the fourth quarter from the 42-yard line. The score came after much see-sawing by the teams.

Southwestern Pirates had the edge on the Tigers, never having their goal threatened. They kept the ball in th Tigers' territory.

Carl Reynolds, Perrin, Blackburn, Bachtel and Matteer were the Pirates' stars in defensive and offensive plays. Manning, Schley, Ferguson, Boggs, Allen and Roland played stellar ball for the visitors. Matteer intercepted three passes and Perrin completed several passes.

The Trinity backfield played spectacular football, making well earned gains, but the Southwestern line was too strong to permit a touchdown.

The line-up and summary:

Southwestern:	Position:	Trinity:
Duncan	(c) Left Tackle.	Allen
Hodges	Left Guard.	Roland
Lemberg	Center.	Manning (c)
G. Reynolds	Right Guard.	Boggs
Bachtel	Right Tackle.	Yantis
Hardin	Right End.	Rhome
Weeks	Fullback.	Schley
C. Reynolds	Right Halfback.	Ferguson
Jackson	Left Halfback.	Whitaker
Blackburn	Quarterback.	Lowe

Summary: First downs, Southwestern 5, Trinity 10. Passes completed: S. U. 3; incomplete 3. Intercepted 5; Trinity 4, incomplete 6; intercepted nothing.

Officials: Umpire, Venne, (Carlisle); referee, Ris, (Dartmouth); head linesman, Proctor, (T. C. U.)

Sporting blood seems to run through the Powell family. The four Powell boys who have entered the Junior high and Senior high schools, Ed, Oltin, Clarence and Pete, all have been or are on the athletic teams of the schools. Ed Powell this year and last made a great showing in football. Ed and Oltin were the guards of the basketball club last year. Clarence was one of the best men on the gym team of C. C. Frazee. Pete at present is one of the best linesmen Coach Montgomery has at the Junior high school.

TRIBE TAKES DAY OF REST DUE TO HURTS

Harris, End, Damages Old Rib Injury During Scrimmage

The Junior college Indians, having no game billed for this week-end, rested Thursday. They'll probably swing back into action this afternoon in preparation for the Decatur Baptist contest scheduled Thanksgiving day.

Evan Harris, classy wing man, would have been in no condition to work yesterday had there been a practice session. Harris bunged up an old rib injury Wednesday in scrimmage.

The squad is in a fairly crippled condition. outcome of three games played in eight days recently when the Wichita Falls team took on John Tarleton on a Saturday, McMurray on a Wednesday and then battled Weatherford the following Saturday. Coach Mosley, however, believes his squad will be intact for the Thanksgiving affair.

READ THIS FIRST:

FLOSSIE and MARY ROSE MIDDLETON are two beautiful young sisters, daughters of a widowed mother.

Flossie, the younger works under MISS MACFARLANE, keeping files for the Dexter Oil Company. Mary Rose is secretary to the sales manager, JOHN MANNERS, an attractive bachelor. She is secretly in love with him—so much in love that she refuses the attentions of TOM FITZROY, a young doctor who wants to marry her.

Flossie comes home very late one night, when she had phoned her mother to say that she was out with SAM JESSUP, secretary to the president of the Dexter Company. She tells Mary Rose that she lied to her mother—and that she really was out with HILARY DEXTER himself! And she shows Mary Rose a gold vanity case that Dexter gave her. Mary Rose orders her to give them back and Flossie refuses to. Moreover, she threatens to go and live with her chum, ALICE JAMES, if Mary Rose "pokes her nose" into her business. She says there's nothing wrong in the friendship between her and Dexter, a married man with grown children. "We're just pals," she explains.

But the next morning when she refuses to get up and go to work, she has an entirely different story. "Dexter's dippy about me," she says to Mary Rose, "and if Miss MacFarlane fired me for being late or away from work, I'd see to it that she lost her own job—I can make Dexter do anything I want him to do!"

Then she calls downstairs to her mother asking her to phone Miss MacFarlane and say that she's staying home with a sore throat. "Are you going to fib for her?"

"A Miss Hinig to See You, Said Mary Rose.

"I'm Going to Go Out to Dinner With You After All, Tom. When Do We Start?" Asked Mary Rose.

Mary Rose asks MRS. MIDDLETON.. "You know she hasn't a sore throat any more than I have one!"

(Now go on With the Story)

"It's wonderful that I'm his secretary," she thought, cutting thin slices of bread and filling the coffe pot, "because I can see him every day. It would be terrible not to see him every day. I don't know how I'd get along, if I didn't."

She sighed and looked at the clock. Twenty minutes to eight—In another hour, she would be in his office, trying to look indifferent and business-like. And he would never guess that under her plain black dress her heart was beating, "I love you. I love you."

"Mary Rose, the toast's burning!" Her mother's voice startled her, and she ran to pull the smoking toaster from the oven.

"I've been trying to get Flossie out of bed for the last ten minutes," Mrs. Middleton went on in a complaining tone. "Here, I'll scrape that toast, and you run up and see what you can do with her. It's almost eight o'clock."

Flossie lay sleeping as if she had been drugged, in her little iron bed. Her face was flushed, and her yellow hair lay in little damp rings along her forehead. She looked like a beautiful, healthy baby.

Mary Rose shook her.

"Flossee, wake up!" she said.

Flossie opened one blue eye, moaned and shut it again.

"Flossie!" Mary Rose said again. "It's almost eight o'clock! You'll be late for work again! Wake up!"

"All right! All right! Don't shake me to pieces! I'm awake," Flossie said crossly. She sat up and began to rub her eyes. "I'll get up."

Mary Rose left her and went back to the kitchen. Her mother had poured out the coffee, and was sipping hers as she looked over the paper.

"My goodness, but I wish that girl would stop running around with that Sam Jessup!" she said without looking up from the printed page. There she was, out with him till twelve o'clock again last night! Of course, she's too tired to get up this morning."

"If only she had been with Sam!" thought Mary Rose.

Aloud she said: "You're all wrong about Sam Jessup, mother. He's really a mighty nice fellow."

She rinsed her soiled dishes at the sink and turned to go upstairs. At the door she paused.

"How would you like to go to the movies tonight with Floss and me?" she asked gently. "We haven't had an evening together for a long time."

Mrs. Middleton shrugged her shoulders.

"You'll see that Flossie won't go, when the time comes," she predicted. "She'll say she will and then at the last minute she'll go chasing off somewhere with that Jessup."

Her tone changed suddenly. "Why, yes, Mary Rose, I'd like to go," she said more cheerfully. "But don't pick out one of those wild west films. I like to see some love making and pretty clothes when I go to the movies."

"Love making and pretty clothes you shall have then," laughed the girl.

Upstairs, Flossie was still in bed—and sound asleep once more. But at the sound of Mary Rose's voice she flounced over in bed and opened her eyes.

"Dear me, I must have gone to sleep again," she murmured. "But I should worry. I don't believe I'll go to work today."

Mary Rose stared. "Flossie Middleton, do you realize that you've been late every day for the last week?" she asked. "First thing you know, Miss MacFarlane will be giving you your walking papers."

Flossie laughed. "And then do you know what would happen to Miss MacFarlane?" she asked.

Without waiting for Mary Rose to speak, she answered her own question: "She'd get hers."

Mary Rose shook her head. "Not a chance," she said. "The Dexter company never could fill her place for one thing. And for another, she's worked there for eighteen years. She's a fixture."

"I don't care if she's worked there for fifty years," Flossie said defiantly. "If I went to Mr. Dexter and told him I wanted him to fire her, he would, or anybody else in the place!"

"What makes you think he would?" Mary Rose asked, tucking her hair up under her tiny black felt hat.

"I don't think it. I know it." Flossie's voice was filled with calm assurance. "He'd do anything in the world I wanted him to! He's absolutely dippy about me."

"Last night you said that you were just good friends—you and he," the other girl reminded her. "This morning you tell me he's in love with you. Now, which tale am I to believe? You never seem to tell the same story twice about anything, Flossie."

Flossie had the grace to blush. But she refused to make any answer. She got out of bed and called downstairs to her mother.

"Dear, will you 'phone the office and tell them I'm sick with a sore throat?" she asked. "And bring me up my breakfast. I'm going to stay in bed for a while."

Mary Rose went downstairs.

"Are you going to tell that lie for her?" she asked her mother. "She hasn't a sore throat any more than I have one!"

CHAPTER III.

Mrs. Middleton frowned.

"Mary Rose, I do think you're hard on poor Flossie, sometimes," she said in her mild way. "I'm sure she has a sore throat or she wouldn't say so."

"Oh, wouldn't she!" thought Mary Rose, exasperated.

She watched her mother spread a clean napkin over the coffee tray and set Flossie's breakfast on it. She poured the steaming coffee into a little silver pitcher that had been one of her wedding gifts, years before. And instead of the toast that she and Mary Rose had had for breakfast, she took three cinnamon rolls from the cupboard and put them on a fancy plate.

"There! Maybe that'll tempt her," she said. "Flossie's not very strong and I don't think she eats enough."

"Not very strong?" Mary Rose repeated. "She's strong enough to gad around half the night, I notice. And what makes me so cross is that she expects to sleep all day and let you wait on her, hand, foot and finger. Here, give me that tray."

She took it from her mother's worn hands, and marched upstairs with it.

Flossie was propped up against the pillows of her bed, turning the pages of a fashion magazine. She had evidently been making her morning toilet, for a comb, a powder puff and a bottle of perfume lay on the coverlet.

Her hair was fluffed out around her head like the halo of a Christmas tree angel. And around her slim shoulders was a pink satin bed jacket, made out of an old party dress.

"Thanks, for the kind attention," she said flippantly, as her sister banged the tray down on the table beside the bed. "It's so darling of you to be so sweet to me when I'm sick." She giggled.

Mary Rose glared at her. "I know you're not sick at all—just plain lazy, Flossie Middleton," she said. "You may fool Mother, but you can't fool me! And I only brought your breakfast to you to save her a trip upstairs!"

Flossie giggled again, as she took a large bite out of the first of the cinamon rolls.

"Yum-yummy, but I'm as hungry as two bears," she said amiably. "I should worry who brings me my breakfast. The main thing is that I get it!"

And as Mary Rose went out, closing the door sharply behind her, she threw her a look of triumph.

Then she calmly finished her roll, and followed it with two others. After that she drank every drop of the coffee in the little silver pitcher.

* * *

An hour later, Mary Rose stood at the door of John Manners' office. She was almost afraid to go in. And yet she could scarcely wait to see him and to hear his voice.

She drew a long breath and opened the door.

"Good morning, Miss Middleton. How are you today?" he asked, glancing up.

"Good morning, Mr. Manners. Very well, thanks," she said, setting her stenotype machine on the desk.

She sat down, her eyes fixed on the line of roofs across the street, waiting for him to begin to dictate to her. She took one swift look at him—the black hair brushed close to his fine head, the clean sweep of his jaw, the line of the shoulders under his coat. There was a tiny thread on the coat.

Mary Rose wanted to brush it off. How heavenly-sweet it would be, she thought, to take care of his clothes for him, to cook his meals and darn his socks. To be his wife. To wait for him at the end of the day—

"All right, Miss Middleton. Ready?" he said, and Mary Rose jumped. In an instant she snapped back into the office machinery of the Dexter company.

"All ready," she said cheerfully, her fingers poised above the machine.

At noon Miss MacFarlane came downstairs in her black suit and rusty black satin hat that she wore spring and fall, winter and summer.

"Have lunch with me this noon?" she asked. "I want to talk to you about Flossie. And the walls have ears here in this office."

Mary Rose tapped her teeth with her lead pencil thoughtfully.

She made up her mind that if Miss MacFarlane wanted to discharge Flossie she wouldn't lift a finger to stop her. It would be the best thing in the world for Flossie to get away from the Dexter company, and from Hilary H. Dexter, its president, anyway. The best thing in the world—

"All right, Miss Mac," she said, lifting her eyes to the shabby, sallow woman, "I'll be ready in a jiffy."

They ate at a cafeteria, block away from the office. The corned beef hash that Mary Rose chose was swimming in grease, and the coffee wasn't coffee at all, but chicory.

As she tasted it and set it down, something that Flossie had said the night before flashed into her mind—"I get so tired of eating stew and bread pudding in the kitchen."

Well, Flossie wasn't the only person in the world who hated poverty and loved nice things. Mary Rose loved them, too.

"If I married Tom, he could give me everything," she thought.

But she was sure she never would marry him. She knew that she would rather be John Manners' secretary than the wife of any man on earth—except John Manners, of course. Wouldn't it be wonderful if—

"A penny for your thoughts, Mary Rose," The heavy voice of Miss MacFarlane brought her back to earth.

Mary Rose blushed and laughed. "I wasn't thinking," she said.

"Now, then, about Flossie," Miss MacFarlane went on. "A man has been calling her up every day or two for the last week. She—she goes out to meet him."

She stopped for a moment to let that sink in. Then she opened her handbag, a cheap affair of imitation leather.

"And then," she said, fumbling in it, "this morning I went into her desk for some stamps, and I found these."

She laid two cigarets down on the bare wooden table. Each of them was marked with a large gold "D."

"D for Dexter," thought Mary Rose.

"And this," Miss MacFarlane laid a piece of torn paper down beside the cigarets, "was with them!"

Mary Rose picked it up. It was part of one of the letterheads of the Dexter company, and on it was typed: "Five o'clock at the usual place. If I'm not there, wait for me."

She crease dit with her nervous fingers. "You know, Miss Mac," she said at last, "that Flossie and Sam Jessup are great friends, don't you?"

Miss MacFarlane stared oddly. "Oh, yes, I know that," she said. "And look here, Mary Rose, I wouldn't have bothered you with all this except that I think you ought to know about it. I'm not prying into Flossie's private business because I enjoy it—but she's a wild child, and—"

She never finished the sentence. She and Mary Rose looked at each other for a long moment, and there was a kind of defiance in the girls blue eyes.

"I don't think you need to worry about Flossie, Miss Mac," she said at last, with great dignity.

In silence they walked back to the great red-brick buildings that housed the Dexter Oil company.

At the door of the washroom, Miss MacFarlane faced her, her hand on the knob of the door. "Sam Jessup may have written the note, Mary Rose," she said, "but the voice that calls her on the telephone is not Sam Jessup's voice!"

Mary Rose left her and ran upstairs.

Along about the middle of the afternoon, Tom Fitzroy telephoned.

"G-g-going to go somewhere with me for dinner tonight, M-M-Mary Rose?" he asked.

"I can't Tom. I'm going to take Mother and Floss to the movies," she answered, glad to the excuse.

"L-let me go with you," Tom suggested hopefully. But Mary Rose squelched him:

"This is strictly a family party."

"Well, then," Tom said, "I ought to go along. I'm going to be a member of your family some day, if you'll let me. A close relation."

The girl laughed, in spite of herself. "Listen here, Tom Fitzroy," she filted. "You can't take my time in the middle of the afternoon, just to ask me to marry you—"

She glanced up and saw that Manners was standing beside her desk, some papers in his hand. She could tell from the look on his face that he had heard what she had just said.

"Good-by, Tom, I'm awfully busy," she spoke rapidly into the telephone. "I'll call you later."

She looked up at Manners. He laid the papers down on the desk.

"Please file these away for me," he said in a colorless voice. He started away, and then came back.

"Somehow or other, I never thought of you as—as being engaged," he remarked.

"No?" she asked.

She borrowed one of Flossie's phrases. "That was just my little boy friend," she explained, "kidding me over the phone. I'm not engaged to him. I'm not engaged to anybody."

For some seconds he stood there, looking at her. Then he turned and disappeared into his private office.

"Well, at any rate, that set him thinking about me," Mary Rose said to herself, with some satisfaction, as she filed away the papers he had given her. "He knows I'm a girl now—not an adding machine."

When she returned to her desk, a tall girl was standing there.

"I'd like to see Mr. Manners if he's not busy, please," she said to Mary Rose in a high sweet voice.

Mary Rose took her on with one keen glance—the smartness of her plain black clothes in a season when bright colors were the rage, the fragrance of some spicy, faint perfume that hung around her, the blue eyes that had the friendliest sort of smile in them.

Without looking directly at them, she saw that the girl wore silver buckles on her slippers, and that a silver purse dangled from her wrist.

"Money," she thought, "and lots of it. Maybe she's Mr. Manners' sister—that is, if he has a sister." She knew almost nothing about John Manners.

"What name shall I tell him?" she asked, half-way to the door of his office.

"Miss Hinig," the girl said.

Mary Rose opened the door and went in, closing it after her. "There's a Miss Hinig here to see you," she said to Manners.

He got up from his desk without a word and crossed the office, opened the door and let Mary Rose pass out of it ahead of him.

"Hello, Dorry," she heard him say to the tall girl, as she turned to him and held out both of her white hands. "What brings you here? But, come in. Come in."

Together the pair of them went into the office and the door closed behind them.

"Now, who is Dorry Hinig—and what is she to John Manners?" Mary Rose asked herself, looking at the closed door.

CHAPTER IV.

"Maybe she's a relative of his—a long lost cousin or something," she thought hopefully, flicking the keys of her typewriter with one finger.

But some sixth sense told her that "Dorry" Hinig was no cousin of Manners.'

And her common sense told her, furthermore, that no girl comes to see a busy man, with her eyes shining like stars, unless she is in love with him. No, without doubt, this Hinig girl was in love with John Manners.

But was he in love with her? The more Mary Rose thought about it, the gloomier she became.

At last she made up her mind to run upstairs to ask Miss MacFarlane if she had ever heard of a Miss Hinig—and what she knew about her.

"She's sure to know something about her," thought Mary Rose. "She's been here long enough to know everything about everybody, goodness knows!"

And if Miss MacFarlane knew anything at all she would be sure to tell it—with trimmings! For she had a great gift. The gift of gab. The less she knew about a thing, the more she had to say about it.

But usually there was a kernel of truth in what she said.

"Yes, indeed, I know who Doris Kinig is," she told Mary Rose, looking at her curiously through her thick eyeglasses. "She's the girl that John Manners is going to marry."

The girl he was going to marry!

Mary Rose felt as if the floor had suddenly dropped away from her—as if the whole world had dropped away from her. She clutched the back of a chair for support.

"Is that so?" she asked, and didn't know that she had spoken.

Dimly, as if from a long distance, she heard Miss MacFarlane chattering about Doris Hinig's wonderful work in the Red Cross during the war.

But her mind refused to take up any fact except that one crushing fact—that Doris Hinig was the girl who was going to marry John Manners. The girl who would be his wife.

And what would she, Mary Rose Middleton, do? Would she go on working for him, this man she loved with all her soul and body?

Could she go on working for him, she wondered, knowing that all of the time he belonged to this girl he called all the time he belonged to this girl he called "Dorry?" Knowing that she, herself, was nothing to him but the girl who took his dictation, opened his mail and kept his pencils sharp?

Wouldn't it be a thousand times better to quit her jobb right now, before her heart was broken altogether?

Wouldn't it be far more sensible to marry Tom Fitzroy who loved her from the bottom of his honest heart? And to settle down to be the mistress of the good home that Tom would provide, and be the mother of his babies?

If she couldn't have John Manners, was that any reason why she couldn't find some second best happiness with another man?

She went on asking herself these questions that girls have been asking themselves ever since the first business woman took a job in an office.

She shot a look at Miss MacFarlane who had given the best years of her life to the Dexter company. Sallow and lifeless and unhappy she looked. A gossipy old maid—dead, without ever having known what it was to be alive! Dead on her feet!

Oh, anything, anything, would be better than turning into a Miss MacFarlane, Mary Rose decided. Like a flash and ran downstairs to telephone Tom at general Hospital.

"What's the good word?" he asked, stammering a little as he often did when he talked to her.

"Well, I've changed my mind. I'm going out to dinner with you, after all, Tom," she answered him. "When do we start, oldtimer?"

"Any time you say, Rosey!" The eagerness in his voice warmed the very cockles of her heart. Good old Tom!

Negro Crap Game Raid Tests Search Law Through Appeal to Hi Court From Wichita Co.

Constitutionality of State Statute Is Involved in Case Gaming Arrests Here

A further test of the search warrant law—this time to determine its application in gaming cases, is to be made before the court of criminal appeals in a case sent up from the Wichita county court at law.

The constitutionality of the search warrant law has been upheld by the supreme court in its bearing on search and seizure instances; now it is proposed to find out whether officers, before they can raid a private place where they believe a gambling game is in progress, must arm themselves with a search warrant. There is a difference of opinion between attorneys here as to this.

The appeal will grow out of a conviction obtained in the county court at law Wednesday against one Ernest Smith, a negro, who with five other negro men was arrested in a crap game in the flats. It developed that the arresting officers entered the room without a warrant and defense attorneys for the negro contended that this was sufficient to knock out the complaint.

It was agreed before the case went to trial that if Smith was found guilty, the other five would enter similar pleas. Judge McFarland assessed fines of $10 and costs in each case.

The firm of Mathis and Caldwell is representing the case.

FITZGERALD FINDS THIS CITY OF ALL FOR ONE AND ONE FOR ALL, AND LAGGARDS ARE SIDETRACKED

From J. C. Mytinger, Dean of Newspaper Writers Learns We Are Sixth In Texas Building Rank Right Now

Editor's note: This is the third of a series of articles written especially for The Record News by Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, dean of Texas newspapermen. Fitzgerald, permanently associated with the staff of The Record News spent several days visiting in this city recently, and is now writing this series of articles for this newspaper. Incidentally, these articles are appearing in five other newspapers of Texas, spreading the facts of Wichita Falls, its vision and its growing greatness.

BY HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Written Especially for The Record News

WICHITA Falls, Texas, Nov. 19.—In a former article, the writer said that Wichita Falls, population nearing 60,000, is one of the best built and most modern cities in the south or the west. There is a reason for it. It is a new city. It has wide avenues and broad alleys. Its architecture is ornate, and its business blocks are appealing to the eye. Its business men take an active interest in civic matters and political activities. It has a well organized Chamber of Commerce. It has a business man's council. There is team work in evidence at all times. There are mighty few laggards or pull-backs in the city of Wichita Falls.

All for All.

Here the unwritten slogan prevails, "all for one and one for all." Those who do not like it, get bumped or side-tracked.

J. C. Mytinger, prominent among the builders, in a recent statement, in fact the writer was present when the statement was made, declared that an analysis of building permit figures showed that only one city in Texas exceeded Wichita Falls in the proportionate dollars and cents increase in building in the last year. He said Wichita Falls now ranked sixth in Texas in the matter of new buildings started. He gave the figures Houston was now some $6,000,000.00 ahead of last year's building; Wichita Falls is second, with about $3,000,000.00 gain; Dallas comes next with $2,000,000.00 gain, and Fort Worth with a $500,000.00 gain and San Antonio and El Paso trailing in the order named.

More Paved Streets

Wichita Falls has more paved streets than any city of like population in the state. But he added, that Wichita Falls needed more money for paving purposes, more money for all the modern accessories of civilization and city life, and that the people of the fast growing city would go down in their pockets in the near future and provide the money for the necessary public improvements. Now, there is a movement on foot for the building of a vast auditorium for the accommodation of the conventions of the state and all other purposes for which modern auditoriums are utilized. These men of the hour, these ambitious builders of a great city of the future, are prophesying that a new auditorium will be built before the close of the year 1927 in time to entertain the Sixth Annual Convention of the west Texas Chamber of Commerce, which they expect will be held in the city that faith built in that year. In passing it is not out of place to state that the idea of a west Texas Chamber of Commerce first evolved from the brain pan of a dweller in the city that faith built and the expansion of the idea led to what is known today as the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, which represents more towns and has a larger membership than any state Chamber of Commerce in America.

Our Big Sky Line

Stately business houses, or office buildings, have added to the skyline of Wichita Falls, since 1923, thanks to the Sniders and the Harveys and others who are as well known in the ranks of the public spirited who believe in their city and are planting their dollars where their belief lies. There is to be another eight story building constructed by Wyatt F. Parrish, at a cost of $500,000.00 Mr. Parrish is active in oil, farming and financing. There is to be a million dollar eleven story medical arts building in the near future, and the latter building proposition is said to have been financed and the plans are darwn These builders say that Wichita Falls is sharing with West Texas in one of the greatest and yet sanest building booms ever known under Texas skies. Speaking of building hundreds of new homes, many of them as handsome and as costly as can be found in the Hyland Parks and Enfield sections of other cities, have been erected and yet the demand for housing grows with a steady increase in population in the city and the increased activities in the petroleum world. Hotel space is at a premium which shows that irrigation and oil have attracted those who would better their economic fortunes to this Texas field ready for the investor, the builder, the manufacturer, the farmer, the truck grower, the fruit grower—in fact all the sons and daughters of men who wish to build homes in a comparatively new country, and to better their economic fortunes. This is a land of Law and Liberty, of tolerance and hospitality, where men and women of all religious creeds and all political who believe in the faith of the fathers who made this republic and the broad charity of the pioneers of Texas who laid the mud sills for the greatest of American commonwealth.

Gone The Range

Not many years ago this was a free range given over to the cattle kings and their herds. Now the man with the plow and the hoe and the tractor and the reaper is in evidence. Now the derrick and the drill and the evidence. Now the tillers of the soil are in evidence. Now there is a city with its great banks, it great department stores, its hospitals, its colleges, its churches and schools, its manufacturies and its mills, its office buildings and its branches of trade representing all the professions and all the callings.

Cattle paved the way. Then came Wheat, Then came oil. All the time the railroads were coming. Now irrigation has crowned the valley and entensified farming, with water whenever needed, will pour its golden stores into the lap of wealth makers and into the pockets of labor and commerce and trade.

LET ASYLUM CONTRACT

AUSTIN, Nov. 19.—(AP)—Richard Schmidt, of Austin, today was awarded a contract by the board of control for construction of a hospital building at the state insane asylum here for $35,036.

GIRL 'SCOUTS' MAP OUT BIG YEAR OF WORK

Camp Fire Organization Builds Health and Character

Building character and ability in girls is a task numerous organizations have set for themselves. Among these is that association known as the Camp Fire Girls. It is a sort of miniature Y. W. C. A. and feminine branch of Boy Scouts combined, a thing that deals with the younger set and through systematic training, study and diversion, seeks to expand the mental, moral and physical life of its members along tolerant lines.

To do this it has its programs, its curricula of studies, its schedules of work and play. It watches carefully, presents problems that later life may bring, counsels and guards its members and, in general, keeps a studious eye on the welfare of those that come within its fold.

Wichita Falls has recognized the value of the Camp Fire work by including the organization as one of nine in its community chest. From the chest each year goes a financial allotment to the camp fires which enables it to carry on its activities.

This year a budget of $55,000 has been set for the entire community chest, a part of which will be devoted to the coming 12-month activities of the Camp Fire Girls. The campaign for this fund will be waged next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Below are the financial statements and activities reports of the organization for last year.

PRIDDY PLACES HIS STAMP ON CHEST DRIVE

All Should Support it Liberally, Says Business Man

"I heartily approve o fthe community chest method of raising the needed funds to meet the requirements of our community chest. I will gladly contribute to this good work and I am sure no trouble will be experienced here in raising the full amount that is to be needed for carrying on this good work next year. The community chest is a thing all of us who are able should support liberally and whole-heartedly."

Thus did W. M. Priddy, one of the city's leading business men, voice his approval Thursday of the community chest, what it is doing for Wichita Falls and the manner in which it's funds are gathered and administered. He adds one more to the long line of civic and commercial leaders of the city who, from their observation and judgment, believe the chest idea to be a necessary one here.

The campaign for the $55,000 fund to be subscribed for the coming 12-months work of nine welfare organizations will start next Monday and, if necessary to raise the full amount, will be continued for the next two days.

Pipe Line Company Is Sued For $1,000

Damages of $1.00 are asked of the Texas Pipe Line company in a suit filed Thursday in the eighty-ninth district court by J. H. and Nora Sullivan.

The petition alleges that the plaintiffs, who reside in the vicinity of Caroline and Lincoln Streets, have been caused loss and annoyance from an open ditch the defendant company has constructed in front of their house.

SECOND PROBLEM —IN— THE WICHITA FALLS RECORD NEWS

Puzzle Contest

Contestants Read Rules Carefully

The solution of the first puzzle is 6048. As more contestants submitted this solution than there are prizes, all those who submitted any other solution are eliminated from further participation in the contest under the rule that as many prizes will be reserved as there are contestants tied on any one solution before a prize is awarded for a less correct solution.

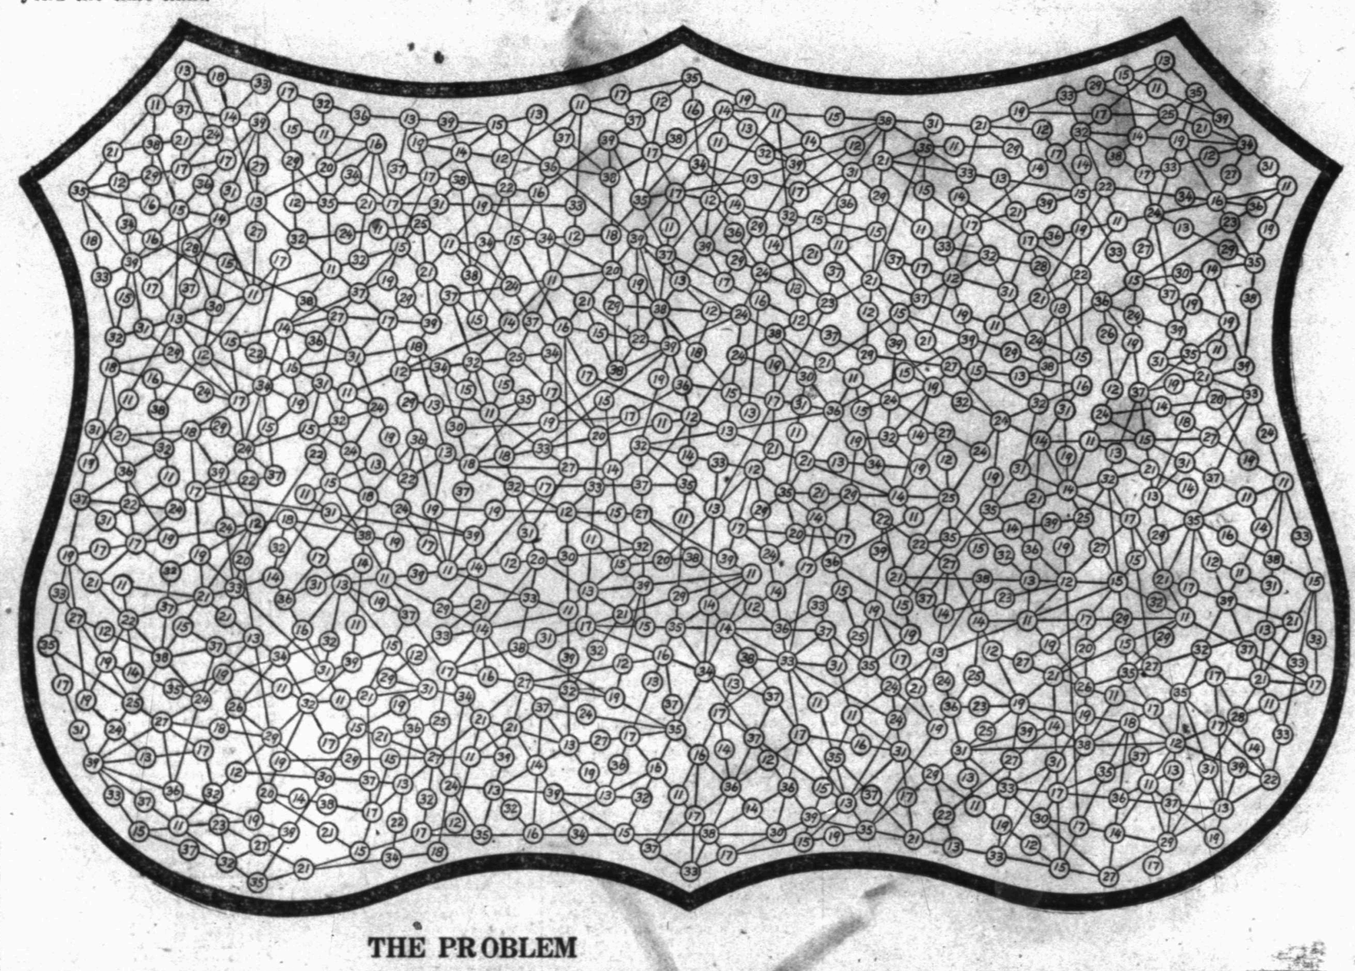

Only one solution of the second puzzle may be submitted. No correction or change may be made in it after it is sent in.

No additional payment on subscription is required with solutions of the second puzzle. Those who paid less than the full amount with their solution of the first puzzle, however, will be permitted to send any amount between what they paid and the full amount they might have paid, if they desire in the event of winning either of the high prizes to be awarded the maximum amount of such prize.

Three additional charts of the second puzzle will be mailed to those entitled to solve it, and one full week from the date the charts are received will be allowed to solve it. Due allowance will be made those residing at a greater distance than those in Wichita Falls and adjacent territory. This time will be reckoned according to mail schedules, and date of postmarks on return envelopes containing solutions of the second puzzle. All solutions of this puzzle must be sent by mail.

SECOND PUZZLE CHART

This chart with blank beneath must be cut out neatly from this sheet and sent in as your solution.
Solutions will not be accepted if mailed from points outside of the territory specified in the first period of the contest, or held beyond the time limit.

THE PROBLEM

Draw a continuous line across the face of the chart so that the numbers in the circles through which your line is drawn when added together will total the largest sum. The figures in the chart form double numbers such as 13 (thirteen), 18 (eighteen), 11 (eleven), and so on. In drawing your line observe the following rules:

Following the lines in the chart each section of your line must pass through at least three circles, but not more than six circles, in an absolutely straight line before you proceed in another direction. If you have any doubt about a circle being in a straight line with any others, lay a piece of straight-edged paper, or any straight edge along the lines connecting the circles and you will see at a glance whether the circles are in a straight line or not.

Use either a black, blue or red pencil, drawing your line either entirely through the circle, or to the center of any circle where you make a turn. Do not use ink, as that would likely obliterate the numbers in the circles through which your line is drawn. In following the lines shown in the chart draw your line slightly to one side so as to make it plainly discernible to those checking your chart.

Begin at any circle you wish, putting the letter "S" at the starting point and the letter "E" at the circle where your line has to end. These letters may be drawn in ink provided they are inserted in such a way as not to obliterate any circled number. Under this rule, you may start your line at any circle you select and continue in any direction you wish, as long as you keep within the rules.

Your line must not cross itself at any point, nor is it permissible to pass through any circle more than once. While each section of your line must pass through not less than three circles in a straight line it may pass through as many more as you may find desirable up to a total of six circles, wherever, of course, there are more than three circles in a straight line.

The last circle in any section of your line must also be regarded as the first in the section following, but in adding the number together for a total, the number in the circle where one section ends and the next begins is to be counted but once. By "section" is meant the portions or parts of your line, which connect three or more circles in a perfectly straight position.

In enumerating the total number of circles your line passes through, which you have to insert in the solution blank, do not count the circles at the points, or angles, where the line turns but one each. Do not confuse this with the rule that when drawing your line, the last circle in any one section is also to be regarded as the first circle in the next section.

The prizes will be awarded to those submitting respectively the highest sum totals of the numbers in the circles through which the lines drawn by contestants pass. In the event of ties on any sum totals, and if there be a difference in the number of circles the lines pass through those passing through the least number of circles will be declared the winners. In the event or ties on both the sum totals and the number of circles the lines pass through, the puzzle, with conditions slightly changed, will be submitted as many as four times, after which, should any ties exist, each tying contestant will receive the full amount of the prize tied for.

Any error or neglect in complying with the foregoing rules will disqualify the solution of the contestant submitting it.

Be sure to attach your chart to the solution blank, so your solution can be properly checked. Solutions submitted without the charts accompanying them will not be considered, because they cannot be checked and verified.

The lines are in the chart to prevent any question arising over which circles are in a straight line.

Do not send anything but the chart and the solution blank, but hold all working papers subject to examination if they should be called for to verify your work.

ILLUSTRATION

The little chart with the line across it illustrates, among other things, the counting of the last circle in one section as the first in the next. For instance, starting at figure 4 on the left-hand side of the chart, the first section passes through three circles, thence downward through three, then further downward through three, thence upward through six and so on. Note also that the line runs alongside of it, but not directly over the dotted lines, which like the lines in the puzzle, indicate the directions to follow. The figures encircled are 4, 7, 3, 1, 7, 2, 1, 9, 7, 4, 1, 1, 9, 3, 4, 5, 3, 1, 4, 2, 9, 1, 3, 5, 7. The sum total of these numbers is 103. The line passes through twenty-five different circles. The line does not cross itself or pass through any circle more than once.

Remember, you do not have to start at any specified point, but at any circle in the large puzzle chart you wish, provided you can proceed by passing through not less than three circles in a straight line and so on. You may proceed in any direction you select, zig-zagging back and forth as you wish until you reach a point where you can go no further without violating the rules. You may start right in the middle of the chart, or at any other point you select.
