Airliner Crashes; 24 Killed

Other Heavies Hit Targets On French Coast

Yanks Down 84 Nazi Planes In Thursday Raids

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 11 — American Flying Fortresses blasted Frankfurt-on-the-Main with tons of high explosive again today, striking the already hard hit southwest German industrial and transport center for the second time in four days and the fourth time since Jan. 29.

While this devastating assault to flatten Frankfurt was in progress, Liberators again operated independently of the Forts, slashing at military installations in the Pas-de-Calais area and American Marauders in their ninth operation in 11 days struck other targets in the "rocket gun" sector of northern France.

Unprecedented Assault

Today's operations kept the unprecedented Allied aerial assault going through yet another 24-hour cycle and followed up yesterday's mighty attacks on the German manufacturing city of Brunswick and the Gilze-Rijen air base in Holland which precipitated furious air fights in which American heavy bombers and fighters were credited officially with downing 84 enemy planes.

Mustang, Lightning and Thunderbolt fighters escorted the Fortresses to Frankfurt, and other Thunderbolts covered the Liberators on their run to France.

Heavy bombers of the USAAF now have struck continental objectives in 12 of the past 15 days.

Aims To Flatten City

The terrific assault obviously designed to flatten Frankfurt has been under way since Jan. 29 when a record force of more than 800 heavy bombers hit the city with a daylight record of 1,800 tons of explosives.

It was estimated unofficially today that more than 3,500 tons of bombs were rained on that manufacturing and communications hub in three previous daylight attacks.

The rumble of explosions rolled back across the English channel this morning as the bombers hit the Pas-de-Calais area.

Mosquitos Out Last Night

The daylight forays came in the wake of RAF Mosquito attacks on western Germany and mine laying in German waters from which all RAF planes returned safely.

The Mosquitos' raid was their first attack on Berlin since the night of Feb. 6 but they have been over western Germany every night this month but one.

There was no early report of losses today but a U. S. communique said 29 American bombers and eight fighters were lost in yesterday's raids.

Bond Check-Up Set Saturday

Rally Scheduled Tonight At Slaton

Saturday will be a day for "taking stock" to ascertain as definitely as possible just where Lubbock county stands with regard to the Fourth War Loan drive, County Chairman Neil H. Wright said today.

The stock taking will follow the big rally in Slaton High school

BROADCAST ON KFYO

KFYO, Lubbock, will join with 43 other Texas radio stations in a statewide hookup for the broadcast of a Fourth War Loan drive program from 8 until 8:30 o'clock tonight, Manager DeWitt Landis reminded this morning. The program will feature a dramatization of the "March of Death" of American prisoners captured on Bataan, as described by the late Lt. Col. William E. Dyess. Judge Richard Dyess of Albany, Texas, father of the Bataan hero, will speak.

tonight at 8 o'clock, which has been arranged as a "Salute to Slaton Heroes."

With the Slaton figures in, the campaign organization should be in position to determine what still must be done, if anything, to insure that Lubbock county will be over all its quotas in the drive, the chairman believes. The drive ends officially next Tuesday, Feb. 15.

Well Over Quota

On the basis of unofficial tabulations from three banks in Lubbock and First Federal Savings and Loan association, the county is well over its overall quota of $3,597,000. The actual count through Thursday afternoon was $3,814,515.95, an excess of $217,515 over quota. But Series E bonds, which are those intended for individual purchasers, accounted for only $992,840 of the grand total. This figure is $202,160 short of the Series E quota of $1,195,000.

None of the figures listed includes any Slaton sales. But, presumably, the totals are substantially correct. There is no doubt in the minde of the campaign organization that the total county goal has been beaten, and the indications are that the Series E goal will be exceeded also unless there is a slackening in buying.

However, the state as a whole is reported to be still short by more than $95,000,000 of its $395,000,000 over-all quota. Only 55 per cent of the state's Series E quota has been subscribed, according to reports from state headquarters.

Crippling Blizzard Hits Eastern States

(By The Associated Press)

A traffic-crippling blizzard from the frigid midwest swept into eastern United States today, covering the northeast with heavy snow and depositing snow and freezing rain from southern New Jersey to Atlanta.

Three deaths were reported in Illinois and one in Indiana as the severest cold wave of the season chilled the midwest.

Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York City reported a "critical" coal shortage in that city which was expected to be blanketed under eight to 12 inches of snow before the fall ceased. Much colder weather was predicted for the northeast tomorrow.

Storm warnings were displayed along the Atlantic coast from Eastport to Block Island. In Boston the weather bureau issued a special warning of heavy snow for New England and strong winds. At least eight inches was expected in that section.

Forecasters said the heavy snow would end in the northeast tonight.

Reds Capture Rail Junction

Was Vital Link In Nazi Defense Line

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, Feb. 11. — Marshal Premier Joseph Stalin today announced the capture of the rail junction of Shepetovka, 45 miles southeast of Rovno and 27 miles east of the old Polish frontier.

Shepetovka is on the junction of the Berdichev-Warsaw mainline and the Korosten-Tarnopol lines. It is an important rail station and a vital link in the German defense system.

Stalin's order of the day was addressed to Gen. Nikolai Vatutin, commander of the First Ukrainian front whose troops in other areas are well into pre-war Poland near Lutsk.

German Troops Pounded

Russian guns pounded the remnants of some 100,000 German troops trapped in a narrowing circle near Korsun in the Dnieper river bend today as converging Red army columns drove within seven miles of that city and other Soviet troops pressed their assault on the iron ore center of Krivoi Rog, 150 miles to the southeast.

Yesterday Soviet spearheads split off several groups from the main body, which once numbered 10 divisions, a Russian communique said. These units were being systematically wiped out, the bulletin added, and the exhausted Germans were surrendering in steadily mounting numbers.

Associated Press dispatches from Moscow indicated the German army was facing its biggest disaster since the surrender of Stalingrad a year ago.

Reds Capture Zheltsy

In the far north, the Russians said, troops of Sen. Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army captured the town of Zheltsy, seven miles northeast of Luga, rail junction on the Leningrad-Pskov railway, and a number of other communities.

Gen. K. A. Meretskov's Volkhov army, forming the southern arm of the pincer drive on Luga, was moving up from the south and was last reported within 14 miles of the German-held base.

No information as to the progress of Soviet forces inside Estonia, last reported advancing on Narva on the Leningrad-Reval railway, was given in the Moscow war bulletin. The communique also omitted mention of the

"Parasitic Twin" Removed From Canadian Boy

ROCHESTER, Minn., Feb. 11. (AP)—An unusual operation performed by a Mayo clinic surgeon for removal of a "parasitic twin" today had restored a 12-year-old Winnipeg, Canada, boy to normal life.

The operation was performed last October by Dr. Henry W. Meyerding on Ernie Defort, who had been born with a partial Siamese twin attached to his body at his lower chest and upper abdomen.

In an operation lasting more than two hours, Dr. Meyerding disclosed he removed the twin body and within "three or four weeks" Ernie was back home in Winnipeg, ready to re-enter school. Today he is active in athletics, well up in his studies and living as a normal boy, the doctor said.

Dr. Meyerding said the partial body of the twin had well developed pelvis bones, hip joints and legs but the abdomen, chest, arms and hands had failed to grow normally.

Churchill Receives Russian Objections

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin in a personal letter to Prime Minister Churchill has voiced the Russian objections to some members of the Polish government in London and this latest communication is believed to offer little hope of an early solution of the knotty Polish problem, it was reported today.

The statement of the Soviet viewpoint apparently followed closely the reply the Russians sent to Secretary of State Cordell Hull's offer of mediation. The Russians told Hull the time was not ripe for United States help in solving the difficulty.

Measure For Speedy Settlement Of War Contracts Introduced

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (U.P.)—Legislation to provide "fair and speedy" settlement of war contracts and a "strong foundation for full employment in the post-war period" was introduced today by Sens. James E. Murray, (D., Mont.), and Walter F. George, (D., Ga).

The bill was designed as the first legislative step to implement the sweeping recommendations for industrial demobilization made only two days ago by the special Senate postwar committee headed by George. A Senate military affairs subcommittee will hold hearings on it next week.

George and Murray said the measure — first in a series designed ultimately to recall to Congress the wartime powers delegated to the President — would assure both big and little business quick release of their facilities for peacetime production.

The bill would establish a new office of contract termination settlement, responsible only to Congress and headed by a presidentially appointed $12,000 a year director. The director would be a

American And Australian Forces Join Hands Below Saidor In New Guinea

By MORRIE LANDSBERG
Associated Press War Editor

The Japanese faced a further breakdown of pivotal southern defenses today while American naval and air squadrons hacked away at the enemy's severed line of island bases in the Central Pacific.

Nipponese forces once dominant in all of the Bismarck archipelago suffered a decisive defeat when Australian and American troops joined hands below Saidor, New Guinea, to complete occupation of the jungle-covered Huon peninsula.

Control Northeast Coast

Successful conclusion of the five-months long campaign not only gave the Allies control of an additional 150 miles of New Guinea's northeastern coastline, but General MacArthur said in his announcement today, the offensive cost the Japanese the bulk of approximately 14,000 men.

The Australians who swept up the Huon peninsula and the U. S. troops which met 10 miles south of the American beachhead at Saidor now command positions from which to strike at enemy bases in the Madang sector. Madang itself has been reported abandoned by the Japanese, and Allied planes have turned their attacks on nearby Alexishafen.

New Air Blows On Rabaul

Aerial blows fell anew on Rabaul, keystone of the enemy's southwest defense system guarding the approaches to the Philippines. It was the ninth raid in 11 days, but a naval spokesman at Gen. MacArthur's headquarters declared the worst is yet to come. The enemy lost 640 planes at Rabaul between Dec. 17, 1943 and Feb. 8 against 130 for the Allies, a compilation by South Pacific headquarters showed.

Easing Of Pay Formula Urged

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — The congressional drive to end food subsidies today ran up against a proposal that the little steel formula be relaxed so that every wage earner's income could be raised an additional 3 per cent to compensate for a prospective rise in living costs.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla) offered an amendment to that effect to pending anti-subsidy legislation with the assertion that cutting off subsidies would result in a 7 per cent food cost rise and a 3 per cent increase in the over-all cost of living.

"If we are going to increase the cost of living," Pepper said, "it's only fair that wages should be allowed to go up. Otherwise subsidy repeal would be the same as cutting every worker's pay 3 per cent."

Instead of limiting wage increases to 15 per cent above Jan. 1, 1941, levels, as under the present formula, Pepper's amendment would instruct President Roosevelt to raise the limitation to 18 per cent.

His move came as the anti-subsidy bill of Senator Bankhead (D-Ala) was pushed to the verge of passage. One compromise proposal, the $950,000,000 a year limited subsidy plan of Senator Taft (R-Ohio) was rejected yesterday 63 to 15.

More Cotton Acreage Answer To Problem

HOUSTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — Increased cotton acreage in Texas is the answer to the livestock feed shortage, General Manager L. E. Church of the Gulf Coast Federated Feed association asserted today.

Attributing the feed scarcity to what he termed the one-sided spread between cattle population and cotton acreage production, Church in an interview said that in 1932 Texas had about three acres of cotton per head of livestock compared with less than one acre per head last year.

"If the acreage of cotton had not been cut over 50 per cent in the last 10 years, our picture would not be nearly so bad," he said.

Plane Sinks In Mississippi

Wreckage Found Near Memphis

(By The Associated Press)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 11 — Twenty-four persons lost their lives when an American Airlines transcontinental plane crashed into the Mississippi river last midnight.

U. S. army engineers started raising sections of the giant plane shortly before noon today but lifting of the sections carrying the passengers was delayed until arrival of heavier salvage equipment.

The engineers recovered one wing, parts of the fuselage, a luggage door, several seat cushions and a mail bag.

There was no indication whether bodies would be found in the passenger compartment.

Several crewmen with the U. S. engineers reported hearing the plane flying low overhead and one said he saw it hit the water and sink seconds after being enveloped in flames.

"There was a terrific explosion and fire," said Charley Williams, watchman for an engineer's crew "It seemed to sink immediately."

Williams said the plane was on its course for the Memphis airport where it was due at 11:38 p.m. (CWT).

Plane Flying Low

"It was quite low," Williams said, "and appeared to be tipped a little to the right but the engines seemed to be all right and there were no flames. It angled into the river about half way across."

Coast Guard boats and several searching parties searched the area without success for three hours before daylight. Grappling hooks were to be used but rivermen said considerable delay might be expected in discovering the plane if it broke up in the swift current before hitting bottom.

At least 10 of the 21 passengers

Relatives Urge Aid To POW

Senators Hear Bataan Groups

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Wives, mothers and fathers of Americans held prisoners of war by the Japanese pleaded before the Senate military committee today for promotions and automatic insurance for them and "that aid somehow be gotten to the boys."

Among those who testified were Dr. V. H. Spensley, Albuquerque, N. M., elected yesterday as president of federated organizations for Bataan relief; Mrs. Elizabeth Parsons, Pontiac, Mich.; Mrs. Cuyler Bigger, Atlanta, Ga., Mrs. George W. Hirsch, Columbia, S. C., and A. C. MacArthur, Maywood, Ill., president of the American Bataan clan.

Senator Chavez (D-NM), author of a bill to provide promotions for American prisoners of war in the Philippines, asked the committee to hear the group.

"Saved Bombing Of U. S."

Mrs. Bigger, whose husband was a captain with the 27th bomber group, declared that "these men saved the west coast from a bombing, and saved Australia, and it is only fair that some recognition be given them."

But most important of all, she said, is getting relief to the prisoners.

Meanwhile, the State department released the texts of its Jan. 27 protests to the Japanese government in which this nation demanded that Japan "immediately take note of the charges" and "take immediate steps to raise the treatment accorded American nationals held by Japan to the standard provided by the Geneva prisoners of war convention."

Protests Delivered To Tokyo

Assistant Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius said at a news conference that the Swiss government, through which the protests were sent, has confirmed delivery of the messages to the Tokyo government.

There were two separate protests. One cited 18 violations of international law; the other listed specific incidents of "inhumane and cruel treatment."

Relief supplies intended for American prisoners of war are piling up in Russia, stalled at the thres-

Germans Say 500 Die In Vatican Bombing

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP)—A broadcast by Transocean, German propaganda agency, said today it was estimated at Vatican City that 500 persons were killed in the bombing of the papal summer residence at Castel Gandolfo south of Rome "by Allied planes."

Up to Thursday night 400 bodies had been taken from the ruins of the completely destroyed College of Propaganda, the dispatch declared.

The enemy - controlled Paris radio declared today that 50 bodies had been recovered in the papal palace at Castel Gandolfo, apparently seeking to spread the suggestion that the palace had been bombed in the course of attacks a few miles from the Allied bridgehead south of Rome.

German Armored Forces Striking With Deadly Skill Into Northern Flank Of Allies; Nazis Boost Attacking Force

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Feb. 11.—German armored units, taking advantage of rains and clouds which robbed the British and Americans of their most potent defense, their air force, were reported striking with deadly probing skill into the northern flank of the Anzio bridgehead today.

In an action which in itself indicated the seriousness of the situation which had developed on the front below Rome, the Allied command yesterday concentrated virtually every combat plane in the Mediterranean theater, including Flying Fortresses and Liberators, into a furious defense of the beachhead front.

But by this afternoon the rains had canceled out much of this air support and a dispatch from the area by Kenneth L. Dixon,

INVADERS IN "TOUGH SPOT"

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Feb. 11 (U.P.) — American and British invasion forces are "in a tough spot" on the Anzio beachhead, fighting with their backs to the sea against an enveloping ring of six German divisions, eyewitness accounts from the front said today.

Associated Press correspondent, said the Germans took prompt advantage of the freer hand given them by the conditions.

(In Washington President Roosevelt said a very tense situation prevailed and that the Allies were praying for good weather to aid sea and air operations.)

NAZIS CLAIM GAINS

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP)—The German high command, in a broadcast communique, said today that German troops had penetrated into Carroceto (Aprilia) in the Anzio-Nettuno bridgehead 10 miles north of Anzio, capturing that village, railway station and "Mopping up of the Aprilia area was continued," the enemy asserted. The communique also said the Allies penetrated for the third time into the northern part of Cassino, 60 miles east of Anzio, but were again thrown out. It declared the Americans and British had lost more than 4,000 prisoners and 60 tanks in the Nettuno area.

prise spearhead into the German flank had become besieged, ringed by superior numbers and holding an open coastal plain with the aid of hundreds of massed guns.

These guns, trained to fire in "timed blasts" with devastating and almost instantaneous effect on given targets, were credited in correspondents' dispatches with having arrested the German attacks at least one point, but the Germans were exploiting their growing numbers and now had at least five full divisions and a brigade in line to throw into an all-out assault.

There was no confirmation here,

Full Story Is Leaking Out

Allies Failed To Exploit Success

BY DONALD C. COE
United Press War Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Feb. 11 (U.P.) — The full story of the German threat to the Fifth army beachhead below Rome and the failure of the Allied command to exploit its initial success gradually was coming to light today.

It has not been told before because operational headquarters, for some reason, still believes that the people back in the United States and Britain must be shielded from anything unpleasant.

This much can be said:

The invasion forces have lost the initiative and are on the defensive.

Failed To Break Stalemate

They have failed to break the stalemate on the main front to the south and certainly have brought the Allies no closer to the capture of Rome.

They face topnotch German pilots from other theaters, panzer strength unparalleled in the Italian campaign and all the infantry that can be spared from southern France, Germany and northern Italy.

There is no cause for optimism.

The first grudging admission from an official source of something closer to the true picture at the beachhead came from a headquarters commentator at yesterday's daily press conference.

The commentator first spoke of German counter-attacks against the beachhead. The connotation was that the Allies had been attacking and that the Germans had thrown in a counter-offensive.

Made Only One Attack

That was not true. The Allies had made only one attack, achieving small success and improving their positions.

The commentator then acknowledged, under questioning, that the Allies were on the defensive and

Seven Soldiers Die In Wreck

BURNET, Feb. 11 (AP) — Seven Camp Hood soldiers were killed and five others were injured, three seriously, when two trucks and a bus were in a collision on the Lampasas highway six miles north of here early today.

Names of the dead and injured were withheld pending notification of next of kin.

The soldiers were returning to Camp Hood from Burnet where they had presented a war bond program at the high school. The accident occurred at 1:30 a. m.

In Two Vehicles

According to the public relations officer at Camp Hood, two of the soldiers were in a light panel Army truck and 10 others were in an Army bus. The vehicles were in a collision with a heavy truck carrying oil field equipment.

Five of the soldiers in the bus were killed instantly. A sixth died in the Burnet hospital an hour after the accident. The seventh died as an Army ambulance carried the injured to Camp Hood.

The soldiers in the panel truck are now under observation at the hospital at Camp Hood, but their injuries were believed minor.

The civilian truck was traveling to Burnet while the Army vehicles were headed in the opposite direction.

Occupant of the heavy truck was Herman Freeman of Plainview, who said he was an employe of J. C. Jones, Oklahoma City oil man.

Senate Committee To Hold A&M Hearings

AUSTIN, Feb. 11 (AP)—Sen. Penrose Metcalfe of San Angelo, chairman of the Senate's education investigating committee, announced today the group would look into the "general situation" at Texas A. and M. college next week.

He said the committee would meet at College Station Monday and Tuesday, beginning a series of hearings that will move to Austin and take in matters affecting the University of Texas and the state department of education.

Asked if the committee had plans to study the recent changes in administration of the A. and M. Extension service, he said this was a possibility, but that he did not known what the committee could do about it.

The committee among other things will seek to determine whether any state money is being saved as a result of military programs both at A. and M and the University of Texas, Metcalfe said, and school census and textbook matters of the department of education will be looked into.

Ceiling Prices On Used Cars Expected

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11 (U.P.) — The Office of Price administration will reach a decision "very soon" on a proposal to place ceiling prices on used automobiles, informed officials said today.

The proposed regulation would set used car prices at January, 1944, figures for vehicles reconditioned and sold with a "satisfactory service" guarantee. If sold "as is" they would have a ceiling of 20 per cent less.

The delay in a decision was said to have been because of fear that the regulation might start a black market in used cars but precautionary steps were understood to be ready.

More Respect For Government By Law Is Urged By Governor

(Special To The Journal)

FLOYDADA, Feb. 11. — The American people must re-consecrate themselves to the Constitution and cultivate more respect for government by law rather than government by people, Gov. Coke R. Farm Problems Are Discussed

Four major problems facing the farmer today were brought out in an address this morning at a meeting of the Texas Farm Bureau federation for the Lubbock district at the Lubbock hotel by R. G. Arnold, regional director and organizer for the southern region of the national federation.

These four problems, as spoken of by Arnold, were: Machinery and supplies labor shortage; fair prices for farm products, and a reasonable floor price under all farm products.

He said the farm bureau is doing much toward relieving the situation concerning these problems, but without the wholehearted co-operation of the farmer nothing can be accomplished.

Farm Machinery Shortage

In speaking of the machinery shortage on the farm, he said that throughout the south there is a big shortage in farm machinery. It is the duty of the farm bureau to take care of this problem. The bureau has already done much to relieve this situation. Last summer presidents of 13 state federations met in Monroe, La., to discuss the shortage of machinery on the farm, attended by War Food Administrator Marvin Jones. Upon returning to Washington, D. C., Jones recommended more machinery for the farmer for 1944, and the farmer is now assured that he will get 80 per cent of the machinery he had in pre war years.

Arnold touched only lightly on the labor shortage, due to the fact there is practically no shortage of labor in this section. He said that farmers must have fair prices for their products and not a roll back in farm prices. The bureau is against any and all subsidies when used to substitute for fair prices.

Farmers Need Floor Price

In concluding his address, Arnold stated the farmer must have a reasonable floor price under all farm products.

He was introduced by W. R. Tilson of Brownfield, member of the state board of directors from this district, who presided at the meeting.

The meeting was opened with the invocation by G. H. Nelson, chairman of the Lubbock County Farm Bureau federation, following which he welcomed the farmers from surrounding counties to Lubbock.

J. Walter Hammond of Taylor county, president of the state federation, was to have been a speaker at the meeting, but due to the illness of hs wife he was unable to be present.

Scheduled to speak on the afternoon program was Judge C. C. Randle of Ellis county, chairman of the state committee on membership. A short business meeting was also scheduled.

Allies Restore Power To Badoglio Regime

NAPLES, Feb. 11 (AP) — The Allies last night restored to Marshal Pietro Badoglio's government the administrative authority over southern Italy, including Sicily and Sardinia, but on condition that all officials be of Allied sympathies and that the Allies have no commitments to the Badoglio, King Vittorio Emanuele regime after the capture of Rome.

Thus the Allies are not bound to support the present Italian administration and have taken note of Badoglio's pledge to surrender his powers to another government if Italians so desire after Rome is freed.

Earlier an Italian royal decree removed all anti-semitic and other racial restrictions imposed by the Mussolini regime in Italy and restored full civil and political rights to Jews.

Mustering-Out Pay Blanks Due Soon

Application blanks for mustering-out pay will be forwarded to Lubbock at once, according to notice received Thursday by B. C. McCasland, service officer of Allen Bros. post of the American Legion, and at Red Cross offices.

He was advised further, McCasland said, that applications for mustering-out pay must be made on these forms, and that they must be accompanied by the original discharge of the veteran.

This definite information, he added, has served to clarify the previous erroneous reports that a certified copy of the discharge would be acceptable in applying for the money.

If the blank forms are received in time, McCasland said, he will proceed with previously announced plans to assist veterans needing help in filling them out next Monday afternoon after 5 o'clock at his office in the water department on the first floor of the city hall. McCasland is assistant to the city manager. The personnel of the Red Cross office, also in the city hall, and members of the Legion auxiliary will assist.

McCasland explained, however, that the veteran can fill out his form himself if he prefers. The blanks will be available, upon arrival, both at the Red Cross and in McCasland's office. Announcements will be made when they arrive, he added.

British Withhold Okay On U. S. Pipeline

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden indicated in the House of Commons today that Great Britain has not yet approved a proposal to construct an American pipe line from the Persian gulf to the Mediterranean and agreed with inquiring members of Paraliament that the government would be profoundly concerned about any such project so deeply affecting British interests.

Members of Parliament voiced anxiety on the possibility that the United States might acquire sovereignty over territory to be occupied by the projected pipe line.

Texans Shiver In Cold Wave

(By The United Press)

A dry Texas norther lashed at Texas today, bringing freezing temperatures as far south as Austin and Navosota in Central Texas and plummeting the mercury to below 10 degrees in the Texas Panhandle where Dalhart appeared the coldest point with a reading of eight.

Earlier forecasts of rain and snow were displaced as the moisture failed to materialize and in most sections of the state the norther was uncomfortable mostly because of a biting wind which accompanied it and because the weather immediately preceding the cold wave had been so balmy.

Colder Weather Forecast

Forecasts for today and tonight, however, indicated practically all of the state would receive sub-freezing temperatures by early Saturday and that the northern half of the state would shiver in some of the coldest weather of the winter.

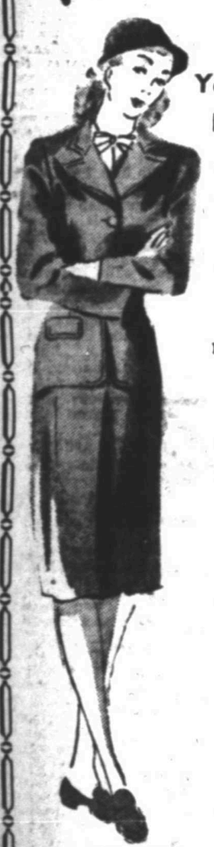

Livestock warnings were issued for the northern portion of the state.

Little damage to fruit and truck crops was expected since they had not developed enough to be affected by the freeze, but early grass sprouts and tree buds probably would be nipped.

Minimum recordings reported to the Dallas weather bureau today included Amarillo and Pampa 10, Clarendon 13, Lubbock 16, Wichita Falls and Abilene 20, Big Spring 22, Wink and Fort Worth 24, Dallas 25, San Angelo 26, Waco 27, Austin and Sulphur Springs 29, Tyler, El Paso and Navasota 30, Texarkana 33, San Antonio 34, Houston 35, Del Rio 36, Galveston 40, Corpus Christi 41, Alice 42, Laredo 47 and Brownsville 55.

Allied Position In Italy Tense

however, of the German high command's claim that Carroceto (Aprilia), 10 miles north of Anzio, already had been entered by the Nazis.

The latest information here was that the Allies still were fighting north of that place.

Nazi Resistance Cited

The failure of the bridgehead force to drive farther into the Germans' flank at the early stages of the landing was mainly due to the stubborn resistance of the Germans along the main Fifth army front at Cassino.

There the Germans had prevented the big breakthrough which could have led to a junction of the two Allied forces.

Americans, still fighting bitterly in the ruins of Cassino on the main Fifth army front, captured five more buildings. Their artillery leveled the town prison which had been turned into a Nazi fort, but the Germans still fought tooth and nail from the underground dungeons and cellars.

Countless tons of bombs smashed down on the Germans at all points ringing the bridgehead and their main operating points about Rome.

Heavy Bombers Used

As heavy bombers were diverted from long range targets to join medium and fighter-bombers in furious slaps protecting the American and British troops resisting attempts to drive them into the sea.

The bombers added the weight of their terrible explosives to the destructive blasts arched upon the enemy by Allied artillery in "time crashes"—a method of fire control by which hundreds of big guns all place shells upon a single target area in a matter of a minute or so, often erasing the target in a single blast.

Both Flying Fortresses and Liberators joined in yesterday's forays—dropping their deadly missiles on enemy troops at five key points in the highway network around the beachhead area — Albano Cisterna, Velletri, Campoleone and Cecchina.

Nazis Retain Initiative

But despite the fury of the air offensive, in which 850 sorties were flown as against 30 by the enemy, the Germans apparently retained the initiative on the ground and lashed out in many probing attacks at various points around the bridgehead.

They continued to add to their containing force and a new division, the 65th, was identified in their line, making five full divisions and a brigade called up to smash the bridgehead.

The German attacks were in the Carroceto (Aprilia) area, where heavy fighting was still in progress, and west and southwest of Cisterna where Americans battled grimly to hold them back.

The Nazis used tanks in these attacks, but not in the grand manner. It was evident that their effort was yet to come, and there were indications that the heavy aerial assault may have delayed it.

Four Towns Blasted

The heavy bombers dashed their explosives against the enemy in and around Albano, Cisterna, Velletri and Campoleone — all towns ringing the beachhead — while fighter-bombers carried out bombing sweeps in the area around Rome.

Light bombers also attacked road transport in the Albano-Genzano area beyond the northernmost tip of the beachhead Wednesday night.

The air communique said the Mediterranean air force flew approximately 850 sorties during the day, losing six planes and destroying three enemy craft. Enemy air activity over the beachhead was slight during the day, although the Germans are said to have rushed a large group of planes into the vicinity.

Activities on the Eighth army front near the Adriatic still were limited by adverse weather conditions.

Field dispatches said the first powerful enemy attacks against the beachhead had just about spent themselves, although a massing of forces indicated further heavy thrusts.

Story Of Beachhead

the so-called German counter-attacks in reality were plain, ordinary attacks.

Additional details of the extent of the German threat to the beachhead came in a dispatch from Kenneth L. Dixon, one of the correspondents representing the combined United States press at the beachhead.

"If this beachhead is held and extended," he said, "it will be only because a veteran crew of Fifth army troops is able to withstand everything Adolf Hitler can throw against them from southern France, Germany and northern Italy.

Hitler Sees Chance

"After feeding them an 18 months' diet of defeat, the fuehrer obviously thinks he has a chance to hand the punch-drunk German people a dramatic victory — and he is doing everything in his power to make that chance materialize. Whether or not, he succeeds remains to be seen.

"He has called top-notch pilots from other theaters to knock out the Allied threat to Rome. He has massed panzer strength unparalleled in this theater for an attempt to pounce on the beachhead from the north, hoping to cut off its only route to the sea.

"He has pulled all available power from northern Italy, plus some from northern France and Germany, into the lines facing the Tommies and doughboys who are manning the semi-circular front.

Nazis' Orders Apparent

"As clearly as if blared by a loudspeaker, the order of the day from Berlin to Marshal Kesselring has become apparent to all points of the front: 'knock out the beachhead. We must have a victory to lay before the German people'."

All of this may sound unduly pessimistic. But certainly there is no cause for undue optimism.

The Allied troops on the beachhead are getting food and ammunition despite the fact that the Germans are still able to, and do, shell the tiny ports of Anzio and Nettuno.

But our initial successes, just 28 miles from Rome, certainly were not exploited. Kesselring has the two roads from Rome to Cassino. He has managed to hold on to Cassino itself, a precious hold and one which the Allies are trying desperately to loose, but the Gustav line, if not holding solidly, is certainly holding enough to prevent linking up of the main 5th army front and the beachhead.

Grain Market

CHICAGO REPORT

CHICAGO, Feb. 11 (AP) — Rye prices dropped more than a cent at one time today, going to new lows since mid-January, but a mild rally late in the session cancelled part of the loss. The weakness in rye unsettled wheat and oats, although losses in the latter two grains were never large and they rallied toward the close.

Selling in rye at the outset came mainly from commission houses, but it was notable that local professional traders were unwilling to give the market much aggressive support. The grain was also weak at Minneapolis and Winnipeg. Some traders felt the disturbing war news from the Allied beachhead in Italy caused the selling.

Wheat closed ⅛ lower to ⅜ higher. May $1.70⅝, oats were unchanged to ⅛ lower, May 79, rye was down ½-⅝. May $1.28⅝-⅞, and barley was ¼-⅜ lower, May $1.21⅝.

Lubbock Man Who Said He Was Beaten And Robbed Is Fined

A 39-year-old Lubbock man who claimed he was beaten and robbed by several Mexicans he had given a ride from Clovis, N. M., to Lubbock, was fined $15 for drunkenness this morning by officers who continued an investigation into his story.

The man, who said he lived in 1300-block Fifteenth street, was found at Fourth street and Avenue K, after a Wilson & Co. employe had telephoned police that a seriously injured man was there.

Police took the man to a hospital for treatment, then jailed him.

Automobile Not Found

His automobile had not been reported found up to noon, and he claimed $70 had been taken from him.

"I want to file a complaint of attempted murder," he told Solon Lea, police recorder. Lea informed him where jurisdiction lies, in the district court, but at noon the man had not appeared there.

A 21-year-old woman who lives in Virginia was held for investigation after having been found hitchhiking rides from California.

Draft Status Investigated

A man with two aliases was arrested for investigation into his draft status. He told officers he had lived at Dallas, Tulsa and Levelland.

Two old-fashioned typewriters and a box of typewriter parts were reported to have been taken in burglaries the last two or three nights from a basement of Shelton Typewriter service, at 912 Thirteenth street.

A negro suspect was described by Slaton officials who reported theft of a black Ford pickup truck, license 183-547, there Thursday.

Supplies To POW

hold of Japan by the diplomatic red tape Tokyo has used to prevent their delivery.

This was disclosed by Senator Thomas (D-Utah) today coincident with the formation of a national federated Bataan relief organization to "obtain relief for all our armed forces who are held as Japanese prisoners of war, their release as quickly as possible, and their safe delivery home."

Dr. V. H. Spensley of Albuquerque, N. M., chosen national chairman by the 60 delegates who formed the organization to coordinate the activities of 37 smaller groups, said this includes prisoners taken at Wake, Guam and China as well as those of the Philippines.

"Insurmountable Difficulties"

Senator Thomas, chairman of a military subcommittee, recounted in a special Senate document what he termed the "insurmountable difficulties" which blocked American efforts to help military and civilian internees held by the Japanese.

His report indicated that a stockpile of prisoner-of-war supplies had been accumulating in Russia because the Japanese won't arrange for its delivery. The Soviet government, he said, is ready to move supplies to the prisoners on a continuing basis if the Japanese will accept some plan to get them moving.

A maze of diplomatic technicalities involving four countries has been put in the path of the supply trains by the Japanese.

The Swiss government is in charge of our interests in Japan, but Switzerland does not maintain diplomatic relations with the Soviet.

"Each detail of the negotiations had therefore to be dealt with through a long and complicated procedure," Thomas continued, "involving the handling of communications at Tokyo, Bern, Washington and Moscow—and in reverse direction through the same channels."

More Pacific Aid Urged

A. C. McArthur, delegate of the Maywood, Ill., American Bataan clan and vice chairman of the new national organization, said its first step would be to urge various government circles in Washington to step up aid to General Douglas MacArthur and other Pacific leaders.

If this is not done, he said, he wants the new organization to throw its weight behind a MacArthur-for-president movement.

Charles H. Adams, delegate of the St. Joseph, Mo., chapter of the sponsors of Philippine heroes, declared however that the federation should avoid all controversial issues and concentrate on its declared purpose—getting the boys back.

Spensley yesterday criticized the way in which the War and Navy departments released the details of the atrocities on Bataan, declaring its sudden publication after delay was "brutal and cruel" to the families of the victims.

situation inside old Poland, where the center and right wing of Gen. Nikolai F. Vatutin's first Ukrainian army has been reported operating in the vicinity of Rovno and Lutsk.

Many Nazis Dying

The Germans trapped in the Korsun salient were said to be dying in great numbers under the hammering of Soviet batteries raking their positions with a steady, accurate cross-fire. Adding to the hopelessness of the Germans' situation was a rapidly decreasing food supply and the destruction of their airfields, their last link with German forces outside the ring of death, Moscow dispatches said.

The Moscow war bulletin said that Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Third Ukrainian army had killed 1,300 Nazis and captured many more in its drive on Krivoi Rog yesterday. Advancing beyond Apostolovo, Malinovsky's forces were reported more than 45 miles west of captured Nikopol, where other thousands of Germans were under attack by Gen. Feodor Tolbukhin's Fourth Ukrainian army.

where he was scheduled to speak tonight.

Arriving here this morning, he was escorted about town by Capt. T. P. Collins and Lt. Harry Morckel of Company G, Texas State Guard, and met a number of Floyd county officials and friends in the chambers of Judge Chapman, his official host.

Inspiration Needed Now

At Matador the governor said the months of January and February furnish opportunities to remember the great men of this nation and to study their lives for the inspiration needed in these times. He paid special tribute to the memory of the late Lt. Paul Eubank, Naval flier, killed in action in the South Pacific a few weeks ago. Lt. Eubank formerly taught in the Matador schools and later was elected as representative to the state legislature from the Matador district.

"I knew him there (Austin)," said the governor. "I saw him under circumstances which sometimes spoil men. Paul Eubank met every test. He had the respect of every member of the legislature, and served as a credit to the people of this community." When the call to arms came, Eubank answered, Gov. Stevenson added.

Speaking of today's young men and armed service, the governor declared: "They go today as gladly and as courageously as our forefathers went in other days—as they did with Sam Houston, as they did with Lee, Johnson and other great men of the Civil war."

The chief executive asserted utmost confidence that democracy exists today in the lives of men as it did in the lives of "those great men."

Boy Scout Presides

Bobby Harp, Boy Scout, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Harp, was master-of-ceremonies for the boys. J. R. Whitworth led songs and the invocation was given by Rev. G. E. Turrentine, pastor of the First Methodist church here.

Young Harp introduced Lt. John Hamilton, former district attorney, who is serving in the Navy in Florida, who eulogized Lt. Eubank, founder of the father and son banquets.

The governor was introduced by G. E. Hamilton, pioneer Matador attorney, toastmaster for the fathers.

Music was furnished by Harry Morriss and Gene Reinhardt.

The barbecue was prepared by Henry Pipkin, Matador pioneer, and served by members of the Lions club.

The banquet was held in the First Baptist church, which also will be the scene tonight for a mother and daughter banquet, sponsored by the Matador Parent-Teacher association.

J., and Ralph T. Burgin, machinist's mate, first class, of Cincinnati, en route home on leave. They were put off at Dallas by persons holding higher than No. 4 priorities.

It was a transcontinental flight, originating at Los Angeles and bound for New York.

Student Nurses End Sit-Down Strike

COLUMBUS, Ga., Feb. 11. (AP)—Family protests on top of a grim warning that they might be certified to federal authorities as "deserters" broke a sit-down strike of 98 student nurses at the Columbus city hospital late today.

The girls, who quit work this morning in protest against working conditions and new regulations restricting their "nights out," stayed idle in their quarters past 3 p.m. deadline fixed by the hospital board, but then began to drift away in small groups until before nightfall all were back at their posts.

News Briefs

J. N. Michie, 2304 Seventeenth street, underwent minor surgery at the Lubbock General hospital and will be a patient there for several days. Mr. Michie is head of the department of mathematics at Texas Technological college.

Earl Hunt showed motion pictures of fishing trips at the informal luncheon program of the American Business club today noon at the Hilton hotel.

Morrison Supply Co., at 1949 Avenue G, informed police this afternoon a quantity of pipe had been stolen there. The report was not more specific.

Another Lubbock county farmer has made heavy contributions to grain thieves — 60,000 pounds of threshed seed, in fact—it was announced by county officials who added that complaint to a mounting list of similar reports. Lubbock, Hockley and Lynn counties, in particular, are losing grain to thieves who drive heavy trucks into fields where grain has been left pending employing of field hands and obtaining transportation to barns or markets, officials said.

State, county and municipal authorities here said this afternoon they had "heard nothing further" from Littlefield, where two negroes broke jail Thursday noon. The blacks, Sidney Brown, 30, and Charlie Cook, 20, sawed through bars and broke through a wooden door. They were charged with theft of tires, and the Lamb county grand jury had planned investigating their possible connection with burglary several weeks ago of Salem dry goods store at Sudan, said Sid Hopping, deputy sheriff. All roads were searched by Lamb county and state and district officers after the break was discovered.

Complaint Filed On Man Held In Jail

A 24-year-old man who had held since Thursday night for investigation to determine whether he would be charged with a statutory offense against one of two young Lubbock girls, today was named in a complaint alleging he had no driver's license.

State highway patrol members said parents of the girls, 15 and 14, had declined "so far" to agree to prosecuting, "because trial publicity would expose identity of the girls."

Officials said the man was named by the girls at Wichita Falls, where he allegedly had driven them in his automobile and abandoned them after taking some of their clothing on his return to Lubbock. He grew "apprehensive and turned the clothing over to a friend," officers said he admitted.

The man has a misdemeanor record, was inducted into the Army, discharged and now is classified 1-C, investigators said.

They added further efforts were being made to induce parents to sign a formal complaint against the man.

Nationalists Said Ousted

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 11 (AP) —The newspaper La Hora said today it had received a private but unconfirmed report that the recently established nationalist government of Gualberto Villarroel in Bolivia had been ousted in a counter revolution and the leaders jailed.

The newspaper's information was similar to the broadcast by the Santiago station, Radio Agricultura, last night.

(In Buenos Aires, Adolfo Costa Durels, the Bolivian ambassador to Argentina, said he had received no official informtation concerning reports of a revolution in Bolivia. There were indications that telephone communications with the Bolivian capital had been interrupted).

The Villarroel government seized power from President Enrique Penaranda in a coup d'etat last Dec. 20. It had been unable to obtain recognition of any country except Argentina, however, with governments of the American republics asserting the Villarroel leaders had outside assistance and inspiration in their coup. Some Pan-American leaders expressed belief the outside links included Argentines with a pro-Axis bias.

Cuts Of Pork Are Plentiful Now

THAT over available pork is now on the market in such plentiful quantities all of us will be able to buy it! With many of the pork cuts greatly reduced in point value, this is a grand opportunity to discover new favorites in the pork family . . . and to use the old familiar ones again and again!

Some of the bony cuts of pork that are unfamiliar to most homemakers have few or no points and make wonderful eating. Cuts that are bound to win your family's favor are tender back ribs when you prepare them as an attractive crown roast with bread stuffing . . . pork hocks, another less widely used cut, full of tender, flavorful meat which is so good cooked with navy beans . . . and salt pork hitting a new high in popularity when you dip it in cornmeal, fry it, then make good cream gravy to serve over it! And don't forget delicious back and neck bones . . . both of the finest, delicious pork meat.

Pork Steaks Good

Steaks cut from pork shoulder are excellent eating. Buy either blade bone steaks or arm steaks and prepare them with a thick creole sauce or fry them slowly and serve with good pork cream gravy which nothing quite equals! Crispily roasted pork loin with tasty cinnamon apples or savory pork shoulder roast . . . whether cushion style, picnic or boston butt . . . will allow for good leftover meat even after choice slices have been served to everyone. Leftover pork makes wonder combinations and is so camoflaged in shop suey, pork salad or pork pie that the family will think it is a meat.

Grand standbys are spareribs which become everybody's favorite when served with barbecue sauce, sauerkraut, or stuffed with good celery dressing; sizzling pork sausage patties and bacon—both so versatile they can be used for any meal . . . especially hot breakfasts; and good pork liver—the meat highest in important vitamin B—which becomes new when altered from the liver 'n onion setting and ground for liver patties or pork liver loaf!

Abundance Of Vitamins

Ham shank ends lead the way to many dishes. For instance, after serving the choice slices, use the leftovers for about four more meals for four people! Cream some with green pepper and onion and serve between hot biscuits to make a "short cake" go a long way. Ham on toasted buns with rarebit or barbecue sauce, ham added to scalloped potatoes, ham split pea soup so you can use the bone are all delicious leftover ham dishes.

Vital to our body's complicated chemistry is the aboundance of vitamins and minerals found in pork. There are the vitamin B factors, of which pork is the richest source of vitamin B1 (thiamine) so necessary for steady growth, healthy nerves and appetites. Pork also contains the precious blood and body building minerals . . . copper, iron phosphorus . . . in large amounts.

TANGERINES are easy to eat, filled with minerals and vitamins and they are fairly reasonable in price, so tuck them in the lunch boxes that go to work or school. And they are convenient to have around home for snacking.

BITS OF chocolate chips or nuts or raisins seem to go farther if they are sprinkled over the top of cake or pudding batter when it is ready for the cooking. One does not then have to "hunt" for them.

ANY LEFTOVERS baked or steamed puddings and sauce can be quickly turned into a jiffy dessert. Reheat pudding by cooking 15 minutes in tightly covered double boiler. Add sauce and heat until it is hot.

Save Those Orange And Lemon Peelings

Salvage has become a habit with Mrs. Homemaker — she throws nothing away without a little feeling of reluctance, thinking. "I suppose something could be made from this . . . "

Here is a recipe for a thrifty marmalade that is made in order to soothe these salvage conscious homemakers. Throw those orange and lemon peelings away? No indeed! Let them add a zestful note to daily rationed fare.

The juice of one lemon is all the fruit you'll need—the rest is just fruit's waste product. Six glasses of marmalade from orange and lemon peelings, juice of one lemon, sugar and a package of powdered fruit pectin! Try this new treat today!

THRIFTY MARMALADE
(Using orange and lemon skins)

3½ cups prepared fruit
2½ cups sugar
1 box powdered fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, use skins from 6 medium oranges and 2 medium lemons and cut in quarters. Lay quarters flat; shave off and discard about ½ of white part. Put yellow rinds through food chopper twice. Add 1 cup sugar, 2½ cups water, juice from 1 medium lemon, and ½ teaspoon soda (This 1 cup sugar is in addition to the 2½ cups specified above.) Bring to a boil and simmer, covered 30 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Measure sugar into dry dish and set aside until needed. Measure prepared fruit into a 3- to 4-quart kettle, filling up last cup or fraction of cup with water if necessary; place over hottest fire. Add powdered fruit pectin, mix well, and continue stirring until mixture comes to a hard boil. At once pour in sugar, stirring constantly. (To reduce foaming, ¼ teaspoon butter may be added.) Continue stirring, bring to a full rolling boil, and boil hard 2 minutes. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot marmalade at once. Makes about 6 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

The receipes given below are the result of tests made by experienced chefs in the endeavor to find welcome variety in the daily diet. They are all easy to make and can be served on almost any occasion and at any meal of the day.

A tank car of used fat will provide the glycerine needed for a year's pharmaceutical supplies for a 2,000-bed hospital.

Garbage Pail Is Main Foe Of Fats Salvage

The number one enemy of fat salvage has been cornered. It's that innocent looking, undiscriminating garbage pail under the sink. Into that too handy container goes daily dribs and drabs of kitchen fat that add up to millions of pounds which should be turned over to meat dealers to be salvaged for war and civilian needs.

The enemy is not formidable when located because the garbage pail can be defeated easily by sound kitchen strategy. Here's the system:

Install today in your kitchen, in a place just as accessible to the stove or the sink as the garbage pail, a container for all meat and fat scraps. Drop in every bit of fat, bone, skin, or trimmings from meat before cooking, all the skillet scrappings, pan drippings and bones scraped from the plates after meals. When the can is full, melt it all down at once, preferably in the oven while you are baking or roasting, or on top of the stove over a low flame.

You will be amazed at the fat you will get, fat urgently needed for war medicines and munitions, and fat for which your meat dealer will give you cash and extra ration points.

Equipping the B-25 Mitchell bomber with a 75 millimeter cannon adds 2000 pounds to the overall weight of the plane, including the weight of the gun itself and the ammunition.

FEATURING QUALITY FOODS!

Today On The Home Front —

More Use Of Food Lockers In Suburban, Rural Areas Is Due

BY MARLOW AND ZIELKE
Associated Press Staff Writers

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Food lockers, which started with an ice-box in the first World war, are coming of age in this one.

In food lockers—compartments arranged in refrigeration plants like safe-deposit boxes in a bank—families can store perishable foods like meat, poultry, eggs, butter, fruits, vegetables.

Undoubtedly they will continue to spread through suburban and rural areas. It is less likely they will find equal popularity in cities.

About 1,500,000 families now have food lockers in approximately 5,200 plants. The average cost per locker per year is $11.

Many Built During War

The War Production board and War Food administration have permitted about 1,000 plants to be built since Pearl Harbor. More are being built. More will be.

The first lockers, officials here say, were set up in Centralia, Ill. In 1917 on an humble scale: boxes in an ice house. The idea took time to spread.

The locker plants got started in the Middle-West on a solid scale in the mid-1930's. The Mid-West still leads the rest of the country.

Broad Service Available

The service includes for the farmer, either on the farm or at the plant, chilling, aging, cutting, grinding, curing, smoking, lard rendering, packaging, labeling, and quick freezing of fruits and vegetables.

The service, of course, carries a cost in addition to locker rental.

Here are some locker advantages for a rural or farm family:

Farmer Jones, who used to sell his pigs at market and then buy pork for his family from the local retail store, can take his pig to the locker plant.

There it is butchered, chilled, cut, packaged, and stored in his locker, which he visits as he needs meat for his table.

Farmer Saves Difference

Thus he saves the difference between what he would have paid for that whole pig from time to time in a retail store and what it cost him to raise the pig and have it butchered and stored.

This is the kind of plan which could greatly help farmers who never have attempted to store their own meat on their own premises. For instance: Farmers in the South.

But the idea of lockers for city dwellers seems limited in relation to the meat-growing farmer. It appears less likely that a city-dweller would try to buy half a steer or a whole pig and have it stored. Certainly he couldn't do it now because of rationing.

After the war meat packers may work out a plan for frozen boneless meat or some other method to keep consumers happy.

Allied Oil Parley Due In Washington

NEW YORK, Feb. 11. (AP) — The New York Times says negotiations with Great Britain and Russia on an agreement to develop oil resources of the Middle East will be held in Washington and that such a pact of control of 95 per cent of the known oil supply would serve as an effective weapon at the peace conference and in international trade and politics.

Saying that an understanding of the over-all scope of the plan was reported to have been reached at the Teheran and Cairo conferences, the Times said it was understood that details would be settled in a series of bilateral conferences conducted by the State department in keeping with prewar trade treaties.

The newspaper said that the British government already has officially accepted an invitation to send a delegation to Washington this month for such a conference, and added it was understood that the Russian mission is scheduled to follow the British.

Measles In Texas Short Of Epidemic

AUSTIN, Feb. 11 (AP)—Despite an incidence of measles 50 per cent above the seven year median, the disease has not yet approached the near-epidemic stage in Texas, the state health department said today.

Proper care in isolating patients was urged by Dr. George W. Cox, state health officer, as one means of preventing the spread of the disease. He emphasized the importance of consulting a doctor and proper nursing of patients to forestall such complications as pneumonia and mastoiditis that sometimes follow the disease.

The ice cream freezer was invented by Mrs. Nancy Johnson of Philadelphia, and bore patent number 3254.

Ban On Strikes Is Urged By Bricker

BY LYLE C. WILSON
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11—Gov. John W. Bricker's Lincoln day speech proposal for absolute prohibition of war time strikes aroused top interest here today among the issues discussed by the Ohioan in his pre-convention campaign for the Republican presidential nomination.

But Bricker's bid for consideration in this political hot spot proved to be a combination of bitter denunciation of the Roosevelt administration and of significantly kind words for Congress. He pegged his appeal on domestic issues, but did propose that the United States "should take her place in a cooperative organization among sovereign nations after this war."

His tactics were in contrast with those of Wendell L. Willkie, Bricker's most active opponent, who occasionally undertakes to shake Congress by the ears, losing more than a few friends thereby.

Challenges New Deal

Bricker challenged "weakness of the New Deal in handling labor relations" and said "a law should be enacted by this Congress laying down fundamental principles for the administration and adjudication of labor disputes and the prohibition of strikes in time of war." He said it was too late now to consider a national service act as proposed by Mr. Roosevelt.

Rep. Joseph W. Martin, (R., Mass.,) introducing Bricker to the Mayflower hotel audience, said: "Victory will come, because millions of honest, sincere, patriotic Jeffersonian Democrats will submerge party to the welfare of their country and because independent voters will unite with us."

The governor scheduled one more major appearance here, a national press club luncheon today. He told last night's audience that Mr. Roosevelt's policies were leading the country to socialism if not communism.

Proposes New Fiscal Program

In his prepared text, he proposed a new fiscal program linked with early post-war balancing of the budget at a rate of spending approximating $15,000,000,000 a year. Here is Bricker's substitute for what he termed Mr. Roosevelt's policy of "spend, waste, borrow and tax."

1. Simplify and stabilize the tax laws.
2. Use the tax power to raise necessary revenue and not "as an undercover method of effective social changes."
3. Limit federal taxation so that adequate revenue sources will remain to the states and local governments.
4. Adhere to fiscal and tax policies which will stimulate private enterprise and venture capital.
5. Reduce federal taxes as soon as possible after victory.

Loan Law Is Being Tested

AUSTIN, Feb. 11 (AP) — The state's small loan regulatory law underwent a test of validity in 98th district court here today.

Judge J. D. Moore reserves a ruling on the state's motion to throw out of court the attack by some 30 loan companies and permitted opposing attorneys to argue on constitutionality of the statute.

Passed at the last session of the legislature, it permits public prosecutors to enjoin persons making three or more loans in any six month period at interest in excess of 10 per cent per year. It became effective last Aug. 11.

"Unclean Hands" Alleged

Assistant attorneys general Ocie Speer and Fred B. Isely told the court it could not sustain the plaintiffs' plea for an injunction against enforcement of the law because the plaintiffs came into court with "unclean hnads."

Plaintiffs' petition, said the states' attorneys, set out that they had made usurious loans prior to the effective date of the law and that they would continue to make them were it not for the new law. Neither are they entitled to a declaratory judgment against the statute's validity, the state claimed, because the law does not interfere with legal money lending.

Allred Represents Plantiffs

Former Governor James V. Allred and Everett L. Looney, representing the plantiffs, took the position that any citizen has the right to keep an unconstitutional law from being enforced against him.

Looney pointed out that the state constitution does not prohibit making loan contracts for interest in excess of 10 per cent, that it merely declares interest above that annual rate is usurious.

Nazi Garrison Back Of Lines Wiped Out

By REYNOLDS PACKARD
Representing the Combined American Press Distributed by the Associated Press

AT THE ANZIO BEACHHEAD, Feb. 11. — Fifth army troops on this beachhead assaulted a town well within the Germans' lines Wednesday night and wiped out the entire German garrison, killing 60 Nazis, wounding scores of others and taking nine prisoners.

The raid, a swift moonlight attack during which hand grenades slaughtered most of the enemy, started at 8 p.m., and ended at 2 a.m., when the Fifth army assault forces withdrew according to plan —and without any enemy interference.

The town was occupied in a half an hour after the attack started and held against two counter-attacks which were easily repulsed before midnight. Between midnight and 2 a.m., all was calm.

The attack was commanded by six-foot-two Lt. Adna H. Underhill from Summit, N. J.

All the men participating smeared their faces and hands with soot from cooking utensils so as to be less visible in the moonlight. The attacking forces closed in on the town from two sides shooting with tommyguns and sub-machineguns and then as the Germans ran from the houses into dugouts for cover they blew up the Nazis with hand grenades if they resisted.

Texans Could Learn From English System

AUSTIN, Feb. 11. (AP) — State Police Director Homer Garrison believes Texans have a lot more to learn from England whose legal system supplied the framework for our system.

Writing in the February issue of the department of public safety News, Garrison declared:

"In the last year there were only 12 armed robberies in the city of London. There are days when we have that many hijackings in a 24-hour period in the larger Texas cities.

"I am not fond of making comparisons like this.

"There are many reasons why Britain has so much more observance of law than we do. But none of those reasons is so potent as the swift and sure process of justice which characterizes the British system of law enforcement. British people respect law because they have adequate law enforcement and business-like courts which get the job done without political interference or unnecessary delay."

Chaplin Faces Federal Charge

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 11 (AP)—Charlie Chaplin, who as the lovable little tramp comedian used to play with deft fingers of a world's heartstrings in the realm of film mimicry, faced today the stern reality of a federal indictment charging him with Mann act violation.

The 54-year-old, four-times-married comedian was accused of the additional felony of conspiracy as a federal grand jury late yesterday concluded a long inquiry into his relationships with red-haired Joan Berry, 23, Chaplin's former protege who asserts Chaplin is the father of her 4-months-old daughter.

Six Others Indicted

Six others, including several persons prominent in fashionable Beverly Hills, were indicted along with Chaplin for an asserted conspiracy to deprive Miss Berry of her constitutional rights following her arrest on a vagrancy charge Jan. 2, 1943, in Beverly Hills.

The Mann act charges against Chaplin are not connected with the alleged conspiracy. One count alleges that on Oct. 5, 1942, he transported Miss Berry from Los Angeles to New York City with intent to have her "engage in illicit sex relations with him and live with the said defendant as his mistress."

The second count is based on Miss Berry's return from New York City to Los Angeles.

Chaplin was in seclusion but his attorney, Jerry Giesler, said the comedian would surrender to the U. S. Marshal Monday.

The conspiracy allegations are that Miss Berry's arrest was plotted, that she was refused access to legal counsel and finally intimidated into leaving California.

The six named with Chaplin are Beverly Hills City Judge Charles Griffin, who, after Miss Berry pleaded guilty to vagrancy, sentenced her to 90 days in jail, suspended on condition that she leave town; Capt. W. W. White, Lt. Claude Marple and Matron Jessie Billie Reno, of the Beverly Hills police department; Robert Arden, radio commentator whose real name is Rudolph Kligler, and Thomas Wells (Tim) Durant, former film studio official and a friend of Chaplin.

A U. S. attorney's office attache said that Chaplin, if convicted on all four indictments on which he is charged, would be liable to a maximum of 23 years in prison and fines totaling $26,000.

County Cars Allowed For Certain Purposes

AUSTIN, Feb. 11 (AP)—The attorney general's department said in an opinion Dallas county has no authority to purchase automobiles for:

Transporting lunacy witnesses to save taxicab fares.

The assesor-collector for official business.

The probation officer.

The opinion, asked by County Auditor Charles A. Tosch, added cars may be purchased only for the sheriff's department and certain district attorneys.

Soldier Unreported For 2 Years Returns

HEMET, Calif., Feb. 11 (AP) — Grim details of how he spent 18 months in Philippine jungles, dodging Japanese and eating monkeys and snakes, were related today by Sgt. Cyril Grohs, who has returned home after being unreported for more than two years.

After fighing at Bataan following the destruction of Clark field where he was stationed, Grohs and several of his comrades escaped to the jungles. Blinded and near death for six months from attacks of malaria, his companions had despairingly dug a grave for him, but native medicine pulled him through.

The men survived on bananas, wild sweet potatoes, monkeys, dogs and snakes, including huge pythons. Once they came to a deserted village where the only living thing was a cat — which they killed and ate. Grohs was barefoot all the time and lost 85 pounds during the ordeal.

The sergeant said he witnessed the heroic crash of Colin Kelly and declared Lt. Col. W. E. Dyess joined the jungle refugees after escaping a Japanese prison camp. How they got out of the islands is still a secret."

Austin State Guard Members In "Draft"

AUSTIN, Feb. 11 (AP)—Recent selective service calls are leaving big gaps in the ranks of officers and men in the Fifth battalion, Texas State guard here.

Maj. Charles O. Betts, commanding officer, is up for voluntary induction. Capt. J. P. Crowe, a company commander, has received his pre-induction notice. Second Lt. Harold Eichenbaum was drafted recently and 1st Lt. Henry Moore is awaiting final notice of induction.

Sgt. Maj. Rex Shields called his draft board to ask when his number would be up.

"Today," the clerk informed him.

First Chinese Enters Through Port Houston

HOUSTON, Feb. 11 (AP) — The first Chinese to enter the United States through Port Houston, Kouangkuo Toung, 21, was en route today to Massachusetts.

Kouangkuo entered through Port Houston in accordance with new immigration regulations effected by recent repeal of the Chinese exclusion act. He will study engineering at Massachusetts institute of technology.

Bombers Hit Finnish City

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP) — A German broadcast of a Finnish communique said today that 150 planes, presumably Russian, attacked Kota, 70 miles east of Helsinki on the coast of the Gulf of Finland, for two hours last night.

It was the second heavy aerial blow within a week seeking to hasten Finland's exit from the war. The attack upon Kota, 80 miles across the Gulf of Finland from Narva, followed the 200-plane raid on Helsinki the night of Feb. 6.

Lasted Two Hours

"The attack lasted two hours," the communique said. "Only a few aircraft succeeded in dropping bombs on the town. Some damage was done to windows of buildings. According to incomplete reports eight civilians were killed and two wounded in various localities of the vicinity."

Two raiders were destroyed by anti-aircraft fire, the communique added.

Kota, one of the centers of Finland's vast saw mill industry, had been bombed several times before the Finnish-Russian front lapsed into comparative inactivity.

Mistaken $1,000 Bill Is Passed For $100

DALLAS, Feb. 11. (AP) — The story of a $1,000 bill that passed through several hands as a $100 bill was told here today by John T. Hardie, fruit dealer.

Hardie said he cashed a check for Roy Stacey, Dallas, giving Stacey a $1,000 bill instead of $100.

Stacey asked Ed Watson, also of Dallas, to change a $100 bill for him, blithely giving Watson the $1,000 bill. Watson just as blithely took the $1,000 bill, giving Stacey $100 in smaller bills.

Later in the day Watson bought a load of sweet potatoes from a farmer in Wood county for something over $100 and gave the farmer the $1,000 bill for a $100.

At checking-up time Hardie found he was shy a $1,000 bill. Hardie got busy.

Near Alba, about 100 miles from Dallas, the sweet potato farmer said "I didn't know I had a $1,000 bill in my pocket until I got three-quarters of a mile from home when I got ready to pay the man I rented a truck from. It liked to have scared me to death."

Putnam Doubts His Wife Will Be Found

SALINA, Kas., Feb. 11 (AP)—Major G. P. Putnam, husband of the late Amelia Earhart Putnam, today said there have been "absolutely no clues despite many painstaking investigations with the assistance of naval authorities" into the disappearance of the famed woman flier in 1937.

Major Putnam is now stationed at the Smoky Hill Army air field near Salina. He said he was not acquainted with Congressman Hefferman of New York, who proposed yesterday that the Army and Navy search for possible evidence that Mrs. Putnam landed in the Marshall islands on her round-the-world flight and that the Japanese had concealed her fate.

"Last word from her came from a point apparently near Howland island," said Major Putnam, long after any likelihood of her being near the Marshalls.

Test Faces Atlantic Charter In Baltics

By ROBERT STURDEVANT
Associated Press Staff Writer

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 4. (Delayed)—With Russian armies already fighting in Estonia the three little Baltic states find themselves uncertain whether to welcome Soviet troops as liberators from German oppression or as new masters bent on re-incorporating them into the giant Soviet Union.

On the question of their ultimate position in Europe may well rest the success or failure of the Atlantic Charter, setting forth that adherents "seek no aggrandizement, territorial or other" and "wish to see sovereign rights and self government restored to those who have been forcibly deprived of them."

So far Russia has said little other than to quietly insist that they are a part of her former territory which she is now liberating from the Nazis.

Part Of Czarist Russia

Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were part of czarist Russia. They became independent republics in 1920. In 1940 Soviet Russia absorbed them and incorporated them into the Soviet Union by means of plebiscites which Baltic nationalists declare was anything but democratic.

Two and a half years of Nazi occupation with resultant plunder and racial oppression have made the Germans the most hated people in the Baltic region. Nevertheless the Russians, whose administration of small countries in 1939-40 was perhaps even more thorough than the Germans, are feared by most Balts.

To understand the Baltic problem it is necessary to recall that these republics were formed on territory previously belonging to the Russian empire, as a result of Russian defeat in the first World war.

U. S. Delayed Recognition

For a while the United States withheld recognition of the new republics on the ground that it opposed dismemberment of Russia, but in 1922, after European powers recognized them, the United States did also.

In the following two decades the struggling young republics made some progress toward establishing themselves as democratic nations. They were short on leadership, because for centuries the government had been run by the landed aristocracy — Baltic barons mostly of German origin—and the rest of the population had never been trained in the processes of government.

Democracy proved a heady wine. The young Balt republics drank deeply of it and in some cases got more than they could handle. In the 1930s there was a tendency toward political unbalance, complicated by numerous party factions, with the result that strongman governments arose, particularly in Latvia and Lithuania.

Hotbeds Of Fascism

Russia considered these governments hotbeds of fascism, and charged they plotted against her.

The Balts, while acknowledging some tendency toward dictatorship, asserted that the backsliding was simply evidence of growing pains. They pointed to the fact that Estonia, before the Russian occupation, had cleaned house, revised her constitution and was well on the way toward a real democracy. They say the same processes, in an earlier stage of development, were evident also in Latvia and Lithuania.

Thus, if and when the Russians again dominate the countries, cries for Baltic independence are going to be heard around the world.

Russia offered all the Soviet republics autonomy within the U.S.S.R in a move which may well have been designed in part to soften Baltic resistance to the idea of re-incorporation.

Russia May Cite Plebiscite

As far as the Atlantic Charter is concerned, Russia can point to the 1940 plebiscite, in which something like 98 per cent of the Balts who voted were registered as favoring union with Russia.

On the other hand, Balt nationalists charge that the elections were rigged in a manner permitting citizens to vote only for Soviet-sponsored candidates to the parliaments which later voted for incorporation with Russia.

When the Russians evacuated the Baltics during the German invasion they took with them the Soviet-sponsored presidents of the three countries. They still refer to them as rightful executives and presumably plan to install them as governing heads as soon as the return drive is completed.

Sham Air Fight Set In El Paso Section

EL PASO, Feb. 11 (U.P.)—Biggs field officials announced today that a "large formation of B-24 Liberators" will fly over southwestern towns in the El Paso area today.

The planes will fly at high altitudes, it was announced, and in some sections will be "attacked" by fast fighting planes. The aircraft will be over El Paso at midmorning and in the Carlsbad, N. M., area at noon.

Texas Open Begins With Field Of 157

Sights Trained On McSpaden, Nelson

BY HAROLD V. RATLIFF
Associated Press Staff Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 11—One hundred and fifty-seven golfers—more than 60 of them professionals—started the 72-hole grind in the $5,000 Texas open today with their sights trained on those pals of the fairways—Harold (Jug) McSpaden and Lord Byron Nelson.

These two spent the fall on Nelson's farm near Denton, Texas, then took to the winter tournament trail to hog honors in the four events held thus far. McSpaden came through in three of them, one victor being in a play-off with Nelson, while Lord Byron took the other title.

Yesterday both participated in the annual pro-amateur event preceding the Texas open and Nelson shot a 69, two under par, while McSpaden had trouble on two holes to finish up with a 73. But it was a recovery shot by the latter on No. 9 that had the gallery buzzing. He landed behind some trees, and in trying to get out fell into the same trouble on the other side of the fairway, then he placed his shot through trees and underbrush without touching even a leaf.

Gafford Gets Bad Score

But the best score of yesterday was turned in by Raymond Gafford, Fort Worth professional, who felled par by four strokes with a 34-38—67. It enabled him to share in the money offered in the pro-amateur event as he combined with Dan Biggs, San Antonio amateur, for a 61. Sam Byrd, the former New York Yankees baseball player, was the heaviest winner, however. He fired a 68 and combined with Lt. E. T. Carruthers of Randolph Field and Mark Wright of San Antonio for 61's to bring him $112.50. Gafford received $56.25 and Abe Espinosa, veteran Brownsville, Texas, professional, got the same with a 61 obtained in working with Hub Friery of San Antonio.

Fifteen professionals equalled or bettered par during the day with Ray Hill of Randolph Field and Pete Cooper of Gainesville, Fla., each shooting a 68 along with Byrd. The amateurs all received handicaps.

Pampa And Amarillo Fives Clash Tonight

AMARILLO, Feb. 11—With the north half championship as the reward, the Amarillo Golden Sandies will shoot the works tonight on the Amarillo court in the showdown battle with the Pampa Harvesters.

The Sandies are perched on top of the heap with three wins in a row, two over Borger and one from Pampa. Pampa has lost to Amarillo and won one game from Borger, this Wednesday night by a 33 to 24 score. Pampa could tie Amarillo by winning Friday night and beating Borger Monday night.

The Sandies were hard pressed to beat the Harvesters in their opener Jan. 30 and it took an overtime period for Amarillo to win 22 to 19, and the Harvesters look tougher now than they did at that time.

But the Sandies also hit a new stride since that game and took the measure of the pre-season favorite, the Borger Bulldogs, 38 to 31 then on the Sandie floor plastered the same Bulldogs, 42 to 27. Playing on the home floor Friday will be a great help to Coach T. G. Hull's Sandies.

A Sandie victory would clinch the title, but even with a defeat, the Sandies could back into the championship Monday night by having the Borger Bulldogs topple the Harvesters.

The winner from the North half is scheduled to face the Lubbock Westerners, winners of the South half, next week. District champions must be decided by midnight of Feb. 19.

Sports Roundup

BY HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 — A popular off-season pastime among football coaches seems to be stripping the "T" of some of its glamor . . . Recently Cornell's Carl Snavely, who found many advantages, including "more fun for the players" in the "T" formation, said he will stick with the single wing because the man in motion can be used to better advantage in it . . . And Colgate's Andy Kerr, who startled the natives both in New York and California by his varied offense in the East-West game, explains he used that game as a sort of football laboratory . . . "It is my impression," writes Andy, "that the 'T' formation will be a very satisfactory supplementary formation to use. Personally I am not ready to adopt it in toto," . . . The next question is, what will Kerr adopt in Hamilton, N. Y. . . . He probably wishes it could be V-5 trainee Otto Graham.

LIPS SAVE CHIPS

The chips really were down in the recent St. Mary's Pre-Flight-Alameda Coast Guard basketball game when, with the score at 34-34, Bob Ulm of St. Mary's was awarded two free throws . . . Bob missed the first and Lt. (jg) Hank Luisetti, former Stanford star, strolled over . . . "Got a date tonight, pal?" he asked . . . "Yes sir," said Ulm . . . "Well, you'd better sink that beauty or you'll be laying here all night and one of the other wolves will cop your gal." . . . Bob made the shot to give St. Mary's a 35-34 decision.

ONE-MINUTE SPORTS PAGE

Utah, with a strong basketball team and no college competition, would take an invitation to the Madison Square garden tournament over the N. C. A. A. playoffs . . . Bobby Gleason, Phil Terranova's manager, has promised an answer today on whether the N. B. A. featherweight champ will accept $10,000 to defend his title against Chalky Wright in New Haven. Chalky still has a fight scheduled in Panama Feb. 27.

SERVICE DEPT.

Attention colleges: Floyd Bennett Field, N. Y., which has developed a pretty good basketball team, would like to book a few college rivals to entertain the station personnel but can't get a tumble . . . And Mitchell Field, L. I., has been able to coax only one, Williams, to visit the base . . . Tommy Martin, the British heavyweight who fought such guys as Turkey Thompson in the U. S. a few years ago, was discharged from the British merchant marine because of wounds. Recovering in a Montreal hospital, he joined the United States Marines and is now at New River, N. C. . . . Doesn't he know when he's had enough?

PIRATES CLOSE TONIGHT

GEORGETOWN, Feb. 11 (AP)—Southwestern university's Pirates will close their basketball season here tonight when they meet the Camp Swift quintet. The Pirates have won 12 and lost four games this season.

Pace-Setting Rice Owls Tangle Tonight With Resurgent T.C.U.

HOUSTON, Feb. 11. (AP) — Rice institute's cagers, setting a torrid pace in the Southwest conference scramble, tangle tonight with a resurgent Texas Christian team that almost spilled the Owls in the first clash.

Battling to retain their conference lead, the Owls assigned D. (Jug) Thomas, one of the league's finest defense players, to stop Zeke Chronister, the Frogs' ace scorer.

Thomas soundly throttled Chronister in the initial duel in Fort Worth two weeks ago. He held Chronister, one of the conference's leading scorers with 89 points — to two baskets.

Owls Won By 10 Points

The Owls won that game by 10 points but they had to stage a strong finish. The Frogs knotted the count at 23-all with 12 minutes to go. Then Thomas sent four shots zipping through the basket to take scoring honors for the night with 16 points.

Rice holds a half-game lead over Arkansas which opens a two-game stand against the University of Texas in Fayetteville tonight. Rice has won eight of nine games and Arkansas seven of eight.

LONGHORNS ARE FEARED BY PORKERS' COACH

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Feb. 11 (AP) — The Texas Longhorns, although practically out of the Southwest conference title race, are feared by Coach Gene Lambert.

The greatest fear Coach Lambert has, however, is that overconfidence may have swept his Arkansas Razorbacks, who tackle the Longhorns in the first of a two-game series tonight.

All this week Lambert has been preaching the finer point that have made the Steers rise to great heights on occasions this year. He described, particularly, the play of Bob Fannin, an elongated first-year student from Fort Worth who scored 19 points against the lanky Southern Methodist Mustangs last week.

Blacks Win Opener For Cowboy Fives

Coach Curtis Barrett's Blacks nosed out a 21 to 20 win over Coach Russell Wimberley's Whites yesterday afternoon in the opening clash of the season between the two Cowboy cage squads at the local school.

Arthur Rampy, who had been a sub center with the Blacks, blossomed out in full glory in the game and set the scoring pace of the battle by raining six field goals through the meshes for 12 of the winner's points and top scoring honors of the game.

D. F. Payne and Denny set the pace for the Whites, Payne dropping in eight points and Denny seven to account for 15 of the loser's 20 points. Wayne Cobb of the Blacks pressed them closely, and finished with six points.

James Parham and Cobb showed some excellent floorwork during the game while Jack Alderson and Payne were outstanding performers for the losers.

The two Cowboy B squads will tangle this afternoon with the two Calf Roper squads clashing Monday afternoon. The two Cowboy A squads will battle again next week in the second game of their series.

Both clubs also have games booked on the road for Monday and Tuesday of next week with the Blacks going to Cooper Monday while the Whites will invade Slaton Tuesday.

Matador, Floydada To Play For Title

MATADOR, Feb. 11—With the district title at stake, the Matador Bullfighters will invade Floydada tonight seeking to make their sensational winning streak 25 games in a row.

With Wason and Harp setting a blistering pace for the Bullfighters, the team has romped through the season to date with wins over all comers. Within the past week the team has romped through three games, and only in one of these have they been the least bit pressed.

Quitaque was the first of the three latest victims, but the Briscoe county lads put up a game battle before being beaten 22 to 18. Friday night, Paducah visited Matador for a conference game and went home on the short end of a 29 to 6 score. The Bullfighters went to Spur Monday night and turned on the heat to roll over the Bulldogs, 44 to 16.

The Bullfighters have shown a smoothly working unit all season, and to their excellent team work they contribute their sensational string of victories.

Draft Calls Hit A's And Cincinnati Reds

ALIQUIPPA, Pa., Feb. 11. (AP) —Draft calls hit the Philadelphia Athletics in the American league and the Cincinnati Reds in the National league again today when a local board reclassified a player from each in 1-A.

They were Joe Beggs, star relief hurler for the Reds, and Pete Suder, third base mainstay for the Athletics.

No indication was given as to when the men would be called for induction physicals.

He Wondered Until The Last "What Happened To Steve Hamas"
Death Ends Pathetic Career Of Boxing Figure

BY JACK CUDDY
United Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 — Old Charley Harvey, one of the most pathetically picturesque figures the fight game has known, is dead. This "great man" of another pugilistic era died broke and crippled, but still pondering the puzzle: "What happened to Steve Hamas?"

Harvey, 79 years old, died Wednesday night while on his way to Madison Square garden to witness the Tippy Larkin-Lulu Costantino fight. His best friends say Charley was lucky that he died before, and not after that bout, which was a dull, lop-sided affair.

It was purgatory for Charley to sit through a lop-sided contest in his closing years — after he came back from Germany in 1935 —after watching Max Schmeling "moider" Steve Hamas at Hamburg and knock him out in the ninth round.

Managed Many Fighters

Charley managed Tom Heeney of New Zealand in his heavyweight title tilt with Gene Tunney. He managed Seaman Tom Watson of England in his feather-weight title try against Kid Chocolate. He managed hundreds of other fighters — many of who he knew had no chance in their big-money fights.

Ancient Charley, who had made thousands of dollars in the fight game — and lost it in real estate, was positive that his beloved pugilism would resurrect him when he saw young Hamas climax his climb to the top by giving Max Schmeling a thorough beating at Philadelphia, Feb. 13, 1934. In October of that same year, Hamas won a 10-round decision over Art Lasky, menacing master of the left hook.

With confidence, Harvey accepted a return match with Schmeling at Hamburg for March 10, 1935.

What happened to Hamas between October and March, the world may never know truthfully. There were stories about his going "society" — of palling around with the upper-strata gals.

Anyway, the New York boxing writers went down the bay on a Coast Guard cutter to meet Charley and Steve when they returned on the Ile de France from their disastrous Hamburg trip. They found two men at the end of their trails — Harvey distraught and full of giggle soup; Hamas still fuzzy mentally from the beating he had taken. Hamas never fought again. Harvey never managed again. Charley, crippled by two previous automobile accidents, became merely a hanger-around until he died officially Wednesday night.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 11 (AP) —Leon G. Saunders, 60, former West coast football official and a former holder of the national fly-casting title, died yesterday.

84th Defeats Finance Quint

Two New Teams Make Debuts

The undefeated 84th Squadron basketball five of the Lubbock Army Air Field Squadron League remained in that select circle last night by romping over the Finance department cagers, 51 to 39 in the opening game of a triple header card.

Two new members to the league were introduced Thursday night, and both the newcomers were nosed out, but not until after a pair of cage thrillers that marked them as two threats in the race.

The 498th Squadron five nosed out the Second Provisional Training Squadron 38 to 36 in the second game, and the 495th Squadron had to go a wild overtime period to nose out the Fourth Provisional Training Squadron five, 32 to 31.

In the opening game, Buster Dixon set the pace in the scoring department with 20 points, the best of the night. Prior, the league leading scorer and 84th star, dropped in eight points in the first half, but retired from the game with a sprained ankle.

Reese led the Finance attack by rolling up 17 points while McNelly and White followed him with 8 points each.

In the second battle, scoring honors went to Sellers who dropped in 14 points while Volz followed him with 11 more for the winners. Lts. Crawford and McDonald tied for honors with the Second PTS with eight points each.

The finale of the card provided the real thriller with Sgt. Smith of the 495th Squadron dropping in the winning field goal in the last 10 seconds of the overtime period for the winning marker. The two teams were tied 27 to 27 in the regulation time.

Greiser of the winners set the scoring pace for the game, dropping in 16 points. Second honors went to Lt. Helms of the losers who accounted for 12 points to nose out Gouldie of the winners who finished with 10. Lt. Martin was runnerup on the losers with eight points.

Dodgers Add War Vet And Catcher, 39

NEW YORK, Feb. 11 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers have added a Casablanca veteran and a 39-year-old catcher to their roster bringing the official squad list to 30 with spring training approximately one month away.

Tommy Warren, a right-handed hurler from Tulsa, Okla., holds a medical discharge because of injuries suffered at Casablanca. The catcher is Ray Hayworth, who was released by the Brooks early last season.

What Readers Of The Evening Journal Say—
The Plainsman Gets Some Mail

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Letters from readers are welcomed at all times and on all subjects However, no letter of more than 500 words will be considered for publication, and all letters belittling, or impugning the motive of any individual, firm or corporation must include for publication, the true name of the author. PARENTAL DELINQUENCY

Dear Plainsman: I have read your column for years.

This juvenile question interests me most, as I am the mother of four small children. With only one in school, the problem hasn't yet presented itself in our home.

In the beginning let's place the blame squarely where it belongs . . on the parents. At the P-TA convention in Plainview last April, a patrolman, who was once a policeman in Dallas, said the juveniles that were the biggest problem were the ones that their mothers and fathers left home and played bridge with friends. Especially on such nights the children got into the most meanness. This was not hear-say. It was his own experience.

I once visited in the home of a relative, and it has been a good example of a model home to me ever since. After the evening meal, the children helped their mother wash dishes, and then put the house in order for a game of "rookie" that was to be played until bedtime. The parents enjoyed it as well as the youngsters. The children obeyed and respected their parents, and theirs was a happy home.

Take the Army for instance. Our young soldiers are taught to religiously respect the officers over them, and that their decision is always right. If we were as strict in the homes, there would be less juvenile delinquency. In most cases, and you know I'm right, the children tell the parents where and how "to get off."

Don't you think that if we, as fathers and mothers, should teach our children to obey and respect our judgements in all things they would, in turn, with reverence, remember we are their superior officers, not they ours!

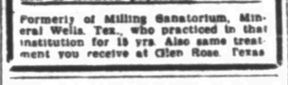

I think the biggest trouble with juvenile delinquency is parental delinquency.

Yours with concern,
A Daily Reader,
Whiteface.

That Girl on Broadway says love is blind and so is a puppy—but not for long.

* * *

Well, spring is just around the corner — which means it won't be long until we can take off our vest and be in our summer suit.

WE don't suppose there is much consternation in the ranks of papas — males being more or less inured to such things — but our information is that a great many mothers are upset over the news that there's an epidemic of itch in Junior High school.

The situation carries us back almost 25 years when, as a University of Oklahoma freshman in 1919, we went through a siege of itch along with the other 4,000, or so, students. That was the first year most of the returning soldiers picked up the threads of their war-disrupted educational careers and it seems that many of them brought the itch back from France with them.

As we recall, all the other universities in the land had the same epidemic. But whether or not, they really had one in Norman.

There was a saying in the school that "you're not a loyal Sooner if you haven't got the itch!"

At the bright age of 17, we took the itch home with us at Thanksgiving vacation time, much to the consternation of our mother.

She was horrified. To hear her talk, you'd have thought we came home with leprosy. Anyhow, she made us stay home a week over holiday time so the old family doctor could get in his licks. Whether he cured it, or whether our case was cured by a more general treatment popular at the university, we'll never know.

But for the benefit of those mothers here whose offspring may show up with the ailment, we pass on a little doctoring advice, serene in the knowledge that local physicians already have as much to do as they can get to and won't mind our chiseling in on their dodge.

INFECTED males at the University of Oklahoma in 1919 bought huge quantities of sulphur and buckets of lard.

From these two ingredients, they mixed up a horribly gooey mess. Then they stripped off, laid opened newspapers on the floor and doctored each other before bedtime, slipping on old pajamas before climbing into the hay.

We've always been sorry we never got a picture of ourself and two room-mates while engaged in itch-curing. Or, for that matter, almost any of the room-mate groups in the dear, old Phi Gamma Delta house.

Such a piece of photography certainly would be a fine souvenir.

We don't want to make any itch-fearing mamas any unhappier than they are at the moment, but we must counsel against their being too optimistic about quick cures.

The itch is hard as all get out to kill. After careful treatment, it will disappear from one affected area, only to pop up in another.

The darn stuff has a habit of getting between the fingers, thus is passed on by hand-shaking or hand-holding.

The epidemic was so bad in Norman in 1919 that the sororities advised their freshmen not to hold hands with their dates until after careful — if somewhat sly — inspection of the areas between the boys' fingers.

One thing you've got to say for the itch — it is entirely democratic. It attacks both the "count and the no-'count," and hits one and all equally hard.

At the University of Oklahoma it preyed alike on both sexes and some of the most lady-like and popular of the co-eds fell victims to it, along with the boys.

THERE is no such thing as the "Seven-Year itch." The disease got that name for one of two —or, possibly, both—reasons. They are: (1) It just seems that long before you can get rid of it; and (2) the more careless victims may take that long to get shed of it, as the boys say.

It can be cured by intensive treatment in a week or 10 days, but that cure has to be intensive. There's no skipping any applications of the medicine.

To mamas who may be doctoring their kids, let us give this word of warning:

Most salves used for itch stain. Therefore, let the kids use only old sleeping garments, sheets, pillowcases;

One very effective way to cure the disease on the legs, arms and back is to apply the ointment at morning as well as night, and let the infected youngster wear an old suit of heavy underwear to protect outer garments

Don't be embarrassed over Johnny's or Mary's catching the itch. It is not a sign of uncleanliness. It can and does victimize people who take daily baths, just as it attacks those more careless.

* * *

Hearing a "hit song" too often tends to make people wish it had missed.

That Man on Avenue Q says with some people the cost of living is always the same—just what they make.

We wonder if, after victory in this war, we can expect statues of tanks in our parks, instead of soldiers on horses?

IN this era of global warfare, air transport and changing map lines, a conversation such as this is not beyond the realm of imagination:

Waitress: Hawaii, gentlemen? You must be Hungary.

Waitress: I'll Russia table. What'll you Havre?

Customer: Anything at all, but can't Jamaica little speed?

Waitress: I don't think we can Fiji fast, but when I locate the head waitress Alaska.

Customer: Oh, never mind. Just put a Cuba sugar in this Java.

Waitress: Sweden it yourself. I'm only hired to Servia.

Customer: Denmark our bill paid, and call the Bosphorus. He'll probably Kenya. I don't Bolivia know who I am.

Waitress: No, and I don't Caribbean, either.

Boss, appearing on scene: Samoa your wisecracks, eh? What's got India? Do you think arguing Alps business?

Customer: Canada noise. Spain in the neck. Abyssinia!

Which reminds us: Week or so ago, we tried something different, offering a full column of jokes without any mention anywhere of that three letter word starting with "w" and ending with "r." A lot of people liked the idea for a change and our old friend, Maurice Golding, of Spur, dropped us a letter with his favorite story for use in the future.

That gave The Plainsman an idea. Why not have a column here some day composed of the favorite funny stories of readers?

If you have a favorite joke, jot it down and mail it to The Plainsman. If the response is sufficient, we'll have a column of reproductions soon with each joke used credited to the person who sends it in.

IT was just a little squib in the paper the other day, but the subject matter is so much to the point it deserves repeating here and everywhere.

Workers in the Fourth War Loan drive in the neighborhood of Window Rock, Ariz., discovered that the Navajo Indians, who reside in large numbers in that section, had translated "War Bond" into their own language as "naltsos indah-nee-go."

What does "naltsos-indah-nee-go" mean in Navajo?

It means exactly what it should mean to every one of us who speaks English:

"An important paper that is to be bought!"

YESTERDAY: Richard says that Tim Lathrop might have given Joan the necklace which was used to strangle her. Tim tried to see Joan the night of the murder, but she didn't want to see him.

Chapter 13

Denial

"Did you murder Joan Kent?" the Sergeant asked Joan's uncle.

Mr. Kimball turned his eyes full on the officer. He made no motion and there wasn't a sound in the room. Mrs. MacDonald bent forward as though she were going to speak, then leaned back in the chair again without saying a word.

"No," said Kimball. His voice was low, but the room was so still that it sounded like an explosion.

Mrs. MacDonald sighed. And I fumbled in my sweater pocket for my cigarette case, but Dirck, seeing me, gave me one of his and held the match. It was the first time I'd ever heard a person asked if he'd committed a murder. It left me pretty limp.

Long turned to the girl's mother. "Is there anything you can tell me that might be of some help?"

She shooked her head. Christmas, she said, was the last time she'd seen Joan. She'd been home for a few days with her friend, Tim Lathrop. Except for him she knew none of Joan's friends.

"Were you on good terms with your daughter?" The Sergeant was watching her closely.

She stared at him, her eyes bright with indignation, but her reply when it came was hesitating. "Yes," she said. "There was a little trouble at one time, but it would have nothing to do with this."

Everyone always said that. I imagined the Sergeant got very tired of hearing it.

But his voice was patient when he said, "I'd be very much obliged if you'd tell us about it, Madam."

Mrs. MacDonald began with some reluctance. "We got along very well in the past year. Before, we never actually quarreled, but Joan was headstrong and I felt that her stepfather gave her her own way too much. A little restraining doesn't harm a girl of her age. She resented what she thought was interference on my part, so she decided to live in the city. After she left home, working gave her more of a sense of responsibility, and since then we've had no difficulty. In fact, up until Christmas she was planning to come home again to live."

"What made her change her mind?" The Sergeant leaned forward tensely as if unwilling to miss even a word.

"We didn't approve of her seeing Mr. Lathrop so much. We felt that she was wasting her time on him, but she wouldn't consider breaking off with him. And of course if she were living at home he would have come to see her frequently."

"You believe, though, that she no longer held any resentment against you?"

"I'm certain of that. We got along very well."

Mrs. MacDonald seemed such a mild, lifeless sort of person that, hearing her talk, I could never imagine her making trouble for anyone. The Sergeant seemed perfectly satisfied with her explanation.

And then she asked if it were necessary for her to stay in New York. Her husband was ill and she felt that she should be with him. The Sergeant told her that she could go. Up to that time I couldn't see that she was hiding anything. But as got up to leave, her eyes as they swept the room held a look of—well, fear wasn't too strong a word.

'Guilty Look'

"May we make arrangements for the funeral?" she asked uncertainly. "Thursday, perhaps?"

The Sergeant nodded and turned away.

"Thank you," she said, and it seemed to me that she was reluctant to leave. She stopped when she reached the doorway. "May I see Joan?" Her voice had a little break in it.

The Sergeant, who was sitting at the desk now, jerked his head around. "I'm sorry, Madam. The body had to be taken to Bellevue —an autopsy, you see."

I hadn't realized that. And it was a relief to know that the room next to mine was empty now.

Mrs. MacDonald must have been shocked by it. She didn't move and there was no sign of emotion on her pale face, but when she turned to the door she stumbled blindly. Her son hurried to her side, murmured a few words, then held the door open for her. After she left he crossed the shop rapidly and went upstairs.

Dirck bent close to me. "I'm going to stick around for a while, Chris."

"I wish you would," I whispered back. "But I guess the Sergeant has changed his mind about me."

He patted my hand. "You have a guilty look," he said, then jumped briskly to his feet and spoke to Sergeant Long.

"I don't want to interfere in any way, Sergeant, but I wonder if you'd mind my doing a little sleuthing on my own." He smiled as he said sleuthing.

The Sergeant raised an eyebrow. "One of these amateurs, huh? Well, go ahead." And with a wit that I thought him incapable of, he said, "Brilliant young sleuth outwits the flat-footed detective."

He picked up his hat and coat and walked down the shop. "I've got to go now. Be here again before five. If Kincaid or Lathrop show up, Mr. Kimball, keep them in here. Norton will keep an eye on them."

Dirck signalled me to go upstairs, so I left him with Mr. Kimball.

I felt better now that he was around. So much better, in fact, that when I got upstairs and found a cablegram poked under my door I didn't even get annoyed.

And the message: HAVING A FINE TIME WISH YOU WERE HERE LOVE TOBY didn't bother me a bit.

"That for you, Mr. Maugham," I said as I threw the cable in the fireplace and put a match to it.

"Are you destroying evidence?" came a soft voice from the doorway.

I turned quickly, startled. Dirck was grinning at me.

"Yes," I said.

He stooped to pick up the envelope. I'd dropped it in the doorway.

"Chris," he said seriously, "when you destroy things, do it thoroughly. Don't taunt me with the remains. Who is cabling you?"

"An old aunt," I said.

"I'd like to believe that."

I laughed shakily and lighted a cigarette. It was demoralizing that soft blur in his voice. And suddenly Bermuda seemed very far away and Toby a strange and unfamiliar figure.

Furious At Myself

Then he crossed the room and took me by the shoulder. "See here," he said, "you aren't letting this fracas here in the house get you, by any chance?"

I shook my head.

He looked at me keenly. "You're pretty pale, you know."

For some absurd reason I felt like crying. "No, really," I falterer. "I'm all right." My voice sounded queer.

"Are you sure?" he said gently.

I was furious at myself. I felt like a child who has fallen down and hurt herself, but didn't cry until she saw her mother. All that had happened during the day crowded into my mind—waking to hear Sarah screaming; that terrible reflection of Joan Kent in her bright dressing gown; Mr. Kimball's white face as he stood in the hall; Sergeant Long's ham-

A ROSE TINGE FOR THE FUTURE

Those who fear that the post-war period will be one of extreme depression and unemployment may derive a degree of encouragement from a view that New York manufacturers are reported to share.

From coldly calculating surveys and analyses, it is said to be their conclusion that American industry will have greater opportunities in world markets than ever before.

It is their assumption that there won't be competition from German or Italian factories, for awhile at least. Both of these countries had enormous markets before the war. France and other Axis dominated nations also will be out of the competitive picture for an indefinite period. Likewise, it is anticipated that American industry can be converted to the peace-time economy more speedily than those of our Allies.

Further brightening the American outlook is the fact that many foreign people are becoming familiar with American brands and products through lend-lease and other media. Furthermore, for the most part, they seem to like American-made goods.

Thus, the considered prospect is that there will be an eager market for made-in-America goods. In the opinion of the manufacturers, it will be an opportunity, if advantage be taken of it, which can be translated into thousands upon thousands of post-war jobs.

Economist Believes Mechanization To Prove Boon To Planters

Forced Changes Are Facing Cotton Industry

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Ernie Pyle, The Journal's war correspondent, fell victim of a heavy cold on the Italian fighting front. Currently unable to work, Pyle expects to be "back in the saddle" within a week. His writings will be resumed here as soon as the correspondent recovers).

* * *

By DAVE CHEAVENS
Associated Press Staff Writer

IF the cotton industry is going to survive, it will have to bring itself up to date.

This is the considered opinion of Dr. A. B. Cox, director of the Bureau of Business Research at the University of Texas and an internationally-known authority on all phases of cotton production, processing and marketing, who believes that mechanization will save the industry.

He does not believe this revolutionary change in the method of production can be accomplished in the South without pain. Cotton always has been a product requiring much labor, particularly in getting the crop started and finally in picking.

* * *

Mechanization Considered

"Complete mechanization of cotton production will affect the economy of the South profoundly," says Dr. Cox.

"Areas adapted to machine methods will prosper; other areas may eventually be forced out of the cotton business. Substantial shifts in population will probably occur, and fewer cotton farmers will be needed.

"Through mechanization the industry can be saved with prospects of increasing markets, production, and overall employment. The trouble with the cotton industry now is that it has NOT kept pace with other industries in discovering and adopting labor-saving device.

"History shows clearly that in the long run, mechanization creates more jobs than it destroys, for it increases production. Production is a function of employment, though NOT of the kind, and often NOT in the place where the introduction of the machine displaced it."

THE way to make cotton the most attractive major crop in the nation, Dr. Cox believes, is to take some of the highly personal factor out of cultivation and harvesting and reduce the costs on those two items to about the same level as corn.

He said the United States Department of Agriculture figures that the production cost of cotton is $20.29 per acre. For wheat it is $10 per acre, and for corn it is $14.83.

Cultivation and harvesting alone of cotton costs the farmers $12.10 per acre. For wheat the figure is 90 cents; for corn $5.49.

Plains Record Cited

"If cotton growers could reduce the costs on these two items to the corn level—$5.49 —through mechanization, the cost of producing cotton would be reduced to $13.68 per acre," Cox said.

He cited a report by the Agricultural Experiment station on production costs on the High Plains of Texas as an example of what can be done. In 1934 cotton was produced at a cost of $6.41 per acre, utilizing four-row tractor-drawn equipment. Only 50 per cent of this was charged against hoeing and harvesting, and the average yield was 180 pounds of lint per acre.

COMMENTED Dr. Cox: "Obviously, the mechanization of these last two processes will make costs of cotton production in favorable areas very low. Notable advances toward mechanization of these two burdensome hand processes are being made."

He said there recently had been discovered a quick and cheap chemical process for stripping leaves from the cotton plant; that improved sleds and strippers for harvesting had been developed; new types of plants with short branches and fast-fruiting tendencies are being studied and perfected; and in ginning, advances are being made in development of defoliation and cleaning equipment.

"Bold Thinking" Needed

Dr. Cox warned against a cotton policy that would continue high-cost producing areas and prevent maximum economies brought about by mechanization in areas where it can be used best. Such policy would result in the loss of the industry through a slow, deadening process resulting from lack of markets.

Bold, constructive and comprehensive thinking and planning in both agriculture and manufacturing are demanded in finding a solution to cotton's problems.

"HIGH costs here protected by above-market price loans will keep us out of foreign markets and will pave the way for synthetic fibers to cut deeper and deeper into the domestic market, Dr. Cox warned.

"Mechanization will not come all at once for many varing factors and differing conditions over the belt will prevent that.

mering questions; the tense faces of Richard MacDonald and his mother.

I shivered and pressed my face against Dirck's shoulder, and for a moment or two I stood there with Dirck stroking my hair, until finally I pushed away from him and sat down in the nearest chair.

"I don't usually spill over like this, Mr. Kolff."

"You may cry on my shoulder any time you like," he said in a matter-of-fact voice. "How have you been lately, anyway?" He sat down in the wing chair by the fireplace.

"Fine, thank you," was the most brilliant answer I could manage. I was furious that he made me feel so self-conscious.

He looked at me, and that calm blue gaze of his seemed to penetrate every crack in my armor.

"I'm glad you called me," he said finally. "I was wondering whether you'd returned from Paris."

"I got in two weeks ago."

"Except for the pallor, and that's not unbecoming, you're looking keen."

"So are you."

Well, we kept up a bright conversation like that for about five minutes and then he looked at me and we both laughed, and Dirck drew his chair closer to mine.

"You know you scared me to death in Paris," he admitted.

"How?"

"Well, that day I took you to tea everyone that passed the table spoke to you. And Toby Maugham was supposed to be staying in Paris just because you were there. You were so damn popular I felt like the flying tail of the kite."

"Jealous?"

He shook his head. "I like my women domestic."

I laughed. "I'm no more domestic than I ever was."

"No, as usual you're stirring up the dust. This is a nice mess you've moved yourself into."

I leaned back in the chair lazily. "I'm glad you're here. The Sergeant had me intimidated this afternoon."

Dirck took out his pipe and lighted it. "I don't think he'll arrest you. There are too many others on his mind. And do you know, it's interesting down here. I've just taken a quick look over that shop of Kimball's. He's got beautiful things there, and some very rare books. It's odd to find a shop like this in such a neighborhood. I should think there'd be very little demand for such things down here."

Drafting Of Men Over 38 Not Due

WASHINGTON, Feb. 11. (AP) — Robert P. Patterson, acting secretary of war, denied today a report that the Army will raise the upper age limit for draftees from 38 to 45.

"So far as I know that's not true," he said in response to a question at a news conference.

"There are, of course, a good many men in the service above 38 and a lot of them are perfectly fit, but to take them by and large is quite a different matter."

City Plans To Buy Fire Station Sites

City Manager Marlin R. Smith, jr., was directed by members of the city commission at their semi-monthly meeting Thursday afternoon to obtain options on sites for new fire department sub-stations in the southern, southwestern and northwestern portions of the city.

The action was in accordance with a recommendation of the city planning commission and a committee of the planning group composed of Chas. A. Guy, J. H. Murdough and Smith.

Definite locations for the new sub-stations have not been suggested except that one, in a general way, should be south of the central business district, and should be built first; another should be in the far outlying southwestern residential area, and should be built next; and the third should be in the extreme northwestern part of the city, and should be built last of the three contemplated.

Others Also Adopted

Two other recommendations by the planning group were adopted by the city commission.

One was to extend an invitation to O. H. Koch, Dallas city planning engineer and author of a recently completed and proposed master plan for the future development of Lubbock, to come to this city at his earliest convenience—next week, if possible.

While the plans for his visit still are tentative, they include a talk before the luncheon club which meets on the first day he is here; a meeting that night with a group including city officials, chamber of commerce officials and others who might have an active part in the carrying out of the city plan; and, finally, a dinner meeting to which every interested citizen will have an invitation to be addressed by the engineer.

Koch Plan Re-Adopted

The third recommendation was approved when the city commission re-adopted, "in principle," the master plan drafted by Koch, and instructed the planning commission to proceed with execution of the plan.

The various recommendations were submitted to the city commission by L. Wesley Read, chairman, and K. N. Clapp and W. L. Bradshaw, members of the planning commission.

Members of the city commission rejected a proposal that the city plumbing ordinance be changed to permit the use of lighter cast iron pipe than the extra-heavy cast iron type now required. The commission was informed that the heavy pipe still is obtainable, though sometimes with difficulty. Members agreed that the time to consider a change will be when the preferred materials become unavailable.

Housing Authority Members

H. C. Pender, Dr. D. D. Cross and Chas. Whitacre were re-appointed to two-year terms on Lubbock Housing authority. Holdover members are J. Ray Dickey and Sam Rosenthal. The authority supervises the operation of the low-rent housing project in the northeastern edge of the city. Members of the city commission joined in warm praise for the work of the local authority in asking the three members whose terms had expired to continue their service.

A new appointment was that of J. F. Anthony, head of the plumbing firm bearing his name, to serve as the master plumber's representative on the city plumber's examining board. He succeeds D. P. Fox, who has been in Amarillo several months.

Bid of the Wood Preservation Division Koppers company of Texarkana to supply 50 35-foot and 10 40-foot creosoted poles for use of the city electric department at a cost of $873.20 was accepted. The bid was the lowest of three received.

Insurance policies of City and Bryant Taxicab companies and a building removal bond for L. C. Montgomery were approved, subject to the opinion of City Attorney Durwood H. Bradley.

Matters Under Advisement

Two matters were taken under advisement for further investigation.

One was the claim of Carrol Wilson, Texas Technological college student residing at 1825 Avenue F, for repairs of damages to his car, sustained Feb. 2 when it was involved in a collision with a city car driven by L. D. Newsom, street department employe, at Fifth street and Avenue K. Repairs would cost approximately $180, members of the commission were advised.

The other was the request from E. C. Kuykendall, general agent for the Fort Worth & Denver City railway, that portions of South Avenue G be transferred from a "J" to an "L" building zone. The city zoning commission declined to approve the request, the city commission was informed.

Present at the commission meeting were Mayor Carl E. Slaton and Commissioners W. B. Price, Hub Jones and J. O. Jones.

Beachhead Battle Has Moral Effect

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The fierce struggle for the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead, south of Rome, looks as though it might become one of the sensational battles of the war—and a bloody one.

It isn't great in the sense that it can be decisive, whichever side wins. It's importance lies in no small degree in its moral effect.

The enemy's violent attempt to annihilate the Anglo-American force in the big beachhead is part and parcel of the delaying, psychological war which Hitler is waging in an effort to gain time. He hopes by this to get some lucky break.

We see the same thing on a monumental scale in the Dnieper bend on the Russian front. There the Nazi all highest has long been risking half a million men in a fantastically dangerous holding operation which is more than half political. He's protecting the gateway to the Balkans to prevent a revolt among his satellites there.

Needs Spectacular Victory

So it is with the Anzio-Nettuno beachhead. Hitler needs a spectacular victory to impress wavering supporters and hand his stricken people a ray of hope. He must persuade friends and foes that Germany is still a mighty power.

The stage setting is perfect. The Allied force is almost at the gates of Rome, after a triumphant amphibious invasion which centered the eyes of the world on the scene. If the fuehrer can smash us, his propagandists can blow the feat up into a victory as high as the Alps.

Official reports say we have been holding our own. However, the position is difficult for us. The Germans, who apparently possess numerical superiority, are on high ground which overlooks the beachhead. They're flinging everything they can get hold of at our men.

Still, we have air superiority—an invaluable asset—with a naval fleet off shore is backing us up. Officialdom expresses confidence we shall win the day.

Court Of Honor Slated Tonight
