Simpson takes stand in wrongful death lawsuit

■ Telling his story to a jury for first time, O.J. Simpson answers rapid-fire questions from plaintiffs' attorney.

Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — O.J. Simpson sat in the witness chair, stared jurors in the eyes and told them Friday it was "absolutely not true" that he killed his ex-wife and her friend.

Answering rapid-fire questions from an attorney determined to prove him responsible for the bloody slayings, Simpson was intense but restrained his emotions as he was asked if he had taken gloves, a hat and a knife to Nicole Brown Simpson's condo and committed murder the night of June 12, 1994.

"That is absolutely not true," Simpson said.

Telling his story to a jury for the first time, Simpson frequently seemed exasperated. He pursed his lips, sighed heavily, breathed hard and even clenched his fists during the tense confrontation with a plaintiffs' lawyer in the wrongful death lawsuit.

"You confronted Nicole Brown Simpson and you killed her, didn't you?" attorney Daniel Petrocelli asked.

"That is absolutely not true," Simpson said.

"And you killed Ronald Goldman, didn't you?" the attorney barked.

"That is absolutely not true," Simpson said.

He was turned in the seat toward the jury box and addressed all his comments to jurors. They returned his stare.

At times it appeared that tears were welling in his eyes, but he delivered his answers in a firm, clear voice.

He continued to repeat "absolutely not true" as Petrocelli summarized the plaintiffs' case point by point: Simpson rushed back to his estate to meet a waiting limousine, he bumped into a wall, and he bled on a wire near an air conditioner at the back of his house.

"Between 9:35 p.m. and 10:55 p.m., there is not a single human being that you can identify that saw you?" the attorney asked.

Santa comes to town

Santa Claus, alias Bill Wolf, arrived at Midland Park Mall Friday night. Dillon Stroud, 3, was among the first to visit with him. Children can see Santa until Dec. 24.

Air bag safety

WASHINGTON — Motorists who don't want air bags may soon be able to disconnect them under federal rule changes that also clear the way for bags that inflate less forcefully. Consumers also will soon see five brightly colored and strongly worded warning labels about air bags in new cars — both on the visors and dash. Air bags deploy at up to 200 mph in the blink of an eye, and have been blamed for the deaths of 31 children and 20 adults — mostly smaller women — in low-speed crashes they otherwise would have survived.

Seeing green

ARCATA, Calif. — Once called the "White City by the Bay" for its tidy rows of gleaming Victorian homes and shops, Arcata is turning Green. This former lumber town has become the first U.S. community to give the pro-environment Green Party control of City Hall. "It's almost unthinkable that such a thing happened. But it did," said Robin Arkley, a 50-year resident and retired sawmill owner.

HOPING FOR A MIRACLE

Lana Hines, executive director of Habitat for Humanity, announces on Friday the gift of $125,000 from the Abell-Hanger Foundation for Miracle on Jackson Street — a project to build six new homes.

'Many say it will take a miracle to build six homes in one week. We at Habitat are confident miracles do happen. We see it in our work everyday.'

— Lana Hines, executive director for Midland Habitat for Humanity

Group receives $125,000 challenge grant toward Jackson Street project

Contingent on matching a $125,000 challenge grant by next September, Midland Habitat for Humanity plans to build six houses in the 400 block of South Jackson Street in one week.

The challenge grant from the Abell-Hanger Foundation and construction plans — promoted as a "blitz build" — were announced Friday at the site of the future homes.

"Many say it will take a miracle to build six homes in one week. We at Habitat are confident miracles do happen. We see it in our work everyday," said Lana Hines, executive director for Midland Habitat for Humanity.

In order to build the houses, Habitat for Humanity must raise the same amount of the grant in full. "That really does inspire others to get involved," said Arlen Edgar, president of the Abell-Hanger Foundation.

In fact, the challenge already has inspired the Junior League of Midland to pledge $30,000 — enough to build one house.

Iris Hall, president of the Habitat for Humanity executive board, expressed confidence that the full amount challenged will be raised.

A fund-raiser kick-off will be marked by a showing of "Miracle on 34th Street"

Civilian women file harassment lawsuit against Fort Bliss post

EL PASO (AP) — Esther Soto chokes with emotion and her hands twist as she recalls the torment she says Fort Bliss supervisors inflicted on her.

She struggles to find words to describe the hatred she feels after years during which she said she was slandered and demeaned by male bosses at a post personnel office, and then was laughed at when she complained.

"I'm just too frustrated," said Soto, an employee at the post since 1982. "I cry all the time. Sometimes I can't do anything all day because of the anger, the hurt."

'I cry all the time. Sometimes I can't do anything all day because of the anger, the hurt.'

— Esther Soto, lead plaintiff in class-action lawsuit

Now she wants someone to pay.

On Friday, Mrs. Soto became the lead plaintiff in a $3.9 million federal class-action lawsuit that alleges women civilian employees have been sexually harassed, discriminated against and passed over for promotions at Fort Bliss.

The lawsuit, filed in El Paso by 13 current and former employees against Army Secretary Togo West Jr., also says military and civilian officials have intimidated and retaliated against women who complain of mistreatment.

Plaintiff Lucia Kepp, who complained of being sexually harassed, said she was dismissed as a "typical f------ woman who complains." Mrs. Soto said supervisors referred to her as "the Gestapo" because she documented the problems she encountered.

Fort Bliss officials referred questions Friday to the Department of the Army. Officials in the Army's public affairs office did not immediately return phone calls from The Associated Press seeking comment.

The lawsuit seeks $300,000 in compensatory damages for each plaintiff, appropriate promotions with back pay, restoration of lost benefits, including seniority and retirement, and an injunc-

Forecasters predict 'average' Texas winter

By Mark Babineck
Associated Press

LUBBOCK — Frigid in mid-October, balmy in mid-November.

That's Texas for you, and this quirky autumn is one of the reasons forecasters don't relish predicting the weather in the long term. Nonetheless, computer models for the next few months reveal a pretty normal Texas winter, whatever that is.

"Looking at temperature outlooks, the computer models are saying we should be a hair above normal on temperatures across much of central and southern Texas, and about average in the Panhandle and the northwest," said meteorologist Wendell Hohman of the National Weather Service office in Fort Worth.

While cautioning that the models can change as the season wears on, Hohman added the potentially good news that areas of West Texas and along the upper Rio Grande that saw little rain last winter appear in for above-normal precipitation.

He also warned that just because temperature models appear average, that doesn't necessarily account for the wild swings a blue norther can bring.

"We're pointing toward a very average winter, and that usually means a mixed bag," Hohman said. "We'll also get some rain and frozen precipitation, especially in West Texas."

Winter's icy fingers wrapping around pipes — causing flooded homes and businesses — wreak havoc in Texas every winter.

"That is going to be the focus of the insurance industry during the next few months," said Jerry Johns, president of the Austin-based Southwestern Insurance Information Service. "We want to educate people as to what they can do to prevent this from happening."

Water expands as it freezes, cracking the pipe wall around it. Water flows out when the ice melts

CHILLY DAYS AHEAD FOR MIDLAND

By Joe Gaines
Staff Writer

Prepare to bundle up and stock up on firewood and soup as an arctic cold is expected to move through Midland sometime tonight.

Temperatures will begin to drop tonight with the high on Sunday only expected to reach the mid- to upper 30s. With the cold front comes a chance for light or freezing rain tonight and Sunday.

This will be the first true cold spell of the season, said Wade Earle, a meteorologist with the National Weather Service.

Only a few days ago the area had record-high temperatures. November temperatures so far, have been considerably above normal, Earle said.

"With temperatures above normal, you know things are going to change and there will come a period of temperatures below normal," Earle said.

U.S. sends FEMA to Puerto Rico; weak structures hinder search efforts

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — A canine search team recovered one body and detected others but found no signs of life Friday in the mountain of concrete and metal left from a gas explosion that killed at least 19 people.

Rescuers wanted to enter the rubble-filled basement of the collapsed six-story building, where they expect to find bodies. But the search largely was suspended late Thursday so workers could shore up the tattered structure with a six-story scaffold of steel beams. Engineers hung from giant cranes to install the support beneath the precarious roof.

In addition to those killed, about 80 people were hurt by flying glass shards and tumbling concrete in the explosion Thursday morning, which hit as shoppers were turning out in the busy Rio Piedras district. Dozens were being treated Friday at area hospitals.

At least 10 bodies were believed trapped in the commercial building, and relatives and friends reported 30 people missing.

"The possibilities of finding life in the place are remote," Gov. Pedro Rossello said after visiting the site.

In heavy rain, including a torrential downpour that flooded many city streets, a handful of rescuers Friday afternoon searched a small area that had been a jewelry shop.

"The dogs are showing signs that there could be people beneath the rubble and so, right now, we're trying to get in as far as possible,' said civil defense agency coordinator Carlos Acevedo.

Rescuers found some body parts, "but we think it's likely they are from the same bodies we pulled out (Thursday)," he said.

One rescue team found the body of a woman, believed to be in her 40s, inside the ruins of a market next door to the larger commercial building, which contained offices and apartments. Earlier Friday, another woman died of her injuries at a local hospital.

Fear of a cave-in prevented federal investigators from entering the structure to look for evidence. The blast ripped a 50-foot-wide hole in the concrete building and turned the first four floors into a shell of mangled steel and rubble.

By nightfall Friday, police Chief Pedro Toledo said the structure was nearly secure enough to resume the search.

Despite the agonizing wait, rescuers — including some who worked in the 1995 Oklahoma City federal building bombing — said they hoped for a miracle.

"I see no reason why there could not be more people alive in there," said civil defense worker Carlos Acevedo. He said some of the debris fell in such a way as to create spaces large enough to shelter victims.

Restaurant worker Ernesto Rivera kept a vigil for his wife, Karen Pagan Perez, who worked in the building.

"I feel desperate because it's been a day and a half without knowing anything about her. But I still have faith that they will find her alive," said Rivera, 19.

WORLD IN BRIEF

■ Romania's new president confirmed

BUCHAREST, Romania — The Constitutional Court on Friday confirmed former geology professor Emil Constantinescu as Romania's new president.

Constantinescu will be sworn in Dec. 1, Romania's national day, in the Transylvanian city of Alba Iulia, where modern Romania was born on that day in 1918.

Soon afterward, he will formally appoint Bucharest mayor Victor Ciorbea as premier. Ciorbea will then appoint his Cabinet.

Constantinescu defeated President Ion Iliescu in a Nov. 17 runoff — the first time Romanians have changed their nation's leader democratically. Past heads of state died or were killed in office, or were deposed or banished.

Speaking after Friday's ceremony, Constantinescu said: "By giving me their votes, the Romanian people have given me the chance and honor to be Romania's president at the crossroad of centuries."

■ Emperor's grandson accused of smuggling

VIENNA, Austria — The grandson of Austria's last emperor could be fined $20,000 for evading customs duties on a diamond and emerald tiara, Austrian state radio reported Friday.

Karl Habsburg said in a statement that he did not intend to smuggle the tiara but mistakenly failed to register it on returning to Austria.

Habsburg, traveling with his wife, Francesca, was carrying the tiara when he arrived July 30, 1995, from Switzerland at the small border airport at Hohenems.

If found guilty of smuggling, Habsburg could be fined up to about $20,000 — and lose the tiara, Austrian radio said. Its value wasn't specified.

The tiara reportedly is owned by a Swiss foundation belonging to his wife's family. According to the radio, Habsburg said his wife was entitled to wear the jewels on certain occasions and had wanted to wear them while in England. They were to be returned later to Switzerland, he said.

■ Scientists track speed of thought

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — So you fancy yourself a quick thinker? Danish researchers say those flashes of inspiration can actually move at turtle speed.

The research, reported Thursday, looks at how long it takes between the time a person decides to move his right index finger and the time the movement actually happens.

The thought, they said, begins in one section of the brain and travels to another section about 2 1/2 inches away before the finger actually moves.

The process takes about 900 milliseconds — a speed of less than one-fifth of a mile per hour.

"We think this breaks new ground. It is the first documented location of a center in the brain where movements are being decided," Peter Johannsen, a research assistant in the project, told The Associated Press.

Another researcher, professor Albert Gjedde of Aarhus Kommunehospital, noted that the study involved "self-initiated movements," rather than reflexes.

"At first we see one area become active, then we see another. There may be an overlap of 50 milliseconds," Gjedde says.

The research did not attempt to look at whether people with high IQ have quicker thought speeds, Johannsen said.

Mother Teresa out of danger, doctors say

CALCUTTA, India (AP) — Nobel laureate Mother Teresa sipped soup and talked to fellow missionaries on Friday, a day after being hospitalized for the fourth time this year — this time for a recurring heart problem.

But doctors said the 86-year-old Roman Catholic nun is out of danger after awakening early with chest pains.

Nearly 150 nuns and volunteers of her order, the Missionaries of Charity, assembled at her home to pray for her recovery.

Later in the day, after receiving antibiotics, Mother Teresa was well enough to chat with some of them at her hospital bed. Chief Minister Jyoti Basu, the head of West Bengal state, who arrived with a bouquet of flowers, told reporters: "She is looking better and cheerful."

She ate a bowl of chicken soup for lunch, slept for a while, then had more soup and fruit juice in the evening.

She will remain in the hospital's intensive care unit for an undetermined time, Dr. Asim Bardhan said.

Mother Teresa was admitted to the Woodlands Nursing Home before dawn with acute left ventricular heart failure.

Her left ventricle, one of the four chambers of the heart, was not pumping blood properly, causing an irregular heartbeat, doctors said.

The 1979 Nobel Peace Prize-winner was breathing on her own but was hooked up to oxygen to make breathing easier. "Mother Teresa's condition is stable and improving and she is feeling comfortable. But her irregular pulse rate is still persisting," Bardhan said.

Police arrest 35 opponents during Miss World Contest in India

BANGALORE, India (AP) — Elephants marched in a grand procession and beauty queens preened Friday during a dress rehearsal for the Miss World beauty pageant. Squads of riot police watched over it all, wary of the increasingly vehement protests surrounding the contest.

Armed with tear gas, the police patrolled outside the Chinaswamy cricket stadium where the pageant's final event is to be held Saturday in the southern city of Bangalore. Police also arrested 35 members of a right-wing group, concerned they might try to disrupt the pageant.

Opponents who see the Miss World contest as demeaning to women appealed to spectators to boycott the event and threatened to blockade roads to the stadium.

In the weeks leading up to the pageant, a dozen groups ranging from political parties to communists have held demonstrations, blocked roads and burned effigies to protest the pageant. Some trashed a showroom of the chief sponsor and smeared coal tar and cow dung on its products. One group called for a general strike to cripple the city's public transport.

"The pageant has never faced this sort of protests," Eric Morley, chairman of the Miss World Pageant, told The Associated Press.

Organizers moved the swimsuit section of the competition out of India to try to cut down on protests.

On Friday, opponents of the pageant paraded a 10-foot nude drawing of contest organizer Amitabh Bachchan around the city.

"People who support stripping women should know what they feel when their nude cutouts are shown," said Vatal Nagraj, who led the procession. Other protesters walked along dressed as demons from Indian epics.

Nearly 10,000 policemen have been brought in to protect the 88 contestants, and nearby schools and colleges were closed Friday and Saturday as a precaution.

Last week, a student in a nearby town set himself alight and committed suicide, shouting slogans against the pageant. Other potential critics were under surveillance Friday, including a woman who threatened to immolate herself, Bangalore Police Chief Sarat Chandra Burman said.

Friday's dress rehearsal opened with a procession of elephants heralded by Indian music, evoking an atmosphere of 14th century India, an age when classical dance and music was patronized by Hindu warrior kings.

Bachchan, one of Bombay's most successful actors and the chief organizer of the event, appealed for the two sides to work out their differences. "I am open to talks with the protesters," Bachchan told a crowded news conference.

But his offer was rejected. "The last-minute talks is a gimmick to project himself as reasonable and democratic," said Raghunandan, the spokesman for the Federation of Opponents to the Miss World Contest, who uses only one name.

Police say the most serious threat comes from a previously unknown group calling itself the Indian Tigers, which claimed responsibility for four small bombings.

Defecting guerrillas carry British hostage to freedom

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Too weak to walk, a British hostage freed by defecting Khmer Rouge guerrillas was carried Friday in a hammock through the jungle toward the safety of a government army base.

Christopher Howes, 36, a mine-clearing expert from Bristol, England, and his Cambodian interpreter, Hun Hourth, survived nearly eight months of captivity and forced labor at the hands of the Khmer Rouge.

The pair was turned over Wednesday to government soldiers in the central province of Kompong Thom by renegade Khmer Rouge guerrillas seeking to defect. Government negotiators demanded the captives' release in exchange.

Army Chief of Staff Gen. Nhek Bunchhay, who has arranged the defections of thousands of guerrillas since the Khmer Rouge split into rival factions in August, said the pair was traveling through the jungle Friday to the army base in the government-controlled district of Stong.

"He is weak, thin and unable to walk, so he is being carried in a hammock," Nhek Bunchhay said. "They are now in government-controlled territory."

Regional commander Gen. Khan Savoen sent 10 soldiers to meet the hostages and the defecting guerrillas in the dense jungle scrub.

The men had been expected to arrive in Phnom Penh late Friday, but the last scheduled military flight flew into the capital without them. Their arrival was rescheduled for Saturday.

"The hostages are coming, but it is too late to come to Phnom Penh today," said Defense Minister Tea Banh. Asked if they had reached the provincial military base, Tea Banh said he had not yet been informed of their exact whereabouts.

Chhun Khaim, 30, Hun's wife, flew from her home in the western province of Battambang to the capital with her two children to meet her husband.

"I was very happy to learn that my husband was released," she said.

Archie McCarron, project director of the British-based Mines Advisory Group, expressed guarded optimism their return was imminent.

"We are very hopeful," McCarron said.

The captives were seized March 26 by about 30 Khmer Rouge guerrillas who surrounded Howes and a team of Cambodians while they were removing mines by a road about 10 miles from Angkor Wat, the 11th century temple that is Cambodia's main tourist attraction.

An estimated 6 million to 10 million land mines litter the Cambodian countryside. Foreign experts are used mostly to train Cambodian mine removers.

During their captivity, reports reached Phnom Penh that the guerrillas were using Howes to extract explosives from artillery shells to make mines for its war against the Phnom Penh government.

In 1994, Khmer Rouge guerrillas killed three young backpackers — a Briton, an Australian and a Frenchman.

WEATHER WATCH

CHILLY: Arctic front to pass through area

(From 1A)

The front, moving south, already has dropped temperatures into the teens in the upper Midwest.

Temperatures in Midland should be lowest on Sunday with a gradual warming through midweek. By Wednesday, the high is forecasted to be in the mid-50s. However, temperatures will remain below normal through Wednesday, Earle said.

The chances of rain in the area will not linger as long as the temperatures. By Sunday night, the area should begin to dry out, Earle said.

Today's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies and breezy with a high between 70 and 75. Winds will be from the west to southwest at 15 to 25 mph and gusty, according to the NWS.

Tonight's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies and colder with a 30 percent chance of light or freezing rain. The low is expected to be in the lower 30s.

Sunday's forecast calls for mostly cloudy skies and cold with a 30 percent chance of light or freezing rain. The high is expected to be in the mid- to upper 30s.

The high for Friday was 69, compared to the record high for that date of 81, set in 1966.

Friday's low was 44, compared to the record low of 22, set in 1988.

AVERAGE: Computer models forecast not too cold, not too warm Texas winter away, and the deluge can ruin a home and its contents.

Such cold weather accidents damage about 250,000 homes annually, the National Association of Independen Insurers estimates.

"The simplest and most elementary thing to do is wrap your pipes," Johns said. "It's not too early to do that now. You don't know when we're going to have an arctic front blow through."

The holidays pose a special hazard, Johns added. If a norther happens to strike while a homeowner is out of town for a few days, he might return to a "wall of water" inside.

The deep freeze of the 1989-90 holiday season caused a total of $79 million in damage and prompted 28,500 claims, State Farm spokeswoman Maria Taylor said.

Much of the damage occurred in typically warm Houston, where unprepared homeowners with exposed attic pipes came home to soggy belongings.

"That's why we're out so actively trying to educate people," Ms. Taylor said of a State Farm effort to warn Texans about winter pipes. "We don't want them to be lulled into complacency by the warm weather we usually have here."

Shutting off the water supply to a home that is going to be empty for a few days is the safest bet.

On a different front, gas companies urge customers to have their heating equipment serviced, check pilot lights and take other steps to conserve during the most demanding time of the year.

STATE

It was a cool Friday over most of Texas and more cool weather — maybe even snow — is on the way for the weekend.

A blanket of cloud covered western North Texas Friday, with morning lows in the 40s and 50s. Eastern sections heated up to the 60s under abundant sunshine.

Cloudy skies are expected today with a chance of showers and thunderstorms central and northwest. Highs will be 65 to 71. Rain and thunderstorms are likely tonight, ushering windy, colder weather over most of North Texas. Sunday, scattered to numerous showers will be in the southeast half with widely scattered morning showers elsewhere Sunday. There will be decreasing clouds Sunday night and cooler temperatures with lows in the 20s and 30s.

A cold air mass settled in over most of South Texas Friday, bringing overcast skies and cooler temperatures — from the 50s northwest to the 80s deep south.

After a cloudy start today, sunny skies will follow with warmer temperatures. Some isolated showers are possible. Temperatures will warm to mid-80s in the deep south and the 70s elsewhere.

Partly to mostly cloudy skies prevailed over eastern West Texas while sunny skies dominated the rest of the area.

NATION

Rain caused some flash flooding in the Plains on Friday, while it was mainly cloudy and cold in the East. More snow fell in parts of the Pacific Northwest, providing little respite for people recovering from an ice storm.

Crews worked to restore electricity to tens of thousands still shivering Friday through what meteorologists called the Northwest's worst ice storm in 60 years. The death toll rose to 11 in Washington and Oregon on Thursday when a utility repairman touched a downed power line.

Several people were treated for carbon-monoxide poisoning after trying to keep warm by improvising heating systems using charcoal. At least 12 weather-related fires were reported in Spokane, mostly involving overheated chimneys.

More snow fell on the region, and U.S. 195 between Spokane and Pullman was closed by accidents and icy conditions Friday morning. But by later in the day, temperatures rose above freezing in the Spokane area.

A late-autumn storm blanketed northern Utah's high mountains with new snow Friday while pelting the valleys with rain, forcing postponement of a World Cup ski event.

High pressure kept the eastern half of the nation dry, but cold air and clouds made for a raw afternoon.

Satellite pictures showed a thick layer of low clouds along the East Coast, over the Ohio Valley and the Great Plains.

A strong storm system moved out of the Southwest into the Plains, causing heavy rain to fall from Salt Lake City to Las Vegas, and into Southern California.

Areas of flash flooding were reported from Las Vegas to Moapa, Nev. This area has seen between three-quarters of an inch and 1.25 inches of rain within 12 hours.

Shallow arctic air pushed against the mountains of western Montana, northern Wyoming, and into the Nebraska panhandle.

Warm, moist air began to push over the top of this air mass, resulting in freezing rain and light snow.

The high temperature for the Lower 48 Friday afternoon was 84 at Miami Beach, while the low was 14 below at Lewiston, Mont.

at Hollywood Theatres on Loop 250 at 7 p.m. Dec. 12. All of each $5 ticket will benefit Habitat.

The famous movie ties in with project name: Miracle on Jackson Street.

Although the specific week hasn't been determined, Habitat officials anticipate the homes to be constructed in late September or early October of next year.

The houses, at an average cost of $30,000, will be about 1,200-square- feet with two or three bedrooms and one bathroom.

The six houses will be constructed on the same block where five other Habitat homes already exist.

Since Midland Habitat for Humanity was created in 1991, eight homes have been constructed and four more are scheduled to go up after the beginning of the new year.

Midland Habitat is a local affiliate of Habitat for Humanity International, a non-profit, ecumenical Christian builder of affordable houses.

The organization builds houses and provides interest-free loans to families that might not otherwise be able to purchase a home. Habitat relies on donations from individuals, churches, businesses and foundations to fund the effort; no government money is used.

A unique requirement — deemed "sweat equity" — for Habitat homeowners is that they work 350 to 500 hours on their future house and others' homes.

Other program eligibility requirements include being a Midland County resident at least three years, living in a substandard or inadequate-sized home, and having a stable employment/income history.

SIMPSON: O.J. answers rapid-fire questions

(From 1A)

"That's absolutely true," Simpson said.

His answers were consistent with what he has said in previous depositions and public statements that began on the day he was arraigned and declared himself "100 percent not guilty."

The only new twist in evidence was a phone record never before described in court that shows a call from Simpson's home to his voice mail "message manager" at 6:56 p.m. the night of the killings.

The plaintiffs claim that was when Simpson received a message from girlfriend Paula Barbieri saying she was through with him, a rejection they paint as contributing to his unstable emotions that night.

"Does that help you to remember you called and picked up a five-minute message?" asked Petrocelli, pointing to the phone record.

"No, I didn't pick up any message," Simpson said.

Petrocelli's questioning took Simpson through every moment of the day of the killings, detailing his efforts to reach Barbieri, his trip to a dance recital where his daughter performed, his encounter there with his ex-wife and her family, his exclusion from a dinner they planned afterward.

He questioned Simpson about a trip to McDonald's with house guest Brian "Kato" Kaelin, then made the series of accusations about what happened during the missing 80 minutes after he arrived home and the time he was picked up by a limousine driver for a trip to the airport.

Petrocelli wound up the first day of his inquiry by accusing Simpson of dripping blood in his driveway and in his Bronco, and Simpson answered once again, "That's absolutely untrue."

At one point during the afternoon session, there was a flash of Simpson's humor, which had not come through during the grim exchanges with his relentless inquisitor.

When asking about the McDonald's run, Petrocelli wanted to know if Simpson asked Kaelin where he wanted to go for hamburgers.

"No," Simpson answered. "I didn't have a date with Kato," he said, drawing laughter from spectators.

"You think this is funny, sir?" Petrocelli said.

"No," Simpson bristled. "I don't think any of this is funny. I wish I was anywhere but here."

The dramatic exchanges ended asked, "How did she get the welt over her right eye?"

"I don't know," Simpson said.

"How many times in the course of the fight did you hit Nicole?"

"Never," Simpson said.

"How many times did you slap Nicole?"

"Never," Simpson said.

Then, in a dramatic voice, Petrocelli asked, "How many times did you beat her, sir?"

"Never," Simpson answered emphatically.

'You confronted Nicole Brown Simpson and you killed her, didn't you?' attorney Daniel Petrocelli asked.
'That is absolutely not true,' O.J. Simpson said.
'And you killed Ronald Goldman, didn't you?' the attorney barked.
'That is absolutely not true,' Simpson said.

a day of denials by Simpson, who took the stand in front of a larger-than-life image of a bruised Ms. Simpson projected on a huge screen behind his shoulder.

Simpson denied he'd battered his ex-wife and accused her of lying when she said he abused her.

"This is a woman I love today. I have always loved her," Simpson said.

Petrocelli moved quickly to the infamous New Year's 1989 fight that sent Ms. Simpson to the hospital and resulted in Simpson's no-contest plea. Going through the photos, Petrocelli asked Simpson to explain the scrapes, welts and bruises.

"You caused all these injuries, didn't you?" Petrocelli asked.

"I felt totally responsible for every injury she had," Simpson answered. But asked how she got the injuries, he said, "I don't know."

"Don't know what?" Petrocelli snapped.

"That I caused any injury," Simpson said.

Turning to specific marks on Ms. Simpson's face, Petrocelli

"I certainly didn't strike her or hit her. ... I didn't punch her or slap her. Did not happen."

Simpson even suggested that some of the marks on her face could have been caused by her habit of picking at her blemishes.

As he has in previous interviews and in his deposition, Simpson admitted to an "altercation" with his wife that night. He said he "rassled" with her, trying to push her out of his bedroom.

Yes, she may have started the argument, he said, but "I was wrong. ... I physically tried to impose my will on Nicole and I shouldn't have."

Turning to the stark photo above his shoulder, he said, "I was wrong for everything that led to this."

The lawyer asked whether Ms. Simpson had lied when she wrote in journals and told others that Simpson had hit her.

"Yes," Simpson said.

Simpson also denied that Ms. Simpson feared him during a 1993 fight in which he kicked through a back door, prompting her to call 911 and describe him as "animalistic."

Asked if she lied to the police when she told them she was frightened by her then-ex-husband, Simpson replied: "I think that was a lie. Yes."

If anyone caused trouble in their marriage, Simpson suggested, it was Ms. Simpson, who sometimes hit him, asked for their separation, lured him back for a reconciliation and made a final break with him only weeks before she was slashed to death.

Simpson's testimony in a jammed courtroom, expected to last at least three days, capped a 2 1/2-year drama that included a surreal slow-speed freeway chase and Simpson's acquittal last year on murder charges that split the nation along racial lines.

Clad in a light gray suit, Simpson sat facing members of the two families who have dogged him in an effort to prove that he killed the victims.

Fred Goldman, the moving force behind the wrongful death suit, sat at the counsel table, his eyes fixed on Simpson. Nicole's sister Denise Brown sat forward in her seat, clasping her hands.

Petrocelli accused Simpson of minimizing his domestic problems to preserve the image he prized.

"You have always been concerned with your image?" Petrocelli asked.

"I always knew people liked me," Simpson said.

At one point, Petrocelli snapped, "You are a pretty effective liar, aren't you?"

Simpson's lawyer, Robert Baker, shouted an objection and the judge ordered the comment stricken.

"You lied to cover up the beating of Nicole?" the lawyer asked.

"No," Simpson said, but he admitted that he called the 1989 incident "no big deal" when he was interviewed on a TV sports show.

"When it was necessary to lie, you lied?" Petrocelli asked.

"I minimized the situation," Simpson said.

Subdued, serious Simpson spends long day in court

By Michael Fleeman
Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif. — There were, to be sure, flashes of the old O.J. Simpson, a joke here, a winning smile there.

But that's all. Just flashes.

Simpson never had a chance to turn on the Hertz-junket Juice charm. A relentless round of early questioning about his actions the night his wife suffered cuts, scrapes and bruises during a 1989 fight took care of that.

Indeed, for most of Friday, it was an O.J. Simpson few have ever seen: nervous, somber, defensive, and, eventually, quiet and spent.

By the time he gave his "absolutely not trues" to a flurry of final questions about whether he killed his ex-wife and her friend, Simpson was on his last, bum-knee legs.

He turned to the jury. His face was drawn. He raised his voice, but the famous booming baritone of sideline reports had left him. His denials were firm, but not powerful, devoid of the indignation and exasperation that marked some of his earlier testimony.

He had, one must realize, faced a whole day of questioning by plaintiff lawyer Daniel Petrocelli, questioning that was unmerciful in its detail and demands. Petrocelli let no ambivalence go unclarified, no contradiction from a previous statement go unchallenged.

The attorney's voice was intense, and, oddly, quiet at times. His questions followed classic cross-examination form. They were nearly all leading and loaded, ending with a "true or not true?" or "yes or no?"

Simpson was given little opportunity to explain, just to agree or disagree and get ready for more.

There were, to be sure, moments when the old Simpson was back.

During the afternoon session, the topic was Brian "Kato" Kaelin and whether the house guest was ever told by Simpson where they would be going for dinner the night of the killings.

Simpson said he didn't tell him because, "I didn't have a date with Kato."

Laughter rose in the courtroom. Even some jurors laughed.

Then Petrocelli asked Simpson sharply, "You think this is funny, sir?"

Simpson returned to his somber tone and answered, "They laughed, not me" (referring to jurors).

Then he added, "No, I don't think any of this is funny. I wish I was anywhere but here."

It was a rare show of emotion from the jurors. They were mostly poker-faced, taking lots of notes, listening intently. But they, like Simpson, seemed to wilt by day's end. Any extraneous courtroom noise — a cough or a door being closed -- distracted many of them.

Throughout the day, just across the courtroom, behind the plaintiff counsel table, sat Simpson's nemesis, Fred Goldman, father of Ronald Goldman, whose slashed body was found next to Nicole Brown Simpson's slashed body.

Goldman leaned forward at times, leaned back other times, folding his arms, chin up. Often he glared at Simpson.

Ms. Simpson's sister Denise sat forward in her seat, clasping her hands and watching intensely. Next to her was her mother, Juditha, and beside them Sharon Rufo, Goldman's mother.

On the far side of the courtroom, where the defense sits, Simpson's family was represented by his sister Shirley Baker and her husband, Benny. Also in Simpson's entourage was his arthritis doctor and his bodyguard.

Outside the court, the first of 200 spectators began arriving at 4 a.m., lugging beach chairs and coffee, hoping to win a seat inside. More than three hours later, 16 lucky souls clutching raffle tickets heard their numbers called.

"O.J.'s eyes looked right at me, several times," said Aliene Kuhn, a retired Navy captain and one of the winners in the lottery for the courtroom's 16 public seats. "I looked right back and sent him all the love God has to give."

LAWSUIT: Civilian women at Army post allege harassment

(From 1A)

tion forbidding Fort Bliss-based commands from continuing any civil rights violations found by the court.

The complaints precede recent charges of sexual harassment and rape at a training base in Aberdeen, Md., that have spawned investigations at military installations nationwide, including Fort Bliss.

Plaintiffs' attorney Alejandro Soto, Esther Soto's husband, said the women only now turned to the court because they had to exhaust administrative remedies first. He said they believe they otherwise won't be heard.

"That's the only way people are going to get the message," said Alejandro Soto.

The women have complained individually in the past to supervisors, military officials and the post Equal Employment Opportunity Office.

Five women, including Mrs. Soto, who were dissatisfied with the results of ensuing investigations filed a class-action complaint May 6, then went to the media in August to complain that the Army was stalling them.

The EEO Office at the U.S. Army Training and Doctrine Command, which oversees Fort Bliss, requested that an administrative judge recommend acceptance or dismissal of the complaint.

"To our knowledge no ruling has been made yet," said Fort Bliss spokesman Capt. Tom Collins.

The post also said that Defense Department and EEO investigators had found no discrimination after reviewing previous complaints by several of the women.

Mrs. Soto said she doesn't believe the Army has taken the women seriously. She said the lawsuit will prove "we haven't been lying to them. We haven't been telling stories."

"It's a relief" to file, added another plaintiff, Dolores Gomez. "I've been trying on my own for two years now to get justice. The past months have been hell for me."

POLICE REPORTS

Drug arrest

Midland County Sheriff's Office officers arrested a Midland woman and charged her with attempting to smuggle drugs by U.S. mail in connection with a Nov. 9 incident.

Taylor

Before delivering mail to inmates at Midland County Detention Center, jail staff search it for contraband. Inside one letter they found marijuana, Lt. Ed Krevit said.

Marijuana had been placed between two taped pieces of paper, Krevit said. "If you didn't hold it up to the light, you wouldn't have seen it."

The intended receiver of the letter was probably the woman's boyfriend, Krevit said.

Mary H. Taylor is being held at Midland County Detention Center; bond has not been set.

Postal inspectors refused to file any federal charges.

Drug arrest

Two men were arrested and 10.2 pounds of marijuana were seized by Midland County Sheriff's Office officers during a traffic stop on Interstate 20 Thursday.

Lopez-Martinez

Sibley

A deputy found the marijuana hidden inside an engine compartment, Lt. Ed Krevit said.

Leslie Luis Lopez-Martinez, 20, of Fort Hancock and John Dale Sibley Jr., 40, of Dequen, Ark., were both charged with possession of marijuana.

They are being held at Midland County Detention Center; bond has not been set.

At the time of his arrest, Lopez-Martinez had been out on $5,000 bond from Alamogordo, N.M. He had been arrested and charged with possession of marijuana in New Mexico on July 12.

The vehicle also is suspected to have been used in approximately four similar incidents in the last year, Krevit said.

Additional charges may be filed by the Drug Enforcement Agency in El Paso.

Drug arrest

Approximately 100 pounds of marijuana, bound for the Midland-Odessa area, was seized and two men were arrested by the Permian Drug Task Force Friday.

Bernardo Rodriguez Diaz, 26, of Longview and Jesus Aguirre, 33, of Santa Anna, Calif., were charged with possession of marijuana. The are being held at the Jeff Davis County Jail.

The match will be rescheduled. For more information, call 685-6498.

■ Mail fraud charges

BIG SPRING — A Big Spring chiropractor has pleaded guilty to federal charges of conspiracy to commit mail fraud involving workers' compensation insurance activities after a year-long investigation that involved officials from the Texas Workers' Compensation Insurance Fund, Internal Revenue Service, FBI, Texas Rangers and Big Spring Police Department.

Dr. Bill T. Chrane pleaded guilty on Nov. 7 and is expected to be sentenced in December by U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings.

He could be sentenced up to five years in prison and receive a fine of up to $250,000.

The Workers' Compensation Insurance Fund became involved in August 1995 at the request of the FBI and IRS after an initial investigation. In January 1996, an undercover operation was conducted with a fund investigator posing as an injured worker.

Chrane's activities included billing workers' compensation insurance companies, including the fund, on days when the injured worker did not receive treatment.

Chrane also paid the injured worker a portion of the money received for the fraudulent treatment.

A Howard County grand jury will consider one incident as the result of records seized from Chrane's office during the investigation.

Rebels close in on Hutu militias, challenge U.N. numbers

GOMA, Zaire (AP) — Rebels fighting Zairian troops and Rwandan Hutu militias tried to close in Friday on their foes holed up in the rugged hills west of a deserted refugee camp.

Amid the latest maneuvers — and reports of a refugee massacre in Burundi — the international community could not decide whether to send a multinational force to help refugees in Central Africa.

Rebel commander Andre Kassesse said the zone west of Goma, on the border with Rwanda, was sealed off while his fighters moved toward enemy troops around Sake.

Hutu troops fled there from the main Mugunga refugee camp last week as Kassesse's soldiers swept west, breaking the militias' grip on hundreds of thousands of refugees in eastern Zaire. Mugunga is six miles from Goma.

Kassesse told reporters that rebels were carrying out "secret operations in Sake."

Nearby, haggard Rwandan refugees continued to stumble out of the hills above the deserted Mugunga camp and into Goma. Rebels were ferrying them to the border with Rwanda in buses and trucks.

Refugees did not report fighting in the forests and would say nothing when asked about reports by earlier returnees that Kassesse's men were separating young male refugees and leading them away.

Roughly a million Rwandan Hutu refugees lived in camps in eastern Zaire before Rwandan-backed Zairian rebels attacked the bases a month ago. The refugees had fled Rwanda after the genocidal slaughter of more than 500,000 Rwandans, most of them Tutsis, in 1994.

About half a million Rwandans have returned home from Zaire. But there is disagreement over how many refugees remain.

Kassesse who, like Rwandan officials, opposes plans for international military intervention, says most refugees are already back in Rwanda.

He accused U.N. officials of misrepresenting aerial and satellite photographs to come up with estimates that as many as 750,000 Rwandan refugees are still in the rebel-held swath of eastern Zaire.

Many of the people picked up on the photos were displaced Zairians, Kassesse said.

"There is no longer a need for an intervention force here," Kassesse said. "What do they want to do here, help those people who are fighting us?"

U.S. Maj. Gen. Edwin P. Smith, head of the advance American aid force in Rwanda, estimated there were 175,000 Rwandan refugees moving north along Lake Kivu, on the border with Rwanda. He said there were smaller concentrations elsewhere. The U.S. military has flown reconnaissance flights over the area.

In another development Friday, the U.N. refugee agency reported that nearly 300 people returning from refugee camps in eastern Zaire were massacred in a church in Burundi on Oct. 22. Christiane Berthiaume, a UNHCR spokeswoman, said the victims were believed to be Burundian Hutus.

The U.N. Security Council voted last week to send up to 12,000 troops to help get food and medicine to the refugees. The United States has promised 1,000 logistics specialists and $140 million.

But in Stuttgart, Germany, representatives from more than 35 countries could not decide Friday whether to send a multinational force.

Part of the problem was confusion over how many refugees are left.

"Planning for any multinational force depends critically on a clear picture of the situation on the ground," said Lt. Gen. Maurice Baril of Canada, which has offered to lead the force.

U.N. discloses refugee slaughter in Burundi church

Burundi has been caught in a spiral of political and ethnic violence that has killed 150,000 people since 1993.

GENEVA (AP) — The refugees had taken shelter in a Burundi church. Attackers came and ordered them to lie on the floor before stabbing and shooting to death 298 men, women and children.

The massacre, which U.N. officials disclosed Friday, happened Oct. 22 in Cibitoke, a troubled northwestern province aid officials only rarely visit. Residents provided the aid workers with the details — and requested disinfectant and to have the bodies removed.

The victims apparently were Burundian Hutus fleeing fighting around refugee camps in eastern Zaire. About 70 were wounded but survived the attack, reminiscent of the 1994 church killings in the Tutsi-Hutu slaughter in neighboring Rwanda.

The U.N. Human Rights Center said it was not precisely known who carried out the massacre but a spokesman for Burundi's Tutsi-led army called the report "propaganda" by Hutus in exile.

"This is pure fabrication," Maj. Mamert Sinarizi said Friday. "I can tell you there was no massacre."

According to the accounts, mostly based on interviews with wounded survivors, authorities and witnesses, the refugees were spending the night in the Seventh Day Adventist Church in Muramba after crossing the Rusizi River from Zaire. Muramba is about 25 miles north of Bujumbura.

Armed men allegedly in uniform entered the church, told everyone to lie down and then started killing them with guns, bayonets and grenades.

Some 258 people died right away, and 40 died later of their wounds, the center said.

Fernando del Mundo, a spokesman for the U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees, said the massacre may be related to rebel attacks on civilians that increased after a governor of the province was killed.

The Human Rights Center said the attack came after it had voiced "serious concern" with the Burundi government that returnees were being "channeled" into Cibitoke and Bubanza provinces.

Those are "areas where there is considerable confrontation between rebel forces and the government and where humanitarian workers have extremely limited access," the center said.

Burundi has been caught in a spiral of political and ethnic violence that has killed 150,000 people since 1993.

The Organization of African Unity has assigned Tanzania's former president, Julius Nyerere, to mediate the Burundi crisis. But the minority Tutsis — who run the country — accuse him of bias in favor of the majority Hutus.

Since fighting broke out between Zairian rebels and Zairian government forces last month, some 45,000 Burundians have returned to Burundi. Until then, Zaire had been home to 1.1 million predominantly Hutu Rwandan refugees as well as about 140,000 Burundian Hutu refugees.

Treasures looted during World War II on display

MOSCOW (AP) — Opening another vault of art treasures looted by the Red Army at the end of World War II, the Hermitage museum in St. Petersburg announced a sensational display of old European drawings on Friday.

Like several previous exhibitions, including one of Impressionist masterpieces in the Hermitage last year, most of the works in the new show were believed lost in the war.

"I don't know what the status of these artworks will be," said the Hermitage director, Mikhail Piotrovsky. "Our biggest sin was to hide them from the world for so long."

The exhibition, which opens Dec. 3 and will last through March 30, 1997, is sure to stir up the art world and give a new twist to bitter disputes over ownership.

The show, "Master Drawings Rediscovered: Treasures from Prewar German Collections," includes works by Paul Cezanne, Vincent Van Gogh, Francisco Goya and Eugene Delacroix.

Five of them, including a drawing by Van Gogh and a sketch by Goya, were unveiled Friday at a news conference at the Hermitage. In New York, publisher Harry F. Abrams Inc. unveiled the glossy catalog.

Paul Gottlieb, president and publisher of Abrams, vividly recalls the first time he saw the works, in the spring of 1995. Gottlieb, one of the first outsiders to learn about their existence and to see them after half a century, was escorted to a huge room at the top of the Hermitage.

Curator Tatyana Ilatovskaya began opening huge portfolios, untying the ribbons and laying out the treasures on her ancient desk.

"It was amazing," Gottlieb said in a telephone interview from New York. "I think because they'd been hidden from the light for so long. They had this air of freshness about them."

Ilatovskaya, speaking to reporters Friday, promised the exhibition would be a "discovery" to art lovers throughout the world, saying the collection pieces were hardly known to public even before the war.

"Collectors often jealously guard such pieces and rarely show them because of their fragility," she said.

Many of the 89 watercolors, drawings and gouaches in the new show come from the same collections as the paintings that caused such an uproar when the Hermitage exhibited them last year.

The 1995 show revealed that thousands of works believed destroyed in the war were intact and had instead been hidden away in Soviet cashes for half a century.

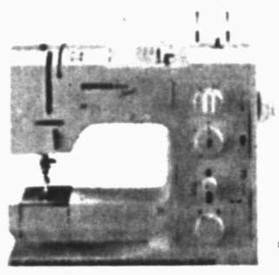

The dispute over the ownership of so-called "trophy art" has been simmering for several years.

Germany, forced after the war to return Nazi spoils, wants its national treasures back. So do other countries, many of which were looted by the Nazis and then saw their things hauled off by special Soviet trophy brigades.

New federal changes may allow air-bag disconnection

By Catherine O'Brien
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Motorists who don't want air bags soon may be able to disconnect them under federal rule changes that also clear the way for bags that inflate less forcefully.

Consumers also will soon see five brightly colored and strongly worded warning labels about air bags in new cars — both on the visors and dash.

Air bags deploy at up to 200 mph in the blink of an eye, and have been blamed for the deaths of 31 children and 20 adults — mostly smaller women — in low-speed crashes they otherwise would have survived.

Yet, air bags have saved about 1,600 lives and "are saving lives every day" in more serious accidents, said Dr. Ricardo Martinez, head of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

"Here's the bottom line: Air bags enhance safety (in a car crash) but they must be improved," Martinez said Friday in announcing five steps the agency was taking to allay growing public concern about air bags.

"There is no single solution," he said. "It's a comprehensive strategy."

The strategy also includes a required phase-in of the next generation of "smart" technology air bags by the 1999 model year.

The agency believes sophisticated air bag systems that are able to sense the position or weight of the passenger and adjust deployment to provide the best protection are the best long-term solution, and they are pushing manufacturers to develop them quickly.

But for now, the agency has ordered the brighter labels and has extended the time automakers can install cutoff switches for passenger-air bags in vehicles with no rear seat until Dec. 1, 2000.

Ford has the cutoff switch on the dashboard of its newer Ranger and F150 pickup trucks. And GM will soon install the switches in its new pickups.

The agency is proposing the other steps and will seek public comment before making a final ruling.

The red, yellow and black labels tell parents that children 12 and under can be killed by the air bag and that the safest place for children is in the back seat.

"The label (wording) is very strong — strong enough for me," said Robert Sanders of Baltimore, whose 7-year-old daughter was killed last year when the passenger-side air bag deployed in a low-speed accident.

Sanders helped form a coalition of parents whose children have been killed by air bags, and they have pushed for strong warning labels.

The labels also warn to always use seat belts and never put a rear-facing child seat in the front seat.

Most of the children killed by air bags were not wearing seat belts or were using them improperly. Nine of the children killed were infants in rear-facing infant seats.

Within a year, officials at the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration want the air bags in millions of new cars sold each year to be less explosively powerful.

Agency officials believe if air bags deploy with about 20 percent to 35 percent less power, fewer children and smaller adults will be killed by them in low-speed accidents they otherwise would have survived.

The Big Three automakers on Friday said they support the agency's proposals in general.

However, officials from General Motors, Ford and Chrysler want the government to adopt a test standard they say will allow them to begin installing less forceful air bags in six months.

National Highway Traffic Safety Administration Administrator Ricardo Martinez points to a chart containing new warning labels for vehicles with air bags during a news conference at the NHTSA in Washington Friday. Along with the labels, motorists would be able to disconnect air bags.

Investigation into plane crash gets under way

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Federal investigators arrived Friday to try to determine why a single-engine plane lost control while landing and slammed into an empty corporate jet, killing all three aboard.

Friends and fellow pilots estimated Bob Absey had taken off and landed safely at the Scottsdale Airport perhaps thousands of times.

"Right now it's a mystery what went wrong," said airport director John Kinney, who knew Absey.

Absey, 71, had flown to Casa Grande with his two sons-in-law to have dinner with friends and was returning home to Scottsdale when his four-seat Mooney airplane crashed.

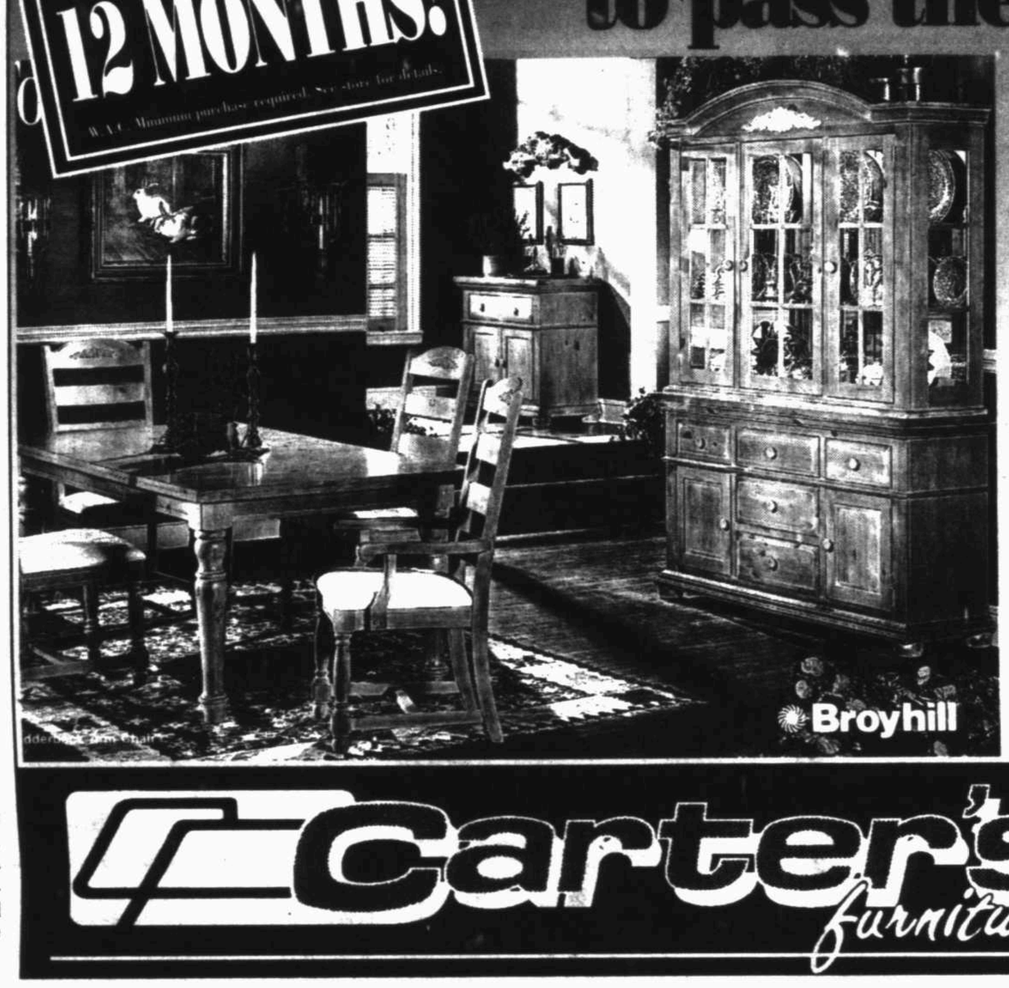

The plane made contact with the runway, then shot 10 to 15 feet into the air and veered left, Kinney said. It clipped the tail of a Cessna anchored to the tarmac and then flew another 200 feet into the side of the corporate jet parked far off the runway.

The Cessna and the jet, owned by Dallas-based Kimberly-Clark Corp., were unoccupied. Absey and his passengers, Ronald Scallan, 44, and Richard Kauffman, 50, died instantly. All were from Scottsdale.

Authorities cordoned off a 2-acre area around the crash site with yellow police tape. Investigators from the National Transportation Safety Board arrived from Los Angeles to take over the probe.

Northern California city turns Green with election of environmental party

By Martha Irvine
Associated Press

ARCATA, Calif. — Once called the White City by the Bay" for its tidy rows gleaming Victorian homes and shops, rcata is turning Green.

This former lumber town has become e first U.S. community to give the proenvironment Green Party control of City all.

"It's almost unthinkable that such a ing happened. But it did," said Robin rkley, a 50-year resident and retired awmill owner. He and his wife, Lois, identify themselves as two of the remaining conservatives in this coastal town of 16,000 nestled amid redwood forests and green pastures 300 miles north of San Francisco, not far from California's wild northern edge.

In the 1950s, the area had more than 40 lumber mills, and timber workers easily outnumbered students at Humboldt State University, the town's compact liberal arts college. But most of the mills have since closed, largely because of environmentalists' efforts to protect owls and salmon.

Nowadays, students and faculty make up more than half the population in a town now known for its funky VW vans and bicycle commuters, its big composting and recycling effort and its pot-smoking "hemp" festivals.

Over the years, Arcata pushed unsuccessfully to allow bikes on freeways. It declared itself a sanctuary for conscientious objectors to the Gulf War in 1991. And it's now battling to preserve a nearby stand of ancient redwoods from timber-industry chainsaws.

On Election Day, two Greens won office, joining incumbent Jason Kirkpatrick, 28, a food co-op employee, for a majority on the five-member City Council.

The rise of the Greens with their far-left, German-born philosophy is unsettling to some members of Arcata's old guard.

"It'd scare you to death. You've got anarchists and socialists in this town," said Nancy Barnes, a 32-year resident who is planning to move because of the outcome of the election.

Arkley said he's put up with "hippie kids" from San Francisco, Los Angeles and elsewhere. Now, he said, those kids are running things.

"You see a hippie kid outside a City Council meeting and ask, 'Where do you live, kid?' 'Arcata.' How long have you been here?' 'Three hours,'" Arkley said. He added: "You've got to have a sense of humor to live here. If you were a grim, uptight sort, you'd hate it."

The new Greens on the City Council are Jennifer Hanan, the 29-year-old manager of a store selling environmentally friendly products like wood stain with no petroleum products and "treeless" paper made from the kenaf plant; and "Bad" Bob Ornelas, 43, who runs a microbrewery.

The council chooses the mayor from among its members; a new mayor has yet to be selected.

Hanan, a Humboldt State graduate, said: "In Arcata, I have a feeling that Green is not so different. It doesn't have to be weird. We're all taking our stuff to the same recycling center."

Basketball players accused of raping drunk girl on tape

CASSOPOLIS, Mich. (AP) — The 18-year-old woman couldn't remember what happened after she went to a college Halloween party. Then other students started telling her about the videotape going around.

Investigators say five members of the Southwestern Michigan College basketball team raped the woman and videotaped themselves in the act.

The woman, also a student, had passed out after drinking at the party at an apartment house near campus, authorities said.

"She did not have any recall of what had happened," prosecutor Scott Teter said. "Other students who had seen the tape told her, 'Did you know there is a tape of you being circulated?'"

Teter said the eight-minute tape seized from one of the men clearly identifies the attackers and shows the sex acts were not consensual — the woman was drunk and "physically helpless."

"There's no part of that tape that is not graphic. It's awful," Teter said Thursday after a hearing in the case was postponed until Dec. 20.

The athletes, all freshmen, were expelled from the two-year junior college after their Nov. 7 arraignment. Authorities said the five are not cooperating with the search for a sixth man on the tape who is believed to be a friend of the athletes.

The woman didn't talk to police until Nov. 4, three days after the attack, when prosecutors say she began suffering complications from her injuries.

"We definitely are claiming it was consensual," defense attorney George Howard told the Kalamazoo Gazette. "The fact there were injuries does not mean it was a criminal act. Injuries happen sometimes during sex."

Charged with first-degree sexual misconduct, the most serious sexual assault charge in Michigan, are Donald Thomas of Chicago and Sherman Williams of Detroit, both 18.

They also were charged with aiding and abetting first-degree sexual misconduct, as were Ortez Glaze, 18, and Loren Johnson, 19, both of Chicago, and Edward Seward, 19, of Chesapeake, Va.

Glaze, Johnson and Seward were also charged with third-degree sexual misconduct.

Johnson's sister, Katie Curry, defended her brother after his arrest.

"He's here on scholarship to play ball," she said. "Why would he mess up his chance to go to college? He's never had any trouble like this before."

The college has 4,000 students, most of whom commute from home. It is in Dowagiac, a town of about 6,100 residents about 90 miles east of Chicago.

Judge gives Kaczynski attorneys almost one year

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Attorneys for Unabomber suspect Theodore Kaczynski were given nearly a year Friday to prepare for his first trial.

Prosecutors wanted a trial no later than September, but U.S. District Judge Garland Burell set the date for Nov. 12, 1997.

Defense lawyers said they needed time to review file cabinets full of evidence in what federal defender Quin Denvir called "a monster case."

Friday's hearing marked Kaczynski's first appearance in court since his June 25 arraignment, where he pleaded innocent to a 10-count indictment covering four Unabomber attacks that killed two people in Sacramento.

He also faces charges in New Jersey that include the murder of an advertising executive.

Federal authorities believe Kaczynski, 54, a Berkeley mathematics professor turned Montana recluse, used bombs in a terror campaign against the evils of technology that killed three people and injured 23 others between 1978 and 1995. He was arrested April 3 at his cabin in Lincoln, Mont.

Security was tight during the hearing, with several marshals posted in the courtroom and outside the door. Helicopters hovered above the downtown courthouse.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bob Cleary told the judge the prosecution's case would last three to four months. Denvir said later the defense case probably would take less time.

Prosecutors have said they hope to decide before January whether to seek the death penalty.

Burrell set an array of dates for motions, among them a March deadline for the defense team to file a motion to suppress evidence taken by FBI agents from Kaczynski's Montana cabin.

The defense has until June 2 to decide whether to ask to move the trial.

"We would prefer to stay where we are if Mr. Kaczynski can get a fair trial," Denvir said. "That's something we need to explore."

NAITON IN BRIEF

■ Military investigators scour crash site

SKIATOOK, Okla. — Military investigators on Friday scoured the wreckage of a fighter jet that crashed in this Tulsa suburb.

The pilot of the Arkansas Air National Guard F-16, Capt. Derrick Knight of Dallas, ejected safely before Thursday's crash, and no one on the ground was injured when the plane smashed into an empty field.

The area within half-mile of the site was evacuated Thursday out of concern for spilled chemicals and jet fuel, but all the displaced families were back in their homes on Friday, and nearby roads were all open.

Air National Guard Capt. Kim Maloy said investigators plan to search for additional debris that may have fallen outside the crash site perimeter.

■ Government recovers $786,264 for workers

WASHINGTON — Back wages totaling $786,264 were recovered for 2,208 underpaid garment workers from June through September as part of the government's campaign against sweatshops, the Labor Department said Friday.

Labor Secretary Robert Reich said the department conducted 194 investigations during the four-month period and found 118 violations of wage and hour laws. In addition to collecting the back wages, the department imposed $108,485 in civil penalties.

California received the most attention from department inspectors. Their 98 investigations uncovered 67 violations that resulted in recovery of $353,686 in back wages for 1,013 workers. Penalties totaled $98,100.

Other major enforcement actions and their results:

■ New York, 44 violations in 71 investigations, $342,382 in recovered back wages for 885 workers, $7,310 in fines.

■ Atlanta, four violations in 18 investigations, $14,239 in recovered back wages for 71 employees, $3,075 in fines.

■ Philadelphia, no violations in four investigations.

■ Dallas, three violations in three investigations, $68,342 in recovered back wages for 221 workers, no fines.

■ Mormon spokesman admits to sexual abuse

SALT LAKE CITY — A spokesman for the Mormon Church who decried the evils of sexual abuse on his nationally syndicated radio show pleaded guilty to molesting a 14-year-old girl and resigned Friday.

Lloyd Gerald Pond, 51, tearfully apologized to his victim and the church.

Authorities said Pond took the girl to a parking lot Nov. 6 behind a radio station where he worked, showed her pornography, photographed her in her underwear and coerced her to perform oral sex. The girl told a school counselor, and Pond was arrested two days later.

Pond could get up to 15 years in prison and a $10,000 fine at sentencing Feb. 3, but attorneys said he will probably be given probation and ordered to undergo therapy.

"I am responsible and I apologize for my conduct," Pond said after the court session.

Sanchez's well-timed change helped get her into Congress

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Of all the strategic decisions Loretta Sanchez made in her drive to oust Rep. Bob Dornan from Congress, the most important may have been dropping her married name, Brixey.

In an Orange County district that is now half Hispanic, and in a year that saw Hispanic turnout surge to record highs statewide, Sanchez, the daughter of Mexican immigrants, resumed using her given name just in time.

She had gone with Loretta Brixey in a failed 1994 run for Anaheim City Council. As Loretta Sanchez, the outcome was different: The 36-year-old Democrat narrowly defeated Dornan, a fire-breathing nine-term GOP conservative, in a county that was once a reliable Republican stronghold.

Sanchez won by 984 votes — 47,964 to 46,980 — when ballot counting was completed Friday.

The victory dramatized the burgeoning Hispanic presence in Orange County.

Sanchez will be the first woman and the first Hispanic to represent the district.

Sanchez said she went back to her given name because her family was well known in the sprawling district of 571,000 people.

While she shares a heritage with half of her constituents, Sanchez lives in a different socioeconomic world from many of them. The heart of the district, Santa Ana, is a patchwork of working-class and poor neighborhoods, pockets of affluence and government buildings.

Sanchez and her husband own a house in the exclusive coastal enclave of Palos Verdes Estates in Los Angeles County.

The Democrat maintains her message, not her last name, resonated with residents, and insists she in more in tune with them regardless of her wealth.

"Who better to reflect the values of this community than a person whose values were taught to her by this community?" she said.

As for being better-off than many residents in central Orange County, Sanchez said: "My husband happens to have money, you know, some money — but better-off? I think I'm in the middle-income level. And the reason I'm there is this community that invested in my education."

Sanchez and her husband also own a condominium in nearby Garden Grove near the heart of the district, and she said she lives there full time.

Nevertheless, Dornan attacked her relentlessly as a carpetbagger. He also had a field day with Sanchez's other transformations. She is a former Republican who switched in 1992 when she became disturbed by what she saw as the GOP's "extremism."

"This year she is changing her residence, her name, her party and she has dumped her Catholic teaching on abortion and homosexuality," Dornan, like his opponent a Roman Catholic, said last month. "Now that's a pretty dramatic change."

Dornan is a militant opponent of abortion and what he calls "special rights" for gays. Sanchez favors the right to an abortion and received endorsements from gays.

Sanchez, 36, and her four brothers and two sisters, were the children of immigrants from Mexicali and Nogales. She attended Anaheim public schools and graduated from Chapman University in the city of Orange with a degree in economics.

She had a taste of Washington when a Rotary Club scholarship took her to American University to earn a master's of business administration. In 1990 she married Stephen S. Brixey III, a Los Angeles securities trader. They have no children.

Siberian tiger making comeback

WASHINGTON (AP) — International outrage over a poaching bloodbath in the Russian far east and emergency save-the-tiger programs have nursed the majestic Siberian tiger from the edge of extinction to the almost viable level of around 430 animals.

That number, reported Friday in a census released by the World Wildlife Fund, represents a 72 percent increase over the 250 Siberian tigers found in the area in the last census, taken in 1985.

"I'm overjoyed," said Howard Quigley, co-director of the Siberian Tiger Project at the University of Idaho's Hornocker Wildlife Institute. "It's larger than anybody here has seen."

Ginette Hemley, World Wildlife Fund's director of international wildlife policy, said the increased numbers of the world's largest cat developed despite poaching that killed at least 180 creatures in the 1992-93 Siberian winter.

Like Africa's black rhinoceros, the Siberian and other tigers are hunted largely for their bones and other body parts, which are ground up sold in East Asia as folk medicines for $1,000 a pound or more. A poacher can realize $10,000 from a Siberian tiger, which weighs as much as 800 pounds and reaches up to 12 feet long.

The cat's other main range is in northeast China, where stringent government policies also have brought a renewal.

Second satellite release gives astronauts brief scare

Scientists will try to grow seven semiconductor-film wafers on the back of the Wake Shield in the super-pure wake created as it zooms around Earth at 17,500 mph.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts had a brief scare when they heaved another science satellite into orbit Friday night, this one to grow thin semiconductor film in the ultraclean vacuum of space.

Spaceman Thomas Jones released the 12-foot-diameter steel disk, called the Wake Shield Facility, as the space shuttle soared 220 miles above the Pacific Ocean.

After firing a tiny thruster on the satellite, the five astronauts watched nervously as the satellite moved toward them — closer and closer. The 4,600-pound disk passed within 10 feet of the cockpit windows, much closer than the crew anticipated.

Commander Kenneth Cockrell said his heart was in his throat.

"We kept it in sight at all times, so we were assured of safe clearance," he told Mission Control. "But I have to say that the clearance was somewhere 10 feet or less going over the front windows and the left part of the nose."

The gleaming, white disk — looking very much like a flying saucer — eventually drifted off to a safe distance. A collision could have caused serious damage or even a catastrophe.

On Tuesday, the shuttle crew dropped off an ultraviolet telescope to observe stars. The telescope was about 60 miles behind Columbia when the Wake Shield was set loose for three days of free flight.

The release marked the first time a space shuttle flew in formation with two satellites.

The astronauts will use radar and lasers to keep track of the two satellites, both of which will be retrieved later in the 16-day flight. Ground stations also will monitor the spacecraft for safety reasons.

To be safe, NASA wants at least 28 miles, and preferably 58 miles, between Columbia and the telescope, with the Wake Shield in between.

Scientists will try to grow seven semiconductor-film wafers on the back of the Wake Shield in the super-pure wake created as it zooms around Earth at 17,500 mph.

Atoms of aluminum, arsenic, gallium and indium will be combined, atom by atom, atomic layer by atomic layer, to form the film. The 10,000 to 20,000 atomic layers constituting each 3-inch wafer will be just one-tenth the thickness of a human hair.

The film will be tested for use in transistors and other electronic devices.

Alex Ignatiev, director of the University of Houston research center that designed the satellite, said that the vacuum in the satellite's wake is cleaner than vacuum chambers on Earth, and should yield faster and better semiconductor film than that now used in computers and other electronics.

If the technique proves feasible, it could be lucrative. Ignatiev said permanently orbiting spacecraft could one day produce up to 10,000 wafers of semiconductor film a year, worth about $40 million at current prices.

Tension at NASA will be high, given the trouble-plagued history of the satellite.

The disk could not be released from space shuttle Discovery in 1994 because of wiring and sensor problems, and all the semiconductor film was contaminated. It was deployed the next year from Endeavour but had communication problems, overheated, wobbled and even tumbled. Only three "quality" film wafers were grown.

"The peer pressure, so to speak, is a bit more severe this time," Ignatiev said. He added that improvements were made to the satellite and more rigorous testing was done this time. NASA has spent $29 million on the experiment.

Back at Kennedy Space Center, a preliminary check of the booster rockets used to launch Columbia on Tuesday revealed heat damage to the insulation of both nozzles but not as much as on the previous shuttle flight, officials said. The erosion appeared to be minor and within normal levels, although further inspections will be needed.

Columbia's mission was delayed one week because of concerns over the unusual amount of damage to nozzle insulation during the September launch of Atlantis.

U.S. considers tougher smog rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a decision that could have broad health and economic implications, the Environmental Protection Agency is considering tougher air-quality rules that could compel many cities to begin new smog controls.

The proposal, expected within days, has been the focus of much lobbying from both environmentalists and businesses groups. They disagree whether the current air pollution rules are adequate to protect Americans' health.

If the EPA reduces the allowed levels of smog-causing ozone and microscopic dust in the air, states and cities might have to impose draconian pollution controls, including travel restrictions, wider use of clean-burning gasoline, mandatory car pooling, construction caps and curbs on the use of everything from pleasure boats to lawn mowers, opponents say.

The proposals could cost "many billions of dollars" and more than triple the areas unable to meet federal standards, argues Alan Charles Rawls, an attorney representing the American Automobile Manufacturers Association.

"The implications ... are potentially enormous for state and local governments and for virtually the entire industrial sector of the economy," Rawls says.

Yet, many health experts argue that even communities meeting the current federal standards have air that is harmful to children, the elderly and those with lung problems such as asthma.

"The federal standards are not doing the job in protecting the public health, especially among children and the elderly with chronic heart and lung diseases," said Ronald White of the American Lung Association.

Somber mood in Congress as room is made for new lawmakers

WASHINGTON (AP) — It can be a melancholy chore, sorting through all the things collected during years of congressional service — especially when the voters turn a lawmaker out of office.

"I've got 20 years of personal stuff here," groused veteran Rep. Harold Volkmer with a dismissive wave of his hand. The Missouri Democrat, who lost Nov. 5 to Republican Kenny Hulshof, said, "I'm not going to piece through it all."

All over Capitol Hill, garbage carts are overflowing as defeated or retiring lawmakers clear out their offices to make way for the 105th Congress moving in Jan. 3.

Fifteen senators and 72 House members are departing, and four more House lawmakers might soon find they have to move, as close elections and runoffs are decided.

Most decided to go on their own, but at least 20 had their hats handed to them by the voters.

Volkmer, clad in chinos and tennis shoes for the dusty chore of packing and hauling boxes home, noted with some surprise during a cigarette break that he found the effort wasn't entirely depressing.

Thanks to the forced move, he'd uncovered such mementos as a newspaper article recounting a long-forgotten event from his freshman term that he relished retelling:

"A bill was up to give Gerald Ford additional money as a former president. Jimmy Carter was all for it because Ford was going to help him with the Panama Canal treaty. (Richard) Nixon was for it. House Speaker Tip O'Neill was for it. Minority Leader John Rhodes was for it.

"And we beat 'em," he said gleefully. "I led the charge." He opposed it because there had been no hearings. The bill, modified following discussions, eventually passed.

Aides to defeated Rep. Dick Chrysler, R-Mich., spent the first week after his loss nursing their wounds and writing their resumes, said Scott Gast, chief of staff. Then they started packing his two years of papers.

Left untouched temporarily was his personal office, giving him "one last chance to look at it" intact, Gast said. Chrysler will keep his own papers "for sentimental value. Or maybe he'll need it in the future," he said, implying a possible electoral revenge in the making.

The mood was defiantly upbeat, with no packing under way, in the [illegible] Rep. Peter Torkildsen, R-Mass., where aide Corey Lewandowski said of those on the move: "Fortunately, that's not us."

Democratic challenger John Tierney, ahead by 360 votes as the counting continued, is ready to take the seat. But Lewandowski said, "The congressman has demanded a recount, and that won't be done until Dec. 2 at the earliest."

The experience is different for some retirees.

"Packing is not a maudlin experience," said Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo., who is quitting after 18 years in Congress.

He delighted in recalling when junior staffers braided the hair on a buffalo head that adorns his office — and when they put pink curlers on the fallen beast. And he gamely tried on — for a photographer — an [illegible] as a going-away gift by Capitol tour guides whose spiels he learned by heart.

Unlike those who find themselves suddenly jobless, Simpson already has plans. He's eager to start teaching a Harvard University course next semester and giving TV interviews touting his upcoming book, "In the Old Gazoo: Observations from a Lifetime of Scrapping with the Press."

"The exciting thing is what's out there," he said, acknowledging that if he were "just going to go home to Cody, Wyoming, and fish, I think there would be kind of a morose tang to all of this."

Judge says plows violate constitution

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — It's been the neighborly thing to do in Barrington for 50 years: Town council members volunteer to plow the snow from church parking lots.

Not this winter, a federal judge ruled — their good deed is unconstitutional.

Last winter, which brought a record 106 inches of snow, six Barrington residents complained about the practice at nine churches and a synagogue. The American Civil Liberties Union in Rhode Island sued the town.

The council was "promoting religion over non-religion" and violating the First Amendment's separation of church and state, Judge Joseph DiClerico of New Hampshire ruled Thursday.

Council members couldn't understand the fuss in the town of 16,000 located 10 miles south of Providence.

"You know, in a small community we do things like that for each other," said council member Peter Costa.

"In our minds we weren't violating any law," said his colleague, Mark Powers. "We weren't restricting anyone's practice of religion and we were not rewarding anyone's practice of religion. It's just something the town had done since World War II."

The mother of all trade shows magnitude of Comdex is hard to comprehend

By Tom Abate
N.Y. Times News Service

LAS VEGAS — Luggage may get lost, tempers may fly and cellular phone networks may overload, but, with any luck, Internet connections at the huge Comdex trade show won't go down.

GeoNet Communications Inc. of Redwood City, Calif., has turned the chaos into a business opportunity by wiring this huge computer expo with a high-speed network that lets exhibitors make Internet connections as easily as they plug in electric cords. If only everything else could be that simple.

Comdex is so big and so complicated, that the sheer magnitude of hosting this annual event strains every aspect of Las Vegas's infrastructure. Local television reported two-hour cab lines and multiple baggage mix-ups at the airport Sunday. The city's 94,000 hotel rooms were 98 percent occupied.

On Monday, lines extended outside popular exhibits, and the buses that carried show-goers between three exhibit halls were constantly jammed. At times, so many cellular phones were in use that callers couldn't make connections.

"It's like living in rush-hour conditions all week," said Comdex marketing manager Bill Sell.

But for the companies that come here to exhibit, any expense or aggravation is a worthwhile cost of doing business. Comdex is the place to see and be seen. The booths on the show floor, the quiet meetings in hotel conference rooms and the boisterous parties where attendees blow off steam at

The computer industry has about 900 events a year, not counting swap meets, user group gatherings, chat room mixers and private conferences. In amongst these events are the big trade shows such as Comdex, Interop and Windows World. Comdex, whose annual meeting begins Monday, is the big daddy with around 200,000 showgoers hoping to do a deal, meet a contact, sight Bill Gates and maybe learn something.

Most of the general public will never venture into this show except vicariously by way of a network news snippet and maybe two minutes of

Comdex not cheap

LAS VEGAS — Comdex, the world's largest computer show, is charging more than 2,200 exhibitors $44.95 per square foot, making its Las Vegas exhibit space some of the world's most-expensive real estate.

Japan's Softbank Corp., which bought the Comdex show two years ago from its American founder, will reap more than $60 million in rent for 1.35 million square feet of space at the show, which runs from today through Friday.

The show fills the Las Vegas Convention Center, with additional exhibit space at the Las Vegas Hilton and the Sands Expo Center.

Comdex exhibitors, including industry giants like software maker Microsoft Corp. and chipmaker Intel Corp., will introduce an estimated 10,000 new products here. The smallest available space at Comdex, 10 feet square, goes for $4,495.

By way of comparison, the most-expensive office space in the world goes for $118.33 per square foot, the average rate in Hong Kong. The most costly city for office space in the U.S. is Washington, D.C., at $33.50, while midtown New York City goes for $27.75.

Space represents between 20 percent and 25 percent of an exhibitor's cost, said Comdex vice president Dick Schwab. Booth design and construction and employees' travel and lodging are other costs

Schwab said the cost to a company to exhibit at Comdex are like the money a gardener spends for seeds. "The amount of money that the garden supply house would charge me for seeds would be relatively small," said Schwab. "We're the seed of the industry."

V-mail news

LAS VEGAS — Larry Yen wanted a smart and multilingual answering machine, so he turned to his computer.

While in Hong Kong, Yen realized that many non-English speakers were fascinated with computer technology and e-mail, but small-business owners were hesitant to use it for international transactions. The reason was simple — the keyboard.

"There's a language barrier, because most people in America write their e-mail in English, and most people in Asia would like to write their e-mail in their native language," said Yen, president and chief executive of the Simi Valley, Calif.-based start-up company American Network Systems Inc.

So Yen and his business partner, engineer Jerry Schwartzberg, have developed Total E-Call, a software-hardware package that allows you to use the Internet to send a voice-mail message. No more typing. Even better, there are no long-distance charges. Tucked in a tiny booth at Comdex, Yen and his nine-member contingent will spend this week talking to Net-heads about his company's creation.

"This is the only place to be for a small company just starting out," said Rich Debuan, AmNet's marketing director. "All the buyers for the big computer consumer stores are here. It's up to us to prove our product is sophisticated enough for a business but still a no-brainer for the average consumer."

Indeed, using Total E-Call's point-and-click applications are easy. Pick up the hand-set and the computer brings up an electronic phone book of e-mail addresses. Click the record button and speak into the telephone. Your computer saves the message as an audio file, then sends it to the recipient's e-mail account.

Your Quickest Shot to the Coolest Spots on the Internet

Plimoth Plantation

Plimoth (Plymouth) Plantation was the first permanent European settlement in southern New England. We know it as the site of the first Thanksgiving dinner and where the Pilgrims publically acknowledged their thanks for their well-being in this new land called America. Today, this area is the site of a living museum, dedicated to re-creating 17th-century lifeways in the New World. You can visit Plimoth Plantation at http://spirit.lib.uconn.edu/ArchNet/Topical/Historic/Plimoth/Plimoth.html and see how the Pilgrims and their Native American neighbors constructed their homes, grew crops and cooked their meals.

Turkey Site

If you're talking turkey for Thanksgiving dinner, then here's your chance to help out in the kitchen. Dude, you can be like an electronic grandmother. Download some good, practical advice or print some delicious recipes. There's gravy for the potatoes, vegetable side dishes and, who could forget, dessert. Butterball Online at http://www.butterball.com/ is stuffed with entertainment ideas, too. There's a coloring page you can download, turkey trivia, and an audio clip of some real turkey gobbling. So, who's going to get the wishbone at your house?

CyberKids

Whether it's the tree fort in the backyard or that secret hiding place, you've always loved a spot that's for kids and kids only! It's no different on the Web, only now CyberKids is the place where kids exchange stories, create art, and listen to each other's music in their own corner of cyberspace. Kids rule here! Kick back in the reading room, check out some awesome paintings, or download an interactive movie. If you're up to the challenge, you can even enter in writing and art contests. There're games, a bookstore, and even a crazy castle! Bring your headphones, pencils, crayons and all of your creativity to http://www.cyberkids.com/

Dear Amy: For Thanksgiving we are going to visit my grandmother in Denver. My dad wants to drive and see the mountains. How far is it? Eric, Phoenix, AZ.

Dear Eric: To find out how far it is to Grandmother's house, you can go to a Web site called "How far is it?" at http://www.indo.com/distance/ It has over 500 cities in its database all around the world. It not only tells you how far (as the crow flies) but gives you latitude and longitude, population and more! After that you can choose more links to look at a map or to get driving details.

Dear Amy: I have looked at a lot of pages on the Internet about geology and rocks, but all of them are about stuff I am not interested in. Is this all there is? Kris, Eau Claire, WI

Dear Kris: If you need to find out something specific, there are experts from the Amish to Zookeeping waiting to answer your questions. At "Ask an Expert" http://www.askanexpert.com/p/askexperts.html there are over 200 Web sites and e-mail addresses where you can find experts to answer your questions. Before asking a question, be sure to read "How do I use Ask-an-Expert?" Also, you should still visit the expert's site to look at what they have. Many of the experts have already posted previous quetions and responses. They are all volunteers and have many other responsibilities to attend to. You should ask questions only after you have tried your library, too.

With new technology, being dead won't stop stars

By Michael Price
N.Y. Times News Service

In "Jurassic Park," the cringing lawyer, played by Martin Ferrero, gets chomped up by the Tyrannosaurus rex. But we've got news for you: That's not Ferrero, not a stunt double. It is a digital clone, manufactured from footage of Robert Patrick's "Terminator 2" character.

And that is only the beginning. John Belushi (1949-1982) starring in a future movie based on John Kennedy Toole's "A Confederacy of Dunces?" The present-day Harrison Ford romancing a youthful, Depression-era Bette Davis on-screen? Not as far-fetched as it sounds.

Nowadays, if the dead need raising to star in a new motion picture, then the dead shall be raised. Figuratively speaking, of course.

Digital animation technology has made the practice possible. It appears that the early resurrections will involve beloved comedian George Burns (1896-1996) and martial arts champ Bruce Lee (1940-1973).

Here we have a leap many leagues beyond Roger Corman's cunning placement of Boris Karloff (1887-1969) in a 1989 comedy called "Transylvania Twist," via clever editing of existing footage. The new developments go well beyond the use of Cary Grant, Lucille Ball and "The Munsters"' Fred Gwynne in modern-day television commercials.

"Forrest Gump" (1994), which co-starred Tom Hanks and a few dead presidents, is only the leading edge of a development that has more recently seen a new episode of TV's "Deep Space 9" composited digitally to incorporate an early-day episode of "Star Trek."

The development is the ultimate real-world vindication of a uniquely prophetic comic-book story published 20 years ago. It poses a dilemma for the heirs of deceased celebrities. And from a trade union dedicated to keeping living talent in paying jobs, the technology has provoked dismissive remarks that may mask deeper fears.

"It's a gimmick," says character actor Richard Masur, president of the Hollywood-based Screen Actors Guild. "It's great for bringing dinosaurs to life, but no way are you ever going to recreate the performance style of any established star. I cannot believe the technology will ever reach that point."

The "dinosaur" reference alludes to Steven Spielberg's "Jurassic Park" (1993), a watershed production that served as a proving ground for the very technology that will figure in George Burns' mock-resurrection for a movie-in-progress called "The Best Man."

For although "Jurassic Park" started out with plans to develop conventionally animated and "animatronic" monsters, simultaneous advances in digital image-making enabled the fabrication of creatures far more lifelike within cyberspace. The digital process, mingled with traditional "organic" methods, proved to yield savings in time and money, says effects master Stan Winston.

"Either way, you're building something to have the illusion of life," says Winston, "whether you're building foam latex onto a steel armature, or compositing digital skin and musculature onto a digital skeleton within a computer setting. And if we can do it with dinosaurs, then we can do it with people.

"Real people, however, carry a considerably greater responsibility."

Responsibility, indeed. That issue was the first thing considered 20 years ago by science-fiction writer Marvin Wolfman, when he predicted the digital-acting phenomenon in a serial for Marvel Comics' "Daredevil" magazine.

In the story, Wolfman imagined a conspiracy to confront the public with film showing new scenes of important people long deceased. He predicted the now-familiar tactic called "morphing," or shape-shifting, and he anticipated software that, in 1996, is too new to be through its refinement stages.

"I'm amazed by it, too," Wolfman says. "This was the middle '70s — long before personal computers, long before any such software existed. But that's the duty of the science-fiction writer, isn't it? To imagine where things might go?

"It's just business as usual," Wolfman adds. "We look at things as they exist now, and extrapolate. But I'm surprised anyone remembers that story of mine — it didn't get a very favorable response at the time. Nobody seemed to understand what I was getting at."

And hardly anyone today can afford not to understand the concept.

Especially not the estates of any defunct star — John Wayne, James Dean, Marilyn Monroe, you-name-it — who is a candidate for regeneration. George Burns' estate could have withheld permission for the "Best Man" appearance. Meanwhile, Hollywood attorney Bela Lugosi Jr. anticipates the day when Universal Pictures might remake its lucrative "Dracula" screenplay as a star vehicle for the original lead player, Bela Lugosi (1882-1956).

"Don't let anyone fool you into thinking this is tribute or homage," the younger Lugosi says. "It's exploitative commerce, plain and simple, and they'll exploit my father in death just the way they exploited him in life — if they can get away with it."

Lugosi Jr. represents an agency that protects the legacies of Lon Chaney Jr., the Three Stooges and others, in addition to the Lugosi name. He says he has long fought against "public domain" usage of such images.

"But this digital sector has shifted things to an entirely new level.

"Once, we were concerned about caricatures, mug shots, recycled footage, things like that, being used on unauthorized greeting cards and posters," Lugosi said. "Now, we're talking about raising the dead, almost literally, to work cheap and tirelessly in the service of an industry that is paying some of its living, breathing stars in the tens of millions per movie."

None of this will happen overnight, of course. It will require time and painstaking artistry to scan in the dimensions and identifying characteristics of George Burns for digital reconstruction. And even for what will probably be a cameo appearance, the creation of a Burns-clone's performance, one frame at a time, will be far more complicated than just filming some actor doing a Burns impersonation.

Search engines work to make Web manageable

By Bill Husted
N.Y. Times News Service

I am famous for not finding stuff. You name it and I've lost it — car keys, house keys, notes for a story, several wallets and, once, a bright yellow rental car.

That's why my talent for finding what I need on the World Wide Web amazes even me.

It's mostly a useless gift that lets me find out the names of the Seven Dwarfs at 1 a.m., or to track down the reasons why the governments of Argentina and Brazil don't get along so well. But the same techniques may help you find something important.

If you mess with the Web at all, you probably know about the search engines there that help you find information. Search engines are just Web pages that contain software designed to search the text of Web pages for specific words or terms. If, for instance, you wanted to learn which breeds of dog are gentle with children, you could search for pages that contain the word "dog."

But if you did, you'd end up with a real strange collection of Web pages. You'd find pages with references to the "dog days of summer," pages that call Walter Matthau's new movie a dog, even pages that talk about canines.

In short, there are a lot of dogs in the world.

That's why knowing how to narrow a Web search can be handy. We'll use my example and one of my favorite search engines — AltaVista at http://www.altavista.com — to demonstrate.

This time, instead of simply typing the word "dog" or even the words "dog pet children gentle" we'll type this: +dog+pet +children+gentle.

We already know that just looking for dog will give us plenty of pages that have nothing to do with our search.

Just adding the other search words will make matters worse. You would get pages about gentle horses, mean kids and gosh knows what else.

But when we put a plus in front of search terms, we tell AltaVista that the page must include those words. So now, each page located will contain the words: dog, pet, children and gentle. You'll still get some pages that don't fit your search, but things will be a lot better.

For instance, when I tried the request in my example, I got: a page that touted the virtues of mixed-breed dogs as gentle pets for children, another about the Cavalier King Charles Spaniel that's recommended as a pet for families, and one page that makes the case — right or wrong — that pit bulls are really gentle pets for children.

By the way, you also can use the minus sign with AltaVista. Let's say you want to find everything you can about the town of Paris, Ark.

To make sure you don't get any pages about Paris, France, you could specify: +Paris+Arkansas-France.

That's how things work with AltaVista. You can do the same sort of a search, but in a different manner, with Yahoo (http://www.yahoo.com).

Like I said, I prefer AltaVista because it seems to do a better job finding obscure terms. But with some broad topics, this virtue can become a problem. When you're looking for popular topics, you may prefer Yahoo.

Spam, Velveeta hard to digest in email

N.Y. Times News Service

If Spam and Velveeta conjure up images of chunky pink lunch meat and mushy yellow cheese, you haven't been hanging around online services or the Internet's Usenet newsgroups.

In cyberspace, these terms have come to represent a wide range of annoying communications: everything from ubiquitous unsolicited e-mail ads to chain letters to accusatory rants about fascism.

What to do about Spam and Velveeta is fast becoming one of the most contentious issues on the Net, along with censorship and privacy concerns — and it contains elements of each.

It's almost as difficult to define the problem as devise a solution.

"One man's Spam is another man's valuable information," says Dave McClure, executive director of the Association of Online Professionals, a professional association for Internet service providers.

McClure says one difference between electronic and paper junk mail is that the paper variety subsidizes postal rates for first-class mail.

The success of services like Juno, which offer free e-mail accounts to those willing to read attached ads, supports that argument.

For many America Online subscribers, the chief villain is Sanford Wallace, president of Philadelphia-based Cyber Promotions. Wallace is proud to e-mail 3 million ads daily, for everything from life insurance to diet aids to mutual funds to psychic hotlines.

He claims he'll take you off his mailing list if you ask.

AOL associate general counsel Dave Phillips says he has many complaints from AOL subscribers who say Wallace ignored or retaliated against requests to be dropped. Junk e-mail — "Spam" to some — is now the top complaint of AOL subscribers, Phillips said. The company has introduced two different kinds of blocking software, but Wallace has easily defeated both.

On the Internet, Spam, and the closely related Velveeta, have older connotations, as shorthand for articles posted to many of the 20,000-some Usenet newsgroups at once. Newsgroup Spam and Velveeta sometimes consist of noncommercial, albeit obnoxious content, such as anti-gay invective or annoying chain letters. But cheesy ads seem to hold the greatest power to annoy.

Some cyber-liberties advocates, like James Love of the Taxpayers Assets Project, are advocating a mandatory label on e-mail ads, so they can be easily filtered by blocking software.

But many purists feel such solutions violate the anarchic atmosphere they treasure on the Net. Retaliation and boycotts against Spammers are advocated at many sites, such as the Blacklist of Internet Advertisers.

The most amusing proposal came from Donald A. Lehn of the University of Wisconsin Medical School who, in March 1995, offered a nickel reward for the brain of each and every idiot who passed along one particularly annoying electronic chain letter.

Survey says 1 million Californians were cyber voters

N.Y. Times News Service

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — A post-election survey of California voters released today by the public affairs firm Goddard-Claussen/First Tuesday found that nearly 1 million voters in California used their computers to gather information during the November election.

The survey of 800 California voters revealed that 6% of the electorate — approximately 936,000 California voters — surfed the World Wide Web this year for election information.

"This survey documents the birth of a powerful new communications vehicle in political campaigning," said G-C/FT Executive Vice President Frank Schubert. "Cyber Voters who use their computers to gather information are precisely the people most campaigns must reach to win — they are upper income, better educated, independent minded voters. These are the opinion leaders, the movers and shakers, who discuss issues and influence others. They demand more from campaigns than 30-second sound bites and they are getting it from cyber-campaigns."

The survey of 800 California voters was released today in Washington at a U.S. Chamber of Commerce conference on emerging grassroots strategies. The survey, which has an overall margin of error of 3 percent, was conducted for Goddard-Claussen by the polling firm Public Opinion Strategies.

"Cyber Voters are the core public affairs constituency in America today. As use of computers for this purpose grows, so will the size of this constituency. In a few years, cyber-campaigning has the potential of rivaling paid advertising as a dominant way of communicating with voters," Schubert said.

"Conducting a cyber-campaign is affordable, and the dividends can be substantial," said G-C/FT partner Richard Claussen. As an example, Claussen pointed to the website operated by the G-C/FT-managed campaign opposing Proposition 211, a ballot initiative promoted by securities lawyers, which generated nearly 200,000 "hits" from cyber-voters.

"Our campaign opposing 211 enjoyed the support of many companies in the high-technology field. We had hyper-links established on the home pages of over 50 companies. We advertised on the Web, and we published our website address in the state ballot pamphlet and in our television advertising," Claussen said. "I am confident that with nearly 200,000 hits on the 211 website, we were the champion cyber-campaigners this year."

The No on Prop. 211 website gave voters the ability to download the text of the proposal, review editorials about the measure, send e-mail to the campaign, join the coalition opposing 211 and review extensive background material about the proposal. The site also contained absentee voter information and a voter registration form.

The survey found that nearly one-third of all California voters under age 65 subscribe to an on-line service, such as America OnLine. However, cyber-voters are not, despite the stereotype, primarily Generation X'ers. For example, nearly 30% of voters in their 40s, 50s and early 60s who have on-line access used their computers to gather election information. However, only 22% of voters aged 18-34 did so.

Goddard-Claussen/First Tuesday is a full service public affairs/public relations firm. With offices in California (Los Angeles and Sacramento) and Washington, D.C., the firm serves clients throughout the U.S. Goddard-Claussen enjoyed a 100% "win" record this year, successfully managing the campaigns opposing six statewide ballot initiatives (four in California and two in Oregon). The firm has previously managed some of the most notable communications efforts in America, including the famous "Harry & Louise" grassroots and advertising effort that many observers credit with derailing President Clinton's proposed national health insurance program.

Fast Facts About Cyber Voters — 54% are over age 45 — 58% are men; 42% are women — 70% earn over $60,000 per year; 35% earn over $100,000 — 48% are Republicans; 27% are Democrats; 17% are Independents — One out of 10 Independent women are Cyber Voters (more so than any other political subgroup) — 21% of voters employed in the computer field and 18% of voters employed in biotechnology are Cyber Voters.

COMDEX: More than 600 Internet companies at this year's convention night are all part of the human networking opportunity the show represents.

And for tiny GeoNet, the very chaos of trying to get anything done in a city that is bursting at the seams provided a parable for what it takes to strike success in the fast-moving, high-tech world — find a need and fill it ... fast.

GeoNet, which wired its first trade show at San Francisco's Moscone Center last year, has had a small crew here for a week, laying three miles of fiber-optic cable and 30 miles of high-speed copper wires over the three main exhibit halls that cover 2.5 million square feet of floor space.

"This is the first time the show has been wired like this," said GeoNet Vice President David Belove. "Everybody is watching us. If this works out, we'll be able to wire any show in the world." In the two years since the World Wide Web exploded in importance, each of the 2,200 exhibitors previously had been forced to make its own complicated arrangements to get an Internet outlet.

This year, with more than 600 Internet companies at Comdex, GeoNet President John Russo approached the show's organizers, Softbank Inc., with a plan to wire the entire Las Vegas Convention Center and its surrounding exhibit halls with a state-of-the-art-network that lets exhibitors get a speedy, 10 megabit-per-second Ethernet connection for less than it would have cost them to get a low-speed connection on their own.

At the Netscape Communications Inc. booth, spokeswoman Roseanne Siino said GeoNet solved the problems she had last year in getting reliable Internet service to the company's floor display. It will cost Netscape about $10,000 to plug in 27 computers during the weeklong event, but considering Netscape's business, she considers the cost was worth it.

"This was just one less headache we had to deal with," Siino said.

For companies like Netscape, making a good showing at Comdex is expensive but necessary. The 200,000-plus people who are expected to attend this week's show will include corporate executives, computer store owners and value-added resellers who embellish products and sell them to niche markets. Siino estimated Netscape will spend less than $500,000 this week to send about 50 people to staff three modest exhibit areas totaling about 5,300 square feet.

"Everything is an extra cost," said Linda Waigand of Great Big Productions in Palo Alto, Calif., a specialist in putting together trade shows. Waigand, who helped Netscape plan its Comdex show, said the two ficus plants behind the information booth cost $40 each.

"If you want to have another box of brochures brought onto the show floor, you have to know the right person to ask and pay a charge for it," Waigand said.

All those a la carte charges make Comdex a money-maker for its sponsor, Softbank Inc. Softbank charges about $4,500 for the minimum 10-foot by 10-foot booth, up from last year's $4,200. It is estimated Comdex will generate $60 million in rental fees alone.

Everything about the show is on a scale difficult to imagine. More than 10,000 products will be announced this week. That works out to about 250 new gizmos per hour that the show is open for business.

Given the bewildering array of exhibits listed in the 579-page guide book that show-goers carry around like a Bible, attendees have to plan out their strategy for touring the event.

Pedro Gomez-Zaiter, a financier with PaineWebber Inc. in San Juan, Puerto Rico, is experiencing his first Comdex. He hopes to find software tools to help him launch a new Web-based business.

"I'm staying close to the Internet Pavilion," Gomez-Zaiter said, referring to just one of the huge tents set up in the parking lot outside the main hall.

Visitors like entrepreneur Gomez-Zaiter are one reason why Comdex is such a boon to the Las Vegas economy. The average show-goer spends a bit over $1,000 on air fare, food, lodging and entertainment during hir or her stay in Las Vegas. After adding in all the people who are hired to set up and staff the show, the five-day Comdex event is thought to pump about $300 million into the Las Vegas economy.

"That would be a conservative estimate," said Comdex spokeswoman Suzanne Lonegran.

EXHIBITS: Vegas show deteriorates into little more than idle chit-chat

edited TV tape that purports to offer a look into our future. But the event may have more in common with ordinary trade shows for shoes or books or boats than with the world of the future.

People have high hopes when they go to Comdex (the name originally stood for Computer Dealers Exposition, but few remember this). Soon everything deteriorates to idle chat (about Intel's next chip), gossip (about what Microsoft is going to do to Netscape) and discussions concerning the locales of the best parties so you can gossip even more while eating free jumbo shrimp, egg rolls, burritos, cocktail wieners, kabobs, corn chips and various nuts, usually accompanied by mediocre wine or Heineken.

The main reason to go to this and other big shows is to collect business cards and to be seen so nobody thinks you're dead. The business cards eventually get lost or end up in a drawer near the socks, and a month later people still don't know if you're dead or not.

Companies have to be there to prove they're making a profit and to show of their latest technology which doesn't work, but which will someday — they hope. Everything is either going through an alpha or beta testing phase or is just out of alpha or beta. (A dart and a dart board are used to determine this.)

All products will "change the way people use (product category here)." A new computer will change the way people use computers. A new modem will change the way people use modems. Why? Just because. Everything is the best thing to happen to (product category here). Some things are so special that they will cause the mysterious paradigm shift. It will change the entire direction of civilization. Yes, indeed. In the end the product never ships and civilization is saved once more.

Las Vegas, where the big fall Comdex is held, has a love-hate relationship with this show. The city's hotels get to charge $180 for a room, but showgoers seldom gamble. They prefer to collect the available freebies: free pens, notebooks, dopey buttons only geeks wear, cheap key chains you'll never use, candies, hats, T-shirts, boxer shorts, shopping bags and literature. This is crammed into suitcase-like boxes provided by IBM and brought to the office to show your boss how hard you worked.

Some of the work is hard, if waiting endlessly can be considered hard work. The hotels are crammed with people. The elevators are slow. You wait. You wait to check in. You wait for elevators. You wait for a cab or a bus. Once you get on the road to the show you are immediately stuck in traffic. When you get to the show, you wait to register.

By the time you get to the show floor you're either thirsty or need to find a bathroom, which you can't find. You can't risk drinking, so you roam around uncomfortably thirsty or just uncomfortable.

The show floor is a madhouse with each company vying for your attention with smiling models who know absolutely nothing and think every guy in the place is hitting on them, which they are. Every company has a gimmick: a comedy act, jugglers, sleight-of-hand magicians, professorial lecturers, rappers. They all intersperse their acts with out-of-place corporate plugs: "I gotta tell ya. It's sure hot in Vegas. And you know that new network router from Junko Technology is one hot router!"

Many companies throw parties with big-name rock bands dating from the era of mainframes — Fleetwood Mac and Donna Summers were two featured last year. These events fill up with freeloaders. By midnight the hotels are filled with drunks complaining that they must get up at 6 for a meeting.

First-timers are usually stunned by the sheer number of exhibits. They walk around in a daze, unsure how to proceed. With more than 1,000 exhibitors and 10,000 products, they may as well have landed on Jupiter.

Trade-show regulars are not overwhelmed, knowing they can ignore much of what they see. Most showgoers hate the experience, swear they will never go again, forget the misery nine months later and plan on the next visit hoping to do a deal, meet a contact, sight Bill Gates and maybe learn something.

Gore seeks to whip up Texas support for Lampson

BEAUMONT (AP) — Vice President Al Gore swept through Southeast Texas on Friday to whip up support for Democrat Nick Lampson's congressional bid in a Dec. 10 runoff election.

Gore described Lampson, who is bidding to unseat Republican Rep. Steve Stockman, as a former teacher with mainstream values. He urged Lampson supporters to spread the word about the runoff, in which the Democratic candidate seeks to unseat U.S. Rep. Steve Stockman, R-Texas.

"It is a choice between the mainstream and the extreme, between common sense and nonsense, between the people and ideology ... Nick Lampson is the choice for the future," Gore told more than 1,000 people at a rally at Lamar University.

Gore portrayed Stockman as "someone who will blindly follow (House) Speaker Newt Gingrich and the (Republican) majority there, and who has demonstrated clearly that the ideas and ideology he follows is very much out of touch with the majority of the people here in this congressional district."

Gore's visit came less than three weeks from the runoff elections. He also was to visit Houston later Friday, where he was to attend a forum on the family leave law with other Democrats, including U.S Rep. Ken Bentsen, who is in a runoff with Republican challenger Dolly Madison McKenna.

Stockman, whose libertarian conservatism and popularity among militias has drawn considerable attention, was the top vote-getter in the Nov. 5 elections.

He finished with 46 percent of the vote to Lampson's 44 percent. A third candidate, Geraldine Sam, got a pivotal 9 percent.

Stockman spokesman Cory Birenbaum said Friday that Sam, a La Marque school teacher, had endorsed Stockman, her former Democratic opponent. He said his office had scheduled news conferences for Saturday to announce the endorsement.

"They can have people come in from Washington, but Geraldine Sam endorsing us shows that Nick Lampson's base is shuddering," Birenbaum said.

Sam could not be immediately reached for comment Friday afternoon. She had already left work and a message left on her home answering machine was not immediately returned.

The Houston Chronicle, in Friday's editions, quoted her former campaign manager, Arthur Gilmore, as saying that he knew nothing about the endorsement.

Lampson's campaign, which has questioned past Stockman campaign pronouncements, said it would wait to see if Sam in fact endorsed Stockman before commenting. But Lampson spokesman Jonathan Brown noted that Sam's views favoring gun control and abortion rights are diametrically opposed to Stockman's.

"It is perhaps as unlikely a political coupling as can be imagined," Brown said.

Gore said students should have a special incentive to vote for Lampson. He said the former Jefferson County tax collector backs Clinton administration measures that include expansion of the student loan program and tax cuts for college costs.

"It's abundantly clear that we are seeing a dramatic change toward a time in which what you earn will depend on what you learn," said Gore. He also noted the financial struggle many students and their families face to afford college.

Lampson touched on some contentious campaign issues, including Democratic contentions that Stockman and Gingrich want to cut Medicare health assistance for the aged.

"This election is also about who will protect our seniors and keep their benefits sacred," Lampson told cheering supporters before Gore's speech.

Stockman spokesman Birenbaum said Gore lacks any insight into the interests of the 9th Congressional District, which stretches from the suburbs of Houston to the Louisiana border.

Planned Parenthood to offer abortions at San Antonio clinic

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Planned Parenthood said Friday it will start offering abortions at one of its San Antonio clinics — news that drew seething protests from anti-abortion forces.

First-trimester abortions, or those within the third month of pregnancy, will be performed beginning in January at the main clinic of Planned Parenthood of San Antonio and South Central Texas.

"These are services that our clients want and have needed and have requested," said executive director Patricia Sidebottom. "Planned Parenthood has responded to the needs of our patients."

Until now, the San Antonio agency has not performed abortions at any of its nine clinics in South Texas. It has offered annual exams, family planning, breast cancer screening and other medical services.

Most of its business will continue to center on preventing abortions through family planning, Ms. Sidebottom said.

The decision to perform abortions angered anti-abortion activists in this heavily Catholic city.

A "pro-life prayer vigil" was scheduled this morning by the Catholic Archdiocese of San Antonio at St. Mary Magdalen Church. Archbishop Patrick Flores is to celebrate a Mass. A march to the Planned Parenthood clinic is to follow.

About 50 abortion protesters gathered outside the clinic as Planned Parenthood made its announcement Friday.

"Please do not do this. Please do not kill little babies here," shouted one woman, who held a picture of bloody fetuses.

"Stop Planned Parenthood," read one protester's sign.

"Your Mom Was Pro-Life," said another.

Sue Gasper, one of several activists who demonstrates regularly outside other abortion clinics in San Antonio, showed up Friday at Planned Parenthood. She calls abortion clinics "abortion mills."

"A lot of these women really don't have any idea what they're getting into. And a lot of them are just young and scared and they need a chance to talk to somebody and get all the facts," Ms. Gasper said.

Planned Parenthood officials said they decided to announce the new abortion services publicly to let women know the procedure is available and to stand up to anti-abortion activists.

"Our posture is not to react to the extremists you see outside there," said Dr. Herbert Brown, the agency's medical director. "Our posture is that we're here to provide services that are needed for women, and we're going to do that."

The agency's main clinic in San Antonio recently has been renovated to accommodate abortion procedures and outpatient surgery for women with abnormal Pap smears. The renovation includes an improved security system.

At first, only first-trimester abortions will be performed. Second-trimester abortions and the RU-486 abortion pill may be offered at some point in the future, Brown said.

Lottery director: Investigation to prove integrity of Texas Lottery

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Lottery Commission executive director Nora Linares said Friday she will cooperate fully with a commission probe into a contract four years ago between the company operating the lottery and a friend of hers who is now in federal prison.

"I am confident that this investigation will uphold the integrity of the Texas Lottery as well as my personal integrity," Ms. Linares said in a statement.

Ms. Linares said she first learned of the contract between GTECH Corp. and Mike Moeller, a former co-worker of hers, on Nov. 16, 1996. That was more than four years after the contract was signed and more than three years after the contract ended, she said.

"Whether GTECH expected any special treatment for awarding a contract to a friend of mine is not mine to say. I can unequivocally say that they received no special treatment from me," Ms. Linares said.

"Every decision that I have made regarding GTECH over the past four years has been based on their performance according to the terms of their contract with the Texas Lottery," she said.

GTECH also has said it is investigating how Moeller was hired in 1992 to organize hunting trips in New Mexico on behalf of the company. GTECH is currently embroiled in federal investigations in Texas and New Jersey.

At the time he was hired, Moeller was under a federal indictment accusing him of using taxpayers' money to pay consultants whose only job was to collect political campaign contributions.

Moeller recently began serving a federal prison sentence related to that case, which arose while he was a top deputy to former Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower. Ms. Linares also is a former agriculture agency employee.

Robert Rendine, GTECH's vice president of public relations, said Moeller was paid $30,000 from October 1992 through March 1993 and was hired by former GTECH national sales manager J. David Smith. Smith was convicted in September in New Jersey of defrauding GTECH in a kickback scheme.

GTECH had no knowledge of why Moeller was hired or what kind of work he did, according to Rendine. He said company records show that Moeller did no GTECH work in Texas.

Lawmaker seeks textbook regulation authority

AUSTIN (AP) — One day after the attorney general determined the State Board of Education can't regulate textbook content, a Texas lawmaker filed a bill to restore the board's authority.

The legislation would permit the board to ensure that textbooks placed on state-approved lists are appropriate for Texas students, Rep. Charlie Howard, R-Sugar Land, said Friday.

"If a local district chooses to trust the state adoption process and selects textbooks from the state list, they must have the full assurance that the board is free to examine and question all aspects of any book selected for the state-approved list," he said.

At the same time, Howard filed another bill that would give school districts more leeway to buy books that aren't on a state-approved list.

Under current law, school districts can use state funds to buy textbooks that are on state-approved lists for foundation courses, including English, math, science and social studies; and enrichment courses, such as foreign languages, health, fine arts, economics and technology education.

If districts choose a book that's not on a state-approved list for a foundation course, they must use local funds to buy it. They can get 70 percent of the cost for an enrichment course book that's not on a state list.

Howard said his proposal would give real freedom to school districts that eschew the state selection process.

"The situation created by the current (Education) Code and the attorney general's ruling is unacceptable. Local districts have only superficially increased choices, but textbook publishers enjoy a huge increase in power," he said.

"This package of bills will both re-establish the board's control over publishers and give local districts true freedom in textbook selection."

Howard filed the legislation in the wake of Attorney General Dan Morales' Thursday ruling concerning the 1995 education reform law, which curtailed the board's power and gave more authority to local school districts.

Under the law, the board is instructed to compile lists of textbooks that are error-free, meet physical specifications and contain essential elements that children are to be taught.

If textbooks meet legal requirements, school districts can buy them with state money.

Under the previous law, the Education Board had broader power to reject books and used it to force content changes.

Board members backed by religious conservatives wanted to continue regulating content despite the new law. But other board members said even though they want to keep overseeing content, current law doesn't allow them to do so.

The board in July approved textbook rules that would have allowed oversight of content if Morales had issued a legal opinion saying the panel still had that power.

Education board members said they'll work to change the law after Morales' ruling. But key lawmakers have indicated such efforts will meet resistance.

Group urges officials to turn down voucher plan

AUSTIN (AP) — State education officials are being urged to reject a Central Texas school district's bid to turn public money over to parents for their children's private education.

People For the American Way, which monitors religious conservative activities, called Lake Travis Independent School District's proposal "nothing more than a state-funded welfare program for the rich that would harm the public school students of Texas."

The school district conditionally endorsed the proposal Nov. 4 subject to a number of factors, including action by the Texas Education Agency to ensure the district wouldn't be financially penalized.

"The school district has asked the TEA effectively to subsidize and give a green light to its voucher program," said a Friday letter to Texas Education Commissioner Mike Moses from Carole Shields, president of People For the American Way. "The TEA has no authority to grant the district's request and should stop this misguided proposal dead in its tracks."

Supporters of the proposal say it's meant to help the fast-growing school district relieve crowding and to give parents more control over their children's education.

Under the so-called Parents as Partners Scholarship Program, Lake Travis ISD would provide scholarships to students to attend public or accredited private schools that meet certain requirements.

The amount of the scholarship would be designated later. Among other requirements, scholarship students would have to take the Texas Assessment of Academic Skills exam.

The school district has submitted the proposal to the Texas Education Agency to see whether students participating in the scholarship program still would be included in the district's average daily attendance.

Dolphin rescue group runs low on funding

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The Texas Marine Mammal Stranding Network is running low on money and may not be able to conduct future rescue missions, the group's director says.

Graham Worthy, the network's state director, said Thursday that efforts to save increasing numbers of dolphins found alive on the Texas shore in the past few years have sapped the funds of the mostly volunteer network.

That means sick dolphins found beached may have to be euthanized instead of being rescued and rehabilitated, Worthy said. The money problem could force the group to use that method by next summer, he said.

David McKee, Corpus Christi coordinator of the stranding network, said he is deeply troubled by that prospect.

He had to have a young sperm whale euthanized a few years ago on a remote Padre Island beach because the sick animal was too big to move.

"We had to euthanize this newborn baby, and it was probably the most emotional experience I've ever been through in my life," said McKee, a researcher at Texas A&M University-Corpus Christi.

The network, organized in 1980, is the only group licensed by any government agency to rescue and rehabilitate stranded dolphins and whales.

In the past few years, about 70 percent of rescued dolphins have been cured and released, a high success rate compared with similar efforts in other parts of the country, Worthy said.

Exactly how much money the network needs annually is difficult to say because no one can predict how many dolphins will strand themselves, he said.

Churches to hold Thanksgiving services

■ A Service of Thanksgiving led by First, Grace and Trinity Presbyterian churches will be held at Grace Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St., at 10 a.m. Thanksgiving Day.

This service features the combined choirs of the three churches. The Rev. Jim Houston-Hencken, associate pastor of First Presbyterian, will be preaching. Child care will be provided for ages 5 and younger.

A special offering for the St. Andrews parish fund will be collected.

■ Crestview Baptist Church, 3300 Thomas Ave., will be hold its annual "Thanksgiving Around the Table" at 5 p.m. Sunday in the Education Activities Building.

Ty Morris, Jr., will lead in a special praise service in song to celebrate the Thanksgiving holidays. The Rev. Larry Ashlock will bring a thanksgiving message and lead the congregation in prayer and thanksgiving for the blessings of the past year and the new year to come.

■ Twelve Midland churches will host the Seventh Annual Community Thanksgiving Celebration at 7:30 p.m. Sunday at the Holiday Inn Convention Center.

Unlike past years when a noted speaker was highlighted, this year's event will feature specific prayers for the community, its churches, public servants, school teachers and others who have made special requests.

Since 1990, the annual event has been sponsored and coordinated by The Golf Course Road Church of Christ and features several Christian Leaders and Authors including Max Lucado, Dr. Peter Marshall, Steve Farrar and Paul Faulkner.

Sponsoring churches include Abundant Life Worship Center, Bethel United Methodist Church, Christian Life Center, Cornerstone Christian Fellowship, Crossroads Christian Fellowship, First Church of the Nazarene, Golf Course Road Church of Christ, Mid-Cities Community Church, Midland Bible Church, Mount Rose Baptist Church, St Nicholas Episcopal Church and True Life Fellowship.

■ The community is invited to join members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, at 1001 W. Tennessee Ave., at 11 a.m. Thursday for an hour long Thanksgiving Day cervice.

In addition to the singing of hymns of praise, along with expressions of gratitude from the membership, citations are read from the Bible and from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy.

■ The Partners Sunday School Class of First United Methodist Church is sponsoring its annual Thanksgiving dinner in the fellowship hall of the church, 305 N. Baird St., downtown, Sunday. the dinner is cooked and served by members of the class.

Serving will begin at 10:30 a.m. Cost for adults is $5 and for children 12 and under $3.

A coffee hour for adults wanting an informal fellowship and coffee time is set for 9:20 to 10:20 Sundays in the parlor.

At the 8:30 and 10:35 a.m. services Sunday in the sanctuary, Main Street at Ohio Avenue, the Rev. Lane Boyd will speak on "An Attitude of Gratitude," based on Luke 17:11-19. The Celebration Singers and the Wesley Ringers will provide special music for the 8:30 a.m. service, with the Chancel Choir participating in the later service.

■ Midland Lutheran Church, 2705 W. Michigan Ave., will begin Thanksgiving observance this Sunday with the annual Thanksoffering Service conducted by the Women of the ELCA.

The 10:30 a.m. Communion Service will feature special guest speaker Helen Beaujour of Dallas. She has served as vice president of the Northern Texas Northern Louisiana Synod of Women for ELCA.

Immediately following the service, the Lutheran Youth Organization will serve a traditional Thanksgiving dinner in the church fellowship hall. Funds raised from this event will be used to send Midland Lutheran high school students to the National Youth gathering in New Orleans in July 1997. These funds will be matched by Aid Association for Lutherans Branch No. 10520.

A Thanksgiving service is set at the church for 7 p.m. Wednesday. The public is invited to attend.

For more information call the church's pastor, the Rev. Glenn Kramer, 694-1373.

■ Ranchland Heights Baptist Church, 3203 South County Road 1211, will observe its annual Thanksgiving services Sunday.

The Rev. Robert Kepple will bring the morning "Thanksgiving Message" at 11 a.m. the public is invited to come and worship and remain for a traditional thanksgiving dinner which includes turkey and dressing, ham and all the trimmings. The members are asked to bring a dessert.

Sunday School for all ages begins at 9:45 a.m.

Other services are 7 p.m. Sundays and Wednesdays.

For a ride to any of the activities of the church call Ben Hart, 684-3009. For more information call the church office, 697-4471.

The candlelight service of thanksgiving will include music, sharing and meditation. All are invited to attend.

■ ODESSA — Redeemer Lutheran Church of Joy, 824 E. 18th St., is holding a Thanksgiving Eve worship service at 7 p.m. Wednesday.

The public is invited to attend.

New location

The Reformed Presbyterian Church is moving to a new location on South Midland Drive.

The church will begin meeting Sunday at 4404 Comanche, behind the 7-11 store. Sunday School for all ages begins at 9:45 a.m. with worship services at 11 a.m. and 6:30 p.m. Sundays.

The Rev. Van Camp, pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian Church of Midland, is beginning a new series of sermons Sunday evening on Contemporary Issues and the Word of God.

Wednesday evening Bible Study continues at the new location at 7:30 p.m. The subject is the Life of Christ.

Church anniversary

Greater St. Luke African Methodist Episcopal Church, 401 S. Adams St., will celebrate its 68th anniversary at 3:30 p.m. Sunday.

The Rev. N.H. Franklin of Bethel AME Church, Lubbock, will deliver the anniversary message.

In 1928, the Rev. H.Y. Taylor, an African Methodist minister, organized Greater St. Luke in the home of Mrs. Lillie Anderson. The early place of worship was a 'brush arbor," a make-shift shelter made of poles supporting a roof of reed and brush.

The organized church became a part of the 209-year-old African Methodist Episcopal Connection.

The first building of Greater St. Luke was a small adobe structure on Lee Street. Later, under the pastorate of the Rev. G.A. Lowe, no deceased, the present edifice was built. Addition to it was made in 1963.

All African Methodist Episcopal churches are under the jurisdiction of the presiding bishop, who appoints itinerant elders to their charges. during the 68 years Greater St. Luke has had 18 pastors, all of whom contributed to the physical and spiritual growth of the church.

Mrs. Beulah Battles, the only living founder, will be recognized Sunday. The Rev. Hadley Edwards, pastor of Hollowell United Methodist Church, will serve as emcee. The church's pastor, the Rev. I.C. Cooper, Jr., and the membership invite the public to attend.

World AIDS Day

Midland Area AIDS Support, Inc., will join people all over the world in celebrating World AIDS Day with a worship and remembrance service. The local event is set for 7 p.m. Dec. 1 in First Presbyterian Church, 800 W. Texas.

This year's theme is "One World, One Hope."

MAAS president, the Rev. Richard Braun of First Presbyterian Church, will officiate. He will be joined by guest speakers Mayor Bobby Burns, the Rev. K.C. Blackketter of Bethel United Methodist Church, the Rev. Bill Pennington of First Christian Church, and Gary Kincaid of Clover House.

Soloists will include Marcy Faris, who sang at the recent MAAS concert with opera singer Julie Keim.

infected 18 million adults and 1.5 million children, according to the London-based The National AIDS Trust. World AIDS Day, coordinated internationally by the World Health Organization, focuses on awareness and prevention of the disease.

"Education is needed, especially for women and teenagers who are the ones becoming infected now. They will be the ones suffering and dying in our future," Ms. Warren said.

She said the Midland World AIDS Day event will remember those who have died of AIDS and those who are living with AIDS.

The public is invited to attend.

Family festival

Trinity Presbyterian Church's Advent Family Festival will be held from 4:00 to 7:30 p.m. today.

Family crafts opportunities will include Advent wreaths, calendars, and Christmas cards. A chili supper will be served at 5:15 p.m.; please call the church office at 682-2514 for reservations. You are also invited to participate in a "Cookie Exchange" - bring a dozen cookies to share and two dozen to trade.

"Christ is King" is the title of Rev. Dr. Fane Downs' sermon for the 10:55 a.m. Worship Service this Sunday at Trinity. Sunday School is at 9:30 a.m. and has classes for 18 months through adult.

A service of prayer and Holy Communion is held each morning at 7 a.m.

Trinity's choir will join those of First Presbyterian and Grace Presbyterian churches in the Midland Presbyterian Service of Thanksgiving to be hosted by Grace Presbyterian at 10 a.m. Thanksgiving Day. The Rev. Jim Houston-Hencken, associate pastor at First Presbyterian Church, will deliver the sermon. Child care will be provided for ages 5 and under.

Old-time revival

Cotton Flat Baptist Church, 6409 S. Highway 349, invites the public to attend "Old-Fashioned Revival Days" at 7 p.m. today and 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday.

Evangelists are Bill and Vicky Murphy of Irving. They have ministered throughout the Southwest. Vicky has been a special guest of the "700 Club."

A nursery will be provided during each service. The public is invited to attend.

Inquirers Class

The Inquirers Class at First Presbyterian Church continues Sundays in November during the 9:45 a.m. Sunday School hour.

The class, which is for visitors and new members, is taught by the Rev. Dr. Jerry Hilton and selected FPC elders. The course is an introduction to First Presbyterian and Presbyterian theology and polity.

Bible study

The Downtown Bible Study has announced a new study series on Tuesdays.

The study, "Growing in Godly Womanhood," based on Titus 2, will be taught by Pat Eaves. All women are invited to attend the Bible studies which meet from noon to 12:50 p.m. Tuesdays at 312 E. Illinois Ave., Suite 6.

Parents group

The Family Ministry of Golf Course Road Church of Christ has started SHARE, a support group for parents who have lost children through miscarriage, stillbirth or infant death.

The meetings, designed to offer compassionate support through group sessions and individual contact, also provides crises intervention, hospital visits and a lending library. Scheduled group meetings will be held the second Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. in Room 16 of the main building of the church.

The non-denominational, nonprofit SHARE began in 1977 in Springfield, Ill., and has grown to 240 chapters internationally.

For more information call Tim or Dena Baugh, 697-5154, or Cleon or Sheila Dowlen, 530-0898.

The Junior League of Midland, Inc.
Festival of Trees
"A Dickens of a Holiday" welcomes
JOE SCRUGGS
to the Children's "Cobblestone Corner"

9 a.m. - 10 a.m. Saturday, November 23rd
Tickets go on sale 8:30 a.m. at door.

Singer, Joe Scruggs, a four-time Parents Choice Awards winner, will perform 9 a.m. - 10 a.m. at Midland Center. Following the concert, a "Dickens" of a good time will be had by all who enjoy the full day of children's activities at "Cobblestone Corner" from 10 a.m. - 5 p.m. Santa will be on hand for photos from 10 a.m until noon for $1.00. The "Festival" to view and bid on uniquely decorated trees, wreaths and gingerbread houses will surround the days activities. Bidding closes at 5 p.m.
"The Curiosity Shoppes," merchants from far and near, will be open 10 a.m. - 6 p.m. for your holiday gift shopping.
Admission prices include ALL activities of the day.

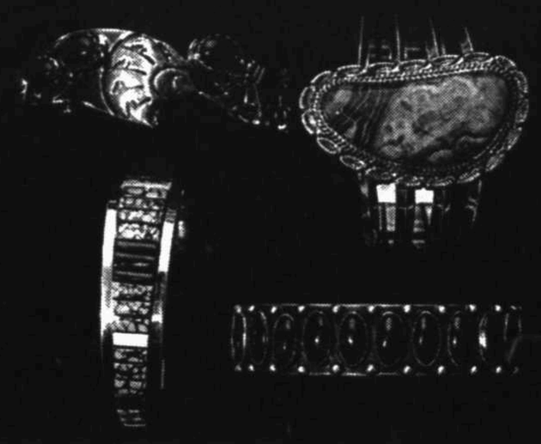

Adults $3.00 Children $2.00

The Festival of Trees is a project of the Junior League of Midland, Inc.
Proceeds are returned to the community through its community projects.

STORM TRACKER

FACTS

Today will be the mildest day for a while as a strong arctic cold front will blast through the Permian Basin later tonight. Daytime highs will fall into the 30s and 40s with nighttime lows dropping into the 20s. If that forecast pans out, the Permian Basin could be looking at the first hard freeze of the season. Be sure to bundle up and take care of outdoor plants and pets late this weekend.

ROAD TO A TITLE, PART II

Area round reunion: Rebels travel to El Paso Socorro

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

LEE
Midland Lee vs. El Paso Socorro

EL PASO — Coach Jim Carson's El Paso Socorro Bulldogs gave Midland Lee a playoff scare in the area round a year ago, losing by only two points to the Rebels, and as happens many times in the playoff draw, the two teams draw each other again today.

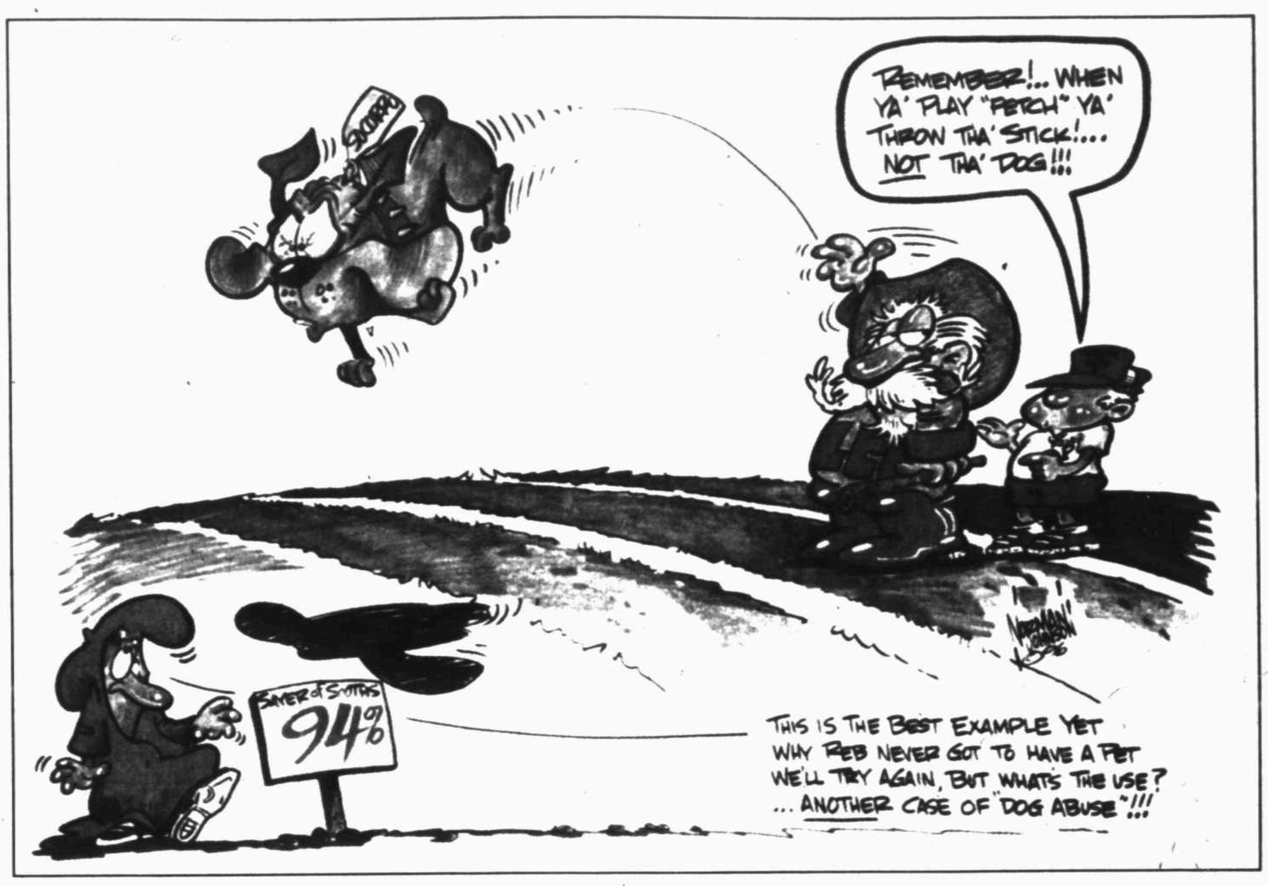

Lee was forced to travel to El Paso this year since Socorro played in Midland last year. Now the Bulldogs have Lee on the home turf at the Socorro Complex, just north off I-20 at the Avenue of the Americas.

Carson feels like playing at home is a lot better than having to meet Lee in Midland, but he doesn't feel it will make the job any easier. In fact, he fears Lee may be better than ever.

"I was talking with Jerry Millsapps (former Odessa High coach and now athletic director in El Paso) the other day and he felt like this Lee team is better than the 1983 team when they went to the state finals," Carson said. "They are like a bunch of sharks, and when they smell blood, they go after it on defense.

"You think of a big play team as a passing team, but they make the big plays on defense and they are a big play team. The Pertile brothers (Corry and Fred),

Jones wins decision

TAMPA, Fla. — Mike McCallum, one of the best fighters of the 1980s, met Roy Jones Jr., one of the best of the '90s, and Jones proved beyond a doubt Friday night this is no longer McCallum's time.
Jones won every round on the cards of all three judges and won the vacant WBC light heavyweight championship. The 27-year-old Jones was just too fast for McCallum, who will turn 40 on Dec. 7.
The unbeaten Jones hit McCallum with two- and three-punch combinations, right-hand leads and counters and left hooks almost whenever he wanted to.
Jones, who also holds the IBF super welterweight title, became a champion for the third time. He also has held the IBF middleweight crown.
Jones knocked McCallum down at the bell ending the 10th round with a left hook to the body and a right to the jaw.

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer

It was a different scenario, but unfortunately for Midland College it was the same old result against Barton County (Kan.) College Friday night.

Hoping to avenge an 79-56 loss just six days previously against the Cougars, the Chaparrals got close but no cigar in a 76-72 loss to BC in the second day of the Chap Shootout at Chaparral Center. This despite 28 points by Ceedric Goodwyn.

The Cougars (7-1) used a strong defense, a good showing from the free-throw line, and they controlled the boards, 30-20, in escaping from a determined Chap squad.

Barton County coach Steven Forbes was just relieved to leave Chap Center with a win.

"Give Midland a lot of credit. They threw everything at us. Tthey had a couple of chances to get back into the game and they did," Forbes said. "I give a lot of credit to Pat Rafferty, he's a great coach and people have got to be patient in college basketball. You don't things around overnight. I think they're going to win a lot of games."

Rafferty knew that this game was one that got away.

Davie appears to be closing in on Irish vacancy

By Nancy Armour
AP Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Bob Davie, defensive coordinator under Lou Holtz, needs only final approval from the university president before being named Notre Dame's new football coach, The Associated Press learned Friday. An official announcement could come this weekend.

Athletic director Mike Wadsworth said a three-person search committee had made a recommendation to Notre Dame president, the Rev. Edward Malloy. He refused to say who that was, but two university sources confirmed that it was Davie.

Holtz announced Tuesday he was stepping down after 11 seasons as Irish head coach.

The candidate will get a five-year contract, Wadsworth said.

A formal announcement was not made Friday afternoon because Malloy still needed to meet with the committee's choice. But Wadsworth said Malloy did not express any reservations when he was given the recommendation.

Lady Dawgs knock out Seminole

Midland High	63

If it had been a fight, the Midland High girls' basketball team would have been declared a winner by TKO.

The Lady Dawgs surrendered the first basket of the game, but that was about the only time they found themselves in trouble against Seminole. Midland High ran off 18 straight points and held Seminole scoreless for approximately one quarter en route to an easy 63-29 victory at the Midland High gym.

It was one of those games which had nothing but positive angles for the Lady Dawgs (5-2), who were never seriously threatened after the first quarter and could experiment with a wide variety of players practically at will most of the game. All but two of the 13 players who played for Midland High ended up in the scoring column.

Rebels capture home opener

By Tom Ruiz
MRT Corrrespondent

The Midland Lee Rebels were only playing in their third game of the season and it showed as they finally shook loose of the El Paso Bel Air Highlanders, 78-62, at the Lee gym Friday night.

The Rebels (3-0), who were led by Robert House's 22 points, lacked the killer instict to put the Highlanders in the grave. Midway through the third quarter, the Rebels held a 46-31 lead on Bel Air.

The Rebels then went stone cold, missing eight of nine shots. Their cold shooting enabled the Highlanders (4-2) to get back in the game as they outscored Lee 13-5 to climb within seven, 51-44.

But when Lee needed a bucket, they went to House, who was driliing three-pointers like nobody's business, in all hitting seven in the game.

Bulldogs run over El Paso Hanks

By Lee Passmore
Sports Writer

As much fun as the Midland High boys basketball team might have had opening its season on the road, it showed Friday night that the Bulldogs were sure glad to be home.

Midland High opened the season with two relatively easy wins at last weekend's Del Rio Shootout, and came back home to show its stuff in front of a partisan crowd in its home gym against El Paso Hanks. The home folks didn't leave disappointed as the Bulldogs beat Hanks 78-65 in a game which wasn't quite as close as the score indicated.

In improving to 3-0, Midland High was in control most of the way, only briefly falling behind by a point after a lull early in the second quarter and building the lead over 20 points on occasions in the second half.

Overall, Bulldog coach Jack Stephenson found the win his team's most satisfying so far this season.

"This is the best team in El Paso," Stephenson said of Hanks. "It was a nice win. The kids played hard and I like to see them diving for balls."

It's questionable whether or not that energy level can carry over into the Bulldogs' next game, which is scheduled to start less than 12 hours after Friday night's

Bonilla gets $23.3M deal with Marlins

By Evan Perez
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — For Bobby Bonilla, Jim Leyland made all the difference.

With several teams interested in him, Bonilla decided on the Florida Marlins because he wanted to play for Leyland, the new Marlins manager.

"He's a father figure for myself," Bonilla said Friday after agreeing to a $23.3 million, four-year contract. "He taught me a lot about the game."

Leyland, who was in Pittsburgh on Friday preparing for his move to Florida, said he always appreciated Bonilla's work ethic during their six seasons in Pittsburgh.

"It's great to be reunited with Bobby," he said. "He and I have always had a great relationship."

Bonilla, who turns 34 in February, fills several of the Marlins' needs. He's a switch-hitter who will bat behind Gary Sheffield, whose 142 walks last season were second in the NL. And Bonilla is coming off his best season since 1990: .287 with 28 homers and 116 RBIs for the Baltimore Orioles.

"We had a problem with people pitching around Sheffield," Marlins general manager Dave Dombrowski said. "Now, they'll be pitching to Bobby Bo."

The Marlins also wanted a third baseman and either a left fielder or a first baseman. Bonilla can play all three positions, though Dombrowski said he will most likely stick to third base.

"As long as I'm not DH-ing I don't have a problem," Bonilla said, joking.

After starting last season as the Orioles' DH, the career .284 hitter slumped until he was moved to right field full-time.

Dombrowski said Florida was pleased with the financial terms of Bonilla's contract. The team sought Albert Belle, then went after Bonilla when Belle signed a $55 million, five-year deal with the Chicago

Red Raiders shoot down Southern Miss

By Mark Babineck
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK — Cory Carr and Tony Battie made their expected solid debuts at the focus of the new-look Texas Tech Red Raiders. Freshman point guard Rayford Young's impressive splash was decidedly unexpected.

Carr scored a career high 29 points with eight assists while Battie added 17 points and 10 rebounds, but it was young Young that made the most noteworthy impression Saturday night in the Raiders' 96-79 victory over Southern Mississippi.

Carr, Tech's sixth man for last season's 30-2 "Sweet 16" team, led all scorers for Tech (1-0),

Lee falls one point short at Ozona

Staff Report

OZONA — Midland Lee had itself in excellent position to win the game but fell short in a 45-44 loss to the two-time defending Class 2A state champion Ozona in girls basketball action here Friday night.

Trailing 45-44, the Lady Rebel defense stopped Ozona and then played out the clock waiting for a final game-winning shot. Lee got three tries at the shot but all three fell short.

Jennifer Aman hit a three-point goal with a minute to play to pull the Lady Rebels (2-2 overall) to within the final margin.

"It was a great game," Lee coach Elisa Kail said. "We played excellent defense and showed a lot of will power.

"We thought we had it won," Kail said. "There wasn't any doubt we could have won. It is tough going into a 2A court where the whole town is there (but) it was a good experience for us. Ozona is 79-4 in the last two years. So I'd say we played them good."

Senior Nisha Washington led the Lady Rebels with 13 points while junior Tamika Thurman contributed 10. Amber Tarr had 15 for Ozona while Shelley Sullivan had 10.

Lee travels to Lubbock Monterey Tuesday for a 6 p.m. game.

win over Hanks. Midland High will face El Paso Bel Air at 9 a.m. today in the Chaparral Center. Bel Air came to town Friday and lost to Midland Lee, which will play Hanks in the 11 a.m. game.

With such an early start, it's unlikely that the Bulldogs will receive the enthusiastic reception they got against Hanks. They jumped out to a 12-1 lead which included three-point goals by Treg Manning and Jon Stephenson. Midland High then suffered its only letdown of the game, giving up nine straight points after building a 20-12 lead.

After Manny Flores hit a pair of free throws to give Hanks a 21-20 lead with 7:04 left in the second quarter, Stephenson answered with another trey which gave Midland High the lead and the momentum permanently. The Bulldogs led by as many as 16 points in the first half and led 42-28 at halftime.

That's where Kirby Lemons took over. Midland High's junior center and leading scorer anticipated a lazy pass at the top of the key and went the length of the court for a dunk to start the second half. Lemons went on to score the Bulldogs' first 11 points of the second half and finished with a game-high 24.

"The crowd was behind us from the beginning," Lemons said. I felt I could get them more hyped with a big play and I was in the right place at the right time."

It was that kind of night for the Bulldogs, who seemed to do a little of everything right. They hit eight three-pointers, including three by Jon Stephenson, who had 11 points along with Charles Tatum.

"I thought we controlled the boards and we controlled the tempo of the game but we could have done things better," said Jack Stephenson. "I was disappointed they took the ball away from our guards a few times in the halfcourt offense."

REBS: House fires in seven three-pointers

(From 1C)

Air trimmed the Lee lead to six points, 55-49. House then put the Rebels on his shoulders. House nailed three three-point bombs in a row to pull Lee away for its third win of the season.

Lee coach Jon House, however, was not too happy with his team's level of intensity.

"We'd go ahead pretty good, then we'd go into a lapse. Maybe we were trying to play too aggresive," he said.

The Rebels, however, were without the services of Josh Norman, Antwan Alexander and Corry Pertile, who are all on the Lee football team which plays El Paso Socorro in El Paso today.

House pointed out that his team needs to learn to jell with whose on the squad now. "We need to mesh with who we have now, and then worry about the other guys when they get here," he said.

Matt Meyer was second in scoring honors for Lee with 13 points, while John Purvus pumped in 11.

The Rebels will be back in action this morning when they host El Paso Hanks at Chaparral Center at 11 a.m. Midland High will meet these same Highlanders at 9 a.m. in a Chap double dip.

Lee travels to Lubbock Monterey Tuesday and then they are off to the Jack Frost tournament in Georgetown next Friday and Saturday.

In a sub-varsity game between the Lee freshman squads, the Lee maroon beat Lee white 56-46. Lupe Gordea led the maroon with 14 points while Matt Segulga pumped in 18 for the Lee white.

MHS: Belcher throws in game-high 16

(From 1C)

An indication of how well things went was that the Lady Dawgs still easily won despite the fact that starting point guard Jodie Mitchell was one of the two players who didn't score. Indeed, you had to dig to find many negatives for Midland High.

"I think we did some good things and the kids are finally coming out and going after it," said Midland High coach Jim Raughton. "All I can ask for is a good effort and we got that."

Seminole's highlight for the game came when Trish Ratliff scored on a layup to make it 2-0. Everything from then on belonged to the Lady Dawgs and after Kim Paschall hit a short jumper to give Midland High a 4-2 lead, they never trailed again.

The score was only 9-8 late in the first quarter when the Lady Dawgs took over the game for good. They went on an 18-0 run which extended well into the second quarter and after Talitha Belcher, who had a game-high 16 points, scored on a layup with 3:14 left in the first half, Midland High led 27-8. Seminole finally broke the spell on a three-point shot by Misty Day, but it was far too late.

During the scoreless run, Seminole simply couldn't handle the backcourt press applied by Midland High's active defense.

"There's no doubt our pressure bothered them," Raughton said.

The Lady Dawgs led 31-12 at halftime and scored the first eight points of the second half sparked by Belcher. Kristi Cornelius hit two free throws to open the scoring, then Belcher scored three straight baskets to stretch the lead to 39-12 and put the game away.

Belcher, one of four players on the roster who got a late start due to volleyball commitments, scored 10 points in the second half.

"Talitha stepped it up," Raughton said. "She's got her basketball legs back."

Belcher, in fact, was the only player in the game to score in double figures.

Midland won even though two players were missing from the roster. Senior Shelly Ray is no longer with the team, while senior post Deborah Landreth was on a trip to Washington, D.C. yet will return to the team.

Florida defeats Dallas on late shorthanded goal

DALLAS (AP) — Jody Hull's shorthanded goal with 4.8 seconds left in overtime lifted the Florida Panthers to a 2-1 victory over the Dallas Stars on Friday night in a battle of two of the hottest teams in the NHL.

All the scoring came in the third period and overtime.

Bill Lindsay of the Panthers broke up a scoreless game with 15:12 left in regulation before Greg Adams scored the tying goal for the Stars with 8:20 remaining.

The Stars went on a power play with 1:03 to play in overtime, but Bill Lindsay picked up a loose puck after a mistake by Dallas defenseman Sergei Zubov and skated in on Stars goaltender Andy Moog.

Moog came out to stop Lindsay's shot. But the puck bounced to Hull, who was 25 feet away and he scored his third goal of the season into the open net vacated by Moog.

Lindsay first sent the Panthers ahead when he went hard to the net and flipped Radek Dvorak's centering pass over Moog for his fourth goal. Dvorak has at least one point in eight straight games.

But Adams countered with his 11th, beating John Vanbiesbrouck from the slot. Vanbiesbrouck finished with 29 saves and improved to 10-2-3 this season. Moog, the NHL's victory leader among active goaltenders with 337, made 25 stops in dropping to 11-5-1.

Florida, the Atlantic Division leader with a 13-3-5 record, is 5-2-1 in its last eight games. Dallas, still on top in the Central Division, is 4-2-1 in its last seven games and 14-7-1 overall.

The Stars had two apparent goals disallowed by referee Don Van Massenhoven.

Adams knocked in a rebound on a scramble in front of the net with 10:33 remaining, but Van Massenhoven ruled that he had blown the whistle before the puck entered the net.

The Stars also thought they scored the game's first goal with 1:46 left in the second period when Mike Modano backhanded a loose puck over Vanbiesbrouck. But Van Massenhoven consulted the video replay judge and waved off the goal because Adams was in the crease and the game remained scoreless entering the third period.

Moog needed to be on top of his game early as Florida held a 13-1 first-period shots-on-goal advantage and gave Dallas little open ice. Dallas dominated in the second period, outshooting the Panthers 15-5.

The Panthers lost center Rob Niedermayer in the first period to a sprained knee ligament.

Midland teams win in tourney

GREENWOOD — Midland won three games Friday in the Greenwood Freshman-JV tournament.

Lee Maroon freshman took a 58-20 win over Greenwood to go to 7-0 for the year as Rochelle Warren had 24 and Danielle Dickey 12 points. Lee Maroon will play the MHS sophs at 2:15 p.m. today.

Midland Freshman defeated Greenwood's Freshman B-Team 71-5. Meredith Meyers had 12 points while Terri Meldrum and Rebecca Nobles each had 10. They will play again today in the consolation bracket at 9 a.m.

The Midland High sophomores took a 55-37 win over the Rankin JV as Jodi Faulkner had 12 points, Jenni Crawford 10 and Skye Farris 10. They play Lee freshman today.

In Thursday's action, Allison Newton scored 16 points as the Midland Lee junior varsity girls scored a 52-29 victory over Lamesa in the first round of the tournament. Valerie Morgan added a double-double for the Lady Rebels with 10 points and 10 rebounds. She also had two steals.

Lee played the winner of Big Spring-Midland JV on Friday but the results were not known at presstime.

Lee White girls top Midland White

Michelle Byrd scored 10 points while Leslie Shive had 10 rebounds to lead Lee White to a 47-29 victory Friday over Midland White in freshman girls basketball action.

Susan Scarborough had six points to lead Midland White.

Sidewinders advance to state

ARLINGTON — Midlander Amanda Wagner took three first-place finishes to finish second in the all-around competition in the North State Gymnastics Meet here last weekend.

With their strong showing, Wagner, Teri John and Laura Newman — who live in Midland but represent the Big Spring Sidewinders YMCA Team — all qualified for the Texas State Championships to be held Dec. 7-8 in Fort Worth.

Wagner, competing in the Level 7, age 7-8 division, took first in the bars, beam and floor while finishing third in the vault for an all-around score of 33.225 points.

Newman, in Level 7, 11-year-olds, finished third in the bars and took fifth in the all-around with a score of 34.15. John, in Level 6, 11-year-olds, was 10th in the bars and 20th in the all-around with 34.35.

our intensity at either end of the court. We went through a couple of stretches where we just went brain dead. They beat us on the dribble too much and forced us to have to rotate. We've got to get where we're not in that position," Rafferty said.

The Chaps (5-3) started out hot as they stormed out to a 7-2 lead, that included two buckets by Goodwyn. The Cougars bounced back, however, forcing the Chaps to turn the ball over and receiving some strong inside play by Ray Hunt, who came off the bench to finish with 25 points on the night. BC would close out the half with a 15-2 run courtesy of some good outside shooting. BC finished the half shooting 46 percent, while MC shot a chilling 37 percent from the field.

"When we go brain dead offensively, don't convert, and turn the ball over, things just kind of snowballed," Rafferty said. "We had a couple of stretches where we got into some sludge. They bumped it up on us and we battled back and the same thing transpired in the second half."

The Cougars bumped it up to 41-27 early in the second half until the Chaps went on a 12-0 run, behind Todd Jones' eight points. Jones would finish the game with 13 after scoring 25 in the 90-51 win over Lamar College on Thursday night.

Barton County would once again start to run away from the Chaps late in the game behind Jarrod Childers' seven straight points for a 59-49 lead. Childers would finish with 11 points in the game.

Once again, led by Goodwyn, Jones and Edward Kirk, the Chaps battled back and cut it to 72-68 with less than a minute left in the game until the Cougars put the game away at the charity stripe.

With all the indications the Chaps are showing on the court, the offense appears to be strong but there is still plenty of work to do on the defensive side.

"Our team defense isn't going to get any better until individually we get better. Because our weak defensive links always get exposed," Rafferty said. "I think we have some guys out there that we have to have because of their offense, they've just got to get better play defensively."

There are still plenty of bright spots for the Chaps, however, as the team is showing much promise in the young season.

"We just have to get better in our consistency and our effort," Rafferty said. "We also need to improve on finishing off our shots, not turning the ball over too much and we got out-rebounded and that's a direct correlation to us not finishing off our shots."

Midland College hopes to regroup at 8 p.m. tonight when it takes on Mesa (Ariz.) Community College in the Shootout finale.

In other action from earlier in day, Odessa College downed Mesa 89-71. Nathaniel Bailey led the Wranglers with 19, Kjvestin Fountain had 18, William Mayfield chipped in 16, Quarry Johnson had 14 and Ron Banks chipped in with 10. Dan Hartnett led the Thunderbirds with a game-high 20 points.

Howard College was also a winner as the Hawks defeated Lamar College 113-89. Howard's Will Jones led all scorers with 27, Jack Owens added 19, Clifton Cook with 18, Elmer Brown had 13, and Samuel Maroney chipped in 12 for the Hawks. Donald Harris led the Runnin' Lopes with 25.

End can't come soon enough for Sooners

By Owen Canfield
AP Sports Writer

NORMAN, Okla. — While Oklahoma coach John Blake is eager to play Saturday's season-ending game against Texas Tech, it is what follows that excites him even more.

"I'm just looking forward to going out, getting this behind us, winning this game and the recruiting," he said. "I'm looking forward to getting our guys in ... seeing our guys execute with a more familiar idea of what we want to get done, what it takes to get done."

The Sooners haven't gotten much done this year, Blake's first as head coach. They enter Saturday's game with a record of 3-7, assured of their first losing season since 1965, and are trying to avoid becoming the first Oklahoma team ever to lose eight games.

There have been some improvements during the course of the year and some reasons to be encouraged, such as De'Mond Parker's 1,000-yard season and improved play by the defense.

But continued breakdowns on special teams and the lack of a clear starter at quarterback are among the many concerns for Blake's staff.

"Do we have a position on this team that's safe to say is locked up? I can't say there's a position locked up," he said.

Texas Tech has no such problems. The Red Raiders may have the best running back in the country in Byron Hanspard, who comes into this game with an even 2,000 yards. The Red Raiders (6-4, 4-3 Big 12) also have an experienced quarterback and a good dose of veteran players throughout the lineup.

Oklahoma has had to rely on youth in many areas. The depth chart includes 17 freshmen or redshirt freshmen, and 39 players have seen their first-ever playing time this season.

"It's been a very strange season, but it's been expected," Blake said. "We're patching things together. We're trying to get players on the field, we're trying to get players who can play, we're trying to do things to limit mistakes that we make in a game."

The most glaring mistakes have been on special teams, whether giving up long kickoff returns or getting punts blocked or missing field goals. The Sooners have used different people and different alignments without much improvement.

They have used different personnel on offense as well, namely at quarterback. Eric Moore has reemerged as the starter after losing the job to Justin Fuente early in the year.

Moore brings more experience to the position than Fuente and is more mobile, although that doesn't mean Fuente won't play Saturday.

"You get two young guys like this and they're going to have their ups and downs. That's just the way it is," offensive coordinator Dick Winder said. "It's just fact, and we've got to do what we think's best for the football team."

Winder is very familiar with Texas Tech. He came to Oklahoma this year after spending a dozen years as a Red Raider assistant coach, the last nine as offensive coordinator.

He dismissed any suggestion that his knowledge of Tech's personnel could somehow give the Sooners an advantage Saturday.

"What people don't realize is basically you've got about three days to practice and get ready for people," he said. "And this late in the season, I don't know that that makes that much difference. People are going to do what they've done best all year long."

BYU's Edwards is no numerophobic with NCAA's top passer on board

By Bob Mims
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY — You couldn't blame LaVell Edwards for being a bit phobic when it comes to the number "34."

During a 3-year slide against arch-rival Utah, eighth-ranked Brigham Young lost 34-31 in both 1993 and 1994, and 34-17 last year.

Still, Edwards insists: "I haven't even thought about it."

If it was anyone but the notoriously good-natured, grandfatherly 25th-year coach of the Cougars, you might be tempted to check his proboscis for new growth.

But as BYU (10-1 overall, 7-0 Western Athletic Conference) prepared for Saturday's showdown with Utah (8-2, 6-1) for the WAC's Mountain Division title, Edwards was convinced the Cougars could counter any Utes-cast numerological hex this time around.

"There's not a psychological thing for us with Utah winning three in a row," said the coach, who enters the game on a nine-victory streak. "We've got a better ball club than last year, more experienced.

"(Quarterback) Steve Sarkisian has really had a great year, with the addition of (running backs) Brian McKenzie and Ronney Jenkins, and development of Dustin Johnson's running and blocking."

While Sarkisian has thrown for 3,707 yards and 32 touchdowns to become the NCAA's top quarterback, McKenzie, Jenkins and Johnson have powered a BYU rushing attack garnering 189 ypg.

Itula Mili leads both the Cougars' receivers and the nation's tight ends with 45 receptions for 688 yards and three touchdowns. Wide receivers K.O. Kealaluhi (43-839-8) and Kaipo McGuire (39-629-5) are other primary Sarkisian targets, while Johnson has added a key 23 catches, 395 yards and three TDs out of the backfield.

The winner of Saturday's matchup in Rice Stadium faces Pacific Division winner Wyoming for the WAC crown on Dec. 7 in Las Vegas.

"In the long history of Utah football, this has got to rate as one of the biggest games ever played because there are so many ramifications," Utes coach Ron McBride said. "This is what college football is all about.

"Right now all we're concentrating on is beating BYU. We're not worrying about anything else. This is where we wanted to be from the start of the season: Playing BYU for the championship."

Just in time, McBride returns 275-pound running back Chris Fuamatu-Ma'afala, who had missed the last three games recovering from arthroscopic surgery on his right knee. In four starts prior to his operation, the tackle-busting sophomore had averaged 172.5 ypg.

Fuamatu-Ma'afala's return gives the Utes a potent one-two punch out of the backfield, where Juan Johnson, averaging 4.7 yards per carry, has been keeping opponents' pass defenses honest.

"Fuamatu-Ma'afala will make a big difference," Edwards admitted. "Juan Johnson's a great running back, but when you've got the two of them out there, that helps carry the load."

Utah also starts a decent quarterback of its own in Mike Fouts. The senior has twice been named WAC Player of the Week and has had five 300-yard passing games. On the season, Fouts has thrown for 2,347 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Kevin Dyson, with 46 catches, 734 yards and seven TDs, leads Utes' receivers.

"You're looking at two very good football teams," Edwards said. "Utah was the preseason (WAC) favorite, and rightfully so.

"There really are quite a lot of similarities between the two teams, now that we're running the ball better," he added. "Both have good defenses, both have good special teams players."

Las Vegas oddsmakers make the Cougars six-point favorites, and McBride readily accepts the underdog role.

"They are as good as anybody in the country right now, I'd say from No. 3 (in The Associated Press Top 25 poll) on down," he said. "We're glad to be playing at home.... For us to have a shot at these guys, we need all the advantages we can get."

And, as for his team's love affair with 34 point totals against BYU? McBride doesn't count on a repeat.

"Hey, I'll just feel better if we get one more point they they get," he said.

Oklahoma State looks to break losing streak at season's end

By Jean Pagel
Associated Press Writer

STILLWATER, Okla. — Baylor treats its season finale at Oklahoma State as a jump-start on 1997 because so many young players will be on the field, Bears coach Chuck Reedy said.

"It's one of those seasons that you get to this point and you know you're looking to next year," Reedy said. "Basically, our approach to this game is it's the first game of next season."

Oklahoma State (4-6, 1-6 Big 12) hopes to end a three-game losing streak and climb out of the cellar of the conference's southern division. Baylor (4-6, 1-6) also has lost three in a row, including a 49-42 defeat by Missouri in triple overtime last Saturday.

"Certainly this has been a tough week coming off of a very emotional loss," Reedy said. "I don't think I've ever been in a game that's such an emotional roller coaster."

Heat is on for Baylor's Reedy

By Denne H. Freeman
AP Sports Writer

WACO — There were signs outside of Floyd Casey Stadium last weekend suggesting the Baylor Bears would be better off without football coach Chuck Reedy.

The heat is on for the four-year coach whose talent for recruiting excellent players has yet to be matched by on-field performance.

"I signed a five-year contract at Baylor and I expect to honor it and I expect Baylor to honor it," Reedy said. "Nobody at Baylor has mentioned anything to me to the contrary."

Athletic director Tom Stanton says he will review the Baylor football program after the season is over.

On Saturday, the Bears lost 49-42 in a chilling triple overtime game with Missouri to drop Baylor to 4-6 with no hopes for a bowl going into their last game against Oklahoma State.

The Bears are 23-21 under Reedy which means they are a plus-.500 team no matter what happens in Stillwater, Okla.

Baylor is still a young team as witnessed by who was playing in the second half against the Tigers. Half the players on the field were freshmen.

So, Reedy would like to stay around next year to see the fruits of his recruiting labors.

"Next year we will have a much more mature senior class," he said. "We will have 15 or 16 guys who will be fifth-year seniors. This year we had two."

He says, correctly, that it takes time to build a college football program particularly at a private school like Baylor which has to fight the more established state schools for players.

He feels he has made great progress, recruiting good players, maintaining a disciplined program, and graduating players at a rate which is third best in the nation.

He would like to have an opportunity to see his first recruiting class graduate.

Such success that Gary Barnett has shown at Northwestern is an exception to the rule, Reedy said.

"He came up with a good team in four years," Reedy said. "You can't find any other coaches who built a program that fast."

Reedy is hoping his hotshot recruiting star Odell James will be able to play next year. James underwent reconstructive knee surgery last week and his recovery time was expected to be from six to eight weeks.

The Bears could use his talent at quarterback where Baylor was unsettled all season.

Despite this year's problems, Reedy said he's confident he will be coaching Baylor again next year.

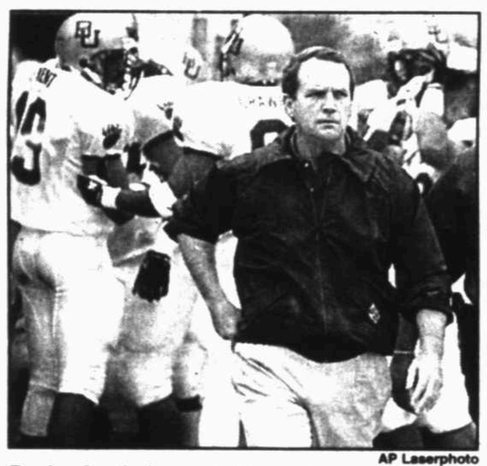

"I don't have any concerns about it," Reedy said. "Maybe I'm naive or something. But I feel at peace. I feel what we are doing is right."

Reedy could use a break,but his schedule next year certainly doesn't offer one. No matter who the head coach is, it won't be a cakewalk for Baylor.

Aside from playing Nebraska and other Big 12 toughies, the Bears open the season with the Miami Hurricanes and have a road game to Michigan.

Still, despite the hardships, Reedy could use a kind word from someone in authority at Baylor.

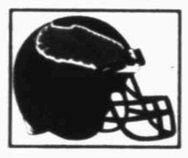

Something like "we want you back next year. We've got confidence you can do the job."

Rice expects tough competition from Tulsa

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Rice coach Ken Hatfield knows Tulsa's weakness is stopping one of his team's great strengths — the run. But the Golden Hurricane will bring its own weapon to Houston on Saturday, he says.

It's coach Dave Rader.

"When openings come up around the country, I give them Rader's name," Hatfield said. "There's nobody who has been as consistent or done as good a job of coaching."

Tulsa (4-6, 2-5 Western Athletic Conference), ranked 104th nationally in rushing defense, certainly cannot leave any openings for the Owls' spread option.

Led by quarterback Chad Nelson, Rice (6-4, 5-2) ranks fifth nationally in rushing offense. Nelson is expected to be 100 percent Saturday after suffering a sprained ankle two games ago.

The Owls already have clinched their first winning season since 1993 and will be trying to break a 1961 record with seven victories.

Tulsa brings the momentum of its 38-21 victory over Texas-El Paso to Houston.

"We're preparing for a well-coached, solid team that ran all over the No. 1 defense in our conference last week at UTEP," Hatfield said. "That gave them a lot of confidence."

But Tulsa has long had trouble stopping the run. It has allowed a 100-yard rusher in nine straight games. Four opposing backs have broken the 200-yard barrier.

Brigham Young win can set up dream WAC showdown

By Whit Canning
c.1996 Fort Worth Star-Telegram

The Showdown: As a season laced with angst over lack of recognition moves to a conclusion, fortune seems to be grinning at the Western Athletic Conference.

If Brigham Young can defeat Utah on Saturday (11:30 a.m., ESPN) in the showdown for the Mountain Division title, the most cherished dream of commissioner Karl Benson will be realized: a championship game Dec. 7 in Las Vegas matching two Top 20 teams with glittering records and made-for-TV offensive credentials.

The Cougars — ranked eighth in The Associated Press poll and seventh in the USA Today-CNN and Coalition polls — are 11-1 and have scored 506 points, most of them with ridiculous ease.

Even LaVell Edwards is forced to admit that, "We got us a pretty good ballclub going right now."

The counterweight is Wyoming (10-1), which recovered from its only loss of the season (to San Diego State) to win the Pacific Division with a 25-24 victory against Colorado State, wiping out an 11-point, fourth-quarter deficit on the road to accomplish the feat.

The Cowboys — ranked 20th, 19th and 20th in the three polls — are averaging 39.9 points per game and are armed with two remarkable weapons.

One is quarterback Josh Wallwork — the nation's total offense leader with 355.6 yards per game — who shrugged off a bum knee to throw for 366 yards against the Rams and direct two fourth-quarter scoring drives.

The other is Marcus Harris, who caught 16 passes for 191 yards last week and is the most prolific receiver in NCAA Division I-A history.

Harris set a WAC record with 1,532 receiving yards this season and has 4,400 career yards, setting a national record. Both totals broke records set by another Cowboys receiver, Ryan Yarborough, who played for Wyoming from 1990-93.

"It is true that we are now set up for the best possible matchup," Benson said, "but it isn't over yet, and we'll just have to wait and see."

There is, of course, a potential fly — actually, a Ute — in the ointment.

Utah (8-2) can also reach Vegas with a victory — and the Utes are playing at home, hold a three-year hex on the Cougars, and expect the return of 275-pound Chris Fuamatu-Ma'afala, who was the WAC's leading rusher before arthroscopic surgery on a knee a month ago.

"He's about 85 percent right now," said Utah coach Ron McBride, "but we're certainly going to have a big chore Saturday.

"I don't think BYU compares with the two Florida schools, but other than that, they can play with anybody in the country."

Alliance prospects: Benson, however, admitted that even if BYU wins its next two games and finishes 13-1, the bowl alliance is not exactly beckoning.

"Well, I think by now a great many people are probably tired of hearing our defense," Benson said, "but I guess on the positive side, we seem to have gotten the attention of the media and a lot of other people around the country.

"We're getting a lot of positive feedback about WAC football, and there are some things — like the Alabama-Mississippi State result (an Alabama loss) — that we can see as a bonus. But I can't say we're doing anything strategically at the moment.

"There are a couple of weeks left, and we'll see what happens. At the moment, I see the main obstacles (to BYU making the alliance) as being Notre Dame and Penn State, and that does not bode well."

Island brawl: In Hawaii late Saturday, BYU blithely flattened the hapless Rainbows, 45-14, in a game enlivened by a spectacular brawl in the stands.

Among the eventual combatants were Hawaii quarterback Glenn Freitas and Thea vonAppen, wife of the Rainbow Warriors' head coach, Fred vonAppen.

Freitas climbed into the stands to defend his father, who had become involved in an altercation with a group of fans. VonAppen's wife received a split lip trying to break up the fight.

"An absolutely incredible happenstance," Fred vonAppen said. "I have no explanation for it. It was a senseless, mindless type of behavior that escapes my logic."

As for his wife's condition, vonAppen said, "She's OK — she's tough."

There were some, however, whose mind's eye remained firmly fixed on the battle in the arena.

Asked about the incident later, BYU's Edwards replied, "What fight?"

Euphoria in the desert: While stirring deeds and mischief transpired at the top of the standings, the big explosion came from the bottom.

Or, as Nevada-Las Vegas coach Jeff Horton said, "We waited for this for a long, long time."

For Horton and his Rebels, the wait ended as they watched a 35-yard field-goal attempt by San Diego State's Peter Holt drift wide left with 17 seconds to play, preserving a 44-42 victory that snapped the nation's longest losing streak at 12 games.

It also abruptly heaved the Aztecs out of the Pacific Division title picture, handing the outright championship to Wyoming.

It was achieved mainly on the talents of quarterback Jon Denton, a mere broth of a lad who has gradually become a bubbling cauldron.

A redshirt freshman, Denton finished the game with 513 total yards, including 503 in the air on 27 completions in 53 attempts, with four touchdowns.

The yardage totals are NCAA freshman records, breaking the ones Denton set against Wyoming this season. He has also set national freshman records for passing yardage (3,159) and total offense (3,208), and needs two TD passes in his final game to break Danny Wuerffel's freshman record of 22 set in 1993 at Florida.

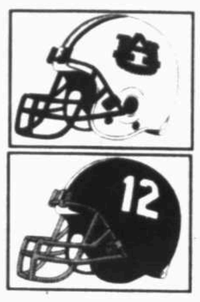

"It was an incredible performance," Horton said, "and it was an incredible game for us.

"We knew this was coming. Everyone has written us off for a month and a half, wondering why we even bothered to show up, but the scores have gotten closer and closer, and I think we hit a turning point last week at TCU when we came back in the fourth quarter.

Tide, Tigers expect to add to memories in Iron Bowl

By Eddie Pells
Associated Press Writer

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — The debate has lingered since last year's Alabama-Auburn game, when referees ruled that Crimson Tide receiver Curtis Brown didn't control the ball on a last-second pass into the Auburn end zone.

Replays and pictures of the play have proved inconclusive.

If it had been ruled a catch, Alabama would have won and enjoyed a much more comfortable offseason. Instead, it was Tigers 31, Tide 27 — one of the most exciting games in the history of the series and the second win in three years for Auburn.

"It's an unbelievable game," Auburn sophomore safety Martavius Houston said of the annual matchup between the rivals. "I'd heard all the talk, but it's really an amazing game. My whole football career, that's the most exciting game I've ever been in. I'm looking forward to it this year."

So are the thousands of people who began camping out near Legion Field early in the week. Scalpers are expected to get $200 or more for tickets, and most of the state will come to a screeching halt Saturday, when No. 15 Alabama (8-2, 5-2 SEC) plays unranked Auburn (7-3, 4-3).

The coaches have spent much of the week trying to keep their players relaxed as they go into a game that always leaves a lasting imprint on Auburn and Alabama fans statewide.

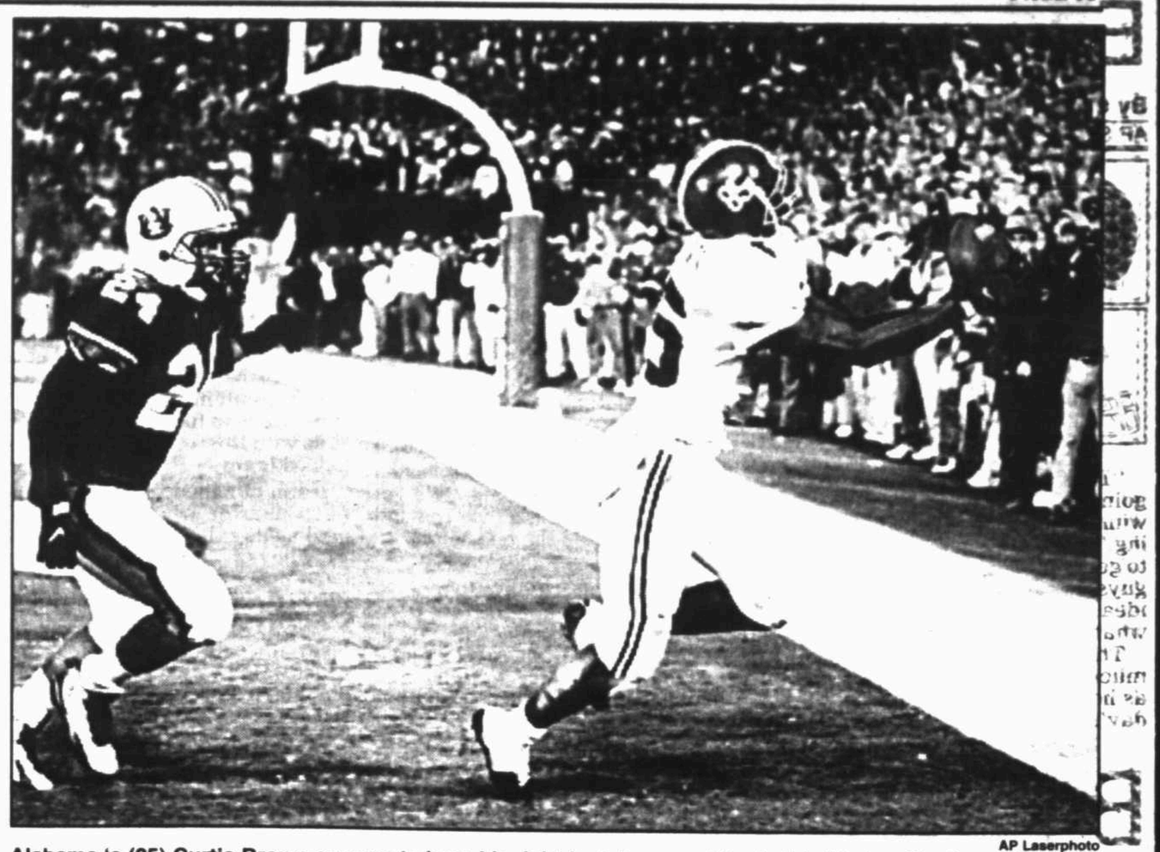

"I enjoy the big games and I enjoy the preparation for games such as this," Alabama coach Gene Stallings said. "What I don't really like is for the players to be under a lot of pressure. And sometimes when I'm under a little pressure, I have a tendency to put the players under a little pressure."

Both teams are coming into the game off a loss — the first time that's happened since 1982. That might add to the pressure because the losses left the SEC West up for grabs.

Alabama still controls its own destiny. A win puts the Tide in the SEC title game for the fourth time in five years. Auburn needs a win plus an LSU loss at Arkansas on Nov. 29 to make its first title game.

The Tigers will be trying to solve defensive problems that stem from injuries and youth. Auburn ranks ninth in the conference in total defense, 10th in third-down conversions allowed and last in sacks.

Only two upperclassmen are expected to start on defense. The starting line will likely consist of one freshman (Ezell Powell) who was supposed to be redshirted this season, another (Leonardo Carson) who wasn't expected to play much, and a sophomore (Jimmy Brumbaugh) who strained his knee in a 56-49 loss to Georgia last week.

Auburn won the game 31-27. This play late in the fourth quarter of the 1995 Iron Bowl between Alabama and Auburn could have been called as the game winning touchdown for Alabama, but the call was that the Alabama player was out of bounds.

Yale football coach faces final game of 32-year coaching era

By Howard Ulman
AP Sports Writer

BOSTON — Carm Cozza stands with his back to the field where the Harvard and Yale JV squads are playing on a sunny day. As he talks, fans cheer and officials' whistles pierce the brisk air.

They are the sounds of a game that has been the centerpiece of Cozza's life in his 32 years as Yale's head coach. The last whistle in Saturday's game at Harvard will signal the end of that tenure.

"People ask me how I'm going to feel after the game," Cozza says. "I don't know until the game's over."

On the day before his 303rd and last game as coach of the Bulldogs, he was honored — even cheered by Harvard alumni — at a luncheon Friday. Then he went out in his blue-and-silver Yale sweatshirt and Yale baseball cap to watch the JV contest.

The varsity game — known as The Game to loyalists of both schools — will be played Saturday in the nation's oldest football stadium. They will meet for the 113th time since the series began in 1875.

"It's just a game that I hope will continue forever," said Cozza, 66.

He has led Yale to 10 Ivy League titles, the last in 1989. But in his final season he is trying to avoid a last-place finish. Harvard and Yale are tied for that spot with 1-5 conference records.

"It's a game that, obviously, we'd love to win, but we also know that it's never easy," said Cozza, who announced before the season that this would be his last.

Yale has been hampered by inexperience and injuries, and is just 2-7 with five straight losses. Yet Harvard coach Tim Murphy knows emotion will be like an extra player for the Bulldogs as they try to send their leader into retirement with a win.

"I told our guys (to) be ready to play (against) 12 guys," Murphy said. "It's important for us to get off to a solid start so we can do our best to counter whatever extra emotion they're playing with."

As he prepares for his finale, Cozza recalls his debut at Yale, "a loss," he says simply. "I had the distinction of being the first (Yale) coach to lose to a school in the state of Connecticut."

Connecticut won 13-7 on Sept. 25, 1965, but two weeks later Cozza got his first win, 3-0 over Brown. He is the most successful coach in Yale and Ivy League history with an overall record of 179-118-5, but his colleagues remember him as much for the dignity with which he ran his program.

Yale head football coach Carmen Cozza, right, hugs one of the men (69) who served as a football team captain while Cozza was head coach at Yale. Cozza will walk into football's oldest stadium for the last time as Yale's coach for the traditional season finale against Harvard on Saturday.

"The guy's a bona fide legend," said Murphy, who was 8 years old when Cozza became Yale's head coach. "There's not a lot of legends around these days. Anyone who can coach college football 32 years at one institution has an awful lot going for him."

Cozza has a clear idea of how he'd like to be remembered:

"I hope that all my players remember me as their friend, as someone who encouraged them to do everything within the spirit of the rules to win, to always hold their head up high and be proud of what they've accomplished and, also, whatever we did on the field, hopefully, it will have carryover value in their chosen profession."

But first there's The Game. The Last Game.

In his 31 previous meetings with Harvard, Cozza is 16-14-1, although he lost last year 22-21 in New Haven. Yale lost his final home game last Saturday to Princeton and hasn't had a winning season since 1991.

But he said there's no chance he'll return for another year even if he loses Saturday.

"I haven't had Labor Day off in 52 years, since I was a freshman in high school, and I thought maybe I'll find out what people do on Labor Day," Cozza said. "But, more than likely, I'll go watch practice."

Michigan, Ohio State looking for redemption in 93rd meeting.

By Rusty Miller
AP Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Redemption will be a big part of Saturday's 93rd meeting between Michigan and Ohio State.

For No. 21 Michigan, two straight losses can be forgotten. For second-ranked Ohio State, it will be the perfect cap to a perfect season and an opportunity for payback.

"The season isn't going to be complete or have a climax without finishing with a victory over Michigan," Buckeyes defensive end Mike Vrabel said.

Ohio State (10-0), favored by two touchdowns, already has clinched at least a share of the Big Ten title and a trip to the Rose Bowl.

Sound familiar? The Buckeyes were heavy favorites, unbeaten and ranked second in the nation a year ago when they played Michigan.

The Wolverines upset them 31-23.

"We'd all like to make amends for that," Vrabel said.

In 1993, unbeaten Ohio State was ranked fifth and heavily favored, but still lost to Michigan 28-0.

Ohio State coach John Cooper is 1-6-1 against Michigan.

"I don't like it," Cooper said.

Marcus Ray, Michigan's strong safety who is from Columbus, said, "We've had their number, but that doesn't make for any guarantees this year."

Particularly the way Michigan has been playing. The Wolverines were beaten 9-3 at Purdue two weeks ago and lost 29-17 last week at home to Penn State. Ohio State beat those two teams by a combined score of 80-21.

Then again, Michigan had lost two of three heading into last year's upset of the Buckeyes.

"You may have a question about whether this Michigan team can bounce back with the kind of effort and intensity and execution that it takes to win," Wolverines coach Lloyd Carr said. "I can assure you they're going to give a great effort. I've never been associated with a Michigan team that played in this game that didn't play with great effort and great heart."

Because it's a red-letter day for fans from both sides, the game always is important. It takes on additional meaning for Ohio State because of national title implications and for Michigan because the Wolverines can still salvage a decent bowl bid with a win. There's also the matter of ruining yet another perfect Ohio State season.

"It would mean everything in the world because they're the best team in the country," Michigan defensive lineman Will Carr said. "I know they're gunning for us. They'd love to beat us when we're down. But we're not going to be down playing Ohio State."

A year ago, the game spun on Michigan's control up front. Ohio State, averaging 231 yards rushing and 500 total yards per game, was held to 106 on the ground and 392 total. Meanwhile, Michigan piled up 484 yards — more than the Buckeyes' two previous opponents combined — and tailback Tim Biakabutuka rushed for 313, the most ever against Ohio State.

This year, Ohio State has been led by a defense which has given up only 10 points and 238 yards per game.

There are questions about the quarterback position for both teams. Michigan's Scott Dreisbach has thrown five interceptions and lost three fumbles in the last two weeks.

Stanley Jackson is 10-0 as Ohio State's starter at quarterback, but he's played less and produced less the past month while backup Joe Germaine's role has increased. The starter won't be revealed until the Buckeyes' offense takes the field.

No matter who starts, both teams have unfinished business.

"Whether we're 0-10 or 10-0, we still have to beat Michigan," outside linebacker Greg Bellisari said. "It's a one-game season."

Holtz wants focus on players

By Nancy Armour
AP Sports Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Lou Holtz is telling everyone he doesn't want a big fuss over his final game at Notre Dame Stadium. So far, no one's listening.

More than 2,000 people greeted Holtz with a standing ovation when he was introduced at Friday's Quarterback Club luncheon, and the crowd would have been larger if more tickets were available. Clearly embarrassed, he tried to quiet them by starting his speech, but his words were drowned out by chants of "Lou, Lou."

"This is not a victory lap," he said. "We're here to play a football game, a very important football game against Rutgers. We're not here to reminisce, we're not here to talk about what has happened. We're not here to do anything else but support our football players."

But even Holtz's players aren't listening.

Holtz announced Tuesday that he is stepping down after 11 seasons as the Irish coach, and Saturday's game between No. 10 Notre Dame (7-2) and Rutgers (2-7) will be his final home game. The Irish are 41-point favorites, and a victory would be Holtz's 100th at Notre Dame.

But none of that is important, he said.

"This is no tribute to Lou Holtz or to anybody else," he said. "This is a football game and we need to stay focused and keep that first and foremost in mind. We owe that to the University of Notre Dame."

There are no plans to recognize Holtz before, during or after the game. He's been asked to address the students after the game, and he said he would do that.

Holtz has asked his players to make an extra effort Saturday, but not for him. This will be the final game in Notre Dame Stadium before a 21,915-seat expansion is completed, and Holtz said that holds more meaning than anything.

"That was started by Knute Rockne in 1930," he said. "There have been a lot of great athletes, a lot of good games there. We have an obligation to go into this game and play it to the very best of our ability."

Holtz is uncomfortable with all the attention being paid to him this week. At the luncheon, tennis coach Bob Bayliss spent most of his time talking about Holtz, not his own team.

Holtz kept his head bowed as Bayliss talked about the example he's set for other coaches at Notre Dame.

"You've taught us how to handle adversity and success with dignity and class," Bayliss said.

Sun Devils must beat archrival to keep national title hopes alive

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — In this state, it's simply called "The Game."

And in the 97-year history of its football rivalry with Arizona, Saturday's meeting here has never meant more for No. 4 Arizona State.

A victory will complete an 11-0 regular season for the Sun Devils, with a shot at the national championship awaiting at the Rose Bowl against No. 2 Ohio State on New Year's Day.

A loss will only add another chapter to "The Jinx."

"There is a different spin on this one because we'd love to go to Pasadena undefeated," said Arizona State coach Bruce Snyder. "They know the whole picture and what might be riding for us."

The Wildcats have won 11 of the past 14 games with the 1987 game ending in a 24-24 tie.

Ten years ago in Tucson, they ruined Rose Bowl-bound Arizona State's bid for an undefeated season with a 34-17 upset win.

They previously knocked Arizona State out of Rose Bowl berths twice, in 1982 and 1985.

"There is no other rivalry that I've coached or played in that has the same feeling of intensity about it," said Snyder, who is 1-3 against Arizona. "I think there is a lot of hatred involved. This is really a pretty hostile gathering."

Sun Devil senior quarterback Jake Plummer said his college career won't be complete until he beats his school's archrival.

"All I know is we lose this game, I'm going to apply for a fifth year because I want to get one before I leave," said Plummer. "That's how much I want this game."

Arizona leads the all-time series 40-28-1 with 26 of the victories coming in Tucson in 39 meetings.

This year, the Wildcats are 5-5 with all their wins at home.

"We haven't lost here yet, and we don't plan on it," Arizona cornerback Chris McAlister said. "I think they know that this is not going to be an easy win in Tucson."

The Sun Devils still are smarting over last year's game in Tempe. The Wildcats scored 17 points in the final eight minutes for a 31-28 win.

"Last year was a heartbreaker," tackle Juan Roque said. "We had the game basically won and we found a way to ruin it. We have to make sure we play the whole game. No lead is safe against them."

"They're not going to be going to the Rose Bowl and we are, so I'm sure they are going to be aiming for us," said Plummer, who has completed 58 percent of his passes for 2,374 yards and 20 touchdowns.

Arizona is led by redshirt freshman quarterback Keith Smith, who has completed 62 percent of his passes for 1,359 yards and 10 touchdowns. He also has rushed for 544 yards and scored seven times.

"We both have the same type of style," said Smith, noting Plummer's scrambling ability. "This is going to be something special... something crazy."

The Sun Devils are a 7-point favorite as they try to complete their first undefeated regular season since 1975.

Another upset could put Arizona in a bowl game.

"We're going out there for a win. Nothing else matters," said Wildcats tailback Leon Callen. "Things are really going to heat up.'

COACH: Davie former A&M assistant coach

(From 1C)

"I wouldn't be nearly as confident if we hadn't already talked to Father Malloy about the candidate and the reasons and the results of our search," Wadsworth said. "It's only with that that I have the degree of confidence that I have. But still, that meeting has to take place."

Davie did not attend Friday's pep rally and was not immediately available for comment.

Though it was obvious he wanted the job, Davie has said little publicly because Wadsworth and The Rev. William Beauchamp, the university's executive vice president, wanted to keep most details of the search private.

"Obviously, this is the best coaching job in the country and that's why I came here as an assistant," Davie said earlier this week. "But I don't think right now is the time to really comment on that.

"Mike Wadsworth and Bill Beauchamp set up a process to find out who the next head football coach is at Notre Dame," he said. "I've got total confidence in them."

Wadsworth said he, Beauchamp and assistant athletic director George Kelly interviewed four candidates for about three hours apiece. Each candidate was evaluated on 15 different criteria — including football knowledge, integrity, intensity of interest in Notre Dame and potential for success.

Northwestern coach Gary Barnett said Thursday he did not want to be considered for the job. But Wadsworth said he, Beauchamp and Kelly had reached their decision before then.

Wadsworth said a formal announcement is not expected to come before Sunday because the university does not want to intrude on Holtz's last game at Notre Dame Stadium.

"We would never interfere with tomorrow's significance in any event," Wadsworth said.

Davie, who has been the Irish defensive coordinator for the past three years, has no head coaching experience, but is well-liked by the administration. He was named interim coach when Holtz had emergency neck surgery last year, and led the Irish to a 41-0 victory over Vanderbilt.

He has a good reputation as both a coach and recruiter. His "Wrecking Crew" defenses at Texas A&M were highly regarded, with the Aggies leading the nation in total defense in 1991, and ranking third in 1993.

He took an Irish defense depleted by graduation and turned it into one of the country's best in three years. He's also an excellent recruiter, especially in all-important Texas, where he spent nine years at Texas A&M.

Players like him, too, and most of the them said he would be their top choice to replace Holtz.

"We know Coach Davie, we've been around him for a couple of years," quarterback Ron Powlus said. "There wouldn't be too many changes as far as the way the program is run. It wouldn't be a whole new show around here.

Davie, of Sewickley, Pa., began his coaching career in 1977 as a graduate assistant at Pittsburgh. He spent the next two years as the linebackers coach at Arizona before returning to Pitt in the same position.

He became Texas A&M's defensive coordinator in 1989, and was given the assistant coach's title in 1993.

He came to Notre Dame shortly after the Irish defeated the Aggies in the 1994 Cotton Bowl.

Behind a strong defense, No. 5 Iraan advances past Roscoe

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

The Iraan Braves are playing it close to the vest in the Class 2A state football playoffs, but this vest fits as snug as a black defensive helmet.

Iraan's No. 5 state-ranked Braves won their Class 2A area match against Roscoe's Plowboys, 14-3, at Memorial Stadium Friday night, advancing to the region round against either Idalou or Spearman.

And the Braves are walking through the playoffs by virtue of defense. Defense so solid that heads fly and touchdowns are forbidden fruits. In the bi-district round, the Brave defense threw up a 7-0 shutout against Seagraves.

Roscoe seemed to continuously march goalward against the Braves in the first half, but continually came up empty with points, missing two long field goal tries of 52 and 36 yards. And then, Iraan put the cap on the first half when defensive back Robin Hanna forced a fumble at the Iraan two-yard line where Ryan Rylander pounced on the ball.

"We (the defense) know if we can hold the team to just a few points, the offense will finally get going and that's what happened tonight," Rylander said. "We got the long drive and a long run and the defense did the rest."

Iraan took a 7-0 lead in the second period after failing to make a single first down in the first period of play by driving 65 yards in nine plays. Ross Blackwelder ended the drive with an eight-yard catch from quarterback Billy Palmore. That was really all Iraan needed as the defense set the tone by stopping Roscoe two yards short of the goal on the Plowboys' next drive with the fumble recovery by Rylander.

"I didn't know if it was a fumble or not, so I just got on the ball to make sure," Rylander said.

Iraan coach Larry Hanna said of that play, "It set the tone and restored our confidence on both sides of the ball that we might have lost up to that time. Roscoe had drives on us all night, but time after time, we held tough. A lot of it had to do with Roscoe because they are a good team."

Iraan clinched the game in the third quarter when Blackwelder again was salt in the wound of the Plowboys. The senior running back broke a 55-yard touchdown run and Roscoe never recovered.

"It was just an outside pitch and I saw the cutback and took it," Blackwelder said. "We weren't playing Iraan football early, but our defense saved us tonight."

Added coach Hanna, "Blackwelder never played running back until this year, and he is just now beginning to where he sees things, like the cutback on the long run out there tonight."

Down 14-0, Roscoe still came back with a huge 42-yard field goal from Andy Howard with 3:37 still left in the third period. But the likes of Rylander, Hanna and Reinaldo Mendoza kept delivering big defensive plays.

Roscoe falls from the playoffs with a 9-2 record. Both of the losses by the Plowboys have come at the hands of District 6-2A. They lost the first game of the season to Stanton, which was eliminated last week in a tough loss to Shallowater.

Iraan protects its state ranking once again, living on defense, and owners of a perfect 11-0 record.

Favre elated with Rison

By Arnie Stapleton
AP Sports Writer

GREEN BAY, Wis. — Brett Favre laughed when asked if Andre Rison, who has a reputation for breaking routes, could succeed in the Green Bay Packers' precision West Coast offense.

"We'll fit in perfect, me and him both," Favre said. "That's been the knock on me."

Rison, a four-time Pro Bowl receiver coming off a miserable season with the Cleveland Browns, found himself out of work for the second time in five months when he was released by Jacksonville this week.

The Packers, decimated by injuries to their wide receivers that rendered their offense ineffective in losses at Kansas City and Dallas, snatched him off waivers and welcomed him with hugs, high-fives and a clean slate.

"We needed a shot in the arm," coach Mike Holmgren said.

Rison's release came a day after the Jaguars lost at Pittsburgh in a game where he and Mark Brunell argued after Rison appeared to run the wrong route on a pass that was intercepted.

It wasn't the first time Rison, who thrived in Atlanta's just-get-open run-and-shoot, was accused of being undisciplined.

"Sure, I've heard that about Andre. I played with Andre. And, to a certain degree, that is how he plays," Favre said. "But that's what makes him Andre Rison. That's what makes him a great player.

"If you think about it, he's never really been in a structured passing game. The run-and-shoot is more of an, 'OK, Andre, you go out and you get open.' And he got open."

"Here, it's more like, 'We need a 10-yard hook.' That's what you have to run. Or a 15-yard comeback. He'll get open. But he's got to run that 15-yard comeback. That's the difference here. No one's really ever asked him to do that kind of stuff."

Favre is certain Rison, also coveted by Miami and San Francisco, will eventually thrive in Green Bay's complex system.

"I know Andre, and he'll do it," Favre said. "He'll be very good at it. It won't happen overnight."

Favre said he's proof that an improvisational player can develop into an effective player in Holmgren's West Coast-style offense.

"It's kind of like when I came here, that was the knock on me, that I played undisciplined, somewhat erratic," Favre said. "And that was true. But that was what made me a good player. But, over the years, I've developed into a more structured quarterback."

Rison said his arrival is "going to enable Brett to have another go-to receiver. Everybody knows Brett innovates. You don't know what he's going to do. Anytime you've got a quarterback like that, you love to play with him.

"If Brett comes to the huddle and says, 'Just get open,' I'm going to get open."

Favre and Rison exchanged caustic comments through the media last year after Rison signed with the Browns. Favre had suggested general manager Ron Wolf save his $17 million.

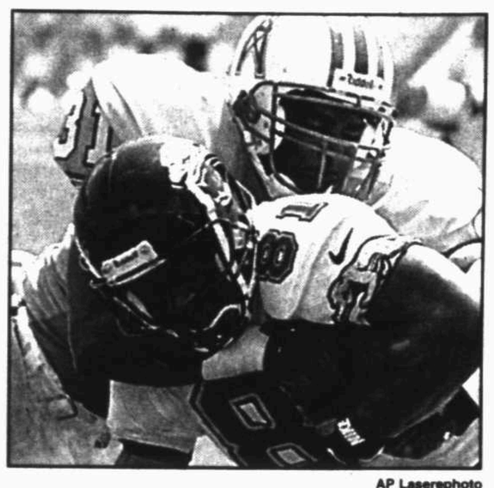

Yet, with his best deep threat, Robert Brooks, out for the season with a knee injury and Antonio Freeman (arm) and Mark Chmura (foot) also injured, the Packers didn't hesitate to seize Rison on Tuesday.

Rison said his career has been tumultuous because he's a winner who got stuck on losing teams and that it was only natural for his production to slip when he went from the pass-happy Falcons to the salary-dumping Browns and the second-year Jaguars.

He said he didn't succeed in Cleveland because "it's hard to be productive when they're not throwing you passes."

He didn't even want to discuss his worn-out welcome with Jaguars coach Tom Coughlin, although his no-comments were telling nonetheless.

"I'm 8-3. I'm a Green Bay Packer," he said. "I'm in first place. My coach's first name is Mike and I respect him a lot."

AP Laserephoto

Andre Rison (81) is now with Green Bay and Packers' quarterback Brett Favre is already taking notice.

Earlier this year, Rison guaranteed a victory over Cincinnati, and when the Bengals beat the Jaguars 28-21, he criticized the coaching staff for being so intimidating that the players were too tight and could not reach their potential.

Rison said finally being on a Super Bowl contender will enable him to chip away at his negative reputation, just like former Falcons teammate Deion Sanders has done in winning two Super Bowl rings.

"That's one of the things he told me: 'You've got to get with a winner. Otherwise they're going to keep pointing the finger at you and they're going to keep slamming you down,'" Rison said.

Rison said it struck him on the plane over that he was getting that chance.

"I flipped the paper open. I said, 'Well, let me close my eyes and then open them because I've never been in first place, on top of the division,'" Rison said. "I flipped it over and there it was: 'Green Bay 8-3.'

"I said, 'Who do we play next, the Rams?' Well, I'm not making no guarantees, but ..."

Cooper's Rhodes scores five TDs in win over Irvin

Staff Report

ABILENE — Abilene Cooper didn't miss District 4-5A's leading receiver too much here Friday night as the Cougars rolled over El Paso Irvin, 42-21, in a Class 5A Small School area playoff game at Shotwell Stadium.

Running back Dominic Rhodes rushed for 230 yards on 23 carries and scored five touchdowns, two on runs of 50 and 36 yards.

Rhodes lifted Cooper to a narrow win over Amarillo High last week in bi-district play with a 70-yard run on the final play of the game. He is red hot.

Michael Anderson completed seven passes for another 85 yards.

Edmund Stansbury, the high profile quarterback for Irvin, ended his high school career by throwing for 382 yards and two touchdowns against the Cooper defense. He was also intercepted twice. Irvin receiver Edgar Aguero caught six passes for 103 yards.

Cooper will play Irving Nimitz next week in the region round of the playoffs.

Sonics stretch streak to 10

By The Associated Press

■ NBA Roundup

BOSTON — The Seattle SuperSonics stretched their winning streak to 10 games Friday night as Shawn Kemp and Gary Payton scored 22 points each in a 118-91 win over the injury-plagued Boston Celtics.

The Celtics, who trailed 62-45 at halftime, pulled to 80-71 before the Sonics finished the third quarter with a 7-0 run to go ahead 87-71. Seattle led by at least 16 points the rest of the way.

Seattle (11-2), which matched the third-longest winning streak in its history, has dominated opponents with an 8-1 record in games decided by 10 points or more.

Boston has been routed in its last three games, losing by 14 and 25 points before the setback to Seattle.

Bullets 88, 76ers 76

LANDOVER, Md. — Juwan Howard had 18 points and 10 rebounds, and the Washington Bullets limited Philadelphia to 38 percent shooting and forced 26 turnovers.

Chris Webber and Rod Strickland had 13 points each for the Bullets, who never trailed in winning for only the third time in eight games. Washington closed the first half with a 10-0 run to go up 48-35, then began the third quarter with a 10-4 spree to increase the margin to 19.

O'Neal's 20-20 night paves way for Lakers win

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Shaquille O'Neal had 29 points and 21 rebounds Friday night to power the Los Angeles Lakers to a 96-86 victory over the injury-depleted San Antonio Spurs.

With Spurs center David Robinson and forward Sean Elliott in street clothes on the bench, the Lakers avenged a 95-83 loss 10 days earlier in San Antonio.

Eddie Jones scored 24 points for the Lakers. He made a fast-break basket, then fed O'Neal for a layup to help Los Angeles pad the lead after San Antonio narrowed the gap to 74-70 early in the fourth quarter.

The Spurs got no closer than six points the rest of the way.

Jones had 10 points in the third quarter as the Lakers broke open a close game with a 13-2 burst. Los Angeles was ahead 72-63 heading into the final quarter.

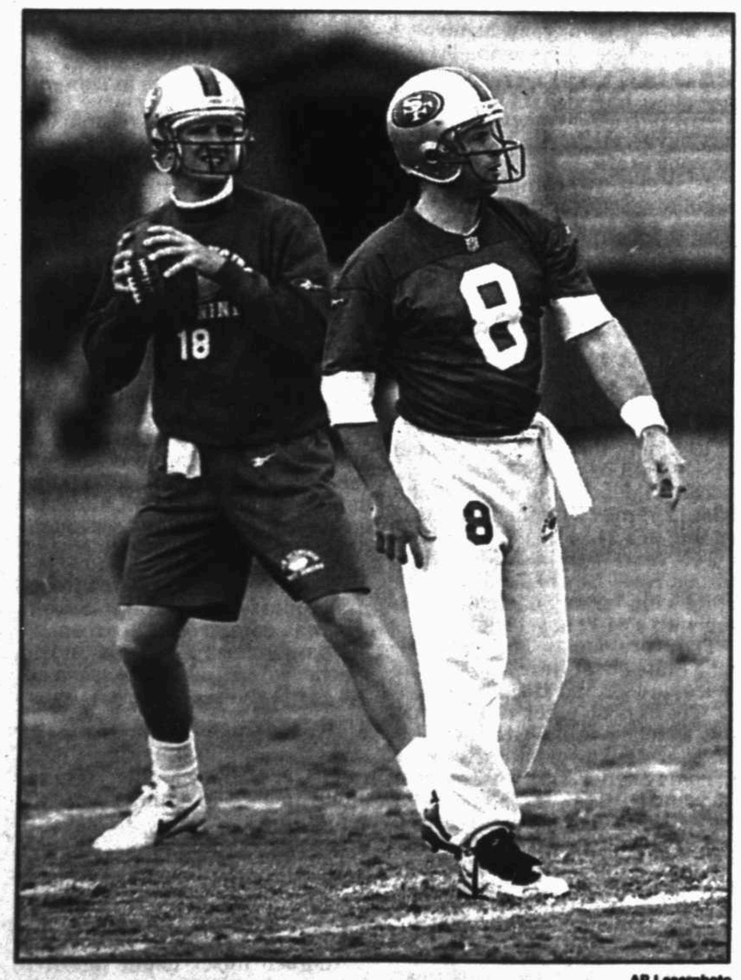

Dominique Wilkins led San Antonio with 19 points and 13 rebounds, and Will Perdue had 17 points when he fouled out with 1:04 left in the game.

Robinson has not played this season because of a lower back sprain, and Elliott missed the matchup with the Lakers because of tendinitis in his right quadriceps muscle.

The Spurs also were missing starting forward Charles Smith (right knee), and reserve Monty Williams (sore right toe).

The Lakers led 44-41 at halftime. The biggest lead in the first two quarters was the Spurs' 26-20 edge late in the opening period.

Notes: Robinson, who was examined at Kerlan-Jobe Clinic in Inglewood on Friday, is expected to be ready to play for the first time this season early next month. Robinson continues to rehab, strengthening the muscles in his back. He has missed just 28 games in eight seasons with San Antonio. ... Lakers rookie Kobe Bryant came to the Forum but was sent home before the game because he has the flu.

San Francisco 49ers quarterback Steve Young, right, and back-up quarterback Elvis Grbac warm-up during practice, Wednesday at the team's Santa Clara, Calif. training facility. Young was injured in the game against Dallas and was relieved by Grbac two weeks ago. Young will be starting again against the Redskins this Sunday.

Young returns for Niners against Redskins

By The Associated Press

For a team that's in first place, the Washington Redskins can't feel too comfortable.

Their defense remains shaky as they enter the toughest part of their schedule. The Dallas Cowboys, their longtime rivals, appear to have shaken off early season woes and are right behind them.

And now, Washington must face Steve Young and the San Francisco 49ers.

When San Francisco visits RFK Stadium Sunday, Young will be back as the starting quarterback after missing most of two games with a concussion. And he'll be looking for Jerry Rice to burn a pass defense that has been atrocious all season.

After hanging on for a victory over NFC East rival Philadelphia last Sunday, and with two games against the Cowboys coming up, the Redskins look at the game against the NFC West-leading 49ers as a chance to show they can win when necessary.

"We have been building for this for two years," coach Norv Turner said. "We had a bunch of games that we thought were big games, but no one looked at as big games. When you're trying to get your fourth win or your sixth win, it's not as exciting as when you're in the middle of a fight to get to the playoffs."

Broncos at Vikings

Denver takes an NFL-best 10-1 record and a seven-game winning streak into the Metrodome, where Terrell Davis hopes to get even closer to the team single-season rushing record. Through 11 games, Davis has 1,209 yards, just 198 short of Otis Armstrong's 22-year-old team mark. But the Vikings, 6-5 after a 4-0 start, must also contain John Elway, having one of his finest seasons.

Chargers at Chiefs

Both teams are hurting as they chase Denver in the AFC West. The Chiefs (8-3), with a three-game winning streak, may get limited action at best from offensive linemen John Alt, Dave Szott and Jeff Criswell. The Chargers (6-5) have lost tight end Alfred Pupunu and center Courtney Hall for the season.

Colts at Patriots

Two trends stopped last week — Indianapolis stopped losing and New England stopped winning. So Sunday's game means a lot for each team's playoff chances. The Patriots (7-4), who have bounced back all year, are coming off a 34-8 whipping by Denver and must win to stay close to Buffalo in the AFC East.

Jets at Bills

That 34-29 loss to the Colts was New York's 10th of the season and fourth straight by five points or less. That narrow margin scares Bills coach Marv Levy, and the Jets usually play big against Buffalo (8-3). Still, the Bills are rolling. Jim Kelly has four TDs and only three interceptions over the past four games. He will face the third-worst team in the league against the pass.

Cowboys at Giants

For charging Dallas, this is a "trap" game. The Giants are 4-7 and slumping, but have proven tough against the Cowboys in their second meetings of the season. Dallas won their first game 27-0, holding New York to 93 yards total offense. Dallas also is coming off an emotionally and physically draining stretch, capped by a 21-6 victory over Green Bay Monday night that left the Cowboys 7-4 after a 2-3 start.

Packers at Rams

Green Bay has suddenly gone from powerhouse to paranoia. Two straight losses have left the Packers tied for the best record in the NFC and vulnerable on offense. They have averaged just 16 points the past four games, and Brett Favre, while still the NFL's leading passer, has struggled. This week, they added former Pro Bowl receiver Andre Rison, hoping for an immediate impact.

Eagles at Cardinals

Philadelphia is 7-4 with two straight losses after a big victory over Dallas. Arizona, meanwhile, has moved to 5-6 behind veteran quarterback Boomer Esiason and a victory would be its third in a row — the longest winning streak for the team in two years.

Lions at Bears

Barry Sanders is only 18 yards away from an NFL-record eighth straight 1,000-yard rushing season for the Lions (5-6). He'll try to get it against a Chicago defense that has yielded only 13.5 points per game the past four weeks. Unfortunately for the Bears (4-7), their offense has averaged a point less than that over the same span.

Panthers at Oilers

Houston (6-5) has lost three games by a total of five points, but it doesn't get easier against Carolina. The Panthers (7-4), looking for a playoff spot in only their second season, have allowed an NFL-low 43 second-half points.

Falcons at Bengals

Call this the Coaches Bowl. Both Bruce Coslet of the Bengals (4-7) and June Jones of the Falcons (2-9) are uncertain returnees next season, although Cincinnati is 3-1 since Coslet replaced Dave Shula.

Jaguars at Ravens

Whether in Cleveland or Baltimore, the expansion Jaguars (4-7) never have lost to the franchise that is now the Ravens. Two weeks ago, they rallied for a 30-27 victory after trailing by 11 with 6 1/2 minutes to play. Baltimore (3-8) has lost six of its last seven games.

Saints at Bucs

What's this? A winning streak in Tampa? The Buccaneers (3-8) have won two in a row, the first signs of a turnaround under coach Tony Dungy. The Saints (2-9) have a four-game losing streak, including all three under new coach Rick Venturi.

Raiders at Seahawks

Rick Mirer, benched by coach Dennis Erickson, will be back at quarterback for the Seahawks (5-6). Mirer moves in only because John Friesz broke a leg and is out for the season. Oakland (4-7) has lost three straight but is 10-2 against Seattle this decade.

Former Plano back arrested for failure to register as sex offender

Associated Press

DALLAS (AP) — Former Plano High School running back Rashad Gunn, who almost cost the Wildcats a spot in the playoffs, has been arrested on a charge of failing to register with Plano police as a sex offender.

Gunn, 18, was arrested Thursday while meeting with probation officer at the Decker Detention Center, according to spokesman Jim Ewell of the Dallas County Sheriff's Department.

He was being held in the Lew Sterrett Justice Center late Thursday in lieu of $750 bond.

"He was confused, shocked and surprised," Mr. Ewell said. "He insisted to the Dallas deputies that he had been reporting to the Irving police."

"Why are you trying to ruin my child's life over a football game?" asked Gayle Jackson, Gunn's mother.

"Right now, I need to take care of my child's business," she told The Dallas Morning News in a telephone interview.

Gunn was to be transferred today to Collin county.

Gunn pleaded guilty to sexual assault on March 29 and received two years' probation for an incident involving a teenager in Garland in December 1995. He registered as a sex offender with the Irving Police Department, but never registered in Plano after transferring to Plano Senior High School.

"He is reported to have been living in Plano and we do not have him registered," said Officer Carl Duke, spokesman for the Plano Police Department.

Gunn had been kicked off the Plano team for missing practices before it was revealed that his mother didn't live in the Plano attendance zone.

The University Interscholastic League first removed Plano from the playoffs and replaced them with Plano East High School.

The team was reinstated to the playoffs with Gunn declared ineligible.

Plano was knocked out of the playoffs after when Allen High School defeated the Wildcats 28-21 in overtime last Saturday.

Atlanta's Olympic woes won't be Salt Lake City's PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — The transportation and technology woes that plagued Atlanta's Summer Games stemmed from complicated logistics and intransigence of organizers, an IOC official says.

Marc Hodler of Switzerland, IOC vice president in charge of overseeing Utah's upcoming Winter Games, said Atlanta's problems are unlikely to be repeated by Salt Lake City in 2002.

Hodler said some of Atlanta's problems developed because local organizers would not listen to Dick Pound, the Canadian IOC vice president who headed the commission.

LEE: Victory will bring Rebs back to Midland for Round III

(From 1C)

(John) Norman, (Antwan) Alexander and (Michael) Hall are great players, but I've been impressed with the other kids they have, too. The others, if you can call them that, are good players. There just aren't any weaknesses over there."

Still, Socorro found out last year that they can play with Lee, and still, that doesn't comfort Carson.

"They are averaging 79 points a game at our place (Lee scored 79 points at the Socorro Complex two years ago against El Paso Bowie) and they are a year older and wiser. They have the same kids basically," Carson said.

Lee also comes into the game this year undefeated at 10-0 and ranked No. 4 in the state — and owning memories of a year ago.

"The media made it sound like we could walk all over Socorro last year, saying all the time how bad El Paso football is, but I think our kids found out that they have to play," said Lee coach John Parchman, who was once head coach at Socorro with Carson on his staff. "We also had some key injuries that hurt us in the playoffs last year. We are much more healthy this year.

"Socorro has a great quarterback in Nick Alvarez. He threw for over 260 yards against us last year. We feel like they are a good offensive team, but maybe not quite as good on defense even through they have three good returning starters.

"We've done a good job this year of getting on top early (scoring on eight first possessions this year in 10 games). We need to do that again."

Alvarez, the quarterback who burned Lee last year, has thrown for 1,200 yards this season and is coming off a 30-19 bi-district win over El Paso Andress where he threw for 215 yards and two touchdowns.

"Actually, Nick doesn't have as many passing yards as you might expect," Carson said. "Early in the year we ran a lot more because we had inexperienced receivers, but they have improved as the season has gone along. We aren't quite as talented overall as we were last year.

"We wanted to run the ball more against Lee last year, but we couldn't do it and we got behind and had to throw the ball. The secret against Lee is to keep the ball away from them because they play keep-away themselves."

Lee's injury list dwindled some this week as starting defensive tackle Chito Subia returned to practice after knee surgery a couple of weeks ago.

"We don't know how much Chito can play, but he'll be in there if he is able to go," Parchman said. "We'll look at him day-to-day, but I'm really happy about the way he has come back from the injury."

Lee defeated Socorro in a scrimmage during preseason practice sessions and Carson was impressed then.

"They have gotten even better than when we scrimmaged them," Carson said. "The quarterback (David Smith) is throwing better now and he is accurate. He can hurt you when he does throw. Of course, Josh Norman is a great running back and their offensive line is much better now. Norman passed 2,000 (2,022) for his career at Lee. He is the sixth Rebel back to do so.

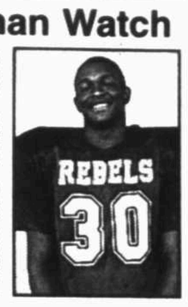

"We scrimmaged Lee by design. You know you're probably going to get beat up, but it gives your kids a chance to see that they are just kids, too. They also get to see players who don't make mistakes and don't turn over the ball. We feel like we need to see that level of play if we are going to be in the position we are in today."

Game time is 2 p.m. El Paso time and 3 p.m. Midland time. The winner will face the winner of the Arlington Lamar-Flower Mound Marcus area game, which is having a late 9:30 p.m. start at Texas Stadium today.

Regardless, Lee will be spending Thanksgiving Weekend at home. A loss to Socorro is one way, but Parchman has also won the flip with both Lamar and Flower Mound, winning the right to play at Midland's Memorial Stadium. That should make local merchants happy on one of the biggest shopping weekends of the year.

Lamar defeated Lee last year in the region playoffs. If Lamar beats Flower Mound Marcus, Lee and Lamar would be playing each other for the third year in a row.

Josh Norman Watch

Junior running back Josh Norman is moving his way up the Midland Lee career rushing lists.

This season Norman has rushed for 1,312 yards and 25 touchdowns. For a career, Norman has 2,022 yards and 35 TDs.

He stands in sixth place in career and single season yardage. He is also high on the career and single season TD marks. In fact, with some Lee wins in the playoffs, Norman could be the all-time Lee single single season touchdown scorer.

No. 19 Arizona triumphs over No. 7 North Carolina

Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. — Arizona coach Lute Olson admits he was worried about his young team. That lasted for one half.

The 19th-ranked Wildcats, with four players making their first collegiate starts, used a career-high 31 points from junior Michael Dickerson and 22 from touted freshman Michael Bibby to beat No. 7 North Carolina 83-72 Friday night in the Hall of Fame Tipoff Classic.

Miles Simon, who was supposed to be the Wildcats' only returning starter from last season, was sitting in the stands because of academic problems. He had a good seat to watch his teammates pull away from a 29-29 halftime tie as Dickerson went 5-for-6 from 3-point range and Bibby scored 16 points.

The first half was ragged on both ends and Arizona had to consider itself lucky to be tied after shooting 33 percent and committing six turnovers.

No. 13 Syracuse 106, Winthrop 51

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Otis Hill scored a career-high 23 points and Todd Burgan added 21 Friday night as No. 13 Syracuse opened its season by humbling Winthrop 106-51.

■ NCAA Roundup

It was the first meeting between the teams and Winthrop's fourth ever against a Big East opponent. If the Eagles, who play in the Big South Conference, are smart, they might wait a while for the next.

They lost 81-56 to Miami last season and also were drubbed by UConn (113-59) in 1994 and Seton Hall (106-49) in 1990.

No. 16 Arkansas 127, Jackson State 74

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. — Pat Bradley made five of his first six shots as 16th-ranked Arkansas quickly opened an 11-point lead en route to a 127-74 victory over Jackson State Friday night.

Bradley scored 11 of his 25 points in the first 7 1/2 minutes as the Razorbacks moved in front 27-16 in the opener for both teams. At that point, Coach Nolan Richardson substituted five players.

The lead was 16 points when the starters returned with 7:41 to play and the halftime advantage was 64-35. The lead reached 40 five minutes into the second half, and it was 97-46 when the starters sat back down with 10:49 to play.

No. 18 New Mexico 94, Columbia 56

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Charles Smith scored 26 points and three New Mexico teammates registered double figures Friday night, leading the No. 18 Lobos to a 94-56 win over Columbia in the first round of the Lobo Classic.

New Mexico (2-0) advanced to Saturday's championship of its season-opening tournament. The Lobos will meet the winner of Friday's late game between Eastern Washington and Grambling.

No. 21 Boston College 89, Brown 72

BOSTON — Boston College took care of Brown quickly Friday night, scoring the first 13 points on the way to an 89-72 victory.

Antonio Granger scored a career-high 22 points, hitting six of eight 3-pointers for the No. 21 Eagles.

Granger hit his first 3-pointer to open the game and another soon after as the Eagles took control. Brown came within 64-61 with 6:30 left in the game before Danya Abrams hit two free throws to help BC pull away.

No. 22 Indiana 70, Saint Louis 54

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Led by freshmen A.J. Guyton and Jason Collier, No. 22 Indiana defeated Saint Louis 70-54 Friday night to reach the semifinals of the Preseason NIT.

Guyton scored 14 points and Collier added 13 for the Hoosiers (3-0), who will meet the winner of the Evansville-Iona game in Wednesday's semifinals at Madison Square Garden.

No. 24 George Washington 86, Holy Cross 56

WASHINGTON — The twin towers from Belarus were too tall, too strong and too powerful for Holy Cross. The little guy from Baltimore was just too quick.

Alexander Koul scored 25 points on 11-for-16 shooting and Yegor Mescheriakov added seven points as No. 24 George Washington opened its season with a 86-56 victory over Holy Cross in the first round of the Red Auerbach Colonial Classic.

No. 25 Iowa 81, Western Illinois 66

MOLINE, Ill. — Andre Woolridge scored 24 points, Jess Settles 19 and Kent McCausland 15 — all on 3-pointers — as No. 25 Iowa withstood a 3-point barrage by Western Illinois and beat the Leathernecks 81-66 Friday night.

The Hawkeyes, who beat Western Illinois by 52, yielded 13 3-pointers in both teams' season opener, including eight in the first half. Settles and Ryan Bowen.

Baylor falls in Top of the World to Southern Illinois

FAIRBANKS, Alaska (AP) — Jamie Veach sank the second of two free throws with three seconds left to give Southern Illinois a 78-77 win over Baylor Friday in the first round of the Top of the World Classic.

The Salukis and the Bears (0-1) exchanged leads seven times in the second half, but Rashad Tucker's rebounding and Shane Hawkins' hustle made the difference for Southern Illinois (1-0).

Hawkins hit a 3-point shot with two minutes left to give Southern Illinois a 77-74 lead, but Baylor's Doug Brandt sank three free throw in the next minute to even it up.

The game stayed that way until Veach was fouled underneath by Brandt.

Baylor's Pat Hunter and Southern Illinois' Rashad Tucker each had 18 points to lead all scorers. Tucker also had a game-high 12 rebounds. Rashaan Jones had eight rebounds to lead Baylor.

The Bears and Salukis played a sloppy contest, with a total of 48 fouls committed; 23 by Baylor, 25 by Southern Illinois.

TECH: Raiders win 31st straight at home which allowed the Golden Eagles (0-1) to stay within striking distance for most of the game, though they never got closer than nine points midway through the second half.

"It is a win over an outstanding team that is going to be very good by the end of the year," said Tech coach James Dickey. "I'm glad we played them early in the season and at home. When you have somebody down you have to put them away."

Young, who led Pampa to the Texas Class 4A state championship last spring, made his collegiate debut with 13:34 remaining in the first half and promptly sparked the Raiders to a decisive 19-6 run toward its 31st straight home win.

"Before the game the leaders told the younger guys to play their game," Young said. "That gave us a lot of confidence."

Damien Smith led the Golden Eagles with 19 points and helped them hang within striking distance until the closing minutes. Mike Jones and George Scott each added 14.

Young had three steals in the first half and finished with 11 points and four assists in 18 minutes.

The teams traded baskets for the opening four minutes, appearing for awhile to be on equal terms until Young hit the floor.

The game also marked the return from major right knee surgery for Smith, who injured it at the end of last season.

"We put it in his hands and let him penetrate," coach James Green said of his senior leader.

After Tech's first half barrage, the teams played it close as the Red Raiders took a 52-37 lead into halftime.

Lady Longhorns, Stephen F. Austin take season openers

Associated Press

DETROIT — Angela Jackson had 14 points and game highs of 12 rebounds and five blocks, and Danielle Viglone scored 18 points as No. 21 Texas beat Detroit Mercy 66-54 Friday night.

Freshman forward Edwina Brown added 11 points as the Longhorns won the season-opener for both teams.

Shafarrah Hill led Detroit Mercy with 14 points, while Nina Rouser and Autumn Rademacher had 10 apiece.

After Detroit went ahead 10-8 with 14:51 left in the first half on a pair of free throws by Rademacher, Texas established a lead it would not relinquish thereafter. The Longhorns went on a 12-point tear in a span of 3:42 to go up 20-10.

Forward Amie Smith knotted the game at 10-all with a layup, but Viglione did the most damage to Detroit's upset hopes. She scored eight points in the run, including two of her four 3-pointers.

■ Women's Roundup

Texas led 31-21 at halftime and got as far ahead as 16 points, 42-26, with 15:41 to play.

No. 24 Stephen F. Austin 67, San Diego St. 62

WACO — Katrina Price had 20 points and seven rebounds to lead No. 24 Stephen F. Austin to a season-opening victory over San Diego State.

The win came in the first game of the Dr Pepper Lady Bears Tournament at Ferrell Center on the Baylor University campus.

San Diego State stayed close most of the way, closing to a 64-61 deficit with 58 seconds left in the game on a layup by Olivia DiCamilli.

But Christie Smith's layup with 30 seconds left out the lead at 66-61. An exchange of free throws at the end finished the scoring.

SFA had a 41-33 lead at halftime. But San Diego State held early leads in the first half, the last being 18-15 with 9:12 left. But the Ladyjacks controlled the tip from a jumpball and Stephanie Whitmore, made a 3-pointer for an 18-18 tie.

Novotna, Hingis move into Chase semifinals

By Bob Greene
AP Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sixteen-year-old Martina Hingis sent an error-plagued Kimiko Date into retirement 6-1, 6-2 Friday night and grabbed the final semifinal berth in the $2 million Chase Championships.

Earlier, fifth-seeded Jana Novotna, playing nearly perfect tennis, defeated No. 3 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario 6-0, 6-3.

In Saturday's semifinals, Novotna will face top-seeded Steffi Graf, while Hingis will play Croatia's Iva Majoli in a battle of teen-agers.

"I've played Steffi a few times when I was playing basically my best tennis, and I have been able to beat her on that occasion," Novotna said. "But, of course this is going to be a different story. This is the semifinals at Madison Square Garden."

Hingis dominated her quarterfinal battle, but that had as much to do with Date's mistakes as with the sparkling play of the young right-hander from Switzerland.

Date, who earlier this year had announced she was retiring after this tournament, was never really a factor in the 51-minute match. She sprayed her groundstrokes wide and long with way too much regularity to challenge for the victory. She committed 25 unforced errors while winning only 36 points.

When the match was over, Date stayed in the arena and signed autographs. Then, with the crowd giving her a standing ovation, she walked to the center of the blue Madison Garden court and waved goodbye.

In the match, Date played as if she was concentrating more on her retirement than on her opponent's game. While Hingis wasn't that sharp, she didn't have to be.

Twenty minutes after the match began, Hingis had won the first set with Date never holding her own service. The highest-ranking player in Japanese history broke Hingis' serve in the fifth game.

The second set was more of the same, with Hingis dominating. Date held in the third game at 30, then held again from deuce in the seventh game. All Hingis had to do to clinch her berth in the semifinals was to hold serve in the eighth game, which she did easily at 30.

Novotna will play Graf for the second time in six days. Novotna won the Philadelphia tournament on Sunday when a bad back forced Graf to retire after dropping the opening set.

Novotna's career has been filled with "should haves" and "could haves." But against Sanchez Vicario on Friday, she was simply awesome, especially in the opening set.

The right-hander from the Czech Republic roared through the first set in 19 minutes. Everything she tried worked, especially her offensive lobs, which found the corners and baseline with unerring accuracy.

There really was nothing Sanchez Vicario could do in the first six games to stem the Novotna onslaught.

The first point of the match told the story. Sanchez Vicario got a short defensive lob and smashed it. Somehow, Novotna blocked the ball back, a lob that sailed over the head of her Spanish foe and landed just inside the baseline.

It happened again in the seventh game of the second set when Novotna hit a reflex offensive lob that force Sanchez Vicario back to the baseline. Then Novotna ended the night's best point when she punched a forehand volley cross-court.

DEAL: Bonilla switches leagues to NL

(From 1C)

White Sox last week.

Bonilla, coming off a $29 million, five-year contract, gets $5.6 million next season and $5.9 million in each of the following three years. He became eligible for free agency last week when the Orioles declined to offer him salary arbitration.

He said he began thinking of coming to Florida when Leyland joined the Marlins last month following 11 seasons with the Pirates. Bonilla and Leyland were together with the Pirates from 1986 to 1991, and they won the NL East in '90 and '91.

"He's a great man," Bonilla said. "I'm looking forward to playing for him again."

Leyland said the team still needs another strong bat to improve the poor run support ace Kevin Brown received last season, and Fred McGriff is one of the names that is rumored.

But Bonilla alone makes the Marlins lineup more potent.

"I think we have the best right-handed hitter in the league with Sheffield, and to put another strong bat right behind him is great," Leyland said. "Not only is he a great left-handed hitter, but he's a switch-hitter. He's very versatile."

Short-Hitting Klein jumps in front at Tour Championship

By Tim Dahlberg
AP Sports Writer

LPGA Tour Championship

LAS VEGAS — Emilee Klein can't keep up with Karrie Webb and Laura Davies off the tee. After two rounds of the LPGA Tour Championship, however, she's ahead of them on the scoreboard.

The steady Klein, who has yet to make a bogey in two days, shot a 4-under-par 68 in gusty winds Friday to take a one-shot lead over Juli Inkster midway through the season-ending $700,000 tournament.

Two shots back were Webb and Davies, a pair of long hitters who are battling not only for the season money title, but the chance to become the first LPGA golfer to win $1 million in a single season on the tour.

"I just hit it the way I know how to hit it," said Klein, who was at 7-under 137 after two rounds. "I'll never hit it as long as Karrie Webb or Laura Davies."

Klein played with Webb, who was consistently longer off the tee but was only able to manage a 2-under 70 to join Davies and two others at 139.

"I don't think I'm going to have too much effect on them," Klein said of the money race between Webb and Davies. "I'm just out here to play my best game. I'm going to let them play it out. I don't think I'll spoil their fun because they're both up there."

Klein, ninth on the money list in only her second year on the tour, made long putts to birdie the first and second holes, then birdied Nos. 8 and 12 with 8-footers.

The closest she came to bogey was at the 18th, where she nearly hit it in the water short of the green but then went up and down for par.

"I don't hit it very far, so I have to be consistent," said Klein, who carries five woods in her bag. "So when I have the 9-wood or the 7-wood in my hand, I'm hitting them close enough to make birdies."

Webb, the Australian rookie sensation, outdrove Klein throughout the round but made few putts on a day when gusty winds raked the Desert Inn course.

Webb birdied the first hole but didn't birdie again until making a 12-foot putt at the par-5 15th.

"Emilee might be hitting a 7-wood while I'm hitting 8-iron," Webb said. "It just feels different. It doesn't feel like we're playing the same game."

Webb, who is second on the money list with $852,000, and Davies, who is first with $897,302, both have a chance to break the million-dollar mark if they can win the $150,000 first prize in the 72-hole tournament.

To do so, though, they must get past both Klein and Inkster, who shot a 2-under 70 to stay only a stroke back.

Monahans sees volleyball season end in UIL Class 3A semifinals

AUSTIN (AP) — Amanda Pilcik had six of her team's 16 service aces, including one on match point, as Bellville beat Monahans 15-5, 15-4 in the Class 3A semifinals of the state volleyball tournament Friday.

Bellville (34-7), going for its fifth state title in seven years, faces Sealy (31-8) in Saturday's 1 p.m. final. Bellville beat Sealy 15-3, 13-15, 15-6 earlier this season.

Monahans, making its first state tournament appearance since 1984, finished the season 35-4.

Pilcik was dominant with her serve, acing Monahans four straight times — twice to end the first game and twice more to open the second game. She ended the match with her final ace.

Stacy Schmidt had a game-high seven kills, and Abby Zwahr added a game-high six digs for Bellville, which has a 17-match winning streak.

Sealy def. Hooks 15-8, 15-13

AUSTIN — Nathana Janca had 12 kills to help lead Sealy to a 15-8, 15-13 victory over Hooks in the other Class 3A semifinal.

Sealy (31-8), making its first state tourney appearance, will play in Saturday's championship game against Bellville.

Hooks (32-4), also making its first trip to Austin, led 10-5 in the second game before Sealy took control, outscoring the Hornets 10-3 the rest of the match. Sealy, which got seven kills from Lennette Joiner, never trailed in the first game.

Sealy is one of three schools in Austin County and all are represented in the state volleyball tournament. Six-time volleyball champion Bellville and Class 2A Wallis Brazos are the other two schools.

Class 5A

Arlington Martin def. San Antonio Marshall 15-7, 15-2

AUSTIN — Clarissa Bonner's 14 kills, including the match-winning kill, helped the Arlington Martin defeat San Antonio Marshall 15-7, 15-2 in Friday's Class 5A semifinal.

Martin (41-1) will play Humble Kingwood (39-2), which beat Cypress Creek 15-10, 15-13 in the other semifinal, 4 p.m. Saturday at Burger Center.

The Warriors, which advanced to its second state final in as many years, kept Marshall (36-3) within reach in the first game before rattling off six consecutive points behind Jennifer White's serve to lead 14-6.

The Marshall Rams defended one game-point before Gretchen Midkiff slammed the ace for the game-winner. In d0756txtx-u s AM-BKW--SanDiegoSt.-Step 11-22 0216

Humble Kingwood def. Cypress Creek 15-10, 15-13

AUSTIN — Jamie Keates and Humble Kingwood put the final kill on Cypress Creek with a 15-10, 15-13 Class 5A semifinal win.

Cy Creek (40-2) and Kingwood (39-2) are no strangers. Each is responsible for the others' losses this season and Friday's win more than evened the score for Kingwood. Friday's match was the only match between the two teams this season that did not go three games.

Cy Creek won the first meeting 10-15, 15-9, 15-5. Kingwood won the second 15-11, 5-15, 16-14, while Cy Creek won the next on 12-15, 15-[illegible], 15-11.

After losing the first game 15-10 and trailing in the second 4-2, Cy Creek came back with an 11-4 run to lead 13-8, but lacked enough to finish the job.

Class 4A

Hereford def. Red Oak 15-6, 15-7

AUSTIN — Julie Rampley had 14 kills as Hereford defeated defending Class 4A champion Red Oak 15-6, 15-7 in Class 4A semifinals.

The Whitefaces (33-1) will face Magnolia in Saturday's 2:30 p.m. final at Burger Center. Magnolia defeated New Braunfels Canyon 15-10, 15-4 in its Friday semifinal.

The defeat snapped Red Oak's two-year Class 4A winning streak. The Hawks (34-7) last loss against a Class 4A opponent was to Austin McCallum in the 1994 state semifinals.

Red Oak won the first point of game one but never led another game.

Hereford had too much power for the Hawks, who won state in 1992 and 1995.

Magnolia def. New Braunfels Canyon 15-10, 15-4

AUSTIN — Leigh Leman had 12 kills to help lead Magnolia to a 15-10, 15-4 win over New Braunfels Canyon in Friday's Class 4A semifinals.

Magnolia (33-2) plays Hereford (33-1) — 15-6, 15-7 winners over defending Class 4A champion Red Oak — in Saturday's 2:30 p.m. final at Burger Center.

Magnolia won the first game 15-10. The Bulldogs, which began the game with a 3-1 run, had to come back after trailing 6-4. A Kim Crawford kill gave Magnolia a 9-8 lead it wouldn't relinquish.

In the second game, New Braunfels Canyon (24-12) was never a factor. The Cougars scored the first point before being stunned by Magnolia's 9-0 run.

The state tournament appearance is New Braunfels Canyon's first since 1989. The Cougars, which won state in 1983, lost in the Region IV-4A finals two of the last four years.

Class 2A

Wallis Brazos def. Big Sandy 15-9, 15-11

AUSTIN — Jennifer Toman had nine kills to help lead Wallis Brazos to a 15-9, 15-11 victory over Big Sandy in the Class 2A semifinals.

Wallis Brazos (28-11), making its first state tourney appearance since reaching the 1991 finals, will play in Saturday's championship game against Poth (35-5), a 15-10, 17-15 winner over Holliday in the other semifinal.

Big Sandy finished the year 27-4 after making its first state tournament appearance.

Poth def. Holliday 15-10, 17-15

AUSTIN — DeAnn Dzuik provided the final kill as defending state champion Poth defeated Holliday 15-10, 17-15 in the Class 2A semifinals.

Poth (35-5) will play in Saturday's state title game against Wallis Brazos.

Holliday, which finished the season 26-5, was led by Meredith Nichols' 10 kills, while Amanda Wallace and Sommer Laudermilk added seven digs each.

Class 1A

Round Top-Carmine def. Windthorst 12-15, 15-8, 16-14

AUSTIN — Gretchen Goebel had 24 kills, including the match-winner, as defending Class 1A volleyball champion Round Top-Carmine fended off two match points and defeated Windthorst 12-15, 15-8, 16-14in the state tournament semifinals.

Round Top-Carmine (37-4) will play in Saturday's title game against Kennard (30-6), which defeated Water Valley 15-11, 15-2 in the other semifinal.

Windthorst (21-9), a three-time state champion making its eighth state tournament appearance, scored nine unanswered points and took a 14-13 lead in the third game.

Kennard def. Water Valley 15-11, 15-2

AUSTIN — Minnie McFarland led Kennard Tigers with 10 kills in the Tigers' 15-11, 15-2 Class A semifinal win over Water Valley at the University Interscholastic League State Volleyball Tournament.

Kennard (30-6) faces Round Top-Carmine and Windthorst in Saturday's 1A final.

Kennard jumped to a 9-2 lead in the first game before the Water Valley Wildcats (14-12) came back to pull within one at 11-10.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Home and family life will be a source of great strength. Someone may expect you to provide great service without adequate reward. Move on if you have had enough. A relocation is favored early in 1997. February could bring a promotion or new perks. Taking language lessons could lead to a remarkable adventure. A special travel package lets you take a wonderful vacation. Buy or sell real estate next June. You win the respect of people you admire.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actress Ellen Drew, actress Susan Anspach, musician Bruce Hornsby, Wild West outlaw Billy the Kid.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You and your mate experience a true meeting of minds this morning. Do not allow a "user" to take advantage of your hospitality. Ingenuity helps you surmount a roadblock. Contact a favorite relative or friend.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A gesture of goodwill has the intended effect. Be diplomatic if hoping to establish better rapport with your siblings or offspring. An objective approach will help you meet a challenge.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You need to make the most of an unusual social opportunity. Avoid acting bossy with your family or friends. Be realistic about your financial limitations.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Be more sensitive to your mate or partner's feelings. A desire for freedom could conflict with your responsibilities. Tackle chores in order of their importance.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Buy or borrow do-it-yourself books and magazines if decorating your home. Bring home wallpaper and fabric swatches to show to family members. Showcase your culinary talents.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You can go just so far today and no further. Trying to force an issue will only result in a setback. Joy comes from improved communication with your mate or partner. Spruce up your surroundings.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Avoid discussing business today; instead concentrate on recreational activities that include the whole family. Children will be delighted to help.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Not a good day to get involved in others' domestic problems. Pursue a hobby that amuses or enlightens you. A phone call or letter brings a smile. Share good news with a loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be prudent when tackling anything deemed hazardous. Keep confidential matters secret. Plead ignorance if someone asks too many questions. Modesty is advised when others praise your efforts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Catalog purchases will help you avoid malls crowded with holiday shoppers. You can also prepare homemade treats. Emphasize economy measures when talking with family members.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Others may not share your desire to limit gift-buying this Christmas. Explain your situation and relatives will be more understanding. Romance flourishes on thoughtful deeds.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Something new fascinates you. Realize that it is impossible to please everyone and be true to yourself. A television show gives you an idea for a book. Write an outline immediately.

Mario Cuomo tries his hand at another TV commercial — for Mad magazine

NEW YORK — Mario Cuomo: secret fan of Mad magazine, the comic book that your mother warned would soften your brain?

It would seem so, if you believe a new commercial for media giant Time Warner.

Mario Cuomo says where he's from 'you couldn't afford Mad magazine.'

In the ad, which airs next week on Time Warner Cable of New York, Cuomo silently raises a copy of Mad in front of his face as the words "Won't admit it, but has every Mad magazine ever printed" appear on the screen.

It's the second commercial venture for the former New York governor and presidential hopeful, who hawked Doritos chips with ousted Texas Gov. Ann Richards shortly after he left office.

So does he really hoard old Mads?

"Oh, c'mon. What do you think?" Cuomo said Friday. "If I did really own every copy of Mad magazine, it wouldn't be a spoof. Where I come from, you couldn't afford Mad magazine."

OBAN, Scotland — She claimed she was just upset, but a Scottish jury ruled Friday that Princess Diana's mother was driving drunk.

Frances Shand Kydd, who lives on an island off Scotland's western coast, was banned from driving for a year and fined $675 for driving with more than 2 1/2 times the legal limit of alcohol in her blood.

Mrs. Shand Kydd, who divorced Diana's father when Diana was a child, told the court she had been upset after receiving a special delivery letter April 5, the day she was stopped. The sender and contents were not disclosed.

The constable who stopped her car said she mumbled incoherently and staggered when he asked her to get out.

LOS ANGELES — That's NOT all, folks!

New cartoons are on their way, thanks to the discovery of tapes made by Mel Blanc, the voice of Porky Pig, Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck and other characters.

Before he died in 1989, Blanc recorded character voices at his home studio. The tapes feature 550 songs and every character in his repertoire.

Blanc Communications, whose president is Blanc's son, Noel, recently joined with Warner Bros. to esta-blish the Warner/Blanc Audio Library.

Newly discovered tapes will keep Mel Blanc's voice alive.

"With this computerized log of classic animated characters, Mel Blanc's distinctive voices can be enjoyed by many generations to come," Noel Blanc said Friday.

Blanc's Porky Pig ended Looney Tunes cartoons with the signoff "That's all folks!" Blanc's gravestone bears the slogan.

LOS ANGELES — Bobby Vinton is making the best of an odd time slot for his Christmas TV special, even though the jingle of sleigh bells could be drowned out by the crunch of cereal.

"A Kissin' Christmas With Bobby Vinton" will air at 8 a.m. Dec. 13 on cable's Family Channel.

"Snap, crackle and pop!" Vinton joked Friday from his Blue Velvet Theatre in Branson, Mo. "It's Bobby Vinton and corn flakes, I guess."

Vinton said he thought it was a mistake when he first heard the schedule.

"They said, 'No, no mistake. You've got the best time on The Family Channel. It's a breakfast show.' I guess everybody sits around and eats breakfast with The Family Channel," he said. "Well, it's better than nothing, better than Palookaville."

TAMPA, Fla. — The world knows Pete Rose as one of the greatest ballplayers of all time. Now it also knows he is Morgan Rubio's dad.

The 18-year-old woman has settled a lawsuit against Rose by winning his acknowledgement that she is his daughter, The Tampa Tribune reported Friday.

The rest of the settlement is confidential, but Rubio's lawyer, Walter Lopez, said Rose isn't required to pay her anything.

Rubio's mother, Terryl Fernandez of Lutz, filed a paternity suit against Rose shortly after Rubio was born in 1978. The case was settled and Rose never acknowledged he is the girl's father, Lopez said.

Rubio filed her own lawsuit several months before her 18th birthday, seeking acknowledgement that she "belonged to somebody," Lopez said. Rose denied he was Rubio's father, but blood tests showed otherwise.

Sampras beats Kafelnikov to reach semifinals

By Nesha Starcevic
Associated Press Writer

■ ATP Championships

HANOVER, Germany — It was a day for celebrations at the ATP Tour World Championship Friday.

Top-ranked Pete Sampras reached the semifinals and gained his 500th career singles victory, beating Yevgeny Kafelnikov 6-4, 6-4.

Boris Becker, the defending champion, celebrated his 29th birthday, but the occasion turned a bit sour when Becker lost 6-3, 7-6 (7-1) to Thomas Enqvist. Becker already was assured of a place in the semifinals.

The $3.3 million event brings together the top eight players in the world, with the two top finishers from each four-man group advancing to the semis.

In Saturday's semifinals, Sampras will face Goran Ivanisevic, ranked No. 4 in the world.

Becker will meet Wimbledon champion Richard Krajicek, who finished with two straight aces in beating Thomas Muster 7-6 (7-4), 6-7 (5-7), 6-3. Krajicek had 23 aces in the match.

Sampras recovered quickly from his loss to Becker on Thursday.

"It's not easy to play after losing such a tough match like yesterday," Sampras said. "It was mentally draining. But I got up, put Boris behind me and I got off to a great start in today's match.

"The loss yesterday was obviously disappointing. But today ... I thought I played very well.

"In order to win here, you need to beat four, five guys in the top eight in the world. It would have been nice to have a day to rest."

The U.S. Open champion is now fourth among active players in victories. Becker has 664, Mats Wilander 571 and Muster 539.

Stefan Edberg has 806, but he is retiring at the end of the year.

Sampras has won a tour-high seven tournaments this season, an honor he shares with Muster, and has lost only 11 matches. He will finish the year as No. 1 for the fourth successive season. The last player to accomplish that was John McEnroe, ending in 1984.

Sampras, like Becker seeking a record third title, broke Kafelnikov in the first game. That edge helped him cruise through the first set, although he had to save three break points in the sixth game.

The second followed a similar pattern, with Sampras gaining a break for a 2-1 lead. But Kafelnikov hit a superb backhand winner to break back and even at 4-4.

Russia's tennis player Yevgeny Kafelnikov shouts during his match at the ATP-Final against US Pete Sampras in Hanover on Friday. Sampras won the match 6-4, 6-4 to clinch a semifinal spot at the ATP Tour World Championship.

The Russian's rally didn't last long. He saved four break points in the next game, but hit a backhand long to drop his serve.

Serving for the match, Sampras double-faulted to face two break points. A service winner and an ace got him out of trouble, a smash gave him match point and Sampras converted it with a soft, slice volley.

"It was close to going to a tiebreak, but I don't think I was close to losing it," he said. "I wanted to win in straight sets.

"We were playing some long points and I was feeling it a little."

Kafelnikov, the French Open champion who has risen to No. 3 in the world, said Sampras won all the big points.

"I feel I played a great match, but he is the No. 1 and he proved it at crucial moments," he said.

Sampras was wary about facing Ivanisevic.

"The way he serves and returns, he could blow you off the court," Sampras said. "Hopefully, I can prevent that from happening."

Ivanisevic has a record 1,442 aces so far this year.

Despite his loss, Becker was in a celebratory mood. After the match, the fans joined in a rendition of "Happy Birthday," a cake was wheeled onto the court and Becker blew out the 29 birthday candles.

"I couldn't take the match seriously today," Becker said. "It was like a practice.

"But tomorrow, it's back to business."

South Africa leads In World Cup of Golf

Men's Golf Roundup

■ Mens' Golf Roundup

CAPETOWN, South Africa — Ernie Els and Wayne Westner both birdied the final hole Friday to help South Africa maintain a one-stroke lead over Scotland at the World Cup of Golf.

Both South Africans shot par 72s for 140 totals, giving the team an 8-under 280 total after two rounds of the $1.5 million tournament.

Scotland was second at 281, with Denmark and France tied for third at 285. Another stroke back was the United States team of British Open champion Tom Lehman and U.S. Open winner Steve Jones. Both fired 70s Friday.

Scotland's Paul Lawrie, making his World Cup debut, was tied for the individual lead with Bernhard Langer of Germany at 5-under 139.

Chile was disqualified when Guillermo Encina signed an incorrect scorecard, dropping the number of nations competing to 31.

"Bad start, good finish," was how Els described the South Africans' performance on a windy day at the 7,002-yard, par-72 Erinvale Country Club course.

Both Els and Westner had poor first nines — 38 and 37, respectively. But they came home in 34 and 35 with six birdies between them.

For Lehman and Jones, Friday's round resurrected their chances to bring the United States a record-tying fifth straight title. The U.S. team of Fred Couples and Davis Love III won the four previous World Cups.

"We played a lot better today but we're still wasting shots," said Lehman, the player of the year on the U.S. PGA tour. "The putting is particularly frustrating. We're having a tough time getting the right line on these greens with their bumps and turns and grains."

Both Americans bogeyed the second hole and drifted to 4-over for the tournament Friday. But they turned it around at the next hole, a 510-yard par 5 that Jones eagled and Lehman birdied.

The pair combined for six birdies in the final 13 holes, with Jones making the only bogey at No. 15.

Woods gets it together

SYDNEY, Australia — Overcoming gusty winds and driving rain, Tiger Woods shot a par 72 Friday to almost certainly make the cut for the final two rounds of the Australian Open.

"I've always been creative and you needed to be creative today," said Woods, the three-time U.S. Amateur champion who won two late-season PGA Tour events. "You got to play some shots you don't play every day.

Woods, who opened the tournament with a 7-over 79, was nine strokes behind clubhouse leader Rolf Muntz of the Netherlands on a day when 38 players, including leader Greg Norman, didn't finish because of the rain.

Woods, making his first pro appearance outside the United States, had four birdies and four bogeys on The Australian course. He missed several short putts, including a six-foot birdie attempt at No. 18.

Norman, the defending champion seeking his fifth Australian Open title, was even par through 16 holes and 5-under for the tournament when rain halted play for the third and final time. He had a one-stroke lead over Sweden's Klas Eriksson, who completed 15 holes.

Stankowski leads Casio Open

IBUSUKI, Japan — Paul Stankowski shot a 3-under-par 69 in windy conditions today to take the second-round lead in the Casio World Open.

Stankowski, who won the PGA Tour's BellSouth Classic in April and the unofficial Kapalua International two weeks ago, had five birdies and two bogeys on the Ibusuki Golf Club course for a 6-under 138 total.

Fellow American David Ishii (70) was a stroke back along with Japan's Tateo "Jet" Ozaki (69). American Peter Teravainen, the Japan Open winner, shot a 70 to move into a fourth-place tie at 140 with Paraguay's Carlos Franco (67) and Japan's Mitsutaka Kusakabe (70).

Devils send Broten to LA for future considerations

Associated Press

Notes

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — A week after the New Jersey Devils assigned him to Manitoba of the IHL, center Neal Broten was traded to the Los Angeles Kings Friday for future considerations.

The Kings assigned Broten to the Phoenix Roadrunners, their IHL affiliate.

"Neal was an important part of our club for a season-and-a-half," general manager Lou Lamoriello said. "We appreciate everything Neal did for us in his short time in New Jersey."

Broten, who will be 37 this month, was assigned to the IHL's Manitoba Moose Nov. 14. He had cleared waivers Oct. 17 after appearing in three games this season for the Devils, with one assist.

In 17 NHL seasons, Broten had 281 goals and 623 assists while playing with just two organizations, Minnesota-Dallas and New Jersey. He is the career leader in games, points, and assists for the Stars' organization.

Broten helped the Devils win the Stanley Cup in 1995. He was acquired in a February trade with Dallas and stepped up in the playoffs with seven goals and 12 assists, including the Cup clincher in Game 4 against Detroit.

Lindros May Finally Return To Action Saturday

PHILADELPHIA — Eric Lindros, the Philadelphia Flyers' star center, has been cleared to play and could return as soon as Saturday.

Lindros has missed the first 22 games with a nagging groin injury he sustained at the World Cup of Hockey in September. Dr. Arthur Bartolozzi examined him again Wednesday and declared him ready to play.

"It's up to Eric," Flyers spokesman Joe Klueg said. "When he feels ready to play, he'll play."

The captain skated with the team before Thursday's game and practiced in Florida before Friday's game against the Tampa Bay Lightning. Flyers president Bobby Clarke told the Philadelphia Inquirer that he expected Lindros to play Saturday — but if not, definitely Tuesday against the Boston Bruins.

Lindros has been on a program that includes two days of hard skating followed by a day of rehabilitation. He has traveled home to Ontario for acupuncture and massage treatments.

He was the team's leading scorer last season with 115 points, but the Flyers decided not to rush his return because of the high risk of re-injury.

Rate & Credit Policies
Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classified categories require payment in advance. Credit applications are also required for business accounts. Yearly contract agreements are available. The Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right to correctly classify and edit all copy or to reject or cancel any advertisement at any time.

Cancellations
The price of your ad will be based on the number of days published according to our rate structure. Call (915) 682-6222 - ask for your cancellation number. This is your record of cancellation and it is important that you have it in the event of any misunderstanding or adjustment. "Super Seller" and "Real Wheel Deal" ads may be cancelled, but are non-adjustable and non-refundable.

Errors and Adjustments
Please check your ad the first day that it appears to be sure that all of the information is correct. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. Call us the first day if you find an error at 915-682-6222. To report an error in Saturday's edition call Saturday morning between 8a.m. and 10a.m. Errors in Sunday's edition should be reported on Monday morning after 8:00 a.m. We must limit our financial responsiblity, if any, to the charge for the word or space, and cannot be held responsible for incorrect ads after the first day of publication.

Omissions of Ads
The Midland Reporter-Telegram assumes no financial responsiblity in an ad beyond the cost of the ad itself, and no responsiblity for the omission of an ad.

FREE BEE
FREE CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING
If your are a private individual selling one item for $50 or less you can place a 3 line classified advertisement for 4 days absolutely FREE in the Midland Reporter-Telegram.
Other restrictions apply.

"Sell It In 10" or We'll Run It Again"
3 LINES 10 DAYS $15
EACH ADDITIONAL LINE $5.00
If you have a car, truck, van, RV, motorcycle, boat or airplane we'll advertise it for 10 consecutive days. In the unlikely event you don't sell it we'll run it another 10 days at no charge. At the end of 20 days if it still hasn't sold we'll run it another 10 days at no charge, if you'll reduce the price by 10%. Price must be in ad. Only one vehicle per ad. For private individuals only (non-commercial).

Real Wheel Deals
(Includes Picture)
If you have a car, truck, van, motor-home, motorcycle, airplane, bicycle or anything with wheels, your ad will be scheduled for 7 DAYS. When you get the desired results simply call us and we will cancel it immediately for only $25. For private individuals only.

RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS
OFFICE OF GENERAL COUNSEL

OIL AND GA DOCKET NO. 08-0214292

IN RE: CONSERVATION AND PREVENTION OF WASTE OF CRUDE PETROLEUM AND NATURAL GAS IN THE STATE OF TEXAS

Austin, Texas, November 22, 1996

NOTICE OF HEARING
ON THE APPLICATION OF COASTAL MANAGEMENT CORPORATION TO CONSIDER UTILIZATION AND SECONDARY RECOVERY AND AN ENTITY FOR DENSITY FOR THE M.A.K. (SPRABERRY) UNIT M.A.K. (SPRABERRY) FIELD ANDREWS AND MARTIN COUNTIES, TEXAS

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN to the public and to all interested persons that under the legal authority and jurisdiction of Title 3, Oil and Gas, Subtitles A, B, and C of the Texas Natural Resources Code, Chapters 26, 27, and 29 of the Texas Water Code, and TEX. GOV'T CODE ANN. art. §§ 2001 et seq. (1996), the RAILROAD COMMISSION OF TEXAS will hold a hearing on DECEMBER 20, 1996, AT 9:00 a.m. at the William B. Travis State Office Building, 1701 N. Congress Avenue, Austin, Texas. This hearing will be conducted in conformity with the TEX. GOV'T CODE ANN. art. §§ 2001 et seq. (1996). For room assignment, on the date of the hearing please check the bulletin board in the 1st Floor lobby. Persons planning to attend this hearing are urged to contact the applicant (see service list) immediately prior to the hearing date to be sure that the hearing ill proceed on the scheduled date.

This hearing will be held to consider the application of Coastal management Corporation to consider the following:

1. Approval of a fieldwide unit, pursuant to Chapter 101 of the Texas Natural Resources code, to be known as the M.A.K. (Spraberry) Unit;

2. Approval of the secondary recovery operations to be conducted within the M.A.K. (Spraberry) Unit in the M.A.K. (Spraberry) Field; and

3. Approval and recognition of the M.A.K. (Spraberry) Unit as an entity for density purposes, Andrews and Martin Counties, Texas.

All (100%) of the royalty interests and in excess of 85% of the working interests within the Unit Area are committed to the Unit.

If you have questions regarding this application, please contact the applicant's representative, Philip Whitworth, at (512) 495-6300. If you have any questions regarding the hearing procedure, please contact the Railroad Commission, Office of General Counsel, at (512) 463-6848.

IF A CONTINUATION IS NECESSARY, this hearing will proceed at the William B. Travis State Office Building, Austin, Texas, and, to the extent possible, on subsequent working days. The room number and exact time of the continuation will be announced on the record in this proceeding and recorded with Docket Services, Office of General Counsel, Railroad Commission of Texas.

PURSUANT TO SAID HEARING, the Commission will enter such rules, regulations, and orders as in its judgment the evidence presented may justify.

ANY REQUEST FOR POSTPONEMENT of this hearing must be received no later than five (5) working days prior to the scheduled date shown above. Copies of such request must be forwarded to all parties shown on the service list.

TO APPEAR IN SUPPORT OF OR IN OPPOSITION TO THIS PROCEEDING, a party other than the applicant must file with Docket Services, Offices of General Counsel, at least five (5) working days in advance of the hearing date, a notice of intent to appear.

IF ANY PARTY DESIRES A WRITTEN TRANSCRIPT of the hearing, that party should notify the Court Reporter's office at (512) 463-6926, at least five (5) working days in advance of the hearing date. If a written transcript is requested, the commission may assess the cost of the transcript to one or more parties. Unless any party requests a written transcript, the record will be made by audio tape recording.

ANY INDIVIDUAL WITH A DISABILITY who needs auxiliary aids and services in order to have an equal opportunity to effectively communicate and participate in this hearing must request such aids or services at least two weeks prior to the scheduled hearing by notifying the Personnel office of the Railroad Commission of Texas by mail at P.O. Box 12967, Austin, Texas 78711-2967, or by telephone at (512) 463-7327 or TDD No. (512) 463-7284.

ALL EXHIBITS FILED AS A PART OF THE RECORD IN THIS CAUSE MUST BE SUBMITTED IN DUPLICATE. DATA IN COMMISSION RECORDS MAY BE INCORPORATED BY REFERENCE, BUT THE REFERENCE MUST BE SPECIFIC, AND IF IT INCLUDES EXHIBITS FILED IN PRIOR PROCEEDINGS BEFORE THE COMMISSION, A COPY OF SUCH EXHIBIT PROPERLY IDENTIFIED SHALL BE SUBMITTED FOR THIS RECORD.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations will conduct an accreditation survey of this organization on December 4 -5 - 6, 1996. The purpose of the survey will be to evaluate the organization's compliance with nationally established Joint Commission standards. The survey results will be used to determine whether, and the conditions under which accreditation should be awarded the organization.

Joint Commission standards deal with organizational quality of care issues and the safety of the environment in which care is provided. Anyone believing that he or she has pertinent and valid information about such matters may request a public information interview with the Joint Commission's field representatives at the time of the survey. Information presented at the interview will be carefully evaluated for relevance to the accreditation process. Requests for a public information interview must be made in writing and should be sent to the Joint Commission no later than five working days before the survey begins. The request must also indicate the nature of the information to be provided at the interview. Such requests should be addressed to:

Division of Accreditation Operations
Organization Liaison
Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations
One Renaissance Boulevard
Oakbrook Terrace, IL 60181

The Joint Commission will acknowledge such requests in writing or by telephone and will inform the organization of the request for any interview. The organization will, in turn, notify the interviewee of the date, time, and place of the meeting.

This notice is posted in accordance with the Joint Commission's requirements and may not be removed before the survey is completed.

Introducing the features that can introduce you to someone special.

ADVERTISER MATCH℠

Advertiser Match lets you know – when you place an ad – if there are other advertisers out there who are just your type. All you need to do is answer a few simple questions when you record your voice greeting and this new feature will immediately direct you to other advertisers who meet your criteria. Then, just call 1-900-407-1160 (Call costs $2.19 per minute. Must be 18 or older) to hear their voice greetings. The best part is, each time you call to hear responses to your ad, Advertiser Match will direct you to any new advertisers who meet your criteria.

AUTO BROWSE℠

When you call and respond to a specific ad, this new feature will automatically let you know if there are other advertisers with the same profile. Then once you've left your first greeting, you can listen to as many of the other ads as you wish. Just think about it... with Auto Browse, you'll never have to worry about the one who got away!

© 1996 The TPI Group

Personal Interview℠

With Personal Interview you'll record better, more interesting voice greetings and let listeners know even more about you. Here's all you need to know: when it's time to record your voice greeting, you'll be given the option of answering a few simple questions. Just take your time, and in no time, you've got a better, more interesting voice greeting than you ever thought possible. More interesting greeting... more responses. Better greeting... better responses. That's all there is to it.

SUPER BROWSE℠

Similar to Advertiser Match, Super Browse automatically directs you to advertisers who meet your criteria. And like every new feature, it's so easy to use. When you call to browse ads, just answer a few simple questions and Super Browse will let you hear all the ads from people who are sure to be your type.

Frequent Caller℠

It's no wonder Frequent Caller is our most popular feature. For starters, it makes responding to ads faster and more efficient than ever before. And of course, it's easy to use, too. When you call to respond to an ad, simply answer a few questions and you'll be given your own personal Frequent Caller PIN#. Then every time you call and enter that number, Frequent Caller will let you know if there are any new advertisers who meet your criteria. You'll never have to listen to the same ads twice AND, you can listen to more ads than ever... for less money!

Just Friends

TOO MANY WOMEN
School teacher, 40s, spends days with women, seeks male friend to visit with, have coffee, go to a show. It would be nice to have another guy to talk to, 30-50. ☎2115(exp12/29)

GUIDELINES: People Meeting People personals are for adults 18 or over seeking monogamous relationships. We recommend users carefully screen all responses and first meetings occur in a public place. We suggest your ad contain a self-description, age range, lifestyle and avocation information. Ads and voice messages containing explicit sexual language will not be accepted. Midland Reporter reserves the right to revise copy containing objectionable phrases; to edit or reject, in its sole discretion, any advertisement. Midland Reporter assumes no liability for the content or reply to any People Meeting People ad. The advertiser assumes complete liability for the content and all replies to any advertisement or recorded message and for any claims made against this publication and its agents as a result thereof. The advertiser agrees to indemnify and hold harmless this publication, its employees and agents from any cost, expense, liability and damage resulting from the publication or reply to any advertisement or recording placed by the advertiser. People Meeting People, advertisers agree not to leave a phone number, last name or address in their voice greeting.
