Paraguay Invaded By Border Rebels

Jury Finds For Addison

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — A jury of 11 men and a woman Saturday returned an instructed verdict of innocent for uranium promoter John Milton Addison.

The verdict acquitted Addison of all three charges contained in Bexar county indictments and the stocky 31-year-old Addison walked out of Judge John F. Onion's Criminal District Court No. 2 a free man.

The verdict was returned shortly after 3 p.m.

Even before the jury got the case, observers saw a quick end to the trial which had been billed as expected to be one of the longest and most tedious in Bexar county history.

The state's case collapsed Friday when defense attorneys maneuvered the prosecution to standing on only a theft count against Addison and then immediately attacked Onion's jurisdiction in the case.

Addison, whom the state alleges has bilked hundreds of investors of nearly a million dollars with promises of riches in his uranium dealings, was brought to trial on specific counts of theft over $50 selling securities without a license and conspiracy to sell securities without a license.

The theft of over $50 stemmed from the complaint of Dr. Cliff Ochsenbein, an Austin dentist, who claimed he was done out of $1,250 by Addison.

Addison claimed that the $1,250 was in the form of a loan which wouldn't even be due until next March.

Defense Attorney William Yelderman filed a motion Friday when the state announced it had completed its case after eight days of testimony.

Yelderman moved that the court require Assistant District Attorney James Barlow to elect which count the state would rest on in trying to prove its case. Barlow agreed the motion was well taken and Onion sustained the motion.

Barlow elected to stand on the theft count and then the defense immediately moved that the case be dismissed on the ground that Onion and the Bexar county

Profit On Drug Said Excessive

One Phase Of Hearings Ends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Estes Kefauver wound up hearings on the pricing of some so-called wonder drugs Saturday and charged that evidence "clearly shows" Americans are being required to pay too much for them.

Kefauver closed hearings of his Senate anti-monopoly subcommittee after investigators reported that Upjohn Co. bought female sex hormones for 14 cents a gram and sold them to druggists for $15 a gram, an increase of 10,000 per cent.

He also announced that hearings will resume about the middle of January, touching on another product in the drug field. Sources have indicated that antibiotics will be next on the list.

Kefauver said there is clear evidence that wonder drug prices are too high, and that there is an excessive difference between

Titan Blows Up On Stand

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — A Titan Intercontinental Ballistic Missile exploded in flame and black smoke on its stand Saturday in the third straight failure to fire the U. S.'s "new generation" ICBM.

The 110-ton bullet shaped Titan missiles cost two million dollars each.

An automatic shut-off device saved the Titan, which exploded Saturday from destruction on its stand only two days ago. A Titan blew up in a premature launching accident here Aug. 14 in the most recent firing attempt before this week. In both blow-ups, the Titan carried a "live" second stage which was to be fired in flight for the first time.

As yet the U.S. has not succeeded in achieving a successful test of the second stage in flight. The second stage is designed to give the Titan full 100,000-pound thrust to carry it over a range expected to reach 9,000 miles when fully developed.

Saturday's explosion occurred at blast-off time, 12:11 p. m. EST. The explosion came from within the 90-foot missile itself and was not intentional. Its cause was not determined.

It ripped the sleek, bullet shaped Titan apart in a mushrooming ball of orange flame and clouds of black smoke. Burning debris was hurled for hundreds of feet into the air.

Walter Williams Nearer To Death

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)—Walter (Old Reb) Williams, 117, the last living veteran of the Civil War, wheezed away what may be the last hours of his life Saturday in an oxygen tent while liquid nourishment dripped through a needle into the big vein in his right wrist.

"I think he's in a coma," his daughter, Mrs. Willie Mae Bowles, said. "But it's hard to tell. He's so weak."

Dr. Russell Wolfe, who has been treating him for the last six years, said Williams could die at any moment of his fourth attack of pneumonia this year. Wolfe thinks he will be gone within a matter of hours, unless there is a dramatic change.

Even U.S. Style Commies Hard To Please

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Communist Party of the U.S.A. turned thumbs down Saturday on both Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller as presidential candidates.

The Party attacked Nixon for his views on labor and the cold war and Rockefeller as the spokesman of "oil and finance."

Two leading Democrats—former President Harry S. Truman and former Secretary of State Dean Acheson — also were attacked.

The criticism came in a resolution passed at the party's 17th national convention.

The remnants of a once militant party that numbered 80,000 members at its peak in the 1930's released the resolution to the press from behind an iron curtain of secrecy on the 11th floor of Harlem's Theresa Hotel.

Reporters were restricted to a press room on the 10th floor, information about the proceedings being passed to them as party leaders decided.

Exiles, 3,000 Strong, Hit Fast, Claim 3 Points Gained

ASUNCION, Paraguay (UPI) — An army of 3,000 Paraguayan exiles invaded Paraguay from Argentina in pre-dawn darkness Saturday and attacked government troops in fierce fighting. The government claimed victory.

President Gen. Alfredo Stroessner's government announced that Loyalist troops crushed the invasion at the border cities of Pilar and Encarnacion.

But rebel radio reports monitored in the Argentine frontier city of Posades claimed advances past Encarnacion and the capture of a third border city 125 miles to the northeast, Puerto Iguazu.

The rebel force, led by Maj. Juan José Rotella, crossed the Paraguay and Parana Rivers in several columns. The invaders struck from Argentine territory at 2 a.m., taking advantage of the darkness to make their landings.

But the official reports from the capital said that 'river defense forces "intercepted them and threw them back.

The only government reports of casualties listed "some wounded."

The government's river defense forces apparently are the two battalions of infantry stationed near Pilar and Encarnacion.

The rebel reports did not mention fighting around Pilar and the government statement said nothing about Puerto Iguazu.

The rebel radio reported that Rotella's forces captured the port zone of Encarnacion, then moved on to take two villages north of the city. It said they encountered fierce fighting along the way.

The government admitted that groups in Encarnacion sympathetic to the rebels tried to seize the local garrison, but it said they were driven back.

Both sides said a rebel plane strafed Encarnacion, but the government claimed it did no damage to the city.

Encarnacion is about 175 miles southeast of the capital, and Pilar about 125 miles southwest. Puerto Iguazu is about 200 miles east, with tough mountains in between.

Stroessner has a crack cavalry division guarding Asuncion, which has been the target of previous revolutions.

Rebel radio reports said the government was rushing all available reserve troops southward to bolster the forces clashing with the invaders.

PILGRIMAGE BANNER BEARERS — Representatives of 32 Pampa churches met early Saturday afternoon at Pampa High School with Key Club members to receive instructions on the Dec. 20 Pampa Pilgrimage and to check starting and assembling points. Shown above are standard bearers with signs naming their congregations. It is hoped that next Sunday evening 14,000 or more residents will walk together to the church of their choice and there join in a simultaneous song and worship service to herald the Christmas season. The plan, believed unique in America, is the brainchild of several young Key Club members, among whom are Ricky Schmidt, Mert Cooper, David Scarberry, Jim Scott, Keith Gregory, Tony Edmondson and Robbie Robison. 15 Accused In Castro Plot

HAVANA (UPI) — Fifteen Cuban navy men were reported Saturday to have been arrested on charges of plotting to assassinate Premier Fidel Castro.

The reports reaching here from Santiago de Cuba said the alleged plotters had planned to kill the Cuban leader during a visit he made to that eastern Cuban city Nov. 30.

Reports of the plot coincided with the trial here of Cuban civil war hero Maj. Hubert Matos and 39 other officers accused of conspiring to overthrow the Castro revolutionary government.

Matos told the frist trial session that ended early Saturday that ideological differences with defense minister Raul Castro were among factors that prompted his resignation.

Matos' arrest on treason charges followed a letter of resignation to Castro in which he gave Communism in government as the reason for his action.

Matos, former military commander of Camaguey Province, also told the court that missing army chief Maj. Camilio Cienfuegos had shared his concern on October, some days after Matos' arrest, while flying back to Havana from Camaguey where he had made a check into military unrest. His fate remains a mystery.

Dispatches from Santiago de Cuba said that the 15 persons detained in connection with the alleged assassination plot against Castro were all attached to the Punta Blanca Naval District. No high-ranking officers were believed involved, however.

The reports said that the navy men planned to launch a campaign of terror in Oriente Province in Eastern Cuba to go along with a planned attack on Castro.

It was speculated that Castro may have been aware of a plot against him when he visited Santiago to commemorate the anniversary of the 1956 landing that launched his successful revolution.

It was for this reason, according to the speculation, that Castro changed his travel plans to land at Bayamo and go to Santiago by automobile rather than flying directly to Santiago airport as originally scheduled.

Maj. Matos and his fellow defendants—among them five captains and 11 lieutenants arrested when they protested against his detention — faced death before a firing squad if convicted by the military tribunal at Camp Liberty.

Matos had been serving as military commander in Camaguey Province when he wrote the letter that led to his arrest last October.

Testifying before the tribunal, Matos denied he was a traitor. He said he had told Castro of "well-defined ideological differences" with brother Raul Castro, then Cuban Chief of Staff.

UN Votes Hands Off French-Algerian Tiff

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) The General Assembly late Saturday, for the second consecutive year, refused to take action in the five-year-old war between France and the Algerian Nationalists.

It failed to return the two-thirds majority required for approval of a watered-down Afro-Asian resolution calling for diplomatic talks "with a view to arriving at a peaceful solution on the basis of the right to self-determination."

The vote was 39-22, with 20 abstentions. The United States, which had voted on the side of France on a previous resolution in the political committee, abstained on the weakened substitute measure presented to the assembly by Pakistan Saturday.

Most delegations explained it as a feeling in the United Nations that the Assembly should take no action in the French-Algerian

Nigeria Votes To Determine First Leaders

LAGOS, Nigeria (UPI)—Millions of Nigerians voted throughout this vast African territory Saturday in a three-cornered election contest to determine who will lead the first government when Nigeria becomes independent next year.

Nigeria, now a British colony and protectorate, is scheduled to become the world's largest independent Negro nation on Oct. 1, 1960. All three main contenders agreed that an independent Nigeria should be linked with the British commonwealth.

Authorities posted troops and police at strategic spots from Lagos to bush country villages to deal with any election violence.

The precautions followed a hotly-contested campaign that saw helicopters barnstorming the bush country and skywriters spelling out electoral slogans over remote villages.

Some 9,000,000 Nigerians were registered to vote in this nation of approximately 35,000,000 population.

At stake in the election were 311 of the 312 seats in the new legislative house. There were a total of 954 candidates in four main districts — northern, western, eastern and Lagos.

The voters choose from coalition tickets led by the Action Group Party, the National Council of Nigeria and the Cameroons and the Northern Peoples' Congress.

Politicians Await Decision By Daniel

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas' political tempo stepped up this week with the entry of a candidate in the governor's race but the major question remained unanswered: Will Gov. Price Daniel run for a third term?

Jack Cox, a former state legislator who resigned recently as executive secretary of the conservative 'Freedom in Action," became the second announced candidate for the governorship.

The first was former highway commissioner Marshall Formby of Plainview, who announced his intentions more than a year ago.

With slightly more than six weeks left before the Feb. 1 deadline for filing for office, Daniel's plans still were unknown.

But he did quash speculation that he might seek a judicial office, saying he isn't ready to sit "quietly" as a federal judge or run for the state Supreme Court.

Even in disclaiming any judicial intentions, however, Daniel made it plain his statement shouldn't be interpreted as indicating any decision concerning a race for a third term as governor.

Later, Daniel declined to squelch speculation that he might run for lieutenant governor and told newsmen "let me just disclaim one office a week."

Daniel left dangling the question of whether he will call a special session of the legislature to boost teacher pay—but did say if he called one it probably wouldn't be convened before Feb. 1.

Nurses Home Near Completion

Lovett Memorial Nurses Home is nearing completion and is expected to be ready for occupancy about Jan. 1.

Chet Landers, Highland General Hospital superintendent, said only a few finishing touches are lacking. An inspection tour is expected next week when officials will formally accept the new structure from the contractor. Landers said the home will contain 18 beds, a lounge, kitchen, utility room and patio.

It was built with funds contributed by the Lovett Foundation, at a cost of $112,280 for the building, and $30,000 for equipment and furnishings. Drapes will be hung and carpets laid next week, and a date for open house inspection will be set.

Poultry Treated With Suspect Hormone Pulled From Market

By BERNARD BRENNER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Food stores and wholesalers have moved to halt the sale of chickens treated with a sex hormone which has produced cancer in experimental animals.

The action followed an announcement by the government Thursday that the poultry industry had agreed voluntarily to withdraw the chickens from the market.

Arthur S. Flemming, secretary of health, education and welfare, said scientists had found the chemical, a synthetic hormone called stilbestrol, to be a potential danger to humans.

However, he stressed the treated birds constituted less than 1 per cent of the chickens sent to market. The chemical is used only in caponettes.

Encourages Growth

Flemming said housewives piete confidence because the poultry industry and retailers had pledged to halt immediately the sale of the treated birds.

He announced also that manufacturers of the chemical had agreed to stop the sale of the hormone to poultry producers, who had used it to encourage growth of bigger chickens with more white meat.

But behind the scenes, it was known the Agriculture Department was very unhappy with Flemming's action.

Agriculture Undersecretary True D. Morse promptly issued a statement saying that Flemming had acted "within his responsibilities" but American food was "the best and safest in the world."

Morse said the Agriculture Department inspects all poultry and meat that moves across state lines and confiscates any diseased or unwholesome products.

Acted On Cranberries

The action was the second taken by Flemming in connection with chemicals said to produce cancer in animals. He caused a furor two weeks before Thanksgiving when he advised housewives not to buy cranberries because part of the crop was contaminated with a weed-killer that caused cancer in rats.

Untainted cranberries were put back on sale after a safety inspection by the government and industry.

Flemming said poultry treated with stilbestrol and withdrawn from sale would be purchased by the Agriculture Department. He said the birds could be made safe because residues are confined to the skins, livers, and kidneys of treated birds. The purchases may cost the government up to 10 million dollars.

Stilbestrol also is widely used in the production of beef cattle, sheep and lamb. But Flemming emphasized that "no residues of the chemical have been found in beef, mutton, or lamb."

Texas Drillers Hit 228 Wells

AUSTIN (UPI) — Texas oil drillers brought in 228 wells this week to boost the year's total to 11,640, the State Railroad Commission reported Saturday.

The comparable total a year ago was 11,688.

Gas well completions numbered 33 for the week and 1,990 for the year, compared to 2,009 at this point last year.

Dry holes totaled 128 for the week and 5,923 for the year.

Wildcatters drilled 15 oil wells, one gas well and 72 dusters during the past week.

The total average calendar day oil allowable as of Saturday was 2,888,110 barrels, an increase of 13,575 barrels daily over last week.

CITES UNTENDED CHILDREN

Recent Discovery May Have Solved Plant Life Mystery

On The Farm Front
By BERNARD BRENNER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A key to the mystery of plant life that may enable man to tailor-make plants to fit his needs; a new wash-and-wear finish for cotton; an artificial baby chick to control temperatures in brooders.

Those were some of the highlights of 1959 farm research by scientists of the U.S. Agriculture Department.

The year's most spectacular development was the discovery of the "trigger" mechanism which scientists said controls all plant development. This find "promises to be the key to man's complete control of plant growth from seed germination through plant flowering and fruiting," a department official said.

The trigger is a pair of pigment forms isolated by Drs. Harry A. Borthwick and Sterling B. Hendricks at the department's research center at Beltsville, Md. The pigments control plant responses and characterics by their reactions to various types of light. As the pigments are purified further by more research, scientists believe they will be able to modify them at will. This would allow them to produce plants made to order to fit the needs of farmers, gardeners, and flower-raisers.

Much of the department's research is in the field of finding new uses for farm crops of improving farm products to keep up with the changing needs of consumers.

These studies in 1959 produced a new wash-and-wear treatment for cotton, using an organic phosphorous compound called apo.

Cottons treated with the compound resist damage from bleaches used in home and commercial laundering. With some earlier wash-and-wear finishes, the fabrics had a tendency to discolor when treated with chlorine bleaches.

The device is a small black globe which loses heat in much the same way that chicks lose body heat. When it is placed in a chick brooder, the device lets the brooder heat control know when to supply additional heat to keep the real baby chicks comfortable.

Other highlights of the year in research:

—A promising new insecticide, less harmful to warm-blooded animals than any now in use, was in the final stages of development.

—Engineers have come up with a method for capturing and using the heat given off in the process of cooling milk in farm tanks. A department engineer developed a device which can use the heat to heat the milkroom or the milkroom was water.

Chances Of Surviving Air Crash Constantly Improving

By ROBERT J. SERLING
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Aviation experts believe the chances of surviving an air crash will improve when science develops:

—Rupture-proof gas tanks.

—Stronger airliner seats.

The survival question was underlined recently in two crashes with a grim similarity: There was only one survivor in each accident.

One man escaped alive when a Piedmont Airlines DC-3 crashed near Charlottesville, Va., killing the other 20 passengers. He was sitting in the rear of the plane, in the last seat on the right.

The other fortunate survivor was on an Allegheny Airlines Martin 202 which hit a mountain near Williamsport, Pa. This man was sitting in the center of the cabin, in a seat next to the window. He was the only escapee out of the 22 passengers aboard.

Lady luck was about the only thing the two fortunate survivors had in common. They were seated in different areas. They were saved largely because the fuselage happened to break open just where they were sitting. The impact tossed both free of the wreckage.

In the Piedmont crash, all the fatalities resulted from "load forces" exceeding what the human body can stand. Seats and safety belts were ripped loose, throwing the occupants forward violently.

In the Allegheny crash, the impact force apparently was less and most of the deaths are believed to have resulted from fire. The lone survivor said later that he could hear people screaming after the crash.

Thus, in one accident stronger seats might have cushioned the impact; in the other, rupture-proof gas tanks might have prevented fire.

What is modern aviation doing to develop safer seats and tanks?

Much already has been accomplished in seat research. Seats in the new jetliners, for example, offer considerable crash protection.

This is achieved first by making the fuselage itself stronger. The modern jet structure is designed so that the maximum force which can be exerted inside the cabin during an emergency landing will not exceed 12 to 14 times the force of gravity.

That is a tremendous force, but the human body can withstand even greater impacts provided it can be held in place. That is the function of the seat and the seat belt. In the jets, the seats are more firmly attached to the floor and are built of aluminum alloy—strong enough to resist impact, yet flexible enough to crush under stress and thus absorb impact energy.

The stronger structure, seats and belts add up to a combination capable of withstanding violent and sudden deceleration as high as 16 times the force of gravity. Or, in simpler terms, coming to a dead stop from 100 miles an hour in about two seconds with no harmful effects.

The gas tank problem is not so easy to solve. Many companies are working on rupture - proof tanks and tests have been promising. The chief goal is to develop a tank that is lightweight as well as strong. All present types appear to be too heavy for practical use, and weight is an airliner's greatest enemy.

Most aviation experts reject the idea of backward-facing seats as a means of increasing the chances of crash survival. The Military Air Transport Command (MATS) has adopted such seats and so has the Royal Air Force in Great Britain. The theory is that a rear-facing seat absorbs the crash energy involved in sudden deceleration.

Is one area of a plane safer than another?

THIS LITTLE PIGGY — Pampa Boy Scouts, in a stunt Saturday to sell Christmas trees, set loose a greased pig on their tree lot at Gwendolen and N. Hobart. But the pig, alarmed by the sight of 100 youngsters and a large black dog, slipped away and escaped temporarily across Gwendolen and among the homes on N. Nelson St. Brought back under the arm of Scoutmaster Laverne Davis, the pig was again let loose and finally caught by the youngster in the scout uniform, Kenneth Holt, 11, 811 E. Scott. manufacturers costs and retail and wholesale prices.

His claim is supported, Kefauver said, by testimony that the drugs, including arthritis palliatives, cost less overseas and that small, efficient firms sell identical projects at lower prices than the major drug houses.

Kefauver also cited testimony showing that over the last three years the drug industry's profits have been the highest in the country—about twice that of any other industry.

He said that 750 million dollars spent on promotion and advertising by the big companies figures out to about $5,000 for every doctor in the country, and that this outlay appears "much too large."

The subcommittee called in representatives of several big drug houses during the week-long hearings, along with witnesses for consumer groups.

A spokesman for a group of retired civil service employes said the high cost of drugs poses a special problem for older persons, and urged that legislation be passed to remedy the situation.

To wind up this phase of the hearings, the subcommittee Saturday asked Dr. E. Gifford Upjohn, president of the Upjohn Co. of Kalamazoo, Mich., how the company can sell female hormones in Britain for $7.53 per tablet while charging U. S. customers $17.90.

Million-Dollar Cabot Contract

Cabot Company has received a government contract totaling just under a million dollars for the manufacture of 105 millimeter gun tubes.

R. A. Baker, manager of Cabot Shops, said the plant completed a former contract for manufacturing 90 mm tubes the last of November. The new contract went into effect Dec. 7.

Baker said the new contract, expected to be completed in 11 months, will provide employment for one shift per day. The former contract provided employment for two shifts. He said, however, that most of the men not employed in the new operation have been transferred to other phases of Cabot operations.

The key to the whole case, the defense argued, was that the check for $1,250 which Oschenbein gave Addison was drawn on the Austin National Bank and that it was cashed in Austin.

If a crime had been committed, the defense argued, it was in Travis and not in Bexar county.

Onion recessed court Friday night on that motion but Saturday declined to sustain the defense. However, he later instructed the jury to return the acquittal verdict.

In arguing for the instructed verdict, defense attorney Leonard Brown said the state had not proved false pretext on the part of Addison, since the check was written and mailed even before Ochsenbein had met Addison.

Former Ruler Home To Visit

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke and Duchess of Windsor have returend to England on the 23rd anniversary of the day he gave up the British throne for "the woman I love."

It was on Dec. 11, 1936, that the then King Edward VIII spoke into a British Broadcasting Corp. microphone the dramatic words that excited the world:

"You must believe me when I tell you that I have found it impossible to carry the heavy burden of responsibility and discharge my duties as king as I would wish to do so without the help and support of the woman I love."

The woman Edward loved enough to give up an empire was with him today, not at Buckingham Palace, but in a simple but elegant suite at the fashionable Claridge's Hotel.

The Duke and his Duchess, the former Wallis Warfield Simpson, a Baltimore divorcee, arrived here for their annual Christmas shopping and a week end in the country with friends.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The cynical view of the steel wage controversy is that wage-bargaining was effective only as long as wage increases could be translated into higher prices, notes Alfred L. Vanden Broeck & Co.

So long as the price increase did not affect the competitive position of industry, agreement was found without difficulty, the firm points out.

However, American industry today faces active competition in world markets, it notes, while the nation's deficit in the balance of payments, the outflow of gold and the growing industrial strength of other countries call for more careful approach to labor productivity.

A market comment from Gerald M. Loeb of E. F. Hutton & Co.: 'In my opinion, the market has quite a way up to go before the present phase comes to a halt. The daily volume of trading should expand considerably beyond current totals as well.

J. R. Williston & Beane says Rheem manufacturing offers outstanding opportunities for capital gains. The firm calls attention to Rheem's improving profitability, its emphasis on new acquisitions and diversified nature.

Constructon outlays in 1960 will top $55 billion—about 2 per cent better than the record $54 billion estimated for this year, Prentice-Hall says in its weekly business report. "Cost increases, although due to ease off a bit, will hold 1960 physical volume of construction close to the 1959 mark."

U.S. Throws Away Valuable Resources Day After Day

"Science and You"
By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States throws away each year four billion cubic feet of a unique and limited resource which is invaluable to science, national defense, and space exploration.

This resource is helium, "the wonder gas." The Interior Department hopes Congress will act early next year to stop or at least reduce its waste.

From the standpoint of past uses and promising new ones, helium might well be considered priceless. It does, however, have a commercial price. At current rates, the annual wastage amounts to 62 million dollars. At proposed new rates it would be 100 to 120 million.

Among other things helium has vastly extended the range of radio telescopes and radars, helped to create nuclear weapons and power, provided medicine with a powerful life - saving tool, contributed to missile and space developments, and improved the quality of many products and the efficiency of many industria processes.

It has brought science as close as it can hope to get to absolute zero—minus 459.6 degrees Fahrenheit—the point at which all molecular moiotn ceases. The temperature of liquid helium is minus 452 degrees.

Next to hydrogen, helium is the lightest element. It has no taste or smell. It will not burn. It will not react chemically with anything else. All it will do, it has been said, "is perform scientific miracles."

The sole producer of helium outside the U.S.S.R. is the Interior Department's Bureau of Mines In this country the richest source is in the natural gas fields of the Texas and Oklahoma panhandles and southwestern Kansas.

The bureau annually extracts 600 million cubic feet of helium from natural gas in plants at Keyes, Okla.; Amarillo and Exell, Tex.; Otis, Kan., and Shiprock, N.M.

No figures on Soviet production or reserves are known here. The Bureau of Mines estimates that the Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas gas fields contain about 120 billion cubic feet of recoverable helium.

This is about 350 times present annual U.S. consumption. But all of thse efields are being tapped for fuel gas in which the helium is mixed. The bureau estimates that about four billion cubic feet of helium is being lost each year in the gas produced for fuel.

Bills pending in both houses of Congress would authorize construction of 12 new helium extraction plants capable of removing three billion cubic fect each year from the amount now being wasted.

The recovered helium would be stored underground in the government's Cliffside field near Amarillo for use when needed.

Helium's first large-scale use was as a substitute for inflammable hydrogen in observation balloons and blimps used in warfare. It also is used in weather balloons and in the stratosphere-piercing balloons with which scientists are unlocking secrets of the sun and planets.

Cotton Vote December 15

Mrs. Evelyn Mason, Gray County ASC office manager, said all farmers engaged in the production of up-land cotton and who have a 1960 cotton allotment will be eligible to vote in the cotton marketing quota referendum Dec. 15.

Mrs. Mason said polls will open at 8 a.m. and close at 6 p.m. in McLean City Hall and the Pampa ASC office, 1½ miles east of Pampa on U.S. Hwy. 60.

She said if marketing quotas are approved by two-thirds majority of those voting, penalties will apply to excess cotton. Growers will be offered an opportunity to elect their regular, Choice A allotment with price support at the full level, or they may elect the 40 per cent higher allotment, Choice B, with price support at a level 15 per cent lower than the Choice A price support.

If marketing quotas are disapproved by one-third of those voting there will be no penalties for excess cotton. Only regular, Choice A allotments will be in effect and price support for those planting within the Choice A allotment will be at 50 per cent of parity.

Producers planting more than the regular allotment will receive no price support. In either case acreage allotments of some kind will continue in effect for the 1960 cotton crop as a means of determining eligibility for the available price support.

Mrs. Mason also said in Gray County there were 16 producers who filed an application for a soil bank contract and offered a rate for their land. To date, allocation sufficient to cover nine of these applications has been received.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's railroads said today they are making available more than 62,000 cars so that Christmas mail and packages can be moved without a hitch.

Whew! Harvesters Barely Make It To 50

Pampa Nips Hobbs In Thriller, 63-59

By RED GRIGGS
Daily News Sports Editor

The Harvesters' win streak hit the half-century mark Saturday night, but the string was in danger until the end of the game — which never officially ended.

Pat Carter drove in to sink a layup shot with six seconds remaining to give Pampa an insurmountable 63-59 lead over Hobbs. The crowd, with the almost unbearable tension released, spilled out on the floor. The Hobbs coach, rather than have the officials try to clear the court, conceded the remaining six seconds, and Pampa had its 50th straight triumph, 63-59.

Hobbs was in the game until the very end, never trailing by more than six points during the last quarter. During the last minute, Hobbs trailed by only two points, 61-59, and two Pampa regulars, Allen Wise and Craig Winborn, had fouled out.

The Harvesters, however, did a good job of stalling out most of the frantic final minute, and with six seconds left, Carter managed to drive in for his clinching two-pointer.

The hectic last half and last quarter followed a routine first half in which the Harvesters held leads ranging from five to 13 points. Actually, they were never behind during the entire game, although at times during the last quarter they seemed to be in great danger.

Pampa built up a lead of 21-10 at the end of the first quarter, then boosted it to 23-10 seconds deep in the second period. The Harvesters still had things well under control at halftime, with a 38-28 lead.

In thie third quarter, however, the Harvesters appeared to be disorganized, and Hobbs cut the lead to 47-44 at the end of the period. Allen Wise, fouled out about three minutes deep in the third period but his replacement, Larry Stroud, played a creditable defensive game and scored two buckets at crucial points.

Craig Winborn, Pampa's leading scorer, went into the fourth quarter with four fouls, and Pat Carter drew his fourth 1:30 deep in the period. However, both managed to stay in the game until Winborn fouled out with a minute to go. Hobbs sharpshooter Hollice Clay wasn't so lucky, as he fouled out with three minutes gone in the quarter.

The fourth quarter was close, as Pampa held leads which wavered between two and six points. During the last four minutes, the lead see-sawed back and forth between two and four points. Phillip Gist's drive-in layup with a little over a minute left put Pampa in a commanding position.

Winborn was the Harvesters' leading scorer, with 22 points. Carter was next, with 15. Marshall was Hobbs' leading scorer, with 14 points. Pampa led in field goals, 22 to 21, and made 19 of 31 free throws, to 17 of 29 for Hobbs.

Carver's Girls Win Tournament

The Carver High girls team of Pampa won the finals of the Carver Invitational basketball tournament, held Saturday at Carver Gymnasium. The Pampa girls defeated Wellington in the finals, 25-23, as Mary Duke scored 19 points and Claudette Cash 6. The Wellington and Childress boys were playing in the tournament boys finals at press time.

Carver's girls reached the finals with a 33-22 win over Memphis. Mary Duke led Carver's scoring with 14 points, followed by Claudette Cash with 12 and Jewel Colbert with 7.

The Carver boys were eliminated from the tournament in the second round by Wellington, 51-47. Carver won its first round contest over Shamrock, 53-44.

George Duke led Carver's attack in the first game with 17 points. Joe Niblitt had 15, James Taylor 14, Robert Harris and Joe Cash 3 each, and R. H. Harris 1. The Wildcats pulled away in the second half of that game after leading only 43-39 at halftime.

Stout, Rexroad Both Place

3-4A All-Stars Named

Two Harvesters, tackle Benny Stout and linebacker Terry Rexroad, made the District 3-4A team picked by coaches and sportswriters of the district. Stout was on the first team, Rexroad on the second.

Stout made the first offensive team as a tackle, and the first defensive team as an end. He was the top vote-getter at both positions, receiving 15 for tackle and 16 for end. A first place vote counted two points, a second team vote one.

Rexroad made the second team as a linebacker, with eight points. Both Rexroad and Stout are seniors.

There were no unanimous selections for this year's teams. The voting was so well spread that Putt Powell, who compiled the team didn't list the honorable mentions. "Almost every player in the district got a vote," he reported.

Buzzy Baker, Borger offensive end, came within one point of being a unanimous selection, with 27 of a possible 28 points. He also made the first defensive team as a halfback.

Two other players, Monterey center Ronnie Wassom and Tascosa halfback Geary Taylor, also barely missed being picked unanimously. Each received 26 points on the first offensive team.

Other offensive players receiving 20 or more points were Durward Epps, Tascosa guard, 25; Glen Wooley, Borger back, 23; and Currie Bechtol, Amarillo back, 23.

Only one defensive player, linebacker Don Broom of Tascosa, received as many as 20 points. Broom collected 22.

Despite the widely spread voting, five players made the first team on both offense and defense, and four others made the first team on offense and the second on defense. Three boys made the second team on both offense and defense.

"Both ways" first teamers were Stout, Baker, Epps (offensive guards, defensive tackle), Taylor (back both ways), and Wassom (offensive center, defensive linebacker). "First and second" players were Jimmy Blair, Borger, (tackle both ways, first team offense); Albert Swening, Monterey (first guard, second end); Danny Jordan, Amarillo (first back, second linebaker), and Bechtol (back both ways, first team offense).

Players who made the second teams on both offense and defense are Stan Sparks, Amarillo (end and halfback); Tommy Ashton, Monterey (guard both ways); and Gordon Beamguard, Borger (back and linebacker).

Amarillo placed the most men on the all-district teeams, seven. Tascosa and Borger were next with five each, followed by Monterey with four, Pampa with two, and Plainview with one. Neither Lubbock nor Palo Duro placed a man on either the first or second teams.

PHS 'Routs' Eagles, 62-58 In Friday Tilt

Craig Winborn paced the Pampa Harvesters to a one-sided (despite the score) 62-58 victory over the Hobbs Eagles Friday at Harvester Field House.

Winborn dunked 27 points, the high for any Harvester this season, to lead Pampa to its fifth straight win this year and its 49th in a row, overall. Winborn's scoring was evenly spread, with 11 points in the first period, 8 in the second, and 8 in the fourth.

Actually, the game was much more one-sided than the score showed. Harvester Coach Clifton McNeely, holding a comfortable 62-45 lead with two minutes to play, sent in a complete reserve team, and Hobbs scored 13 points in the remaining time to make the score respectable.

The Harvesters were behind only in the first two minutes of the game, 4-0, and were under pressure only in the first quarter.

Winborn and Hollice Clay of Hobbs each scored 11 of his team's first 16 points, and the score was tied 16-16 with 1:30 left in the first quarter. Pat Carter then sank two free throws, Phillip Gist tossed in a two-pointer, and Carter added a bucket to put Pampa ahead 22-16 at the end of the first quarter. The Harvesters were never in danger after that.

Carter's six points and Winborn's eight in the second quarter paced Pampa to a 40-25 halftime lead. Both teams had a bad third quarter, tallying only nine points each, and Pampa led 49-34 going into the final period.

Winborn, who had been shut out in the third quarter, went on an eight-point spree early in the fourth to put the game on ice for the Harvesters.

The fact that Winborn scored 27 points wasn't as impressive as the way he scored them. He dunked most of his 10 field goals on difficult hook shots or overhead crip shots, and hit seven straight free throws. Overall, it was probably a better single-game shooting exhibition than that of any of last year's Harvesters.

Pat Carter was the only other Harvester in double figures, with 16 points on five field goals and six straight free throws.

Pampa actually won the game at the free throw line, sinking 20 of 24 charity tosses. They were outshot from the field by Hobbs, 25 goals to 21. The Harvesters hit 14 straight free throws in the first half before finally missing three in a row, then dunked six of the next seven.

Shocks Edge Hobbs Eaglets

The Shockers blew an eight-point lead here Friday in the last quarter, but then came back with six points in the last minute to top the Hobbs Eaglets, 54-49.

Terry Culley's cagers went into the fourth quarter leading 36-28, but Hobbs rallied to grab a 49-48 lead with a minute left. However, Lloyd Balch dunked a basket to put the Shockers back ahead, 50-49, then Mike Stewart added two free throws, and Jim Stephenson tossed in a long shot which was in the air as the buzzer sounded.

The Shockers had taken a 15-7 lead at the end of the first quarter. The two teams matched point-for-point in the second and third periods, as the Shockers led 26-18 at halftime and 36-28 after three quarters.

No Shocker hit the 20 point mark, but two came close — Jim Crinklaw with 19 and Jim Stephenson with 18.

Yanks Get Maris in 7-Player Deal With Kansas City A's

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) —The New York Yankees gave up their greatest outlay of talent in more than a decade but insisted Saturday it "was worth it" to get outfielder Roger Maris, a 25-year-old question mark from Kansas City.

Forced to keep pace with the recently-strengthened White Sox, the Yankees sent perfect game pitcher Don Larsen, outfielders Norm Siebern and Hank Bauer and first baseman Marv Throneberry to the Athletics for Maris, shortstop Joe DeMaestri and first baseman Kent Hadley.

The deal was the 15th between the clubs in the last five years, during which they have swapped a total of 59 players.

The Yankees, who had not dipped into their front-line talent so deeply since trading Joe Gordon to Cleveland for Allie Reynolds in 1946, explained they were virtually forced to do business with Kansas City again.

General Manager George Weiss said he tried to make deals with two National League clubs—and will keep on trying—"but we just can't seem to get together."

The Yankees, delighted in obtaining Maris, although he batted only .273 last season, said they had no apology to make over the fact they had to deal with the A's again.

"We have faith in each other and that's why we dealt with them," Weiss declared.

Casey Stengel, who okayed the deal, said at his Glendale, Calif., home that he planned to make Maris his regular left-fielder despite the fact Roger played right field exclusively for Kansas City last season.

"Now it looks like we have a complete outfield," Stengel said. "We'll try to go with Maris in left, (Mickey) Mantle in center, and (Hector) Lopez in right. I know we gave up a lot but we feel it was worth it to get the man we wanted."

That man, of course, was Maris, on whom the Yankees have had their eye for the past two years since he broke in with Cleveland in 1957. Maris hit only .235 in 1957 and .240 in 1958 but has shown evidence of tremendous Mantle-like power.

He hit 28 homers and drove in 80 runs in 1958, a season during which the A's obtained him in a five-player deal with the Indians. He led the American League with a .350 figure early last season until he was laid low by appendicitis.

General Manager Parke Carroll of the A's felt he and owner Arnold Johnson had made a good deal.

"Bauer can do us a lot of good and I've always liked Siebern," Carroll said.

Breckenridge Rips Mt. Pleasant, 32-6

FORT WORTH (UPI)—Quarterback Jerry Gibson and fullback Dickie Rogers formed an unbeatable combination as the defending state AAA champions Breckenridge rolled into the finals for the second straight year with a 32-6 walloping of Mount Pleasant.

Rogers scored twice and Gibson ran for two touchdowns and passed for another.

After a shaky start which found the champs holding only a 14 to 6 edge at the half, Breckenridge cranked up for the runaway verdict as Rogers scored twice in the third and Gibson added the clincher in the final period before Coach Emory Bellard emptied the bench.

JOE REJECTS OFFER

TOKYO (UPI) — Joe DiMaggio, ex-centerfield great of the Yankees recently rejected an offer to play for New York Yankees said Friday he recently rejected an offer to earn $50,000 by making 13 one-minute commercials because "I don't care for that phase of making money."

HOUSTON (UPI) — Corpus Christi Ray's powerful Texans banged over one touchdown in each period Saturday to whip Port Arthur 26 to 7 and move into the state Class AAAA playoff finals against Wichita Falls next week.

Ray, sparked by touchdown runs of 55 yards by halfback Johnny Williams and 58 yards by fullback Jerry Rogers, kept the Port Arthur attack bottled up through most of the game, with the only Yellow Jacket score coming after the recovery of a Ray fumble on the Texan 33.

Joe Kerbel, to the great surprise of no one, has been named head football coach at West Texas State College. Kerbel has a reputation as a builder of football teams, and that's certainly the type of coach West Texas needs.

Kerbel was an assistant coach at Texas Tech this season, in charge of offense. But he is best known for the job he did with the Amarillo Sandies in 1955, '56, and '57. He broke even in his first season, then led the Sandies to district championships in 1956 and 1957, compiling an overall record in those years of 20-3.

Kerbel was head coach at Breckenridge for three years, 1952-54, before going to Amarillo. Under him, the Buckaroos won two state championships, in '52 and '54. His overall high school record was 76 wins, 15 defeats and two ties.

The former Sandie coach will have a one-year contract, but it's thought his services will be needed for at least three years. He plans to install a combination split-T and pro type offense at West Texas.

"There is a tremendous amount of football talent in our area," Kerbel said, "and we hope to attract some of the finest players. We will try to make every contact possible and let everyone know we're interested in bringing the finest football players to West Texas."

He added that he'd need a great deal of support from alumni and other area people in order to secure the type of team he wants.

Pampa Exes Making Good

Larry Tarvin, the top golfer on last year's Pampa Harvester golf team, is now the number one linkster at Eastern New Mexico University. Tarvin recently won the school's intramural golf tournament, defeating defending champion Carter Jordan with a 70 in 18-hole medal-play finals.

The intra-murals, at Eastern New Mexico, are open to varsity golfers, so the championship of that tourney is equivalent to the school championship. Tarvin, although only a freshman, will play for the varsity team this spring.

Benny Stout, Harvester tackle who has been selected on the all-district team, has been named by Monterey coach Bill DuBose as the best defensive player Monterey faced this year. DuBose placed Stout on his all-opponent teams, both on offense and defense. He also named Pampa as the most spirited team Monterey faced during the season.

Former Harvester basketball player Bob Gindorf led the Texas Tech freshman to an overtime victory over Lubbock radio station KCLV last week. Gindorf tallied 16 points, to tie for high points honors, as the Picadors whipped KCLV, 78-76 in a sudden death overtime.

Boxing Program Objectives

The important boxing match between Pampa and the University of Corpus Christi will be held here this Saturday night, Dec. 19. Bobby Wilhelm, Pampa's former state welterweight champion, will take on Amarillo's Manny Perez in the main bout. Ringside tickets for the Corpus Christi bouts are on sale at James Feed Store for $1.50.

In connection with the boxing program in Pampa. Here they are, in Wilhelm's own words:

1 — To conduct boxing in such a manner that educational values accrue.

2 — To conduct boxing so that the inherent values of the sport are clearly discernible.

Wilhelm goes on to explain how these purposes are carried out:

"Boxing is a sport of skill participated in for the fun and satisfaction derived. There are many boys who have need of a direct method of dissipating their aggressions, and boxing provides that opportunity."

"Optimist boxing as a sport has as its prime purpose, the out-scoring, out-thinking and out-maneuvering of the opponent, through the medium of well-placed blows or hits; to win on points, to decision an opponent because of superior technical skill, ring strategy and physical condition."

"Skill is the criterion, not brute power or force; points not knockdowns; clean hits not knockouts. Pampa Optimist boxing de-emphasizes power and emphasizes skill. A well conceived skillfull attack that builds up points is indicative of teenage boxing; a knockdown or knockout, should it occur, is considered incidental to the bout, not the objective."

"The skill of boxing is the skill of the highly trained nervous system, capable of instant reflex action; it is the skill of perfect balance and graceful efficient movement; it is the skill of quick accurate judgment, of hand-eye coordination; it is the skill of relaxation under pressure."

"Boxing, an activity of great developmental possibilities, is dependent upon sound leadership if educational outcomes are to result."

"Good leadership assures the teaching of the fundamentals of boxing so that skill will result; provides proper facilities and equipment to safeguard the welfare of the boy, and builds courage, self-confidence, self-reliance, sportsmanship and clean-living through the medium of sound physical education."

What's in a Name? Ask the Longhorns!

AUSTIN — Clair, Kleo, Rene, Shirley, Kay, Babe, Rose, Blanch—sounds like roll call at the Tuesday afternoon ladies sewing circle. It's not, though.

Each name belongs to a husky University of Texas footballer, one of the Orange - clad lads with a Texas drawl who will be meeting national champion Syracuse in the Coton Bowl a few weeks from now.

Clair is Clair Branch, the muscular fullback from Gaston who spent Thanksgiving Day pushing Texas Aggies around. The senior Longhorn was in on 12 tackles in the first half of the Aggie game, a time when the need for good defensive play was never greater.

"Thank goodness for ole Branch," stated UT Defensive Coach Charley Shira after viewing movies of the game. "No telling how far back we would have been without him. I doubt if we would be working out for any bowl game."

Kleo, Kleo Halm that is, had a happy Thanksgiving, too. His receptions of three Bobby Lackey passes provided big gainers in two Texas scoring drives. A stout defender all during his career, the San Marcos end has never been considered an unusual receiver. And yet, his four receptions this year have been about as important as any of the long runs by the fleet backs. Prior to his heroics against the Aggies, Kleo made a last-gasp catch of a Collins pass against Arkansas that set up the winning UT touchdown.

Rene, as any follower of Southwest football knows, is Rene Ramirez. The Galloping Gaucho was very likely the league's best all around back this fall as a spot on a major wire service all-league team would indicate.

Shirley is Bart Shirley, the Corpus Christi sophomore with shoulders like Mickey Mantle. A standout on defense, the strong-armed Shirley had two touchdown passes this year, one to Collins for the winning TD in the Arkansas game.

Kay is Kay Brockermeyer, a tackle from Fort Worth who gave indications of stardom this year, and Babe is Babe Dreymala, the low-slung Houston guard who Charley Shira claims "is probably the most underrated lineman in the Southwest Conference." Babe's biggest moment of 1959 was against Rice when he caused two fumbles and blocked a kick in addition to his usual duties.

Rose is Jim Rose of Abilene, the rangy center who filled in well for both Jerry Muennink and Bill Laughlin, serving as a starter in his first varsity game. Blanch is the dependable George Blanch. A starter for most of two seasons, George gave way to spend this year and confined most of his efforts to defense — where he was one of the best — and holding for Bobby Lackey's extra points.

"You just can't have enough players like George," Darrell Royal pointed out once this year. "He does anything you ask him to and well."

The moral of this yarn reads thusly:

Not all good football players are named Mike or Spike. Clair, Kleo, Rene, Shirley, Kay, Babe, Rose and Blanch aren't and the UT coaching staff wouldn't trade them for a bundle of Butches.

Lee Seventh Wins In Third Overtime

Robert E. Lee's seventh graders went three overtimes to defeat the Sam Houston of Borger seventh graders Friday, 28-27. The game was tied, 23-23, at the end of the regular four periods, and the score remained deadlocked at the end of the first two overtimes.

Lee came from behind in the last half to tie the game. Sam Houston had held a 12-8 halftime lead. Kerry Roper was the leading scorer for Bill Potts' Lee seventh graders, with 8 points, followed by David McDaniels with 6, Robert Howrad with 5, San Williams with 5, and Keith Griffith with 4.

McLaren Captures Grand Prix Race

SEBRING, Fla. (UPI) — Bruce McLaren, a gaunt-faced 22-year-old rookie racer from New Zealand, won the Grand Prix of the United States Saturday when the car driven by Australia's Jack Brabham broke down while he was leading with half a lap to go.

Brabham, the 33-year-old Aussie who came to ride in the U.S. grudgingly, won the world driving championship, however, despite the heart-breaking accident which cost him this race.

McLaren sped the 42 laps around the snake-like, 5.2-mile Sebring course at an average speed of 98.83 miles an hour in his Cooper-Climax to win his first Grand Prix race.

Maurice Trinitignant, a 42-year-old mayor of the town of Vergaze in France, was second and Tony Brooks of England placed third.

LA Rams Lose Coach, Then Tussle To Baltimore, 45-26

By ALEX KAHN
United Press International

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Baltimore Colts captured the Western Conference professional football title Saturday but it took them three touchdown in the final period to defeat, 45-26, a Los Angeles club aroused by the resignation of coach Sid Gillman.

Gillman announced to the Rams prior to the game that it was his last as coach of the Los Angeles eleven. The hapless Rams then amazed a crowd of 65,528 in the coliseum and a national television audience by playing the Colts even for three periods. Los Angeles held a 26-24 edge going into the fourth quarter.

But the game ended in the eighth straight Ram loss.

The poised Colts, led by quarterback Johnny Unitas, came back in the final period to run up the three-touchdown margin and take the conference title for the second straight year.

The league's leading passing combination of Unitas to Ray Berry clicked for two touchdowns and Unitas hit Jerry Richardson in the fourth period for another. It was the 37th consecutive game in which Unitas has passed for one or more touchdowns.

Saturday's attendance raised the Rams' seasonal patronage for 12 games to 1,061,625 to surpass their own record of 1958 by about 8,000 despite a 2-10 season.

With the Colts leading the conference by a game, the Rams appeared about to pull the upset of the pro season by shooting in a first-period lead, trailing at halftime by a point and recapturing the lead again in the third period thanks to Lou Michaels' fourth field goal of the game.

A Ram victory combined with wins by San Francisco and the Chicago Bears Sunday could have thrown the conference into a three-way tie. But the Colts' triumph left them with a safe 9-3 conference record.

In the fourth period the Colts march 72 yards aided by 36 yards in penalties to get into scoring territory where Unitas passed nine yards to Richardson for the score that put Baltimore ahead.

The Colts clinched the victory when Dick Szymanski returned an intercepted pass 15 yards to a touchdown and Carl Taseff returned a missed field goal attempt by Michaels for a touchdown. The run equaled the league record for such a play. The record was set in 1951 by Jerry Williams then of the Rams, against Green Bay.

The Rams could score only two touchdowns, the first coming in the opening period when they went 53 yards with Joe Marconi plunging over from the one. In the third period, Jon Arnett spurted 27 yards around left end for the other Ram touchdown, but Michaels four field goals did the most to keep the Rams in the game for three periods.

It was the worst season in Ram history and the only one in which they failed to win a single home league game.

Pampan's Son Qualifies For First 'Rodeo World Series'

Lee Cockrell, 26, of Panhandle has qualified in the calf roping event of the historic first National Finals Rodeo, the first "world series of rodeo" which will be staged Dec. 26-30 in the State Fair Livestock Coliseum at Dallas.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Holly Gray of Pampa. Cockrell and his wife, Sue, have two children. When Cockrell is not rodeoing he is engaged in ranching and wheat farming.

It is a great honor in the sports of rodeo to qualify for the first National Finals, since only the top fifteen money-winners of the regular 1959 rodeo season are eligible to compete in the Finals. Cockrell ranks 11th in the calf roping event going into the Finals with winnings of $7,652 for the season.

Cockrell's rodeo career began at the Junior Rodeo in Pampa in 1946. In 1954 he won the NIRA calf roping and team roping. He also participates in steer roping and stands 20th in competition for the 1959 season.

According to Cockrell the turning point in his career came when he bought a horse named "Taylor" in 1953. "I won the college championships the next year and since that time in the past six years I have won over $37,000 with him. He was the turning point in my roping. He made me."

During the 1959 season he won calf roping in Tucson, Greely, Colo., and Yuma, Colo.

Schwartzwalder of Syracuse Named as Top Coach of '59

More than 600 members of the nationwide group voted, with Schwartzwalder getting more than one third of the total votes.

A total of 36 coaches were named in the balloting, Maury White, secretary of the FWAA and sports writer for the Des Moines Register and Tribune, said.

Schwartzwalder, a former wrestler and center at West Virginia, is in his 11th year at Syracuse.

Syracuse, with 10 straight victories, was the nation's only undefeated major college team and took most of the honors in the various polls. The Orange still have one game left on their schedule, a Jan. 1 appearance in the Cotton Bowl against Texas.

Schwartzwalder, 50, a former paratrooper, succeeds Paul Dietzel of Louisiana State as the winner of the Football Writers' Award. Dietzel led LSU to the same unbeaten, No. 1 ranking position held by Schwartzwalder this year.

Tied for second in this year's balloting were two veteran coaches, retiring Ray Eliot of Illinois and Wally Butts of Georgia.

Eliot's team surged to a 5-3-1 record and polished off Rose Bowl Bound Wisconsin at the end of the season. Butts' Georgia club was picked to be an also-ran but it finished with a 9-1 record and a trip to the Orange Bowl against Missouri.

Coach Clay Stapleton of Iowa State, whose "Dirty Thirty" team brought national attention to the Ames, Iowa, school, finished in fourth place.

Milt Bruhn of Wisconsin was fifth with Jim Owens of Washinton sixth. The two teams will meet in the Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

In seventh place was Frank Broyles of Arkansas, the former Missouri coach.

Coyotes Lash Riverside, 27-7

WICHITA FALLS (UPI) — Wichita Falls, defending state Class AAAA champions, banged its way into the state finals for the second straight year Saturday by lashing Fort Worth Carter Riverside 27 to 7.

Playing before a packed house of 11,000 the Coyotes used the pinpoint passing of tailback Dickie Turner and the brilliant running of Travis Reagan to storm by the surprise winner over Dallas Highland Park last week.

Wichita Falls officials were to get together with Corpus Christi Ray Saturday night in Dallas to decide a meeting place for the final game next week. Wichita Fallas was reported to be planning to ask that the game be played in the Cotton Bowl.

Reagan scored twice, once on a four-yard burst around left end and again on a 17-yard scamper over left end to pace the Coyote attack. They were touchdowns number 28 and 29 for the senior back, who is the most sought after college prospect in Texas.

Sundown Stuns Crowell, 27-12, On Way To Finals

PLAINVIEW (UPI)—The Sundown Roughnecks blasted their way into the Class A state finals here Saturday by stunning the Crowell Wildcats 27 to 12.

Sophomore sensation Haskell Davis led the Roughnecks in scoring with a pair of touchdowns and a running conversion.

Crowell fought off the Roughnecks from the eight-yard line in the first period and then scored early in the second to take the lead. Halfback Wesley Cummings and fullback Jim Henry led the Wildcats to the Sundown one where Henry punched across.

Sundown bounced back, going 57 yards in five plays with speedy halfback David McInturff blasting through the middle for 22 yards and the score. Davis ran for the point and the Roughnecks led 8-6 at the half.

Sundown will meet Katy in the finals.

Sundown	0	8	8	13	—27
Crowell	0	6	6	0	—12

Scoring:

Crowell—Henry 1 plunge (run failed)
Sundown — McInturff 22 run (Davis run)
Sundown—Davis 56 run (run failed)
Crowell—Cummings 1 run (run failed)
Sundown—Davis 40 run (run failed)
Sundown—Sessums 1 run Sessums kicked)

The Almanac

By United Press International

Today is Sunday Dec. 13, the 347th day of the year, with 18 more days to follow in 1959.

The moon is approaching its full phase.

The morning stars are Mercury and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1642, Dutch navigator Abel Tasman discovered New Zealand.

In 1862, General Ambrose Burnside and his union troops were defeated by the Confederate Army at Fredericksburg, Virginia.

In 1918, Woodrow Wilson crossed the Atlantic to France, thus being the first U. S. President in office to cross the ocean.

Also in 1918, American troops crossed the Rhine River in Germany in World War I.

In 1937, Japanese forces captured the Chinese city of Nanking.

In 1941, the Japanese started air raids on Hong Kong after the British rejected an ultimatum to evacuate the crown colony.

Here's a thought for today: It is written in the Bible: "Judge not according to the appearance."

"Mother! Jimmy Pearson has stopped ignoring me! He just washed my face with snow!"

Commie Convention Closed To Press

NEW YORK (UPI) — Behind closed doors in the ballroom of the Theresa Hotel in Harlem, delegates to the 17th national convention of the Communist party U.S.A. Friday grappled with problems ranging from ways to rejuvenate the party to the "struggle for world peace."

The proceedings were carried on more or less in secrecy. Reporters were barred from the ballroom. The 225 delegates and alternates showed green identification cards containing a number, but not a name, as they were admitted.

Cameramen were excluded during the sessions, on the ground that the taking of pictures would "jeopardize" the delegates.

Occasionally a party spokesman emerged from the convention with handouts for the press, or with some individual who was making himself available for an interview. The four-day convention ends Sunday.

Instant Swimming Pools— Just Add Water And Dive In

This could very well describe one of the latest developments in the soaring backyard swimming pool industry.

Cascade Pool Co. has come up with a new process which makes it possible to install a full-sized 16X32 foot pool in the ground in one day. It emphasizes that the pool is a regulation in-the-ground excavation, complete with its own filter system, and sells for about $2,195 installed.

Cascade President Edward Gorman said this pool could very well revolutionize the backyard pool business.

The pool is one of the more than 150 new products unveiled at the Third Annual National Swimming Pool Exposition now being held at the giant Coliseum here.

The exposition is open to the public for the first time in response to the steadily mounting interest in residential, club, community and public pools.

It wasn't too many years back when a backyard swimming pool was a badge of social distinction.

The exposition is attempting to demonstrate that pool ownership is now as easy and convenient as car - ownership, offering pools to fit any family recreation budget.

Gorman predicted that beginning in 1960 families in the $5,000 to $10,000 income bracket will constitute the great bulk of pool purchasers. He said his company will sell the same number of expensive pools ($5,000 and up) as it has this year, but the sales of the unitized 16X32 pool should double.

"It's all because of an expanding 'pay as you swim' concept," he stated. Today, with no down payment and five-years-to-pay financing, nearly anyone with a steady job can have a backyard swimming pool."

Today's no-down-payment loans are made through local banks at the usual six per cent interest. "Most people figure they can build a pool for the cost of two vacations," Gorman said.

Industry sources estimate that some 45,000 backyard swimming pools will be constructed this year, compared with 37,000 last season. Total investment that America will make in backyard recreation is estimated at some $500 million.

IT'S BEGINNING to look a lot like Christmas . . . with Christmas trees and decorations appearing on the residential scene . . . and it's beginning to feel like Christmas, too . . . with smiles warming the chilly winter air and cheery greetings called out to friends . . . and is it our imagination or are the small fry acting with unusual decorum??? . . . an amusing story we've heard concerns a friend who efficiently completed her shopping very early for out-of-town relatives and friends . . . hurried home and wrapped the gifts in gay Christmas trappings . . . then wrapped them again for mailing . . . dashed to the Post Office and was about to drop them in the chute, when she discovered she had neglected to address the mailing labels . . . we hear that Iris Lee Page has finished compiling her "letter to Santa" . . . but this year she has requested things mostly for her brand-new little sister, Jo Lynn, who will be viewing her first Christmas through six-weeks-old eyes . . . there is an amusing tableau out in the 2200 block on Chestnut at the W. T. Wilborn residence, where a life-sized Santa sits in a rocking chair . . . we can't make up our mind whether he is a retired Santa . . . or a Santa that is resting up before his long haul around the world on Christmas Eve.

AT TIMES IT seems to us that if all the Holiday Parties were spaced evenly throughout the year, instead of crowded into a few short weeks, we could all have a more satisfying social life . . . but perhaps the hecticness is part of the fun . . . and the remainder of the year is needed for resting up . . . everyone is still talking about the lovely Book Review given last Saturday morning in the Pampa Country Club by Lucille Massa, Phyllis Smith, Wilma Gordon, Arne Lee Gordon, Elizabeth Scott and Edith Rankin . . . the serving table appointments of pink and silver blended so beautifully with the ballroom decorations . . . the guest reviewer, Mrs. Herbert Emery of Dallas, wore the gayest hat of red velvet with a black egret plume accented with tiny feathers of red and black . . . we shall never forget her hat nor her review of "Dear And Glorious Physician" which put the proper perspective on the season we are approaching.

THE MERRIEST TEA DANCE was given on Sunday afternoon last by the Joe Donaldsons, the H. L. Gunters, the Frank Kelleys and the Tom Roses in the Country Club . . . it was such a handsome holiday crowd with a lot of out-of-town guests to add to the merriment . . . it was like "everyone coming home for Christmas" with the very danceable old tunes dressed up in a holiday mood . . . the serving table, where Betty Henderson and Norma Crow presided dispensing punch and holiday dainties, was a riot of color in red and white . . . the focal point of the table was a tall epergne holding red and white carnations . . . Claudine Vail and Chris Schneider greeted guests in the ballroom, where decorations this year provide such a pretty background for all of the parties planned . . . the color scheme of pink and silver in the ballroom is particularly flattering to feminine guests and we suspect the men like it, too . . . tea dancing guests twirled around beneath a huge candelabra which hung from the ceiling fashioned from boughs of pink-flocked cedar branches with swags of pink satin ribbon draped from the candelabra to wall sconces, dangled with prisms and fashioned with pink-flocked cedar boughs . . . alternately hanging from the ceiling throughout the ballroom are giant-sized silver Christmas ornaments and clear, plastic balls enclosing miniature pink-flocked Christmas trees . . . creating a fairyland of soft color and muted gayness . . . the Grill is decorated with hanging gold spiral mobiles and gold sunburst sconces . . . the lounge is done in gold and white . . . this lovely ballroom setting was also the scene of a Christmas Dance hosted last night by the A. D. Prichards and the Bob Prichards . . . and next Saturday night the Warren Fatherees will host a buffet . . . and on the 22nd Katy Key is making plans for the younger-set's Christmas party.

MRS. DICK HUGHES, hostessing her club, Twentieth Century Forum, at a Christmas Party on Tuesday afternoon in the Club, created the most beautiful Holiday table with a Forrest Green cloth, scalloped around the edges, with a row of green felt, appliqued with gay sequinned Christmas figures, following the scalloped border . . . punch was served from a dark green Holiday Urn, accented with red holly berries . . . the urn was almost buried in a deep nest of holly branches . . . Ruby's daughter-in-law, Mrs. Richard Hughes, presided at the punch service . . . Ruby looked so stunning in black with a red carnation corsage . . . the delightful aroma that greeted Pampa Garden Club guests at a party given in the lovely, new home of Mrs. D. A. Caldwell, on Aspen, was none other than a historic drink, dating back to the middle-ages, wassail . . . Jean Duncan and Tom Atkin provided a wonderful afternoon in the home of Vera Andis for Twentieth Century Club guests with a presentation of excerpts from the Messiah . . . Jean read portions of it while Tom, at the organ, played the musical passage . . . and there was a most delightful little Christmas tree at the Varietas Study Club meeting held Tuesday in the home of Mrs. J. C. Vollmert . . . gifts for exchange and gifts for the club's project at the state hospital in Wichita Falls, surrounded the white-flocked Christmas tree, accented with gold ornaments tied on with gold ribbon, that played a Christmas tune as it revolved around.

A GAY MORNING was provided by three hostesses, Johnny Sypert, Grace Henry and Penny Hinkle, who made such a pretty picture greeting guests at a coffee in Johnny's home on Thursday morning . . . RELUCTANTLY WE CHANGE THE subject for a moment . . . while we go into a paragraph "oil about oil" . . . our own Gris Rogers was named president of the API (American Petroleum Institute) at a meeting held in the Buena Vista Cafe recently . . . attended by approximately 300 oil men in the Panhandle area . . . four other Pampans were named to key positions on the board . . . Joe Kenworthy, Paul Wiley, Frank Storms and Martin Ludeman . . . it was strictly a stag affair, we are told, but we have heard several comments from the guests who enjoyed Melvin Munn's talk during the evening . . . here is a versatile man, equally at home in front of a PTA group, an oil men's gathering, or a church group of young people . . . and liked by all . . . imagine Johnny Watson and Fred VanShoubrouek had some sore arm muscles after greeting the large crowd that attended Humble's Open House on Tuesday . . . certainly is a beautiful new home for their company . . . and our favorite Mata Hari tells us that Schlumberger Well Survey has an attractive new office and garage under construction just east of Beacon Supply Co.

IT IS RATHER impolite, we know, to call at a new neighbor's home before all of the drapes are hung and there is some indication that visitors will be welcomed . . . but this week, we just couldn't resist swinging up the sweeping drive of the new Coronado Inn for a closer look-see at the new home for travelers, conventioneers, party hostesses and "coffee breakers" . . . we've had a Hobart-Street-Eye's-View of it for lo' these many months and we were impressed with our closer look . . . and did you know that standing down-town at the corner of West and Foster you can look right into the wing of the Inn . . . we resisted the urge to peek in the windows and must wait with the rest of Pampa until the Grand Opening on January 18th and for the dinner dance on the 19th . . . we should be rested from the Holidays by then.

See you around, Peg

Wonder Of "Nine Days To Christmas" Related For TC Forum Club Members

Twentieth Century Forum held its annual Christmas Party on Tuesday afternoon in the Pampa Country Club with Mrs. Dick Hughes as hostess.

Mrs. Joe Daniel, president, conducted a short business meeting and welcomed one guest, Mrs. Richard Hughes, and two inactive members, Mrs. Homer Johnson and Mrs. Doug Lawrence.

Each member brought a dollar for the project fund as well as gifts to be sent to Wichita Falls State Hospital.

Mrs. Felix Vendrell presented the Christmas program entitled "Nine Days To Christmas" by Marie Hall Ets and Aurora Labastida. She began by explaining about the posadas, the special Mexican parties given, one each night for the nine days before Christmas.

"The story is about Ceci, a five-year-old girl," she began. "Mother said that she was old enough now to stay up for the posadas and it was hard to get her to wait patiently through the twenty-one long days until the first one. For that was to be her very own, given in her own home."

"She wondered if she would have a pinata . . . one of those fantastic paper figures filled with fruit and candies . . . that hung high in the patio. What fun the children always had being blindfolded and trying to be first to burst the pinata with their long sticks and then scrambling for the sweet shower. Ceci badly wanted a very special pinata for her first posada."

Mrs. Vendrell continued relating, "She thought about it long and carefully and at last came the wonderful day when she knew she was to have her wish. Mother took her to the old Mexican market where the many-shaped, many-hued pinatas hung quietly turning in the little breeze. They seemed to speak to her saying, "Take me, take me!" It was terribly difficult to choose, until she saw the very One! It was a big, shining gold star."

The beautiful pinata was hung in the patio for the party, Mrs. Vendrell continued. "When the guests arrived, the fun began of trying to break the pinata. Ceci hid behind a tree so she couldn't watch. She did not want it broken. Suddenly there was a crash and Ceci just stood there listening as the children scrambled for the good things to eat that were rolling on the gound. As she listened she heard a voice up in the branches whispering, "Ceci! Ceci!"

"And there, just above the tree, was the brightest star she had ever seen. "Don't cry, Ceci," it whispered, "Look! Because a little girl chose me for her first posada, I'm a real star now!"

"And as Cecil watched, the star flew up to the sky. No one can ever break it now! she thought. She ran into the house for her doll, Gabina. "We have given the world a new star for Christmas. Our star, Gabina! Can you see how it's blinking just at us?"

Preceding the story of "Nine Days To Christmas", each member was given a number and at the close of the program, Mrs. Vendrell presented a pinata to the holder of the holder of the lucky number, Mrs. M. McDaniel.

Members attending were Mmes. Bob Curry, E. J. Dunigan Jr., William L. Ellis, H. C. Federer Jr., Gene F. Groom, W. Calvin Jones, Frank Kelley, John B. McCrery, Bruce Pratt, Henry J. Rose, Arthur Teed, and C. V. Wilkinson.

Pampa News Women's Editor

Just as a letter is often received, where you can read more between the lines than is actually written in the words, so it is true that the pictures taken for the women's page very often have a story which doesn't show, written between the snap of the lens and the actual photograph as it appears in the paper.

Sometimes the stories are funny, sometimes frustrating; often sweet and sometimes poignant. The latter description is true of the recent picture taken of the presentation of the Beta Sigma Phi Table Setting contest check by Mrs. F. L. Stone, general chairman, to Mrs. S. C. Fish, treasurer for the Exceptional Child-Parent Association.

Following the snap of the lens, Mrs. Fish, who has a six - year-old physically handicapped son, modestly handed Mrs. Stone a slip of paper. "This," she said, "was written in appreciation of the sorority's efforts in behalf of the association and is dedicated to Beta Sigma Phi. All of us mothers of exceptional children apreciate so much what is being done by all of the organizations in Pampa for our children."

With Mrs. Fish's permission, here is the poem, which she said composed:

SPECIAL ANGELS
By Jeanette Fish

Why am I crippled, Mama?
My feet aren't very straight.
I can't run with these crutches,
The other boys won't wait.

Sometimes when I'm walking
I stumble and I fall.
They all laugh and so do I
But its not funny at all.

I'm always a good boy, Mama
I hardly ever cry,
Does God ever see, boys like me,
Tell me Mamma, why?

What would you tell that little boy?
What can a mother say?
Sit down here beside me, son
(I brush a tear away)

Why you're a special angel, dear,
Though God loves all the rest,
The little ones with crooked feet,
He just loves them the best.

Everytime that you fall down
And jump up quick and proud,
God looks down and sees you,
He laughs right out loud.

There's one of my special angels
I saw him as he fell,
He jumped right up and didn't cry
My, he's doing well!

People are always grumbling,
They worry and fuss and cry,
Then when they see you hopping along
We really are lucky, they sigh.

That's why he made you as you are.
To keep others happy and bright
To light up heaven with your smiles
And make the whole world right.

Every night when you're asleep
I thank that one above,
And kiss the little crooked feet,
He gave me, you, to love.

Importance Of Poll Tax Discussed At Business And Professional Club Meet

Business and Professional Women's Club met Tuesday evening in the City Club Room for a program presented by Mrs. Clara Lee Rhoades, legislation chairman. Mrs. Rhoades reviewed the Bill of Rights, which was ratified in 1791 and discussed payment of poll tax. "As a sincere, patriotic citizen of your community," Mrs. Rhoades stated, "you will wish to express your wishes, opinions and vote at the polls every time there is an issue up for decision on which you are entitled to vote, but you must have the poll tax receipt or Certificate of Exemption. Tax officers have made it easier for you to pay your poll tax during the tax-paying period from Oct. 1 through Jan. 31, so be sure you have this "right to first-class citizenship" tucked away ready for use all this coming year."

"It is always important to have that exemption or poll tax receipt, but this year, you will have the opportunity to vote on national, state, county and city officials. Perhaps you will be called upon to help decide a highly important question about your schools, bond issues, welfare and pension payments," she continued.

"Having your poll tax receipt and using it, is just that, standing up and being counted. You are standing up for the kind of men and women you want to represent your views in elective offices. You are having a voice in the kind of education your children receive, the taxes you pay, and the quality of service you receive for these taxes." In conclusion, Mrs. Rhoades urged each member to pay her poll tax by the Jan. 31 deadline.

Old-Fashioned Look For Little Girls To Appear On Spring Fashion Scene

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—What are little girls made of?

Well, in the new styles, the answer is of more pinafores and petticoats than the average closet will hold.

The New York Fashion Group, at its semi-annual roundup of ready-to-wear trends, predicted continuation of the old - fashioned look for little females.

Old-fashioned refers to turn of century styles including the leg o' mutton sleeve; subdued prints; the apron, jumper or pinafore look to dresses which are one piece; to separate pinafores and jumpers, and to layers of petticoats, which rarely go out of fashion with young ladies.

Pinafores come in organdy, broadcloth, lawn or pique and often are trimmed with lace or embroidery.

Twenty-two designers participated in the fashion group roundup, and keyed their costumes to nursery rhyme characters. The "this is the way we wash our clothes" chant from "Mulberry Bush" became "this is the way we wash and wear"—to describe a dacron and cotton dress in blue check with white organdy pinafore and four or five layers of petticoats. All dunk into the tub and drip dry, without need of ironing.

Miniature checks in pink and blue ran throughout the works of the 22. So did floral prints or applique of flowers on solid shades. Pastel colors dominated the scene, but the children's wear industry expects a big spring also for the black and white combinations.

Small sophisticates also have taken a cue from their mothers and are dressing up in cotton brocades in tone-on-tone colors.

The most old-fashioned looking dress in the group's show: : A "sugar and spice" party dress in white swiss organdy, a direct copy from the Victorian era, with its wrist-length, leg o'mutton sleeves, full, gathered skirt with fine horizontal tucking, and accompanying white parasol.

DEAR ABBY....

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband stays home nights, but I'm sure he runs around in the daytime. I have been married to this chiseler for 32 years and I can tell.

He is almost 60 and I am 53. When I want a little affection he tells me he's tired. Of course he's tired. He gets tired from chasing women all day. He sells real estate so you know he can get around plenty and make it look all right. He tells me I am imagining things.

Our children are married and we could settle down in a happy old age together if only he would behave himself. He is a good provider and doesn't smoke, drink or gamble. Can you help me?

SUSPICIOUS

DEAR SUSPICIOUS: What makes you think a man of sixty can't be tired just doing a day's work? Unless you have more than your "hunches" to go on, you'd be wise to give your husband a warm welcome when he comes home instead of a lot of heat.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old boy who wishes he were dead. I feel so left out of things. I am a big failure. My teachers say "I don't apply myself" (whatever that means). My father says I think only about myself. He is probably right, too. Look at all the sentences with "I" in them.

Everything I do is wrong. Is there any hope for me?

HATE MYSELF

DEAR HATE: Everyone on this earth has a duty to live. You aren't a "failure" because a real "failure" is satisfied with himself. You recognize your weaknesses and want to improve.

You need a mature, straight-thinking adult to talk things over with. Your father should be that person. But if you have a father you can't talk to (and unfortunately there are many), I suggest that you go to your coach, a favorite teacher or to your clergyman. You've won the first round. You've admitted you need help. Now, go get it! Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: It is obvious that neither you nor the person who complained that her HI-FI is too loud knows anything about HI-FI. Hi-fidelity means TRUE reproduction and the closer you are to it, the more it sounds like the real thing.

How quiet do you think a 100-piece symphony would sound in your living room. Anything less than this would be a plain phonograph. And who wants that?

HI-FI EXPERT

DEAR EXPERT: I, (and according to my mail, several thousand other people) want it. A 100-piece symphony in my living room would shatter the chandelier and burst my ear drums. If THAT is true HI-FI, I am going to shop for the lowest of LOW-FI.

CONFIDENTIAL TO LARRY: To borrow a very old phrase from BUDDAH: "Believe nothing, no matter where you read it, or who said, it no matter if I have said it, unless it agrees with your own reason and your own common sense."

What's your problem? For a personal reply write to ABBY, care of this paper. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

School Choir Accompanies Presentation Of Sermon On The Mount By Mr. Munn

Melvin T. Munn, local insurance man, was the principal speaker at the Christmas program presented Thursday afternoon in Horace Mann School. Mr. Munn, introduced by Sam Begert, school principal, began his presentation of "The Sermon On The Mount," with background information concerning Christ and his sermon.

"The sermon," Mr. Munn said, "took place late in the afternoon by a man 32½ years old, who sat down and spoke to his disciples. Christ never owned anything. He never went to college nor wrote a book. He spent his whole life in a country 60 miles wide and 200 miles long. At the end of his life, by our standards, he was a total failure. Yet, all the armies, navies, kings and presidents of all the world have not had the influence of this solitary life.

Mr. Munn then presented the "Sermon on the Mount" from memory. This was the 1,205th presentation of the sermon, which Munn has given since Dec. 1, 1952.

"The Lord's Prayer" by Malotte was sung by Horace Mann School Choir at the point in the sermon where the prayer occurs. The choir composed of fifth and sixth grade students was directed by Mrs. John Branham and accompanied by Ms. Faye Dellis Adams.

Mr. Munn concluded his address by quoting the poem, "I'd Rather See A Sermon."

Mrs. John Holt Jr., during the business meeting, announced the appointments of a project committee who are to plan the school project for the year. Named to serve were Mmes. Harry Gordon, Raymond Field, Canara Carruth, M. K. Griffith, John Branham and Miss Mary Reeve.

In reporting the progress of the paving committee, Mrs. Ott Shewmaker and Mrs. Edwin Southard, Mrs. Holt stated that the prospects for paving the street north of the school were promising.

"Because all of the room exhibits at our November Open House were very good, $1 will be presented as a prize to each teacher in the school," Mrs. Holt said.

Announcement was made of a joint meeting of all local PTA units to be held January 14 in Robert E. Lee Junior High School. Stephen McGrady, exceptional child instructor at Travis School, will be the guest speaker on the subject, "Why Special Education."

Mrs. Burgin Watkin won the door prize; a cake baked by Mrs. Edwin Southard.

Room count prizes were won by Miss Retta Dunham's second grade; Mrs. Charles Meech's fourth grade and Miss Mary Reeve's second grade.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mmes. James Reeves, James Futch, Mike Kopper, Burgin Watkins, S. C. Fish, and Bob Echols.

Members attending other than those mentioned above were Mmes. J. P. Adams, Earl Barnett, Betty Cooper, Bill Ellis, Bill Grant, June Griffith, Henry Gruben, S. Gene Hall, Charles Jeffries, John McCausland, Walter Roush, Jere Sanders, James Scholl and C. S. Youngblood.

Pledges attending were Mmes. Leo Casey, Tom Darby, Paul Howard, Brantley Hudson, R. F. McDonald and George White.

Excerpts From Handel's "The Messiah" Presented For Twentieth Century Club

Mrs. Bob Andis was hostess to the members of Twentieth Century Study Club in her home at 1710 Mary Ellen on Tuesday afternoon. Christmas decorations were used throughout the house.

Mrs. E. L. Campbell and Miss. Linda Andis furnished Christmas music from the piano and organ while the guests were assembling. A white flocked tree graced the entry way and was adorned with holly from which a sprig was pinned to each lady on her arrival.

Mrs. Robert Sanford called the meeting to order. Mrs. Lloyd Hicks led in the reading of the Club Litany. After hearing the reports from the committees, a letter from Robert Wong was read in which he expressed his appreciation for his scholarship and also for the privilege of living in America.

Mrs. Hicks, as leader, emphasized planning for a beautiful Christmas. She reminded that a day can be a work of art and a beautiful design for Christmas should include Peace, Order, Serenity, Beauty; Compassion and Sharing. Good Fellowship highlighted with Love, Music, and Worship with Christ as the center of it all.

Mrs. Campbell presented a sketch on the life of Handel explaining that his interest in music started at a very early age. "Even though his Father opposed his musical education, Handel was a master at the organ by the time he was eleven years old. He composed his first opera when he was only twenty years of age," Mrs. Campbell said. "When he was forty-one, he became an English Subject, and after this time he accomplished some of his most beautiful work. A sense of urgency compelled him to finish "The Messiah" in twenty-one days. He eyesight was ailing and the Debtors Prison was threatening him, but still "The Messiah" is one of the best loved musical productions ever written. It has become one of the nicest traditions of the Christmas Season."

Mrs. Kirk Duncan, assisted by Tom Atkin and Mrs. Lavinia Webb, presented one of the most beautiful and inspirational programs for the beginning the Christmas Holidays. Mrs. Duncan described "The Messiah" in detail and told from which scriptures each solo was taken. Mr. Atkin played the corresponding music as she talked. Mrs. Webb sang an alto solo 'He Shall Feed His Flock."

Mrs. Duncan pointed out many interesting facts about "The Messiah" including the fact that it was written in twenty-one days. She explained the custom of the audience standing during The Hallelujah Chorus originated with King George I. "By standing he was paying tribute to Handel for the representation of the Heavenly Music." she explained, "This custom has been universally adopted. Mrs. Duncan closed her program with the statement "Peace is the climax of man's great hope".

During the social hour, Mrs. Walter Pung acted as Mrs. Santa delivering the presents for the gift exchange. Mrs. Sanford presided at the tea table from which flaming cake were served.

Mrs. I. B. Hughey, one of the charter members of the club, was a special guest. Mrs. Frank D. Travis from Plainview, a guest of Mrs. Hubbard was welcomed as was Atkin and Mrs. Webb.

Gordon, Raymond Harrah, Lloyd Hicks, Ronald Hubbard, Lorene Locke, Roy McKernan, Fred Neslage, Walter Pung, Tom Rose, Robert Sanford, H. E. Stanfield, R. W. Stowers, H. R. Thompson, and W. J. RUTH MILLETT

"My husband retired six months ago and now I'm as tied down as I was when the children were small," writes a 65-year-old wife.

She goes on to explain: "My husband spends most of the day puttering around the house and yard. Though he doesn't have much to say to me when I'm around he grumbles if I leave the house for a few hours.

"I've given up two clubs I belonged to for years, because he complained so much about my 'gadding about' all the time. I never go out to lunch anymore with husband doesn't like to eat lunch alone.

"So here I am, with my children grown and gone from home, tied down again. But this time I'm a husband sitter instead of a baby sitter. Do you have any solution for wives in my situation?"

The first suggestion is that you try to get your husband interested in something besides puttering. If he has done nothing but putter for six months he is probably even more frustrated than you are.

The second suggestion is that the two of you start going places and doing things together instead of just sitting around home. If you haven't a congenial group of friends, you had better get busy and find some.

The third suggestion is that you go back to having some social life in your own. Meet your friends for lunch now and then. Have neighbors in for coffee. If you enjoyed the clubs you dropped out of, go back into them. A grown man doesn't need a sitter. He can spend some time alone.

Don't feel sorry for yourself or let yourself become a slave to your husband's whims.

The years ahead are years you should both enjoy. But they'll be deadly boring if you just putter them away and spend so much time together doing nothing that you get on each other's nerves.

Tom Atkin Directs Study Of Church Service Music For Piano Teachers

"God's Gift to Man" — the teaching of hymns and church service music, was the subject of study for the Pampa Piano Teachers' meeting on Tuesday. Tom Atkin, minister of music at the First Methodist Church, spoke to the group, stressing the importance of preparing piano and organ students to accompany congregational singing.

"Careful consideration should be given to the theology contained in the words of hymns, as well as to the mood set by the tune and rhythm," he said.

"Also," Mr. Atkin said, "when choosing music for services, selections which will district worshipers' minds from the atmosphere of worship should be avoided."

His final observation was that music properly chosen and presented often reaches and remains with a person longer than the spoken words of the service.

During the business session the application for membership of Mrs. Marguerite Cleghorn was accepted.

There is to be a reception given by the Piano Teachers Association for the pianists Eden and Tamir following their concert on January 28, it was announced.

The Sonatina Festival for Pampa piano students will be held February 17-21, with a guest auditioner from out-of-town.

Mrs. Joe Foster and Mrs. E. B. Alleman served as hostesses for the luncheon which followed the meeting. The luncheon table was centered with an arrangement of Christmas ornaments in a glass bell, with a tall spired ornament on top. Ropes of small glass ornaments were hung about the arrangement, and extended the length of the table.

Those attending were Mrs. Landes Horton of Shamrock, a guest; Mmes. W. M. Cooper, Lois Fagan, W. H. Fuller, Lee Harris, Dick Land, David Mills, Ramon Wilson, Fidelia Yoder, Bob Perkins, Bill Watt, W. D. Waters, E. B. Alleman, Joe Foster, Miss Rosemary Lawlor, and Messrs. Tom Atkins and Tracy Cary.

If a leaky faucet gets on your nerves before it can be fixed, tie a string to the faucet handle near the tip, and let the string hang down into the sink. It won't fix the leak, but it will silence the drip.

MATURE PARENT

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

Her name was Rosie, and she lived two miles nearer the country school we attended than I did. So, sometime during the 3rd grade, I got into the habit of stopping in at Rosie's house on our way home from school together and refreshing myself with her mother's cake and milk before resuming my way.

I expect her mother got tired of feeding me, I can still remember the afternoon she did something about it. A tape measure in hand, she came into the pantry where Rosie and I were guzzling marshmallow layer cake and said: "Girls let's measure your braids and see who has the biggest ones."

My braids turned out to be a quarter inch thicker than Rosie's. Thereafter our companionship underwent a change. When we walked home together, I felt an unhappy but insistant pride in my superior braids and Rosie resentment of her skimpier ones. Soon we each found more comfortable friends for ourselves. But turning us into competitors, Rosie's mother had effectively separated us.

I'm sure that her wish to separate us was unconscious.

As are our wishes to estrange the brothers and sisters in whom we excite the spirit of competitiveness.

When we tell Billy, "Why don't you get as good spelling marks as Sister did?" we may believe that all we want to do is stir ambition in Billy. Is this really so? Aren't we really trying to arouse envy of Sister in Billy? Aren't we deliberately undermining his friendly feeling for her? Aren't we using his separating envy of her to force him to struggle for our favor?

If we go in for this kind of rivalry incitement, let's not go to pieces at the idea that we're seeking power for ourselves. We all like power. The trouble with the kind we're after is that it backfires.

The Bible story of Jacob and his sons is a perfect example of what happens to parents who play one child off against another. Under the guise of loving his son Joseph, old Jacob made him the subject of such envy by his brothers that they sold the Wonder Child into slavery.

Polly's Quiz

By POLLY CRAMER

Dear Polly: What would you suggest for walls and drapes in a living room? I have an Oriental rug with a beige center, deep blue border but with some red in it. My couch is red with large tan flowers.—Mrs. D. L. B.

Dear Mrs. D. L. B.: Your couch and rug must fight like cats and dogs. Cover the couch and let the jewellike tones in the rug have a chance. Paint walls and woodwork a light beige and have matching draw curtains. Cover the sofa in a deep blue textured fabric. An easy chair might be a beige self-toned stripe with red for the seat of an occasional chair.

Dear Polly: I always thought green and blue didn't go together. The magazines are full of pictures with blue and green together in rooms. Is this just a new style?—Confused.

Dear Confused: Green and blue have been used together since the beginning of time. Look out your window at the green grass and trees against the blue sky. Many of us have just been a bit slow in realizy how beautifully they team up.

Dear Polly: I have a ten-by-ten guest room and den. I have a white leather bed-davenport and white curtains at the window, which is the width of the room. Right now the walls are yellow but I thought of painting them deep purple just to be different. Would you advise that for a small room? —Mrs. E. S. F.

Dear Mrs. E. S. F.: Don't get carried away with the idea of being different. Deep purple would really shrink the walls in a small room. Your present yellow sounds fresh and pretty. But if you must have a change, consider turquoise, a light olive green or gray blue.

Dear Polly: My home is too close to the one next door. What style curtains should I use? I have cloth roller shades now but I need something when they are rolled up.—Mrs. N. R. B.

Dear Mrs. N. R. B.: You must feel that you are living in a goldfish bowl. Sheer nylon curtain would cover the windows at a times and still allow the light t sift through. Or, you might replac the cloth roller shades with whit matchstick bamboo that coul stay down all the time since th light drifts through very pleasant ly. Hang draperies at either sid for a finished look.

Gifts Exchanged At Varietas Club

Varietas Study Club held its Christmas party on Tuesday afternoon in the home of Mrs. J. C. Vollmert, 1902 Charles.

During the afternoon, Mrs. W. A. Wagoner played Christmas music.

Gifts were exchanged from an elegant revolving white flocked musical Christmas tree sprinkled with jewel lights. Gifts were also brought for the state hospital patients at Wichita Falls.

During the business meeting, Mrs. H. Price Dosier reported that the committee had taken books to the Highland General Hospital library and that more children's books are desired.

Piano Players And Blonde Sopranos In Great Demand On Concert Stage

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Concert goers also prefer blondes.

So says Mrs. Ann Colbert, the female world's answer to Sol Hurok.

Mrs. Colbert, who believes she is the nation's only woman impresario, said "there are two things always in demand on the concert stage—piano players and blonde sopranos. You never have any trouble booking either."

Ann Colbert and her husband, Henry, have been managing musicians for 10 years, and today the Colbert-Laberge firm guides the careers of 40 solo artists from singers to cellists to organists, plus 23 chamber music groups.

The biggest problem with her job, she said, is the juggling of train, plane and bus time-tables, not with artistic temperament as might be expected.

"Any good artist will be nervous before a performance," said Mrs. Colbert. "So you realize that and forget any nonsense they pull."

"But artists are individuals," she continued. "And uninhibited. They tell us how they want things. Getting a chamber music group around the country, for instance, takes some doing. One member may want to fly; another will travel only by train. We cater to their whims, but sometimes the temptation may be to tell them to walk."

The Colberts, natives of Berlin, came to this country when Hitler began his rise to power. Until they opened their own firm, he managed the "New Friends of Music" in New York and she was on the staff of a magazine.

Her husband is an amateur cellist and she once played the piano. "But I gave up two things when I married," she said. "Playing sonatas with him, and driving the car when he was in it."

Now, she does the scouting for artists; he does the domestic roadwork, selling.

New Gray Ladies Capped And Pinned At Christmas Coffee In City Club Room

Pampa Chapter of Gray Ladies of American Red Cross held its Christmas Coffee on Thursday morning in the City Club Room. Mrs. Luther Pierson, Mrs. Lee Harrah, and Mrs. Louise Sewell were hostesses.

John Gikas, chapter chairman, brought greetings from the Pampa Chapter to the Gray Ladies.

Mrs. James Lewis presided at the register, where 24 Gray Ladies and four guests registered.

Mrs. A. D. Hills, Gray Lady chairman, presided at a short business session. She introduced Liby Shotwell, executive-secretary, who spoke on the history of the Gray Ladies chapter in Pampa. She said, "we have trained 126 Gray Ladies in Pampa Chapter since 1945; 22 of these have moved away from Pampa; 40 have become inactive since they have taken their training; one is deceased; leaving 63 on active rolls at the present time."

During the coffee, Mrs. Hershell Wilks played piano music.

Mrs. E. W. Voss presided at the coffee service. The table was overlaid with red net cloth with a red satin undercloth. The centerpiece was white flocked pine with red balls and red straws, topped with a large white candle.

The impressive capping service for new Gray Ladies was conducted by Mrs. Mable Schmalz, RN, and Mrs. Erma Rice, RN, from Highland General Hosital.

Mrs. Hills presented certificates to the following New Gray Ladies; Mmes. Jess Beard, James A. Hopkins, C. B. Lutes, Mack Harmon, K. L. Dunn, and O. F. Kreimeyer.

Mrs. Don Elledge, who was ill and unable to attend, has completed training and will become active Gray Lady.

Based On Principle

(We are concluding herewith our discussion with a friendly reader on the editorial policy of the Pampa Daily News as it applies to education.)

We come at last to an editorial which appeared recently. The editorial up for comment by our friendly reader is entitled: "Our Own Self-Interest." The comment is as follows:

'The News desires 'Best possible education for all.' Key is ALL Wonderful!

"In dealing with conditions as they are in the 'educational system' we are treating end-effects. WE MUST UP-ROOT THE CAUSES and better the system. BUT NOT BY BY-PASSING END - EFFECTS.

"The fundamental steps to be taken for both remedial and preventive work — once schools are out of politics — must come through the PROPER PREPARATION OF TEACHERS, changing them into teacher - educators. Wrongly guided personnel have destroyed American system!

"And let it be added, the root-cause of our present status is POLITICAL CHICANERY! Why let it continue to win by avoiding the issue? If our government has gone wrong, why not correct the error, instead of accepting a substitute in the form of private schools? Why not win on principle instead of lose by 'trial and error'?"

Perhaps it is thru the passage of time and the experience of much thought, but we rather think that our friendly reader in this instance is closer to our own conclusions than before. We say "hurrah" to almost all of the comments.

Of course the problem in our government schools relates to political chicanery. But perhaps it is foolish of us to make that observation using political and chicanery as two words. You cannot separate politics from government. You cannot separate chicanery from politics. Hence when you insist on having government schools, you are insisting on having schools which are operated on political lines and which will practice chicanery. These things go together.

The problem is not whether the government has goofed in handling the schools. Of course it has. The problem is for us to recognize that this is INEVITABLE. One cannot use government without using coercion and violence. And guns have no place in any classroom under any circumstance relating to education.

This is the only place where we take issue this time with our friendly reader. We agree that we must fight out this business on the basis of principle. But we disagree that private or independent schools are a substitute. On the contrary. Private and independent schools are the true basis of all education and have been since long before the founding of Cairo University during the middle ages.

Government schools are simply a substitute and a mighty poor one, to good, sound, uninhibited and financially solvent schools. When this nation first adopted the idea of government schools it was tacitly understood at that time that getting the government into the business was a poor policy and only a makeshift arrangement.

In fact, in certain quarters it was anticipated that the government would be involved only briefly and temporarily, AS A SUBSTITUTE, in order to take up the slack. After that, schools were supposed to revert to their proper position as agencies of freedom and true intellectual expansion and perpetuation.

This is our point of difference. We believe that our friendly reader has neglected the history of the school system to the degree that what is in fact basic is seen as a substitute, and that which was substituted is seen as basic.

Only when sufficient study is made of this problem will it begin to get itself into perspective so that we can separate the real from the un-real.

If we are to have an educational system based upon PRINCIPLE, which we certainly advise and recommend, then it follows that we cannot use the government for this system unless we wish education to rest upon principles of violence. This we reject.

Someway, we think our friendly reader does, too.

Educational Problem

The plight of private education in this nation has been distressing for some time. Recently, the difficulties are becoming acute.

Dr. Louis T. Benezet recently summed it up pretty well. In launching a fund raising campaign for the Associated Colleges of Colorado, he warned his coworkers that if the American public is aroused to the plaee where it will give support to its tax-financed colleges, this may inadvertently weaken the private colleges. Only determined efforts by private colleges to keep their standards high and determined efforts by their supporters to provide the means, will keep private education functioning in the face of rising taxes. What Dr Benezet was saying was that there is a greater awareness these days in governmental circles of the importance of education. But this awareness, if it faces up to the whole job, is very apt to go about financing government schools at all levels just as tho private and independent schools didn't exist.

Then the president of Colorado College pointed out that a century ago, private secondary schools did the entire educational job at secondary level. Today, with the growth of the government high schools, private schools do only about 5 percent of that teaching chore. "If this ever happens to the private institutions at the college level," he said, "we may as well go on home."

Dr. Benezet's remarks reminded us of the closing of the Denver University School of Architecture back in 1952. Here was a highly organized and particularly useful school within the confines of Denver University, which in itself is a privately endowed institution. In order to continue the school an endowment of about $1,000,000 would have had to be made available. It was not forthcoming.

But one of the reasons for this lack without question relates to the millions upon millions which are taken by force from our largest and most productive corporations and persons and then channelled into government schools to the permanent disadvantage of all schools which do not use coercion as a money raising device.

With some reluctance we also recall the gloomy forebodings of no less an educational luminary than Dr. M. E. Sadler, president of Texas Christian University. At the 65th annual convention of Christian Churches held in Houston, Texas, Dr. Sadler came up with these melancholy observations:

"For several generations in this country almost all colleges and universities were privately controlled and church related. . . Now government schools are beginning to dominate the whole field of education. . .The surest road toward absolute dictatorship and regimentation is by way of control in education. Whoever and whatever controls education will soon control life. . ."

We are in agreement here with both Dr. Sadler and Dr. Benezet.

Further, the problem is so fundamental and deep seated that it cannot be solved simply by adding a course here, improving teaching techniques there, or raising teacher's pay somewhere else. What is involved here is the surrender of our traditional concept of free and uninhibited education to the growing monolithic monster of government control and regimentation of our schools. Nor can anything be done to change the impact of government upon the schools while at the same time retaining government control and management.

The entire field of education must be cleansed of coercion. We must have freedom to teach and to learn in all educational institutions, primary, secondary and collegiate. Further, the teaching and the learning must be divorced totally from all political action and from all possible governmental intrusion.

America's children must have the same opportunities of learning principles of integrity, honor and courage that small and independent schools were able to instill in their charges decades ago.

This is one of the most serious problems we face in this nation. No halfway solution is any solution at all.

Sound Money Is An Essential Means Of Prosperity

Frederick Nymeyer, in his magazine "First Principles In Morality And Economics", has made a careful study of money and credit. He is convinced, as I am convinced, that all depressions are the aftermath of government authorizing unlimited credit expansion. He puts forth the various arguments of the different ideas of how money should be handled. Under the heading of "How The Zeal For Efficiency In The Use Of Money Manifests Itself In The Way That The Seasonal Demand For Money Is Taken Care Of", he writes:

"The demand for money (in the economic sense, as defined) varies not only by persons but also for the same person. He will deliberately increase his money on hand to anticipate extra needs, and reduce his money on hand when he anticipates less - than-usual needs. These variations do not all offset each other, and so there is a variable seasonal demand for money. It is higher at the ends of months, than between month ends; it is even higher at quarterly dates. It is exceptionally high at year ends.

"One way to take care of the high seasonal demand for money is for a merchant to carry the whole year long a balance in his checking account big enough for his maximum demand for money in the fall, or whenever his maximum demand will occur. But that means a kind of 'inefficiency.' He will have 'idle' funds for a large part of the year. To have idle' funds means to suffer the loss of interest that might be earned on those funds. Business considers itself too competitive to tolerate that waste or 'inefficiency.' Businesses, therefore, have often become accustomed to having a demand for money in the economic sense which is no more than their demand in their lowest season. What they need above that in their busy seasons they obtain by borrowing for short periods, maybe only a few months, from the banks. Bank loans regularly increase in the fall, because of that phenomenon. The loan money market (ceteris paribus) always tightens up beginning in September and continues into January.

"How do the banks meet the situation? Elaborate financial machinery has been developed to enable the banks to make greater loans seasonally. The reason for this elaborate organization is 'efficiency' or 'economy' in the use of money.

"It is in times especially of high seasonal demands for loan money that what we have called the Five Times Principle comes into play in order to provide funds. Furthermore, the Federal Reserve Banking system in the United States is especially designed to take care of the seasonal needs of business. A prime device, ordinarily not easily understood, in such situations is for the Reserve Banks to increase their holding of government bonds by purchases. They pay out money for the bonds to commercial banks and their customers and that money takes care of the seasonal needs of business. When the seasonal needs for money of business are diminished then the Reserve Banks re-sell the bonds and receive back the extra money that had pumped into the money supply. The details of this are irrelevant at this time.

"The fundamental fact is this: the banking system which we have is authorized to manufacture circulation credit to take care of peak seasonal needs for money. Then, as the seasonal demand diminishes, this circulation credit is or at least can be withdrawn. Temporary money has been temporarily kept in circulation in the interest of 'efficiency' in the use of money.

"The alternative would have been to have 'less efficiency' in the use of money, namely, there would be in seasonally slack periods excess idle funds which would not be earning interest; that would occasion a loss in potential income. Furthermore, because there would be less money, therefore, according to the quantity theory of money, prices would generally be lower, if for no other reason, because money was 'turning over' less frequently.

"Some of the unsound ideas, about money have, in a sense, sneaked into the money and banking system, via the plausible idea that there should be no inefficiencies in meeting the seasonal demand for money; that is, the high demand for money should be taken care of by circulation credit, or as we have also designated it, 'counterfeit' credit.

"It is no great jump from the idea of the merit of manufacturing seasonal funds for the sake of economy, to the idea of manufacturing all funds needed at any time — so for the sake of 'economy' or to achieve a hoped-for 'efficiency' in the use of money."

MAN-MADE QUAKES IN SIBERIA MYSTIFY U.S. AUTHORITIES

WASHINGTON — U.S. military and nuclear authorities are mystified and disturbed by a series of "artificial earthquakes" in the Lake Balkash region in Siberia—site of Russia's main atomic weapons testing range.

These strange man-made quakes have been admitted by Semyon Tsarapkin, chief Soviet delegate at the Geneva negotiations on banning nuclear tests. But that's all.

Efforts by the U.S and British delegates to obtain addifional information from him have been met with either silence or the assertion that "more time is needed to assemble our data in report form."

Washington officials are split on the nature of these "artifical earthquakes."

Nuclear experts of the Joint Chiefs of Staff strongly suspect they are secret underground atomic explosions. This is also the theory of former Atomic Energy Commissioner Thomas Murray, now chief consultant of the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee.

After studying all available classified information, Murray believes the Soviet is conducting "bootleg nuclear tests."

State Department authorities, however, are skeptical of this view.

In their opinion, Russia "would not risk" staging unannounced nuclear weapons tests at this time, when they are supposed to be halted, and when Premier Khrushchev is frequently and loudly proclaiming his desire to temper the cold war in preparation for the long-discussed summit conference next spring.

At the same time, it is conceded at the State Department the U.S. now lacks the technical means of determining whether these mysterious quakes are the result of nuclear explosions, TNT or some other explosive.

Atomic Energy Commission Chairman John McCone frankly says his agency doesn't know. So far his scientists have been unable to ferret out this important answer.

HIGHLY SUSPICIOUS — In the U.S.-British questioning of Soviet delegate Tsarapkin, at the Geneva conference, this much was learned:

The "artificial earthquakes" have taken place near Lake Balkash, in the huge nuclear testing region in Siberia. Some of the most important Russian tests have been in the vicinity of this lake.

Avowed purpose of these manmade quakes was to "determine the structure of the earth to a depth of more than 60 miles, and to test new seismic equipment."

The underground explosions were recorded as far as 250 miles. However, no U.S. or British seismographs reported them.

Former Atomic Commissioner Murray contends that subterranean detonations of this magnitude would require "stupendous amounts of conventional explosives."

Long a major problem at the Geneva parley is what to do about underground nuclear tests. Not only do they present still-unsolved difficulties in detection, but they are being urged for a variety of peaceful purposes.

Both Pentagon and Atomic Commission officials strongly favor the latter.

A series of underground nuclear tests by the U.S., Britain and Russia will be proposed by Foreign Minister Selwyn Lloyd at the NATO foreign ministers meeting in Paris next week. He will urge that the three powers agree to lift their test ban for such a round.

M. Jules Moch, French delegate to the Disarmament Commission, in an unpublished report, reveals a number of significant details regarding the Lake Balkash nuclear testing region.

Fifty-five Soviet tests have taken place there since 1945. Ten towns are located in the area. The largest is Pavlodar with 60,600 population.

FLASHES — Intelligence has definitely established two facts regarding those Panamanian riots: At least four of the principal "inciters" were Cubans sent to Panama expressly for that purpose. All were well-heeled, and throughout their operations they stressed violence against the U.S. The other factor is that political foes of President Ernesto de la Guardia helped fulminate these disturbances to discredit him in the hope of forcing him to quit. Panama has a national election next May . . . Despite President Nasser's recent wooing of the West, he is still getting Russian arms. His latest acquisitions are two late-model Red destroyers, giving the navy of the United Arab Republic a total of eight of these vessels, plus nine submarines, 40 torpedo boats, and a number of other ships. However, despite this sizable navy, Egyptians are not among its top officers and technicians. They are either Russians or Poles.

It's Up To You

by Howard Kershner L. H. D.

Robin Hood Concept Is Morally Wrong

All Christians are distressed by the existence of poverty, drunkenness, vice, crime, juvenile delinquency, divorce, and all forms of human misery. In our view the principal reasons for this human unhappiness is sin. It is because men reject the mercy of God, prefer to follow their own selfish inclinations and will not repent and accept the salavation He so freely offers.

Some Christians take a different view. They believe that men can be made happy by doing things for them. They would seize some of the property of the landlord in order to lower the rent of the tenant thinking thereby to make the latter more comfortable. They try to force some employers to pay more than some of their workers are worth hopeing thereby to improve the lot of the latter. They insist that some people must sell what they produce for less than the market price and that others should receive more than the market price. They believe that by re-distributing the wealth of the country they can assuage unhappiness. They believe in light sentences, comfortable jails, generous relief payments and an increasing burden of taxes upon the thrifty in order that the slothful may enjoy better living. They are never able to understand the fact that such action encourages idleness, destroys self-reliance and saps men of their self-respect, ambition and ability to solve their own problems.

This type of Christian would make the prodigal sons and daughters comfortable where they are in the far country rather than call them back to the father's house where there is enough and to spare.

Jesus commanded us to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature. He did not command us to preach the welfare state, to teach people to depend upon it and to believe that it owes them a living and will provide for them. That false gospel destroys manhood and confirms men in their sin and helplessness.

The redemptive power of the Christian gospel will not only save men from their sins but will save them from most of the material woes which beset mankind. To be sure we need generous Christian charity for the unfortunate but that is entirely different from the coercive welfare state which would seize the wealth of some and give it to others. Jesus never taught that plan of action. When the rich young ruler turned away sorrowfully Jesus might have asked His disciples to dispossess the young man and give his goods to the poor. Instead, He waited for the power of His appeal to penetrate the heart. Jesus was not concerned with getting the people out of the slums but He was greatly concerned with getting the slums out of the people.

Fair Enough

Facts From A New Resident Of Tucson

by WESTBROOK PEGLER

TUCSON — Tucson is a clumsy adolescent constantly reaching out to embraces little colonies of new people in little new homes. But the wild life in the desert and the elephant-gray mountains are more impudent this year than ever. Coyotes are naturally furtive but two of them have ambled past my window in broad day and this morning a pack set up a yodel over near the gate. A jackrabbit streaked by, hopping zig-zag and then a coyote came, just one, in a race for the fence.

I am serenely impartial between jacks, which eat flowers and coyotes which have no better public relations than the rattler. But when a coyote catches a rabbit, or a pack of them jump a little burro, they eat their prey alive. Even a jackrabbit deserves the mercy of a happier death. This one made it to the fence which is meshed too small for coyotes but no longer rabbit proof what with the pressure of flotsam slammed against it by the floods of last July. There was no wild crescendo, the coyotes' cry of the kill, so brer rabbit done got away.

Erving Pollman, a retired policeman from Detroit, saw a coyote drinking from a tree-hole and excused himself to go home for his rifle. When he got back, the coyote looked up and held still while Erv shot him. When coyotes act tame they may be rabid.

A few nights ago I went up the mountain to call on an astrologer who has set up his stuff in a loose-pointed house beside a warm pool inhabited by wild fowl. As we went inside he said, "step a little wide of my friends here." He had two grey dog fox chained to rings set in the floor. They snarled but he gave them liverwurst and they put their ears up with a pleasant expression. Both had stepped onto pedal traps set for bob-cat. The little one's left paw was badly smashed. But once the acute pain is over they forget. Two days later both somehow escaped. The big one slipped his collar but the young one carried his chain along. It probably entangled in the brush and a coyote-or panther probably came along —.

Two weeks ago there was a day - long bombardment at the crested quail. Now I am beginning to see cripples with a leg shot off or a dragging wing.

The floods and run-off produced high grass this year. It is now tawny and great bird-cover but there are rattlers in this cover. An Air Force boy out for deer was found shot through the head leaving a wife and baby. The blizzard sealed off a number of deer-stalkers but they all straggled through later. It takes legs to hunt deer or pig. Senator Barry Goldwater hunts but this year he was in Alaska flying jets on his duty as a reserve colonel. He is 50 years old, too. A few years ago he got a big-horn in Idaho. That calls for shooting as well as legs and lungs. A half-mile is close range for a mountain sheep.

Some people in the valley toward Nogales are raising an enormous, aggressive brute for lion-hunting, called for the Rhodesian ridgeback; a mixture of hound and mastiff. Lion - hunters in the Cherrycow Mountains, the old Apache stronghold, normally use a big, eager mutt containing a lot of Airedale. The astrologer says the lions have gone effete, eating house - cats and rabbits, rather than calves.

Orville Wiseman, a veterinary, has been expounding on the Colorado River toda. On rainy nights in summer it sits in the lights around houses inhaling millions of moths. So it is useful enough but it kills dogs terribly. Dogs rush the toad and mouth him. The instant of contact the toad ejects venom loaded with strychnine from pores on his back. This penetrates the membranes of the dog's mouth and paralyzes his hind quarters, then his brain, then his heart. Doctor Wiseman gives apromorphine to make the dogs vomit the poison. He advises people to flush the dog's mouth with a hose or a bucket immediately. Otherwise the dog dies in about a half-hour. Cats know better. I have seen a cat walk among a dozen toads after a rain, ignoring them. These toads weigh up to a pound.

Over at Midland, Texas, after a hot shower, millions of tarantulas come out. They almost carpet the highways but rarely does a car mash one, they are so nimble. Tarantulas can jump a yard but they mostly jump away from you.

Do you recall Willie Woodin, the banker, who was Roosevelt's secretary of the treasury in 1933? Then died? He wrote children's books. His son, Will, Jr., lives here and for a hobby runs the desert museum and keeps some reserve stock right in his home. Sidewinders, gilas and tarantulas.

Real estate salesmen say some city people shudder at the sight or sound of a rattler and can't be consoled. Others can't wait to go stalking rattlers with clubs and rocks.

The Doctor Says:

by EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

This may be a tough winter for families whose wage earners have been affected by strikes. And nobody can overlook an economy these days.

Here are some dietary suggestions for the housewife who has to stretch each purchasing dollar to its limit without imparing the strength or health of her family:

First of all, it isn't necessary to buy a lot of expensive pills. The late Anton Carlson, America's greatest physiologist, once said that those who can afford to buy these products don't need them, and those who need them can't afford to buy them.

As I write, I have before me a list of the ingredients in a popular two-a-day tablet that is sold for six to nine cents over the counter. Each tablet contains nine vitamins, of which five rarely, if ever, cause human deficiencies. Each contains 11 minerals of which eight never cause human deficiencies.

The remaining vitamins and minerals of each tablet are supplied in adequate quantities in the diet that follows. The foods selected for this diet are the least expensive in today's market. Each may be replaced by a like substitute depending on market and economic conditions:

FOR BREAKFAST: A whole orange; a cup of cooked cereal, preferably rice or oatmeal; two eggs scrambled with milk; toast and butter; and a glass of milk, preferably a brand enriched with vitamin D.

If it's a cold day, substitute cocoa. For economy, use reconstituted powdered milk or diluted, evaporated or condensed milk. Add coffee and tea if you want.

FOR LIGHT LUNCHEON or supper, in or out of the house: A hamburger and roll; a portion of canned yellow peaches or a banana whose skin is black-specked and a glass of milk or a cup of cocoa.

FOR THE PRINCIPAL MEAL, whether noon or evening: Two pork chops or a generous portion of smoked ham, cooked to taste; a potato baked in its jacket and eaten skin and all, with added butter or oleo a cup of snap beans; and a four-inch sector of American cheese.

If you live in a goiter belt, far from the sea, use iodized salt.

Blaik Unsympathetic With 'Tea Hounds'

Earl (Red) Blaik, who jumped from the frying pan into the fire by becoming a columnist after his resignation as coach of Army football, is sorer than all get-out at those students and old grads who hang coaches in effigy.

He infers that the mock lynchers are muscleless morons who have never enjoyed the bliss of a charley-horse, a wrenched knee, a separated shoulder, a concussion, or even a split spleen, in a football contest.

Tea hounds, in short, if I may use a description in vogue when I was a muscleless student. Coach Blaik has little sympathy for such students, and seems to feel that they would be finer, stronger characters if they smelled more of liniment and less of after shave lotion, and wore the even tighter pants of football than Ivy league slacks.

Why such fragile, vapid souls should criticize football is more than former coach Blaik can understand. They know nothing about football, and less about the coaching of it. It is his belief — or so it would seem — that football is above criticism unless if comes from those who play it or teach it.

I disagree, with every flabby, untoned muscle in my head and body. Winning coaches are never hanged in effigy. Only the losing ones earn that distinction. And why shouldn't a coach who can't turn out winners be the target of criticism?

What are they hired for? To inspire young men? If that is true, then why do nine-tenths of them predict defeat for their charges every week?

To build character? Perhaps, but with the recruiting a coach has to do to keep anywhere near in the running, he has little time to mold his charges. He certainly doesn't have time to do it once a game has started, what with sending in plays so that his quarterback — the smartest man on the field — won't call a stupid one.

Coaches are very well-paid men. In many instances they draw more in their pay envelopes than the presidents of the colleges at which they coach, and nearly always more than the salary earned by the professors.

It stands to reason that coaches are highly paid to turn out winning teams. Certainly it doesn't make sense to pay a fat salary to a coach to have losing season after losing season. There are tens of thousands of men, myself included, who can start coaching losing football teams tomorrow.

Coaches seem to forget that a great number of the men who join in the criticism of coaching are men who pay good money to see football games. If they didn't exist football wouldn't exist, because you don't pay for stadiums, travel, equipment, recruiting and all the fringe expenses of the game, without spending a lot of money. And if football didn't exist, where would the coaches be?

I know as well as former Coach Blaik does that a coach is seldom better than his material. But to get material is a coach's job. If he can't get it, then he doesn't have a prayer to be a successful coach, and should switch into some less risky business.

I'd never suggest writing a newspaper column, however. Recruiting ideas is even tougher than recruiting 212-pound tackles.

Movies To Hold You Smellbound

AromaRama And Smell-O-Vision Are Manipulation Through The Nose

By WARD CANNEL
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (NEA) — First came the silent movies. Then talkies. And now come two that smell.

They're done by AromaRama and Smell - O-Vision — electronically, chemically and psychologically perfected means of adding scent to the scene as the film rolls along.

But before the little jokes and big ad campaigns begin to build box office for these smell movies, listen carefully to the words of Sidney Kaufman, film authority — and now an aromatic entertainment expoert:

"This is a lot more than a gimmick to get overentertained audiences into a movie house.

"This science of scents and toned air is a new weapon in the arsenal of communications. It is a way to reach people where they have no defense. It is munipulation through the nose. And it's been under experimentation for a long, long time."

In the movie industry it works this way:

An added track on the film cues a battery of scent - filled containers to what's coming up on the screen (a torch, a tigery a villain, a, garden, a wharf). At the appropriate moment, depending on the small system, the appropriate container injects a spray of scented vapor into the air.

In Smell - O-Vision it is a quarter-million dollar system of pipes under the seats. In AromaRama it is a $75,000 hitch - hike on the existing ventilating system, with an electronic filter to denude the air of the last scent.

It works so well, AromaRama's producers say, that your eyes, ears and nose can go from a what field to a dock to a boudoir in less than three minutes.

And it works so intimately, the Smell-O-Vision people say, that with the right promotion they could forget entirely about the picture and still fill their theaters by holding audiences smellbound.

To the casual movie - goer, it is not a bad idea. But to the home - dweller, office - worker and consumer it is something else again.

"The science of arom ," expert Kaufman said, "is a..eady at work in offices and markets.

"We know how far we can raise people's moods by injecting pure oxone into the air and then change those moods quickly by toning the air differently.

"Many auto dealers, who known that the smell of a new car can help sell a new car, call on aromatics to give their cars that old-fashioned new smell which has been lost for years because synthetics have replaced the old leather, fabrics, wood and wax."

From what Kaufman says, it should not be long before homes use similar aromatics in their air conditioning systems. And so, bringing the boss home to dinner will mean not only the best silver, crystal and recipe, but a flacon like "A Night In The Treasury" for the odorizer.

"There is hardly any defense against an assault on the olfactory nerve," Kaufman said.

"We are all animals before we are intellectuals. And while we can screen or translate what we hear, see or touch, we take directly what we smell and tie it directly to our memories.

"Mass experiments in movie houses have demonstrated this.

'El Paso' Is Week's Top Tune

The RECORD SHOP

CHICAGO (UPI)—Marty Robbins, Toni Fisher and Frankie Avalon sent their recordings to the first three spots in this week's United Press International Top 20 songs.

The trio, whose respective tunes "El Paso," "The Big Hurt" and "Why" lagged behind in previous weeks, suddenly climbed into the winner's circle while other favorites fell sharply.

"El Paso," although well-placed for three weeks, failed to make the list last week. "The Big Hurt" was in seventh place last week and "Why" was in the 18th position before its meteoric jump.

Della Reece's "Don't You Know," second last week, fell out of the Top 20 and "Mack the Knife" dropped out of first place to sixth.

Both "Way Down Yonder in New Orleans" and "Heartaches by the Numbers" finished ahead of "Mack the Knife," in fourth and fifth places respectively.

The Top 20 were (numbers in parentheses show position this week, position last week, and numbers of weeks in the Top 20)

Home Movie Buffs Have A New Plaything

United Press International

Zoom! . . . . Power . . . .

Those are the fashionable words among home movie makers these days.

A flock of new 8 mm. cameras appeared in photo shops in recent days with so - called zoom lenses. Neither the lenses, the cameras nor the users "move with a loud but low hum or buzz," as Webster defines "zoom" but there is much verbal buzzing in amateur cine circles about the merits and demerits of using variable focal length lenses.

Newest and fanciest of the zoom-lens cameras is the Revere power-zoom. This small handful of mechanical wizardry boasts not only a variable focal length lens and automatic exposure control but also push-button automatic operation of the lens through its full range from wide angle to telephoto closeup coverage.

Does this mean automatically good movies will roll out of the power - zoom? Not at all, any more than power steering on a car means automatic good riving. Brainpower still is needed for quality results with any camera.

Willpower must be exercised, too, by the new user of a power-zoom camera. It's so easy to push the button and get a smoothly-changing image, from distant view to closeup or vice versa, that many users are bound to over-use the new device at first.

The result, if combined with the beginner's usual weakness for swiveling the camera about as if spraying water from a garden hose, may produce some of the dizziest viewers who ever looked at a home movie screen.

"blue denim"—a motion picture that faces the facts of youth!

It searches the hearts and youth of a boy and girl who gave in to their feelings...and found they had put themselves in a straitjacket for the rest of their lives.

It probes the plight of unwed mothers...exposing it frankly, yet with utmost compassion.

It looks at the parents, too...who are too busy to listen...

But "blue denim" goes even beyond this...

Into the back street solutions teenagers find for themselves...when the only way out is to find someone who "helps girls in trouble"
