Lindbergh Reaches Capital After Two-Day Battle With Fogs

BETROTHED ACE ANNOUNCES HIS FLYING PLANS

'Lone Eagle' to Fly Across Continent on Latest Air-Rail Line

OKLAHOMA ON ROUTE

Lindbergh Silent on Rumors Of Cabinet Job and His Engagement

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. (US)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh landed at Bolling field this afternoon after completing his most hazardous flight since the memorable New York to Paris hop.

For the last two days nation-wide anxiety has followed the cloud viking since he left Miami Friday morning.

Lindbergh landed in the capital's airport at 3:30 this afternoon and soon after was telling newspapermen about his plans for continuing his trip to New York tomorrow morning and then making a cross-country flight in the next few days which will take him to Los Angeles and San Francisco in connection with the new coast to coast plane and train route.

Fog Forces Landing

This morning Colonel Lindbergh hopped off from the coast guard station at Hatteras Inlet where he had been forced down by the impenetrable curtain of fog which shrouded the coast between there and Washington. On the way up he made one stop at Langley for fuel and was reported off from that station at 2:20 this afternoon.

Promptly at 3:25 two tiny specks were seen in the air. With a rush and a roar they grew larger and swooped down on the field where they made a perfect landing at the far western end of the plain. The huge crowd of spectators and news photographers remained uncertain where the planes would finally go. One of the two taxied up the field and Col. C. E. Culver of Langley field, who had escorted the "flying colonel" for the last lap of his jaunt leaped out.

Fame for Picture

Soon after that "Lindy" also taxied down in front of the barracks and brought his blue and gold Curtis Falcon to a stop. Obediently he climbed out of the cock pit and posed for photographers while Sergeant J. G. Moran took his plane away to the hangar.

"Slim" Lindbergh, as his flying comrades prefer to call him will rest tonight at Washington. In his own words he announced his plans to newspapermen at the home of Captain Dingle.

Route Over Oklahoma

"I am going to New York tomorrow on business. I intend to stay there perhaps a day or two and then I intend to leave for an inspection tour to the west coast in connection with the forthcoming inauguration of the coast to coast transportation system of the Transcontinental Air transport.

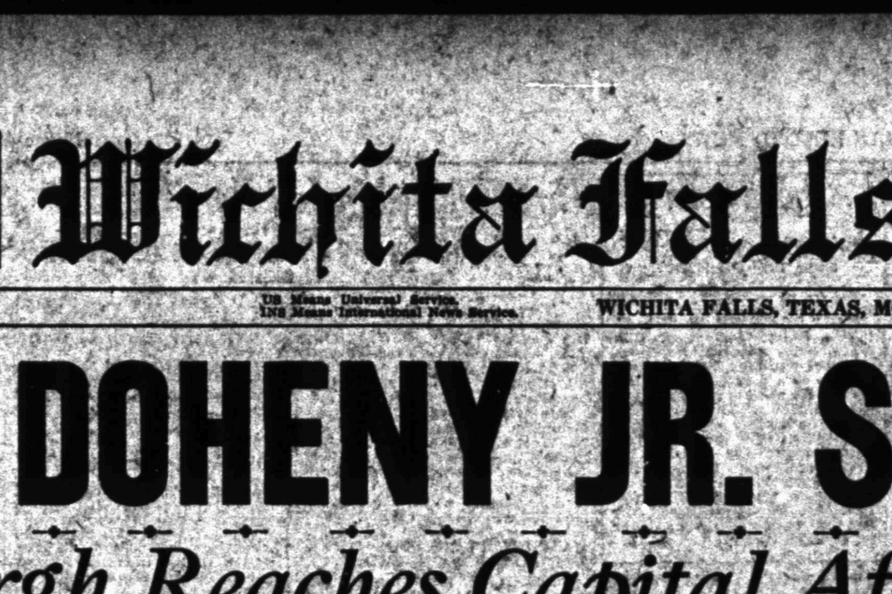

"My route west shall be over the following cities, although I cannot state whether I shall be able to stop over in all of them: Columbus, Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Wichita, Weynoka, Okla.; Clovis, N. M., Albuquerque, Winslow, Ariz.; Kingman, Los Angeles and perhaps San Francisco."

Looking bronzed and fit, Lindbergh pleasantly answered all questions but when some one asked him about his engagement to Anne Morrow, the daughter of the American ambassador to Mexico, he resolutely declined to answer and intimated that such questionings would terminate the interview. His reticence was equally marked when he was asked if he would accept a post as aviation under secretary in the cabinet.

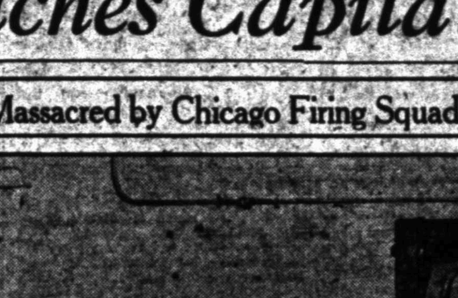

Hambone's Meditations

Seven Massacred by Chicago Firing Squad

There was, one may suppose, a sharp military command: "Stand to the wall!"

The victims complied.

"Ready! Aim! Fire!"

Then the crash of exploding shot guns and the rattle of machine guns.

A moment of silence.

Long range weapons are held aside, for pistols. The executioners step forward. Pistols are poked close to the heads of the fallen ones. In the "coup de grace" that dashes out the last sparks of life.

Seven members of the "Bugs" Moran gang of Chicago, trapped in a garage by rival gangsters, who represented themselves as policemen, were shot to death. None of the slain men was armed. Upper picture, the victims. Lower right, crowd outside garage and lower left, Herman N. Bundesen, coroner, who made an investigation.

'Lay Low', Is Whispered Word Going Around Chicago as Cops Hunt Killers

By WILEY S. SCRIBNER

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (US)—Whether the summary execution of seven men by a firing squad of gangsters will result in a serious movement to stamp out crime in Chicago remained an open question tonight.

On the surface the authorities were busy, encouraging statements and promises were issued frequently.

Underneath gangland passed this word along:

"Lay low for a while till this mess blows over. Everything will be all right in a couple of days."

Heretofore gangland has spoken correctly. After a crash of machine guns and flow of blood gangsters would take it easy. Some would go to pleasure resorts for a few weeks until it was safe to renew operations.

The one outstanding figure in the present demand for bringing to a sharp stop the city's shocking crime record is State's Attorney John A. Swanson. He has just assumed office. Before his election he promised to gamp out crime.

After the seven gangsters had been lined up and shot to death in a garage office last Thursday, Mr. Swanson issued an ultimatum to the police. He told the police they would be prosecuted if they failed to enforce the law. The police got busy.

Word went out to saloons and gambling establishments to stop selling liquor and close up. The order was partially obeyed. A few score beer flats and small gambling places have been raided during the last 24 hours and some 400 arrests made.

But the big gangsters, who drove a police squad car and played automatic pistols and machine guns on the seven rival gangsters are still at liberty.

MOODY TO PUSH PRISON PLANS

Governor to Appear Today At Joint Session

AUSTIN, Feb. 17. (AP)—Governor Moody likely will appear before a joint session of the legislature tomorrow to advocate prison centralization and consentration legislation and to urge submission of the constitutional amendment for issuance of state bonds to build highways.

He has been working on the message for a week and said he would present these matters prior to action on the penitentiary legislation and highway bond plan so this recommendation would be "fresh in the minds" of the legislators while they are considering these matters.

Both the highway bond issue amendment resolution and penitentiary reformation bills have been set for special order in the senate tomorrow.

The house probably will consider the penitentiary bill of Representative Young, proposing concentration of the system on the seven farms south of Houston with central headquarters on the Darrington farm.

The house anti-evolution bill of the Rev. Harper of Mount Pleasant may be brought up tomorrow, also, assuring the house of a hectic day.

Tuesday the senate has scheduled two more of the big bills of the session, the public utilities control legislation and a measure seeking to authorize political party state committees to determine who shall be members of the party and who may seek its nominations.

Court Holds Pecos Woman Sane When $20,000,000 Lease Was Made

EL PASO, Feb. 17. (AP)—Oil leases in Pecos county, Texas, claimed to be valued at $20,000,000 and held by the Roxana Petroleum corporation on lands owned by Mrs. M. A. Monroe-Smith were adjudged valid by federal judge Charles A. Boynton here yesterday.

The court held Mrs. Smith was sane at the time she leased her 21,999 acre ranch adjoining the Yates oil pool to the Roxana interests.

"Mrs. Smith may not possess knowledge of art, literature and history beyond the domain over which she has traveled, but she has a sound business acumen and mental capacity for understanding the nature of leases she has entered into," Judge Boynton said in handing down his decision.

The court also pointed out that by her business judgment Mrs. Smith had risen from poverty to riches.

After the leasing of the land, the seven children of Mrs. Smith brought suit in the state courts to have her adjudged mentally incompetent and therefore have the leases declared invalid. Attorneys for the children said after the decision that an appeal would be taken and indicated the case would be taken to the United States supreme court.

HOOVER TRAIN LEAVES TODAY

President - Elect Due In Washington Tuesday

BELLE ISLAND, Miami Beach Fla., Feb. 17. (UP)—President-elect Hoover faces several important decisions dealing with the opening of his administration upon his return to Washington this week.

Necessary final conferences relating to his cabinet and legislative matters to come up at the extra session, as well as the controversy now up over repeal of the national origins immigration act, are responsible for his unprecedented entry upon the Washington scene so far in advance of the inauguration date.

The president elect and Mrs. Hoover will leave here tomorrow morning at 10:30 on a special train due to arrive in the capital at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon, which will give Mr. Hoover nearly two weeks in Washington before he take the oath of office March 4.

HORSE RACING BILL OPPOSED BY CHURCHES

Wichita Religious Bodies To Forward Telegram To Solons Today

GAMBLING RAPPED

Measure Would Legalize Bets, Says Pastors Who Present Question

Several thousand residents of Wichita county pledged themselves Sunday morning at various church services to go on record by wire to Austin by noon Monday as strongly opposing passage of a proposed bill assertedly legalizing horse race betting in Texas, according to reports given by leaders in the local opposition to the measure.

The bill is sponsored by the Association of Texas fairs, comprising practically all county and regional fairs in the state. It would legalize bets up to $5.

Bush Discusses Bill

More than 500 persons at the Grant Street Methodist church, about 1,050 at the First Methodist church, more than 200 in a union meeting Sunday morning at Burkburnett, voted unanimously to wire resolutions of condemnation of the bill to Austin. Other congregations were reported to have taken similiar action. Dr. Floyd Allen Bash, pastor of the First Christian church, discussed the matter before the congregation of that church, and said:

"I think that it is our Christian, as well as our political duty, to keep in touch with such developments. We should be intelligent and actively Christian in our attitude toward such proposals, and definitely register our position."

Introduced by Avis

The bill was introduced in the house several weeks ago by J. D. Avis, representative from this district, it was said. It proposes to legalize small bets, the major portion of the clearings going to the state, those opposing it claimed. The committee on state affairs, to which the measure was referred, was said to have reported the bill favorably for consideration of the house Monday.

SOUTH TEXAS FAIRS FAVOR MEASURE

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 17 (AP)—Endorsing the horse racing bill now before the legislature, the South Texas fairs racing circuit at its annual spring meeting today adopted a resolution asking every member of the legislature to vote for the measure.

"Passage of this bill will go a long way toward helping horse racing in the 17 cities composing the South Texas fairs circuit," said Secretary G. J. Kemplin.

MEETING ON BILL LAID TO NORRIS

AUSTIN, Feb. 17. (AP)—The house of representatives may find itself face to face with the so-called "horse racing" bill and the measure by Representative Dunlap, legalizing Sunday moving picture shows, tomorrow.

A resolution of Representative Duvall proposing that a public hearing on the racing bill be held Monday precipitated the house into a tantrum when it was charged that the Rev. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth was instigator of the move.

Rev. Mr. Norris has announced a meeting in a local hotel for tomorrow night.

Frail Bride Stabs Hubby But She Hopes He'll Live

Nephew of Chicago Gambling Chieftain May Die as Result Of Butcher Knife Attack

CHICAGO, Feb. 17 (US)—Enraged when her young husband insisted on reading instead of going to bed, the seven-months bride of Monte Tennes, 26, stabbed him with a butcher knife, perhaps fatally, early today.

Young Tennes is a nephew of his namesake, who heads a wide-flung gambling syndicate here.

"I don't want him to die," sobbed the young wife, Helen, who is 19 and weighs but 90 pounds. She begged Monte hysterically to forgive her.

After refusing for hours to admit that she had stabbed him, Tennes admitted the deed after being shown her signed statement as he lay critically wounded in a hospital.

"She did it, but she was hysterical. I don't want her prosecuted or anything."

The Tennes' had returned from a party, where they were reported to have quarreled all evening. When they reached home she insisted that Tennes retire, whereas he refused, saying he wanted to read. Frantic with rage, the girl stabbed her husband with a long butcher knife she had seised in the kitchen, puncturing his lung.

Young Tennes, who had inherited a fortune from his father, the late Joseph Tennes, is an operator for the Monte Tennes race betting syndicate.

Gene Tunney Smashes Jawbone Of Photographer Who Shadows 'Polly'

Promenading Retired Fisticuffer Resorts to Natural Ring Tactics to Chastise Picture Taker

CANNES, France, Feb. 17. (US)—Gene Tunney, out walking on the promenade here this afternoon with Mrs. Tunney, had an encounter with a French photographer which ended disastrously for the camera man. Gene was highly indignant when the photographer kept insisting on taking pictures of the famous couple during their stroll.

When he refused to heed Tunney's warning and was getting his camera in position for action, the world heavyweight champion gave him a wallop which knocked him down. The champion then calmly escorted "Polly" from the scene.

The Tunneys are week-end guests of Dr. Caines Weeks, of Cedarhurst, N. J., here, and late this evening went to the baccarat rooms at casino. Polly wore a black chiffon gown fastened at the side with a diamond buckle. She also wore a beautiful mink coat.

30-Degree Drop Forecast For North Texas

There seemed nothing to do about it, so Wichitans were just stiff-jawed and stoical Sunday night when informed by the weather man that another cold wave, this time bringing in its wake a 30 degree drop in temperature in one day was headed in this direction.

Probably there would not have been so much gritting of teeth had Sunday not been such a beautiful and spring-like day.

The report of the New Orleans weather bureau said that Monday, in the north portion of Texas, would be a cloudy and much colder day, with a 30 degree drop in temperature, and that Tuesday would be "fair." Whether that "fair" day will also be "cold," or "colder," was not indicated.

SECRETARY OF YOUNG TYCOON KILLS HIMSELF

Long Trusted Assistant Murders Employer During Insane Rage

MYSTERY PERSISTS

Possession of Gun and Call To Doctor Not as Yet Fully Explained

BY HARRY J. LANG
Universal Service Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 17.—Edward Laurence Doheny Jr., only son of the multi-millionaire oil king, was murdered just before midnight Saturday by the man he had trusted for 16 years—Theodore Hugh Plunkett, his confidential secretary.

And with a second bullet from the .45-calibre gun that had snuffed out the young millionaire's life, Plunkett tore out his own soul and fell dead a few feet from the body of his millionaire employer.

The double tragedy was done in a guest bedroom and hallway of the new $1,000,000 Doheny mansion in Beverly Hills, at the very moment that Doheny's terrified wife was admitting the family physician who had been hastily called to quell Plunkett's murderous frenzy.

Insanity Blamed

And for that murderous frenzy, the family and the doctor and officials today had but one explanation—that Plunkett, harassed by illness and the weight of his work, had culminated six week of nervous breakdown by going suddenly insane—"completely off," the family doctor who had treated him phrased it—and slain his employer and himself in a fit of mad resentment over Doheny's insistence that Plunkett go to a hospital for treatment.

There remained, however, some fog of mystery—

Why, for instance, did Plunkett return with a loaded .45 calibre pistol to the Doheny mansion, after he had left the place apparently mollified several hours before?

Doctor Was Called

What, too, lay behind the uncanny prescience of young Doheny—the premonition that made him call his family doctor at 7 o'clock on the evening of the tragedy, and ask the physician to remain within call in case Plunkett came back?

And what was the colloquy that took place between Doheny and Plunkett in the moments that just preceded the double shooting?

These are questions that may never be answered—although today, the full forces of district attorney's office under the personal direction of District Attorney Buron Fitts; of the sheriff's office under Cap. William Bright of the homicide detail; and of the Beverly Hills police department were concentrated on an investigation that was to take in every phase of the secretary's life and his relations with his employer.

Bodies In Morgue

In the meantime, the bodies of Doheny and Plunkett—both of them men of fine appearance, in the prime of life—lay side-by-side in a mortuary in Beverly Hills, where they had been taken at the order of Coroner Nance.

And in the Doheny home, surrounded by every luxury that wealth might buy, stricken ones were plumbing the blackest depths by human emotion—

Mrs. Doheny Jr.—the widow of the murdered millionaire, herself a leader in the nation's society—lay in a state of collapse, her suffering mercifully eased by the ministrations of physicians.

Elder Doheny Grieved

And even more deeply showing the shock of the tragedy he had suffered—Edward Laurence Doheny himself, multi-millionaire king of the oil world. A man 72 years old, just retired a few months ago from active life in the realization that he had a son who could carry on, Doheny had been awakened from a sound sleep in his own home nearby to hear the awful news that that son had just been done to death.

He came staggering into his son's home like a ghost, a half hour later. Hardly able to walk, utterly unable to talk, he crept up the stairway and into the room where his daughter-in-law was being cared for. There he collapsed. And late today, this aged man of millions who had seen the dearest thing in his life suddenly snatched away lay in a critical condition in his murdered son's home.

Of the five children of the slain man, several are too young to realise the full import of the tragedy that has come upon the home.

Wichita's Nine-Year-Old Ebon Jazz King, Melvin, Goes to Reformatory

J. A. McDonald, county juvenile officer, will take four youthful offenders to the state training school for boys Tuesday. Two of the number were sentenced by Judge W. W. Cook in the 78th district court Saturday, one for burglary and the other for habitual wandering about the streets late at night. The other two, both 15-year-old white boys, were sentenced last week, one for burglary and the other for car theft. In all cases the boys were repeated offenders.

The journey to Gatesville will put a temporary end to the wanderings of young Melvin, nine-year-old negro boy, whose roving tendencies have been troubling his parents and inconveniencing city, county and precinct officers for many months.

Melvin is by nature a troubador. He isn't very big, even for a nine-year-old darkey, and his feet are as nimble as his grin is broad. It has been his custom for months to rove the streets by day and by night, stopping occasionally to do the black bottom for white folks or try his own original jig step. His mother and father are constantly at work and even when they are at home, Melvin finds his own means of escape, Mr. McDonald says. The young wanderer has so far gotten into no more serious trouble than that occasioned by being picked up off the streets at 2 o'clock in the morning and led reluctantly home. Warnings and punishments have availed nothing against his restless feet. Melvin is just not a home boy.

When the youngster was finally sentenced to Gatesville his mother told Mr. McDonald that she would try to manage to leave her work and stay at home to take care of him. Whenever such an arrangement is completed the juvenile officer has promised to request Judge Cook to recall the boy from the school.

I Saw It Myself

By C. W. ROGERS
Record News Staff Correspondent

Walters, Okla., Saturday night.

Well, as Will says, all I know is what I read in the papers and what I see while galloping around the county.

Read a lot about Cotton county, Oklahoma, but must have skipped some of the most important lines. Been romping around this county more'n a week and an inherited Missouri disposition hasn't yet been satisfied.

◇ ◇ ◇

Saw more'n 200 pedigreed hogs down on Perry Campbell's ranch below Temple, another ranch which raised Shetland ponies for marketing and a shipment of live New Zealand rabbits, grown in Cotton county, being started on their way to New York to feed the Manhattan epicures. Man said the rabbits fetched 18 cents a pound f. o. b. Temple. Cotton is not the only product of Cotton county.

◇ ◇ ◇

Saturday was a big day in Walters. Predicted cold spell made a sudden detour and many farmers came to town. Opening of Witt's new grocery, billed like a circus, only more so, in the county paper, brought many. C. D. Chambers is manager. Farmers and wives were buying freely of necessities and some of luxuries.

Times never get too hard to have the baby's picture made. Photographer Tom Christian was busy all day long.

◇ ◇ ◇

Tony Morris, in his job as organizer of the Oklahoma League of Young Democrats, was stepping lively rounding up the youngsters for the big meeting to be held at the court house Monday night. Runners are to be picked to go to the big state pow wow of the young Democrats at Altus next Saturday. What kind of medicine they are going to mix is unknown. Maybeso pizen for political bad actors.

◇ ◇ ◇

Lawyers around court house square look pleased. Civil district court convenes next Monday, the docket is a long one and fat fees are in prospect. Court is expected to last two weeks. Judge E. L. Richardson will come down from Lawton to preside.

◇ ◇ ◇

Walters barbers have been worked to a frazzle since the cruel war started a few weeks back, when the price of haircuts was reduced to 25 cents. One shop cut loose with a Big Bertha in the way of free tickets to a movie show with every haircut. It is rumored that the order to cease firing may come at any time and an armistice declared.

◇ ◇ ◇

Saw my old tillicum Alec Rose, Wichita Falls box fight and hugging bee promoter, taking tickets in front of a Walters theater tonight. Sign on the outside said "KGKO Radio Minstrels." Noise on the inside sounded like big doings going on. Alec said slip in and see the show. It was a plumb good one. George Hodgins, who used to be police chief of Wichita Falls, was disguised as a minstrel man. Effectively. Didn't recognize him at first. Honey Boy and Sassafras knocked 'em over with their foolishment. Ballyhoo band went out and played "Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight" for the last show. Drew a gate that made it the end of a perfect day for the minstrel men.

◇ ◇ ◇

Whizzed down to Temple and back to Walters today. Temple is 10 miles from Walters by dirt road. Population given at 900 in railroad guide. Must have been more than that many farmers in town trading. Never saw such a busy town of 900.

◇ ◇ ◇

The big show in Temple is a department store that has an annual turnover of more than $2,000,000.

It was started by two young men who left the farm with $500 to go into merchandising, according to local tradition.

They are still at it, on the job, in person, all over the store. After meeting them it requires only one guess to account for their success. You get a handshake that isn't made to order. They are charter members of the Don't Worry club. Their time is at your disposal—they leave details of the business to others. They anticipate your wishes and see that you have every attention desired.

They are called "Otho" and "Bob," these Mooney brothers, by their thousands of personal friends. Oklahomans are like Texans, that way. You can bet on the man who calls you by your first name to your face.

More about the B. & O. later.

The second wonder of Temple is the postoffice. Other five include large number of pretty babies, well dressed women, splendid brick high school plant with nine teachers having AB. and BS. degrees, put of a faculty of 15; a restaurant that serves a dinner of hog and hominy, corn bread and buttermilk and good old turnip greens guaranteed to revive the most jaded appetite; a lady linotype operator who sets galley after galley of "ok" type.

Postoffice has regular city fixtures. Only four others in its class in town of 900 in United States. Postmaster Etzold took in more than $12,000 last year.

Couldn't pass the town newspaper office without stopping to inhale a little of the odor of printers ink, than which there is none sweeter among the perfumes of Araby. Par parenthese, that's the opinion of every one who has experienced the life of a country editor or printer. The Temple Tribune plant, however, bears small resemblance to the country plant of old, in which printers and devils handspiked the type, floor covered with paper ankle deep, presses powered by husky youths instead of the "juice" of these days.

The Tribune was founded by E. G. Etzold, Temple's present postmaster. It is now conducted by Charles F. Luja. Mr. Luja writes the heavy editorials, sets the ads, makes up the paper, and runs the presses, while Mrs. Luja operates the linotype. The paper is one of the cleanest printed, best in appearance typographically, in Oklahoma—and Oklahoma has some good ones. The Tribune is the ideal plant that every city printer dreams of owning some day—just the right business volume to insure contentment, not enough to cause worry.

Card in every store in Temple bears the declaration: "Temple, the Farmer's Town; Let's All Boost for Temple."

◇ ◇ ◇

All right; "hooray for Temple!"

E. L. DOHENY JR. SHOT TO DEATH

Secretary Turns Gun On Himself After Murder

There is little Tim, who is only 2; there is Pat, 5, and Billy, 9. Then there are Edward Laurence Doheny 3rd, 10 years old, and 14-year-old Lucye Estelle. These, like their mother and the other members of the family, were immolated today in the stricken home, safe behind the vigilant watch of a score or more of guards who patrolled the vast Doheny grounds, and protected every approach to the $1,000,000 house that had been completed less than a half year.

The story of the tragedy begins, perhaps, about a year ago—as those closest to it told it today.

Secretary Stricken

It was then that Plunkett, for 16 years a trusted employe of young Doheny and his father, began to crack under the strain of his work. For years, Plunkett had been employed by the elder Doheny in his oil business, and more subsequently, for years as young Doheny's confidential secretary. In that capacity, he had been at his employer's side all through the Teapot Dome litigation.

At any rate, Plunkett became highly nervous. He was a man of about 33 years—divorced several years ago; childless; living apart from his own parents and brother and sister. He had an apartment not far from the Doheny home.

Dr. E. C. Fishbaugh, the Doheny family physician, was asked by Plunkett's employer to look after the secretary.

"I had been treating him for about a year," Dr. Fishbaugh narrated today. "He was intensely nervous, and recently a boil—an infection on his head—added to his irritability."

Around Christmas time, Plunkett suffered a complete breakdown, and lay for three weeks a patient in Doheny's home. In fact, he was more like a member of the Doheny household than an employe.

"Since then, he has been very nervous—but never irrational," Dr. Fisbaugh went on. However, Doheny several times asked the physician to pay particular attention to Plunkett, "never before, however, has there been any indication of violence on Plunkett's part, nor any threat toward Doheny," said the doctor today.

Doctor Answers Call

At any rate, Saturday afternoon, about 5 o'clock, Dr. Fishbaugh went in response to a call to the Doheny home. There he and Mr. and Mrs. Doheny reasoned with Plunkett about the man's condition.

Doheny and the physician urged him to go to a hospital or to a sanitarium for a complete rest, that he might recover from his nervousness, the doctor said later. But Plunkett refused.

"I'll be all right," he answered his employer and the physician. "I don't need to go to any hospital."

The conference ended in the simultaneous departure of Dr. Fishbaugh and Plunkett—Dr. Fishbaugh returning to his own home, and Plunkett leaving in his own car for his apartment.

At 7 o'clock, Dr. Fishbaugh's phone again rang, and Doheny was at the other end.

No Reason Given

"Doctor," the young millionaire asked, "I wish you'd come over in case Plunkett comes back again this evening. Won't you please leave word where you'll be, so I can call you?"

The physician says Doheny gave no particular reason, and Dr. Fishbaugh assumed it was Doheny's interest in the secretary's well-being that prompted his request. At any rate, when Dr. Fishbaugh later went to the Hollywood playhouse, to attend the show, he left word with his maid and with the theater box-office.

At the Doheny home, the usual routine of evening must have gone on until about 10 o'clock, when Plunkett suddenly reappeared. He was evidently in a highly nervous and excited condition, for Doheny immediately called the physician's home.

"Please ask Dr. Fishbaugh to come over at once—it's an emergency call," Doheny's voice told the physician's maid. She immediately called the theater, and Dr. Fishbaugh was notified. He sped to the millionaire's mansion.

Children Upstairs

At the door, Mrs. Doheny met him. The children were all upstairs.

"They're in the bedroom, back there," Mrs. Doheny told the doctor. She pointed toward a hallway that led from the main living room of the home, on the ground floor, toward a sunroom and guest bedroom. Dr. Fishbaugh started toward the hall.

Plunkett appeared at that moment. The man was in a terrific nervous condition, the doctor said.

"I didn't see whether or not he had a gun—I wasn't looking for such a thing; had no reason to," explained the physician later. "As soon as he saw Mrs. Doheny and me, Plunkett shouted, 'don't you come in here' and turned back toward the bedroom.

"As he did, a connecting door closed—either Plunkett pulled it shut behind him, or a draft closed it. I started to follow, and it was at that moment that I heard the crash of a pistol.

"I rushed through the door, Mrs. Doheny with me. In there, we found them—"

Death Instantaneous

Plunkett lay outstretched, face down across the threshold of the bedroom door, his head resting on an arm which lay across the death gun. A bullet hole through his head had taken life instantaneously.

Inside the room, beside an overturned chair at the foot of one of a pair of twin beds, lay Doheny, dead. There was a bullet hole clear through his head, from one temple to the other. Later, they found the soft-nosed lead bullet that had killed him embedded in the east wall of the bedroom.

From the position of the millionaire's body, it appeared he had been shot through the temple while he sat in the chair at the end of the bed. In falling, his body must have toppled the chair, too.

Dr. Fishbaugh heard but the one shot. Mrs. Doheny, he said, had heard no previous shot.

One Shot Kills Oil Man

The house is a large one. Reconstructing the tragedy, officials believe Plunkett must have killed Doheny with a single shot before Dr. Fishbaugh entered the house and before Mrs. Doheny had come downstairs to admit the doctor.

Whether Plunkett was trying to escape when he encountered Dr. Fishbaugh is a question that only conjecture can answer. At any rate, seeing the doctor, and trapped in the hallway that led to the murder room, the secretary took final refuge in suicide.

Plunkett had not been there many minutes before the doctor's arrival. The nature of the conversation that took place in the bedroom between the millionaire and the crazy secretary will always remain a mystery, for there was no one to hear but the two men who are dead.

Pair Good Friends

It may be that Plunkett came there to end his own life and that Doheny tried to take away his gun.

"They were more like friends than employer and employe," said Dr. Fishbaugh. "Doheny always treated Plunkett with the greatest kindness and consideration."

Later, Plunkett's father, Charles A. Plunkett, corroborated this.

"They were like pals, my son and Mr. Doheny," said the father. "They had spent many, many years together. I last saw my son around Christmas—when he was ill at the Doheny home. He did not wait to entirely recover from his breakdown before he plunged back into work. His mind must have broken, that is all I can say."

When Mrs. Doheny rushed into the murder room with Dr. Fishbaugh, after the shot, she swooned. She was carried upstairs, where Dr. Fishbaugh administered what relief he could.

At once, the elder Doheny, living nearby, was notified. The police were called. The district attorney and sheriff's offices were telephoned too.

Officials Appear

Within a short time, District Attorney Fitts himself was on the scene. More than a score of detectives, police, identification experts, others, swarmed into the house. Mrs. Doheny, Doheny senior and the others in the family were kept guarded upstairs. They were not in condition to be harassed by questions. Dr. Fishbaugh told the story to the investigators.

Coroner Nance, notified, finally gave orders for the removal of the bodies to the mortuary, after the detectives had photographed them and the room as it appeared.

Neither of the twin beds in the room had been disordered. Apparently, Doheny had gone into the room with Plunkett when the secretary came to the house in the late evening. They were there, it is supposed, that their talking might not disturb those sleeping upstairs. In that secret parley, there arose whatever inflamed the secretary to his murder-pitch and the help he had called came too late to save the young millionaire.

Doheny was ready for bed when Plunkett came, for he was attired only in a silk nightgown, and a light silk dressing gown when his body was found. Plunkett was fully dressed.

Intoxicated Citizen Jailed When Asks Police To Find 'Roll'

Fearing that he had been robbed of his bankroll, a man walked himself into the city jail Sunday afternoon when he strolled into police headquarters to report his supposed robbery to R. M. Hurst, day sergeant.

It took the police little time to locate the man's money which was resting safely in his pocket. Deciding that a man who was too drunk to find his own money in his own pocket was too drunk to be cavorting about the streets the police gave him a cell to sober up in and a safe place for his money.

The man's "roll" consisted of $125 in cash and about $1,000 in travelers checks, Sergeant Hurst asserted. He was released under bond later Sunday afternoon.

Musical Comedy At Olympic Appeals

By The Record News Critic

If there are any folks at the Olympic Monday night to see "Nesting Time" presented by the Blue Ribbon Girls musical comedy company, it will mean that Wichita Falls has thousands who like that sort of entertainment, for it looked like most of the show goers in the city were there Sunday.

Four performances were given, each to a packed house, with part of the standing room occupied. The bill presents a variety of entertainment, the specialties including a male quartet in some pleasing nonsense, clever dancing turns, and a number of spotlight solos which drew a hand. Abe Greer clowned his way into popularity on his first local appearance.

The opening performance of the new company afforded its hearers considerable freedom from too deeply colored humor which sometimes predominates entertainment classed as a musical comedy. The chorus, with seven in the line, justifies more frequent appearance than were given in "Nesting Time."

WRITER'S SON IS SELF-SLAIN

Greenwich Village Room Gas-Filled When Entered

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—Wallace Rogers, 18-year-old son of Bruce Rogers, economist and contributing editor of "The Nation," was found dead today in a Greenwich village apartment he shared with his father. Gas was flowing from three burners of a range and from a light jet. Police said he had committed suicide.

The father told police he and his son had an agreement that when one wished privacy, the other would stay elsewhere for the night. After dinner last night, he said, Wallace asked that he be left alone for the night and the father went to the apartment of Hartwell S. Shippey, on the floor below.

Fire Escape Mounted

Unable to gain entrance to the apartment this morning, the father told Shippey the door was secured. Shippey climbed the fire escape, from which he saw the boy's body in the bed. The two men then forced the door and an ambulance surgeon said the youth had been dead for several years.

The boy left no notes and the father told police his son never had spoken of suicide. He told police the boy was "high strung and neurasthenic," but could give no other reason for the suicide.

Writings Published

Wallace, whom Rogers described as "a serious youth, alternately in high spirits and in melancholy mood," had been interested in economics, the father said, and had written a number of economic tracts, nine of which had been published.

Some time ago he obtained a position as a proof reader with a publishing house, but resigned after four months because of poor health. Subsequently he had gone to work for a wood cutting firm in Greenwich village, in the hope that the work would benefit him.

Congress In Last Stretch

Solons Start Last Lap Of Work Today

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (AP)—In the crowded closing hours of the session, congress starts work tomorrow to wind up the Coolidge administration.

There is the navy department appropriation bill, carrying funds for starting the new cruiser program; the bill extending the life of the radio commission for another year; the measure for reapportionment of the house and a half a dozen important nominations demanding time of the final two weeks.

Prohibition Debate

But before all this gets under way the senate tomorrow will hear a revival of the prohibition debate which started Saturday in a scathing attack on the dry law by the retiring Senator Reed, of Missouri. Reed's attack aroused the dry champion, Senator Borah of Idaho, and the senate lifted the lid on debate to allow its two premier orators an opportunity to do battle tomorrow.

The bill of Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, increasing the maximum penalties for dry law violations to $10,000 fines and five years imprisonment or both is the vehicle for the prohibition oratory. The senate had agreed to restrict debate after 3 p. m. Saturday but, when the Missourian got into action in one of his fiery speeches, the senate did what it has rarely done before—waived the debate limitation. Borah, the dry, asked it. The lid goes on again tomorrow, however, at 4 p. m. and a vote on this bill then is in order.

Canal Bill

With the prohibition measure out of the way, the senate will turn to the resolution of Senator Edge, Republican, New Jersey, authorizing a survey of a Nicaraguan canal linking the Pacific and the Atlantic oceans. Then comes a bill fixing a marketing site for the District of Columbia.

On Tuesday, the senate will have its first night meeting of the session. It will take up then the bill of Senator Watson, Republican, Indiana, extending the radio commission for another year.

Hanging over also is the approach of a final report by an investigating committee on campaign expenditures of Senator-elect Vare, Republican, Pennsylvania. Reed, chairman of the committee, is anxious to get a final report to the senate before he retires March 4. One the basis of his preliminary report, the senate last year declined to administer the oath of office to Vare.

Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, is pressing for a vote on the bill reapportioning house membership on the basis of the 1930 census but threats of opposition make its future doubtful.

Nominations Await

Half a dozen Coolidge nominations also are hanging fire with the prospects growing dimmer each day for their approval. Unless they are confirmed before March 4 the nominations die. Among those awaiting consideration are the nominations of Cyril M. Jansky, of Minnesota, and Arthur Batcheller, of Massachusetts, to be members of the radio commission; Irvine Lenroot, former senator from Wisconsin, and Representative Finis Garrett, of Tennessee, the retiring Democratic leader in the house, to be members of the court of customs appeals; Henry Glassie, former Democratic member of the tariff commission, to be a judge on the District of Columbia supreme court, and Pat Neff, former governor of Texas, to be reappointed a member of the railway board of mediation.

Any Ambitious Girl Can Attain Three Essential Attributes

The Attributes that Set a Woman Above Her Sisters in the Eyes of Those About Her Are Beauty, Gentleness and Intelligence, and These Any Industrious Maiden Can Cultivate for Herself.

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR GIRLS

1.—BE PRETTY. If you have been blessed with a peaches-and-cream complexion, naturally wavy hair and a classic profile, thank heaven for its mercies, and preserve them. If you were passed over when good looks were handed out, get busy circumventing nature. Camouflage your defects, and turn the spotlight on your good points. Learn how to dress, which is nine-tenths of being easy on the eyes. Find out what lines and colors flatter you and stick to them.

Acquire the art of make-up. It is a virtue to suggest the bloom of roses on sallow cheeks and to give a warm glow to pale, thin lips, but it is a crime to daub your face up with color like a circus wagon, and to slap on lipstick until your mouth looks like a cut of raw beef in a butcher shop. Above all, be neat and well groomed. More attractive is a spick-and-span homely girl than a slovenly beauty who looks as if she needed to be run through the laundry.

2.—BE FEMININE. When God made both men and women He knew what He was about, and He implanted in our breasts some instinct that makes either one of them repulsive to us when he or she apes the characteristics of the other. Every one feels a contempt for the effeminate man and disgust for the mannish woman.

The prettiest girl in the world turns herself in to a scarecrow when she puts on breeches, because the feminine figure is not designed for pants. If she is fat she looks the shape of a turnip. If she is thin enough not to have any hips she appears to be an undernourished street gamin with tuberculosis. At best the girl who copycats men in her clothes and manners is but a poor imitation of the real thing that has neither allure nor worth.

When a girl casts aside her femininity, she has thrown away her one best bet, especially where men are concerned, for her sex is the thing with which a woman conjures. Every woman who has ever been a great vamp has had femininity raised to the 'nth power. She dressed like a woman, talked like a woman, and acted like a woman. Probably no man ever asked anything in trousers to marry him.

3.—BE SWEET. Be gentle in your judgments. Be tender and pitiful to old people and little children. Keep your faith in everything that is holy and beautiful. Hold on with both hands to your enthusiasms. Keep on believing in love and romance and that some day a fairy prince will come your way.

Don't get bitter because you have to stand behind the counter instead of buying chiffons over it. Don't let your self get hard-boiled and cynical. Don't make the mistake of thinking it is clever to be sophisticated and like Lady Kew's daughter, who was 40 years old and had heard all there was to tell.

Nobody admires that type of girl. The girl that we want about us, and that we go out of our way to do nice things for, is the sweet girl who is gentle and tender and loving, and whose starry eyes are still filled with the illusions of youth.

4.—BE AMIABLE. There is no other virtue in the world that pays such heavy dividends as amiability. If you are beautiful, your rivals will envy you and backbite you. If you are witty, people will laugh at your wisecracks, but they will avoid you because they are afraid of you, but good nature makes no enemies. It rouses no jealousies. It inspires no fears. Nobody ever tires of a good-natured girl. Everybody likes to have her around because she is so pleasant and agreeable, and every one plugs her game.

The high-tempered girl who is always going into hysterical rages, the catty girl who is always scratching at other girls, the ill-natured girl who is always saying mean things that hurt like dagger thrusts, the irritable girl whose fur has to always be smoothed the right way gets nowhere. It is the girl who wears the smile that won't come off, the girl who can laugh at misadventures, the girl who jollies us along and says the pleasant thing to us that we long to hear, who has hosts of friends and dates to burn, who can marry whom she pleases and who never figures in the divorce court.

5.—BE INTELLIGENT. Don't make the mistake of thinking that good looks is all the capital a woman needs to do business on in life. It isn't. True, beauty may get her a husband, but it won't keep him. She needs brains for that. No man can spend forty or fifty years gazing rapturously at a living picture. He is bound to grow tired of it in time. Besides which, living pictures deteriorate with time. Their colors fade, their outlines blur, so that what was once one of nature's masterpieces only too often turns into a chromo.

The woman who is beautiful but dumb is bound to lose out in a few years, but the woman who has intelligence grows more and more fascinating because she adds continually to her charms. She reads, she studies, she thinks, and so she becomes a companion of whom we never weary because she keeps us always interested.

Therefore, if you want to be a woman who will be just as much sought after when she is 50 as she is at 20, cultivate your mind. Make it a rule to learn something every day. Read the daily papers. Read magazines. Read books. That will teach you how to talk and how to listen intelligently.

It will do more to insure your popularity than dancing the Charleston, for it will save you from becoming that pest of society, the female bore who can do nothing but simper. It will be money in your pay envelope if you are in business. It will make your husband vamp-proof if you get one. And it will insure your own happiness, because no woman who can say "my mind to me a kingdom is" is ever helpless or lonely.

Remainder of series will appear on February 20.

Mrs. Oneal's Work As Club Leader Cited by Writer

By MRS. W. W. FRASER
President of the Travel Club.

Having been solicited by club women from all over the first district of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, Mrs. Ben G. Oneal, prominent club woman of Wichita Falls, has allowed her name to be placed in candidacy for the presidency of the first district, a division of the state federation which comprises 21 counties.

The decision on the part of Mrs. Oneal will bring added honor and credit to the already notable accomplishments of Wichita club circles.

Long Record of Service

Since coming to Wichita Falls Mrs. Oneal has been intimately connected with the club activities of the city. For 13 years she has been an earnest member of the Travel club, which club was first to sponsor the candidacy of Mrs. Oneal as district president.

Mrs. Oneal's identification with federation work came through her dramatic interest when she was president of the Players club in Wichita Falls, a dramatic organization sponsored by the Travel club. The work which the Players club was doing attracted the attention of federation leaders and Mrs. Oneal was made the first drama chairman of the newly created dramatic division of the first district of federated clubs. In this capacity she served four years. In the last three years she has given this up to assume the chairmanship of fine arts in the first district, a division that embraces not only drama, but the other arts as well.

State Activities

Her work as drama chairman being noteworthy, she is now holding the state drama chairmanship on the board of the State Federation of Women's clubs. The distinct accomplishment of this department under Mrs. Oneal's leadership is one never before attempted in federation circles—the compiling in book form of a volume of one act plays written by Texas writers. This book will be off the press this spring and will include the prize plays of the state federation contest by Mabie Ruth Strong, plays by Mrs. Oneal, Fritz G. Lanham, Norman H. Crowell, Mrs. W. R. Potter and other noteworthy plays contributed in the federation contest. The volume is expected to be an excellent contribution to dramatic work in Texas.

Mrs. Oneal's local club work has been outstanding. She was one of the organizers of the Woman's Forum and served as the first vice president. Later she served as chairman of the building committee when the Forum building was under construction. For the past two years she has served as president of the Woman's Forum.

Mrs. Hoover Faces Task Equal To That of Any Big Business Leader

By CORINNE RICH
Universal Service Writer

(This is the first of a series of five articles about Mrs. Herbert Hoover, the new "first lady.")

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17—As the wife of the 31st president of the United States, Mrs. Herbert Hoover will take up her residence after March 4 in the nation's most famous dwelling place and thereby become Uncle Sam's premier "home maker."

The managerial and social tasks that confront her as mistress of the White House are simply staggering.

She must be the head of a big business concern—for the White House is just that. She must accept and perform innumerable cut-and-dried social duties, serving as a sort of liaison officer between her distinguished husband and the rest of the country and the world. She must completely submerge her own private life and become for the next four years in truth a "servant of the people."

Perhaps there has never been a woman in the White House more eminently fitted by nature, personality and experience for this gigantic job.

Stanford Graduate

A graduate of Leland Stanford university, Mrs. Hoover has a maximum formal education. As the wife of Herbert Hoover, she has traveled over the world, gathering the culture and polish that only travel and contact with the world's highest-type citizens give. And as a long-time official resident of Washington, she is versed in the difficulties and outs of "hostessing."

While President-elect Hoover is solving the problem of cabinet making, Mrs. Hoover is making plans for her new home, a mansion with which she is already well acquainted.

Like any other house about to have a new occupant, the White House is undergoing a complete refurnishing. Carpets, rugs and curtains are being gone over and furniture repaired.

One wonders just what the inside of this great mansion that Mrs. Hoover will soon rule looks like anyway.

If you're a Washington visitor with the proper credentials, it isn't hard to get a peek at the whole suite of magnificent reception rooms on the ground floor and the rooms below housing the China and other relics of former administrations.

Too, if you've been to a state reception, you are acquainted with the celebrated East room with its crystal chandeliers, gold leaf trimmings and wonderful gold grand piano. You know what the Blue room, the Red room, the Green room and the State dining-room look like.

But only the very personal friends of the president or his wife ever get upstairs into the private living quarters. Ride one floor up on the new electric elevator and you find yourself in a long hall furnished with the old-fashioned horsehair sofas and chairs placed there, they say, by President Lincoln.

At the west end of this hall is the business-like office of the first lady's social secretary and back of it is the president's study with Mr. Coolidge's collection of autographed photographs and souvenirs cluttering desk and book shelves.

The private living-room is not far away, overlooking the lovely informal garden and lawns at the rear of the White House and across to the Potomac. This apartment is done in colonial furnishings—soft hangings, comfortable sofas, a grand piano, books, flowers and birds.

The oval room is the first lady's own little sanctum, decorated in cream and blue and rose and equipped with things like tea-services, things dear to a woman's heart. Her own particular friends come here for a chat.

Then there are the presidential bed-rooms, and numerous guest rooms, the latter including the famous Lincoln room with its huge bed the martyred president is said to have occupied. It was for this bed that Mrs. Coolidge crocheted a lovely white coverlet.

The third floor contains quarters for two-score White House servants.

Film...dangerous to teeth

Remove it daily to keep teeth white and sound

FILM is the cause of dull, discolored teeth as well as the serious tooth and gum disorders. Run your tongue across your teeth and you will feel this film. It absorbs stains from food and smoking and turns white teeth dull. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays.

Film hardens into tartar. Germs by the millions breed in it. And germs, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Ordinary brushing fails to remove film successfully. So dentists urge the special film-removing dentifrice called Pepsodent.

First, Pepsodent curdles film, then removes it in gentle safety to enamel. No other way will make teeth as sparkling white. Write for free 10-day supply to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, or ask your druggist for full-size tube.

Edison on Happiness

THOMAS A. EDISON has lived 82 years. During that long lifetime he has won great distinction. He has worked hard and long, and has given to the world many extremely useful inventions. There is not a town in the country that is not a different place because he has lived. Wealth and honor have come to him as a result.

Naturally, one would suppose that his old age were mellow, serene and contented. Surely, if anyone could be happy in the sunset of life it would be this man.

But what does he say? In his birthday interview recently he was asked what is the best way to obtain happiness. And he replied:

"Happiness? I am not acquainted with anyone who is happy."

If this came from a man who has been discouraged and defeated it would be easy to understand. But from Edison—Edison the successful, the brilliant, the well-beloved! Why should this man, at 82, say a thing like that? If he, whose friends include the wealthiest and most famous men on earth, must say that, what chance have the rest of us of gaining happiness?

Happiness is a strange thing. We all want it—most of us, probably, want it more than we want anything else. Yet, through some strange quirk in the make-up of the universe, if we make the pursuit of happiness the sole aim in life we are bound to lose it. It can't be taken by storm. It must come unasked.

Unfortunately enough, happiness, to most of us, depends largely on contentment. We tell ourselves that we can't be truly happy unless we are satisfied with all of the angles of existence. So long as we feel that any element that touches us needs to be changed we cannot be content; and without contentment we do not feel that we can be happy.

Ye contentment, in this imperfect world, is almost impossible to get. Indeed, the finer a man is—the greater his innate capacity for happiness—the more certain it is that he will be discontented, all of his life. For we live in a world that needs a great deal of remaking. No one but a dullard could be satisfied for very long.

Consequently, happiness is hard to get, and a famous Edison, who numbers a Ford and a Hoover among his friends, must say that he knows no one who is happy. Yet we needn't be discouraged, for all that.

We may not be able to get happiness. But we can always get discontent. And out of our discontent, and the restless activity that it causes, can be born those little achievements that slowly, century after century, are shaping the world a little more closely to the model that man has dreamed of for ages. And so, in the words of Carlyle, "thou hast a better thing—thou hast blessedness!"

Mobs Versus Courage

WHENEVER a mob takes a prisoner from an officer of the law and holds a lynching, the officer who should have saved the prisoner always reports that his forces were so outnumbered that resistance would have been useless.

It is interesting, accordingly, to see what happens in such a situation when the law officer is a man of real courage.

A big mob surrounded the jail at Riverside, Calif., the other day where Gordon Northcott, convicted of three murders, is confined, and tried to get him out. Sheriff Clem Sweeters met them with this remark:

"I know we are outnumbered fifty to one, but you can get Northcott only over our dead bodies. The same law that demands that we safeguard this prisoner will take his life later. Bloodshed now will be foolish."

The mob dispersed. A really brave officer does not lose his prisoner.

Railroad Safety

THE VALUE of modern steel equipment and safety devices on railroads was strikingly exemplified the other day when the Pennsylvania Railroad's crack flyer, the Broadway Limited, was derailed while passing through Hobart, Ind.

The train was traveling at 50 miles an hour when an axle on the first Pullman car broke. Seven cars left the rails and jolted along over the ties until the train could be brought to a stop.

But no one was hurt. Indeed, many passengers were not aware that the train had left the track until it was all over.

A railroad train of a generation ago, derailed at such a speed, would have been horribly wrecked and many lives would have been lost. The Hobart incident testifies plainly to the value of modern railroad equipment.

DAIRY-MINDED BANKERS

In an interview with a newspaper man the other day, a Dallas banker, who was reared on a farm, but who is now vice president of one of the largest banks in Dallas, said: "What this section of the country needs is more dairy-minded bankers instead of so much emphasis being placed on dairy-minded farmers."

He further stated that when bankers of Texas became sold on the idea of loaning money to responsible farmers, some tenants and some owners, for the purpose of growing into the dairy business, a general wave of prosperity never before equaled would come to the state.

WHEN THE NAYS HAVE IT

If it were not for the nays, the ayes might take to doing everything without a vote. Then, taking everything and putting it over as they see fit to do might, eventually, get the whole country in the soup, as the ayes are sometimes too optimistic in some things. Not all the things take place in a town or city that might be good for it, simply because there sometimes appear enough nays on the surface to cool the ardor of the optimistic ayes, though they be in the vast majority, you know. Then some things that are started move slowly till they are cinched and start into concrete making, when, actually, some of the most ardent supporters quit the chase and take up something else to boost.

It's a Great Game if You Don't Weaken!

The Day Book of a New Yorker

Broadway Chatter by Grant Dixon

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Dynamite and crumbling love letters, jewels and evidence for fake burglary suits, the authorized safe cracker finds them all in the day's work. The man you call in to open your safe when you have forgotten the combination may suggest the business man or plumber, but in his work of buying and selling, repairing, opening and moving safes he probably has had adventures that would furnish plots for many a romantic story. One of these safe experts whose experience furnishes a long string of yarns is the proprietor of a big safe company in Center street.

A gang of yeggs was scared off a safe-cracking job in a publishing house just after twisting the handles of the safe door and dropping a load of dynamite with fuse attached through one of the holes thus made.

Next day the safe expert, Robert S. Murray, was called in to help Officer Johnny Morrisey of the Safe and Lock Squad to open up the safe. The combination lock was broken and the bolts disarranged, and he had to drill very carefully to keep stray sparks from exploding the dynamite. At last he got the doors open and thinking he could call it a day went to the offices of the insurance company that had the safe covered to collect his pay.

Just as he was about to receive his check the department of combustibles called up and said that if the dynamite was not removed from the building a summons would be issued for having explosives on the premises illegally, but that neither safe nor doors could be moved with the dynamite inside.

It looked like a problem without a solution, and the status quo continued until the following day. Then the safe expert got the back plate off the door and with hammer and chisel dug out the concrete filling and the dynamite. The dynamite was in powder form and all together made a mass about as large as a tennis ball. Needless to say, it was left outside the building until the department of combustibles had it carried away. The safe man got his check—with proportions doubled.

The longest job Mr. Murray ever worked on stretched over 96 hours, with but two hours off, when the oxy-acetylene gas he was working with was exhausted. In a frustrated attempt at burglary yeggs had battered up two combination locks and a time lock and got the bolts out of order in a money box of a bank in South Bend Falls. The box was made of Franklinite steel, a metal with low carbon content, which could not be cut through with the oxy-acetylene torch, but had to be eaten away. Besides, it contained a large bulk of paper money and liberty bonds, which were likely to be burned if the most extreme care was not used. The expert had to work inside a confined area, and the burning of the metal gave him a continuous headache. He had no sleep while he was on the job, but got the money box open without any damage to its contents except the scorching of one bag filled with silver money.

In contrast to this protracted siege of one safe, Mr. Murray once opened up 104 safes in three days. The shipping department started to sell off the navy's unused wooden fleet after the close of the war, when it found that the papers of each of the ships were locked up in a safe on board and the secrets of the combinations were in possession of discharged captains scattered far and wide. The safe expert was called to Norfolk and the safes were lined up on the Clyde liner pier. He opened all of the 104 by manipulation of the dials without having to resort to explosives or the torch.

Often safe experts are called upon to open safes when an owner has died without revealing the combination or when the combination is lost. In many cases the expert has to get a letter of authorization before he can undertake a job. Sometimes a partner pretends to lose the combination of a safe to keep his associates from seeing business records, and then the man who gets the commission to open the safe finds that he has more trouble on his hands than just getting a lock open.

The buying of old safes, often a part of the business of the safe experts, hold the uncertainties and rewards of searching for hidden treasure. Usually old safes are empty, but not always. Mr. Murray once found several hundred dollars worth of jewelry in a safe he bought second hand.

Many times old safes contain marriage certificates, business papers and letters that give their finders entertainment, if nothing else. Mr. Murray found in one safe the original partnership papers of Harper Brothers, and in another he found a couple of deed deeds made in the days of George II and George III, enormous handwritten documents on yellowed parchment with scalloped edges. These deeds bore the names of a number of early New Yorkers, including those of Richard Varick, side-de-camp to Washington and Mayor of the city from 1789 to 1801, and of several progenitors of Gov.-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt. They proved to be real treasure trove, for the owner sold most of them to Mr. Roosevelt and to various museums.

Even the repairing side of this business has suggestions that are dramatic or at least sinister. Sometimes the safe man gets an order to remove the filling from a pair of doors and fit them with shelves that look as if they were planned for the accommodation of beverage bottles. And, then, once in a long while he is commissioned to remove all the filling from the walls of a safe and make secret openings into the cavity. Of course he is left in the dark about the use to which the safe will be put, but he suspects that it will be a hiding place for narcotics.

FAVORITE JOKES OF FAMOUS FOLK

As Told by Them to FRANK E. NICHOLSON

By ALBERTA VAUGHN

This young girl of the movies has been starred in many pictures demonstrating her "it." You'll soon be hearing her contagious enunciations in the talkies—or "Chinemas" as we sometimes say.

ALBERTA VAUGHN

"I don't think that the reason I like this story about an actress about to be married is due to the fact that I'm an actress about to be married," said the fair Alberta. "I don't know why I like it best, but it really is my favorite.

"Anyhow, this actress was applying for a license for her sixth marriage. Being a bit sensitive about the former matings, the clerk struck her as being a bit too inquisitive.

"'Have you ever been married before?' he asked, 'and if so, to whom?'

"This was too much for the cinema lady. 'What is this?' she demanded, frigidly, 'a memory test?'"

SMALL SAYS HE NEEDS AID

Landowners Asked to Lend Land Bills Support

AUSTIN, Feb. 17.—Although confident of the enactment of his "vacancy" land bill as laws within a short time, Senator C. C. Small of Wellinton said that the fight would be relentlessly continued until the last of his measures had passed both houses of the legislature and approved by Governor Moody.

"I do not expect much opposition to the bills now remaining to be brought up before the legislative bodies," Senator Small said. "However, we need the support of all Texas land owners in putting the measures across." Those interested in the proposed laws are asked by sponsors of the bills to wire their senators and representatives to support the measures.

Two of the Small bills, including the "river bed measure," have successfully run the legislative gauntlet and require only the signature of Governor Moody to make them laws. The priority rights bill and the change of venue proposal yet remain to secure the approval of the legislature.

Senator Small expressed the opinion that Governor Moody would sign the land bills when they were submitted to him.

Health And Diet Advice

Why Does a Head Ache?

There are very few people who do not frequently suffer from headaches. In fact, these are probably the most universal of all ailments. This form of suffering affects the captain of finance, the worker, the old and the young, male and female, alike. The degree of ache may vary from a slight annoyance to the most intense suffering. The only persons escaping are those who are perfectly healthy or who guard their living habits carefully.

It must be remembered that a headache is a symptom of something seriously wrong in the body, not necessarily within the head. It is a mistake for a sufferer to dose himself with headache medicines to desensitize a nervous system aginst the warning of pain instead of seeking out the cause and overcoming the source of the trouble. These medicines may be permissible as an emergency to relieve suffering, but the danger is that many people consider them cures and do not seek out the real cause. As a result the headaches tend to recur with even greater severity and injury to the body.

Every headache leaves the nervous system exhausted and may greatly weaken the body's resistance against serious diseases.

The great majority of headaches is caused by an overburdened liver filled with toxins because of insufficient elimination. Overeating, and the free use of heavy foods contribute to this torpid condition. A careful study of your diet for one or two meals before the misery starts will usually give a clue to the real cause. It will often be found that such foods as onions and garlic, cocktails and red wines will produce an irritation internally which will effect the top of the head by what is called reflex pain.

Constipation also is a frequent cause of headaches because of the pressure of feces in the rectum against the pelvic and sensitive nerves of the lower spine. Any congestion of the pelvic organs is apt to produce reflex headaches. Either high or low blood pressure will produce headaches. With high blood pressure it seems that the head is trying to burst and there is a driving noise and pounding of the pulse in the ears. A low blood pressure headache usually comes on after shopping, missing a night's sleep, or doing anything which produces enervation.

Steady pains in some parts of the face, or over the eyes may be due to abscessed teeth or sinus infections. Pressure of gas in the intestines or inflammation of the stomach resulting from dietetic indiscretions are also reflex causes. Often a headache comes on within an hour after eating a bad meal of poor food combinations. By all means do not be satisfied with a temporary cure. Be diligent in your search for the real cause and determine to correct the bad habits which always exist as a cause.

Most headaches can be relieved within a short time without the use of drugs by taking an enema and then lying down in a relaxed position for a few minutes in a darkened room.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Exercise After Eating

Question: J. G. writes: "I am told that it is not good to exercise before eating. What do you advise?"

Answer: Mild exercise may be used at any time, but one should not indulge in vigorous exercise immediately after eating. It is better to wait for about two hours. Vigorous exercise may be taken before eating provided one does not become over-tired.

Brown Sugar

Question: Mrs. W. H. asks: "Is it harmful to use corn syrup or sorghum? Is it better to use brown sugar than white for sweetening? Is it harmful to take the juice of an orange with mineral oil?"

Answer: The dark sugars are those which have not been so refined as the white sugar. They contain small amounts of ash and mineral substances, but must be considered, while dieting, as any of the refined sugars. If you should not temporarily use white sugar it is also just as bad to use any of the brown sugars. In fact, I am sure there is more tendency to eat too much of the brown sugar because of its agreeable flavor. It is all right to take orange juice with mineral oil.

Painful Muscles in Neck

Question: Mrs. A. H. J. writes: "My little girl has a painful, sensitive area in the muscles at the side of her neck. What would you advise for treatments?"

Answer: It would be necessary to make an examination of the painful area of your daughter's neck to determine the condition present. Possibly she has just strained some muscles or ligaments. In the latter case massage or warm applications would be helpful. If you discover that some disease is the cause I will be pleased to send you further information if you will send me your doctor's report.

Symptoms of Chorea

Question—Mrs. U. D. writes: "My 18-year-old daughter is afflicted with a curious twitching of her fingers. She is very nervous and cries occasionally. She doesn't seem to be able to sit still for any length of time. What would you advise?"

Answer—Before I could give my opinion about her case it would be necessary for you to have a diagnosis made, and if you will send me your doctor's report I will be pleased to give you my advice. The symptoms you mention occur during the course of chorea or St. Vitus' dance.

Two Black Crows

MORAN AND MACK

MORAN: Big Boy, what's yo' all doin' with that chisel and hammer.

MACK: I put some beauty clay on that lady's face an' I can't get it off.

MORAN: What kind of beauty clay wus it?

MACK: I thought I wus flour, but it turned out to be plaster of Paris.

MORAN: Well, she wanted a new face, didn't she?

MACK: Sure. But she wanted one she could use.

MORAN: What yo' goin' to do?

MACK: I'm goin' to knock that plaster offen her.

MORAN: Her face is liable to come with it.

MACK: Listen, Egghead, did yo' see that lady's map?

MORAN: She sure wus wrinkled.

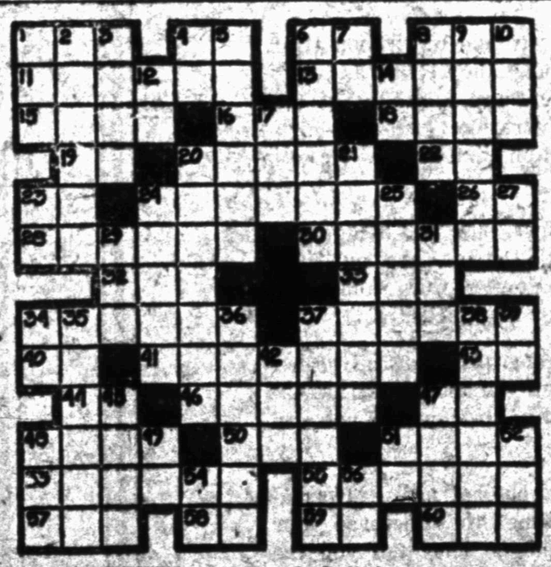

MACK: Anything yo' did to that lady's face is bound to be an improvement.

MORAN: What yo' gonna do to get rid of them wrinkles?

MACK: There ain't nothin' yo' can do to a wrinkle but fill it with putty an' then smooth it over.

Moran and Mack have finally solved the way to get rid of wrinkles. They use some very fancy hemstitching. If you want to try this treatment at home we would advise a very strong fishing line.

GARDNER IS NAMED ON COMMITTEE TO DIRECT TEXAS LEAGUE

MOGULS WORK ON SCHEDULE

Season to Open April 17 And Close Sept. 15

DALLAS, Feb. 17. (AP)—Possibility that the special meeting of Texas league club owners and managers here to draw up a schedule would be held over until tomorrow was seen tonight as the magnates, after two lengthy sessions, still struggled with tentative programs.

All that had been agreed on were the opening and closing dates, which were set at April 17 and Sept. 15, respectively.

A schedule drawn up by President Fred Ankenman of the Houston club with W. B. Ruggles, Texas league statistician, seemed to have the most favor. Another schedule was offered by Derrill Pratt, manager of the Waco club.

Committee Named

At one stage the Ankenman-Ruggles card, calling for 160 games with opening games at Beaumont, Waco, Dallas and Shreveport, was accepted by a vote of seven to one, but several flaws were discovered and the action rescinded.

Aside from laboring over the intricate schedule problem, the officials made arrangements for handling league affairs in the absence of President J. Doak Roberts, seriously ill for two months, and took up the transportation problem.

An executive committee composed of Fred Ankenman, J. Alvin Gardner and Homer H. Hammond, presidents respectively of the Houston, Wichita Falls and San Antonio clubs, was appointed to look after any business that might arise requiring official action. The measure was only temporary, until Mr. Roberts is in condition to resume his duties.

Rate Reduction Asked

Ankenman, Gardner and Hammond were named to take up the transportation question. They were in conference today with representatives of a bus company and tomorrow will meet with a committee from the railroads. They are asking that the railroads grant them a reduction in rates because of the volume of their business. All eight clubs in the league were represented at today's meeting, as follows:

Wichita Falls, J. Alvin Gardner; Houston, Fred Ankenman; San Antonio, Homer Hammond, Dr. J. H. Burleson and Tom Connor; Waco, Charles R. Turner and Derrill Pratt; Fort Worth, Bob Stowe, Jack Zeller and Roy Meehan; Dallas, Bob Tarleton; Shreveport, T. S. Hickman and Art Phelan; Beaumont, R. L. Stuart.

Double Windup Features Boxing

Hall-Sparks and Scott-Calmes in Bouts Here

A double windup of great attractiveness is offered by Promoter Alex Ross as headliners in his weekly boxing show Wednesday night at his gym, 821 Indiana avenue. Ross is featuring two 10-round bouts, which should make his card the best of the season.

The bouts will bring together Speedy Sparks, the Lawton, Okla., veteran with Cyclone Hall of Childress, and Howard Scott of Electra with Bobby Calmes of Durant, Okla.

Hall has an unbroken record of victories in Wichita Falls rings, with knockouts the means by which he achieved a majority of wins. But in Sparks the Childress child meets an experienced foeman who has in his day jousted with some foremost scrappers. The cagey Oklahoman is the sort of fellow to give the youthful Hall the w. k. acid test.

Calmes and Scott are two of the foremost and most promising young featherweights of the southwest. They met twice recently in bouts at Fort Sill, Okla. Each mill was a slashing affair. The decision in the first was a draw. Calmes won the verdict in their second meeting, which was last week; a decision that was booed by ringsiders, a majority of whom, according to this newspaper's correspondent at Lawton, agreed that the worst Howard could have had was a draw.

Three other bouts complete the program. They are Battling Sturdivant, Wichita Falls vs. Young Morris, Nocona; Kid Garland, Burkburnett vs. Jack Delaney, Wichita Falls; Pete Dixon, Wichita Falls vs. Tommy Mounds, Burburnett.

Breadon Denies Haney Holds Out

Card Owner Refuses Comment on Orsatti

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 17 (UP)—A report from the east that Fred Haney, veteran Cardinal infielder, had refused to sign a 1929 contract unless assured he could obtain his release or be sent to a Pacific Coast league club in event he fails to make good here, was denied by President Sam Breadon of the Cardinals.

Breadon would not comment concerning a further report that Ernie Orsatti, whose winter home is at Beverly Hills, Calif., had declined to accept the Cardinal contract offered him.

The Cards' president said, however, "it would be a surprise if a single player failed to report to us at the training camp a week from Wednesday."

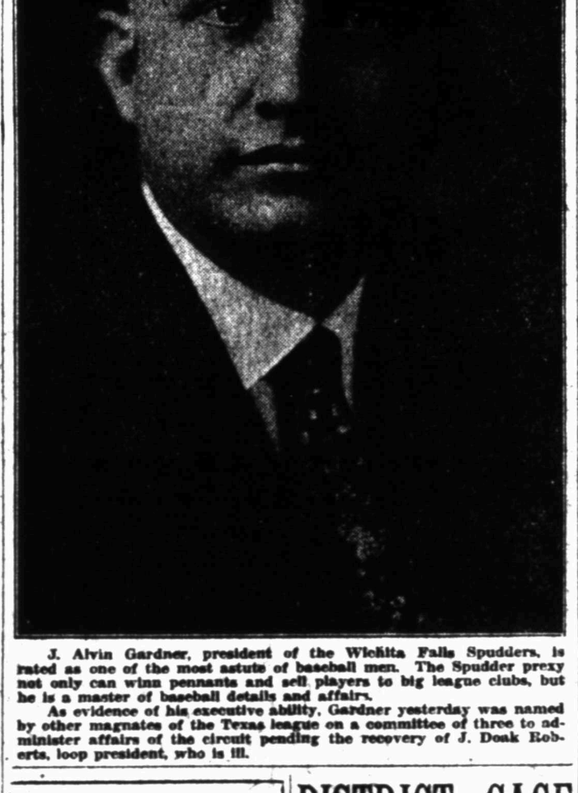

Olympic Athletes Vie Tonight at New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (UP)—Twenty athletes who participated in the Olympic games at Amsterdam last summer or the Paris games in 1924 will compete in the N. Y. A. C. indoor meet at Madison Square garden Monday night.

Prominent among them are Percy Williams, Canada's Olympic 100 and 200 meter champion; Paavo Nurmi, Finland; Ray Barbutti, Olympic 400 meter champion; Ed Hamm, Georgia Tech, Olympic broad jump champion; Jimmy Ball, Canada, runner-up in the 400 meters, and Frank Cuhel, runner-up in the 400 meter hurdles.

Wichita Falls Wins Another Polo Championship As Horace Robbins Is Hurt

He's Honored Again

J. Alvin Gardner, president of the Wichita Falls Spudders, is rated as one of the most astute of baseball men. The Spudder prexy not only can winn pennants and sell players to big league clubs, but he is a master of baseball details and affairs.

As evidence of his executive ability, Gardner yesterday was named by other magnates of the Texas league on a committee of three to administer affairs of the circuit pending the recovery of J. Doak Roberts, loop president, who is ill.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THE WICHITA county basket ball tournament held last week at Iowa Park was an unqualified success. I hear the same reports of other such tournaments, but I am referring specifically to the meet at Iowa Park because I was an interested observer of the finals played Saturday.

Iowa Park citizens, with their usual hospitality, made all visitors welcome; Superintendent Brewster and Coach Griffith of Iowa Park, county director and county athletic director, respectively, had the tourney running in ship-shape fashion, and the officiating was beyond reproach.

The referees were U. G. Knight, a former Methodist university basket star and now a post-grad student at that institution, and C. N. Jarrell, coach at Seymour. These gentlemen know basket ball, they call them when and where they see them. Nothing more could be asked of officials.

◆ ◆ ◆

KNIGHT IS to officiate this week in the district tournament here. You will like his work. He is on top of every play, is a most courteous gentleman, and as all good officials must be, he is firm. He runs the game.

Jarrell's Seymour team is to play in the district tournament here, Messrs. Knight and Jarrell selected senior first and second all-tournament teams, which follow:

FIRST TEAM

Forwards—H. Colinger, Electra, and Owens, Cashion.

Center—Wigley, Iowa Park.

Guards—Barbour, Iowa Park, and Browning, Electra.

SECOND TEAM

Forwards—Cheeves, Iowa Park, and Harrington, Burkburnett.

Center—C. Wright, Fairview.

Guards—Curry, Clara, and Bell, Electra.

There will be some dissenting voice to those selections. There always is over ANY all-star selection. But the officials, who saw every game and are unbiased, certainly are qualified to name all-star teams.

◆ ◆ ◆

STAR CENTERS predominated in the tournament. Cloninger, named for forward on the first team, is a pivotal man, as Harrington, selected for forward on the second team.

Cloninger and Owens are superb basket shooters. Wigley is an all-around star. Barbour was the outstanding guard of the tournament. He is a ball hawk; an excellent running guard. Browning was another fine guard.

◆ ◆ ◆

IF IOWA PARK plays the basket ball here this week that it showed in beating Electra, 32 to 9, to win the county title, the Hawks will be leading contenders to cop the district championship. And they won the county meet with Cheeves, who I understand is their star forward, playing after a very recent severe illness.

Conqueror of Tilden To Compete in South

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—Johnny Van Ryn, youthful conqueror of Bill Tilden and Frank Hunter, will start south next week in quest of new tennis laurels. He and Hunter will pair together in doubles in the leading southern tournaments, he said today, in addition to competing in singles.

DISTRICT CAGE SCHEDULE SET

Preps Play Here Next Friday and Saturday

Champions of nine counties and Wichita Falls will compete Friday and Saturday for the district No. 4 high school basket ball championship on the court of Junior college here.

As a result of the draw, Olney, Young county champion and Seymour, Baylor county titleholder, will clash Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock in the first game. Petrolia, Clay county champion, meets the Wilbarger county representative at 10:40. Vernon probably will win the Wilbarger title as only the Lockett class B champs stand in the way of the Lions. They play Tuesday night at Harrold.

Those two games are in the first round.

Coyotes Play at 2:30

Play in the second round will be started Friday afternoon, with Wichita Falls meeting the winner of the Seymour-Olney game at 2:30 o'clock. Other games in the second round, to be played Friday afternoon, are:

Iowa Park, Wichita county, vs. Jacksboro, Jack county; Montague county champions vs. Throckmorton, Throckmorton county; Holliday, Archer county, vs. the winner of the Petrolia-Wilbarger county champions.

Final Saturday Night

Semi-finals will be played Friday night and the championship will be decided Saturday night.

PORKERS NEAR FOURTH TITLE

Steers Still Have Outside Chance to Win

(By The Associated Press)

The Arkansas university team of six-footers pulled a little nearer a fourth consecutive Southwest conference basket ball crown by bowing over the Rice institute Owls Friday and Saturday night at Fayetteville.

The ease with which the Razorbacks humbled the Owls demonstrated their superiority over the average run of college quintets. The count Saturday night was 44 to 13.

Two conflicts with the Texas Aggies this week will wind up the works for the Ozark boys. They can lose one to the Farmers and finish in no worse than a tie with Texas university for the gonfalon.

Texas in Running

Texas university remained in the running by nosing out the Aggies, 32 to 29, Saturday night at College Station. It was nip-and-tuck, with the lead alternating frequently. Holly Brock scored 16 points to pull the Longhorns through.

This week promises more fireworks than any this season, with each of the seven conference teams seeing action. Rice meets Southern Methodist Monday night at Dallas and jumps over to Fort Worth for a setto with Texas Christian university Tuesday. Baylor university tackles Texas Tuesday night at Austin. The Aggies engage Arkansas Friday and Saturday nights at Fayetteville. Two other conference tilts Saturday see Southern Methodist tackle Baylor university at Waco and Texas Christian meet the Texas Longhorns at Austin. Seven games in all.

Porkers Lead Scoring

Tom Pickrell and Wear Schoonover, the Arkansas siege guns, apparently are determined to wage a finish fight for season scoring honors. By scoring 13 points apiece against Rice Saturday night the Razorback ropers remained in a deadlock; each with 139 points. Holly Brock of Texas appears a cinch for third honors with 87 points. Hess of Rice and Eury of Texas Christian are tied next with 67 points each. Other point getters:

Lambert, Arkansas, 64; Jones, S. M. U., 61; Rose, Texas, 57; Smith, Baylor, 51; Caddle, Aggies, 51; Brooks, S. M. U., 47; Johnson, S. M. U., 43; McDonnell, T. C. U., 43; A. U., 38; Keeton, Aggies, 36; Wilson, Baylor, 34; Pickrell, Arkansas, 34; Holt, Arkansas, 33; Banner, Rice, 33; Wray, Texas, 29; McCarble, Rice, 29; Skeeters, S. M. Financial Success of Miami Fight Sure, if Dempsey Is Not Spoofing

Jack Says Advance Sale Is $250,000, Which Indicates Gate Of More Than $300,000 for Battle

By DAMON RUNYON
(Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

NEW YORK, Feb. 17—If William Harrison Dempsey, our newest pugilistic enterpreneur, has $250,000 in the box office at Miami, as reported by my operatives, I do not see how he can miss going well over $300,000 with the struggle between Sharkey and Stribling.

This is a very large advance sale for 10 days ahead of a show. Experienced box office men always count on a rush the last few days. Many clients of the sour science wait until it is difficult to get duckets, and then dash about demanding the best seats in the house.

If William Harrison Dempsey speaks truthfully of his advance, I am convinced that his performance is over, as we say. Meaning over the well defined line between the red and the black. If the fight was being held in New York, an advance of $250,000 at this time would argue a total gate of upwards of half a million.

That is for an outdoor show. For an indoor show, say at Madison Square garden, the advance alone would be a record sell-out, with the premises scaled from $5 to $25. I believe the high mark at the garden is held by the Messrs. M. Ovila Chapdelaine, otherwise Jack Delaney, and Edward James Maloney. They grossed over $200,000, and were paid off on $184,000.

But an outdoor show is a different proposition from an indoor display. A light advance on the latter is scant line on the total nowadays. The garden shows for over a year past have been a matter of an eleventh hour window sale. Then recently the prices were reduced and heavy advance sales on the more attractive shows became the rule.

Speculators Busy

It has been discovered that most of the advance buying has been by speculators, judging from the scarcity of tickets at the box office windows, and the number of pasteboards that seems to be in the hands of jolly specs.

In nearly every little store and doorway around the garden are signs announcing that fight tickets may be had there. They solicit trade of passers-by, much in the manner of the old time pullers-in in front of the Bowery points of a by-gone day. The situation strikes the observer as somewhat disgraceful, but the general attitude seems to be that nothing can be done about the speculator, no matter how he operates.

Tickets that have a face value of $7.50 are offered for as high as $14, and even beyond that, if there is an exceptional demand. Not only the client, but Uncle Sam are clipped, the latter on his tax. Occasionally the speculators get a trimming themselves when they over buy a show, as happened to several on the Singer-Taylor affair. The specs had to "eat" a lot of their tickets, as the saying is.

Still, I saw one spec in front of the garden around 10 o'clock that night cheerfully handing top price tickets to the wistful looking ticketless young gents who are always hanging out there on the vague hope that they may finally get in somehow. The spec knew it was too late to expect any cash clients, and he was taking his loss very philosophically.

Bud Didn't Foul Singer

Speaking of the Singer-Taylor affair, one of these young men, to-wit Al Singer, a New York lad who has come on very rapidly the past few months, succumbed to a body punch in an early round. One of the judges told the referee that the punch was foul, and Singer got the decision on that basis.

As a matter of fact, the punch was quite fair. Buddy Taylor the wiry blonde boy from Terre Haute, Ind., had taken every wallop the New York youngster knew how to deal him, and had commenced to ready Singer up for a knockout. He chucked a left hook to Singer's middle, and down went Singer. I do not blame him for trying to get away with a claim of foul, nor am I agitated because he succeeded.

That is all part of the strange sour science. I am inclined to think Singer would have mounted his pins and continued had the count over him reached the danger point. But I also think it would have been merely delaying the inevitable. Singer is a good little fighter. Taylor is all that, and then some more.

But what astonishes me is that they are or were, contemplating putting Singer and Taylor back in the Garden ring for a return bout. The clients got about a third of what they paid for in the first meeting, and no guarantee is offered them that they would not be trimmed again if the young men were re-matched. I am surprised that the boxing commission permitted even a discussion of the plan.

N. Y. Commission Lenient

The New York boxing commission is the most lenient of all the boxing boards on fouls. In nearly every other state where commissions prevail, a boxer who commits a foul is not only suspended, but fined part of his purse.

Under this system some astounding instances of injustice might be recorded, as in cases of fighters getting away with claims of foul that never occurred, but the theory is not a bad one. Of course it would have been an injustice to fine Taylor, because he did not foul Singer, yet it might not have been an injustice to fine Singer for claiming the foul.

Something might have been done, too, about the official who gave his sanction to the claim. A long leave of absence from future judging, for example. If Singer is sincere in his allegation that he was fouled, he might agree to fight Taylor again for nothing. I believe I have heard of such thing in the hour science, though I confess I recall no specific instance.

I sometimes wonder what has become of that little invention introduced in our midst by the New York boxing commission which is supposed to make a foul blow impossible. It doesn't seem to have prevented claims of foul, at least.

Baer Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

NEW YORK, Feb. 17.—Two of our biggest heroes are about to be standardized.

They made an after-dinner speaker out of Captain Fried of the America.

Lindy is going to be marriaged.

Fried was the hero who rescued everybody. But who will rescue Fried?

After the captain's sixth after-dinner speech he will sadly admit that the theme song of life is till a raspberry.

And no more will Lindy visit Paris alone.

There are millions of broken-hearted girls who loved the eagle.

Now he has been taken out of circulation.

No man is a hero to his valet.

Nor to his wife.

The only difference is that you can fire the valet.

Look at Gene Tunney's case

Has the world champion whipped anybody since he has been marriaged?

They still cheer Tunney in Europe.

As an established married man we admit that Lindy is still showing courage.

The heroes steering airplanes are outnumbered by the heroes piloting baby carriages.

There is one detail about that marriage ceremony which may be of service to Lindy.

He should insist on retaining his maiden name.

It is quite a shock to be famous all your life, then get married, and have to be introduced all over again.

Lindy's record flights are over. You can't get anywhere with eight hat boxes, 11 trunks and a lawn mower.

We welcome the colonel of the air to the married men's army.

The colonel is back in the ranks.

INJURIES ARE NOT SERIOUS

Bluejackets Win Southwestern Cup by One Point

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 17. (AP)—The San Antonio Shorthorns were erased in the finals for the championship of the sixth annual Southwestern circuit cup series of the midwinter polo tournament by the Wichita Falls Bluejackets who gathered in their second title victory, by a single goal given them by handicap, in winning, 9 to 8 here today.

Going into the game spotted by two goals by handicap for a starter, the low goal champions rapidly increased this margin to lead, 9 to 4 at the half, but Horace Robbins was injured in a bad spill and had to be removed from the game. Stepping into this position, Lieut. Harry Cullins, a three goal man, knocked off one goal.

Robbins was badly shaken up but not seriously hurt.

CHRISTNER AND PAULINO MEET

K. O. Faces Man With Rugged Chin Friday

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. (AP)—Meyer K. O. Christner, of Akron, Ohio, will get a chance this week to test his right hand on the toughtest heavyweight chin in captivity.

The chin belongs to Paulino Uzcudum, prominent wood chopper from the Basque country. Paulino will expose it to Christner's right in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Gardner Friday night.

The program for the week calls for the reappearance in action of Rene Devos, Belgian middleweight. Devos, on the sidelines since his losing battle with Ace Hudkins two months ago, tackles Lowell Bobby Brown, though New Englander, in a 10-rounder at the St. Nicholas arena tomorrow night.

British Diplomats Push Question Of Naval Power to Fore Again

By WILLIAM R. KUHNS
(Cable Editor, The Associated Press)

The prospect of a British-American limited partnership for defense of the Kellogg pact has reappeared dimly but enough perhaps to cool the hopes of countries not satisfied with their share of the world.

The question of naval limitation remained dormant officially since President Coolidge's note rejecting the Anglo-French compromise and inviting some other solution. Britain now has pushed the matter into public view once more under circumstances forecasting a determined effort to find out what America wants.

Naval Agreement

London comment on Ambassador Howard's statement in Washington promising a new English approach to the question yielded interesting guesses. One was that British foreign Minister Chamberlain soon would make a statement in the house of commons outlining a naval agreement with the principal powers based on broad, new, post-Kellogg lines. Another is that naval experts with their libraries of technical information and slide-rules will play only minor parts in the porjected negotiations.

The Japanese government reiterated its readiness to enter into any new limitation agreement but let it be known that when the time came to revise the Washington naval limitation treaty Japan would ask for the ratio of 10-10-7 instead of the present 5-5-3.

English Election

It seems assured that the general election in England will occur late in May.

President Coolidge has signed the bill providing 15 cruisers. British naval authorities have announced that construction of two 10,000-ton cruisers will proceed and the Japanese naval ministry has stated that the current program of eight cruisers will be completed.

Provisional President Portes Gil and Mexican government officials are living in homes heavily guarded to prevent bombing. From all parts of Mexico reports of bombings, clashes between troops and insurgents and other anti-government demonstrations reach Mexico City daily.

The finishing touches to the Italo-Vatican settlement will require about four months. The Italian people made the preliminary signing an occasion for entwining papal and Italian flags and nation-wide holidaying although the agreement will not be submitted to the fascist grand council until the 25th of this month.

The second Dawes committee, under the chairmanship of Owen D. Young, has heard the head of the Reichsbank, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, state the case for Germany. He bases his argument for a reduction in the rate of reparations annuities chiefly on the claim that Germany has been meeting the Dawes payments for five years only by borrowing heavily abroad.

The former allies have not yet spoken and interest this week will center in what they have to say and in whether they speak as united creditors or individual nations.

The Turkish government now is host to Leon Trotsky but has put responsibility for his life and welfare up to the government that exiled him.

An anti-nationalist revolt of small dimension flared up in Chefoo, Shantung and the American consul has offered to mediate.

King Alfonso of Spain is reported as assuming the initiative in an effort to determine the extent and respectability of the subversive elements seeking to overthrow General Primo de Rivera.

SELECMAN URGES OLD TIME RELIGION IN OPENING NEW CHURCH

500 ATTEND SUNDAY RITES

S. M. U. President Speaks At Grant Street Church

"More than anything else, the church of Jesus Christ needs today a ministry with the unfailing courage to speak out his convictions on the individual and social problems of life. There is too much seeking after popularity on the part of many of our preachers. The man who pleases everybody is the man who fails to declare in ringing sentences the great fundamentals of the Christ-plan of life," declared Dr. C. C. Selecman, president of the Southern Methodist university in his sermon Sunday morning, marking the formal opening of the new Grant Street Methodist Episcopal church.

Spirit of Circuit Rider

"We need to get back to the spirit of the old circuit riders and preach against sin wherever it exists, and whether individual or social.

"The church has brought into being this beautiful building in which we worship today; but the highest degree of beauty which it has given to the world is found in serene lives and a better society. The bounds of the Christian church are the bounds of the prosperity of the world. Science has flourished most where Christianity has flourished. The Christian church has established and maintained higher standards of moral conduct than those effected by any other of the world's religions.

"The Christian church is the greatest institution under the sun, which never sets on the field of its work. Down a million paths this morning the children of the world come to learn of Christ, and other millions come to gain inspiration and strength for the trials of the coming week.

Church of Service

"The unparalleled beauty of the church is portrayed in its service to men. Broken hearts are healed at its altar; broken lives are rebuilt; destinies are changed; hope replaces hopelessness. In the church men hear about and find Jesus Christ. The chimes and songs of the church have sounded His praises and from the house of worship there go the uncounted numbers of those in whose hearts have been born a new hope, and a new Saviour." R. E. Shepherd sang, "The Lord is My Light," by Oley Speaks, with Mrs. Shepherd accompanying.

More than 500 persons attended the services. The congregation of this church was organized about two years ago, and chose for its first pastor Rev. Roy Percival. Erection of the church has been completed under the leadership of Rev. Patrick D. Moreland, the present pastor, who presided at the Sunday morning services.

HARDLY ABLE TO WALK UPSTAIRS

"I Am Glad to Make This Statement Regarding Benefits I Have Derived From Orgatone," Says Wichita Woman

"Orgatone has certainly made me feel like a different person and I am glad to give this statement regarding the benefits I have derived from its use," was the statement made recently by Mrs. W. L. Nolen living on the Iowa Park road, Wichita Falls, Texas, while talking with an Orgatone representative.

"I've had stomach trouble for a number of years and haven't been able to eat hardly anything for food would not digest and gas would form and I would be very uncomfortable for hours afterwards. Sometimes my heart would palpitate so fast I was afraid that it would prove serious for I had high blood pressure. I had severe headaches and was very weak and nervous and couldn't do my housework at all and wasn't hardly able to walk upstairs. All of the work I liked to do I had to give up because I just wasn't able.

"Since taking Orgatone I am completely relieved of all my stomach and indigestion troubles. My dizzy and bloating spells are a thing of the past now and I feel fine in every way. I am doing part of my work now and am enjoying life more than I have for a long time. I think Orgatone is a wonderful medicine and I am glad to give this statement in order that my friends may know about it."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Wichita Falls exclusively by Allison's Drug Store, under the personal direction of the special Orgatone representative. Out-of-town customers are being supplied upon receipt of price, one bottle for $1.25 or six bottles for $6.25.—Adv.

STORM SWEPT SHIP IS SAFE

Rescuers Report Stricken Vessel Is 'O. K.'

NEW YORK, Feb. 17. (AP)—The American freighter Padnsay was reported safe today, 24 hours after she had broadcast an SOS from the storm-swept north Atlantic.

A radio message from Capt. William Rind, of the United States liner President Harding, to New York offices of the line told of the safety of the vessel for which three ships had searched during the night.

It was couched in the Cryptic language used by seamen and gave no details.

"Padnsay O. K.," Captain Rind's message read, "proceeding to destination."

Damage Repaired

Officers of the line said no further report was expected and in shipping circles it was believed the crew of the Padnsay had been able to repair the damage to the ship's steering gear.

The distress call of the freighter was picked up yesterday by the Liner President Harding, which turned from its course for Bremen, Germany, to search for the ship. The message from the President Harding said the freighter's rudder was gone and gave the position of the distressed freighter as about 300 miles south of Cape Race, N. F. The steering gear of the Padnsay presumably had broken sometime during the 36-hour storm that swept the Atlantic steamer lanes.

The President Harding steamed about 300 miles through a heavy snow storm to the position where the Padnsay presumably would have drifted, reaching that place about 3 a. m.

Wireless Received

"At 3 a. m. arrived at position presumably where Padnsay would have drifted since 8 a. m. yesterday," read a wireless message from Captain Rind of the line's offices here at 6:30 o'clock this morning. "Working back along her drift, nothing seen or heard of Padnsay. The other ships searching. Stay until daybreak. Very heavy snowfall. Now 6:30 a. m. Proceeding to Plymouth."

Nothing further was heard here until shortly before noon today, when the message from Captain Rind reporting the freighter safe was received.

Walters Ice Plant Sale to Result In New Industry for Silverton

(By Staff Correspondent)

WALTERS, Okla., Feb. 17—A $20,000 ice plant is to be immediately constructed at Silverton, Texas, as an indirect result of the sale last October of the Walters Ice company to the Cotton County Creamery and Ice company. It is expected that the new plant will be completed before May 1.

L. L. McAnaw, founder of the Walters Ice company 10 years ago, after sale of his property, prospected for a new location and selected Silverton as the most promising in the new south plains country.

He purchased the small two-ton plant of the Silverton Ice company and estimated that expansion of the plant necessitated the addition of a 10-ton unit to supply the prospective demand for ice in the Silverton section the coming summer. Provision has been made for future expansion of the plant to accommodate an expected demand for cold storege for dressed poultry, farm and dairy products.

Mr. McAnaw proposes to enlist the Lions club at Silverton in making a survey of Briscoe county for the purpose of establishing the dairying industry in that section on a permanent and substantial basis.

It is planned to deliver ice by truck to farm residents along the routes to South Plains and Sterly, which points will also be supplied by the new plant.

Mr. and Mrs. McAnaw are departing from Walters today to begin their residence at Silverton.

Church Musical Director Turns Boilermaker to Provide Sunday Heat

"What Price Heat" was the title of a narrative being given Sunday among members of the Floral Heights Methodist Episcopal church by Lester F. Aldrich, musical director, and George F. Winburne, local plumber.

The warming touch of near-spring weather awakened the migratory urge within the heart of the negro custodian of the church sometime Saturday evening. His unexpected departure for parts unknown became known to Mr. Aldrich when the chill which followed darkness drove him to the boiler rooms to investigate the lack of heat. Not only had George departed, according to a brief note left with his spouse, but he had left in the middle of a repair job on the boiler.

Sunday morning was only a few hours distant, and Mr. Aldrich secured a volunteer in Mr. Winburne. Worn out parts, and missing ones, had to be replaced. Three trips to the local railroad shops during the night for bolts, nuts and plugs which had to be cut; other trips for gaskets; then the replacement of the head, all of which constituted a busy night for the improvised crew. Mr. Aldrich got up steam in time Sunday morning to indulge in a hurried breakfast and a half-hearted shave before returning for Sunday school.

FLOYDADA C.-C. MEETS FEB. 28

Date of Annual Banquet Is Changed

Special to The Record News

FLOYDADA, Texas, Feb. 17.—Date for the annual Floydada chamber of commerce banquet has been changed from Feb. 22 to Feb. 28 and the principal speaker for the occasion will be Josh Lee, head of the public speaking department of the University of Oklahoma. This announcement was made by J. G. Wood, chairman of the program committee, after it was learned that Mr. Lee had accepted an invitation to speak at another place on the original date for the banquet here.

Recognized as one of the most entertaining speakers in the South the program committee feels that Floydada is indeed fortunate in securing Mr. Lee for the banquet. His soldier rhymes, written while serving in France, are thrilling, his funny stories clean and inoffensive and his ability to hold the attention of his audience has made him a speaker much in demand by the public.

Frank L. Moore, retiring president of the chamber of commerce, will give the annual report of the organization at the banquet. The report of the home demonstration clubs will be made by Mrs. Joe M. Smith of the Antelope community. Special music will be featured throughout. The event is scheduled to begin at 7 p. m. in order to give the visitors who come from neighboring towns ample time to return home early in the evening.

Five hundred plates will be laid by the ladies of the various organizations in the city.
