

More than 190 held hostage in hijackings

By The Associated Press

Air pirates who hijacked four commercial airliners in two separate attacks hung onto more than 190 hostages for the second day today in Europe and the Caribbean and refused to give up.

The hijackers of three Venezuelan airliners released about 40 more passengers in Honduras and Guatemala and took off with an estimated total of 150 people aboard. Two of the planes, both DC-9s, landed in Panama. There was no sign of the third plane, a Boeing 727, but it took off from Guatemala City after the two DC-9s left Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

The nationality, number and goal of the hijackers still was unclear more than 20 hours after they commandeered the three planes Monday in a coordinated operation during domestic flights over Venezuela.

Conflicting reports said they were Venezuelans demanding $10 million and the release of 12 prisoners in Venezuela, Salvadoran leftists or Puerto Rican nationalists demanding independence for their island from the United States.

After the hijacking, one of the planes made a brief stop on the island of Aruba, off the Venezuelan coast, where 22 of the hostages were freed. Then all three met at Barranquilla, Colombia, where they remained 10 hours and 67 more passengers were released.

Monday night the two DC-9s flew to Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital, and the Boeing 727 went to Guatemala City. After nightlong negotiations, the hijackers exchanged 20 hostages in each capital for food and fuel, and they took off early this morning.

The fourth plane, a Libyan Boeing 727, landed in Rome today with 46 people aboard after spending six hours in Beirut and three in Athens.

The airliner was commandeered over Italy Monday by three Lebanese supporters of Imam Moussa Sadr, the leader of the Shiite Moslem sect in Lebanon who disappeared after a state visit to Libya in August 1978. The Lebanese Shiites charge that Col. Moammar Khadafi, the Libyan leader, is holding him prisoner, but the Libyans said he left Tripoli by plane for Rome.

The hijackers released a pregnant Libyan woman and her two small children in Beirut and were joined by two members of a militant Lebanese Shiite organization, the Mujahedeen (Warriors) for Imam Sadr. They issued a statement demanding a U.N. investigation of Sadr's disappearance. They also demanded that the Lebanese government break diplomatic relations with Libya and make public the "judicial file" on Sadr.

First reports said the hijackers were threatening to blow up the plane unless Libya handed over Sadr, but the statement they issued made no mention of this.

Midland's economic boom makes news on German TV

By GAIL BURKE

Speaking in German with a few English words thrown in, a television crew conversed while camera, sound and lighting equipment was set up at a local manufacturing and engineering oil firm Monday morning.

At first one may have thought that the foreign film crew stopped in Midland to make a movie, but ARD-German Television, based in Washington, D.C., is similar to U.S. news networks which have bureaus located all over the world.

However, unlike the networks, ARD is publicly owned. It is an assembly of nine German state stations with 23 employees working in the Washington bureau.

The bureau chief and camera crew arrived Sunday in Midland to film "the booming economy" in West Texas as part of a 45-minute documentary to be shown in Germany Jan. 25 on President Reagan's first year in office.

Thea Rosenbaum, producer, arrived Thursday to do most of the "leg work," setting up interviews and making arrangements for filming.

SHE SELECTED Midland after reading an article about the city in the Washington Post, she said, adding that this was the type of place ARD was looking to film.

The documentary will show a contrasting look at how Reaganomics has affected the economy of the automobile industry's northern cities and the oil industry's southern cities.

Mrs. Rosenbaum talked on Friday with Tom Lawson, OIME vice president of sales, to arrange filming in the company's manufacturing and engineering yard.

Rolf Schmechel, senior cameraman, along with Hulget Witt, assistant cameraman, and Herbert Stehr, soundman, carted cameras and sound equipment into a large aluminum building where drilling rigs are produced.

Loud industrial noises and sparks from welding set the scene for the camera crew as Schmechel and Stehr hoisted to their shoulders cameras and sound machines that are used by a majority of the American stations.

"We use American equipment," Stehr said, adding that they have German film cameras but "we do not use them much."

Outside the building Lawson briefed Peter Merseburger, ARD bureau chief, on the oil industry while the camera crew shot film of massive steel girders and oil drills being assembled. Mrs. Rosenbaum checked on the filming, made suggestions to Eight killed in mine blast

TOPMOST, Ky. (AP) — Rescuers crawling half a mile inside an eastern Kentucky mountain today found the last three victims of a mysterious coal mine explosion that killed eight men.

The eight bodies were brought out at 2:28 a.m., about 12 hours after the explosion sent a wall of mud and water shooting from the mouth of the mine with so much force that it splattered against a cliff 300 feet away. Five of the bodies were found Monday evening.

The disaster came just five days after a collapse of rock and slate killed three miners in Bergoo, W.Va. Three miners survived there.

The cause of Monday's blast at the No. 18 mine of Adkins Coal Co. was not determined officially.

"Our people haven't been looking for causes," said Kentucky Mines and Minerals Commissioner Willard Stanley. "They've been looking for bodies."

One cause suggested by officials was blasting powder used in the mine. Stanley said there was "a lot of (powder) odor that indicates it was, and some other things that indicate it wasn't. We found some explosives and detonators that weren't detonated."

The coalfields in this region are known for concentrations of explosive methane gas, but Stanley said rescue workers detected none. He said coal dust was ruled out tentatively "because we didn't find any carbon" and the mine was wet.

Orville Adkins, owner of the mine, paced in the mud outside the mine opening during the search for survivors.

"I couldn't tell you a thing," he said. "I don't know nothing right now." The mine, which employed 15 other men and produced about 250 tons of coal a day, was closed pending an investigation.

Roy Conley, 22, would have been in the mine with the eight other men, but he had left to fix a piece of equipment.

"I was in my truck when I heard the explosion," he said. "It blew out the windows of my truck. I got out and ran for my life."

About 100 relatives and friends gathered at Beaver Creek Elementary School, weeping women and children offering comfort to each other as they learned that none of the men survived.

Among them was Orie Slone, whose husband, Bob Slone, a 39-year-old foreman from Topmost, died in the blast.

Mrs. Slone is pregnant, said her mother, Susie Johnson, and "the doctors down at Martin didn't want her to come up here."

"They said she could have her baby any minute. This will be her 10th one. They've got seven living and two are dead."

If necessary, he'll work without pay

By SHERI SELLMAYER

INGRAM, Texas (AP) — This Hill Country city can't pay its only employee on a regular basis, but city marshal Charlie Lee says he will continue to work even without a monthly paycheck.

Ingram, incorporated as a city in June, voted last month to impose a 1 percent sales tax, but it will be next summer before any money is available. The sales tax, which will be handled through the state comptroller's office, is expected to yield from $75,000 to $100,000 annually for the city of about 1,000 people.

"It doesn't bother me. I'll get back pay when they get the money," Lee said.

Lee, 67, a retired Kerr County employee, has received several $400 monthly paychecks since he was elected city marshal in August, but he said the city owes him money. "We started out with nothing. Before they can get sales tax and all, it'll be July. They've (the city) been operating with donations," he said.

Lee doesn't have an office. He uses his own car.

"They (the city) can't finance a car, and they can't buy gas. I told them I'll take calls at home, but don't misunderstand me, I'll answer them all."

Parking garage moves step closer to reality

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

Proposal for an 11-story parking garage at the southwest corner of Big Spring Street and Wall Street cleared the first hurdle on the track to obtain tax-exempt bonds for its construction, despite objections by some residents over the proposed location.

Midland City Council, in a special session Monday morning in the City Hall Council Chambers, approved a resolution declaring the project would be for the public's good and the site is adjacent to a blighted area.

Next step requires an appearance before the Texas Industrial Commission to gain its approval for the tax-free bonds, and then the Midland Development Corporation would handle the sale for the $10 to $12 million needed to construct the facility.

City Attorney Joe Nuessle traced the history of the project, saying that a developer had approached the city to set up a non-profit development corporation for the purpose of obtaining tax-free bonds for the parking garage. "He was willing to underwrite construction of it and the running of it," said Nuessle.

To obtain that type of bond, however, the project must be designated as serving the public's good and be located in or adjacent to a blighted area, he said.

Declared as blighted are Census Tracts 10 and 14, with the north boundary of 14 running along Front Street. The project would be situated in Census Tract 9, a few blocks north of Tract 14, according to plans by the city's Planning and Community Development Department.

"I would think it would qualify for being adjacent to a blighted area," Nuessle surmised. "The site itself is not a blighted area. But it might very well be determined it is adjacent to a blighted area. I think two to three blocks north is adjacent."

Site for the parking garage is bordered by The First National Bank to the east, Blanks Building to the north east and a new four-story building to the north. To shore up his argument, Nuessle said the parking garage would mean new jobs, stabilize the area and help eliminate the trend of downtown offices moving to the city's outskirts because of a lack of parking.

One Midland woman said she objected to the use of tax-exempt bonds for constructing the facility. "Tax-exempt bonds are taking money from the federal government in a back-

Season's gloomiest greetings delivered to White House

By The Associated Press

White House forecasts of higher budget deficits held out the prospect of increased government borrowing to finance the debt and the possibility of increases in interest rates.

Administration sources who asked not to be identified said Monday that President Reagan has been presented with the gloomiest predictions about future budgets yet — a record $109 billion shortfall in fiscal 1982 that began Oct. 1 and a $162 billion deficit in fiscal 1984.

Only two months ago the Reagan administration predicted deficits averaging $60 billion a year through 1984.

If the deficit continues to expand, that could force the Treasury Department to step up its already massive borrowings to pay the government's bills, some credit analysts contend.

Expanded Treasury borrowing is seen by some as a key to higher interest rates because it comes at a time when the Federal Reserve Board is limiting credit availability to battle inflation. If the government increases its borrowing that could further limit the amount of money available to private borrowers and force them to compete for funds, driving up rates.

Interest rates have fallen substantially in recent weeks, in part because the recession eases corporate borrowing demand.

But some economists believe further declines in rates may come slowly, and rates on short-term government securities rose slightly Monday after six straight weeks of decline.

The Treasury Department sold $4.7 billion of 13-week bills at an average discount rate of 10.404 percent, compared with 10.4 percent a week earlier. Another $4.7 billion was auctioned in 26-week bills, at an average of 10.772 percent, up from 10.701 percent a week ago.

But along with interest-rate declines, the recession has brought unemployment. Consumers were hesitant to take on new debt in October, especially for expensive items, the Federal Reserve said.

The value of new consumer installment credit fell 8.4 percent in October to $27 billion, its lowest level since November 1980, the central bank said. During October, $25.9 billion of consumer credit was paid off, a drop of 2.5 percent.

Hence, outstanding installment credit rose a seasonally adjusted $1.01 billion, compared with a $2.82 billion increase in September.

The White House sources said the new budget projections are part of a preliminary economic forecast given Reagan Friday to help him decide on a 1983 budget plan.

Without new budget cuts or tax increases, according to the new forecast, the deficit will reach $106.1 billion in fiscal 1982, $152.3 billion in fiscal 1983 and $162 billion in fiscal 1984.

By comparison, the 1981 deficit was $57.9 billion and the record deficit, $66.4 billion, occurred in 1976 during President Ford's last year in office. President Carter's largest deficit was $59.4 billion in fiscal 1980.

Texas area forecasts

West Texas: Considerable morning cloudiness southeast. Otherwise, fair through Wednesday. Colder most sections today. Highs today upper 50s north, most sections, except near Big Bend valleys. Lows tonight 20s north 30s south except 40s Big Bend. Highs Wednesday 60s north to 70s west except near Big Bend. 45 to 60.

North Texas: Fog in central and east Texas this morning, lifting by mid morning. Mostly cloudy south, central and east through the afternoon. Otherwise, generally fair through Wednesday. A little cooler today south. Cooler area-wide tonight and northeast Wednesday. High temperatures today 67 to 71. Lows tonight 41 to 48. Highs Wednesday 64 to 71.

South Texas: Cloudy to partly cloudy today through Wednesday. Scattered showers and thunderstorms mainly coastal areas and southeast Texas today, decreasing tonight and Wednesday. Highs today and Wednesday mainly in the 70s. Lows tonight mid 40s Hill Country to near 60 along the lower coast.

Upper Texas Coast: Variable winds near 10 knots, becoming north and northeasterly 10 to 15 knots tonight and easterly near 10 knots Wednesday. Seas 2 to 3 feet building to 3 to 5 feet later this afternoon, continuing tonight. Winds and seas briefly higher in and near scattered to numerous showers and thunderstorms.

Lower Texas Coast: Variable winds near 10 knots today, becoming northerly 10 to 15 knots tonight and easterly near 10 knots Wednesday. Seas 2 to 3 feet today and 3 to 5 feet tonight. Winds and seas briefly higher in and near scattered to numerous showers and thunderstorms.

Border states forecast

New Mexico: Fair today through Tuesday. Continued midday temperatures. Highs today and Tuesday 55 to 65 mountains and northwest with 65 to 75 lower elevations south and east. Lows tonight upper teens and 20s in the mountains and northwest to mainly 30s elsewhere.

Temperatures to be seasonal

Although Monday's temperatures may have reminded many Midlanders more of summer weather, today's temperatures were considered to be more in season. It will remain fair and colder through Wednesday.

According to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport, the mercury will once again climb into the lower 60s on Wednesday. The overnight low will be in the middle 30s.

Today's winds will remain light and variable tonight, turning south and southeasterly 10-15 mph on Wednesday.

Monday's warmest temperature of 75 missed matching the record high of 78, set in 1966, by only four degrees. The overnight low of 34 was almost 20 degrees warmer than the record low of 15, set in 1978.

Council passes resolution

But Mayor G. Thane Akins countered that if people who buy these bonds don't invest in the ones for this parking garage, they will turn to some other municipal project elsewhere. Building it with money on a conventional loan is prohibitive because of high interest rates, he added.

"It's not federally subsidized," Akins said.

Freddie Nelms, 709 S. Benton St., wasn't opposed to the project, but wanted to see the site moved farther south into a blighted area.

Akins argued the "parking garage is only good if it's where it's needed and that's in a more central part of the business district. We need public parking. We simply don't have near enough. This garage won't handle all of our needs; we'll need more than this."

Gordon Arnold also preferred a spot in a different location — on a block bordered by Wall, Texas, Baird and Weatherford.

"There are difficulties with the site at Wall and Big Spring. It's a high traffic area and will continue to increase," he said.

Councilman Gordon Marcum II pointed out that Arnold's suggested location probably will be the site for a second parking garage in a few years.

The resolution to declare the site at Big Spring and Wall streets appropriate for the parking garage passed unanimously.

Suspect caught after rollover

One suspect is in custody and another is being sought in an early morning armed robbery and car theft that ended with the car rolling over during a high speed police chase.

The suspect was apprehended after he rolled the car along the Missouri Pacific railroad tracks near the intersection of East Front Street and South Lamesa Road, a block from the police station, about 6:45 a.m.

Officers said they spotted the car, which had been reported taken earlier from the Holiday Inn at 3904 W. Wall Ave., and gave chase when the driver wouldn't stop. Four men at the motel said they were robbed at knifepoint in their room at the motel shortly after midnight.

Taken in the robbery, which occurred when one of the victims answered a knock on the door, were an assortment of items, including a .22-caliber magnum pistol, rodeo equipment, cassette tapes and a 1980 Mercury. Total loss was placed at $8,095.

One of the suspects was in the car when it crashed, according to police. Criminal charges of aggravated robbery are expected to be filed against the man today.

In another robbery report during the past 24 hours, a 64-year-old Midland woman told officers a man grabbed her purse in an alley in the 300 block of West Pecos Street about 6 p.m. Monday.

The woman said she was knocked to the ground and dragged about 10 feet before the purse strap broke and the man got away with the purse. He left in a 1977 or '78 green Plymouth that was waiting nearby. The purse contained $80 in cash, credit cards, a checkbook and assorted personal items.

In a burglary complaint, Lois McHarve of 1104 W. Missouri Ave. said someone broke into her home over the weekend and took a TV set, desk calculator and an IBM Selectric typewriter. Entry was gained by prying open the front door. Total value of the items was placed at $1,200.

ARD—German Television crew members, cameraman Rolf Schmechel and Washington next scene for a German television documentary being filmed in Midland this week.

MERSEBURGER SAID it would take about two weeks of filming to show the 15-minute segment of the contrasting cities. The crew had previously been in Indiana filming the effect that the failing automobile industry was having in South Bend and Dixon.

"Here (in Midland) we are trying to show how deregulation is affecting the oil business, turning Midland into a boom town," Merseburger said, adding the auto-related cities of South Bend and Dixon, Ind., have been hit the hardest by the recession.

Lawson escorted Merseburger and Mrs. Rosenbaum around the yard in his car while the camera crew followed in their rented car.

As the cars crept along the gravel surface from one building to the next, the conversation centered around the weather and food.

"Is this a typical December day in Texas?" Merseburger, who makes his home in Washington, asked, referring to Midland's mid-70 degree temperature Monday. "Are there any good restaurants here?"

The crew spent about two hours at OIME filming inside buildings and outside in the yard. A "good shot" was spotted by one of the members. From the top of one steel structure, about 30 men could be seen scurrying all over what eventually will be an oil rig. The cameramen and Mrs. Rosenbaum walked up the stairs of the structure to set up the equipment.

"IT WAS A VERY good shot. I hope we got it," Mrs. Rosenbaum said, adding that every time one of the employees walked up the steep steps the floor of structure vibrated.

One final shot was taken of three fully constructed rigs in the OIME yard, and the crew's work was done. The next stop would be a light lunch and then on to the oil fields for "some outside shots."

On Sunday the crew went to the KOA campgrounds — they had heard about the influx of people to Midland and the city's housing shortage. And a coincidental interview Sunday was with a family living in Midland who moved from South Bend, Ind., a short time ago.

Mrs. Rosenbaum's work is finished. She was to fly back to Washington today, but Merseburger and the camera crew will stay in Midland for another day or two to finish filming.

"Today, we are planning to film at the Texas Employment Commission, the construction around the town and we will go to the top of The First National Bank to film from the roof," Schmechel said.

He noted that when the crew returns to Washington the film will be prepared to send to Germany.

"We feed it from our office to New York through IT&T, then from IT&T through the satellite," he said.

But it is not always that easy.

"U.S. NETWORKS occupy the satellite and sometimes we have a problem getting out," Schmechel noted.

Loved ones learn of miners' deaths

By STRAT DOUTHATT
Associated Press Writer

TOPMOST, Ky. (AP) — A forlorn crowd of friends and relatives maintained a stoic silence early today as they learned there were no survivors among the eight men trapped by an explosion in a southeastern Kentucky coal mine.

The group had waited for more than seven hours in the Beaver Elementary School gym when the Rev. Charles Wilcox broke the news.

"I apologize for being so late," he said in the 1:15 a.m. EST announcement, "but the state police have just come in. They said all eight bodies have been found and there are no survivors."

There was no sound after Wilcox spoke. The relatives and new widows comforted each other and stared straight ahead with blank, dazed expressions.

Among the men in the gym was Roy Conley of nearby Mousie. Conley, a member of the ill-fated mining crew, said he escaped death Monday afternoon when he left the mine to change the battery on a piece of mine machinery.

"I was in my truck when I heard the explosion," said the 22-year-old miner, still wearing his hard hat and coveralls. "It blew out the windows of my truck. I got out and ran for my life."

About 100 people congregated at the school shortly after word of the mid-afternoon explosion spread through the community.

Emergency crews and co-workers carry the remains of one of eight miners who were killed when an explosion tore through a coal mine near Topmost, Ky., to an ambulance at the scene of the explosion, Tuesday morning.

Investigators say strike did not hurt air safety

WASHINGTON (AP) — Independent federal investigators have concluded that air safety has been substantially maintained despite the firing of 11,500 air traffic controllers after their illegal strike last August, sources say.

The findings by a special 16-member National Transportation Safety Board today for final approval.

The report, prepared by the board's staff, makes no direct judgment on whether air travel is safer now than before the strike, but presents a number of facts disputing claims that safety has been jeopardized, sources said.

The safety board is an independent agency that investigates airline crashes and other transportation accidents. It ordered the special examination of the air traffic control system last August when striking controllers charged the airways were unsafe because of the reduced controller work force.

Board sources who asked not to be identified said the study concluded that:

—The number of unsafe incidents, including reports of aircraft near misses, has declined since the strike. It also said there were fewer computer breakdowns last August than occurred the same month in 1979 and 1980.

—IT COULD NOT substantiate claims by striking controllers that unqualified people were recruited to direct aircraft after the strike, including some medically unqualified.

—There is no evidence the Federal Aviation Administration used unsafe procedures in directing air traffic after the strike cut the controller workforce by nearly one-half. About 9,200 controllers and supervisors as well as military personnel have been directing air traffic since the strike.

Nevertheless, the sources said, investigators concluded it may take from six months to a year longer than the FAA predicts for the air traffic controller staff to be back to full strength.

The FAA repeatedly has insisted that the airways are safer now than they were before the strike.

Attorney General Steve Clark, whose job it is to defend Arkansas' scientific creationism law, talks with reporters on the first day of a lawsuit challenging the statute's constitutionality.

Arkansas law based on Bible witnesses say

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The book of Genesis is the "reference book" for an Arkansas law authorizing public schools to teach the creationist theory of the origin of the universe, religious experts have testified.

The constitutionality of the law went on trial Monday in federal court. The American Civil Liberties Union, which has filed suit to overturn the law, says it is a "dangerous violation" of First Amendment guarantees of the separation of church and state.

The state insists the creationist theory is scientific, not religious. The theory says the universe began suddenly from nothing, and that men and apes have a separate ancestry.

But the law "has as its unmentioned reference book the first 11 chapters of the book of Genesis," Bruce Vawter of DePaul University in Chicago testified before U.S. District Judge William Overton.

And Bishop Kenneth W. Hicks of the United Methodist Church of Arkansas said the creation-science defined in the law "reflects a literalistic view of the book of Genesis."

Vawter, Hicks and three other witnesses were called by the ACLU in the first day of the trial, which resumes today. Lawyers say the hearing could last two weeks.

THE LAWSUIT WAS BROUGHT May 27 by the ACLU on behalf of 12 clergymen and 11 other individuals and organizations.

The Balanced Treatment for Creation-Science and Evolution-Science Act was enacted in March with little debate. It is scheduled to take effect next fall.

The act states that if schools teach evolution, they must also give balanced treatment to creationist thought.

That says geological formations are the result of a worldwide flood. The first 11 chapters of Genesis describe God's creation of the world and its creatures and the great flood.

The theory of evolution states that life developed gradually over millions of years as a result of natural laws and that the universe has existed for billions of years.

ACLU lawyer Bruce Ennis has called the case "Scopes II," likening it to the John T. Scopes trial in Dayton, Tenn., in 1925. Scopes taught evolution against state law, was convicted and fined. The Tennessee Supreme Court overturned his conviction on a technicality.

ENNIS FINISHED HIS FIRST five witnesses in one day, half the time he predicted it would take.

Assistant Attorney General Frederick Campbell, defending the law, said the witnesses "didn't say much that damaged us."

Deputy Attorney General David Williams objected that testimony about the religious concept is irrelevant because the law bans religious writings. Overton overruled him.

Dorothy Nelkin, a Cornell University sociologist who has studied the creationist movement, said its followers try to use science to make their literal interpretation of the Bible appear legitimate.

Langdon Gilkey, theology professor at the University of Chicago Divinity School, said only God can be understood as the force behind creation under the concept authorized by the law.

Porno star arrested for murder investigation

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pornographic movie star John Holmes may have been in danger before he was arrested for investigation of murder in the bludgeoning deaths of four people in a posh Laurel Canyon home, police said.

Holmes, who had been missing since mid-July, was arrested Friday in North Miami, Fla., on a warrant for failure to appear for trial in Santa Monica on charges of grand theft and receiving stolen property. Police Chief Daryl Gates said Monday Holmes was arrested in connection with the murder on Saturday.

Holmes — who also performs under the name "Johnny Wadd" — did not oppose extradition and was flown back to Los Angeles on Saturday, police said.

Holmes, 37, has been sought since his disappearance July 18 — 17 days after the bodies were found in a house on Wonderland Avenue, four blocks from the home of Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.

Gates said Holmes had not answered all the questions detectives asked him, and he refused to say whether Holmes had implicated anyone else in the slayings.

Asked if Holmes' life were in danger, Gates said, "I believe he is in a much healthier state than he might have been had he not surfaced and been taken into our custody."

Gates did not elaborate.

HOLMES' WIFE, Sharon, said in a Sept. 20 interview with The Los Angeles Times that he had been in the house a few days before the killings.

Mrs. Holmes said her husband was arrested July 10 and kept in hiding by police. But she said that when her husband did not give police what they considered useful information, they withdrew protection and Holmes fled after being released on his own recognizance.

"He never intimated (to me) that he knew anything about (the murders)," Mrs. Holmes was quoted as saying. "The only thing he really said to me was, 'Yes, I knew the people, and yes, I had been in their house shortly before they were killed.'"

Gates refused to say whether the survivor of the bloody killings, Susan Launius, 29, of Tujunga, had provided police with information that helped track down Holmes or identify other suspects.

Neighbors said screams from the house were so common that no one heeded the cries of "Please don't kill me" in the early morning hours on the day of the slayings.

THE VICTIMS WERE beaten to death with a blunt object, said Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi.

Mrs. Launius, whose 37-year-old husband, Ronald, was hospitalized with a torn neck, head wounds and the tip of one finger sliced off. She had lain in the house unconscious for 12 hours until the killings until neighbors noticed a security gate ajar and investigated.

Also killed in the house was Joy Miller, 46, who was facing a pretrial hearing July 20 on charges of possessing cocaine and heroin and possession of methaqualone for sale; William Deverell, 44, who lived with Mrs. Miller; and Barbara Lee Richardson, 22, of Sacramento.

During Holmes' disappearance, police had raided a New York screening of Holmes' latest film, "Exhausted," hoping to find him there.

Arizona Memorial site of tribute

By LINDY WASHBURN
Associated Press Writer

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — Thousands of veterans who saw history made, joined by tourists and the sailors of today, stood in the quiet of an ocean breeze to pay tribute to comrades lost at Pearl Harbor.

"Somehow a number does not communicate the story," Adm. James Watkins said in a speech honoring the 2,300 sailors who perished in the dawn attack by the Japanese that plunged the United States into World War II.

"Names and numbers fail miserably to communicate the humanity of this place," said the commander in chief of the U.S. Pacific fleet. "The first lesson of Pearl Harbor is that the cost of war is incalculable."

Watkins spoke just after a moment of silence at 7:55 a.m. local time Monday (12:55 p.m. EST), coinciding with the start of the attack exactly 40 years earlier on Sunday Dec. 7, 1941. More than 1,100 servicemen were wounded and 19 naval vessels and 188 U.S. aircraft were destroyed.

One by one, flowers were plucked from wreaths and dropped into the waters of the harbor, floating above the wreckage of the battleship USS Arizona.

The center of the commemoration was the USS Arizona Memorial, a gleaming white building that straddles the ship, which was left where it sank in 38 feet of water. The hull is the final resting place for 1,177 seamen killed when a Japanese bomb hit the forward ammunition magazine and devastated the vessel in fire and smoke.

"This memorial, the stories of the men who died, tell us that we must do all we can to avoid the kind of tragedy which unfolded in this harbor," Watkins said, and the nation must attend to its "military strength, industrial base, educational systems, patriotism and national will."

Four Phantom jets screamed overhead and a Navy destroyer sailed by with all hands on deck at attention in dress whites. A Marine Corps squad gave a 21-gun salute from the anchor key where the Arizona was moored that day.

The memorials were the highlight of the annual convention of the Pearl Harbor Survivors Association, which was attended by about 3,000 veterans stationed on the island of Oahu the day of the attack.

The moment held special meaning for Joseph Taussig Jr., deputy assistant secretary of the Navy, who was given one of the flags flown over the memorial during the observance. He was decorated for his role as an anti-aircraft gunner aboard the USS Nevada that day.

He lost a leg in the attack that devastated the U.S. Pacific fleet and was hospitalized until 1946.

After ceremonies at the National Memorial Cemetery of the Pacific, mourners returned to Pearl Harbor for sunset services and taps.

Haig is looking for NATO support

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. is seeking a reaffirmation of NATO's commitment to deploy U.S. missiles in Europe if U.S.-Soviet arms reduction negotiations fail, U.S. officials say.

Haig, traveling under unusually strict security, planned to leave tonight for Brussels for a meeting of the NATO foreign ministers later this week.

The NATO defense ministers were holding a two-day meeting today and Wednesday.

The progress of U.S.-Soviet negotiations to restrict deployment of missiles in and around Europe will be a major topic on the agenda at Brussels. The negotiations began Nov. 30 in Geneva.

Haig and other U.S. officials say that, if the negotiations drag on as most experts expect, then NATO should go ahead with its plans to begin deployment in 1983 because a postponement would reduce the Soviets' incentive to reach agreement.

However, if NATO proceeds with deployment while negotiations are underway, U.S. officials believe it could set off a new outpouring of opposition in Europe. They are hopeful NATO won't waver in the face of such opposition.

"I think we will be looking for general support of both tracks," said one official, referring both to deployment and negotiations with the Soviets.

Haig was expected to meet privately Wednesday with the new Greek prime minister, Andreas Papandreu, in the first high level contact between the Reagan administration and the Papandreu government.

Papandreu is a socialist who has advocated taking Greece out of NATO's military wing and phasing out U.S. military bases in Greece. Haig will try to find out whether Papandreu is determined to do these things or whether they are negotiating positions to achieve other aims.

From Brussels, Haig will travel to Turkey, Israel, Pakistan, India, Egypt and Morocco before returning to Washington Dec. 18.

Because of concern over a possible assassination attempt by Libyan terrorists, the arrival and departure times for Haig's stops after Brussels were being kept secret — even from reporters who will be traveling with him.

Haig escaped injury in an assassination attempt in Brussels in 1979 — thought to have been perpetrated by European terrorists — when he was NATO commander. He recently joked during a speech that he was "almost blown out of my automobile in Brussels by an alienated admirer."

At Haig's request, Deputy Secretary of State William Clark cut short a trip to Europe to return to Washington over the weekend to consult with Haig on the NATO meeting.

Haig and foreign ministers of the other 14 NATO nations will have to deal with what one U.S. official describes as "nuclear neuralgia" that has led to "tense public attitudes" in Europe.

There has been a considerable outpouring of public opposition to NATO's 1979 decision to deploy U.S. nuclear missiles in Europe to meet a threat from Soviet missiles.

But the anti-nuclear sentiment was much less prevalent in May when the NATO countries adopted the Reagan administration's tough stand against the Soviets during the foreign ministers' meeting. Nonetheless, a U.S. official said, they probably will continue that stance while also maintaining a willingness to negotiate.

Reagans may have to skip church on Christmas

By MAUREEN SANTINI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Nancy Reagan says she and the president may have to skip church on Christmas because of all the commotion caused by tightened security.

The Reagans haven't attended church services since early summer and Mrs. Reagan provided a clue to the reason Monday.

"It's very difficult to go to church because you feel self-conscious about being X-rayed and so on," she said.

In an apparent reference to the metal detectors sometimes used to screen people attending public functions with the president, Mrs. Reagan called such precautions "an imposition" on other church-goers.

While the Reagans have not joined a church in the nation's capital, they did attend the National Presbyterian Church a few times after the inauguration last January.

Mrs. Reagan's remarks Monday came as she led reporters on a tour of White House Christmas decorations.

Asked if she found increased security difficult to live with, the first lady said she is "very happy to have it," especially considering the March 30 attack on her husband in which he was shot in the chest as he left a Washington hotel.

Security around the president and other top officials has been particularly intense in the wake of government assertions that Libyan assassination teams are in the United States.

Mrs. Reagan said she does most of her Christmas shopping from catalogs although some friends have advised her to don a disguise that would permit her to shop without being noticed. She said she hasn't tried the disguise idea yet and doesn't know if she will.

She said she doesn't know what to give her husband, but suggested it is likely to be a practical gift — perhaps something like the electric chain saw she got him one year.

What does he need?
"A Jeep, a tractor," she said.

Atlantic Richfield Co. donates oak trees

Atlantic Richfield Company will present 20 live oak trees to the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum at noon Friday on the museum grounds.

The trees will be donated as part of "The Growing Concern," a national program sponsored by Arco to aid communities in the landscaping of public areas.

Homer Fort, director of the Petroleum Museum, and Russell Ramsland, president of the museum's board of trustees, will accept the trees from Arco officials Clarence E. Cardwell Jr., vice president of the Permian District, and Robert Y. Walker, district business manager.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Wednesday, Dec. 9, 1981

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Comedian Redd Foxx, actress Dina Merrill, bull-fighter Luis Miguel Dominguez, jockey Willie Hartack and singer Donny Osmond celebrate birthdays today. You know instinctively that it does not do a bit of good to worry about the future if you are not working hard in the present. Your individualistic approach brings you new success at both work and home. Romance is mostly joyous and always interesting. Just remember that you are the type of person who is happier married than single! Casual flirtations will not satisfy your desire for stability. A new interest in cooking could lead to some memorable evenings and even a second career.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Stick to your work plans for the rest of the week. Concentrate on basic tasks. Financial ventures turn out even better than you hoped. Evening hours favor romance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An old friend could put you on the track of a profitable investment. Deal cautiously with people at a distance. Romance may force you to spend more money than you can afford.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Any transactions that can be completed today ought to receive top priority. Partnerships formed now will be profitable. Relatives and friends come to your aid.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cash is more likely to go out than come in today. Do not succumb to the wiles of those trying to use your money, contacts. Postpone signing contracts, documents. Choose trustworthy friends.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): The ideas come fast and thick today! Make certain they are practical ones before spending your time or money. Self-awareness is heightened now. Speak your mind about loved one.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Home decoration projects will increase property values and give your spirits a lift. Mate or romantic partner could present some interesting holiday plans. Listen carefully before airing your views!

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Social life may interfere with work. Greater self-discipline is required. Boss is likely to grant favors today. Curb an urge to be extravagant if going holiday shopping.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A happy day for affairs of the heart. Do not jump to conclusions. Be cautious if someone asks for financial backing or a loan. Social outings are mostly enjoyable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance is in the spotlight. This is a very sensitive day for those in love. Budget your money carefully and you will get through the holidays in good financial shape.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Member of opposite sex proves to be a better work ally than someone of your own sex. Seek mate's advice. The end results are fine. Guard against losing your temper.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Common sense provides the answers you need to settle a money matter. Postpone negotiating contracts, signing papers. Double-check the quality of any goods you buy at a bargain sale.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Deliveries may be slower than promised. Tackle problems one at a time. You deserve a treat. Set aside cash to buy new clothes. Romance gives you a more positive outlook.

We have become accustomed to thinking that games and slams are the excitement of contract bridge. Not so. A humble part score contract can offer the same challenge, perhaps more so, as a grand slam. Consider this hand, where excellent defense reaped a maximum reward.

East made his first good decision when he elected to pass two spades rather than compete. He judged that his hand was better suited to defense than offense, partly because his heart honors were unsupported and his hand was essentially flat. That was an accurate assessment—any three-level contract by East-West can be defeated easily.

Against two spades West led the jack of clubs. Declarer elected to win in hand and lead a diamond to the ten and East's king. Back came another club, again won in the closed hand. Declarer led his remaining diamonds West discarded a heart and East was in with the ace.

The lazy defense is to continue with a diamond. That, however, would have handed the contract to declarer. He would discard a club from his hand while West ruffed, and the defenders would collect only two more trump tricks—a heart would go on dummy's good diamond.

East found the only defense to defeat declarer—he returned a trump! West won the jack and the defenders were now positioned to score their trumps separately. West led a third club. East ruffed with the nine and returned a diamond for West to ruff with the ace. East still had the king of trumps for the setting trick.

A most unusual situation—the only way to make sure of getting a killing ruff is by leading a trump!

Rubber bridge clubs throughout the country use the four-deal bridge format. Do they know something you don't? Charles Goren's "Four-Deal Bridge" will teach you the strategies and tactics of this fast-paced action game that provides the cure for unending rubbers. Linus Pauling's wife dead after cancer illness

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Civil rights leader and peace activist Ava Helen Pauling, the wife of Nobel laureate Linus Pauling, is dead at the age of 77.

She died Monday after a lengthy bout with cancer.

Mrs. Pauling sought to expose the dangers of nuclear weapons, working alone and in tandem with her husband during their 58 years of marriage. In 1961, they arranged a symposium on the prevention of the spread of nuclear weapons that involved 60 scientists from 15 countries, including the Soviet Union and the United States.

The year after the conference was held, President John F. Kennedy announced a U.S. policy on nuclear proliferation that was essentially the same as the one that grew out of the symposium.

Nuke war fears spread anti-atom movement

By MIKE FEINSLBER
Associated Press Writer

Spurred by fear that nuclear war somehow has become an acceptable option in Washington, an anti-nuclear movement is developing grassroots strength across America. With arms talks now under way in Geneva, activists are gearing up for a spring offensive of quiet persuasion.

Unlike recent mass European demonstrations protesting deployment of U.S. missiles in other countries, the American disarmament drive is focusing on a freeze in atomic weapons production.

Already the movement has scored some victories:

— Twenty-four New England towns voted for a nuclear freeze.

— A Roman Catholic archbishop, Raymond G. Hunthausen of Seattle, advocates tax withholding, advising Christians that they should refuse to pay half their federal taxes "to the nuclear idol."

— Physicians attend seminars on "the ultimate epidemic;" 5,000 have participated in New York, Boston, Chicago, San Francisco, Seattle, Los Angeles, and Albuquerque, N.M. "We're saying the threat of nuclear war is the biggest medical problem facing the world today," says Abram Claude of Physicians for Social Responsibility.

— Even the staid Journal of the American Medical Association carried a plea that the world's doctors "join our scientific colleagues who have insistently, with an increasing sense of despair and urgency, attempted to alert humanity" to the dangers of nuclear war.

— A band of 40 is traveling from Bangor, Wash., to Moscow to stir interest in nuclear disengagement.

— Roger Molander, a National Security Council aide in the last three administrations, has organized a group known as Ground Zero. In early April, Ground Zero plans to sponsor discussions — at service club luncheons, in churches, schools and public meetings — of all sides of the nuclear question.

The National Freeze Clearinghouse in St. Louis says its campaign for a halt to the arms buildup has been endorsed by 46 national organizations, including the National Council of Churches, SANE, the Roman Catholic Pax Christi, and the Young Women's Christian Association.

Ben Wattenberg, a senior fellow at the American Enterprise Institute, a conservative-oriented think tank, says he finds no fault with the goals of the disarmament movement "as long as it isn't directed at the United States alone and doesn't give the Soviets a free pass."

A disarmament movement has long existed in the United States and in Europe, but it gained impetus when the Reagan administration laid plans to increase the U.S. nuclear arsenal and openly discussed the possibility of limited nuclear war.

President Reagan alarmed many on both sides of the Atlantic by saying last September that a limited nuclear war in Europe need not escalate into a superpower showdown. Meanwhile, he has been pushing for deployment of the new MX missile system, building 100 B1 bombers and developing a new Trident nuclear submarine as well as a submarine-launched cruise missile.

Eric Van Loon, director of the Union of Concerned Scientists, says that "without any question," statements by various administration members about the use of nuclear weapons has sparked disarmament sentiment.

"When you have the president saying we could have a limited nuclear war and the secretary of state saying we might have a demonstration nuclear explosion — that sends a message to the people that the firm line between conventional and nuclear weapons which has been emphasized by every president since Eisenhower appears to be blurring," he said.

"In small doses, those who make policy are adapting us to the idea that there can be a nuclear war," says June Jackson Christmas, a professor of behavioral science at City University of New York.

The disarmament activists aren't the kids in Army field jackets who marched against the war in Vietnam. The kids are back, but so are people who stood on the sidelines in the '60s and '70s. Many of them wear professional tweeds, doctor's whites and clerical collars.

This campaign is less strident, less gaudy, less chic, quieter — and, so far, smaller. Now the battlefield is in the town meeting and lecture halls, not the streets. More than 150 somber campus teach-ins on the consequences of a nuclear war drew 100,000 participants on Nov. 11.

This spring, disarmament activists will circulate petitions calling for an American-Soviet nuclear weapons freeze. The argument is that putting the arms race on hold is an achievable first step; already, 300,000 people have signed on the dotted line.

Why keep war going?

One of the strangest wars in history, the one between Iraq and Iran, continues even though after 14 months of hitting each other with ineffective jabs and counter jabs, both sides probably would like to call it off but don't quite know how.

Despite the fact that the conflict has been stalemated for more than a year, the costs somehow have mounted to the point that both sides have depleted their cash reserves and are having to live on austerity budgets to continue this stupid war.

Iraq, which had currency reserves estimated at $35 billion in September 1980, has had to borrow some $28 billion from Saudi Arabia and Kuwait in order to keep the standoff going. Iran, which had cash reserves between $12 billion and $14 billion in 1979, now is down to only about $2 billion in reserves.

In addition, each side has managed to knock out and block a large part of oil output of the other. Before Iranian planes destroyed Iraq's Persian Gulf loading stations, Iraq was producing 3 million barrels of oil a day. Its production is now only 900,000 barrels a day.

Fanatical followers of the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini already had destroyed a large part of Iran's oil production before the war began. Under the shah, production had been as high as 6 million barrels a day. When the war with Iraq started, production already had fallen to a little more than a million barrels a day. The war has prevented Iran from increasing that production and it still exports only about 900,000 barrels a day.

Iraq never had any grounds in the first place for starting the war against Iran, except that its leaders thought they could win a quick victory over Iran at a time when it was at a low ebb following the toppling of the shah and the execution and exile of many Iranian Army officers.

Perhaps the best solution would be for both sides to declare themselves winners, withdraw their forces and keep the boundary exactly as it was before they began knocking themselves out by incessantly swinging at each other and missing.

Linen closet is bare

Like a lot of others, we were shocked to discover that those big-spending Democrats who occupied the White House in the past 20 years never saw fit to put a few hundred thousand into buying a decent set of china, something that wouldn't embarrass the first lady during a formal dinner party. But we were even less prepared for the "terrible tablecloth crisis" just disclosed by Muffie Brandon, Nancy Reagan's social secretary, who says things have become so desperate that recently she was forced to take needle and thread in hand just before the luncheon guests arrived and stitch up a rip with her own social secretary hands.

There have been other calamities. One time, says Muffie Brandon, one set of tablecloths, to her "complete and utter horror," went to the cleaners and shrunk. At times, Muffie Brandon sounds almost like David Stockman contemplating the effects of those supply-side tax cuts.

We assume that by now the problem is on its way to solution, in part because of the hundreds of tablecloths that must by now be pouring in at 1600 Pennsylvania

Ave. and in part because of what we assume will be a well-organized rescue mission on the part of the K'itchen Cabinet, a group of Ronald Reagan's political friends whose name could hardly be more appropriate for such an occasion.

Earlier this year, friends of the Reagans raised $800,000 in tax-deductible contributions to refurbish those rundown White House living quarters. That money is all gone — spent restoring 150 pieces of furniture, replacing 72 lamp shades and 18 carpets; buying new curtains for 26 windows, replacing fittings in eight bathrooms, and so on. But that, we're sure, will not impede the replacement of the table linen — when a real national crisis is at hand, people will respond. The new dishes, incidentally, will start arriving in a couple of weeks. We think the new set should be called the People's China.

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

AID officials allowing Bangladesh corruption

WASHINGTON — The starving peasants of Bangladesh are robbed of American food shipments by one of the most corrupt bureaucracies in the world, as I previously reported. What makes this particularly shocking is that another bureaucracy — the U.S. Agency for International Development — has allowed this scandal to go on.

I sent my roving correspondent, Peter Grant, to find out why the poor people of Bangladesh are still starving after $1.5 billion in American aid has been sent to them over the past 10 years. He found that rampant official corruption and deliberate Bangladesh government policy were giving American grain to the well-to-do and the profiteers, instead of to the poverty-stricken peasants for whom it was intended.

Jack Anderson

AID officials on the scene and in Washington could have put a stop to this heartless corruption, but they were more interested in guaranteeing their annual budget than in making the program work. Food, intended as a weapon against human misery and political unrest, was instead turned into a budgetary weapon to protect the little empires of entrenched bureaucratic fat cats.

AID's dealings with CARE, the relief organization whose professional administrators are in charge of the Food for Work program in Bangladesh, provided a disturbing example of this self-serving operation by U.S. swivel-chair jockeys.

Food for Work is a simple enough idea: The United States donates grain to be paid as wages for workers who build roads, canals, levees and other needed development projects. Because the work is unpleasant and the wages modest, the program naturally attracts only the poorest of the poor — the very ones for whom Congress intends U.S. aid to be earmarked.

Under contract with AID and the Bangladesh government, CARE's experienced administrators have been trying throughout the five-year history of Food for Work to see to it that U.S. grain is properly dispensed. But CARE officials have found both AID and Bangladesh working against them. Some examples:

— The CARE field staff regularly uncovered instances of workers being cheated on their meager wages or being paid in practically inedible grain. Neither U.S. nor Bangladesh officials did anything to correct these abuses when CARE reported them.

— Many projects of dubious quality were accepted by lenient AID officials. One such project was supposed to have raised a three-mile stretch of road four feet to keep it from flooding during the rainy season. Yet six months after completion, my correspondent drove only one mile before he had to turn his Jeep back; erosion had made the road impassable.

— When CARE rejects work projects it considers impractical, AID officials — determined to meet their distribution goal — pressure for reconsideration. In one district last year, three out of four "reconsidered" projects were failures, as CARE had predicted. One was an embankment that promptly slid into the river it was supposed to deflect.

— In a rare moment of candor, an AID official explained why meeting the food distribution goal is so important — to the bureaucrats. If all the budgeted wheat for a given year is not dispensed, he said, AID's Bangladesh operation would "lose the assistance to Cambodian refugees" the following year!

WHAT'S NEXT? AID officials have been afraid to offend the Bangladesh government by using U.S. food as a lever to produce needed reforms. Fortunately, CARE has shown more guts.

Last year CARE proposed changes that would give it greater control, including the right to punish abuses. Since CARE was the only outfit with sufficient expertise to run the Food for Work program, AID reluctantly agreed to lobby for the changes with the Bangladesh government. But Bangladesh officials are still dragging their feet.

PENTAGON PIPELINE: Assistant Defense Secretary Lawrence Korb has won approval from his boss, Caspar Weinberger, for a plan that would give the armed services a juicy incentive to shut down unnecessary facilities: The services would get to pocket the proceeds from sale of the bases.

But Korb foresees trouble from jealous civilians at the General Services Administration, which by law is entrusted with disposing of government property. "GSA and its oversight committees on government operations would bitterly oppose any change in law that allowed DOD to sell property," Korb warned.

Although Korb insists that proceeds from any sales would have to be spent according to strict guidelines, critics suspect the money might wind up in military slush funds.

The Air Force wanted to build a training base a few miles from the Kitt Peak National Observatory in Arizona. But the scientists protested that jet emissions would ruin their view of the heavens, possibly causing the National Science Foundation to scrap their $100 million solar telescope, the world's largest. The Air Force agreed to put its base somewhere else.

WATCH ON WASTE: Will Adidas replace Freud in the treatment of depression? The National Institute of Mental Health evidently thinks it's possible. NIMH has given a researcher almost $10,000 to study the effects of jogging on individuals suffering from "moderate" depression. The researcher will also compare the effectiveness of meditation, traditional psychotherapy — and no treatment at all — to the benefits of jogging.

INSIDE REPORT:

Top White House aide to 'restructure' disabled NSC staff

WASHINGTON — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III has privately informed National Security Council (NSC) staffers that he is assigning a top White House aide to the job of "restructuring" the disabled NSC system — a strong indication President Reagan has not been happy with it.

Meese also confided to the large NSC staff that he personally hoped Richard V. Allen, now on "administrative leave" pending further investigation of alleged improprieties, would return. But he added there are no assurances of that.

NSC staffers have been even more demoralized than usual since Allen got in trouble over that $1,000 honorarium from a Japanese magazine and his pre-inaugural financial statement. Meese's promise of major surgery for the battered NSC bureaucracy was a glimmer of hope, but expectations remain low. Most staffers doubt that Allen will ever return to his old job.

easy exit from the White House for Richard V. Allen would be the U.S. Embassy in Tokyo is blocked by refusal of the Japanese government.

Even before Allen's current difficulties, it was widely reported in Washington that he soon would end up replacing former senator Mike Mansfield as ambassador to Japan. But well-placed State Department officials say there are hard indications from Tokyo that the government would not give the 'agreement' to Allen — the approval needed for appointment of an ambassador.

That refusal has nothing to do with the $1,000 honorarium. Allen, though well known in Japan, has at least as many enemies there as friends. That may be why the Japanese government considers the drop in prestige from Mansfield to Allen the equivalent of a diplomatic insult.

KEMP SAYS NO

Rep. Jack Kemp, usually one of President Reagan's staunchest advocates in Congress, has turned down a personal plea from Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan to bail out the administration on foreign aid.

Instead, Kemp will press his amendment to cut the proposed U.S. contribution to the International Development Association (IDA) from $850 million down to $620 million — a meat-ax cut nearly sure to pass. Kemp has argued that IDA contributions throw good money after bad in Third World countries.

Regan pleaded with Kemp to make some kind of arrangement on the IDA question. Other administration officials hinted Regan might be prepared to give Kemp some concessions on next year's Gold Commission report. But after sleeping on it, Kemp decided no deal. He told aides: "We've given away enough in this administration." That signified his regret about agreeing to postponement of the Kemp-Roth tax cut earlier this year.

STAYING SENATE EXECUTION

Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker abruptly reversed his previous decision not to delay the Senate proceedings against Sen. Harrison Williams of New Jersey only because Williams' Senate lawyer, the widely-respected Democratic senator Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, made an unexpectedly strong plea for delay.

Democratic responsibility for the delay takes the Republican curse off possible expulsion of the Democratic senator after Republican governor-elect Thomas Kean takes office in Trenton Jan. 19. But if Williams is denied a new Abscam trial on his claims of new evidence, he may resign from the Senate before Jan. 19 — leaving the appointment with lame-duck Democratic governor Brendan Byrne.

A footnote: Williams had a hard time finding a fellow senator to defend him, and Inouye consented only reluctantly. Senate Minority Whip Alan Cranston almost agreed, but Minority Leader Robert Byrd convinced him that it would be unwise to associate the Senate Democratic leadership with the Williams case.

THE STRANGE ALLIANCE

Pentagon hard-liners credit a tough report by three staffers of the Democratic-controlled House Foreign Affairs Committee for defeating a major congressional effort to veto

President Reagan's proposed sale of 40 F-16 aircraft to Pakistan.

Defense Department officials had feared the House staffers would return from a three-week investigation in Pakistan with political ammunition against the deal, which was strongly opposed by liberal Democrats. In fact, the actual report is viewed at the Pentagon as "turning the tide" in favor of the sale.

One explanation: Pakistan President Zia ul-Haq encouraged the congressional probers to sound out opinion on the deal among his political enemies. Instead of using their hatred for Zia as a pretext to oppose his rearmament efforts against Soviet threats from Afghanistan, Zia's opposition supported the F-16 deal down the line. The congressional report concluded that "cancellation" of the deal would "possibly force Pakistan toward some face-saving accommodation with the U.S.S.R."

LETTERS

Editorial sparks reader's rebuttal

To The Editor: Very rarely do I write to an editor, however your editorial in Sunday's paper (Nov. 29th) concerning the Coolidge administration and Mr. Walter Mondel was so erroneous that it simply could not be ignored.

The writer was a young man in the midwest just entering the job market during the Harding-Coolidge administration and since your quote that the people never had it so good before or after Coolidge we will start with Harding.

In the early part of Harding's term (1922) the nation was in a very bad depression, unemployment was much higher than your quoted figure, corn was bringing the astronomical price of ten cents a bushel and most farmers as well as many others were using it as fuel to heat their homes because it was cheaper than coal, consumer prices were low because hardly any one had much money, also, we were in the middle of the worst scandal in our history up to that time. Teapot Dome, involving Interior Secretary Fall, Attorney General Duergherty, oil man Sinclair and a host of others.

Harding died before completion of his term and Coolidge took over and things remained pretty much the same except there were no scandals, he was considered by many people as a scoundrel, but he was no fool and he chose not to run for another term because it was very unlikely he could be re-elected, so then we got Mr. Herbert Hoover and any one old enough to remember the greatest depression in our history will never forget that night mare.

It also might be appropriate to point out that in the last 75 or 80 years every major depression, and every major scandal has occurred during a Republican administration.

Come on Mr. Editor, instead of that right wing radical propaganda, why not tell it like it was.

To The Editor:

The annual merchandising binge which passes for Christmas in this materialistic day and age has begun — watch television or read the newspapers if you do not believe me. However, let me remind you that there are many in Midland who will not share in the spirited season now upon us. Had we not ought to do something for them? Yes, let's have Midland's second annual "No Ball At All Ball!"

You ask "what sort of a ball is that?" Well, let me explain. To go to a "No Ball At All Ball!" one merely selects a night in the holiday season and then stays home. After a glass of good ol' Gallo or Italian Swiss instead of Dom Perignon its off to bed for a sound night's sleep. However, the ball does not end with only that as on awakening the morning morn with a clear head, one compiles a list of what expenses would have been had one gone to a really top-dog blow out.

The husband's list would include such items as subscription tickets, transportation, booze, a floppy shirt-tie, dancing lessons (as he probably has forgotten how), rental of a curious modern-day dinner jacket (powder blue with pink piping, if you will) and a droll Liberace-style ruffled shirt. The lovely ladies' lists would include the costs of a ball-gown ($250 and up), furs (even more), flowers, manicure, pedicure, hair-dresser and a myriad of cosmetic jizzums. The party ends with one writing out a check for the list total (it could be a sizeable sum) and sending it to any one of Midland's many charitable organizations.

It will certainly help bring joy to somebody less fortunate and one will certainly feel better for what has been done. Try it — a warm feeling is guaranteed.

Harrelson given 40-year sentence on drug charge

VAN HORN, Texas (AP) — Charles Harrelson, a convicted hit man who has been called a suspect in the slaying of a federal judge, was sentenced to 40 years in prison on an unrelated cocaine possession charge Monday after changing his plea to no contest.

District Judge Sam Callan also sentenced Harrelson to 10 years in prison on a charge of being a felon in possession of a firearm after Harrelson pleaded no contest to that charge.

The two sentences are to run concurrently. Harrelson could have been sentenced to up to life imprisonment on the cocaine charge and 20 years in prison on the weapons charge.

The decision to change the plea came after Callan ruled that law enforcement officers' search of a shoulder bag containing 7.8 ounces of cocaine was legal.

"If the judge is going to let the evidence in, I don't see any reason to go to a jury trial," said Harrelson's lawyer, Joe Chagra of El Paso.

The plea was entered with Callan's agreement that there could be an appeal of his denial of Chagra's pre-trial motion to suppress the evidence from the search.

Federal agents have called Harrelson and Chagra's brother, Jimmy, suspects in the May 29, 1979 slaying of U.S. District Judge John Wood Jr. in San Antonio.

No indictments have been returned in the judge's slaying.

Harrelson's wife was convicted last month of using a false name to buy a hunting rifle. Investigators said the bullet that killed Wood could have been fired from a gun like the one she bought.

Mrs. Harrelson wiped tears from her eyes Monday as her husband entered his no contest pleas.

Earlier Monday, a state trooper testified that Harrelson, 43, told law enforcement officers he considered Wood's assassination a suicide.

Judge Callan and attorneys for both sides had expressed worry that pre-trial publicity linked to the investigation of the Wood killing would make it difficult to seat a jury for a trial on the cocaine charge. A jury had not been empaneled when Harrelson changed his plea.

Callan carefully detailed all of Harrelson's rights before accepting the plea, telling Harrelson, "You could be a pretty old man when you got out of prison."

"I understand that," said Harrelson, who last month was sentenced to 20 years in prison on a firearms charge in Houston. He previously served six years of a 15-year prison sentence after being convicted for the 1968 murder-for-hire of a Texas grain dealer.

Harrelson's case was based on his lawyer's contention that police should have obtained a warrant before searching a shoulder bag Harrelson held during a four-hour standoff with police the night of Aug. 31, 1980.

The standoff began when police went to Harrelson's motel to investigate a service station attendant's report that Harrelson was carrying a gun. The officers were unaware of Harrelson's identity until Harrelson told them.

During the standoff, Harrelson held a .44-caliber revolver to his chin to keep police at bay. He surrendered in the early hours of Sept. 1, 1980 after police brought a former employer, Virginia Farah, to the scene.

In testimony during the hearing on the motion, Harrelson said he asked that Mrs. Farah be brought from El Paso to Van Horn because he feared retaliation by police officers.

"I just wanted someone to be present when I was arrested," the professional gambler said. "I explained that I was a fugitive from Houston and I wanted to surrender but I wanted someone there when I did it."

Harrelson also said he warned Department of Public Safety agent Jerry Tolbert not to search the bag containing the cocaine without a warrant.

"I told Mr. Tolbert that if he opened that bag before he got a search warrant, he was going to blow any case he had against me," Harrelson said.

Sulphur Springs dairy farmer again convicted of wife's murder

COOPER, Texas (AP) — For the second time in a year Billy Ray Wallace has been found guilty of murdering his wife. This time he could be sentenced to die.

Wallace, a Sulphur Springs dairy farmer, previously had been sentenced to life imprisonment for the 1979 strangulation of Janyth Kay Wallace, but was released on a technicality.

On Monday, a jury deliberated six hours before finding Wallace guilty of capital murder. Arguments in the punishment phase of the trial begin today.

Wallace was re-indicted in the case when an employee testified Wallace hired him to kill Mrs. Wallace.

The woman disappeared in July 1979. Her body was found six months later and Wallace was arrested the next day, Dec. 6, 1979.

19-year-old woman's body found

HENRIETTA, Texas (AP) — The body of a 19-year-old North Texas woman, found in a patch of weeds a week after she was reported missing, was sent to a Dallas pathology laboratory for an autopsy, Clay County officials said.

Sharon Hudnell, reported missing by her parents Nov. 30, was found dead Sunday afternoon by three quail hunters. She was lying in some weeds alongside a dirt road, not from from U.S. 287 in northwestern Clay County, said deputy Dexter Parnell.

Preliminary reports indicate she died from a gunshot wound to the back of the head, Parnell said. She apparently had been dead less than 48 hours when the body was discovered, he added.

Five arrested in cocaine raid

HOUSTON (AP) — A two-month undercover investigation by six police agencies culminated in the arrests of five people and seizure of five pounds of "high-grade" cocaine, a Department of Public Safety officer said.

Three men from Miami and a Houston couple were arrested and would be charged today with "aggravated delivery of a controlled substance," said DPS spokesman David Wells.

Jury to consider shooting of son

HOUSTON (AP) — Police plan to let a Harris County grand jury consider the case of a 55-year-old father who says he shot and seriously wounded his 15-year-old son because the boy beat his parents, a spokeswoman says.

The boy was in critical but stable condition Monday night. Police Detective R.D. Anderson said the father fired at his son "several times" with a .25-caliber pistol after the boy allegedly threatened him.

A spokeswoman said the case has been referred to a grand jury for consideration of possible charges.

Desegregation plan rejected

DALLAS (AP) — A Dallas federal judge has rejected a school district plan that would have eliminated mandatory busing for black and Hispanic students, removing an issue that had divided the principals in a desegregation suit for 11 years.

U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders ruled Monday that he could not approve the plan and still abide by a 1978 appeals court decision.

Sanders also said, in his 7-page opinion, that such a major change in the Dallas Independent School District's desegregation program "would adversely affect the stability of the desegregation already achieved."

The current plan went into effect in 1976.

Discovery of skeleton may solve girl's disappearance

FORT STOCKTON, Texas (AP) — A small, dirt-covered skeleton found in a remote section of Pecos County may help investigators solve the baffling case of a girl who vanished seven years ago.

The partial skeleton was sent to a forensic laboratory in Dallas for analysis and possible identification, said Pecos County deputy Cliff Harris.

"We may never know for sure who it was," he said. "Maybe the lab in Dallas can tell us."

Harris said the skeleton could be that of Dessie May Holt, who disappeared July 19, 1974.

"We're trying to tie it (the skeleton) to her disappearance," he said, "but right now it's all speculation. We did find a cheap little ring — one of those you get out of a vending machine — beside the body."

"We're trying to get in touch with the girl's relatives now, to see if they can come identify the ring."

Dessie May was 7 years old in 1974. Her clothes were found five miles south of Fort Stockton but no other trace of her was ever seen, despite an intensive search by law enforcement agencies.

A hunter from Ozona reported finding parts of a small human skeleton while he was hunting Saturday. Harris and two other deputies went to the scene, a remote area near U.S. 285, some 20 miles south of where the girl's clothes had been found seven years earlier.

"There was suspicion of foul play when she disappeared," Harris said, "and they (investigators) have questioned several suspects but never did come up with anything."

The CD for All Savers... From First National

Now, First National offers a program for "all savers" to enjoy savings with high interest yield plus a tax benefit. It's called the All Savers Certificate of Deposit.

Here's how it works: From now until December 31, 1982, you may invest as little as $500 in a First National All Savers CD for a maturity of one year. During that year, interest earned by the CD may be excluded from your taxable income up to a maximum $2,000 for couples filing joint tax returns, $1,000 for those filing separately. The current annual rate is 10.77%.

The interest rate on the CD will change every 4 weeks, but the rate in effect at the time you invest is fixed for the full one year term. Although the interest rate is not compounded, you may receive interest payments monthly, quarterly or upon maturity. If the CD principal is withdrawn prior to maturity, the tax exclusion is forfeited and there is substantial penalty. Deposits are insured by the FDIC.

Compare First National's All Savers Certificate to other investment alternatives, consider your tax plan, then visit one of our CD representatives in our main lobby.

Court to decide fate of Green Beret doctor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court soon will decide whether Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald is a free man once and for all, or a convicted murderer again.

The court heard arguments Monday in the highly publicized case of the Green Beret doctor convicted of killing his pregnant wife and two young daughters nearly 12 years ago.

The justices traditionally take preliminary secret votes Wednesday to determine tentatively how the cases heard that week will be decided and who will write the majority opinion.

For MacDonald, that vote will mean either full and final freedom or a reinstatement of the murder conviction a federal appeals court struck down last year on grounds MacDonald's constitutional right to a speedy trial was violated.

It will be the third time the nation's highest court has acted in MacDonald's case.

Former Green Beret doctor, Dr. Jeffrey MacDonald, right, and attorney Bernie Segal leave the Supreme Court building Monday after their case was heard before the high court.

THE COURT RULED AGAINST him the other two times, once finding that the delayed prosecution did not represent double jeopardy and, later, that a lower federal appeals court erred in dismissing the state charges in advance of an actual trial.

Announcement of the latest decision is expected by July. Arguing that MacDonald had received a fair and timely trial, Justice Department lawyer Alan Horowitz said the doctor should not "be set free forever because the government took great care and time" in deciding whether it should prosecute.

But Philadelphia lawyer Ralph Spritzer argued for MacDonald that an "inordinate delay" caused by government "neglect" had hurt the doctor's chances of acquittal.

MacDonald, free on bail, is director of emergency services at St. Mary Medical Center in Long Beach, Calif. He was a captain in the Army Medical Corps assigned to the Green Berets at Fort Bragg, N.C., when his legal odyssey began.

MILITARY POLICE CALLED to the MacDonald home Feb. 17, 1970 found the doctor's wife, Colette, 24, and the couple's two daughters, Kimberly, 6, and Kristen, 3, bludgeoned to death. MacDonald had suffered 17 knife wounds.

He told police four drug-crazed "hippies" invaded his home and killed his family. He was arrested by military police on charges of murder, but later was cleared.

Five years later, a federal grand jury in Raleigh, N.C., indicted him for murder. He was convicted in 1979.

MacDonald, present for Monday's oral arguments, was cautious in his reaction. "We'll have to wait and see what the Supreme Court does," he said.

Asked if he had formed any opinion of what the justices might do, MacDonald answered, "It's been a 12-year struggle. I don't have instantaneous thoughts."

WHEN MACDONALD RESPONDED to another question by giving his age as 38, one of his lawyers added, "...going on 50."

In other matters Monday, the court: —Agreed to decide in a case from Lynchburg, Va., whether a union that fails to properly help an unjustifiably fired member may be forced to reimburse part of his lost pay. —Said it will decide in a case from Irvine, Texas, whether minority members who sue their employer for allegedly denying them promotions because of illegal bias can represent, in the same lawsuit, minority members who never got hired because of the alleged bias. —Heard arguments over whether New Hampshire can keep all the hydroelectric power generated within its borders and not transmit some of it to other states.

Mandel starts work today

Former governor living in halfway house

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former Maryland Gov. Marvin Mandel apparently is to begin work today at a full-time job after having explored what his attorney calls "a wide variety" of prospects.

Mandel landed the position Monday after at least one job interview, according to information gleaned from officials at the halfway house here where he must remain until Dec. 20.

The former Democratic governor, freed from federal prison last week by a presidential order, declined to speak to reporters Monday night at the Volunteers of America halfway house, where he is to live the next nine days before returning to full freedom.

But Dennis Sharosky, program director at the facility, confirmed that Mandel would not have to report to the halfway house tonight until 10 p.m., a privilege granted only to those residents who have secured full-time employment.

UNEMPLOYED RESIDENTS AT THE facility are required to return to the halfway house by 3 p.m., but Mandel was granted an extension Monday to attend a late-afternoon job interview.

Details could not be obtained concerning the new job, but a lawyer for Mandel said the former state chief executive had decided to decline Mayor William Donald Schaefer's offer of a work-release job at City Hall as a temporary budget analyst.

Attorney Arnold Wiener said Monday that although the 62-year-old Mandel was gratified by the job offer, he had decided to look elsewhere.

"It (the job offer) was well-received as an expression of confidence in his abilities and the fact that he could continue to make a meaningful contribution," Wiener said.

Weiner said Mandel had many other job options, but declined to elaborate.

"HE'S TALKING TO A LOT of people. He's already been given a wide variety of opportunities, a very broad range of endeavors," Wiener added.

Mandel was released Friday from federal prison at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida after President Reagan commuted the former governor's three-year sentence for mail fraud and racketeering.

Meanwhile, Bruce Bereano, another of Mandel's lawyers who was instrumental in obtaining Washington support for Reagan's commutation of Mandel's sentence, said an attempt to have Mandel moved to a work-release facility in Anne Arundel County, closer to his home in Annapolis, had been abandoned.

Bereano said Mandel's stay at the Baltimore facility was short and that the former governor found conditions there satisfactory.

AT THE VOA HALFWAY HOUSE, Mandel will be evaluated by a team of counselors. He will be given his own program by a VOA counselor aimed at helping him make the transition from being a federal inmate to rejoining the work force.

An organization of state troopers also had discussed hiring Mandel as a lobbyist, but he ruled out that possibility because "right now I'm not sure it would be useful to anyone concerned."

Hinckley competent to stand trial, lawyers agree

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a Nov. 15 suicide attempt, John W. Hinckley Jr. is competent to stand trial on charges he shot President Reagan, defense lawyers and prosecutors agree.

Defense lawyers Vincent J. Fuller and Gregory B. Craig told a federal judge of their conclusion about Hinckley's competence in a two-page memorandum filed Monday in U.S. District Court.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Roger M. Adelman also filed a memorandum stating that Hinckley was examined after the attempted suicide, but did not reveal a conclusion. However, a Justice Department source, who asked not to be identified, said the government agrees Hinckley is competent to stand trial.

Using a jacket as a makeshift noose, Hinckley tried to hang himself Nov. 15 in his Fort Meade, Md., cell.

After the suicide attempt, U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker said he was concerned about Hinckley's competency. Parker ruled last Aug. 28 that the judge ordered the medical findings sealed.

In the defense memo, Fuller and Craig said, "At this time, we believe

THE JUDGE, WHO will decide the competency question, has scheduled a hearing on the issue next Monday.

Parker had asked the government and defense to submit memos on the issue. Although Hinckley has been examined by doctors for both sides, the judge ordered the medical findings sealed.

In the defense memo, Fuller and Craig said, "At this time, we believe that Mr. Hinckley is competent to stand trial ... and that no evidentiary hearing on that issue is presently required. Should there be a material change in Mr. Hinckley's condition, we will, of course, promptly so advise the court."

The prosecution memorandum said Hinckley has undergone "a complete series of psychiatric examinations.

HOW TO EARN UP TO $2,000 INTEREST AT THE DROP OF A HAT.

★ Introducing a financial first. From First Savings & Loan Association of Midland. The All Saver's Certificate, a fully insured savings plan that earns up to $1,000 tax-free interest on individual returns or $2,000 tax-free interest* if you file a joint return.

★ Now for the first time, Uncle Sam will not only fully insure your savings plan, he'll give you a tax break on it as well. Here's how it works: to equal an assumed tax-exempt yield of 12½%, a taxable investment would have to earn 17.86% if your family income is $25,000 and your tax bracket is 30%.

★ Just check the chart.

IF YOUR FAMILY INCOME IS:	YOUR TAX BRACKET PROBABLY IS:	THE INTEREST RATE YOU'D HAVE TO RECEIVE TO NET 12.5% AFTER FEDERAL INCOME TAX IS:
$50,000	50%	25%
$35,000	40%	20.83%
$25,000	30%	17.86%
$20,000	25%	16.67%

Figures above are approximate and based on 1981 tax tables. Interest rate on 12.5% is an assumed average investment yield on the All Saver's Certificate. Actual rate is 70% of the average investment yield on one-year treasury bills at date of purchase.

★ You can see why the All Saver's Certificate is a savings breakthrough. But you may not see it for long. The program begins October 1, 1981 and ends December 31, 1982. So hurry to First Savings and Loan Association of Midland and purchase your All Saver's Certificates.

DEAR ABBY

Tattletale deserved to be told off

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When I first read the letter from "Concerned Mom," whose husband grounded their 12-year-old son for reporting the neighbors to the police without consulting his parents, I agreed with your answer: "The boy's motives may not have been all that commendable." (The police confiscated two dying marijuana plants in the neighbor's garden.)

In a later column you ran some letters objecting to your answer.

Those letters contained one common element — the illegality of marijuana, which is not in dispute. The issue was: Should the kid have called the police without consulting his parents? (Note that this was not a violent crime or one that had to be reported NOW to ensure that the criminals did not escape.)

I think for the boy to have informed the police without consulting his parents was sneaky, disrespectful and plain rotten! Two of the letters praised the boy for informing on his neighbors — one even stated that he should have done so secretly. That technique is used in Soviet Russia. The children are decorated for informing on their neighbors, and parents too! The Nazis did the same thing in Germany. What a dangerous tradition to establish.

I think your answer was right on, Abby. Don't back down! — CONCERNED COLLEGE STUDENT

DEAR CONCERNED: Since giving equal time to my detractors, I've heard from an impressive number of supporters. Thanks to you and all the others who wrote. In my heart I knew I was right.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 12 years to a man I thought would always be faithful. Jim was my one and only love, and I thought I was his.

After we had three children, I had a hysterectomy, so there's no chance of my having any more babies.

Last week I noticed Jim was walking funny, and he acted like he was in pain. At first he said nothing was wrong, then he admitted that he had had a vasectomy on his lunch hour!

Abby, since I've had a hysterectomy, why should my husband need a vasectomy? — DISILLUSIONED

DEAR DIS: Maybe he doesn't trust your hysterectomy.

DEAR ABBY: Because of a recent suggestion in your column, I have made some changes in my choice of Christmas gifts.

I had planned to give all my grandchildren sweaters with their names on them in great big letters.

You pointed out that a child molester could approach a child and, noting the "Linda," "Jimmy" or "Suzie" on the sweater, pretend to be a friend of the family and address the child by name. The child, of course, would then believe the stranger could be trusted.

Abby, a million thanks for discouraging children's clothing bearing the child's name. For identification purposes, the name of the child can be sewn on the inside of the garment. — SECOND THOUGHTS

DEAR ABBY: For the past few years, our family has met at each other's homes for holiday dinners, and we all bring something for the dinner.

When there are leftovers, should they remain at the home of the hostess? Or does the person who brought whatever is left over get to take it home?

Thanksgiving, Cousin Joe brought two bottles of vodka. The crowd drank only one and a half, so Joe grabbed the half-bottle and took it home with him. Was that proper?

Cousin Marge brought a turkey. She kept remarking on how "cheated" she felt because she wouldn't have any leftovers. (There was a little turkey and dressing left over.) Should the hostess have picked up the hint and told Marge she could take home the leftovers?

Please answer in the column. There must be others who have family dinners and want to know what to do about leftovers. — FAMILY DINNER

DEAR FAMILY: Leftovers should be left with the host and/or hostess. If they want to share them with the guests, it's their option. I think it's tacky to take home an open bottle of liquor or wine.

(Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (35 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 12060 Hawthorne Blvd., Suite 5000, Hawthorne, Calif. 90250.)

Jaycettes to host auction Saturday

Russell Charmack

What can be bought as an investment that is partially tax deductible, has no sales tax, appreciates at a rate of 10-33 percent a year, and is a thing of beauty?

A work of art. And, bought at an art auction sponsored by a non-profit organization, it does all of the above and more, according to Russell Charmack, managing director and owner of the Marina Art Gallery in Nyack, N.Y.

The Midland Jaycettes, in conjunction with the Texas Jaycettes, will be sponsoring just such an auction on Saturday, December 12, at 2 p.m. at Theatre Midland.

The auction is considered a significant event by its sponsors not only because of its charitable aspects, but because it is the only fine art available for sale to local residents.

"Aside from the museums, this is the only opportunity we have in this area to actually view, much less buy, famous work by today's masters," said Vicky Morris, chairwoman of the project. "Rather than spending our money in Dallas or Houston, the auction will provide an excellent opportunity for Midlanders to purchase quality art locally."

"Even those who are not interested in buying an item are encouraged to attend," said Stacy Caudle, co-chairwoman. "We would like to be an integral force in initiating a higher level of art awareness in the community."

During his recent visit to Midland, Charmack explained that the minimum starting bid will be substantially lower than gallery price. As the bidding approaches the established retail price, the audience is informed that the bidding has reached the national fair trade value. At this juncture the piece is sold, and the buyer is assured that his purchase is at fair market value.

It promises to be no ordinary auction because Charmack will bring with him the work of some of the world's great artists. The pieces, beginning at $35 in price, will include oils, lithographs, watercolors, batiks and etchings from world renowned artists Marc Chagall, Norman Rockwell, LeRoy Nieman, Peter Hurd, Sara Churchill, Peter Max, Salvador Dali, and Joan Miro.

Other artists to be represented are William Nelson, the official artist of the Montreal Olympics; Stephen Cohen, the NBC Nightly News artist; Gerald L. Luback, David Lee, and Kathleen Cantin.

"A fine work of art is an excellent investment, one that appreciates in value at an enormous rate, and at the same time can also be appreciated by the owners," said Charmack. He will present a certificate of authenticity and a biography of the artist with every piece sold.

Charmack said as far as he knows, his is the only functioning gallery that also is involved in fund-raising auctions, and the effects are overwhelming. "People are exposed to art and have art to take home," he said. "They feel good about contributing to a worthwhile cause, and I feel good about making charitable contributions and promoting art."

Admission is free; however, for a $5 donation to the Midland Jaycettes, one may become a Patron of the Arts, which will entitle these donors to bid on select pieces available only to Patrons. Refreshments will be served during the preview party beginning at 12:30 p.m., with the actual bidding and auction beginning to 2 p.m.

CLUB NEWS

Midland Garden Club marks 40th anniversary

MIDLAND GARDEN CLUB

The Midland Garden Club celebrated its 40th anniversary with a meeting in the home of Mrs. John Grimland Jr., who was assisted by Mrs. Harold Holt and Mrs. Steve Currie.

The annual project, a Christmas money tree for the Big Spring State Hospital, was exhibited.

Attire for members of the club was "Clothes of Yesteryear." Mrs. Holt's daughter, Mrs. Barbara McLelland, modeled her great-grandmother's handmade gown of 1850, winning first place for the oldest dress. Mrs. C. E. Bissell wore her grandmother's 1886 gown made by her mother, Mrs. Howard, and received second place. Mrs. H. W. Diggs wore a bathing suit of 1900 as the third oldest attire.

Mrs. Jack Griffin introduced a special guest, Mrs. Keith Somerville, president of the Midland Council of Garden Clubs, Inc., who spoke on progress made in having a garden center located north of the Midland Woman's Club building. She also reported on contributions to the building fund.

Among the other guests attending were the former past presidents, Mrs. William H. Gilmore, 1942-43; Mrs. William Neely, 1847-48; Mrs. Earl Chapman, 1960-61; Mrs. Francis McGuigan, 1968-69; Mrs. I. W. Hynd, 1975-76; Mrs. S. P. Crain, 1968-69. Also five club members attending were past presidents.

The nominating committee for 1982-83 appointed included Mrs. Walter Putnam, Mrs. Currie and Mrs. Bissell.

WOMAN'S WEDNESDAY CLUB

The Woman's Wednesday Club was entertained at its annual-Christmas guest day by Mrs. Camden Chancellor of Odessa. The theme of Mrs. Chancellor's program was "How to do Your Christmas Shopping in Two Hours."

Miss Lola Thomas played piano selections of Christmas music as the guests and members assembled in the auditorium of the Midland Woman's Club. Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. Wallace Craig and Mrs. William Gilmore.

LT. WILLIAM BREWER CHAPTER, DAR

The Lt. William Brewer Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution met recently in the home of Mrs. John F. Younger, 1505 W. Cuthbert St., for its annual Christmas tea and guest day. Assisting Mrs. Younger were the hostesses Mrs. E. H. Judson, Mrs. Glen Allison, Mrs. C. R. Ervin, Mrs. J. Harvey Herd, Mrs. William H. Thams and Mrs. Fred Wright.

A traditional Christmas village scene was used on the hospitality table.

PRECEPTOR EPSILON CHAPTER, BSP

Mrs. Marilyn Butler, 4826 W. Illinois St., was hostess for a recent meeting of the Preceptor Epsilon Delta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi.

Service chairman, Mrs. Charline Shepherd, asked members to bring canned goods to the next meeting. The chapter plans to furnish Christmas dinner for the Teen Challenge Center.

Ms. Deborah Bench, social chairman, announced the chapter Christmas brunch and secret sister gift exchange on December 17 at the home of Mrs. Altamazie McCoy, 1605 N.

Midkiff.

Mrs. Butler reviewed the book, "The Mask of the Enchantress," by Victoria Holt.

Mrs. Martha Jo McNair received the hostess gift.

On the house: Remodeling vs. moving

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

We are in an era where many homeowners who decided to sell their houses and move elsewhere have stayed where they are and remodeled the dwellings to suit their new tastes or needs.

This is a development that will continue while housing costs and interest rates remain high, although it must be admitted such costs and rates have slowed down a little of late. Of course, the cost of remodeling, unless you can do the job yourself, is also high, yet remodeling continues at a record pace simply because the alternatives usually are unacceptable.

Millions of persons are remodeling even when they have to make loans to do so, not only because it's the one way to get what they want, but because they hope to get back a large percentage of their money. Many will do so, but a large percentage won't.

If the prices of houses go down, people may wind up buying the cheapest houses in a neighborhood rather than those with the most improvements. If the prices of houses go up, the owners of remodeled homes will be getting more money, mostly because of the inflationary aspect rather than because of the improvements they made.

Yes, a house that is better than most in the neighborhood because it has been remodeled will sell faster than the others, but the extra amount it brings will be limited by the prices of houses in the area. A $75,000 house with $25,000 worth of improvements is not likely to bring $100,000 unless it is in a $100,000 neighborhood. People who can afford a $100,000 price tag want to live in an area where other houses are of similar value. Should the houses in the neighborhood appreciate, on the average, from $75,000 to $100,000, the improved house may get $100,000 and even a bit more — and will sell quicker than the others — but this will be due to circumstances over which the owner has little control. In other words, expect to get back part of the money but not all of it, unless you are lucky.

What usually influences a prospective purchaser is the kind of improvements that have been made. An attic finished off into two bedrooms and a bath, for instance, will prove a tremendous inducement to a family needing extra sleeping quarters. A homemaker who lives in a house with a small kitchen may find a remodeled kitchen exactly what she wants.

Indoor sandbox provides hours of fun

DEAR HELOISE:

For eight years my little boy has enjoyed an indoor sandbox of cornmeal spread out in a 9 x 13-inch baking pan or large cookie sheet with sides.

He spends hours building roads for his tiny cars. When he's finished, I pour the cornmeal into a plastic bag to use again in the sandbox many times.

It's well worth the cleanup time for the hours of pleasure. — Katy

You could spread out newspapers or an old shower curtain or tablecloth and place the pan in the middle to make that cleanup a lot quicker. — Heloise

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise: Your column telling about using boric acid to kill roaches reminded me of a roach killer I concocted myself, quite by accident.

After an abundant grape crop, I tried my hand at homemade winemaking. Evidently I bottled it a bit too soon as a couple of bottles blew their corks.

By the time I discovered it, both were packed full of dead roaches. I assume they died happy. — Ralph Steele

TRAVEL TIP

Dear Heloise: My husband and I travel quite a bit and do enjoy a cup of coffee as soon as we get up.

I took an old makeup suitcase and made what we refer to as our "survival kit."

It contains a two-cup coffee pot, two cups, coffee, powdered creamer, sugar, sweetener, etc. Now we can enjoy that first cup upon awakening.

This case also contains hot cocoa, tea bags, instant grits, instant soup, a jar of processed cheese and individually packaged crackers.

Any time we want a little snack, it's available. — B. Mills

American style: You must be George Rynning

By GORDON HANSON
Associated Press Writer

MARSHALL, N.D. (AP) — If you live in Marshall and your last name isn't Gjermundson, then you're George Rynning.

That's because the 77-year-old Rynning, a retired painter, is the only resident of this village in west-central North Dakota who isn't a member of the Gjermundson family.

Marshall, on the banks of the Knife River, isn't going through hard times — there's no pollution, no drug problem, no unemployment — but the community's population of eight has suddenly dwindled to five.

Three of the ranch-raised Gjermundson clan have struck out on their own. One is teaching, one is in college and the third is on the verge of winning a national championship.

Their blonde-haired mother, Sharon, a pert and friendly 42, has been Marshall's postmaster — "It's not postmistress," she admonishes — for 11 years. In the Gjermundson's general store are boxes for 23 postal patrons.

Husband Stanley is a rancher who, at 44, is still a good hand at riding broncs and bulls in a rodeo pasture generally reserved for the younger set. "I've got a pulled shoulder muscle right now from a bull ride" in an old-timers' rodeo, he says.

You can stand in one spot and see all there is to see in Marshall. There are four houses, but two are vacant. There's a church, a granary and a couple of old outhouses.

And there's Gjermundson's "skinning house," where he removes pelts from the coyotes, fox and badgers he traps.

Another building holds the horse-drawn cutters and sleighs he restores. One cutter bears the inscription: "Marshall Taxi."

Stanley Gjermundson built the family's modern frame house. "He's the type of man, if he decides he's going to do something, he does," his wife says. "He does it himself because he think he can do it better."

Missing from Marshall are three Gjermundson children: Casey, 19, in college; Tammy, 24, teaching in Lambert, Mont., and Brad, 22, who, in rodeo vernacular, is a "double-tough" bronc-riding.

Still at home are Lyle, 18, helping his dad with the ranch, and Connie, 15, a sophomore at Richardton High School 18 miles away.

There's a soft-spoken sense of confidence in the Gjermundson family, and that may account in part for the accumulation of trophies won by Stanley and the kids. "I may have to build

CHILD'S BROOM

Even scrubbing out the tub can be a tolerable chore. — Bea Hamaker

RECYCLING A HOSE

Dear Heloise: Here's a time-saver for those with portable humidifiers:

I had one of those plastic hoses that attach to the shower head or faucet for washing hair. It sprang a leak at one end.

The end with the leak happened to be the end that attached to the faucet, so I cut off the leaky part and wedged a plastic funnel securely into the end of the hose.

Now, instead of running back and forth with a pitcher of water to fill the humidifier, I just roll the unit up to the nearest sink.

By putting the funnel under the faucet and the open end of the hose into the unit, I can fill it with water quickly and neatly, with no more spills on floor or carpet. — S.H.

KEEP CHAINS CLASPED

Dear Heloise: My jeweler told me years ago to always hook or clasp my necklaces and chains back together after removing from my neck.

This will prevent the jewelry from knotting. — Helen T.

Most of the prizes are from rodeos and horse shows. There are scores of trophy-belt buckles, saddles and plaques. And there are trophies the girls won in music.

Marshall's most famous resident is Brad, 22, who was the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association's 1980 Rookie of the Year in saddle bronc riding. So far this year, competing from coast-to-coast, he's won an event record $57,400 and leads in the title race by some $10,000.

It's not a lonesome life in Marshall, Mrs. Gjermundson says. "I sew, refurbish furniture. Our church is very active. There are potluck suppers, funerals, weddings, anniversaries. We get together."

"Our kids didn't grow up with a lot of things," she says. "They never had cars early. They had to work for all the things they got. Even if we could have afforded them, we wouldn't have given them anyway."

What's best about this prairie settlement? "It's God's land, being close to nature," she says. "Nature provides a tranquilizer."

The super handyman: Double-duty from coolant can

By AL CARRELL

No matter what the weather where you live, your car probably requires a proper amount of coolant in the radiator. Coolant is that stuff we used to call antifreeze. After you've bought the gallon jug and put the contents into the radiator, you can get an additional benefit from your investment. The jug can be cut to become a nice shop and garage dustpan. Cut off the bottom and angle along the sides to just below the handle of the jug. Most of these jugs have a handle on the side, and if you're right-handed, cut so this handle will be on the left side of your dustpan when it's in use. That leaves your right hand for operating the broom. When not in use, the dustpan hangs from the wall by the handle. Also let me remind you once again that coolant is appealing to the taste buds of pets and kids, and so if in the process of putting it in the radiator, you should spill any, be sure to clean up the spills.

Dear Al: I don't travel but about once a year, and so the fold-up baggage cart I received as a gift isn't used that much. However, I have now put it to good use as a log tote. I can load several logs on it and roll them into the house for use in the fireplace. It prevents splinters and dirty hands as well as the unpleasant job of lifting heavy logs. — Mrs. D.O.

Dear Al: We wanted to have more privacy in our bedroom, but still wanted light from the windows. Our solution was to cover the panes in the lower sash with mirror squares cut to fit over the glass. The mirrors easily stuck to the glass with the double sided tape tabs. Light still comes in from the top. The mirrors make our bedroom look larger, and they are a nice effect. From the outside, the lower panes just look dark. We're planning on doing the entire bathroom window with mirrors. — Mrs. T.L.

A SUPER HINT — The plastic credit card is a way of life for many Americans. It can be used not only to spend your way into insolvency, but makes a dandy windshield scraper for ice and snow. It's also a common tool used by burglars on doors without deadbolt locks. Ms. B.E.S. taught me another handy use. When installing wallpaper, she used it to work paste pockets and air bubbles out and likes it better than a seam roller for getting the edges smooth and tight. The slogan is right, "The American credit card... don't stay home without it."

Dear Al: Although there are several good dowel joining jigs that allow you to line up the dowel holes in two pieces of wood, I've never felt the need to pay for one. I still use the trick I got from an old cabinetmaker many years ago. After marking where the dowels go on one piece of wood, I drive a tiny brad part way into the center of each dowel position. Then I slip off the head of the brads leaving 1/4-inch or less sticking up. By carefully placing the other piece of wood against the first, the sharp brad ends can be forced into the wood, and now I have near perfect matchup. With the brads extracted, all dowel holes are marked, and they'll match up perfectly every time. — Wes G.

'Try something new' is advice of holiday decorator

Katy Dacus speaks candidly to a Christmas Tree, part of an interview captured in Wolfe Nursery's free booklet "Be A Better Holiday Decorator". Dacus will be sharing decorating ideas on a media tour of Texas and Oklahoma.

FORT WORTH—This year's holiday decorating can be a new and fun adventure, not a chore, when you add a little twist to the tried-and-true collection of traditional Christmas decorations. Variety can be achieved, and at very little expense, by arranging your usual decorations in a different manner, adding new items to result in a "theming" effect on your tree.

Wolfe Nursery stores throughout Texas and in Tulsa, Okla., offer a free booklet, "Be A Better Holiday Decorator", which details easy twists to decorating, safety tips for one of the oldest and most widely celebrated holidays in the Western World, and a brief description of the types and sizes of Christmas trees, both fresh and "permanent". The illustrated booklet, available free at all Wolfe Nursery outlets, gives tips that span the selection, care and decoration of the tree.

For instance, keeping a real tree fresh to last the entire holiday season is important. This can be done by first selecting a tree that has been properly cared for in the store (i.e., daily watering); then, after purchase, cut off one inch of the trunk and drill three of four small holes up into the trunk. Keep the tree in a reservoir stand that is replenished daily with water and a tree preservative such as Tree Life. The remaining tree preservative can be used throughout the year on cut flowers.

Flocking is popular because it serves as a fire retardant and dramatically reduces or eliminates allergy problems associated with unflocked trees. It also helps preserve the natural moisture in the tree.

Artificial (or "permanent") trees give the decorator flexibility in displaying and decorating and are also fire retardant. These are available both flocked or unflocked, and permit shaping to suit personal preference. The limbs are pliable and easily bent by using both hands to shape the entire branch—not just the tip. Place one hand at the base of the branch and move the branch in the desired direction with the other hand.

Another advantage of an artificial tree is that it is assembled in sections and/or panels. These can be decorated and lighted as separate sections and stored as such. Assembly and disassembly is thus a five-minute job.

Lighting the tree—the most important step to a well-balanced look—is done easily and safely by following a few simple tips. First, inspect lights and wires for possible imperfections. If the lights are not the type that have a safety plug built in, one can be purchased and added to existing lights. Next, select the color wire that blends with your tree—green wire for natural-color tree or white string for flocked trees. Then begin from the top of the tree, working from inside the branch and out placing two to three lights per limb, working across the tree in a uniform manner. Avoid putting lights or trim on the lower branches, as they tend to cause the branch to droop under the weight. Let the colorful gifts and tree skirt decorate the bottom of the tree.

After lighting the tree, step back and look for any possible gaps in the branches. Baby's breath, bows or several ornaments clustered together can cleverly cover any gaps or imperfections in the natural trees.

Ornaments and trim can be used for a "theming" effect to tell a story—from Santa's Helpers to the Christmas Story itself. Or the theming can compliment the room or house decor using Early-American, Victorian, Country-style, or Contemporary decorations. Trees with one-color lights tend towards a formal look, while the multi-colored are more traditional.

By using tree decorations that you may have collected over the years with a "theme" item such as bows, the tree can have an exciting look of uniformity. Something as simple as stringing three colored balls together with a light weight wire can totally change the effect. Pine cones, popcorn, candy canes, cherubs, fruits, springs of holly, stuffed toys or a variety of dolls are just some of the hundreds of popular items for tree trimming and home decorating.

Use tinsel garland on the trees horizontally, vertically, in a spiral fashion, or with different colored strands twisted together for intriguing effects. Beaded garland adds a striking touch and is available in both silver and gold tones.

For additional variety, other plants can be used for decorating. Poinsettias, mums, Gloriosa, and even Christmas cactus—as well as other house plants—can be just as attractive and colorful as the traditional Christmas tree. These plants, with proper care, will last from season to season.

The free Wolfe booklet touches on all aspects of Christmas decorating and safety. It even includes an unprecedented, candid interview with a Scotch Pine, discussing everything you ever wanted to know about Christmas trees but were afraid to ask.

Mincemeat pie, cinnamon sauce

Copley News Service

One-half lb. ground beef
2 cups mincemeat pie filling
One and one-half cups apples, finely chopped
One-half tsp. salt
One-half cup lemon rind
2 tbsps. lemon juice
Double pie crust for 9-inch pie
Creamy Cinnamon Sauce
Cook together ground beef, mincemeat filling, apples, salt, lemon rind and juice for 15 minutes. Pour filling into 9-inch unbaked pie shell. Place top pastry, with gashes cut for escape of steam over filling. Fold lower crust over top crust. Crimp edges. If desired, brush with cream and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in a preheated oven (375 F) for 35 minutes.

Creamy Cinnamon Sauce

One-half cup light corn syrup
1 cup sugar
One-fourth cup water
1 tsp. cinnamon
Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Bring to full rolling boil and boil two minutes, stirring constantly. Cool five minutes. Blend in one-half cup evaporated milk. Serve warm over mincemeat pie. Makes two cups.

Here's the answer: Dimensions cause confusion

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Q — Why do they call 2-by-4s by that name when they aren't 2-by-4 at all but only 1½ inches by 3½ inches? It seems to me it would be better to sell lumber by more exact designations so that people buying it would know what they are getting for the purpose of making the right measurements. My husband is rather new to doing any kind of remodeling. He made some drawings a few weeks ago of what he intended to build, but when he bought the wood and got it home he discovered that the sizes were smaller than what he asked for. As a result, he had to change the drawings to conform with the sizes he had on hand. Is this the lumber yard's way of giving you less than you pay for?

A — No. The sizes given are the dimensions of the lumber before it was seasoned and surfaced. Since different kinds of wood are handled in different ways, their dimensions might not be identical after they have been put into shape at the mill, so it is simpler to give the figures before the wood is made ready for sale and use. Some lumber is sold in a rough state or only partly milled. Bear in mind, too, that some wood products, such as plywood, are sold by their exact dimensions. A 4-foot-by-8-foot sheet of plywood is exactly that.

Q — You recently had a story about attaching laminated plastic to a wooden surface. That is a project I have been thinking about for a long time and finally have decided to tackle. I want to attach the laminated plastic to the counter area around our kitchen sink. How do I get the plastic to fit exactly around the curves of the sink?

A — Use a cardboard template. Make it the same size and curved the same way as the area to be covered. Be especially careful in cutting out the outline of the sink. However, if you would rather not do the cutting yourself, you can have it done at a lumber yard if you bring the cardboard pattern with you. If you decide to do the cutting in your own workshop, use a fine-toothed crosscut saw for the straight cuts, cutting only on the downstroke. Allow ¼th-inch overhang, which can be filed off later. For the curved cuts, use a sharp keyhole saw or a saber saw fitted with fine-toothed blade made for that purpose.

Q — My daughter left a flower pot sitting in the middle of a solid walnut table. It left a round place where the water or moisture removed part of the finish. Is it necessary to remove the old finish and refinish the entire top? Or can I just spot-finish the damaged area?

A — You can try to refinish only the damaged part, but if it doesn't work (and nobody can definitely tell you that ahead of time) you or your daughter will have to refinish the full top. What you can do is to try a succession of possible remedies, one by one, in an attempt to find one that works in this particular case. Actually, wood finishers and almost everyone who has tackled wood finishing has a pet way of removing water marks from furniture. Here are five of them. Moisten a cloth with ordinary lubricating oil and rub it into the wood after first putting some cigarette or cigar ashes on the stain. Or do the same thing without the ashes but with table salt. Or rub the area with powdered pumice and boiled linseed oil.

DIET CENTER

"The Natural Way to Lose Weight!"

When you decide to lose weight, COMPARE!

There are hundreds of ways to lose weight. Diet Center suggests that before you start any reducing program, you compare. Consult your doctor. Talk to people who have been on the programs you are considering. Ask yourself if this is a plan you can live with, one that will enable you to keep weight off once you have lost it. If you will do this, we are confident that you will select Diet Center. The following is a basic introduction to the Diet Center Program.

we don't:	we do:
Use shots or drugs to stimulate weight loss. This would not conform to our totally natural approach.	Employ a 100% natural food supplement that stabilizes the blood sugar level and eliminates hunger.
Use prepackaged foods. We know that in order to maintain your weight loss, you must learn to plan your own meals.	Provide a comprehensive education in food selection and preparation techniques from natural sources.
Rely upon ketosis or any other unhealthy, physical state to promote weight loss.	Provide 100% of the daily nutrient requirements as outlined by the U.S. RDA and the 7 U.S. Dietary goals.
Make unrealistic claims as to the speed or effectiveness of our weight-loss program.	Achieve an average weight loss of 17 to 25 pounds in 6 weeks, a rate that can be sustained as needed.
Use computers or group therapy to overcome the uniquely personal problem of excess weight.	Meet daily, in private, with each dieter to determine and solve individual problems and chart progress.
Employ celebrities to present Diet Center in our advertising messages.	Publish unsolicited testimonials from real people who have overcome real weight problems at Diet Center.
Charge for any additional services beyond our basic reducing phase of the program.	Provide weekly classes in nutrition and behavior modification and a lifetime maintenance program, free of charge.
Require contracts or charge more than a fair price for the honest service that is rendered.	Encourage dieters to remain on the program only as long as they feel they are receiving their money's worth.
Employ high-pressure sales tactics to "sign you up" on our program. When you are ready, we are ready.	Offer a free, introductory consultation to supply you with the information needed to make your own decision.

We're Diet Center, and we've been helping people lose weight for over ten years. Our program works, and it's totally natural. There are over 1,350 Diet Center locations all across the United States and Canada. Call your local Diet Center Counselor today; it could change your life.

Smuggled Sakharov letter revealed

By ROBERT GILLETTE
Los Angeles Times

MOSCOW — Three days before Soviet authorities hospitalized the exiled human rights activist Andrei Sakharov and his wife Elena Bonner, the Sakharovs smuggled out a handwritten letter from the city of Gorky in which they vowed to continue their hunger strike "as a fight for the right of everyone to come and go from this country freely."

"There is not the slightest doubt that we believe in what we are doing. This gives us spiritual comfort," said the letter, which was smuggled out of their apartment in the closed city of Gorky. The letter reached Moscow on Monday.

It was dated Dec. 1, the 10th day of their protest fast and three days before the government newspaper Izvestia reported that the Nobel Peace Prize laureate and his wife had been hospitalized and were receiving "prophylactic medical assistance."

The smuggled letter has strengthened fears among the Sakharov's friends in Moscow that the couple was hospitalized against their will and may be undergoing forced feeding. Soviet news media have disclosed no further information about their condition or the treatment they are receiving, and the Sakharovs remain incommunicado in Gorky, a city 250 miles east of Moscow closed to travel by foreigners.

"There is no news about them — it is terrible," Liza Alexeyeva, 26, in whose behalf the Sakharovs began their hunger strike, said on Monday. Miss Alexeyeva was married by proxy to Miss Bonner's son, Alexei Semyonov, and is seeking to join him in the United States. When the Sakharovs began their hunger strike on Nov. 22, she maintained contact with them by telegram, but when they were hospitalized and Miss Alexeyeva tried to board a train on Saturday to see them, the KGB secret police detained her and ordered her to stop trying to travel to Gorky and to stop seeking information about them.

Miss Alexeyeva said she received a postcard on Monday ordering her to appear Tuesday at the Soviet Passport and Emigration Agency in Moscow. No reason for the summons was given, but the Izvestia article last Friday strongly implied that she would not receive an exit visa because Soviet law does not recognize her American marriage and because her parents object to her leaving.

The Sakharov's smuggled letter was addressed in part to Stanford University physicist Sidney Drell, thanking him for a message he had sent.

"We were touched by your efforts and we know that friends and family suffer because of us, but we have no choice," the letter says. "We are not intending to commit suicide. Any tragic outcome would only be a murder accomplished with the complicity of the KGB and the complete silence of my colleagues in the (Soviet) Academy of Sciences."

In his own distinctive handwriting, Sakharov explained the motivation for their protest, saying that, "It is not just a defense of the right of life and love of our close ones, for which appeals to scientists, colleagues and the government have been unproductive. It is a fight for the right for everyone to come and go from this country freely."

"It is a defense of my personal worth and honor, a protest at my illegal isolation in exile. And no alteration in our health and no empty words will change our minds — only the departure of Liza."

"We are continuing our hunger strike (and) we will continue it until the problem is resolved."

The letter also said that Sakharov, who is 60 and suffers a heart ailment, had lost 17.6 pounds by the 10th day and that his blood pressure had fallen from 135 over 90 to 110 over 70, a reading one Western doctor said was low, but not dangerously so. Elena Bonner, 58, was said to have lost 15.4 pounds while maintaining steady blood pressure. Their sharp weight loss cast doubt on a report by Izvestia last Friday that the Sakharovs, who said they would take only mineral water, were not in fact starving themselves but were playing a "trick" by following a medically guided "therapeutic fast."

The winner of the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize, Sakharov was banished without trial to Gorky in January 1980 in an apparent attempt by Soviet authorities to silence his outspoken criticism of political repression and restrictions on emigration in the Soviet Union.

This picture, released by the Soviet dissident organization, Committee of Fifteen, in Paris Monday shows Liza Alexeyeva, left, and Yelena Bonner, wife of exiled Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov, in Moscow last August. Alexeyeva, Sakharov's daughter-in-law, received a letter from him dated Dec. 1 in which he said that the Soviet KGB and the silence of his scientist colleagues would be responsible for any "tragic end" to the hunger strike he and Bonner launched Nov. 22.

Papandreou says Greece wants to stay in NATO wing

By HENRY GOTTLIEB
Associated Press Writer

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Socialist government of Greece signaled willingness today to stay in the military wing of NATO but demanded control over its own forces in peacetime and a guarantee against Turkish aggression.

Andreas Papandreou, prime minister and defense minister of Greece, listed the conditions at a meeting of 13 North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense ministers, conference sources said.

He also rejected a proposal to put a new NATO regional headquarters in Greece and asked for a change in the way the U.S. government balances military assistance between Turkey and Greece, said the sources, who requested anonymity.

There was no immediate comment from Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

It was Papandreou's first official statement to his NATO colleagues as a group since he was elected in October on a platform that included a pledge to take Greece out of the military command structure it rejoined earlier this year after a six-year absence.

The sources said Papandreou prefaced his conditions with a strong willingness to stay in the military wing, which includes all NATO countries except Iceland and France.

Greece left the military wing of the alliance in 1974 to protest what it believed was NATO inaction in stopping Turkish occupation of Cyprus.

Papandreou said the plan bringing Greece back under the NATO command structure was "too vague," the sources said.

He also said Greece wanted the right to deploy its own military forces to protect itself against possible Turkish aggression and wanted a NATO guarantee against attack from Turkey, the sources said.

The sources expressed optimism that the language of such a guarantee could be worked out in a way that would not be offensive to Turkey.

Papandreou also wanted NATO to become more active in solving the stalemate over Cyprus, which has been divided into Greek and Turkish zones, the sources said.

Finally, Papandreou sought a new formula under which the United States gives military assistance to Greece and Turkey. Under the current formula, Turkey automatically gets more aid than Greece. Papandreou wants a more flexible system based on need rather than fixed formulas.

Turkish Defense Minister Haluk Bayulken responded to Papandreou with a strong denial that Turkey had any aggressive intentions toward Greece, the sources said.

They said Bayulken and NATO Secretary-General Joseph Luns told the ministers it was unthinkable that any NATO country would attack another member of the alliance.

U.S. to have larger role in autonomy talks: Peres

WASHINGTON (AP) — A greater U.S. role in the Palestinian autonomy talks is planned soon by the Reagan administration, according to the leader of Israel's opposition Labor Party.

Shimon Peres, on a private visit to the United States, said he was told of the plan to increase the United States' representation in the negotiations during a meeting with Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr.

After Peres' statement on Monday, however, State Department officials said they did not know that Haig had told Peres of such a plan.

Although the Carter administration sent a special negotiator to the autonomy talks by the United States, Israel and Egypt, the Reagan administration so far has kept its representation at the ambassadorial level.

Israel has made it plain it believes the chances of success in the negotiations would be improved if the Reagan administration also appointed a special negotiator.

The next round of working-level negotiations is scheduled Dec. 10-17 in Cairo, and the United States is to be represented there by Ambassador Wat T. Cluvertus.

Peres said he hopes an autonomy arrangement can be reached before the Israelis' scheduled April 25 withdrawal from the Egyptian Sinai. He said he favors extending autonomy to the Gaza Strip first, with a decision on the future of the West Bank to be deferred.

Peres, speaking on other topics later at the American Enterprise Institute here, said he sees little chance for a breakthrough in achieving a peaceful solution to Lebanon's problems in 1982.

Third round of nuclear talks begins

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators held their third full round of talks today on reducing nuclear armaments in Europe.

"I can't comment," the chief Soviet delegate, Yuli A. Kvitsinsky, said after the two-hour, 20-minute session at the Geneva offices of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Paul H. Nitze, head of the American delegation, announced the mutual ban on disclosing details on the talks shortly after they began last week.

Initial rounds of the talks are likely to center on resolving differences about terminology, numbers, range and destructive characteristics of nuclear arms in the European theater.

The fundamental American proposition, commonly called the "zero option," calls for scrapping plans to deploy 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in five Western European countries if the Soviets agree to dismantle their 600 SS-series missiles.

The U.S. missiles are scheduled for deployment beginning in 1983.

The Kremlin has proposed a moratorium on nuclear-tipped missile deployment during the Geneva talks, and has indicated it would consider dismantling an unspecified number of its European theater weapons.

Negotiations between the two sides have been set for Tuesdays at the U.S. arms control offices, and Fridays at the Soviet mission.

Explosion in Lebanon may be result of booby trap

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — An explosion near the French ambassador's residence injured several pedestrians today, the Christians' Voice of Lebanon radio station reported.

The blast occurred near the mid-city "green line" that separates Beirut's Moslem and Christian sectors.

The broadcast said unconfirmed reports indicated the explosion resulted from a booby-trapped car parked near a checkpoint manned by Syrian peacekeeping troops. The blast occurred a few dozen yards from the main gate of the Palais des Pins, the official residence of Ambassador Paul Marc-Henry.

It was close to the spot where Marc-Henry's predecessor, Louis Delamare, was shot and killed by unidentified gunmen Sept. 4.

The broadcast said Syrian troops, who police Lebanon's five-year-old civil war armistice between Christians and Moslems, cordoned off the scene and stopped traffic into the area from both sectors of the divided capital.

Troops force shop owners to open

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Israeli troops forced striking shopkeepers in the occupied city of Gaza to open their stores today as new stone-throwing incidents were reported in the Gaza Strip town of Rafah.

"The Israelis are catching people in the street and asking for their identity cards, and if they are shopowners, they are being forced to go to their stores and open up," one Gaza resident told The Associated Press by telephone.

The military welded shut the doors on stores whose owners refused to open, he said. The area was closed to reporters, Israel Radio said.

The Gaza Strip has been going through a week of strikes and demonstrations over issues ranging from opposition to Israeli rule to the levying of a 12-percent Value Added Tax (VAT) on all financial transactions.

The municipality of Nablus, the largest town on the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River, called a sympathy strike for the Gaza, the radio said.

In Rafah, in the southern Gaza Strip, residents are worried at the prospect of their town being cut in two by the new Egyptian-Israeli frontier that goes into effect next April when Israel withdraws from the Sinai peninsula.

A 17-year-old Rafah youth was killed Monday and two people were wounded when Israeli soldiers shot at a crowd of demonstrators who threw rocks at their vehicle and turned to assault the troops, the military command said.

There were further stoning incidents in Rafah today, but they caused no casualties, an Israeli source in the area reported. Some arrests were made, he said.

MGM unsure what to do about Natalie Wood film

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sets of the late Natalie Wood's unfinished movie "Brainstorm" are being kept under tight security while MGM decides whether to complete the film, a studio memorandum says. "Great care is being expended by the company to immediately reduce and/or close-out all possible costs," said the memo, which was obtained by The Associated Press. "Stages 29, 20 and 12 will be kept intact and also used as storage for materials off-loaded from trucks."

The film, also starring Christopher Walken, was scheduled to be completed Dec. 16, but many close-up scenes of Miss Wood were still scheduled to be shot at the time of her death.

Al Newman, vice president of publicity at MGM, said the studio was "still making this decision" about whether to shut down production on the movie, which reportedly had a $12 million budget.

Kleindienst fights proposed suspension of his law license

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Former U.S. Attorney General Richard Kleindienst says he will fight a proposed one-year suspension of his law license in arguments before the Arizona Supreme Court on Dec. 17.

State Bar Association review committees endorsed four counts that charge Kleindienst with misconduct in allegedly lying to bar officials and a federal judge about his role in an insurance scam involving a Teamsters union health and welfare fund, and allegedly letting a client lie under oath to a state Insurance Department hearing.

The hearing date was announced Monday. Kleindienst's lawyers want the court to dismiss those counts, but the bar's counsel says the justices should uphold those counts and restore five other counts that the review committees dismissed.

Those five counts allege other instances of lying under oath as well as conflict of interest and fee-splitting. Last summer, a Maricopa County Superior Court jury acquitted Kleindienst of 14 counts of perjury stemming from the insurance fraud case.

Kleindienst, 58, was the nation's top law enforcement officer in the Nixon administration. He pleaded guilty during the Watergate scandal to a misdemeanor charge of failure to testify fully and accurately at a confirmation hearing over an alleged International Telephone & Telegraph offer to secretly help defray costs of a Republican National Convention.

He was sentenced to 20 days in prison and a $100 fine, but the sentence was suspended. He also was censured in that case in Arizona after a bar investigation.

Kleindienst

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Fransie Geringer, the 8-year-old South African boy afflicted with a rare aging disease, arrived here for a two-week tour of central Florida, including a stop at Disney World in Orlando.

Fransie's Florida visit, which began Monday, was made possible by $26,000 raised in the state by various individuals and organizations. The Sunshine City Jaycees alone gathered $17,000.

The money-raising effort was stirred in August by news stories about Fransie, whose incurable disease, progeria, causes rapid aging and gives him the appearance of an old man.

Fransie said his greatest wish was to meet Pinocchio, the fairy tale puppet who struggles to become a real boy.

Accompanied by his parents, Herman and Magda, and brother Paul, 10, Fransie last week got the red-carpet treatment — as well as a meeting with the character Pinocchio — at Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif. He also met three other victims of the disease.

DALTON, Ga. (AP) — Todd Cantrell, saying a controversial treatment by Soviet doctors has improved vision in his left eye, will return home next week.

"It's a lot better," the 12-year-old boy said Monday in a telephone interview from Moscow with a Dalton radio station. "It's improved a lot."

The fifth-grader was due to undergo a final series of injections today, said his mother, Betty Cantrell. The family plans to leave Moscow on Dec. 15.

Doctors at Moscow's Helmholtz Institute ran a final series of tests on Todd Monday. They found that peripheral vision had improved in his left eye, which is in worse condition than his right eye, she said.

He suffers from retinitis pigmentosa, an often-inherited malady that involves a deterioration of the "rods" and "cones" in the retina.

U.S. doctors, who were unable to treat the boy's disease, have said the Russian technique is without medical value.

Soviet doctors have been injecting ribonucleic acid, a cell component, into Todd's eyes and hip in an effort to stem the disease.

NEW YORK (AP) — John E. Jacob, who becomes the National Urban League's new chief executive officer Jan. 1, says he is taking the helm of the civil rights organization at a time when the popularity of its causes is slipping.

"I am painfully aware that I come to office at a time of broad national withdrawal from civil-rights concerns and from issues such as the condition of the poor and the cities," Jacob said Monday.

John Lennon remembered a year after death

By The Associated Press

John Lennon's death one year ago today was being remembered with silent candlelight vigils outside the apartment building where he was shot and with concerts in England and Japan.

Special memorial tributes to the former Beatle also were planned on radio stations and television news shows.

Lennon, 40, was shot to death Dec. 8, 1980 outside the luxury Dakota apartment building in Manhattan where he lived with his wife, Yoko Ono, and their 6-year-old son, Sean.

Candlelight vigils outside the Dakota, on West 72nd Street across from Central Park, were scheduled for a 2½-hour period during the day and through the night.

Miss Ono, who still lives in the Dakota, said she would spend the day in meditation. She said she cut off 30 inches of her hair last week to mark the anniversary of Lennon's death.

"In Japan, when a woman becomes a widow, she cuts her hair — it's a tradition," she said. "So I decided I'd make my hair a gift to him. I cut off my hair and put it in the same vase with John's hair."

In Liverpool, England, home of all four Beatles, a concert and candlelight vigil was attracting participants from all over Europe and around the world, its organizer claimed.

"Americans, French, Dutch, Germans and a lot from Canada — the place will be packed," said Sam Leach, who promoted Beatle concerts 20 years ago.

The surviving ex-Beatles, Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr all have been invited to the concert, but none are expected to attend.

Leach picked the St. George's Hall Plateau for the outdoors concert. It overlooks Liverpool's famous Lime Street and is opposite the Empire Theater where the Beatles played their first big stage show on Oct. 28, 1962. American rock singer Little Richard topped the bill then.

"John's death shattered me and I wanted to put on this show for him," Leach said in a telephone interview. "He was Liverpool, everybody here identifies with him. He gives us all hope, if you like."

Five bands will perform Beatles hits from the 1960s for three hours. At 10 p.m., a 10-minute candlelight vigil and silent prayers will close the gathering.

At Liverpool's Everyman Theater, today's performance of "Lennon," a musical play about John, was sold out.

In Japan, fans planned to troop to a hall adjoining the cavernous Budokan concert auditorium where the Beatles first performed in Tokyo for a tribute sponsored by the Beatles Cinema Fan Club.

Three Lennon movies — "Two Virgins," "Smile," and "One to One Concert," will be shown and live music will be performed. The 1,000 fans are expected to observe a moment of silence for Lennon, said a spokesman for the organizers.

A new rock club named the "Cavern," after the Liverpool club where the Beatles first started was to open today with a private showing of Beatles' film clips followed by live music.

In Kansas City, Mo., a group called the Dreamers and the Kansas City Committee for Handgun Awareness planned a memorial vigil and march tonight, with live music and singing. The Dreamers, formed last July by two Kansas City women, Davina Gabriel and Mickey Chappel, meets weekly to discuss Lennon's ideals.

Campus game Assassin leads to shooting of student

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — A college official is asking his students to stop playing the campus game Assassin, which led to the shooting and wounding of a student here.

Cal State Long Beach Vice President Jack Shaline issued a statement Monday imploring students "to find recreational outlets other than with guns, play guns or anything that can be considered a weapon or mistaken for a weapon." Mike Reagan, 19, of Norwalk, was shot by campus police Saturday night after pointing at them a simulated M-16 carbine. He was listed in guarded condition in the intensive care unit of Los Altos Hospital here with wounds in the upper right chest and legs.

Assassin is played on many U.S. campuses. Participants take out

"contracts" on the lives of players and an assassin wins if he finds an opponent unprotected and "terminates" him using toy weapons. The game often continues over a long period of time until one player remains.

Shaline's statement was circulated throughout the 32,000-student campus.

Weather, economy hurt park

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — Bad weather and the economy caused a 3 percent dip in total attendance at Six Flags Over Texas during the 1981 season, the amusement park's officials have announced.

"The economy was a big factor, but you have to remember that June and October were virtually wiped out by rain," said Bruce Neal, public relations director for the 22-year-old park.

Lee scores victory over Sweetwater, 79-44

Rebels add new definition of fun to Webster's Dictionary

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Sports Writer

Webster's Dictionary needs to update the word "fun". As now listed: fun/n 1: what provides amusement or enjoyment; specif: playful often boisterous action or speech. Suggested replacement: fun/n 1: playing Sweetwater in basketball.

Fun (new definition) is what the Midland Lee Rebels had at Chaparral Center Monday night to the tune of 79-44. A cakewalk. A real roller coaster ride without the upset stomach.

The Mustangs of Sweetwater, now 2-7 on the year, might take exception to the fun night approach, but they haven't played themselves yet.

It was never a contest as the score would indicate, but the Mustangs must have been ready to make a two-hour trip home after the first 16 minutes of play. The Rebels put on a first half fire power demonstration that would have demolished Hanoi when we really needed it.

The Rebels canned 49 per cent of their shots in the first half despite missing their first five attempts. The Rebels hit 10 of 20 shots in the first period and hit six of their first eight shots in the second period and took a halftime lead of 47-21. The Rebels had a bad case of the chuckles and the dazed Mustangs just wanted out of town.

After scoring 21 points in the first period and 26 in the second, Lee got a little sloppy in the second half, but it's a little hard to concentrate after leading by 28 points at one point in the first half.

"The second half got a little sloppy and their wasn't much to be pleased with, but in the first half, I was very pleased to see the outside-inside ball movement," Lee coach Paul Stueckler stated. "We still need to toughen up on defense, but it's pretty hard to beat you when you have that kind of ball movement."

Again it was Andre Van Buren who led the assault on the Mustangs. Van Buren, who scored a career high 38 points Friday against Lubbock Coronado, came back with 24 points Monday.

"I've never had back-to-back games like that before," the 6-3 Van Buren said. "But Randy Pepper and Alvin Dunson have been coming to me with some big assists. I think that's really the reason."

But across the lockerroom, 6-6 Kenneth Brown, who is back with the team after a one-game absence, yelled, "Just say that Andre is hogging the ball all the time." Dunson, who scored 18 points himself, countered, "It's a good thing you mentioned my name, Andre. Where would you be without me?"

Having the hot hand at Lee can carry a certain amount of torment, but that wasn't a frown on Van Buren's face.

Van Buren hit 18 of his 24 points in the first half alone and when he wasn't getting feeds from Pepper and Dunson, the latter two were hitting the outside cord rippers or stealing the Mustangs blind.

Pepper chipped in with 14 points, but his play afield was even more impressive. His head faking passes to teammates had the Mustangs doing double takes and he came up with six steals. Olen Smith added nine points and Brown had eight before Stueckler emptied his bench in the fourth quarter.

The Rebels came to earth in the second half, looking like an average basketball team. They hit only eight of 20 shots in the third period and four of 19 in the final stanza. But the stomach laugh had set in by then.

Lee is now 6-2 on the season, owning a modest two-game winning streak to follow a two-game losing streak. But the Rebels do seem to be more fluid now, hitting from all ranges.

Steve Cherryhomes was celebrating his 18th birthday with a starting job, but he came up empty on the scoring side despite playing a good defensive game.

Sweetwater was led by 6-4 sophomore John Van Dever with 11 points, but the Mustang ace was out of his league in this one. Van Dever is going to be a good player, but he really couldn't challenge the swarming Rebs by shooting or rebounding. He had only six points until the fourth period.

However, Stueckler is naturally worried about the game at hand, which is at 6 p.m. Thursday at Chaparral Center against 3A Kermit. "After a game like this, it's hard to bring your kids back to earth, but Kermit has a good team. Kermit has won two tournaments this year and people think that because they were in the football playoffs this year, they won't be any good. The thing is not one of their basketball players played football."

The 6 p.m. start Thursday is part of a twinbill at the Chap as Midland College goes against Amarillo College in a WJACC contest at 8 p.m. It's a chance to see both teams for one admission price.

In the JV contest, Lee ran to an 85-66 win over Sweetwater as Dramane Bunton hit for 20 points and Todd Brown for 12. Earl Carrington of Sweetwater canned 20 points. The game was tied in the second period at 24 before the Rebs decided to put the game away.

MC Chaps escape stubborn NMMI

ROSWELL, N.M.—Midland College stretched its winning streak to five in a row with a Western Junior College Conference win over stubborn New Mexico Military Institute here Monday night, and as Coach Jerry Stone had feared, "The Institute was tougher than nails on the 40th anniversary of Pearl Harbor."

The Chaparrals boosted their WJCC record to 2-0 with an uncomfortable 70-67 win while the Cadets slipped to 1-2.

Spud Webb led the Chaps with 17 points while Puntus Wilson scored 16 and Chester Smith 14 in the fast, well-played, foul-free contest.

J.C. Baty's 17 led NMMI, but the Cadets also had Anthony Collins, 12, Leroy Parrish, 12, and Reed Mullican, 10, in double figures.

The win gives MC, which not long ago languished at 4-4, a 9-4 record for the season. NMMI is 7-5.

The Chaps have two more WJCC contests this week, hosting both Amarillo College at the Midland Chaparral Center Thursday night and traveling to Hobbs, N.M., Saturday for a game with New Mexico Junior College. Amarillo defeated MC in the finals of the Amarillo Shootout a couple of weeks ago.

After Saturday's game, the Chaparrals will be off until after the Christmas holidays.

Midland College (79)—Spud Webb 8-1-17; Puntus Wilson 7-2-16; Chester Smith 6-2-14; Jerome Crowe 3-3-9; Lance McCain 4-0-8; Brad Richardson 3-0-4. Totals 31-8-78.

NMMI (47)—J.C. Baty 9-1-17; Anthony Collins 5-2-12; Leroy Parrish 4-0-12; Reed Mullican 4-2-10; Robert Newman 4-0-8; Ernie Rodriguez 2-0-4; Mark Walker 2-0-4. Totals 28-7-47.

Chicago signs Jenkins

By HAL BOCK
AP Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The Chicago Cubs signed free-agent pitcher Ferguson Jenkins to a one-year contract today and were on the verge of completing a major deal which could involve two other teams.

Jenkins, 37, was 5-8 with a 4.50 earned-run average in 19 games with the Texas Rangers last season. He also struck out 63 batters, bringing his career total to 2,962 — 38 short of 3,000. He is seventh on the all-time strikeout list.

Jenkins, a major leaguer for 18 years, pitched for the Cubs for seven seasons, 1967-1973, winning 20 or more games for the first six years. He captured the National League Cy Young award in 1971 with a 24-13 mark and a 2.77 ERA.

He was traded to Texas after the 1973 season and responded with a 25-12 record for the Rangers. After going 17-18 with Texas the next season, Jenkins was traded to Boston and spent two years with the Red Sox before returning to Texas in 1978.

Jenkins is one of four pitchers in major league history to win 100 games in each league. He has 264 victories for his career, 36 shy of 300.

Negotiations between Dallas Green, new boss of the Cubs, and Jenkins' agent, Lou Oppenheim, were completed early today.

Oakland defeats Steelers, 30-27

By DAVID EINSTEIN
Associated Press Writer

OAKLAND (AP) — Oakland Raiders' Coach Tom Flores doesn't know why his team does so well almost every time they turn on the lights and the television cameras, and he doesn't care.

"I don't have the faintest idea and I don't want to look into it. It might jinx it," Flores said after the Raiders ran their Monday night National Football League record to 18-1-1 with a 30-27 victory over Pittsburgh.

"I wish we could play all our games on Monday night," said Flores. "We really played good football. The turnovers killed us in the first half, but we were able to come back."

The Raiders, 7-7, survived five turnovers as they preserved their playoff chances, which remain minimal with two games left in the regular season.

"We had a lot of pride at stake," said Bob Chandler, who caught one of three touchdown passes thrown by Oakland quarterback Marc Wilson.

"We were trying to regain a little of what we'd lost this season. Even though we may be out of the playoffs, we still had something to prove."

It was brutally physical game in the tradition of matchups of the two teams, who between them have won six of the last seven Super Bowls.

When it was over, Pittsburgh had dropped to 8-8, two games behind front-running Cincinnati in the AFC Central Division. Worse yet, the Steelers had lost quarterback Terry Bradshaw with a broken right hand.

"When he held up the X-rays I said, 'Oh, my God, it looks terrible,'" said Bradshaw. "It was a play-action play and they had a safety blitz on. I was trying to lay it off in the corner for a touchdown."

In his follow-through, Bradshaw's throwing hand came down on Raider Rob Martin's helmet.

"I thought at first it was my elbow, but when I took the snap and couldn't hold the ball I said I better get out," said Bradshaw.

Bradshaw's replacement, second-year pro Mark Malone, threw two touchdown passes and ran for a third score, giving Pittsburgh leads of 14-7 and 20-14. But each time Wilson brought the Raiders back.

Tickets for Sun Bowl limited but available

EL PASO — A limited number of Sun Bowl game tickets are still available for the Oklahoma-Houston game 11 a.m. Dec. 26. Tickets are $15 each and may be ordered through the Sun Bowl, P.O. Box 95, El Paso, 79941.

Jeff Blaugrund of the Sun Bowl said, "Due to the lack of time, we would hold the tickets at the Will Call window, unless they desired to make other arrangements."

MHS travels to Lubbock to battle with Monterey

Midland High, 9-1, on an eight-game winning streak and fresh from victory in the Odessa Invitational, travels to Lubbock tonight to face Lubbock Monterey in high school basketball action.

The Bulldogs, since a second-game

72-71 loss to Odessa Ector, have licked everybody in sight, avenging the Ector loss 76-65 along the way.

Their performance thus far would seem to establish Coach Jack Stephenson's defending 5-5A champions as the team to beat once again.

In beating Odessa 58-49 in the Odessa finals, it marked the second time the Purple Pack had beaten a 5-5A opponent for the tournament title. A week earlier the Bulldogs beat Midland Lee, 63-58, in the Tall City finals.

Oakland Raiders quarterback Marc Wilson runs for good yardage as he is pursued by Pittsburgh Steelers linebacker Dennis Winston during the first half of action Monday night at the Oakland Coliseum. To the left is Raiders tight end Derrick Ramsey. The Raiders beat the Steelers 30-27.

KENTUCKY WAS tabbed No.1 on eight first-place ballots and got 1,061 points following its nationally televised 78-62 victory over Ohio State.

Louisville, which had a tough time in beating both Tulane and Western Kentucky last week, picked up five first-place votes and 1,066 points. Wichita State, and easy winner over both the District of Columbia and Cincinnati last week, had 946 points.

Virginia, playing without center Ralph Sampson, who broke a finger, received one first-place vote and 893 points in retaining the No.5 spot. The Cavaliers downed Randolph Macon 82-50 and VMI 76-49 without their All-American star.

Iowa, extended to overtime by Marquette in posting one of its two triumphs last week, had 816 points. Ray Meyer's DePaul squad collected 788 points and held the No.7 slot after a 78-53 victory over Illinois-Chicago Circle — a team coached by Meyer's son, Tom — and a tough 73-67 victory over Purdue.

Minnesota, which needed a last-second basket to edge Loyola of Chicago, was eighth with 702 points. Alabama-Birmingham, a winner over Mississippi in its only game last week, had 560 points, eight more than defending national champion Indiana, which downed Notre Dame.

ARKANSAS, WHICH collected the final first-place vote, headed the Second Ten. San Francisco was 12th followed by Missouri, Tulsa, Nevada-Las Vegas, Alabama, UCLA, Southwestern Louisiana, Oregon State and Georgetown. Last week, the Second Ten was Alabama-Birmingham, Indiana, Arkansas, San Francisco, Brigham Young, Missouri, Alabama, Nevada-Las Vegas and Georgetown, D.C.

In other cage action tonight, the Midland Lee girls host Lubbock Monterey at the Chaparral Center while Midland High's girls plays Hobbs, N.M., at the MHS gym.

Lee, 5-3, won the Amarillo Tournament consolation by beating Amarillo Tascosa, 61-44, after losing its opener. Midland, 4-4, won its opener over Tascosa, 63-53, but then lost to Lubbock Monterey and Amarillo Palo Duro.

In other action this week, Lee hosts Kermit at 6 p.m. at Chaparral Center in a game that will precede the Midland College-Amarillo College matchup at 8 p.m. Those games can be seen for one admission price. Midland High plays Lubbock Dunbar at Chaparral Center at 8 p.m. Friday while the Midland High girls play in the Big Spring tournament, beginning Thursday.

COM helps

North to win

Qualifying for the Texas North-South All-Star meet for the first time, four City of Midland swimmers contributed to the North's 606-576 victory over the South at Dallas over the weekend.

Becky Simpson garnered fourths in the 200 free, 100 breast and 500 free while Tracey Delany took third in the 100 free, fifth in the free and swam on the winning 200 medley relay team.

Laura Morse was on the winning medley relay, took second in the 50 free and fifth in the 100 breast. Andrea Freeman was second in the medley relay, third in the 500 free and third in the 200 free.

"It was quite a thrill just to qualify for the meet the first time," said COM Coach Hank O'Neill, "but then for all the girls to place in all of the events in which they competed had to make it extra special."

The COM returns to action Dec. 18-19-20 with the high school swimmers going to San Antonio while the younger swimmers will get to El Paso.

College basketball roundup Murray State adds to Notre Dame losing streak by scoring 56-54 win

AP Sports Writer

Notre Dame Coach Digger Phelps was talking about faith, fundamentals and the areas in which he had failed his Fighting Irish basketball team. Notre Dame lost its third straight game Monday night, a 56-54 decision at home to Murray State, which was playing without its No. 1 guard, junior Lamont Slets. The Irish won their first game of the season, beating St. Joseph's, Pa., 85-52. Then they went on the skids, losing to Indiana, UCLA (which dropped them out of The Associated Press rankings), and finally Murray State. "We are 1-3 at this point, and we just have to have faith," Phelps said afterward. "I am just trying to stay with the fundamentals and do them as well as we can."

Murray State took the lead for good, 51-50, on a layup by Sammy Curran with 3:48 to play, and Mike McDuffen scored four of his six points in the last 49 seconds, all from the free-throw line.

The Irish had a chance to tie the score at the buzzer, but Glen Green blocked a shot by Notre Dame's Barry Spencer.

PHELPS APOLOGIZED for being late to the postgame interview and said: "I'll tell you, this season is different. What this team needs more than anything is to beat someone." "Obviously, this is a growth experience," he said. "We have to rebuild a team that was hurt by graduation, recruiting and the departure of Joe Kilene (7-foot sophomore center who transferred to Arkansas), and I'll take responsibility for all three."

Notre Dame led by seven points with 15 minutes to play, and the lead changed hands seven times before Murray State moved ahead for good. Green led the Racers, 3-2, with 15 points, and junior guard John Paxson led all scorers with 19 for Notre Dame.

Kelly Knight scored 19 points, including 15 of Kansas' first 25, and Tony Guy added 16 points to pace the Jayhawks to an 86-57 victory over Arizona. Kansas' only loss in five games was to top-ranked North Carolina.

Keith Edmonson scored 19 points to help power Purdue over Butler, 75-46; freshman Leslie Rockmore scored 17 points and Thad Garner added 15 in Michigan's 80-57 victory over Northern Michigan; Adrian Branch, a freshman, hit for 21 points as Maryland downed Maryland-Eastern Shore 76-64; Jeff Schneider scored a career-high 26 points as Virginia got by Richmond, 70-68, and Terry Lewis hit five free throws in overtime to give Mississippi State a 48-47 victory over Memphis State.

Central site selected for Miami's new stadium

MIAMI (AP) — The Metro Sports Authority has selected a central Miami site for a multi-sport stadium to replace the Orange Bowl. The authority, on a 6-3 vote Monday, heeded a threat by Miami Mayor Maurice Ferre, who told the panel that he would not turn over proceeds from the sale of the Orange Bowl and Miami Stadium, a baseball facility, to the authority if the new complex was not within the city's boundaries. The authority chose the Buena Vista freight yard, owned by Florida East Coast Railway Co., over two other possible sites — the Opa-Locka airport facility in northwestern Dade County and the Lake Lucerne site, near Calder Race Course.

The authority in October voted to build a domed, multi-sport stadium.

Trading very limited at baseball's annual winter meeting

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
AP Sports Writer

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — The trading was extremely limited and the top developments at baseball's annual winter meeting involved the impending signing of free agent pitcher Ron Guidry and the possibility that Gene Michael would return as manager of the New York Yankees.

The only deal made on the first official day of the meetings Monday was the acquisition by the Chicago Cubs of pitcher Allen Ripley from the San Francisco Giants for left-hander Doug Capilla.

The 26 major league teams selected 10 players in the annual draft; the St. Louis Cardinals purchased pitcher Mike Stanton from Cleveland, and Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn delivered his annual state-of-the-game message.

OTHER THAN that, baseball executives gathered in the lobby, corridors and in rooms trying to turn trades.

The Associated Press learned that Michael would become the Yankees' manager for the second time, and was scheduled to meet with owner George Steinbrenner Wednesday or Thursday to work out the details.

Steinbrenner will be a busy man. He also is to talk Thursday with Guidry's agent, John Schneider to determine if the Yankees are ready to meet the pitcher's demand for a five-year, $7.5 million contract.

Michael managed the Yankees last season until replaced the day before Labor Day by Bob Lemon. He's under contract to New York through 1982, so there should be no contractual hassle.

Michael became the 25th manager of the Yankees, Nov. 21, 1980. He had been general manager since November, 1979. The Yankees won the title in the American League East in the split 1981 season, but did not play well in the second half and Michael was gone.

New York went on to win the AL pennant, but lost the World Series in six games to the Los Angeles Dodgers. Since the season ended, there have been rumors that Lemon would not return.

Steinbrenner's decision to bring back Michael would be just another ironic twist in the tumultuous operation of the Yankees by the unpredictable Steinbrenner.

GUIDRY COULD present Steinbrenner with more of a problem.

Schneider said he would have a new contract for Guidry by the end of the week. He ruled out Atlanta, Pittsburgh and Texas of the 17 teams which selected the pitcher in the free agent re-entry draft.

"I've talked with San Francisco, Baltimore and Cincinnati Monday and received their initial offers. He planned to meet with Toronto and Oakland Thursday morning.

"The 11th hour is near," said Schneider. "Barring extenuating circumstances I expect to announce a decision Friday."

Schneider said Guidry's price was higher to the Yankees than any other club.

"The other offers in no way approach what we're asking the Yankees," the agent said.

He said the Yankees had more gross revenue, a higher salary structure and Guidry had a higher past, present and future value to New York.

AMONG THE rumors making the rounds at the meetings was a three-club trade involving the St. Louis Cardinals, Baltimore Orioles and Chicago Cubs.

The Cardinals would send shortstop Gary Templeton and outfielder Sixto Lezcano to Baltimore for pitcher Steve Stone or Mike Flanagan, and

Three reasons listed for Packer turnaround

By MIKE O'BRIEN
AP Sports Writer

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Three points weave a common thread among the several theories offered to explain the Green Bay Packers' turnaround:

- A healthier offensive line.
 - Emergence of all-pro receiver John Jefferson as a major force in the passing scheme.
 - Confidence which has increased almost weekly as the Packers, after a 2-6 start, have won five of their last six National Football League games.
- The transformation may have come too late for the Packers to qualify for the playoffs. At 7-7, they are tied with Detroit and Minnesota, a game behind first place Tampa Bay in the NFC Central Division with only two games to play.
- The New York Giants, St. Louis and Atlanta are other NFC teams with 7-7 records and contending for the conference's second wild card playoff spot. Philadelphia, 9-5, likely is to get the first wild-card berth. Under tie-breaking criteria for the second berth, the Packers lead only the Giants.

BUT THE Packers are prepared to give it their best shot. "It's an exciting time for us," Coach Bart Starr said Monday. "We're in a catch-up position, but that in itself has our people excited. Our level of performance has to stay up for us to stay in the hunt."

The members of the offensive line were the most obvious scapegoats during the first half of the season. They allowed 32 quarterback sacks in the first eight games, but only nine since.

"There was a lot of criticism directed at us, some of it warranted and some of it not," center Larry McCarren said. "People wanted to point a finger, so they pointed it at us."

"Offensive linemen have a lot of pride," he said. "They have to because of the nature of the positions. The fans don't roar for the offensive linemen, so pride is our biggest motivator."

Waters expects 'fanatic Eagles'

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas strong safety Charlie Waters said Monday the Cowboys will see a fanatic Philadelphia Sunday night in the "Fat Philly" which has been struggling after a Super Bowl year.

"We'll see the Philadelphia of old...the best game the Eagles can play," said Waters.

The Cowboys can clinch the National Conference Eastern Division Sunday in Texas Stadium against the Eagles with a tie or a victory.

Philadelphia dropped two games back with two to play Sunday with a 15-13 loss to Washington while Dallas was pounding Baltimore 37-13.

"I think Philadelphia is scared now," said Waters. "They were not scared after the first of the year. They were cruising which is only natural after a Super Bowl."

WATERS SAID the Eagles will come into Texas Stadium "fighting, scratching and mad. You will see a tremendous effort."

"There won't be much visiting with them before this game. Their attitude will be serious."

Waters was referring to the last four meetings between the teams in which insults have been traded back and forth.

Waters said the Cowboys still had a debt to pay the Eagles "and it won't be paid off until we represent the National Conference in the Super Bowl."

PHILADELPHIA AND the Cowboys split during the regular season last year with the Eagles winning the division title on a tie-breaker. The Eagles then thumped the Cowboys in the NFC title game.

Waters said Dallas' attitude is obvious.

"If you can't get up for this game then you need to get out of football," he said. "We're playing a team that took something away from us. It's payback time."

Dallas beat the Eagles earlier in the year. Philadelphia could still win the division on a tiebreaker by defeating Dallas and St. Louis if the Cowboys lose their last two.

Asked how he felt the Cowboys would play Sunday, Waters laughed. "We're the most unpredictable team in the National Football League. We've just got to play like we're the ones who are behind."

Track and field honors for U.S. hurdler Moses

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Edwin Moses, the smooth hurdler who has rewritten the record books in his event, has been named U.S. amateur track and field athlete of the year by The Athletics Congress, the nation's amateur track governing body.

Moses was given the Jesse Owens Memorial Award, named for the late Olympic champion.

Moses, 26, has dominated world competition in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles, winning 71 straight finals races. The top 13 performances in the event belong to him. He's been undefeated in the event since 1977.

His streak is the best ever in his event and second only to the record 110 consecutive victories amassed by shot putter Parry O'Brien from 1952-56.

Moses told TAC members Monday he hoped the award would help inspire young athletes to "show the characteristics Jesse Owens showed."

The Track and Field Writers of America selected Moses as the recipient of the award, which was presented at the TAC national convention.

Moses won the gold medal at the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal and three times captured both World Cup and U.S. national championships.

He won the championships in 1977, 1979 and 1981. He didn't compete in the events in 1978 because of illness and in 1980 because he chose to concentrate on other races.

Moses, of Laguna Hills, Calif., has set the world record three times. His first world mark came in 1976 when he ran 47.63 seconds. The following year he bettered that with 47.45 and he set his current record 47.13 last year in Italy.

He was ranked No. 1 in the world and in the U.S. from 1976-80. His only loss during that period came in 1977 when he finished second to Harald Schmid of West Germany.

Moses beat out an impressive list of other athletes nominated for the award.

Others receiving ballots included: sprinter Evelyn Ashford, middle distance runner Steve Scott, distance runners Craig Virgin and Alberto Salazar and sprinter-long jumper Carl Lewis.

Moses, who lists his occupation as engineering consultant, is a graduate of Morehouse College in Atlanta, Ga. He reportedly enrolled at Morehouse because it was the only institution offering him an athletic scholarship at the time.

Ferragamo's pride hurt

TORONTO (AP) — Vince Ferragamo's pride has been hurt and he's determined to prove to Montreal Alouettes fans he belongs as a starting quarterback in the Canadian Football League.

"I've never been a loser before but the fans in Canada, and especially in Montreal, think of me that way," Ferragamo said Monday in a telephone interview from his home in California. "I have to change that."

The highest-paid player in CFL history — $450,000 a year for four years — had been expected to lead the Alouettes into the Grey Cup last season after starting with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

But he found it hard to adapt to the CFL's 11 new 25 interceptions and was put on the reserved list late in the season as Montreal barely made the East Division playoffs with a 3-13 record.

And he said he definitely plans to be back in Montreal next year.

Vermeil troubled over Eagles losses

By BRUCE DALLAS
AP Sports Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Coach Dick Vermeil usually bounds into his weekly press conference dressed in a Philadelphia Eagles warm-up suit, rattles off an analysis of the last game and disappears to watch films and plot strategy against his next opponent.

But Monday, Vermeil, dressed in slacks and a brown sweater, lingered, obviously troubled over the Eagles' three straight losses.

Oh, the National Football League's most-celebrated workaholic spoke with the same machine-gun cadence he usually does and answered everybody's questions as he always does. But afterward, instead of charging off to his office, Vermeil ate with reporters and Eagles' staff.

"The hard part is today (Monday) ... just to get over the taste of defeat and go in to face the squad this afternoon," said Vermeil.

"Very few people have invested in their football program what we have invested in ours, from a management standpoint, from a coach's standpoint, from the players' standpoint," Vermeil said.

"We're playing very hard and very intense; we're just not winning," Vermeil said.

The Eagles are still 9-5, but must win one of their last two games to clinch a spot in the playoffs. And this Sunday's showdown with the 11-3 Cowboys in Dallas no longer means the divisional title that the two teams have battled to the wire over the last two years.

Vermeil said the Eagles' 20-10 loss to the New York Giants Nov. 22 was deserved. "They beat us; we did not play up to our ability."

"The last two weeks, as far as I'm concerned, we very easily could have won The Miami game (13-10 Nov. 30) we didn't. Yesterday (Sunday) we definitely should have won the football game and we didn't (a 15-13 loss to Washington)," Vermeil said.

The Eagles held a 416-176 advantage in offensive yardage but came up short against the Redskins when holder John Sciarra fumbled the center snap on a 25-yard field goal attempt with 54 seconds left in the game.

"There's no question it affects my confidence; it affects my coaching staff's confidence; it affects my players' confidence," Vermeil said.

"The No. 1 thing to think about right now is the morale of my staff, myself and my players in doing a good job and preparing for playing a fine football game against Dallas ... They have momentum, and right now, we don't have momentum," Vermeil said.

"I think our football players feel that we're a better team than the same one last year at this time. They have invested a great deal of their time in the off-season and a lot of effort during the season to be a winner."

Sanchez, Cowdell like each other out of ring

HOUSTON (AP) — World Boxing Council featherweight champion Salvador Sanchez of Mexico and challenger Pat Cowdell of England say they like each other fine — outside the ring.

The two fighters greeted each other warmly Monday during a break in workouts for their 15-round fight scheduled for Saturday. Neither chose to antagonize the other.

"I don't go for all that," Sanchez said. "All of us in boxing are a family."

There is no need to antagonize each other. But when the bell rings, that's a different matter.

Sanchez, 22, will take a career record of 41-1-1 — including 31 knockouts — into the bout with Cowdell.

Cowdell, 28, has a record of 18-2 and seven knockouts. "Any fighter in the Top 10 is going to be tough, so I will be 100 percent ready," said Sanchez, who will be making his seventh title defense since winning the crown from Danny Lopez in February 1980.

Vito Antuofermo announces his retirement from boxing

NEW YORK (AP) — Former middleweight champion Vito Antuofermo, who held the title from June 1979 to March 1980, formally announced his retirement from the ring Monday.

Antuofermo planned to broaden his duties with the Coca Cola Co., where he has been working for two years.

About 60 people attended a luncheon for the 28-year-old ex-champ, who was accompanied by his wife, Joan, and 2-year-old son, Vito Jr.

The child had a bandage covering a forehead cut, sustained in a fall. "No I didn't butt him," his father joked.

A native of Bari, Italy, Antuofermo moved to New York as a teen-ager. In his honor, Monday was declared

"Vito Antuofermo Retirement Day" in Brooklyn.

"Vito will be a champion forever," said boxing promoter Bob Arum, chairman of Top Rank.

Antuofermo won the middleweight title June 30, 1979 when he outpointed Hugo Corro in Monte Carlo. He retained it as a 4-1 underdog in Nov. 30, 1979 in Las Vegas, when he drew with Marvin Hagler.

He lost the title to Alan Minter on March 16, 1980 in Las Vegas.

Antuofermo's last fight was on June 13, when he was stopped in five rounds by Hagler, the current middleweight champion.

His career record is 46-6-2 with 19 knockouts.

Former Hobbs star leads Texas Tech to victory over San Antonio, 57-51

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Former Hobbs High School star Jeff Taylor scored 23 points, 15 of them in the second half, as Texas Tech rallied for a 57-51 nonconference basketball win Monday night over Texas-San Antonio.

Trailing 27-24 at the half, the Red Raiders took the lead for good, at 32-31, on a 15-foot jumper by Joe Washington early in the second period. Tech then ran off nine unanswered points — six of them by Taylor — and the Roadrunners never again threatened.

UTSA failed to score a point in almost five minutes during that stretch. Dennis Mumford led UTSA, 0-3, with 18 points and eight rebounds. No other UTSA player scored in double figures. The Roadrunners are playing their inaugural basketball season. Washington finished the evening with 12 points for Tech. Clarence Swannegan scored 10. UTSA out rebounded Tech, 33-25. Texas Tech played without point guard Bubba Jennings, the former Clovis High School standout who suffered a broken hand last week and is sidelined indefinitely.

Texas A&M 68, LSU 63
COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Guard Tyren Nauls led a late defensive effort as Texas A&M staved off a Louisiana State comeback effort and posted a 68-63 intersectional college basketball win Monday night.

Nauls, a transfer from UCLA, collected 17 points to tie Claude Riley for A&M scoring honors. LSU forward Howard Carter took game scoring honors with 18 points, and began hitting long-range jump shots late in the game to pull the Tigers within a point with three minutes left. A&M then switched to a man-to-man defense, led by Nauls, and stifled the LSU rally.

Roy Jones added 11 points to the A&M effort, while Tyrone Black scored 15 for LSU and Leonard Mitchell had 10.

A&M led at the half, 33-30. The win improved A&M's record to 3-0, while the Tigers fell to 0-2. Alabama 68, SMU 62
DALLAS (AP) — No. 17-ranked Alabama couldn't stop John Addison Monday night but the Crimson Tide remained unbeaten by finally solving pesky Southern Methodist's sticky zone defense and four-corner offense.

The Crimson Tide prevailed 69-62 although Addison shot over and drove around "Bama defenders for a career-high 30 points. "We told our kids at halftime that we would have to keep the ball away from Addison," said Alabama Coach Wimp Sanderson. "Addison just killed us in the first half. We did a little better job on him in the second half." Sanderson added, "This was a growing up basketball game for our kids because there were a whole lot of different situations they had to contend with. SMU started in a man-to-man defense then changed to a zone. I'm just happy to get my kids out of this Texas trip alive." SMU Coach Dave Bliss said, "I really like their ballclub ... the quickness and their calmness. They scored when they had to; that's why they are ranked in the Top 20."

Rice 102, Texas Lutheran 60
HOUSTON (AP) — Rice senior Ricky Pierce collected 25 points in 26 minutes of play Monday night to lead the Owls to a 102-60 college basketball trouncing of Texas Lutheran. The 6-foot-5 forward connected on 10 of 12 shots from the field and hit all five of his free throws. The 102-point production by the Owls marks the first time Rice has scored 100 since defeating Doan College of Nebraska 100-75 in December 1978. The Owls led from the 16:44 mark of the first half when Pierce hit from his favorite spot in the left corner. They then pulled away to as much as a 43-point lead late in the second half. John Stark led Texas Lutheran with 16 points as the Bulldogs record fell to 3-8. Rice is now 4-1. Four Owls hit in double figures and Rice connected on 60 percent of its field goal attempts, compared with 42.1 percent for the Bulldogs.

Texas-Arlington defeats Wesleyan in record style

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — With Ralph McPherson's 20 points leading the way, eight Texas-Arlington players scored in double figures Monday night as the Mavericks broke a school record with a 126-73 nonconference basketball win over hapless Texas Wesleyan. The 126 points was the most Maverick basketball team has ever scored in regulation. UTA never trailed in the contest, was tied only once and never led by less than 20 points in the second half. Ram forward Charles Fields led all scorers with 25 points. The win improved the Mavericks record to 2-2. The Rams fell to 2-9.

WHO IS THE READER OF NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING?

- He is likely to be more intelligent and more literate than people who respond to other advertising.
- He is likely to have more money to spend than other people.
- She is over 80% of the women about to go grocery shopping.
- He is nearly every man considering the purchase of any major appliance.
- If she is older she looks for advice on foods, sewing and parties.
- If she is a teenager, she sets the pace in clothing attire.
- The newspaper reader is someone looking for a house to rent, or someone trying to find renters for his house.
- He or she is the whole community with unsatisfied wants and needs.

It's GARAGE SALE TIME!

A Garage Sale can be fun and help you make room in your home. There are many ways to hold a garage sale and here are some tips to help you and have more fun -

- (1) Talk to friends and neighbors to see if they would like to join you. Each family can work from their own area. Doing a sale as a group will provide more items and will draw more people to your sale. It can also be much more enjoyable for you.
- (2) Prepare a list of items in advance of the sale and what price you would like for each. This advance organization will help you make the sale more successful.
- (3) Be sure to check your local laws and acquire a permit if needed.
- (4) Place a Classified ad telling people about your sales. Be sure to list date, time, location and list some of the more desirable items you have for sale.

For other ideas and suggestions, call us. We hope you'll have a successful garage sale and remember - We'll help by supplying the crowd!

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Bonds are good for forced savings

By BILL DOYLE

Q. I have $37.50 taken out of my salary each month to buy a $75 Series EE, U.S. Savings Bond. The purpose is to pay my 13-year-old's future college costs. I'm doing this as a "forced savings" plan, because I am not a good banking person. Any comments or suggestions?

A. If you absolutely have to be "forced" to save — as many people do — the payroll savings plan for purchase of U.S. Savings Bonds will do the job for you. But let's hope you realize that EE bonds, like the E bonds before them, provide a lower return than is available a number of other places.

The EE bonds now being sold accumulate interest at an average annual rate of 9 percent, only when held to maturity — eight years. EEs and Es have "yield curves," which start out low. If you cash one early, you don't get full interest.

That wrinkle will cost you money — in lost interest — assuming you have to redeem bonds before maturity to meet your child's college expenses.

If you're determined to stay in the Savings Bond payroll savings plan, here's a suggestion. In the future, buy the bonds in the child's name, with yourself as beneficiary. File a federal income tax return for the child for the first year in which this is done. On that return, list the interest that has accrued on the child's bonds.

Unless the child has other income, no tax will be due. Filing that return the first year "establishes intent" to take the interest as the child's tax liability as it accrues each year. After that, it will not be necessary for the child to file a return until his or her annual "unearned" income from interest and/or dividends reaches $1,000 or his or her total income reaches $3,300.

Q. My mother-in-law has several $1,000 Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds, with my wife as co-owner. Quite a bit of interest has accrued on the bonds. If they were cashed in, even one at a time, the federal income tax on the interest would be substantial.

My banker suggest we have the bonds released, with my young children as co-owners, using the children's Social Security numbers. The children have no income. So, when the bonds are cashed, there would be no tax. Is this correct?

A. Pardon me, while I feign shock at the thought of a member of the staid banking community suggesting your family cheat on income taxes. As you outline the scheme, that would be tax evasion.

Under the rules, that change in registered ownership would not shift the tax liability. Assuming your mother-in-law bought those bonds and paid for them with her money, she's supposed to report and pay federal income tax on the accrued interest.

Q. I am a widow, 72, living on Social Security and interest of about $1,200 from my savings. So, I don't have to file an income tax return. I have five $1,000 Series E U.S. Savings Bonds, issued in 1961 and 1973 $100 E bonds, issued from 1956 to 1967. I have no idea what they are now worth. Where can I find out?

Friends tell me to exchange the E bonds for HH bonds, to get interest every six months. What do you think is the best to do?

A. First, learn what your bonds are worth by getting hold of a Table of Redemption Values of U.S. Savings Bonds. You can obtain an abbreviated version, free, by writing the Bureau of the Public Debt, 1435 G Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20226, and a much more detailed version by sending $2 to Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

You can exchange your E bonds for HH bonds and get interest checks twice a year, for an annual rate of 8.5 percent. But, considering your financial situation, my recommendation is to cash all your E bonds and put your money to work at the much higher yields now available from such things as savings certificates or money market mutual funds.

Doyle welcomes written questions, but he will be able to provide answers only through the column.

BUSINESS MIRROR

Take look at U.S. unemployment

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — As the unemployment rate reaches 8.4 percent of the civilian labor force, with more than 9 million people out of work, Robert Theobald, economist and futurist, says he isn't surprised.

This is unusual, because if you look at the government, academic and business forecasts of a few months ago you'll find that most economists were indeed surprised by the economic plunge already developing.

But Robert Theobald, controversial, original — and according to one story, perhaps dangerous, too — says the entire unemployment scenario is clear to be seen, if you have the political detachment and intellectual honesty to recognize the currents of modern economic development.

"It (unemployment rate) will rise to 10 percent at least," said Theobald the other day by phone from his home in Wickenburg, Ariz., a desert community where the physically towering, India-born, British-educated lecturer, writer and consultant does much of his thinking.

In his quest for productivity, said Theobald, President Reagan has given industry and government a rationale for firing, a willingness to fire that wasn't part of our thinking before. Now, he suggested, cutting jobs is equated with raising economic productivity.

Who is Theobald? He's a man in motion, forever speaking and listening to university, business, and governmental groups. He is an adviser to Dallas, Spokane, and Portland. He is a scholar, he is an author: "Free Men and Free Markets," "Economic Abundance," and "Beyond Despair."

Attempting to categorize him as liberal or conservative is futile. He is on fair terms with labor, management and government leaders. But, since he does his own thinking, he can irritate any or all of them.

Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg is said to have been overheard at a cocktail party telling Theobald — whether in anger or jest isn't clear — that "There is nothing more dangerous than a man who's too far ahead of his time." He was speaking at the time to Robert Theobald.

Theobald is seldom daunted. He observes that if economists can be so wrong, as in failing to see the magnitude of unemployment, "we have to be disturbed about the academic discipline." He adds, "That we have no economic model is clear. We cannot predict, let alone control."

The nation is seeking a return to a maximum growth economy while ignoring signs that to do so is impossible, says Theobald, restating an assertion that has been damned and praised but never put to rest.

"Reagan assumes that the priorities are in raising incomes and the quality of life," Theobald continues. "But if we go back to maximum economic growth we are committing ourselves to dependence on the rest of the world for energy and raw materials. And if we try to obtain energy in the Rocky Mountains we would have a water crisis in the 1990s."

Complicating this, says Theobald, is that if we obtain maximum growth it will be in work that is capital-intensive, not labor-intensive. "Growth won't be in steel but in robots and computers. The paradox is that the faster we invest, the more people we throw out of work."

Operators plan 15 wildcats, a field test in West Texas

Four wildcats projects and a field test have been scheduled by oil producers in districts 8 and 8A. The location of a previously reported wildcat has been changed.

Ten wildcats have been staked in district 7C, along with one in Fisher County in district 7B.

BORDEN VENTURE

John H. Hendricks, Midland, will drill the No. 1 Canon-Whately, a 10,100-foot wildcat, 13 miles west of Gall.

The project is located 550 feet from the south, and 1,980 feet from the east line of section 35, block 33, T-5-N, T&P survey.

The deeper pool wildcat will offset, at the surface, wells in Gulf's Canon Ranch Unit, a portion of the Jo-Mill field, which produces from the Spraberry at 7,100 feet.

ECTOR WILDCATS

The No. 1 Cowden "L" will be drilled by Amerind Oil Co., Midland, nine miles north of Goldsmith.

The scheduled 8,650-foot project is located 150 feet from the north, and 1,500 feet from the west line of section 11, block 45, T-2-N, T&P survey.

It will be drilled in the Andector (Ellenburger) field, which produces from an average depth of 8,545 feet.

Amoco Production Co., Andrews, has amended the No. 1 Davis Fasken to 13,500 feet from the original scheduled depth of 10,800 feet.

The project is 600 feet from the north, and east line of section 17, block 42, T-1-N, G&MBA survey.

Located 12 miles north of Odessa, the project is in the vicinity of the Mac-Boring field.

KING SEARCHER

S.R.G. Oil Corp., Abilene, will drill the No. 1 W.A. Springer, a 3,550-foot wildcat, 15 miles south of Guthrie.

The project is 467 feet from the south, and 2,000 feet from the west line of section 147, block F, H&TC survey.

It is located in a relatively untested area, with a few dry 6,100 to 6,900 foot tests within a mile or two of the drillsite.

LUBBOCK WILDCAT

Zephyr Petroleum Co., Fort Worth, will drill the No. 16-2 Bell R. McAllister, a 5,600-foot wildcat, 2 1/2 miles northwest of Lubbock.

The venture is 600 feet from the south, and 1,980 feet from the west line of section 16, HE&WT survey.

PECOS FIELD

Robert L. Gray, Fort Stockton, will drill the No. 1 Burdette, a 1,000-foot field test in the Chicklynn (Tansill) field, 19 miles north of Fort Stockton.

The drillsite is 1,858 feet from the north, and 1,191 feet from the west line of section 1, block 202, A.A. Burdette survey.

It will be the fourth location in the field, which produces from an average depth of 858 feet. The well will be located 1/4 mile southeast of J.C. Lynn's No. 1 Johnson, a Tansill discovery, plugged Feb. 9, 1970.

CROCKETT WILDCATS

Hanson Corp., Midland, plans to drill a 10,000-foot wildcat, 28 miles southwest of Ozona.

The project is the No. 1 Dudley, located 2,220 feet from the most northerly north, and 1,980 feet from the most northerly west line of section 3, block NN, Robert Rankin Survey.

The site is 1 1/8 miles east of 10,950-foot Devonian gas production in the Dudley field.

Midland-based Southland Royalty Co. will drill the No. 1 University "14", an 8,500-foot wildcat, 20 miles west of Ozona.

It is staked 2,000 feet from the north, and 600 feet from the east line of section 14, block 30, University Lands survey.

The wildcat is located three miles north of the 3,364-foot Pennsylvania gas production in the Howards Creek field.

MCCULLOCH VENTURES

Two 1,990-foot wildcats have been scheduled by Mid-Texas Energy Inc., Brownwood.

The No. 1 G.L. Doyal is located 1,200 feet from the north, and 600 feet from the west line of section 86, H&TC

COKE PROJECTS

The No. 1 Mary Salvato, a 5,800-foot wildcat re-entry, has been set by Watco Energy Inc., Tyler, four miles east of Robert Lee.

The project is spotted 2,200 feet from the north, and west line of section 445, block 1-A, H&TC survey.

It is surrounded by depleted oil production in the McCutchen field, and is 2 1/4 miles northwest of 3,755-foot Cisco oil production in the H.B.C. field.

The wildcat was abandoned earlier this year by the same firm at 5,374 feet.

FISHER SEARCHERS

OSO Energy Inc., Abilene, has scheduled a 5,950-foot wildcat, two miles east of Sylvester.

The new project is the No. 3 Wilson, located 2,025 feet from the north, and 467 feet from the west line of Elijah Bell No. 327.

It is 1/2-mile southeast of 5,375-foot Gray Sand (Pennsylvanian) production in the Sylvester field.

Harold Ervin, owner of B & B Appliance Service at 1009 N. Midkiff Road, services all makes and models of vacuum cleaners. Stop by the shop or call Ervin at 697-2369.

Ervin knows his vacuum cleaners

Harold Ervin, owner of B&B Appliance, 1009 N. Midkiff Road, probably knows more about vacuum cleaners than anyone in Midland. A 27-year veteran in the field of vacuum cleaner repair, Ervin can access the problem and give you a free estimate of the repair cost in a matter of minutes.

A former serviceman trainer for Hoover, Ervin says he'll do "anything that has to be done" to a vacuum cleaner to keep it operating at maximum efficiency. Ervin has all parts available for Hoover upright vacuums made in the last 20 years. What's more, Ervin does all the repairs himself. "If something doesn't work, there's no one to blame but me," he says.

But he says he is not in the sales business, "My only business is service," Ervin says, "and there will be no high-pressured pitch to buy a new machine in my shop."

With low overhead, B&B Appliance can offer low repair costs. For example, Ervin says any vacuum cleaner fan can be replaced for under $20.

Along with repairing all makes of vacuum cleaners, Ervin also repairs some small appliances, and says he specializes in mixer repair.

Check with B&B Appliance if you are in the market for re-built vacuum cleaners.

Open from 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, B&B Appliance features general vacuum cleaner repair with overnight service. Bring your faulty vacuum to B&B Appliance at 1009 N. Midkiff Road for friendly, professional servicing, or call Harold Ervin at 697-2369.

Now is the ideal time to plant

The staff at Plants by Evergreen wants to remind everyone that now is the ideal time to plant. So many people regard warm spring and summer months as planting season, and this is true for flowers. However, your landscape items do much better when set in the ground this time of year. The sap is down, the ground warm enough for planting and the root systems have a chance to get settled for good growth at the first signs of warmer weather.

Plants by Evergreen has crews available right now to plant larger plants, shrubs and trees for you.

Consider gifts from Plants by Evergreen for your friends; such decorative and thoughtful gifts are always appreciated. Or, give yourself something fresh and green to make your home more gracious for the Christmas and holiday season.

For outdoor and indoor plants, shop at Plants by Evergreen's tent site near the intersection of FM 868 and N. Big Spring St. All plants purchased from them are of high quality and sold at low wholesale prices. Employees are well versed in the selection and care of plants. Landscaping and atriums are specialties of Plants by Evergreen, which gives free estimates.

Plants by Evergreen's original shop, located at 409 Kent Street, features hand-glazed pottery, macrame and stoneware.

Plants by Evergreen receives truckloads of lush plants weekly, so customers always have a wide selection from which to choose. Furthermore, if they don't have what you want, they can special order it.

Both Plants by Evergreen locations are open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and noon to 6 p.m. on Sunday. The phone number is 682-9199.

Businesses up in arms about late payment on government contracts

By GENE GRAMOWSKI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Complaining the federal government is a deadbeat, thousands of small companies, from a Virginia coleslaw supplier to a Connecticut dry cleaning firm, say they will refuse future federal contracts unless there is a law guaranteeing prompt payment.

"It's the high interest rates," said Kenton Pattie, of the Slow Pay Coalition, a lobbying association fighting for a prompt payment measure. "Already, some of the companies we represent have quit doing business with the government and many are reducing their involvement with federal contracts."

In response to mounting criticism and intense lobbying from the business community, Congress appears ready to approve a bill designed to reduce tardy payments to private vendors.

The Senate, which approved a speedy payment bill last year, is expected to OK a similar measure before the Christmas recess. Meanwhile, 150 House members are sponsoring a bill moving through the Government Operations Committee that would force an agency to pay interest for each day it is late paying a bill.

Such legislation would delight businessmen who pay in advance for goods they deliver to government agencies, only to be left holding the bag for up to six months while Uncle Sam studies the bill.

"The government wastes a lot of time examining invoices. I once followed a vendor's bill to the Environmental Protection Agency through eight different offices before it was approved," said Pattie.

The proposed prompt payment bill would compel federal agencies to pay interest on all bills unpaid within 30 days of the due date. The interest would be compiled daily based on current short-term interest rates.

In addition, interest payments would be drawn from existing agency budgets rather than general revenues to prevent national budget increases.

"The government is still doing its billing and invoicing on paper, relying on numerous people to check bills while almost all private businesses are using computers," Pattie said in an interview.

Spokesmen at the General Services Administration and the Pentagon say the examination process is necessary to prevent fraud. Careful, deliberate methods insure against wasting millions of federal tax dollars, they insisted.

The General Accounting Office found in 1979 that 39 percent of the government's bills are paid an average of 74 days late. The GAO study also said that 82 percent of the government contractors are small businesses that can be ruined by lengthy disruptions in cash flow.

Take the case of the Virginia food supplier who delivered tons of creamy coleslaw, worth $90,000, to military bases at Norfolk and Newport News. The purveyor paid cash for the necessary produce, spices and mayonnaise at markets along the East coast and trucked his slaw on time to the government installations.

The government paid the angry and desperate supplier 90 days late and only after the intervention of Rep. Joseph McDade, ranking Republican on the House Small Business Committee.

Then there is the recent case of a Connecticut dry cleaner who quickly cleaned and repaired Navy uniforms under a strict contract but had to doggedly pursue the government for five months to collect his $10,000 fee.

Many of the late payment cases amount to relatively minor irritations. When the Justice Department received $500 worth of dictating equipment for its Kansas City office in March 1980, it waited until March 1981 to pay the bill.

"Some of the delays can ruin small businesses because they don't have access to large capital markets or large cash reserves," said McDade, R-Pa., a backer of the prompt payment bill proposed by Government Operations Chairman Jack Brooks.

"More and more of these businessmen are forced to turn to Congress for an end to the routine practice of late payment," McDade added.

Late Payment on Your Government Contract

Congress deadlocked over new farm package

By BOB FICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — House negotiators are dashing the Reagan administration's hope of ending a deadlock over a new farm package, and a senior House member says efforts to map out a four-year plan may have to be scrapped.

"Ultimately, we may have to look at a two-year bill," Rep. Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said Monday, after the House negotiators rejected a proposed $11 billion compromise that officials said was the administration's last offer.

"There may be no bill. I don't know," said Foley, a former House Agriculture Committee chairman who as Democratic whip is charged with lining up support for legislation on the House floor.

An attempt to limit the farm bill to two years narrowly failed in the House in October. Many officials say a farm program must give farmers some long-range certainty to enable them to plan.

The House members made a counteroffer, which Agriculture Secretary John Block immediately labeled "totally unacceptable." There was little indication it would be endorsed by the Senate negotiators.

"I don't sense any mood to compromise on the part of the administration or the Senate — we've hit a deadlock here," said Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., one of the few administration supporters in the House contingent.

The government, through loans, purchases and direct payments, supports commodity prices to provide farmers with some income security to keep them in business during hard times so consumers continue receiving adequate supplies of food. Officials say the stability provided by the support programs eliminates the possibility of severe swings in food supplies and prices.

"It's a day-by-day situation," Foley said. "There are a number of us who cannot accept a gutted farm bill."

He accused administration officials of being "unreasonable and uncompromising partners" in the lengthy but unsuccessful farm-bill negotiations. A two-year bill, he said, could end the deadlock since most of the disputes involve cost projections for the third and fourth years.

The proposed compromise was ironed out last week by House and Senate leaders on the joint conference committee and Block. It would have cost $11 billion over four years, $400 million more than the administration has said it wanted to spend.

But after quick acceptance by the Republican-dominated Senate panel, the House panel voted 8-7 to reject it, standing firmly behind an $11.3 billion plan put together in November. Some House members have said that even that proposal provides inadequate help for farmers facing severe financial problems.

The counteroffer made by the House was almost identical to the November proposal, which Block already has marked for a veto.

Show wraps up year

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

The "Extension Way" is single-minded: People helping people.

And to show that the "way" of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service (TAEX) offers a good deal of action along with the talking, Midland County Agent Charlie Green, his cohorts and the people behind the Midland County Extension Service's Program Building Committee put on a show Monday night to cap the TAEX's 1981 year in Midland.

Green, who has been county agent here since 1949, touched on the highlights of the year at the meeting in the hall of the Veterans of Foreign War's Tall City Post No. 7208.

The year's activity ranged from roller skating and pruning trees to looking over the cotton crop and livestock.

TAEX-sponsored activities included a skate party for Midland County 4-H Club members.

THE ANNUAL MIDLAND COUNTY Livestock Show offered children and youth a chance to get a "little leadership" training and learn how to compete while working with their projects, which ranged from pigs and hogs to lambs and calves.

On the horticulture scene, the Extension Service sponsored seminars in pruning shade trees and pecan trees.

In the spring, County Agents Sharon Hillis and Cindy Mann engineered a "How To Be a Texan" program series, which was geared to Texanizing Yankees and others who have elected to make Midland their home during the oil boom.

Texanizing demonstrations ranged from cooking chili to dancing a hoe-down to gardening and pruning trees.

Throughout the year, the various Extension committees held meetings "based on local desires and needs," said Green.

IN SEPTEMBER, THE EXTENSION Service linked up with the Midland Chamber of Commerce and The First National Bank of Midland in sponsoring the annual Farm-Ranch Tour of cotton farms and cattle operations.

An energy seminar was held in the fall.

Green referred to other committees and to the workload handled by him and his three fellow agents: Willie Stumberg, Ms. Hillis and Ms. Mann. Green also praised the agents' secretary, Christine Broxson, and her aide.

Afterward, the night's emcee, Greenwood cotton farmer Roy Graham, acknowledged the Extension Service deeds. "We do appreciate the good work that they are doing," he said.

GREEN'S TALK WAS PRECEDED by a barbecued beef-and-beans supper.

The 1981 chairman of the Midland County Extension Service's Program Building Committee is Midland viticulturist John Crosby Jr. Vice chairman is Jackie Forsyth. Secretary is Dolly Calhoun.

Building committee members include J.D. Crawford, Roy Graham, George Logan, Charlie Welch, Gloria Hinojosa, Janet Watson, A.C. Teinert, Harold Semple, Bob McBryde, Nina McBryde, Karen Green, Jason Collier, Ray Babela, Arva Putnam, Missy Larremore and David Harris.

The several committees falling under the Building Committee and their chairmen include: livestock and range, J.D. Crawford; crops, A.C. Teinert; horticulture, David Harris; landscape and horticulture, George Logan; 4-H and youth, Bob McBryde; family living, Jackie Forsyth; Pecan Harvest Festival, Morris Davis; Integrated Pest Management Steering committee, Danny Robertson; Midland County Extension Homemakers Council, Jackie Forsyth; 4-H Adult Leaders Association, Bob McBryde.

Making up the complementing People Task Force for home economics are Judge Barbara Culver, Lou Brown, Mary Hinkle and Jane Ramsoure.

Resource people for agriculture are Dr. Nelson Adams, livestock specialist; Dr. Allen McGinty, range specialist; Dick Hagelstein, district conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service for Midland County; Tomas Dominguez, SCS range conservationist; Minter McReynolds, executive director of the U.S. Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service for Midland County; Dr. Kenneth Lindsey, agronomist; Gary Condra, economist; Charles Neeb, entomologist; Dr. Harold Kaufman, plant pathologist, and Dr. Michael Kilby and Dr. Austin Stockton, horticulturists.

Extension Service's Homemakers Clubs and club presidents are Calico, Lynda Barber; Chaparral, Dona Triplitt; Evening Stars, LaVonda Norman; Moonlighters, Juanell Potter; Night Owls, Margaret Nutt; Prairie Lee, Mary E. Bryant; Sagebrush, Ima Jean Cook; Valley View, Linda Stanley, and Westside, Eunice Davis.

The county's 4-H Clubs and their presidents are Greenwood, Andrea Graham; Horse Club, Cindy Triplitt; Sunshine Makers, Kim Watson; Cactus Patch, Coby Farrow; Golden Spurs, Lori Hemphill; Valley View, Kelvin Jones; Cotton Flat, Jeff Longbaugh; and Golden Rainbows, Jason Collier.

The Philadelphia Journal may be converted to all-sports newspaper

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Journal, a 4-year-old tabloid, will fold Saturday unless employees accept layoffs and concessions that would save $3 million annually, workers say.

And if the Journal survives, it will be converted into an all-sports newspaper, according to company officials and employees.

It is the second time in five months that employees have been threatened with the closing of a publication in Philadelphia, the only major U.S. city with four daily newspapers.

The 134-year-old Philadelphia Bulletin avoided a shutdown Aug. 17 when eight unions agreed to $4.9 million in contract concessions.

"We recognize the Journal is the fourth paper in town and is losing money," said Jim Donahue, president of Teamsters Local 628, representing 85 drivers and advertising employees.

Donahue said the contract demands came during a meeting between union leaders and Journal executives at the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service office Monday evening. Donahue said the paper would fold Saturday if the demands are not met.

The newspaper reportedly has lost $15 million since it was started Dec. 5, 1977, including $4 million this year, employees were told.

Reagan thinking of Libyan sanctions

By TERENCE HUNT
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration, concerned about a purported Libyan plot to kill American government leaders, is nearing the end of a policy review that could lead to sanctions against the Middle East country.

Asked whether a boycott of Libyan oil exports or other economic steps were being considered, Reagan said, "There have been no decisions made."

As to the question of whether the United States could stand by idly if a foreign leader were trying to kill government officials, Reagan told reporters, "Well, maybe you've just caught me before we've had a chance to counsel on this."

Reagan and his National Security Council met in a closed session Monday and were believed to have discussed the alleged Libyan plot and possible U.S. reaction.

In a brief meeting with reporters, Reagan flatly rejected Khadafy's denial of reports that he had sent a terrorist team to the United States to kill Reagan and others.

"I wouldn't believe a word he says," Reagan declared. "We have the evidence and he knows it." However, the administration was not willing to show any proof.

Nancy Reagan, meanwhile, said that increased security precautions may prevent the first family from attending church services on Christmas. However, she added, "I am very happy to have" the increased protection.

Reagan's top aides have been given Secret Service protection as a result of the alleged Libyan plot, and a congressional source who asked not to be identified said security has been increased around a few key Capitol Hill Republicans — "those who are closely identified with the president and his policies."

Saving money these days is difficult for most everyone. But there is a plan guaranteed to build your savings. Even for those who can't seem to ever save a cent. Buying U.S. Savings Bonds through the Payroll Savings Plan.

The amount you'd like to save is taken out automatically. When you accumulate the purchase price, you get a Bond. A $50 Bond costs only $25. Or a $100 Bond costs only $50. Whatever the amount, you'll double your money if you hold the Bond to maturity.

Remember, you can double your money for sure or put off saving and do nothing. Double Take stock in America.
