Financial aid seminar

Area students and parents interested in obtaining financial aid for college or other post-secondary schooling are invited to attend a financial aid seminar at the high school auditorium today at 7 p.m.

Representatives from Howard College and Texas Tech University will present different types of aid available at the respective institutions, according to Roger Goertz, vocational counselor at Big Spring High School.

Help in applying for the aid also will be available, Goertz added.

A question and answer period will follow the presentations. Students and parents from Big Spring, Coahoma and Forsan are encouraged to attend, he noted.

Zoning status threatens firm

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

After 14 years of operation without apparent complaint, a local auto repair shop in a residential area may be forced to close.

City Council has instructed its attorney, Jean Shotts, to research city zoning laws to determine if James W. Leffler can continue to repair vehicles inside a building behind his home at 706 W. 13th.

Leffler's shop is located in an area zoned SF-2, for single families. His request to have the neighborhood rezoned to light commercial has been denied by council members.

Shotts is conducting research to determine whether the council can grant the business "non-conforming use status," although he told council members at Tuesday night's meeting that he thinks the shop cannot legally remain open.

"I don't think we can grant non-conforming use under the present ordinance," Shott told council members.

The Leffler auto shop would qualify for non-conforming use status only if it meets the following criteria, according to city zoning laws:

- Was in existence and operating before Sept. 29, 1969.
- Was operating under a non-conforming use status in compliance with prior zoning ordinances.
- Existed in an area that was annexed into the city limits.

The Leffler shop apparently does not meet any of these conditions, according to Shotts.

Meanwhile, Leffler said it will be "unfortunate" and "unfair" if strict enforcement of zoning laws forces his business to close.

"We've been here for the past 14 years and haven't received a single complaint from any neighbors," said Leffler.

Leffler's wife, Dottie, noted that she has collected signatures from 44 neighbors who say they don't mind if the business remains open at the location.

"The business is not a nusiance to anyone ... I don't have any flashing neon advertising signs out front," he said this morning.

Questions concerning Leffler's apparent violation of zoning ordinances as concerning Leffler's apparent violation of zoning ordinances arose when a complaint was made to the Public Works Department this year.

However, Leffler said the complaint was made by someone who does not live in the neighborhood where his shop is located.

"I think is very unfair that someone outside the neighborhood might cause my business to be closed," he said.

"If the city closes my business because of a technicality of the law, then they should also take a look at other businesses that are operating out of homes in areas that are not zoned for such uses," Leffler said.

Leffler cited cosmetic sales representatives, lawyers and doctors as examples of such home-operated firms he said are not in compliance with zoning regulations.

"I feel like my freedom to operate a business is being robbed," he said.

If City Council decides not to grant non-conforming use status to his shop, Leffler said he probably won't be able to relocate the business and will be forced to close.

Snow and ice create hazards

By KERRY HAGLUND
Staff Writer

As the mercury plunged 47 degrees in less than 24 hours, snow flew and ice formed on city streets making driving extremely hazardous this morning.

At least two people were critically injured in one of several early morning accidents in the Big Spring area that kept police, sheriff's deputies and Department of Public Safety troopers busy.

Two Odessa men were flown to St. Mary's Hospital in Lubbock by helicopter with critical injuries, DPS Trooper Jim Lasater said.

Jesus Gomez, 25, and Lacario Patino, 43, both of Odessa, were still in the emergency room at 12:15 p.m. today in critical condition and were expected to be admitted to the Intensive Care Unit, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

They were among eight Odessans eastbound on Interstate 20 in a four-door pickup. Lasater said the driver apparently lost control and the vehicle rolled one and a half times, coming to rest on its top in the westbound lane. The accident occurred about 7:40 a.m. near Fina Oil & Chemical Co. and the 181 mile marker.

The driver of the vehicle, Guillermo Salinas, 27, was admitted to Scenic Mountain Medical Center.

The others, David Nieto, 20, Marcos Galindo, 23, Roman Ortega, 19, Robert Alvarez, 26, and Andress Morales, 22, were treated for minor injuries.

The two flown to Lubbock were thrown from the vehicle when it overturned. No one was wearing a seatbelt, according to Lasater.

The Howard County Sheriff's Office this morning received several reports of vehicles sliding off Interstate 20 because of icy conditions, the sheriff said.

Between 7 and 8 a.m. today, the sheriff's department had received two reports of vehicles sliding off roadways near Coahoma and Sand Springs and a report of another accident near Great Western Motel, located at 2900 East I-20 and Highway 80, the sheriff said. No injuries were reported.

At 9:08 a.m., DPS was called to an I-20 accident near mile marker 192 involving a pickup pulling two trailers. No injuries were reported, and traffic in the eastbound lane wasn't obstructed, according to a sheriff's spokeswoman.

Meanwhile, police officials responded to other accidents in the same vicinity.

Accidents were reported at 9:19 a.m. on an Interstate 20 bridge near Bowl-A-Rama Inc. and at 9:20 a.m. on the north service road of I-20, about one-half mile west of KWKI-FM radio office, on east

Response great to breast screening

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Local response has been so great to Friday's visit of a mobile breast cancer detection unit that a second visit has been scheduled for Feb. 26, the executive vice president of the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce said this morning.

LeRoy Tillery said response to the second visit has also been good, and women should hurry to make an appointment.

"The way we're going, we might fill up today," he said this morning of the program at Highland Mall. "It's booking up in a hurry."

Cost of the breast screening is $50, and can be paid by cash, check or credit card at the time of the appointment, according to Rick Fleetwood, director of imaging services for the Odessa Women's and Children's Hospital, which is providing the unit.

The Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce and Highland Mall are co-sponsoring the unit's visit.

Fleetwood said the process takes 10 to 20 minutes and he sought to soothe fears women might have about the amount of radiation during the X-ray procedure.

"It will be a very small amount of radiation," Fleetwood said. He compared it to a dental X-ray.

"We want women to view a mammogram as a kind of pap smear for breast cancer," he continued. "Uterine cancer went way down with the development of pap smears. We hope to do the same thing for breast cancer with the mammogram."

Mammograms are a highly effective tool for early detection of breast cancer, increasing chances for survival, he added.

After the mammogram is completed, the X-ray will be sent to Women's and Children's for evaluation by staff radiologists. The woman's doctor then will be notified, usually within 10 days.

"We're screening women for cancer before symptoms develop," Fleetwood said. "If the cancer can be detected before physical symtoms develop, the woman will have a 97 percent survival rate over five years; and a 90 percent survival rate over 10 years.

"On the other hand," he added, "If a woman waits until she or her doctor notices lumps, she'll have only a 50 percent survival rate over five years."

Employers facing fines with new INS laws

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

If you're an employer who doesn't follow federal employment regulations, you could be facing a showdown with the Border Patrol.

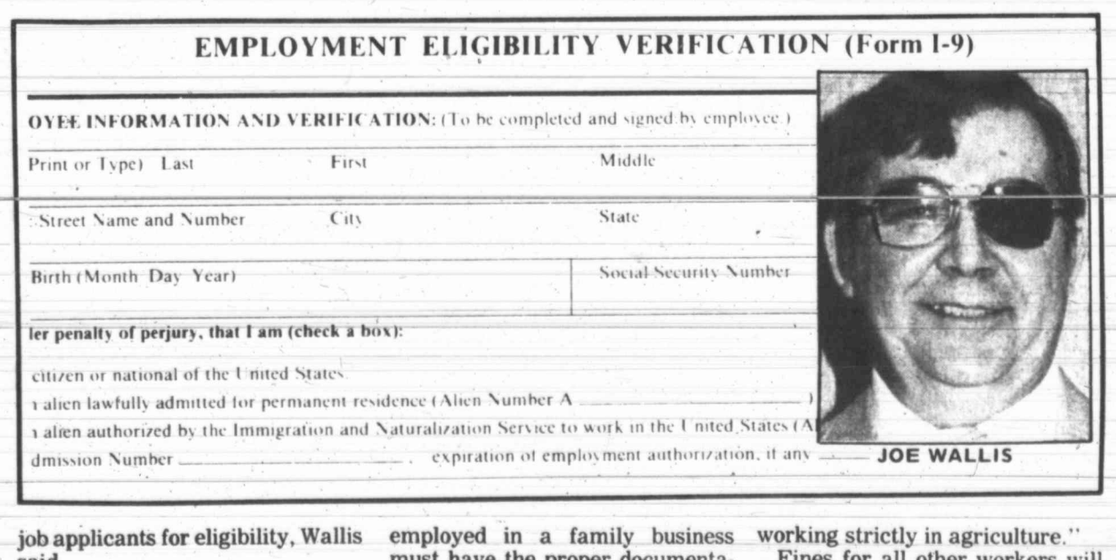

According to Joe Wallis of the Texas Employment Commission, the Immigration and Naturalization Service will be levying fines against employers who do not have on file an I-9, Employment Eligibility Verification form, for each of their employees.

Failure to complete an I-9 for each employee results in a fine, Wallis said. "The first mistake in your paperwork is a $1,000 fine. That's if you don't have the form completed properly or if it isn't signed.

"The third illegal alien worker will cost you $10,000," he said.

Because the Border Patrol is a division of the INS, he said it is likely Patrol officers in this area will be enforcing the rules.

But the Texas Employment Commission is available to help screen job applicants for eligibility, Wallis said.

The federal regulations require an I-9 for each employee of a company, irrespective of the employee's age, sex, race or length of employment. Family members employed in a family business must have the proper documentation on file, he said.

"There is one exception through Nov. 30," Wallis said. "Agricultural employees are exempted through Nov. 30 if they are working strictly in agriculture."

Fines for all other workers will be imposed on employers beginning June 1, he said. Fines for agricultural employees will be implemented Dec. 1.

To document eligibility, a worker must provide the employer (or the TEC) with the proper identification. A U.S. passport will establish identity and eligibility; a certificate of citizenship or naturalization also establishes both, as does an unexpired foreign passport with employment authorization or an alien registration card with photograph.

For persons who do not possess those documents, one document to prove identity and one to prove eligibility are required, Wallis said.

Documents to prove identity include any state's driver's license with a photograph, any state-issued photo I.D. card or any U.S. military I.D. card. To establish eligibility, the worker must furnish an original social security card, or a birth certificate, or an unexpired INS employment authorization form.

One photographic identification document is required in all cases with one exception, Wallis said,

College enrollment up, area schools relatively steady

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Area school enrollment figures remained fairly steady for the past 12 months, with some districts experiencing growth and the rest sustaining minor losses.

Howard College had the biggest jump in enrollment from a year ago. Jan Dunigan, of the registrar's office, said that 1,724 students have enrolled for the spring semester at HC's campuses — an increase of 262 from spring 1987 figures.

The figures reflect a record enrollment for the college, according to Linda Conway, registrar.

The Big Spring school district also experienced enrollment growth for the past 12 months. Local schools had 4,451 students enrolled as of Jan. 29, according to Clara Hernandez, administrative secretary.

Enrollment breakdown for Big Spring schools are: Elementary, 2,274; secondary, 2,203; and special education, 64, Hernandez said. This represents an increase of 81 students from January 1987.

Coahoma enrollment remained steady, administrative secretary Judy Park said. Enrollment there was 822 as of Jan. 29 — a loss of three students from 12 months ago, she added.

Enrollment at Coahoma's campuses are: Elementary, 506; junior high, 134; and high school, 282.

Forsan has nine fewer students enrolled this semester than at the same time last year, Superintendent J.F. Poyner said. The district had 528 pupils enrolled as of Jan. 20, compared to 537 in January 1987.

The enrollment breakdown for Forsan campuses are: Elementary, 268; middle school, 113; and high school, 147.

Stanton schools experienced a loss of 16 students from the previous year, according to Betty Butler, secretary to the superintendent. As of Jan. 29, schools there had 868 students enrolled, down from 884 pupils in January 1987, she added.

Student population for Stanton schools is: Elementary, 375; middle school, 263; and high school, 218.

The Colorado City district had 1,390 students enrolled as of Jan. 29, administrative secretary Janice Goff said. Figures for January 1987 were unavailable, but she estimated that the district lost between 20 and 30 students during the 12-month period.

Student population at Colorado City schools are: Elementary, 696; middle school, 300; and high school, 394, Goff noted.

In Ackerly, Sands school enrollment stood at 226 as of Jan. 29, High School Principal Rick Mantooth said. Although January 1987 figures were not available, enrollment at Sands in May was 230.

Student enrollment there is: Grades K through 5, 117; and grades 6 through 12, 109.

Reagan staying mum on endorsements

WASHINGTON (AP) — Trounced in Iowa and desperate for victory in New Hampshire, George Bush — the fellow who talks up loyalty about seven times a day — sure could use some help from the boss. If Ronald Reagan ever wanted to give his vice president a boost, the clock is ticking.

From the Oval Office comes ... silence.

In the White House and throughout the political community, there is a general belief that Reagan will continue to remain mum, as he has long promised he would, refusing to endorse anyone for president until the GOP nomination is settled.

"I know there are some of the vice president's supporters who have assumed that at some point, the president would play lifeguard. I don't think so," said Mitchell Daniels, Reagan's former political director.

"I take the president at his word, that he does not want to meddle or appear to meddle in the nomination process," Daniels said. "I think he's trying very hard and carefully to live up to the vow of neutrality that he's taken so long."

Eddie Mahe, a political consultant, said that neutrality is the only position Reagan can take without splitting the GOP, and that the president wants to be a unifier.

Noting that Reagan is still very popular in New Hampshire, Mahe said a Reagan endorsement would be very helpful for Bush.

"It also would be extremely divisive and, over time, would not be helpful," Mahe said. "It would be destructive to Ronald Reagan's agenda in the Senate. Remember, a majority of Republican senators are supporting Bob Dole, not George Bush."

If Reagan endorsed Bush, other Republican candidates would have to go on the attack against them. "You can't sit there and let someone as big as Ronald Reagan endorse your rival," Mahe said. "You have to fight back."

Daniels recalls being with Reagan at private meetings when political associates of 30 years or more asked the president about his preference. Daniels said Reagan "was very careful to stay on the straight and narrow" and refrain from tipping his hand.

Would Reagan let Bush sink, if it came to that? "Yes," Daniels predicted.

"It's important to remember the extent to which Ronald Reagan has unified or homogenized the Republican party," Daniels said. "Reaganism has become the party dogma. Everybody in the race is a Reagan supporter; nobody is a Reagan opponent."

No one doubts that Reagan and Bush have a special relationship and are good friends.

The president has called Bush the best vice president in history and, following the Carter-Mondale model, has provided him with extraordinary access to information and meetings.

"But I have to remain neutral until the decision is made by the party as to who their nominee will be," Reagan said two months ago in his most recent comment on the issue.

With his third-place finish Monday night in Iowa, Bush is counting on a victory in the New Hampshire primary next Tuesday to keep his faltering campaign alive. All the candidates are going all out, seizing on anything they can for an advantage.

Police also responded at 8:40 a.m. to a minor accident on Big Spring State Hospital property.

Area residents venturing outside at 8 a.m. today were blasted with a 10 degree-below-zero windchill factor, according to Charles Yates at the U.S. Agricultural Research Service, 302 N.W. 12th St. The temperature at 8 a.m. was a mere 15 degrees, three degrees above a 5 a.m. low of 12.

Suspect was an escapee

AUSTIN (AP) — The robbery suspect killed after a chase with Denver police and a television news helicopter has been identified as a two-time Texas prison escapee who kidnapped an Austin teen-ager in 1983.

Phillip L. Hutchinson, 24, also was charged in an October holdup at an Austin bank.

Hutchinson killed a Denver police officer with a getaway car before being surrounded and shot to death by officers in Denver on Tuesday.

Employers

and that exception is a voter registration card.

There are many forms of I.D. that do not qualify, however. TEC workers cited examples: an unsigned or laminated (blue or new-type) social security card; an honorable discharge — a U.S. veteran is not automatically eligible to work in the United States because some veterans were not citizens but were drafted — or a driver's license with no photograph.

Fines for improper documentation range from $250 to $2,000 per worker for the first violation, according to a U.S. Department of Justice INS handbook for employers which outlines the new requirements.

According to that handbook, fines for unauthorized workers are $250 to not more than $2,000 per worker on first violation, and range from $2,000 to $5,000 per worker for the second violation.

Many employers are turning to the TEC to handle paperwork chores for new applicants, he explained. If the TEC does the paperwork, it also accepts the employer's liability under the law.

"If the INS comes in and looks in your files and sees our certificate (for the I-9) in there, they'll drop the file right there and come down and check our paperwork," Wallis said. "If we've screwed up, they'll tell us and we'll be liable for the fine, rather than the employer being responsible."

"When we do this for the employer, it takes the responsibility for that worker's documentation off that employer," he said. "If he places a work order with us, then we can screen the applicants and do the I-9s on each one before we refer them to him."

Wallis said the TEC is not enforcing the INS regulations by this service, nor doing work for the INS. Rather, it is working to help employers find applicants who are eligible to work in the United States under the law.

"It will — in the long run — create more jobs for eligible workers, whether they be U.S. citizens or eligible alien workers," he said.

The law applies equally to all employees, he emphasized, regardless of the worker's age, race, sex or national origin. "When we have applicants come down and we ask them to fill this out," Wallis said, "it's important that they understand we're not trying to separate any group.

"It's not our regulation or the state's regulation. It's the federal law."

One-vehicle accident injures Arizona man

HERALD STAFF REPORT

An Arizona man was treated and released from Scenic Mountain Medical Center Wednesday after a one-vehicle accident on Interstate 20, 4.3 miles west of Big Spring.

Tom P. Ishengoma, 31, Mesa, Ariz. was taken to the hospital by a Department of Public Safety Trooper, a DPS spokeswoman said today.

Ishengoma was the passenger in a semi-trailer tractor driven by Charles A. Acha-Morfaw, 29, Chandler, Ariz.

Acha-Morfaw drove onto the median and his trailer overturned when he attempted to re-enter the traffic lane, according to the accident report.

He said he was taking evasive action to avoid colliding with a passenger car that had passed and pulled in front of his vehicle, the spokeswoman said.

There were no witnesses to the accident, and physical evidence was consistent with that of a driver who had fallen asleep at the wheel, she said.

The accident occurred at 5:50 a.m. Wednesday.

HC to host reading tutor workshop

The Howard College Community Education Department, in conjunction with the Howard County Library, the West Texas Library System, and Crossroads Adult Need To Read, is hosting a Laubach Reading Tutor Workshop next weekend.

The ten-hour workshop will be Feb. 19, 6-9 p.m. and Feb. 20, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. in the Learning Center, located in the administration annex at Howard College. Those completing the class will be certified as Laubach tutors, according to a HC release.

More than 50 years experience lie behind the Laubach Way to Reading, college officials report. Frank C. Laubach originated a method of teaching adults to read and write in their own language in 1930 in the Philippines.

The method was tested and refined, as it was used to teach adults to read in more than 300 languages.

The late Frank C. Laubach was the literary pioneer who carried the slogan "Each One Teach One" into 100 nations. He founded Laubach Literacy International, which conducts literacy programs in the United States, Canada, Latin America, the Near East and India, the release stated.

Laubach workers mobilize and train volunteer tutors, and organize community-based literacy programs.

Through its New Readers Press division, Laubach Literacy International publishes a variety of teaching and reading materials for adults of limited reading abilities.

The Laubach Way to Reading is a basic reading and writing series developed for adults with little or no reading ability. The series provides systematic development of basic reading and writing skills.

There is no charge for the workshop, and it is open to the public. Enrollment is limited, so please call to preregister. For more information or to preregister, call 267-6311 extension 315.

Deaths

J.G. Butchee

J.G. (Dick) Butchee, 82, died Monday, Feb. 8, 1988 in Methodist Hospital in Lubbock after a one-month illness.

Services will be Saturday at 11 a.m. at First Baptist Church in Ackerly, with Chaplain Lee Roark of Methodist Hospital and Rev. Clifton Igo, pastor of Second Baptist Church, Lamesa, officiating. Burial will be in Ackerly Cemetery under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

He was born June 9, 1905 in Texas and was married to Bonnie Cook March 27, 1938 in Sparenberg. She died Sept. 19, 1986.

He was a long-time member of First Baptist Church of Ackerly and was active in the Lamesa Baptist Association and worked in the River Ministry for many years in Mexico.

He was a member of Lamesa Masonic Lodge No. 909 and of the Lubbock Consistory of the Scottish Rite.

He came to the Ackerly community in the 1930s and farmed there all of his life, until retiring in 1967.

He is survived by one daughter, Penelope Harris, Ackerly; one grandson; a fiancee, Laudie Rogers, San Angelo; one brother, E.C. Butchee, Sparenberg; one sister, Estelle Thomas, Tucson, Ariz.

Pallbearers will be Kelvin Barkowsky and Steve Barkowsky, Monte Foster, Mark Kenemer, Ray Earnest, Wesley Butchee, Robert Butchee. Honorary pallbearers will be Free Cave, A.V. Graham, Horace Luce.

Family suggests memorials to the Lamesa Baptist Association River Ministry.

The casket will be open for viewing prior to the services.

Thelma Hilton

Mrs. Tom (Thelma) Hilton, 88, died Wednesday, Feb. 10, 1988 in a local hospital after a year-long illness.

Services will begin at 11 a.m. Friday at St. Mary's Episcopal Church, with Rev. Bob Bonnington officiating.

Burial will be in Mt. Olive Memorial Park under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home.

She was born Oct. 18, 1899 in Big Spring and married Tom Hilton April 12, 1922 in Big Spring. He died Oct. 19, 1977.

She was a life-long member of St. Mary's Episcopal Church, a member of the Big Spring chapter No. 67, Order of the Eastern Star and a past worthy matron. She also was a member of the Social Order of the Beauceants.

Her parents were Mr. and Mrs. H.W. Leeper, pioneer Big Spring residents. Mrs. Hilton was born and raised in Big Spring, and graduated from Big Spring High in 1917. She attended Valparaiso College in Indiana.

After marrying, she and her husband lived in Houston until returning to Big Spring in 1968.

She is survived by a niece and her husband, Dr. Louise and Jerry Worthy, Big Spring; a nephew, Billy Hilton, Los Angeles, Calif.; a cousin, a great-niece and two great-nephews.

Family suggests memorials to St. Mary's Episcopal Church.

Tessie McCarty

Tessie Harris McCarty, 93, San Angelo, died Tuesday at 2:15 p.m. at Baptist Memorial Hospital in San Angelo.

Services were today at 10:30 a.m. at the Robert Massie Riverside Chapel, with the Rev. Edgar Tatum of Baptist Tabernacle officiating.

Burial will be at 3 p.m. at Mount Olive Cemetery in Big Spring.

She was born Oct. 9, 1895 in Nashville, Ark. The family moved to Clarksville in 1897, where she married Solon Barnett in 1912. He died March 27, 1956. She later married Oscar J. McCarty in Big Spring.

She was preceded in death by her husband; two sons, William and James Barnett; one daughter, Isabelle Allen; and one grandson, Keith Howze.

She had been a resident of San Angelo since 1945, a member of Baptist Tabernacle Church, a member of the American Legion Ladies Auxiliary and was a Gold Star mother.

Survivors include two daughters, Mrs. Thelma Roberts of Big Spring; and Mrs. Macil Lee Whiddon, San Angelo; six grandchildren; 14 great-grandchildren; and five great-great- grandchildren.

Honorary pallbearers will be Rev. W.W. Worley, Rev. Ray Tatum, Monroe Veneble, Tom Jennings, W.O. Brisco.

Fannie Glascock

STANTON — Fannie Kate Glascock, 89, of Stanton, died Wednesday, Feb. 10, 1988 in Martin County Hospital in Stanton after a lengthy illness.

Graveside services will 2 p.m. Friday in Resthaven Memorial Park in Midland with Rev. Tommy Ewing, pastor of the First United Methodist Church in Stanton, officiating. Services will be under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home.

She was born June 22, 1898, in Eolian and moved to Stanton in 1930. She was married Raymond Leon Glascock June 22, 1942 in Colorado City. He preceded her in death Dec. 2, 1981.

Survivors include three sisters, Mary Grace Latimer and Dorothy Turk, both of Midland; and Thelma Ellis, Andrews; two brothers, Rev. Henry Price, Waxahachie; and Oran Price, Andrews; and several nieces and nephews.

Mavis Montgomery

TACOMA, Wash. — Mavis Montgomery, 88, of Tacoma, Wash., died Sunday, Feb. 7, 1988.

Graveside services were Wednesday in the New Tacoma Cemetery in Tacoma, Wash. under the direction of Lynn Funeral Home.

She was born in Plainview, and moved to Tacoma four years ago from Garden City, where she had lived most of her life.

She was a music teacher and bookkeeper, and together with her mother, operated the High Tower Grocery in Garden City for many years.

Survivors include one nephew, Don Lange, Tacoma, Wash.; two nieces, Janet (Babe) Middleton, Big Spring; and Rae Jeean Hobbs, Denton; and several great-nieces and great-nephews.

Snow, freezing rain cover much of state

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Howling northerly winds spread snow, sleet and freezing rain across a vast area of Texas today, sending wind chill index readings plunging to well below zero.

A winter storm warning was in effect for Northeast Texas after snow, sleet and freezing rain moved across a vast area of North Texas.

Forecasters said 2-4 inches of snow may blanket Northeast Texas before the storm moves northeastward out of the state.

Snow, freezing rain and sleet from Abilene eastward across North Texas and as far south as the Bryan-College Station area.

At 6 a.m., snow was reported from the Waco area northeastward to near Little Rock, Ark. Some light snow continued across other portions of North Texas.

A winter weather advisory was in effect for most of North Texas and portions of Central Texas as far south as the Texas Hill Country.

Temperatures dropped below freezing as far south as San Antonio and brisk north winds caused the wind chill index to drop to zero or below as far south as Austin.

The wind chill index dropped to 15 below in the Dallas-Fort Worth area before dawn as temperatures dropped to 19 and northerly winds gusted to near 35 mph.

The winter weather caused traffic problems across the area. Several large trucks slid off of Interstate 35 in Hill County between Waco and Hillsboro.

Power outages were reported across North Texas during the predawn hour. The entire town of Rockwall, located northeast of Dallas, was without power for several hours. Other scattered power outages were reported during the night in Dallas, Garland, Rowlett and Greenville.

City crews worked through most of the night in the Dallas-Fort Worth to clear ice off the bridges and overpasses.

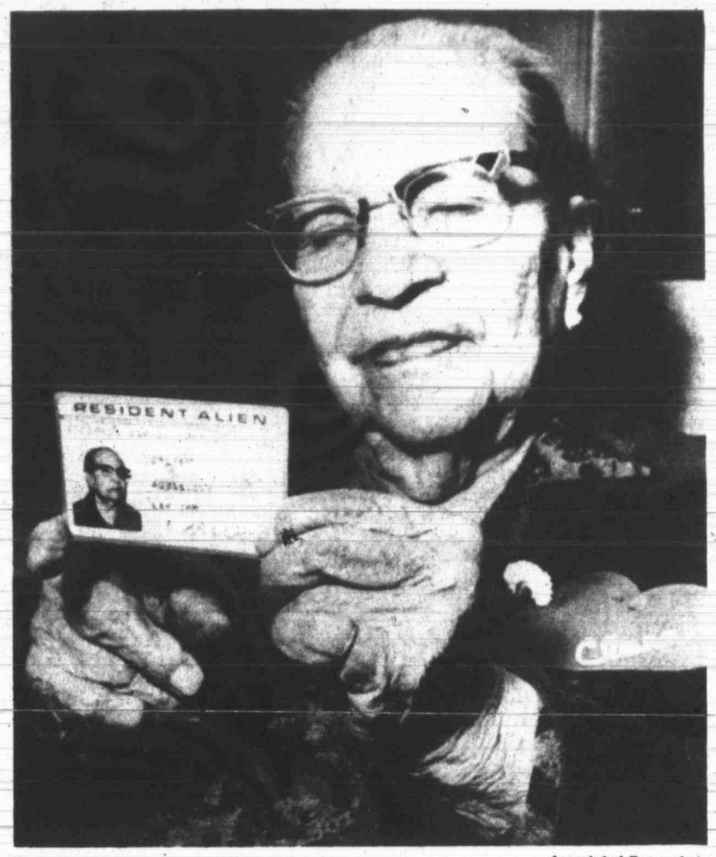

Numerous schools across North Texas closed today because of weather conditions. Other schools opened later than usual.

Wichita Falls and Abilene got about three inches of snow, Fort Worth had about two inches of snow and Dallas got about an inch.

The snowfall was ending from the west early today, but was expected to continue until afternoon across Northeast texas.

Forecasts called for mostly clear skies and very cold temperatures across the northern half of the state tonight.

A warming trend is expected to begin statewide Friday.

Gramm promises investigation

MIDLAND (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm has promised an investigation into the fatal attack of an Odessa family in Mexico last week.

Men posing as Mexican police officers killed Catarino Melendez, 62, and his son Hector, 19, during an attack Feb. 2. The attackers shot two other adults, injured a third with rocks, but left three children unharmed.

Gramm learned of the attack while touring a Texas Instruments facility in Midland Tuesday. Gramm told reporters that Mexico needs to face its responsibility to protect U.S. citizens and promised an investigation.

Members of the Melendez family have said they were unable to get help from the Mexican or American governments when they were in the state.

Supreme court halts execution

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A Houston man with a history of violence avoided the Texas death chamber for a fourth time today when the U.S. Supreme Court halted his execution about 90 minutes before it was to occur.

Calvin Williams, 27, was scheduled for lethal injection after midnight for the 1980 strangulation of Emily Anderson, a Houston travel agent.

The high court, however, responding to appeals from Williams' attorneys, voted 7-0 for a reprieve about 10:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"Thank you," Williams told an assistant warden who informed him of the stay.

A few minutes later, with chains around his wrists and ankles, he was removed from a small cell adjacent to the death chamber and returned to death row, where he has lived for nearly the last eight years.

Williams earlier had promised that he would not be placed on the death chamber gurney without a fight.

"I'm not going to walk in there and just hop up on that table," Williams said in an interview last week.

Temple area drug busts nab 33

TEMPLE (AP) — Four students and 10 Temple residents were arrested following a five-month investigation into drug sales at Temple High School by a police officer who posed as a student.

Another eight students and 11 Waco-area residents were arrested as the result of similar operations at Waco High School and Waco Midway High School, authorities said Wednesday.

Authorities said a Waco police officer, in his early 20s, began attending classes at Temple High School in September.

Temple Police Chief Thomas Vannoy said the officer purchased cocaine, LSD, marijuana and methamphetamine from 17 people during the investigation.

"Of the six students that he bought from, only two sold on campus, and that was like on the parking lot during the lunch break," Vannoy said. "The other cases that we made were away from campus."

Odessa officer dies from injuries

ODESSA (AP) — Police officers from across the state, their badges masked in black tape, gathered for the funeral of a 25-year-old police officer who died six months after he was injured in a motorcycle accident.

About 600 people attended the funeral of Scott Smith Tuesday at Temple Baptist Church.

"I would truly say that we have lost a dear friend — one that has touched all of our lives," said the Rev. George B. Golden, chaplain of the Odessa Police Department.

"Not only did Scott live to be a policeman, but he died being one," Golden said.

Smith had been hospitalized since the off-duty accident and died Saturday. His widow, Angie, is seven months pregnant, and he is also survived by a daughter, Krystal, 2½.

Sunday wedding special for Valentines

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Valentine's Day will be an extra special day for Gary Valentine and his sweetheart, Lisa M.Y. Rivers.

Valentine and his fiancee will tie the knot on Valentine's Day in remembrance of his grandparents who were buried on Valentine's Day 10 years apart.

"We think it's nice if the Valentine name means as much to our kids as to us," Valentine said. "The heart significance or symbolism has kept us close. We are very caring people.

"Maybe it was the gift of God that I was given that name."

Valentine's grandmother, Millie Valentine, was buried in San Antonio on Feb. 14, 1964. His grandfather, Dennis Valentine, was buried in San Antonio on Feb. 14, 1974. Valentine met his fiancee at a country-western dance 5½ years ago and the two planned to be married on Valentine's Day.

"I think it's sweet and romantic," said Ms. Rivers, who turned 24 today. "It's like a fairy tale come true.

"It seems like everything just fits," she said.

Opinion

Views of other Texas papers

Here is a sampling of editorial opinion from around the nation:

Admires patient dumping law

State Attorney General Jim Mattox has jumped head-first into a legal quagmire in filing the state's first lawsuit under a new law prohibiting "patient dumping" ...

The new law is a good one, as it helps eliminate the sad possibility that patients will be dumped from one hospital to another if they do not have adequate insurance to cover their illness.

The case should help to iron out the ground rules for transferring patients, assuring that if a patient is to be moved to another hospital, it will not be done at the risk of that patient's life.

It will be an interesting case, and the state's doctors, hospital administration officials and the general public will carefully watch the outcome.

The Lufkin Daily News

Says withhold money from U.N.

The most effective tool available to the U.S. government to reform the United Nations is to withhold money. Congress realizes that. So did the Reagan administration — until recently.

Responding to complaints about pervasive fraud and waste at the United Nations, Congress has for the past few years withheld part of the U.S. contribution to it.

Now some State Department officials want to pay the entire U.S. assessment for 1988, even though the United Nations has failed to implement the promised reforms, such as the pledge to trim excessive salaries and eliminate unnecessary staff positions..

President Reagan is supposed to decide soon whether to certify that the United Nations has reformed its spending habits and curtailed Soviet abuses. If he does, Congress is to release $44 million withheld from Washington's dues for 1987.

As things stand now, Reagan should refuse to certify reforms, since they have not been made.

Lauds Clements' appointments

Not a lot of fuss was made over Gov. Bill Clements' appointment of former Midland County District Judge Barbara Culver to the Texas Supreme Court, but it shouldn't pass without some notice.

She becomes the second woman Supreme Court justice since the mid-1920s — and Clements has made both appointments (District Judge Ruby Sondock of Houston was the other). That may confound Clements' critics, but give the governor his due. His appointments have generally been of fairly high quality, and have shown a genuine concern for minorities — including women.

Axing toy guns not the solution

There is ample evidence that realistic-looking toy guns on the market today have caused headaches for police departments and heartaches for families throughout the nation.

In the split-second world of law enforcement, these plastic recreations of real pistols have been mistaken for genuine firearms by police officers, prompting several tragic shooting incidents. Extremists, seeking publicity, have used toy guns to hold people hostage. Criminals, who can't get their hands on real firearms, often use plastic replicas to ply their trade at convenience stores.

Dallas City Council members should make it tougher on those who recklessly use toy guns in ways that could lead to death or injury for themselves or others. But the City Council Public Safety Committee is not being realistic in its bid to seek a ban on the sale of replica firearms in Dallas. ...

A far more practical approach is the one recommended by Mayor Annette Strauss in a proposed ordinance that would establish penalties for anyone who used a toy gun in an irresponsible manner.

Beware of the land mines

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

One of the nice things about writing a column is that most of the time, you can write about anything that pops into your head.

Beyond the realm

Wars, famine, disease, death and taxes — all are fair game. If sufficiently peeved about a particular subject, you can vent your spleen before 10,000 or so readers — and get paid in the process.

There are times, however, when fate, or the calender, demands that artists of the keyboard write about a particular subject. If it's the latter part of December, for example, readers are deluged by columns noting the author's favorite Christmas.

The same goes for Thanksgiving, Fourth of July and many other national or world holidays. Like salmon swimming upstream to spawn, columnists are overcome by the urge to share thoughts and feelings about a particular subject.

This column is a good example.

A quick look at the calender tells me Valentine's Day is fast approaching. Memories of past mid-Februarys flooded my brain — some happy, some sad, all headache inducing.

Valentine's is supposed to be a celebration of love — at least that's what I've been told. The dictionary is not much help on the matter, simply describing the day when valentines traditionally are exchanged.

But you and I know there's more to it.

Feb. 14, unlike other holidays, is a time we can look back on our amorous adventures and, I'm hopeful, do so with a laugh. Failing laughter, perhaps we can overcome the urge to stick our heads in the oven.

In a way, I feel vastly unqualified to write about love and other affairs of the human heart. When I say my love life is nothing to write home about, I am being kind to myself.

On the other hand, if knowing what not to do is tantamount to knowing what to do, I may be one of the greatest experts on the subject.

Goodness knows there will be enough material written during the next few days on how to find — and keep — that dream girl. What follows, therefore, are some warning signals of impending disaster for young — or old — lovers to follow.

Small children and persons with squeamish dispositions may want to leave the room.

• The bloom is off the rose — When you first meet that dream person and fall into heavy infatuation, the world is a mighty fine place, indeed. The sun is shining, the air tastes sweeter and you catch yourself constantly smiling at strangers.

The sad thing about this stage of relationships is that it never lasts. Try as you may, you will one day return to earth and find that this dream person; this picture of perfection; this gift from God; is just as dorky as you are.

Welcome to my nightmare.

The greatest danger to the relationship then is the careless tongue. The temptation to verbally lash your paramour for freshly discovered human qualities will be great, but unless you have a fondness for having your skull fractured, Zip-Loc the lips, buddy.

• Sorry seems to be the hardest word — Arguments are inevitable. In a way, they are also a measure of the strength of the relationship.

If, for example, you and your dream person have a fight and then quickly patch things up with a hug and a kiss, things are probably OK.

On the other hand, if she starts rummaging through the kitchen in search of sharp objects, changing your Zip Code might be an appropriate response. The person who said discretion is the better part of valor must have dated a former girlfriend of mine.

I could go on, but space prevents me. Needless to say, there are probably 1,001 land mines along love's path. It's incumbent upon us who travel this dangerous path, therefore, to be wary of those traps — and avoid them at all costs.

If not, next Valentine's Day, you could be the one writing the column.

Supporters seek doctrine of unfairness

By ART BUCHWALD

The George Bush-Dan Rather brawl, which historians now refer to as "The Nine Minutes That Shook The World," has left many Republicans embittered. Strangely enough, none of them are Bush supporters.

While outwardly outraged at Dan Rather for beating up on their candidate, the Bush people are privately rejoicing at their good fortune.

"Our boy is no longer a wimp," a Bush campaign chief told me. "He stared at the toughest anchorman in television and Rather blinked."

There seems to be no joy in the other Republican camps.

Managers of Dole, Kemp, Robertson, Haig and du Pont met in a Pizza Hut in Ames, Iowa, last week to discuss the ominous turn in the primary.

"The Vice President was ambushed by CBS," the Haig man said. "This means only one thing. CBS must sandbag our candidates too. We can't let Bush walk away with the anti-media vote just because an anchorman verbally assaulted him on the evening news."

The Dole manager was even more bitter. "Rather owes it to us to make our guys look lousy. If he doesn't rough us up, Bush walks into the White House. When it comes to TV dumping on candidates, there is such a thing as equal time."

Al Haig's aide said, "The thing that gets me mad is not only did Bush go up in the polls because of CBS, but the money is pouring in. It's not George Bush money but anti-Rather money that is flooding his headquarters."

The du Pont man had a suggestion. "What if we go to CBS and apologize to Rather on behalf of the Vice President? Won't that make him look like a wimp again?"

Pat Robertson's representative said, "I think we should pray the whole thing blows over. God tells me it's hopeless to believe Rather would get into a shouting match with all of us after he saw how much good it did George Bush."

"George never even answered Rather's question," Pierre du Pont's man said.

Kemp's lieutenant replied, "He didn't have to answer the question. All he had to do was sit there and object to Dan's asking it. It was a set-up from start to finish and we're the losers."

Haig's man said, "Rather should have never let Bush go on his television show. After all, how does an anchorman defend himself against a vice president of the United States who stonewalls him right through the commercials?"

"Dan should have known what he was getting into when he tangled with a Yale man," the Kemp representative said.

"Will George do any future interviews with Rather?"

"I'm sure of it," the Dole manager said. "I heard Bush is so in love with CBS News that he has offered to fill in for Lesley Stahl when she goes on vacation."

The Haig man slammed his hand onto his pizza. "I say CBS owes us equal time. Dan Rather has to be as rude to us as he was to Bush or we sue."

The du Pont rep said, "Maybe in place of an interview Dan could moderate a debate and push our candidates when they don't answer his query."

The Kemp aide said, "We'll invoke the unfairness doctrine. Whenever Rather asks our candidates a tough question we'll act wounded."

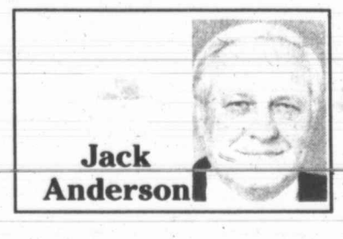

Dole's aide said, "Sen. Dole will go along with it just to bring some sanity to this race."

Kemp's man raised his hand, "We're all assuming that Rather will play along with us. Suppose CBS won't let him. How do we win the anti-media vote then?"

Dole's man declared, "We'll get Sam Donaldson to yell at us from a meatpacking plant in Pocatello, Idaho."

Agency turns a blind eye to toxic waste in the West

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Does the Department of Interior's Bureau of Land Management have a Love Canal in its inventory of garbage dumps on public land? Agency officials apparently don't know and don't want to know.

BLM is custodian of more than 300 million acres of public land, mostly in the West. The agency leases some of its land to businesses and local governments for use as dump sites and mines.

A congressional subcommittee has found that the BLM doesn't plan to check its dumps for hazardous waste, hasn't asked for any money to clean them up, and is more concerned with protecting itself from lawsuits than protecting the public from poisons.

The Environment, Energy and Natural Resources Subcommittee, chaired by Rep. Mike Synar, D-Okla., tired to unearth BLM's landfill problems. The investigation was prompted by a 1986 New Mexico incident in which 15 people sought medical care after their well water was poisoned by chemicals believed to have seeped from a nearby BLM-owned landfill.

"Whether or not similar problems exist at the 450 other operating BLM dumps is unknown," said the subcommittee's final report. "However, it is highly likely."

Committee members apparently thought they were being bulldozed by BLM officials during the hearings. Synar told our reporter Frank Byrt: "The fact that responsible departmental officials made conflicting statements regarding its policies for dealing with the landfills indicates that they were either untruthful or did not know what they were doing."

One congressional staffer said top BLM officials have just buried their heads in the landfill problems and are waiting to pass the buck to the next administration.

Kate Zimmerman of the National Wildlife Federation, an environmental watchdog group monitoring the situation, said, "It's fairly apparent no one (at BLM) knows what's going on."

More than a decade ago, the Environmental Protection Agency set down rules for the safe operation of landfills. Those rules are written into the lease whenever the BLM turns over its land to someone else for a dump site. But the congressional investigation found that most of the BLM dumps don't even come close to satisfying the EPA.

In 1980, Congress passed the Superfund Act, which requires owners and operators of landfills to notify the EPA where hazardous wastes are dumped.

The Superfund law says that both the owner and operator are responsible for the cost of cleaning up the site. But the investigators found BLM "has no plans" to look for potential hazards at the active and abandoned dumps. There could be as many as 3,000 of those dumps.

BLM officials say their budget is too small to comply with EPA requirements. The committee didn't buy that excuse.

The Department of Interior hasn't even asked for the money to do the job. Congress simply appropriated the funds with the stipulation that the BLM begin the project. But, to date, BLM has done nothing. The congressional report called that "indefensible."

We asked the BLM for a copy of its reply to the report, issued in late November, and a rundown of its subsequent efforts to identify and clean up the sites. The reply is still in the works, a BLM official told us.

Earlier correspondence from the agency's director, Robert Burford, to the subcommittee shows that BLM doesn't want the responsibility of cleaning up the sites and is more interested in protecting the BLM than anything else.

He wrote that the BLM would have to manage all the dumps on a daily basis to protect itself from lawsuits. That job should belong to the cities and businesses that lease the dumps, Burford said.

The financial burden of cleaning up the sites is tremendous. EPA told the subcommittee that landfill cleanup costs could be as high as $71 million for each contaminated dump.

While the squabbling continues, a chemical time bomb may be is ticking in the western landscape. The report concludes that the failure by the BLM to act "reflects an inexcusable indifference to (the) potential dangers."

Army ban cut down

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The Army's ban on homosexuals was ruled unconstitutional Wednesday by a federal appeals court that said homosexuals are entitled to the same protection against discrimination as racial minorities.

"The discrimination faced by homosexuals in our society is plainly no less pernicious or intense than the discrimination faced by other groups" afforded protection from discrimination, said the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in a 2-1 decision.

The ruling was the first by a federal appeals court to grant strict constitutional protection to homosexuals and to prohibit a branch of the armed services from excluding people on the basis of sexual orientation.

Pot may cause cancer

BOSTON (AP) — People who puff three or four marijuana joints a day may be putting themselves at as much risk of lung cancer as those with pack-a-day cigarette habits, a researcher says.

One joint, he said, appears to be as dangerous as four or five ordinary filtered tobacco cigarettes.

Dr. Donald T. Tashkin based his conclusion on research published today in the New England Journal of Medicine. He compared the way people smoke cigarettes and joints.

Because pot smokers take big puffs and hold in the smoke, they get far higher levels of dangerous substances from marijuana than they did from cigarettes.

Chain says doctors lied

BOSTON (AP) — Five percent of doctors who applied for work at a nationwide chain of outpatient clinics lied about their credentials, a study found.

The doctors said they had completed residency programs or passed specialty exams when they hadn't.

"We conclude that in applying for some clinical privileges, physicians present inaccurate clinical credentials more frequently than might be expected," the report said.

The falsifications were uncovered by Humana, Inc., based in Louisville, Ky., when it investigated doctors who applied to work in its MedFirst chain of outpatient clinics.

Fortuneteller arrested

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — An elderly woman turned over thousands of dollars, jewelry and a new car to fortunetellers promising eternal salvation and release from curses in a scheme that may involve many victims, authorities said.

Charges have been filed against three people and one arrest has been made, East Peoria Detective Steve Deatherage said Wednesday. Police were still searching for the two others.

"I don't know how many victims are involved," Deatherage said. "We're starting to get a lot of calls all of a sudden.

"With all the victims we're going to have, I'd estimate the losses will be more than $100,000."

Sightings

Evidence shows Soviets in Alaska

GAMBELL, Alaska (AP) — Soviet commandos may be staging covert landings on a U.S. island in the Bering Sea, say officials pointing to discoveries of Soviet military gear and sightings of mysterious strangers who ran away.

An increasing number of reports of unidentified aircraft, submarines, swimmers in scuba gear and discarded Soviet military equipment have been turned in to U.S. intelligence agencies, officials said during a visit here this week.

Although many sightings have occurred on or over mainland Alaska, the greatest number have come from St. Lawrence Island, a treeless, sparsely populated windswept island just 40 miles southeast of Siberia.

Most of the reports come from the Alaska Army National Guard's three Eskimo scout battalions, "the eyes and ears of the North."

"I don't want to speculate," said Maj. Gen. John Schaeffer, commander of the Alaska Guard.

"We don't have a Soviet person on hand so we can completely verify this, but circumstantial evidence is that they're conducting some activity on the island. They're doing it around the world — in Scandinavia and the Philippines — so why not here?"

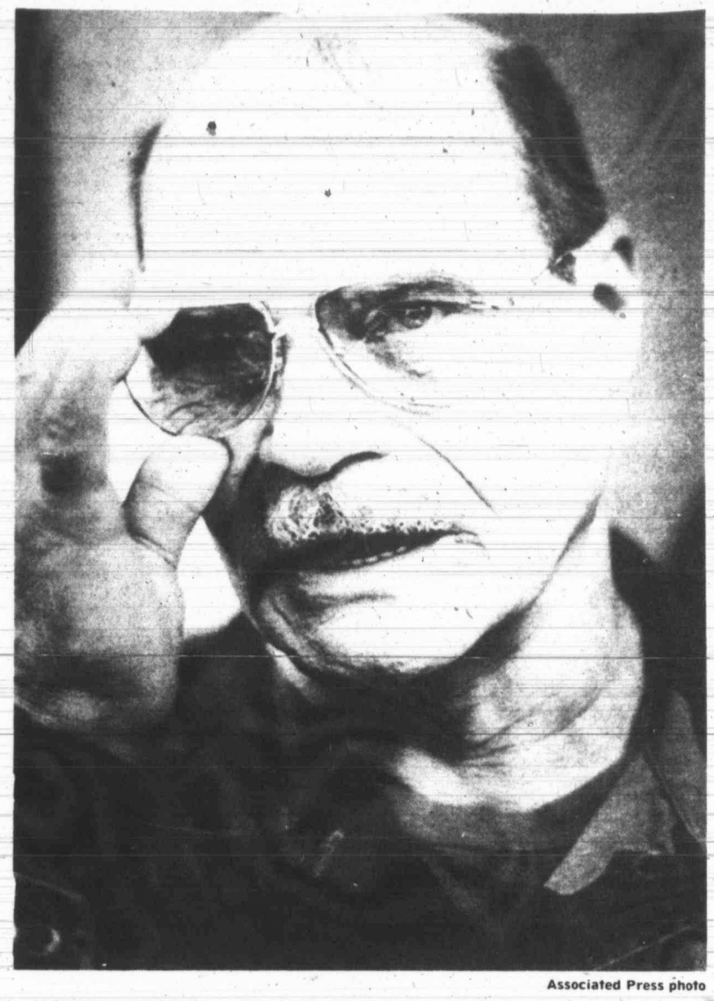

The island's largest villages are Gambell on the northwest side and Savoonga near its center.

The 100-mile-long island's shoreline collects debris from a variety of sources, much of it from fishing boats working the Bering Sea.

"St. Lawrence Island is a beachcomber's paradise," said Sgt. 1st Class Renard Nichols, with the Guard's 1st Scout Battalion in Nome. "What we concern ourselves with is a something like a Soviet-made battery found two miles inland. And when we hear about a frogman and there aren't any (fishing) boats around, that sets the alarm bells ringing."

Other items generating official curiosity include a Soviet liferaft found half-buried above a deserted beach, a Soviet gas mask with filters for a new chemical agent, shoulder board insignia from Soviet uniforms, fuel drums with Soviet markings and fresh boot prints headed inland.

"There have been lots of reports about humans on the island," said 1st Lt. Reuben Nicholson, who commands the island's company of Eskimo scouts. "But the people have run and we could not identify who they are. We know they are not from the island. People on the island do not run from each other."

NOME ALASKA — Alaska National Guard Sgt. 1st Class Renard Nichols is in charge of intelligence gathering for the First Eskimo Scout Battalion in Nome. Nichols calls his scouts "the eyes and ears of the North."

Nicholson said several American oil companies have interests in the area, and fishermen and crabbers often work their boats just offshore.

"Some of these people may be coming onto the island to pilfer whatever ivory (from walruses) they can find," he said.

"We work just as hard to prove these things erroneous as we do that there were Russians on the mainland," said Nichols. "If I get my hands on a spetsnaz body, then we'll agree that it's a Russian."

Spetsnaz — Voiska Spetsialnovo Naznacheniya — is an elite group equivalent to the U.S. Army's Special Forces.

Unlike several islands in the Aleutians to the south, St. Lawrence has no top-secret military installations or supersensitive equipment that might attract Soviet attention, officials said.

"They (Soviets) have an antenna field on Big Diomede" in the Bering Strait, Nicholson said. "It could be that they're pre-positioning some satellite communications equipment. They also may be setting up caches. Or they could be exercising to see if they can come onto the island undetected.

"All those are strong possibilities," he said. "What we've been trying to do is eliminate the other possibilities."

Papers make plea

LONDON (AP) — "Waldheim must go" was the message for Austrian President Kurt Waldheim in European newspapers, from Britain's conservative Daily Mail to Norway's independent Verdens Gang.

The only official reactions to a critical report on Waldheim by an international commission of historians came from Israel, which said its ambassador would not return to Vienna, and Jordan, which praised Waldheim.

Europe's newspapers and some political observers said the man who headed the United Nations in the 1970s and was elected president of Austria in 1986 was hurting his country most by refusing to step down.

President returned

MMABATHO, South Africa (AP) — South African forces in armored trucks and helicopters entered the Bophuthatswana homeland Wednesday and restored its president to power hours after his ouster in a homeland army coup.

"I am back in control ... thanks to the South African army," President Lucas Mangope said on Bophuthatswana television.

Bophuthatswana is one of four nominally independent black homelands inside South Africa. South Africa is the only nation that recognizes them as independent.

Mangope had spent the day held captive in a dressing room of the national sports stadium and was rescued within 15 hours of the 2 a.m. overthrow. In a five-minute address in the Setswana language, he said he was threatened at one point with a firing squad.

Medics cite violence

JERUSALEM (AP) — A member of an American medical team that visited the West Bank and Gaza Strip said today the doctors saw evidence that Israeli soldiers were beating Palestinians in an "uncontrolled epidemic of violence."

Dr. H. Jack Geiger, a member of the Boston-based group Physicians for Human Rights, told reporters the abuse of Palestinians had become systematic and "the norm" in the occupied territories, where unrest broke out Dec. 8.

In the West Bank city of Ramallah today, soldiers fired tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse about 50 Arab protesters, some masked, who threw stones nd blocked roads with burning tires.

176 die in mudslides

PETROPOLIS, Brazil (AP) — Relatives watched tractors search foul-smelling, knee-deep mud Wednesday for bodies buried beneath their homes in torrential rains and massive mudslides.

At least 176 people have died and 8,146 were left homeless in and around Rio de Janeiro since the Friday night storms.

Pope John Paul II sent a message of solidarity to Petropolis, a mountain resort town of 300,000 which was hit the hardest. 149 dead and 3,466 driven into emergency shelters.

Volunteers are needed to help repair homes of needy elderly citizens April 23

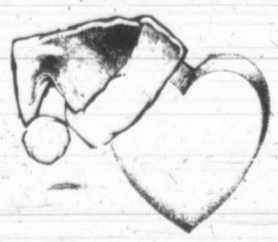

Christmas in April needs donated labor and tools to repair at least 10 homes

The date is fast approaching — Christmas in April Day, April 23 — the day when volunteers will repair at least 10 homes of our community's needy elderly. But this is a project that must have many willing hands to make it happen. A least 200 volunteers are needed, for everything from putting on a roof to hauling away trash. Donated use of equipment and tools are necessary as well.

Volunteer your own time, or get together with your friends or organizations. Just one day of your time, Saturday, April 23, is all that Christmas in April, Inc. needs. It will make a big difference to some of our community's deserving citizens who just happen to be needy and elderly.

To schedule a slide presentation for your club: call Sandy Burroughs at 263-0809.

To donate your time or tools; call Don Riley at 263-4335.

Mail to Christmas in April, P.O. Box 3311, Big Spring, Tx. 79721

Holiday mail boosts morale

DEAR ABBY: I am the naval chaplain aboard the USS Coral Sea. "Flabbergasted" is the only word to describe my feelings about the Operation Dear Abby-America Remembers campaign!

I was stunned by the outpouring of love, concern and generosity reflected in the literally countless thousands of cards, letters and packages we received from your readers. Day after day, the mail brought us hand-drawn pictures from children, photos of individuals and families, long hand-written letters, personal notes and beautiful greeting cards. One package was marked "Estimated value $100." Wrong! The contents were worth at least $1 million in love, concern and heightened morale. One family had sent a small menorah with the Hanukkah candles, which went directly to our Jewish lay reader.

You should have seen those sailors and Marines going through the mail — looking for a postmark near home, a feminine handwriting or a nicely scented envelope (they're still men!).

We had to limit each man to three minutes only to search the trays of mail so that more men could select letters to answer.

This year's campaign was an overwhelming, unqualified success, Abby. Short of letters from our own families, this effort was the single biggest morale booster we have ever had.

These men in our Coral Sea battle group deserve all the love and affection that you heaped so generously on them. We thank you for lending your considerable influence to this project. Please convey to Don Grimes, the chairman, our deepest appreciation. Sincerely and gratefully...

MICHAEL D. HALLEY,
COMMAND CHAPLAIN

DEAR CHAPLAIN HALLEY: Now let's hear it from a civilian who was one of thousands of patriotic Dear Abby readers who particpated in the American Remembers campaign:

DEAR ABBY: I just want to tell you about the responses I received from our GIs overseas from your American Remembers campaign.

I wrote 12 letters, and got 10 back! I was shocked when I got the first one, and when nine more followed, I couldn't believe it. Those guys were so grateful to think that a stranger would take the time to write or send a card, they couldn't thank me enough for raising their spirits at a time when they had expected to feel lonely and depressed.

Keep up the good work, Abby. I am one of your 19-year-old readers. Please keep printing those addresses for other readers. It's a great feeling to know you're helping to boost the morale of our men and women in uniform..

TAMPA

DEAR ABBY: Did you know that more than 28,000 Christmas cards and letters were received by crew members of the USS Missouri? They were addressed to B.Y.M. (Beautiful Young Men), Operation Dear Abby III, to any and all sailors and Marines aboard this ship.

Being away from home during Christmas was not nearly as sad because of all those letters and packages. Many of us are answering letters by the dozens, and several divisions are donating many hours of off-duty time in order to answer letters from hundreds of school children whose teachers actually made letter-writing to us an assignment.

I want to say thank you to each and every one who wrote, because there is no way we can handle all this mail.

God bless you all.

PAUL LAHNEY,
USS MISSOURI

P.S. If you ever come to Long Beach, I'd be glad to give you a tour of our great ship.

DEAR ABBY: We are members of the 349th Air Refueling Squadron at Beale Air Force Base, Calif., in the middle of three weeks temporary duty to Okinawa. We are dumbfounded at the number of cards and letters we received from your readers. You cannot imagine how much that outpouring of love and gratitude boosted our morale.

KAY, TONY, MIKE,
LOU AND ROD

DEAR ABBY: Last spring, a classmate of mine from high school (30 years ago) called to tell me that his wife had died. I had only seen him once since we were in high school, and that was five years ago at our 25th high school reunion. (He dated my sister a few times, but not me.) He lives about 60 miles from here.

When he phoned, he said he had been thinking about me, and would love to get together. I said, "That would be nice; my husband and I would enjoy seeing you again." (I emphasized "my husband.")

I told my husband and grown son, and they both think this man is coming on to me. What do you think? Would you say he is being too pushy? All we have in common is having been classmates 30 years ago.

UNCOMFORTABLE

DEAR UNCOMFORTABLE: You are under no obligation to see this man. And yes, I think he is being too pushy. If you feel "uncomfortable," that is sufficient reason to avoid him. If he calls again, be unavailable — and you needn't feel guilty.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letters Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054

Former city residents pen 'Alamo' movie song

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

"We stand here proud and free,
From our sea to shining sea,
As it always has to be,
The price of freedom is not free."

So goes the first verse of an unpublished song written by Clint and Mike McAlister, two amateur song writers whose roots lie in Big Spring.

"Price of Freedom," the title song from the latest movie about the struggle for Texas independence, is what happens when you blend a sixpack or two and a touch of talent with a bit of pride and patriotism — and perhaps a little luck.

The music and lyrics were composed by the McAlister brothers with a line thrown in by their father, rancher-businessman George McAlister of San Antonio, who is also a former Big Spring resident.

Clint McAlister, 34, said he overheard his father tell a news conference last fall that "The price of freedom isn't free," and the phrase "kind of haunted me" for four months.

Clint now lives in Sulphur Springs, while Mike resides in Dallas.

The McAlisters' song is sung by an unknown country and western singer and backed up by some good ol' boys and girls, a 213-year-old violin and a $12 guitar.

Hey, don't laugh — it's a dynamite tune and you soon may be humming it along with a young cantina singer named Sergio Salinas.

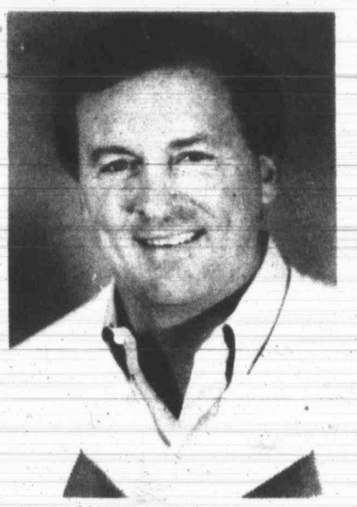

It's not coincidental that George McAlister is the co-producer of "Alamo ... The Price of Freedom," a new movie about the siege of the Alamo by Mexican Gen. Santa Anna on March 6, 1836.

The movie itself, which has been a topic of some controversy, will premiere as part of a black-tie gala March 5 in San Antonio.

"My dad was a Marine and fought in two wars, and he's very patriotic. And Clint, who's got the soul of a songwriter, really wanted to do this for his dad. That's what inspired us." — Mike McAlister

CLINT MCALISTER

MIKE MCALISTER

So one night he called up Mike, 41, and the two sat down with their guitars and a beer cooler and wrote the music and lyrics for the "Price of Freedom."

Said Mike: "My dad was a Marine and fought in two wars, and he's very patriotic. And Clint, who's got the soul of a songwriter, really wanted to do this for his dad. That's what inspired us."

Both Mike and Clint and a younger brother, Kyle, appear in the 44-minute docu-drama, filmed last summer at Alamo Village in Brackettville. It was there they found the vocalist who would eventually fly to Dallas to record their song.

He is Sergio Salinas, 21, of Premont, who has spent the last three summers singing in a cantina the late John Wayne built in 1960 as part of the movie set for "The Alamo."

Mike McAlister says of Salinas: "He's got a strong voice like George Strait, but he also sounds a little like Merle Haggard and a little like Johnny Rodriguez, and that's a nice combination."

Sergio also played a dual role in the new movie. As part of Santa Anna's attacking soldiers, he said he spent most of his time "getting blown up by cannons and falling off walls." Inside the Alamo, he switched sides to become a defending "Tejano," a Texas-born Mexican.

His back-up artists include Clint McAlister, with a $12 lead guitar, and three of Clint's old Big Spring buddies on bass guitar, rhythm guitar and drums. There also are back-up vocalists from Sulphur Springs and Dallas, a piano-playing engineer at the recording studio and a local musician-teacher on the viola.

Then there was the Florida musician in the studio who was persuaded to contribute the pristine sounds of his 213-year-old violin to the project.

"It's really a special song," Salinas said. "It was not only written for the Alamo, but for all the men who fought and died for this country. It moves people, and everybody's pretty excited about it."

After recording the song, Mike McAlister called Sergio's father in Premont and played it for him over the phone.

"He cried," Mike said.

"It's really a special song. It was not only written for the Alamo, but for all the men who fought and died for this country. It moves people and everybody's pretty excited about it." — Sergio Salinas

The movie opens March 6 in the theater of the new downtown mall in San Antonio, according to a tourist information spokesman.

Showtimes will vary throughout the day. Admission is $3.50 for adults.

For more information, call 512-299-8155.

Around town

MOVIES

Three new movies open at the College Park Cinema and Ritz Theaters in Big Spring this weekend.

"For Keeps" will be shown at the Cinema at 7:10 and 9:10 p.m.

The movie is PG-rated and stars Molly Ringwald.

Ringwald plays a high school senior who, upon discovering that she is pregant, nixes an abortion and marries her boyfriend. Despite parental objections, tricky finances, and an iffy future, these two kids in love try to make it in a thoroughly adult situation.

Randall Batinkoff plays the groom.

Also show at the Cinema at 7 and 9 p.m. is the PG-rated "Batteries Not Included."

Opening at the Ritz are "Broadcast News" and "Leonard Part 6."

"Broadcast News" stars Holly Hunter and Jack Nicholson.

Show times for this R-rated movie about the first woman news bureau chief are 7 and 7:25 p.m.

In "Leonard Part 6" Bill Cosby, the nation's reigning Mr. Television, returns to the big screen for the first time with this adventure/sci-fi/spy thriller.

The movie is PG-rated and shows at 7:10 and 9:10 p.m.

Matinees for all four shows are also at 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Debate to include Libertarian nominee

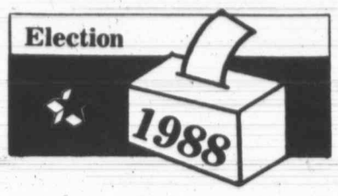

HERALD BUREAU REPORT

HOUSTON — It won't be a prime time media event, and the front-running candidates may not be there, but an upcoming conservative presidential forum in Houston nonetheless will be a breakthrough for Libertarian Ron Paul's campaign.

It will be the first time the former Lake Jackson congressman — the Libertarian's presidential nominee — gets on the same stage with other candidates for the nation's highest office.

Paul will be appearing at the Feb. 27 forum with Republican candidates Pat Robertson, New York Rep. Jack Kemp and former Delaware Gov. Pete du Pont.

GOP front-runners George Bush and Kansas Sen. Bob Dole so far have declined invitations to participate, but forum organizers said they are hopeful the candidates will reconsider. Former Secretary of State Al Haig has said he wants to participate, but has not yet committed, organizers said.

No Democratic candidates have accepted invitations, and none are expected to reconsider.

The "Conservative Action Conference" will be at the grand ballroom at the Westin Galleria. Houston already has hosted two nationally-televised presidential debates, and at least two more are planned.

The mid-afternoon forum probably will not be broadcast live, but likely will receive national news coverage, especially because it occurs shortly before the March 8 Super Tuesday presidential primaries.

"I think it's delightful, and we do appreciate the opportunity to appear on stage with other candidates," said Nadia Hayes, Paul's campaign manager.

"After all, Ron's name will appear on the ballot (in November), unlike most of the other candidates," said Hayes, referring to the fact that Paul already has won his party's nomination, while Republicans and Democrats won't officially select their nominees until this summer.

Having full fields of Democratic and Republican candidates still slugging it out has made it difficult for Paul to get much attention from reporters and debate organizers.

But, Hayes said sharing a forum with GOP contenders who are in the national spotlight should be a boost for Paul.

Paul, who has raised about $600,000 and hopes to run television ads around the nation closer to November, has been a guest on public television's Firing Line program.

"And we're waiting to hear from Phil Donahue and Oprah Winfrey," Hayes said.

Former state Sen. Mike Richards, one of the forum organizers, said a heavy push will be made to get Dole, Haig and especially Bush to participate.

"I think when it's all over, every candidate will come because they need to speak to this element," Richards said. "I feel very confident that the vice president will be here."

Scholarships available

Concho Career Institute in San Angelo and Lubbock is offering scholarships to Texas high school seniors through Texas Association of Private Schools (TAPS).

Full tuition scholarships are available in automotive technology, diesel mechanics, auto body repair, air conditioning/refrigeration/heating, welding, sheetmetal design, major appliance repair, apartment and building maintenance.

Applications must be submitted before March 15. Winners will be chosen by merit on the basis of essays, letters of recommendation and transcripts.

TAPS has more than $1,270,000 in career scholarships to award statewide. High school counselors have applications and information or contact Concho Career Institute at (915) 655-3420 or 1-800-237-6827, or write to P.O. Box 13481, Austin, Texas 78711.

Judge OKs Intoxilyzer in DWI case

HOUSTON (AP) — A judge who ruled Intoxilyzer results could be used in a drunken driving case says the ruling will not affect other motions to suppress results of the test.

In a ruling Tuesday, county Criminal Court-At-Law Judge Neel Richardson said the Intoxilyzer machine was certified by the Texas Department of Public Safety, and test results could be used against a 39-year-old man charged with driving while intoxicated.

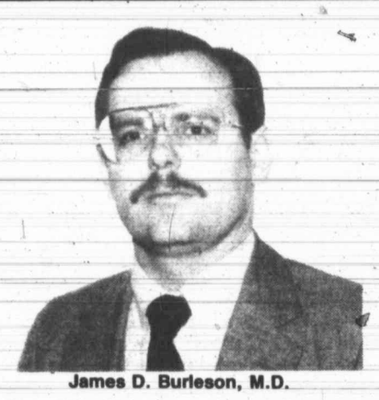

In one recent case, county Court-At-Law Judge Jim Barkley suppressed results after deciding the machines leak, possibly altering results. Last week, county Court-At-Law Judge Alfred Leal suppressed Intoxilyzer results in another case, saying results may have been skewed by changed calibrations on one machine.

Richardson said his ruling was narrowly confined to whether Harris County's 16 Intoxilyzer machines had been properly certified after going into service in 1981. He said his ruling would have no effect on other motions to suppress Intoxilyzer results.

Assistant District Attorney Rob Kepple said he believes Richardson's ruling would help clear up issues surrounding the machines, and dampen efforts by defense attorneys to suppress Intoxilyzer evidence.

"I think this will all blow over very quickly now," said Kepple.

Defense attorney Bennie House said he planned to appeal Richardson's ruling, arguing Department of Public Safety regulations governing use of the machines are "unconstitutionally vague."

Netters begin spring tennis play with win

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Though last night delivered a pinch of snow, it's time to start watching spring sports results, such as the tennis matches between Sweetwater and Big Spring here Tuesday.

The junior varsity split their matches with Sweetwater at five each.

In boys doubles matches, Kevin Nichols and Chris Ficke bested Montgomery and Miller ofSweetwater to finish first, 6-1, 6-2. Jeremy Foster and Jay Ganaway overcame Martinez and Grandclair of Sweetwater 6-3, 3-6, 7-6 to finish second. In sixth place, Doug Abbott and Curt Cochran overcame Peizer and Daniels 7-5.

Thursday Notes

Girls' singles matches saw Stef Stevenson dowing Amand Toland, 6-4, 6-4. In girls' doubles, Debby Dennard and Natalie Brocker overcame Lambert and Wallace for a Big Spring victory, 6-3, 6-4.

The varsity teams downed Sweetwater five matches to three.

The varsity results saw Rocky Tubb from Big Spring defeat Derreck Daniels of Sweetwater 6-0, 6-0 for first and Taff Wennik overcome Stephen Peiser, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.

In doubles, Binky Tubb and Eli Stovall beat Berstrom and Rawlings for a Big Spring win, 7-5, 4-6, 6-3. Danny Whitehead and Dan Ditto defeated Dent and Steele to give the Steers another win 6-1, 6-2.

In girls doubles play, Big Spring's Amber Logback and Tammi Mason defeated Donham and Aguilar of Sweetwater, 6-3, 6-1. ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

From Arlington comes a reminder that it's time to think about the fishing season ahead. The American Fishing Institute's Bass Institute is scheduled for Saturday and Sunday in Arlington at that city's Convention Center.

Family rates are offered, the American Fishing Institute says. In advance, registration costs $50 per adult and for each paying adult one youth is admitted free. At the door, if available, registration will cost $60. Spouse registration is $25 and allows another youngster to be admitted free.

Another Gil Harder Memorial Biathlon, sponsored by the Texas Lions Club and benefitting the Texas Lions Camp at Kerrville for crippled and diabetic children, will get underway March 5 in Abilene.

The 78-mile bicycle and foot race honors a well-known Texan who was killed Sept. 19, 1979, while attempting to climb the Nepalese mountain Annapurna I.

Proceeds from the race, sponsored by Lions Clubs of District 2E-1, will be donated to the Texas Lions Camp in memory of Gil Harder. Two of his brothers died of diabetes and a sister now suffers from the disease, according to officials of the biathlon.

More than $10,000 has been raised through the biathlon in the past four years to benefit the camp, which offers team competition. Each member of the 4-person team must ride 13 miles and run approximately 6.5 miles. For bikers, there is competition for the 52-mile ride only.

This year's event will include an easier course, the Mike Harder Biathlon, named for a younger brother of Harder who died in a mountain-climbing accident in Colorado. A diabetic, the younger Harder was trapped in a storm without insulin. This race includes a 52-mile bike ride and a half-marathon or 13.1 mile footrace, rather than the 52-mile ride and full marathon run of the Gil Harder event.

For entry blanks or further information, write Lions Biathlon, 2302 Crescent Drive, Abilene, Texas, 79605. Entry fees are $10 per individual, $40 per team.

College bound

Three of these former Big Spring High School football players signed letter of intent to play college football Wednesday afternoon in the Big Spring High School library. (Left to right) Danny Williams, who hasn't signed yet; Charles White, North Texas State, Matt Burrow, West Point; and Kenneth Banks, Texas Tech. Kyle Carroll signed an agreement with SMU in Dallas Wednesday.

'Horns, Aggies recruit well.

DALLAS (AP) — Texas and Texas A&M got straight As on their Southwest Conference recruiting report cards, but the rest of the league needs to burn the midnight oil to catch up with the Longhorns and Aggies — not to mention the likes of non-conference competitors Oklahoma, LSU and UCLA.

Probation-damaged Southern Methodist jumped back into the recruiting wars and got some respectable athletes, averting a failing grade with new Coach Forrest Gregg's hustle over the telephone.

Here's a school-by-school analysis by the SWC on recruiting day, 1988:

TEXAS — Grade A — David McWilliams has rejuvenated a Texas recruiting process left in rags by fired Fred Akers. Texas landed three large offensive linemen who were rated among the top 15 players in the state. The 'Horns also signed a lineman-sized quarterback in Jason Burleson of Sherman. The 6-foot-7, 235-pound Burleson could play linebacker if he doesn't measure up as a passer. "This may be Texas' best class in eight years," McWilliams said.

TEXAS A&M — A — Jackie Sherrill has done it again. He has managed to fill his every need with prime-time players, and even thrown in a classy runner like Robert Wilson of Houston Worthing and a talented quarterback like Paul Johnson in areas where he doesn't need help. He signed three junior college players who could step in and start at tight end, defensive back and in the defensive line. "It's as much quality as we've ever had," Sherrill said. "It's a good bunch."

ARKANSAS — B Minus — Quarterback Jimmy Williams of Arizona Western Junior College could be the answer to Coach Ken Hatfield's prayers. He can run the option and P-A-S-S. The Razorbacks were handicapped by a less than bumper crop in the state. They got some good, not great, players out of Texas, including running back E.D. Jackson of Kilgore. The Hogs foraged afar and signed two good players from Springfield, Mo., a defensive back from Spokane, Wash., and an offensive lineman from Miami, Fla. Not a big year, but semi-decent.

BAYLOR — B Minus — As usual, Grant Teaff pieced together a solid group of athletes, not necessarily headline-grabbing bluechippers. He filled some big needs in the defensive line and at linebacker. It will be interesting to see how quarterback Steve Needham of Plano progresses. A linebacker until his senior year, he led the Wildcats to an unbeaten season and the state title.

TEXAS TECH — C Plus — Don't underrate Spike Dykes as a judge of talent. He helped out the Red Raiders' depleted linebacking corps and got some lineman to boot. James Walker of Waco could be an All-SWC defensive back of the future. Linebacker Mike Liscio of Lake Highlands has great blood lines. His father, Tony, played for the Dallas Cowboys.

HOUSTON — C — Jack Pardee got some defensive help he needed, including a linebacker from Tennessee and a defensive back from Mississippi. Wide receiver Ronnie Johnson of LaMarque is among the bluest of bluechippers. Running back Jarrod Milburn of Houston Waltrip is a good one. Not a bad bunch.

TEXAS CHRISTIAN — C minus — A somewhat shaky, longshot crop. The Horned Frogs took a lot of chances on potential. Running back Shawn Crow of Odessa Permian could be a real find.

RICE — C minus — The Owls loaded up on large offensive linemen and that's good. The overall bunch might be the best Jerry Berndt has recruited. It's still not of the quality that will spring Rice into the first division.

SOUTHERN METHODIST — D minus — A very good effort by Forrest Gregg, who had to take what he could get over the telephone after a late, late start. He got some borderline players, but will have a year to work with them while SMU sits out football in 1988.

Skiers testing course

MOUNT ALLAN, Alberta (AP) — Switzerland's Pirmin Zurbriggen posted the fastest training time over the newly designed Olympic men's downhill course on Wednesday as skiers alternately praised and condemned the changes.

Among those grumbling were gliders such as Peter Mueller, the pre-race favorite because of his dominating victory on this course in last year's World Cup race. The more technically skilled skiers, like Zurbriggen and West Germany's Markus Wasmeier, tended to be pleased.

The Mount Allan course was lengthened from last year, with a steep section added just out of the starting gate. Control gates have been installed in that first section to hold down the speed.

Skiers were, for the most part, seeing the changes for the first time in the first of five scheduled training runs prior to Sunday's race — the initial Alpine event of the Winter Olympics.

"The course is a lot slower," said Mueller, the 30-year-old Swiss ace who triumphed here last year by 1.83 seconds, an incredibly large margin for a downhill race. "The top section is more like a giant slalom. I prefer a true downhill."

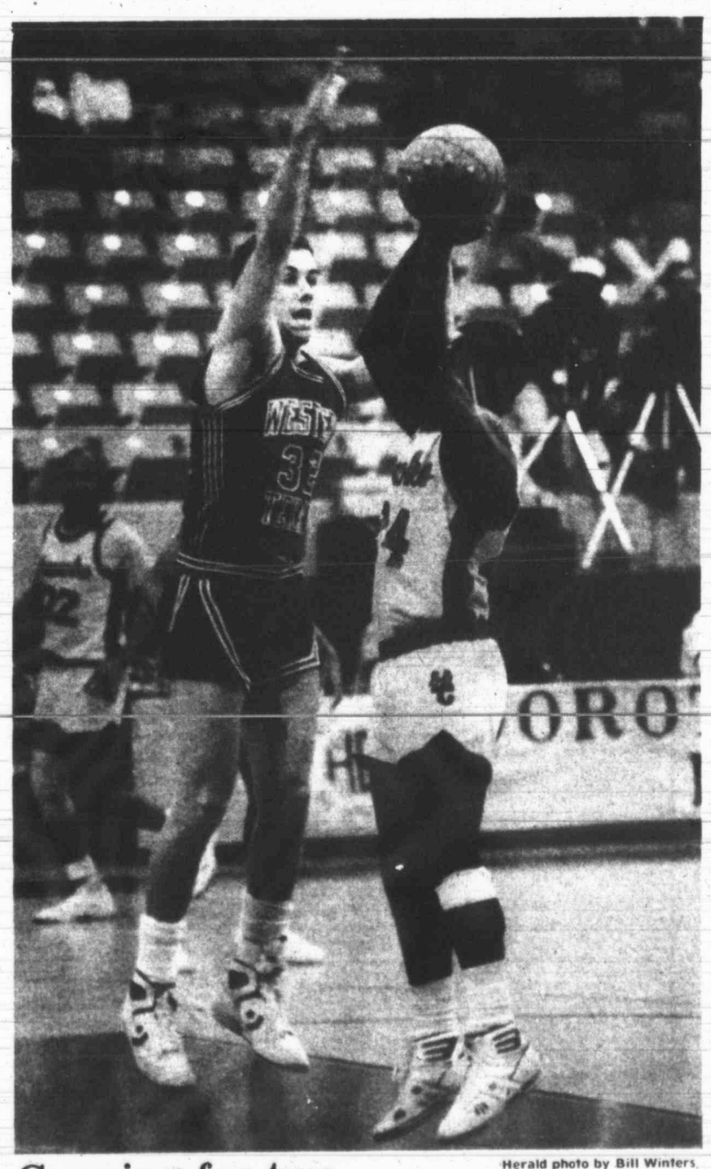

Zurbriggen said the course was "very difficult at the top but I enjoyed it. It's a good course."

Zurbriggen, the defending World Cup overall champion, figures to profit by the changes.

Canadian Rob Boyd, one of the local favorites, called the top section "harder. It's twisty and turny, with hard snow and it's quite rough."

Boyd said course designer Bernhard Russi, the 1972 Olympic downhill champion, "wanted it that way, probably because he doesn't have to run it."

Zurbriggen's clocking of 2 minutes, 2.64 seconds was three-quarters of a second faster than teammate Daniel Mahrer, who was timed in 2:03.39.

Howard College guard Bernard Williams (24) shoots a jumper as Western Texas College's Bobby Spear defends Monday night in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum. Tonight the Hawks will host New Mexico Military Institute at 8 p.m. in Dorothy Garrett Coliseum.

Tennis favorites advance

DALLAS (AP) — Pam Shriver and Manuela Maleeva, the top two seeds in action Wednesday night, both posted second-round victories in the $250,000 Virginia Slims of Dallas.

Shriver, the second seed, eliminated Marianne Werdel of Bakersfield, Calif., 6-1, 6-2 after third-seeded Maleeva also advanced, defeating Heather Ludloff of Foster City, Calif., 6-1, 6-1.

Shriver needed only 53 minutes to defeat Werdel, who upset Shriver a year ago in a first-round Virginia Slims tournament in Washington, D.C. Werdel was unable to handle Shriver's serve-and-volley game.

Niland will do time in Big Spring

HERALD BUREAU REPORT

DALLAS — Former Dallas Cowboys All-Pro guard John Niland wound up his affairs and met with friends Wednesday during his last day of freedom before starting a two-year federal prison sentence for making false statements on a loan application.

Niland is scheduled to surrender to authorities at 2 p.m. today at Big Spring Federal Correctional Institute in West Texas to begin the term that was assessed last month after his December conviction.

"I think he's just trying to get everything in order so he can comply with the court's orders," said his attorney, Cheryl Wattley, who said the case has been appealed.

Niland, a 1966 first-round National Football League college-draft choice who played nine years for the Cowboys and three for the Philadelphia Eagles, has seen his life go on a downward spiral since 1983.

During those years, he has been accused of assaulting or stealing from two girlfriends, possessing cocaine, driving while intoxicated and trying to evade debts by filing for bankruptcy.

Niland was convicted of deceitfully obtaining a business loan by falsely claiming his $450,000 homestead as a rental property for collateral. A bank that loaned him money later foreclosed and sold the house at auction, but he refused to move out. The purchaser filed a civil suit but a federal court ruled last year that taking the house from Niland would be a violation of Texas' homestead law. Criminal charges then were successfully pursued.

Before the charge that landed him a prison term, Niland was placed on 10 years probation in 1983 for possession of cocaine. U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders also sentenced Niland to three years' probation after the prison term and ordered him to pay $384,000 in restitution.

Razorbacks squeak by Frogs

By the Associated Press

With a large assist from the Baylor Bears, the preseason favorite Arkansas Razorbacks are leading the Southwest Conference basketball chase again, just barely.

The Hogs, who had inflicted a 96-53 Fayetteville thrashing on Texas Christian in January, sweated out a 63-61 victory over the Horned Frogs in Fort Worth.

SWC

Coupled with the Bears' 71-57 victory over Southern Methodist in Waco, Arkansas edged a game ahead of the Ponies wtih an 8-2 league ledger. Arkansas is 17-4 overall.

In other games Wednesday night, Texas edged Rice 68-66 and Houston downed Texas Tech 72-58.

The Arkansas victory was extra big because SMU has to play in Fayetteville on Saturday in a regionally televised afternoon game.

Ron Huery scored 18 points and hit the game winning two free throws with 14 seconds to play for Arkansas.

Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson said TCU was a different team than the one the Hogs saw in Fayetteville.

"Game by game they are getting tougher," Richardson said. "Moe Iba has done an excellent job since we played them last."

Richardson said the key to Arkansas winning on the road was fouling less and enjoying it more.

"We didn't keep Texas or Texas A&M off the foul line and we lost both games," Richardson said. "In every game we've lost, we've been too aggressive. It hurts us because we play an up tempo but we have to sacrifice some of our aggressivness on the road to stay in the game."

Iba said the Arkansas zone caught the Frogs off guard.

"I was surprised sthey didn't press us more," Iba said. "We handled their zone pretty well at times. I told my team before the game that I thought we could win. I don't know if lthey believed me or not. But six minutes into the game they began to believe it too."

Darryl Middleton scored 18 points to lead Baylor to a 71-57 victory over Southern Methodist.

Guard Michael Hobbs scored 15, guard Michael Williams had 13, and forward Robert McLemore had 11 for Baylor.

"I'm very disappointed that a team in its 23rd game of the year can play as dumb as we did at the start of the second half," SMU coach Dave Bliss said. "This is a very disappointing loss."

Baylor coach Gene Iba didn't complain about anything. "We were down about as far as a team can get and were playing the best team in the Southwest Conference," Iba said. "The Baylor Bears are not dead."

A 3-point play by Jose Nassar and a late free throw by Alex Broadway sparked the Texas Longhorns to a 68-66 win over the Rice Owls.

Texas led 64-63 with 1:33 left when Nassar scored on a short jumper from the lane and added a free throw on the shot. Mike Girardi's 3-pointer pulled the Owls within one, 67-66, with 51 seconds left.

Broadway then hit one of two free throws to give the Horns their winning margin with 24 seconds left.

Rice had a chance in the closing seconds, but guard D'Wayne Tanner threw the ball away with six seconds left.

Travis Mays led the Longhorns with 22 points, followed by Alvin Heggs with 16 and Nassar with 10.

Rice was led by David Willie and Andy Gilchrist with 16 each.

Horace Chaney scored 17 points to lead Houston to a 72-68 win over Texas Tech in Southwest Conference basketball Wednesday night.

Houston turned three Texas Tech turnovers into eight points during a span of 56 seconds late in the second half to erase a five-point deficit.

Junior guard Sean Gay, who scored a game-high 23 points, scored 17 points in the second half as the Raiders rallied from a 40-29 haltime deficit to a 64-59 lead with 4:06 remaining in the contest.

Tech head coach Gerald Myers credited Houston's poise down the stretch.

Utah gets even with Mavericks

By The Associated Press

It was payback night in the NBA.

The Utah Jazz, who lost by 31 points to Dallas on national cable television on Tuesday night, returned home Wednesday and held the Mavericks to 44 fewer points, beating them 93-80. The Los Angeles Clippers, who allowed Phoenix to snap a 10-game losing streak the night before, broke a seven-game loss skein of their own by beating the Suns 101-95.

Utah led 26-14 after one quarter and the Mavericks got no closer than five the rest of the way. Dallas made only 35 percent of its shots from the field, but only Derek Harper among the starting five shot that high.

In other games, it was New Jersey 93, Chicago 84; Cleveland 118, Washington 102; Detroit 98, New York 87; and Boston 136, San Antonio 120.

Celtics 136, Spurs 120

Boston outscored San Antonio 35-20 in the third quarter as Larry Bird scored 18 of his 39 points in the period.

Bird also had 17 rebounds and 10 assists for the Celtics, who trailed 72-68 at halftime. He scored 11 consecutive points during the third period, giving Boston a 92-86 margin with 5:09 left.

The Celtics increased their lead to as many as 17 points in the final period.

Kevin McHale scored 27 points and Robert Parish had 26 for Boston. Alvin Robertson led the Spurs with 32 points.

College coach doesn't show because of death threat

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cincinnati coach Tony Yates did not attend Wednesday night's college basketball game against St. Louis University because of a death threat.

The threat came from a man who called the Bearcats' office Tuesday afternoon and said Yates would be killed while in St. Louis, school officials said.

Yates remained at the Clarion Hotel while the game was played. Cincinnati assistant coach Ken Turner directed the team in Yates' absence, the Bearcats lost 80-73.

Yates learned of the threat from hotel security when he arrived in St. Louis Tuesday.

"It had very racial overtones," Yates said. "After considering everything, I decided not to do it (coach). I took it seriously."

Team members said Yates informed them he would not be coaching at a meeting 5½ hours before the 8:35 p.m. tipoff.

"Not having coach Yates here shook us up pretty hard," said center Cedric Glover, who had 21 points and 11 rebounds. "I can imagine what he was going through. It was pretty scary for all of us."

Said Roger McClendon, who led Cincinnati with 23 points, "This gives you a chance to reflect on how small something like (basketball) is compared to life. Given the circumstances, I can understand why he didn't coach tonight."

Said Turner, "I'm sure a couple of the (players') heads weren't in the game. Sometimes adversity can pull you together, but it depends on the situation."

You are hereby commanded to appear by filing a written answer to Plaintiff's Original Petition at or before 10 o'clock am. of the first Monday after the expiration of 42 days from the date of the issuance of this citation, same being the 15 day of January, 1988, at or before 10:00 o'clock a.m., before the Honorable District Court of Howard County, Texas, 118th Judicial District, in the District Courtroom at the Courthouse of said county in Big Spring, Texas.

Plaintiff's Original Petition was filed in said Court on the 30th day of December, 1987, in this Cause No. 32,805 on the docket of said Court and styled:

SIBYLE J. WHITTINGTON, INDIVIDUALLY AND AS INDEPENDENT EXECUTRIX OF THE ESTATE OF VERNON A. WHITTINGTON, DECEASED, PLAINTIFF VS. THE UNKNOWN STOCKHOLDERS OF BIG SPRING HOUSING CORPORATION, A DISSOLVED CORPORATION, DEFENDANT.

The name of the Plaintiff in said suit is SIBYLE J. WHITTINGTON, INDIVIDUALLY AND AS INDEPENDENT EXECUTRIX OF THE ESTATE OF VERNON A. WHITTINGTON, DECEASED, and the Defendants are THE UNKNOWN STOCKHOLDERS OF BIG SPRING HOUSING CORPORATION, A DISSOLVED CORPORATION.

The name and address of the attorney for the Plaintiff is R. H. Weaver, Drawer 1750, Big Spring, TX 79721-1750.

A brief statement of the nature of this case is as follows:

To-wit: Plaintiff is suing on trespass to try title for recovery of title and possession to the following described land in Howard County, Texas:

W/2 Lot 11, Block 5, PARKHILL ADDITION to the City of Big Spring, Howard County, Texas, based upon the 5, 10, and 25 year statutes of limitation.

YOU HAVE BEEN SUED. You may employ an attorney. If you or your attorney do not file a written answer with the Clerk who issued this Citation by 10:00 A.M. on the Monday next following the expiration of 42 days after the date of issuance of this Citation, a default judgment may be taken against you.

If this Citation is not served within 90 days after the date of its issuance, it shall be returned unserved.

The officer executing this process shall promptly execute the same according to law, and make due return as the law directs.

Issued and given under my hand and seal of said court at Big Spring, Texas, this the 15 day of January, 1988.

GLENDA BRASEL,
Clerk of the District Court
Howard County, Texas

YOUR DAILY HOROSCOPE

From the Carroll Righter Institute

FORECAST FOR FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1988

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Some delays or messages may throw you off schedule a bit, but be sure to keep any promises you have made to others. This evening will be a good time to further any present business interests.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) This will be a very fast-moving day in business, so keep your head and think carefully. Set aside some time for relaxation tonight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Your mate may be feeling a bit depressed today, so do whatever you can to improve the situation. Be sure to drive with care.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) A business associate has some great new ideas which can help you advance, so listen to this person and show your gratitude for the help.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Modernizing your techniques can help you to become more efficient. Pay particular attention to the state of your health.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) This could be an unpleasant evening if you don't keep a promise you have made to your mate. Be more kind and considerate to your friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You will have an opportunity to improve home conditions and create better harmony among your family. This is a good time for entertaining.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) If at all possible, any necessary appointments should be scheduled for this evening. Arrange a new recreation with your co-workers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Attend to the needs of your kin, especially those of a monetary nature. A trusted adviser can give you some good suggestions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some good friends can do much to help you achieve your goals, so don't hesitate to ask for assistance if you think you need it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you are having any financial difficulties, talk to an expert who can help you overcome them. Try to be more efficient in your work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Contact a successful person you know for some good advice on how to improve your situation. Help out a friend who is having a tough time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) You can find the solution to an anxiety you have by discussing it with a good friend. Go out on the town tonight, but don't spend too much.

If Your Child Is Born Today

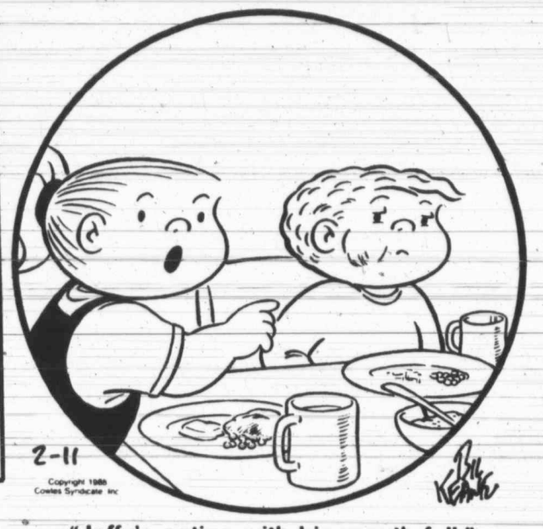

He or she will be very open-minded, having many definite opinions, but will also be quite willing to listen to those of others. As fine an education as possible should be provided, and it should include foreign languages since much travel is possible during the lifetime.
