Pops organizers asking for military photos, videos

By JOHN A. MOSELEY
Managing Editor

With the July 3 Pops in the Park symphony and fireworks extravaganza just weeks away, members of the organizing committee are hard at work on a number of different fronts, including creation of the show's intermission video featuring local military personnel.

That particular duty has fallen on committee member Cindy Smith, who is now requesting photographs and/or short "hello" video messages from those currently serving abroad.

"I would like for people to begin sending their photos and videos to me as quickly as possible. We originally said they needed to be in by June 11, but we've extended it a little," Smith said, "But we absolutely have to have them to us no later than June 21."

Smith said the preferred format for photos is jpeg (high resolution is not required by can be accepted) and for videos is mp4.

Video messages should be no more than about 20 seconds. "I know that sounds kind of short," Smith admitted, "but in a video format, that's really not bad."

Those submissions can be e-mailed to Smith at either of her e-mail addresses: csmith@howardcollege.edu or cinasmith@yahoo.com.

"People can send their submissions in other formats and I will attempt to convert them, but there are no guarantees," she added.

"And it's important for people to understand, this will be on a first come, first serve basis," Smith continued. "For time limitation reasons I may not be able to fit everyone's message and/or photo into the show. That's especially true if they are late."

Pops in Park committee is halfway to its funding goal

By JOHN A. MOSELEY
Managing Editor

With just a few weeks remaining before this year's "Pops in the Park" concert and fireworks display at the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater, organizers say they have raised only about half the money needed — right at $20,000, thanks to a couple of large donations, including three more $1,000 checks from Wells Fargo Bank, Pat Gray Body Works and Alon USA, the organizing committee received before its noon meeting Thursday.

Former donors and prospective contributors have been contacted by mail, according to Committee Chairperson Jan Hansen, who said several of the donations have been a surprise.

"We've had some businesses tell us they're scaling things back, but they've really been offset by some of the donations we've gotten," she explained. "We basically had one traditionally large donor tell us they couldn't give us as much as they have in the past, but we've gotten $1,000 donations from two sponsors that we haven't gotten before."

"I don't want to make it sound like we're overly concerned, because the people and businesses in Big Spring have always answered our call of donations," added. "And we expect them to do that again this year. It's just that we still have a long way to go before we reach our goal, so we still need the community to come through for us."

Meanwhile, Dr. Keith Graumann, the symphony and chorus' director, has scheduled chorus' rehearsals for 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Tuesday in Garrett Hall in the First United Methodist Church. Additional rehearsals are slated for June 22 and 29.

Crowds annually packed the amphitheater with between 10,000 and 12,000 attending the concert and fireworks program on July 3. Hansen said the committee expects as big a crowd or even larger this year.

Curfew violations on the increase

Special to the Herald

School ended only about two weeks ago, but for Big Spring Municipal Court, summer has definitely arrived.

The court has been seeing an increase in cases of curfew violation and juveniles being in the city park after hours. Officials want to warn parents and young people about the consequences of these actions.

"We see these types of violations every year at this time," said Municipal Judge Tim Green. "We want to remind people about what is in these ordinances so they can avoid trouble."

Big Spring's curfew for youth 16 and under is 11 p.m. Sunday through Thursday nights and midnight on Friday and Saturday nights. Teenagers and kids should not be out without a parent or guardian after these hours. Meanwhile, Comanche Trail Park closes at 10 p.m.

so no one should be in the park after that time.

Young people who violate these ordinances may be referred for programs that offer alternatives to fines and fees, such as Teen Court, or mediation through the Office of Dispute Resolution.

Debbie Jensen, field rep for the mediation program, said juveniles and their parents can meet with a mediator who will help them devise

Rescheduled Relay for Life set for Saturday

By BILL McCLELLAN

News Editor

Relay, take two.

One thing appears certain, the Howard Glasscock Relay For Life event may have been rained out once, but that's not likely to happen again. No, officials have moved Relay II to the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum on the Howard College campus. They're still fighting cancer, but in a different time and place. And in a somewhat abbreviated form.

Instead of the all night affair planned for May 14-15 that was wiped out by a severe thunderstorm, officials have planned a more modest six-hour event Saturday.

"We are really excited about it," said Co-Chair Diane Wood. "(Co-Chair) Vicki Stewart and I looked it (the coliseum) over the other day and I think this is going to be a great place to hold Relay this time. It's a nice change. We don't have to worry about the rain or lightening. Plus it's air-conditioned," she said with a laugh.

Despite the shortened version, organizers are keeping intact much of the more meaningful aspects of Relay, such as the Survivor Walk and Luminaria. Teams are still needed to bring baskets for the auction, and will be encouraged to set up "campsites" and sell wares, Wood said.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m. Opening ceremonies get under way at 10 that morning, with the Survivor Lap and Caregiver Lap to start about 10:15 a.m.

The team basket auction will begin at 11 a.m. Those attending can plan on staying for lunch as Relay teams will be offering pizza, burritos and all types of food through the noon hour. At 1 p.m., survivors will be honored with a birthday party. The event is open to everyone.

At 2 p.m., the luminaria ceremony will be held. It will be followed by a Fight Back skit and signing of the "A World without Cancer is a World with More Birthdays" thank you banner. Wood explained that the banner will be hung in various locations throughout the community in the weeks following Relay.

Team and individual awards will be presented at 3 p.m., followed by the community wrapup. Survivors and caregivers will then be invited to participate in a balloon release at the east ramp.

"We hope to have as many people come to Relay as possible," said Wood. "It's should be a great time."

Wood added that Relay will be wrapped up by 3:30 p.m.

POPS

"We've managed to expand the show ... making it bigger and better every year," Hansen said. "As a result, the crowd has also continued to grow over the years. We're planning on having a great fireworks show, and since we'll have a couple of different acts performing before the symphony takes the stage, I expect we'll have an excellent audience. Hopefully it will be the biggest we've ever had."

In addition to the symphony and chorus' performance, the show will be opened by a group of performers from Big Spring's sister city, San Miguel el Alto in Jalisco, Mexico. They will be followed by a return to the Pops stage by the local band, Los Greengos. But before all that can happen, the organizing committee has to raise the money it needs.

Donations making the concert and fireworks show possible come from local businesses and individuals, as well as corporate sponsorships. They also make it possible for the organizing committee to open the gates for all comers free of charge.

"This is the entire community's celebration, that's something we always want to stress," Hansen said. "It really is a time where we can all gather with friends and family at the park and join our neighbors in celebrating that we're Americans, that we live in the greatest country on earth."

"But we really do need the community's help," she added. "The people and businesses in this community always come through, but when you're one of the people planning the event and you're only gotten about a quarter of the money you need, you can't help but be a little concerned."

"So, we'll be redoubling our efforts in the next twos," she continued. "After all, we're convinced nobody celebrates the Fourth of July holiday like Big Spring does. That's why this show always brings visitors from outside our community and we think it's important to make sure we continue to have a quality show for everyone to enjoy."

Presenters of the event include the Big Spring Herald, Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce, the city of Big Spring, the Big Spring Symphony, KBST and KBYG — each providing donations of $5,000 or more in funding or in-kind services. Those presenters' contributions are not included in the amount the show costs each year.

For those unable to serve as "Presenters," Hansen noted that the committee is also seeking support at different levels — "Star & Stripes" sponsors that donate $3,000 or more, "Texas Star" sponsors donate $2,000 or more and "Rocket" sponsors, donating $1,000 or more. The $1,000 donations announced Thursday, as well as those from the Worthy Company, Citizens Federal Credit Union and Robinson Drilling, are the only large donations the committee has received, other than the current six presenters.

"We expect to add another presenter in the next few days," Hansen added. "We know they've already committed to being a presenter, we just haven't received the check yet."

"We really appreciate that kind of support," she added, but it's important for people to understand that we want to thank those who support us, no matter how they are able to contribute."

While committee members begin their fundraising effort, Becky Crane is coordinating the list of businesses and organizations wanting to operate vendor's booths. She can be contacted at 267-5449 or at 517-0373.

Vendor packets are already available at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce offices.

Those interested in making a donation to the project can do so by contacting Debbye Valverde at the Commerce at 263-7641 or mail them to the chamber of-a plan to change the behavior that led to the violation.

"If teenagers are roaming around without much to do this summer and this leads to violating laws, that needs to change," Jensen said. "Our mediators will help these juveniles see the problems caused by this behavior and think about alternatives. The young people will make an agreement that they should keep in order to avoid harsher penalties through the courts."

Green said the goal is safety and protection for local youth. "These ordinances are designed to prevent problems and help our juveniles avoid dangerous situations," he said. "We know kids want to enjoy their summer, but they can do that and stay within the law." Contact the municipal court at 264-2531 or Dispute Resolution at 264-0675.

OUR VIEW

Old Glory truly stands for all that is America

Today is Flag Day — the 233rd anniversary of the Continental Congress' adoption of the Stars and Stripes as the flag of a new nation. This is a day to observe and celebrate "Old Glory" and everything she represents.

It's a great day, and what better way to celebrate than to fly our national emblem proudly today? We beam with pride every holiday when we see hundreds of American flags snapping in the breeze in front to the VA Medical Center, along Gregg Street and elsewhere throughout our community. And that's why today's edition of the Herald includes a flag readers can display.

From the time an early version of the flag was carried by underdog patriots battling the might that was Great Britain in 1777 to today, millions of Americans have followed our flag into battle to defend all that it represents.

So, on this Flag Day, let us all remember that Old Glory flies today in countless locations around the globe where the men and women of our armed forces serve.

Although Flag Day was celebrated in numerous communities starting in 1885, the first by Wisconsin school students, it wasn't until 1916 that President Woodrow Wilson officially proclaimed the first national Flag Day celebration. And in 1949, President Harry Truman signed a congressional act declaring June 14 each year as Flag Day.

Today, as we celebrate Flag Day, we honor the red, white and blue. Yet, we do so much more.

As President Wilson said in 1916, "The flag is the embodiment, not of sentiment, but of history. It represents the experiences made by men and women, the experiences of those who do and live under that flag."

The flag represents everything and everyone that is America. It is the banner of both those who agree with our government's actions this day, as well as those who challenge and question those in power.

It is the flag of all Americans, whether they be young or old, rich or poor, liberal or conservative. It's the banner for the countless races, religions and creeds that are the "Great Melting Pot" of America.

Today, when you drive past the rows of flags on our city streets, think about the greatness that is America — and how our flag represents that to the entire world.

Airlines battle workplace democracy

If you ever want to spook a smug, stuffed-shirt corporate CEO — I mean spook him so bad that he jumps clear out of his Guccis and screams louder than Little Richard — sneak up behind him and shout "union!"

They hate that.

Corporate chieftains get the heebie-jeebies at the mere mention of unionization for the exact same reason that millions of workers perk up at the idea: power. In today's plutocratic, corporate-controlled economy, the most direct and effective way for working folks to assert their interests and restore a measure of fairness to America's economic system is for them to unite in unions.

Indeed, while the corporate powers and their political apologists constantly insist that the union movement is passe — neither needed nor wanted in or modern, globalized workplace — more than 60 million Americans (over half of the workforce) say they would join a union if they could.

Well ... why can't they?

Because those at the very top (corporate executives, board members and financiers) personally profit by holding down everyone else, so they don't want the mass of working stiffies having any real say over such critical matters as offshoring, downsizing, wages, benefits and working conditions.

Unions — which allow employees to amass their strength, coordinate their interests and participate in company decisions that affect them — are a direct democratic threat to the centralized autocracy preferred by the pampered few at the top.

Thus, for the past three decades or so, the autocrats have retained lawyers, lobbyists and lawmakers, deploying them in a determined effort (mostly out of the public eye) to monkey-wrench the rules of unionization in ways that make it hard to impossible for workers to join together.

For example, perhaps you've never gotten around to reading the Railway Labor Act (it didn't make many best-seller lists). But the RLA, which governs unionization elections in both the railroad and airline industries, has a wicked little plot-twist you might enjoy.

When a vote is taken among workers in either of these two industries to determine whether they want to form a union, the law requires that all employees who do not vote be automatically (and autocratically) counted as having voted against the union.

Come on, even Agatha Christie wouldn't have tried something that twisted! Those who did not cast ballots (because they were sick, didn't care, were intimidated, had a family emergency, whatever) should not be counted at all, as happens with no-shows in every other American election.

Happily, the Obama administration has recently issued a new rule repealing this electoral absurdity. But — Holy Kafka! — assorted airline corporations have gone bonkers, bananas and bat-stuff, screeching that this small step toward the bright light of logic is a demonic perversion of the Founders' democratic ideals. The industry has unleashed its political hounds to howl in protest and demand a reversion to the good ol' autocratic system.

Sen. Johnny Isakson of Georgia was especially noisy, which is no surprise, since he's a longtime retainer of Atlanta-based Delta Air Lines, whose labor force is largely non-union. Delta has profited enormously from RLA's quaint, anti-democratic method of skewing unionization votes (it has even included at least one dead employee as a non-voting "no" vote), so it is going all-out to stop the rule change.

Thus, Isakson, whose No. 1 campaign funder is Delta, quickly rose up on his hind legs last month to declare that deleting non-voters from the "no" column was an "assault on employee rights."

No one ever said Johnny was bright, but — wow! — that's dim. How about we apply Isakson's thinking to ... well, to him!

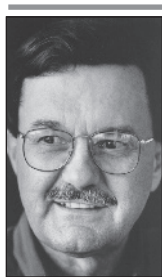

In his last election, there were 8.6 million eligible Georgia voters, but only 1.8 million cast a ballot for him.

Golly, Johnny, that means 79 percent of Georgians either voted against you or — gasp! — did not vote at all. In other words, those non-voters you love would've unceremoniously drummed you right out of the Senate.

Hmmm, the more I think about it, the more I like the no-vote inclusion — as long as it applies to all of the hypocrites like Isakson.

But I doubt he'd vote for that.

Where's the federal budget?

Exactly where is the federal budget? If you've seen one, be sure to let me know. We have seen neither hide nor hair of an annual budget in Congress, even though we are four months away from the next fiscal year. Not even a well-trained pair of bloodhounds could sniff it out at this point.

Like many of my colleagues in the House, I have been waiting on the Democratic leadership for months now to release a budget. Every day it seems more and more likely that we won't have a budget at all this year.

But, according to the Chairman of the House Budget Committee, Rep. John Spratt, "If you can't budget, you can't govern."

Well, I guess the Majority here in Congress just can't govern.

If the House doesn't pass a budget, it would be the first time since 1974 that we have failed to do so.

Not only is it bad precedent, but it's bad policy as well. The purpose of an annual Congressional budget is to create enforceable limits within which Congress can consider legislation to set spending levels for programs and agencies. To not even propose a budget or spending limits is throwing in the towel when it comes to reining in spending.

If Congress doesn't set a budget, how can we govern responsibly? Without a budget in place, Congress has no restraints on spending. And the last thing we need right now is more wasteful government spending and more debt paid for by China.

Since 2009, Congress has increased spending by $1.8 trillion. Last year the federal budget deficit topped $1.4 trillion, and is on track to do the same for several years to come. Just a few months ago, President Obama proposed a budget of his own, including record spending of $3.8 trillion and new taxes of nearly $2 trillion.

At this rate, I am concerned that Congress is going to have a very hard time reversing the current acceleration in spending, deficits and debt. Deficits exceeding $1 trillion are reckless and unsustainable.

We can't reduce these deficits by increasing taxes or putting more on the credit card. It's going to take difficult decisions on spending and the size of the federal government to truly bring the deficit down. But none of this can be done without a budget to follow.

House Republicans have put a balanced budget on the table. I am proud to cosponsor the Republican Study Committee's "Balanced Budget for America."

Some may say that this plan is too extreme, but it shows just how much Congress is spending beyond its means and just how much we would need to curb spending to balance the budget by 2019.

The American people expect Congress to make difficult choices, even if that means cutting back on some popular programs and eliminating others. If Congress followed this budget outline, it would result in $6.4 trillion less debt than President Obama's budget.

I have also introduced two bills that send the message that the government needs to live within its means, rather than increase its take through taxes. My Tax Limitation Amendment would make it more difficult for Congress to raise taxes going forward, and the Taxpayer Certainty Act would prevent a massive tax increase next year when the 2001 and 2003 tax relief expires.

It's difficult to explain why the Democrats don't have a budget.

Frankly, it just doesn't make sense. Families in the 19th District have to live within a budget. And it's not always easy.

But, you make the tough choices you have to make. If times are tight, you tighten your belt and live within your means. If a business doesn't operate within its budget, then they aren't going to be in business for long.

Just last week the national debt officially hit $13 trillion. The bipartisan Congressional Budget Office projects the president's budget plan will increase the public debt to $20.3 trillion by 2020.

With federal spending and debt spiraling out of control now is not the time to go without a budget. We need a budget that will allow Congress to publicly address the levels of spending, taxing and debt.

Without a budget, the Democrats in Congress have no plan to stop the spending. Our country cannot afford to wait.

THANKS FOR VOTING!

Martin enjoys coaching players one last time

BY ADAM COLEMAN

Sports Editor

Stacey Martin may be on another team's sideline next football season, but he got a chance to be around a few of his Coahoma players one last time this weekend.

Martin coached in the Fellowship of Christian Athletes 11th annual Myrle Greathouse All-Star Classic at Shotwell Stadium in Abilene.

Martin, who took the job to be football coach at Alpine next season, had the chance to coach Coahoma wide receiver Lupe Abrego and quarterback Josh Paniagua one last time as he makes his move.

"It was a fun week to be around all those kids, especially those kids from Coahoma," Martin said. "See them compete one more time. It was exciting, it was an honor to be there."

Martin was an assistant coach with the North team in the Myrle Greathouse All-Star Classic and even though Paniagua was known for airing the ball out, he played at defensive back in this game.

Coahoma wasn't just represented by football players in this game. The Bulldogettes' Kylie Gee played in the girls' basketball game at Moody Coliseum on Abilene Christian University's campus.

Games such as the Myrle Greathouse All-Star Classic are in abundance this time of the year. But Martin said being a part of them is a special experience for all.

He said it's a good experience because players and coaches get exposed to other noteworthy players from other schools in the area. Martin said all-star games provide a different twist from competing in the fall and the camaraderie is an added bonus.

Another plus for Martin this weekend was meeting different different coaches from around the area.

"You learn a lot," Martin said. "Kind of like the kids, we're in competition all week. You get to meet those other coaches from around the area. You really learn a lot football, learning about how they do things. It was a good experience all the way around."

Martin and Coahoma went separate ways as the offseason continues. Martin, a Sul Ross University graduate, took the Alpine job in May and Coahoma hired Trey Gardner to replace him on June 10.

But it was normal for Martin to admit he'll miss his players at Coahoma.

"Any time you move from one place to another, there's a little bit of emotion involved," he said. "If there isn't, then you're probably not doing the right thing. You get attached to kids wherever you're at. But at the same time in this business, sometimes coaches move and go from here to there. It's just part of the business. Good thing I got to come and coach those guys one more time and I really enjoyed it."

Celtics handle Kobe onslaught and lead Los Angeles 3-2

BOSTON (AP) — Paul Pierce is heading back to his hometown, and a second NBA championship could be waiting for him.

A Los Angeles native who has played his entire career with the rival Celtics, Pierce scored 27 points to help Boston withstand 38 points from Kobe Bryant to beat the Lakers 92-86 on Sunday night and move within one victory of an unprecedented 18th NBA title.

The Celtics lead the best-of-seven series 3-2. Game 6 is Tuesday night, and a victory then or in Game 7 in L.A. on Thursday would give Pierce the chance to celebrate in the city where he grew up.

"It's going to have to happen if we're going to win the title," Pierce said. "I mean, that would be great. I'm not going to try to jinx it right now. We've got to win one game; that's the goal. But it would be amazing if we get it done."

With the "Beat L.A!" chant reverberating at the TD Garden, Kevin Garnett scored 18 points with 10 rebounds and Rajon Rondo had 18 points, eight assists and five rebounds to help Boston become the first team in the series to win two games in a row. If Los Angeles can't do the same at home, the Celtics will improve to 10-2 against them in the finals, from a 4-0 sweep over the Minneapolis Lakers in 1959 through the Bird-and-Magic era of the '80s and Boston's win in '08.

But Bryant said neither the rivalry nor revenge should be motivating his teammates when they try to stave off elimination at home.

"Just man up and play. What the hell is the big deal?" he said. "If I have to say something to them, then we don't deserve to be champions. We're down 3-2: Go home, win one game, go into the next one. Simple as that."

Bryant was the MVP of the finals last year, when the Lakers beat the Orlando Magic to win their 15th championship. But Pierce earned the honor at his expense in '08, when the new Big Three beat the Lakers to raise an NBA-record 17th banner to the rafters at Boston's TD Garden.

Bryant outscored Pierce

this time, but the Lakers' guard got little help from his teammates. And the stretch where he was most dominant was also the time when the Celtics pulled away.

"I wasn't in a personal duel," Pierce said. "I didn't get back-and-forth scoring at the time. He's a tough player. He makes shots."

Lakers coach Phil Jackson defended Bryant's attempts to take over the offense.

"He's the kind of guy (where) you ride the hot hand, that's for sure," Jackson said. "We were waiting for him to do that. ... He went out there and found a rhythm."

Bryant did everything he could to send the Lakers home with the edge.

He scored 23 straight Lakers points between the 4:23 mark of the second quarter until there was 2:16 left in the third. But over that span, the Celtics expanded the lead from one point to 13.

"I just tried to keep telling them, it's only two games, this time he scores. It's not 10," Celtics coach Doc Rivers said. "It's just like if someone else was scoring. ... I love that our guys for the most part, they understood what he was doing. But we defended everyone else. And I thought it was big."

And Pierce was having his best game of the series, too.

The Celtics' captain scored seven points in the last 3½

As Big 12 teeters on brink, Missouri scrambles to save conference

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP)

— Missouri curators met behind closed doors Sunday night for the fourth time in as many days as the school turns its attention to saving the Big 12 Conference after its apparent bid to join the Big Ten failed.

The meeting followed two days of discussions in Columbia amid a shifting landscape that saw fellow Big 12 members Colorado and Nebraska bolt for the Pac-10 and Big Ten, respectively.

Missouri was considered one of the top prospects for an expanded Big Ten, and the school could still wind up there as conference realignment continues to unfold.

For now, school officials are publicly pledging their loyalty to a 10-team Big 12 — even as their counterparts in Texas and Oklahoma prepare for their own private meetings this week that could result in an exodus from the conference, with as many as five Big 12 teams possibly headed to the Pac-10.

Brady Deaton told alumni in an e-mail he "will do everything possible to assure the success of the conference." He offered similar assurances Sunday night at a crowded news briefing on the steps of University Hall after the one-hour curator meeting, which resulted in no action.

He noted Missouri's century-old history with the schools that form the core of the Big 12 and its predecessors — institutions such as Kansas, Kansas State and Iowa State that are also faced with trying to save the conference.

"We have been a proud member of the Big Six, Big Seven and Big Eight, and we continue to take great pride in the accomplishments of the Big 12," Deaton wrote while noting Missouri's role in forming the Missouri Valley Intercollegiate Athletic Association in 1907. "Our position as a member for more than 100 years gives us a great appreciation for the tremendous value of our conference and a vital stake in its future."

Those words represent a sharp turn from Missouri's previously stated interest in exploring all its options with conference realignment.

But those earlier flirtations came before Nebraska's departure and assertions from both Big Ten commissioner Jim Delany and Big 12 leader Dan Beebe that the oldest conference in Division I sports was not targeting any other Big 12 schools — at least for the time being.

Missouri's interest in joining a bigger and broader Big Ten was met with criticism Friday from Nebraska Chancellor Harvey Perlman, who cited public comments by Deaton, Athletics director Mike Alden and Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon as fodder for the 14-year-old Big 12's possible collapse.

Alden responded by calling such assertions "silly" and "ridiculous." And University of Missouri system President Gary Forsee said the school bears no blame for simply protecting its self-interest.

"We were only doing what you would expect any institution, whether you're sitting here or in Lawrence, Kan., or Waco, Texas," Forsee said. "Did we contribute more or less than any other institution in the Big 12 or nationally? No. I think we've all been caught up in now this national discussion that certainly has spread beyond the Big Ten, and the Big 12 is certainly in the middle of that."

That would be the 10-team Big 12, as Deaton pointed out after struggling to differentiate Missouri's current home with the now 12-team Big Ten and 11-member Pac-10.

"We're working hard to strengthen the Big 12, or the Big Ten as it is right now. In other words, the 10 institutions left in the Big 12.

"Nomenclature is very difficult in this process," Deaton said.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

If you listen carefully to the score of your love life, you'll hear a drum roll. Something exciting and dramatic is on the horizon as Venus bursts into one of her favorite slices of sky. Leo sets a glamorous scene for Venus to dance across. Romance is charged with a childlike, creative and playful energy. Inhibitions are lifted.

HOLIDAY MATHIS

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Trust your imagination. Instead of wondering how things are or trying to find out who has the right answer, just make it up in your head the way you prefer it to be. Your way is as good as any.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You are bright and full of energy. Move freely. Consider that you don't have to explain yourself to anyone. Just do what you do, and the others will adjust accordingly.
GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You won't feel stressed out, and yet there is something bothering you in the farthest reaches of your mind. It will be too easy to overindulge on a day like today. Exercise and some pampering will combat the temptation.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Your confidence has been waning. Perhaps you don't understand how you fit in. Rest assured, in the whole spectrum of things, your contributions are excellent and necessary.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Because you make the rules, you must decide how you are going to enforce them. Knowing this lessens your chances of having to do so. The knowledge will calm you down, and all goes well.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). You are learning where your boundaries are in a certain friendship, and you'll also understand how to stay within them. Soon you'll get into a comfortable groove. Effortless relationships are more fun.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). You may have been proved. You've already said what you think, and you've performed in the way you do and people liked it. Now it's just a matter of repeating yourself and keeping it fresh.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). You might spend the whole day organizing and handling details. At the end of the day, it may not feel like you've done anything important, but you have. Without this preparation, subsequent work would be problematic.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). When you send a message to someone, you want a fast answer. But fast answers won't be forthcoming now. Your messages tend to provoke thought and call for action. This takes longer to process.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You don't need to seek happiness. It finds you quite naturally when you pay attention to where you are right now. There are thousands of reasons for you to be ecstatic — all just waiting to be claimed.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). You're not being lied to on purpose. And yet, you're not getting the whole truth, either. People tell you one-sided stories, and it's up to you to figure out what the missing information could be.
PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). Your mind is sharp, and your spirit is creative. You will turn your experiences inside out and give them a good shake. Then you'll collect the fallen bits and make something wonderful from them.
TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (June 14). Relationships that develop over the next six weeks will launch exciting projects. You may travel as a result. In August, you'll feel as though you are walking your path alone, but this will come as a feeling of liberation instead of a fearful realization. You are free to go where you want in life. Family additions happen in January. Aquarius and Virgo people adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 8, 30, 1, 33 and 29.

ASTROLOGICAL QUESTIONS: "Why doesn't he like me, and how can I make him like me? I believe I may be becoming obsessed with him. He's a Capricorn, and I'm a Leo. I don't want to tell you much else, except that I occasionally run into him at work, and that he has at times seemed interested in me personally, and other times he's standoffish."
Kudos for recognizing the difference between love and obsession. There is something about this man that you want to become. That is what creates the intensity here. Can you pinpoint the quality? Search your soul. Write in a journal about what you find so attractive in him. Capricorn men tend to have a cool mastery of their emotions. Calm and calculating, they are determined to find the best way to their lofty goals. They emanate power. Perhaps you would also like to feel more powerful in certain ways and have more influence over people and situations that currently cause you stress. As for your obsession, get to know him better. Be a friend. Familiarity will break your obsession by bursting the illusion you've built up in your mind about who you want him to be.

Opening lead — king of diamonds.
This deal was played in New York in the 1956 Masters Team Championship. Harold Ogust, partnered with Boris Koytchou, opened one club. West doubled and North redoubled. When this rolled around to West, he bid one diamond, over which Koytchou said one heart.
Ogust decided to bid only two clubs at this juncture. His partner's heart bid hadn't improved his values one iota, and he was furthermore confident there would be much more bidding. There was. West said two diamonds, and Koytchou then bid three diamonds, indicating a void in diamonds and implying club support. Ogust, having kept his hand under wraps up to this point, emerged with a jump to six clubs.

East, certain six clubs would be made, now took the highly unusual step of bidding six diamonds as a vulnerable sacrifice against nonvulnerable opponents. Unwilling to settle for what might be a small penalty when he thought he had a good chance to make a grand slam, Ogust ventured seven clubs.

In fact, he had no trouble scoring 13 tricks. After West's opening diamond lead, Ogust ruffed three diamonds in dummy and discarded one on the ace of hearts. West's 18 high-card points thus proved to be totally worthless.

In our view, West made an ill-considered opening lead. He should have realized that both opponents were bidding largely on distribution and had undertaken a grand slam fully prepared for a diamond opening lead. It was virtually certain from the bidding that dummy would show up with no diamonds.

West should therefore have led a trump initially to try to reduce dummy's ruffing ability. Had he done that, he would have defeated the contract.

Tomorrow: Opportunity knocks but once.

Lewis goes 8 innings, has key hit to lift Rangers

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Two strong seasons in Japan gave Colby Lewis another chance in the major leagues. Lewis won two strikeout titles in the Central League during his time overseas, and all the hitting he did turned out to be a big bonus for the rejuvenated right-hander. Lewis scattered three hits over eight innings and added a key two-out single with the bases loaded to lead the Texas Rangers to a 7-2 win over the Milwaukee Brewers on Sunday. "The last two years, I was able to swing the bat kind of like a National Leaguer over there in Japan," said Lewis, who spent the previous two seasons with the Hiroshima Carp before signing in the off-season with Texas. "I feel like it was a little bit of an advantage just to see a lot of pitches the last two years, just getting at-bats in Japan." Josh Hamilton homered for the AL West-leading Rangers, who won their fifth in six games and handed Brewers ace Yovani Gallardo (6-3) his first loss since April 10. "On any given day, anybody can get beat," Rangers manager Ron Washington said. "Today was his day." Gallardo trailed 2-1 when he intentionally walked Andres Blanco in the sixth to get to Lewis, who snapped a 25 at-bat hitless streak for Rangers pitchers with the first hit of his career past outstretched third baseman Casey McGehee. "I've seen him bat before that, he'd put some good swings on it. I was praying he would get a hit," Hamilton said. Lewis (6-4) finished with two, but was just as good on the mound with a career high-tying 10 strikeouts and one walk. His only mistakes came against Prince Fielder, who hit two solo homers for Milwaukee. Hamilton has homered in four of the last five games to give him 15 this season. His 10-game hitting streak matches his career best and he leads the majors in RBIs in June with 19. "He's swinging the bat as well as I've seen him swing it," Washington said. The Rangers slugger drew oohs, then boos from the crowd in the fourth. Hamilton swung and missed on a breaking ball, flinging the bat out his hands as it sailed more than 100 feet away and six rows deep, clanging off an empty seat.

"That's just normal me," Hamilton said. "For some reason, I just throw it away. It's amazing. That's my favorite bat. It's always my favorite bat, too." Three pitches later with a new bat in his hands, he crushed Gallardo's offspeed offering to right field for a two-run shot to give Texas a 2-1 lead. In the sixth, Vladimir Guerrero extended his hitting streak to 11 games with a leadoff single before Hamilton doubled. After two strikeouts, Blanco, hitting .204, was walked intentionally to bring up Lewis.

Schultz hits 2-run HR to lead TCU past Texas for 4-1 victory

AUSTIN (AP) — Aaron Schultz hit a two-run home run to help TCU beat Texas 4-1 Sunday, advancing to the College World Series for the first time in school history. "It's a historic day for TCU," coach Jim Schlossnagle said. "Going to Omaha is incredibly hard, and doing it here, against a great, great program and the greatest coach in the history of the sport is an honor." The Horned Frogs (51-12) scored the first run of the game in the bottom of the fifth when Jason Coats hit an RBI single off Brandon Workman (12-2) down the first-base line to score Taylor Featherston who hit a leadoff double and advanced to third on a throwing error. Texas closer Chance

Ruffin gave up the last three runs on two homers. Schultz sent Ruffin's 2-2 pitch over the left-field fence to put TCU up 3-0 in the seventh inning. "I was just looking for him to make a mistake with his slider, which is a really good pitch, and he did," Schultz said. "I just put a good swing on it." Ruffin, who entered the game having only given up five earned runs and two homers in 36 appearances, gave up another home run in the eighth to Bryan Holaday that put TCU up 4-0. "It's like a bad dream," Ruffin said. "You really wish you could have it back and do it all over again. It's just an indescribably bad feeling." Kyle Winkler (12-2) gave up no runs and five hits with five strikeouts in 7 2-3 innings for the Horned Frogs despite struggling early on. In the first inning, with men on second and first, Winkler struck out Cameron Rupp looking. And in the second, with a man on second with one out, Winkler was able to force back-to-back fly outs to get out of the inning. "It's not the situation you want to be in at all," Winkler said. "I just got lucky. We made some good defensive plays in the outfield. I was just able to pitch out of it and make my pitches." Texas (50-13) avoided the shutout in the ninth when pinch-hitter Paul Montalbano scored from second on an error by Jerome Pena.

Posada, Yankees beat Astros 9-5

NEW YORK (AP) — Jorge Posada said several teammates joked with him before he caught his first game in nearly a month. No one needed to say a thing when it was his turn to bat with the bases loaded in the fifth inning. Posada hit a grand slam for the second straight day, Robinson Cano connected for his 100th career homer and the New York Yankees completed a three-game sweep of the Houston Astros with a 9-5 win Sunday. "To be in the position to hit two grand slams is just amazing," Posada said. "A lot of players were telling me where to go and stuff like that, but it was fun to be back there." Shortly after their victory, the Yankees tied Tampa Bay for first place in the AL East when the Rays lost to Florida 6-1.

The Rays had sole possession of first for 51 days. Catching for the first time since he broke his foot May 19, Posada, who came off the disabled list June 2, connected for his ninth grand slam after the Astros walked the bases loaded with two outs for the second inning in a row. Ramiro Pena, substiting for injured Alex Rodriguez, followed the walks by Brian Moehler (0-3) in the fourth with a two-run single to back Phil Hughes, who struggled when the rain started in the sixth. Posada walked in his first two plate appearances. As the designated hitter and batting right-handed on Saturday, he hit his first grand slam since 2004. On Sunday, Posada was batting from the left side when he faced reliever Casey Daigle.

Posada drove a 2-0 pitch to a similar spot in right-center as his slam landed Saturday, giving New York a 7-1 lead. The last Yankee to hit grand slams in consecutive games was catcher Bill Dickey in 1937, according to STATS LLC. The last player to do it in the big leagues was Mets center fielder Carlos Beltran on July 16 and 18, 2006. Posada was replaced by Francisco Cervelli in the ninth inning and Posada said his foot "got tired." "It was not about soreness," he said. Posada said he would continue treating the foot in the same manner and hopes to be ready to face Roy Halladay and the Philadelphia Phillies on Tuesday night after the team has a day off Monday.

minutes of the second quarter and added nine more in the first 5 minutes of the third. Ray Allen, who hasn't hit a 3-pointer since making an NBA-record eight in Game 2, made a pair of baskets that gave Boston a 71-58 lead with 3:08 left in the third. Jackson, wearing a microphone for the TV broadcast, told his players during a late tim-out, "This team loses more games in the fourth quarter than any team in the league. They know how to lose games, and they're showing us that now." The Lakers got within six points several times, but never within five until Bryant made three free throws to make it 87-82 with 90 seconds left. The Celtics got a break from a review when replays showed Allen's 3-pointer barely nicked the rim, giving them the ball with a fresh 24 seconds and 1:05 left. Rasheed Wallace missed a 3-pointer, but the rebound wound up tied up between the 6-foot-11 Garnett and 6-foot-1 Derrek Fisher. Fisher won the jump ball, tipping the ball ahead to Ron Artest for a breakaway; Pierce fouled him to keep him from scoring an easy layup, and he missed both free throws. Bryant grabbed the rebound, but Pierce ripped it out of his arms and dribbled off to the side to call timeout.
