Japs Cite Major Weaknesses In Allied Plans For Future

By Russell Brines
Associated Press Staff Writer

TOKYO, Dec. 25. (AP)—General MacArthur has placed on the Japanese the burden of constructing a new Japan, with the remark that his political and social sculpturing virtually is complete. But the Japanese point out two major weaknesses in the Allied constructed framework of their future state.

One, they say, is retention of Japan's tight and often-perverted family system, which Miss Fusae Ichikawa, noted suffragate leader, calls "one of the manifestations of feudalism."

Freedom For Fanatics

Second is the continued freedom from imprisonment on war criminal charges of thousands of Army and Kempeital colonels and majors and their civilian cohorts. These men, say the intelligent and well-advised Japanese, were the real fanatics whose jingoism resulted in the "tidal wave for war" whereon Japan's official leaders bobbled, either by design or chance.

It is evident that practical reasons either have delayed or prevented Allied action on either problem. Aside from its ills, the family system has many good qualities of particular value during the present crisis. Its reformation belongs more properly to an education program than to official orders, which are designed primarily to remove the barriers for Japanese efforts on their own behalf. Imprisonment or trial of all of Japan's one-time fanatics would not be feasible or possible.

Nevertheless, both problems demand an impetus for self improvement which the Japanese thus far have not demonstrated.

Plan Of Operation

The family system is made up of tight, self-sufficient clots. They in turn are bound together in neighborhood associations and a series of other groups, which retain the vestiges of Japan's old clans. In all, the individual is subordinate to the group, and age is the primary criterion for leadership. At the top is the emperor, envisioned as the "father" of the entire Japanese "family."

Miss Ichikawa's objections primarily were based on the lowly position of women. She remarked that the women themselves could modify it over a period of time, through teachings imparted to the children.

Death Of Solon Is Ruled Suicide

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald said tonight he issued a certificate of suicide in the asphyxiation death of Congressman Joseph Wilson Ervin, 44, North Carolina Democrat.

Ervin's body was found at 1:15 p. m. today in his gas-filled kitchen and Dr. MacDonald said death occurred sometime Christmas eve night.

The discovery was made by a close friend, Theron L. Caudle, assistant attorney general, and his son, Theron, jr., 17, who were calling to pick Ervin up for Christmas dinner at their home. A note on the doorstep addressed to the elder Caudle warned them the house would be full of gas.

Held Pistol and Razor

Caudle, chief of the justice department's criminal investigation bureau, told a reporter that the freshman congressman from Charlotte was slumped over in a chair with a pistol and a straight-edged razor in his hand.

He said the kitchen doorway was stuffed with blankets, the window shades down, and the radio playing softly. Ervin's feet, Caudle added, were on another chair on which an unfinished cigarette rested, and in the sink were glasses and a partially-filled bottle of whisky.

Two other notes were found on the dining room table, Caudle said, one addressed to Ervin's wife, Susan, who is visiting in Morganton, N. C., for the holidays, and the other to his brother, Samuel, former superior court judge at Morganton. Police did not disclose the contents of the notes.

Ervin, Caudle related, had just been released from Walter Reed Army General hospital. He had fallen outside his home several days ago injuring again a leg which had undergone five operations for osteomyelitis, a bone disease. The fall had prevented him making the trip with his wife.

"I spent 30 minutes with the congressman Christmas eve," the assistant attorney general said. "He complained of his injury and mentioned recent heart trouble but in spite of his ailments, he was cheerful."

Dog Saves Family From Fire, But Dies

BOSTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—Wings, an English bulldog, gave his life today to save his master's family as fire swept through the home of Edward J. Powers, jr., early Christmas morning.

The bulldog raced through the house barking frantically until he wakened Powers. The mother aroused their two children—Barbara, 11, and Edward, 12, while her husband sounded an alarm.

When firemen arrived the children were safe outside the house and Mrs. Powers lay unconscious just inside the door, where she had fallen and injured her right arm.

The origin of the blaze, which destroyed the single family wooden dwelling was not determined.

When the flames were extinguished firemen found Wing's body huddled in a charred corner of the second floor.

Privation, Suffering Chill Christmas Joy

(By The Associated Press)

A WORLD at peace for the first yuletide in six years celebrated Christmas with the holiday spirit dimmed in many lands by privation and suffering.

In the town of Bethlehem, the birth of Christ was re-enacted at midnight Christmas eve in the Church of the Nativity by high church dignitaries before an overflow of pilgrims from all over the world.

British military authorities in Palestine made special efforts to enable as many service personnel as possible to take part in the pilgrimage.

Threats For Many

To many lands, short on food and fuel, the season held more threat than promise.

Shattered Berlin managed to collect more than $300,000 for gifts and food, and some restaurant owners offered free meals to children.

The starving people of cold, war-damaged Poland received 10,000 gift parcels from UNRRA.

Italians, desperately low on fuel, gave thanks for unseasonably warm weather.

In Britain, civilians still on war time rations shared the best of their depleted larders with hundreds of American soldiers awaiting transportation home.

Moscow Is Festive

In Russia, although Christmas is not an official holiday, there was a festive atmosphere in Moscow and many other of the larger cities.

From Denmark, where there is less evidence of privation, the children sent playthings of their own to the children of Britain. Even German prisoners of war in Leicester, England, volunteered to work with penknives and scrap wood in their spare time to make toys for children of the countryside.

Yanks Do Their Best

American servicemen, wherever the season found them, did their best to brighten the yuletide celebration. In Peiping, 40 Chinese youngsters from an orphanage crowded around a big Christmas tree while Marines and soldiers handed them gifts. In Singapore, recently released internee children were given a holiday feast by GI's.

The same story came from all parts of the world where American service men are still billeted.

Grateful U. S. Turns Joyful

(By The Associated Press)

America from coast to coast rejoiced yesterday, grateful for its first peacetime Christmas in five years.

GI's stranded in east and west coast ports, on shipboard and in staging areas, cheerfully accepted their fate, knowing they would be home for good soon.

Civilians separated from loved ones overseas opened their homes and hearts to the stranded soldiers and sailors, or found joy in the knowledge their own sons, husbands and sweethearts were not in danger.

President Flies Home

President Truman, who flew to Independence, Mo., to spend the holiday with his mother, sounded the keynote for the nation when he declared "this is the Christmas that a war-weary world has prayed for through long and awful years." Minor disappointments could not overshadow that thought.

Millions expressed the President's thought in churches across the country. Archbishop Francis J. Spellman, in the first sermon since his designation to the college of cardinals, told persons attending mass at New York City's St. Patrick's cathedral:

"We must return to God, for deep within our hearts we know there is no other way—no other path to peace, for the lone soul or for the mighty nations of the earth."

Families Reunited

Even inclement weather—gloomy, snow-laden skies in the east and rain and sleet in much of the nation—failed to spoil the day for those families reunited after four years of war and those who, despite the worst travel jam in history, reached their destinations.

In keeping with the holiday spirit, Pacific coast families welcomed 170,000 veterans stranded there. Those servicemen in camps and still on shipboard had the best the Army and Navy could find.

Camp Shanks, N. Y., had 10½ tons of turkey for GI's whose thoughts were on the west coast. More offers for "Christmas at our home" were received than there were soldiers to accept the hospitality.

Wounded Are Cheered

Wounded in Army hospitals had visits from celebrities. Helen Hayes, for instance, left her own two children on Christmas night to entertain the men.

President Truman gave freedom to more than 2,000 federal convicts who served faithfully in the armed forces during the war.

In Charlotte, N. C., 516 nurses and women employes of a hospital were gladdened to find nylons under their Christmas tree—gifts of a doctor whose identity mercifully was withheld.

The CIO United Auto Workers' holiday truce in the strike against General Motors drew to an end. The strikers were to resume their fight for a 30 per cent wage increase today.

MILLER SERIOUSLY ILL

AUSTIN, Dec. 25 (AP)—Roy Miller of Corpus Christi, and Houston, president of the Intracoastal Canal association, was seriously ill in a hospital here tonight following an emergency operation, an attending physician announced.

INCOMES TRIPLE

CHICAGO, Dec. 25 (AP)—The income of individuals in the United States has more than tripled since the depression bottom year of 1933.

Mexico Wildly Joins Yule Fete

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 25. (AP)—Mexicans and tourists alike rubbed their heads today—the aftermath of a night of Christmas eve revelry, comparable to New Year's eve in the United States.

Those who were up by noon found a warm spring-like sun, a few scattered clouds and temperatures in the middle eighties. The closest snow for the Christmas season was atop the extinct 17,000-foot Popocatepetl and Eztaccihuatl volcanoes, 20 to 30 miles southeast of the city.

Shuttered For Day

Steel shutters on the store windows were pulled tight and the streets were nearly deserted in comparison with last night's throng which surged through the business district celebrating and buying last minute gifts from stores and sidewalk stalls.

The last and merriest posadas—pre-Christmas parties—spilled thousands into the streets at midnight to attend mass—misa de gallo—and then parties resumed until daybreak. The early morning hours echoed with the strains of the raspa and the bamba interspersed with the rollicking melody of "Roll Out the Barrel."

Religious Emphasis

Emphasis on the religious theme of the Christmas season was greater this year than in the past, due in part to the liberal attitude of the Avila Camacho administration toward the churches. Although the clear division between church and state still exists there has been no recent government intefrerence in church activities. At the height of the church-state feud 20 years ago there were disorders, riots and clashes between the military and religionists.

Stores will continue doing a toy and gift business until Jan. 6, Epiphany, when many Mexicans give gifts to the children on the day three wise kings brought presents to the Prince of the world.

Hartford Fire Death Toll Reaches 17, With 26 Hurt

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 25. (AP)—Seventeen persons are dead following a tragic Christmas eve fire at the Niles Street hospital which also sent 26 others, including 10 firemen to other hospitals where, spokesmen said, at least five remained in "critical condition."

State Police Commissioner Edward J. Hickey, hearing an official investigation in his role as state fire marshal, said the blaze resulted from a short circuit that ignited cotton decorations on a Christmas tree in the hospital's first floor office.

Precautions Urged

As one of his first acts, Commissioner Hickey joined Dr. Stanley H. Osborn, state health commissioner, in issuing instructions to all state police to advise precautions against Christmas tree fire hazards.

After a night of inquiry, Hickey said at noon today that the investigation had been postponed until 10 a. m. Wednesday. At the same time a spokesman at police headquarters said complete lists of dead and injured would not be available until late in the day.

Hickey said the dead included 14 aged and chronically ill patients and two night attendants. Seventeen other patients, he said, were gotten from the blazing three-story structure which was a converted brick duplex dwelling.

Two In Grave Condition

Dr. Walter Weissenborn, medical examiner, said that two of the 17 rescued patients were in grave condition.

He said his inquiry disclosed that a woman attendant had attemped to extinguish the blazing Christmas tree with a small fire extinguisher, and that the flames leaping out of control, prevented her from reaching a telephone from which to summon fire apparatus.

The blaze spread quickly, he said, when a front door wos opened, presumably to guide first floor patients to the street. Some patients were more than 90 years of age, police said. Of the dead, they added, 13 were women.

Police Busy On Variety Of Calls

A variety of violations were investigated by city and county officers Christmas day, ranging from drunkenness to hijacking.

Arrests included three Mexicans for investigation into the reported hijacking of another Mexican, who said the three forced themselves into his car after threatening him with a gun and forced him to drive about the Mexican settlement.

Slugged And Robbed

One man, who reported that two soldiers had slugged him while he was walking with them at Thirteenth and Ave. H, said he woke up in a hotel with his room paid, but he was minus between $80 and $90. Police, while investigating his complaint, jailed the man, whose name had been reported previously as the name of a man who administered knockout drops in liquor to a man in a room at another hotel and took a watch and $120 from him.

A lady at 2216 Fourteenth reported that some one had stolen a muskrat fur coat, a black bag, a Christmas packge, contents unknown, and $25 in cash. Entrance was made through a door on the north side of the building and then through a kitchen door.

Police investigated four accidents in the city Christmas day, in which no persons were reported injured. City and county officers made two arrests for drunk driving, one for driving without a license, fire for drunkenness and three for disturbance up to late last night.

The Texas highway patrol office at Brownfield reported theft of a light blue 1941 Ford coach, license Number CD 5971, at Seminole.

Lubbock firemen made two runs Tuesday, one ot a burning fence at 1814 Ave. H at 3:11 p. m., and another to a grass fire three miles northwest of the city at 4:20 p. m.

The victims, ranging in age from six to 15 years, were trapped on the top floor of their home despite the frantic efforts of their parents and other brothers and sisters to rescue them.

Norris To Survive Break For Freedom

HOUSTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—T. N. (Pete) Norris, a Texas tough guy, will recover from two bullet wounds he received yesterday in his bid for freedom from the Wharton county jail, Sheriff T. W. Lane said tonight.

The gunman, once listed as Texas' public enemy No. 1, was in a critical condition last night but responded to penecillin and blood plasma treatments and was greatly improved today, attendants at the Caney Valley hospital in Wharton told the sheriff.

With Norris' recovery apparently assured, Lane turned his attention to learning where Norris got the gun he pulled in the sheriff's office yesterday afternoon when he was called there for a long distance phone call.

Lane said he was coming to Houston tomorrow to confer with Houston police in an attempt to trace the ownership of the weapon.

Gains Exceed Highest Hope Of Ministers

By EDDY GILMORE
Associated Press Staff Writer

MOSCOW, Dec. 25—Secretary of State James F. Byrnes is highly pleased with accomplishments of the Moscow foreign ministers' conference, including concrete agreements on several controversial issues, authoritative quarters said today.

Far more has been gained than was even contemplated when Byrnes left Washington, according to these informants.

The three principals began the longest meeting of their Moscow session in Speridonifka palace at 4 p. m. (8 a. m. Eastern Standard time) and were still deliberating at 9:30 p. m. (1:30 p. m. Eastern Standard time).

Compromise Accord

A highlight of the conference, which at all times has been conducted in an atmosphere of extreme cordiality, was the announcement on Christmas eve that Byrnes, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Soviet Foreign Commissar V. M. Molotov had arrived at a compromise accord on the procedure for drafting the European peace settlement.

It was Secretary Byrnes' suggestion to announce to the world the news of the agreement on Christmas eve. Molotov and Bevin were said to have been delighted with the idea.

The first communique on the results of the conference then was issued just before the foreign ministers attended a formal Christmas eve party at the Kremlin at which Generalissimo Stalin presided as host.

Many Toasts Offered

At the dinner 15 toasts were drunk, and those proposed by Secretary Byrnes were said to have amused Premier Stalin highly. Stalin gave an "atomic" toast and all drained their glasses with an air of friendly amusement at the implication. Just what Stalin said was not made public.

Informed sources said yesterday that Russia has not been let in on any secrets about the atomic bomb. However, it was reported that the Big Three foreign ministers did discuss the American-British-Canadian policy on world control of atomic energy during their meetings.

Storm Fails To Halt President

INDEPENDENCE, Mo., Dec. 25 (AP)—A rousing "Merry Christmas" from more than a hundred townspeople outside "the Little White House" greeted President Harry Truman as he arrived at his home at 8 o'clock (eastern standard time) after a hazardous airplane flight in wintry weather from the nation's capital.

The President had landed at the Kansas City municipal airport at 5:55 o'clock after a 5 hour and 49 minute trip through leaden skies that showered sleet and rain against the chief executive's plane, "The Sacred Cow," in the early part of the flight.

Surprises Aged Mother

Mr. Truman, who had not missed a Christmas at home in 27 years, surprised his 93-year-old mother, Mrs. Martha Truman, and his sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman, by driving over icy pavements to their Grandview cottage before going on to Independence where a 30-p[ound] turkey will highlight the d[inner] that has been kept waiting for him.

The President's wife, [daughter], Margaret, and Mrs. [Wallace], had met the plane at municipal airport and drove 15 miles to Grandview. After a short visit which Miss Mary Truman described as a friendly family chat, the President's party drove on to Independence.

About 200 carolers serenaded the President shortly after he entered his home. As they concluded with "Silent Night," the President came out on the front porch to greet them.

"I'm so happy you came, he told Franklyn S. Wedele, director of the choir.

Many Far From Home, But Happy To Be In U. S.

Stranded GIs Are Entertained

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25 (AP)—Many thousand Americans who fought in foreign and strange lands and won, spent Christmas day on their native soil today thankfully and joyously although still far from their homes and families.

In all the great ports of the Pacific seaboard soldiers and sailors and Marines just home from war, became special guests in private homes, in clubs and lodges.

There were between 150,000 and 170,000 stranded veterans on the coast for at least part of Christmas day.

They longed to be home with their own families but more cheerfully the fact that servicemen were returning in such tremendous numbers railroads could not handle them.

Trains were moving men eastward to their homes at a better rate than heretofore. The Southern Pacific checked on its trains-continental rail lines and found that about 94 per cent of passengers were servicemen.

There were thousands of parties for the veterans from Seattle to San Diego. Each "hotel ship" in the major ports was visited by Santa Claus; presents were distributed; extra portions of turkey served with sumptuous dinners.

Los Angeles welfare groups set up a special center for discharged, homeless veterans. This downtown center will be open through the holiday esason.

In San Francisco 42,000 were stalled Christmas guests. The port of embarkation said this number would be reduced speedily, as only 18,000 more are due up to Jan. 1, just about twice the number that arrived yesterday alone. Railroads were moving out about 5,000 a day.

In military hospitals, Army and Navy patients received special attention in keeping with the season. Many of the men decorated their casts with "Merry Christmas" tags and signs.

Los Angeles was the only west coast port able to clear all veterans from ships at anchor or docked. San Francisco had four "hotel ships," with another, the SS Lubbock, coming in today. Similar conditions prevailed in the Seattle area. There simply wasn't room ashore for the volume of men arriving.

Special religious services were well attended today. About 800 men attended a midnight Christmas mass at pier 45 in San Francisco. In all cities churches had special welcomes for the men.

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

AS we exchanged greetings of "Merry Christmas" with dozens of co-workers Monday afternoon we were struck with the thought that something should be done to make the inspiration of this time of the year a more permanent thing. Why should the spirit that inspires you to wish your fellow beings a glad time be so fleeting? Why can that heart-filled wish of joy not be sustained?

YULE GREETINGS

CHRISTMAS cards this year were in more humbly grateful and religious theme than in previous years and we were pleased that we did not see a single one with pornographic bearing. There must be something seriously wrong with a person who goes in for such ideas as the latter anyway.

Included in the unusual greetings was one that came to us from brother Frank in India, who found a card with about half a dozen different races expressing Christmas wishes. We're glad that from next year on he will be in the United States to tell us in person all that in good old English.

• • •

THE Paul Sherrods sent extremely clever cards we thought. They bore pictures of their home, Dunrovin (Done Rovi ?, catch?) which is yet under construction. Apparently in American ranch style, the windows and garage are boarded up and no improvement has been mad in the grounds as yet. The verses were as follows:

At this stage of our building
We find that bricks are nil;
And we haven't any promise
For windows for the sills,
No fixtures for the bathroom,
Or for the kitchen sink:
No one to do the labor
Of whom we can think.

No furniture that we can find
Which we even care to buy;
The quality is rather low
And the price is very high.
We haven't any locks at all
With which to close the doors;
No carpeting—all lush and soft—
To place upon the floors.

But, trifles such as these
Can't make a fellow blue
At the glad Yuletide season,
So, what are we to do—
But say to each and every friend
Whom we hold very dear
"We wish you a Merry Christmas,
And a Happy New Year."

• • •

MRS. JOHN. B. SLAUGHTER who lives on the Lazy S ranch, near Post sent friends a traditional Christmas greeting in original verse. It is in a religious vein and expresses the hope that with peace the new year will be more meaningful.

CAROLERS

FOUR high school boys brought a lot of pleasure to Lubbockites when they serenaded with musical instruments Sunday night, playing well-loved carols. They carried a lantern to add a bit of New England flavor, as well as to furnish light.

The quartet was made up of Jerry Thrush, Donald Hester, Stuart Nichols and Tommy Shook.

ON WASHING RAYON

YOU women receiving rayon lingerie and hose for Christmas—to say nothing of nylons—will get considerable more service out of these garments of the "gentle" hints on washing given by a University of Texas textile expert are followed.

Mild soaps, gentle squeezing and cautious applications of hot irons are advocated by Miss Elizabeth Tarpley, professor of home economics at the University of Texas, in caring for rayon, silk and wool.

"Once rayon blouses, slips and other garments become wrinkled, the more you iron then, the worse they get, because the fibre itself is wrinkled," she said.

• • •

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS co-eds have obtained amazing results by these methods:

1. Use mild soap which is thoroughly dissolved in water.
2. Do not squeeze the garment.
3. In cleaning a particularly soiled part of a blouse, place it on the palm of your hand and rub with the other palm.
4. Shake the garment and let it "drip-dry"—which will cut down on the amount of ironing necessary.
5. If you must press it, use a barely warm iron on the wrong side of the article and iron with the threads of the material—follow "the grain."
6. Remember, hot irons cause shiny spots which cannot be removed.

Pryor-Hooper Vows Read In Church

Miss Jimmie Jean Hooper, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Hooper of Whitharral, and Sgt. Charley L. Pryor, jr., USMC, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charley L. Pryor of Whitharral, were married by Rev. Wayne Perry in the Whitharral Baptist church Sunday at 3 p. m.

The altar was decorated with baskets of gladioli and candelabra. Miss Margraet Ann Self sang "I Love You Truly" accompanied by Miss Lilly Jo Horton who also played wedding marches.

The bride wore a white dress and carried a bouquet of white carnations on a white Bible. She was attended by her sister, Miss Bernice Hopper. Bridesmaids were Misses Madia Faye Pryor, sister of the bridegroom, Bobby Doshier, cousin of the bride, Ima Taylor and Lynell Barnett.

Castle Fagan was best man and Tommy McFarland, Charles Bruce, Dub Blackwell and Hershel Harold were ushers.

A reception was held in the home of the bride's parents. A three tiered wedding cake was served.

Sgt. and Mrs. Pryor attended the Whitharral school. Sgt. Pryor returned home in Oct. after three and one half years in a prison camp. He will remain in the Marine corps.

Christmas Wedding Is In Abernathy

Christmas night at 7 o'clock, Janiece Johnson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Johnson of Abernathy, and Hollis Walker, Seaman 1/c, son of Mrs. Ora D. Walker of Lubbock, were married in the home of the bride's parents.

Showdown Planned On Legislative Setup

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—A showdown over the practice of attaching controversial legislation to "must" measures in an effort to forestall a Presidential veto appears certain early in the after-Christmas session of Congress.

President Truman set up the issue in unequivocal terms Saturday when he announced a pocket veto of the bill cutting back war spending by $52,000,000,000.

He announced his disapproval was based on a "rider" requiring return of the United States Employment Service to state control within 100 days.

He said that pinning the amendment to the appropriations bill "restricts the President's exercise of his function and is contrary to good government."

Congress frequently has used that means of putting the President in the position of accepting legislation he does not want or vetoing an entire bill, otherwise desirable to him. He cannot reject one item of a measure sent to him by Congress but must approve or disapprove the whole thing.

Mrs. Mortimer Named Best Dressed Woman

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP)—Mrs. Stanley Mortimer, was named the best dressed woman in the world for the second consecutive year today while the Duchess of Windsor, who made last year's list "by the skin of her teeth," moved up to fifth place.

The selections were announced by the New York Dress institute which conducts an annual poll to select the world's best dressed woman.

CITRUS PLANTING HEAVY

MISSION, Dec. 25 (AP)—Plantings of new citrus trees in the Rio Grande valley this winter, in the midst of the harvest of the biggest fruit crop on record, have been so heavy that the valley has just about run out of new trees, E. W. Halstead of Mission, State Department of Agriculture nursery inspector in Hidalgo county, said.

Soldiers Entertain Themselves On Ship Stranded On Coast

SEATTLE, Dec. 25 (AP)—Newspapermen, clambering into an illighted hold of a small transport in Elliott Bay today heard raucous shouts and loud laughter intermittently punctuating a stridently sarcastic voice which was intoning:

"'Twas the night before Christmas, and all through the house, "Not a creature was stirring. . ."

The voice was that of Pfc. Freddie L. Bailey, Joplin, Mo., who was sitting on an upended can, reading the childhood Christmas classic as it's probably never been read before; certainly never to a more appreciative audience—

Arrived From Shanghai

Pfc. Bailey was one of 500 enlisted men of the 315th squadron of the 443rd Troop Carrier group of the 10th Army Air force—all veterans of at least two years duty in the China-India-Burma theater.

Their vessel arrived over the week-end from Shanghai, the men crowded into the hold, with cots end-to-end and side-to-side, and other cots crammed into passageways and even in the galley.

The men had to stay aboard the ship, even after arrival, because the shortage of rail transportation east and south had all shoreside accommodations crowded with troops who arrived ahead of their ship.

Knew Of Travel Jam

The men have had no pay for two months.

They had "spam" for breakfast this morning, their first morning back in the United States.

They had known when they left Shanghai that there would be no immediate transportation home from this port, because of the congestion, and while they were homesick for their own home towns on Christmas Eve most of them felt as did Pfc. J. C. Duncan of Addison, Ala.: "It's all right to be here or anywhere so long as it's in the good old U. S. A."

National Memorial At Patton's Birthplace Not To Be Changed

SAN GABRIEL, Calif., Dec. 25 (AP)—The death of Gen. George S. Patton, jr., will make no material changes in plans of his birthplace, San Gabriel, for a national memorial and victory foundation.

By popular subscription a fund will be raised for a veterans' rehabilitation program.

Officers of the foundation are to meet next week to map plans for inaugurating the campaign next year.

Poll Among Young Men Furnishes Material For Parents' Thought

By GEORGE GALLUP DIRECTOR
American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 25.—If parents think their children are far from perfect, they might pause as the New Year approaches for a look at themselves.

At least that course of action is indicated by results from a survey among young men between 15 and 18 years of age. Field reporters for the Institute asked the young men:

GALLUP

"If you were a parent, what one thing would you do differently than most parents do?"

The two largest single groups of replies deal with parental strictness. One group of lads would act a little more leniently toward their children. The other group, of identical size, would act a little more strictly.

Another sizeable group declare they would work more with the children, try to understand their viewpoints, help them to make up their minds.

Would Educate Them

Many of these replies carry a note of serious plea from the teen-age boys included in the survey. "I'd treat my children as adults; let them decide things for themselves . . . I'd try not to tell my son what he ought to be when he grows up . . . I'd try not to tell my son what he ought to be when he grows up . . . I'd be more of a companion to my children."

In Fulton, Missouri, the son of a shoe factory worker declared, "I'd give my children proper sexual education instead of letting them find out about sex the wrong way."

More Religion In Home

Other replies:

"I'd bring more religion into the home . . . I'd let my son have the car more than some people I know . . . I'd increase my son's allowance . . . I'd stop opening up other people's mail . . . I'd let my son take a part-time job if he wanted to earn some money . . . I'd see that my son stayed in school and got a proper education . . . I'd give the children more responsibility."

Only about two out of every ten with whom reporters talked said they have no complaint, that they would do things just about the way their parents are now doing them.

Quick Action Is Seen On Merger Proposal

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—President Truman's request for unification of the armed forces may get quick attention in the Senate after Congress reassembles Jan. 14.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D-Colo) told a reporter today that the Senate Military Affairs committee "should have a bill covering what the President asked ready for Senate action by Feb. 1."

In his message to Congress just before it adjourned for Christmas, Mr. Truman requested a single "department of national defense" with "three coordinated branches" of land, Naval and air forces. This would merge the present separate Navy and War departments into a single cabinet post.

Senator Capehart (R-Ind), who opposes immediate action on the President's request, said in a separate interview that if the unification measure is brought up in the Senate "there are enough votes to pass it."

Gen. Short Reported To Be Seriously Ill

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—The already uncertain future of the Congressional investigation of Pearl Harbor was further complicated today by the serious illness of Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, a star witness.

Short, retired officer who commanded Army forces at Hawaii when the Japanese slipped in a surprise raid four years ago, is in Walter Reed hospital with an "acute respiratory" illness.

There had been suggestions within the Senate-House committee that Short and Rear Admiral Husband E. Kimmel, 1941 Naval commander of the Pacific fleet, be called to testify soon after the holiday recess, ending this week.

But hospital authorities said that the 65-year old Short certainly will be directed by his doctors to take things easy; they said there is no assurance of just when he will be able to testify.

Contributing also to uncertainty of the inquiry's future is the fact that no new legal staff has yet been selected to replace the outgoing William D. Mitchell and aides.

Senator Lucas (D-Ill) of the committee announced today he would recommend Weymouth Kirkland, Chicago lawyer, as Mitchell's successor. A statement issued from Lucas' office said Kirkland is an attorney for the Chicago Tribune.

Oklahoma's Ags And Kansas In Spotlight For Tourney

By SAUL FELDMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 25—The defending champion Oklahoma Aggies are favored to repeat in the All-College basketball tournament opening here tomorrow but no one is taking his eyes off Forrest C. (Phog) Allen's Kansas Jayhawkers.

It is well known Allen likes to win, especially against the Aggies, and tournament officials agree the explosive oracle of Mount Oread wouldn't bring a team into the tournament unless it had an even chance to stop the Aggies.

Other Topnotch Teams Set

That means Allen believes his team rates with the Aggies, not to mention the six other topnotch teams which bump in this three-day holiday fracas.

Kansas opens against Rice while the Aggies play Texas. In the other half of the first round bracket Pepperdine meets Baylor and Texas Christian tangles with the University of Oklahoma.

If the Aggies and Kansas come through their initial round games—which is expected—the tournament will have accomplished a feat unseen since 1943 as the quintets mix buckets in the second round.

Aggies Won Four

The two schools broke off relations that year, ostensibly because of the war, and brought on an end one of the bitterest fought cage series in the nation. The Aggies, seeking their fifth tournament title, are led by the nation's tallest center, seven-foot Bob Kurland, Weldon Kern and Jake Williams, all back from the 1945 national championship team. They have won four games while dropping one this season.

Kansas Also Set

Boasting seven straight triumphs this season, Allen will floor one of the tallest teams in the school's history. Kansas is sparked by Charlie Black, 6 4½, wheelhorse of the 1942 Jays, and Otto Schnellacher, 6-3, former All-Big Six forward.

Not to be overlooked are four of the Southwest conference's top teams which didn't travel north first to enjoy a White Christmas, Texas goes against the Aggies with a record of six wins and no defeats this season. Baylor boasts five and none, five four and one, and Texas Christian seven and two.

Missouri Bears Down For Game With Texas

DALLAS, Dec. 25 — Missouri held its third practice session at the site of the Cotton Bowl game today while Texas returns to the grind at Austin tomorrow, and although the Dallas gridiron classic is just a week away, there's no sign of a prediction from either camp as to what 45,500 fans may expect come New Year's.

D. X. Bible, university of Texas coach, said "our work-outs have been very sharp and the boys have had a lot of spirit. They were that way when we played Georgia Tech, but remember when we played Randolph Field, they came back from the holidays flat, and we never got them back up."

Not Making Forecast

Which means Bible hopes they'll resemble the Texas team that beat Georgia Tech in the 1943 Cotton Bowl, but not the Longhorn eleven that played to a 7-7 tie with Randolph Field in 1944.

On the other hand, Coach Chauncey Simpson of Missouri declined to forecast anything for his team on the basis of work-outs. "They are thoroughly unpredictable," he said. "I never know what they are going to do until they get ready to go on the field. I recall that they apparently had no spirit in practice before we played Southern Methodist at Dallas. I expected us to take a licking, but the boys outplayed S. M. U. all the way."

DePaul Ace Top Cage Scorer

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 — Big George Mikan, of DePaul's undefeated Demons, has taken up where he left off last year in the national collegiate individual high scoring basketball race.

In the eight games that the Chicago quintet has won this season Mikan has poured 187 points through the net to top all scorers in the country. The tall sharpshooter, who tallied 558 points in 24 games a year ago, has tossed in 71 field goals and 45 free throws.

Wolfe In Second Spot

In second place, only three points behind, is Andy Wolfe, of California, with 184 points on 79 double-deckers and 26 charity throws. He has played in five more games than Mikan, however.

Bill Hall, of Marshall college in West Virginia, is far behind in third place at 160, but in turn has a big lead on Jackie Goldsmith, of Long Island university, and Leonard Pyne, of Idaho, tied for fourth at 133.

Ernie Calverley, of Rhode Island State, and Bob Kurland, of the Oklahoma Aggies, two of the eight players who scored more than 500 points last year, are away down the list at 92 and 77 points, respectively.

Highland Park Set For Waco

DALLAS, Dec. 25. (AP)—Highland Park High's Highlanders will be in better condition for Saturday's state championship football game with the Waco Tigers than they were for last week's semi-final against Wichita Falls.

Last week, Tackles Bob Tenison and George Maddox and End Leo Fikes missed several workouts because of attacks of the flu. They weren't in the best of condition for the tussle with Wichita Falls, which they helped win, 18 to 0. Today every man on the squad was in good health and there wasn't a serious injury in the group.

Expects Tough Tussle

"It's going to be plenty tough," Coach Eck Curtis answered when asked about the Waco game. "They're a well-balanced outfit with good running, passing and kicking and they're especially strong on defense. Their pass defense in particular is very fine. Early in the season after we had played Wichita Falls and Waco in nonconference games, our boys declared that the Tigers were the hardest hitting outfit they'd had. I believe they still hold the same opinion."

The Scots had their best workout in months Monday, the starting team taking routine practice and all of the other players participating in scrimmage. At their own request, the Highlanders practiced today.

West All-Stars Are Favored For Battle

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25 (AP)—For twenty years now rival coaches of the East-West charity football game have tried to outmaneuver each other in the psychological field of lining up as "underdog" in the big New Year's day encounter. It is a swell selling point, certain to fire up the players.

Come Jan. 1, the Western All-Stars will take the field as the favorites, no matter how Co-Coaches Homer Norton of Texas A. and M. and Orin Hollingbery, ex-Washington State, feel about the matter.

West Team Biggest

The Westerners are bigger, look more powerful and move about with the assurance of greater experience than their eastern rivals. Andy Kerr of Colgate will chortle and make capital of the fact the East, for which he has coached so long, will be the short-ender. His colleagues, Bernie Bierman of Minnesota and Beattie Feathers of North Carolina state, will help fling the verbal barbs, even if the West is favorite but by a single digit in the odds.

Before celebrating Christmas, the two squads went through workouts today, the east at Santa Clara and the west at Menlo Junior college. Wet fields greeted the players again. The Westerners pounded through two hours in full uniform, nevertheless.

Schlinkman On "B" Squad

The west's coaches came up with two experimental backfields, operating both in the T-formation and single wing, as follows:

Team A — Quarterback, Jack Price, U. of Oklahoma; left half, Jake Leicht, U. of Oregon; right half, Ted Kenfield, U. of California; fullback, Lloyd Rude, Nevada.

Joe Signs For Another Month With Band

Louis Faces Big Job In Getting In Shape

By GAYLE TALBOT
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—Writing as one who thrilled to Joe Louis as to no other experience in a long time of watching sports, there is a pang in hearing that Joe has signed up for another month of one-night stands with a dance band.

I would like to see the champion fight just once more the way he did before the war—or as nearly approaching the way he once fought as would be possible for a 32-year-old who has been in the Army for three and a half years.

But that won't be, because Joe is in need of money to satisfy Uncle Sam, among others, and he will continue to mess around the way he is now, picking it up as quickly as he can, until the shortest possbile time before he goes into training to fight Billy Conn in June.

That would be all right for a youngster, but it isn't for a man Joe's age. Just might seem a long way off, but if Louis were to be at his best possible for Pittsburgh Billy, who is swift afoot, this month—right now—would not be to soon for him to gradually begin taking off that 20-odd pounds of excess around his middle. He won't reduce anything except his ear drums listening to a dance band every night.

Conn Also Needs Funds

No matter how long one is around sports, it never ceases to be an object of wonder what goes with fighters' money. They earn more quicker, than anybody except movie magnates. The books shows that Louis, in his wonderful years from 1934 to '42, piled up total earnings of $2,378,366.28. Even subtracting his managers' cut, that comes to good pay.

Yet Joe, even before he went into the Army, was being batted around by the income tax folks, not to mention Promoter Mike Jacobs. Conn, if we recall correctly, also was short of the ready before he entered the service, and he, like Joe, is scrambling around at the present time rtying to pry the wolf out of the vestibule.

Has Impressive Record

As I said, I wish Louis had somehow escaped the boxers' blight and hung onto his money, so that he would be free now to begin gradually assembling agains the superb fighting machine he once war. It isn't that I want to see him lick Conn again. I'm not certain he could, given the best of circumstances. It's just that I would like to see a great champion given the chance he deserves.

For he was great, friends. The big negro not only was humble and friendly and decent, but he could fight. I wouldn't know whether he could have beaten the Dempseys or the Tunneys or even the Jack Johnsons, but I know where my money would have been riding.

Some ask: "Who did he fight." All I can say is that Louis from the night in 1937 when he knocked out Jim Braddock for the title until 1942, when he entered the Army, fought 22 times; that in that period he beat every man in the world who could be dug up to oppose him. Name me the heavyweight champion with a comparable record.

Grid Coaches Name Own All-Star Squad

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 25 (AP) — The American Football Coaches association announced today its first All-Star team.

Ray Morrison, coach at Temple university and president of the organization, said the selection was made by some 350 members of the association who delayed their choice in order to see as many games and as many players as possible before making their final choice.

The team:

Player	Pos.	College

Dewitt Coulter	Tackle	Army
Warren Amling	Guard	Ohio State
Richard Scott	Center	Navy
John Green	Guard	Army
George Savitsky	Tackle	Pennsylvania
Max Morris	End	Northwestern
Bob Fenimore	Back	Okla. A.-M.
Glenn Davis	Back	Army
Herman Wedemeyer	Back	St. Marry's
Felix Blanchard	Back	Army

American Loop Fielding Is Up

CHICAGO, Dec. 25 (AP) — The Aemrican league, to quite Mike Gonzales, was "good field, no hit" in 1945.

Defensive records officially unveiled today showed the Cleveland Indians, fifth in the pennant race, whipped up a neat .977 field average, three points better than the 1944 winning mark of .974 hared by the Tribe and New York.

The league fielding average also was improved over last year at .973, compared with .971 in 1944.

Batting Shows Drop

Contrasted with this defensive upgrade are the junior circuit's recently-released batting statistics which revealed an eight-point slump by the top-hitting club — Chicago's .262 average compared with Boston's 1944 best of .270—and a five-piont skid, .260 to .255, in league clouting.

Although the World Champion Detroit Eigers placed third in team fielding with .975, a point behind second-place St. Louis, four Bengals were departmental leaders.

'Santa Claus" Pays Off In Christmas Feature At Miami

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 25 (AP)—Santa Claus and Christmas day made the perfect hunch for race-track fans today as a horse named Santa Claus won "the Santa Claus" feature in the fifth race at Gulfstream Park.

Galloping over a slow track, Santa Claus rewarded hunch players with $8.30 for a $2 win ticket, $4.70 place and $3.50 show.

Georgia To Head For Oil Bowl Contest

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 25 (AP)—Georgia's Bulldogs are planning a light workout here Wednesday morning and then will entrain for Houston, Texas, and the Oil Bowl football game on New Year's Day.

Coach Wally Butts says the team will stop at New Orleans Thursday for another drill, and will hit the Oil Bowl town Friday evening.

Butts was reported today to be planning to use Jimmy Gordon, 170-pound Atlanta boy, to fill a vacancy at fullback. It will be the first time he has played fullback. He was a substitute quarterback during the regular season.

"The King Is Dead . . ."

Crowned Heads Uneasy In Europe

THE few crowned heads left in Europe must be resting uneasily these days as anti-royalist sentiment breaks out here and there over the continent.

The recent elimination of monarchy in Yugoslavia, with Marshal Tito leaping into the saddle, may be the forerunner of general king-busting in southern and southeastern Europe. One gathers by the news dispatches that it is only a matter of time until political eruptions displace the royal heads in Bulgaria, Romania, Hungary, Italy and Greece.

Kings began to take it on the chin when World war I broke out. In 1914, there were 41 kings ruling in Europe, but when the Armistice was signed only 15 remained. Now, due partly to Hitler and Mussolini, only 12 reign on the continent.

Before the first World war, the royalists, under leadership of Kaiser Wilhelm II, had a veritable "union." They had some opposition, but slight, in the republics of France, Switzerland, Portugal and the two small states of Andorra and San Marino.

But, in 1918, chopped off royal heads were all over the place. The Czarist empire, deserted by the new republics of Poland, Finland, Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia, became the Russian Soviet. Germany became a federation of 17 states, and the Austro-Hungarian double monarchy split into two republics and the kingdom of Hungary.

When the Fascist dictators came along, the sport of king-toppling was resumed. Mussolini kicked out King Zog of Albania, Hitler ousted Carol in Romania, and "promoted" the fall of Boris in Bulgaria.

Today, monarchies seem secure only in Great Britain, Belgium, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Norway. But in these countries they exist only as figureheads, with about as much authority in government as the tender of the palace carriage. The people, in whom are vested the real authority, just keep them around for "window dressing" and as a manifestation of their love for the mouldy past.

"Gents, Take Your Choice!"

THE clothing manufacturers reduce the choice down to tires or attire.

The men who direct the making of men's suits say that clothing racks are empty because automobile tire racks are filling up. So men who need both new suits and new tires must take their choice—they can't have both, say the manufacturers.

They explain:

Rayon, used to line men's suits and overcoats, also is in great demand as a fabric for the casings of new synthetic tires. Natural rubber tires used cotton cords, but the synthetics gain increased durability with rayon. For that reason the tire industry has become an important rayon buyer, and Akron is ordering tremendous quantities of the yarn.

The manufacturers say there is no feasible substitute for rayon linings. Silk is equally scarce, and alpaca, a high grade mixture using cotton, has been discontinued by the mills.

Though the government has ordered some rayon channeled to manufacture of men's clothing, garment men say that it is far from enough. They point out that there is a demand for 40,000,000 suits as compared to the peak production of 29,000,000 in 1941. The situation is almost as bad in respect to topcoats and overcoats.

Return of veterans to civilian life, of course, has multiplied the demand. Many are being forced to wear their uniforms as a last resort. Some do not have even their old, prewar suits to fall back on. They have come home, in many a case, to find their stripes and checks chopped up and sewn into formfitting suits for the wife or a sister, or outgrown.

It seems that the government might well put out more effort to divert additional rayon to the clothing field, if the scarcity of linings is the bottleneck. After all, the matter of covering the human frame has been a pretty important item for a long time. Whether the expected turn to the increased manufacture of natural rubber, rayon-less casings will help the situation remains to be seen. Anyway, the problem requires urgent attention, as the editorials say. It looks like a long and frigid winter.

A physician says a person's mental attitude may cause indigestion. It may in a few cases, but not in the case of the average person, whose digestive system is much stronger than his mind.

The passage of time is impressed upon us by rapid succession of events no less than by calendars and clocks. Last evening we heard "Sitting in a Corner" over the radio, and we felt as if a century had elapsed since this song was currently popular.

One-Minute Sermon

O Lord, thou are my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things: thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth. For thou hast made of a city an heap; of a defended city a ruin: a palace of strangers to be no city; it shall never be built. Isaiah 25: 1, 2.

Marshall's Report On The War

By Gen. George C. Marshall
Wartime Chief Of Staff

(This is the 32nd of 33 installments of material selected from General Marshall's report on the winning of World War II).

END OF JAPANESE SEAPOWER

THE message from MacArthur arrived at Quebec at night, and Admiral Leahy, Admiral King, General Arnold, and I were being entertained at a formal dinner by Canadian officers. It was read by the appropriate staff officers who suggested an immediate affirmative answer. The message, with their recommendations, was rushed to us and we left the table for a conference. Having the utmost confidence in General MacArthur, Admiral Nimitz, and Admiral Halsey, it was not a difficult decision to make. Within 90 minutes after the signal had been received in Quebec, General MacArthur and Admiral Nimitz had received their instructions to execute the Leyte operation on the target date 20 October, abandoning the three previously approved intermediary landings. General MacArthur's acknowledgment of his new instructions reached me while en route from the dinner to my quarters in Quebec.

MARSHALL

That day the 1st Marine Division of General Geiger's III Marine Amphibious Corps, with a combat team of the 81st Infantry Division in reserve, landed in Peleliu in the Palau group. Two days later the 81st Division landed on Angaur, an island south of Peleliu.

The War Department on 16 September relayed to General MacArthur a report from General Stilwell to the effect that the Japanese offensive in central China would soon result in capture of the eastern China airfields from Which Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's Fourteenth Air Force had planned to support operations in the northern Philippines. MacArthur replied that Admiral Halsey's carrier task force had so severely reduced hostile air capabilities in the Philippines, Formosa, and the Ryukyus that it would be possible to move directly from Leyte to Lingayen Gulf without the support of Chennault's air force. Admiral Halsey's carrier planes had destroyed almost 2000 Japanese aircraft in the probing attacks during September.

On 22 September another combat team of the 81st Division moved to Peleliu, where heavy resistance was being met. Capture of this island was completed by 30 September except for a few isolated enemy groups which held out in caves for another two months. On 21 September, patrols of the 81st Division landed on Ulithi, meeting no opposition. The main body landed two days later.

Islands Are Stepping Stones

The landing on Peleliu coincided with General MacArthur's move to seize Morotai north of Halmahera with the 31st and 32d Divisions. Despite uniformly stubborn resistance the Japanese had lost a series of islands which were important stepping stones for the return to the Philippines and the ultimate conquest of Japan.

The advance of our forces westward across the Pacific had been accompanied by the steadily expanding strategic operations of the Eleventh Army Air Force in Alaska, the Seventh Air Force in the Central Pacific, and the Fifth and Thirteenth Air Forces in the Southwest Pacific. In the operations fleet carriers had played a vital part. During the campaigns through the Southwest Pacific and the western mandated islands, General Kenney's aircraft and those of the Pacific Ocean Areas swung their powerful attacks back and forth in mutual support of the various operations. At the same time the westward advance had resulted in an ability to strike from the air at the foundations of the Japanese war potential—their shipping, petroleum, and aircraft industries.

On 19 October two assault forces, the 3d commanded by Admiral Wilkinson and the 7th commanded by Rear Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, approached the east coast of Leyte with the Sixth Army under General Krueger aboard. It was an armada of combat and assault vessels that stretched across the vast Pacific horizon. In the covering naval forces were the battleships California, Mississippi, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, and West Virginia with their screen of cruisers and destroyers. The troops and materiel with which we were to seize Leyte were loaded in 53 assault transports, 54 assault cargo ships, 151 landing ships (tanks), 72 landing craft (infantry), 16 rocket ships, and over 400 other assorted amphibious craft. The air cover was provided by planes from 18 escort carriers.

Japanese Fleet Crippled

Out to sea Admiral Halsey's mighty carrier task force, which helped prepare the way for the landings by air bombardment, now stood watch for possible Japanese naval opposition to the landings. That day a Japanese search plane discovered this great amphibious force and reported its presence to Admiral Kurita's Singapore fleet, which then constituted 60 per cent of Japan's major naval units. This report precipitated one of the decisive battles of history.

The X and XXIV Corps of the Sixth Army went ashore on schedule the following day after the Navy had paved its way with drum-fire bombardment. Three days later General MacArthur directed the ground forces to secure their beach areas and await the outcome of the naval battle which was now impending. The Japanese made the decision to commit their fleet in the battle to prevent America's return to the Philippines. Admiral King has described the great naval action which followed in his recent report. Every American who reads it must be filled with tremendous pride in the achievements of our fighting Navy.

By the 26th it was apparent that the Third and Seventh Fleets had virtually eliminated Japan as a sea power. Her fleet had suffered a crippling blow.

Government Hoping To Prevent Walkout

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—The government today called conference in an attempt to avert a threatened strike of 250,000 members of the CIO United Electrical Workers.

Officials of the union were invited by the labor department to confer here Wednesday. Neil Brant, international union representative, said the organization would accept.

Officials of the General Electric and Westinghouse companies were invited to other conferences Thursday and Friday.

Officers' Faith In Santa Claus Pays Off

VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 25 (AP) — An Army lieutenant's faith in Santa Claus today assured Lt. Roger Camp he would reach his base at Jacksonville, Fla., on schedule.

Lt. Camp wired Saint Nick, care of Eastern Air Lines, Chicago: "Please have Eastern put me on waiting list for flight to Jacksonville Dec. 25 or 26. Don't destroy a boy's faith in you."

The prompt reply read: "You have been a good boy. Santa reserves space on Dec. 25 flight."

Looking At Life ------ By Erich Brandeis

LET ME give you, very briefly, five items, all appearing in the same issue of my morning paper:

Item One: From San Francisco: One-half of Mrs. Irene Mansfeldt's split psychological personality wanted to kill — in fact did kill nurse Vada Martin, who she believed had stolen the love of her husband.

Item Two: From Trenton, N. J.,: Henry G. Schaff, 22, of Mercerville, fatally shot his estranged wife, Dolores, 18, and then committed suicide by turning on the gas.

Item Three: From Little Falls, N. J.: Driven to fury by jealousy, a placid wife of 47 was accused of murdering her husband by chasing him in an automobile down a blind alley and smashing the car into him as he crouched, trapped, against a cellar door.

BRANDEIS

Item Four: From New York, N. Y.: Hazen Hayward, 38, a drug clerk, came home from work, quarreled with his wife, Bonita, 40, in their apartment, and she stabbed him in the left arm.

Oh, yes, and there is a fifth item which I almost overlooked:

Item Five: Also from New York: Jennie Moscowitz, 77, long-time stage favorite, celebrated her 57th wedding anniversary, and gave interviewers her formula for wedded bliss.

* * *

Let us visit with Mrs. Moscowitz for a few moments.

"I'll bet that I'm the only actress alive who's been married that long," said the white-haired, but very spry old lady, "and to the same man."

Here is her formula:

"Don't look for arguments. Live in peace. Try to understand each other, and keep faith with that vow you took when you got married—to be true to each other."

* * *

AND then Mrs. Moscowitz did a little additional philosophizing.

"The trouble with today's marriages is that they aren't given sufficient time to work out," she said, "and the principals are all too anxious to ring down the curtain.

"They rush in and out of marriage. With them marriage is a toy.

"When you get married, remember—first be a wife and mother—then follow whatever other calling you are engaged in.

"If you just apply the same principles to marriage that you apply to any other job, you'll make a go of it.

"The most important thing, though, is that the job must first be the right one for you."

My wife has criticized me several times for writing too much about marriage.

"What's there so much to write about?" she asked. "You and I never had any formula nor drew any blueprints for marriage.

"It's just two people living together and treating each other as if they weren't married at all."

Sounds very simple, doesn't it?

Then why were those four items in my paper this morning?

And why are there so many items like that in the papers every day?

I hope I'll never find out.

GOP Eyes Possibilities

Republicans Scent A New Era

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

FORMER GOV. John W. Bricker of Ohio and Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts would be the Republicans' 1948 candidates for President and Vice President if the members of the National committee who recently met in Chicago to form an off-year platform had been authorized to name an anti-Truman ticket.

The politicians who assembled in the Windy City were admittedly a rather conservative lot. But they do wield considerable influence in the organization, and they do collect the dough, with the help of Pennsylvania's two "Joes"—Pew and Grundy — so this report on the conclave's secret sentiments is taken quite seriously in capital circles.

TUCKER

The handsome and personable Ohio Governor, who may advance his chances by seeking and winning a Senate seat, is the most popular and appealing figure to the majority of the Republican National committee. Indeed, many thought as far back as 1944 that the Presidential slate should have been Bricker and Dewey rather than vice versa.

Should 1948 be another 1920, as far as the political atmosphere is concerned Mr. Bricker is touted as a "natural" to depose President Truman by certain extremely important GOPers.

The opposition three years hence, hopes to benefit from the postwar liabilities the Democratic party may have incurred — racial, labor, white collar, big business etc. Then the Republicans will need a man who has made no class enemies, and Mr. Bricker seems to answer that description.

* * *

SLATONSTALL: Senator Saltonstall has not yet borne out advance notices that he is a "more able and liberal Calvin Coolidge" with many of the same qualities which endeared him to the voters. But the party bosses like his looks, and he fits the picture from the standpoint of geography.

He might also be painted as the liberal tail to the Bricker kite.

* * *

DEWEY: The surprise and senation of the Chicago get-together, which has assumed the proportions of an impromptu National Convention, was the antagonism to Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and the fear of Lt. Comdr. Harold E. Stassen "pulling a Willkie" in 1948 if the bosses tried to put over Governor Bricker.

Mr. Dewey seems to be on the outside looking in for several reasons, although he obvious is a candidate. In 1944 he accepted too many Rooseveltian reforms to suit the ultraconservatives in his party. He singed his feathers when he sponsored Judge Jonah Goldstein, a former Tammany man, as Republican candidate for mayor of New York a few weeks ago.

His recent courting of racial, labor and agricultural groups strikes the boys as an artificial coup.

* * *

STASSEN: The former governor of Minnesota has the old-fashioned gang worried. They recognize that his avowed and spoken liberalism carries a distinct appeal; they know that they need him.

They are suspicious of his plan to tour the country on a speaking trip. He may say things that will embarrass them in the 1946 and 1948 contests.

The more sensible Republicans are upset over the Chicago fiasco, where the platform framed by the Martin-Halleck congressional group was sidetracked because it was a meaningless jumble of words that satisfied neither the liberal nor the conservative factions. But they hope that the folks will forget and forgive this bungling.

They still believe that they will "drift" into control of Congress next year and into occupancy of the White House in 1949 as a natural end, they hope, of the inevitable reaction against a party that has held power for so long.

* * *

CONGRESS: Confidential reports on political conditions encouraged the board of strategy in the belief that they can pick up the twenty-seven additional seats which will give them control of Congress next year, and it is almost an axiom that the party which wins this mid-term contest will move into the White House.

Henry Cabot Lodge, former senator and Army officer, may run for governor of Massachusetts and bring out the Republican vote more successfully than the recent GOP office seekers have done.

If Governor Bricker campaigns for the Senate, he may exert the same magnetic pull on backsliders.

Gov. Ed Martin of Pennsylvania, a World War I veteran and ballot - box attraction, may unseat half a dozen Democrat represenatatives. He is expected to seek a spot in the Senate.

Gov. Earl Warren, whether he asks for another term or runs for the Senate, may help to increase California's quota of Republican members of the House.

Not in many years has the GOP had such a good crop of gubernatorial and Congressional candidates; and strong or popular men at the top of the ticket always drag unknown and weak sisters into minor offices.

* * *

COMMUNISTS: The postwar "party line" of American Communists threatens to jeopardize Washington's relations with Moscow and to revive the almost defunct "Dies committee" at a time when the atom bomb, Sino-Japanese problems and revolt in the Middle East have already engendered distrust between the world's oldest and youngest republics.

The domestic Commies' interference in our labor affairs, as well as their propaganda against British-American policies at home and abroad, is one of the Administration's secret embarrassments. It is quite probable that Secretary James F. Byrnes may have outlined the subject with extreme frankness in his Moscow conversations with Premier Stalin and Foreign Commissar Moltotov.

New York-Washington Commies' off-again-on-again acrobatics would be comical if they did not muddy the international waters so violently, in the opinion of the State department. When Hitler was climbing to power, they fought him as a fascist in their pamphlets and in bruising battles on the streets of Berlin, Bremen and Hamburg.

* * *

"DEMOCRATIC": When he and Stalin negotiated the alliance that touched off the European war, the Russian dictator became their hero. Britian and France were denounced as reactionary and capitalistic enemies of civilization. The Reds paraded Pennsylvania avenue in front of the White House with banners proclaiming that "The Yanks are NOT coming."

When Hitler attacked Russia, they changed the inscriptions on their placards overnight. They picketed Congress and the State department with demands that the "democratic" United States rush to the rescue of "democratic" Russia. FDR became their American saint when the U. S. was shipping lend-lease supplies to Russia and establishing a second front in France.

Now, in view of our attempt to fulfill the Atlantic charter, Teheran and Yalta pacts, as well as the pledges of the United Nations charter, their papers and magazines and pamphlets bristle with denunciations of "Yankee dollar diplomacy."

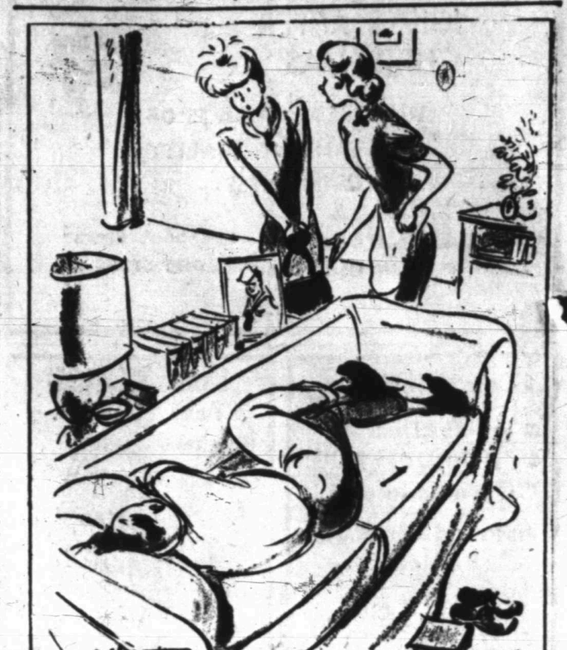

So, it is quite probable that Mr. Byrnes will ask the Kremlin to say whether Mr. Stalin approves and inspires their chameleonlike tactics — or what!

* * *

PROMISES: President Truman and Mr. Byrnes are attempting something that neither FDR nor Prime Minister Churchill tried to do in their dealings with the iron man in the Kremlin. They are trying to pin him down on his promises and ascertain whether he meant what he said when he agreed to live up to his country's idealistic promises during the throes of war.

Messrs. Roosevelt and Churchill felt that they could not stage a showdown because of the military crisis. They got fine words from Stalin, but they never pressed him to deliver. Now these two men, the original negotiators, have departed the international scene.

Truman Gives Labor Partial Backing

Wage Issue Faces Showdown

By THOMAS L. STOKES
Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The issue of opening corporation books to fact-finding bodies in labor disputes, which President Truman has raised, is a basic matter of perhaps far more significance than is generally appreciated.

STOKES

It points toward another change in the relations of government to business and industry, another modification of United States capitalism on the ground of public interest such as went on fairly rapidly during the Roosevelt New Deal.

This will become apparent in the debate in Congress, after the Christmas recess, on President Truman's proposal for fact-finding bodies backed by government authority. There it will become a hot issue, for it denotes another species of government intervention comparable to some of the most notable of the past.

This was all foreshadowed, though little noted, in developments leading up to the General Motors strike.

* * *

Reuther's Claims Cited

There was, first, the contention of Walter Reuther, United Automobile Workers vice president, that wages and prices must be tied up with profits, both in the interest of worker and consumer. He claimed that General Motors, on the basis of profits, could increase wages 30 per cent without raising prices, and for several days he offered to General Motors officials statistics in proof of his contention. He challenged the company to prove that he was wrong. If it could, he said, he would lower his demand.

General Motors refused his challenge. It refused because that would have required it to lay before the union information about its business — in short, to open its books.

* * *

BOTH sides were aware of the issue involved: The union was seeking a greater share in decisions of the business affecting its interests. This was the real issue. It is becoming more so with some of the more advanced unions, though regarded unsympathetically by some old-line labor leaders, including John L. Lewis.

Mr. Reuther was asking, in effect, that the workers as an economic unit share with management information about profits and prices. That would tend to make labor more of a partner in industry, with its own economy considered as a regular part of the whole economy of production.

He did not get what he wanted. The company refused to open its books.

HST Backs Labor

But President Truman has given this labor position partial support by insisting that corporation books must be opened to fact-finding boards set up by the government as such information is essential in determination of wages. The information would be kept confidential by the boards, open neither to the union nor to competitors.

The President was emphatic that neither the government nor the fact-finding board would endeavor to fix a rate of return for the business. But the government, through the boards, would have a check on behalf of the public as consumers on profits and prices whenever disputes arose in basic industries. The President made it plain that he means for Congress to include in its legislation authority for the boards to examine corporation books.

* * *

HE SOUGHT to ameliorate the extent of this step when he pointed out that both federal and state governments in the past have had authority to examine corporation books for this and that reason. But this is a new departure, as permanent policy, into the field of industry's relations with labor.

It must properly be considered against the background of the gradual intervention, during the New Deal, of the government of the people on behalf of the people, and also in light of what is happening in England. There the government is taking over basic industries. Here it proposes to take a closer look at the inside of corporate business to see that labor and the public get a square deal in wages and prices.

It is a significant step forward in our evolution in this country.

Selfishness Denied In Occupation Zone

FRANKFURT, Germany, Dec 25 (AP)—A U. S. Military government spokesman said today that "we know of no one who is working for his own selfish ends" within the Army's administrtion of American-occupied Germany.

The statement was made in reply to charges by Senator Harley M. Kilgore (D-W. Va.) in Washington last Friday, that some American officials now with military government had close pre-war ties with the Nazis, and were "still sympathetic to the cause of cartelism and to their old German cartel partners."

Of Kilgore's further charge that failure to break up the huge I. G. Farben industrie combine was an illustration of American reluctance to carry out terms of the Potsdam conference, the spokesman pointed out that the entire I. G. Farben question had been placed on a four-power level.

Joan Leslie has a waistcoat of beaver styled with a deep V neckline and pointed front. Large gold buttons finish the front closing. She wears it with a cape suit of mustard gold wool crepe, and tops off the ensemble with a disc-like beret of matching beaver.

iness conducted at the conference is expected to be issued at 2 a. m., Thursday (6 p. m., Eastern Standard time, Wednesday).

The American delegation took a very favorable view of the first agreement—that the peace terms should be drawn up by those nations which signed the armistice terms with Germany's European satellites, "except in the case of other members of the United Nations who will be invited to take part in decisions of questions which concern them," and that deputies of the five-power council of foreign ministers will resume their work in London with the new formula as a base.

Specifically, the agreement (terms of which were sent to France and China with a request for its approval by those two governments) provided that the terms of the peace treaty with Italy be drafted by the United States, Britain, Russia and France, and that treaties with Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary be drawn up by Russia, the United States and Britain. Britain and Russia will draft the treaty with Finland.

Approved By China

China was reported to have approved the agreement but no word has yet been received from the French government.

When this preparatory work is completed, the council of foreign ministers will call a conference to discuss the peace agreements. Nations eligible to participate in addition to the United States, Russia, Britain, France and China will be: Australia, Belgium, White Russia, Brazil, Greece, Holland, Canada, India, New Zealand, Norway, Poland, The Ukraine, Czechoslovakia, Ethiopia, Yugoslavia, and the Union of South Africa.

Although no announcement was made of any matter concerning Japan, American delegates to the conference said additional agreements, which include decisions on Pan-Eastern matters, will not be disappointing.

Crude Rubber To Be Apportioned To Need

NEW YORK, Dec. 25. (AP)—An RFC spokesman and a representative of the American rubber industry said today that an estimated 275,000 to 350,000 tons of rubber expected to arrive in the United States during 1946 will be appropriated on an international basis according to need.

The New York Times quoted these spokesmen as saying that crude rubber shipments would be allocated by a raw materials board, probably functioning under the United Nations Organization. The United States, Great Britain, Russia, France, China, and the Netherlands were said to be the principal nations involved.

Disclosure of the proposed allocation plan came with the arrival of the first vessel carrying a load of crude rubber from the Far East since 1942. The freighter Canton Victory with 8,100 tons of rubber from Batavia and Malayan ports had been awaited here by rubber companies faced with increased demands for tires and other products.

The Canton Victory's cargo and future shipments are consigned to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Times says, and the RFC will apportion the supplies to companies requesting allotments.

chology present two basic impediments to democracy. It is difficult to teach a conception of the individaul's importance in a state when he is completely unimportant in its basic group. When age is the main recommendation for influence, governments are throttled.

Japan's steel core of fanatacism now is invisible. Thousands of jingoists were killed during the war and defeat doubtless changed many more. But many leaders, though inactive, are living.

Tojo was a colonel when he became the brains of the dominant military clique. The cruelest Kempeitai commanders were of the same rank. The so-called "younger officers" provided the muscles and daring of the militarist era.

Many Japanese seriously wonder now what they are doing, and when they may reappear.

There is only one known case in Texas in which a brand was applied to a human being.

Petrillo Bans Musical Programs Broadcast From Foreign Nations

NEW YORK, Dec. 25. (AP)—American radio stations will be prohibited from broadcasting musical programs originating in any foreign country except Canada, under the new order issued by James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federaiton of Musicians, the New York Times says.

Petrillo told a Times reporter that his ruling, effective Jan. 1, was designed to protect the American musicians against foreign competition. He said that through the international short wave radio a foreign musician could displace an American's services without ever entering the United States.

Causes New Controversy

Interpretation of the order immediately led to a new controversy between Petrillo and the National Association of Broadcasters. The Times says. The NAB suggested in its weekly news letter that the union measure might prevent religious broadcasts such as the annual Christmas and Easter programs from the Vatican and Jerusalem, and special overseas musical program by the Army and Navy.

Petrillo declared that such programs would be exempt.

"That NAB is just a propaganda outfit," the Times quoted Petrillo. "My letter is not to be interpreted as they did. We've never stopped religious program at any time. All we're asking them to do is to live up to their contract. Under no circumstances can they have non-union music."

Waived During War

The Times says that Petrillo, in a letter to the NAB, dated Dec. 5, asserted:

"You will possibly recall that during the war, the federation waived its objections to network broadcasts of programs emanating from foreign countries, even though music for these programs was furnished by misicians who are not members of the American Federation of Musicians.

"We considered this a necessary wartime measure to promote good will and good relationships with other countries, and were very happy to cooperate. However, now that the war is over, we believe that we should get back to normal as rapidly as possible. Therefore, will you kindly discontinue the broadcasting of any musical programs emanating from foreign countries effective Dec. 31, 1945.

"This, of course, does not apply to the Dominian of Canada where the musicians are members of the American Federation of Musicians."

Petrillo implied in his letter that it had been the policy of American Broadcasters not to use foreign music before the war, but officials of the NAB declared that this policy never had been formally agreed to, the Times said.

Financially the order will mean little, broadcasting officials said, because all international musical programs thus far have been presented on a sustaining basis. Primarily involved are programs prepared by the British broadcasting corporation, the two major shows being "Atlantic Spotlight" on NBC and "Trans-Atlantic Call" on CBS. An additional ten BBC programs on independent stations also were said to be affected.

Storm-Torn Cruiser Home With Veterans

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP) — The light Cruiser Philadelphia, her fo'castle deck buckled, her hull plating ripped and her gun shields and fittings twisted by wind and wave, arrived today with 1,268 military personnel whose disappointment in not reaching home for Christmas was overshadowed by joy in reaching land.

"We did everything possible to get the boys home for Christmas and still preserve the ship," Capt. Robert W. Perry of San Francisco, the ship's skipper said.

A roll of 41 degrees and 80-foot waves delayed e vessel, he said.

"If we chose to run before the storm and ride it out, we wouldn't have gotten in before New Year's," he said.

Lt. (jg) C. F. Beatty, naval liaison officer of the Army, of Scarsdale, N. Y., said Albert Parker of Philadelphia, damage control officer, and a party of Navy men who went forward to repair the buckled fo'castle deck had to be fastened to lines to keep them from being swept overboard.

Troops ha' no Christmas services aboard the cruiser, but received gifts on the pier, en route to Camp Kilmer, N. J., for processing.

Mr. Car And Truck Owner

Here are Some Facts About Your Tires

Tire rationing will end 12.01 A. M. January 1, 1946. We know there will be a mad scramble for tires, and we will be unable to take care of the demand. Government figures show that it would take 44,000,000 tires to supply the car owners' needs at this time; and if you will check with your tire dealer, you will find their tire racks practically empty. If the tire manufacturers made 1,000,000 tires per week — 52,000,000 tires next year — and if the new car manufacturers consumed 20 per cent of these which they are supposed to do, we would still be short 2,200,000 tires for next year if we didn't blow out or wear out any tires in 1946. We all know that we will wear out and blow out more tires next year than any time since Pearl Harbor as tires are older and there will be more traveling than there has been in any year in the past four years.

We suggest that you take care of your old tires — have them inspected regularly for breaks and bruises, have them repaired and recapped when needed, and keep properly inflated. These suggestions will save you time and worry as well as money. We believe we'll be able to supply you with tires as quickly as any distributor in West Texas as we are distributors for West Texas and Eastern New Mexico of two brands of tires — the Kelly Springfield and the Gates Tire — and to be fair to everyone we offer this order blank below. Fill it out and bring it or mail it to Sanders Ttime Company, and we will number them as we receive them. Number 1 order will be delivered first and on down the line until all orders are filled. NOTICE! WE WILL NOT ACCEPT ANY-MONEY WITH THIS ORDER. Pay for your tires when you receive them. If you have a telephone we will call you; if not, we will write and tell you when to pick up your tires.

Americans Plan Unique Project In Greece As Election Observers

By GRAHAM HOVEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25—More than 600 Americans will go into all parts of Greece shortly as election observers in a project believed unique in history.

The size of the U. S. delegation and the exhaustive scope of the project were disclosed today by informed government officials, who asked to remain anonymous.

These officials said they knew of no parallel for the observation—by invitation—of one country's elections by citizens of another on such a scale.

Others To Participate

Britain and France also have accepted the Greek invitation to send observers, but Russia has declined.

Henry F. Grady, former assistant secretary of state, will head the U. S. mission. Under him will be five or six commissioners. One of these—Maj. Gen. Harry J. Malony—already has been chosen by the War department, which will collaborate with the State department on the project.

The rest of the organization, officials said, will include:

1. An "indoctrination" staff of experts on Greek history and politics, who will give background lectures to the observation teams.

2. A group of "sampling experts, something like public opinion pollsters, who will take censuses in all parts of Greece to build up a scientific basis for the election observation.

Observation Teams

3. Approximately 100 American observation teams, consisting in most cases of an Army officer, enlisted man, driver and Greek interpreter, who will travel in a jeep and trailer to their observation points.

4. A secretary-general and secretariat for the delegation.

The British also will send out about 100 observation teams and the French about 40, officials said.

Administrative officials of the American group will leave for Greece early in January, with others to follow. The War department will pick the Army officers and men to serve on the teams from troops in the European or Mediterranean theaters to cut down transportation expenses.

To Assemble In Italy

The teams probably will assemble first in Italy for their indoctrination courses. While this is proceeding, the census crews will be compiling information in Greece. Asked how they would operate, one official said he thought they could manage "without ringing doorbells," but gave no further details.

The Greeks will elect an assembly which will serve both as the national legislature and a body to revise the 1911 constitution. Like their Yugoslav neighbors, Greek legislators may rule on the ticklish question of whether to continue the monarchy and permit King George to return from his London exile.

Invited By Greece

Greece invited foreign observers to the elections under a Yalta Big Three provision that the major Allies would aid any liberated or former Axis-affiliated European state in measures to guarantee the right of the people to choose their own government.

Russia declined on grounds that the "observers" in fact would become "supervisers," and said the Soviet Union was opposed to intervening in another country's domestic affairs.

This refusal was generally regarded by U. S. officials as a move to forestall pressure for similar observations of elections in Bulgaria and Romania, where Soviet-recognized governments have not been recognized by this country or Britain.

Meeting Called On Wool Regulation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—Senator O'Mahoney made public today a letter from the OPA saying that a meeting with the wool industry advisory committee to discuss the maximum average price regulation for wool textiles is planned early next year.

Richard H. Field, OPA general counsel, wrote that amendments to the price order already made have eased hardships for manufacturers.

O'Mahoney's statement said that this "is disputed by wool textile manufacturers who declare unequivocally that (the order) continues to result in reducing needed men's wear fabrics by some 50 per cent and has increased the production of lighter-weight, lower-cost women's wear materials by the same percentage."

Troops Storm Base In Protest Against Sailing Cancellation

MANILA, Dec. 25 (AP)—Four thousand demonstrating U. S. soldiers marched on the 21st replacement depot headquarters today in protest against cancellation of a scheduled transport sailing for home.

The soldiers carried banners proclaiming, "We Want Ships."

They were met by Col. J. C. Campbell, depot commander. He ordered them to return to their barracks. After listening to a brief talk by the colonel, the men milled around for about ten minutes, then filtered back to their quarters. A spokesman for the men said another mass meeting protest would be held Wednesday.

Cancellation of assignment of the transport Admiral Sims precipitated the demonstration. Colonel Campbell explained the transport was withdrawn in connection with consolidation of the 21st and 29th replacement depots. The Daily Pacifican, Army newspaper, quoted Campbell as saying:

"You men forget you're not working for General Motors. You're still in the Army."

Army sources sail troop ships capable of carrying 251,000 men had been assigned to the western Pacific for January, although only 70,000 will be eligible to return home.

Connally Shortens His Holiday Visit

MARLIN, Dec. 25 (AP)—Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex), who has been named a delegate to the United Nations conference in London, today has to cut short his Christmas holidays at home to prepare for the trip.

He and Mrs. Connally left here today for Texarkana, where they will visit briefly with her relatives and then continue to Washington.

He is scheduled to sail Dec. 30 on the Queen Elizabeth for England. The conference is to convene January 30, and he said here he believed it would last a month.

He said the Allies "must become a comradeship for peace" and not "let the comradeship of war get out of hand."

The truth about "take-home"

The demand of UAW-CIO leaders for a wage increase to "maintain wartime take-home" assumes that the wartime work week averaged 48 hours.

That is not true. In General Motors workers averaged 45.6 hours work a week. For industry as a whole the average was a little less.

The demand of UAW-CIO leaders also assumes that the postwar work week will be 40 hours.

General Motors expects to work 45 to 48 hours for a considerable period of time in order to produce enough goods to relieve shortages created during the war. Employes will be paid at the rate of time-and-a-half for hours worked over 40.

General Motors answered the UAW demand for a 30% jump in present rates with the offer of a wage increase that would have averaged 13½ cents an hour. This would have made the average wage increase since January 1941 at least equal to the increase in the cost of living.

A GM worker who earned $56.93 for a 45.6-hour week during the war would have received $63.44, under the GM postwar offer, for working the same number of hours.

This offer, aimed to increase wartime take-home pay by at least 10%, was rejected by UAW leaders.
