

Launch New Offensives...

British Meet Stiff Enemy Resistance

By The Associated Press
British marines and paratroopers launched new offensives on the Falkland Islands today, 24 hours after breaking out of their beachhead under heavy Argentine air attacks, the Defense Ministry in London announced.

It said two Argentine Skyhawks were downed Thursday when they attacked the British beachhead at San Carlos Bay, and that a British Harrier jet was shot down over the Falklands capital of Stanley — the apparent target of the British drive.

"Offensive land operations" by the British are under way today, the Defense Ministry said, adding that Harriers were flying reconnaissance for the ground troops. He gave no other details.

British commanders were maintaining radio silence to avoid giving away their positions, British sources said. The advancing troops, outnumbered by the Argentinians, were relying on surprise and mobility, they said.

The British Broadcasting Corp., citing unofficial reports, said British troops ran into stiff Argentine resistance Thursday as they pushed toward Darwin in a bid to secure one leg of their two-pronged assault on Stanley.

The Times of London said helicopters were ferrying troops under cover of darkness for a "big push" to Darwin and Goose Green. Another British press report said the attackers might try to bottle up the Argentine defenders and push on to the capital, 50 miles to the northeast.

While the paratroopers were advancing on Darwin and Goose Green, the BBC said Royal Marines with Scorpion light tanks and artillery moved directly east from the beachhead toward Stanley in the main thrust of the pincer assault apparently aimed at gaining the high ground overlooking the capital garrison.

The British are expected to use positions overlooking the capital to pour 105mm artillery fire down on the estimated 7,000 Argentine defenders entrenched in a wide arc reportedly stretching from Green Patch to Bluff Cove.

The British Defense Ministry imposed a blackout on official news of troop movements after Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher told the House of Commons Thursday afternoon that British forces had pushed out of their beachhead in a drive to recapture the South Atlantic colony from Argentine forces who seized the islands April 2.

"Our forces on the ground are now moving forward from the bridgehead." She declined to be more specific, saying, "Too much discussion about timing and details of operations can only help the enemy."

Argentine military sources denied the reports that the drive to retake Stanley was under way. They said British forces have been "halted and stabilized."

Blood Drive June 3 For Delwin Bane

A special blood drive for Delwin Bane, who was critically injured in a traffic crash May 10, will be held June 3 in the conference room at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The drive will begin at 5 p. m. and will continue as long as there are donors.

Bane has been in the intensive care unit in St. Mary's Hospital at Lubbock since a few hours after the accident. He suffered a severe head injury.

Policy Change Gets Approval

A revision of personnel policy was adopted and the administrator's monthly report was approved last night at a meeting of the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Board of Managers.

The revision puts personnel policy in compliance with terms of a new health insurance contract approved earlier by the board.

The manager's report showed a daily patient census of 66 for the month of April and 69 for the first four months of the year.

Leon Autry, vice president, presided over the session. Other board members attending were Sam Cross, Roy Kidd, John Jarrell and Rex Robinson. Absent were A. Z. Glover, board president, and County Judge Preston Wilson, who were participating in the Senior Center awards program.

Scurry Missed By Brunt Of Storms

Another round of thunderstorms sent scores of Snyder area residents rushing for shelter Thursday evening, but, happily, the brunt of the turbulence by-passed Scurry County.

U. S. Weather Service radar in Abilene picked up a funnel cloud in a formation over Lake J. B. Thomas 20 miles southeast of Snyder shortly before 7:30 p. m. However, it apparently never came down from the cloud, and law enforcement personnel who kept track of the storm system never sighted any tornadoes. In fact, only .30 inch of rain fell at the Lake Thomas dam, and only .34 inch fell in Snyder. Heavier rains were reported in Mitchell, Nolan and Fisher Counties as the thunderstorms moved in a northeasterly direction after building up in Howard County.

Shelters were open at Civil Defense headquarters, the courthouse, Snyder Savings and Loan, the Southwestern Bell Telephone building, the First Baptist and First Presbyterian Churches, and they attracted a number of people as storm warnings went out.

A funnel cloud was reported 14 miles south of Colorado City, but no damage was reported. A service station between Roscoe and Sweetwater had some wind damage, possibly from twisting winds, it was reported.

A possible tornado tore the roof from a home at Loraine in Mitchell County, firemen said. Golf ball size hail was reported at the same time, officials said.

Possible tornadoes were reported about eight miles northeast of Ranger in Eastland County, east of Weatherford, near Gorman in Eastland County, near Shep in Taylor County, in Stephens County and in Callahan County.

Golf ball size hail fell at Lake Worth as heavy thunderstorms passed across northern sections of Tarrant County and across Denton County early today.

Winds gusted to 75 mph at a state park near Buffalo Gap in Taylor County.

A tornado watch covered 57 counties in North Central Texas, Northeast Texas and South Central Texas during the night. The area included in the watch was along and 80 miles on either side of a line from 75 miles south southeast of Brownwood to 70 miles north northeast of Dallas.

Heavy thunderstorms continued at dawn today across portions of North Central Texas and in the Hill Country.

Elsewhere skies were partly cloudy in South Texas and clear in Southeast Texas, West Texas and the Panhandle.

TOP VOLUNTEERS FOR 1982—Four volunteer workers for the Scurry County Senior Citizens Center were recognized Thursday night for contributing over 6000 hours to center projects. Appreciation Banquet...

Senior Volunteers Receive Recognition

Over 300 individuals, organizations and businesses were recognized for their efforts in behalf of the programs of the Scurry County Senior Citizens Center at the center's annual Volunteer Appreciation Banquet Thursday night.

Two hundred and ninety-four senior citizens received either certificates or pins commemorating their hours of volunteer service to the center.

Those with total hours in service between 50 and 500 were awarded certificates while all those with over 500 volunteer hours received pins in recognition of their efforts.

Thirteen volunteers received special recognition for donating over 2500 total hours to the center. Hourly totals for each individual have been cumulative since 1980.

Those logging between 2500 and 2900 hours were: Ruby Anderson, 2867; Evelyn Elliott, 2691; Frances Martin, 2879; Edna Chauncey, 2599 and Ida Mae King, 2716.

One volunteer, Beulah Hooper, was recognized for a total labor of 3149 hours.

Three ladies had total contributions in the 4000 to 4900 hour range. They were Blanch Arnold with 4162, Mildred Lewis with 4378 and Maxie McNew with 4388 hours.

The top four volunteers each had over 6000 hours in service.

Estelle Gary was the fourth high volunteer with a total of 6025 hours. She contributed 1030 of her hours in 1982.

Mae Brush was recognized for her total contribution of 6884 hours, 2237 of which were done during 1982. She was the top hourly contributor for 1982.

Rosa Kennedy broke the 7000 hour barrier this year with 7680 volunteer hours in 1982 and a cumulative total of 7680 hours. Virginia Whitson received a pin in recognition of her status as overall top volunteer. Over the years, Whitson has donated a grand total of 13,605 hours to center activities. She worked 2235 of those hours in 1982.

Ray Summers, representing the Snyder Golden K Kiwanis Club, also presented Whitson with a plaque recognizing her work on behalf of that organization.

Twenty-two local businesses, organizations and churches were presented plaques in appreciation of their efforts in support of Senior Center and VIVA programs.

Individuals recognized for their efforts in behalf of the centers May Day Festival and Quilt Auction were George Gann, Joe Mills of the Little Brisket in San Angelo, and Grady and Mollie Morris of Colorado City.

Gann and Mills were involved in providing food service for the center events while the Morrises served as auctioneers for the highly successful Quilt Auction.

Businesses, organizations and individuals recognized for general support of the center activities throughout the year were the Snyder Daily News, KSNV Radio, the City of Snyder, Scurry County, Western Texas College, the West Central Texas Council of Governments Area Agency on Aging, the Golden K Kiwanis Club, Aline Parks, Eddie Williams, and Beverly Cross.

Churches and other agencies recognized for their efforts in behalf of the Senior Center based VIVA program were the First United Methodist Church, Scurry County Retarded Citizen's Garage Sale, the Scurry County Work Center, the Snyder Independent School District, the Snyder Oaks Care Center, the Snyder Care Center, the Cogdell Memorial Hospital Ladies Auxiliary, the First Baptist Church and the Scurry County Library.

Senior Center director Gloria Shaw, presented Reverend David Robertson, pastor of the First United Methodist Church, with a plaque and a quilt in recognition of his five years service on the Senior Center Commission.

Robertson will be leaving Snyder June 8 to assume new duties in Artesia, New Mexico.

Cindy Hataway entertained guests at the banquet with a selection of popular songs and Dr. Don Newbury, president of WTC, delivered the keynote address for the evening.

Food Stamp Flap

DALLAS (AP) — J. Peter Grace triggered demands for his resignation as head of President Reagan's spending watchdog committee when he said here that the food stamp program is basically a "subsidy for Puerto Ricans."

Grace, head of Reagan's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control in the Federal Government, made the comment Thursday to a meeting of the American Feed and Grain Manufacturers Association.

Puerto Ricans are getting more than their share of food stamps, said Grace, the chief executive officer of W.R. Grace & Co. of New York.

OAS Decision Expected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite U.S. objections, the Organization of American States appeared ready today to approve a resolution that would hand Argentina a diplomatic victory in its war with Great Britain over the Falkland Islands.

Argentina apparently had the two-thirds majority required for approval of a strongly-worded pro-Argentine resolution, although some diplomats cautioned that the final version might be somewhat watered down.

Prosecution Ready

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors, poised to begin trying to prove that John W. Hinckley Jr. was sane when he shot President Reagan, have won their effort to bar the jury from seeing X-rays of the defendant's brain.

U.S. District Judge Barrington D. Parker, siding with the government, told the defense team Thursday it could not introduce results of a CAT scan. Hinckley's lawyers hoped the brain scan would support the conclusion that the defendant was suffering from schizophrenia at the time of the March 30, 1981 shooting.

Jurors spent the day outside the courtroom, but Parker summoned them in the late afternoon to tell them the defense has called their last witness.

At Vermont Yankee...

Seconds To Meltdown

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — The first alarm sounded at 12:56 a.m. In the next four minutes the reactor core of the Vermont Yankee nuclear power plant came within 14 seconds — and three safety systems — of starting a meltdown.

Any one of the automatic safety systems was sufficient to end the danger, and they all worked. The plant shut down safely.

Still, the April 24 incident provided a stark reminder, in the words of Public Service Department Commissioner Richard Saudek, that "ultimately it is humans who control this plant."

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission said operators in the control room were off the mark in guessing what was wrong and also failed to realize how the plant had saved itself.

Probably the most serious operational problem at the Vernon plant in its decade of producing power, the incident also was one of the most closely documented at the plant due to investigations by the NRC and the state of Vermont.

The following reconstruction is based on NRC documents.

At 12:50 a.m., two reactor operators and the nuclear safety engineer were in the control room of the 540-megawatt reactor. The shifts had just changed and the plant operators were preparing to lower reactor power from 100 percent to perform routine checks.

Sometime before 12:56, with the power in the process of being reduced to 75 percent of capacity, a valve stuck open on one of the pumps that feed water to the vessel containing the reactor's fuel.

The pumps are turned on manually, but turn off automatically when the water level reaches 170 inches above the top of the fuel, 14 inches above normal.

At 12:56 the rising water level led to a shutdown of the pumps. The first alarm went off. Within six seconds, a control room operator had turned the pumps back on.

But 2½ minutes later when the pumps automatically turned off again — the water level had reached 171 inches — no one in the control room noticed the shutdown. By now their eyes were on the main reactor control panel.

Without any water feeding into the vessel, the water inside the container began boiling off at a rate of about two inches a second.

A loss of water, if unchecked, would lead to a meltdown of the reactor core, releasing radiation into the environment.

Twenty-two seconds after the second pump shut down, the water level was down to 136 inches, and the reactor itself turned off automatically.

Fourteen seconds later, the water level hit 87 inches. The emergency core cooling system switched on, pouring water into the vessel at 4,250 gallons a minute. It was the first time the plant's emergency cooling system was used.

It took slightly more than a minute for the emergency cooling system to do its work, bringing the water level up to 173 inches. The plant was safe.

When the pumps first turned off, the two operators quickly went to the main reactor control panel, located at the center of a V-shaped wall of lights, alarms and dials.

The shift supervisor heard the pumps slow down and entered the control room, joining the two others at the main panel.

The nuclear safety engineer took a position at the computer console, a few feet behind the others. His post was created after the nation's worst commercial nuclear accident in March 1979 at Three Mile Island.

The safety engineer is supposed to keep an overall eye on events and provide advice to the operators.

Investigation shows that the operators thought they had saved the plant by using the feedwater pumps, unaware that they had turned off again.

The three men in direct control of the plant also were unaware that the emergency core cooling system had switched on — and had provided the critical water.

The nuclear safety engineer, meanwhile, had noticed the emergency system's activation, and assumed the others had too.

Teenager Convicted Before Graduation

HOUSTON (AP) — An 18-year-old whose high school graduation fell on the same day as her conviction for involuntary manslaughter has been sentenced to seven years probation.

Hours before she received her diploma Thursday, Stephanie Obenhaus was convicted and sentenced for her part in an accident that killed three people.

Ms. Obenhaus was also fined $5,000. The Dec. 18 accident killed two Lebanese men who were junior college students and a 16-year-old girl.

Police said Ms. Obenhaus ran a red light and broadsided the victims' car in the early morning accident.

"I saw the light turn yellow," she testified. "I should have stopped, but I sped up through the light. The next thing I knew, I was in the back of a police car."

Ms. Obenhaus said she had two free beers at the restaurant where she worked as a waitress, but denied she was drunk. Prosecutor John Petrucci said a breathalyzer test showed she was intoxicated.

Ms. Obenhaus said she was 17 when she worked as a waitress, but told the restaurant she was 19 so she could serve alcoholic drinks.

The parents of the two male victims have sued the restaurant in federal court, claiming their sons died because the establishment served alcohol to a minor.

Look for underlying problem

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My doctor has told me that I have a liver condition called ascites. He has me taking hydrochlorothiazide daily.

I would appreciate any information you can give me on this condition. Although I'm relatively thin I look six months pregnant. I am 32 years old and have never had any serious medical problems until recently. I have been having severe dizzy spells for the past few months. Could they be caused by ascites?

DEAR READER — Ascites refers to an excessive accumulation of fluid in the abdominal cavity. We all have some fluid. As the fluid accumulates the abdomen becomes distended. Sometimes the distention can be quite large. It usually occurs in the presence of disease so the person is commonly thin with a large abdomen full of fluid.

There are several causes of ascites. From your letter I assume your doctor thinks yours is caused by liver disease. In this condition there may be very low blood proteins, particularly albumin. The blood proteins are important in sucking fluid back from the tissues into the circulation. When the blood proteins are low, fluid stays in the tissues. That can be one factor.

Also, liver disease may increase the pressure inside the large venous sinuses within the liver causing protein-rich fluid to leak out into the tissues.

Sodium retention along with water retention is common as part of the picture. That is why your doctor is giving you a diuretic.

If the liver problem can be improved that may improve the condition. Sometimes fluid is withdrawn by needle. In some cases caused by increased pressure in veins of the liver, an operation to relieve pressure helps.

Since you apparently have an underlying liver problem I am sending you The Health Letter number 7-8, Living With Your Liver. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is gangrene an infection that won't go away? Can it be corrected with surgery? If X-rays are taken and the bone hasn't been affected could it be possible to eliminate the surgery? The dark area around the infected area shows no life in the cells of the skin and into the ulcer. I am puzzled about this.

DEAR READER — Gangrene merely means death of tissue. Many people still associate gangrene with bacterial infections of the battlefield. During World War I about 10 percent of battle wounds resulted in gangrene. The bacteria are in the soil. They must have an environment without oxygen to live and multiply. That is why hyperbaric oxygen (oxygen under pressure) often helps these cases. Complete removal of all infected tissue is mandatory for recovery.

Most gangrene today is from diabetes or circulatory disorders that prevent blood flow to tissue, rather than from bacteria. The tissue dies. If a foot is involved an amputation is often required high enough to be above the loss of circulation so there will be enough circulation to allow healing.

Bacterial gangrene still occurs in nearly 2 percent of major open wounds. The best prevention is to remove all damaged tissue or areas where there will not be good circulation.

Point Lost On Co-Workers

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — A sharp state planner was trying to make a point about bureaucratic excess, but it apparently was lost on his co-workers.

Allen Coggins of the Conservation Department said Monday he posted a notice at the manual pencil sharpener directing workers using it to sign a log sheet.

Coggins said he typed an official-looking form and put it through a copying machine to give it an even more authentic appearance.

The form asked employees using the sharpener to list the date, their departmental section, the number of pencils sharpened and the type of pencil — such as No. 2 or No. 4.

After two weeks, Coggins said, 17 people had logged in. He said some may have realized it was a spoof but others thought it was legitimate.

Coggins also affixed his signature — twice, he said. "Everyone else was signing it, so I decided to sign it, too."

As our nation's economy recovers its virility, Americans will have more money to spend and will resume bidding prices upward.

Resultant inflation will mean that our dollars will start shrinking again — so we will demand and get more dollars.

Within 40 years, just your income from IRA savings may make you a millionaire — but it could take more than that just to buy food.

History says that of all economic ills, the one malignant one is inflation. And no nation has yet found a permanent cure for it.

Something happened last fall which was noted by almost nobody.

The President's chronic critics eagerly focused your attention on our nation's trillion dollar debt — but, at the same time and unnoticed — our government went another trillion dollars in debt.

The second trillion dollars is what we taxpayers are going to have to provide to cover the pensions of federal government employees.

Federal employees retired or retiring expect pensions which already total a thousand billion dollars.

Former Congressman Hastings Keith, retired, is now collecting three separate pensions — but he does not approve of the practice, calls the continuing escalation of pensions

"a time bomb."

What with military personnel and civil servants retiring earlier from jobs which pay more, plus cost-of-living adjustments, that obligation which taxpayers must pay has been increasing more than 10 percent per year.

Editor Marvin Stone of U.S. News says, "Mathematically, our future is hopeless."

For every dollar the civil-service employee contributes toward his own pension, taxpayers contribute five. Military personnel contribute nothing toward theirs.

Most members of Congress are understandably reluctant to consider any curtailment of pensions because of the generous retirement benefits which they have voted for themselves, as much as $48,500 a year plus cost-of-living adjustments.

Indeed, nobody can rightly condemn the retirement income earned by working people when our nation is so generous with people who don't work at all.

But as Rep. Barber Conable of New York says, "We have constructed a federal pension system over the years which goes far beyond reasonable limits and threatens to overwhelm America's taxpayers."

The only option — if there is not a de-escalation — is to print more money worth less.

And anybody presently on retirement knows what that means.

Leukemia Not Found Near Plant

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) — Federal and state researchers say they can find no unusual frequency of leukemia around the Maine Yankee nuclear power plant, but a plant critic says she remains unconvinced.

Dr. William Nersesian, director of the state Health Bureau, released the findings Wednesday after a year-long study by the Centers for Disease Control which reviewed leukemia statistics for seven central and southern Maine counties near the Wiscasset plant.

Karen Tomey, a spokeswoman for the group that first raised the question of leukemia rates near the plant, responded that more research should be done.

Trouble Ahead For Airline Co.

NEW YORK (AP) — The mechanics' strike against Northwest Airlines indicates that the airline industry, however troubled, is not immune from tough negotiations, analysts and airline executives say.

Most airlines have won contract concessions, including pay cuts, from many of their employees in the last six months as the carriers reel from losses attributed to the recession, the air controllers strike and repeated fare wars.

Labor costs are seen continuing downward as the industry tries to stay alive despite the staggering losses and the bankruptcy of one carrier. It will not be smooth sailing, analysts said Tuesday.

American Airlines is a case in point, said Eliot Fried Jr., who follows airlines for Shearson-American Express. The collapse of Braniff International, a major competitor of American's in the Southwest, will not go unnoticed by its unions.

"American is coming out of this Braniff thing very well," said Fried, but he said the loss of the competitor will make American's labor negotiations that much more difficult.

The payroll of U.S. airlines has declined to under 300,000 from a peak of 340,000 in 1979, when the airlines began cutting controllable costs in the face of rising fuel prices, said William Jackman, spokesman for the Air Transport Association.

Labor costs as a percentage of airline expenses have fallen from 42 percent in 1978 to 36 percent in 1980 and for most of 1981 for which figures are available, he said.

Airline executives, many of whom have secured contract concessions from their employees, are reluctant to talk openly, for fear of jeopardizing upcoming negotiations.

However, a spokesman for one of the major airlines, one of three or four that has been singled out by analysts as particularly endangered, says the unions will probably be reasonable with marginal carriers "and not beat them up with outrageous wage demands."

The Air Line Pilots Association, 5,500 of whose 33,000 members are collecting unemployment, negotiates separately with each airline. Its bargainers "look at the situation" and if management can demonstrate it needs help, the union will do its best to accommodate, union spokesman John Mazor said.

The pilots union has given concessions to many airlines, primarily agreeing to allow its members to fly more hours per month and operate certain aircraft with two rather than three pilots.

Flight attendants, many of whom are single, have also accepted management suggestions for concessions, such as taking unpaid leave, Jackman said. However, a mechanic on the ground "with a family to feed" is less likely to accept an unpaid vacation, he said.

And a spokesman for the Machinists Union pointed out that a contract it just negotiated with United Airlines is "notably concession-free."

The Machinists struck Northwest, which has a history of labor turbulence and tough bargaining, last Friday. The airline, the nation's seventh largest, has substantially cut back service.

In the 1970s, union pilots struck Northwest three times, once, in 1978, shutting it down for three months. Northwest took out full-page newspaper ads to seek public support, listing how much the airline pilots were paid before they struck.

In the latest dispute, the Machinists rejected a contract that would have raised the annual pay of top-scale mechanics to $35,569 by Nov. 1, 1983. Flight attendants and pilots are crossing the union's picket lines, and several incidents of rock-throwing and harassment were reported in Minneapolis on Monday.

Northwest is in the "strongest, most flexible financial position of all" the airlines because it owns its own fleet and has virtually no outstanding debt, said Charles H. Hanneman, an analyst with Thomson McKinnon Securities Inc.

Northwest had a profit of $10.5 million in 1981, when many airlines were losing money. However, in the first quarter of this year it lost $18 million, when the combined net losses of the major airlines rose above half a billion dollars.

The Air Transport Association's chief economist, George James, has predicted industry losses will total $1 billion in the 12-month period that ends June 30.

Just last week, 5,600 employees of Western Airlines, representing four of five unions, reaffirmed their support for a 10 percent pay cut as part of Western's "survival plan."

Various contract concessions are being considered between Continental Airlines and its unions, similar to ones most other airlines have in effect, to varying degrees.

Light Keeps Children Quiet

BARTLETT, Tenn. (AP) — When the light's green, Ellendale Elementary School students may go ahead. When it's yellow, that's a warning to slow down. And when it's red, they must stop at once.

Talking, that is. The lunchroom traffic light, connected to a sound meter, is designed to make things easier on the staff's eardrums by letting students know when their chatter is exceeding the approved decibel level.

Any student running his mouth through the red light gets a warning. Repeat offenders are hauled before principal Jim Jonakin.

"I like it," said Jason Stewart, a fourth-grader whose father installed the light as a gift to the school. "before we had the light, Mr. Jonakin had to carry a mini-loudspeaker into the room to make us hear him. The light saves time. And it's fun."

His classmates haven't held the idea against him, Jason added.

Take Complaint

Snyder police officers are investigating one criminal mischief complaint received Thursday afternoon.

Bobby Escobedo called police around 1:45 p.m. yesterday and reported damages to the windshield of his 1972 Ford pickup. According to police reports, the windshield had apparently been shot at approximately 25 times with a BB gun.

Value of damage to the Escobedo vehicle was pegged at $150.

Local police also investigated one minor traffic mishap reported in the 2300 block of Avenue R around 12:58 p.m. Involved in the accident were a 1981 Datsun pickup driven by Donald Joe May Jr. of 4009 Avondale and a 1982 Cadillac driven by Dorothy Owens of 3009 Avenue U. Only minor damages were reported to both vehicles in this mishap.

Should Not Stall Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States should not stall arms control talks with the Soviet Union as a response to Soviet intervention in other countries, says former Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

"It would widen our difficulties with our allies, help the Soviet international position and strengthen the support for unilateral disarmament in the West," he said.

spurts," said Riley after the Lakers' 124-117 triumph over a Sixers' team that crumpled in the last 26 minutes Thursday night.

The Lakers trailed 83-68 with 5:59 left in the third period. In the next 10½ minutes, Los Angeles outscored Philadelphia, 40-9, to turn that 15-point deficit into a 16-point lead.

That made it 108-92 with 7:35 left in the game. The 76ers never got closer than the final margin of seven points, and most of that came at the end on two three-point goals by Andrew Toney and another by Steve Mix.

The second game in the best-of-seven series is here Sunday, with the third and fourth at Los Angeles Tuesday and Thursday.

The victory was the ninth straight in the playoffs for the Lakers, breaking the NBA record of most consecutive playoff victories in one season.

Jamaal Wilkes and Norm Nixon led seven Lakers in double figures, each with 24 points. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar collected 23.

It was the 100th of 105 career playoff games that Abdul-Jabbar scored 20 or more points.

Nixon also had 10 assists and two steals, while Earvin "Magic" Johnson contributed 14 rebounds and nine steals. Wilkes also had 10 rebounds, seven off the offensive boards.

Philadelphia, which reached the final with victories over Atlanta, Milwaukee and Boston, was led by Julius Erving's 27. Erving had nine rebounds, three assists and three steals.

Bobby Jones had 19, Toney 20 and nine assists.

Bi-District Playoff...

Series Resumes At 2 Today

Moffett Field was to host Snyder's Tigers and the Lubbock Estacado Matadors today in the wrapup of a best-of-three bi-district playoff series beginning at 2 p.m.

The winner advances to regional competition to face either Everman or Vernon.

Estacado won Game One of the series Tuesday, defeating the District 2-AAAA champion Tigers 7-3. Snyder was looking to tie the series with a victory in today's 2 p.m. game, thus forcing a Game Three, which would follow approximately 30 minutes after Game Two.

Tommy Gressett, 4-1, was scheduled to start for the Tigers, going against Estacado's Joe Benavidez, 9-1. Benavidez, who also plays third base for the Matadors and bats a hefty .550, boasts an ERA of 0.88.

Should the series go into a third game, Snyder is expected to pitch with John Wilson, 10-2, and Estacado with Wayne Dotson, 12-1. Dotson was the winner in

HSU To Take On Longhorns

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The 1982 NCAA Regional Baseball Tournament could be billed as a battle of speed versus strength.

University of Texas baseball coach Cliff Gustafson says his team is not worried about some of the big bats they'll face in the tournament beginning today at Disch-Falks Field.

Though powerhouse Florida State has slugged 131 home runs this year, Gustafson says his team's speed could mean the difference as the Longhorns defend their title.

"Home runs are not a big part of our game," Gustafson said at a pre-tournament press conference Thursday. "We don't depend on them. I don't care if we don't get any home runs as long as we score more runs than the other team."

Longhorn short stop Spike Owen, who is tied with teammate Mike Brumely for the team's base stealing lead, thinks the fleet-footed Texans don't have to worry about any heavy hitters.

"Our game plan is to get on the bases and make things happen with our speed," Owen said.

FSU, Metro Conference runner-up, will open the tournament with a 1 p.m. game against Mid-America Conference winner Eastern Michigan.

Game One.

The Matadors are keyed offensively by Hector Limon, shortstop, who has hit 12 home runs this season and bats .584. Against the Tigers earlier this week, Limon rapped a home run, and a double, walked once and scored three times.

Snyder goes into the game with a 24-6 season record. Estacado, winner of 13 straight games, is 24-3. The Matadors advanced to the state finals last year.

SWC Ponders Fem Division

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Conference officials will discuss creation of a women's athletic division at their annual spring business meeting Saturday through Tuesday at Columbia Lakes, southwest of Houston.

SWC commissioner Cliff Speegle said a committee on women's athletics, headed by Dr. L.O. Morgan of The University of Texas, will report on suggested sports to be included in the conference program and on procedures for holding conference competition for women.

The women's competition probably would become part of the SWC program next fall.

Women's championships have been held for two years under the name of the SWC, but have not yet been an official part of the conference athletic program.

Conference officials also will hear a report on a women's post-season basketball tournament.

The tournament is scheduled for Dallas' Reunion Arena next March, with ensuing sites still undetermined. Officials from both Reunion and The Summit, the Houston site of the 1977, 1978 and 1979 tournaments, have bid on future tournaments.

The SWC has not set a policy on the site and the tournament committee has recommended the conference consider three options — awarding the tournament to a permanent site, establishing a rotation schedule, or offering the tournament to various sites on a regular bid basis.

ATTEND LUNCHEON—Attending the Texas Chapter of Colonial Daughters of 17th Century in Snyder were Mrs. Gene L. Dulaney, Josie Baird, and Mesdames Henry F. Clark, Leland S. Herod and B. J. Bartels.

Tejas Colonial Daughters Meet

Members of Tejas Chapter of Colonial Daughters of the 17th century met recently for a luncheon, program and election of officers for 1982-85.

The meeting was held at the Snyder Country Club with Snyder members serving as hostesses and Mrs. Henry F. Clark, chairman. Delila Baird, president, called the meeting to order.

Mrs. Vera Morrow said the opening prayer. The group then enjoyed the luncheon.

The four tables were centered with fresh flower arrangements of red carnations and white mums arranged with greenery and red, white and blue ribbon. The floral arrangements were compliments of Mrs. Leland S. Herod.

Following the luncheon a brief business meeting was held. Officers making reports were the treasurer, Mrs. Ruple Morrow, and registrar, Josie Baird.

Miss Baird noted that the chapter, organized in 1977 with 15 members, has 37 members and one associate member and five junior members. Three prospective new members have applications pending. New business was election of officers to serve

Ireland Art In Brooklyn

NEW YORK (AP) — Patrick Ireland, who specializes in rope drawings, will have his newest installation, "String Quartet," on display at the Brooklyn Museum through July 5.

The museum says Ireland's rope drawings are "derived from and alter the spaces they occupy."

Also on display at the museum through July 5 is the first exhibition in America of "The Voyage," a major new series of works by Alberto Burri, billed as the foremost Italian abstract painter of the post-World War II period.

COME FOR DESSERT
Blueberry Tart
Coffee

BLUEBERRY TART
A wintertime, food-processor version of a favorite dessert.

1 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 cup (4-ounce stick) butter
2 tablespoons sour cream
1 1/2 cups frozen sugarless blueberries, rinsed

Topping, recipe follows

In a food processor with the metal blade, process the flour and butter until no butter is visible. Add the sour cream and process just until dough forms a ball. Remove and flatten into a disc; place in the center of an ungreased, round 9 by 1 1/2-inch cake pan with a removable bottom. Press over bottom and sides of pan. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until set but not brown — about 20 minutes. Reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees. Spread blueberries in the pastry shell — it does not have to be cooled. Pour the Topping over the berries. Bake in the 350-degree oven until top is golden and meringue-like — 45 to 50 minutes. Cool on a wire rack. Remove sidewall of pan. Serve warm or at room temperature. Makes 8 servings.

Topping: In the processor, without washing bowl or blade, process together until smooth 3 large egg yolks, 1-3rd cup sour cream, 3/4 cup sugar and 1/4 cup all-purpose flour — a matter of seconds (scrape down side of bowl midway).

The Boston Massacre took place March 5, 1770, when British soldiers fired on a mob which had been harassing a sentry. Three men were killed. The incident was one of the events which hastened the American Revolution against British rule.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

This hand might well be entitled, "What might have been."

It was played in a team match back in 1973. Both Souths played in six spades and got a trump lead, won by South's eight. A second trump was won in dummy and the 4-1 break was disclosed.

Both declarers now led dummy's seven of diamonds and let it ride to East's queen. A third trump was led, but declarer won. He played three rounds of clubs, ruffing the third with dummy's last trump. Then he came to his hand with the ace of hearts, pulled the last trump and eventually discarded his losing hearts on long diamonds.

It looks like a foolproof line of play. But Terence Reese and Eddy Kantar, in "Defend With Your Life," have found a way for West to bamboozle declarer.

The play wasn't made at either table and almost surely would never be made if the hand were played a 1,000 times, but here it is.

West lets the seven of diamonds hold without any apparent thought. Declarer will now repeat the diamond finesse whereupon West will produce the queen and lead back his last diamond.

Now declarer won't be able to pull trumps to get that needed club ruff and cash the last two diamonds.

Mexican Gen. Santa Anna's forces captured the Alamo at San Antonio, Texas, March 6, 1836, after 13 days of bitter fighting.

None of the Texans survived. Among the victims were such legendary figures as Davy Crockett and James Bowie.

Grace Lutheran Plans For Its Anniversary

Members of Grace Lutheran Church are busy preparing for the celebration of the 25th anniversary of their congregation during the weekend of June 5-6.

The congregation was officially organized in December of 1956, and reached this milestone last winter, but the celebration date was set for summer in hopes that more former ministers and members would be able to attend.

The event will begin Saturday afternoon, June 5, at 3 p. m. at the church, located at 5500 College Ave., with pictures and memorabilia on display to encourage reminiscences. A barbecue supper prepared by members will be served at 6 p. m. and slides of past church events will be shown during the evening.

Speaker at the communion service at 10:30 a. m. Sunday will be the Rev. Martin Yonts of Dallas. Yonts is with the Division of Mission in North America of the Lutheran Church in America and has been closely associated with the local congregation for many years. The offering at the morning service will go toward debt reduction of the church.

Former ministers, the Rev. Walter Lentz, now of Gonzales, Tex., and the Rev. Henry Hartman of Windom, Kan., and their families are planning to attend. If their health permits, Pastor and Mrs. Vorker also hope to attend.

Letters of invitation have been sent to former members whose addresses could be located. Through the years, there have been people who attended Grace Lutheran Church but did not officially become members. The congregation has no record of them, although the reason was confirmed when he went to Walters' Tire Center to have an exhaust system fixed.

"While we were working on the car we heard all this chirping going on somewhere," said owner Dean Walters. "There was a nest in the upper ring of the bumper.

Haynes said when he returned from a trip to Cincinnati last week he could hear the birds and assumed they were there. But he couldn't find the nest because it was dark.

they may have been very active in the church at a certain time. If such people live in the community, or if local residents know their addresses, it would be appreciated if information about the anniversary celebration should be passed on to them.

Anyone planning to attend the Saturday evening activities is asked to call Virginia Eime at 573-3713.

Finds Sparrows In Bumper

WINCHESTER, Ind. (AP) — The Rev. Walter Haynes has been chauffeuring a bunch of youngsters around town and even took them to Cincinnati, and the whole time he was driving he didn't hear a peep out of them.

It wasn't until he got out of his car each time that he heard the peeping. He had a nest of baby sparrows living under his bumper.

Haynes, pastor of Wesleyan Holiness Church in Winchester, was puzzled because an adult sparrow had spent much of May eyeing the rear bumper of his car.

Haynes said when he returned from a trip to Cincinnati last week he could hear the birds and assumed they were there. But he couldn't find the nest because it was dark.

Haynes said when he returned from a trip to Cincinnati last week he could hear the birds and assumed they were there. But he couldn't find the nest because it was dark.

"I told him you've got birds up in this bumper. Your bumper's for the birds," Walters said.

Walters said the workers couldn't see the birds, but assumed from the commotion "there's three or four young ones up there."

Haynes, 60, says the nest was near the left and center of his 1973 Chevrolet. The exhaust system is on the right.

"You'd think the birds couldn't take the drive, all the jarring, the pollution," said Walters. "But birds build better homes than we do."

"The thing that's amazing though is the mother will wait until the car gets back...I just know that that mother bird doesn't ride on that bumper," Walters said.

Haynes said when he returned from a trip to Cincinnati last week he could hear the birds and assumed they were there. But he couldn't find the nest because it was dark.

TO SING HERE—John McKay, who heads the John McKay Evangelistic Music Association, will be featured in a concert during morning worship services Sunday at Colonial Hill Baptist Church. McKay formerly was associated with the James Robison evangelistic organization.

Space Monkey Has Birthday

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP) — Miss Baker, one of the first two animals recovered alive from an American space flight, celebrates her birthday and the 23rd anniversary of her historic journey today, literally a museum piece but still adored by the nation's children.

Miss Baker, at 25 the oldest squirrel monkey in captivity, gets an average of 100 letters a day at the Alabama Space and Rocket Museum, where she lives in a plexiglass home amid space-age exhibits and replicas of flying machines.

"Sometimes they address their letters to 'Miss Baker, Space' and they find their way here," said Lee Sentell, a spokesman for the space center.

A delegation of preschoolers and other well-wishers are getting cake today for Miss Baker's birthday, but the 1-pound monkey is getting her own favorite meal — strawberry Jello and bananas. She is the equivalent of 100 human years old.

Miss Baker "delights visitors every day with her energy and antics with husband Norman," said Space Center Director Edward Buckbee, adding that she is doing well.

"We believe she is well rested for a space shuttle mission the next time NASA needs a space veteran for a special project," Buckbee said.

Miss Baker and a female rhesus monkey named Able blasted into space on May 28, 1959, in a tiny capsule atop a Jupiter rocket. The rocket reached a speed of 10,000 mph and flew higher than 300 miles.

Rev. Moon Testifies He Met Jesus, Moses

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Sun Myung Moon, leader of the Unification Church, testified in federal court that he had met Moses and Buddha and that Jesus Christ had asked him to help save the universe.

Testifying under oath about his religious beliefs for the first time, the Korean evangelist said Thursday that although he doesn't call himself the Messiah, his followers "believe" in him.

"I have the possibility of becoming the real Messiah," he said.

He was compelled to testify in a case involving a $9 million lawsuit filed by Anthony Colombrito, a Moon follower. He claims he was abducted in 1979 by Galen Kelly, a "deprogrammer" from Kingston, N.Y., in an effort to wrest him from the church. Colombrito claims his civil rights were violated.

The 62-year-old church leader and businessman had fought a subpoena to testify, but U.S. District Judge Richard Owen ordered him to.

Moon's testimony was halted midstream Thursday when the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals intervened and scheduled a hearing for today to decide if the trial should continue. Moon contends he is being subjected to a "Federal judicial inquisition."

Moon appeared Thursday, his second day on the stand, as a reluctant witness for the defense, which is trying to show that Moon's church is a "sham" operated to enrich him and his top aides.

Before the appeals court intervened, Kelly's lawyer, John DeGraff, asked Moon about what the church leader said was his first conversation with Jesus on Easter in 1936 when he was 16 years old.

Moon's lawyer, Charles Stillman, leaped to his feet, protesting the line of questioning, but Moon said through an interpreter: "I am willing to answer that question. I met Jesus Christ."

Under further questioning by DeGraff, Moon acknowledged meeting and communicating on numerous occasions with Moses and Buddha.

Asked how he knew it was Jesus, Moon replied, "I remembered him from his holy picture and he said he was Jesus Christ."

"You not only talked to him? You saw him?" asked DeGraff. "And what did Jesus Christ say to you?"

"He requested me to help him in the salvation of the universe," Moon said.

When pressed to tell how he communicated with the religious figures, Moon said it was partially carried out "in words" and "from heart to heart."

Owen contended Moon's testimony is important to the trial because it bears on whether the church is a bona fide religious organization.

He said one reason many young people join the Unification Church is because they believe in Moon's conversations with Jesus, Buddha and Moses. If the conversations did not take place, the judge said, it was important to know.

Travel Confusion Is Expected

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — There may be some confused Kuwaiti travel agents if any residents of the Persian Gulf state use Kuwait Track and Field as a guide in trying to get to the USA-USSR dual track and field meet to be held here July 2.

The Athletics Congress, the Indianapolis-based governing body of track and field in this country, says it has received the March edition of Kuwait Track and Field, and in it is a story on the USA-USSR meet.

The story says the athletes will compete at the track of "Borodo University in Indiana Police, Indiana."

For Texas Prisons...

Texas Senators Ok Appropriation

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — A spurt of Senate action, including completion of its main business, put legislators in position today to finish a special session in five days.

Industry Says Summer Gas Supplies Adequate

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the peak driving season beginning this Memorial Day weekend, the oil industry says there's no call for concern about gasoline shortages this summer. But prices are rising again.

The industry's upbeat outlook for summer gasoline supplies comes despite declines in refiners' stockpiles, repositioning of allocations by several oil companies and speculation that motorists may travel more between now and Labor Day than they did last summer.

Meanwhile, analysts say retail prices for gasoline at the pump have been increasing but they still are not as high as last year.

The American Petroleum Institute, the industry's chief lobbyist here, said there will be no shortages because there are still surpluses of unrefined crude oil and plenty of refinery capacity to convert it into gasoline if needed.

"We know of no motorist in any part of the country who will have trouble buying gasoline during normal business hours this summer," Charles J. DiBona, the institute's president, said Thursday.

DiBona said U.S. oil companies now have a 50 million barrel excess of crude oil that could be processed into an additional 40 million to 80 million gallons of gasoline a day by refineries now running at only 65 percent capacity. Those refineries are now producing about 250 million gallons of gasoline a day.

He also cited the 255 million barrels of crude that the government has in its Strategic Petroleum Reserve — something that didn't even exist in the last summer shortages of 1979.

Only a major political disruption such as the 1973 Arab oil boycott or massive breakdowns at the nation's refineries could cause serious problems, he said. But he also noted that the nation is now importing only half the oil it was in 1978.

"There's a lot of speculation that people are going to go out and do a lot more driving this summer, but we don't know that."

The House, however, still had to approve three of the constitutional proposals that cleared the Senate to put them on the Nov. 2 general election ballot.

Clements called the special session to repeal the 10-cent per $100 valuation property tax, but he also said he wanted legislators to find construction money for 17 colleges that had relied on the tax.

On Monday, he authorized lawmakers to see what they could do about overcrowded prisons and a few other issues.

The Senate defeated an attempt by Sen. Carl Parker on Thursday to substitute a 3-cent property tax, which would be phased out in building a $2 billion college construction fund for colleges outside the University of Texas and Texas A&M University.

Money for college construction and settling differences in what senators and House members want to spend at once to ease prison overcrowding appeared to be the major items of unfinished business.

2 Ordinary Men Are Caught 'In Troubles'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Sean and Sam are "the best of mates."

For two years they have worked together on the factory floor, two ordinary men who joke over yesterday's problems, worry about tomorrow's and try to make a decent living for themselves.

But Sean O'Neill, a Roman Catholic, and Sam Ledlie, a Protestant, do not truly know each other. Over Northern Ireland's sectarian divide, they cannot.

At the end of the day, each heads home to his own ghetto, into his own community's prejudices and fears. Sam can only guess about Sean's youthful "involvement" in the anti-British movement here. Sean can only surmise what apprehensions lie at the back of his Protestant friend's mind.

They both yearn for peace in their troubled land, but with little hope.

"It's the flag wavers that've got us," says O'Neill.

"Politicians on both sides have a lot to answer for," says Ledlie.

The everyday story of this fragile friendship helps illustrate the sad story of Northern Ireland, torn by an underground war involving the Catholic guerrillas of the Irish Republican Army, the British army and Protestant paramilitary groups. The IRA wants to unite Northern Ireland with the predominantly Catholic Irish Republic, but the Protestants are determined to keep it British.

The roots of conflict run deeper — in centuries of enmity between the dominant Protestant majority and Catholic minority here.

The violence has left thousands dead or injured. But there are lesser casualties as well — lives altered, an economy shattered, friendships broken.

The O'Neill-Ledlie friendship may be next. Their factory, the financially troubled De Lorean automaking firm, is shutting down next week, and the two workers will head home for good.

Sean O'Neill, 30, is a maintenance worker at De Lorean, in the rolling green hills of suburban Dunmurry. Dark-eyed, mustached and self-assured, he lives with his wife and three children in a modest home at Twinbrook, an all-Catholic housing project splattered with "BRITS OUT" graffiti.

Sam Ledlie, 52, is an assembly-line repairman, married, with a grown daughter. Bald and ruddy-faced, Ledlie speaks in an earnest, halting voice. He and O'Neill became friends as union representatives at De Lorean.

"We're the best of mates. Like that," Ledlie told a visitor, holding out two fingers pressed together.

Interviewed in his tidy brick rowhouse, within sight of the De Lorean plant, Ledlie said he has worked with Catholics most of life.

In fact, until 1969, when "the troubles" began, his best friend was a fellow worker from the Catholic slum Falls Road. "I was up to his house every other Friday night. I drank in the Falls Road bars with him," Ledlie recalled with a laugh.

"But we lost all contact because of the troubles," Ledlie no longer ventures into Catholic areas.

The bloodshed of Belfast has not closely touched his life. But his friend O'Neill, who grew up in Falls Road, knows it well. A cousin was shot dead by Protestant gunmen and a close friend was killed in a bomb explosion, O'Neill said, talking above the barroom din at a Catholic social club near Falls Road.

In their separate interviews both men insisted the bitterness of the streets had not reached the floor at De Lorean, where the work force is evenly divided between Catholics and Protestants, a rarity in Northern Ireland.

"But people never come out and tell you everything that's in the back of their minds," O'Neill said.

"What's at the back of all Protestants' minds," said Ledlie, "is that Catholics want to unite with Ireland, and Protestants think that if we had an all-Ireland we wouldn't have religious freedom... that the Church of Rome runs Ireland."

Does Ledlie himself think that?

"Well, yes," he replied. "The priests have a big say.... Religious freedom would be curtailed."

"If you heard people talking, the Catholics were bogeymen," Ledlie said.

Dear Abby

Woman's Case Opens A Can of Worms

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 22-year-old woman who has worms. How can I get rid of them without going to a doctor? My husband is in the Army, and when I go to the doctor on the base, I have to tell him what's wrong with me in front of a bunch of people. It's kind of embarrassing to say I've got worms.

How did I get worms anyway? Please write back and tell me all you know about worms. Thank you.

COVER UP MY LOCATION

DEAR COVER UP: Dr. Jaime Paris, my chief medical consultant, said it is unwise to assume that you diagnosed your case correctly without having been examined by a physician. Therefore, he hesitated to give me much information about worms. However, this is what I worried out of him:

Pinworms, the commonest type of worms, are transmitted by personal contact. Pinworms are often epidemic in schools; children bring them home to their families.

Tapeworms can be transmitted by eating raw fish, or being in close contact with pets — particularly dogs. They can also be transmitted through water or foods — especially lettuce.

Please see a doctor. And tell his nurse you would appreciate some privacy.

DEAR ABBY: With summer here, please call your readers' attention to the danger of automobiles equipped with power windows. Who knows how many young lives you could save?

In just one day I heard of two incidents where two drivers inadvertently pushed the rear-window button while a child's head was out the window! Even the children themselves can accidentally push the button with their knees — unless the driver can lock the window at his seat. I hope you think this is important enough to print.

MILLIE H. IN HARRISBURG

DEAR MILLIE: I do. Now, meet Lloyd Kleckner, who has another life-saving suggestion for automobile drivers:

DEAR ABBY: My sister-in-law, Margaret, was going to ride along with two other women who came by for her. When they pulled up (both sitting in front) Margaret started to get into the back, when they said, "There's plenty of room for three in front."

As she started to get in, the woman on the right moved to make room for Margaret, and she accidentally stepped on the gas pedal. The car lurched and Margaret was thrown to the pavement and broke her leg. It was a nasty break, which will take a long time to heal.

Please warn your readers to always shift into "park" when people are getting into and out of a car.

LLOYD KLECKNER

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem a lot of kids my age have, so I hope you will come up with an answer and print it. I'm 17 and a junior in high school. I'm an average student and I guess you could call me an average guy.

People are always asking me what I am going to do with my future. And my problem is, I don't know yet.

When I tell them that, they look at me like I am weird or stupid, so please tell me how I am supposed to answer that question so I won't feel embarrassed.

FUZZY FUTURE

DEAR FUZZY: You need not feel embarrassed for admitting that at 17 you don't know how you want to spend the rest of your life.

You are very wise, not "weird or stupid," to defer such an important decision until you are reasonably certain. Hat's off to you for your honesty and good judgment.

Problem Forces Emergency Landing

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — A pressurization problem forced an Ozark Airline DC-9 carrying more than 70 people to make an unscheduled stop in this northwest Arkansas city.

Maxie Holmes, the pilot, said the plane was at 35,000 feet when there was rapid decompression.

Officials said there were no injuries in Thursday's emergency landing. The Use Snyder Daily News Classified Ads 573-5486
