Norwood Teachers Elected for 1952-53 Year

Election of teachers of the Samnorwood school was announced Tuesday, March 11, by Orville Cunningham, superintendent.

Elected were Mr. Cunningham, whose contract was renewed, and Dalton Vaughan, high school principal; Winston Connors, grade school principal; Purl Tippie, coach; O. L. Cristie, vocational agriculture; Laurence Skylstad, English; W. W. Tipton, social science; Mrs. Selba Rainey, commercial subjects; Olan Richards and Ed Brown, seventh and eighth grade; Mrs. Ed Brown, sixth grade; Mrs. Charley Hill, fifth grade; Mrs. Purl Tippie, fourth grade; Mrs. Winston Connors, third grade; Mrs. Raymond Brown, second grade; Miss Maudie Coffee, first grade; and Miss Dollie Cook, vocational homemaking.

Due to loss of enrollment this year, the school will have one less teacher next year than for the current term. A number of families have moved out of the district since the opening of school, Mr. Cunningham said.

Beginning later this month, it will be necessary to have school on five Saturdays, to make up for time lost when the cotton picking vacation was extended. The present plan is to teach two Saturdays, then skip one, until the last time is made up.

"We urge the parents to give us the same fine cooperation by having their children in school that they have given throughout the school year," Mr. Cunningham said.

"The teachers and I could not ask for better cooperation or consideration on the part of the patrons of the school, and we want to thank each one," he added.

Rockets Receive Tech Scholarships

Four Skyrocket football stars graduating this year have received athletic scholarships from Texas Technological College, Lubbock, and a fifth will work out with the spring football team to try for a similar scholarship.

Seldon Wood, who has lettered in football, track and basketball, received a track scholarship, while Carroll Duncan, Farrell Kent and Hoot Gibson were awarded football scholarships. Tommy Wood will go to Lubbock within a short time to work out.

The boys visited on the Tech Campus during the week end.

Need Is Local

Red Cross Collections Total $1150 as Fund Appeal Renewed

Approximately $1150 has been raised toward the county's $2,500 Red Cross quota, and an appeal went out this week to both workers and county citizens to renew their efforts to put the county over the top in raising these badly needed funds.

"Our need locally is greater than it has been at any time since

FAITH BAPTIST MISSION

Dedication services for the new Faith Baptist Mission will be held Sunday, March 16, at 3:00 p. m. The church now serves a membership of 90, and was sponsored and built by the First Baptist Church. Lots for the church were given by Mr. and Mrs. Temple Slay. All indebtedness for the construction of the church has been paid.

Building Cleared of Debt

Dedicate Faith Baptist Mission In Services Sunday Afternoon

Dedication of Faith Baptist Mission, at the corner of First Street and East Avenue, will be held Sunday afternoon, March 23, with services beginning at 3:00 p. m. Open house will be held before and after the service.

Invited to speak at the dedication are the Rev. R. Elmer Dunham, superintendent of the Department of City Missions of the Baptist General Convention of Texas, Dallas, and Dr. A. J. Quinn, Missionary of District 10, Amarillo.

"The program will be brief and simple, but the significance of the dedication of Faith Baptist Mission, and the knowledge of its service to Wellington, will make it an impressive one," the Rev. Howard Jones, pastor of the First Baptist Church, said.

Faith Mission was sponsored and built by the First Baptist Church, at a cost of $17,000. It is now completely free of debt.

The full dedication program will include congregational singing to open the service, followed by a prayer. Brief reports will be made by James C. Cook, chairman of the Mission building committee, and Charles Cason Sr., chairman of the plans and policies committee.

A response will be made by a member of the Mission, to be selected Wednesday night.

The guest speakers will then be presented, followed by the dedication statement and dedication prayer.

Faith Mission now has a membership of approximately 90. The congregation is in the process of selecting a pastor.

The mission building is of building block construction, stuccoed on the outside and plastered inside, with dimensions of 55 by 86 feet.

Funeral Services For Mrs. Sallie Yarbrough Monday

Mrs. Sallie Gertrude Yarbrough, a Wellington resident since 1945, died Sunday morning, March 9, at 12:45 a. m. after a long illness.

Funeral services were conducted Monday afternoon at the Methodist Church at Huckabay, near Stephenville, her former home. The Rev. J. F. Michael, pastor of the Wellington Methodist Church, officiated. Pall bearers were selected from among long-time friends in Erath County.

The Kelo Funeral home was in charge of arrangements, and burial was in the Huckabay cemetery.

Mrs. Yarbrough was born March 14, 1886, in Hill County. (Continued on Page Eight)

L. A. Manzer Acquitted In Federal Court

L. A. Manzer, former president of the Wellington State Bank, was acquitted of charges in Federal Court at Amarillo Friday afternoon, March 7, by a jury which deliberated only 15 minutes before returning a verdict. He was on trial on charges of embezzling $60,000 and making false entries in bank records.

The indictment charged that Manzer embezzled $30,000 on October 17, 1950 and $30,000 on June 23, 1951, and that he made false entries in bank records on December 9, 1950 and June 23, 1951. According to testimony he repaid the shortages.

His defense was based on testimony that he had authority to draw on the account of the late D. D. McDowell, former president of the bank, and that he assumed he had the same authority to draw on the accounts of Mr. McDowell's children, Mrs. Bill Sims and D'Arcy McDowell. It was also brought out in testimony that it was customary among the directors of the bank to borrow or lend their personal funds when a customer needed to borrow more money than the bank could lend.

The testimony of Mrs. Sims and D'Arcy McDowell was that they had not given Mr. Manzer the authority to use money from their accounts, and that the withdrawals were made without their knowledge or approval.

Judge Joe B. Dooley was the presiding judge. Manzer was represented by (Continued on Page Eight)

Mrs. Pollock, Mrs. Williams and Mr. Dodgin are the sisters and brother of the late W. A. Dodgin, who founded the store. Since his death, the two sisters and Mr. Pollock have operated the store.

The new owners said this week that new spring merchandise is being received at present.

Charlie DePauw, Prominent Quail Farmer, Dies

C. B. DePauw, 63, prominent Quail farmer and a resident of that area for 45 years, died Tuesday, March 11. He had been in ill health, suffering from a heart condition, for some time, and he was hospitalized in Wellington for about two weeks in January, when his condition was critical. He had been confined to his bed since then.

His condition again became critical Tuesday about noon, and he was brought to St. Joseph's, where he died at 5:30.

Funeral services will be held at the Church of Christ at Quail Thursday, March 13, at 2:00 p. m., with Minister Paul Lusby of Wellington in charge. Burial will be in the Quail cemetery with Masonic rites. The Kelo Funeral Home is in charge.

Charles B. DePauw was born in Louisville, Ky., November 24, 1888, the son of John and Mary Kender DePauw. He came to this county from Vernon.

Moisture Up to an Inch Falls In County Sunday

Rain which measured .56 of an inch in Wellington, varied up to more than inch in points scattered over the county late Sunday afternoon and during Sunday night, March 9. While this is far from the ground soaker the county needs, farmers point out that it will go a long way toward carrying the county's wheat crop, until good rains do fall.

Approximately half an inch was reported through the southern and southeastern part of the county, with that amount reported from Dodson.

The fall was heavier west of town, and at Quail, an inch was reported, according to Arthur Robinson.

Zook Thomas of the Lillie community said his rain gauge measured 1.3 inches.

North of Salt Fork, Pete Melton Jr. reported that 1.2 inch was measured at the Lutie gin, but several miles north, in the vicinity of the Herbert Knoll and Bill Knoll farms, an inch and a half fell.

Elsewhere in the north part of the county, the rain was reported about like it was at Wellington, and south of Dozier, Mrs. E. L. Rankin said .42 inch was received.

D. L. Jones, who lives by the Madge Gin, said approximately half an inch of rain fell there but farther east, around Vinson, the moisture measured around an inch.

At least 75 per cent of the moisture had seeped below the evaporation point by the time the high winds and sand began Wednesday.

County Agent J. W. Thomas said he believed the rain would help a lot. "The wheat's not going to die and I think this will carry it quite a while," he said. "Of course, if these winds continue, we'll lose the moisture out of the upper two or three inches of the soil."

Farmers and farm observers believe that the wheat is not far from the average at this time of year, although the crop the county grows depends entirely on the rain that falls from now on, it was pointed out.

Even before the rain this week end, wheat was holding up well in most sections of the county, and the crop compares favorably with the wheat in surrounding areas, and is considerably better than that in some sections.

Annual Meeting Of Cemetery Association Tues.

The second annual meeting of the Wellington Cemetery Association will be held Tuesday, March 18, at 7:30 p. m. in the community building, Zook Thomas, chairman, announced this week.

Two speakers are scheduled to address the group, the Rev. Howard Jones and the Rev. J. F. Michael.

"We hope that every member of the Association will be present. If we are to make a real success of this organization, we must have your support and your presence at these meetings," Mr. Thomas said.

Directors of the Association voted recently to place a red cedar hedge around both cemeteries. This hedge, they feel, will be attractive and also mark the definite boundaries of the two plots of ground. Bulldozer work is now under way at the west cemetery preparing ground for the hedge, and also working the low section of ground in the southeast corner and on the west side. Present plans are to plant grass and flowers on those places which cannot be used as cemetery lots.

New Location On Emmert Ranch

Ike Emmert, owner of the Emmert Ranch south of Texola in this county, said Friday while here that the Oil Associated No. 1 test, drilled on his land, had been plugged, but that another location had been staked in the same section.

Another test by the same company on the Tittle Ranch, south of Mr. Emmert's land, also was plugged.

The new test is in the northeast quarter of section 82, block 12, near his ranch home, while the first test was in the southwest quarter.

Mr. Emmert said that the drillers reported that the formation was similar to that in other gas wells brought in in the north part of the county, except that they developed deeper than was expected. The well was drilled to a depth of 2310 feet. Other gas wells in the area have been brought in at a depth of 1900 to 2,000 feet.

C. B. DEPAUW
Mr. DePauw, a prominent Quail farmer, died Tuesday evening, after having suffered for some time with a heart ailment. Funeral services will be held Thursday at Quail.

QUAIL FFA JUDGES

These youthful Quail FFA judging teams leave Friday to participate in the state contest at Huntsville, competing with teams from nine other areas in the state. Not only do these six boys represent their school and Collingsworth County, but also do they represent the entire Panhandle. Both teams, shown with their instructor, Frank Kennedy, are: Senior FFA Quiz

Students Bring Honors to Collingsworth

It is a matter of pride for all Collingsworth county that so many of its young students have won regional and state honors during the past few weeks. These are in the fields of athletics, vocational training and scholastic studies.

It speaks well for the instruction they are receiving in these subjects, but more than that, it is a tribute to the ability, initiative and know-how of the boys and girls who won the honors. It shows they are able to stand up with the best the state has to offer.

The surprising performances that won for the Wellington Rockettes the girls district championship is a feat in itself. A team that was rated without a chance to win when district play started, showed that it could win, and did it!

The fine record that took the Samnorwood Eagles to the state tournament for Class B basketball teams would be an honor for any school. That these two teams lost before they got into championship brackets is not to their discredit. They were where competition is about as keen as it can get.

Along the line of scholastic achievement, the county's entry in the district Spelling Bee, Darryl Morris of Quail placed among the top ten contestants, coming from school in the Texas Panhandle, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Kansas.

This week end, two Future Farmer teams from Quail will compete in the state contests at Huntsville, and they have every chance to win state honors.

Added to these accomplishments is that earlier by the outstanding Quail Chorus, which competed in the Farm Bureau choral contest at Houston and won second place.

Probably at no time in the past have the county's students brought home so many honors in so short a period of time.

Executive Pay

Do business executives work for fun? Fortune Magazine asks this question in its March issue. And silly though it might sound, there's something to it.

Fortune analyzes a new study of executive salaries made by Arch Patton of McKinsey & Co., management consultants.

The study shows that top-management pay (including bonuses) in 41 of the largest corporations represents a 59 per cent drop in purchasing power below the 1939 level.

By contrast, labor's pay in the same companies represents a slight increase 3 per cent—in purchasing power in the same period.

The study also disclosed that the more executive salaries were raised, the more profitable the companies seemed to be, and the more they expanded.

The five companies that gave their top management men the biggest raises since 1939 reported 350 per cent profit gains against an average of less than 200 per cent, and expanded their total employment by nearly twice the average medium rate.

Fortune observes: "The report suggests that stockholders and union leaders ought to be demanding higher salaries for executives, or perhaps in some companies, demanding executives who are worth higher salaries."

Bible Comment
FOR MARCH 16History in Bible Is
Lesson for Moderns

The first king of the kingdom of Israel was Saul, who stood head and shoulders above his people. There are conflicting accounts on Saul. In one he is called "God's anointed," but in others, namely 1 Samuel 10:19, Samuel charges that the people's demand for a king is a rejection of God.

Light is thrown on Samuel's words by what happened a little later, when the people rebelled against the oppression of Solomon. Civil war rent the kingdom in twain, never to be reunited.

Why so much interest in the political history of an ancient people in a country no larger than one of the smaller American states?

The answer is, of course, that the record is part of the Bible. There is nowhere else in all literature a record that in so small a compass sets forward with such clearness the incidents and causes in the rise and fall of nations and the conditions which make for public welfare.

Moreover it is in the life of a comparatively primitive people emerging into statehood on a comparatively small scale that one can observe more clearly and accurately, than in modern society, the forces and laws that are at work and that have their effect on welfare or disaster.

We can see and study in the kingdom of Israel, and in all the issues associated with it, the precise elements that make for welfare or disaster today, obscured though they may be by all the accretions and developments that have multiplied our problems. We can do this without altering the basic and essential conditions of their solution.

We want to read and study these lessons not merely with an eye to what happened long ago, but with a real sense of what they might tell us about what is happening today. Their value and effect for us will be lost if we do not read them in the light, or darkness, of our own times.

THE 1953 FEDERAL BUDGET OF $85.4 BILLION IS GREATER THAN ALL THE INCOMES OF ALL THE PEOPLE WEST OF THE MISSISSIPPI

THIS STARTLING PICTURE is the result of study by the National Chamber's Government Economy Program, based on figures from the U.S. Department of Commerce. Incomes of all people include all money that goes to individuals as wages, salaries, interest, rent, and dividends. Since latest Commerce Department figures available for the map were for 1950, the Chamber estimated total 1953 incomes at 15 per cent higher than those for 1950. Total 1953 spending under the President's budget would equal the incomes of all persons west of the Mississippi plus 96 per cent of the incomes in Wisconsin and all the incomes in Mississippi.

Quail FFA Teams Leave Friday for Contests

Two Quail Future Farmer teams will leave Friday, March 14, for Huntsville to compete in the State FFA contests.

These are the two teams that placed first in both the district and area competition earlier in the year, earning the right to represent the Panhandle in the state event.

Taking part will be the Senior FFA Quiz team, composed of Jasper Peoples, Wallace Blasingame and Norman Kennedy, and the Junior Farm Skill team, with H. C. Langford, Clyde Gollighugh and Jackie Watson as members.

The boys will be accompanied to Huntsville by Frank Kennedy, vocational agriculture teacher at Quail.

In the state contest, they will compete with nine other teams, representing the other areas of the state.

This is the first time a FFA team from Quail has gone into state competition by the route of winning district and area honors. Two teams from the school did compete in state contests in 1937, but these were open to any team wishing to enter, and not limited to winners of lower brackets. Those teams entered were a poultry judging team and a rafter cutting team. G. S. Dowell was instructor at that time.

Deck's DIDACTICS

—By Deskins Wells

Bill Roberts comes up with a rattlesnake story that lays all those of previous weeks in the shade. It happened in Jack county two years ago. A rancher and a visitor were riding around and they saw a group of rattlers sunning themselves on a ledge about six feet high.

"Why don't you catch those rattlers?" asked the visitor.

"I wouldn't be caught up there with that batch of snakes for either love or money," said the rancher.

"It's easy."
"Yeah, well you do it yourself and I will pay you $25."

So the next day the visitor appeared on the scene with a large steel water tank and a long piece of stove pipe. He scared the rattlers back in their den and inserted the stove pipe back into the den. Then he sealed the opening around the stove pipe so that it was the only exit. The pipe ran out straight from the den to the edge of the ledge and then began a sharp decline. Below was the water tank. On the first warm day the snakes started to crawl out through the pipe and slid into the water tank. A few days later the visitor called the rancher to go out and see what he had caught. The tank was half full of writhing rattling snakes.

"That's fine, but how are you going to kill them?"

"Simple," said the visitor, and he picked up a large can of kerosene and poured it on the snakes and threw a lighted match into the middle of the tank.

(I hope that is the last rattlesnake story I publish in some months).

Why fuss about one sandstorm? We have had ten years in which the sandstorms have been below normal. A few sandstorms in the spring won't ruin this country.

J. M. Moore has bought a farm in Arkansas and will not fill out his present term as county clerk. If he resigns, there will be no special election. The Commissioners Club will appoint a successor.

Down in Wichita county a cow has been found to have been suffering from rabies. A skunk which attacked and killed a dog near Wichita Falls is presumed to have been suffering from the same disease. The outbreak is considered unusual at this time of the year. I hope that this will not bring on another rash of stories about mad dogs, mad skunks and mad coyotes like those that followed my first snake story.

In the first six weeks of 1952 there were 7,600 accidents that came under the new drivers responsibility law. Only half of these motorists involved were adequately covered by liability insurance or in other ways. Those who can't come up to the requirements of the law will lose the right to drive in 1952. Every person who drives a car should find out what this new law is and what it requires.

Bill Combs, one of the former star backs of the Rockets, has bought a grocery store on the north side of the square. Remembering Don Austin and L. D. Russell, etc., can't truthfully say that Bill was our greatest backfield man, but I believe I can say that he tried harder all the time than almost any player I have ever observed.

An editorial writer in The Dallas Morning News attributes the rapid spread of mesquite to the fact that prairie fires have been much less frequent. He is wrong in his assumption. Prairie fires never killed the mesquite permanently anymore than they killed the native grasses. The rapid increase in the growth of mesquite trees has resulted from the wholesale poisoning of prairie dogs. These industrious young animals like to live in open country. They would not allow the mesquite trees to approach their open plains. They would eat the beans. They would eat the tiny trees when they first came up. They were hardy fighters against the invasion of the mesquite. The Dallas News writer may be correct about the use of chemicals in fighting mesquite now that the prairie dogs are gone; but he is wrong about what caused the trees to spread so rapidly in the last thirty years. It was the near extermination of the prairie dog.

Never realized how much damage rats and weevils could do until I started reading about the shortages in government grain.

Parker and Price Show Quail Show Champions

Wayne Parker showed the grand champion female hog at the Quail Project Show Friday, March 14, while A. C. Price was owner of the grand champion barrow. The reserve champion female was shown by Wallace Blasingame.

This was the third annual show for the Quail Future Farmers and 4-H Club boys. While the number of entries this year was smaller than in previous shows, the attendance of about 300 was larger. Frank Kennedy, vocational agriculture instructor, reported.

"This year, because of the uncertain price of hogs and the high price of feed, we have not stressed hog feeding among the boys as much as we usually do, and as a result, we didn't have as many hogs to show," Mr. Kennedy said. Jake Tarter was show judge.

Winners of the various classes were:

Grade gilts: first, Wallace Blasingame, FFA; second, Earl Farris, 4-H Club; and third, Blasingame.

Grade sow: first, James Stephens, FFA.

Registered gilt: first, Wayne Parker, FFA; Jimmy Langford, FFA; third, Clyde Golliugh, FFA and fourth, H. C. Langford, FFA.

Water Association Names Three County Directors

Farmers and ranchers Saturday named three directors of the Collingsworth County Rain Association to represent them in the Red River Weather Improvement Association.

The county was divided into three sections, with a director from each.

Buck Breeding is director of District One, including all that section north of Salt Fork River.

Fred Bourland is director from District 2, made up of that part of the county west of Wellington and south of Salt Fork.

Gibbs Glenn is director from District 3, the section east of Wellington and south of Salt Fork.

In the organization of the Association on a permanent basis, Mr. Bourland was named president, Mr. Breeding vice-president and Mr. Glenn, secretary-treasurer.

Workers reported that collection of money toward the county's $5,700 assessment is coming along good, and little if any opposition to the plan for moisture improvement has been met.

How Much Would "No Advertising" Cost Your Business

Some businessmen look upon advertising as an expense. When expenses must be cut, the advertising budget is first to come under the knife.

The trouble with that method is — it just won't work.

The fact overlooked is that newspaper advertising represents only a fractional part of the cost of goods sold.

Advertising is the instrument which brings the greatest returns when it is intelligently planned.

Advertising becomes expensive when you don't use enough.

It's like failing to lubricate a piece of valuable machinery. You save the cost of the lubricant, but eventually you have to pay the big repair bill—and production losses while the machinery is idle.

SHE TAKES THE FEAR OUT OF DARKNESS

At night, when the rest of the town is asleep, there's a light burning in the telephone office. If you've ever needed her badly, the night operator sitting at the switchboard there is your best friend. When the baby wakes up with a fever, when the ugly menace of fire threatens you or your neighbor, when emergency demands reaching through the darkness to rouse someone in the next block or many hundreds of miles away, she stands ready.

A small service perhaps, but a priceless insurance policy against the insecurity of the night.

The annual Quail Box Supper and coronation of the High School queen will be held Friday night, March 21, beginning at 7:30 p. m. sponsored by the junior class.

the boxes are auctioned, the buyer will be able to cast the number of votes equivalent to the price he paid.

Following the auctioning, the votes will be counted and the Queen announced.

While still a young girl, she moved with her family to Erath County and grew up there, making that her home until she came to Wellington.

On April 26, 1903, she was married to W. R. Gordon, who died October 14, 1908. She was then married to R. T. Yarbrough, prominent farmer of that area, on November 3, 1911. He preceded her in death March 18, 1944.

Mrs. Yarbrough had been a member of the Methodist Church for many years.

She is survived by five children: Mrs. Howard Holton and Buddy Yarbrough of Wellington; Mrs. G. W. Ellis of Midland; Mrs. Ivan Young of Long Beach, California; and Jake Yarbrough of Denver City; and two step sons, Earl Yarbrough and Fred Yarbrough of Wellington.

Other survivors are five sisters, Mrs. Fannie Clifton of Dalhart, Mrs. Roy Picketts of Mancos, Colorado, Mrs. T. M. Denny of Bakerville, Calif.; Mrs. Lu Calloway of Abilene, and Mrs. Ida Gordon of Hannibal. There are also 16 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

day currently. Contributions have been raised from $15,195 in 1946 to $48,500 in 1951. During Rev. Jones' pastorate here 415 persons were saved and baptized into the fellowship of the church. The number joining by transfer of membership is not definitely known.

The membership of the church has grown to well over 1,100, with nearly 900 resident members.

During the time he has been pastor here, Rev. Jones has served as director of the Pan-Fork Baptist Encampment; Moderator of the North Fork Baptist Association; President of the District 10 Convention of the Baptist General Convention of Texas; and a member of the Executive Board of the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

He is also a member of the Kiwanis Club, Farm Bureau, Chamber of Commerce and Citizens Committee on Schools. He has performed more than 600 weddings and conducted more than 250 funerals here and in all the surrounding communities.

The McAllen church has more than 1,200 members. It is completing in the near future the first unit of an extensive new building program. This first unit is being built at a cost of $225,000. The population of McAllen is reported as 21,500, nearly half of which is Latin-American.

Nash Motors Announces 1952 Golden Anniversary Models In Showroom March 14

DETROIT — Original design with a European flair keynotes Nash Motors' new 1952 Ambassador and Statesman Golden Anniversary models announced today.

Styled by Pinin Farina, world-renowned custom body designer, the new cars will be displayed in dealer showrooms throughout the country (March 14). The introduction marks Nash Motors' 50th Anniversary, its Kenosha, Wisconsin, plant having started production of Rambler automobiles in 1902.

"The new Pinin Farina-styled Nash cars demonstrate that expensive hand built European custom car design can be applied to American mass production," according to H. C. Doss, vice-president in charge of sales. "Pinin Farina has the rare ability to visualize a new design as a finished car. He works directly in sheet metal on a wood skeleton dispensing with the usual full scale models in clay and plaster, as well as mahogany mock-ups."

Pinin Farina is famous in the foreign custom car field for having designed more individually styled custom bodies than any other designer in the world, Doss said.

In addition to emphasis on styling, the 1952 Nash models feature: new type "Airflex" front-end suspension; increased roominess and improved comfort; "Road Guide" front fenders and lower hood for greater visibility and safety; increased engine horsepower; safety instrument panels; glass area increased up to 25 per cent, and other advancements aimed at performance comfort, safety and economy.

Outstanding design innovations aimed at function, as well as beauty of line, are offered in the new 1952 Nash cars. Increased visibility is achieved by a hood line that is lower than the front fender lines. The wider and lower hood provides a balanced frame for the grille, creating a new type front-end beauty. Doss said, "The fender-hood line is carried past the windshield into the interior, in effect becoming an integral part of the instrument panel. As in the case of Nash Motors' experimental NXI, 'Road-Guide' front fenders, easily seen by the driver, rise above the hood line.

"The 1952 Nash models offer design unity and simplicity not dependent for elegance and beauty upon excessive chrome ornamentation," Doss said. "In Pinin Farina's unique styling, the hood line, fender line, body line blend as a harmonized whole, like fine sculpture which must please the eye from every direction under all lighting conditions. We call it 'Flying Sculpture'. It always looks alive and 'right', streaking down the road or at the curb, whether viewed from 'out, side or back.'"

Nash is under exclusive American contract to Nash Motors. His crest, symbol of royal appointment, adorns custom bodies on almost every leading car chassis made in Europe.

In profile, the new cars emphasize length and sleekness. Enclosed front fenders blend into the sides of the body and continue in line through similarly styled rear fenders. The grille is a one-piece die casting on which the Nash crest is centered. Ribbed bumpers are of a rugged wrap-around type contoured to follow the outline of fenders.

Window styling is of advanced type. Windshields are of one-piece curved construction, contoured both to hood and fender line. Rear windows are curved and of three-section design previously offered only in custom hardtop convertibles.

Improved visibility is an outstanding feature of the new Nash models. Glass area has been

Nash Completely Restyled For '52

Nash Motors' new 1952 Golden Anniversary models feature European styling combined with American mass production and engineering advances. The new cars were styled by Pinin Farina, world-renowned custom body designer. Improved visibility, greater interior roominess and sleek custom body lines highlight the new Statesman model shown above. Mechanical changes include Dual-Range Hydra-Matic, increased horsepower, and an advanced new type independent front-end "Airflex Suspension."

vastly increased on all sides, in the four-door sedan almost 25 per cent. Gracefully styled windshield posts, 40 per cent narrower than on previous Nash models, minimize obstruction to driver vision. Extra visibility, a safety factor of Farina's styling, also results from narrowed center pillars, custom-car rear window treatment, lowered hood line and the predominantly horizontal line of trunk contours.

Increased visibility also results from a unique Nash-developed construction principle in the doors of the new Nash models, with window frames made of an attractive aluminum extrusion.

Offered for the first time as optional equipment on all Nash cars is tinted "Solex" safety glass, Doss said. The new greenish-blue tinted glass reduces road glare and heat rays.

The new models feature Nash-pioneered "Airflyte" unitized-type body construction, found also in modern planes and trains. It combines body and frame into a single welded unit of greater torsional strength, offering improved riding comfort, lifelong quietness and maximum safety to passengers, Doss said.

A new type of independent front-end suspension, called "Airflex Suspension," is a feature of both models. Vertical coil springs, extra long and flexible, are located above heavy steering knuckles which take direct vertical loads. Unsprung weight is reduced, providing superior riding and handling qualities. Four direct acting airplane-type shock absorbers control low frequency spring action.

The intake cowl of the Nash-pioneered Weather-Eye conditioned air and heating system extends the entire width of the hood. Heater and defroster fans of the new 1952 Weather-Eye are combined in a single blower unit.

Door handles are of an entirely new "squeeze-type" design and lie nearly flush with the door panel.

Taillights and directional signals are integrated as part of the distinctive rear fenders. The right rear taillight is hinged for access to the fuel tank.

The completely redesigned instrument panel has Vinyl leather over an obstruction free section running almost the full width of the new panel in custom models.

Instruments, rearranged, are protected from glare in a recessed sun-shield extension of the cowl line. Dials and numerals are painted on a one-piece plastic panel with the entire panel edge-lighted.

Passenger comfort has been greatly improved by moving the passenger compartment forward in relation to the wheel centers resulting in increased front and rear seat width, headroom and legroom. Larger front and rear door openings are positioned for easy entry.

Combined "airliner reclining seat" and convertible twin beds are available as optional equipment on all 1952 Ambassador and Statesman models.

Front and rear seats have been redesigned with a new system of coil springing and treatment with flocking material. Front and rear arm rests and large center arm rest in the rear seat are standard equipment on custom models, optional on others.

The Nash-developed sliding drawer glove compartment, centered below the instrument panel, has a "flush" pullout handle for increased passenger safety. The hand brake, of "pistol-grip" type, is located to the right of the steering column for convenience and safety.

Kennedy to Test Guar at Quail

Frank Kennedy, Quail vocational agriculture teacher, will plant two test plots this year of mesa guar, an oil bearing legume.

There is no market for the seed in this section of the country, and Mr. Kennedy said he was planting the test plots simply to see how the guar would grow in the sandy sections of the county, and to observe their growth habits.

Guar is rated as a soil builder rather than a depleting crop. It is recommended as standing dry weather well and is gathered with a combine as are peas. Approximately 10 pounds of seed per acre are used in seeding.

Mr. Kennedy will have two five-acre tracts, one on the John Atkinson farm southwest of Quail and the other at some point in the community still to be selected.

Mrs. J. W. Bulls, Early Vinson Settler, Dies

Mrs. J. W. Bulls of Mangum, the mother of Mrs. W. C. Reeves, died at her home Saturday, March 1, at 8:30 a.m. She had been ill about six weeks and had been hospitalized here for some time. Her condition had been critical during most of her illness.

Funeral services were held at Vinson Sunday, March 2, at the Methodist Church with the Rev. Trice Epps of Lake Creek, Okla., a nephew, in charge, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Nelson, pastor of the Vinson Methodist Church.

Flower girls were Mrs. Elmer Odom, Mrs. Allie Davidson, Mrs. Emory Pence, Mrs. Fred Yarbrough and Mrs. O. F. Burgess. Mrs. Bulls was born Mattie E. Brown in Smith County January 23, 1881, and at the time of her death she was 71 years one month and six days of age. She and Mr. Bulls were married at Bowie in 1896, and two years later they moved to Vinson. They made their home there until about 15 years ago, when they moved to Mangum.

Little Erosion Here

Earl Alexander Builds Excellent Soil Program

From the Fort Worth Star-Telegram

Earl G. Alexander is no flashy farmer.

He can not — and probably wouldn't, if he could — claim that his yields tripled in a year after he started a conservation program.

The veteran Northwest Texas farmer isn't spectacular at all.

But his farm program, claims Chester Hufstедler, is perfect.

"He fits himself to his land," said Hufstедler, who is soil conservation work unit conservationist here. "And that's one thing a farmer should understand:

"He can't fit the land to himself."

Alexander, a quiet, modest man, owns a 313-acre farm 10 miles south of Wellington.

The soil there varies from very sandy to a heavy mixed type with a sandy loam top and tight subsoil.

Hufstедler says Alexander's program "fits as good as any ever would" the conservation objective outlines by Agriculture Secretary Brannan:

"The basic physical objective of soil conservation . . . should be the use of each acre of agricultural land within its capabilities and the treatment of each acre of agricultural land in accordance with its needs for protection and improvement."

Alexander grows small grains on the heavy mixed soil at the northern end of his rectangular farm.

"Excellent cover on the slope," Hufstедler points out, "holds erosion to a minimum."

Sandy loam fills the waistline of the farm. There Alexander grows cotton and feed crops, using rye or rye and vetch for winter cover.

He's getting alfalfa established in the deep, loose sand on the lower part of his place.

"Good income," nods Hufstедler. "And perfect soil protection."

Alexander moved onto his farm from Wheeler County about 13 years ago.

And, he feels, if he hadn't started his conservation program in 1943, the place would be no better now—maybe worse—than it was then.

In those days he'd list his farmland, then plant crops at the proper time and hope for the best.

Now he chisels his 180 cultivated acres. And the farm is well-terraced.

He thinks that's a fine combination.

A 44-acre plot to the west of the Alexander's white frame house, on the southern end of the farm, was a real sore spot.

But it was a challenge, too. "I wanted to try rye there," he said.

He has—and also peas and alfalfa.

"When I came here," said Alexander, "there were big sand dunes there you couldn't drive across. Last year we hauled hay out in a trailer."

There's another field—"good cotton land if you don't cotton it to death"—that he's going to nurse first with sudan, then with rye and vetch.

A soil test indicated a shortage of organic matter.

And Alexander would rather take a longer but, he thinks, surer course of enriching it than to feed it with fertilizer.

"Using fertilizer is like taking aspirin for a headache," he believes. "It's a relief but not a cure."

Alexander's major doubt when he bought his farm was about how he could cope with Buck Creek. The wide stream bed winds almost the length of his farm.

But it has caused no trouble so far.

It's hemmed with trees and wild clover is getting a hold on its surface bed.

"I haven't had to do a thing about it," he grins.

And, Alexander says, his brother-in-law, R. R. Crawley, who farms near by, told him it hasn't changed its course since 1909.

Alexander also produces beef. He's been buying calves in the fall and selling them the following spring. He plans to keep about 20 mother cows each winter from now on.

He has raised hogs in the past, but has stopped because it adds too much of a work-load on him and his Negro hired hand, who not only works his farm but also 377 additional acres that he rents.

Alexander is a little embarrassed when Hufstедler singles out his farm program as ideal.

He doesn't think he's done anything special.

But he will tell you:

"If I had run the farm in cotton and hadn't started terracing and crop rotation I wouldn't be producing anything now."

Alexander really is prouder of the farm job being done by Crawley, his brother-in-law.

Crawley specializes in wheat, cotton and livestock on a 476-acre farm just to the northeast.

His chief problem has been even water distribution on his heavy, tight clay loam soil.

He solved the problem in 1950. Crawley ran new terraces between his old ones on 168 acres. Now the terraces are only about 150 feet apart.

It's worked beautifully.

"Doubling my terraces has doubled my crops," said Crawley, who is even less articulate about his success than his brother-in-law.

Even a motorist driving by could see what the terraces had accomplished last fall, said Alexander.

Near Crawley's double-terraced cotton land is an unterraced cotton field.

The crop last year on the unterraced field was so unsuccessful the farmer couldn't get anywhere to pick it, Alexander said.

He finally had it machine-pulled.

Crawley's was lush. He came out with only about a third of a bale to the acre, however, after an army of worms finished dining on it.

Crawley and Alexander, close friends, operate together. They swap work, buy machinery together and even trade newspapers daily.

Crawley asked for no government assistance on his terracing project, aside from the SCS advice he received.

Now he's getting some government praise — from Hufstедler, who is almost as proud of the double-terracing as he would be if it were his own.

"Proper distribution of moisture," he says, "has proven to be the key to success."

The Crawleys, who have no children, live in a comfortable white frame house with a newly-decorated interior.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander live alone now, too. Their children are all away from home.

Their older daughter, Mrs. Edna Earl Smith, is the wife of an Air Force captain who is stationed at Nashville, Tenn.

Their son, J. T. is an Army lieutenant at Fort Benning, Ga.

And their other daughter, Mrs. Louise Orr, is married to a soldier at Fort Hood. She lives in Killeen.

The credit for Alexander's farm work should go, he says, to his wife.

She's been a steady influence, he said.

"She," he said fondly, "is the saving type."

Hufstедler thinks Alexander is the saving type, too—the soil-saving type.

SALT FORK

By MRS. R. H. ISBELL

It was damp and drizzling rain out here Sunday but there was more out for Sunday school and preaching than usual. Reverend Doyle Brown was here from Abilene to fill his regular appointment. Friends from Abilene and Lela were with him.

It's very muddy out here this Monday morning. We had a good rain in the Salt Fork community. So far no wind or hail.

Mrs. Don Isbell's father, Dean Rodgers, visited her over the week end. Mr. Rodgers has been in the Army for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Buck Lancaster and family visited relatives and friends here over the week-end. They were dinner guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Clifton. The Lancasters live near Lockney.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wright and family and Mrs. Maxwell were dinner guests in the Gollighugh home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweeden and Marcie were week-end visitors in her parents' home, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Morrow. Mrs. Morrow is still sick in bed. She has been real sick for several weeks.

R. H. Isbell listed their land last week. Mr. Morrow is not in good health either.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Isbell spent a week in Grayson county visiting their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Sanders. They also visited old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Loren Trout, formerly of Wellington. Mrs. Trout is the former Glendora Gillespie. They have a blacksmith shop in Whitesboro now and say business is very good. The Isbells also visited Miss Mary Bell Atnip and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eloy Burdine and family.

The Burdines operate a Helpy Selfy laundry on Main St. in Whitesboro. It was very wet and muddy in that part of Texas.

COLLEGE STATION — Use of legumes over all the vast cotton growing acreages of Texas would mean an increase of at least 1,000,000 bales a year, agronomists of Texas A. & M. College System and the Soil Conservation Service agree.

It's like this: Texas' cotton output last year averaged about 211 pounds an acre. Using legumes in rotation with cotton boosts cotton yields about 20 per cent on the average, or 40 pounds (and this is a conservative estimate, they say) to the acre. Therefore, Texas' 13,000,000-odd acres in cotton, each acre producing an average of 40 pounds more, would mean 520,000,000 more pounds of cotton at ginning time.

A legume crop on cotton land is worth money just for the nitrogen alone that goes into the soil. Take vetch, one of the leading legume crops in Texas, for instance. Green vetch contains from .5 to .6 of one per cent nitrogen — equal to 60 to 70 pounds of nitrate of soda — when a ton of green vetch is plowed into the soil. Vetch (dry weight) contains 2 1-2 to 3 per cent nitrogen. That means that about 60 pounds of nitrogen, or about 400 pounds of nitrate of soda, are supplied when a ton of dry vetch is cut into the soil.

Other legumes add nitrogen about like vetch.

Legumes add organic matter to the soil, but one of their main functions is to hold rather than add to the organic matter there. Fresh, easily decomposed crop residues must be worked into the soil to furnish food for soil bacteria. The bacteria need this food to do their work. Fertilized legumes such as hairy vetch, Austrian winterpeas, crimson clover, singletary peas, Hubam and annual yellow sweetclover also provide a protective soil cover, improve the soil structure so that it will absorb water readily and reduce soil losses and loss of plant nutrients through leaching.

In some parts of Texas where climatic conditions may make the use of legumes impractical, small grains such as rye, barley, oats and wheat, can be used with good results. These crops, like legumes, provide an effective cover and reduce erosion damage by wind and water. They help to maintain the productive capacity of the soil when not harvested.

In addition to the higher yields made possible by legumes, there is the grazing value of the legume crop to be considered. Legumes provide excellent grazing for livestock.

A good supply of legume seed is in sight, the agronomists say. But they add that farmers should lay in their seed and fertilizer early in order to avoid shortages that will be the result of a sudden demand.

The agronomists point out that Secretary Brannan of the Department of Agriculture in his recent appeal for higher production declared that "higher production must come largely from increased yields per acre if we are to avoid permanent injury to our land resources."

The agronomists point out that the use of legumes is one of the surest ways to increase yields without running the risk of further damage to the soil.

Quail FFA Projects Net High Profit

The Quail FFA members have closed their records for the school year of 1950-51 and found they had made $6,936.64 labor income.

Each student has his individual project program which he keeps a very close set of records on enabling him to see where he made or lost money with his crops and animals. When a boy finds he has lost money, he makes a careful study of his program. From this information he makes a decision whereby he discontinues this type of enterprise or he changes his feeding and management practices.

Below is the summation of each enterprise carried by the F. F. A. members of Quail School District.

Four boys fed out seven beef calves as their projects. Their total income from the calves was $747.65, and the total expense $511.14. Subtracting the value of their own labor, figured at 40 cents per hour, however, they had $259.71 to put in their pockets. Total gain for the seven calves was 2215 pounds.

Three boys each had a breeding beef cow for projects. The total value of the cows when the project year ended was $816.50 and expenses were $520.44. Less the self labor of $20.40, the boys netted $816.46, and from the cows got two calves.

Seven boys had 13 breeding beef heifers as projects. These were valued at $2,343.72 and expenses including purchase price amounted to $1,616.94. Not counting their own labor valued at $90, the boys figured they made $816.78, including five calves.

Two boys had breeding beef bulls as projects and figured their profit at $207.35.

A profit of $403.45 was figured by one Future Farmer on his dairy cow. His total income was $577.60.

Ten boys who feed hogs for pork found they would have gone in the hole if they had counted their own work for 40 cents an hour even! The 20 hogs had a total value of $711.81, but the expense of feeding them out was $748.69. Not counting their own work, however, they figured a profit of $68.72. The 20 hogs yielded 3,260 pounds of meat.

Gilts were more profitable. Sixteen future farmers who had 18 gilts figured a total income of $1877 and a profit of $777.10. They received 49 pigs from the gilts.

Sixteen brood sows were the project of six boys, who figured a profit of $1,042 from the 107 pigs at the time the project was closed out. One chapter member had 20 broilers, which brought him a total income of $20 and a profit of $9.75.

Value of the profit from rabbit production of four boys was $89.82, but they point out that a local market for rabbits just doesn't exist. The boys had 21 rabbits and got 75 young.

Nine boys worked 85 acres of cotton as their projects and were the most successful from the money standpoint. The total income was $6,365.82 and the net profit $2,028.72. The yield was 15,877 pounds of lint and 22,339 pounds of seed.

It was a poor year for grain sorghum, too. Ten acres netted one boy 3,200 pounds of seed for a profit of $14.79. Total income was $85.40, but expenses ran up to more than $70.

Five acres of watermelons were quite profitable for the other member of the vocational ag class. His total income from the project was $394 and his net profit $322.10. He figured he raised 49,930 pounds of melons.

QUAIL FARMERS SEED 300 ACRES TO GRASS AS SOIL SAVING MEANS

Approximately 300 acres of land in the Quail area has been seeded to grass this year as a soil building measure, Frank Kennedy, vocational agriculture instructor, reported this week.

The farmers planting grass are working in co-operation with the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District.

J. L. O'Hair, long-time resident of the Quail section and a farm leader of the west part of the county, has planted approximately 100 acres to permanent pasture, using a mixture of blue grama, weeping love grass, Indian grass, switch grass and a little blue stem and side oats grama. This was planted on land that had once been in cultivation, but which has been laying out, Mr. Kennedy said. While some grazing could be gotten off this pasture next year, better results will be had by waiting until it has had two years growth," Mr. Kennedy added.

Ben Farmer is planting approximately 100 acres of white clover, the first substantial planting made in the Marella section. A little has been planted in that area in the past, enough to know definitely that it will grow well, but there has been some question among the farmers as to whether livestock will eat it as well as some other green feed.

The remaining hundred acres planted is weeping love or white clover, and is in tracts of 10 or 15 acres, Mr. Kennedy said.

Members of the Quail FFA Chapter are custodians of one of the grass seed drills belonging to the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District, and this has been used by farmers planting grasses or clover this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilson and Len of Borger spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Riggs and Peggy.

Orville Copeland, student of WTSC at Canyon, was home over the weekend visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Copeland.

Dr. Green explaining spinal nerves and their part in the function of various organs and glands throughout the body.

Your Posture

Are you satisfied with your posture? Maybe your shoulders are a little too rounded, one shoulder high, the other low. It may be that one leg is shorter than the other, the other resulting from a tilted pelvis, too much curve in the lower spine etc.

"If your posture is bad, your friends advise you to straighten up. They mean well. You do try but how successful are you? While you are thinking about it you can improve your posture, but what happens when you are not thinking about it? Usually you are the same old self again.

"The spine is the backbone of the posture and the position of the spine is controlled by muscles. Proper muscle tension is necessary to have good posture. This interference is caused by partial displacement of a segment of the spine. When this condition is corrected, the body resumes its natural position.

Children as well as grown ups should be examined regularly for postural defects, the same as they are checked for defects of eyes disorders. Normal health is a normal condition, permitted only by a normal spine.

OPS Revises Livestock Feed Ruling in Area

The Office of Price Stabilization today moved to relieve the critical livestock feed situation in the Southwestern and Western part of the United States, according to H. R. Gholson, Lubbock district OPS director.

Under a revised regulation, effective March 3, processors, distributors and other sellers of cottonseed feed products who bring in feed from surplus areas are permitted to add base period transportation costs and their customary dollars-and-cents margins to the prices they pay their suppliers when they buy the products f.o.b. their supplier's place of business. The change is contained in Revision 2 to Supplementary Regulation 31 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation to alleviate local shortage in supplies of cottonseed meal, hulls, slab and sized cake, and pellets.

Local feed supplies have dwindled to dangerously low levels in portions of the Southwest and West due to the earlier feeding of record numbers of livestock made necessary by extreme drought and insect conditions.

Because of the shortage, feed sellers in critical areas have had to bring in feed from surplus areas, creating unusually heavy transportation costs which they were unable to absorb and still supply feed at ceiling prices, OPS officials said.

According to OPS, this new regulation should enable livestock feed supplies to be moved from surplus to critical areas. Revision 2 replaces Supplementary Regulation 31, Revision 1, which became effective December 7 of last year.

Buyer Has 129 Model-Color Choices

fective December 7 of last year.

No actual shortage of cottonseed exists, according to OPS, particularly in the cotton-producing areas. But mills in the Southwestern and Western livestock areas which are operating around the clock at full capacity are still unable to crush seed fast enough to meet the demand.

Members of the industry advising on the new regulation estimate that the demand for cattle feed in the Southwest alone has increased by at least 50 per cent above normal.

Quail FFA Projects Net High Profit

The Quail FFA members have closed their records for the school year of 1950-51 and found they had made $6,936.64 labor income.

Each student has his individual project program which he keeps a very close set of records on enabling him to see where he made or lost money with his crops and animals. When a boy finds he has lost money, he makes a careful study of his program. From this information he makes a decision whereby he discontinues this type of enterprise or he changes his feeding and management practices.

Below is the summation of each enterprise carried by the F. F. A. members of Quail School District.

Four boys fed out seven beef calves as their projects. Their total income from the calves was $747.65, and the total expense $511.14. Subtracting the value of their own labor, figured at 40 cents per hour, however, they had $259.71 to put in their pockets. Total gain for the seven calves was 2215 pounds.

Three boys each had a breeding beef cow for projects. The total value of the cows when the project year ended was $816.50 and expenses were $520.44. Less the self labor of $20.40, the boys netted $316.46, and from the cows got two calves.

Seven boys had 13 breeding beef heifers as projects. These were valued at $2,343.72 and expenses including purchase price amounted to $1,616.94. Not counting their own labor valued at $90, the boys figured they made $816.78, including five calves.

Two boys had breeding beef bulls as projects and figured their profit at $207.35.

A profit of $403.45 was figured by one Future Farmer on his dairy cow. His total income was $577.60.

Ten boys who feed hogs for pork found they would have gone in the hole if they had counted their own work for 40 cents an hour even! The 20 hogs had a total value of $711.81, but the expense of feeding them out was $748.69. Not counting their own work, however, they figured a profit of $68.72. The 20 hogs yielded 3,260 pounds of meat.

Gilts were more profitable. Sixteen future farmers who had 18 gilts figured a total income of $1877 and a profit of $777.10. They received 49 pigs from the gilts.

Sixteen brood sows were the project of six boys, who figured a profit of $1,042 from the 107 pigs at the time the project was closed out.

One chapter member had 20 broilers, which brought him a total income of $20 and a profit of $9.75.

Value of the profit from rabbit production of four boys was $69.82, but they point out that a local market for rabbits just doesn't exist. The boys had 21 rabbits and got 75 young.

Nine boys worked 85 acres of cotton as their projects and were the most successful from the money standpoint. The total income was $6,365.82 and the net profit $2,028.72. The yield was 15,877 pounds of lint and 22,339 pounds of seed.

It was a poor year for grain sorghum, too. Ten acres netted one boy 3,200 pounds of seed for a profit of $14.79. Total income was $85.40, but expenses ran up to more than $70.

Five acres of watermelons were quite profitable for the other member of the vocational ag class. His total income from the project was $394 and his net profit $322.10. He figured he raised 49,930 pounds of melons.

Work With Soil District

QUAIL FARMERS SEED 300 ACRES TO GRASS AS SOIL SAVING MEANS

Approximately 300 acres of land in the Quail area has been seeded to grass this year as a soil building measure, Frank Kennedy, vocational agriculture instructor, reported this week.

The farmers planting grass are working in co-operation with the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District.

J. L. O'Hair, long-time resident of the Quail section and a farm leader of the west part of the county, has planted approximately 100 acres to permanent pasture, using a mixture of blue grama, weeping love grass, Indian grass, switch grass and a little blue stem and side oats grama. This was planted on land that had once been in cultivation, but which has been laying out, Mr. Kennedy said. While some grazing could be gotten off this pasture next year, better results will be had by waiting until it has had two years growth," Mr. Kennedy added.

Ben Farmer is planting approximately 100 acres of white clover, the first substantial planting made in the Marella section. A little has been planted in that area in the past, enough to know definitely that it will grow well, but there has been some question among the farmers as to whether livestock will eat it as well as some other green feed.

The remaining hundred acres planted is weeping love or white clover, and is in tracts of 10 or 15 acres, Mr. Kennedy said.

Members of the Quail FFA Chapter are custodians of one of the grass seed drills belonging to the Salt Fork Soil Conservation District, and this has been used by farmers planting grasses or clover this year.

Scouts Must Present Registration Card To Buy Uniforms

John Pound, field Scout Executive for the Southern District of the Adobe Walls, this week reminded parents of Cub and Boy Scouts and Explorers that the boy's registration card must be presented at the Leader Department Store at the time the youth's uniform is purchased.

"The Leader is the franchised distributor of Scout uniforms, and one of the terms of their franchise is that proof of membership in a Scout unit must be produced by showing the boy's registration card before his uniform can be purchased. The co-operation of the parents who go to buy the uniforms, or who send their sons to get their own, will be appreciated," Mr. Pound said.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Wilson and Len of Borger spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Howard Riggs and Peggy.

Orville Copeland, student of WTSC at Canyon, was home over the weekend visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Copeland.

Dr. Green explaining spinal nerves and their part in the function of various organs and glands throughout the body.

Your Posture

Are you satisfied with your posture? Maybe your shoulders are a little too rounded, one shoulder high, the other low. It may be that one leg is shorter than the other, the other resulting from a tilted pelvis, too much curve in the lower spine etc.

"If your posture is bad, your friends advise you to straighten up. They mean well. You do try but how successful are you? While you are thinking about it you can improve your posture, but what happens when you are not thinking about it? Usually you are the same old self again.

"The spine is the backbone of the posture and the position of the spine is controlled by muscles. Proper muscle tension is necessary to have good posture. This interference is caused by partial displacement of a segment of the spine. When this condition is corrected, the body resumes its natural position.

Children as well as grown ups should be examined regularly for postural defects, the same as they are checked for defects of eyes disorders. Normal health is a normal condition, permitted only by a normal spine.
