SEWELL TO PAY FOR ROBBERY OF HOLLAND BANK

NO MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL FILED BY HIS ATTORNEY

By United News
BELTON, Texas, Jan. 21.—A verdict of 25 years in the penitentiary was assessed against Jess Sewell in district court here Thursday afternoon.

Sewell was convicted of a charge of robbery with firearms of the First National Bank at Holland, Texas, on July 15, 1925. The bandits, three in number, secured more than $1800 in the hold up.

The defense repudiated a statement issued by the prosecution which was made by Sewell while in Dallas county jail but the presiding judge allowed the statement to be read to the jury.

Trial of the case started Monday but was carried over until Tuesday because of the absence of one of the defense attorneys.

The opening of the jury at 2:15 Thursday afternoon. They returned the verdict at 3:30. Mrs. Pauline Sewell wife of the defendant was put on the stand in an attempt to secure an alibi Thursday morning. Mrs. Sewell gave testimony that she and her husband were on a picnic on July 15 in Denton county and produced a garage for repairs to their car on the day after the picnic.

LIVES LIFE OF A PAUPER, BUT DIES RICH

By United News
ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Jan. 21.—William Winslow, Sr., a civil war veteran, who lived for nearly a quarter of a century in a squalid boarding house here, denying himself even the necessities of life, left an estate of $179,000.

This was disclosed in probate court here Thursday when an accounting was given by a loan company with which the aged reclus had entrusted his cash and securities.

Apparently scarcely able to keep himself together, Winslow did not surprise his fellow roomers several months ago when he announced that he was going to enter the National Military Home in Leavenworth, Kansas.

He was admitted to the soldiers home and died December 20 and his body was removed to Derby, Iowa, for burial. His six sons there did not know he had left a fortune. They said he retired 15 years ago from railroad service in which he had been employed in Iowa for many years as station agent and operator.

LAND FISH LATEST DISCOVERY OF PROFESSOR

By United News
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 21.—Fish that walk on land have been discovered in the South seas by Prof. Frederick L. Washburn of the University of Minnesota.

Washburn, an entomologist returned to San Francisco Thursday after a trip in which he gathered 12,000 specimens of insect life. He reported many strange experiences among them the sight of a fish with protruding eyes and lizard head which emerged from the sea for a stroll upon the beach.

The fact was accomplished by a curious twisting of the fins, the scientist said.

Rice cooked with chopped bits of mutton is the staple food of inhabitants of Svia.

JURY SELECTED IN STEPHENVILLE MURDER CASE—TRIAL WILL BEGIN WITH OPENING OF COURT TODAY

By United News
STEPHENVILLE, Tex., Jan. 21.—Trial of F. M. Snow on a charge of murder on the growing out of death of his step-son, Bernie Connolly will open in 29th district court here Friday morning.

The twelfth juror was accepted after eighteen men of the fifty called in the third panel had been examined and excused.

Arraignment of the defendant took place immediately. Snow was asked to stand and the district attorney read the indictment to him.

Asked whether he was guilty or not guilty, Snow replied: "Guilty, I guess."

This was promptly corrected by defense Attorney Scott who said, "no, not guilty."

Judge Keith accepted the plea of not guilty.

Defense attorneys filed an amended application for change of venue but Judge Keith said that he probably would not grant it and the taking of testimony would start Friday morning.

THEFT OF AIR IS BASIS FOR BIG COURT TRIAL

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Governmental wheels of justice are revolving to catch a punishment for an alleged wholesale theft of air.

The Zenith Radio Corporation is accused of poaching on the air rights of another and making off with vast quantities of what has been known as free atmosphere.

As the result of proceedings from Washington last week, Federal Judge Wilkerson Thursday ordered the filing of a bill of criminal information against the Zenith Corporation, operators of radio station WJAZ here.

Temporarily granted permission to use a wave length previously granted to a Denver station, WJAZ is accused of disregarding instructions and illegally "squeaking" on the government protected air preserves.

Four specific instances of "air piracy" are cited by Assistant United States Attorney John E. Byrne, who appeared before the court to present the case.

The Zenith Corporation is headed by E. F. McDonald, who accompanied the MacMillan Arctic expedition last summer. In addition to the charges against the corporation, McDonald is charged with aiding and abetting the illegal broadcasting on the four counts. All counts against both the corporation and McDonald are punishable by a fine of $2,000 each.

The United States attorney announced that information was being gathered of other illegal broadcasting and that additional counts would be added later.

WORLD COURT CRITICS REALIZE THAT FIGHT HAS BEEN LOST, BUT ARE UNWILLING TO ALLOW VOTE

MAJORITY LEADERS FAIL IN THEIR ATTEMPT TO MAKE VOLUNTARY VOTING AGREEMENT WITH BORAH AND HIS FOLLOWING IRRECONCILABLES

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Like two small boys shivering while they summon courage to jump into a cold creek, the two world court generals in the senate are setting themselves for a cloture fight to break the filibuster on the world court by force.

They probably will make the first move within 48 hours. This course has been made necessary by the failure of the court forces and the Borah irreconcilables to make a voluntary voting agreement.

DURKIN, CHICAGO GUNMAN, VERY BOASTFUL

BY EARL J. JOHNSON
United News Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Jan. 21.—Made giddy by the hysterical reception that marked his return to Chicago, Martin J. Durkin, the two gun sheik, whose criminal exploits have given him the glamor of a dime novel hero, was put back in his "cool proof" cell Thursday night, apparently oblivious to the fact that his day of boasting had brought him a pace nearer to the noose.

Durkin laughed at those who quizzed him the same as he laughed at police and federal authorities during the long game of tag with the law that ended Wednesday in St. Louis. He did not seem to realize that a half dozen stenographers in the employ of State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe were working furiously to turn his boasting against him.

"You guys haven't got anything on me. This is going to be a cinch."

HOFFMAN TRIAL IS CAUSE OF MUCH COMMENT

By United News
AUSTIN, Jan. 21.—The suit of the Hoffman Construction Co. to have the suit filed against them by Attorney General Dan Moody, seeking to recover $421,000 from them on resurfacing contracts, tried in Eastland county, the home county of the company, gave indications of lasting the rest of the week when court adjourned here Thursday afternoon.

Thursday was taken up by defense attorneys headed by John D. McRea attempting to break down the testimony of the state's witnesses who declared that the contract price of 30 cents a square yard was an exorbitant price for such work.

R. J. Hank, former state highway engineer who testified in the suit Wednesday was put on the stand again Thursday.

Hank gave testimony that the state had spent $300,000 as freight costs in shipping materials from Oklahoma to western Texas points for use in resurfacing the roads in addition to the 30 cents a square yard called for by the contracts.

FARMERS FAIL TO PAY OFF IS GIVEN AS CAUSE

ATTEMPTS UNDERWAY TO REORGANIZE ALL THE INSTITUTIONS

By United News
DENVER, Colo., Jan. 21.—The plight of the middle western farmer and stockman was brought out with startling effectiveness again Thursday as the Sixth Denver bank in six weeks closed its doors—a victim of frozen assets.

There was none of the excitement or heavy runs that attended the closing of four banks and one trust company in mid-December. Customers who came to the Bank of Commerce Thursday read the order posted by the state examiners, shrugged their shoulders and turned away. It had become an old story to them.

Four other institutions in the state, one a trust company, failed during the last three months of 1925. Officers of the bank all gave the same explanation—the failure of ranchers and stockmen to pay off their debts.

Attempts are under way to reorganize the closed institutions, or, failing in that, their assets will be liquidated at only a small sum to depositors. All of the banks were small, the deposits of the six totaling only $4,916,723.

Children's Dress Program Announces Plaids for Spring

By JULIA BOTTOMLEY

TO MOTHERS who feel the urge of spring sewing comes the message of plaids, both lightweight woolen and gingham, for little girls' dresses—and a third fabric is added, namely, plaided taffeta. Here is a further word of advice: be sure to look into the matter of gay-colored leather belts, for little daughters will be sure to insist on having her pretty plaid frock belted just to keep up with the vogue.

It matters not if the dress be made in straightline, one-piece effect, as the picture shows, or in jumper and skirt, be sure not to omit the leather belt, else little daughter may ask the reason why, for most of her school companions are sure to smugly display a cunning belt of some sort this season.

Fine wooden plaids was the chosen medium for the fashionable frock here pictured. This same model could be effectively reproduced in French gingham. That is such a pretty idea of using a solid color for the revers, the vest, cuffs and pocket linings.

This model could be exquisitely copied in plaid taffeta and at this time of the year remnants are easily picked up at enticing price reductions.

The little highland lassie in the picture is three feet, in that her frock is plaid, boasts a sure-enough leather belt with a big square buckle, and crowning joy of all, the socks are striped in accord with fashion's latest edict.

For school wear later on, plaid gingham jumpers frocks will be quite the thing. These are so easily made at home, and the gingham new on display are so very attractive. Why not make two blouses to the one plaided skirt? Sleeves and collars sew so easily and economy suggests several waists, as a simple sewing of the plaid.

Stripes are also greatly featured this season. One can buy nowadays such clever striped saten or cotton broadcloth. The striped blouses with skirt in solid color bespeaks favored mode.

lowing twenty-five minutes to a pound. When two-thirds done place pared sweet potatoes around the meat and bake, turning once during the cooking. It will be necessary to baste the meat sparingly with boiling water containing some melted drippings from time to time during the cooking process.

SUGGESTIONS

Frozen traps and waste pipes are sometimes thawed by pouring in caustic soda or lye, obtainable at grocery stores. Chemicals of this character should be labeled "poison" and should be kept where children can not get them. To prevent freezing, the water in the traps of a vacant house should be removed during cold weather and the traps should be filled with kerosene, crude glycerine or a heavy strong brine made of common salt and water.

To renew yellow slickers—Wash in suds, rinse in luke warm water, and place on hanger to dry. When thoroughly dry, spread out flat on table and apply thin coat of shellac.

If you keep a box of clean sand in the pantry and stick into it your steel knives, blades downward, you will not have to scour them.

A Lay Sermon

We offer an Golden Text the first verses of the fourteenth chapter of Romans:
"Him that is weak in the faith receive ye, but not doubtful disputations."
"For one believeth that he may eat all things; another, who is weak eateth herbs."
Let not him that eateth despise him who eateth not; and let not him which eateth not judge him that eateth for God hath received him.

"Who are thou that judgest another man's servant? to his own master he standeth or falleth. Yea, he shall be holden up: for God is able to make him stand."

"One man esteemeth one day above another: another esteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully persuaded in his own mind."

Very plainly it is not for US to judge our fellows.

"Let us not therefore judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a stumbling block or an occasion to fall in HIS brother's way."

"I know, and am persuaded by the Lord Jesus, that THERE IS NOTHING UNCLEAN OF ITSELF; but to him that esteemeth any thing to be unclean, TO HIM it is unclean."

"But if my brother be grieved with THY meat, now walkest thou charitably. Destroy him not with thy meat, for whom Christ died."

Consider the antipathies which men cherish on no better grounds than that persons whose religious opinions are different from theirs, do not practice their religious observances.

Suppose that a country where the people, of whom the majority are Mussulmans, should insist upon not permiting pork to be eaten within the limits of the country. (This would be nothing new in Mohammedan countries.)

Would it be a legitimate exercise of the moral authority of public opinion? and if not, why not?

with the color of her dress. If the frock is made of sheer material, the combination is often of the "belle-faire" style.

This model is elegantly trimmed with lace and ribbon. It hangs in straight lines from a straight yoke and lace forms a square medallion on the front of the step-in. The sides are slashed and edged with lace. The bodice forms the shoulder straps.

Fig. I shows how the lace is applied to the fabric. This is the easiest way, when the trimming has a double edge. Sew the lace in the right side, with fine running stitches, making the stitches as fine as possible and very close to the edge of the lace. Now, turn to the opposite side (Fig. II). Trim the raw edge of the material and catch it down with fine stitches, being careful not to let

Second Consignment of Sheep Received

The second consignment of sheep, purchased by Prof. Stangel of the School of Agriculture while he was attending the International Live Stock show in Chicago, has arrived and were delivered to the College yesterday afternoon. These sheep are Southdowns, purchased from R. D. McEwen of London, Ontario, Canada.

In commenting on the sheep, Mr. Stangel stated that they are the finest breed of the specie and there are very few of them in Texas. They have no superior in production of mutton and are valuable for their wool. McEwen's Southdowns have been consistent winners at the International Live Stock show for several years and have been Champions in single and car load lots more than any other kind of sheep. Mr. Stangel stated that the College was fortunate in securing such a fine breed of sheep for the farm.

Agriculture School to Receive Pasture soon

The section of land just northwest of the college which has been formerly rented out will be reserved for the college livestock from now on. Several head have been purchased on date and more will be delivered in the spring. The officials of the school have decided to reserve a special pasture for the newly purchased livestock of the college. It will be known as the quarantine pasture and the animals will be kept here for a certain number of days in order to determine their condition. If they stand the test they will be placed in the regular pasture.

Killin Plans Competitive Drill in Physical Training

Lieutenant Killin, commandant of the military corps of the college and instructor in physical training, announced a competitive drill for the classes which will be held the latter part of this term. Both class and individual merit will be determined by the contest. Physical training is one of the requirements for graduation at the college and over the state. Lieutenant Killin has done a great deal of work in this line and is to be complimented on the showing of his classes. He announced that the date of the drill would be posted on the bulletin board on third floor.

BLOOD AND SAND FROM EL TORO

We didn't quite get through with that sermon we started preaching the other day. We'd forgotten most of it, but when we heard a remark this morning, it made us think of the rest of it.

Said remark was something to the effect of "this beastly snow." Now to our mind snow isn't beastly but pretty. We are no naturalist by any means but we do appreciate beauty, no matter in what form.

And the prettiest part of it was when we got some snow put down our collar. A pretty mess, to be exact, but "pretty pretty." We are not minded of the headline we saw on a paper some days past. "Snow remains silent on stand." While that Snow happened not to be the kind we have in west Texas, and is not quite as fragile, that headline is almost right. In fact that snow remained silent while we did stand on it this morning, but our feet certainly did remain cold, too.

And the funniest thing we have heard of lately is that bunch of bachelors getting around the thing that usually leads to matrimony, instead of having to wait for somebody to come around and making a wild grab for that somebody, dashing off to the minister or the justice of the peace, and getting all married up in a first class time of college days, and then finding out that somebody can't darn a hole in a sock, those aforesaid bachelors are taking the animal by the horn, as is the way with these Matadors, and are knitting their own socks.

Yeah! Actually and candidly doing it. Beats anything we have heard of for a long time, but some mighty pretty hose were run off the mill (we started to say press.) We rather wish we'd taken up that part of the work ourselves, since this kind of weather makes a couple of pair of hose feel at home in the fullest sense of the word.

Speaking of warm receptions. Our Tech regent, Mr. Jones, certainly must have got one yesterday afternoon when he visited the chem lab where we happened to be at work. He may remember seeing something down there, and he may not. Because that chlorine gas was certainly going strong when he came around. Oh well.

That "how and why" of the fall in level of Christianity after its spread over the western empire we had to tell about in history period some time ago might well have been likened to our personal knowledge of the feast. It was all well and good at first, concentrated, and applied locally to one locality. But when it got out all over the big county it got a little thinner.

And we had a dandy god lesson prepared for one topic; had one mighty good answer ready for a big question. And then—well, that test just covered more ground than we'd anticipated, and it was just too bad for our veneer of learning. Better luck next time.

This isn't supposed to get out so we won't tell it, but up in the Torador office there's an excellent pen built just for a bunch of beefers. Personally, all our complaining is more hot air than anything we don't get to beef much. But if some of long legged bandy shanked fellows want to say anything about anything the thing to do is to not waste any time, but just say an old thing—no anywhere, but just in that pen which on Saturdays is lengthened out into a column. Have at it!

TEACHERS COLLEGE WILL ENTER STOCK JUDGING TEAM

CANYON, Jan. 21.—According to statements given out by members of the Agricultural Department of the West Texas State Teachers Colleges, a live stock judging contest will be held for Teachers and Junior Agriculture Colleges during the Fort Worth Live Stock Exposition next March. Professor Frank Phillips has signified his intention of coaching a college team for the purpose of entering this contest. Interest in agricultural education has increased considerably, especially in West Texas, in the last few years, and stock judging contests among high schools have become so popular that there is strong demand for teachers who are able to coach students in this type of work; consequently, the leaders in agricultural education in the teachers colleges, feel that a state-wide contest for prospective teachers is worth while.

Imagine that winning the pennant twice in succession must have gone to the players' heads, Griffith is quoted as saying in revealing the fact that 24 of his men have not yet signed.

"They are money mad, although all of them receive salaries that afford them luxuries they never dreamed of before playing with Washington."

"Scott, Allen, Russell, Liebold, Veach are due to go back to the bush leagues or somewhere else, according to Griffith.

PEDESTRIANS ARE SOMETIMES AT FAULT WHEN ACCIDENTS OCCUR

There is much talk of the many automobile accidents that occur throughout the country and even bringing it down to the city of Lubbock most of the fault is usually blamed to the man with the automobile, but we note through the columns of the Vernon Record, which gives a report given by an automobile agency recently to the effect that there is some blame that might be laid at the feet of the pedestrians. The record says that figures gathered on automobile accidents or rather on accidents in which pedestrians figured, by a national safety council of one of the big manufacturing concerns in the automotive industry show that more than half of the fatal accidents where automobiles killed pedestrians were due to carelessness of the pedestrians.

In more than half of the fatal accidents where pedestrians were to blame, jay-walking is assigned as the cause. Jay-walking is a new term invented to describe the practice of many people in crossing the street intersections or in crossing diagonally a street intersection. In other words these people were killed because they were walking where the automobile drivers did not expect them and where they had no right.

Another cause of many fatal accidents of this classification is due to children being allowed to play in the streets and to use the streets by children for coasting and roller skating. The time when the streets are safe playground is past. It is likewise dangerous to allow children to skate in the streets, or to travel the streets on bicycles and coasters. It is no uncommon sight in Vernon for a group of boys and girls to use the street for a baseball diamond or for a football field. Sooner or later this little city is going to be shocked by the death of some child that is run over by an automobile or truck. Some people will want to send the driver to the penitentiary for negligent homicide.

The carelessness of parents in allowing children to play in the streets does not excuse reckless driving. But it is not always possible for careful drivers to avoid accidents for careful drivers to avoid accidents when a group of children are running about the streets chasing a football. We know that intoxicated persons drive cars about the streets. These ought to be arrested and given the full limit of the penalties of the law.

But this fact does not excuse parents for allowing their children to use the streets for playgrounds. Drivers of automobiles are not always to blame when pedestrians are killed, it is well illustrated by the figures announced by the authority above quoted.

We would suggest that in as much as it is shown that there is blame that can be attached to both sides, that there should be great care on the part of drivers of cars and people who are walking to reduce the number of accidents to a very small number. If we will all just take a bit more time to cross the street or to turn the corners, and watch our step and see that no one is in the way when we turn the corners in our car, we are sure that this can be made a much safer place for people.

It is a general rule of traffic especially in the cities, where the traffic is heavy that no one attempt to cross the streets except at intersections, and this is bound to eliminate many chances of accidents if the people walking will adhere to it. Automobile drivers become accustomed to certain rules of the city, and they are not expecting people to cross the street in the middle of the block hence there is a chance that they will not be watching their driving as carefully as they would at a corner or intersection. This is shown to be a fact by the "no left hand turns." No one ever expects a fellow to whirl around one of those signs and should two cars be meeting at those places there is not a thought in the mind of the driver on the other side of the street that the other fellow is going to swing around in front of him, and that would likely cause a wreck, and possibly bodily injury to the occupants of the car.

We would suggest that the automobile drivers and the pedestrians adopt the Santa Fe Slogan, of "Safety First" and live up to it, and there will be less criticism by the pedestrians of the autoists, as well as fewer accidents on the highway and the streets.

ADMITS FAILURE

The Shipping Board's ninth annual report states that only by government aid it is possible to overcome the expert organizations of competitors, long-established contracts and long training of shipping merchants and crews does not exist in the United States. This, then, is a frank admission of failure. The greatest subsidy the world has ever known was giving to American shipping interests after the World War. Ships totaling billions of dollars in cost and paid for by the American taxpayers, were handed over to our most eminent and distinguished shipping men, without so much as an cent of cost to them or risk, and on a basis which put a premium upon inept, inefficient and dishonest operations of the ships. Whatever efficiency American shipping may have possessed in the past was destroyed in the orgy of looting and intentional wastefulness which was set on foot to destroy all likelihood of success of our Government-owned merchant marine.

If our shipping men are so inept and so deficient, subsidies will never overcome these defects but will only accentuate them so long as there is any likelihood of milking the public treasury.

CIVICS IN SCHOOL

An important feature of the public school curriculum is the study of civics; in fact, it may be considered one of the most important, inasmuch as the principal aim of education is to prepare young people for the responsibilities of citizenship. In this connection, Congressman Edgar Howard of Nebraska has an idea. It is that the course in civics might be made more practical and more interesting by the introduction of material bearing on current legislative matters. With that end in view he has introduced in Congress a joint resolution providing that upon the request of any state or county superintendent, or the head of any public or parochial school, a copy of the Congressional Record would be furnished regularly during each session. These copies would be supplied to high schools only, and only upon the request of officials concerned. There appears to be no valid objection to the plan possible, as the expense of supplying the Record would be negligible. It would certainly be enlightening and helpful to students of civics to have ready access to the debates on current issues of the day to see just how the business of the government is conducted in Congress. Everything possible should be done to create a greater interest in government on the part of the coming generation, and with this in mind it appears that Congressman Howard's proposition is timely and worthy of adoption.

A HATED WATCH-DOG

There sits in a government office in Washington today one of the most cordially hated men who ever served Uncle Sam. He stands guard over the nation's pocketbook and has all the old-time watchdogs of the treasury backed off the map. He is Comptroller General McCarl, who has the final word concerning all disbursements of government moneys. If any bills or claims against the government are not strictly in accordance with law, they do not get by McCarl. And that is why many other officials don't like him. There isn't much that they can do about it, however, for he is appointed for fifteen years and can be removed from office only through impeachment by Congress. So long as his rulings are in accordance with the law there isn't much chance of that. Among the many items which he has disallowed are bills for flowers for deceased officers, use of taxis by army officers riding less than four blocks, black gowns for federal judges, photographs for publicity purposes, transportation of an admiral's wife from China, and expenses of prohibition agents who lost money in poker games while getting evidence. But while the McCarl policy of strict adherence to red tape methods has no doubt eliminated some petty graft it has not always been economical. A lot of correspondence was indulged in and several legal opinions were invoked over the claim of a government clerk for $1.50 spent for lunch. It required three typewritten pages to explain why a railroad's claim for 56 cents was disallowed, and so on. In view of the many trivial items which involve legal research and controversial correspondence, it is doubtful whether any great saving to the taxpayers result from Mr. McCarl's extreme watchfulness.

FARM BLOC STILL ON JOB

The seating of Gerald P. Nye as the successor of Senator of Senator Ladd of North Dakota, against the desire of the administration and party leaders, indicates that the so-called farm-bloc, or progressive group, are still on the job. The peg on which the Republican leaders "hung their hat" was that the North Dakota law giving the Governor the right to fill vacancies, does not specify a United States Senator, and the contention is that a representative in the Senate is not a state official. Five Republican Senators whose terms expire next year, dodged the issue by staying away. Eight Democratic Senators voted with the progressives. Senator Nye was assigned a seat on the Democratic side.

The result of this vote also indicates that the administration will not have clear sailing on several of its leading measures, particularly the tax bill. The Democrats have put forward a substitute for the Mellon proposition that promises a great deal of trouble. It includes a reduction of taxes for business and professional men with incomes between $20,000 and $100,000 who are practically ignored by the Mellon plan compared with the reduction of incomes above $100,000. While this may be designated as pure political play for the big fellows, the only apparent argument seems to be which party shall have the credit of reducing the taxes. Therefore its all political play to a great extent. But the interested taxpayers may hold the balance of power when it comes to a vote.

The assumption of dictatorship by Premier Pangelos of Greece, the resignation of Premier Tsanoff of Bulgaria, the renunciation of Prince Carol to his throne, dictators in Spain, Hungary and Italy, is an indication of the lack of confidence in democracies and a revolt against the purposes of the war. These "incidents" point to future disturbances that have generally resulted in wars or revolutions, particularly in the Balkans. Whether it is the result of the example set by western democracies, or whether it is the result of education and custom in that part of the world it is a family "mess" that Uncle Sam can well keep his hands out of.

Ether Waves

SO THINK WE

We think this world would be better if every fellow would try hard to live through every day without making a mistake. Possibly we would all fall short of this goal, but if we could or would cut the mistakes of life down to the minimum, it would certainly help matters a great deal.

We think it does not get a fellow anywhere to pretend to be something that he is not. It is usually a very disgusting thing to see a fellow shamming at being a good honest fellow when the community in general knows him to be a crook.

We think that the price of Irish potatoes in Amarillo is rather high, or else they are very large ones. A customer came back to the merchant Monday and called his attention to the potatoes. The merchant asked him what was the matter with the fifty cents worth he sold him. Whereupon he remarked that there was nothing the matter with them except that he lost both of them before he got home.

We think that the President of the United States is very human. The recent report that a slight indisposition of Mrs. Colidge kept him away from church one Sunday recently, which indicates the he is much like other husbands, Lubbock men seem to be more attentive to their wives and more concerned about them Sundays than any other time.

We think that Berlin has certainly put the skates under the police department of that city. They have cut the force half and equipped them with roller skates so they can cover more territory.

We think possibly the saddest thing about the weather yesterday was that it was not good golf weather.

We think that the people of Lubbock, through some well organized effort should get in touch with the public buildings committee and urge the necessity of the Post Office buildings in West Texas being given earnest consideration. If this is not done possibly under the authority of the bill most of the money will be spent in larger cities of the north and east, and West Texas will still suffer.

We think the snow of yesterday will make it pretty hard on the Lubbock postoffice if they do not get a new building, for there will be a great increase in the business on account of the good prospects in this county.

We think the most profitable news in this paper each day is the advertisements. They carry store and shop news. They carry money saving offers, and one way to make money is to save it.

We think that possibly there will be a decrease in the number of girls employed in the United States in coming years, unless there is a change in their method of looking after business.

It is said that a check up on girls in office work, shows that they lose much time powdering their nose and painting their cheeks—so much that business concerns are taking note of it.

We think however, that the fact that the girls lose time powdering their nose is really no more serious than that of the men who use hours and days of their employer's time rolling or lighting cigarettes. We think it should be a set rule among employers that men shall not smoke during work hours. It would mean millions in the United States in matter of production.

IT IS REPORTED

That a number of the men folks of Lubbock keep the Sabbath day holy by playing nine holes of golf, on Sunday morning.

That the snow that fell yesterday will aid much in putting a season in the ground, especially where the farmers have been industrious enough to have their land in condition to receive the moisture and retain it.

That the grand jury has been adjourned for the present, so the fellows who have been out of town for reasons best known to themselves might safely return for a few weeks at least.

That the snow of yesterday covered a large territory, which makes it all the more encouraging for a better season on the South Plains.

That some folks think it not fair for an officer to have some one to buy booze from a fellow in order to find out whether the suspected party is actually putting out the stuff. We would like to see and opinion of the attorney on this.

That there is a possibility of it being six months yet before we know definitely the outcome of the application of the Denver to build into Lubbock. We think the workings of the Interstate Commerce Commission is entirely too slow for the South Plains. Within two years time great changes come about.

That there were several rather severe accidents occurred on the streets of Lubbock yesterday on account of the slick condition of the pavement, caused by the snow. Even four wheel brakes are of very little avail when the top of the paving is covered with snow and ice.

That the old basket ball players are going to take on a team of players for a home coming game soon, and some of the former ball players of this city are "conditioning."

That building still continues in Lubbock, and people who come here from other cities cannot imagine why, but they realize that it is true just the same.

That the bollies on the plains are snowed under.

TIMELY WORLD VIEWS TOPICS

Nations Abroad Are Preparing for Another War.

Irish Writer

"Europe is racing for time between two sets of wars," observed Shaw Desmond, Irish novelist, in a recent speech in this country.

"If the war between the Red forces and the Facets starts first, the world war will be indefinitely postponed; otherwise—nothing can prevent the world war for which the whole world is preparing at the present time," declared Desmond. "We must face the facts that the nations abroad are preparing for a war. Sentimentality, mere hoping for peace, never will get the world anywhere, and, as it has been shown in the past few years, never will."

"Democracy in Europe has ceased to exist. It is now as much a by-word as the feudal system."

Mussolini Sees Situation Clearly
"When the nations of the world spoke about democracy, brotherhood, fraternity and disarmament they really believed that such existed," the speaker asserted, "but the war showed things to be different. With the fall of democracy Mussolini has risen to dictator of Italy and dictator of the Roman Empire that is to come."

He described Mussolini as a "man of destiny," a prototype, intellectually and spiritually of Napoleon. He spoke of him as "deadly sincere" and compared him to Lloyd George, Winston Churchill and Aristide Briand.

"Mussolini is the one man who is capable of believing in the logic of the situation and of coming out and stating it. Lloyd George, Winston Churchill and the leaders of the Facet in Spain and Germany believe in the conditions as Mussolini sees them, but none of them are willing to declare the facts."

Facist Movement Gaining
"The time will come when Mussolini will dictate to every man and woman in Italy," he declared. "Mussolini saw that a Parliament is a deadly thing to dictatorship; so he set himself above Parliament. Even his death will not end his power in Italy. There is a strong feeling against him but no one has a chance to show it."

"The Facist movement is spreading throughout Europe," to Spain, England, France and Germany. In England, nearly 600 men and women are joining the movement each day, all of them organized for the fight that is coming. And in France the Facist has grown to such an extent that I believe we will see a dictator ruling the French nation within five or ten years."

There is no one beside thee and no one above thee.
Thou standest alone as the nightingale sings!
And my words that would praise thee are important things.
For none can express thee though all should approve thee.
I love thee so, dear, that I only can love thee.

Say, what can I do for thee, weary thee, grieves thee?
Lean on thy shoulder, new burdens to add?
Weep my tears over thee, weeping thee sad?
Oh, hold me not—love me not! let me retrieve thee,
I love thee so, dear, that I only can leave thee.

THE TWO EXTREMES
If life were really half as sad
As pessimists declare it is,
Or on the other hand as glad
As cheer-up fellows swear it is,
In summer, winter, spring or fall,
I shouldn't care for it at all.

The pessimist declares the clouds
Will quickly hide the sun again;
He views the gay and laughing crowds
And knows their tears will run again.
"Poor fools," he wails, "they smile today,
But trouble waits just down the way."

The cheer-up fellow laughs: "O-ho,
What is this pile of care to me?
My little children hungry go,

WHO'S WHO IN THE NEWS

Recent news dispatches concerning Prince Carol's abdication of his rights to the Roumanian throne, bring his mother, Queen Marie, into prominence once more. Ever since the day 33 years ago when she became the bride of Crown Prince Ferdinand, now king, she has been of international interest. Called "the match making queen" it has often been said that she desired a match between her daughter Heana and the Prince of Wales. Now that Carol has gotten himself into disrepute by his escapades it is unlikely that the English rulers would countenance an alliance between the crown prince and a princess whose brother had renounced his claim to the throne. Furthermore present rumors hint at an engagement between Wales and Princess Astrid of Sweden.

RICKARD FRAMING DEMPSEY AND TUNNEY

By FRANK GETTY
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Tex Rickard has put the seal of his approval on a title fight between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney, and has relegated Harry Wills, as a challenger, to second place.

In an interview in his office in Madison Square Garden Thursday afternoon, Rickard insisted he had nothing to say regarding the proposal to sidetrack the Senegambian in favor of Tunney. That is the way Tex has to talk at the present time.

Rickard then went on to give reasons why he favored Gene Dempsey's next opponent, and intimated that he did not believe the champion ever would fight the negro challenger.

"I am not a promoter nor a match maker," Tex said, "I am a director of the Madison Square Garden Corporation, and at present I am not interested in the promotion of a fight between Dempsey and anyone."

The New York state boxing commission has threatened Rickard with trouble, and plenty of it, if he promotes a bout without its sanction, and the commission has named Wills as its own contender. Which is why Tex talks warily for the moment.

Chairman Farley of the boxing commission said there had been no change in the attitude of the boxing commissions that Dempsey must fight Wills before meeting anyone else.

"If Mr. Rickard, a licensed promoter in this state, matches Dempsey to box Tunney in New Jersey or anywhere else before the champion fulfills his obligations to box Wills, Mr. Rickard will find himself in a tough spot," said Farley.

"What can they do to me, as a director in the Madison Square Garden Corporation? They can't close up the garden."

RED SOX TO HAVE SEVERAL NEW PLAYERS

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 21.—The Boston Red Sox have traded Pitcher Oscar Fuhr and Outfielder Dan Williams to the Mobile club of the Southern association a part payment for Tony Welzer and Harold Wills both pitchers, according to an announcement here Thursday night.

The Red Sox also announced that Outfielder Ike Boone had been traded over to the San Francisco club for a cash consideration. Boone hit well for several months last year but his fielding was erratic throughout the season.

RETAIL MERCHANTS ARE PLANNING BANQUET

The committee appointed at the last regular monthly meeting of the Retail Merchants Association to make arrangements for a banquet to be held in connection with the annual meeting of the association, February 9, met Thursday afternoon at the call of W. W. Royalty, chairman of the office of the association in the City Hall, for the initial meeting and worked out routine matters concerning the banquet.

The committee is composed of W. W. Royalty, Chairman, P. L. Sherrod, J. D. Haggard, L. A. Howard and Fred A. Owens.

The banquet will be held in the basement of the Leader building, at 7 o'clock Tuesday night, February 9, according to the committee. At this time business men of Lubbock who have not yet affiliated with the association will be invited to attend the banquet as guests of the individual members.

A short, snappy program full of pep will be the order of the evening, according to the committee. Every effort will be made to arrange the program to produce this effect. One of the principal speakers of the program will be an address by Mr. Edgar H. Kemp, field secretary of the Retail Merchants Association of Texas.

CARLISLE SCHOOL TO BE SCENE OF PLAY TONIGHT

"The Path Across the Hill," a three act comedy, will be presented at the Carlisle school, eight miles west of Lubbock this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The program is being given for the benefit of the newly organized Carlisle band, and admission prices will be 15c and 25c.

The play will be presented by members of the faculty and student body of the school, and the people of Lubbock are assured that they will be well entertained and have been invited to attend the play.

"The Path Across the Hill" is a play that will be enjoyed and with able talent taking the several parts it will be well presented at the Carlisle school.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

There is a standing baseball joke to the effect that if you look for a ball player on a rainy day you'll find him reading the baseball scores. Which caused us to wonder whether or not Jack Dempsey keeps "up" on fight affairs while devoting most of his hours to his business and family.

Were Dempsey to peruse the histories of the heavyweights, who have gone before him he might find much food for thought—and some reasons to be hesitant about stepping into the ring again.

For these histories would show Jacques of the lovely nose that he has lived the idle span that has been enough to end the careers of his predecessors.

Jess Willard had been out of the ring just 4 years when he stepped into it that day in 1919 to be beaten to a silly, bruised, mumbled maul by Dempsey.

Jack Johnson, great heavy in his day, had not entered the ring for two years when he faced Willard in the sun-battered arena in Havana. His last bout had been a farce with one Jim Johnson in Paris in 1914.

And Willard beat Johnson down in 23 rounds. Jim Jeffries had been out of the game eight years when the call of his manager sent him into the ring at Reno, Nevada against Jack Johnson, but Jeff had won the title from Bob Fitzsimmons when that aged fighter decided that he was still the husky one's master, although out of the game from 1897 to 1899, the year he met and lost to Jim.

Jim Corbett became king of the heavies in 1892. A three-round victory over Charlie Mitchell in 1894, a six round affair with Peter Courtney that same year and then a four-round battle with Tom Sharkey in 1896 was all the tuning up he had before he met Fitz in 1897 and fell before the wily Cornishman.

Corbett won the title from Sullivan when that willing old battler entered the ring after three years of rough living and no fights outside of arguments at the bar and in exhibitions.

All of which proves that three years of idleness on the part of a heavyweight champion is fatal. Dempsey's last fight was against Luis Firpo, Sept. 14, 1923.

In that fight the public witnessed the amazing spectacle of seeing the still newly crowned "champion" of the ring, knocked out of the aforesaid ring by a foreigner of little experience, as ring experience goes.

Now Dempsey is in his third year of idleness. And unless he signs within a few weeks for some kind of a battle such an affair will not be staged until Labor Day. For Dempsey is wise enough to know that he needs months of training and a preliminary bout or two to put him in a shape for the defense of his title.

And September, 1926, will be the end of his third year. Wonder if Jack is up on his history?

John McGraw says "that infold of Kelly, Frisch, Jackson and Groh, will carry us back to the pennant winning stride of 1924." That is useless as many ill befall that infield as befell it in 1925.

American League baseball fans can rest easy from now on, assured that the season of 1926 will be a satisfactory one.

The question as to whether or not the resin ball will be permitted is still unsettled. Failure of the big league managers to take action against the installation of "circus seats" at future world's series has left the true

TURKISH WOMEN TO HAVE RIGHTS OF THEIR OWN

By JOHN O'BRIEN
United News Staff Correspondent
Copyright, 1926, by United News
CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 7.—Turkish women have thrown away the yashmak veil and are swarming into the drug stores demanding rouge and lip sticks, articles previously unknown outside the harems.

Barbers display signs: "Haircuts 15 piastres; girls 25." A boyish bob, then cost 7 1-2 cents. All these phenomena are symptomatic of the modernization of Turkey which has brought undreamed of privileges and pleasure to Turkish women.

Some older matrons retain their veils, pleading that they are too poor to buy hats; but Persian modistes are doing a big business with the emancipated thousands.

Modernization has only slightly affected the European quarter of Pera, but Stamboul has been turned upside down. The mosques are almost deserted even on Friday, the Mohammedan prayer day. Fashionably and sometimes gaudily gowned women parade the streets which once bore only somber-garbed women shrouded in long black veils. Not many women respond to the ulama's call when he mounts the minaret to summon the faithful to prayer.

Special enthusiasm greeted the promulgation of a law permitting Turkish women to dance in public halls. The Charleston has not yet arrived, but the tango, the shimmy and the hesitation waltz are popular, although they are not skillfully executed. Foreign spectators are not welcomed at the dance halls.

"Wait until the girls learn how," the managers suggested. They are fresh from the seclusion of homes and harems, and they are ashamed of their ignorance. The police are closing the cabarets where nude and semi-nude dancing occurs after midnight. The men object; their women are glad.

We want to forget savagery and become civilized, the woman says. Special police squads are battling against the dope traffic. Cocaine, morphine and ouzo, the latter a Turkish absinthe, are under the ban. Polygamy still exists as a legal institution. The Angora assembly is considering its abolition. Woman suffrage is being discussed by deputies and several feminist associations are endeavoring to obtain sex equality.

Among the darker aspects of Turkish modernization is the legalization of vice. Hitherto traffic in Turkish women are punishable by drastic penalties. Now the brothels contain almost as many Turkish as Russian, Greek and Armenian women. Dire poverty followed the political and financial collapse of Constantinople left many women without other means of support.

WORLD COURT CRITICS REALIZE FIGHT LOST

house all day. Senators reported for quorum calls but spent most of their time on neglected correspondence while the leaders negotiated in the cloak rooms to no end.

Irreconcilable in a burst of generosity exceeded only by that King Midas in his madest prosperous days offered to permit the tax bill to come up now with an agreement to vote on the world court afterwards. It was with some difficulty that the irreconcilable kept a straight face as their proposal was made. Of course Senator Smoot, patron saint of the tax bill, objected.

"I won't allow the tax bill to be used to delay a vote on the world court," he said in effect. The irreconcilable, many of whom are opposed to some sections of the tax bill, would welcome an opportunity to use it as a vehicle for continuing their filibuster.

As Mr. Smoot was born a long time ago, the generosity of the irreconcilables went entirely unappreciated, and they resumed their filibuster.

Harrell supplied philosophical justification for the dilatory tactics by explaining that they are designed only to prevent an immature vote, not to prevent one completely.

"A filibuster to prevent an immature vote, is frequently not responsible," Harrell said. If anything is done here that smacks of a filibuster it is done by senators who want to prevent an immature vote.

Reed contemplated moving to consider the tax bill, as a majority can vote to lay aside any pending measure. But after further consideration he abandoned the plan because the court forces decided to master their full strength against the motion as a test demonstration.

"It's a good thing they dropped that idea because it would have disclosed to the country how few votes they really have," one of the majority leaders told the United News. Reed, displaying remarkable physical endurance for a man of 64

CONTRACTS ARE MAILED

he told the dozens of prosecutors, assistant prosecutors, detectives and federal agents, who moved him from office to office, playing skillfully on his weakness for notoriety.

Would Be Hero
The city that had demanded his life while its officers conducted a nation wide search for him greeted him as a popular hero. Crowds swarmed after the automobile that carried him from place to place. It was a great day for "Marty" as he played for the approval of the flappers and the department store clerks and they gave him the cheers and the "ahs" that he wanted.

Once he was allowed to talk to newspaper men, although he had been addressing them indirectly during his interviews with officials.

He told reporters that he was enroute to Chicago to give himself up when he and his bride were captured at St. Louis.

I was getting tired of being accused of murders from one end years, fed liberal injections of vitriol into his attack on the court at all times in his three day speech. "If we are to go into the League of Nations we might as well turn over our arms to the women and they'll do our fighting for us" Reed said.

Lay this issue over for 30 days and I will prove to you that huge sums of money are being expended in this scheme.

Republicans turned tail from their stand against the league because there is a man in the White House of no greater value than any of us wants this resolution for political purposes."

MEETS SWEETHEART

There was one dramatic moment during the day, however, when the handsome young killer almost lost control of himself. That was when he met Betty Warner (correct) the Chicago sweetheart whom he deserted for the 18 year-old Irma Schuman as his bride. Tears and smiles were mingled as Irma, Betty and Martin came face to face for the first time in the squad room of the police lockup.

Both Betty and Irma were in tears. The contrast in their personalities was striking. Betty, the dashing flapper of Chicago's loop, Irma, shielded for 18 years in a small Illinois village.

"You couldn't find me," Betty whispered, choking with sobs, "so you took the next best one you could find." She put her head on Marty's shoulder and one arm encircled his neck.

The killer's leg irons and bracelets were embarrassing enough, but being kissed in public by an old sweetheart in sight of his bride, almost unnerved the crafty Durkin, Irma's childish face grew taunt. She stiffened in her seat.

"I'm nothing to you now" Betty continued bitterly. "You've got a wife now Marty. Take good care of her."

"I would have come to you," Durkin said. "I put advertisements in the newspapers asking you to join me in Michigan, but you didn't come. I watched the newspapers every day."

Betty's reply could not be heard, but Marty answered with one of those spasmodic outbursts of laughter. At the sound of this rattling chuckle Betty flung him from her. "Don't stand there and laugh," she snaped. The long awaited crisis with Betty had come. "Go back to your wife," she said. "Don't make a chump out of her as you have of me. The world is laughing at me now."

Durkin paled and looked abashed. He seemed unprepared for this from the woman who risked her life for him and gave up everything else for him.

Shippers and cattlemen of the plains states were warned that the intense cold would continue through Sunday.

COLD WAVE WILL BE FELT IN SUNNY SOUTH

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 18.—After enjoying spring like weather for several weeks, Kansas City put on its winter clothing Thursday in anticipation of a regular polar wave, expected to reach down into the southwest.

According to P. O'Connor, weather bureau expert, the snap will bring in its wake the kind of weather that Captain Roald Amundsen has been telling Kansas City exists in the "glorious Arctic." By Friday morning, he said, the mercury will totter about the zero mark here.

The temperature upheaval is expected to stretch southward as far as the gulf, and will be more severe, he predicted than anything previous this winter.

HEIRESS MARRIED POOR MAN, NOW ASK DIVORCE

RENO, Nev., Jan. 21.—Mrs. Altein Glendenning, heiress to the Alfred I. Du Pont munitions fortunes, has taken up residence in Reno preparatory to divorce action against Harold Sanford Glendenning, Rhodes scholar and son of a Norwalk, Conn., postman according to apparently well founded reports Thursday.

The wedding occurred in June, 1922, attracted much attention as a rich girl per se. Her fiance, a year ago the first hit appeared, when Mrs. Glendenning went to court for the custody of a baby boy.

NEW CHICAGO ARENA

By EDWARD C. DEER
United Press Staff Correspondent
CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—Increased interest in winter sports throughout the middle west has encouraged one of Chicago's most intrepid promoters to undertake the building of a huge indoor arena somewhat along the lines of Tex Rickard's Madison Square Garden in New York.

The Chicagoan who wants to capitalize on winter sports is Paddy Harmon, who started his promotional ventures in a very enduring "indoor sport"—dancing. Harmon owns several spacious ballrooms about town and has found it profitable occasionally to use them for sporting events. Now he proposes something bigger—to be given over chiefly to winter sports.

The arena that Harmon proposes to build, and which he hopes to have completed by early autumn, would cost $5,600,000 and would provide seats for 65,000 fans at a boxing exhibition. About 6,000 could be accommodated for indoor football games, ice hockey matches, and six-day bicycle races, compared to the 17,000 capacity of New York's Madison Square Garden.

So certain is Harmon that his arena will be built this summer that he is negotiating with Floyd Fitzsimmons, promoter of the very uncertain Dempsey-Wills championship to have the match held in his plant. This is on the condition, of course, that Chicago votes in favor of boxing at the April election.

Harmon will depend to a great extent upon ice hockey to pay the cost of his arena. He believes this sport is here to stay and points to the success Rickard has had this winter in inaugurating big hockey matches in New York. He has applied for a franchise in the National Hockey league.

Six-day bike races always have been popular in Chicago and with the addition of a half dozen football games during the cold weather, Harmon feels certain his plant would make a financial profit.

HOCKEY

By RUEL S. MOORE
PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 17.—Ice hockey fans are wondering now just how far the Canadian pastime will invade the United States.

Here in Portland, where the Western Hockey League pushed into the States this season for the first time in several years, the ice game has been popularly received. The Coliseum has been packed, while many have been denied admittance to the games because of lack of room.

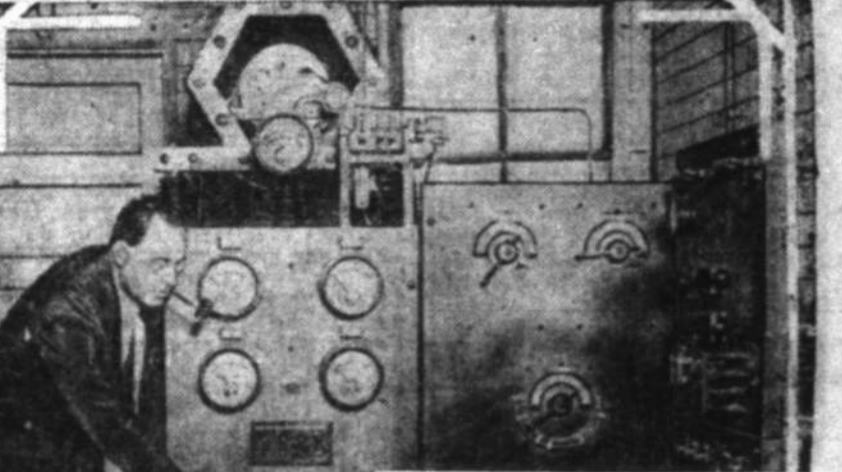

Within the Western League expansion is looked for first at Seattle. There the city is planning to build a big municipal auditorium covering four city blocks, and promoters are seeking to have included under its roof an ice rink.

Heading this move is Wec Coyle, former lieutenant governor of Washington and a prominent sportsman. He would like to see a Seattle team in the league next season.

Los Angeles now has its amateur hockey games, and if San Francisco provides a suitable place for hockey it is quite possible that within a few years there may be a Pacific Coast league.

Deaf Smith County and Hereford Enjoys Prosperity and Expects Banner Year For Crops in 1926

HEREFORD, Jan. 21.—Predictions are that Hereford and Deaf Smith County will have a banner year in 1926 in the way of development, both in the way of new improvements and in the exploitation of the natural resources of the country. These predictions are based largely on the record of the past year, and the prospects for the coming twelve months.

This section has enjoyed a fair growth during the past year. Hereford has had more building during 1925 than has been experienced during any twelve months of the last fifteen year period, and development seems to be only in its infancy. Nearly $35,000 was spent on building here last year. Among these erected was a new $125,000 high school, a $60,000 ice plant, a 12,000 egg capacity hatchery, the completion of a $6,000 county hospital, four brick business houses and some twenty five or more residences in various parts of the city.

One of the largest grain sorghum crops that has been raised in years has just been harvested, and is being threshed and marketed rapidly. Between October 15 and January 15, 204 cars of threshed grain were shipped from Hereford. During the same period of time 250 cars of heads were exported. Threshing is still in full blast and shipping receipts will be large throughout the winter months.

Cotton and wheat yields were cut short during the past year and these crops proved very disappointing to most of the farmers, but the big feed crop, high prices of cattle, larger receipts for cream and poultry help to counterbalance the shortage of these crops. A large acreage has been planted to wheat, and moisture within the next few weeks will give promising prospects for a good yield. The cotton industry is being pushed by the Hereford Chamber of Commerce, and a good acreage is anticipated for the coming year. The Burnett variety is being fostered for this section, and local farmers are being urged to plant only the varieties that are adapted to this section. The local organization has already secured between twelve and fifteen hundred bushels of pure Burnett cotton seed and will distribute this seed in small lots to Deaf Smith County farmers at a slight cost.

Stockmen received more money for their cattle during the past few months than has been realized since the drop came several years ago. The cattle business is on the upward trend here, and a larger number of the farmers are feeding out small bunches of cattle, than in past years. Cattle receipts show that 312 cars have been exported since October 1, with the main part of the shipments in October. One hundred and eighty cars went out from here during that month.

Development of poultry raising and dairying has been nothing short of phenomenal, in this section, over the last few years. Old timers say that fifteen years ago, eggs and butter were shipped into Hereford to supply the local trade. There was very little market then for poultry, that was raised on the farm. A chicken could be bought for a quarter; you got your pick of turkey hens for fifty cents each; the largest and best gobblers sold at seventy-five cents apiece. Today the poultry business is ranked as one of Deaf Smith County's moneys crops. During 1925 around $125,000 worth of poultry and eggs was exported from Hereford, and almost as much was paid local farmers for cream products. More poultry is creating a much better price for chickens and eggs. Last fall local farmers received as high as sixty cents a dozen for eggs. Turkeys sold at thirty-four cents per pound, and hens have been selling right along for more than twenty cents per pound. One farm lady recently purchased a Ford car with her turkeys and other produce, that was brought to town on that certain Saturday.

The establishment of Hereford's mammoth hatchery with a 12,000 egg capacity, by H. H. Hawkins, has marked a milestone in the development of the poultry industry in this section. Already local poultry breeders are planning to double their flocks, and many small farmers are planning to keep a flock of laying hens in the barnyard next year. The county has for its slogan, "A million laying hens for Deaf Smith County" and with a number of ch breeders planning to raise from two to six thousand chickens in a flock, this goal might be realized within a few years' time, it is believed.

Some 200,000 acres of rich pasture land in Deaf Smith County was placed on the market for colonization, during the past few months, and a large portion of this land has been sold to actual settlers. The ranch tracts were cut up into small farms, and are being sold only to actual settlers on easy terms. Over fifty farm homes with complete sets of improvements have been erected in various parts of the county during the past few months, and more will be built before spring. Several thousand acres of virgin soil will be put in crops for the first time this coming spring. Hundreds of acres have already been broken out, and signs of development can be seen in all parts of the county.

Enrollment in the public schools of Hereford for the first semester reveal that immigration to this section is becoming almost a regular thing. Thirty seven students enrolled in the local schools for the first time, and ten states were represented. Students are here from California on the west, and from Michigan on the east and north.

The country seems to be in a fair condition financially, and local people are planning to take active steps towards development of the country's natural resources. A program of diversified farming for the county, and paving of several block in Hereford, are two of the outstanding things outlined for 1926.

 Brandon, who was talking with Graydon, turned to meet Eggleston's eyes fixed on him with a quizzical expression in them. Brandon nodded.

"Yes," he observed, "she'll have many things to say to him, I fancy. For his sake I hope she doesn't say them with a champagne bottle!"

The ancient butler, whose years had flowed with those of his master, entered noiselessly and went up to the table.

"The young lady has arrived, sir," he announced.

There was instant stillness. All in the room, looking intently at the banker, who made a sign to Graydon. The butler went out. A moment later Joanna, suddenly startled by the faces turned toward her, was framed in the doorway. Graydon went up to her and took her hand, gently and led her into the room. He announced to the company simply:

"This is Joanna."

One by one the important seeming men pressed upon her. Dazed, bewildered, fighting for some inkling of understanding, she heard the murmur of words—words, words! They congratulated her; they spoke earnest compliments; they uttered senseless things she couldn't fathom. And as each one bowed and left her he passed out of the room until at last, there were only Graydon, Brandon and Eggleston.

At Brandon's lips she saw the old smile hovering—the old smile, but different. And she saw the same lights in Eggleston's eyes she used to detect in them when they sat across the table together.

"Please!" she pleaded: "What does it all mean?"

Brandon faced her. "It means," he said, "that things are going to be straightened out. For me, the best it means is that you are to know that both you and I were playing a game—and that because you won, that night on La Turbie when I had the bandits thrust you back into the chateau, no body is happier than I."

He left the room then, with Graydon, and Joanna faced her banker alone. Eggleston rose and walked around the table to where she stood, still gripped in the spell of her bewilderment.

He led her to the fireplace and, taking her by the shoulders, turned her around so that she faced him. Above her the canvas image of the girl in the gold frame looked down.

The banker went back to his chair at the table. For a long time neither spoke. Joanna stood almost motionless, her face deathly white. Eggleston gazed at her and she saw that his eyes wandered from her face to the painting over her head, and then back again. At last, he said:

"Your money, my dear, was from me. It was I who was your mysterious benefactor, and it was I who determined that there should be no condition attached to your gift. I wanted to know how you—a girl of today would go; which way you would turn, if left to your own resources."

"It was because of a silly old man's romance—a romance of young days when people have said, 'were different. The one in the painting above you was she to whom I made my promise that I would make her happy and rich. She didn't live—even to marry me. So I've lived alone. The fortune came, but all that I've had of her is the—me if you will have it that way—me! I know, how, that you can carry on for her."

There was much more that Eggleston said; many things that quivered and much of wonder moved in changing procession across the deep brown eyes of the girl, who crumpled at his feet. But the things he said were the useless foolish things that people say when they have much to tell each other of themselves alone. When she spoke of anything else it was of the model on the table, and of how the money had been secretly spent at Joanna's request to make fulfillment of the promise of it.

Or of Brandon and Yvonne. "In a way of his own planning

he only tested you, and it was with my encouragement," the banker said. "He, like me, was skeptical. He professed to know you girls of today. He admits he didn't know you at all. I kept from him the secret of your use of your money. I allowed him to test you to the end."

"That was why, then," Joanna observed, "he threw me into the companionship of Yvonne? I've known there was a reason. I've wondered over it. I think she knew, for I've always realized she was leading me up to things, showing them to me, and then saving game from them."

He nodded gravely. "Yes," he murmured; "I have the impression that one may be profoundly mistaken about many of the world's Yvonne Countants."

Into the silence of the library the old butler intruded.

"Mr. Wilmore has come, sir." Joanna, with a sudden catch at her breath, rose. For a moment she looked up into the face of the girl in the painting—the girl of yesterday.

"If you wouldn't mind," she said quietly, her face pale again, "I'd like to see him in here—alone!"

At the door Eggleston felt her hand on his arm. He saw that the color had come back into her face, and that she was smiling up to him. "It will be quite all right, won't it," she asked brightly. "If I ask you to share me, with him?"

And that was Joanna, Joanna of the deep brown eyes and the shimmering gold brown hair; Joanna of the skirts too short and the lips too red and the tongue too pert. She is the girl next door, or, at the furthest, just across the street. Nothing more, and nothing less, than the Modern American Girl.

The End.

Work On Sudan School Will Start Soon

Material to be used in the erection of the $100,000 high school building at Sudan is being assembled and actual construction work on the building will be under way within a few days, according to E. B. Ribble of the firm of Ribble & Ribble, architects.

All material for the job has been bought, the Fulton Brick and Tile Company furnishing the brick which are of the same type and color that were used in the erection of the Tech College buildings here.

The Lydick Roofing Company of Lubbock has been awarded the contract for building the roof, which will be the Jones-Manville, class A type.

Plumbing will be done by the Roche Newton Company of Lubbock and it will be some time before materials for this feature of the work are assembled. The plumbing and heating equipment will be installed as work on the building progresses, Mr. Ribble said.

Individual lockers for use by students will be provided in each of the 30 class rooms.

The corridor floors will be of reinforced concrete, steel partitions will be used throughout the building, and the ceilings will be of Celotex.

The general contract, which was awarded to Sampson & Bennett of Lubbock, will be under way soon, Mr. Ribble said.

H. G. Ramsey, president of the school board, together with all the other members, are pleased that the building will be erected and equipped throughout at a total cost of about $100,000, leaving some $4,000 of $4,000 of the special bond issue that provided for the erection of the building in the treasury.

Kent County Road Plans Checked By Esmeiers

L. M. Ferlet, county engineer for Kent County having charge of plans for the state highway construction program in that county, was here yesterday with a group of plans on 17.3 miles of highway to be built from the Gaza County line to Claremont.

This is a section of 40 miles of highway that is to be built in that county, and Engineer Ferlet brought the plans to Lubbock to be checked by Division Engineer Geo. Field, who will send them to Austin for final approval or rejection by other state highway engineers.

What Our Neighbors Are Doing

Lon Smith just paid the taxes on his Long-Bell bungalow, and Lon who's like a lot of men don't love to part with dough. To help him to forget the tax and pass the evening by, the Smith's got in their runabout and went to call on Fry. The Fry apartment has no porch—the night was warm for June, the stuffy little bird box drove the Smith's away quite soon. The Smith's owed Mrs. Jones a call so next that's where they went, but Jones was out of humor for he just had paid the rent; and the landlord wouldn't paper and he wouldn't paint the hall—the Jones's were so gloomy that the Smith's cut short their call. And then they went to Wilber's but the first thing Wilber said: "We have to pay out so much rent we'll never get ahead." So when the Smith's had made the rounds and heard these tales of woe they said, "We're very much ahead to OWN our bungalow."

NEW YORK FINANCE
BY TODD W. WRIGHT
United News Financial Editor
NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Although frightened at the initial advances in the stock market, the speculators working for a decline Thursday were still unconvinced that the market had undergone sufficient punishment after its long advance. They proceeded with the utmost caution as a result of the severe drubbing sustained in the last half hour Wednesday and their efforts to determine the line of least resistance brought about most erratic fluctuations throughout the major portion of the session.

When prices showed a marked reluctance to advance, however, the bears put out heavy selling lines with the result that they succeeded in forcing prices down rather sharply in the final trading.

The average speculative mind is in such a turmoil as a result of the weird movements the last week of so that attempts to forecast the next hour's trend by venturous spirits are greeted with jeers of derision.

If the present condition of the market, that is, of lower prices had prevailed several weeks ago during more orderly periods of advances and declines, it would seem apparent that the bottom had been reached and that an advance was in order.

But under the present situation, with such a wide divergence of opinion or lack of it, the market is just as apt to go down as up. Several observers claim it is in a sold out condition but they have been claiming that for some time and so far the bears have had much the best of it.

One thing is certain and that is that nothing in the world outside of Wall Street is to blame for the confusion existing in the markets, both industrial and business activities are showing no signs of slackening and there is nothing on the horizon to indicate any change in the present condition for the next six months at least.
