Potts Buy Insurance Agency

Announcement was this week made of the purchase of Sherman Insurance Agency by Wendell Potts, a former associate in the firm. Take over was effective May 1. The agency, located at the corner of Main and Eighth Streets, will continue operation under the name Potts Insurance Agency, without interruption of business procedure.

On the eve of his first anniversary as an Olton resident, May 1, Potts explains "We came to Olton with high anticipation of enjoying a better quality of life than we were able to experience in a metropolitan area. Our anticipation has been more than fulfilled.

"We like living in the smaller community. We like to know people and be known and accepted for what we are. For the first time in our lives we feel that we are able to return something of ourselves into society, whereas heretofore, we had only been receivers.

"We came to Olton to make it our home, and now, with the purchase of the insurance agency, we feel that we have a real sense of 'putting down roots' in the community."

Potts is a native of Chickasha, Okla., where he was reared on a farm. In 1954 he and his high school sweetheart, the former Marilyn Powers were married. He went on to earn a degree in history in 1958 from Baylor University.

He has worked all of the intervening years in insurance. Mentioning three different areas of the insurance field, Potts states that he worked the first three years in Underwriting; the following 16 years he spent in claims and adjustments; and since coming to the city he has had experience with Insurance Sales.

His earlier years of experience have been in Oklahoma City, Dallas and Lubbock. He has been in the West Texas area since 1966.

The Potts are parents of three children. A daughter, Karen, is employed in the city and a younger daughter, Janabeth is second grade student. A son, Richard, is sophomore student at Texas Tech University, working toward a degree in accounting. The Potts are members of First Baptist Church, where he teaches in the Youth department of Sunday School.

Mrs. Potts, formerly secretary to Bill Kelley in Frontier Savings and Loan, will be working with her husband in the Agency as receptionist and secretary. Mrs. Eleanor Sudduth, who has been with Sherman Agency since 1972 will continue in her position.

From the background of his experience, Potts hopes to be of service to patrons. He invites inquiries, whether in a small matter or a review of an entire insurance program.

His cordial invitation is extended to all to come by the insurance office as questions arise, or just for a cup of coffee and visit in order to get better acquainted with "the insurance man."

Sounding Board

Have your say. Call 285-2631 and tell us what's on your mind. No names asked.

Dress Code

Dear Sounding Board,

I do not live in Olton, however I have been very interested in the articles pro and con about the school's dress code. From an outsider's point of view, let me give you some points to ponder. First of all, the students of Olton High School have for years received many compliments about their physical appearances when attending functions in other communities and I certainly hope that in the future they will continue to do so.

I firmly believe a school needs to establish and enforce a dress code. When students are expected to look nice they have healthier self-concepts and do much better on the academic level. If they are allowed a "play" atmosphere of dress, more than likely they will attend school with the attitude of "play". I believe that students basically want discipline even though this is a period in their lives that the popular thing to do is to "rebel against authority". They need the security of knowing that some things are stable and cannot be changed from year to year simply by yeilding to a small group's current desires.

People today like to scream about their "rights". What about their responsibilities to teach the youth that there are rules in society and there must be rules in society in order to function successfully? Students who say "no school is going to tell me what to wear, how to wear my hair, when I can leave, etc.," unfortunately are the ones in life who cannot hold a job or fail in their marriages because "they weren't going to boss me around like that," or "I just couldn't take the hassel."

I know a school that has no dress code. The results are very little leadership, very little citizenship, misplaced school pride, limited emphasis placed on scholastic successes and many students have very little knowledge of human values. Cheating is very acceptable among them. They talk freely of "ripping-off" some store or having the "biggie" of the weekend which consists of the beer bust. I think it is time parents and schools quit trying to be a "pal" to students and instead teach them some guides for living that will help them become successful adults. There are students who go to this school who are good citizens, leaders, and do well academically, but they are few in number and are not accepted socially by their peers because they are "different."

Can a dress code be important? I say Amen! When dressing for rebellion against the establishment, the days are limited that the student cares about anything, including himself.

Stick to your rules and give these students something they really need - and that is someone who cares about their futures!

Respectfully,
A Former Graduate

Fine Place

Dear Olton:

I was born as a citizen of yours, and I want to tell you that I'm proud of you. Your fine people have made this a fine community that we are proud to rear our children in.

Yes, Olton, I'm proud of your economic growth also. I have seen you during periods of 'boom' and in times of 'slump'. But, Olton, don't let anybody discourage you now, for as I see it....you are starting to blossom as a beautiful West Texas town.

Never before have you had so many progressive looking businesses, with people so interested in their appearance.

Thank you, fellow citizens, for working together to make Olton a beautiful and pleasant place to live.

Praise Given

We are so quick to find fault and so slow to praise. The Sounding Board has had a good share of complaints but I'd like to recognize one of Olton's most taken for granted citizens.

Frances Redinger promotes Olton everv day in ever so many ways. She's a booster, a builder, a backer!

She's what every Chamber of Commerce seeks - a 100 percenter! There are none who, if they "walked in her shoes two miles," could match her loyalty or her labors.

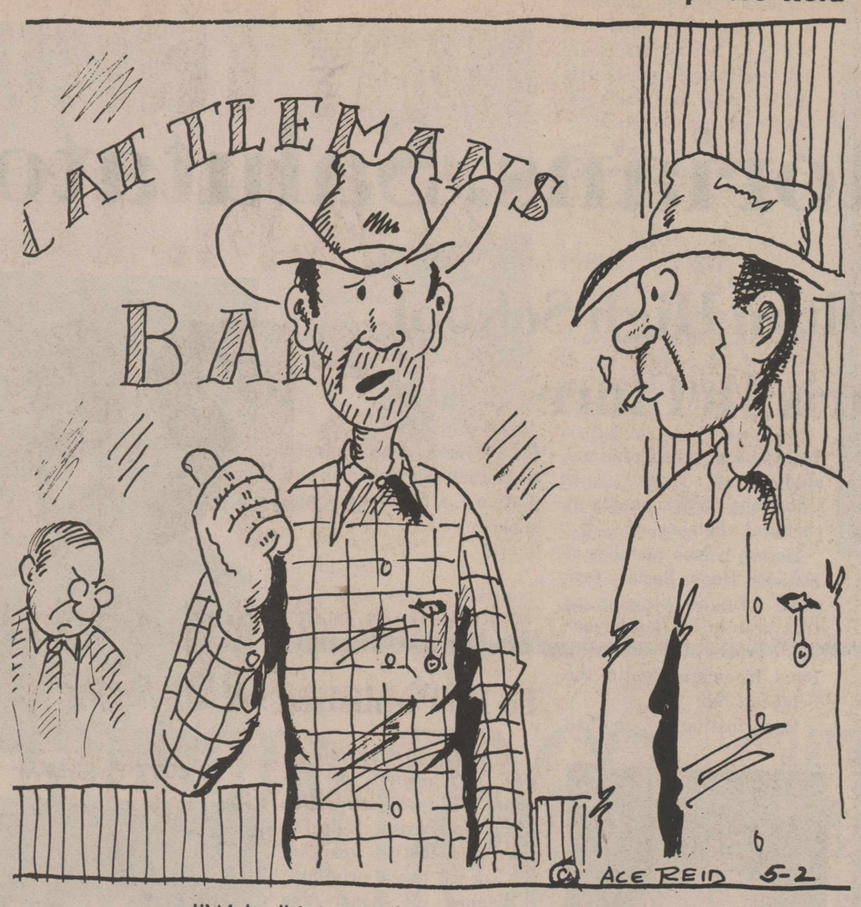

Chamber officers and members should wake up. There's not one Chamber of Commerce and Agriculture member who would fill those shoes, work so diligently and care so much and for such a meager wage!

If any should dare believe that her tasks are confined to a 9 to 12 schedule five days a week, they have not been watching our Chamber Maid.

Weeds Begone!

Spring has sprung and all the little weeds and grasses are turning pretty and green. Trouble with their new spring wardrobes though is that the weeds will continue to flourish and are going to make our town look unloved and uncared for. Why can't we take it as a town-wide project to "beautify Olton"? Sure it's going to cost us if we water flowers, but the weeds are going to live and thrive without water UNLESS we eliminate them!

COW POKES — By Ace Reid

"Wul, all I got in there wuz a hard look!"

'See You Tomorrow'

BY REX BOYLES

We were both seventeen--the best of friends. We had played baseball together as Little Leaguers. We were pretty good, even if we were the only ones that thought so! In school we played football together. He was an end--I was a quarterback. We both made the team. Both of us played in the band. Both of us played the trombone. The band director could never decide which one of us was the best, so both of us played first part. We were even on the basketball team together. Neither one of us got to play very much, but we sure practiced a lot. We were friends.

They called us the Bobsy twins. We wore the same size clothes. (We even used to swap shirts, much to the consternation of our mothers). We liked the same girls, sometimes at the same time. We laughed at the same jokes and hated the same subjects. We were friends.

We were together all of the time. I was either up at his house, or he was out at mine. We were either pitching a football around or pitching review questions at each other for the next history test. We were either picking at each other or picking out dreams to share with each other. We were friends.

We were both seventeen in the summer before our Senior year. He had gone on a trip with his parents right after school let out in May. It was the middle of June when he got back to town. I was working hard out at the farm, so I had not seen him since he had come back.

One evening I got off work early so I dashed off to town. As I made my first drag through town, I spotted his car. We pulled over to the square and exchanged jokes. I got in with him, and we were off to "do the town". We did the old everyday normal things, drove around and honked at the girls, and laughed a month's worth.

Toward 11 p.m. it was getting about time for me to head home so I had him pull up to my car. After a couple of quick jabs I got in my car to head home. Just before I pulled out he hollered out his window, "see you tomorrow".

Good folks---tomorrow never comes. I got home and sat down to watch a little of the late late show. The phone rang. "Hello?" And the voice on the other end told me.

Do not play around with your life---your time---your now. Are you trying to decide if you need Jesus? You do. Are you waiting to obey Jesus? Please don't...

MRS. ROYCE McFADDEN

Cook Of The Week

Twenty years ago our Cook of the Week, then a Future Homemaker at OHS, prepared dinner for her homemaking instructor and the yummy dessert she served was made with one of the recipes she shares this week.

Mrs. Royce McFadden, then Barbara Jones, found the multi-faceted dessert recipe in an old magazine and served the banana version to Miss Mildred Carter, now Mrs. Cecil "Bill" Smith.

Barbara loves to cook and has searched for and found a number of recipes which have been approved by her family and friends. She has also become adept at finding dishes that are tasty but yet easy to take to the field for her busy farmer husband.

Both McFaddens grew up and attended Olton schools. They are members of First Baptist Church where Barbara sings with the sanctuary choir. They are parents of three sons and a daughter.

Mark is 16; Monty, 15; Melissa, 12 and Michael, five. The young McFaddens, with the encouragement and support of their parents, are active in 4-H work.

A large garden each year gives Barbara the opportunity to stock her freezer and pantry. She enjoys the work involved in canning and freezing.

Barbara likes to sew. There's very little time in the family's busy schedule for boating and fishing but they are sports the family loves.

Wood Jordon Davis

Between Two Draws

By Mardema Ogletree

No welcome wagon was around when the weary beaver hunters from Taos, N.M. arrived in the Sand Hills in October of 1832. They were met, however, by Comanches on horseback, equipped with spears and bows.

The leader of the well-armed beaver hunters, Albert Pike, ordered the Comanches to keep their distance. Antonio, the guide, then led the Taos party to nearby marshy ground where there was water (probably near Sod House Spring). The travel-worn party made camp. A short distance away was the Indian camp with about twenty tipis and an estimated thousand horses.

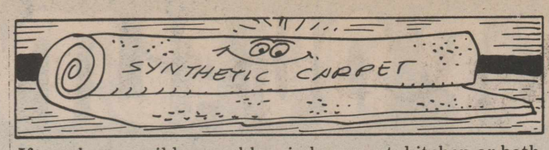

Some of the hunters went to the Comanche camp to trade tobacco and vermillion for wood and dried buffalo meat. They were told that most of the warriors had gone on a hunt up north. Pike and some of his men, including the famous old mountain man Bill Williams, were invited to eat with the old Comanche chief and his family. They sat outside the lodge around a fire over which a small brass kettle hung. The boiled flesh of a fat, freshly-killed buffalo cow was served in wooden bowls. Following the supper was the smoking ceremony. The pipe was passed around to everyone, including the women. Pike's party paid for the hospitality with tobacco and a knife or two. As they left the Comanche camp, the old chief assured the hunters that they should find beaver in about nine days.

Pike's men traveled for a short distance east through hackberry-covered sandhills. From the Sand Crawl, they followed a southeasterly direction along the Brazos de Dios River (Blackwater Draw). The next campsite mentioned in Pike's account of the journey was the Canon del Resgate (where Blackwater Draw joins Yellow House Canyon in present day Lubbock).

So it was that some early day visitors to the Olton-Earth-Springlake region enjoyed some Southern Comanche hospitality.

NOTE: Albert Pike's account of the trip, "Journeys in The Prairie," was published first in 1834. The book was reprinted in 1969 by The Panhandle-Plains Historical Society in Canyon.

Ag Coop Provides Experience

Lee Moore, Vocational Agriculture instructor at OHS, directs the Agricultural Cooperative Training Program. This program provides students with learning through first hand experiences, provides on-the-job training which allows them to observe operations of farms, ranches, cattle industry and farm supported businesses.

The experience the ag students receive in the co-op program, prepares them to exist in the agri-business world.

There's no teacher like experience, claim most educators who prepare students for vocations. And, through this program, experience is the key as classroom teaching is supplemented by on-the-job work schedules for students.

The high school program of vocational agriculture education is designed to meet the needs of youth who plan to enter farming, ranching, or other agricultural occupations. The Cooperative Part-time Training courses provide instructions for high school students who have an interest in and a vocational need for becoming established in an off-farm agricultural occupation. It is also designed to provide technical instruction, on-the-job training, and work experience for high school vocational agriculture students preparing to enter employment in agricultural occupations.

This phase of the vocational agriculture program gives students an opportunity to spend part of their school time in on-the-job training with local agricultural business and industrial firms. Students participating are enrolled in regular high school courses, including one period of related agricultural instruction, during which time they study information related to their on-the-job training. They spent 15 hours each week on the job learning the skills and management practices involved, under the guidance of a skilled instructor selected from the firm in which the student is working.

These students are also active in the local chapter of Future Farmes of America (FFA) which provides compeition through local, area, state and national level competition in livestock, parliamentary procedure, FFA quiz, skills, farm radio, grasses, cotton, land, crops, wool, dairy products, poultry, meats and dairy cattle.

Choose

Home Economics Coop

The major goal of the home economics cooperative education program is to prepare youth to meet their responsibilities as individuals in our society. Teacher coordinators and employers guide students in adjusting to employment conditions and in developing desirable attitudes toward school, employment, social and civic responsibilities.

Home Economics Cooperative Education prepares students for employment in occupations requiring knowledge and skills in one or more home economics subject areas. These may include child development, clothing and textiles, consumer education, family living, food and nutrition, home management, and housing. These programs were provided for in the Vocational Education Act of 1963. This act authorized funds for the expansion of Vocational Homemaking Education through the development of programs to prepare persons for employment in occupations related to home economics. Acts prior to 1963 authorized funds for homemaking education only, so the gainful employment emphasis has been a "new dimension" in Vocational Homemaking Education since 1963.

Occupations approved for Home Economics Cooperative Education programs must (1) be classified as a home economics occupation requiring knowledge and skills in one or more of the following home economics subject areas: child development, clothing and textiles, consumer education, family living, food and nutrition, home management, and housing, (2) provide a minimum of 160 hours of class instruction for Quarter Unit Plan and 525 hours of supervised on-the-job training and work experience per school year in an approved home economics occupation.

Approved occupations include the following: arts and craft aide, bridal consultant, child care aide, clothing assistant, companion to elderly, consumer aide, dietetic aide, fabric coordinator, fashion coordinator, floral designer, food caterer, food service employee, home furnishings aide, housekeeping management assistant, physical fitness assistant, tester of foods and tester of textiles.

Under the Quarter Unit Plan (55 min. periods) students may earn SIX QUARTER UNITS upon satisfactory completion of 160 hours of classroom instruction and 525 hours of supervised work experience per school year. Students may earn 12 quarter units if they are enrolled in the program for two years.

Girls who are enrolled in the home economics program include Brynea Allcorn, Elva Bribiesca, Alicia Mosqueda, Sherri Daubert, Mandy Griffin, Michelle Lawson and Carol Prentice.

Primary Aim Of CVAE Is Occupational Competence

"Primary aim of occupational experience programs," says David Maxey, co-ordinator of the CVAE (Coordinated Vocational-Academic Education) program, "is the development of occupational competence."

Those programs are, therefore, vocational in essence rather than general education. Two kinds of occupational experience programs are available: work-study and cooperative. Both use real-life job employment as a fountain of learning.

Primary difference of the two programs is that work-study programs have as their purpose general occupational education. Basically, cooperative experience programs are training programs, Maxey explains.

Objectives of cooperative part-time training are to fit students for useful employment in occupations of their choice in which there are available openings and to permit them to earn credits toward high school graduation while training on a part-time job.

The program also provides additional medium for learning and student motivation while establishing a cooperative relationship with local business.

Coordinated Vocational-Academic Education is the Texas Education Agency Vocational Program designed for students with special learning needs. It is intended for in-school youth possessing academic, socio-economic or other handicaps to such extent as to prevent them from succeeding in traditional educational endeavors.

The program, by including a combination of vocational and modified academic instruction, provides opportunities to acquire saleable vocational skills while also acquiring basic knowledge in the fields of math, science, English and social studies.

Locally the program is conducted with emphasis on pre-employment shop training and a modified academic program. Students learn six trades, carpentry, cement finishing, bricklaying, plumbing, painting and electrical work.

First year students have classroom and shop work with much time devoted to the proper use and care of tools. Safety rules are also stressed.

Second year CVAE students go out and perform simple repair jobs for townspeople as well as building and repairing tasks about the school. The group does considerable cement work.

CVAE Provides Opportunity For Diversified Employment

John Paul Jones is coordinator of the CVAE (Coordinated Vocational Academic Education) program for Olton High School. This program offers students with opportunity for diversified work.

As long as the job is a wage earning job, it qualifies. The students, as the other cooperative programs in High School, go to school half a day and are required to work at least 15 hours a week on-the-job.

Objectives of Cooperative part time training are (1) to fit boys and girls for useful employment in occupations of their choice in which there are available openings; (2) to permit boys and girls to earn credits toward high school graduation while training on a part-time job; (3) to provide additional medium for learning; (4) to provide more opportunity for student motivation; (5) to establish a cooperative relationship with local business; and (6) to provide high school boys and girls with valuable training, experience on real jobs under real working conditions.

Students who are involved in this program receive many advantages. An opportunity is provided to learn a trade or occupation while earning a high school dipolma. This program also offers the opportunity to learn the technical information of an occupation as well as the manipulative skills. Through related instruction, the student is enabled to better understand the nature of the work he is performing. Another opportunity this program provides is to establish a reputation on the job through two years of experience.

CVAE is the Texas Education Agency Vocational program including a combination of vocational and modified academic instruction that provides the dual educational opportunities of acquiring a saleable vocational skill while also acquiring basic knowledge in the fields of math, science, English, and social studies. This dual phase approach enables students enrolled to reach maximum personal development, including employment potential, within their ability in the shortest possible time.

Presently there are 22 students working at 15 different places of business. These rnage from service station attendents to pump workers, farm helpers, mechanics and many other phases of work.

In preparation for this on-the-job program, Jones' class is studying how to apply for a job; writing application letters; good grooming; good manners; attitude on the job and with fellow workers; personel effectiveness; managing money; balancing the budget; buying goods and services; income tax and Social Security; credit and installment buying; and improving coversation ability.

This program has been extremely fruitful due to the splendid reception of the business men, according to Jones.

ENERGY SAVING TIP

Are you getting the fuel-economy you should on your car? Check it out frequently. Make a note of your mileage when your tank is full. Then check it again when you buy more gas to fill it again. By dividing the number of miles you've traveled by the number of gallons you've bought, you get the miles-per-gallon your car delivers.

you can BANK on it!

By Kenneth Burgess
Olton State Bank

Like most large systems in twentieth century America, the banking system is clogged with paper -- and it isn't all currency.

The statistics on just the checks written are mind-boggling!

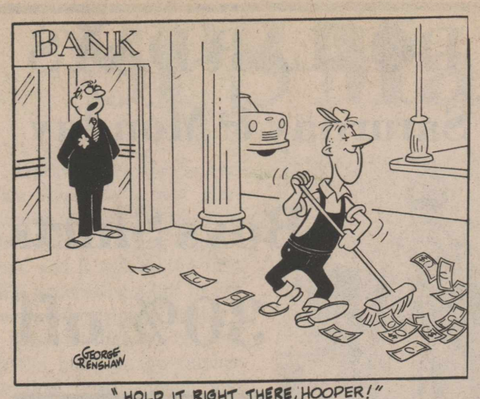

In 1939 there were some 27 million checking accounts in America, and 3.5 billion checks were written. Less than 25 years later there were 58 million accounts and 14.5 billion checks written for a total of $4.6 trillion dollars.

In the next 10 years these figures nearly doubled to 97 million accounts, 23 billion checks totaling $10.6 trillion!

It is this staggering paper flow that has led many to examine the concept of a "checkless, cashless society." Methods for transferring funds electronically, virtually eliminating all paper including cash, are being explored at all levels of the banking system.

The technology to establish an electronic funds transfer system is currently available. Most experts agree, however, that we probably will be well into the next century before a complete checkless, cashless society could become a reality.

RECORD TORNADOES

In terms of intensity and area covered, the most violent Texas tornado on record swepth White Deer, Glazier and Higgins in Texas and Woodward in Oklahoma on Apr. 9, 1947. The huge vortex of this tornado was one and a half miles wide and 221 miles long. The smallest Texas tornado on record was no more than six to eight feet in diameter and occurred in Austin on May 17, 1965.

WARNING SYSTEM

Although the National Weather Service began keeping statistics on tornadoes in 1916, the first full year of the present warning system was 1953. Partly due to improved equipment and partly through increased public awareness, the Weather Service believes that the records assembled after 1953 offer an essentially complete picture of tornado occurence nationwide.

Feedlots Still Show Decline

The number of cattle being fed in area feedlots is still on the decline, it was revealed today in the 1976 Fed Cattle Report compiled by the Agricultural Development Department of Southwestern Public Service Company.

The report covers the 45,000 square mile area served by SPS, including 30 counties on the North and South Plains of Texas, 4 counties in Eastern New Mexico, 3 in the Oklahoma Panhandle and one county in Southwestern Kansas.

Fed cattle production for 1975 was down 19.6 percent with 3,280,443 cattle fed compared to 4,082,142 in 1974. The peak year for number of cattle fed was 1973 when area feedlots fed 4,962,763 head. The 1975 figure represents a decline of 33.9 percent since 1973.

Feedlot capacity since 1974-the peak year-has also declined 5.1 percent while the number of feedlots with 1,000 head capacity and above has gone down from 191 in 1971 to 148 at the beginning of this year.

Sam Thomas, SPS Agricultural Development Manager thinks that the long term future for the cattle feeding industry is bright. "The experiences of the past two years has had a stong similarity to the 1963-64 periods when the profit picture was so bad it appeared the cattle feeding development was dead. The more recent experience has been complicated by higher grain costs and feeder cattle, but the enthusiasm, dejection, despondency and elation that comes from the feed yards follows a very familiar pattern."

SPS Marks 'First'

Southwestern Public Service Company's new Harrington Station northeast of Amarillo, is nearing completion, and it will be the first SPS generating plant to use coal as its primary fuel.

The coal that will be used in the plant is low-sulpher western coal mined and brought in by unit train from Gillette, Wy. The trains have about 110 cars designed and built specifically to haul coal. Each unit train brings about 10,000 tons of coal to the plant on a twice-a-week schedule.

Southwestern's system chemistry laboratory has recently been enlarged and expanded to provide a complete facility for analyzing and testing coal.

The lab, located at the Nichols Station plant one mile south of the new Harrington Station, takes coal samples for testing and analyzing from two different sources.

The first source is at the mine site where the coal is being loaded into the unit train. The purpose of the tests of this sample is to assure SPS that it is getting the kind of quality of coal for which it is paying. The lab analyzes the moisture content, the percent ash, the percent volatile and most important, the heat value or the BTU content of the coal.

While the price of coal is generally expressed in terms of dollars per ton, Southwestern actually buys the coal on a BTU per ton basis. In other words, it's the amount of energy in the coal that determines its value.

The second source of samples of coal for testing is from the conveyor belt at the power plant where the coal is being moved from the crusher house to the bunker or storage silo. This sample is primarily for operational control. Immediate results indicate the kind of coal that is being fed into the boiler at that particular time.

Testing and analysis of coal in the SPS system lab starts with the preparation of the coal sample. The coal is poured into a pulverizer and ground to a very fine powder-like consistency.

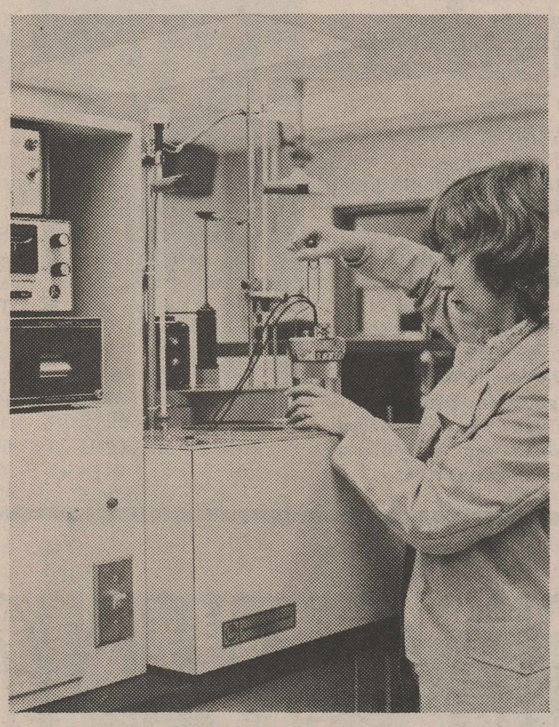

The first analysis is to determine the heat value or the BTU content. This is done in a laboratory apparatus called a Adiabatic Calorimeter. It measures the rise in temperature of a water bath caused by the heat generated when the coal sample is burned in an atmosphere of pure oxygen. The rise in temperature is compared to the rise experienced when a material is burned that has a known BTU content or is considered a standard. This comparison gives the BTU content or heat value of the sample.

The BTU content of the coal SPS is receiving from the mines in Wyoming will average about 8,700 per ton.

The test is computer programmed and a digital thermometer records the temperature rise as the sample burns while a digital printer records the results on tape.

The next test is to determine the percent of volatile elements in the coal - primarily the amount of hydro-carbons and fixed carbon in the sample. A weighed sample is placed in a crucible and placed in a 555 degree C. electric furnace for six minutes to remove the moisture. The sample is then placed in a second oven for an additional six minutes at 950 degrees C. Then the sample is weighed and the weight loss represents the amount or percent of volatile materials.

Another important aspect of the coal that must be determined in the laboratory is the percent of ash it contains. To make this test, the sample is placed in a 750 degree C. furnace equipped with forced air. Complete combustion is attained in this analysis and all that remains is the ash - oxides of iron, aluminum, silica, calcium and magnesium.

ANALYZING THE HEAT VALUE

Analyzing the heat value of BTU content of a coal sample is one of the many tests performed at the Southwestern Public Service Company system laboratory, near Amarillo. Production chemist, Diana Price uses computer controlled equipment to make the test.

The coal that SPS is receiving for use at Harrington Station has approximately five percent ash. This means that in every 100 ton car of coal there will be about five tons of ash. The 350,000 kilowatt unit at the new plant will use about 1-million tons of coal per year, leaving about 50,000 tons of fly ash.

Southwestern Public Service Company engineers are now looking at various markets and uses for the fly ash. It is particularly suited for use as a roadbed material, as an additive for concrete mixes and for landfill uses.

When coal is burned in a boiler, it is necessary to know the fusibility or melting point of the ash. At certain temperatures, the ash begins to form slag inside the boiler and on the outside of the boiler tubes. This can eventually cause major problems in the boiler and lead to a complete shut-down for cleaning and repairs.

To determine the fusibility of ash, the sample is shaped into a cone and heated in an ash fusion furnace. By viewing the sample through an optical pyrometer, a devise for measuring the temperature of glowing objects, the melting point can be determined.

The temperature in the boiler is then kept just below this melting point, thus preventing the formation of slag and damage to the boiler.

Since the fly ash will be sold for other uses, it is important that an analysis be made to determine the percent of trace materials it contains. Trace materials include such metals as lead and arsenic that have a potential of being harmful to the environment. These tests make sure that the fly ash will not contaminate the water strata or nearby lakes and streams when used for commercial purposes.

The percent of trace metals in the coal sample are determined by the use of an atomic absorbtion spectrophotometer. The sample is burned in a graphite furnace and a spectrical light beam analyzes the sample.

Finally, the coal sample is given a sieve analysis to check the size of the coal and to make sure it is not too large for the crusher equipment at the power plant. On the other hand, if the coal is too fine, it will be hard to control and create dust problems. This test also checks the performance of the coal pulverizer at the plant.

The introduction of coal as a boiler fuel marks a milestone in the energy picture for the 45,000 square miles served by Southwestern Public Service Company. No more power plants will be built by SPS that use natural gas as the primary fuel. However, gas will play an important role for some time to come. But, the future belongs to coal and ultimately to uranium and nuclear power..

Around The Cinder Track

BY FAYE BROWN

"It's not whether you win or lose, it's how you play the game."

And that's what the Fillies did. They fought until the bitter end and came out with winning smiles. The competition was the best that they could bargain for and the Fillies graciously bowed down to the winners. Nothing can stand in the way of good sportsmanship and team pride.

All ended not in vain, but with a winner. Carla Clark sprinted for an easy victory in the half-mile. Carla was state champ last year in the 880 and will be going to Austin this year to defend the title. 2.22.2 was Carla's time last Saturday in Odessa. She plans to take those numbers down a few notches and try to "run as fast as I can," she says. Last year she ran a 2.19 and wants to run a lot faster this time.

Carla still has a lot of work to do before she goes off to Austin. She will be leaving Olton May 6 and will run Friday night in the finals.

Everyone wishes Carla the best of luck and hopes she comes out a winner! Good Luck Carla!

Results of Odessa Regional Track Meet:

880 yard run-1st, Carla Clark.

80 yard hurdles-4th, Cindy Moore.

60 yard dash-6th, Marla Faver.

The mile and 880 yard relays ran their fastest times. Although the 880 yard relay, consisting of Elaine Rodriguez, Dusty Kinnison, Kim Kinnison and Marla Faver, did not qualify for the finals, they ran a 1.49.7, the fastest they've run this year.

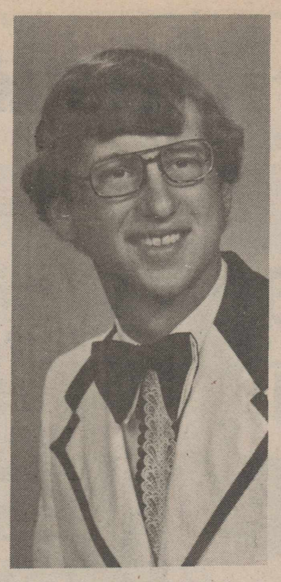

CARLA CLARK AT DISTRICT

The mile relay, consisting of Elaine Rodriguez, Dusty Kinnison, Jennie Davis and Kim Kinnison, qualified for the finals with a 4.15. The girls were disqualified but ran their best with a 4.10.

The ladies ran their best and they appreciate the support of all their fans.

PARENTS VISIT

Mr. and Mrs. Alva Kersh returned Monday from a visit downstate. In Alvarado they visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Kersh and sons; in Hurst they visited in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Kersh and Ernest. They also visited with Mrs. Flora Welch in Saginaw and in the home of cousins in Fort Worth. Fishing and fish dinners were also reported.

MONTY MALONE

Monte Malone To Graduate

Monte Malone of Odessa, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Malone, is graduating from Permian High School, ranking tenth in his graduating class of 716. Graduation excercises are May 28.

A member of the National Honor Society, he posts a grade point average of 96.4. He plans to study pre-law at Texas University.

An outstanding basketball player, the 6' 8" youth saw limited action this year after suffering an injury. He did earn a letter despite the injury.
