In Brief

Tropical storm

MIAMI (AP) — Tropical storm warnings were posted along the eastern coast of Mexico today as a tropical depression in the Gulf of Mexico showed signs of gaining strength and coming ashore there. There was no immediate threat to the United States.

At 11 a.m. EDT, the depression was at 21.0 degrees north latitude and 96.4 degrees west longitude, or about 130 miles southeast of Tampico, Mexico, according to the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

"If it were to hit the United States, it would be the southern part of Texas, but that is very improbable" judging by the direction and strength of the system, forecaster Bob Ebaugh said early today.

The system's maximum sustained winds were about 35 mph and it was moving west at 8 mph. Winds were expected to strengthen past the 39 mph minimum threshold required for a tropical storm by the time it hits the coast, forecasters said.

The system could become Debby, the fourth named storm of the Atlantic hurricane season, later today before moving across the Mexican coast between Tuxpan and Cabo Rojo.

The depression began several days ago as a tropical wave in the Caribbean.

Trustees to adopt tax rate

Snyder public school trustees will hold a special meeting at 5 o'clock today to set the tax rate.

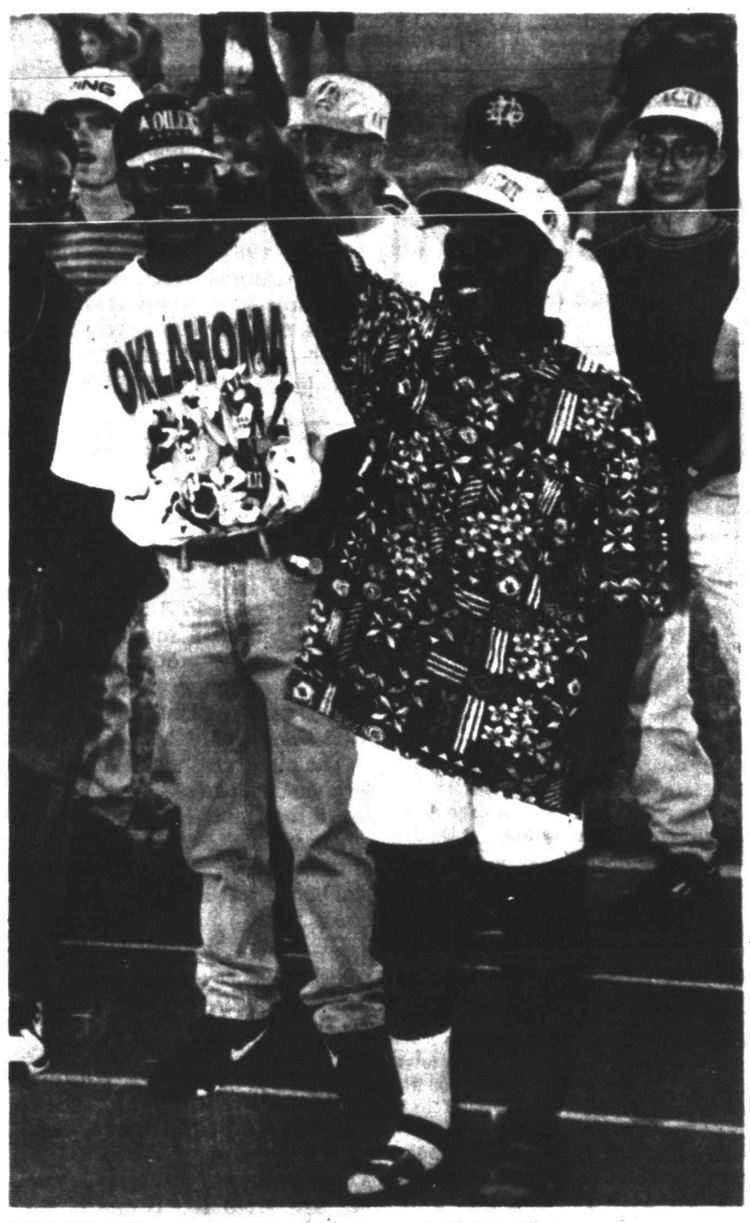

Trustees are expected to set the tax rate at $1.44 per $100 valuation, a figure which, when combined with other revenues, would bring the district $16,150,894.

Earlier this month, trustees approved a 1994-95 budget of $16,370,899. However, the board immediately agreed to amend the newly approved budget in September by some $42,000, which will bring the total to $16,412,899.

The amendment will be made to allow for full implementation of a paraprofessional pay scale. The budget approved by trustees included a two-year phase-in of the pay scale. Administrators have been directed by the board to phase in the scale in one year.

A tax rate of $1.44 would leave revenues approximately $262,005 short of expenditures. Trustees note that the 1993-94 budget is expected to generate $200,000 in revenues over expenditures, which will be placed in the district's reserve fund. The administration will then make up the $262,000 deficit from the fund, estimated at $3 million.

SISD's tax rate was $1.3593 in 1993-94 and due to declining oil and mineral rights, the 1994-95 effective rate is $1.62. However, school districts are limited to a $1.50 cap on local taxes.

HISD holds line on taxes

Despite a loss in values of about $2 million, Hermleigh ISD trustees on Monday decided to put a rope around taxes.

Trustees set a tax rate of $1.3672 for 1994-95, the same rate as the district imposed for the 1993-94 year.

They also adopted a budget for 1994-95 of $1,189,663, a cut of about $30,000 from the previous year.

Supt. Jerry Church said that revenues will probably be about $30,000 to $40,000 less than expenditures, meaning the district will have to reach into its $250,000 reserves.

"There's still quite a bit of discussion about what we will get from the state," said Supt. Church. "You hope for the best, but I always fear for the worst when it comes to state funds."

Hermleigh received some $716,000 from the state for 1993-94.

HISD's effective rate for 1994-95 is $1.54. However, school districts are prevented by law from exceeding $1.50 per $100 in value.

The district lost about a half-million dollars in property values this year. More impactful was a decision by the board to not tax automobiles. That will cost the district about $1.5 million in values, Supt. Church said.

In the only other business Monday, trustees approved an inter-local agreement with the HOBBS at-risk school and an agreement with Ira ISD to allow for the education of a non-resident student.

Supt. Church said the agreement with Ira allows that district to count one student in its weighted average daily attendance, which reflects state funding. The agreement does not impact Hermleigh since the student has never attended HISD, but it does help Ira, Supt. Church said.

All trustees were present Monday.

SDN football contest begins with this issue

The 1994 high school football season is set to kick off this weekend, and once again readers of the Snyder Daily News have an opportunity to cash in — winning up to $1,000.

Added to the excitement on the field, the SDN presents its annual Football Contest, which debuts in today's issue.

The rules are simple. Just pick who you think will win in each of the 20 games listed in the advertisements on Page 10. If, after the final touchdown has been scored, you have picked the most games correctly, you'll win $50. There are also second and third place prizes of $25 and $15. A perfect score — all 20 games picked correctly — wins $250. And for anyone who picks all 20 games plus the exact score on the tie-breaker, a $1,000 prize is waiting.

There are no age requirements and anyone can enter. However, you can only enter one time each week. Entries must be on the official entry blank which will be in each Tuesday's paper throughout the regular high school season.

Entry blanks should be filled out and mailed to Football Contest Editor, Snyder Daily News, Box 949, Snyder TX 79550, or brought to the news office at 3600 College Ave. Entries must arrive at the news office no later than 5 p.m. Friday.

For complete contest rules and entry information — and for your first try at prognosticating this season — see Page 10.

Seven nations agree to join coalition against Haiti elite

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Seven Caribbean nations have agreed to join an American-led military coalition to remove Haiti's ruling elite, senior U.S. government officials said today.

The seven were to announce their participation today at a meeting here of defense and foreign ministers from members of the 13-nation Caribbean Community.

The seven are Barbados, Trinidad, Antigua, Bahamas, Guyana, Jamaica and Belize, according to a U.S. official who spoke to reporters enroute from Washington on grounds that he not be identified. These seven nations are the only Caribbean countries with armies.

Barbados, Jamaica and Belize already had indicated they would contribute to the coalition, which would consist mainly of American troops. The Caribbean forces would perform mainly police functions in the immediate aftermath of an invasion, should President Clinton decide to launch the attack.

"We are very close to exhausting all peaceful means" of restoring democracy in Haiti, the official said. He said the administration was not yet ready to issue a final ultimatum for Haiti's ruling military elite to leave the island.

The planned U.S.-led force would include thousands of troops, supplemented by police, civilian technicians and administrators. Its mission would be to forcibly remove Haitian army chief Lt. Gen. Raoul Cedras and the rest of the military leadership if they do not quit the country first. If the junta leaves, the coalition's task is to restore order.

President Clinton has said the use of military force remains an option, but international efforts are continuing to achieve a peaceful transition. U.N. Secretary-General Boutros Boutros-Ghali is attempting to lay the groundwork to persuade Haiti's leaders to surrender peacefully, but the results appear highly uncertain.

The administration on Monday sought to dispel the notion that its plans for a possible invasion to oust Cedras had taken a back seat to the crisis in Cuba.

"The planning is proceeding and it is incorrect to say that the timetable has been set back because of Cuba," said a senior U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Michael McCurry, a State Department spokesman, said, "We prefer to see a peaceful resolution to this crisis." But several administration officials also emphasized that Clinton was getting

3 more juveniles charged

Fourteen.

That's the number — and the approximate age — of juveniles charged with felony crimes this month, ranging from burglary and arson to aggravated assault.

The latest was another case of burglary, the third cleared up this month. Identified Monday as participants were three boys, age 13, 14 and 14.

The boys are suspects in the Aug. 14 burglary of the Othelda Clark residence at 2101 KSNY Drive. According to police, the boys broke into the residence on a Sunday afternoon and destroyed some property, including an alarm clock.

The three youths were charged with burglary of a residence and released to their parents. The case will be forwarded to the district attorney's office.

In a case closed last week, two 14-year-old boys and a 15-year-old boy were charged in the July 18 burglary of a residence, in which some jewelry and a .38-caliber Colt revolver were taken. Police said most of the jewelry has been recovered.

The previous week, police charged a 16-year-old boy with burglaries at Landes Home Furnishings, Elizabeth Potts Realtors and Lisa's Boutique.

Also that week, police charged four boys — two age 12, one 11 and another 13 — with arson. The four are charged with setting an Aug. 4 fire which destroyed the former Neff Floral and Garden Center and caused over $66,000 in damage.

Police also wrapped up a case on Aug. 12 by charging three juveniles and five adults with aggravated assault. The juveniles, two boys age 16 and one age 14, are suspects along with the adults in the Aug. 4 beating of a Scurry County man. Police said the beating was apparently over a disagreement about a dog.

Reservations due...

Supplement program slated for producers

Borden and Scurry County agricultural committees, in conjunction with C&R Feed Company, will sponsor a noon meal and program on livestock supplements Friday at the Fluvanna Community Center.

Those planning to attend should make reservations by 5 p.m. Wednesday.

The program will cover the introduction and benefits of the HLS hard molasses block, commonly called the "Tub." It is a 12-percent protein cattle lick ready to be set out in the pasture. This type of supplemental feeding has grown popular with many producers.

Dr. John Buser, DVM and nutritional advisor from Nebraska, will introduce the product and answer questions.

Ralph and Cliff Price of C&R Feed will also discuss the advantages of the product.

The program will begin at 10:30 a.m. For reservations, call 573-5423 or (806) 756-4336.

The SDN Column — By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "It's always dullest just before the yawn."

A lot is being said these days about "pork barrel politics."

But we did come across a refreshing story recently in the Wall Street Journal that is a rare profile in honesty.

The county executive for Milwaukee County has asked his board of supervisors to do something unusual — to turn down a $50,000 federal grant because "we cannot in good conscience accept it."

The federal grant was designed specifically for drug and alcohol abuse treatments for county residents traumatized by the big floods in the Midwest in 1993.

The problem, as the county administrator saw it, is that last year's floods didn't reach Milwaukee. Despite some board members' suggestions that the money should be accepted, the public administrator said, "Accepting a fradulent grant undermines our case for legitimate assistance."

Perhaps somebody should import that guy to work in Washington.

We wonder if there is a grant for folks traumatized by the drought of 1994.

A company in Britain has come up with an alternative to The Club to prevent your car from being stolen. The alternative costs a little more — almost as much as a new car.

For about $20,000 the firm will install a motorized underground box to conveniently tuck your family's buggy under the driveway, lawn patio or even the garden.

We don't expect to hear about Snyder's first underground parking garage anytime soon. Fortunately, car thefts still are a rarity in West Texas.

AWACS crew may face court-martial

WASHINGTON (AP) — A military board is recommending that up to five members of an aircraft crew be court-martialed for the "friendly fire" downing of two U.S. Army helicopters over Iraq that killed 26 people, Pentagon officials say.

The board of senior Air Force officers has proposed that the five crewmen of an AWACS radar-control aircraft face dereliction of duty charges in connection with the accidental shooting in April — one of the military's deadliest friendly fire tragedies, the officials said Monday night.

"This is a very preliminary recommendation to the senior convening authority," said one senior Pentagon source, speaking on condition of anonymity.

That authority, a three-star Air Force general, must review the recommendation and decide whether to send the cases on for further action in the military's judicial system, the official said.

The two F-15 pilots who actually shot down the helicopters also are expected to face some type of disciplinary action but whether they also will face courts-martial is still under review, a second official said.

A Pentagon study of the incident released last month suggested that the controllers on board the AWACS aircraft knew the two Black Hawk choppers were in the area, but failed to warn two F-15 pilots when the fliers reported that they had sighted the helicopters.

The two F-15 pilots, believing the Black Hawks were Iraqis, shot them down one after another.

The recommendations about the AWACS crew members will go to Lt. Gen. Steve Croker, the commander of the 8th Air Force in Barksdale, La., who has charge of all the Air Force's Airborne Warning and Control Aircraft.

Croker will decide whether the recommendation should be accepted and the cases against the crewmen allowed to move forward.

Gen. John Shalikashvili, the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said in July that there were "a shocking number of instances where individuals failed to do their jobs properly" as he released the military's report on the downing.

Last week, Defense Secretary William Perry decided that the Pentagon would pay $100,000 to each of the families of the 11 foreign citizens killed in the accident.

Military officers from Britain, France and Turkey and five Kurdish workers employed by the United States were on board the helicopters.

The aircrafts were ferrying members of an international group that had been working with the Kurds in northern Iraq since the end of the Persian Gulf War in 1991.

Japan's unemployment rate jumps to 3 percent

TOKYO (AP) — Reflecting the lingering recession, Japan's unemployment rate jumped to a seven-year high of 3.0 percent in July, the government said today.

The jobless rate, up from 2.9 percent in June, matched the same rate set in January and June of 1987, said the Management and Coordination Agency.

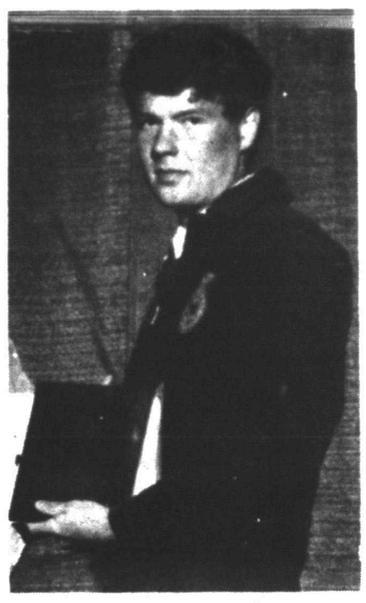

Japan's highest jobless rate since the agency began taking statistics in 1953 was 3.1 percent in May of 1987.

International Trade and Industry Minister Ryutaro Hashimoto told a regular news conference that he was "very concerned about the higher unemployment figure."

Japan's central bank last week said in a monthly report that consumer spending was on the rise but corporate capital spending remains sluggish.

In the latest reporting month, the number of unemployed totaled 1.88 million, up 18.2 percent, or 290,000 people, from a year earlier.

Japan's unemployment rate would be much higher if calculated by U.S. or European methods. In Japan, people working more than one hour in the last week of the month and all members of the armed forces are counted as employed.

Leatherwood receives FFA award

Craig Leatherwood of Snyder, a Future Farmers of America (FFA) member, has recently been named the state FFA Specialty Crop Production winner. He received a $100 check at the state FFA convention. State winners will advance to national competition, and four national finalists will be selected from this group.

The specialty crop production award program recognizes FFA members for their ability to efficiently produce and market specialty crops such as pecans and blackberries.

The specialty crop production program is one of 29 National FFA Proficiency Award program areas that recognize FFA members for their achievement in activities leading to careers in agriculture.

FFA's mission is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success. Local, state and national activities and award programs provide opportunities for students to apply knowledge and skills acquired through agricultural education.

Garland man gets one-third of second biggest Lotto pot

AUSTIN (AP) — A Garland engineer has claimed one-third of the second-largest Lotto Texas jackpot ever awarded, the Texas Lottery Commission said.

Lottery officials presented Ralph Townsend a check for $974,820 in Austin on Monday, the first of 20 such payment installments.

Townsend owned one of three tickets that matched all six numbers drawn in the Saturday Lotto Texas game. It won a $19.5 million share of a $58.4 million jackpot, officials said.

Townsend requested minimal publicity and issued no statement, the commission said. A message left at Townsend's home Monday was not immediately returned.

The other grand prize-winning tickets were bought in Laredo and Cleveland, Texas. Those winners have not yet claimed their shares, the commission said.

The Garland convenience store where Townsend bought his ticket will receive a bonus of $166,667, officials said.

Meanwhile, the jackpot will revert to an estimated $3 million for Wednesday's game, officials said.

DEA plane crashes in Peru, five U.S. agents are killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Searchers have reached a plane that crashed carrying five U.S. drug agents in a remote area of Peru's cocaine-producing jungle and confirmed there were no survivors, the Drug Enforcement Administration said Monday.

The plane crashed Saturday afternoon in a heavily forested region of the Upper Huallaga Valley, where most of Peru's illegal coca crop is grown. Rain and clouds had hampered efforts to reach the crash site.

DEA Administrator Thomas A. Constantine said a search of the area has confirmed that there were no survivors.

The agents were identified as Frank Fernandez, 38, of Washington; Jay W. Seale, 31, of Los Angeles; Meredith Thompson, 33, of Miami; Frank S. Wallace Jr., 37, of Houston, and Juan C. Vars, 32, San Antonio, Texas.

"This incident is devastating for the entire DEA family. We continue to pray for the loved ones of the special agents lost in this tragedy," Constantine said.

The CASA twin-engine plane was traveling from Santa Lucia when it lost contact with air traffic control.

The DEA said the cause of the crash was under investigation but there was no sign of fire or explosion, according to the search team which included Peruvian military and DEA personnel.

The agents were taking part in Operation Snowcap, an effort started in 1987 in which U.S. agents work closely with Peruvian and Bolivian officials to dismantle cocaine networks. About 10 DEA agents are assigned to Peru and another 12 to Bolivia, the DEA said

Peru is the source of more than 60 percent of the world's coca, from which cocaine is manufactured.

On the road again

LEWIS RUN, Pa. (AP) — Willie Nelson's on the road again.

He performed for 500 inmates at the federal prison in McKean on Monday, then signed autographs for fans waiting outside the chain-link fence.

"Let's get this jail moving," Nelson told prisoners. They shouted back, "We love you, Willie!"

After the show 140 miles northeast of Pittsburgh, Nelson visited with non-prisoners who caught the show from beyond the grounds, telling them he had performed for "a couple of buddies in there."

Go ahead! Play with fire on Labor Day

By Marialisa Calta

Summer is ending, and if you've been reading the same cookbooks I've been reading lately, you might decide to end it with a bang. "Heat" seems to be the theme du jour; heat as in chili peppers — jalapenos, habaneros, anchos, serranos and Scotch bonnets — and hot sauces. Three cookbooks that recently crossed my transom inspired me to cook up a Labor Day picnic that will make everyone yearn for the sub-zero temperatures of winter.

The books are "Burning Desires," by W. Park Kerr, "Hot Licks" by Jennifer Trainer Thompson, and "Big Flavors of the Hot Sun," by Chris Schlesinger and John Willoughby, and just reading the titles are enough to send me heading for the nearest body of water. The recipes, though hot, are really tasty and fun to prepare and eat.

Now I'm not suggesting for a minute that you actually serve all these hot dishes at once, unless you are some sort of sadist or your friends have extremely hardy palates. The salsa alone would do in the faint-of-heart. In fact, you might want to start out with a bit less "heat" than recommended, when you make the recipes for the first time. Pick and choose, and counter the hot dishes with some cool ones — chilled watermelon, green salads and plenty of cold stuff to drink. A sweet dessert is said to counter the tang of the hot dishes. Ice cream or ices sound great to me, as long as you don't serve the flavor that appeared in Ben & Jerry's scoop shops several years ago: jalapeno lemon ice.

THUNDER AND LIGHTNING SALSA

1	cup dry pinto beans, picked over
1-¼	teaspoons salt
4	large ripe tomatoes (about 2 pounds total)
2	large fresh jalapeno chiles, stemmed and coarsely chopped
4	garlic cloves, peeled and coarsely chopped
¼	cup fresh lime juice
1	teaspoon ground cumin
¼	teaspoon liquid smoke seasoning
¾	cup thinly sliced scallions (green onions)
¼	cup finely chopped fresh cilantro (also sold as coriander or Chinese parsley)

In a medium bowl, generously cover the beans with cold water and let them soak for 12 hours. Drain the beans. In a medium saucepan, generously cover the beans with cold water. Over a medium heat, bring water to a boil, then lower the heat, partially cover the pan, and simmer, stirring once or twice, for 20 minutes. Add 1 teaspoon of the salt and continue to cook, stirring once or twice, until the beans are just tender, about 15 minutes. Drain and cool to room temperature.

Meanwhile, adjust the rack to about 6 inches from the heat source and preheat the broiler. In a shallow pan, broil the tomatoes, turning them once, until the peels are blackened. Remove from the broiler and cool to room temperature. Core tomatoes (do not peel) and coarsely chop them.

In a food processor, combine the tomatoes, jalapenos, garlic, lime juice, cumin, remaining ¾ teaspoon of the salt and the liquid smoke, and process until fairly smooth. Transfer puree to a bowl and stir in beans, scallions and cilantro. Adjust seasoning. Cover and refrigerate for at least 30 minutes and up to 24 hours.

Yield: 4 cups.

SPICE-RUBBED GRILLED CHICKEN BREASTS

1	tablespoon minced garlic
1	tablespoon ground cumin
1	tablespoon chili powder
1	tablespoon curry powder
1	tablespoon crushed coriander seeds
1	tablespoon paprika
1	tablespoon brown sugar
1	teaspoon ground allspice
¼	cup red wine vinegar
¼	cup white wine
	Salt and freshly ground black pepper to taste
4	8-to-10-ounce boneless, skinless chicken breasts
2	tablespoons vegetable oil

Preheat grill so that you have a medium-hot fire.

In a small bowl, combine the garlic, cumin, chili powder, curry powder, coriander seeds, paprika, brown sugar, allspice, vinegar and wine. Season with salt and pepper. Mix well.

Rub the chicken lightly with the vegetable oil, sprinkle with salt and pepper, and grill over a medium fire (or under broiler) 7 to 9 minutes per side.

Brush on spice paste and cook 1 additional minute per side. The paste should be brown and crusty but not burned, and the chicken should be opaque throughout. Serve with sweet and hot peach relish, below.

Yield: 4 servings.

— Recipe from "Big Flavors of the Hot Sun," by Chris Schlesinger and John Willoughby (William Morrow, 1994).

SOUL SLAW

1	cup mayonnaise
¼	cup white vinegar
1	tablespoon sugar
1-½	teaspoons Dijon mustard
3 to 4	tablespoons Louisiana-style hot sauce such as Dos Grings or Hot Lava (see note)
	Freshly ground black pepper
½	head green cabbage, shredded
½	head red cabbage, shredded
2	carrots, grated

In a small bowl, whisk together the mayonnaise, vinegar, sugar, mustard, hot sauce and black pepper. Taste and correct seasoning. In a large bowl, toss the cabbages and carrots. Pour on half the dressing slowly, mixing into the salad. Add additional dressing until salad becomes glossy. Cover and refrigerate for several hours.

Note: This is the correct amount, even though it sounds like too much. The author suggests, however, that you start out with half the recommended amount and work up.

Yield: 4 to 6 servings.

Fit-showing jump encore

By Phillip Alder

As you discovered yesterday, if you pass, your partner opens and you make a jump shift on the second round, you show a maximum pass with length in both the suit you have bid and the suit partner opened. The North hand in today's diagram is a textbook example.

After his partner's fit-showing jump, South bid his club suit. Then a lot of cue-bidding took place.

How would you play in six diamonds after West has led a heart?

Clearly, you must establish your club suit while restricting your losers to one. There are two reasonable lines. The first, which is difficult to spot, is to draw one round of trumps with an honor in hand and continue with three rounds of clubs. When West follows to the third club, discard dummy's heart loser. In a moment, you ruff your heart loser low in the dummy and ruff a club with dummy's diamond queen, establishing your clubs.

However, you can improve on this basic plan. You ruff the third club with dummy's diamond queen. This works nicely if the clubs break 3-3. But when East discards, you cash dummy's spade ace, ruff a spade and lead a club, discarding dummy's heart. Suppose West forces you with a spade lead. You just ruff your heart loser in the dummy, draw trumps and claim.

If a ruff in one suit is dangerous due to the risk of an overruff, always bear in mind the loser-on-loser play, so that you can take a safe ruff in another suit.

Cowboys offer contract to Gary

Coleman could be biggest loser

FORT WORTH (AP) — Reserve running back Lincoln Coleman, who reported to camp out of shape and had fumbling problems throughout the preseason, says he'll attend the Dallas Cowboys' annual Kickoff Luncheon today.

However, he may not stick around.

"I'm going to try and find out if Cleveland Gary's going to be there, because if he is, I might as well slip out the back," Coleman said.

The Cowboys on Monday offered Gary a one-year contract worth less than $200,000, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported today. The deal reportedly includes an incentive package that would at least double Gary's income if he becomes the Cowboys' full-time running back.

The Cowboys are hoping they can convince Gary to take a sizeable pay cut.

"It's almost two different salaries for two different scenarios," owner Jerry Jones said. "There would be incentives that aren't likely to be earned if he sits, but the money would jump right up there if Emmitt (Smith) goes down and (Gary) has to play."

Gary was waived this week by the Los Angeles Rams, and there are no other proven veterans on the Cowboys' wish list for a runner to back up Smith and replace Coleman on the roster.

"We looked at the waiver wire and said, 'Cleveland Gary is the best one out there in that final cut,'" coach Barry Switzer said.

Gary is considerably more accomplished than Coleman. The 6-foot, 220-pound Gary was the Rams' No.1 draft choice in 1989 out of the University of Miami.

In Los Angeles he worked under offensive coordinator Ernie Zampese, who now holds that post with the Cowboys. Gary was a part-time starter until 1992, when he played with the first team for all 16 games.

That season, he rushed for 1,125 yards and scored 10 touchdowns while battling fumbling problems. Last year, Jerome Bettis was the National Football League's rookie of the year while assuming Gary's position as the featured back.

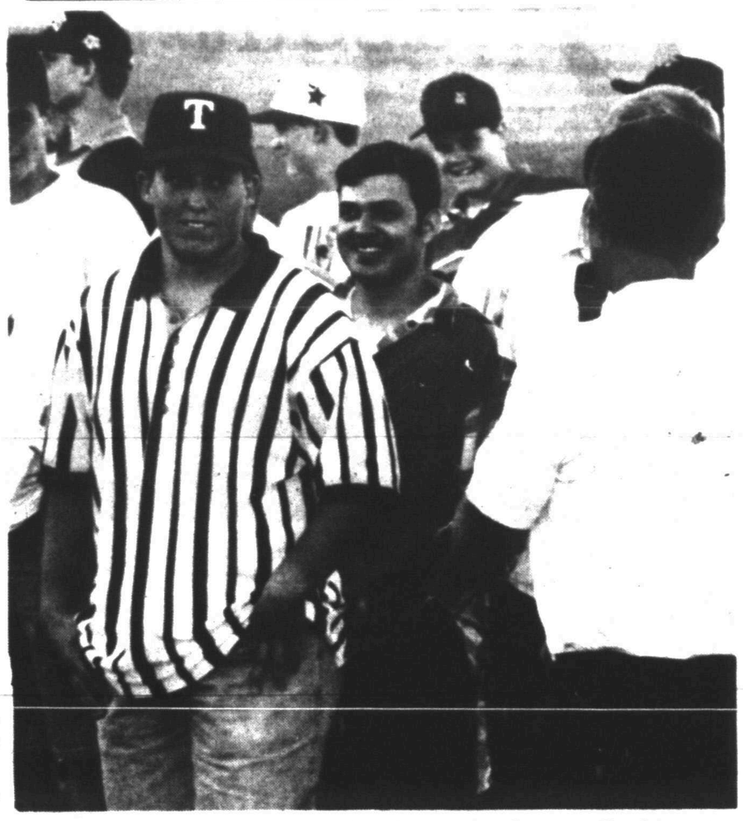

Meanwhile, Coleman says his days in Dallas are numbered.

"I'm only here until they can find a way to get rid of me, and really, getting out of my hometown would help me," said Coleman, a Dallas native.

Coleman became a sort of local folk hero last season after gaining 57 yards against Miami. Dallasites couldn't resist his story: a local guy who had worked his way from the loading docks of a department store to the Arena Football League and finally made good with the NFL champion Cowboys.

However, Coleman knows a good story doesn't matter much in the NFL.

"And since I haven't done the same thing every game since (the Miami game), I'm a bust," he said.

Trouble continues for Texas duo

Report says Pinkney met with agent

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorneys hired by the University of Texas are investigating whether star receiver Lovell Pinkney may have taken a trip to Los Angeles to meet with a sports agent in May, Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds said Monday.

The investigation continues a series of off-field problems involving Pinkney, who, along with receiver Mike Adams, was suspended on Sunday for the No. 18 Longhorns' season opener this weekend at Pittsburgh.

A specially appointed UT committee concluded the two players had broken the NCAA's rule for amateur athletes by accepting the use of a rental car for five weeks at a value of $1,000. School officials haven't said who provided the rental car, although Dodds said it wasn't a sports agent, alum or booster.

On Monday, Dodds said outside attorneys hired by the school have been investigating for two months allegations that Adams and Pinkney may have consulted with a sports agent, which is an NCAA violation.

Dodds said attorneys had previously asked Pinkney if he went to Los Angeles to meet with a sports agent.

Pinkney denied going on such a trip. But the Austin American-Statesman reported Monday that airline records reviewed by the newspaper show Pinkney flew to Los Angeles May 6 and returned May 10.

Texas officials said they too had reviewed airline reservation schedules and didn't find Pinkney's name.

"We are re-interviewing Lovell about this," Dodds said. "He said earlier that he didn't go to LA. If something turns up, we are going to look at it."

"We won't say anything else until the investigation is complete. I think you want to find out all the information. I don't think we are here to act on this before we know the truth," Dodds said.

Pinkney and Adams were at practice Monday and weren't immediately available to comment. Bill Little, Texas' sports information director, said Pinkney wouldn't be talking to the media.

Despite the off-field problems, Texas coach John Mackovic and his players say they are ready for Pittsburgh.

"The team is unified as opposed to being hurt that someone can't be there," Mackovic said. "We know that we have some key elements that won't be with us on this trip. But we also know that the ones who go will play together and have a great game."

Texas has been rocked by season-ending injuries in fall drills, losing receivers Justin McLemore and Wane McGarity as well as running back Darrell Wilson. But Mackovic says the team's approach against Pittsburgh won't be affected.

The Longhorns' high-flying offense is now in the hands of receivers Eric Jackson, who had two catches last season for 18 yards, and Matt Davis, who had one catch for eight yards.

Despite the lack of game experience, Mackovic says his backup receiving corps have looked great in fall practice.

Priest Anthony Holmes, who rushed for 237 yards and two touchdowns last year, and fullback Juan Kemp, who had 45 yards rushing and a score last year, will start in the backfield for Texas.

"These guys have looked really good for us," Mackovic said.

Sophomore quarterback Shea Morenz says the team is ready.

"The off-field activities have been frustrating, but we are ready to go," Morenz said. "We have great leadership and I think we are really focused right now."

Adams wants to move team

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Oilers fans should consider pooling their money to buy the franchise if owner Bud Adams, who wants a new domed stadium built, threatens to move the team, a city official says.

City Controller George Greanias said Monday that may be the only way to keep the National Football League team in Houston.

"We need to think very carefully about fashioning a community-owned — not a city-owned, not a government-owned — but a community-owned corporation and make a fair market offer for this team to keep it here," Greanias said at a meeting of Texaco retirees.

The Oilers franchise is worth $157 million, according to the May 30 edition of Financial World magazine. Adams paid $25,000 for the franchise rights when the team was formed as part of the American Football League.

"Let's think about making as many people in this community as possible be shareholders in the Houston Oilers," Greanias said. "You want to see people committed to a team? Give them an ownership interest."

But he warned that public officials should be wary about how much taxpayer money they dedicate for a stadium.

"The bottom line is, you have ... fewer teams than you have communities that want teams," Greanias said. "These are basically utilities, franchises, monopolies. We've gotten into this poisonous competition — city with city — to build facilities that will attract and hold these various teams."

Buckeyes blast Bulldogs 34-10

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Joey Galloway caught a record 67-yard touchdown pass and scored on a showy reverse Monday night as No. 20 Ohio State beat Fresno State 34-10 in the Pigskin Classic.

Galloway, a wide receiver who is one of four returning starters on offense, starred in the second half after teammate Eddie George dominated the game's opening 30 minutes with two 1-yard TD runs.

George, a 230-pound junior tailback, finished with 90 yards on 24 carries and the two touchdowns. He carried seven straight times on the Buckeyes' opening drive, culminating in a 1-yard plunge over the middle for his first touchdown.

The Buckeyes, 10-1-1 last season with a victory over Brigham Young in the Holiday Bowl, scored on three of their first four possessions.

Tim Patillo intercepted Adrian Claiborne's pass at the Ohio State 33 and 11 seconds later, Bobby Hoying connected with Galloway for the record 67-yard scoring pass for a 14-0 lead with 2:03 remaining in the first quarter.

On Ohio State's previous possession, Scott Terna set a game record with a 54-yard punt.

Hoying was 10-for-16 for 194 yards and the long touchdown.

Race issue rears head in O.J. case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Robert Shapiro glared at the silver-haired lawyer to his right and started speaking in the low, slow voice that, according to his media-advice guide for lawyers, plays so well on TV.

"This issue arose not by something Mr. Simpson's lawyers created," Shapiro insisted, addressing the judge but looking right at Robert H. Tourtelot, who represents Detective Mark Fuhrman.

Shapiro was talking about race, which had been the stuff of media leaks and court papers until the issue boiled over in the courtroom during Monday's nationally televised hearing.

The defense denied raising the race issue "per se," insisting that Fuhrman's past actions — like seeking a police disability pension by claiming that working in black and Hispanic neighborhoods made him mentally unstable — have betrayed him as a racist.

Tourtelot lashed back, accusing the defense of trying to shift attention from O.J. Simpson and the killings of his ex-wife and her friend by destroying Fuhrman's name.

"The only people calling Mark a racist are these attorneys for the defense," he said. "We're going to fight back. By the time of the trial in this case, the entire world will know that Mark is not a racist."

At the hearing, Simpson's lawyers requested police and military records on Fuhrman and three other police investigators. They said they need the records to see if Fuhrman, who is white, had racist reasons to lie about finding a bloody glove outside Simpson's mansion.

But Tourtelot accused "desperate, snooping defense attorneys" of character assassination.

"The lives of two innocent human beings have been tragically taken in this matter. Now a third life is being destroyed day by day," Tourtelot said. "What Mark is experiencing is a result of having been falsely accused of being a racist and a bad cop."

Judge Lance Ito said he would rule on whether to release the information after reading written arguments.

Simpson, 47, has pleaded innocent to the June 12 knife killings of Nicole Brown Simpson and Ronald Goldman. Jury selection is to begin Sept. 19.

Fuhrman delivered some of the most incriminating testimony at Simpson's preliminary hearing: that he found the glove behind a guest house on Simpson's estate the morning after the killings, and that it apparently matched a glove found near the bodies.

Discrediting Fuhrman would serve several purposes for the defense, legal analysts said.

It could raise doubts in jurors' minds about whether Fuhrman really found the bloody glove. It could help persuade the judge to throw out all the evidence gathered by Fuhrman and other officers when they entered Simpson's estate without a warrant the morning after the killings.

Police note two arrests

Snyder area law enforcement officers made two arrests and investigated reports of family violence, theft and criminal mischief Monday.

Police arrested a 23-year-old man in the 4400 block of Avenue L at 4:38 p.m. on charges of disorderly conduct. A report for assault/family violence was also filed.

Officers responded to a disturbance in the 1600 block of 27th Street at 6:24 p.m. Monday where they arrested a 36-year-old man for Class C assault/family violence.

John Busby requested an officer at Snyder High School at 12:03 p.m. in reference to someone damaging his 1978 Ford. A report for Class B criminal mischief was filed.

Jo Ann Crill contacted police at 4:33 p.m. to report the theft of electronic equipment. A report for Class A theft was filed.

Police investigated a hit-and-run reported at 3:41 p.m. at the high school. A parked 1994 Chevrolet owned by Ryan Byrd of 3307 Ave. U was struck by a vehicle which left the scene.

Saudi Arabia, Sudan withdraw from U.N. conference next week

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Saudi Arabia and Sudan are boycotting next week's United Nations population conference in Cairo following criticism by Muslim clerics that the meeting violates the principles of Islam.

The Saudi representative at the United Nations in New York sent a message earlier this week "regretting they are not going to participate," an official at conference headquarters in Cairo said today.

Sudan's government announced Monday night it would boycott the meeting and urged other Muslim nations to also withdraw because the meeting would result in "the spread of immoral and irreligious values."

Saudi Arabia and Sudan are the first countries known to withdraw from the U.N.-sponsored International Conference on Population and Development, which is expected to draw some 15,000 people to Cairo beginning Sept. 5.

Also today, an Egyptian court rejected a suit by Muslim fundamentalists aimed at blocking the conference.

The suit argued that Egypt, which says its legal code is based largely on Islamic law, could not hold a conference which runs counter to Islamic principles. But the court said the matter was outside its jurisdiction because President Hosni Mubarak had the right to invite the conference to be held in Egypt.

The meeting is intended to set guidelines for the next 20 years for halting the growth in world population and encouraging economic development, particularly in the Third World.

Sudan's minister of social planning, Ali Osman Mohamed Taha, said in announcing the boycott that Sudan was trying to organize a forum for opponents of the meeting.

He also complained that the conference reflects the views of the United States, telling reporters "a considerable number" of conference resolutions reflect the policies that brought President Clinton to office.

The complaints about the United States echoed statements by some Muslim radicals who have charged the U.S. government wants to spread what they regard as immoral Western values into the Islamic world.

Muslim fundamentalists criticizing the conference have charged that its draft proposal advocates abortion and sex education and will encourage sex outside marriage.

Conference officials have denied this and noted that the proposal is only a draft which will be debated at the Cairo meeting. They also say that no country will be under obligation to adopt whatever policies come out of the meeting.

Japan will fall short on funding for bases

TOKYO (AP) — Japan would fall $125 million short on its payments to maintain U.S. military bases here, according to a proposed fiscal year 1995 defense budget released today.

Japan agreed in 1991 to pay salaries of Japanese civilian workers and utility costs for the 141 U.S. military installations in Japan.

Those costs were to be covered in full by the fiscal year that begins in April. But the Defense Agency budget would cover 91.5 percent of the costs, or $1.35 billion.

Officials told reporters that the amount — up 10 percent over the current year — was all that could be spared under a maximum 0.9 percent increase in defense spending authorized by the Cabinet.

The low ceiling reflects a strong pacifist streak within Socialist Prime Minister Tomiichi Murayama's Cabinet as well as an expected shortfall of tax revenue due to the slumping economy.

Robert C. Bernal, spokesman for U.S. Forces, Japan, noted that a final budget won't be adopted before year's end. "We are confident that the government of Japan will continue to meet its host nation support commitments," he said in a prepared statement.

Japan's overall contribution would increase 3.5 percent, to $2.6 billion. That is close to half of the total cost of maintaining the bases, which house 46,000 U.S. personnel and 22,600 Japanese workers.

Defense officials said the $43.7 billion fiscal 1995 defense budget would force the military to scrap some some military exercises and weapons purchases.

Millions of youngsters live in 'blended' families in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Barely more than half of American children live in what many people think of as the traditional family — one consisting solely of a mother, father and full brothers and sisters.

There are 33 million children in nuclear households — that is living with both natural parents and full brothers or sisters, a new Census Bureau analysis found.

The bureau said that well over 15 million live in one-parent families, while nearly 10 million are in so-called blended families, which include either a stepparent or stepsibling, or both.

And extended families account for nearly 8 million youngsters under age 18. Those families include other people in the household such as uncles, cousins, aunts or grandparents.

The 33.4 million youngsters in nuclear families accounted for 50.8 percent of all young people, according to the report, "The Diverse Living Arrangements of Children, Summer 1991," released Monday.

While past studies have reported the relationship of children to the head of a household, Census officials said this was the first to relate children to all members of their household.

The bureau noted that the "decline of the American family continues to be a controversial topic," with many people considering the nuclear family the traditional unit. Census researchers limited their study to reporting the numbers of various family and household arrangements, however.

The study disclosed sharp differences in children's living arrangements by race and Hispanic origin.

For example, 56.4 percent of white children resided in nuclear families with both parents, while just 25.9 percent of black youngsters lived in such households. For Hispanics the figure was 37.8 percent of youngsters. Hispanics can be of any race and thus are also counted among blacks and whites.

Among white youngsters, 19.1 percent lived in one-parent families, with mothers accounting for 16.4 percent. Among black youths, 49.2 percent were in one-parent families, 46.7 percent with their mother. And 31.1 percent of Hispanic youths lived with one parent, 28.5 percent with the mother.

Just 1.7 percent of all youngsters live with their grandparents, 0.9 percent of whites, 5.4 percent of blacks and 1.3 percent of Hispanics.

The 9.8 million children in blended families had a variety of arrangements depending on whether the blend involved a stepparent, step-sibling, half-sibling or some combination of these.

The most common situation was for a child to have a half-brother or half-sister. This was the case for nearly 5 million youngsters, or 50.6 percent of young people in blended families.

There were 21.1 percent in families with a stepparent and 18.3 percent living with a with stepparent and a half-sibling.

The study also found 7.9 million youngsters living in extended families, that is with the addition of other people in the household.

Having grandmother live-in was the most common, 25.2 percent of the cases, followed by 16.6 percent with both grandparents but only 3.9 percent with just granddad on hand.

Residents return to burned out homes; new fires noted

SAMS VALLEY, Ore. (AP) — Mike Perry thought his cabin was safe when firefighters stopped the wildfire on the other side of his landlord's driveway the first night it burned.

But when he returned to his cabin Monday, he saw just how stubborn the Hull Mountain fire proved to be.

Coming up a different draw three days later, the flames consumed his home, workshop and car, as well as the mobile home and shop he watched for his landlord.

"It took me by surprise, because I thought everything was OK," Perry said.

The fire burned his home and seven others in Ramsey Canyon before a wind shift turned the blaze on itself Saturday, allowing firefighters to break its back. Thirteen outbuildings, three barns, 12 garages and 15 vehicles also burned. A man driving a bulldozer to build fire lines was killed last Thursday.

Homeowners were allowed back into the canyon in southern Oregon for the first time Monday since they were evacuated Friday night.

The fire was declared contained Monday. More than 2,000 firefighters continued to mop up the fire and full control was projected for Thursday. The cause remains under investigation.

Elsewhere in the West, lightning storms over the weekend ignited new fires in eastern Oregon and central Idaho. On Monday, about 23,130 firefighters fought 29 major fires in California, Idaho, Montana, Oregon and Washington.

The 452,205 acres burned in Western wildfires this year is nearly double the amount this time last year, th National Interagency Fire Center said.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt, a certified firefighter, spent the day with a crew attacking a fire near Libby, Mont., that had burned about 12,110 acres by Monday.

3 million acres burn this year

SACRAMENTO, Calif.: Some 23,000 firefighters are still battling 29 major fires that have burned more than 452,000 acres in five Western states, according to the National Interagency Fire Center in Boise, Idaho.

The 3 million acres burned by all Western wildfires this year is double the amount that had burned by this time last year, the center said.

In other states:

— Full containment was predicted for Thursday for an 8,000-acre fire that burned eight homes near Sams Valley, Ore., and threatened hundreds more.

— In California, firefighters expected to contain a 4,700-acre fire about 50 miles west of Fresno by tonight. The fire started Wednesday when a squirrel short-circuited an electric company powerhouse.

— Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt, a certified firefighter, spent Monday with a crew attacking a fire near Libby, Mont., that had burned about 12,110 acres. More than 1,500 firefighters battled the blaze.

— Fires still burning in Idaho had covered more than 306,000 acres. in Idaho. A 4-week-old, 77,000-acre fire in north-central Idaho's Payette National Forest was threatening today to jump the main Salmon River into the Nez Perce National Forest.

closer to using "all necessary means" — as authorized by a U.N. resolution that in July demanded Cedras step down to allow for the return of exiled President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, who was ousted in a military coup nearly three years ago.

A contingent of about 2,000 U.S. Marines has been aboard warships off the Haitian coast for more than a month.

The U.S. delegation to today's meeting in Jamaica was headed by Strobe Talbott, the deputy secretary of state, and John M. Deutch, the deputy defense secretary.

They were invited by the Caribbean Community, a grouping of 13 countries in the region.

Deutch and Talbott after the Kingston meeting were heading to the north coast of the Dominican Republic for a helicopter tour of portions of the border with Haiti. They were to get a briefing on efforts to stop the flow of goods across the border in violation of the U.N.-sanctioned embargo against Haiti.

The U.S. officials were to see U.S. Army Col. William McDonough, commander of a multinational observer group that is being assembled to monitor the main border crossings. A total of 88 military people from several countries are to form the monitoring team; they include 18 U.S. Army soldiers. The operation is expected to cost the U.S. government about $1.1 million a month once it gets going.

A small advance team of U.S. military personnel already are in the border area.

A U.S. official in Washington called the Deutch-Talbott mission to the border area "a last effort to settle the issue peacefully." This official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the aim is to "give the sanctions screw the last tightening."

Coal mine explosion kills 79

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — An explosion in a coal mine owned by the state-run Philippine National Oil Co. killed at least 79 workers in the country's worst mine disaster, officials said today.

The explosion took place Monday evening at the mine near Malangas in Zamboanga del Sur province, a remote area with poor communications about 500 miles south of Manila.

In a telephone interview from the provincial capital of Pagadian, Gov. Isidoro Real Jr. said 79 bodies had been counted by this evening. He said an estimated 20 to 30 more workers were believed missing.

The Philippines' worst previous mining disaster occurred in 1983, when 27 workers died in a coal mine on Cebu.

Real said relatives of the miners crowded the site waiting for word on the workers.

"They were crying, specially those who were near the tunnel waiting for their loved ones who are still inside. It was a pitiful sight," he said.

At least nine workers were flown to Cebu City for treatment of burns.

Nazario Vasquez, president of PNOC Energy Corp., which operates the mine, said about 170 miners were thought to be working at the time of explosion.

He said 11 miners were injured by a similar explosion last March.

Vasquez said the blast occurred when workers, who were about 500 feet underground, hit a pocket of water and methane.

But Mayor Cecilio Tura quoted miners as saying the accident was caused by a dynamite explosion that mixed with gases.

Styron hosts Clinton and Castro's friend

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — It was a subject fit for a novelist and the plot had two of them.

A Pulitzer Prize-winning writer invites the president of the United States to dinner at his shoreside manse on a posh, New England resort island whose roots stretch to the Pilgrims and ancient Indian times.

The American novelist's house guest is himself a literary light — winner of the Nobel Prize for literature.

And the Nobel laureate, Gabriel Garcia Marquez, just happens to be chums with Cuban President Fidel Castro, with whom the American president, Bill Clinton, is at loggerheads.

American writer William Styron, author of "The Confessions of Nat Turner," "Sophie's Choice" and a long list of other literary offerings, presides over it all as host.

Because the party in Vineyard Haven on Martha's Vineyard was private, filling out the story line may take awhile.

But Castro has unleashed a riptide of discontented migrants toward U.S. shores. And Clinton is resisting with Coast Guard cutters and detention camps.

And as for Garcia Marquez, the Colombian writer said recently that Castro is "a very cultured, well-read man with a keen eye for spotting contradictions."

Other than Styron's party, it was a quiet, pearl gray and rainy Monday at a nearby 25-acre estate that Clinton is borrowing as his vacation retreat.

After an initial 48 hours of golf and sailing, Clinton slept late, dipped into his vacation reading and walked in the drizzle.

"They haven't been doing a whole lot of anything," reported press secretary Dee Dee Myers, who earlier disclosed that the vacation compound contained horses and "one very big pig."

But some of the routine of the presidency follows a chief executive from the White House for which he has a four-year lease to the gray-shingled summer cottages of Martha's Vineyard.

Clinton receives a national security briefing first thing each morning.

And on Labor Day he may interrupt his vacation briefly to fly to Maine to attend a rally at the Bath Iron Works whose workers recently have signed an agreement under which they will share many decision-making powers with management.

Dr. Gott by Peter Gott, M.D.

See a doctor about chronic cough

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband is 43. For as long as I can remember, he's had a problem with coughing and gagging in the morning. He no longer smokes but uses chewing tobacco. He's very high strung, easily upset, and hates to go to the doctor. Should we be concerned?

DEAR READER: Chronic cough is always a concern for doctors, even though it may be caused by nothing more than a post-nasal drip associated with allergies. Serious causes of cough include cancer, pneumonia, asthma, sinusitis, hiatal hernia, and many other conditions.

Therefore, I urge your husband to be examined by your family doctor, who will probably choose to obtain blood tests and chest X-rays. If there is a treatable basis for the cough, with therapy your husband will be much more comfortable in the morning.

If nothing serious is wrong, he will at least have had a thorough examination, something that is appropriate for a man his age. Remember that chewing tobacco is associated with the risk of cancers in the mouth; therefore, this visit to the doctor should include a meticulous examination of the oral cavity.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please discuss protein in the urine of a diabetic whose blood sugar is controlled by oral medication. Can the protein amount vary from test to test, or is this progressive?

DEAR READER: Protein in the urine is always abnormal. Healthy kidneys conserve protein, so when this substance appears in the urine, doctors usually conclude that the kidneys are not functioning efficiently.

Although healthy people may, on rare occasions, show a trace of urinary protein, the consistent presence of this substance warrants medical testing, including blood examinations and kidney X-rays.

Diabetics often "spill" protein because diabetes damages the kidneys. To a degree, this is to be expected, even in diabetics whose disease is well-controlled.

However, if large amounts of protein are chronically present in the urine, such patients should, in my view, be examined by nephrologists. In particular, the specialists must be alert to the presence of urinary infection (for which antibiotics would be necessary), hypertension (which follows kidney disease) and diabetic nephropathy (requiring special treatment to preserve kidney function).

Progressive quantities of urinary protein in diabetics is a serious forerunner of renal failure.

Dear Abby

Answer to Husband's Low Sex Drive May Be Under His Hood

by Abigail Van Buren

© 1994 Universal Press Syndicate

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dear Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters from the early 1970s.)

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because I am terribly frustrated and am too ashamed to talk to anyone else about the problem. I am married to a basically wonderful guy, except for one problem. He is totally uninterested in sex. He's 28, handsome, and in apparent good health, so don't tell me to send him to a doctor. He loathes them.

He is very intelligent, has a Ph.D. in history, and his work is his life. He says people who are interested in sex are insecure and so intellectually dead that sex is all they have left. He always has an excuse for avoiding it. He's either too tired, it's too late, or he's too preoccupied with something he's reading.

I am 27 and I won several beauty contests in college. I'm cheerful, educated, mentally and physically healthy, and all I want is a decent sex life. I've tried all the gimmicks: sexy nightgowns, discussing it with him, leaving good books and magazine articles around for him to see. Even crying. Nothing helps.

We have one child (a miracle), and my husband didn't come near me for six months after that. I feel rejected. I've considered having an affair, but I'd feel too guilty to enjoy it. I don't want to divorce him because outside of this one failing, I love him.

How can I turn him on?

ABANDONED IN BED
IN PHILADELPHIA

DEAR ABANDONED: If he's physically healthy (and don't be so sure he is), his problem could be in his head. But no matter where it is, unless he regards it as a problem that he wants to solve, you're fighting a losing battle. So you can either continue in a marriage that's sexually inadequate, or call it quits. It's up to you.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I do not get along very well. In fact, if it weren't for the kids, I wouldn't live within 1,000 miles of this idiot.

We are both artists. My husband now specializes in western art and has been selling his paintings before the oil is dry on the canvas. I don't mean to put him down, but my work is much better than his even if it doesn't sell half as well. The public just happens to be going for gimmick art.

I can hardly stand it when my husband sells a painting. For one thing, he has a way of gloating that makes me want to put my fist right through his face. I wish I knew how to get over this envious attitude. Can you help me?

ENVIOUS IN MONTANA

DEAR ENVIOUS: Of all the emotions, envy is the most difficult to control. Since you don't even like your husband and are competing with him professionally to boot, it will be doubly difficult to curb your envy. Keep telling yourself that your envy is an acid which does more damage to the container (you) than to the object (him).

DEAR ABBY: When my husband and I went on a trip last year, he hired a woman to stay in our home and look after our three children. We thought we knew this woman quite well, as she was sort of in our social circle and belongs to our club.

After we came home and several weeks later, I couldn't find a pair of earrings and a pin to match, which had been a birthday gift from another friend of mine. I would know this jewelry anywhere, as it is quite unusual.

Last evening my husband and I went to our club, and there was this friend who stayed at our home last year, wearing my jewelry! Up until that time, I wanted to believe that I had just misplaced it. Needless to say, I was shocked. Shall I confront her with the facts as I know them, or should I just wait and hope she reads your column?

PORT ANGELES, WASH.

DEAR PORT: Confront her with the facts. But don't expect her to hand them over. Anyone who would steal, would probably lie.

Headed to court

NEW YORK (AP) — Diahann Carroll's legal tussle over her nine-room apartment on Manhattan's tony Upper West Side is headed for trial.

Carroll signed an agreement with a neighbor in the building, Lawrence R.. Eno, when she moved in 29 years ago. The agreement says Eno, who held Carroll's lease, retained the right to buy the apartment when she left.

IRA ally: political atmosphere promising

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The IRA's leading political ally says a changing political situation in Northern Ireland offers a chance for peace, and he said the gunmen have promised a quick response.

The statement Monday by Sinn Fein president Gerry Adams heightened expectations that the Irish Republican Army is about to call an extended cease-fire, its first since 1975. That could pave the way for its allies in the Sinn Fein party to join in negotiations on the future of the province.

But the Rev. Ian Paisley, a hardline Protestant leader, and the outlawed Ulster Freedom Fighters, a Protestant paramilitary group, both warned that a settlement on Sinn Fein's terms would lead to civil war.

"We wouldn't hear the language from Mr. Adams that we have heard if he is not confident that he has obtained what he wants," Paisley said today in an interview with BBC radio.

"If the cease-fire comes about through the surrender of the British government, any government that subverts the democratic wish of the people and goes against all the pledges they have made, are going to have a situation which is a recipe for civil war in Northern Ireland," Paisley said.

The Ulster Freedom Fighters, in a statement Monday night, also warned of civil war and said Protestant "loyalists" would not be "coerced or persuaded" into a united Ireland.

Adams, the president of Sinn Fein, said in his statement that he had briefed the IRA on developments.

"I have always argued that a changed political climate could break the political, constitutional and military stalemate and create the potential to eradicate the underlying causes of conflict," Adams said.

"In my updated assessment to the IRA leadership I expressed my belief that the current political climate provides that potential."

He added that the IRA leadership promised a "speedy response" to his assessment.

FDA OKs blood test as aid in early detection of cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration says a blood test for prostate cancer, the second leading cancer killer of American men, can increase early detection of the disease when teamed with the traditional prostate exam.

The FDA approved the prostate-specific antigen, or PSA, Monday as a blood test for men over 50 when used along with the digital rectal exam, the clinical test for enlarged prostate that has been used for decades.

Studies show the combination of the blood test and digital exam was at least 25 percent more accurate in detecting early prostate cancer than either test alone, FDA's Dr. Susan Alpert said.

"The combination predictive value of the two tests together is about 50 percent," said Alpert.

The FDA action will permit Hybritech Corp. of San Diego to market its Tandem PSA Assay kit as a diagnostic aid.

Many doctors have been using the PSA test as a prostate diagnostic aid even though it was approved in 1986 only as a means to monitor the progress of patients already receiving prostate cancer therapy.

In January, the American Urological Association issued a policy statement saying the digital rectal exam and the PSA measurement "substantially increase the early detection of prostate cancer." The AUA said the combination tests were most appropriate for men aged 50 or older and for those 40 and older who have added risk factors. These risk factors would include blacks and men who have a family history of prostate cancer.

Use of the PSA test as a prostate cancer screening technique has been controversial because the blood test gives many false positives. Alpert said the FDA action confirms that the PSA is only valuable as a diagnostic when used with the digital exam.

But even these two tests do not give the final word on prostate cancer.

The PSA test is able to detect a very small rise in the level of an antigen, or protein, that is produced only by the prostate.

"This antigen is present in the blood of most men," said Alpert. The level increases, however, as a result of a number of conditions, including prostate cancer, she said.

A positive result from both the digital exam and the PSA is usually followed by an ultrasound test, which makes an image of the prostate. A positive ultrasound test is followed by a needle biopsy, which Alpert said is the defining test for prostate cancer.

Prostate cancer kills more American men than any form of the disease except lung cancer. Prostate cancer strikes about one in every nine men, most frequently after the age of 65. Most prostate cancers grow slowly and never become life-threatening because most patients die of other disorders before the cancer becomes lethal.

The prostate is a walnut-sized organ located between the bladder and the rectum. Its function is to produce seminal fluid. The gland generally grows larger as men age. Abnormal enlargement can eventually restrict the flow of urine, the most frequent symptom of prostate problems.

Surgeon general's son gets 10-year sentence

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — U.S. Surgeon General Joycelyn Elders's son was sentenced to the minimum 10 years in prison for his first offense: selling an eighth of an ounce of cocaine to an undercover officer.

Mrs. Elders fought back tears as Kevin Elders was led away Monday. His father, Oliver, slammed his hands into a steel door in frustration and repeated, "They never even gave him a shot!"

Elders, 28, had claimed entrapment, saying the informant who set up the July 29, 1993, deal had threatened to expose his drug addiction and embarrass his mother at her confirmation hearing.

Circuit Judge John Plegge said the law forced him to impose the minimum 10-year term. Elders could have been sentenced to life for the $275 sale.

Elders wasn't arrested until Dec. 19. The warrant was issued a week after his mother suggested at a Dec. 7 National Press Club luncheon that the government should study legalizing drugs as a means of reducing the crime rate.

Defense attorney Les Hollingsworth said he would appeal.

Elders has acknowledged having a decade-long drug problem, including a three-year cocaine addiction. He said at his trial that his parents were aware of his drug problems, yet never discussed it.

"They really didn't know how bad it really is," he said.

In a recent letter to Plegge, Mrs. Elders asked for leniency for her son, and said that when he needed her most she was too busy with politics, the Arkansas Democrat-Gazette reported Monday.

Mrs. Elders was nominated for surgeon general on July 1, 1993, six months after President Clinton first announced his intention to pick her. She won Senate confirmation Sept. 7, 1993, after delays by Republicans who opposed her outspoken advocacy of sex education, condom use and abortion rights.

Convict sues over degree

PHOENIX (AP) — A former Texan convicted of murder has filed suit claiming Arizona State University has unfairly refused to grant him a law degree.

Michael Davis, 40, was admitted to Arizona State's College of Law after he was paroled from a Texas prison in 1990.

Davis, who changed his name from Walter Waldhauser after his release, served nine years of a 30-year sentence for helping a Houston man conspire to kill the man's sister, brother-in-law and 14-month-old child in Houston in 1979.

In filing suit Friday in Maricopa County Superior Court, Davis is acting as his own attorney. Defendants include the university, law school dean Richard Morgan and the Arizona Board of Regents, which oversees Arizona's three state universities.
