Boat tax exemption stalls in committee

By PAT BLAIR

Legislation that would exempt commercial fishing vessels from ad valorem taxation on a local option basis is "bottled up in committees in both the (Texas) House and Senate" and is "probably not going to pass," in the opinion of Ken King, legislative assistant to State Sen. John Sharp.

Sharp, whose 18th State Senatorial District includes Aransas County, and Sen. James E. (Buster) Brown both introduced measures into the Texas Legislature that would exempt commercial fishing boats from ad valorem taxation. Both measures called for the exemption to be granted on a local option basis, with Sharp's proposed bill requiring only legislative action and Brown's calling for an amendment to the Texas Constitution.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox, asked for a ruling on the issue, ruled that a constitutional amendment was necessary, according to officials in Sharp's office. That cleared the way for Brown's bill to be introduced into committee. That bill would call for Texas voters to cast ballots for or against the proposal on Nov. 8.

School board members hold to original decision

By LESLIE ABRAMS

The Aransas County Independent School District board of trustees gave a hearing Monday night to a firm which was not awarded the bid for an energy management system at an April 11 meeting. After the hearing the board declined to change its original decision.

Able Electric Company of Dallas was low bidder on an energy management system which would involve all the district's schools. Able Electric bid $83,279 for the work while Powermaster of Texas, the firm which was awarded the bid, came in with a bid of $92,144.70 for the work — a difference of $8,865.70. Able Electric requested the hearing after it was not awarded the bid.

Richard Brown, the school district's consulting engineer for which the project, explained the differences between the bids. The key difference, he said, between the two bids was that both firms were asked as part of the bidding instructions to provide examples of or references of capabilities to provide a warranty and maintenance plan for the system. Powermaster gave a detailed explanation of warranty and maintenance while Able did not. "Therefore, it was not a full bid," said Brown.

Following hearing with rejected bidder

In addition, Able Electric had installed energy management systems in nine other schools while Powermaster of Texas listed 31 schools as having received energy management systems under their direction.

Brown broke down the bids for board members as he had done during the April 11 meeting when the board first reached its decision.

"When we were going over the bids there was one area where there was a big hole as far as Able was concerned, board member Margaret Dick said.

After Brown finished, Otis Thompson, a representative of Able Electric Company approached the board. Thompson emphasized his 20 years of experience in the electric business and told board members that since he took no exceptions to the bid form, he was surprised that his low bid was not accepted. He added that he included a two-year warranty with his bid and that his company is currently finishing up energy management systems in two schools in Irving.

Board member Jerry Brundrett Jr. told Thompson that he is not so much concerned with the initial work but more concerned with follow-up service, maintenance and past experience in schools.

"I still don't agree that I have failed to comply with the bid documents," said

Thompson. When asked if he was present when the bids were awarded, he said no.

"I personally hate to award bids to high bidders but past experience is important to me," Brundrett told Thompson.

When Thompson asked, "What is he (Powermaster) going to do that I'm not going to do?" several board members replied that his competitor had provided a detailed two-year maintenance plan and he had failed to do so. Brown re-emphasized that the bid specs specifically stated that the maintenance factor would be critical in deciding the bids.

Dick gave Thompson a chance to tell the board how he would maintain any work he might do. "What would you do for maintenance if you were the contractor?" she asked.

"I don't know, what do you want me to do?" Thompson replied.

"What do you normally do?" Dick asked.

Thompson said he could keep tabs on the system via computer to see if usage patterns differed from what was expected. He said he could have his representatives check the system fairly frequently if that was what the board wanted.

Without waiting for the board's decision, Thompson thanked the board for listening to him and left.

After more discussion, board President Polly Bracht told members they had the option of rejecting or accepting Able Electric's bid.

Brundrett made a motion to reject Able's bid as incomplete and award the bid to Powermaster. "What we're paying 10 percent more for is Powermaster's experience with the energy management system," he said.

Margaret Dick seconded the motion, which was approved unanimously by the board.

Paws, Taws fund keeps on growing

Donations from two businesses and another of the organizations that use the Paws & Taws Building have boosted the building relocation fund by $3,500 this past week.

A $2,000 donation was presented to Paws & Taws Inc. (PTI) from Nautical Towers, the high-rise residential-retail development that will occupy the present site of Paws & Taws Building on Fulton Beach Road within the next year.

A $1,000 donation was presented last week by Tim Gilles on behalf of Allied Live Oak Bank to Mick Ladner, PTI president, to help pay for the moving of the building to its proposed new location near Fulton Harbor.

And a $500 donation was made to the PTI board of directors at their May 17 meeting from the Rockport Volunteer Fire Department, one of several area organizations that use the building for various community and fund-raising events.

Mauro opposes nuclear waste dumping

Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro has announced his opposition to a Department of Energy plan considering two locations in the High Plains for a radioactive materials disposal site.

"The federal government is attempting to spread highly contaminated radioactive waste into a prime agricultural region after other areas of the country have already received the deposits. Instead of trying to quarantine the patient, the DOE wants to spread the disease around so more people will be exposed," Mauro proclaimed.

As required by the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, the Department of Energy is conducting field hearings on seven locations in the United States. Two sites in Texas — in Deaf Smith and Swisher counties — are located in highly productive agricultural areas which rely on groundwater as their only dependable supply.

The General Land Office has informed the federal agency that important geological data has not been considered in the two Texas sites.

"We are opposing the locations in Texas not only because of the lack of information on the DOE report. It seems to me it just makes good sense not to contaminate any other locations in this country so long as we have existing depositories in other sparsely populated and nonproductive areas," Mauro commented.

The Texas Land Commissioner noted the reports prepared by the DOE lacked research and proper evaluation in many key areas. Because of the dependency of groundwater for agriculture and drinking water, the geochemistry, geohydrology and the socioeconomic of the Texas Panhandle have to be considered. "These factors have not been included in the survey and must be fully addressed and evaluated," Mauro said.

Mauro warned he will take "whatever steps are necessary" to prevent the DOE from placing the two nuclear waste disposal repositories at the two proposed sites "or anywhere else in Texas." Staff members of the General Land Office were to appear at all of the field hearings scheduled for Herford, Tulia and Austin.

Nuclear waste remains dangerous for 1,000 years and radioactive for another 10,000 years or more. Once a location is elected by the federal government, more than 1.5 million pounds of contaminated material will be placed at the selected repository.

Singer Andy Gibb has rebounded from the sanity-shaking romantic and professional setbacks that plunged his life into a shadow world of drugs — and he promises to fly right from now on. "I've been to hell," he declares. "Things were so bad. I had a terrible nervous breakdown and turned to drugs. I just gave up everything. I didn't care about people, my work or my life. But now I'm on top of the world and feeling like a million dollars."

Gibb's nightmare came on the heels of his devastating bust-up with sultry Dallas star Victoria Principal. Yet he refuses to blame her for his downfall. "It's no secret a lot of my troubles started when she and I split," he declares. "It really wasn't her fault, either. At first, it was a sweet, dream relationship, but it was also a nightmare at times. The end was inevitable," he continues. "Both of us were very ambitious and pressured each other too much. But I didn't want to face the awful truth, so I turned to drugs. And cocaine, not Victoria, was the big mistake of my life. I tried to run away from the pain I was feeling and coke was the easiest way out."

Since its discovery by ancient South American Indians, the deadly stimulant known as cocaine has been the plaything of the rich and the privileged. Chewing the leaf of the coca plant was a sacred honor available only to royalty and priests of the Incan empire and to athletes who competed in annual intertribal games. And when the sinister narcotic was rediscovered in the years just before the U.S. Civil War, it was again the mighty and the wealthy who became devoted to its use.

Vin Mariani, a devil's brew of wine and cocaine concocted in 1863 by an Italian pharmacist, became so popular that Pope Leo XIII carried a flask wherever he went, and awarded a gold medal to the inventor.

Sigmund Freud, the father of psychiatry, sang the praises of what he called "this magical substance" until the death of an addicted friend awakened him to the dangers of the powder.

In 1886, a Georgia pharmacist invented a patent medicine that used the sinister stimulant. It eventually became a popular soft drink — Coca-Cola. (The company discontinued use of the active ingredients of cocaine in 1903.)

Today, it is estimated that 20 million Americans have used cocaine at least once, perhaps as many as one million people are dependent on it, and every 24 hours 5,000 people snort a line of coke for the first time.

Cocaine, say some users, is "the high society toot." Dr. Norman Zinberg, a research psychiatrist at Harvard University, has another way of describing it. "Quite simply, I think it is the most dangerous drug around."

Marlene Dietrich has become a bizarre recluse — locking herself away from the world to hide her fading looks.

She's become even more reclusive than veteran screen goddess Greta Garbo. Garbo, at least, ventures out to the streets of New York on shopping expeditions. Dietrich won't even leave her Parisian apartment.

The 81-year-old former superstar, whose international reputation was built on a surfeit of glamor, wants the public to remember her as she was... and not as a bent, old lady with sagging skin and wispy hair.

Her astonishing obsession has reached such a pitch that she even refuses to meet old friends and acquaintances. When a business contact recently telephoned her apartment, a woman replied: "This is Miss Dietrich's secretary. She cannot receive you. She has flown to New York." Explained a friend with a sympathetic sigh: "She has no secretary. That was Dietrich on the phone. She simply does not want to see people any more. She has not left her apartment for about a year."

And another actor friend added: "Her reputation was built on her beauty. I think she wants people to remember her as she was, not as an elderly woman. So she has chosen to disappear from the public eye."

Teddy Kennedy has resumed his romance with blond beauty Helga Wagner — with the blessing of his mother, Rose, who is urging them to marry.

Rose, who will be 93 in July, treasures the hope that she will live to see the reputation of her "problem son" restored — and feels a wedding between Ted and Wagner, one of his old flames, would do it. In her eyes, such a marriage would put Teddy on the road to the White House, continuing the tradition begun by his slain brothers.

"Teddy is definitely back together with Helga," a friend says. "This time it's for real. They're even going public with their dates."

Liz Taylor's Latin bridegroom is already fed up with the flamboyant superstar's prima donna ways. "She's driving me round the bend," wealthy Mexican attorney Victor Luna told associates even as he prepared to become her eighth husband.

"Liz is like a spoiled little girl. She needs a nursemaid — not a husband." Liz and Luna's whirlwind courtship began just a few months ago — but now the 55-year-old romeo is rebelling against Liz's haughty demands that he be constantly at her side to grant her every wish.

On one of Liz's recent jet-set excursions, according to a member of the press entourage, "Luna was forced to tag along and follow her around like a puppy. He wasn't even allowed to go down to the hotel lobby — Liz wanted him to stay in their suite so he'd be at her beck and call." At the time, the source adds, Luna fumed: "I've had enough. I'm a Latin — and for me to take this much abuse must mean that I love Liz very much. But this is too much."

Hiring youth has advantages

COLLEGE STATION — Do you need summer labor in your business but can't afford it? Hiring a qualified youth could help you taxwise and could also help the youth earn some income.

Calendar-year taxpayers may claim a tax credit on their 1983 federal income tax return for 85 percent of the first $3,000 in wages paid to qualifying youth employees for any 90-day period between May 1 and Sept. 15, says Dr. Ashley Lovell.

This opportunity for helping youth and helping your business is the "Qualified Summer Youth Employee" provision of the Tax Equity and Responsibility Act of 1982, says Lovell, an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

To qualify for the tax credit, the youth employee must:

- Perform services during the period noted above.
- Be age 16 or 17.
- Be a member of an economically disadvantaged family.
- Not have previously worked for the employer.

A designated local agency, the Texas Employment Commission (TEC) is responsible for certification of the youth's age and family economic status, notes Lovell. This information must be certified before the youth begins work. The employer will keep the approved certificate on file as a basis for completing IRS Form 5884, the jobs credit form.

To be classed as a member of an "economically disadvantaged family," the TEC will determine whether the youth's family annual income, based on the six months before the month of the hiring date, is 70 percent or less of the Bureau of Labor Statistics lower living standard.

Assuming an hourly wage of $4 and with the first $3,000 of wages qualifying for tax credit, the business could obtain 750 hours of labor from a qualifying youth, says Lovell. From the employer's tax benefit standpoint, the $4 hourly wage provides an income tax credit of $3.40, with the remaining wage of 60 cents deductible as a labor expense of Schedule C or Schedule F. The business cannot claim the entire $4 as labor expense but only the difference between the $4 and the $3.40 tax credit.

For more information on the Summer Youth Employee program and the accompanying tax credit, or advice on how to list your job openings and obtain referrals of qualified vouchered youth, call your local Employment Commission office, suggests Lovell. Refer to IRS Form 5884 or contact your tax advisor for additional details regarding the jobs credit provisions.

The classroom instruction is the theory and mechanics of flight and air traffic will be supplemented with field trips to Houston Airport Control Tower and FAA Control Center and the NASA Space Center.

Students will also have the opportunity to handle the aircraft controls during an orientation flight in a Civil Air Patrol plane.

Wills said he anticipates that the students will make a field trip to Washington, D.C., as did last year's students, who were flown by the U.S. Air Force to Washington in a C-130 plane.

Rangers edge out Pirates, 11-10

The Rangers came out on top 11-10 in a hard-fought T-ball contest with the Pirates Thursday night. The Rangers took the lead early on, 4-0 after the first inning, and kept ahead into the third. Trailing 9-3 going into the fourth, the Pirates managed to catch up, then edge ahead of the Rangers 10-9. But the Rangers pulled two runs out of the bag in the bottom of the inning and won the game.

The Pirates had a dismal start—three up, three down at the top of the first. David Sanchez knocked the T down, Kevin Pultz missed the ball on the T and Raymond Hargrove hit off the T right into Ranger pitcher Craig Ancira.

Beginning what promised to be a fine night of pitching, Hargrove struck out the first two Pirates at bat, Ancira and Joe Zambrano. Orlando Rodriguez managed only a short hit off the T, but Ranger overthrows turned it into a triple. Rodriguez stole home during Rober Barrera's bat for the first run of the night. Barrera singled to shortstop Donald Nesloney, who missed the hit, allowing him to take first. While Rodney Rios was watching balls go by, Barrera stole second, then third. Then it was T-time for Rios—he knocked the ball straight down the third base line and headed for first. But Pirate overthrows allows him to make a home run, bringing in Barrera ahead of him, raising the score 3-0. Jason Groseclose had a big double on a 0-2 pitch, stole third and then home before Danny Vasquez struck out and ended the inning.

David Nesloney decided to start the second off with a bang. Hitting off the T, Nesloney got a homer and put the Pirates on the score board. Donald Nesloney, up next, was Ancira's first strike out. Jason Phillips singled then stole second before James Phillips singled off the T. B.J. Michaels hit to the pitcher off the T and was out on first, but the Phillips twins both came in, giving the Pirates three runs. Damon Hargrove missed the ball on the T and the Rangers were up.

Anthony Lopez led off for the Rangers, singling off the T, then stealing second before Paul Patterson became strike out number three for Hargrove. Bryan Gunterburger followed Patterson and singled. Some misdirected Pirate throws let Gunterburger obtain first and Lopez came on home. Gunterburger stole second before Ancira struck out. He stole third during Zambrano's bat. Zambrano singled and Gunterburger came home. While Rodriguez was at bat, Zambrano was busy stealing bases. He got to third and was on the way home when catcher James Phillips tagged him, holding the Rangers at six points going into the third.

The Pirates' third inning was almost as disappointing as their first. Becky Rocha knocked the T down for the first out. Bobby Evans hit off the T and it looked like he had a home run due to overthrows but the Rangers managed to catch him at home and he was out number two. Tony Gonzalez singled on his first pitch, then stole second, but was left on base when J.R. Cates knocked the T down.

Rodriguez was up first for the Rangers and was struck out by Hargrove. Barrera singled, then stole to third. Rios' performance in the third was an exact mirror of his first-inning at-bat. Hitting off the T, he got his second home run of the night and brought Barrera in ahead of him.

Hargrove struck out Groseclose on a 1-2 pitch, but his night of fine pitching was over when Danny Vasquez's hard grounder into center hit him on the foot, taking him out of the game. Vasquez got a triple off the hit and Lopez was up. Kevin Pultz was brought in to replace Hargrove. Lopez got four balls and a hit off the T right to Pultz, who threw to first for the third out.

Kenny Welch was up first in the fourth for the Pirates and sub pitcher Rodriguez struck him out. David Sanchez followed with a single and had stolen to third by the time Pultz singled on a 3-1 pitch. Sanchez was brought home and David Nesloney was up. Nesloney hit into center then made first while Pultz stole home. Donald Nesloney was up next and singled on his first swing. He stole second during Jason Phillips' bat. Phillips had a double into left field and both Nesloneys scored. James Phillips was up next and hit a double, bringing his brother home. B.J. Michaels singled and brought James Phillips home. Damon Hargrove followed Michaels and doubled. After stealing second and third during Rocha's bat, Michaels stole home when Hargrove took third tying the score 10-10. Rocha got a hit off the T but was tagged out at first for the third out.

Paul Patterson, up first for the Rangers, was hit by the pitcher and took his base. Gunterburger struck out and Ancira singled, but was taken out stealing second. Patterson stole home before Ancira got to second. Zambrano was up next and singled on a 1-1 pitch. He stole all the way around and came home while Rodriguez was at bat for the final Ranger run, bringing the score to 11-10.

Rollers still on top of league standings

It's still the "same old story" in the Saturday P.M.'ers bowling league standings—the High Rollers are in first and the Unknowns are only one game behind. Ron Yates and Andy Clegg on the High Rollers have won 99 and lost 37. Abel Saenz and Jack Sheridan, the Unknowns, have a 98-38 record. Two more weeks remain in league play.

The third place Fillies, Josie Soliz, Wendy Steele and Tammy King, with 77.5-54.5 are not far ahead of the fourth place Strikers, who have earned a 75-57 record. The Strikers are Michele Rush and Julie Steele.

With 1,760, the Unknowns are leading the high team series ranking after last Saturday's play. The Peanuts, with 1,625 and the High Rollers with 1,567 are in second and third.

The most recent high individual series standings show Abel Saenz in first with 506, Jack Sheridan in third with 501 and with 417 is Ron Yates in third.

The Unknowns lead the high team game scores, with 627. Rebel's Revenge, with 595, is in second and the Peanuts are in third with 559.

Rowdies lose tennis match, 2-3

Continuing a series of informal intercity womens' tennis matches, the Rockport Rowdies lost a match to the Beeville Bunch, 2-3 at the Rockport-Fulton High School tennis courts Wednesday, May 18. The Rowdies are members of the Rockport Tennis Association.

Following the tournament, the losing Rowdies hosted a luncheon for the winners. A revolving trophy was presented to the Beeville Bunch and their name will be inscribed on it.

Players describe the program as "strictly a fun project" designed to encourage intercity tennis. The next match in the program will be played in Beeville.

Local players who participated in Wednesday's match included Joan Rowe, Pat Heldenfels, Kay Stanley, Polly Bracht, Mary John Lynch, Carol Douglas, Kathy Hicks, Eunice Hansen, Jane Henderson and Elaine Sumner.

Many of these same players took part in the Courtyard Classic in Austin May 14-16. This officially sanctioned annual tournament included mixed doubles and mens' and womens' doubles. Rockport players won no trophies in the tournament but reported a pleasant and instructive weekend of tennis.

Rockport players participating were Sumner, Bracht, Beth Patterson, Lynch, Betty McGee, Ike Boling, Dr. William Wadsworth and Ron Muesel. Others making the trip to Austin were Eloise Boling, Bob Sumner, Eunice and Bill Hansen.

Angels lose 27-10 to Rockport Flyers in Senior League softball action

The Angels got their wings clipped 27-10 by the Flyers Saturday night in Senior League Girls' softball play. The Angels were leading 5-1 at the bottom of the third, but their weak fielding and multiple overthrows allowed the Flyers to take the lead in the fourth and keep it throughout the game.

The Flyers batted first, getting off to an unspectacular start. Larry Randall was walked by pitcher Sylvia Moreno. Michele Dingenary was second and Moreno struck her out on a full count. Randall stole second before the strikeout and Mary Randall hit into the infield on her third swing and got to first. Norma Aleman's fly was caught by shortstop Liquita Lewis and Laurie Adkison suffered the same fate at the hands of Myra Laurence on second base.

The Angels weren't much more dynamic in the bottom of the first. Victoria Marshall walked but was taken down on her way to second when Patty Buenano's hit went right to Laurence. Buenano was able to gain first and she took second when Shelly James walked. Sylvia Moreno's infield fly was caught by Michele Dingenary on third for the first half of a double play. Dingenary threw to Sarilyn Taylor on second, who tagged out James for the double play, ending the first inning.

Up first for the Angels in the third was Shelly James, who singled. Moreno's triple into left field brought James home. Lewis was the third batter and she singled, bringing in Moreno. Before Laurence's short hit had her tagged out on first, Lewis stole to third and was brought in on Harder's single. Hernandez was struck out and Navara walked, putting Harder on second. Navara and Harder both stole during Marshall's bat and when she singled, Harder came home. Patty Buenano hit to second base, now manned by Dingenary who tagged Marshall for the third out, ending the inning with the Angels in the lead, 5-1.

The fourth was the beginning of the end for the Angels. Every batter in the Flyers' order scored at least once, with Dickerson and Konvicka coming home twice. At the end of the fourth, the Flyers led 12-5. The bottom of the fourth was scoreless for the wounded Angels. Moreno, Lewis and Laurence all hit right into somebody's glove for quick outs. James was the first up and singled, then made it to third on steals, but was left on base.

In the fifth, the Flyers put another six runs on the scoreboard, raising the score 18-5. Highlight of the inning was Mary Randall's triple into center that brought home Dingenary, Larry Randall and Daphne Yardley. Konvicka had a pretty fly into right caught to put her out, but Dickerson and Adkison rode it home for two runs. Aleman's single brought Randall in for the sixth run.

Seven more runs in the sixth, with seven Flyers being walked by sub pitcher Buenano, had the Angels trailing by 20 points going into the bottom of the inning. When they came to bat, they meant business—James had a triple, Moreno doubled, Lewis tripled and Laurence and Hernandez both doubled. James, Moreno, Lewis and Laurence all came home but any hopes for further scoring were dashed when Sarilyn Taylor made an unassisted double play on second, catching a fly off Buenano and tagging Marshall who was running from first. The score at the inning's end was 25-9.

In the seventh, Mary Randall and Adkison came home—the final two points for the Flyers. On the Angel side, Lewis made the final run, coming in from third off a double by Laurence. Intent on catching up, the Flyers had loaded the bases—Laurence on third, Harder on second and Hernandez on first—when Navara came to bat, but pitcher Dickerson rose to the occasion and struck her out to end the game.

Workers sought by independent health service

Workers with experience in running a home are being sought by Upjohn Health Care Services of Corpus Christi to help provide agency's Independent Living Services to residents of Aransas County.

Pat Goetz of Upjohn Health Care Services, a branch of Upjohn Pharmaceutical Co., discussed the Independent Living Services program at last Friday's meeting of the Women's Committee of Aransas County Medical Services Inc. Goetz told members of the audience ILS provides a wide range of home care services customized to the needs of each individual to help that individual to be as active as possible in his or her own home.

Services provided include those of homemaker, companion, babysitter, nurse, shopper, therapist and health aid. Services are available either around-the-clock or for a few hours a week.

Goetz asked anyone wanting more information on the ILS to call 854-1066.

Members of the Women's Committee elected officers for 1983-84 during the luncheon meeting: Joann Haskell, president; Ruth Gordon, vice president; Wanda Sorem, secretary; Juanita Wharton, corresponding secretary; and Dorothy Hrubes, treasurer.

Mary Casey, in charge of the committee's handcraft store in First National Bank's Town Hall, announced the store will be open every Saturday from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. during the summer. Workshop volunteers are planning to make a hand-painted quilt and a new children's busy book and children's mobiles have been added to the items for sale at the store.

Workshop sales for April totaled $613.70, according to Hrubes. Memorials amounted to $185.50 and the May balance was reported at $8,322.04 with a Money Market certificate of $15,308.60.

Patman schedules two town meetings May 31

Congressman Bill Patman will report on major issues and will answer audience questions at two Town Meetings Tuesday, May 31.

The meetings, at the end of the Memorial Day weekend recess, will be held at 10 a.m. in the La Grange City Hall at 155 East Colorado and at 1:30 p.m. in the district courtroom of the Austin County Courthouse in Bellville.

Patman schedules Town Meetings as often as possible when he is in the 14th District during Congressional recesses.

"Face-to-face meetings are one of the best ways that I know to find out what people are thinking about the issues we deal with, and I really enjoy the opportunity to answer questions and exchange views," Patman said.

In his second term, Patman is a member of the House Committee on Banking, Finance and Urban Affairs and the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs. He is on Banking's subcommittees on Financial Institutions Supervision, Regulation and Insurance, Consumer Affairs and Coinage, Domestic Monetary Policy, and International Trade, Investment and Monetary Policy. He is on Interior's subcommittees on Energy and the Environment and Water and Power Resources.

Richest kingfish tournament set for Aug. 6-7

PORT ARANSAS — The richest kingfish tournament in Texas Gulf Coast history will take place Aug. 6-7 out of Port Aransas.

Co-sponsored by Lowrance Electronics, Tulsa, Okla., and Dolphin Docks of Port Aransas, the tournament is expected to draw more than 200 boats, providing a 100 percent prize money payback exceeding $30,000.

The largest single king and the heaviest five-fish stringer weighed during the contest will be worth $6,000 each. Other cash awards will be paid through the top six places both Saturday and Sunday.

"This time of year the kings should be in close, making for some super fishing," said tournament director Dave Haas of Lowrance.

Five kings per boat may be weighed in each day with all fish caught being donated to the Texas Children's Home.

Headquarters for the event will be the Dolphin Docks, 404 West Cotter. The tournament will start at 7 p.m. Friday, August 5 with a Captain's meeting and boat registration.

Congressman lends his support to MX

By Congressman Bill Patman

One of the great debates in the history of our nation is taking place in this session of Congress. It is the debate over the MX missile. The outcome of this debate may well determine the answer to the paramount question facing our nation.

That question is this: Will the United States survive as a nation in the face of the Soviet Union's aggressive totalitarianism?

Americans are in virtual universal agreement that effective arms control is essential to diminishing the risk of nuclear war.

We must consider not only the threat of mass destruction that nuclear war could produce but also the threat of the Soviet Union's demonstrated determination to extend its power worldwide.

We must make clear the American realization that nuclear war would be a tragedy for all the world. Because there can be no winners in a nuclear war the United States must establish without question that it has the power to deter Russia from even considering a nuclear attack.

Deterrence is the key word in the debate over whether the United States should proceed with the development and deployment of the MX. For deterrence to be effective, we must not only have the weapons, we must also be perceived by the Soviets as able and prepared to use them effectively against any threat of Soviet power.

As a supporter of the MX, I am convinced that it is needed to counter new Soviet missiles capable of destroying American missile silos. As the bipartisan President's Commission on Strategic Forces recommended in April, I agree that deployment of the MX is essential to convince the Soviets to engage in serious arms control negotiations.

Admittedly, there is sharp disagreement about the merit of the commission's recommendation that 100 MX missiles be deployed in hardened silo sites in the Western United States.

But I am convinced that rejection of the MX by Congress would be a major failure in our resolve to demonstrate America's will and determination in the conduct of foreign policy.

That is why I agree with President Reagan that deployment of the MX should be his first priority. In his words, "Only when the Soviets are convinced that we mean business will arms control agreements become reality."

I am convinced — on the basis of personal briefings by President Reagan — that he sincerely wants a solid arms control and arms reduction agreement with the Soviet Union.

A Republican member of the Senate, Sen. Warren Rudman of New Hampshire, switched from opposition to the MX and became a supporter after a 30-minute meeting with President Reagan in the Oval Office.

I think it worth quoting Sen. Rudman on why he became a believer. This is how he explained it:

"I told the president that I was very concerned about the administration's position on disarmament and said that many people in New Hampshire didn't think the administration was as serious as it should be. I told him, 'These are good people, Mr. President — my friends, your friends. I go home every weekend. I know how they feel. I have an obligation to tell you that they don't think this administration is serious enough about arms control.'"

"He seemed a little stunned after I said that. With real vehemence, looking me straight in the eye, the president said: 'Anybody who says I'm not interested in disarmament is just plain wrong. I'll do anything that will lessen tensions and maintain our national security.'"

I believe President Reagan when he says that everyone who has wrestled with the Soviets on arms control has told him, "The only way you can get anywhere with the Soviets is to have something to negotiate with."

The MX offers our strongest deterrent capability. It is our best bargaining chip to prevent a Soviet first strike against the United States.

PAT GOETZ of Upjohn Health Care Services explains the Independent Living Services concept to members of the Aransas County Medical Services Inc. Women's Committee during their meeting Friday.

Silverberry Eleagnus- The Misfit Shrub?

Everyone's heard of the misfit toys, but who's heard of the misfit shrub? Well it's the Silverberry Eleagnus. But this one was made especially for Rockport. It's medium size with spineless branches. This evergreen can take 0° - 10° cold and also our hot August summers. It has silver scales on the leaf surface and brown scales on the stems and new foliage. The underside of each leaf is completely silver, hence the nickname silverberry. Eleagnus make a nice hedge plant. They also can be used as a screen plantline reaching as much as 7' tall and 7' wide.

Now here comes the real beauty of the Eleagnus: First, it has a high salt tolerance level. On a landscape job we planted some one gallons close to the water's edge just before Hurricane Allen, and after being submerged in salt water, they came back and are a beautiful full hedge now. They also can take the prevailing winds which very few plants can. And last, Eleagnus have a beautifully fragrant flower which appears three or four times a year.

Parental attitude affects child's independence

When a young child starts to walk, his parent's attitude about his independence suddenly becomes very important.

Children inevitably grow up. And we want them to grow up with a sense of confidence and self-sufficiency. How can parents help their children become independent?

According to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, parents need to understand what a child can and can't do at a given time and be willing to allow the child the proper amount of independence and responsibility, based on his abilities.

Neither of these are as simple as they sound. In the first case, a parent's perception of a toddler's abilities can be colored by their own fears and ambitions.

In the second case, a clear understanding of a child's abilities does not guarantee that you won't sometimes overprotect your child and do too many things for him, or else push him beyond his capacity.

During the second year of life, children can start to learn independence in the self-help areas of eating and dressing — and in the area of toilet-training.

Each of these activities has a number of steps. To help a child learn independence, break the activities down into parts. Let the child do the things he can do. Help him with the things he needs to learn. And do for him the things that are still too difficult.

This step-by-step approach has several advantages.

First, when you break a task down into steps you begin to appreciate that even a simple action is made up of a number of small motor movements, some easy and some hard.

Second, when the child does what he can, he's getting plenty of practice in his basic, previously learned skills. This is necessary before he can advance to more complicated movements. It's like building a launching pad from which to attack higher goals.

And finally, it puts you in a position to judge when the child is ready to handle more of the task himself.

The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month. For more information and a free sample of the newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Box 620N, Lafayette, Ind. 47902. Include child's birthdate when writing.

Title I parents hold meeting

Parents of Title I Reading Improvement pupils met on Thursday, May 19, at Rockport Elementary School. Teacher Sara Miller gave a report on the achievement of the pupils who were served this year.

She reported that of the 203 pupils who were pretested and posttested, 78 percent attained the goal of gaining one month of skills per month of instruction and many far exceeded the goal.

Next, Title I teachers Betty Foster, Phyllis

Ridgway, Joyce Allanson and Miller gave some pointers on the theme of the program, "How Parents Can Help Their Children During the Summer." Door prizes were given.

The Rockport Parent Advisory Council and the District Parent Advisory Council held their final meetings of the year last week. Parents had the opportunity to discuss the reading test scores of their children.

Scouts prepare for hiking trip

Boy Scouts in Troops 454 and 49 took an extended hike in Big Bend National Park May 13-14. The trip was a preparation exercise for a 12-day backpacking trek at the National Boy Scout Ranch in Philmont in August.

Under the leadership of Scoutmasters Jim Cox, Curtis Kovacs and Susan Kovacs, the boys arrived at the park Friday evening. On Saturday morning the boys were divided into two groups based on physical conditioning and backpacking experience. One group hiked 8.5 miles around the Chisos Basin, climbing from 5,400 feet to an altitude of 6,900 feet. The other hiked 13.5 miles around the outer south rim and the east rim of the Chisos Basin. This group reached at altitude of 7,450 feet.

During the Philmont trip the boys will hike 61 miles at altitudes ranging from 6,500 feet to 11,500 feet.

Townsend receives academic honors

Kimberli K. Townsend of Corpus Christi was recently awarded a Del Mar College Board of Regents Scholarship and was named to the permanent honor roll at W.B. Ray High School in Corpus Christi.

Townsend, daughter of Clyde and George Townsend of Corpus Christi, will graduate from Ray High School Thursday, May 26.

She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Clyde Townsend and Mr. and Mrs. George Benningfield of Rockport.

Fourth graders wrap up year

Live Oak Elementary School fourth graders are nearing the end of a year filled with extracurricular activities, field trips and programs.

During a health unit the classes were visited by Aransas County paramedics Bobby Motes and Bobby Albin, who spoke to them about the human body and their own role in health care. The children were allowed to inspect the ambulance.

Sheriff Robert A. Hewes and Ricky McLester of the Aransas County Sheriff's Department talked to the classes about the use and misuse of drugs. Samples of harmful drugs were displayed.

Horace Naquin gave a presentation on electricity. The children learned how electricity is generated and travels, as well as the uses and dangers of electricity.

Margaret Dick visited the students during a study of the deserts. She presented a slide show of the Sahara Desert and answered questions concerning desert life.

Students examined souvenirs of a desert trip.

The classes took a field trip to the Museum of Oriental Culture in Corpus Christi where they were given a lesson on Japan — its customs and traditions — by a native-born Japanese woman.

Dale Nelson, meteorologist, gave the classes a lecture on weather — its causes and characteristics. He presented a slide show of Hurricane Frederick. The children each received a weather map.

Students are presently participating in a track and field meet organized by P.E. teacher Linda Martinez. Some of the events include standing broad jump, hurdles, 50- and 100-yard dashes, tire rolls and three-legged races.

Music teacher Jimmie Sue Jones provided the children the opportunity to present plays and skits to other classes. Next week the music classes will participate in a Hoedown and Western Day.

Awards program set for May 25-26

Students at Rockport Elementary will take part in some of their final exercises starting Wednesday, May 25, and ending on Thursday, May 26.

Kindergarten classes will start the exercises on Wednesday with graduation programs scheduled for 9 a.m. for the morning classes and 1:30 p.m. for the afternoon classes.

Grades 1-5 will start their awards programs on Thursday, with programs scheduled for 9 a.m. and 10 a.m. Grades 1-3 will have their program at 9 a.m. with the 4-5 grades following at 10 a.m. A slide presentation featuring highlights of the NASA field trip will be presented during the 10 a.m. program.

'Wear your seat belt'

Drivers urged to take the pledge

"I pledge, for the next two weeks, to buckle-up, to protect children by placing them in safety belts or child safety seats, and to encourage my fellow passengers to get into the buckle-up habit."

That's the "Make It Click-Drive Defensively" safety belt usage pledge, and you're encouraged to take it, said George R. Gustafson, executive director, Texas Safety Association. This year the Texas Safety Association and many McDonald's restaurants across the state are participating in the National Safety Council's "Make It Click - Drive Defensively" campaign which runs from Memorial Day to Labor Day.

Many groups in Texas will be asking friends and neighbors to sign the "Make It Click - Drive Defensively" pledge this summer. Many McDonald's restaurants in the state will be distributing pledge cards beginning June 20. Other groups such as the Texas Safety Association, Texas Safety Association, safety councils in Dallas and Houston, private corporations and government agencies will also be participating in the program.

Gustafson said the major aim of the program is to encourage continuing use of seat belts. "Hopefully, after persons see how easy it is to use the belts, they'll continue wearing them," Gustafson said.

According to the Texas Safety Association 14,000 to 18,000 lives nationally could be saved yearly if all passengers in motor-vehicles wore safety belts at all times.

Gustafson said that safety belts are effective because they eliminate the "human collision" inside cars. "When your vehicle hits something, you as an occupant will continue moving inside the car after the car has stopped," he said, "then you'll have a second collision either with someone in the car or with something else in the car."

"Some persons mistakenly believe it's better to be thrown from the car in an accident, but being 'thrown clear' often turns out to be thrown into the path of an on-coming car, onto a cement street or against a telephone pole," he said. "In fact, statistics indicate that you are 25 times more likely to be killed if you're thrown from the vehicle," he added.

Persons who would like to encourage their friends and neighbors to buckle-up for safety are urged to participate in the "Make It Click - Drive Defensively" campaign. They can write to the Texas Safety Association, P.O. Box 9345, Austin, Texas 78766.

Veterans reminded of burial benefits

Veterans should remind their families that burial in a Veterans Administration National Cemetery is open to any veteran discharged under other than dishonorable conditions, advises Ted W. Myatt, director, Houston VA Regional Office.

VA cemeteries in the Texas-Gulf area and their anticipated closeout dates: Fort Bliss and Houston, after the year 2000; Fort Sam Houston in San Antonio, 1999; Alexandria, La., 1985; Port Hudson, La., 1987; and Biloxi, Corinth and Matchez, Miss., all after the year 2002.

Although the law doesn't provide for grave site reservations, a veteran may make things easier for survivors by expressing a desire to be buried in a VA cemetery, keeping military service records accessible and verifying eligibility at any VA Regional Office. To be eligible for burial, service must have been for other than training purposes. Reserve or National Guard personnel not meeting those requirements, but who die as a result of active duty or training, also may be eligible. Service members who die on active duty are eligible. Burial is available to an eligible veteran's widow, widower, minor children and, under special circumstances, unmarried adult children.

When a veteran or dependent dies, the documents verifying eligibility should be presented to the funeral director handling the burial, who then contacts the national cemetery to determine eligibility and space availability. For further information, contact the nearest VA National Cemetery or the VA Regional Office. A VA counselor will respond.

USCGA sponsors safe boating course

The United States Coast Guard Auxiliary invites all boaters to help celebrate National Safe Boating Week, June 5-11, by signing up for a "Safe Boating Course." Learn the rules of the road, how to use safety equipment, boat handling, weather and much more. The lessons are free.

A Basic Boating Class will be held June 7-9 at Ray High School from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Woman in accident charged with DWI

A San Antonio woman was charged with driving while intoxicated following an early-morning accident Sunday, May 22, when her pickup went out of control on Water at the Market Street intersection.

Marian Alta Hunnicutt was placed under $500 bond following the incident that occurred about 3:55 a.m. Police said Hunnicutt was northbound on Water when she lost control of her vehicle at the intersection. The vehicle skidded across the intersection, striking a stop sign, palm tree and lawn furniture before jumping a curb and striking a parked station wagon.

The parked vehicle belongs to Harry Mark Shelden of Rockport. An unidentified car struck a pickup belonging to Jon Mac Schmidt of Rockport about 12:10 p.m. Thursday, May 19, as Schmidt was southbound on Hwy. 35 just north of the intersection with Cherry Street in Rockport.

The second car was reportedly pulling from the SeaAire Shopping Center parking lot when it struck Schmidt's vehicle.

Trees and shrubs attract birds

If you enjoy having birds around your home, trees and plants can encourage them to stay year round.

According to Ann Holland, urban forester with the Texas Forest Service in San Antonio, "A variety of trees, shrubs and vines planted by a homeowner may create mixed habitats needed by birds during all seasons — places to feed, sing, court, nest, rest or hide." Even small yards can be made attractive to birds by the right choice and variety of plants.

"Natural bird attractors, such as trees, shrubs and vines, should be incorporated into the landscape scheme of your property. Birds like variety, both in sizes and kinds of plantings. This provides them with a choice of food — seeds, nuts, mast, fruits, berries or flower nectar," she said.

"One point to remember regarding plant selection is to mix evergreens with deciduous plants in the scheme. This provides birds with winter shelter," Holland said.

Recommendations for trees, shrubs and vines to attract birds includes:

Holly (Ilex spp.) — used by 28 species of birds, including mockingbirds, robins, bluebirds and cedar waxwings.

Firethorn (Pyracantha spp.) — used by 16 species of birds, including catbirds, brown thrashers, mockingbirds and cedar waxwings.

Redcedar (Juniperus virginiana) — used by 22 species of birds, including robins, cardinals, bluejays and cedar waxwings.

Crabapple (Malus spp.) —

Used by 24 species of birds, including woodpeckers, robins, evening grosbeaks and purple finches.

Hawthorn (Crataegus spp.) — used by 19 species of birds, including bluejays, mockingbirds, robins and cedar waxwings.

Cherry (Prunus spp.) — used by 47 species of birds, including woodpeckers, orioles, tanagers, cardinals and purple finches.

Wild Plum (Prunus americana) — used by 16 species of birds, including mockingbirds, brown thrashers, robins, cardinals and rufous-sided towhees.

Oak (Quercus spp.) — used by 37 species of birds, including woodpeckers, bluejays, chickadees, titmice, nuthatches and evening grosbeaks.

Flowering Dogwood (Cornus florida) — used by 45 species of birds including woodpeckers, robin, bluebirds, thrushes, cardinals and mockingbirds.

Amur Honeysuckle (Lonicera maackii) — used by 19 species of birds, including robins, bluebirds, purple finches, goldfinches and cedar waxwings.

Russian Olive (Elaeagnus angustifolia) — used by 50 species of birds, including quail, grouse, mourning dove, pheasant, finches and cardinals.

"In addition, insects around plantings will attract warblers, flycatchers, martins and swallows. Also, providing a source of water, such as a bird bath or small pool will add to your yard's potential for attracting birds," Holland concluded.

Farm-retail price spread to widen

COLLEGE STATION — Looking at the farm to retail price spread, it's basically a case of "the poor getting poorer."

Farmers are continuing to get less of the dollars that consumers spend at supermarkets and restaurants, says an economist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"Last year only 28 cents of every dollar spent on food went back to the farmer," points out Dr. Forrest Steglin, "while 32 cents went for labor and the remaining 40 cents covered marketing costs."

This difference between what farmers receive and what consumers pay for food products is called the "farm to retail price spread" and represents food industry charges for handling, processing and retailing farm food commodities, notes the economist. That difference rose 5.1 percent in 1982 and is expected to grow even larger this year.

Why? "Because, while the farm value of food is expected to rise only 1 to 4 percent in 1983, marketing costs are forecast to increase 4 to 7 percent," says Steglin.

Thus the trend of marketing costs rising faster than the farm value is expected to continue as it has for the past three years.

"This means that the overall food price increases have been influenced less and less by changes in farm prices and more and more by changes in the cost of packaging, processing, fabricating, transporting and distributing, and food industry wages," says the economist. "This year the higher marketing bill will account for more than three-fourths of the increase in total consumer spending on food."

Marketing costs are particularly high for highly processed crop products, notes the economist, while they are lower for animal products.

New treatment against flu appears to be breakthrough

HOUSTON — A new flu treatment developed at Baylor College of Medicine that proved effective a year ago against one type of flu virus, has produced similar results against another flu virus.

Vernon Knight, M.D., reported today that inhalation treatment with the antiviral drug ribavirin lowered fever and relieved symptoms within 30 hours in 11 patients with influenza B virus infections.

In November 1981, the same treatment was successful in tests against influenza A virus infections in 14 patients.

Knight published his findings in the Journal of the American Medical Association (JAMA).

Knight, professor and chairman of microbiology and immunology at Baylor, said the ribavirin-aerosol treatment is the first to be effective against influenza B virus.

"We now have a treatment that will combat any kind of flu," Knight said. "We think that this is a major event."

He cautions however, that more tests are needed before the treatment is available to the public in the United States.

Ribavirin is made by Viratek, Inc., of California. Last July, Baylor gave the company — of which Knight is a director — exclusive rights to sell the Baylor-developed aerosol generator used to deliver the drug. The college will receive part of the sales proceeds.

The most recent ribavirin-aerosol test was done at Texas A&M University in College Station during the 1981-82 flu season when A and B influenza viruses were circulating. The JAMA report deals with 21 students experiencing type B infections.

Eleven of the students received an aerosol containing ribavirin, while 10 received aerosol containing only a salt solution. The students inhaled the aerosol for 36 hours through face masks.

"Our results were that there was a highly significant reduction in the height and duration of fever, and the depression, aches and pains associated with flu improved more quickly in the treated patients," Knight said.

Within 24 to 36 hours the treated patients had no symptoms, while the other patients remained ill for at least an additional day or longer. Untreated influenza infections may last five to seven days.

Knight said the results are exciting because there is no approved treatment for influenza B infections.

"While it is easy to determine if a flu virus is causing a respiratory illness, finding out what type of virus it is, A or B, can take several days," he said.

"We now have a treatment

Walks 7 miles

By PAT BLAIR

Not everyone would walk seven miles or better just to make a donation.

Especially not if they're 92 years old.

C.O. Davis did. Last Friday, he walked the round trip from his residence in Fulton to the Sipe Real Estate office in Rockport — where funds are being collected to help pay for relocating the Paws & Taws Building — to make a $100 donation to the fund.

Interviewed later back at his residence, C.O. didn't seem to think his act was any big deal. "I'm a biker and hiker," he said. "That's my way of exercising."

As to why he made the donation, he said, "I'm a Fulton resident and I'm boosting it. We," he added, referring to himself and his wife, "are going to be part of this community for the rest of our lives."

The Davises have lived in Fulton nearly eight years, moving here from Haskell County — "almost exactly 400 miles," Davis commented — where they still have family. "We love it down here," he added.

Born in 1891, C.O. remembers the days of "covered wagons and tassel-topped surreys." He was one of six children, two girls and four boys. "My parents got us all through high school," he says, "which was something in those days."

He recalls too that "My family was healthy. There was never a doctor in the house except when babies came. I've been healthy all my life."

Davis attended high school in Roscoe then went to Wichita Falls for a year to work for his uncle. In 1909 he moved to Larue then in 1910 to Dallas where he went to school to learn the banking profession.

"When I came home," he added, "I went to work in a tailor shop."

"Then around 1912," he continued, "I was in the post office one day and I asked if they'd like another mail carrier. The fella said yeah, if you can get up a route. The next morning, I got out and got a route up."

That was in Brandenburg, and for the next 40 years, C.O. served the U.S. Post Office as a mail carrier. "I bought a hack, carried the mail in that a couple of years, then I bought a motorcycle for two years. I used the hack on bad days, set a lantern under a blanket to keep warm."

"In 1918," he said, "I bought a Model T Ford — I think I paid about $475 for that car." In those days, cars didn't come with heating systems, so Davis continued to use the lantern and blanket.

"I used Model Ts til the V-8s came out in 1934," he continued. "I thought the V-8 was the best car they ever made."

Davis married his first wife in 1914 — "I was 23 and my girl was 21" — and stayed with her until her death in 1978. He has two children from that marriage and his family now includes six grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren. "They go all the way from a year and a half to one that's just finished high school," he said.

Davis feels he's pretty well settled in Fulton. "This is not a mobile home," he says of the house he and his present wife call home. "We took the wheels off the day we moved in here."

"I've got lots of good neighbors around here."

As for his philosophy for enjoying life, he merely says, "I try to keep a happy disposition about everything."

Tax

various governing bodies pressing for support of the legislation, asking that ad valorem taxation be replaced with a "productivity tax" such as is levied on farmers. The fishermen maintained they are "sea farmers" and therefore entitled to the same kind of tax as is granted in agriculture.

Support of the resolution was asked for — and received from — the cities of Rockport and Aransas Pass as well as others along the Texas coast and from Aransas County officials by a vote of two for, one against and one abstention.

Pending definite action on the proposed exemption legislation, the Aransas County Appraisal District has ordered a complete reappraisal on all commercial fishing vessels, done this year by E.M. Glover & Associates Inc. of Rockport.

Appraisals in 1982 were done by a Brownsville firm and the values set by that company were subsequently reduced 20 to 50 percent by the Aransas County Appraisal Review Board whose members felt the boats had been over-valued.

The ARB subsequently recommended that a local firm be retained to reappraise the boats in 1983. The San Patricio appraisal district had also used the Brownsville firm to do 1982 commercial boat appraisals and its ARB subsequently reduced the appraisals on vessels in that district.

Aransas County Chief Appraiser Jack Groseclose said Monday there has been a delay in appraising the boats this year and Glover "is not finished yet." He added only a few boat appraisals are completed at this time and they are insufficient to make a comparison with last year's figures.

Fund

presented by Jerry Haldeman, managing partner of Baker-Haldeman Development CO., developers of the project.

"We feel like it (the Paws & Taws Building) is needed in the community," Haldeman said of the donation. "That building has been here a long time. We wish it success and we're willing to do our part to help it be a success."

He added the project developers are looking at late summer — around the end of September — for groundbreaking on the development.

The donation from the Rockport volunteer firemen was presented by J.C. Gurley, treasurer of the organization and the Rockport VFD's appointed representative on the PTI board of directors.

In making the donation, Gurley emphasized the money contributed came from the fire department's dues fund and not from funds contributed by individuals for purchase of equipment and supplies.

The volunteer department currently numbers 45 members, headed by Fire Chief John Henry Ray and Assistant Chief Ricky McLester. The Rockport VFD has used the Paws & Taws Building for various fund-raising activities that, during the past year, helped pay for a 1982 Ford tank truck.

The organization still preserves — and uses in parades — the first fire truck ever owned by the Rockport VFD, a 1913 Model T.

The latest donations have pushed to more than $8,100 the total in contributions received to help pay the costs of moving the Paws & Taws Building to its new site.

Relocation cost is expected to be around $30,000. Additional fund-raising activities have been planned, including a dance at the Paws & Taws Building on June 4 and a Mexican breakfast-lunch there on June 5. The Rockport-Fulton Association of Ducks Unlimited has donated seven limited-edition prints by well-known artists. The prints, on exhibit now at First National and Allied Live Oak banks, are being offered at silent auction, with all proceeds to go to the relocation fund.

The prints will be displayed and additional bids accepted at the Rockport Area Chamber of Commerce banquet June 4.

New system improves crop spraying efficiency

COLLEGE STATION — A new system has been developed to increase the effectiveness and efficiency of aerial application of pesticides.

It all involves a spray deposit analysis system that accurately measures an aircraft's spray pattern, says Henry O'Neal, an agricultural engineer with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

The new system was developed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and O'Neal is working with the Texas Agricultural Aviation Association in its testing. A total of 14 testing sessions are being conducted this spring throughout Texas to help aerial applicators analyze their spray patterns.

Spray patterns have traditionally been measured with a card or paper pattern test that depends on a visual check. However, the new system provides precise measurements of spray patterns, says O'Neal.

"This system is actually an automated quantitative system that analyzes the total swath width of an aircraft sprayer," explains the engineer. "It is an educational tool for illustrating the characteristics of sprayer systems for aerial application."

The new system works this way. A strip of film is placed across the flight path and sprayed with dye. The film is then reeled through a detection unit that measures the amount of dye deposited. The data is then fed into a microcomputer and a graph of the spray deposit pattern is plotted during the analysis. Final results show the uniformity of the deposit and thus help applicators determine the optimum width of the flight path.

"This information will help aviators arrange the spray nozzles on their equipment for optimum performance," says O'Neal. "The improved performance will mean more effective pest control plus reduced production costs to the producer."

Motorists urged to be cautious during Memorial weekend

AUSTIN — Memorial Day weekend signals the start of the summer vacation season and increased dangers to motorists, according to the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Colonel Jim Adams, DPS director, urged drivers to exercise caution during the upcoming holiday weekend and throughout the summer.

"During the vacation season, more motorists will be exposed to highway driving hazards," Adams said. "Heeding the traffic laws, wearing seat belts, and staying alert for drunk drivers is the best defense for avoiding an accident."

The DPS director requested the assistance of Texas drivers in minimizing traffic deaths.

"Statewide traffic fatalities are now about 13 percent below the number for the same period last year," Adams pointed out. "But we also have to remember that the potential for additional fatalities during any holiday weekend is great and we must adjust our driving habits and attitudes accordingly."

A total of 58 traffic deaths resulted from accidents during the Memorial Day weekend in 1982.

"Troopers will be on the lookout for hazardous violations over the Memorial Day weekend in an effort to prevent accidents and we do not intend to relax our efforts to arrest drunk drivers and cite speeders," Adams said. "These two violations continue to cause most of the traffic fatalities in our state."

Insurance dividends up

Owners of State Farm Life Insurance Company policies will benefit from a $60 million companywide increase in policy dividends beginning July 1, according to State Farm Agent Eloise Boling in Rockport.

Boling said the more than 30 percent increase in

Martins rid area of insect pests

By TED BRICE
"The Garden Editor"

Recently your Garden Editor came across a publication called the "Lore of the Purple Martin" and was amazed with this little bird.

The purple martin was here long before Columbus discovered America. They lived in old woodpecker holes and in caves. Indians encouraged purple martins to live near their wigwams by providing hallowed gourds for their homes. The martins would drive away the hawks that would drop down and steal the Indian's chickens. These little birds called martins were fighters and their name is derived from the Latin word "martius" meaning warlike.

We have come a long way in learning about this beautiful little black bird. In addition to protecting the chickens they snap up mosquitos as they fly through the air. They also eat flies, leaf hoppers, gnats and wasps. This trait has endeared the purple martin to the city dwellers along with their cheerful song and lively aeronautical acrobats.

There are people who claim they never have to spray their fruit trees against insects. The martins take care of these insects. Maybe if we had enough martin colonies the dangerous chemical insecticides could be completely eliminated.

Once a colony is established in your yard they will return year after year. There are special houses designed for martins to encourage the colonies to return each year. Martins demand clean houses and will not live in houses that other birds have lived in.

The martins will send an advance scout to inspect the house prior to the arrival of the colony. After the colony leaves in the fall of the year the house should be cleaned and the holes plugged to keep the sparrows out until the scout arrives next spring. When the scout arrives remove the plugs where the house can be insected by the scout. Remember the purple martins will eat their weight each day in mosquitos (approx. 2,000 per day).

Good gardening until next week from your Garden Editor, Ted Brice.

Life is like a taxi — the meter keeps running whether you are getting somewhere or just standing still.

Garry Mauro supports Matagorda agreement

WASHINGTON — Texas Land Commissioner Garry Mauro last Friday, May 20, praised the agreement between the state and the federal government which will protect Matagorda Island. "This is a landmark agreement which provides essential protection and unified management of federal lands and sensitive state wetland areas," Mauro stated.

The management package for Matagorda Island is a joint agreement between the Department of the Interior, the General Land Office and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. Mauro declared the package will provide maximum protection for sensitive areas and endangered or threatened species with strict control of public access to the island.

"This is an outstanding example of how we can protect sensitive areas and professionally manage our public lands. Senator Lloyd Bentsen and the members of the Texas Congressional delegation have worked extremely hard on the Matagorda Island agreement to preserve the area as a unique natural resource," the Texas Land Commissioner said. "This cooperative agreement was reached only after extensive consultation with state and federal agencies and environmental organizations. Nearly all parties agree it is an excellent management plan."

Mauro noted the federal government could take a lesson in public land management from the General Land Office. "We have 22.5 million acres of public land in Texas which we manage quite effectively," Mauro said. "Instead of giving away the public domain or selling it for a quick buck as Secretary Watt would like to do, he should learn from Texas that public land can be used to generate necessary revenue while sensitive areas can be protected from unwise development."

In the Matagorda Island agreement, Mauro noted the winter nesting grounds of the rare whooping crane and other threatened species will receive maximum protection and will not be threatened. Texas must comply with all the requirements of the National Wildlife Refuge system and the Department of the Interior in all management decisions including any activities which are not covered by the agreement.

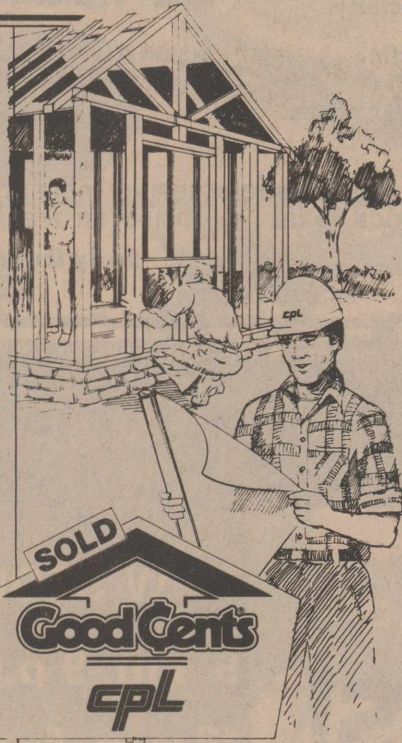

"We can achieve a balance between economic production from our public lands and environmental protection of sensitive areas through sound, long term planning. The Matagorda Island agreement is one which will insure the proper management and protection of this unique natural resource," Mauro concluded.

New Good Cents home cuts heating, cooling and water heating energy use up to 50%!

For years Central Power and Light Company has worked with builders, architects and designers to help you save money through the Energy Efficiency Award program. The homes built to EEA specifications were a good value, enabling their owners to make impressive savings in utility costs.

But with the technological advances developed in recent years, CPL now is introducing an even better, more energy efficient house. The new Good Cents home makes it possible for homeowners to reduce use of electricity up to one-half for the 'big three' that consume the largest share of the total energy budget in a typical residence: heating, air conditioning and water heating.

The owner of a Good Cents home lowers operating costs through adequate insulation and highly efficient systems for cooling, heating and water heating.

CENTRAL POWER AND LIGHT COMPANY
A Member of the Central and South West System

Good attic ventilation and numerous other energy-saving measures will all be checked and certified by a qualified technician from CPL.

Estimated savings on heating and air conditioning the house are predetermined in a computer-conducted energy analysis.

Soon builders across South Texas will be producing and selling Good Cents homes. If you are planning to build or buy a new house, consider one of these super energy-savers. Besides getting more for your money now, you'll enjoy up to 50% savings on major electricity users throughout the life of your home—and gain added value for possible future resale.

Tangible property is best investment

The dollar in 1982 was worth only 35 cents compared to its purchasing power in 1967. Consequently, tangibles — notably real estate — were the high investment performers of the 1970s. Fixed-income investments — notably bonds — performed poorly.

The main cause of these performance records is inflation. When a high inflation rate is expected, wise investors acquire tangibles, also called hard assets, instead of investments that are redeemable with dollars. They believe the value of desirable tangibles, in terms of purchasing power, will remain constant.

Tangibles such as real estate do tend to command more dollars as the value of the dollar depreciates. The scramble to acquire tangibles in the 1970s forced prices of hard assets to a record high level. Prices of desirable tangibles have cooled since 1980 because the rate of inflation has slowed.

If inflation begins to accelerate again, you can expect the price of investment real estate to begin rising again.

Oil and gas hearing set June 16

AUSTIN — The Railroad Commission has set the Texas oil production rate for June 1983 at the market demand factor of 100 percent for the 76th month in a row and the 132nd time since the Commission first went to the ceiling level in April 1972.

Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioner Jim Nugent directed the continuance of the maximum statewide allowable after receiving and reviewing purchaser nominations for Texas oil in June totaling 2,454,007 barrels per day, a decrease of 14,508 barrels daily when compared with May buyer requests. June 1982 nominations totaled 2,473,297 barrels daily.

Next month's permissible rate of output is calculated to average 2,919,781 b/d with actual production estimated at 2,373 million b/d. The maximum allowable applies to all but 10 fields in Texas that are assigned lower legal rates of flow for conservation purposes. Actual production in June 1982 was 2,380,779 barrels daily.

Wallace reported that June 1983 nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 17,880,981 Mcf/d (thousand cubic feet per day). Gas nominations for May amounted to 17,695,550 Mcf/d. June 1982 nominations totaled 24,149,279 Mcf/d.

The next statewide oil and gas hearing will be held Thursday, June 16, at 9 a.m. in Room 107 of the Railroad Commission headquarters building in Austin at 1124 S. IH 35.

Welder Refuge history is told

The history and current status of the Welder Wildlife Foundation near Sinton were described to members of Rockport's Rotary Club during the organization's luncheon meeting Wednesday, May 18.

Dr. Lynn Drawe, assistant foundation director, told Rotarians the 7,800-acre preserve is a small part of a large original Spanish land grant which was in possession of the Welder family more than 150 years before the foundation was set up by Robert H. Welder.

According to Drawe, Welder established the foundation and endowed it with sufficient funds to be self-sustaining because Welder believed it was important for threatened Texas wildlife to be preserved for future generations.

The project also is an operating agricultural plant and producing cattle ranch, according to Drawe who said this demonstrates it is possible to operate a commercial farm enterprise while protecting and encouraging expansion of wildlife.

The wildlife at the foundation includes a diversity of vegetation, 55 species of mammals, about the same number of reptiles and almost 400 species of birds, Drawe said. The deer population remains stable at about 1,000 animals, he added.

Shopping Village behind schedule

Construction of the Harbor Oaks Shopping Village on Hwy. 35 North in Rockport is behind schedule but the project is still ongoing, according to Roger J. Seaman, president of the company developing the center.

"We had some problems with the contractor and he had some problems with the architect," Seaman said in a phone interview this week from his Corpus Christi office. "But they were internal problems and they should be back working on the project now."

Seaman said the delay put the shopping center construction at least a month behind schedule, cancelling earlier plans to have at least the first major tenant — Stanley Grocery Co. — open by mid-July.

"We hope to open by August," he said. "We probably will be opening in September or October."

Ground was broken in December for the $5 million shopping development, a proposed combination strip center and mini-mall with a total 120,000 square feet of floor space. At the groundbreaking ceremonies, Seaman said 80,000 square feet of that — including the 22,500-square-foot Stanley store — would be completed first, with another 40,000 square feet to be added later.

Heart disease topic of officers' meeting

The acquisition and care of heart disease was discussed by Mark Jeffers, an expert on the subject who is associated with Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi, at a dinner meeting of members of the Rockport Retired Officers Association at the Big Fisherman Restaurant last Thursday night.

Jeffers is on the staff of general nursing at the hospital. Earlier he was assigned to surgery with emphasis on open heart surgery.

He said heart disease is the number one cause of death in the United States as it is in Texas and Aransas County. More than half a million die of it every year in the U.S. Number two and number three killers are cancer and accidents, respectively, Jeffers added.

Principle causes of heart disease are high blood pressure, smoking, poor diet and lack of exercise, according to Jeffers. He added that an annual physical examination, especially for older people, as a means of detecting early symptoms of heart disease, should be a must.

Jeffers pointed out that the heart basically is a set of specialized muscles whose function is to pump life-sustaining oxygen to all parts of the body. If this process is interrupted or cut off, the body dies unless relief is supplied quickly.

Jeffers pointed out that the brain without oxygen suffers so-called clinical death in zero to four minutes. This can be reversed if oxygen is supplied quickly, but lack of oxygen for an additional four to six minutes will result in irreversible biological death. This illustrates the importance of getting relief promptly for a heart attack victim, Jeffers said.

No one should attempt to drive a suspected heart attack victim to a hospital unassisted because operation of the vehicle would prevent rendering assistance in the case of a recurrence of the heart attack, Jeffers warned. Jeffers said the help of an ambulance crew or someone who has been trained in CPR (Cardio Pulmonary Resuscitation) is essential. Jeffers, who has conducted many classes in this life-saving procedure, offered to conduct such a course in Rockport for members of the Retired Officers Association if there is sufficient interest.

American women need more milk

Despite the continuing emphasis on the importance of milk, most American women are not consuming very much of it.

"We commonly get questions from women asking whether they could take calcium supplements instead of drinking milk," says Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. "Many women say they don't like or can't drink milk. And they're not unlike the average American woman."

In 1980, researchers at Pennsylvania State University found in a nationwide sampling that women aged 20-59 consumed less than the recommended two servings a day of dairy products. About half those surveyed said they drank some milk daily; most of the others said they seldom or never drank milk.

The most common reason for not drinking milk was that the person didn't like it. Some said they forgot to buy it; a few others said they were allergic to it or thought it had too many calories.

Recent studies suggest that women would benefit from drinking more milk, Haggard says. Men also need the calcium provided by dairy products, but women have a greater need.

Of the six million broken bones caused by minor falls in 1981, over 80 percent occurred in older women. As they grow older, women become more vulnerable to the weakening of their bone structure — a condition known as osteoporosis. The best prevention is an adequate supply of calcium daily over the lifespan.

"Even among those surveyed who said they drank milk, many did not drink adequate amounts," says Haggard. "All adult women should have at least two cups of milk daily, or its equivalent in cheese or yogurt."

HANGING LAMP

Be creative and make your own lamp from a coffee can. This lamp is easy to make and when completed is as attractive as any you would find in a store. A group of these can be used effectively if you hang them in an informal grouping or in a row (see Fig. A).

For this project you'll need a one-pound coffee can of the shape shown, enamel paint, clear lacquer and medium grade steel wool. First, rub the inside of the can with steel wool and coat with clear lacquer to prevent rust and assure good light reflection. If you want a punched hole pattern on your lamp, cut a piece of paper that will fit around the can and carefully draw your design on this paper. Next, paste the paper with the design on the can and, using a hammer and a nail or a punch, tap holes into the can following your design.

During this piercing operation, a log or rounded piece of wood should be inserted in the can to form a working base.

When the design has been tapped into the can, remove the paper, rub the outside of the can with steel wool and coat with enamel of a suitable color. A simple black or white finish is effective on this type of lamp. Punch a hole in the center of the can bottom to receive the light cord attached to the bulb socket which supports the lamp shade (fig. B).

Youth camp begins

SAN ANTONIO — Two thousand boys and girls from Hermann Sons lodges across Texas, including the Rockport Lodge, are expected to attend the fraternal benefit society's youth summer camp this season in the Hill Country near Comfort.

Opened by the Order of the Sons of Hermann in Texas in the summer of 1954, the camp this year will be conducting its 30th annual 11-week season for junior Hermann Sons members age 9 through 13. A brief ceremony will be held at noon Sunday, May 29, prior to the start of registration at 1 p.m. with a number of former campers and former camp directors attending.

Louis B. Engelke of San Antonio, grand president of the order, will make a brief address commemorating the occasion.

Located in the southeast corner of Kerr County on the Guadalupe River, the camp will have six weekly sessions for girls, followed by five sessions for boys from July 10 to Aug. 13.

Registration this spring is running ahead of last year when a record number of 1,908 attended, Engelke said. Some 1,944 junior members had registered by mid-May, with many more applications for registration forms still in the hands of parents. Four of the six sessions for girls already are filled, he said.

Since the first season in 1954 attended by 196 youngsters, the camp has seen 38,358 junior members participate. The camp can be free on a merit point basis for junior Hermann Sons who earn sufficient credits by attending junior chapter meetings or by successfully recommending new members to the fraternal order. The maximum fee those members who earn no points will pay for a one-week session is $30, well below fees paid at comparable Hill Country camps.

All junior members attending camp must be 9 years of age and less than 14 years of age before the opening day of the 1983 season. Camp director is Debbie Krueger, a graduate of Texas Lutheran College in Seguin and a high school teacher in the Northside Independent School District in San Antonio.

The camp features masonry-constructed dormitories, dining hall and kitchen and includes facilities for horseback riding, swimming, archery, tennis, softball, canoeing, soccer, trampoline, tumbling and arts and crafts.

Law's repeal pleases Patman

Congressman Bill Patman said Tuesday, May 17, he was "tremendously pleased" by the House's overwhelming vote to repeal the 10 percent withholding law on dividends and interest.

The repeal measure was passed by a 382 to 41 vote. It goes to the Senate, which already has passed a Senate bill calling for delay of the withholding law until 1985 to evaluate whether such withholding is necessary to assure collection of income tax on dividends and interest.

"The vote today represented the overwhelming sentiment of the people of this country that they do not want the IRS messing with their bank accounts every time dividends or interest are credited to a person's account," Patman said.

He voted against the 1982 tax reform measure which enacted the 10 percent withholding provision, and he was one of the early cosponsors of this year's repeal bill.

"We still have two hurdles to clear to make sure of repeal before July 1, when withholding would begin. The Senate must act again, and the President must sign the repeal legislation," Patman said. "I hope the Senate will take our straight repeal bill, and I hope President Reagan will abandon his veto threat."

San Patricio sponsors pool seminar

The San Patricio County Health Department will conduct a one-day seminar for owners and operators of swimming pools, as well as other interested persons, at the Portland Community Center in Portland on June 1.

The course begins at 8 a.m. and covers operational procedures recommended by the Texas Department of Health for both public and private swimming pools. It will include such objects as algae control, bacteriology, waterborne diseases, water sampling, disinfectants, tests, filters and recirculation equipment, as well as mouth-to-mouth resuscitation. Certificates will be awarded at the end of the seminar.

Chamber banquet set for June 4

The Rockport Area hold their annual membership banquet Saturday, June 4, at the Cattleman's Bay House Restaurant at the Sandollar Motel. The banquet begins at 6:30 p.m. and dinner will follow at 7:30 p.m.

Guest speaker will be Bryan Hale, also known as "the Laredo Cajun," who will present a program of humorous Cajun stories. A resident of Bay City, Hale is manager for the Central Power & Light Company there. He has also served as a director, treasurer, vice president and president of the Bay City Chamber of Commerce.

Tickets for the banquet are $12.50 per person and available at the Chamber office, 404 Broadway; 729-6554. The deadline for reservations is May 27.

Redfish stocked in bays

Three million baby redfish have found a new home in Texas bays as part of the nation's first stocking program aimed solely at conservation.

The program, jointly sponsored by the Gulf Coast Conservation Association, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department and Central Power and Light Company, marks the first time a major marine species has been stocked for conservation purposes.

The red drum fingerlings were hatched at the John Wilson Marine Fish Hatchery near Corpus Christi and were transported Tuesday, May 24, to Port O'Connor where they were released in Espiritu Santo Bay.

The stocking began at the Parks and Wildlife Loading Dock in Port O'Connor. The fish were loaded onto barges for deposit in bay waters at noon.

The three million fingerlings represent the first harvest of the hatchery this season. Additional harvests are expected in late July and September, bringing the total of hatchery fish to be stocked this year to 10 million.

'A Capital Experience' attended by local realtor

ARLINGTON, Va. — Catherine Hesser, Executive Officer of the Rockport Area Board of Realtors, recently returned from the 40th Annual Seminar of Boards of Realtors Administration, conducted by the National Association of Realtors. The seminar, titled "A Capital Experience," was held April 29-May 4, at the Hyatt Regency Crystal City, Arlington, Va., with an attendance of nearly 550 Executive Officers of Member Boards and State Associations from across the United States and Canada.

While in Arlington, Hesser participated in five days of activities that included an exceptional program addressing the latest developments in local, state and national services. An American Housing Forum examined the real estate industry from the varied perspectives of such notables as George Sternlieb, Director, Center for Urban Policy Research and John T. Howard, Chief Economist, Fannie Mae; a Computer Seminar instructed EOs on the application and value of computers in board operations; a Communications Session comprised of Washington-based reporters and communications experts, told attendees how to make the media work for them; an additional 18 power-packed management Track Sessions covered financial, board and personal management.

Special educational sessions were conducted for State Executive Vice Presidents and Education Directors. Over 20 professional exhibits displayed the newest advances in computer software and hardware; and an "Idea Mart" focused on the best and most original printed materials in Association Management.

"The intent of the Seminar program is to equip Executive Officers to better serve her Rockport members in a wide range of specialized areas," said G. Bradford Johnson, Dean of the Seminar.

Balloon payments

California led the nation in the use of creative financing for home buying in the last five years. When home prices and mortgage interest rates soared sellers arranged special loans for buyers.

These arrangements usually involved a seller-provided second loan which included a lump-sum balloon payment after a few years. Now that these payments are coming due California leads the nation in balloon-payment defaults.

The problem stems from the borrowers' need to find new financing to pay off the special loan. Although interest rates have dropped they are still too high for many borrowers to qualify.

In some cases sellers extended loans. In others buyers have lost their homes. Reports from lenders in Texas indicate that balloon payments are not such a problem here. Still, those with loans should begin looking for refinancing with a permanent loan while opportunities exist.

Inflation indexed mortgages

Would you like to get a home at an interest rate of only 3 percent?

Such a loan is being recommended by some economists for adoption in this country. The rate is low because the principal balance is indexed to inflation.

One of the reasons that current interest rates are high is that lenders must include an amount to offset the effects of inflation. An inflation-indexed loan would overcome this problem. Loan payments are based on a real rate of interest, or the rate that could be charged if there were no inflation.

Each year, the principal is increased by the inflation rate. Monthly payments increase by an identical percentage. The borrower does not have to make up for future inflation in early years.

Such mortgages are already in use in other parts of the world. Should inflation persist in the United States, these mortgages may someday be used here.

GET YOUR $$ WORTH

IRA Advantages

* Many people in their 20s are reluctant to lock up large sums of money in Independent Retirement Accounts (IRA) for a number of reasons, primary among them is that retirement seems a long way off. Nonetheless, with Social Security on shaky ground, and the inevitable realization that everyone must retire sometime, an IRA is always a wise decision. Because taxes on the interest and principle are deferred, it may be smarter to keep your money in an IRA with an eye to withdrawing it at some point before you're 59. If you do need the money within 10 years or so, you'll probably come out ahead even though you'll be paying penalties and taxes on your withdrawal. An IRA doesn't mean retiring your money until you retire, and this investment may be more lucrative than a taxable one during high tax bracket years.

* Women who return to continuing education programs after marriage and children are in a statically fast-growing group of people in the United States. And, there are many scholarships available to help them pay for their school work. Foundations as well as corporations are increasingly offering good financial incentives for women to attend higher educational institutions. You can check with local professional organizations, businesses or even your Chamber of Commerce to find out how to get funds for education.

* If you're the kind of procrastinating budgeter who has a hard time remembering it's tax time until April 14th, and tends to avoid itemizing and keeping track of important deductible expenses, you need extra help and motivation. A good way to start is by sitting down with a good accountant for a long session to discuss the state of your finances and help you set up a system of making the most of your money.

Make your roof last for years

Your roof has many enemies, including the sun, the wind, rain and seasonal changes. Often, after the freezing and thawing of winter, the signs that your roof has reached the end of its lifetime are most noticeable. The asphalt shingles may have cracked, curled up at the edges, loosened or fallen off. When this happens, minor spot repairs will not help.

To help cut the costs of reroofing, the experienced do-it-yourselfer might consider doing the job himself.

Supplies you will need include a tape measure, a utility knife, a chalk line for aligning shingles, a pointed trowel for applying roofing cement, ladders and scaffolding, a safety harness and rubber-soled shoes for secure footing.

The ladders and scaffolding should be used on the roof as well as for getting up to the roof: Walking directly on the roofing is dangerous and can damage the shingles.

You'll need to rent, borrow or buy a pneumatic tool for fastening the shingles, such as Duo-Fast's RS-1748 heavy-duty roofing stapler. Not only does the air-powered tool speed the job, but the 16-gauge roofing staples with wide 1-inch crowns also have excellent holding power and are available up to 1½ inches, long enough to penetrate layers of old shingles.

Roofs with slopes of between 4 and 5 inches for every horizontal foot are the safest and easiest to work on. Roofs with higher or lower pitches often require special application procedures or materials best handled by an experienced contractor. Asphalt shingles are the easiest roof covering for do-it-yourselfers to apply. Aluminum shingles, wood shakes, ceramic tiles and slate should be applied by professionals.

Before starting any work, check local ordinances for such things as the fire rating code required for roofing shingles and the number of shingle layers permissible. Reroofing should be done only when the old shingles and underlying roof deck are dry. The best temperature for roofing is above 40 degrees, but not over 75 degrees.

Before reroofing, inspect and repair roof supports and the roof deck. Install new flashing around chimneys as needed. Be sure to follow the specific instructions on the package for installing the particular type and brand of shingles you use.

With the right tools, a do-it-yourselfer can install a new roof that will last for many winters and summers to come.
