Mourners bid farewell to sisters killed in accident

By Kasey Kelly
MRT Correspondent

The small sanctuary was filled with mourners as Mike and Judy Taylor said a heartfelt goodbye to their daughters, 16-year-old Kristin Taylor and nine-year-old Katie Taylor, Friday afternoon at Greenwood Baptist Church.

Kristin Taylor was killed Tuesday afternoon when the 2001 Ford Escort she was driving collided with a tractor trailer. Her sister, Katie Taylor, was rescued from the crushed vehicle and transported to Midland Memorial Hospital, where she died Wednesday afternoon.

The grim feeling at the church was lightened by flowers and photographs of Kristin and Katie Taylor.

It was another day where friends and family crowded around the Taylors to offer their condolences and support.

As mourners filed into the church, they passed by the closed caskets at the front. Felt-tip pens were available for people to write messages to the deceased. They wrote their messages on the girls' caskets.

Most of the messages written on Kristin's casket addressed her beautiful smile and the angelic voice that so often filled the church.

"I can hear your angelic voice with the angels" wrote Kristin's grandmother.

According to the people who loved her, Kristin Taylor had a big heart and a beautiful smile, but walked through life quietly.

Waymon Swopes, minister at Greenwood Baptist Church, said during the funeral he was surprised the first time he heard Kristin Taylor's singing voice.

"How could something that bold come from such a small person," he said.

Katie Taylor on the other hand, was the talker of the family. Her family said they would miss her "bubbly and chatty" personality.

One friend noted on the casket, "You will be my friend forever."

There were many young people among the mourners gathered at the church.

"This tragedy has left a hole in the hearts of many people," said Swopes.

Final countdown...

Students enjoy last days of vacation

By Mike Yager
MRT Correspondent

The days of waking up at noon and watching cable television all night long will soon be over for Midland students. Summer vacation has dwindled down to less than 48 hours.

But while some students spent their summer idly basking in the glow of the family's air conditioning, other students enjoyed a summer almost as busy as any school year.

For elementary students, this summer has been more of the same carefree feeling they've been offered since beginning school. Not hampered by a summer job, or any real responsibility for that matter, Midland's youth has the freedom adults can only envy.

"I've been swimming and stuff," said Grace Hedgpeth, a 7-year-old who will attend Emerson Elementary School starting Monday, "because it's been really hot."

Although she'll miss playing with her school friends and spending time with her family, Grace is excited about going back to school.

"I've been looking at backpacks and school supplies," she added, "and I've been going to bed early so I won't be tired at school."

One of the most significant leaps in young school life is that from elementary to junior high school. Just as young Kevin Arnold taught us on "The Wonder Years," the two years of junior high can be either the most fulfilling, or the most awkward years of youth. Most, however, are simply waiting until Monday to start any worry.

"I've had friends over, and I've been sleeping in a lot," said Teil Massie, a 12-year-old 7th grader at Goddard Junior High this fall, "and enjoying the last few nights I can stay up late."

Teil has been kept fairly busy, but by his own accord. Between church trips, friends and movies, he took any other ample time to play video games and just rest, oblivious to any tasks that the coming months will bring.

"I'm glad that I'm going to junior high instead of elementary," Teil said.

As summers come and go, a direct correlation between age and the busyness of summer schedule becomes increasingly apparent. Especially for high schoolers, who may be tied down with gainful employment or other obligations, the summer is less a break than it is a new time for new (although not entirely bad) stress.

Shelly Irvin, a sophomore at Lee High School this fall has had a busier summer than most of her class. She spent the beginning of summer in New York City with her best friend, Libby Dees, a

Plaintiff interveners plan to file appeal

By Hillary S. Condon
Staff Writer

The plaintiff interveners involved in a desegregation lawsuit with the Midland Independent School District have announced plans to appeal U.S. District Court Judge Edward Prado's June dismissal of the case.

Although they have several weeks to officially file the appeal to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, Coleman intervener attorney Gary Bledsoe said the appeal is forthcoming. The recently filed — and denied — motion for reconsideration stated the need for an evidentiary hearing, and Bledsoe said that will be restated in this appeal.

Bledsoe

"We think there is an absolute obligation for the court to hold a hearing before a decision of this magnitude is made," he said. "And further, we think that the case law will clearly require that there be detailed delineation as to plans with the green factors before deciding that a district has achieved unitary status."

There are several "green factors," or factors used by the U.S. Supreme Court to determine whether or not a school district has achieved desegregation, including curriculum, extra-curricular activities and bilingual education. Plaintiff interveners believe most of them have not yet been dealt with adequately.

Attorney Rick Strange, who works at Midland's Cotton, Bledsoe Tighe and Dawson law firm and represents MISD's interests in this case, said his initial reaction to this news was disappointment.

"We believe Judge Prado's ruling is correct, well-reasoned, and will be supported by the Fifth Circuit," he said. "What this means, though, is that in the interim, we'll have to incur additional expenses fighting the appeal. I believe, in the long run, the Fifth Circuit will affirm Judge Prado's ruling in all respects, that the appeal will do nothing other than simply delay the inevitable and increase everyone's financial obligation."

In the order dismissing the cause, Prado stated the many objections of the plaintiff interveners addressed issues outside of the agreement, and the case was dismissed because the judge believed all aspects of the agreement had been adhered to.

In their motion for reconsideration, Bledsoe and League of United Latin American Citizens attorney Judith Sanders-Castro stated that Prado made the decision without a hearing.

Finally, in his denial of that motion, Prado stated a hearing was not legally required, nor is it necessary.

Bledsoe disagreed, and said he has case law to prove he's right.

"You have to presume that our biggest issue on appeal will be that the decision was made again without a hearing, and without proper delineation of court determinations on important issues," he said. "We cited Fifth Circuit case law, and we hope that it's still good case law. We hope that the Fifth Circuit follows the case law laid out by the court in previous years."

Strange said if Bledsoe had the case law, he should have used it earlier.

"I'm sure the Fifth Circuit will read whatever Gary submits, but at the same time, I think that if he had any case law, he should have presented that to Judge Prado," Strange said. "And I think, ultimately, the question is, did they have the opportunity to show Judge Prado why we hadn't complied with the settlement agreement? They have never given the judge any indication of what evidence they would offer at an evidentiary hearing, or why an evidentiary hearing would make any difference."

For now, Strange said, there are several different ways in which the case could go.

"The Fifth Circuit Court could look at the record and say Judge Prado had ample evidence, and did not need to hold an evidentiary hearing, or they could say the interveners hadn't carried their burden of proof and given them any indication of what evidence they would present," he said. "They could say Judge Prado shouldn't have ruled the way he did, but he had other alternatives open and he could have ruled on our motion for summary judgment, which would not have required an evidentiary hearing, and reach the same end. Or ultimately, they could say Gary's right and they could remand it, and instruct Judge Prado to hold an evidentiary hearing."

MISD Board President Dale Strauss said while the case is under appeal, the district's administration and board will continue operations as usual.

"It's not an 'us against them' situation, and we will come to a final decision at some juncture here, and at that time the district will continue to move forward," he said. "In fact, I anticipate that the district will continue to do its business now, pending their decision to file and/or the court of appeals

Redistricting fallout continues statewide

By Stewart Doreen
Staff Writer

Redistricting's impact on the statewide political scene did not stop with the moving of counties into different districts.

Indeed, developments around the state, including Midland's state Senate district, indicate the ramifications are just now beginning to be felt.

On Tuesday, state Sen. Teel Bivins announced he would seek re-election for his District 31 seat. While addressing the Big Spring Rotary Club, Bivins (R-Amarillo) called the redistricting plan unveiled by the Legislative Redistricting Board a "highly political act" that "resulted in a seismic shift."

He also said the redistricting plan — that gave more representation to the southern counties in District 31 — was "a catalyst" in his decision-making process to run for another term.

The addition of southern counties to the district would have increased the like-

From Staff Reports

The community will try to honor the Midland High School baseball team for the second time with a parade running through downtown Midland today.

The parade, originally scheduled for Thursday evening, was postponed due to unexpected thunderstorms lingering around Midland that night.

The victory parade — that salutes the team's state championship — will begin at 1 p.m. today at Midland High, 906 W. Illinois, and will travel south down "A" Street to Wall Street. It will turn east on Wall and end at Centennial Plaza, where the community will congratulate the team with a pep rally.

The Bulldogs' victory at the state tournament on June 9 in Round Rock was the first for MHS baseball since 1973. Midland High also won the district 4-5A championship for the first time since 1988.

The Bulldogs defeated Klein 8-6 during the state tournament after 94 minutes of rain delay and a 4-3 deficit. They moved from the semi-finals to play Austin High in the finals.

MHS won the game 4-2 and earned the title, "State Champs."

OBITUARIES

Agnes May Wood

Agnes May Wood, 62, passed away Monday, August 6, 2001. Graveside services were Friday, August 10, 2001, at Fairview Cemetery with Mike Vestal of Westside Church of Christ officiating. A visitation was Thursday, August 9, from 6:30p.m. to 8:30 p.m. Arrangements were under the direction of Pipkin Funeral Home and Chapel.

Agnes was born November 17, 1938 to John and Geneva Bain in Auitman, Penn. She was raised in Pennsylvania then moved to Indiana. She later moved to Midland in 1959 and was the co-owner of Wood and Son Appliance.

Agnes was preceded in death by her brother Dennis, husband, and father.

She is survived by her mother, Geneva Bain, sons, James R. Wood, Calvin E. Wood, Ronald W. Wood, all of Midland, daughter Sharon E. Constantino of Midland, two brothers, John Bain and Gary Bain both of Pennsylvania, sister Sharon Lucas of Pennsylvania, eleven grandchildren and five great-grandchildren.

Brothers, we do not want you to be ignorant about those who fall asleep, or to grieve like the rest of men, who have no hope. We believe that Jesus died and rose again and so we believe that God will bring with Jesus those who have fallen asleep in Him. I Thess. 4:13-14.

Gaylin Lafon Wood

Gaylin Lafon Wood, 55, passed away Monday, August 6, 2001. She was born Sept. 21, 1945 in Hobbs, New Mexico.

Gay was a strong and loving wife, mother, sister and granny. Her mother Elsie O'Brain preceded her in death.

Gay loved fishing, camping and crafts. She was a great mother, sister, granny, and friend. Our lives will never be the same. She will be greatly missed.

She is survived by her husband, Rex Wood, daughter, LaSandra Wood, and her son, Chuck Wood and wife Terri, all of Midland. Her father Johnny O'Brain of Hobbs, New Mexico, her sisters, Marie Gray of Corpus Christi, TX., Dickie Roy of Henderson, TX., and Joyce Hulsey of California, her brothers, Charles O'Brain and Johnny Lee O'Brain both of Overton, Texas. Six grandchildren, Kyle, Corey, Chelsie and Casey Wood of Midland, Brock and Tracey Hughes of Henderson, Texas, and many nieces and nephews.

Services were Thursday, August 9, at Second Baptist Church, 3125 Travis, with the Reverend H.W. Erwin Jr. officiating. Burial followed at Fairview Cemetery.

Party strategists monitor dash for 2002 campaign cash with target lists in mind

By Sharon Theimer
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The money chase is under way for next year's congressional races, and party strategists are keeping a close eye on who is — and isn't — stockpiling campaign cash.

Political strategists watch for slim fund raising by an incumbent as a sign of retirement plans, weakness or ambition for another office.

"The earlier an incumbent can show a large war chest, the more a challenger has to carefully consider running," said Carl Forti, a spokesman for the National Republican Congressional Committee.

Democrats are targeting Rep. Steve Horn, R-Calif., whose campaign took in $4,188 from January through June and reported $26,981 in debts. Horn narrowly won re-election last fall to his Los Angeles-area seat.

Democrats think the district will become harder for Horn to keep after the state legislature's Democratic majority draws new boundaries this summer.

"He's going to be one of our top targets," said Mark Nevins, spokesman for the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee. "He's already vulnerable and he's making himself more so by not raising any money."

An aide said Horn's modest fund raising is simply a sign he's doing his job.

"It's a tradition of his not to raise money during the first six months of his term just so he can focus on congressional work rather than campaigning," spokeswoman Mary Ellen Grant said.

Horn ultimately collected more than $400,000 for his last race after a similar start to fund raising in 1999.

Incumbents whose reports show them raising $1 million or more aren't immune from the list of potential targets.

President Bush plans to raise money next week for two GOP senators Democrats are keeping an eye on. Bush will headline a fund-raiser Tuesday for Wayne Allard in Colorado and one Wednesday for Pete Domenici in New Mexico.

Republicans, meanwhile, list Democratic Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa as one of their targets. Harkin and his GOP challenger, Rep. Greg Ganske, each report just over $1 million on hand.

Former GOP presidential candidate Elizabeth Dole is considering running for a U.S. Senate seat in North Carolina if the incumbent, Republican Jesse Helms, retires. Helms is expected to announce in fall whether he will run again.

Helms' new campaign finance report showed little fund raising in the first half of the year; he reported $173,815 in contributions, with $88,034 in the bank.

University of Tennessee political scientist William Lyons cautions against drawing conclusions from scanty fund raising by Sen. Fred Thompson, R-Tenn.

Thompson, who has not said whether he will seek re-election next year, raised $10,000 from January through June, reporting $530,000 on hand.

If he chose to run, Thompson is unlikely to face a tough challenge and could quickly raise the money he needs, Lyons said.

House Republicans are awaiting a redistricting commission's work in Washington state, where Democratic Rep. Brian Baird's repeat GOP challenger, Trent Matson, has raised more than Baird this year.

Baird raised $15,429 and reported $80,531 on hand; Matson's campaign collected $118,546, with $107,593 in the bank.

Baird said he expects the GOP will target him again, but he decided to focus on Congress and hold no fund-raisers until the second half of the year.

The DCCC's Nevins said Democrats are considering targeting Rep. Jim Leach, R-Iowa, whose campaign reported $86,883 in the bank but $57,000 in debts.

Several lawmakers took in few congressional campaign contributions because they're running for another office. Republican Rep. Steve Largent of Oklahoma, for example, is retiring from the House to run for governor; his House campaign fund collected just $5,716 from January through June.

Former Nebraska Sen. Bob Kerrey, a Democrat mentioned as a possible presidential hopeful, recently raised eyebrows by shutting down his political action committee.

Kerrey acknowledged this past spring that his Navy SEAL team mistakenly killed unarmed civilians during a Vietnam War mission. He was traveling this week and unavailable for comment.

Big Spring CEO gets top honor

BIG SPRING (AP) — The top administrator at the Big Spring State Hospital has been named recipient of the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation's premier annual award.

Ed Moughon has served as CEO at the Big Spring facility since 1996 and was among 16 people nominated for the 2001 Preston E. Harrison award.

The award is given to honor one of the agency's 20,000 employees statewide who shows innovation and creativity in serving people afflicted with mental illness and mental retardation.

Moughon will receive the award from Karen Hale, the agency's commissioner, Aug. 24 at the Big Spring facility.

Big Spring State Hospital is a 202-bed psychiatric hospital, which treats adolescents and adults in a 78-county region in West Texas and the Panhandle.

Florida teen-ager charged as adult

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — A teen-age boy will be tried as an adult on charges he lured a 16-year-old acquaintance to a home where he was beaten to death with a bat before the body was dumped in nearby woods.

Frank Tritschler, 15, was charged with second-degree murder and faces a possible life sentence, prosecutors said Wednesday. A 14-year-old facing similar charges is cooperating with prosecutors and will be tried as a juvenile. He faces seven years in a juvenile facility.

Tritschler and the 14-year-old lured Frank McCool to the home of Dominic Culpepper, who was waiting with a baseball bat, investigators said. Culpepper, 14, thought McCool broke into the home a week earlier and stole a half-pound of marijuana and several hundred dollars.

Culpepper beat McCool to death and then dumped his body, police said. He has already been charged as an adult with second-degree murder and faces a possible life sentence.

SUMMER: Seniors try to make vacation last sophomore at Midland High, seeing several Broadway shows including "The Lion King," "Rent" and "Aida." After her arrival back in Midland, she immediately began work on a production of "Babes in Arms" at Midland Community Theatre where she played one of the leads.

"Lately, I've been sleeping late and spending as much time as possible with my friends before school starts," said Ms. Irvin, now with the production completed is simply trying to salvage any remaining shred of her vacation. "My friends and I don't have as much time to do stuff during the school year."

As for the impending beginnings of her sophomore year, which will place her at the bottom rung of the Lee food chain, Ms. Irvin is actually a little nervous.

"There's so many older people," she said, "and people in general that it's just a little daunting."

Definitely missing the old, carefree summers the elementary school students still experience, Ms. Irvin believes summers become far less free than they once were.

"More people are working and more people stay busy with other things rather than just being lazy," Ms. Irvin said.

As much as the busyness of these schedules may increase over the course of summers, no student tries to take advantage of their summer more than the now-seniors of Midland and Lee High. For these seniors, this last summer has become the final chance to not worry about work or college. Despite that fact, however, some still have obligations out of their hands.

Midland High School senior Lindsey Madden has spent the vast majority of her summer more active than during the school year. A member of the MHS tennis team, Ms. Madden has been practicing every day in preparation for the team's first tournament, which is held only a few weeks into the semester.

"It's definitely more stressful," said Ms. Madden on the schedules of high schoolers during the summer months. "When you're a kid you didn't get any work to do over the summer."

Although she has attempted to have as much fun as possible, Ms. Madden hasn't forgotten the obligations to find education beyond the confines of Midland High.

"I've been reading about lots of different colleges, and studying vocabulary for the SATs," she said.

As for her senior year, Ms. Madden is optimistic and is, "very excited, it should be fun."

Clearly, as summers pass by, some freedom and youth departs as well. However, whether working, sleeping or just "hanging out" summer will never lose one thing, pure and unbridled fun away from the classroom prison.

IMPACT: Redistricting causing waves in Texas

lihood of a Permian Basin candidate capturing the seat had Bivins opted not to run. Odessa's Bob Barnes and Amarillo's Kel Seliger were poised as the two top Republican candidates to make runs at the seat if Bivins had opted not to run. Bivins may have saved the district from a race that could have split the district.

"Everything I heard from that area (of a potential Permian Basin-Amarillo battle) came from Midland and Odessa," Seliger said. "People here are far more concerned with the quality of representation and the conservatism of the person who represents us. Everyone in the district is well-represented with Sen. Bivins."

Still, there are signs redistricting did cause bitterness up north.

Seliger called the LRB's actions, "a political process engaged by politicians for a lot of personal and political reasons. There were no surprises."

A Republican benefactor in Amarillo has canceled a November fund-raiser for Attorney General John Cornyn. That Republican benefactor was Betty Lovell — Sen. Bivins' mother.

"If he (Cornyn) were going to favor the Permian Basin over the Panhandle, we'd let them help him," said Ms. Lovell in an Associated Press article.

One editorial in the Amarillo Globe-News stated "If the courts don't correct the mistakes made by the Legislative Redistricting Board, the rest of the Panhandle should be just as furious (as Lovell)."

Concerning his mother's statements, Bivins said, "We have different orientations, and she is entitled to her opinions ... I don't have any public comments to make about LRB membership."

In Lubbock, real estate developer Delbert McDougal has reportedly urged Cornyn to postpone plans to hold a political fund-raiser in the city for later this month.

"The feeling is that rural Texas has not been included in the loop," McDougal told the AP.

Cornyn acknowledged he has made some people unhappy.

"I think some of my friends, and yes, some of yours, would say they are disappointed by the outcome of both the Senate map and what will probably be adopted as the House map,'' he said. "But, our overriding responsibility is not to protect hurt feelings; it is not to protect incumbents; it's to protect the people of the state of Texas and to make sure they have a fair opportunity to elect people of their own choice."

State Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland backed Cornyn saying, "The Republican plan gave one more seat to West Texas than (Pete) Laney's plan did."

The news of Republican backers turning their backs on LRB members has the potential of blowing up in the faces of those candidates at the ballot box.

"John Cornyn and Carole Keeton Rylander, they might be our friends, but they are being ditched in other parts of the state big time," Barnes said. "We need the people of the two towns (Midland and Odessa) to appreciate John Cornyn. He ought to get some praise from Midland and Odessa."

Another member of the LRB, David Dewhurst, could be in line for a heated battle for the lieutenant governor's seat with Democrat John Sharp, should Dewhurst win the Republican nomination.

Again, Craddick downplays this idea. He says statewide, Republicans will not be hurt by the redistricting plan, because it was a "fair" plan and "it will hold up in court."

Last week Cornyn canceled an appearance at a Beaumont senior center where protesters were gathering and declined to answer audience questions on redistricting during an appearance at the Orange County courthouse.

Redistricting is the redrawing of political boundaries. It is done every 10 years based on new census figures.

FILE: Nicks hasn't given 'much thought' to appeal decides to hear the case.

Strauss said the appeal may take too long, and the district simply can't afford to stop.

"(Bledsoe) has 60 days to file, so the appeal may not even be filed until September, and from that point forward, it's a matter of how busy the appeal court's docket is before we find out," Strauss said. "We'll have time to respond, and then we'll have to wait to find out how the appellate court wants to handle it. It'll probably be late fall or winter before we get to the next juncture of the case."

MISD Superintendent Robert Nicks said with school about to start Monday, and he really hasn't worried much about a possible appeal.

"My thought and focus has been on getting off to a smooth start of the school year and to be honest, I've not given much thought to their appeal," he said. "We have indicated from the beginning that I believe that the interveners have the best interests of the students at heart, and so does the school district, and once the legal movements cease, and once the unitary status is finally complete, it is my intent to work with everyone in the community in providing quality education for the children of Midland."

"We think this is an incredible situation, because we have the lives of many young children at stake and we just want to make sure that the district treats all young people appropriately and we need to make sure that the mechanics are in place," Bledsoe said. "Let's not forget that the only reason that we had a decree in place to begin with, is that the district had been found guilty of discrimination."

Benefit planned for family

A benefit for the Taylors will put on by members of the Midland community from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 25. The Taylor Family Barbecue Benefit will be held in the Alamo Junior High School cafeteria at 3800 W. Storey Ave. Tickets will cost $7 for a prepared plate and $10 for VIP tickets. VIPs will be seated and served at the tables. Tickets will be sold at Caldwell Music and at the door during the event. A bake sale and an auction also will be held during the benefit. Auctions will take place every hour on the hour from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. People who want to drop off donations for the Taylors may either bring them to the event, or they can deposit funds in the Taylor Family Benefit Fund account at Bank United. The account number is 8005830628. For those interested in making donations for the benefit or who would like to volunteer during the benefit, they can contact Rhonda Marriott at 694-1305 or 352-4624.

Dramatic rise in smoke-free offices nationwide

By Nancy Zuckerbrod
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Many more Americans are working in smoke-free offices, but whether the air around their desks is clear largely depends on the state where they live, according to a study by the National Cancer Institute released Friday.

Nearly 70 percent of employees worked in businesses that had smoke-free policies in 1999, up from 46 percent in 1993, according to the study. Only 3 percent of workplaces were smoke-free 15 years ago, according to government research.

Workers in the Midwest and South — the regions where most tobacco is grown — generally reported the fewest smoke-free workplaces, while those in the Northeast and West had the most.

Donald Shopland, lead author of the study, published in the Journal of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, defined a smoke-free workplace as one where smoking is forbidden in public spaces and work areas, including individual offices.

Utah has the most workers covered by anti-smoking policies — 84 percent — followed by Maryland, California, Massachusetts and Vermont, according to the study, which was based on responses from 270,000 workers nationwide.

Those states have strong state or local laws restricting smoking in workplaces or public spaces, said Matthew Myers, president of the Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids, an anti-smoking group in Washington, D.C.

"There is a direct correlation between a community and a state enacting strong laws to protect workers from secondhand smoke and the number of workers who this study finds are protected," Myers said.

Nevada has the fewest workers in smoke-free offices — 49 percent — followed by Kentucky, Indiana, South Dakota and Michigan, the study found.

Shopland noted Nevada has a large gambling industry and it could be that smoking is part of the social culture there.

He said the largest group of employees who don't work in smoke-free environments are those in the hospitality industry.

"Restaurants and bars will end up being the last things that go smoke-free," Shopland said. "I think it will slowly happen."

The tobacco industry has fought laws such as one in California that bans smoking in indoor restaurants and bars.

"Any government-mandated smoking ban that eliminates smoking in places like bars and restaurants goes too far," said Brendan McCormick, a spokesman for Philip Morris Inc.

He said the company supports efforts to minimize secondhand smoke in various other ways, including creating separate smoking areas and installing good ventilation systems.

Reports by the U.S. surgeon general and others have found that exposure to secondhand tobacco smoke can cause lung cancer and other diseases.

Marines face charges for alleged roles in falsification of Osprey records

By Robert Burns
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Eight Marine Corps officers have been charged with misconduct in connection with the alleged falsification of maintenance records on the MV-22 Osprey tilt-rotor aircraft, officials said Friday.

Lt. Gen. Raymond Ayres Jr., commander of Marine Corps Forces Atlantic, notified the eight this week that he would hold an administrative hearing at which they may answer the charges against them.

The accused, whose names, ranks and positions were not released, have the right to refuse to accept the proceeding and instead request a court martial at which they could formally contest the charges. Ayres gave them until Aug. 17 to decide. He said their names would not be released until then.

The case has gained wide attention because the Osprey program — regarded as a key to the future of Marine Corps aviation — was in serious trouble even before the allegations arose in January. Two Osprey crashes last year killed 23 Marines and stirred speculation that the program might be killed.

The Osprey is designed to take off like a helicopter, rotate its propellers to a horizontal position and cruise like an airplane.

Maj. Bryan Salas, a spokesman at Marine Corps Forces Atlantic, based in Norfolk, Va., declined to say whether the eight accused include Lt. Col. Odin Fred Leberman, who was commander of the Osprey squadron at New River, N.C., where the alleged records falsifications took place.

The Defense Department inspector general concluded in June that Leberman falsified maintenance documents between Dec. 20, 2000 and Jan. 11, 2001 to exaggerate the aircraft's performance record and that he felt pressured by superiors to exaggerate the Osprey's operational readiness.

Leberman was relieved of his command the day the allegations became public in January.

The inspector general also found no evidence that any officer senior to Leberman ordered or suggested that records be falsified, although it said a small number of Marine officers within Leberman's squadron knew of the falsification and took no action to report it. These individuals were not named.

The Marine Corps and the inspector general both said the falsified records played no part in either Osprey crash last year.

Besides ordering administrative hearings for the eight officers, Ayres issued a nonpunitive "letter of caution" to one additional officer who had not previously been implicated by the inspector general, Salas said. He did not identify the recipient of the letter.

The charges cited by Ayres against the eight officers:

- Violation of a lawful standing general order.
- Dereliction of duty.
- Making a false official statement.
- Conduct unbecoming an officer.

Salas said none of the eight officers was charged with all four violations, although some were charged with more than one. He would not be more specific about which officers were charged with which violations.

Under the administrative proceeding arranged by Ayres, the maximum punishment for the charges is a punitive reprimand; a limited restriction to quarters for up to 60 days or arrest in quarters for up to 30 days; and forfeiture of one-half of the officer's pay for two months, Salas said.

The administrative hearing to be held by Ayres is a fact-finding procedure. The accused Marines may present evidence. Ayres would then consider the facts and circumstances and either dismiss all or part of the charges, impose an administrative punishment such as a reprimand if he finds the accused guilty or refer all charges to a court-martial.

Investigators: Low water level caused deadly explosion at county fair in Ohio

MEDINA, Ohio (AP) — A low-water level caused last month's explosion of an antique steam-powered tractor that killed five people at a county fair, investigators said Friday.

The tractor exploded when a gush of water hit red-hot metal, causing a rapid expansion of steam.

It is not known why the water was low enough to allow the metal to overheat. Investigators said it could have been caused by operator error, mechanical failure or a combination of both.

The July 29 explosion sent steam, hot water and shrapnel flying for hundreds of yards. Besides the dead, about 50 people were injured at the Medina County Fair, about 35 miles southwest of Cleveland.

Seven people remained hospitalized Friday.

The explosion took place so quickly that the safety valve, which regulates and releases steam pressure in the boiler when the engine is operating properly, didn't have time to work, said Bill Kennedy, a farmer who operates a steam engine.

'The dog ate my summons': Judges turn to fines, jail time for jury duty scofflaws

By JoAnn Loviglio
Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — What if they summoned a jury and nobody came?

As judges across the nation increasingly face that question, scofflaw courts are being set up to punish no-shows with fines and even jail time.

"People have all kinds of excuses, including 'the dog ate my summons,"' said Philadelphia Common Pleas President Judge Alex Bonavitacola, who presides over the city's year-old juror scofflaw court and metes out fines from $25 to $250 and community service sentences.

"When we summon you, we're not being capricious; we need you and you better show up," he said.

Judges say the shrinking turnout for jury pools sometimes delays trials. Courts have long had statutes that permit fines and jail time for no-shows, but the rules have largely not been enforced.

There are no clear figures on turnout rates nationwide, but many communities report that between 30 percent and 50 percent of people summoned actually appear for jury duty.

"We've had a lack of interest in civic responsibility for some time, and it's growing," said Temple University psychologist Frank Farley. "I think the decline in civic engagement points to a growing disconnectedness people feel to their community and to each other."

In Baltimore and Idaho, some scofflaws have been sent to jail for a day. No-shows are called in to remind them of the importance of jury duty.

A high juror scofflaw rate prompted Milwaukee court officials last fall to seek criminal prosecution of the no-shows.

Similar measures have been taken in Dallas, Denver, Albuquerque, N.M.; Raleigh, N.C.; and Brockton, Mass. And it appears that scaring scofflaws into civic responsibility is working, at least in Philadelphia.

"Right after the two sessions we had last year, we did get an uptick in response," Bonavitacola said. "Then it starts to slide off a bit, so we need to have scofflaw courts on a regular basis to keep it fresh in people's minds."

To get 300 people to appear daily for jury duty, Bonativacola's court issues about 1,500 summonses. In Lancaster County, about 3,000 of the 10,000 people who are called annually fail to appear.

Every week, as many as 30 people are called before Lancaster County Common Pleas President Judge Michael Georgelis to explain why they haven't responded to their jury summonses.

He said 99 percent have "unacceptable" excuses — like "I forgot."

"Some even have the gall not to show up to explain themselves," he said. "That's when a bench warrant is issued."

This month, Georgelis found nine people guilty of contempt of court and sentenced them to two days in jail and $300 in fines. He also ordered them to report for jury duty next month.

University of Pennsylvania law professor Edward Rubin believes people don't shirk jury duty out of disrespect.

"It's more pragmatic: This is a big economic burden for lower-income people who don't work for a big company that pays them when they're on a jury," he said. In Philadelphia, for example, jurors receive $9 a day compensation — not enough to park their car for the day — and no reimbursement for child care or other expenses.

Farley also pointed out that people are busier than ever with work and family obligations, and the speed of cyber-society makes the idea of jury duty boring.

"There's a sense that courts are clogged and move slowly so people are thinking, 'Oh, I can't just sit around in a room all day for nothing,"' he said. "People feel that they have too many obligations — so they don't vote, they don't want to be jurors, they don't get involved in their communities."

A commission created to investigate Washington state's low no-show rate found that driver and voter databases used to glean juror addresses were often outdated and inaccurate.

Many who claimed they never received a jury summons were telling the truth, said David Brody, an assistant professor of criminal justice at Washington State University and a commission adviser.

"Updating lists, paying for parking or providing child care can run into a lot of money over time," Brody said. "So the question is, is it worth the money or not?"

Chevron has 'understanding' with FTC on Texaco buyout

SAN FRANCISCO (NYT) — Chevron Corp., the second-largest U.S. oil company, has an "informal understanding" with U.S. trade commission staff on its $46.2 billion buyout of Texaco Inc., which may close Oct. 9 with approval of the companies' shareholders.

Chevron and Texaco agreed informally with Federal Trade Commission staff today on what assets Texaco must sell for approval of the buyout, which would create the world's fourth-largest oil company, the companies said in a filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

Texaco would sell its stake in the refining and marketing ventures Equilon Enterprises LLC and Motiva Enterprises LLC, as well as its stakes in U.S. natural-gas processing and transport, and fuel outlets for small aircraft, the companies said in a statement. The agreement remains subject to FTC and other approvals.

Texaco holds 44 percent of Equilon, a joint venture with Royal/Dutch Shell Group. It owns 31 percent of Motiva, a joint venture with Shell and Saudi Arabian Oil Co. If neither partner buys out Texaco's interests before the transaction closes, Texaco's stakes will be put in trust, Chevron said in a filing with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission.

Shell said last week it's still in talks to buy the stakes. The two companies haven't been able to agree on a price.

San Francisco-based Chevron said it hoped to complete the Texaco purchase within a year when it agreed to buy its White Plains, New York-based rival in October.

Debate far from over, researchers gear up on embryonic stem cells

By Laura Meckler
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The debate over stem cells is shifting to the halls of Congress, but the action is moving to the nation's laboratories as scientists begin the painstaking work of translating promise into actual treatments.

President Bush's decision to allow limited federal funding for the research offered both comfort and angst to advocates on both sides of the debate. And it complicated the politics all around. Bush may have satisfied just enough people just enough to stave off congressional action.

"The president probably bought himself some time," said Thomas Mann, an expert on Congress at the Brookings Institution. "Pressure will build again, but it will take some time."

At issue is research involving days-old human embryos, each one smaller than the period at the end of this sentence, left over from fertility treatments. Inside sit stem cells that can develop into any type of tissue.

Scientists say these cells could help cure many diseases, but in order to get them out, the embryo must be destroyed. For some who believe life begins at conception, this amounts to taking one life to try and save another.

Trying to thread an ethical needle, Bush said Thursday that he would allow federal funding for research on stem cell lines, but only those that have already been created. Each embryo can yield one stem cell line, which can continue replicating indefinitely.

At the National Institutes of Health on Friday, researchers were beginning to catalogue the existing stem cell lines, which officials now estimate at 60 worldwide. Around the country, scientists were beginning to hone their ideas for grant applications, which were expected to be submitted and awarded by early next year.

Dr. Harold Varmus, who led the NIH under President Clinton, predicted that hundreds of researchers would get into the field, even under limited federal funding. Ultimately, he predicted that the federal government would spend tens to hundreds of millions of dollars per year in this field.

Dr. Catherine Verfaillie, who directs the University of Minnesota Stem Cell Institute, said the political turmoil surrounding this research dissuaded her from applying for federal funding when it was initially offered last year.

"Many investigators were in the same boat," she said. But now that the matter appears settled, she plans to submit a grant application.

Also Friday, President Bush defended his decision, saying he struck the right balance between the sanctity of life and the urgency of research, with enough funding to figure out whether promise will translate into a cure.

"I listened to a lot of people and did what I thought was right," Bush told ABC News from his ranch in Crawford, Texas. "I think this is the kind of decision where it does require prayer. Prayerful consideration."

In Washington, both sides expected debate over the issue to resume in Congress when lawmakers return next month.

Research proponents make up a majority of the Senate and close to it in the House, and some have pledged to push for broader funding.

"Restrictions on this lifesaving research will slow the development of the new cures that are so urgently needed by millions of patients across America," said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., said he would continue to push his legislation allowing funding with few restrictions, a measure that could be attached to spending bills that will move through Congress this fall. And Rep. Brad Sherman, D-Calif., urged Americans — especially those in wheelchairs or whose relatives suffer from Alzheimer's disease — to contact their representatives while they're home over the summer break.

But some important allies, anti-abortion Republicans who support the research, are not likely to challenge Bush's plan.

"We just have to watch this play out," said Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah. He told reporters in Salt Lake City that he would like to see more stem cell lines available but Congress should hold back for now. "Let's give it a chance."

Senate Majority Leader Tom Daschle, D-S.D., predicted that "the Senate will want to take action" to open up more research funding. But he stopped short of saying he'll support it, and he praised the president's thoughtfulness.

On the other side of issue, many Christian conservatives were talking tough and warning the president that he can only go against them so many times.

Maria Pena, center, mother of Maria Herrera and Dilcia Pena, is comforted by family members as she leaves New York's Brooklyn Criminal Court Friday after the arraignment of New York City police officer Joseph Gray. Gray pleaded innocent to charges that he killed Dilcia Pena and Maria Herrera, along with Maria's son Andy, and her unborn baby boy while driving to work drunk.

Three NYC officers fired over fatal accident

By Donna De la Cruz
Associated Press

NEW YORK — A police office charged with killing three family members while driving to work drunk pleaded innocent and was released on $250,000 bail Friday as three fellow officers accused of drinking with him before the accident were fired.

Police Commissioner Bernard Kerik said he fired three of the 17 officers accused of drinking with Officer Joseph Gray before Gray allegedly hit the three victims. The officers were celebrating a sergeant's upcoming wedding.

Two of the officers, John Welsh and Craig Hildebrand, had been with Gray at an off-limits "corruption-prone" strip club near the 72nd Precinct stationhouse, Kerik said. A third, Edward Sills, allegedly had been drinking with Gray in a police parking lot.

The three could be fired at the commissioner's discretion because they were on probation. Welsh and Hildebrand were probationary officers because they had been on the job for less than two years. Sills was on disciplinary probation for a DWI infraction.

Calls to lawyers for the police union, who represent the fired officers, were not immediately returned.

The other 14 officers were either transferred, suspended without pay, or were assigned to desk duty with their guns and badges. They cannot be fired as easily because they are not probationary officers, or on disciplinary probation, Kerik said. A police officer cannot be fired without being given a department hearing or trial.

Kerik also made sweeping changes in the staffing of midnight tours at all precincts. Any officer on disciplinary probation will be removed from the tour and placed in a shift with more supervisors, he told police reporters.

Kerik said he is looking at how the department investigates alcohol-related incidents involving its officers.

His comments came hours after Gray pleaded innocent to charges he killed Maria Herrera, her 4-year-old son, Andy, and her 16-year-old sister, Dilcia Pena. Herrera's baby boy was delivered by Caesarean section after the accident, but did not survive.

An earlier decision to free Gray with no bail had sparked criticism. But the judge on Friday imposed bail after prosecutors described the day-long drinking binge and argued Gray posed a risk to the community.

"These are not the acts of the loving family man and responsible police officer," prosecutor Joseph Petrosino said. "He has disgraced himself and the department."

In the courtroom Friday, Gray stood with his eyes down, looking dejected. He never spoke during the brief hearing; his attorney entered the plea for him.

"He's very sorry about what happened; he feels terrible about it," defense lawyer Harold Levy said after the hearing. Levy said he had expected the bail decision, but "I thought it was unreasonably high."

Gray's release less than an hour after the plea infuriated Victor Manuel Herrera, who had arrived at the courthouse clutching a large frame with pictures of the wife, son and sister-in-law he had buried on Thursday.

"It's not justice," he said. "He is supposed to be locked up. He is supposed to be alone and feeling what I'm feeling. He does not deserve to be with his family. He wiped out my whole family."

The officer's wife and parish priest, the Rev. Eugene Carrella, also were in the audience.

"I know Joseph Gray," Carrella said after the hearing. "He is a family man, a hard-working man. When he is not on duty on the weekends, he brings his children to church. That's all I can say for now."

Drop in gasoline prices helps bring down July wholesale prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sharp drop in the costs of gasoline and other energy products helped drive down wholesale prices in July by the largest amount in eight years.

With inflation low, Federal Reserve policy-makers will have more leeway to continue reducing interest rates in their effort to avert a recession when they meet on Aug. 21, economists said.

The 0.9 percent plunge in July's wholesale prices, reported Friday by the Labor Department, came after a Fed survey of business conditions around the country that suggested the economy had stalled in June and July.

Against the backdrop of that gloomy report and the inflation news, some economists said they were not ruling out a half-point cut in interest rates in August, although many believe the Fed will opt for a more conservative quarter point cut.

"The Fed has a free hand to do what is necessary to overcome the sluggishness in the economy ... a 50 basis-point cut would not be unreasonable," said economist Joel Naroff, president of Naroff Economic Advisors.

On Wall Street, the inflation report failed to provide any cheer. Stocks drifted lower, though they gained ground later in the day.

The bigger-than-expected slide in last month's Producer Price Index, which measures price pressures before they reach store shelves, followed a 0.4 percent decrease in June, and marked the largest decline in wholesale prices since August 1993.

"The collapse in energy prices is good news for consumers and for producers and gives the Fed a lot of elbow room to keep lowering interest rates as needed," said Stuart Hoffman, chief economist at PNC Financial Services Group.

Producer prices

SOURCE: Bureau of Labor Statistics AP

One of the reasons the Fed has been able to cut interest rates six times this year, by a total of 2.75 percentage points, is because inflation hasn't posed a risk to the economy.

Economists believe inflation will remain contained in the months ahead. Soaring energy prices, which caused wholesale prices to spike by 1.1 percent in January, have eased in the face of eroding global demand. And the yearlong economic slowdown has made it harder for companies to raise their prices and has made many of them reluctant to grant workers' big increases in pay and benefits.

For the first seven months of this year, wholesale prices rose at an annual rate of just 0.5 percent, a big improvement over the 3.8 percent increase for the same period a year ago.

"The back of inflation has been broken," declared Ken Mayland, president of ClearView Economics.

Excluding volatile energy and food prices, the "core" rate of inflation edged up 0.2 percent in July, following a tiny 0.1 percent gain. So far this year, core inflation has been rising at an annual rate of 1.7 percent, a bit faster than the 1.2 percent rate for the same period last year.

In July, all energy prices fell by 5.8 percent, the biggest drop since August 1989. That followed a 2.5 percent decline in June.

Gasoline prices last month posted a 17.7 percent decrease, the biggest drop in 15 years. Prices at the pump have tumbled since peaking on May 18 at $1.76 a gallon as refiners rushed to fill shortages that developed during the spring.

Prices for liquefied petroleum gas, such as propane, also fell sharply, dropping 17.8 percent. Home heating oil costs declined by 9.1 percent and residential natural gas prices declined by 4 percent.

But prices for residential electric power jumped 2.2 percent, the biggest increase since January 1991. The increase comes as residents of California cope with a power crisis caused by a shortage of electrical generating capacity.

After ticking up in June by 0.1 percent, food prices declined by 0.6 percent in July, the biggest drop in two years. Falling prices for beef, chicken, dairy products, vegetables and fruits swamped sharply higher prices for pork.

Elsewhere, prices for cars fell by 0.3 percent, while the cost of light trucks, such as sport utility vehicles, jumped 2.3 percent, the biggest increase since 1987.

Israel seizes Palestinian headquarters in Jerusalem following bombing

By Karin Laub
Associated Press

JERUSALEM — Israeli riot police in black ski masks shut down the PLO headquarters in Jerusalem — a symbol of Palestinian claims to the disputed city — in a pre-dawn raid Friday, a day after an Islamic militant killed himself and 14 others in one of the deadliest bombings in 10 months of Mideast fighting.

The takeover of the Orient House was Israel's most direct challenge yet of Palestinian claims to traditionally Arab east Jerusalem as a future capital. Palestinians called the raid provocative and said it would trigger more bloodshed.

Most of the victims of the suicide attack at a Jerusalem pizzeria were buried Friday, including Judith Shoshana Greenbaum, a 31-year-old pregnant teacher from Passaic, N.J., who was studying in Israel, and five members of a family from the Jewish settlement of Talmon in the West Bank.

A surviving daughter of the family, 11-year-old Leah Schijveschuurder, was wheeled to the funeral of her Dutch-born father, Israeli-born mother and three siblings — ages 2, 4 and 14 — on a hospital stretcher, with breathing tubes in her nose. Another sister was too badly injured to attend.

Israel's chief rabbi, Israel Meir Lau, who had married the couple, broke down during the eulogy after speaking about Mrs. Schijveschuurder's work with children.

"In her name, I call on the creator of the world, hear our voice," Lau said, sobbing. "Hear our voice, hear this voice of mourning."

Senior Israeli Cabinet ministers met until early Friday to decide on a response to the bombing, carried out by a 23-year-old Palestinian member of the Islamic militant group Hamas.

Shortly after the Cabinet meeting, two Israeli F-16 warplanes leveled the Palestinian police headquarters in the West Bank town of Ramallah and Israeli troops raided nine Palestinian Authority offices in the town of Abu Dis near Jerusalem.

The main target, however, was the Orient House in Jerusalem.

At about 2 a.m. Friday, helmeted Israeli riot police, some covering their faces with black ski masks, climbed over the fence of the compound. Later, police jeeps drove into the courtyard.

Police took the Palestinian flag from the roof and planted the Israeli banner there instead. Officers also removed from the facade a large picture of the late Faisal Husseini, the top PLO official in Jerusalem who died in June. Seven Orient House guards were arrested, and police took many documents from the building. Adjacent streets were blocked off.

The Israeli flag was later removed, though it was not clear by whom. Jerusalem Mayor Ehud Olmert said hoisting the Israeli flag had been "a little provocative," but suggested Israel would keep control of the compound for some time.

Several hours after the raid, club-wielding police, including some on horseback, clashed with several dozen demonstrators trying to push through barricades. Eight people were arrested.

Israel TV reported that Prime Minister Ariel Sharon and his foreign minister, Shimon Peres, had argued over closing the Orient House, with Peres opposed because of possible political repercussions. Israeli governments had threatened in the past to shut down the complex, but never acted.

Asked how long Israel intended to keep control of the complex, Sharon reportedly answered: "Forever."

Israeli government spokesman Dore Gold would not comment on the report.

Gold said Israel was sending a message to Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat that violence would not bring him political gains, and that his only option was to round up dozens of suspected Islamic militants, as Israel has demanded. "Perhaps in this way, Mr. Arafat may change his strategy," Gold said.

Israel held Arafat responsible for Thursday's bombing, even though it was carried out by Hamas, one of the Palestinian leader's political rivals. Gold said Arafat has done nothing to prevent attacks on Israelis.

Arafat gave no hint that he was going to change his policy. Touring the destroyed police headquarters in Ramallah, Arafat blamed Israel for the escalating violence and said the Palestinian people would remain steadfast.

The Palestinians want to establish their future capital in east Jerusalem, which was captured by Israel in the 1967 Mideast war and annexed into its capital. The Orient House was seen as the core of a future government complex in the city.

The future of Jerusalem was the most contentious issue in peace talks that collapsed earlier this year. Sharon's predecessor, Ehud Barak, had offered the Palestinians a measure of control in east Jerusalem, but did not meet all Palestinian demands.

In Gaza City, Hamas spiritual leader Ahmed Yassin, said bombings would continue. Hamas has said the suicide bombing came in retaliation for last week's Israeli rocket attack on the group's headquarters in the West Bank town of Nablus. Eight people, including two Hamas leaders and two Palestinian children, died in that attack.

"Israeli civilians will not be safe. They (the Israelis) should stop these attacks against innocent Palestinian people to avoid civilian deaths on their side," Yassin said.

The bomber, Izzedine al-Masri, was a devout Muslim who had hinted recently that he would become a "martyr," his family said Friday.

Al-Masri's father, Shaheel, said his son left home on Wednesday, saying he planned to spend time with friends in Ramallah. The elder al-Masri said he was proud of his son.

In Ramallah, Hamas activists distributed sweets at a rally as a sign of joy over the bombing.

The Israeli daily Yediot Ahronot said Israeli authorities had warnings about the impending attack and that it was unclear why more was not done to stop it. There was no immediate official comment.

Holocaust memorial poster taken down after criticism

BERLIN (AP) — A billboard that aimed to raise funds for Germany's new Holocaust memorial using the heading "The Holocaust never happened" was taken down Friday after three weeks in which it attracted mounting criticism from Jewish leaders.

The 100-by-50-foot billboard overlooking the plot allocated for the memorial near Berlin's Brandenburg Gate had to be cut down because of the high winds that prevented its removal Thursday.

Campaign organizers promised last week to remove the billboard, unveiled July 19, after some Jewish leaders and politicians expressed concern that the slogan would offend Holocaust survivors and could be seized on by right-wing extremists.

It is to be replaced by a poster with the text "The future needs memory — participate in the building of the monument to the murdered Jews of Europe," although it was unclear when the new billboard would go up.

A convicted neo-Nazi is under investigation for inciting racial hatred after German television showed him holding a banner stating "Crimes by the Wehrmacht didn't happen either" beneath the billboard.

The campaign had the backing of the head of Berlin's Jewish community, and organizers said they deliberately sought a provocative image to stimulate discussion and drum up individual contributions for the planned memorial.

The billboard — as well as hundreds of posters, postcards and newspaper ads — carried smaller text urging people to fight Holocaust denial by helping pay for a documentation center to lie beneath the planned memorial, 2,700 large concrete slabs spread over a plot the size of two football fields.

The government is paying for construction of the monument itself, which is to start later this summer.

Film industry booms in Nigeria — on home video

By Todd Pitman
Associated Press

LAGOS, Nigeria — The film set is somebody's living room, rented out for the day. There are stains on the rug, beer bottles on the table, and three actors on the couch, sweating in the afternoon heat.

Somewhere outside a generator is sputtering away, struggling to provide electricity to a camcorder and two bright stage lights that keep growing dim.

"We had to hire a generator, but as you can see, it's not quite in order," 32-year-old producer Larry Agoha notes grimly before leaning into the ear of a friend to ask for help.

"Hey, if you've got electricity, can we can we shoot some scenes at your house tomorrow?"

Despite power outages, low budgets and ailing equipment, the art of filmmaking is booming in the West African nation of Nigeria — but not up on the big screen.

With only a few dozen movie theaters in a country of 120 million — and none in the commercial capital, Lagos, Africa's largest city, filmmakers are reaching audiences the only way they can: on home video.

"We don't have any multiplex cinemas, so if you want to watch a movie here, you've got to watch it on video cassette," says director Mahmood Ali-Balogun.

Nigerians give different reasons for the country's poor cinematic infrastructure.

Some say a 1970s government plan to encourage Nigerian films — by discouraging imports — inadvertently killed many theaters. Others say the proliferation of VCRs simply provided a cheap alternative to big movie houses.

For filmmakers in Nigeria today, that's just as well. Few can afford to shoot on the costly 35 mm film normally shown at large cinemas, preferring digital video cameras instead that are relatively cheap and simple to operate.

"You don't need any special skills to work a camcorder. Anybody can just pick one up and start shooting," Ali-Balogun says.

And a lot of people have.

Hordes of fledgling producers have tried their hands at the trade, filling video store shelves with low-budget Nigerian dramas on everything from prostitution to politics.

Most movies are shown only on VCRs — sold, rarely rented, for a few dollars each. Others screen in what passes for public cinemas: dirt-floored rooms equipped with a TV, a VCR and wooden benches.

The quality of most films, though, is mediocre: Special effects are poor, music tracks are sometimes performed on cheap electronic keyboards and scenes can drag on ... and on.

But the appetite for new movies — new Nigerian movies — is voracious.

"There used to be nothing to watch except foreign stuff, American films, Indian films," Ali-Balogun says. "But now we are making so many Nigerian movies, that's all people want to watch. We've killed the foreign market."

Video store owner Ani Emeka agrees.

About 80 percent of his profits come from local films, the 42-year-old says, squatting on a small wooden stool at his shop in a Lagos suburb. "Nigerians love Nigerian movies."

And some other countries do too: The films have found their way into video stores all over Africa. Some have been distributed as far away as London.

Last year alone, 650 movies were produced in Nigeria, up from 205 in 1995, according to the National Film and Video Censors Board.

The films cater mostly to the three big language families in Nigeria: English, Hausa and Yoruba. A handful of smaller languages and pidgin English account for the rest.

Typical films cost $30,000-50,000 to produce — a large sum in a country where most people earn just a few dollars a day.

Agoha, the living-room producer, was lucky to find a Lagos businessman willing to invest $10,000 in his second low-budget movie, "Catapult".

The true-life script, written by Agoha's wife, tells the story of an orphaned boy who grows up to be a pastor — and discovers later his real father is not only alive, but a pastor in the same church.

Agoha's work will largely be over after just one week of shooting and a second week of editing.

The finished product will then be copied on 50,000 to 100,000 video cassettes and distributed through central markets.

But distribution takes many forms. Producers say piracy is a major problem, and one the government is doing little to stop.

"If we release 50,000 videos, then somebody somewhere is releasing the same amount of pirated copies," says director Zeb Ejiro, who's been in the business a decade. As a result, he says, the industry loses millions each year.

Ejiro says the industry, worth at least $50 million a year, is one of Nigeria's largest employers, giving jobs to armies of actors, producers, directors, cameramen, soundmen and clerks at some 30,000 video clubs.

He'd like to see the industry graduate into 35 mm. But creating a Nigerian Hollywood would take government help, he says — and that's not a priority in soccer-mad Nigeria.

"The government should be building cinemas in every town, but instead they're building stadiums," Ejiro says. "We have just one national theater in the country ... and they want to sell it."

Crossing cultures: Of little Chinese kids, big-time U.S. senators and one small village

By Ted Anthony
Associated Press

YANZIKOU, China (AP) — He walked the streets with a candidate's finesse, chatting with the locals, buying a round of ice cream, holding a kitten, even kissing a baby or two. It might well have been a campaign stop.

But on this particular Friday morning, Sen. Joseph Biden wasn't canvassing constituents in his home state of Delaware. He and two fellow senators were on the other side of the planet with a more international goal in mind: getting a glimpse of life in China's countryside, where 70 percent of the nation's 1.3 billion people live.

Every American visitor, Biden said, stands to learn from an expedition beyond the burgeoning sprawl of the Beijing building boom.

"There would be a greater appreciation for the incredible — how should I say it? — leap that China still has to make for the vast majority of its citizens," said the Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman, a Democrat, who was accompanied by Sen. Fred Thompson, Republican of Tennessee, and Sen. Paul Sarbanes, Democrat of Maryland.

"I'm struck by the tremendous development in Shanghai, Beijing. But it's good to come out here and put it into perspective," Sarbanes said.

Yanzikou — the name means "Swallow's Pass" in English — is a village of hand-fashioned brick houses down a narrow road an hour north of Beijing. It sits against jagged mountains near both the Great Wall and the newer Snow Village Ski Park, and its 200 people farm vegetables and pomegranates in the surrounding hills.

AP Photo

Villagers react with laughter as U.S. Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Joseph Biden, right, proclaims 7-year-old Gao Shan, in the striped shirt, as the future president of China, during a visit to Yanzikou Village, north of Beijing Friday. After meeting Chinese leaders for two days, Biden and his delegation left Beijing to look at life in the countryside, where 70 percent of China's population lives.

What makes it particularly distinctive, however, is the building topped with a cross in the heart of town. Yanzikou is 80 percent Catholic — the government-regulated version of Roman Catholicism, which isn't permitted to affiliate with the Vatican.

The village priest, the Rev. Joseph Zhang Depu, a dead ringer for Uncle Junior from "The Sopranos," welcomed the senators in a whisper to his sanctuary. Biden, who is Catholic, walked among unadorned wooden pews and glanced at the Christmas lights hanging from a chandelier.

"This was a house once," Zhang told Biden, who knelt before him.

"For how long were you unable to be a priest, openly ministering to your flock?" Biden asked.

"I'm too embarrassed to say," responded Zhang.

"I'd go to confession," Biden joked, "except you'd have to hear my sins."

Thompson chimed in. "'It would take too long," the former actor quipped.

Outside, Biden cautioned against conclusions.

"The attitude of what constitutes a religion here or in the United States is very different," he said. "I wouldn't extrapolate from this that there's necessarily religious freedom in all of China."

Then, away from cameras, he slipped back into the empty church and deposited three folded 100-yuan bills — about $37 — into the collection box.

From there, the senators strode through the village. Each person they met, Biden said, spoke to why they came: to help Americans begin to understand China — and help Chinese understand Americans better.

Among the latter were Gao Shan, 11, and Yan Songlu, 7. Biden spotted them playing in the sun-baked dirt and strode up. They seemed average enough, but he saw something else in them: China's future.

"Hello, Mr. President, Mr. Premier," he joked good-naturedly. Then, to his staff: "These two could be running the country someday."

"President?" Gao Shan said as his mother beamed. "I'm happy to hear that."

The senators ducked under an underwear-laden clothesline to visit Hang Shujun, who shares a two-room home with her parents, younger sister, husband and infant son, who attracted Biden like a magnet. He picked up 2 1/2-month-old Liu Yue, who didn't object.

"This is what politicians in America do," Biden said, kissing Yue's forehead. Soot from a coal stove hung heavy in the air.

And the future president and premier of China? They walked away happy: Joe Biden gave them his address and invited them to America.

More importantly, he bought them Popsicles.

Britain strips Northern Ireland politicians of power

By Shawn Pogatchnik
Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Britain stripped power Friday from Northern Ireland's Catholic-Protestant government, a maneuver that will give political parties six more weeks to break their impasse over Irish Republican Army disarmament.

Northern Ireland Secretary John Reid announced Britain had withdrawn authority from the administration and legislature effective at midnight local time, but might hand power back after consulting the Irish government Saturday.

The suspension capped a tense week in which disarmament chiefs and the IRA agreed on a secret method for disposing of weapons, but not a date to start.

Protestant leaders insisted that the IRA must start getting rid of its arms, otherwise they would scuttle a power-sharing arrangement that includes the IRA-linked Sinn Fein party.

"When we have come so far, I think most people would agree with both governments that we should allow the parties more time to try to bridge the remaining gaps," British Prime Minister Tony Blair said in a statement from Mexico, where he is vacationing.

It was the second time Britain took powers away from the 20-month-old administration, both times in an attempt to resolve the question of when the IRA would disarm in support of the Good Friday peace accord of 1998.

Reid's action, exploiting a legal technicality, meant the four-party administration could survive for at least another six weeks without a Protestant leader. The deadline to elect a new "first minister" had been Saturday following the resignation six weeks ago of David Trimble, who leads the major Protestant party, the Ulster Unionists.

"As so often in Northern Ireland, we have reached what appears to be an immovable date. ... But I believe that dates and deadlines are here to serve the people, not the other way round," Reid said at his Hillsborough Castle residence near Belfast.

Reid said the law prohibited him from saying immediately how long the suspension would last.

But British officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the joint strategy of the British and Irish governments was to hand power back to local hands after Saturday's meeting between Reid and Irish Foreign Minister Brian Cowen.

Britain and Ireland both hope that the coming six weeks will allow local parties to forge a new agreement involving cutbacks to British military forces, reforms to the mostly Protestant police force, and the disposal of hidden stockpiles of IRA weaponry. All have been goals of the 1998 pact and subsequent agreements.

The immediate effect may be to break the cycle of increasingly angry exchanges among the party leaders, and give time for tempers to cool. Trimble departed with his wife and children for a two-week vacation in Austria on Friday.

Britain took charge for three months last year when the IRA's refusal to disarm last fueled rebellion within Ulster Unionist ranks. At that time, power-sharing was resuscitated after the IRA pledged it would start disarming.

Martin McGuinness, the former IRA commander who is education minister in the Northern Ireland administration, said Britain risked alienating Catholics by pulling the plug on "the people's institutions — even for a day."

McGuinness, comparing the north's Catholics with 1960s-era U.S. civil rights protesters, said angrily: "We are not going to the back of the bus for David Trimble, John Reid or anybody else. Those days are gone."

Britain two weeks ago published its plans for cutting forces, closing bases and reducing helicopter use along the border with the Republic of Ireland. But it held back many details on its plans for reshaping the Royal Ulster Constabulary, the 88 percent Protestant force that the IRA long sought to destroy.

For its part, the IRA this week announced it had agreed with a disarmament commission on a confidential means for getting rid of its weapons. But the refusal to specify a starting date meant Trimble stood little chance of winning re-election as first minister in the legislature, where Protestants are split nearly 50-50 for or against him.

The short-term suspension received immediate support from the major Catholic-supported party in the Northern Ireland coalition, the moderate Social Democratic and Labor Party. Its spokesman Alban Maginness called it "the lesser of two evils."

Sooners try to defend title, make more history

By Richard Rosenblatt
AP Football Writer

No less than four books on Oklahoma's championship will be out as the new season begins in two weeks.

But coach Bob Stoops is ready for a new edition, one he hopes will end with the Sooners becoming the first school to win back-to-back titles three times.

"We've proven we can win them all," Stoops says about last season's 13-0 record, "and I think we should be a better team this year."

And they just might, although being better certainly doesn't guarantee a repeat of last season's championship, Oklahoma's seventh national crown but first since 1985.

"I'm not saying we will win it, but we have so much added experience coming back," Stoops says. "Plus, we're faster and stronger than we were a year ago.

"The important thing going into this season is the fact the players know how to win."

The Sooners return 16 starters, including All-American linebacker Rocky Calmus. Nate Hybl moves in for Heisman runner-up Josh Heupel, but Stoops says his new quarterback can be just as good.

"He's an incredible worker, has an excellent arm and has strength and quickness," Stoops says. "We just have to find out how he handles pressure."

It's been years since there have been such brazen boasts coming out of the SoonerNation. Not since the Barry Switzer era, which ended ignominiously after the 1988 season with the school being rocked by NCAA sanctions, has there been so much confidence in Norman. The Sooner Caravan is rolling through the state to overflow receptions.

Last week in Oklahoma City, for example, about 800 OU fans hung on every word Stoops said at a fund-raising auction — the last of dozens of stops around the state.

After chowing down on ribs, chicken and sausage, fans lined up for Stoops' autograph, handing him teddy bears, Orange Bowl souvenirs and even a cell phone to sign.

The top item on the block was a Heupel-signed jersey, which went for $2,800 — an autographed football from the '85 title team went for $600.

The fans also saw a video called "Great Expectations," with OU president David Boren proclaiming, "We have no small dreams ... We dream of national championships," and Stoops ending with, "It is easy to see Oklahoma is back."

Stoops, too, is back for his third season. He was wooed by the Cleveland Browns in the offseason, but signed a contract extension boosting his annual salary to $2 million — second to the top figure in college football, the $2.1 million earned by Florida coach Steve Spurrier.

How much did the national title cost? Stoops' new salary is nearly three times what he started out making last season. He opened at $700,000, the Board of Regents doubled it to $1.4 million in October and he wound up earning $1.975 million thanks to reaching all the incentives in the new deal.

Even before winning the championship with a 13-2 victory over Florida State, recruiting dividends began with dominating early season victories over Texas, Kansas State and Nebraska.

A top-notch class of recruits was signed, including defensive tackle Tommie Harris of Killeen, Texas, a player coveted by the Longhorns and expected to contribute this season, a season that could be historic.

Only two other schools, Alabama and Nebraska, won consecutive titles two times. The Sooners won theirs in 1955-56 under Bud Wilkinson and in 1974-75 under Switzer.

"We like the pursuit of it, and going after it and we'll enjoy it again this year," Stoops says. "But we won't get caught up in all that."

MIDLAND ROCKHOUNDS

Midland RockHound pitcher Jon Adkins throws a pitch during the second inning of the first game of the doubleheader Friday night at Christensen Stadium. The RockHounds lost the game, 5-1, but won the second game, 2-1.

'Hounds split doubleheader

By Oscar LeRoy
Sports Writer.

It finally took some great pitching to slow down the Round Rock Express.

Midland RockHounds' starter Chris Enochs pitched six solid innings as he helped snap Midland's four-game losing skid with a 2-1 victory over the Express in the nightcap of Friday's doubleheader. Enochs (2-3) limited the Express to just three hits and one earned run in the second seven-inning game.

In the first game of the doubleheader, Kevin Burns sparked a four-run fifth inning with a two-run triple en route to a 5-1 victory over the RockHounds. Burns also homered for the fourth time in the last five games against the RockHounds with a solo blast, his 16th of the season, over the right field wall in the nightcap's second inning.

The 'Hounds almost let the win slip away in the second game as the Express had the bases loaded in the top of the seventh with just one out. Joe Cotton, however, got Carlos Maldanado to pop up to catcher Chris Madonna, then struck out Jason Alfaro to end the threat and picked up his fifth save of the season.

Midland got its go-ahead run in the fifth inning as Mike Lockwood doubled home Jay Pecci off Round Rock reliever Doug Sessions (6-4). Lockwood went 3-for-3 in Friday's second game.

In the first game of Friday's doubleheader, Travis Smith (14-7) kept the 'Hounds relatively quiet by going 6 1/3 innings and allowing just one run on six hits.

Perry leads after two rounds at Buick Open

By Larry Lage
AP Sports Writer

GRAND BLANC, Mich. — It will be hard for Kenny Perry to top the birthday present he gave himself Friday.

The 41-year-old player tied the tournament nine-hole record en route to an 8-under 64 and a three-stroke lead after the second round of the Buick Open.

When Perry talked to his wife, Sandy, on the phone Thursday night, she said, "Go out and give yourself a good birthday present."

He did.

Perry made seven birdies in a front-nine 29 to tie the Buick Open's nine-hole record. Six other players have had 29s, but Trevor Dodds was the only one do it on the front nine.

"When I birdied 7, 8 and 9," Perry said, "I started thinking crazy numbers. I started thinking 58 and 59."

Perry missed birdies by inches on Nos. 10 and 11. If Perry would have birdied the 18th, which he bogeyed, he would've tied the tournament's 18-hole and 36-hole records.

"I'm not complaining," he said. "That's about as good as I can play."

He had a 14-under 130 total on the Warwick Hills course.

The cut was made at 4 under, the lowest ever in the 43 years of the Buick Open.

Jim Furyk, who shared the first-round lead with Brian Henninger, shot a 69 to join Brett Quigley (65) and Bob Tway (65) at 133. John Cook (68), Padraig Harrington (67), Jonathan Kaye (67), Ian Leggatt (68) and Craig Perks (68) were four back.

"I have myself in good position for the weekend," Furyk said.

Phil Mickelson and Henninger topped a large group at 9 under.

"It was a little disappointing not to have scored a little bit lower because the course was susceptible to birdies," said Mickelson, No. 2 in the world rankings. "I didn't play poorly. I played well, I didn't score well."

Perry, a regular on the tour since 1987, has not won a tournament since the 1995 Bob Hope Classic, his third career win.

"For a couple years, I was just making my card and keeping my job," Perry said. "But I wasn't quite getting to the top."

Perry tied for 11th at The International last week and tied for fifth at his previous outing, the Greater Milwaukee Open, where he shot a second-round 63. He has been among the top 11 in four of his last seven tournaments, and is 40th on the money list.

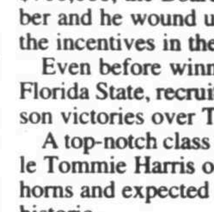
Dallas, Denver look at different facets on offense

By Stephen Hawkins
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — The Dallas Cowboys and Denver Broncos will be looking at different aspects of their offenses when the former Super Bowl champions, and one-time opponents in the big game, play a preseason game Saturday night.



Dallas will look at some of their options behind top receivers Joey Galloway and Raghib Ismail, who are being handled with care after knee injuries last season. Like in last week's preseason opening 21-14 loss at Oakland, the top two will sit out and the Cowboys will look at other players.

"I'm not extremely overjoyed with the receiver corps with what we've done to this point," said Cowboys coach Dave Campo. "We need to get better, and we need to catch the ball better. We had too many drops in the last game, and we're still dropping them in practice."

The Cowboys know what they will get from Galloway and Ismail, but there is uncertainty with the rest of the receivers, even though several are returning players.

Denver running back Terrell Davis won't play because of swelling in his surgically repaired right knee and tightness in his hamstring. Mike Anderson and Olandis Gary, both with 1,000-yard seasons since Davis was the NFL's 1998 MVP, will split time Saturday.

Denver coach Mike Shanahan said the plan is for Anderson and Gary to alternate series through the first half, and possibly into the third quarter.

"We'll probably flip a coin to decide who will start," Shanahan said. "But both of them will get some playing time."

Davis has been virtually MIA since his stellar 1998 season, when he ran for 2,008 yards and the Broncos won their second straight Super Bowl. Since then, he has missed 24 games. Davis tore his anterior cruciate ligament four games into the 1999 season and missed 12 games last year because of a stress fracture in his left leg.

Shanahan hopes that Davis can return to practice Monday.

Saints, Vikings recall Stringer

By Michael A. Lutz

SAN ANTONIO — The Minnesota Vikings say they are ready to focus on football again.

They'll get their chance in the Alamodome Saturday night against the New Orleans Saints when they play their first preseason game 10 days after right offensive tackle Korey Stringer died of heatstroke after collapsing on the practice field at Mankato, Minn.

"I'm ready to get physical. All this frustration and pain, I have to let it out," wide receiver Randy Moss said. "By going to San Antonio and butting heads, it's going to free everything built up to take it out on the opposing team.

"I'm not trying to start a battle, but I think it's going to be a physical game."

The Vikings have moved on with frayed emotions. They are behind in their football work and they'll play the Saints without benefit of a scrimmage and few workouts in pads. Still, they are eager to get started.

"I don't think things will ever be exactly the same, at least not throughout this season," receiver Cris Carter said. "We are back on a regular schedule, but things are still a little different. It's preseason not going to change anything. We are professional enough. The kids who weren't as close to the Big K don't have to deal with it as much as we do."

The Vikings will maintain Stringer's locker in Minnesota and the players will wear a purple No. 77 on the left side of their jerseys for Saturday's game.

New Orleans, training in Thibodaux, La., planned to arrive on Saturday.

"It will certainly be sad before the game," Saints safety Sammy Knight said. "It's the first time they'll line up without Korey. It'll Dale Jarrett drives Friday during qualifying for the NASCAR Winston Cup Global Crossing at Watkins Glen, N.Y. Jarrett took the pole with a lap of 122.698 mph.

Jarrett takes pole at Watkins Glen

Associated Press

WATKINS GLEN, N.Y. — Dale Jarrett, badly in need of a good finish after falling far from the lead in the Winston Cup standings, got off to a great start Friday by winning the pole at Watkins Glen International.

Trailing Jeff Gordon by 160 points, Jarrett will start the Global Crossing 12 positions ahead of him Sunday. Track position is of special importance on a road course, where passing is so difficult.

Jarrett drove his Ford around the 11-turn, 2.45-mile layout in 1 minute, 1.884 seconds at a track record of 122.698 mph. He beat Robert Yates Racing teammate Ricky Rudd, who turned a lap at 122.301.

"You get to run your race," Jarrett said. "If you're trying to pass all day and you have to run 90 laps here it's hard not to put yourself in a bad position."

Jarrett, the 1999 series champion, lost the points lead two weeks ago, and fell farther behind when Gordon won the Brickyard 400 last Sunday. So he knows he needs to produce this weekend on a track where Gordon has won three times.

The fast lap was no accident, however. Realizing Gordon and two-time Watkins Glen winner Rudd are so good on serpentine courses, Jarrett tested here two weeks ago. He was hoping to improve on a finish of 26th in June on the other NASCAR road course.

"This was a new car at Sears Point, and to be quite honest we were terrible there," he said. "So we went back and made some changes on it, and a lot of them worked when we tested here."

Jarrett feels that he and his program are vastly improved on road courses, and believes his pole came just in time to give him at least a big advantage at the start when he needs it most.

Although Jarrett is not ready to concede that Gordon could soon make a runaway for the race, he believes he must be productive Sunday.

"It's very important that we do

Wildcats place 7th

The Midland Wildcats 14 and under baseball team finished seventh out of 72 teams in the USSSA World Series in Canton, Mich.

The Wildcats went 2-1 in pool play, beating the Worthington (Ohio) Trains and the Kansas City (Mo.) Sharks and losing to the South County (Mich.) Reds. After losing to the Tupelo (Miss.) Badgers in tournament play, the Wildcats fell into the losers' bracket, where they won their next five games.

In defeating teams from Plano, Oklahoma City, El Dorado, Ark., Aurora, Ill. and Sacramento, Calif. the Wildcats outscored their opponents 56-21 before finally losing to a team from Seattle.

Matt Day and Monty Goodman had two wins apiece on the mound for the Wildcats while Justin Hamilton, Barry Keiffer and Jessie Ortiz also won decisions. Day hit .447 for the tournament with 12 RBIs, Michael Cast hit two home runs, drove in 18 runs and batted .470 and Patrick Haygood homered and hit .454 with five RBIs. Kevin Newton and Jake Pulliam also drove in five runs apiece.

Mitchell leads Bengals to win over ex-mates

Associated Press

PONTIAC, Mich. — Scott Mitchell had the last laugh.

Mitchell, who was booed out of Detroit a few years ago, drove Cincinnati 74 yards to set up a 34-yard field goal by Neil Rackers as time expired, lifting the Bengals to a 27-24 exhibition victory over Detroit on Friday night.

It also spoiled a brilliant game by the Lions' Larry Foster.

Foster, a likely backup to return specialist Desmond Howard, returned a punt 80 yards for a touchdown and returned a kickoff 101 yards for another TD.

"I feel good about today," Foster said. "But Desmond is still the guy, no doubt about it. Tonight, he was my mentor. Every time I stepped out on the field, he was there to give me some advice."

Bengals rookie Chad Johnson hauled in a 16-yard TD toss from Mitchell to tie it at 24 with 11:09 left in the fourth quarter.

Mitchell, the third Bengals quarterback, was 5-of-5 for 44 yards as Cincinnati drove 74 yards in 12 plays to set up Rackers' kick.

Detroit's new West Coast offense looked promising early, while many of the regulars were still in the game. Things got a little ragged after that.

Charlie Batch had Foster wide open on Detroit's first snap, but the ball was caught out of bounds. On the next snap, Batch found Johnnie Morton wide open down the sideline. Free safety Chris Carter caught up with Morton at the 2, but couldn't haul him down.

"That's what I love about this offense," Morton said. "If you give the quarterback enough time, there's always going to be someone open. They had a good defense for the play, but we were still able to find the open man."

Foster, a second-year receiver the Lions picked up as an undrafted free agent out of LSU last year, made it 14-0 with an 80-yard punt return 26 seconds into the second quarter.

Carter picked off a pass from Jim Harbaugh and returned it 18 yards to Detroit's 16 in the second quarter. Three plays later, Jon Kitna tossed an 8-yard TD pass to Darnay Scott, cutting the Lions' lead to 14-7.

Foster electrified the Silverdome crowd, announced as 55,744, when he opened the third quarter by taking the kickoff up the Bengals' sideline for a touchdown that gave Detroit a 24-10 lead.

Notes: Matt Millen, the new president and CEO of the Lions, was on the field during warmups. Millen, who likes to take a turn at linebacker during some team drills in camp, sought out several players for brief words, shaking hands and patting backs. ... Jaguars 18, Panthers 16

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — What started out as the highly anticipated NFL debut for Chris Weinke ended up as an unexpected kicking clinic by Mike Hollis.

Weinke, the 29-year-old Heisman Trophy winner, threw a touchdown pass in his first NFL game Friday night, but Hollis had more firepower, kicking six field goals to lead the Jacksonville Jaguars to an 18-16 victory over Weinke's Carolina Panthers.

Weinke looked pretty much like the rest of the rookies in this preseason opener — a good play here, a bad one there — as he played most of the second and third quarters and led the Panthers to 10 points.

The former Florida State star completed 10 of 16 passes for 108 yards, including a 4-yard touchdown strike to Darryl Daniel to cap a 39-yard drive and give the Panthers a 16-9 lead.

"I made some mistakes, and I thought I did some good things," Weinke said. "Tonight isn't a night to build on. By no means did I play as well as I think I can."

Hollis answered Weinke's touchdown with his fourth and fifth field goals, both from 47 yards, early in the fourth quarter to pull the Jaguars within one. Then, fourth-string quarterback Ted White hit Elvis Joseph for a 45-yard screen pass that set up Hollis' winning 18-yarder with 18 seconds left.

Panthers kicker John Kasay returned for the first time since a knee injury took him out late in 1999. He missed a 60-yard field goal short with no time left, leaving Hollis to easily win Most Valuable Kicker honors.

Before the kickers decided the game, Weinke's night was a mixed bag at best.

One drive before his touchdown pass, Weinke hit Kevin Coffey for a 34-yard gain that would have been a touchdown had the ball reached Coffey in stride. Instead, Coffey went down at the 3-yard line, and Weinke short-armed a pass to an open receiver in the flat, forcing the Panthers to settle for a field goal.

Weinke also lost a fumble on a snap, and threw a pass straight into the hands of Jaguars rookie defensive lineman Marcus Stroud, who had a cast on his hand and couldn't hang on.

"There were a couple of real nice plays, like the touchdown pass," Panthers coach George Seifert said. "But then there was the center exchange, and the little things that get you, that cost you ballgames."

Considered one of the biggest mysteries of the draft, the Panthers took a chance on Weinke, spending a fourth-round draft pick on him, and giving him an incentive-laden contract that could pay big if he becomes the starter.

Notes: Houston Texans coach Dom Capers was at the stadium scouting the game...Hit of the night: Jacksonville punter David Leaverton, who wrapped up Steve Smith and threw him to the ground on the Jaguars' sideline.

Patriots 14, Giants 0

FOXBORO, Mass. — Owen Pochman kicked four field goals as the New England Patriots beat the New York Giants 14-0 on Friday night in the exhibition opener for both teams.

The Giants managed just 92 yards and six first downs as they showed even less than in last season's 34-7 Super Bowl loss to Baltimore.

The Patriots gained 338 yards and opened their second straight exhibition season with a shutout. They beat San Francisco 20-0 last year, went 3-2 in preseason play but finished last in the AFC East with a 5-11 record.

The Giants were 0-4 in last year's exhibition games, but had the best record in the NFC, 12-4, and dominated Minnesota 41-0 in the conference title game.

Kerry Collins, who threw for only 112 yards and four interceptions in the Super Bowl, played the first four series Friday, completing 3 of 8 passes for 18 yards and an interception. Jason Garrett took over midway through the second quarter, and rookie Jesse Palmer came in with one minute left in the third.

Patriots quarterback Drew Bledsoe played just two series, completing 3 of 4 passes for 37 yards. He was sacked twice for 15 yards before being replaced by Damon Huard with 5:13 left in the first quarter.

Huard went 9-for-12 for 85 yards. Tom Brady and Michael Bishop shared the quarterback work in the second half.

Knicks send Rice to Houston in three-team trade with Mavs

Associated Press

NEW YORK — The Knicks have agreed to trade Glen Rice to the Houston Rockets in a three-team deal involving Dallas that brings Shandon Anderson and Howard Eisley to New York.

As part of the trade, which was announced Friday night, Muggsy Bogues goes from the Knicks to the Mavericks, and Dallas sends the rights to second-round draft pick Kyle Hall to the Rockets.

Rice, one of the best 3-point shooters in NBA history, averaged a career-low 12.0 points for the Knicks last season when he was used primarily in a reserve role that he was unhappy with.

The Knicks acquired Rice from the Lakers last summer in the blockbuster trade that sent Patrick Ewing to Seattle. Bogues never played a game for New York after being acquired from Toronto in February in the Mark Jackson-Chris Childs trade.

The acquisition of Anderson and Eisley means that the Knicks, who already had a logjam at the shooting guard and small forward positions, now have a similar glut at point guard.

Eisley, who mostly played shooting guard for the Mavericks last season but eventually lost his starting job, has primarily been a point guard during his seven-year NBA career. The Knicks already have two point guards, Mark Jackson and Charlie Ward, signed to long-term contracts.

The Mavericks have been eager to trade Eisley and have targeted Miami Heat free agent Tim Hardaway as his backcourt replacement. Dallas can now do a sign-and-trade deal with the Heat after acquiring a so-called trade exception from Houston that makes it easier to trade players whose salaries are not equal.

The Rockets acquired the trade exception just last week in the deal that sent Hakeem Olajuwon to Toronto.

The acquisition of Rice, along with the re-signing of Maurice Taylor, are the Rockets' first moves of the post-Olajuwon era.

Rice, a 12-year veteran and three-time All-Star, averaged a career-high 26.8 points in 1996-97 when he played for Charlotte. His numbers have steadily declined every season since then as he struggled to mesh with Shaquille O'Neal and Kobe Bryant in Los Angeles and Latrell Sprewell and Allan Houston in New York.

Rice has averaged 19.5 points in his career, making 46 percent of his shots and 40 percent of his 3-pointers.

Rice's final game for the Knicks was not a memorable one as he shot just 2-for-10 and scored only five points in 35 minutes as the Knicks were knocked out by the Raptors in the first round of the playoffs for the franchise's earliest playoff exit in a decade.

Anderson and Eisley both started their careers with the Utah Jazz and were drafted by Scott Layden, who has since become general manager of the Knicks.

"Shandon and Howard are consummate professionals that will make an impact on this team," Layden said. "Being familiar with their careers and progress in this league, both players have consistently improved throughout the years and have thrived in many different roles on their respective teams."

Anderson averaged 8.7 points, 4.1 rebounds and 2.3 assists for the Rockets last season, a drop-off from his stats of the previous season.

Eisley averaged a career-high 9.0 points and 3.6 assists for Dallas last season, his seventh. He made 107 3-pointers but shot just 39 percent from the field.

Bogues, a 12-year veteran, has a chronic knee condition that prevented him from playing last season.

Hill, a guard from Eastern Illinois, was chosen 44th overall in the draft.

Without a U.S. runner in field, American-born hurdler wins

Associated Press

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) — For the first time at the World Track and Field Championships, the United States did not have a runner in the men's 400-meter hurdle finals.

Still, an American won — for the Dominican Republic.

Felix Sanchez, born in New York and raised in San Diego, gave the Dominican Republic its first medal ever at the worlds Friday night with a victory in 47.49 seconds, a personal best and by far the fastest time in the event of the year.

Only nine other hurdlers have run faster in the event's history.

"I was born in the United States, but I'm a full-blooded Dominican," he said. "I had to represent my country, represent my blood."

The 23-year-old Sanchez has dual citizenship because both of his parents were born in the Dominican Republic.

The irony of his victory was not lost on him.

"I was sad for the Americans that they didn't make it," he said, "but that's the 400 hurdles. It's not an easy race. They don't just hand out medals when you show up, you have to earn them."

The United States had never failed to send an athlete to the finals in the event at the worlds or the Olympics before Angelo Taylor, the gold medalist last year at the Sydney Games, clipped the last hurdle in the semifinals and failed to advance in Edmonton.

That left the way clear for Sanchez, who grew up playing baseball and wrestling before he broke a wrist as a high school sophomore and switched to track, because his coach said he could run with a broken arm.

"To be No. 1 in the world right now, to run a personal best, to be in the top 10 in the all-time list in the 400 hurdles, and to bring home the gold, it's special, it's unspeakable," he said.

Sanchez's father lives in the Dominican Republic, and the hurdler has traveled there often in recent years for visits. He began running for the Dominican Republic in 1999 and later that year, he finished fourth at the Pan American Games.

He trains at UCLA.

Before each race, Sanchez flips a tiny switch on a red rubber bracelet on his right wrist, setting off a series of flashing red lights. It's a souvenir from the opening ceremony at the Sydney Games, and a constant reminder that he failed to reach the final there.

Sanchez struggles a bit with his Spanish, yet he is a national hero in the country whose colors he wears, a very poor country scrambling to stage the 2003 Pan American Games.

"It makes me feel very special to know that I've won the gold," he said. "Now they're going to expect gold all the time."

NFL: Williams returns to Texas

be on all our minds. It's like a death in the family. But once the game begins, we just have to concentrate on that."

Chris Liwienski will start in Stringer's offensive right tackle spot against the Saints.

"We missed quite a few days of camp and we want to get this team going in the right direction," said Liwienski, moving to right tackle from left guard. "We need to get everyone on the same page. That's what the preseason is for and we want to make some big strides."

While the two teams try to concentrate on football, another stadium issue is playing out between Saints owner Tom Benson and Vikings owner Red McCombs. San Antonio is home for McCombs and Benson also maintains a home here. Both are seeking new stadiums.

San Antonio officials are trying to lure an NFL team to play in the Alamodome, a 65,000-seat facility for football, that will be without a primary tenant in 2002 when the NBA Spurs move to their new arena.

"Vikings fans should not be worried that we'll be playing down there," said Lester Bagley, the Vikings consultant on stadium issues. "I've seen no indication whatsoever in the organization that this trip has anything to do with the stadium issue."

Benson is intrigued at the thought of the NFL in San Antonio, but he's not ready to say his team would move to the Alamodome.

"Red and I have known each other for a lot of years," Benson said. "He was a Ford dealer. I was a Chevrolet dealer, so there's always been a competition between us. We're calling this the Car Bowl, the battle of the car dealers."

The Vikings eliminated the Saints in the second round of last season's playoffs.

The game also will mark the return of former University of Texas running back Ricky Williams, who rushed 1,100 yards last season before breaking his ankle in the 11th game. Williams hasn't made a big deal of his return.

"There will probably be a lot of people come to see me play because of my career at Texas," Williams said. "But to me, it's just another preseason game, trying to get ready for the season. For the most part, I don't have a lot to say. Maybe when the season starts and I have a good game, I'll have something to say."

Seles outlasts Williams in three sets

Associated Press

MANHATTAN BEACH, Calif. — Monica Seles fought off six match points to beat Serena Williams 6-2, 3-6, 7-6 (2) in the estyle.com Classic quarterfinals Friday.

Williams, the two-time defending champion ranked eighth in the world, saw her 12-match tournament winning streak end before a rowdy sellout crowd of 4,324 at Manhattan Country Club. The victory was Seles' third over a top-10 player in two weeks.

Seles trailed 5-3, 40-love in the third set when Williams squandered three match points and double-faulted for deuce. Williams made two consecutive backhand errors and Seles broke to trail 5-4.

Seles held for 5-5, then Williams served a love game, punctuated by a 100-mph ace, for a 6-5 lead as the fans roared.

Seles quickly trailed love-40 to give Williams her fourth match point. But Williams sailed a forehand long, then Seles hit a powerful backhand and Williams missed another backhand for deuce. Two backhand errors by Williams forced the tiebreaker.

Williams evened the tiebreaker 2-2 with a crosscourt forehand volley winner before Seles won the final five points and the match.

Seles, the sixth seed, advanced to a semifinal against top-seeded Martina Hingis, whom she beat in last week's Acura Classic semifinals. Earlier, Seles had beaten second-ranked Jennifer Capriati.

Hingis defeated No. 12 Amy Frazier 6-2, 6-3 in 69 minutes.

"I didn't play the best game today, but it was good enough against Amy," Hingis said. "I'll have to step it up tomorrow if I want to have a chance."

Second-seeded Lindsay Davenport will play fifth-seeded Nathalie Tauziat of France in the other semifinal. Tauziat upset No. 3 seed Kim Clijsters of Belgium 7-6 (3), 6-3.

Hingis has been bothered by a recurring stress reaction to her left foot since last week's Acura Classic in Carlsbad. She withdrew from next week's tournament in Toronto, and once she's done in California she plans to rest until the U.S. Open begins Aug. 27.

Davenport struggled for the second time in three matches before beating seventh-seed Elena Dementieva of Russia 5-7, 6-4, 6-2. She will play Tauziat in Saturday's other semifinal.

Astacio earns first win as Astro in 7-2 triumph

Associated Press

MIAMI — Pedro Astacio earned his first win for Houston and Vinny Castilla had four hits, including his 15th homer, and drove in three runs to lead the Astros past the Florida Marlins 7-2 Friday night.

Astacio (7-13) allowed five hits and two runs in 7 1-3 innings in his second game for Houston since being acquired from Colorado. His start was pushed back three days because of inflammation in his right triceps.

Jeff Bagwell hit his 29th homer, and Craig Biggio had four of the Astros' 15 hits. They took an early 7-0 lead against A.J. Burnett (8-8), who lasted just three innings in the shortest outing of his three-year career.

Houston has won eight of its past 10 games and three in a row to climb a season-high 15 games above .500.

John Mabry hit his fifth homer for Florida. Teammate Preston Wilson went 1-for-3 in his first game since July 1, when he was sidelined by a thumb injury.

Astacio improved to 9-3 against the Marlins. Mike Jackson completed the five-hitter.

Burnett allowed eight hits and seven runs to lose his third consecutive start.

Bagwell hit a two-out solo homer in the first to end the Astros' season-high streak of three games without a home run. They're tied with San Francisco for the most homers in the NL with 165.

Brewers 5, Expos 1

MONTREAL — Jeromy Burnitz homered twice and Ruben Quevedo struck out a career-high 11 to lead the Milwaukee Brewers over the Montreal Expos 5-1 Friday night.

Burnitz hit a solo shot off Mike Thurman (6-8) in the fifth. After Mark Loretta homered with two outs in the seventh, Burnitz hit his 24th homer of the season to put the Brewers up 5-0.

■ NL Roundup

Padres 3, Pirates 2

PITTSBURGH — Rickey Henderson hit a go-ahead homer on the night the Pirates honored newly inducted Hall of Famers Bill Mazeroski, and the San Diego Padres beat Pittsburgh 3-2 Friday.

Henderson's two-run homer followed pitcher Brian Tollberg's leadoff single in the fifth inning and was his 2,973rd career hit. The 3,000. The run was his 2,227th, 19 shy of Ty Cobb's all-time record.

Cubs 9, Giants 3

CHICAGO — Jon Lieber pitched an eight-hitter for his 15th victory, and the Chicago Cubs beat San Francisco 9-3 Friday as the Giants gave star Barry Bonds a day off.

Lieber, 9-1 in his last 11 starts, lost his shutout in the sixth when Pedro Feliz walked, Marvin Bernard singled and John Vander Wal — who replaced Bonds in left field — hit an RBI grounder. Lieber (15-5) walked one and struck out four in his fourth complete game of the season and 17th career.

Diamondbacks 7, Braves 0

ATLANTA — Curt Schilling pitched seven scoreless innings to become baseball's first 17-game winner, and the Arizona Diamondbacks defeated the error-plagued Atlanta Braves 7-0 Friday night.

Schilling (17-5) overpowered the Braves, allowing only one runner to reach second base before Javy Lopez and Mark DeRosa led off the eighth with consecutive singles.

Phillies 10, Dodgers 5

PHILADELPHIA — Scott Rolen doubled twice, tripled and drove in three runs and Pat Burrell hit a grand slam as the Philadelphia Phillies defeated the Los Angeles Dodgers 10-5 Friday night.

Philadelphia snapped a six-game losing streak against the Dodgers that dated to last season.

Rolen, criticized by Phillies' senior adviser Dallas Green on Monday, also made two clutch plays at third base. In his last 10 games, he is hitting .351 (13-for-37) with five homers, 10 runs scored and 13 RBIs.

Cardinals 7, Mets 6, 10 innings

NEW YORK — Craig Paquette hit a sacrifice fly to score Kerry Robinson with the go-ahead run in the 10th inning as the St. Louis Cardinals rallied from a five-run deficit to defeat the New York Mets 7-6 Friday night.

Rick White (3-3) hit Robinson with an 0-1 pitch to start the Cardinals 10th.

Albert Pujols moved Robinson to third with a hit-and-run single and, after White struck out Jim Edmonds, Paquette hit a high fly to center.

Dave Veres (2-2), the fourth of five Cardinals pitchers, worked two innings of one-hit relief for the win and Steve Kline pitched the 10th for his seventh save.

Rockies 16, Reds 7

CINCINNATI — Shortstop Juan Castro threw two balls into the Cincinnati Reds' dugout during Colorado's six-run sixth inning, helping the Rockies pull away to a 16-7 victory Friday night.

Jose Ortiz went 5-for-6 with a three-run homer and Larry Walker also hit a three-run shot for the Rockies, who have scored 30 runs in their last two games.

Colorado matched its franchise high for runs in a road game — they also scored 16 in Atlanta on Aug. 12, 1995. The 16 runs were a season high.

The Philadelphia Phillies' Scott Rolen dives into third base ahead of the ball in the third inning Friday against the Los Angeles Dodgers. Rolen's triple drove in two runs.

Hall of Famer Boudreau dies

Associated Press

CLEVELAND — Lou Boudreau was everything for the Cleveland Indians in 1948.

He managed them, played shortstop and batted third.

He was the AL MVP, homered twice to win a one-game playoff for the pennant, and most memorably, brought them their last World Series championship.

Boudreau, a Hall of Fame shortstop who as Cleveland's player-manager led the Indians to the '48 title, died Friday in Olympia Fields, Ill. He was 84.

Boudreau was brought into St. James Hospital and Health Centers in Olympia Fields on Friday afternoon in cardiac arrest and was pronounced dead there, said hospital spokeswoman Julie Miller.

"He was the greatest shortstop I ever saw," said Hall of Fame pitcher Bob Feller. "He was afraid of nobody. He was a great manager, teammate and friend. Just a great man. There is not a more gracious man than Lou Boudreau.

"There have not been many better all-around players than he was."

Boudreau had been hospitalized recently for circulatory problems, forcing him to miss the Indians' 100-year anniversary celebration honoring their Top 100 players.

"I remember in 1948," Feller said. "Lou said, 'We're going to sink or swim with Feller', I was having a rough season, and after he said that I won 10 of my last 12 games. He instilled a confidence in his players they never forgot."

Boudreau, a slick-fielding shortstop for 13 seasons, was selected AL MVP in '48 after batting .355 with 18 homers and 106 RBIs.

He capped the season by going 4-for-4 with two homers as the Indians won a one-game playoff over the Boston Red Sox to advance to the Series, where they beat the Boston Braves in six games.

Boudreau, who was born on July 17, 1917, was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1970, the same year the native of Harvey, Ill., had his No. 5 jersey retired by the Indians.

At Boudreau's induction, commissioner Bowie Kuhn marveled at the shortstop's uncanny instincts.

"He was a human computer," Kuhn said. "He knew all the hitters' habits. He knew all the moves of the baserunners. He knew when the pitcher was going to pitch. He had the instincts for where the ball would be hit."

Boudreau managed Cleveland from 1942-50; compiling a 728-649 record. He also managed the Red Sox (1952-54), Kansas City (1955-57) and the Chicago Cubs in 1960. He went 1,162-1,224 overall.

Boudreau also was a popular radio broadcaster for the Cubs for nearly 30 years before retiring in 1988.

Hall of Fame outfielder Billy Williams, who played for Boudreau in 1960 and now is a Cubs coach, fondly remembered his former manager.

"He always called the players 'Good Kid.' I guess he was a whiz-kid manager. Here in Chicago people know him as an announcer with the Cubs," Williams said.

"When I think of Lou, I think of a guy who enjoyed baseball. He knew the game really well and he used to talk a lot about the game," he said. "I'd talk to his son and ask how he was going and he said: 'He was watching the Cubs every day.'"

Cubs broadcaster Ron Santo made his major league debut for Boudreau in 1960 at third base for Chicago.

"Lou knew how to get the best out of you. The one thing about Lou, you better give 100 percent because he wasn't afraid to get in your face," he said. "He was a player's manager. He could sit down with you and speak the language."

A seven-time All-Star, Boudreau led the AL with a .327 average in 1944 and led the league in doubles three times.

During his MVP season, Boudreau struck out just nine times in 560 at-bats.

Boudreau could do no wrong in '48. Despite having Hall of Famer Bob Lemon available, Boudreau decided to start rookie left-hander Gene Bearden on one day's rest in the playoff game at Boston.

Bearden pitched a five-hitter in Cleveland's 8-3 win.

Boudreau was a captain of the baseball and basketball teams at Illinois before beginning his pro career in 1938 as a minor league third baseman.

He made his big league debut in 1940 with the Indians, and in his first full season he was named to the AL All-Star team and batted .295 with 101 RBIs.

Sweeney, Weaver brawl as Royals batter Tigers

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Slugger Mark Sweeney delivered another hard hit, charging the mound and throwing Jeff Weaver to the ground before the Detroit right-hander even threw a pitch as the Kansas City Royals beat the Tigers 7-3 Friday night.

Numerous punches were thrown as the benches and bullpens cleared in the sixth inning. There was a 12-minute delay and Sweeney, Royals pitching coach Al Nipper and Detroit bench coach Doug Mansolino were ejected.

As Sweeney got ready to bat with two outs and a runner on second base, he appeared to ask plate umpire Mike Fichter to check the ball. Weaver then said something to Sweeney, and turned his back.

Sweeney is regarded as one of the more mild-mannered players in baseball while the 6-foot-5 Weaver worked as a security guard at an April taping of the "Jerry Springer Show."

But Sweeney threw his helmet at Weaver, rushed the mound and tossed the pitcher to the ground. Players, coaches and Kansas City manager Tony Muser got into the fray.

■ AL Roundup

As things started to slow down, Muser and Tigers outfielder Wendell Magee began exchanging words. As more punches were thrown, several players went after Sweeney, who had been pulled from the mass of players.

The Tigers were leading 2-1 at the time of the fight. When play resumed, Dave McCarty replaced Sweeney and walked, and Raul Ibanez hit a tying single.

Rangers 7, Indians 2

ARLINGTON, Texas — Doug Davis allowed six hits over eight innings and Gabe Kapler homered as the Texas Rangers beat the Cleveland Indians 7-2 Friday night.

Davis (6-8) escaped a bases-loaded, no-outs jam in the second inning without allowing a run, and went on to his first win since July 20. He struck out three and walked two.

Minnesota and Cleveland remain tied atop the AL Central. The Tampa Bay Devil Rays beat the Twins earlier Friday night, 4-1.

Kapler went 2-for-3 with a double and a two-run homer in the seventh.

The Rangers took the lead with a four-run third off Steve Woodard (1-2) aided by Indians second baseman Roberto Alomar's throwing error.

Devil Rays 4, Twins 2

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Paul Wilson pitched six scoreless innings and Chris Gomez hit a rare Tampa Bay homer as the Devil Rays beat the Minnesota Twins 4-2 Friday night.

The Twins, who started the day tied with Cleveland for the AL Central lead, are 9-19 since the All-Star break.

Tampa Bay, with the majors' worst-record at 39-77, has won eight of its last 15 games against first-place teams.

'HOUNDS: Enochs gives up three hits

(From 1B)

Adkins (8-8) in the second inning when Mike Rosamond scored on a double to right by Chris Tremie. Rosamond got into scoring position when hit an infield single to third and then went to second on a throwing error by Midland third baseman Oscar Salazar.

Midland got its only run off Smith in the third when Caonabo Cosme, who went 2-for-2 in the game, scored off a single to right field by Ryan Ludwick.

The game stayed tied at 1-1 until the fifth inning when the Express put together six straight hits with two outs. David Matranga and Jason Lane started the rally with back-to-back singles. Burns, who has been a 'Hounds killer during this series, smacked a triple to center just past a diving Ludwick to score both Matranga and Lane.

Charley Carter then followed Burns' big hit with a big shot of his own — a two-run home run over the left field fence, his 20th of the year.

Smith continued to slow the 'Hounds until the seventh inning when Midland put together a little rally of its own as Jacques Landry reached with a single and Brian Luderer reached on an error by Round Rock third baseman Royce Huffman to put two men on with just one out. But before the RockHounds could start thinking of a comeback, Round Rock manager Jackie Moore pulled the trigger and brought in Brandon Puffer from the bullpen. Puffer did his job as he struck out pinch hitter Madonna and then got Pecci to pop up to short to end the game and earn his seventh save of the season.

The teams meet for the last time this season at 7:15 p.m. today.

College Football Hall of Fame welcomes Haynes, Elway, Allen

Associated Press Writer

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — Mike Haynes never dreamed of making the College Football Hall of Fame. He dreamed of winning the Heisman Trophy.

He didn't care that no defensive player had ever won the trophy or that Ohio State's Archie Griffin was the favorite to win it a second straight time when Haynes was a senior at Arizona State in 1975.

"I knew as a defensive back it was pretty hard, but I thought that defensive backs deserved more recognition," Haynes said Friday. "There were a lot of awards for quarterbacks and running backs, but for defensive backs there wasn't much. Even in pro football there wasn't much. It was a position that wasn't highly thought of."

Haynes didn't win the Heisman. In fact, the top five players to receive votes were all running backs. He was a hall of fame player, though, both professionally and in college.

On Saturday he will be enshrined into the College Football Hall of Fame along with former Stanford quarterback John Elway, former Southern Cal tailback Marcus Allen and former Nebraska wingback Johnny Rodgers.

Haynes does take some satisfaction knowing that a cornerback, Michigan's Charles Woodson, finally won the Heisman in 1997.

"When Woodson won it meant a lot. It meant that people recognize that it's a position that can change a game quickly," he said.

Haynes certainly was that type of player, making 11 interceptions in 12 games as a junior. As a senior, he led the Sun Devils to a 12-0 record and a No. 2 national ranking.

Haynes admits, though, that he never really wanted to play cornerback.

"I wanted to be a wide receiver. But we had a lot of talented guys there when I started at Arizona State. The defensive coordinator wanted me on defense. The offensive coordinator wanted me on offense. Coach (Frank) Kush had the final say. I have to say I'm happy with the results," he said. "In hindsight, you'd have to say it was the best decision."

The enshrinement events got under way Friday with a breakfast at which former Maryland tackle Stan Jones, former Occidental College quarterback/defense back Bill Redell, former Amherst receiver Freddie Scott and Margaret Talboom, widow of former Wyoming halfback and South Bend native Eddie Talboom, spoke.

Mrs. Talboom recalled her husband's surprise when he first got the application for the hall.

"I remember him sitting at the kitchen table and saying, 'I don't know if I'm worthy of this,'" she said. "He was a school teacher. He was an educator."

Talboom started college at Notre Dame but interrupted his career to serve as an Army medic during World War II and got married. When the war was over Notre Dame didn't want to take Talboom back because he was married, so he accepted a scholarship to Wyoming.

From 1948-50 Talboom set the Cowboys' still-standing career rushing touchdown record with 34. In the NCAA record books, Talboom ranks fifth overall for the average points scored per game with 10.8.

Others who will be enshrined Saturday are Michigan offensive tackle Dan Dierdorf, Oklahoma center-linebacker Kurt Burris, Notre Dame end Bob Dove, Georgia defensive back Terry Hoage, Alabama halfback Johnny Musso, Pittsburgh linebacker-fullback Joe Schmidt, Texas guard Harley Sewell, Arkansas defensive end Billy Ray Smith, Navy end Dick Duden, tackle John Outland of Kansas and Penn and coaches Terry Donahue of UCLA and Forest Evashevski of Hamilton, Washington State and Iowa.

Among the players from smaller schools to be enshrined are Grambling quarterback Doug Williams, Indiana of Pennsylvania defensive end Jim Haslett, who now coaches the New Orleans Saints, Holy Cross defensive back-halfback Gordie Lockbaum and coaches Joseph Fusco of Westminster College and Ace Mumford of Jarvis Christian College, Bishop College, Texas College and Southern University.

Stringer's wife speaks about death

Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Korey Stringer told his wife the night before he collapsed that he had vomited and couldn't stop sweating. But Kelci Stringer said Korey insisted he was OK.

In an interview with NBC "Today" show host Katie Couric, her first since her husband's death from heatstroke Aug. 1.

"I think the routine that they have is OK," she said in her first interview since her husband's death. But she added that it wouldn't inconvenience teams to "change practice times to maybe earlier in the morning or late at night."

Results of an autopsy confirm the lineman died of multiple organ failure due to heatstroke, according to his agent, James Gould.

Kelci Stringer said his death came as a shock because he reported at 335 pounds and said he was in the best shape of his career. She said it was typical of him to trim down before training camp.

She also described the scene when she arrived at Immanuel St. Joseph's-Mayo Health System in Mankato, where doctors had been unable to save him:

"I went upstairs, and all the coaches were around, and I asked if he was OK, and they told me we lost him. ... And I took a short walk down the hall, turned around and went in and saw him.

"And from that point on, I've had a peace about myself that I can't quite explain. I guess for the first time I realize that this is something I have no control of and I just have to accept it."

Kelci said their 3-year-old son, Kodie, has kept her going.

"It's just really cute," she said. "He says (Korey's) an angel and just sings songs. And he has his moments though, you know, when he's sad ... but I think he'll be all right."

SOONERS: Calmus, Griffin, receivers return

(From 1B)

What fans will get caught up in is whether Hybl can do what Heupel did. There is a key similarity — both players' fathers are coaches. But Stoops says Hybl has had more time than Heupel to learn the ins and outs of an intricate, high-scoring offense.

"Everyone wants to raise the quarterback issue, but Nate has been prepping for this for two years," Stoops says. "Plus, he's supported by experienced receivers and our offensive line has exceptional talent."

While the Sooners worked their way up the polls in the first two months of last season before taking over No. 1 with a 31-14 win over the Cornhuskers on Oct. 28, they will be a target from the get-go in 2001. Stoops, though, doesn't see it that way.

"Texas is our rival and Kansas State had our game circled," Stoops says about the two big games the Sooners played before beating the Huskers. "We handled it well. We're used to having a bull's-eye now. It gives us more confidence."

Last season, 23 of OU's top 44 players were freshmen or sophomores. Besides Calmus, 5-foot-6 running back Quentin Griffin (16 TDs) and a veteran group of receivers return.

"We've been experienced, and we've played in big games and we know what it's all about," wide receiver and former Midland Lee player Josh Norman says. "And I think that after the first four games last year, we didn't sneak up on anybody."

Everyone will be watching from the start, beginning with the opener against North Carolina on Aug. 25.

Saints quarterbacks will put team first

Associated Press

THIBODAUX, La. — Jeff Blake and Aaron Brooks are jogging toward opposite ends of the New Orleans Saints practice field, sweat soaking their shirts, looks of intense concentration on their faces. As they pass, each raises a hand and slaps a high five on the run.

It's a quick sign of solidarity between two players battling for the same job.

"Everyone knows we're competitors, but we definitely don't need to be going at each other's throats," Brooks said. "It's out of our hands. We can only do what we can do on the field and stay a team and look out for one another."

Blake and Brooks are intent on taking the starting job, but insist they won't put that before the team.

The Saints signed Blake to a $17.4 million contract and named him the starting quarterback. He paid the team back by leading New Orleans to a 7-3 record while posting a career-best 82.7 quarterback rating.

Early in game 11, Blake shattered his foot, and Brooks took over. Brooks, who had never thrown a pass in a regular season NFL game, threw for nine touchdowns and over 1,500 yards in the last six games.

He set team records with 441 yards passing against Denver and 108 yards rushing the next week against San Francisco. Under Brooks, the Saints won the first playoff game in franchise history, beating the defending Super Bowl champion St. Louis Rams.

"It makes things very interesting this summer, doesn't it?" Blake said.

"Neither of us were a first-round pick with a $16 million signing bonus," Blake said. "We've had to battle for everything. This is one more."

Eagles' Simon diagnosed with strained neck and concussion

Associated Press

BETHLEHEM, Pa. — Defensive tackle Corey Simon's injuries have been diagnosed as a strained neck and concussion and he will miss at least the Philadelphia Eagles' exhibition opener against Baltimore on Monday.

Simon, taken off in an ambulance after being injured in practice Thursday, saw a team of doctors from the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania Friday morning. His injury was diagnosed as a grade-three concussion.

"We'll see how it goes," Eagles coach Andy Reid said. "We'll take it day-by-day and see how everything goes."

Simon lay motionless on the turf after being hurt and reported a burning sensation in both arms.

By the time he was loaded onto a stretcher, the 6-foot-1, 293-pounder could move both his arms and his leg and was talking.

Simon was back at Lehigh University on Friday afternoon, receiving treatment in the training room on his neck. His only symptom of the concussion was a headache.

Simon, the No. 6 pick in last year's draft, had 9.5 sacks as a rookie.

'BOYS: Hodge, Brazzell start as receivers

Broncos 27-10 in Super Bowl XII after the 1977 season, and won four more by the end of the 1995 season. Denver lost four Super Bowls before winning in 1997 and 1998.

After going 5-11 last season, the Cowboys worst record since going 1-15 in 1989, Campo wanted to use this preseason to build a winning attitude. But after the loss at Oakland, Dallas has lost eight straight preseason games and 15 of 16. The last winning preseason was 3-1 in 1989, before that one-win season.

"Again, it's an evaluation game, but I want to win," Campo said. "We want that kind of enthusiasm, we want that kind of an effort level. But I'm not going to compromise the health of the football team to win."

That means the Cowboys not only hold out Galloway and Ismail, but running back Emmitt Smith, who is closing in on Walter Payton's NFL career rushing record. The 32-year-old Smith isn't injured, he's just being protected before beginning his 12th season.

As for the receivers, Chris Brazzell (four catches for 90 yards against Oakland) and Damon Hodge will start as they did last week. Jason Tucker and Wane McGarity, also returning players, are the other likely options to catch passes with Galloway and Ismail.

Tucker had three catches a week ago, but McGarity is out with a sprained ankle suffered on a 71-yard punt return against Oakland that was nullified by penalty.

Denver will get its first test of the defense installed by new coordinator Ray Rhodes, one of five new coaches on Shanahan's staff.

"I think every guy on this defense wants to play hard for Ray because he's brought a scheme that everybody likes," said linebacker Al Wilson. "We're in attack mode. We're having fun flying around, we're making noise. That's what you want with a defense."

Two of the Denver defensive ends are former Cowboys returning to Dallas for the first time. Kavika Pittman left Dallas after the 2000 season, and Leon Lett joined the Broncos this year.

McCullough leads Irwin at 3M Senior

Associated Press

BLAINE, Minn. — Mike McCullough made five putts of 40 feet or longer en route to a 6-under 66 and a two-stroke lead over Hale Irwin on Friday in the 3M Senior Championship.

McCullough, seeking his third victory of the year, had eight birdies and two bogeys on the TPC of the Twin Cities.

He birdied Nos. 11, 13 and 14 — holing a 40-footer on the 14th — to take the lead and added a 12-foot birdie putt on No. 18 for the two-stroke advantage.

McCullough won the Mexico Senior Classic in February for his first victory in six seasons on the senior tour, added the Emerald Coast Classic title in March, and was second in The Tradition in April. He has three top-six finishes in his last four starts.

Irwin, the winner in 1997 and 1999 at Bunker Hills in Coon Rapids, had six birdies in his 68. He got to 3 under, but fell back with bogeys on Nos. 8 and 9. He made a 10-foot par putt on 10, then birdied Nos. 11, 14 and 15 — with putts of 20, 40 and 6 feet.

Rex Caldwell, Doug Tewell, John Jacobs and Ted Goin opened with 69s, and Allen Doyle and Tom Kite topped an eight-player group at 70.

Doyle, a two-time winner this year who leads the money list with $1,981,502, lost a chance to move closer when he missed 3-foot birdie putt on No. 15 and bogeyed No. 16. Kite made four consecutive birdies on the front nine to reach 4 under, but bogeyed Nos. 11 and 17.

RCGA, Callaway settle lawsuit over ERC driver II

Associated Press

TORONTO — Callaway Golf and the Royal Canadian Golf Association said Friday they have settled a lawsuit over the equipment manufacturer's ERC II Driver.

The sides agreed to dismiss a lawsuit first filed in May 2000 in U.S. District Court by Callaway for "unfairly, improperly and unlawfully interfering with the commercial launch" of the ERC II forged titanium driver.

"We can do more to benefit the game of golf in Canada by settling any past differences and working more closely together," the sides said in a joint statement.

The case didn't go any further after the RCGA successfully argued it has no offices and does no business in California, and therefore shouldn't be held accountable in a U.S. court.

"That's when a lot of the discussion started," said Chad Schella, the RCGA manager of communications.

The RCGA, following the same rules as the United States Golf Association, maintains the club is "non-conforming" for sanctioned events due to the trampoline-like response of the ball off the clubface.

"Really, it's just through negotiations," Schella said of the settlement, which involved both sides absorbing their own legal fees and walking away.

"The club is still non-conforming ... and ineligible for tournament play."

The lawsuit alleged the RCGA engaged in unfair, unlawful and deceptive business practices; interfered with contract and prospective economic advantage; acted with negligence; and breached its fiduciary duties to Callaway Golf and others.

Lawrie, Orr, McGinley share first-round lead

Associated Press

NEWPORT, Wales — Former British Open champion Paul Lawrie, fellow Scot Gary Orr and Paul McGinley of Ireland shot 5-under-par 67s Friday to share the first-round lead in the rain-delayed Wales Open.

Lawrie and McGinley carded their scores on the hilly, 7,324-yard Wentworth Hills layout at Celtic Manor in the morning, while Orr, despite a bogey at the long second hole, caught them with his afternoon round.

The first round was washed out Thursday after just half an hour's play. Under the revised schedule, the second round will be played Saturday with the 150-man field cut to the low 50 and ties — instead of the low 70 and ties — for the final two rounds Sunday.

Lawrie, who has not won since his 1999 British Open playoff victory at Carnoustie, has struggled in recent weeks to overcome poor putting.

"Tee to green I've been playing fantastic for quite a while. It's the putting. The only one I made today was from 25 feet for birdie at the 17th," he said.

Lawrie still aspires to retain his Ryder Cup place from 1999.

"If I get my putting sorted I could win two of the next four events, no problem," said Lawrie.

McGinley, a former World Cup and Alfred Dunhill Cup winner, has a far better chance of making the team. He is currently 10th in the standings.

"I'm trying not to put too much pressure on myself," he said. "But I have to be more consistent. I have not played well the last few weeks."

Lindley's bogey-free 64 gives her lead at Wendy's Championship

Associated Press

NEW ALBANY, Ohio — Leta Lindley was befuddled by her career-best 64 on Friday in the opening round of the Wendy's Championship for Children.

"I'm not used to having to account for this many birdies," she said.

Lindley matched the course record while taking a one-stroke lead, getting off to a fast start in the 54-hole sprint.

The short-hitting Lindley — who averages 226 yards off the tee to rank 163rd on the LPGA Tour in driving — zeroed in with her approach shots, including an 11-wood that she hit within a foot on the 12th hole.

The 29-year-old player started her round on the 10th hole and was just 1 under through 10 holes, but used strong putting to birdie seven of the last eight holes for a 7-under 29 on the front nine.

Overnight rains made the greens receptive, with most of the players taking advantage with aggressive shots at the pins at New Albany Country Club.

"The greens are really soft," Ward said. "We came from the British Open last week where you're sometimes not even carrying the ball on the green. But here you can be really aggressive. I haven't played soft greens in a while, so it was fun to be able to actually get a yardage and not have to add another calculation about a release. You could just take it right to the pin."

Seventy-four players broke par and a total of 102 were at par or under.

Donna Andrews, Rosie Jones, Yu Ping Lin, Rachel Teske, Emilee Klein, Michelle McGann, Tracy Hanson and Audra Burks opened with 66s.

Jones' round included an eagle on the par-4 9th hole when she holed an 8 iron from 130 yards. Klein had nine birdies, a bogey and a double-bogey.

Karrie Webb, one of the few players near the lead who played in the afternoon, was joined at 67 by Annika Sorenstam. Also at 67 were Dottie Pepper, Leslie Spalding, Moira Dunn, Grace Park, Danielle Ammaccapane, Mary Kay Marino and Dodie Mazzuca.

"The greens were very receptive to shots," said Sorenstam, who won the inaugural tournament two years ago. "If it was playing 126 yards, you were hitting it 125. That's how close you can hit it to the pin."

Se Ri Pak, who has won four times this season including last week's British Open, shot a 71.

BUICK: Goosen misses cut by one stroke

(From 1B)

Furyk, 11th on the Ryder Cup points list, is seeking his third berth on the U.S. team.

The top 10 on the points list after next week's PGA Championship will automatically make the team, and captain Curtis Strange will add two other players.

Furyk's only win this season was at the Mercedes Championship on Jan. 14. After missing the cut in the British Open last month, he gave his sore right wrist a break.

Tway is playing his best golf in months. Since Robert Allenby beat him in a playoff in the Nissan Open in February, his best finish has been a tie for 23rd. He has seven career victories, but like Perry, he hasn't won a tournament since 1995.

Tway and Quigley played together in the first two rounds and will be paired again in the next-to-last group Saturday. Brian Gay, who also was in their early group, shot a 67 and is 7 under.

"When a lot of birdies are being made in your group, it kind of pulls you along," Tway said. "All three of us were playing great golf and that helps make the day go better."

Quigley's score could have been even better, but he lipped out an 8-inch putt and bogeyed No. 1.

"I made a 50-footer and I missed a putt from 8 inches," Quigley said. "I wish I could cut that 50-footer into a whole lot of 8-inchers."

Divots: U.S. Open champion Retief Goosen, in his first start as a member of the PGA Tour, shot a 71 Friday and missed the cut by one stroke with a 3-under 141. ... Heath Slocum, in his first PGA event, was 6 under Friday and made the cut at 5 under. ... Four golfers in the top 10 of the Ryder Cup points list didn't make the cut: Mark Calcavecchia (5), Hal Sutton (6), Tom Lehman (9) and Joe Durant (10).

Automakers working on car, driver safety

Associated Press

While NASCAR has been investigating the crash that killed Dale Earnhardt, automakers have been working to make cars and drivers safer.

General Motors, Chrysler and Ford have been developing and testing six-way seat harnesses, head and neck restraint systems, safer seats and, most important, cars with front ends that protect drivers better in crashes.

Car safety is at the center of the NASCAR investigation of Earnhardt's fatal wreck, the Orlando Sentinel reported Friday, citing sources close to the investigation who spoke on condition of anonymity.

The investigation found cars don't have enough crush resistance in the front ends to adequately protect drivers in crashes, the newspaper said. The investigation also will not blame Earnhardt's death on a broken seat belt, the Sentinel reported, despite NASCAR's earlier assertion that it played a role.

NASCAR would not comment on the Sentinel article. The results of the investigation are to be released Aug. 21 in Atlanta.

"Speculation prior to that time serves no useful purpose," NASCAR said in a statement.

The manufacturers have been involved in the Earnhardt investigation, but emphasize they have not yet seen the results of the study by some 54 safety experts.

The automakers have, however, been working with NASCAR on driver safety since before Earnhardt's deadly crash at the Feb. 18 Daytona 500, and even before the deaths last year of drivers Adam Petty, Kenny Irwin Jr. and Tony Roper.

Earnhardt, Petty and Irwin died from skull fractures caused by a whipping motion of the head at the moment of impact. Roper died from massive head injuries.

The consensus among automakers appears to be that the focus on driver safety should be inside the cockpit, not on the outside of the car.

Even before Earnhardt died, manufacturers were promoting the use of the Head and Neck System and other restraints to the drivers. In fact, Ford held several safety seminars for its drivers in Daytona Beach the week before the race, showing them video of crash testing and explaining the use of the HANS device, which is designed to reduce violent whiplash.

Since Earnhardt's death, the use of the HANS and similar devices has tripled among Winston Cup drivers, with 33 of the 43 starters last month in the Pepsi 400 at Daytona wearing some form of head and neck restraint.

Tim Culbertson, manager for Dodge's Winston Cup engineering program, said his company has emphasized the use of the HANS. Dodge and other automakers also have recommended that drivers switch from the five-point belt system to the six-point harness.

"We believe what causes major neck injuries is the whipping of the head," Culbertson said. "The data shows that with the six-point harness there is less stress on the head because it anchors the pelvis much better in frontal crashes, and many crashes have at least a frontal element."

John Valentine, chief engineer for Ford, said the company has recommended to NASCAR that it gets its teams to throw away their aluminum seats in favor of ones made with more rigid carbon fiber.

He said the new seats cost $6,000 each, so NASCAR has asked Ford to help find a cheaper material that would retain its rigidity.

Ford has also been supplying black-box technology, similar to the devices used in airplanes, to teams in CART and the Indy Racing League for

Riggs takes Auto Parts 200

Associated Press

GLADEVILLE, Tenn. — Scott Riggs raced to his fourth NASCAR Craftsman Truck Series of the season Friday night, leading 131 of 150 laps in the Federated Auto Parts 200.

Riggs, who led the inaugural truck race at Nashville Superspeedway by nine seconds after his final pit stop, saw his margin over teammate Ted Musgrave shrink to a half-dozen truck lengths at the checkered flag.

The winner's Dodge averaged 132.466 mph as just two caution flags — none after the 34th lap — slowed the pace. The victory was worth $44,635 plus a $10,000 bonus from sponsor Craftsman for winning from the pole position.

"I had plenty of cushion," said Riggs, reflecting on Musgrave's last-ditch charge. "but I kept charging as hard as I could. I'd felt Ted putting the heat on me early so I knew he had a strong truck."

Musgrave, who also has won four times in 2001, spent extra time on pit road while his crew made a chassis adjustment during his final stop on the 94th lap. "The gap just got too big for me to run him down," he explained.

Rick Crawford finished third in a Ford, the final driver to complete the full race distance. Joe Ruttman was fourth in a Dodge, followed by Travis Kvapil, who overcame an early brush with the 4 wall to recover from a 24th-place restart on lap 13.

Terry Cook, Greg Biffle, Dennis Setzer, Lance Norick and Coy Gibbs completed the top 10.

Ruttman, who entered the race 17 points behind Jack Sprague in the point standings, exited the season's 16th race with a lead of 32 over Riggs. Sprague's Chevrolet suffered an electrical problem on the warm-up laps and was a dozen laps behind the field after the Hendrick Motorsports crew replaced a coil wire.

Sprague, who finished 21st, slipped to third place in the points, 11 behind Riggs.

The race saw seven drivers trade the lead nine times with most of the changes coming during a second round of pit stops at the two-thirds mark. Riggs, who finished out of the top 20 in four of his last seven starts, headed the field four times.

He took command on lap 103 when Kvapil's Chevrolet made its final pit stop. Riggs' last victory, on June 2, came at Dover Downs International Speedway, also a concrete-surfaced track.

Crawford made the biggest gain at the finish, moving up from a start of 13th. Ruttman, who went to pit road early when a suspension bar on his truck broke, moved up steadily from 23rd-place following the race's first caution — triggered by his teammate Bill Lester's brush with the front stretch wall.

The only other caution, also for five laps, came on lap 30 when Jerry Hill's Chevrolet suffered engine failure and stalled.

NASCAR: Jarrett takes third pole of season, 13th of his career

well here this weekend," Jarrett said. "We know that both Jeff and Ricky should run well."

Although he got the outside of the front row, Rudd felt he could have done better.

"You're not happy when you run slower than you did in practice, and we did," Rudd said. "I made a few mental errors, but at the time I didn't realize it."

While Jarrett got his third pole of the season, 13th of his career and first on any discipline other than a superspeedway, Gordon was not very good in pursuit of his sixth top start of the year.

Even though he leads in poles, he isn't obsessed with winning them. So, when after he went just 122.498, Gordon took the lap in stride.

"We've got some good guys in front of us," he said. "But I'm not too worried."

In all he had a better day than defending race champion Steve Park. He couldn't take a lap because of a brake problem, and will start 37th.

Gordon's teammate, Jerry Nadeau, was a surprise as the third qualifier. He went 122.235 in his Chevrolet, and will start inside Robby Gordon. Subbing for the injured Mike Skinner, Gordon got around at 122.218.

Starting fifth will be the Ford of Rusty Wallace, whose lap at 122.042 was one of 13 faster than his two-year-old track record of 121.234. Ron Fellows, one of several moonlighting road-racing aces and the second-place finisher here in 1999, was next in a Chevy, going 121.956.

Todd Bodine, Scott Pruett John Andretti and rookie Kevin Harvick co mpleted the top 10.

Rafter advances to semifinals of Tennis Masters

Associated Press

MASON, Ohio — Patrick Rafter beat Greg Rusedski 5-7, 7-6 (5), 6-4 on Friday to advance to the semifinals of the Tennis Masters Series-Cincinnati.

Rusedski fought off 14 break points, including seven in the third set, but Rafter converted the 15th with a cross-court forehand to take a 5-4 lead in the set.

Rafter, seeded eighth, closed out the match with a 115 mph ace to earn his third semifinal berth in his last three appearances at the tournament. The Australian star has advanced to the finals each of the first two times and won the title in 1998.

"Today, I felt as good as I did all week," said Rafter, who's won 15 of his last 17 matches. "I think that helped me hang in there until the end."

"I was pleased with the way I played," said the unseeded Rusedski, who was 36th in the ATP rankings going into the tournament. "Pat had to play well to win. He hung in there. I knew he was tired, but he gutted it out like he normally does."

Two consecutive double faults by Rusedski gave Rafter two set points in the 10th game of the first set, but Rusedski fought his way back in the game and then saved it with an ace and a unreturnable first serve. Rafter set Rusedski up to serve for the set by double-faulting on break point in the 11th game. Rusedski closed it out with two aces.

"I had to mix it up," said Rusedski, who'd won two of the last three matches against Rafter but fell to 3-7 in his career against the Australian. "He likes fast serves. He blocks well and has good reflexes. My strategy was to mix up the speeds."

Rusedski saved four set points on his serve in the 10th game of the second set to help force a tiebreaker, but he faltered and gave Rafter a break with a double-fault on the seventh point.

Rafter closed out that set with a 113-mph serve Rusedski was unable to return.

"I knew I had to save a lot of break points," Rusedski said. "Pat was making some great shots."

Unity is theme for annual Spiritual Explosion

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

The theme of the 27th annual weeklong Spiritual Explosion this year is unity — the kind of unity Jesus speaks of in John 17:21-22: "That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou has sent me."

The Rev. W.C. Kenan, pastor of Faith Temple Church of God In Christ, said in a letter to area clergy that while fasting and searching his heart for the last 30 days, he has realized he must first confront his own shortcomings in the march toward unity.

"I must confess to each of you, my brothers in Christ, and to God that I recognize areas where I must be more diligent in my efforts to promote unity in the body of believers in this area," he wrote. "I am more determined than ever to do what I can, while I can, to bring about the oneness that Jesus prayed for.

"Explosion is not a Faith Temple thing, it's a God thing."

Kenan, out of whose vision Spiritual Explosion began 27 years ago, told a group of lay workers and clergy at a luncheon last week that the event will last for six days this year, instead of seven to allow churches to return to their regular Sunday schedules.

"In the past, we always started on Monday night and would close out on Sunday evenings, and we called it seven days of heaven on earth. This year it will be six days.

"We want to give people something they can take back with them, and by ending on Saturday, they'll be able to get started the very next morning," he said. "We've had a lot of reports from people who came to the Explosion and went back to build up their own churches. That's our goal and our aim."

Kenan also said he is painfully aware the community is not where it should be in coming together, but no earthly power can thwart the plan of God for long.

This year's annual weeklong Spiritual Explosion will include praise, worship and music.

"Years ago, the Lord began to give me visitations of bringing his people together. We sought his direction as to what we should do, and it began to be revealed to me that what would bring about this spiritual explosion would be the in-gathering of his people, where we would come for one common purpose: the unification of the body of Christ, and to draw men and women of all races, creeds and denominations to Jesus Christ," he said.

From the outset, the event has drawn a cross section of Midland's population as well as the faithful and the curious from surrounding communities, who come to see in person the preachers who they may have heard about for years.

"We have always pulled in some of the best ministers from all across America," Kenan said. "We bring these people because we wanted people in our cities and our state to experience some of these great preachers."

In addition to the preachers, there also will be praise, worship and singing led by the Explosion choir and others, followed by preaching, a time of praise and worship, and finally, altar calls and

Spiritual Explosion will have blanket collection

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

Persons who attend next week's Spiritual Explosion at Midland Center are asked to bring blankets to add to those collected by local churches and civic organizations for the victims of atrocities, war and famine in Sudan.

"There will be people from Midland who will personally take (the blankets) to Sudan later in the year," according to Deborah Fikes, Midland's International Day of Prayer committee spokeswoman.

The blanket campaign, called "Blankets of Love," was begun three years ago by Voice of the Martyrs in response to the displacement, dismemberment and death of hundreds of thousands of Sudanese.

Since October 1996, VOM teams have made 17 trips into Sudan carrying food, medicine and other essentials, including water buckets, cooking pots, dishes, mosquito nets, cultivations tools, worm filters, soap and matches. And they also took blankets — more than 143,000 so far.

But more blankets are needed, said Ms. Fikes.

"These people have nothing, nothing to call their own. Even a simple blanket can say that we care. And it will provide some comfort.

"We're asking that people bring their blankets, either new, or clean used blankets — plus $2 each for transportation of the blankets — to the convention center during Spiritual Explosion, so that we can have a huge pile of blankets to show our care for our brothers and sisters in Sudan."

Ms. Fikes said committee members are thinking especially of the visual impact of the stack of blankets.

Evangelist famous for 'healing water' producing movie about his life

By Joe Milicia
Associated Press

DELAWARE, Ohio — Evangelist Leroy Jenkins sings like Elvis and has the king's hairdo.

The stage at his church looks like a set for a community theater production: White stage lights shine on statues of elephants, camels and giraffes, surrounded by palm trees and three waterfalls.

Jenkins says Liberace called him flamboyant.

After 30 years, Jenkins' Healing Waters Cathedral has grown into an enterprise that includes nationwide TV broadcasts and steady sales of his "healing water" at $1.40 per plastic gallon jug.

This, despite his conviction for arson conspiracy in 1979, and his controversial marriage this year. The bride was a 71-year-old millionaire widow whose relatives accused Jenkins of trying to steal her money.

"He took a little bit of Jesus and a little bit of Elvis and meshed them together," said Damian Chapa, who will play Jenkins in a movie the evangelist is producing about his life.

Brodmon Drakeford, 47, a Cincinnati relative of the widow, Eloise Thomas, has a different view.

"Leroy Jenkins is in it for Leroy Jenkins," Drakeford said.

Jenkins, 64, said he is the illegitimate son of a Cherokee woman who abandoned him in a field. His grandmother gave him to a couple, who raised him in Greenwood, S.C., he said.

At age 15, Jenkins ran away to Texas, then Atlanta, where he got married for the first of three times. An accident that nearly severed his arm led to his life of evangelism, he said.

His doctors told him that if his arm wasn't amputated, he would die of gangrene. Instead, he said he went to a tent revival where he heard audience members speaking in tongues, typical of Pentecostal worship. Jenkins said he was "filled with the Holy Ghost" and his fingers began to move.

The "Man with the Miracle Arm" then launched his own tent revivals.

"I started the next night and never stopped. Not knowing one thing about the Bible," Jenkins said. "The Bible just came to me through experiences."

He fathered seven children in two previous marriages before his travels brought him to Delaware, Ohio.

"I lived five lives," he said.

Jenkins says he has counseled celebrities such as Liberace, Mae West and Elvis.

He arrived in Ohio in 1968 and opened his Holy Hill Cathedral on 80 acres of farmland north of Columbus. Twenty years later, Jenkins said God told him to drill a well, whose waters, he claimed, have since cured people of leukemia, diabetes and other diseases.

He renamed the site Healing Waters Cathedral and began mailing free samples of water to followers. Jenkins would not reveal financial details of his ministry, which has a staff of 13.

At a recent Sunday service, the crowd of about 200 filled only part of the auditorium, singing gospel songs and dancing until the evangelist emerged, wearing a white jacket and black shirt with a crucifix hanging around his neck. Worshippers rose from their seats, shouting praise for Jesus.

Jenkins sang "How Great Thou Art" in the style of Elvis, before audience members came forward to be healed by the well water.

"I'll always be grateful to Leroy Jenkins because he was the cause of me finding Jesus," Pam Perez shouts, as a band plays the Doobie Brothers' "Takin' It to the Streets."

Perez' husband, Rudy, 61, of Columbus, said he was skeptical until Jenkins cured him of colon cancer. Rudy Perez and his wife drink the healing water regularly.

"He told me, 'Young man you've got cancer in the worst way. You're an alcoholic. You're going out on your

New pastor says he feels at home here in Midland

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

Although his official installation is more than a month away, the Rev. Lee E. Blackmon said he and his wife, Regenia, already feel perfectly at home in Midland.

Blackmon is the newly appointed pastor of Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ, at 200 N. Tyler St., in south Midland. He was appointed pastor by Bishop H.W. Watson, jurisdictional prelate of Texas Northwest, located in Lubbock. The church's national head office is in Memphis, Tenn.

'Our focus is on kingdom-building, reaching out for lost souls in the community, and showing them the love of God.'
— Lee E. Blackmon, new pastor for Alexander Temple Church of God in Christ

Blackmon, who was formerly associate pastor of Malone Memorial COGIC in Orlando, Fla., said his focus will be concentrated on the area of Alexander's immediate vicinity at first, with the emphasis on evangelism.

"Our focus is on kingdom-building, reaching out for lost souls in the community, and showing them the love of God," said Blackmon. "We also plan to do radio ministry in the near future.

"As for our goals, we plan eventually to build a new church, but that is a long-term goal, approximately five years in the future."

Blackmon said he and his wife have had no problems getting acquainted.

"This congregation is one of the best I've ever worked with in 40 years of ministry, and in more than 13 years of pastoral service, I've never met a congregation more willing to work together for the Lord," he said.

With a congregation of some 130, Alexander has Sunday school at 9:30 a.m. Sundays, with worship beginning at 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m.. The church has Auxiliary Bible Training at 7 p.m. Wednesdays and Bible Institute at 7 p.m. Fridays.

He will be officially installed by Watson Sept. 29.

The Blackmons have six adult children.

✔ New board of director

The Rev. Clark Ford of Midland has been elected to a three-year term on the board of directors for Juliette Fowler Homes Inc., one of the oldest social service institutions in the Dallas area.

A retired clergyman, Ford has served Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) congregations in Pecos, Big Spring, Midland and Dallas, as well as churches in Kentucky.

He has also been area minister for the High Plains Area of the Christian Church, interim area minister for the Central Area and moderator for the Tres Rios and Central Areas.

In Pecos, he was an active member of the Rotary Club and American Cancer Society, and in Midland he has participated in Chamber of Commerce and Senior Services of Midland activities.

Ford began his board term on July 1 and will serve through June 30, 2004.

Chartered in 1892, Juliette Fowler Homes, Inc., is a nonprofit institution that serves elderly in need of long-term care or with limited incomes and emotionally disturbed adolescents.

Sunday

✔ Parenting class

An orientation meeting is scheduled for 5 p.m. Sunday at Crestview Baptist Church 's activities building for a planned parenting class. The 18-week course, "Growing Kids God's Way," will provide practical biblical insights into child rearing. Child care will not be provided for the orientation meeting but will be for the classes. There will be a fee to cover the cost of the workbooks. For information on class schedule and fee call 620-0571.

COLLECT: Blankets will be given to Sudan victims

(From 1C)

"Just think what an unforgettable sight that would be, to have an entire roomful of blankets from the people of West Texas," she said. "And then as we come nearer to the International Day of Prayer for the Persecuted Church, which will be held in Midland on Nov. 4, a group of our own clergy and lay people will deliver the blankets to Sudan."

Churches, organizations and individuals can contribute to the blanket drive.

Blankets should be clean and in good condition, but don't have to be new. In addition, funding is needed for transportation of the blankets. This is estimated at $2 per blanket.

For more information on the blanket drive or other activities associated with events leading to the upcoming International Day of Prayer for the Persecuted Church, call Deborah Fikes, BASIC Ministries, 520-3488 or Leroy Lengyon, Goodwill Baptist Church, 683-9702.

MOVIE: Jenkins rebuilding ministry after arson charge

(From 1C)

wife.' He just pointed his finger at me. A hot sensation just came over my body," Rudy Perez said. "I didn't have no more pain."

Jenkins said Perez' doctors were baffled.

Chapa, who grew up in Ohio, first saw Jenkins at the Ohio Theater in Columbus.

"I'll never forget this man in a red jacket touching this lady who was crippled and she got out of the wheelchair and walked," he said.

The evangelist is still rebuilding his ministry after his conviction in South Carolina in 1979 for conspiring to burn down the home of a businessman who allegedly owed him money and the home of a South Carolina state trooper who arrested Jenkins' daughter on a traffic charge.

The evangelist claims he was framed.

The case dramatically reduced support for Jenkins' ministry. The number of families on his mailing list dropped from 444,000 to 42,000 by the time he was released from prison in 1984, he said. Jenkins said about 300,000 families are now on the rolls. The state pardoned Jenkins in 1993.

The evangelist had more troubles this year. His Las Vegas wedding to Eloise Thomas on Jan. 12, 16 days after her husband died, drew accusations from her family that the evangelist wanted access to her fortune, estimated to be about $4 million.

Jenkins said he married Thomas, a member at Healing Waters for 20 years, to protect her from greedy relatives and attorneys. However, Jenkins agreed to annul the marriage in July after Thomas was declared incompetent by a court; the annulment was made official last Thursday.

"He's not in love with my aunt," Drakeford said. "She's got dementia. She don't know what she's doing. He's using his influence as a preacher over her. She looks at him like a god."

Jenkins said he is misunderstood by those outside his ministry. He will get another chance to explain his goals with his biographical film, "The Calling," scheduled to be released next year. Actress Faye Dunaway, a friend of Jenkins', will play Mae West.

"I'm a nice person and I love people and I would never do anything to harm anybody," he said.

UNITY: Event will only last six days this year

prayers for specific needs and for unity.

For the first 25 years, the event was held at the Faith Temple Church of God in Christ, a huge church plant that covers a 1 1/2 block area just north of Crockett Elementary School on Midland's east side, but Kenan said in recent years, the crowds have simply overflowed the church's capacity to handle them.

"Two years ago, we decided we had to have a larger place," he explained, "So now we use the Midland Center, downtown."

Although speakers have been told what the theme is, Kenan said they were given no restrictions as to the subjects of their addresses.

"We left the subject open, telling them simply to speak as God has directed them," he said. "They are all dynamic, spirit-filled speakers.

"One thing I can promise you," he said, "There will be a mighty uplifting of the spirit, and every night there will be an altar call."

"If we can win the hearts not only of our youth, but of our adults, to the Lord, this city can be changed," he said.

"We're aware of our problems. We're concerned not only about the people you would see in church, but the drug dealer, the prostitute and the people with hidden vices that only God may know about."

In an effort to reach those who would not normally come to church, the Faith Temple congregation has in past years held street services and camp meetings, following the biblical directive to go into the fields to the harvest.

But Kenan said if Christians are to follow the will of God, they must be bold.

"One thing I would like to see in this city is one point during the year when all denominations will come together to have an explosion for the Lord.

"Let the world know that we are together.

"We are not divided by our race or our creed, our color or our denomination.

"We're coming together because that's the way it's going to be in heaven. That's what Jesus prayed for, and that's what we're striving for.

"But changing is not change until we change. Unity is not unity until we are unified. And coming together is not togetherness until we all come together.

"The Bible says we are living epistles. People are not listening to what we say, but they will watch what we do. If we say we're together and people don't see us working together, nobody will believe us.

"The way we prove our Christianity is to let people see the Christ in us, unified."

Spiritual Explosion 2001 begins Monday and continues through Aug. 18.

The schedule is: seminars, 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. Tuesday through Friday, Midland Center; services, 7:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, Midland Center; Super Saturday Prayer and Praise, noon Aug. 18 at Centennial Plaza; and Founder's Banquet, 4 p.m. Aug. 18, Holiday Inn Convention Center. Guest speakers are Joyce Rogers from Denton, Roland Lopez, San Antonio; Listen Page, Patterson, N.J.; and the Revs. Mitchell Taylor, Long Island, N.Y., Nathan Simmons, Atlanta, and Daryl Collins, Lubbock.

Movement driving wedge through fundamentalism

By Richard N. Ostling
Associated Press

There are good reasons to revere the King James Version, history's most popular Bible translation in English.

The memorable phrases permeate English-speaking culture. The style is elegant. Top scholars did the work. And many prefer its word-for-word renderings of the underlying Hebrew and Greek to other Bibles' looser thought-for-thought translations.

Two problems, though. Many struggle with its 1611 wordings. And modern Bibles draw upon a much richer array of ancient Hebrew and Greek manuscripts.

That narrow manuscript basis, however, is precisely why U.S. Protestant fundamentalists in the King James Only (KJO) movement insist the King James is the only Bible we should read. Hardliners among the KJOs believe only the King James is the Word of God, so those who use other English translations aren't real Christians and may not be saved.

What about those using Bibles in languages other than English? Their status is unclear.

The KJO phenomenon underscores the difference between "fundamentalism" and the similar but more moderate "evangelical" movement, where such unusual thinking doesn't occur.

Many fundamentalists reject KJO as firmly as evangelicals do, and seven of them have compiled the anthology "One Bible Only?" (Kregel). The contributors are associated with Central Baptist Theological Seminary in Plymouth, Minn.

This is serious business. The book says that since the 1980s the KJO phenomenon has become "more destructive" among conservative Baptists than any development since the 19th century.

The book calls hardline KJO a "heresy," in the New Testament sense of a faction that needlessly divides Christians.

In addition, the book considers the extreme versions "cultic" in claiming that faith is endangered by use of other English versions. Also cultic, the book contends, is unthinking obedience to leaders who refuse to answer honest questions, demonize opponents and cover up facts.

The KJO movement originated with a 1930 book by Seventh-day Adventist theologian Benjamin Wilkinson. More recent promoters have been the Rev. David Otis Fuller, a deceased Regular Baptist pastor in Grand Rapids, Mich., and the Rev. Peter Ruckman of Pensacola, Fla., who edits the highly polemical Bible Believer's Bulletin.

Fundamentalists all believe God directly inspired the human authors to write without error the exact words of the original Hebrew and Greek. But, this anti-KJO book says, "God has not seen fit to preserve any of the original documents." The evangelicals and anti-KJO fundamentalists believe we have a reliable and even error-free revelation, though we lack the exact originals.

Mother charged with abandonment of children who drowned

LONGVIEW (AP) — The mother of three children who drowned in a motel pool was charged Friday with felony childhood abandonment.

Blaza Garcia, 40, reportedly did not learn of the deaths until she returned to the motel more than two hours after the drownings Thursday evening. The woman, who was said to have left the children unattended at the motel, had to be hospitalized and restrained after she tried to hurt herself, police said.

The bodies of Maria Martinez, 10; Israel Martinez, 8; and Marvin Martinez, 6, were recovered from water so murky that it took rescue workers more than 30 minutes to discover the third victim in the Palace Inn Motel pool, Longview police Sgt. John M. Ray said.

"We get there and think there are only two victims," Ray said.

"It appears one of the children went into the pool and the other children went in to save him," Justice of the Peace B.H. Jameson said.

The children were pronounced dead at Good Shepherd Medical Center shortly after being taken there Thursday night.

Ray said police have not determined if the children knew how to swim.

Autopsies were ordered.

The water is being tested. "It may have been just murky, but not toxic," Jameson said.

A hotel guest spotted the body of the 6-year-old boy floating in the pool about 5:45 p.m. As bystanders assisted in the recovery, the oldest girl's body was found and recovered.

After the siblings were taken to the hospital, police officers found a 13-year-old brother of the victims in the motel room with four other children aged 9 months, 2, 4 and 5. The 13-year-old said he wasn't aware his three siblings had left the motel room, Ray said.

"He didn't wake up until officers were knocking on the door," Ray said.

The 13-year-old told police his mother and stepfather were at work, where they painted vehicles. He said he did not know how to contact them. It was while talking with the boy that police officers discovered a third child was missing.

Longview Police Department Detective Seth Vanover takes photographs of a motel swimming pool where three children drowned Thursday night at the Palace Inn during an investigation into the incident in Longview. Three unattended siblings who drowned in the motel pool died in water so murky it took rescue workers more than 30 minutes to discover a third victim, police said Friday.

Officers raced to the pool and found the body of the third victim in nine feet of water about 6:20 p.m. Because the water was so murky, firefighters used poles to probe the water, officials said. Police Lt. Joe Bob McCaleb jumped into the pool and found the boy, motel tenant Wayne Allison said.

"The cop peeled down, dived in there and brought up a T-shirt," Allison said. McCaleb found the boy's body on his second dive, Allison said.

The children's older sister, who had arrived at the motel before her mother, collapsed in tears after witnesses told her that the children had died.

In all, eight children were living at the motel, Ray said. Friday, all the children were in the custody of Child Protective Services.

Police said they arrested Garcia after receiving information she was making arrangements to leave the country with her surviving children. She also was charged with a probation violation warrant stemming from an earlier charge of driving while intoxicated, officials said.

Ray said the pool was substandard and there was no chlorine in the pool.

"We're looking into whether any laws were violated in the maintenance of the pool," Ray said.

A motel employee who refused to give his name said that they had put chlorine in the pool the night before. He also said there was a sign saying no one under 14 should be in the pool unsupervised by adult.

Jameson described the oval-shaped pool as being about 20 feet by 35 feet with a wading pool at one side.

Louisiana pilot parachutes from plane in competition

CONROE (AP) — A Louisiana man participating in an aerobatics competition parachuted from his plane Friday afternoon, seconds before it crashed into a field.

Troy Armand, 38, of Baton Rouge, La., was doing a maneuver in the Acroduster 1 when its rudder cable snapped.

"All he could do was fly in circles," said herb Williams, assistant chief of the Conroe Fire Department.

Fire crews were dispatched when a 911 caller said Armand was going to try to land. But Armand was unable to bring the craft under control.

Armand, who said he has been flying "for fun" for 20 years and in aerobatics competition for four years, landed in a field between Conroe and Willis near Farm Road 1097. No one on the ground was injured.

Another of his hobbies, skydiving, may have saved his life. With 53 prior "sports jumps" behind him, Armand said it was easier to bail out of the plane once he knew he couldn't bring it under control.

"I guarantee, you would second-guess yourself if you didn't have any jumps. I still hope it never happens again," Armand said.

A Department of Public Safety helicopter picked Armand up and returned him to the Montgomery County Airport were dozens of other competitors were waiting.

Bust in Laredo nets quarter-ton of cocaine

LAREDO (AP) — A joint investigation by U.S. Customs special agents and Laredo police has led to the arrest of seven men and confiscation of 570 pounds of cocaine with a street value of almost $4 million and almost 23,000 Ecstasy pills that sell for $20 to $30 apiece.

The raid Thursday night resulted in the largest seizure of cocaine in 2001 and the largest Ecstasy seizure in the city's history.

Friday, authorities were unloading the cocaine in taped-up boxes. They also pulled out bag after bag of pink-and-blue Ecstasy pills, a smily face etched on each one.

Agents and officers had a house in north Laredo under surveillance Thursday night when they noted suspicious activity, Customs officials said. Agents and officers obtained a verbal consent to search the premises, officials said.

During the search, officials said, the enforcement team determined that the house, empty of furnishings, was being used as a preparation, packaging and distribution center of the cocaine and Ecstasy.

The agents and narcotics officers discovered 204 bundles of cocaine and in a bedroom closet found a bag containing the Ecstasy pills.

Booked into Webb County Jail pending a detention and bond hearing were Rolando Diaz and Hector Ramior Guerra-Briones, both of Laredo; Jose H. Romero-Avila of El Cenizo, Texas; and Armando Moreles-Flores, Cain Hernandez Ramirez, Juan Carlos Ramirez and Victor Daniel Salazar-Villarreal, all of Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, across the border from Laredo.

Mariah Carey's movie, soundtrack release dates postponed

NEW YORK — First the opening date of Mariah Carey's movie was postponed, now the release of her soundtrack has been delayed.

"Glitter" was expected to hit stores on Aug. 21, but Virgin Records now plans to release the soundtrack Sept. 11.

The movie "Glitter," starring Carey as an aspiring pop star, was to open nationwide on Aug. 31, but 20th Century Fox moved it this week to Sept. 21.

Both projects were postponed after the 31-year-old Grammy winner suffered an emotional breakdown last month. Carey recently checked out of a Connecticut clinic where she received treatment. Her spokeswoman, Cindi Berger, said the singer is with her mother and under a doctor's care.

"Mariah is looking forward to being able to participate in both her album and movie projects and we are hopeful that this new soundtrack release date will allow her to do so," Virgin Vice Chairman Nancy Berry said in a statement Thursday. The first single off the soundtrack, "Loverboy," got as high as No. 2 on the Billboard singles chart. This week, it's at No. 9.

EAST HAMPTON, N.Y. — Sean "P. Diddy" Combs beat the rap this week when he agreed to stop some illicit lawn-mowing.

Lawyers for Combs persuaded a local judge to refrain from slapping Combs with an arrest warrant for allegedly defying town environmental codes. The hip-hop mogul was accused of mowing down sea-grass and other environmentally protected vegetation at his $2.5 million waterfront home in this posh Long Island community.

East Hampton Town Justice Roger Walker, upset that Combs appeared to be setting himself above the law, threatened to issue an arrest warrant on Monday if Combs failed to show up in court to respond to the charges.

But his attorneys and the town prosecutor reached an agreement, lawyers said Friday.

"We are dealing with a lawn-mowing situation that has become a media circus because of who he is," Combs' attorney, Stuyvesant Wainright, said.

Under the deal reached this week, the matter is to be adjourned until after Labor Day. During that time, Combs has promised to restore the natural vegetation, including sea grass and blueberry bushes, at a cost of more than $70,000.

LAS VEGAS — A Kentucky woman has settled a lawsuit alleging that Dennis Rodman attacked her when she tried to take his picture in the lobby of a Las Vegas Strip hotel-casino.

Rebecca Mardis of Laurel County, Ky., alleged that the former basketball star slammed her camera to the floor and lifted her into the air during the January 1999 encounter in the lobby of the MGM Grand.

Mardis said the former NBA player laughed at her fright.

She filed a lawsuit in Clark County District Court in June 1999 seeking $1 million in damages.

Mardis' attorney, Nancy Allf of Las Vegas, said a settlement was reached Tuesday.

Allf said she couldn't disclose the details because of a confidentiality agreement, but said her client was "very pleased."

FORT LEE, N.J. — Whitney Houston's brother has been released on bail after being arrested on charges of carrying cocaine and marijuana.

Two detectives saw Michael Houston's car nearly collide with another car as he pulled out of a Holiday Inn parking lot around 9:45 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

The 39-year-old from South Plainfield, N.J., was stopped along Route 4, and police said his eyes appeared glassy and bloodshot and he was grinding his teeth. Police arrested him and reported finding in his car 14 partially smoked marijuana cigarettes, a bag of what appeared to be marijuana and a bag of cocaine.

He was charged with marijuana possession, cocaine possession, possession of drug paraphernalia and being under the influence of drugs.

Police said Houston, a music writer for his sister's company, Nippy Inc., was cooperative. He was arraigned Thursday and bail was set at $3,500. He was released to his attorney.

A 17-year-old girl from Manhattan traveling with Houston was released to her parents' custody. She was not charged.

NEW YORK — The A.J. McLean who entered rehab for alcohol abuse and depression isn't the real A.J. McLean, his mother says.

Denise McLean, the Backstreet Boy's mother, still calls her 23-year-old son "Alex," and recalls that as a little boy, he dreamed of stardom.

"A.J. is the bad boy, crazy boy on stage that ... makes all those pelvic thrusts and does all this stuff to drive the girls crazy," she says in an interview with ABC News' "20/20," airing Friday night.

"And A.J. is the one that got the tattoos, and A.J.'s the one that colors his hair for the audience ... and the media and does the shock stuff.

"Alex is ... the complete opposite of that," she says. "Alex is the sweetest ... most gentle person ... you could ever imagine. He's kind, he's got a heart of gold, he loves his family, he loves his puppies to death."

McLean checked himself into a rehabilitation center a month ago, forcing the Backstreet Boys to postpone their North American tour. He was released last Saturday.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Aug. 11, 2001:

Your professional stature or public image grows because of your sense of timing and knowing what works. Others respond to your energy and leadership. For these reasons, you will benefit in any area of your choosing this year. Take up an interest in yoga or some other relaxing pastime. Your greatest resourcefulness springs from times of solitude. If you are single, you might become involved with someone who provides you with a lot of space. Carefully check out this person. If you are attached, help your loved one understand your need for downtime to promote productivity. Also, schedule that special vacation you have often discussed. TAURUS pushes you into the limelight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Opt to treat and indulge a close friend or family member. Choose an activity you love to do together, whether it is taking in a movie or going water-skiing. While enjoying this happy moment, buy a memento. Tonight: Whatever feels right.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Has there been something on the back burner that you have been longing for? If someone isn't reading your mind, muster up your courage and ask. You won't believe how responsive this person will be. Your happiness lights up others. Tonight: Sow your oats.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★ You might opt to sit back and do very little on this lazy day, but be careful while watching TV. A commercial could catch your eye. Before you know it, you will have bought that item. Tonight: Indulge yourself!

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★★★ You can't help but charm the socks off someone who finds you adorable and very exciting. Get together with friends, but don't forget the special person in your life. Plan on a walk together or maybe a picnic in the next few days. Tonight: Wherever you are, you're happy.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★★ You lead an active dream life and might not choose to share some things even with those you dearly love. A loved one has a sense of being left out and could play games to open you up. Bring others together, making each individual feel cared about. Tonight: Where the action is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★★ Hop in your car for a day trip to visit with friends whom you don't see as frequently as you would like. It becomes a great celebration. Don't be surprised if you decide to extend your stay, upon another's request. Tonight: Experiments work.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★★ Your efforts to help others be more comfortable around you make you very popular. You might have a difficult time keeping up with all the invitations and popularity. Still, make time for that special person. Tonight: Dinner for two.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Defer to others, and go along with their plans. Before you know it, you might find yourself on a delightful adventure. In a different setting, you feel much more relaxed and willing to share your feelings. Talk about the future, but don't make promises you can't keep. Tonight: Try a new cuisine.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★★ What others suggest comes from their hearts. They are trying to make your life easier; learn to say "yes." You don't always have to do everything by yourself. Nurturing comes far easier to you than being nurtured. Get some practice. Be uncomfortable! Tonight: Easy does it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★★ Respond to a friend or a loved one who means a lot. Pack away thoughts of works and errands. Instead, study the weekend ethic and learn to just let go and maybe even sometimes be a silly, if not carefree, Goat. Relationships warm up considerably. Tonight: Let out the wild child in you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Though the Water Bearer loves to roam, you actually might like assuming the role of couch potato. Relax with loved ones and friends at your place. Nothing has to be complicated. Purchase a new item for your pad. Tonight: Just enjoy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★★ Your words make someone smile. You could be on the edge of a new relationship or in the midst of warming up a present bond. Communicate with the gentleness your sign is known for. Suggest a fun water sport or some other favorite pastime. Tonight: Go for what you love.

Officers hospitalized, gunman killed, in bar shootout

TEXAS CITY (AP) — A gunman was shot and killed and three police officers were wounded in a shootout Friday afternoon outside a Texas City bar.

The officers were taken to University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston.

Dick Young, on the Texas City police force for 28 years, was in serious condition, hospital spokeswoman Doris White said.

Officer David Fairchild was in good condition. The third officer, Joe Stanton, was released after receiving treatment.

Police said the gunman, believed in his 40s, was armed with a 9 mm pistol.

"He told police if he had to come out he was going to come out shooting," witness John Bradley told Houston television station KHOU. "That's apparently what he did."

Police returned the fire.

The gunman earlier had ordered everyone inside the place to clear out. Officers then were summoned.

"We turned the power off and waited awhile," Sgt. Mike Land said. "We heard a gunshot. He had indicated to negotiators he might take his own life."

Land said when the officers opened the front door to throw in some gas, "He came busting through the door, firing and hit three of the officers.

Texas City police exchange fire with a gunman during a shootout that ended with the suspect dead and three officers wounded Friday outside a bar in Texas City. A muzzle flash is visible as an officer discharges his weapon, background right, as police fire on the suspect, who is obscured behind the car at far right.

"We returned fire and shot him," Land said.

Land said all the officers were wearing protective vests. One of the officers was shot in the arm, another in the chest, he said.

"It's all under investigation," he said.

Convicted killer's pending execution draws 'prayer warriors'

By Lisa Falkenberg
Associated Press

GRAPELAND — While singing "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," more than 100 people squeezed their eyes shut and swayed like a wheat field during a Friday evening prayer vigil for death row inmate Napolean Beazley.

Beazley, 25, is scheduled to be executed Wednesday for a fatal carjacking that occurred when he was 17.

The "prayer warriors," all black, gathered for the service after praying four times a day for weeks.

One of several ministers that spoke during the service said, "Our brother needs a friend right now."

"There's a life that could be saved, and sometimes we snap it out because of revenge. There's a punishment, but it doesn't have to be death," said Fodine Walker of Grapeland, Beazley's hometown. The town is about 50 miles north of death row at Livingston, Texas.

John Stell, a longtime Beazley family friend, said he realized the prayers of him and others would not save Beazley.

"We don't think it will sway anything. I've been praying for eight years for God's will to be done. But we pray his soul will be saved. That's all we can hope for."

Angie Dickson, a senior pastor at Mt. Zion Baptist Church in Grapeland, about 20 miles south of Palestine, said the death penalty — especially Beazley's case because he was a juvenile at the time of the crime — is unwarranted.

The prosecutor in the case, Smith County District Attorney Jack Skeen, said the prayer service's focus was misdirected. Skeen said the prayers should be for John Luttig, Beazley's victim. Luttig was shot twice in the head in front of his wife over his Mercedes Benz.

Luttig, whose son is a federal judge in Virginia, was confronted by three young men in the driveway of his home in Tyler, about 90 miles southeast of Dallas, the night of April 19, 1994.

Beazley and brothers Cedric and Donald Coleman, all from Grapeland, about 20 miles to the south of Palestine, were arrested seven weeks after the shooting based on an anonymous tip.

"Whatever happens this Wednesday. . .we will be praying for all the families who have family" on death row, Dickson said. She opposes the death penalty in all cases.

"If we go around seeking revenge, if we have an eye for an eye, tooth for a tooth, then eventually we'll all be blind and we'll all be toothless," Dickson said.

Skeen said, "Any individual is worth praying for. But the focus should be on John Luttig, and on his surviving family, and the horrible death he met at Napoleon Beazley's hands, and the fact that Napoleon Beazley shot him twice in the head in the front of his wife just to get his car."

The church was also praying for Luttig and his family.

"These prayer warriors are not only praying for Napoleon, but we are also praying for (Luttig) and his family. Whatever happens next week, I can't imagine them watching another man die will make them feel better.

Dickson said she knew Beazley as a child, and he was "a model boy, very athletic and very studious."

Asked why she chose to have a prayer service for Beazley, Dickson said: "God put him deep down in my heart. That's the only way I can explain it."

About 250 church members were expected to attend the vigil at Mt. Zion.

Of the 249 condemned inmates executed since 1982, when Texas resumed carrying out capital punishment, nine of them committed their crimes while 17 years old, the minimum age at which they're eligible for the death penalty.

Beazley is among 31 Texas current death row prisoners who were 17 at the time of their crime.

Although he admits his guilt, some children's rights advocates have said this week's execution will be the killing of an innocent.

Death penalty critics also have seized on Beazley's case as the focus of a renewed criticism of the execution of teen-agers.

Amnesty International highlighted the case in a recent report, and called the United States "a rogue state as far as capital punishment is concerned."

The American Bar Association, while it has no position on the death penalty in general, opposes it for anyone under 18.

Vehicle emission tests during inspection to be required by state

FORT WORTH (AP) — Texas is starting a new vehicle emission inspection program, and some auto inspectors aren't happy about it.

The tougher emission inspections take effect in May and apply initially only to Tarrant, Dallas, Denton, Collin and Harris counties.

Emissions inspections will cost motorists $22.50 instead of the current $13. With the $12.50 safety inspection fee, total costs will be $35 instead of $25.50.

"I'm going to lose money," said Firouz Haghighi, owner of 10 Minute State Inspection Inc. & Etc. in Arlington. "Basically, everybody's going to go out of business."

To meet the new requirements, inspection station owners must buy or lease computerized testing systems at an estimated cost of $40,000.

Station owners contend that no matter how many inspections they perform, there is no assurance they will recoup their costs. They say that state fees, including $6 for a low-income vehicle assistance or retrofit program, will eat up much of the gain.

The Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission held a work session Friday, adopting proposed rules on the new inspection system that was mandated during this year's legislative session. The commission will hold public hearings on the proposed rules.

Haghighi estimates that in the affected counties up to 60 percent of the inspection businesses will close because owners will be unable to justify buying or leasing the new equipment. If that happens, it could take twice as long to get a vehicle inspected.

"There will be huge long lines," Haghighi said in a story in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram on Thursday. "It's going to get bad; it's going to get bad really quickly."

Haghighi had said he didn't plan to go to Friday's TNRCC hearing. He said he heard enough during a meeting packed with state officials and irate inspectors last week in Irving to confirm his opinion about House Bill 2134.

An equally contentious meeting was held in Houston.

Haghighi is a member of the Texas State Inspection Association, which has leveled stinging criticism of the new emission program. There are about 2,235 inspection stations split about evenly between North and South Texas.

Ed Martin, a technical adviser for the association, agreed that half of the inspection stations could close.

State Rep. Warren Chisum, R-Pampa, sponsor of the inspection legislation, said it is a workable plan that will help Texas cut ozone levels and comply with the Federal Clean Air Act by the 2007 target date.

"Fifty-four percent of the pollution comes from automobiles" in North Texas, Chisum said. "If we don't address automotive pollution in Tarrant and Dallas counties, we're going to fall under federal sanctions that won't be pretty."

Sanctions could include the loss of federal highway funds and restrictions on opening new businesses.

Under the new rules, vehicles made in 1996 and since will be subject to an on-board diagnostics test, or OBD, which plugs into vehicles' computers. Older cars will use the acceleration simulation mode test, or ASM, which uses a treadmill to simulate a road test.

The state has taken steps to indemnify inspectors in the North Texas and Houston areas against potential financial liability under the new program.

The first 1,000 stations in affected counties to sign contracts for purchase and installation of acceleration simulation mode test, or ASM, equipment will receive a financial guarantee if the state drops the program within two years.

Station owners say to be fair the incentive program should apply to all stations.

Witness says ex-prison chief got payoffs in meat substitute deal

HOUSTON (AP) — Convicted thief and tax cheat Patrick Graham, a star witness in the bribery trial of former Texas prison chief James A. "Andy" Collins, testified Friday that Collins received illegal payoffs from a Canadian food vendor while still on the state payroll.

Graham, serving a 10-year Texas prison sentence for theft over $150,000 and also convicted for not paying $700,000 in federal income taxes, told jurors Collins improperly was receiving money from Montreal-based VitaPro Foods Inc. while still executive director of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Graham said he saw evidence of two $10,000 payments made in late 1995, just before Collins' retirement was to take effect.

"I was told point-blank that those payments were directly for Andy pushing through multiyear contracts to get VitaPro into the Texas prison system," Graham said, referring to a five-year state contract worth $33.7 million.

The money was wired by VitaPro president Yank Barry — also being tried on federal charges of bribery, fraud, conspiracy and money laundering — into a shell company Graham helped set up for Collins, Graham said.

Barry and Collins have admitted no wrongdoing, saying the payments were consulting fees for Collins to market the soy-based meat substitute elsewhere.

Graham said he met Collins in the 1980s and signed him in the 1990s to head a new prison operating company Graham was proposing to develop a private lockup in Louisiana.

Upon cross-examination by defense attorney Kent Schaffer, Graham acknowledged he cooperated with federal authorities in Louisiana and Texas to reduce or eliminate any charges against him for possible crimes.

Schaffer accused Graham of trying to dig up dirt on anyone he could, noting Graham told prosecutors he thought Wayne Scott, who suceeded Collins as executive director of the Texas prison system and retired last month, took junkets to Montreal to visit with VitaPro officials. In fact, Schaffer said, Scott never had been to Canada.

During his opening statement, defense attorney Michael Ramsey referred to Graham as the "functional equivalent of a human cockroach."

On Friday, Ramsey implied Graham still might derive benefits for his testimony, noting Graham has a state parole hearing soon. Graham acknowledged his lawyer had contacted Louisiana federal prosecutors about his parole case.

Graham, along with his brother Michael, also were government informants who helped bring about a federal racketeering conviction of former Louisiana Gov. Edwin Edwards.

When prosecutors objected to Ramsey's line of questioning, U.S. District Court Judge Lynn Hughes, who repeatedly has chided secret arrangements with Louisiana prosecutors, spoke up.

"These defendants deserve the benefit of knowing everything that has been offered to this witness in exchange for his testimony and thus far it has been extemely difficult," the judge said.

The Collins trial, which began Tuesday, was delayed several times for months as Hughes allowed defense attorneys to explore Graham's relationship with the government.

During testimony, Patrick Graham denied the Internal Revenue Service has declined to sue him for back taxes in exchange for his helping prosecutors. He theorized the IRS's lack of action was a result of him having no source of income as a Texas inmate.

Texas officials sued VitaPro, saying the contract approved by Collins was illegal. Barry countersued, saying the agreement was legally binding and that his company was owed more than $30 million, plus interest, from the time the state stopped accepting shipments. In December 1999, the Texas Supreme Court ruled the contracts were invalid, that the state did not have to pay for the meat substitute and didn't have to accept any more of it.

GENERAL INFORMATION:

To ensure the integrity of our newspaper, for the benefit of our readers and advertisers, the Midland Reporter-Telegram reserves the right the revise, reclassify, edit or refuse any advertising. We also reserve the right to convert all advertising into digital and/or audiotext formats within our other products and services.

Please check your ad the first day it appears, and, if you find a mistake, please call our office at 682-6222 so we can correct the error immediately. This will ensure that your ad is exactly what you want readers to see. If an error does occur, you can choose to rerun your ad once for free, or we'll gladly refund the cost of the portion of the ad affected by the error. If an ad is inadvertently omitted, we will assume liability up to the cost of the ad itself – consequently, we will publish your ad in our next available edition or refund the price you have paid.

Rate charges are determined at the time of placement. All ads accepted are subject to credit approval. Some classifications require payment in advance. Credit applications are required for business accounts.

We welcome your suggestions or comments. Please call: Brandi Alexander, Telephone Sales Supervisor, 687-8813.

HOUSEHOLD ITEMS:

PLACING AN AD:

Call 682-6222, Monday through Friday, from 8a.m. – 6p.m.

A friendly Advertising Consultant will help you word and schedule your ad for best results.

HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!

❶ Promote Your Merchandise - The more descriptive you are the more likely your merchandise will appeal to someone.

❷ Check The Market Value - The most common mistake that occurs is over or under pricing your goods.

❸ Always Include The Price - People are more likely to respond when they know the price range.

❹ Keyword Your Ad - Begin each ad with the name of the item, such as "Stove" or "Guitar" rather than "Kenmore" or "Gibson", "Ford 1997" instead of "1997 Ford", or by its key reference point, such as location or area in real estate ads.

AutomotiveTODAY

All good: 2002 Buick Rendezvous SUV

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

With an aging product line and client base, Buick had become a product backwater within the stable of General Motors brands. Despite a rich heritage of substantial, powerful motorcars of distinction, Buick dealers were left with four car lines – Century, Regal, LeSabre and Park Avenue – to do battle in the fierce American marketplace. That is – until now.

The Buick Rendezvous, the nameplate's first all-new product in years represents Buick entry into the booming truck market. Labeled as a crossover vehicle that combines capability, security and comfort, the Rendezvous is billed as a vehicle that brings together the best features of a sport utility, premium sedan and a minivan in a way customers will appreciate.

Built in Ramos Arizpe, Mexico, alongside the Pontiac Aztec, the Rendezvous is available in CX and CXL models and Value, Versatility, Security and Luxury equipment packages. The Buick SUV is powered by the (LA1) 3400 3.4L V-6 engine bolted to the Hydra-matic 4T65-E electronically controlled four-speed automatic gearbox with overdrive and torque converter clutch. Consumers may choose between two- or four-wheel drive.

The Rendezvous is one of the first vehicles to offer Versatrak, General Motors' innovative "on-demand" all-wheel drive system, that uses front drive under normal road conditions adding torque to the rear wheels on slippery roads. Standard on the uplevel CXL and $2,528 additional on the CX, Versatrak requires no buttons to press or levers to throw. Other than stepping on the accelerator, no special driver action is needed. Versatrak is always poised to make the best use of the traction available.

On the road, the Rendezvous is quiet, stable and fast! Handling and performance are very carlike. When driving, it is hard to realize this is a truck! The underpinnings consist of a safety cage unibody with an rubber isolated powertrain cradle.

Versatrak models have a rubber-isolated aluminum cross member for the rear drive module. Bolted to the chassis is an independent four-wheel suspension system with front struts with coil springs and anti-roll bar. Rear hardware consists of a short and long control arms with one toe-control link per side, coil springs and anti-roll bar.

Standard rubber on the front-drive CX is the P215/70SR16 Firestone all-season blackwall tire. P215/65SR16 self-sealing Firestone all-season blackwall tires are standard on the CXL.

Inside, the cabin is a cavernous place! The driver enjoys a commanding view of the road and the low step for driver and front passenger makes access easy. A tall greenhouse results in a maximum cargo space of 108.9 cubic feet with the second row seats removed and the third row folded!

Seating is comfortable in all positions. Access to the optional third seat is easy, thanks to a split flip and fold forward seating arrangement for the second row of seats. The floor mounted storage system – standard on CXL – adds to the tons of storage space located throughout the vehicle. Two power points are standard in the center console for various portable electrical devices.

Ratings & specifications

Engine performance numbers are 185 hp at 5,200 rpm and 210 lb./ft. of torque at 4,000 rpm. EPA fuel economy numbers are 19 city/26 highway for two-wheel drive, 17 city/24 highway for four-wheel drive models using regular unleaded gasoline. Underhood fluids are very convenient and clearly marked. Properly equipped, the Rendezvous can tow a trailer with a maximum weight of 3,500 pounds.

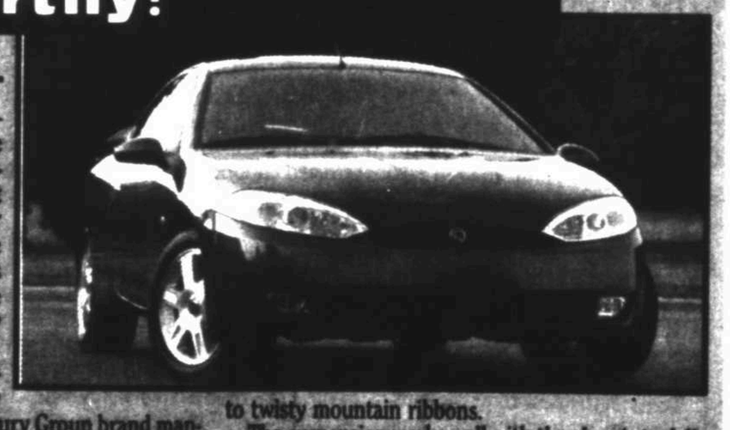
Standard safety/security equipment includes four-wheel disc brakes with anti-lock, automatic power door locks, remote keyless entry, fog lights, dual front air bags, driver and front passenger side impact airbags PassLock theft deterrent system, and daytime running lights. CXL adds alarm system, OnStar Communications system, garage door opener, tire inflation monitor and Firestone P215/70SR16 self sealing tires.

The base Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the 2002 Buick Rendezvous SUV starts at $24,924 for the CX two-wheel drive and $27,452 for the CX all-wheel drive and the CXL models. Destination charge adds $575. Buick dealers report good inventories of this vehicle and there are no rebates.

Sporty & practical: 2001 Mercury Cougar Coupe

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.



Introduced for the 1999 model year in current body style, the Mercury Cougar has been freshened up for 2001. A new front grill, fog lamps, front and rear facias refine and sharpen the styling cues for the automaker's "Edge" design direction. The interior also receives a new instrument cluster for 2001.

"The Cougar is the embodiment of the new Mercury brand," Jennifer Monegle, Mercury Group brand manager said. "It is stylish and spirited and its expressive character appeals to the true individualist. This car turns heads."

Built by AutoAlliance International, a joint venture between Ford and Mazda in Flat Rock, Mich., the new coupe is derived from the underpinnings of the Ford Contour/Mercury Mystique. Don't think the Cougar is a warmed over soup. The sheetmetal is all new, with powertrain and suspension components revised and retuned for optimal performance.

Consumers have a choice of the Zetec 2.0L four-cylinder or the Duratec 2.5L six-cylinder engines with either the five-speed MTX75 manual or four-speed CD4E automatic transaxles.

Model choices include the Coupe I-4, Coupe V-6 and Coupe S. Mercury also offers several equipment packages that allow consumers to customize the Cougar to an specific individual taste, starting with the Coupe V-6 model.

The C2 Feature Car ($515) includes a unique spoiler, machined aluminum wheels, badging and unique floor mats. The C2 is only available in black, blue, silver or white exterior colors.

The Zn Feature Car ($1,395) includes a unique hood scoop, speed control, illuminated keyless remote entry, rear window wiper/washer, machined aluminum wheels, badging, AM/FM stereo with six-disc CD in-dash changer, unique cloth sport seats, unique side marker lights, floor mats and P215/50ZR17 tires.

The Sport group ($865) includes leather wrapped steering wheel, upgraded center console, auxiliary power point, aluminum pedals, rear spoiler, front armrest with storage, rear disc brakes, cloth sport bucket seats, dual visor vanity mirrors, light group, auxiliary warning system, fog lights, glove box lights, reading lights and P215/50ZR16 tires.

On the road, the four-cylinder Mercury delivers so much power, it feels like driving the six-cylinder model instead. This combination has what it takes to tackle any type of pavement – from Midwestern Interstates to twisty mountain ribbons.

The suspension works well with the chassis to deliver a controlled ride. The front suspension consists of an independent strut type front-drive with strut-mounted coil springs, lower control A-arm and cast steering knuckle connected to a rubber-mounted sub-frame.

The rear suspension is a Quadralink strut with coil spring on shock strut, mounted to a rigid mounted subframe with an anti-roll bar. Four nitrogen gas-pressurized hydraulic shocks at each wheel work with the standard P205/60R15 tires to keep the Mercury coupe firmly on the road.

Inside the cabin, it is like sitting in a precision German automobile. Displays and controls are excellent and easy to read and operate. The most impressive thing about the new Cougar is that although it looks like a coupe, it is actually a hatchback. Its body integrity is so solid. The 50/50 split rear seat adds to the 14.5 cu. ft. in the cargo area.

Ratings & specifications

Engine performance statistics are 2.0L ZETEC I4 – 125 hp at 5,500 rpm and 130 lb/ft of torque at 4,000 rpm; 2.5L Duratec V-6 – 170 hp at 6,250 rpm and 165 lb/ft of torque at 4,250 rpm. EPA fuel economy numbers range from 23 city/34 highway for the four-cylinder to 20 city/29 highway for the 2.5L V-6. Both engines use regular unleaded gasoline. Underhood fluids are clearly marked and easy to reach.

Standard safety/security equipment for the Cougar includes dual front airbags, steel alloy door beams, and Securilock – a passive anti-theft system. S adds four-wheel disc brakes with anti-lock. Optional safety equipment includes four-wheel anti-lock brakes, $500, side impact airbags, $390, and traction control $235, (V6 models only).

The base Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the Mercury Cougar begins at $16,700 for the four-cylinder up to $22,050 for the Coupe S model. Destination charge adds $475. Mercury is offering $2,000 in customer cash that ends Oct. 8. Dealers report decent inventories.

Play Structure

Here's an outdoor play structure with something for everyone. For kids, it's a tree house, fort and jungle gym all rolled into one. For parents, it's a sturdy playhouse with a safety-conscious design and a clean, unobtrusive look. It features a smooth hardboard slide, two sandboxes, and a gable roof with a canvas top.

The structure stands a little more than 10 feet tall and is 6 feet square (not including the ladder or slide). The floor is about 5 feet off the ground.

Play Structure plan (No. 839) . . . $9.95
Playhouses & Structures Package (No. C104) Four projects incl. 839 . . . $24.95
Catalog (pictures hundreds of projects) . . . $3.95

But still enjoy being around people? If you have the ability to run a cash register, and are willing to work flexible 5-hour shifts in a morning, afternoon and evening, we may have a place for you. We are open seven days a week, but this is not fast food or retail in the traditional sense. We are a locally owned business in Midland that simply needs reliable part-time workers who were brought up with a good work ethic and who enjoy people. If this sounds like you, write us a letter to: Box J-2002 c/o Midland Reporter- Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, TX 79702. But make sure you get all those post-retirement honey- dos out of the way first. (Or others).
