FERMI'S QUIET WORDS USHERED IN A NEW ERA

Nuclear Age Was Born 20 Years Ago Today

CHICAGO (AP) — Under the west stands of Stagg Football Field at the University of Chicago, an Italian immigrant stood, hands rapidly manipulating a slide rule, eyes darting from one dial to another.

Then, breaking into a broad grin at the 41 persons gathered about him on the squash court, he said:

"The reaction is self-sustaining."

With these words 20 years ago today, Enrico Fermi announced the birth of the fruitful and frightening nuclear age.

The grandstands have since been torn down, but the site of the experiment is marked by a bronze plaque and many of the scientists involved in the Fermi success returned to Chicago for a reunion. Earlier, they were honored by President Kennedy at the White House.

The Chicago commemoration was one of many events scheduled throughout the world to observe the anniversary.

One of the leading figures in nuclear development, Dr. Edward Teller of the University of California, will be presented the 1962 Enrico Fermi award by President Kennedy in Washington Monday. The award consists of a gold medal and $50,000.

Less than three years after the world's first man-made nuclear chain reaction, Fermi's experiment culminated in the most fearsome weapon ever created by man, the nuclear bomb.

In the intervening years, the principle has been used to drive submarines and ships through the seas, generate electricity, diagnose and treat illness.

Ahead lies a promise of benefit to mankind so vast it staggers the imagination of the layman—and a threat of destruction of such magnitude as to be virtually incomprehensible.

CHICAGO (AP) — Thirty-two scientists, engineers and technicians who ushered in the atomic age assembled at the site of their world-changing feat Saturday to commemorate the 20th anniversary of its birth.

The members of the scientific team that carried out the first self-sustaining nuclear chain reaction on Dec. 2, 1942 held a private reunion. Then they visited the barren, unmonumental site of the original atomic pile on the University of Chicago campus and attended a group luncheon.

Those who expressed their views generally agreed on these points: Atomic energy has advanced swiftly in two decades, both in its peacetime and potential military applications. The future offers a choice of accelerated peaceful advancement or annihilation and the decision has not been made.

Absent from the midst of the pioneer atomic scientists was the man credited more than any other with bringing the atomic age to fruition, Enrico Fermi, the Italian-born scientist who headed the group and planned each step in the first reactor experiment, died of cancer in 1954.

He was represented by his widow at the observance on the Chicago campus. Another top scientist in the pioneer group, Dr. Arthur Holly Compton, also was represented by his widow.

Weather Here Is Still Dismal

Gray, dismal skies blanketed the city Saturday and about 8 p.m., a heavy rainfall was dumped on the mist-soaked county. The rainfall was generally even and measured at .25 of an inch by midnight.

At least one minor accident was blamed on the rain, however, officers said several others were caused partially by poor visibility or slick pavement.

Late Saturday, the U.S. Weather Bureau at Midland reported heavy thundershowers west of the Odessa area, moving northeast, with heavy winds. By 10 p.m., the bureau reported up to half an inch of rain had been dumped on the area covered by its radar.

Pro-sized hail was reported south of Odessa, golf ball-size hail was reported from the Pecos area, and a mixture of snow and sleet was falling near Kent. Highways were becoming slick with sleet in the Alpine and Fort Stockton areas.

The Big Spring forecast called for some rain early Sunday, becoming clear to partly cloudy later Sunday through Monday, with warmer days and cooler nights.

Some rain fell in Howard County, and to the east Friday night.

Reviewing The Big Spring Week

With Joe Pickle

Downtown traffic is thickening as one of the signs of the season. Another sign Friday was the appearance of the traditional Salvation Army Kettles. In case you're subject to being shaken—there are only 19 shopping days before Christmas.

If autumn doesn't hurry and get left, there won't be any leaves left. Vegetation seems to have disappeared of a killing frost and has decided it's time to go to bed for the winter anyhow. Meanwhile most cotton fields are still green and few strippers are at work. Few will hazard a guess as to how the crop will finally turn out.

Cosden Petroleum Corporation held a stockholders meeting here last week to lift a restriction against purchase of its own shares, a move designed to draw in minute lots of stock and thus cut down on cost of servicing stockholders. At the same time directors released the second quarter earnings report, which showed 39 cents per share, up from the 35 cents per share in the first quarter. Gains in the second quarter wiped out an 18 per cent loss in the initial quarter and left the first half of the year virtually even.

Chlorine Gas Fells Many In Canadian City

CORNWALL, Ont. (AP)—Cornwall appeared safely through its chlorine gas crisis Saturday, but a physician said he is worried about possible after effects among people who got just a whiff of the deadly yellow-green fog.

Winds had dissipated the chlorine which, seeping from a leaky cylinder in a railway car, polluted the air over a square mile of this St. Lawrence Seaway city Friday night and forced 103 persons, coughing and vomiting, to seek medical attention.

Of 27 persons hospitalized, all but five were reported in good condition and none was in critical shape.

The sealed-off area was reopened and those evacuated were allowed to return home.

"A lot of people who got a little bit of gas didn't come to the hospitals for treatment," said Dr. Claude Corbell, one of 20 doctors who took part in the emergency work.

He said all doctors in the city will be on the alert for persons reporting respiratory trouble or chest pains.

Hunted Man Is Arrested In Seminole

COOPER, Tex. (AP)—A giant Negro farm laborer charged Oct. 6 with the slaying of a tiny Delta County farm widow has been arrested in Seminole in West Texas.

Delta County Sheriff T. L. Hopold Sammy Norman, 6-foot 1-inch, 230-pounder, had signed a written statement admitting the strangulation of Mrs. Ellen Lane, 80.

Norman was taken to Dallas County jail for safekeeping, pending examining trial in Cooper. Sheriff Hopkins said. The sheriff said the court will be asked to hold Norman without bond.

Mrs. Lane, who lived alone on a farm home on Farm Road 1528 southeast of Cooper, was strangled to death Oct. 14. Her body was found on the morning of Oct. 16 by her daughter, who lives a mile down the road.

Norman had been working in the cotton harvest on the farm of Mrs. Lane's daughter and son-in-law.

Norman turned up missing shortly before the woman's body was found and officers had sought him since that time. Delta County citizens had raised $350 in reward money.

The break in the case came Thursday when Deputy Sheriff L. C. Vick of Seagraves arrested Norman for questioning in connection with a series of forgeries in the Seminole area. He checked wanted posters and found that Norman was wanted in Delta County.

Stealing Food Gets Free Meals

NEWBURGH, N.Y. (AP)—For what he did to two cans of food, Underwood Hall, 52, will get 270 meals.

He stole a can of ham and a can of turkey from a local supermarket, for which City Court Judge Charles Roskoski sentenced him Friday to 90 days in jail, with meals — 270 of them — to be provided.

Norris Clark of Lubbock was chosen first vice president.

Nehru Sharply Rejects Red Cease-Fire Terms

Fighting Could Break Out Again

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Nehru sharply rejected Saturday key points of Red China's terms of settling the Himalayan conflict. He accused the Chinese of using their cease-fire as a cover up for adding huge chunks of borderlands to China.

Nehru's rejection, in a letter to Red Chinese Premier Chou En-lai, came after Peking announced its troops were beginning to withdraw, as promised, from advanced positions on two ends of India's northern frontier. Indian officials could not confirm the withdrawals.

Chou had warned Nehru earlier that if his troops did not withdraw also there could be a resumption of the fighting that had dealt Indian army forces shattering defeats in an offensive launched Oct. 20.

Nehru told Chou he could not accept the Chinese definition of a line behind which the Chinese proposed both sides withdraw 12½ miles, leaving a 25-mile-wide demilitarized strip. This, Nehru said, would leave the Chinese in possession of the fruits of aggression.

Nehru said Peking's three-point proposal of Oct. 24 and the proclamation Nov. 21 for a cease-fire and withdrawals were "clearly aimed at securing physical control of areas which were never under Chinese administrative control either on Nov. 7, 1959, or at any time prior to Sept. 8, 1962."

India has proposed troop withdrawals to lines both Chinese and Indian troops held on Sept. 8 as a basis for starting negotiations on the long-disputed and undefined border areas.

Nehru once more asked Chou to accept the Sept. 8 line "so that the necessary atmosphere for peaceful processes may be created."

The Chinese proposed withdrawing troops to what they consider the line of actual control on Nov. 7, 1959. India does not accept the Peking version of this line.

DIRTY TRICK

Nehru said that in Ladakh on the northwestern border — a key point in the conflict — the Chinese proposed line turns out to be "established by your forces after massive attacks mounted since Oct. 20."

"This is a definite attempt to retain under cover of preliminary cease-fire arrangements physical possession over the area which China claims, and to secure which the massive attack since Oct. 20 was mounted by your forces.

"This we cannot agree to," Nehru added.

Nehru said the same applied to the line set down by the Chinese in the central and northeastern sectors of the border.

Indian troops manning frontier battle positions peered, meanwhile, into the mountain mists and thick jungles for signs of the announced Chinese withdrawals. And on the home front the government announced the arrest of 300 Communist leaders as sympathizers for the Chinese.

WHICH WAY?

Although Indian officials could not confirm any Chinese withdrawals, authoritative sources in Tezpur, near the northeast front, reported some truck movements behind the Chinese lines.

Earlier, an Indian army chief of staff flew over northeastern areas in a helicopter but told New Delhi he was unable to determine whether Peking's announced withdrawal actually had begun.

India announced it would send civilian administrators to the northeast sector to take over areas vacated by the Chinese. But in Ladakh — on the northwestern front — Indian military forces were keeping watch on the situation, a government spokesman said. For the most part, the disputed border in Ladakh is bleak, arid and uninhabited.

IT ALL DEPENDS

The civilians would go into northeast areas depending upon the situation as it develops, an Indian government spokesman said. The Red Chinese had thrust through Indian lines in the northeast in an offensive that brought them to the edge of the plains of Assam, a rich and fertile Indian state.

A snarl that threatened India's agreement with Pakistan for talks on Kashmir apparently has been straightened out by Duncan Sandys, Britain's secretary for Commonwealth relations.

The snarl developed after Nehru told his Parliament he believes a change in the status of Kashmir — now chiefly under Indian control — would be harmful. Pakistan objected to the remark and said it would make future negotiations absolute nonsense if this were India's official attitude.

MATTER CLEARED UP

Sandys, who arranged the Kashmir negotiations, flew to New Delhi for talks with Nehru. Then Nehru issued a statement saying "there has never been any question of preconditions or of any restriction of the scope" of the talks. Pakistani officials said that cleared up the matter.

Sandys worked on the Kashmir issue with Asst. Secretary of State W. Averell Harriman. Harriman returned to Washington and is scheduled to report to President Kennedy Monday. Harriman told reporters in Washington there is now a better chance than there ever has been for a settlement of the 15-year Kashmir dispute.

Authorities Puzzle Over Cause Of Airliner Crash

NEW YORK (AP)—Authorities puzzled Saturday over the cause of an airliner crash that killed 25 at Idlewild Airport while making a fog-shrouded landing described as the type "done every day."

Twenty-six persons escaped with their lives in the flaming crash which occurred as the plane was attempting a landing without the assistance of two ground systems that officials said were inoperative at the time.

One was a Weather Bureau device that measures visibility on the ground and the other was a radar ground system that checks on the accuracy of landing.

The control tower also informed the pilot a lighter marker on the runway was inoperative.

The plane, an Eastern Air Lines DC7 en route from Charlotte, N.C., was on a runway by yards in coming in for a landing Friday night in patchy fog.

NOTHING UNUSUAL
Hyman Modelevsky, air safety investigator for the Civil Aeronautics Board, told newsmen,

"The precision approach radar has been inoperative since Nov. 13 while control tower facilities have been undergoing renovation. This time of the year was chosen for the change over because the weather usually is clear."

Some passengers said the pilot had appeared dubious about the fog. They said he told them on the inter-communications system that he might land at Philadelphia but that he later said: "There is a little hole. I think we can make it."

Airport tower controllers saw the plane about a mile from the runway. Oscar Baker, eastern regional assistant administrator of the Federal Aviation Agency, told newsmen,

"From this point on, because of intervening ground fog, tower personnel were not able to see the aircraft," he said. "At approximately touchdown time, the tower saw an orange glow from the direction of runway 4-R."

"NEAR MISS"
Visible evidence suggested a "near miss" landing in dense fog. The four-engine, propeller-driven craft slammed to the ground only yards from the runway, and burst into flames. Charred wreckage on the sandy soil formed a line parallel to the concrete strip.

FINAL RUN FOR H. O. PARRY
Senior conductor for T&P Railroad

H. O. Parry Makes Final Official Run

By SAM BLACKBURN

A chubby little man, his rosy face crowned in white hair, stepped into the doorway of a chaircar on T&P Train No. 21 at 4 p.m. Friday and waved an arm, heavy with gold service stripes, at a throng of friends and well-wishers.

He signalled the conductor to move out and H. O. Parry, the oldest conductor service wise, on the roster of the Texas and Pacific railroad, was on his final official run.

When he reached El Paso Friday night, and climbed down off the train, to be greeted by his wife, Parry was terminating 51 years of continuous service for the T&P and 57 years of continuous railroading in all.

Parry retired from the service effective Friday and reluctantly agreed that it was probably the best thing for him to do.

"I've enjoyed every minute of my work with the road," he mused. "I've made a lot of friends."

What does he intend to do? "Well, first of all I will cut the grass," he said. The grass is at his home at 1134 E. River Street in El Paso where he and his wife live. Then, the Parrys will go to Mississippi for a visit with their son, H. O. Parry Jr., who is in the oil business. Back home again, Parry plans to tinker around in his wood-working shop and get in a lot of fishing at Elephant Butte Dam.

Parry was born in Baird, in 1889. In 1905, at the age of 15 years, he took a job as call boy with the El Paso & Southwestern railroad. Five years later he became a brakeman and in 1911, joined the T&P as a switchman.

In 1913, he was made a freight conductor and in 1937 conductor of the west run of Train No. 21 from Big Spring to El Paso. L. R. Reid, El Paso, his brakeman, murmured half to himself, "We're sure gonna miss that ol' boy. He's one of the best."

A. J. Cain, the conductor who brought No. 21 to Big Spring, shook hands with Parry, and turned the train over to the retiring official.

Parry, who had been smiling and happy, seemed to lose some of his happiness as he slowly climbed up the steps to the car landing.

He seemed suddenly to realize that he was completing Friday a job he had been following with zest for more than half a century.

Officers Still Work On Death Of Hicks

First anniversary of the date on which Travis R. Hicks was last seen alive fell last week and found the investigation into his murder steadily, if quietly, pushing ahead.

The badly decayed body of Hicks, an itinerant electrician, was found in a field a short distance north of IS 20 Sept. 1. The body was behind a towering clump of grass and there was a bullet hole in the skull. The field is just across the line in Martin County.

Dan Saunders, Martin County sheriff, Bobby West, investigator for the district attorney's office, and John Wood, Texas Ranger, have been working steadily on the case since the finding of the body.

They have established that no one, so far located, saw Hicks after Nov. 25, 1961. On that date, West points out, Hicks is known to have cashed a pay check he picked up earlier in the day from Lacy Electric Company in Big Spring, for whom he had been working. He cashed the check as he had cashed another check a few days previously at Gibson Discount Center.

He was living at a rooming house on East Second Street but he did not check out from that address. He just vanished from sight and was not again heard of until the discovery of the bullet-pierced body in the Martin County field nearly a year later.

Officers said they have been able to add a few links to the chain almost every week since the finding of Hicks' body. Last week, they believe they added another link which could, perhaps, be most important later on.

Many persons have been interrogated by the three officers since they began their investigation. One who has been subjected to repeated questioning is a convict serving a sentence in the state penitentiary. He was returned to Martin County early in the investigation and more recently was brought to Big Spring. He is held now in the Howard County jail.

Despite the slow progress, the investigators have not become discouraged. Sooner or later, they say, they will come across some person or some fact which will give them a major lead and guide them to the man or men who killed the gregarious Hicks.

Meantime, despite the contrary holdings of a pathologist who examined Hicks' body, Saunders, West and Wood are convinced that Hicks was alive Nov. 25 and was dead in the lonely field not more

"THE WORD WAS GOD"

By T. H. Tarbet, Prescher
Church of Christ, 2800 West Highway 80
P.O. Box 1383

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God" (Jno. 1:1).

The Watchtower tract under review, seeks to weaken the above passage on the deity of Jesus. It seeks to create confusion by introducing 17 translations of Jno. 1:1. This sounds scholarly. It leaves the impression that the passage is of doubtful meaning.

Let us take a closer look at these translations. Ten establish the deity of Jesus: 5 of them saying the Word is God, the other 5 saying the Word is divine (which means the same).

Woman Who Tried Seceding Farm Is Dead

GLENDAL, Calif. (AP)—The ruler of the little land of Enei, the South Texas farm that never quite seceded from the Union, died Saturday of cancer.

Mrs. Irene Pearl Cliett, 63, defied federal court and government efforts to take 350 acres of her 700-acre Waller County farm for a while in 1958 before the majesty of the law finally prevailed.

Sometimes she shouldered a rifle against prying U. S. marshals, but she never wounded anyone.

During the running battle with the courts, Mrs. Cliett and her sister, Mrs. Lucy Mayberry, declared the farm a separate nation and said they would seek United Nations membership. They named it Enei, which is Irene spelled backwards.

A federal judge in Houston, learning that Mrs. Cliett had cancer, probated a jail term assessed for contempt of court.

Mrs. Cliett was moved to a convalescent home here from a Hollywood hospital a month ago. She defended her farm with a gun, defying a deputy U. S. Marshal who tried to serve her with a court order declaring half of her spread didn't legally belong to her.

Mrs. Cliett called Enei's capital Lraep—her other given name, spelled backwards.

After nearly two weeks of playing hide-and-seek with deputy marshals, Mrs. Cliett finally surrendered at Houston and accepted service of the papers, thereby finally losing her claim to the 350-acre parcel.

She had fought to hold on to it for 24 years. The dispute began when a federal court ruled in 1934 that the 350 acres belonged to heirs of a friend.

Mrs. Mayberry said that services for her sister are pending.

Choir Sings For ABClub

The Howard County Junior College choral group, directed by Ira Shantz, paid a return visit to the American Business Club Friday and sang several numbers. Jack Hendrix provided musical accompaniment at the piano.

The service organization's annual Christmas party will take place at the Big Spring Country Club on the night of Dec. 15, it was announced. A meal will be served at 7:30 p.m. while dancing will get under way at 9 p.m.

The club will again handle sale of concessions at home basketball games of the Howard County Junior College Jayhawks. The Hawks play their home opener against Texas-Western College's freshmen Tuesday night.

The ABClub has authorized a donation of $105 to the Volunteer Council at the Big Spring State hospital to help defray expenses of a Christmas party for the patients. In addition, the organization will supply the manpower to help conduct the party in one of the hospital's wards.

The door prize of $4 was awarded to W. H. (Bill) Reid. Wives of club members were luncheon guests.

Unitarians Meet

All interested persons are invited to attend the meeting of the Unitarian Fellowship, which meets in the YMCA building at 8 p.m. today. Jo Betty Donald is chairman of the organization.

Vital Statistics

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP)—In his weekly news letter to constituents, Gov. John Daiton of Missouri listed some causes of death, as reported to the state vital statistics bureau.

They included: "Don't no (sic). Died without the aid of a physician."

"Died suddenly, nothing serious."

"Deceased died from blood poison, caused by a broken ankle, which is remarkable, as his automobile struck him between the lamp and the radiator."

'Columbus' Ship On Short Rations

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—Becalmed, long overdue and nearly 300 miles off course, Nina II was under strict rationing Saturday as its nine-man crew struggled to repeat Columbus' voyage of discovery to the New World.

A U.S. Navy pilot who sighted the reproduction of Columbus' third caravel 750 miles east-northeast of Puerto Rico Friday said the crew reported all was well aboard but "on strict rations, with water and food for another 20 days."

At sea since Aug. 24, the Nina II had been the object of a wide-spread search since Sunday. Faithful to the 15th Century original, the Nina II had no radio, engine or other modern equipment aboard. Her course was set with ancient instruments for the journey from Spain for Columbus' landfall in the Bahamas.

The Nina left the Canary Islands Oct. 10.

WORK HAS STARTED
... on the first leg of IS 20 bypass

Big Expenditures Scheduled Here For Highway Work

By SAM BLACKBURN
More than $4,500,000 in state and federal highway construction will be under way in Howard County in 1963.

The Texas Highway Commission on Dec. 11 will award contract for the west leg of the IS 20 bypass around Big Spring — a sister project to the east leg which is already under construction. In January, two other major projects will be initiated — resurfacing US 87 from the south edge of town to the northern city limits and rebuilding Third and Fourth Streets between Union and Tulane Streets.

Joe Smoot, resident engineer for the state highway department, pointed out that not all of these road jobs will be completed in 1963 but that all will be in the process of completion during the year.

FIRST PROJECT

Initial item on the program is the 2.9 mile east leg of IS 20 bypass which is already under way. This job, which begins near the FM 700 intersection east of town on IS 20, will extend to a point 4 of a mile east on US 87. M. C. Winters, Jr., Johnson City, has this contract. The cost of this job is $2,140,000. He has 360 working days to complete it and has been engaged in the project about a month.

The state highway commission will open bids for the west leg of the bypass Dec. 11. This segment will extend from 4 of a mile east of US 87 4.3 miles to a point where it reintersects IS 20. Its estimated cost will be around $3,000,000.

These two jobs call for major structural building — an underpass on SH 350 on the east leg, an underpass on US 87 at Gregg street, and overpasses across the Andrews highway and the T&P tracks before the road rejoins the regular route of IS 20 to the west.

TWO HOUSES

Also included in the project to be awarded Dec. 11 will be the construction of two residences and an annex to the present office building of the U.S. Experiment Station north of town. The right of way for the IS 20 bypass absorbs two residences presently on the property.

One of the major road projects in the city is the crossing over the T&P railroad on Gregg. Slated for next year, (contract to be awarded probably in August, 1963) will be the construction of a new overpass to replace the present crossing. Estimated cost of this project will be $750,000. Plans call for the overpass construction to be handled in such a way as to leave the present crossing in service.

There is little likelihood of this job being completed in 1963 but the state plans to have it well under way before the year ends. One development which will follow when this new crossing has been completed will be a no parking rule on US 87 from the north city limits to the south edge of town. This stipulation was agreed upon with the city when the state announced it would replace the present overpass on this busy highway.

EXTENSION

Another major project set up for 1963 will be building a northern extension of FM 700 from IS 20 to SH 350 — a distance of 3.9 miles. Estimated cost of this job is $430,000. Contract should be let in mid-summer.

At the same contract letting, the state proposes to rebuild FM 669 (Gail Road) for a distance of 8.1 miles. This calls for a complete resurfacing job and general improvement program badly needed on this busy thoroughfare. This job will cost $105,000.

The intersection of FM 700 north at SH 350 will be in the proximity of the point where the Gail Road leaves the state highway. The two jobs can be well worked as one unit.

Of more immediate character are two improvement projects

Whitney's Program Still Going Strong

COLLEGE STATION — About eight years ago, a rangy, blond six-footer from Big Spring had an idea. Why not bring men who deal daily with national and international issues to the Southwest for a conference?

Herbert Ward (Bud) Whitney, then in his third year of a five-year two-degree course at Texas A&M, today is credited with starting the Student Conference on National Affairs.

Since then Whitney has graduated, but the program he started in 1955 is nationally recognized today.

Students from 75 colleges and universities will meet at Texas A&M Dec. 12-15 to argue, dispute and argue some more on world affairs.

The 150 delegates will listen, too. They will hear men like Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and other key leaders of international prominence discuss "Sources of World Tension."

No attempt is made by the students at the student-run, student-sponsored program to solve controversies of world importance. Rather, an attempt is made to grasp the complexity of the problems.

Like a student said last year at the close of the four-day conference, "I haven't changed my mind. I do, however, respect the other fellow's views more."

The conference was founded on the belief that student delegates chosen will be among the future leaders in public affairs, and that the meeting will have a long-range effect of promoting an enlightened, responsible citizenship through free expression.

Today's delegates are student leaders chosen by presidents of the various colleges of Canada, Mexico and the United States.

Whitney and a dozen classmates were able to raise $9,000 from the state's leading foundations and businessmen. The money was used to pay partial expenses of delegates and speakers.

The budget today has grown to $18,000, given by more than 100 firms and business establishments in Texas and Mexico. Although students organize the conference, much of its success must be attributed to men like Rep. Olin E. Teague of the Sixth District of Texas and J. Wayne Stark, SPCA advisor and Memorial Student Center.

Congressman Teague is instrumental in securing top speakers, and the students turn to Stark, among other faculty advisors, when things go wrong.

Speakers this year include: Vice President Johnson, Gen. Frederic H. Smith, retired U.S. Air Force

vice chief of staff; James J. Wadsworth, former ambassador to the United Nations; Felix McKnight, executive editor of the Dallas Times-Herald, and former president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors; Mason Willich, member of the U.S. delegation to the 18-nation disarmament talks in Geneva and advisor to the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

Whitney now is a businessman in Fort Worth, representing IBM, but his idea of the conference continues to grow.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — A spokesman says actor-producer Dick Powell will be released from St. John's Hospital, Santa Monica, by Monday. He is suffering from what was described as a muscle spasm due to a cold.

Powell, 56, was hospitalized Nov. 27. Powell is suffering from cancer, but aides said his current hospital stay had nothing to do with this.

Harriman Is Back From Indian Mission

WASHINGTON (AP)—Asst. Sec. of State W. Averell Harriman returned home Saturday to report to President Kennedy on India's military needs to repel Chinese Communist intruders and her willingness to reach a settlement with Pakistan on disputed Kashmir.

High U.S. sources said Harriman made clear to both Prime Minister Nehru and Pakistan President Ayub Khan that they must get together to discuss the Kashmir question if they want continued Western help.

On his arrival at Andrews Air Force Base with a 30-man presidential mission, Harriman told newsmen he had heard no suggestion of any requirement for U.S. troops for the Himalayan border fight.

He said the Indians look upon their problem with Communist China as a long-term affair. "This attack is on the Indian way of life and will need a military build-up to resist," said the veteran troubleshooter.

Harriman said he could not tell how sincere the Chinese Communists are about their cease-fire and withdrawal from the fighting fronts, scheduled to take place Saturday.

The White House announced Harriman will see Kennedy Monday.

Harriman would not say he was optimistic on a Kashmir settlement, but declared "there is a better chance than there ever has been before" to end the dispute.

Kashmir, which has a predominantly Moslem population, has been a source of tensions between India and Pakistan since the two nations were carved out of British India in 1947. Fighting broke out in Kashmir when the Hindu ruling clique acceded to India.

The United Nations established a truce line, which leaves India holding the more important part of Kashmir. The U.N. agreement called for a plebiscite, but it has never been held.

Ike Denies Ever Saying Nixon Not Presidential Timber

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower in an interview at his vacation cottage here, denied that he ever said former Vice President Richard M. Nixon is not presidential timber.

He said Nixon is not dead politically despite his defeat last month for the California governorship.

Eisenhower commented that he may have said in 1956 that Nixon was not ready for the presidency at that time. But he declared emphatically that he never said Nixon was not presidential timber.

The former president declined to name his choice for the 1964 Republican presidential nomination. But he said a candidate who can speak out on specific issues and avoid liberal and conservative labels can win two years from now.

These and other opinions were expressed in an interview with Louis Harris, editor of the Augusta Chronicle, and Carol Daddisman, Chronicle editorial writer.

Progress Made On El Chamizal

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexican sources say progress is being made toward settling the dispute over El Chamizal—a disputed strip of land in Texas.

Negotiators were reported to have reached a conclusion that an exchange of land is the best solution. Mexico claims the strip of land because a sudden change in the course of the Rio Grande cut it off from Mexico. Reports say Mexico would get the El Chamizal section of El Paso, and El Paso in return would get a section of Mexican land which protrudes into the city like a finger.

Hard Day's Work

Members of Scout Troop 4 and Cub Pack 137 pitched in to collect toys and bottles Saturday, to give the firemen an assist in the annual Christmas collection. The bottles will be converted to cash to help needy families. Firemen refurbish the toys which are given by the Salvation Army to needy children at Christmas time.

Stock Market Shows Biggest Monthly Advance In Many Years

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market carved out its biggest monthly advance of many years in November.

As measured by the market averages, the straight-line rise in prices exceeded 10 per cent. Although statistics on a monthly basis are hard to come by, veteran market technicians were unable to recall any single month that produced a comparable gain.

At the close Friday, prices had been restored to the levels of mid-May, a few weeks before the tumble which turned out to be the worst since the crash of 1929. The market closed November with five straight weeks on the upside although last week's gain was about the smallest.

The analysts had no trouble in listing the reasons for the spectacular performance even though no one had anticipated it. Several of the major factors were the disappearance of talk about a recession and emergence of optimistic predictions for the economy, the strong and successful stand of the United States in the Cuban crisis and the reappearance of the general public in the marketplace.

The statistics fail to tell the entire picture because comparisons are not available. But The Associated Press average of 60 stocks vaulted 22.4 points, from 218 to 240.4. The best previous monthly advance of the year was 10.5 points in July.

The best of 1961 and recent years was almost 14 points in January 1961. In contrast, October's gain this year was just over 3 points.

The Dow Jones industrial average surged through not only the 600 but also the 650 level, closing a hair below the latter at 649.30 after two sessions above it. The November advance was 59.53 points from 589.77. Few market observers had figured either 600 or 650 level would be crossed this year. The October industrial average jumped 5.74 points to 62.26 from 56.52.

Based on the AP average, there were 14 days of advance against 6 of decline.

Volume for last week totaled 27,599,910 shares, compared with 18,471,945 the previous week. Daily average volume reached 5.5 million, compared with 4.6 million.

The most active issues on the New York Stock Exchange were General Dynamics, up 3/4 at 31 1/2 on 536,900 shares; Sperry Rand up 1 1/2 at 14 1/2 on 454,500 shares and Chrysler unchanged at 70 1/2 on 251,200.

Stewardess Ran, But Came Back To Aid Passengers

NEW YORK (AP)—Stewardess Helen Fournier, 21, ran away from the burning wreckage of a crashed Eastern Air Lines plane at fog-shrouded Idlewild Airport—and then ran back.

"I ran and I ran," the Queens girl said. "Then I stopped and said, 'No, I can't do this. I must help them.'"

Miss Fournier had done all she could before she left the plane.

"We kept pushing passengers out," she said from her hospital bed. "First one and then another one. We pushed them all out. When everyone was out that I could see, I jumped to the ground."

That's when she ran—and returned to help again.

"One man was on fire," she said. "His whole body was burning. I put him—the fire-out."

Leonard Clementi, of Huntington, N.Y., helped her.

"I took off my tie and applied a very crude tourniquet to a man's injured arm," Clementi said. "The hostess and I dragged him as far away from the plane as possible."

The other stewardess in the crew, Patricia J. Richards, 22, also of Queens, said she was alive because she had gone to the rear lounge of the plane "to count my liquor money." Drinks are sold on some flights.

She said she had been in the forward section of the plane just before.

"I had just gotten into my seat," she said, "and put my seat-belt partially on when we got down. There was a crash and then a fire. It seemed as though a fire were coming from the galley forward. It was all flames."

Both stewardesses were reported in good condition in Peninsular General Hospital, Rockaway Beach, Queens.

Moral: Stand Still And Get Pinched

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—An Atlanta got pinched, the Atlanta Journal reports, because of sartorial impeccability—and immobility.

He was standing in a crowded store when a woman shopper examined the texture of his sweater. The woman let out a squeal when he moved and she realized he was not a manikin.

Trusty Captured

HUNTSVILLE (AP)—William David Tinney, 32-year-old trusty serving a 25-year sentence from Dallas, was captured east of Huntsville Friday only hours after his escape. He was working on a job outside prison walls when he left.

Texas Promised Review Of Case

MONTERREY (AP)—A Texas under death sentence in Mexico is promised a review of his case by Dec. 13.

Dykes Aske Simmons of Fort Worth, the first U.S. citizen ever sentenced to death in Mexico, had expected his freedom by now after a high court held testimony against him in a triple-slaying trial was illegal. But legal papers were misplaced and the delay set in.

Burns Has 41 Cases On County Criminal Docket

Forty-one criminal cases have been set down for trial at a jury docket to open in Howard County Court Dec. 11. Wayne Burns, county attorney, said that he is notifying the defendants and has hopes the week may see most of the cases resolved.

"If we can get rid of these," said Burns, "we will have our county criminal docket nearly current. The only exception is a number of worthless check cases which are on file and in which the defendants have not been apprehended. It is doubtful if we can ever try these cases."

Burns said the 41 cases, which include 19 DWI charges, will be called at 1:30 p.m. Dec. 10. The jury panel, which was drawn from the wheel Tuesday, will report at 9 a.m. Dec. 11.

In addition to the 19 DWI complaints set for trial Burns said the docket includes seven cases alleging illegal possession of weapons; six charging transportation of liquor; two each for driving with suspended drivers licenses and for possession of barbiturates; one shop-lifting, (with three persons cited as defendants); two for sale of liquor in a wet area without license and two for possession of liquor for sale in wet area without license.

There are some of the defendants who have more than one case pending against them on the docket.

DWI cases set for trial: Elton B. Dozier, Granville T. Miller, Louis C. Flores, Eddie Anderson, Jose A. Mata, Jerry Floyd King, Kenneth D. Foster, Cecil E. Spears, Claude Ramirez, Jerry Arrick, Billy G. Meek, Margarito Rivera, Hector Sanchez, Ruth White (two cases), McAllyna Edmiston, Maynard Bishkin, Fred Constancio Jr., and Jimmy Whitaker.

Carrying arms (unlawful possession of prohibited weapons): Louis Flores, Arvel Westbrook, Lorenzo Lopez, Pedro Contreras, Alexander Cevallos, Jerry F. King and Ray Leos.

Willie Miles and James Taylor Jr.

Other cases and the defendants: Driving with drivers license suspended, Donald Wayne Cathey and Elton D. Crutcher; possession of barbiturates, Albert Rodriguez and Trinidad Arsiaga; shoplifting, Celestine Mitchell, Greta Mitchell and Eugene Lawler; sale of liquor without license in wet area, Wilborn Davis and Willie B. Hill; possession of liquor for sale in wet area without license, Hal Mitten and Benito Lopez.

Scientist Wants Others To Share Cost Of Space

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—Other nations should bear a larger share of space exploration efforts, says Frederick Seitz, president of the National Academy of Sciences.

This would solve "a big problem for us today—whether the attention being given to aerospace in America is draining too much manpower from the other sciences," he told newsmen at an academy meeting.

Seitz, a University of Illinois physics professor, said he does not consider America's space program a waste of talent.

"In fact, science's greatest challenge—that of determining whether there is life in outer space—may be solved within 10 years," he said.

West Texans Plan Another Market Development Tour

Around 200 West Texans interested in livestock feeding and grain market development will spend the week of Feb. 17-23 touring the Arizona-California area in a special railway tour sponsored by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

Dr. W. L. Stangel, Lubbock, Dean Emeritus of Texas Tech and chairman of the WTCC livestock feeding committee, announced the Livestock Feeding and Grain Market Development tour this week. The tour is held each year in cooperation with the Grain Sorghum Producers' Association of Amarillo, Texas Tech, and Texas A&M College.

Stangel said the tour would interest bankers and financiers, grain producers, grain and feed dealers, livestock feeders and breeders, farmers, and many others in the livestock and grain business. He said about 30 banks were represented last year.

Reservations will be limited to 200, and the Santa Fe Railroad has announced that cars would originate at Fort Worth, Lubbock, Amarillo and Clovis. For those interested, the price is $245, except for those in the Fort Worth-Dallas area who pay an extra $10. Reservations may be made by writing the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Box 1561, Abilene, and enclosing a check for the cost. The special will be all-Pullman.

Among the highlights of the trip will be visits to livestock feeding facilities in Arizona and California, a visit to the University of

Race And Sex Not Sociable

NEW YORK (AP)—The 1963 Social Register has dropped the names of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller's daughter and her husband, a young minister who was arrested on a Freedom Ride crusade.

Also dropped was Countess Christina Paolozzi, a young beauty who posed nude for a fashion magazine photograph.

No reason was given for the absence from the listings of the former Ann C. Rockefeller and her husband, the Rev. Robert L. Pierson, or of the countess.

The Rev. Mr. Pierson was jailed in Jackson, Miss., for breach of the peace in a rider demonstration.

DEAR ABBY

A Father's Attitude

DEAR ABBY: Not because she's my daughter, but Joyce is an exceptionally beautiful 16-year-old. My problem is with her father. He is always picking on her. If she gets ready to go out in a hurry and leaves her cosmetics or curlers on the bathroom sink, he will pitch everything in the waste basket. (I retrieve it all later.) He is always finding fault with the boys she goes with, and they are certainly nice young men. He inspects her room, and if it isn't in perfect condition he calls her sloppy and lazy. This has started only recently. How can I make him realize that she's a good girl and he should leave her alone?

TROUBLED MOTHER: DEAR MOTHER: First, your husband should realize what HIS problem is. He doesn't like to see his "little girl" grow up. His attitude is common and it will take some uncommon diplomacy on your part to make him face the facts and behave accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: There is an old bag who works with us. She's been divorced a couple of times and is now single. She spends her money entertaining the young men who work with her. She is old enough to be their mother. She isn't smart enough to realize that the only reason they bother with her is because she picks up the tab. It bothers us to see this woman taken for a fool. Shouldn't someone put her wise? Or should we let her go on being a sucker? CO-WORKERS: DEAR CO-WORKERS: Your concern brings a lump to my throat. If the woman enjoys herself, and the young men enjoy themselves, where's the harm? She has a right to spend her money the way she wants to. I think you have "nose" trouble.

DEAR ABBY: I have been going with a man whose wife died a year ago. He still wears his wedding band on his left hand. Is there some way to ask him to take it off entirely or to wear it on his other hand, without being too forward? I am very much interested in him.

INTERESTED: DEAR INTERESTED: Make no mention of it. He will take the ring off, or change it to his other hand, when he feels like it. But don't get your hopes up. That may be never.

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "BROKENHEARTED" (the 15-year-old boy whose parents kept him awake with their fighting) struck close to home with me. Many times I'd go to school after being up half the night trying to keep my parents from inflicting physical harm on one another. I listened to threats and accusations no child should ever be forced to hear. The only consolation I can offer is that we sometimes profit more from a bad example than a good one. I learned what qualities to look for in a mate. Kindness, understanding and honesty. My children will never have to go through what I did.

BEEN THROUGH IT: What's on your mind? For a personal reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Abby, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif. For Abby's booklet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding," send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Fog Keeping Pickers Out Of Cotton Fields

Only 4,946 bales of the 1962 Howard County cotton have been picked so far, a check of the county's gins Friday afternoon revealed. The estimated total crop is 25,800 bales which would indicate that the picking has not stepped up materially in the past week.

The weather had not been at all good for picking or stripping. Heavy fogs, soaking wet, have held the fields almost entirely and have left the pickers out until the day was nearly gone and strippers have had to stand idle for the most part.

In Glasscock County, it is estimated less than 50 bales of unginned 1962 cotton are still in the fields. The gins have already handled 9,150 of an estimated 9,200 bale crop.

Martin County has about 54 per cent of its total crop ginned, according to the Texas Employment Service office report. Ginnings through Saturday had hit 20,734. The new estimate on Martin County crop has been set at 38,000.

Book Of Courthouse Pictures Published

BROWNWOOD — "Courthouses of Texas," a 260-page book showing photographs of the courthouses in the 254 counties of the state, has just been published here.

Photographs of all the courthouses were made over a five-year period by Clark Coursey, former Brownwood newspaper publisher. Coursey did not keep a record of the miles traveled to snap pictures of the 254 courthouses, but said it totaled many thousands. The book is thought to be the first complete collection of courthouse pictures in the history of the state.

Ordination Services Held

Rev. Gayland Pool was elevated to the priesthood in ceremonies at St. Mary's Episcopal Church here Friday evening, the first such rites ever held locally. He was to mark his first service this morning. Participating in the services were, from left, Rev. Thomas R. Miller, St. Christopher's in Lubbock; Episcopal Bishop George H. Quarterman, Amarillo; Rev. Pool; and Rev. Donald Hungerford, rector of St. Mary's parish.

Ex-Sen. O'Mahoney Dies At Age Of 78

WASHINGTON (AP)—Former Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney of Wyoming, a strong foe of monopoly in business, died Saturday at the age of 78.

Officials at the U.S. Naval Hospital in Bethesda, Md., declined to give the cause of death. A heart attack in 1959 left him partially paralyzed and a secretary said he entered the hospital 19 days ago for treatment of a heart ailment.

A staunch New Deal and Fair Deal Democrat for the most part, O'Mahoney served in the Senate from his appointment late in 1933 until his retirement in 1960, except for a two-year span from 1952-54.

He was the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt's Far West campaign manager in the 1932 presidential election and served most of 1933 as first assistant postmaster general.

But that wasn't his first tour of duty in Washington. In 1917, after 10 years on newspapers in Boulder, Colo., and Cheyenne, Wyo., he was called to the capital to be secretary to the late Sen. John B. Kendrick, his employer on the Cheyenne State Leader.

While here, O'Mahoney won a law degree at night and then returned to Cheyenne to practice. He plunged into Democratic politics running for the Senate unsuccessfully in 1924 on the slogan, "A new day and a new deal."

When Kendrick died, O'Mahoney was appointed to succeed his former boss. An excellent speaker with a flair for conciliation, he quickly moved to the front ranks of the Senate's New Deal Democrats.

However, he opposed Roosevelt's proposal to increase the size of the Supreme Court in 1937, and also fought parts of the reciprocal trade act and anti-poll tax proposals.

In 1938 came his biggest job: chairman of a 12-man temporary National Economic Committee formed to delve deeply into the causes and aftermath of the Depression of the 1930s.

Despite criticism from some areas of business, his handling of the three-year investigation was lauded for its fairness and objectivity.

After the study, O'Mahoney proposed wide-ranging economic reforms, including national chartering for businesses doing a nationwide business, encouragement of new and small businesses, and more effective enforcement of anti-trust laws.

As a Westerner, he fought hard for land reclamation and fuels development. The 11th child of immigrant Irish parents, he was born in Chelsea, Mass. He attended Columbia College in New York before heading West.

He married Agnes Veronica O'Leary of Massachusetts in 1913, and is survived by her. They had no children but raised three nephews.

Chavez' term in the Senate is up Jan. 1, 1965. A senator will be elected in November 1964. The last Republican senator to serve from New Mexico was Bronson Cutting, who died in a 1935 plane crash. Chavez succeeded him by appointment, and won re-election.

Retail Sales Rise Briskly

AUSTIN (AP) — October retail sales in Texas rose briskly from September sparked by a big surge in auto sales, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

Total October sales were about $1 billion, the bureau said.

Sales of durable goods rose 27 per cent in October while cumulative sales were up 20 per cent for the year, the bureau reported.

Sales of automotive stores rose 45 per cent, the bureau said, instead of the usual 5 per cent hike in October. The increase was due to a 50 per cent increase in the sales of automobiles. New and used car sales ran 32 per cent ahead of the same month last year.

"The tremendous demand for 1963 models is pushing the entire economy upward as orders are placed for more steel, glass, aluminum, tires and other components," the bureau reported.

"This one factor is playing a significant part in moderating fears of a recession in 1963."

October sales of nondurable goods were at about the September level, but showed a 3 per cent rise over the year from the same period in 1961, the bureau said.

That Empty Hold Sounds Fishy

VERACRUZ, Mexico (AP) — A Russian fishing trawler pulled into port here, saying it needed water and stores. It was the second Russian trawler to stop here in several weeks, and another is due today.

Capt. U. D. Lidanov of the visiting vessel said his trawler had exhausted its sea stores since leaving Havana Oct. 7 to fish in the Gulf of Mexico. When Mexican naval authorities found no fish in the trawler's freezing compartments, Lidanov said: "We were not lucky this time."

Good Answer

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Postmaster William C. Blair has urged residents to clean snow and ice off their sidewalks, steps and porches for the comfort and safety of postmen.

Last week he got some replies including:

"If the postman can walk across our grass and flowers all summer long, why can't he walk across our snow in the winter?"

Under Study

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Mexican Chamber of Deputies has taken under study a proposal by members of the Party of National Action that a study be made of the federal government's business operations. The party said recent growth of government-backed business operations in size and number might be robbing Congress of its power to control them.

THE WEEK

announced $59,000 had been set aside for resurfacing of US 87 through Big Spring during the next year. Subsequent reports set up the Gregg Street overpass and the FM 700 extension to the Snyder highway for starting during 1963.

The week was not without its tragedy, for 6-year-old Cesarito Ontiveros Jr., a deaf mute, was fatally injured when struck by a car as he was crossing a street. This raises the traffic toll inside the city limits to 4 for this year, perhaps the worst on record.

Reports reaching officers indicate that the amount of vandalism is on the increase. We can't understand it because most vandalism is utterly senseless.

A green light has been given for a stop light at Marcy Drive and Birdwell Lane. There have been several collisions at this point, and considering the bad terrain on the south side of this intersection, it's a wonder there haven't been more, including fatalities. This light may slow the flow on Marcy, but it will be worth it.

The police department and the 331st FIS have booked a football game (tackle and everything) for Dec. 7 to benefit the crippled children's fund. It may be we'll need another to benefit the crippled players fund.

Most Of Nation Enjoys Warm, Sunny Weather

By The Associated Press
From Maine to the Mississippi River, where the start of December usually brings out the snow shovels, golfers trudged the links Saturday, and some even perspired.

Mild temperatures and sunny skies dominated the scene. There were waiting lines at some Wisconsin golf courses as temperatures pushed near 60. The same was true as the mercury rose into the 60's in such metropolitan centers as New York, Boston, Washington, St. Louis, Chicago and Kansas City.

In Minneapolis-St. Paul, temperatures neared the middle 50s, highest since 51 in 1912. It delighted the tennis and golf bugs, but disappointed spear fishermen who didn't have ice to open their season.

Bright but crisp weather covered the Rockies and far Southwest, while light rains fell across Central Texas and into parts of New Mexico and Arizona. They were expected to spread toward Missouri and Arkansas.

In the Far West, temperatures ranged from the low 60's in southern California to the low 40's in the Northwest. Pleasant weather was expected to continue through Sunday in the eastern third of the nation, the

South Vietnamese Social Experiment Bogs Down

By PETER ARNETT

BEN TUONG, South Viet Nam (AP)—A South Vietnamese social experiment called Operation Sunrise has bogged down in Communist territory where it was meant to do the most good.

The U.S. government provided most of the cash for the project. Planners envisaged it as the first move in a bold venture to separate peasants from Communists and win allegiance with social advances, basic democracy and security from guerrilla reprisals.

They picked one of the most insecure areas in South Viet Nam to launch the scheme—the rubber plantation area about 40 miles north of Saigon which is the main guerrilla route from the Ho Chi Minh trail to notorious "D Zone."

Operation Sunrise started with the full glare of publicity in this old village last March. After eight months, four of a planned total of 14 protected hamlets have been built.

Each is packed with regular troops who walk in wariness of a population that shows little sign of swinging its allegiance from the Communists who once dominated their lives, to the government that now does.

Sunrise, and the widespread strategic hamlet campaign that has since grown from it, were conceived from the hope that if you show people you like them, they will like you.

Government troops rounded up 3,000 people, many of them forcibly, put them in heavily defended hamlets and proceeded to give them new homes, medical care and opportunities to start new lives.

Troops were to provide security until the people could defend themselves. Intense government civic action programs were aimed at getting them in a mood to help themselves.

The hamlets were to be an inspiration to peasants to join up with the government.

The other aspect of the program was to cut off Communist supplies normally taken from the villagers; and to secure the guerrilla corridor that runs through the area.

From the beginning, Sunrise encountered problems. Many husbands and sons escaped the government net and stayed with the Communists.

The 902 people who live in Ben Tuong include 80 men of 18-45, and 180 women in this age group—the key one for guerrilla recruitment.

The proportion of men to women in the other three villages is about the same. The populations have remained virtually the same since they were established. Few people have deserted the villages, even though they can slip away from the fields if they want to.

An American adviser suggested that some women and children have not done this because their guerrilla husbands are free of the responsibility of taking care of the families.

The government has made no progress in establishing self-defense corps and Civil Guard squads in the area, a necessary part of the strategic hamlet plan. Villagers have been given military training, but there are no plans to arm them in the near future.

Security in each village is maintained by at least one regular army company plus a Civil Guard company recruited well outside the region.

American military officials and aid advisers in Saigon say Sunrise was established in an area too deeply in the hands of the Communists.

The original Sunrise project is viewed as a pioneer effort rather than a major blunder. The cost has been written into the vastly more expensive schemes now in progress in several big areas.

Temptation Led Only To Trouble

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP)—A hard-working gardener on the estate of a Skokie, Ill., textile magnate found $50,000 in stolen securities—and temptation beckoned.

It led to nothing but trouble. Henry J. Renaldo lost most of the money by gambling; a federal jury convicted him; his wife told him they were through. Saturday, came the end of the trail—death by a suicidal pistol shot.

Renaldo, now 46, was a caretaker on the estate of the late John W. Banghart at Skokie. His wife, Lucille, was a maid.

In 1954, burglars stole $125,000 in securities. Later, Renaldo said he found $50,000 of the stolen bonds "in a little wood outside the grounds." But he insisted he didn't know they were stolen.

He and his wife came to California to live and cashed the bonds.

Little Prospect For Quick Pact On Cuban Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan's departure on Saturday from Washington cleared the way for shifting Soviet-U.S. talks on Cuba back to New York and U.N. headquarters.

But indications were that there was little prospect of quick agreement to clear up the unsettled issues of the fading Cuban crisis. A spokesman for the United States' U.N. delegation said that Soviet and U.S. negotiators would meet at that delegation Monday to carry the talks forward.

The Russians will be repaying a visit the Americans paid to them for similar negotiations two days before Mikoyan's two days with President Kennedy and Secretary of State Dean Rusk in Washington.

Any formal Soviet-U.S. agreement to settle the Cuban question would be put before the U.N. Security Council, which has been in recess since Oct. 25 while negotiations have been going on among Cuba, the Soviet Union, the United States and Secretary-General U. Thant.

Thant told a reporter that the United States had not yet replied to a Cuban-Soviet proposal he relayed on Nov. 15.

The Communists have said the proposed agreement includes withdrawal of Soviet missiles and bombers from Cuba, lifting of the U.S. naval quarantine of that country and a U.S. pledge not to invade Cuba—all of which President Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev agreed to by letters of Oct. 27 and 28.

The missiles are out, the bombers are on the way out, the quarantine is over and the non-invasion pledge has been made, at least informally. But Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro has refused to permit U.N. inspection of the dismantling of the Soviet weapon bases, despite Kennedy and Khrushchev's agreement on it.

Kennedy Rolls Out New Oil Import Policy

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has proclaimed a new oil import restriction program based on the output of American producers instead of the demand of American consumers.

White House officials in explaining the new policy Friday said it will make little change in the present oil import situation or the amount of oil and petroleum products shipped into the country next year. One official predicted the new program would not affect gasoline or oil prices.

But the Independent Petroleum Association of America, which had sought the new change, said it will mean "a significant and meaningful improvement in the oil program."

BASIC POINTS

The basic points laid down in Kennedy's proclamation:

—Petroleum imports to areas east of the Rocky Mountains, instead of being limited by demand, will be restricted to a percentage of U.S. production, effective Jan. 1.

—Overland imports of petroleum and its products from Canada and Mexico, now exempt from restrictions, will be included.

Under the new program imports of crude oil, unfinished oil and finished products—except residual fuel oils—will be limited to 12.2 per cent of domestic production east of the Rocky Mountains.

The percentage will be based on production in a similar six month period the previous year. Thus imports during January-June, 1963, will be limited to 12.2 per cent of the domestic production during the first six months of 1962. If domestic production increases next year, production goes up the following year.

REDUCE DEMAND
Many U.S. oilmen, particularly independent producers, have been clamoring for higher restrictions on imports of relatively cheaper foreign oil. They contend imports reduce demand for U.S. oil, thus stifling exploration which will lead to eventual reduction of domestic oil reserves.

White House and administration officials stressed their view that the new regulations will have little effect on oil imports next year from such major exporters as Venezuela which sell large amounts to the U.S. market.

Reporters were told at a White House briefing that imports in the first six months of the new program may run about 783,000 barrels per day, a slight increase over the January-June period of this year.

White House spokesmen said the order was issued primarily to give domestic producers more stability and make it a national policy to base imports on production instead of domestic demand.

While the Independent Petroleum Association hailed the action as "significant and meaningful" it wasn't completely satisfied.

President Harold Decker said in a statement, "naturally, domestic producers are disappointed that imports were not reduced substantially as we have long advocated to restore the domestic industry to a healthy condition."

LOWER NEXT YEAR
But he said the order will mean that next year's imports "will be at least 75,000 barrels daily lower than if standards of the existing program had continued."

He also praised the decision on Canadian and Mexican oil, under which any increase in their exports must be deducted from the amount other exporters are allowed to ship to the United States.

White House officials said Canada is expected to have a "very substantial" increase in exports to this country next year but that this was taken into account in figuring the 12.2 per cent restriction.

Left unchanged by the order is the oil import program as it applies to Puerto Rico, the West Coast states, Hawaii and Alaska.

First Stamps, Now Dollars

NEW YORK (AP)—A cascade of supposedly rare silver dollars has knocked down the price of certain coins from $2,000 to $25 in four days.

Coin dealers are perplexed. A spokesman for the federal mint says a dollar's a dollar.

The most spectacular drop was in the 1903 "O" dollar, minted in New Orleans in 1903.

Emmanuel Strauss, head of a numismatic company, said rumors indicated a flood of the coins reached the market after the closing of the Seattle World's Fair. Coins had been exhibited there.

Another dealer suggested the coins had been released by a federal reserve bank, perhaps at Philadelphia.

Herring Faces Second Sanity Case Monday

BEAUMONT (AP)—The second sanity hearing of John Mack Herring, 18, Odessa youth accused of the kiss-and-kill slaying of a high school girl, is scheduled here Monday.

Herring is charged with murder in the shotgun slaying of Elizabeth Jean Williams, 17. She was killed near a Winkler County stock pond in West Texas March 21, 1961.

The youth, who claims the Williams girl, a schoolmate, begged him to kill her, has not been brought to trial on a murder charge.

The state Supreme Court ruled June 27 that a preliminary sanity trial for Herring "was never legally invoked and that the judgment rendered by it is therefore void."

A district court jury at Kermit, Tex., had ruled Feb. 26 that Herring was insane March 22 when he allegedly killed the Odessa girl.

After Herring was found insane at Kermit, Dist. Atty. Don Sullivan of Andrews County asked the late Dist. Judge G. C. Olson for a new sanity trial.

The state had argued a jury should have ruled on Herring's sanity both at the time of the slaying and at the time of the hearing.

On Oct. 13, the second sanity hearing was transferred to Beaumont on a change of venue. The date of the trial was set by Dist. Judge Owen Lord.

Agreement to move the trial out of West Texas to Beaumont was made Oct. 13 at an informal conference between Judge Russell Austin of Andrews, Tex., Sullivan, Winkler County Atty. John Banks and Herring's defense counsel.

The judge said he believed the publicity given the trial in February would make it impossible to find a "fair and impartial" jury in West Texas.

Two days before Herring was found insane he testified, "I can't tell when I lost reality after she kept asking me to kill her."

His lawyers called the youth as their last witness and asked him no questions except on cross-examination.

"I don't know" or "I don't remember" were Herring's replies to many questions.

A letter left by the girl said Herring consented to kill her after repeated pleas.

Officers found the body of Miss Williams, clad in short pajamas, in a pond. Herring told authorities he picked up the girl at her home and drove her there after midnight.

He told officers he kissed her goodbye, then pulled the trigger of a shotgun while she held the muzzle to her temple.

With Nuclear War Peril Past, U.S., Russia In Same Old Stance

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

An AP News Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP)—With the danger of nuclear war over Cuba receding into the past, relations between the United States and Russia are sliding back into the familiar patterns of bickering, stalling, propaganda, distrust and frustration.

The hope for great and last gains for world peace which developed among administration leaders a month ago—in the immediate aftermath of the Cuban crisis—is still a living hope, but that's about all that can be said for it. Issues which then seemed relatively simple have since become clouded and complex.

The speed and decisiveness of agreements made by President Kennedy and Soviet Premier Khrushchev on the weekend of Oct. 27-28, when a misjudgment could have meant disaster, have been replaced now by the stalling, uncertainty and propaganda-like talk which has characterized the visit to Washington of Anastas I. Mikoyan, Khrushchev's first deputy premier.

Mikoyan took off for Moscow Saturday morning to report to Khrushchev on his long conferences with Kennedy here Thursday and with Secretary of State Dean Rusk on Friday. To officials and reporters who saw him off he spoke in the familiar generalities of the Russian peaceful coexistence line.

"We have better clarified the questions of Cuba, Berlin, and many other questions," he said. "Our general impression is that we made progress in the way of bringing our positions closer together."

The optimistic note struck by Mikoyan is not echoed by the high administration officials with whom reporters have discussed the issues involved in the talks here. Kennedy and Rusk, these informants made clear, were not trying to impress Mikoyan with their good will. They were trying to find out how to translate any genuine desire for better relations into concrete actions.

Failing that they wanted to get some sense of the future direction of Soviet policy. The impression left by Mikoyan is that as the Cuban crisis dies down Soviet policy is reverting to precrisis tactics.

It is too early to tell whether this will be the final pattern. Khrushchev and his advisers simply may want more time to sort out whatever lessons they learned from their Cuban adventure. Berlin and arms control issues, deadlocked for years, could still become negotiable. Indeed, there is less tension over Berlin following the Cuban showdown than in several years.

But the pledge of international inspection of the dismantled Soviet bases in Cuba is still unfulfilled. International safeguards against the secret reintroduction of Soviet nuclear weapons are still lacking.

U.S. overflights of Cuba will have to continue to supply this country's own safeguards, and the danger of a loss of American aircraft and reconnaissance pilots continues.

The Cuban crisis, therefore, is far from over. It has developed the loose ends, tangled and untidy, so characteristic of more ordinary East-West disputes. It may drag on for months with diminishing danger and increasing irritation to relations between the White House and the Kremlin.

This situation inevitably darkens the hopes of Western leaders who hoped that Khrushchev might begin to make significant policy shifts, realizing the stern will-behind American power in the Cuban confrontation.

This does not mean that profound changes are not under way in the world. India appears to be revamping its policy as a result of the Red Chinese attack. Policy differences between Russia and Red China are threatening an open split in the Communist camp. And, after the Cuban showdown, Khrushchev knows what it is to look into the mouth of the cannon.

Texas' Business Outlook Good, Says Research Unit

AUSTIN (AP)—Texas' business outlook is good, the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research said Saturday.

Because of the state's rising population, the bureau reported, "continued efforts to attract new industry to provide jobs for new additions to the labor force are necessary."

The adjusted index of Texas' business activity rose 8 per cent in October, an increase resulting from more activity in almost all phases of business, the bureau said.

Total employment was 3.5 million, a 1.1 per cent increase over a year ago.

Total insured unemployment stood at 45,200, or 4.2 per cent of the labor force.

Texas' railway system showed an increase of 3 per cent from October to September primarily because of the movements of heavy equipment during the Cuban crisis.

October oil production remained unchanged from September and also was the same as a year ago. The bureau said the average production of a well was 12.3 barrels and probably would not show improvement in 1963.

Electric power consumption declined 3 per cent but was above the October, 1961, level.

Retail sales, pushed by an increase in auto sales, rose substantially in October.

Urban building permits rose 19 per cent in October with residential permits contributing 60 per cent of the total value.

Rams Could Grab Off Baker In NFL Draft

BY JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—Terry Baker, Oregon State's brilliant quarterback and Heisman Award winner, is expected to be the No. 1 pick at Monday's annual draft meeting of the National Football League.

The order of selection is based on the composite standings of the NFL's 14 clubs, regardless of conference affiliation, through games of Sunday, with the last-place team getting the first pick. Unless the Los Angeles Rams (1-9-1) knock off the Green Bay Packers (10-1), the lowly Rams will get first pick.

Although the Rams already have two top quarterbacks from the 1961 crop in Roman Gabriel and Ron Miller, plus the veteran Zeke Bratkowski, they are expected to grab the 6-foot-3, 190-pound Baker, who already has announced he will play professional football.

Several of the top college players of 1962 were drafted last year as "futures" because their original college class was graduated last June. Among this crop of prospects was Sonny Gibbs, the 6-foot-7, 230-pound quarterback from Texas Christian, who was selected by both the Dallas Cowboys of the NFL and the Denver Broncos of the rival American League last December.

Other "futures" of a year ago were Glynn Griffing, Mississippi's fine quarterback, drafted by the New York Giants; halfback Roger Kochman of Penn State, by the St. Louis Cardinals; and Charles Sieminski, Penn State tackle, by the San Francisco 49ers.

With the teams drafting in inverse order of their standings, the Minnesota Vikings, St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Eagles are sure of getting an early selection.

There will be 20 rounds with a selection of a total of 200 players. Each team will not get 20 as some already have traded away their rights to select in various rounds. New York, for instance, gave up its No. 1 pick to St. Louis in the deal for Ralph Guglielmi.

Jerry Stovall, the Louisiana State halfback who has runner-up to Baker in the Heisman voting, undoubtedly will be a high pick when the NFL talent scouts start picking at 11 a.m., EST.

Kermit Alexander, a 187-pound halfback from UCLA, is another high on the list that is rich in ends and linemen but thin in quarterbacks and top-flight offensive backs.
Tom Hutchinson, Kentucky's fine pass catcher, is sure to be among the ends selected. Other top ends are Pat Richter of Wisconsin, also eyed by the baseball scouts, Dave Robinson of Penn State and end-halfback John Mackey of Syracuse and Paul Flatley of Northwestern.

One of the top tackles is sure to be Bobby Bell of Minnesota. Another early pick probably will be Junius Buchanan, 6-foot-8, 275-pounder from Grambling, Jim Dunaway of Mississippi, Tom Nolina of Miami, Ohio and Bob Reynolds of Bowling Green are near the top of the list.

Georgia Tech's Rufus Guthrie was called by one pro scout the best guard in the United States. Others who will attract attention are Bob Vogel and Daryl Sanders of Ohio State, and Steve Barnett of Oregon.

Lee Roy Jordan of Alabama, a top center and linebacker, is due to be near the head of the list. Don McKinnon, Dartmouth line-backer, one of the rare Ivy League players to rate a good look from the pros, will be a high draft. So will Dave Behrman of Michigan State, Joe Craver of North Carolina, Ray Mansfield of Washington.

Jerry Cook and Ray Poage of Texas, Don Lishon of Bowling Green, Tom Hennessey of Holy Cross and Dick Drummond of George Washington are among the backs on most pro club's check list.

Just for the record, the No. 1 pick last year was Ernie Davis of Syracuse, the Heisman winner who went to Cleveland when the Browns and Washington Redskins exchanged their first selections. Davis, of course, hasn't played because of leukemia.

Other No. 1 picks of 1961 who were signed by NFL clubs and made the grade are Wendell Harris (LSU) of Baltimore, Gary Collins (Maryland) of Cleveland which had two picks in the first round, Earl Gros (LSU) of Green Bay, Fate Echols (Northwestern) of St. Louis, Bob Ferguson (Ohio State) of Pittsburgh and Roman Gabriel (North Carolina State) and Merlin Olsen (Utah State) of Los Angeles.

Two No. 1 picks, Kansas' John Hadl of Detroit and Arkansas' Lance Alworth of the 49ers, wound up in the American League.

Jayton Is Tied By Oklahoma

JAYTON—The Jayton Jaybirds and the Oklahoma Cardinals became co-champions of Region II Eight-Man football when they fought to a 20-20 deadlock in a game here Friday night.

The score that resulted in the tie came when Harold Baggett blocked a Jaybird punt in the end zone and Oklahoma back David Dickerson fell on it for a touchdown. A pass from Dale Morris to Bobby Diltz was good for the two points.

Jayton took a 14-0 lead with scores in the second and third periods. A 23-yard pass from Harold Murrell to Woody Byrd was good for the TD and another pass to Byrd for the conversion was also good to make the score 14-0. On the second half kickoff, William Ray Smith ran 75 yards for paydirt to make the score 14-0. The Cardinals quickly cut the gap to 14-6 when Morris passed 26 yards to Diltz for the TD.

Early in the fourth quarter David Beebe scored for Oklahoma to make the score 14-12. Jayton got its final six points on a 71-yard drive which ended with Murrell going over from 30 yards out. Then came the blocked punt.

Cowboys Seek To Even Set With Browns

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys have everybody in shape, including ace quarterback Eddie LeBaron, and they hope to square things for the season Sunday when they meet the Cleveland Browns in the Cotton Bowl.

The game means little in the National Football League race since Dallas has lost six games and Cleveland four, but the Cowboys, losers of their last three, would like to win their remaining three in order to finish better than 500.

LeBaron and Frank Clarke, the top pass-receiver, have been out most of the last three games, during which the Cowboys took drubbings, but both are back ready for full duty now.

The last meeting of Dallas and Cleveland was a good game with the Browns finally winning 19-10. Dallas is making some changes in its faltering defense for this one with Cornell Green going in at left halfback and Mike Gaechter replacing Dick Nolan, who has an injured shoulder.

A crowd of 20,000 is expected if the weather is favorable. The kickoff is at 1:35 p.m.

Cincy, Duke Ranked 1-2 In AP Cage Poll

By The Associated Press

Cincinnati's two-time NCAA champions were tapped Saturday in the annual pre-season poll of The Associated Press as the team most likely to lead the 1962-63 college basketball parade.

The Bearcats were the only one of the 38 teams receiving votes to be named on every ballot. They collected 18 of the 23 first-place votes.

The panel of sportswriters and sportscasters put the finger on Coach Ed Jucker's stars even though Paul Hogue has been graduated and his successor, 6-foot-10 Ron Krick, may see no action because of a dislocated shoulder.

Cincinnati monopolized the voting, stacking up 218 points on the basis of 10 points for a first-place vote, nine for a second and on down.

What was more surprising than the fact that Cincinnati so overwhelmingly dominated the voting was that Ohio State, the team the Bearcats have beaten two successive years for the NCAA title, got only seven points. Once All-American Jerry Lucas was gone, nobody figured apparently that the Buckeyes could create much of a ripple in big-time college basketball circles. Ohio State finished last season as the No. 1 team in the final poll, with Cincinnati second.

Duke's Blue Devils, 10th at the close of last season, were second with 152 points and Kentucky's Wildcats, third a year ago, were third with 141. Duke and Kentucky each got two first-place votes and Stanford the other.

Rounding out the top ten were Loyola of Chicago with 97 points, State 66, Oregon State 63, Illinois 62, St. Bonaventure 44 and Wisconsin 42.

The panel undoubtedly was impressed with the fact that even though Jucker has lost Hogue and perhaps the big sophomore, Krick, Cincinnati still has four frontliners back in Ron Bonham, George Wilson, Tom Thacker and Tony Yates.

Duke, likewise, has four starters returning, including Art Heyman and Jeff Mullins.

Kentucky Coach Adolph Rupp, starting his 33rd season as Wildcat coach, has Cotton Nash and two other starters around for the new campaign. Loyola of Chicago, the nation's top-scoring team a year ago with an average of 90.2 points, has five of its top six back.

Senior Rod Thorn, who paced West Virginia in scoring, rebounds and assists, again will spearhead the Mountaineers, talent-rich with seven other lettermen.

Four returning starters form the backbone of Mississippi State's club. Oregon State expects 7-foot Mel Counts to be a big star after his fine sophomore season a year ago. The top three scorers, led by Dave Downey, return to Illinois.

Other teams receiving votes, listed alphabetically: Arizona State, Auburn, Bowling Green, Colorado, Colorado State University, Creighton, Dayton, Houston, Idaho, Indiana, Kansas, Kansas State, Marquette, Michigan, Minnesota, New York University, Notre Dame, Ohio State, Oklahoma City, Providence, Seattle, St. Louis, Stanford, Texas, UCLA, Villanova, Wake Forest, Wichita.

Winters Posts Win Over Crane, 14-12

MIDLAND — The Winters Blizzards overcame a 3-0 first half Crane lead and won the Class AA Regional Championship by a 14-12 margin over the Golden Cranes in a game here Friday night.

Crane, a 20 point underdog before 5,000 fans, scored the only points in the first half when David Williams split the uprights from 22 yards out. Crane continued to dominate the opening half and the Blizzards couldn't muster a score.

With the Winters' line opening up big holes for Denny Aldridge and Steve Grissom, the Winters "Reusing Blue" finally took the lead when Aldridge went over from five yards out to end a 60-yard march.

Williams cut the lead to 7-6 when he added another field goal, this one from 24 yards out. Winters added another TD to its score through when Aldridge went 42 yards for paydirt and a 14-6 lead. The Golden Cranes fought back to a 14-12 deficit when quarterback Calvin Kirkham crashed over from one yard out following a pass-interference call against Winters. Crane tried for the two point conversion, but Kirkham's pass fell short of its receiver.

The Blizzards attempted to add another score in the fourth period but were stopped by the Crane defense at the Crane two. The drive ate up 6:24 of the time and with only 1:30 left in the game the Golden Cranes couldn't put together any kind of drive.

Aldridge and Grissom of Winters ran for 138 and 54 yards rushing and Kirk Looney of Crane led his teammates in rushing with 111 yards in 22 tries. To show how tough the Winters defense was in the second half, Looney made 101 of his yards in the first half and only 10 in the second.

Crane might have scored more points had it not been for the punting of Mike Patterson. He punted four times for a 44.7 average. His best kick carried 72 yards.

Comanche Relays Slated Feb. 23

FORT STOCKTON—The 19th annual Comanche Relays will be held here Feb. 23 with a complete program of Interscholastic League track and field events.

The 440-yard relay will kick the meet off, followed by eight other running events in their usual order. Trophies and medals will be awarded winners in each of the two divisions of competition.

Fort Stockton Public Schools and the Junior Chamber of Commerce, co-sponsors, hope to surpass the 52-team turnout of last year.

It will be the first meet run off on Fort Stockton's $20,000 cinder track.

Cooper Cougars Nip MacArthur

ABILENE—A 15-foot jump shot by Jack Stricklin with 14 seconds left in the game gave the Cooper Cougars a narrow 55-53 victory over San Antonio MacArthur in Cougar Gym Friday night.

The lead exchanged hands 12 times in the first quarter before Cooper took a 15-13 lead on a lay-up by Don Heitenberger as the buzzer went off. The biggest lead of the game for either team came as the Cougar's reeled off six straight points at the start of the second period to take a eight-point lead.

By outscoring the Cougars 20-13 in the third period the Brahmas took a 46-42 lead going into the final stanza. After the teams exchanged the lead several times, Larry McCoy scored with a free shot for MacArthur and George Hazel hit with a hook to tie the score at 53-53 with 2:25 left in the game.

Leon Lucas and Roy McCharen led the Cooper team with 15 points and Stricklin hit with 10. Hazel led MacArthur with 15 and Gary Jellison had 12.

San Angelo Wins Over Monterey

LUBBOCK — The San Angelo Bobcats, in their opening game of the season, defeated Monterey of Lubbock, 63-37, in a game here Friday night.

Minton White of San Angelo, the fourth leading scorer in the district last year, led both teams with 17 points and Gary Cuba had 13 points for the winners while Sammy Roach popped the net for 11. Buddy Gregory led the Monterey team with 11 points.

A charge account service designed for you

1. QUESTION: What is the "Customer's Option" Account?

ANSWER: The "Customer's Option" Account allows you to charge what you need when you want it. The real advantage of this account is that you may pay the due balance within 30 days after the closing date on your statement or, at your option, you may elect to pay about one-sixth of your balance—minimum payment $5.00. Of course, you may pay any amount more than the required payment that you wish.

2. QUESTION: Is there a service charge on the "Customer Option"?

ANSWER: Yes, there is a normal service charge (1 1/2%) added to your bill each month only on your unpaid balance. However, if your balance is paid in full there's no service charge for that month.

3. QUESTION: Will this change my status as a regular 30-day charge customer?

ANSWER: Not at all! You may continue to pay in full in 30 days just as you have in the past, with NO SERVICE CHARGES ADDED.

4. QUESTION: Do I get a statement each month?

ANSWER: Yes, we will send you a monthly statement showing your beginning balance, your purchase, your returns, the payments made, your new balance and the payment due for the current month.

5. QUESTION: Is my present charge account now a "Customer Option" account?

ANSWER: Yes. All charge accounts have been changed to "Customer's Option" accounts so that all charge customers may have the advantage of the optional payment plan when they want it.

6. QUESTION: Is a down payment required?

ANSWER: No. No down payment is required on "Customer's Option" charge accounts.

7. QUESTION: Can I transfer a Lay-Away balance to my "Customer's Option" account?

ANSWER: Yes! Just sign the charge slip for the lay-away balance as if you were making a new charge purchase.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With TOMMY HART

Not that it matters, but the score of the Big Spring-San Angelo football game this year should have been 48-8 rather than 48-6. . . . That pass to Eddy Nelson from Albert Fierro for the two extra points following Big Spring's lone touchdown was good, the films clearly show. . . . The official in front of the play, who clearly saw it, ruled the conversion try was good. . . . The arbiter behind the play, whose vision was obscured, ruled otherwise and that's the way it stood. . . . A Martin County reader asks why this paper carries no news on the Wayland College Flying Queens basketball team. . . . I personally would like to, especially since a Martin County girl, Francis Graves, is performing for the school's freshman unit. . . . Unfortunately, the paper isn't included on Wayland's regular mailing list and the wire services fail to give the teams there much coverage. . . . Midland High lost its first two basketball games this season to Lubbock teams but was playing without the services of Scott Gilmour, its lone returning regular. . . . When Big Spring's Charley Johnson passed for 365 yards against the New York Giants earlier this year, the St. Louis Cardinal quarterback broke Paul Christman's 15-year club record. . . . Christman, of course, is now the ace color telecaster for the ABC network on those Sunday pro football games. . . . St. Louis' troubles in recent NFL games have been largely caused by the fact that three of its linebackers were injured. . . . Charley threw a long touchdown pass against the San Francisco 49ers last week with just 21 seconds left in the game. . . . Attendance at home games of the Cards this season has been pitiful. . . . Rodger Ward Jr., son of the famed Indianapolis speed champion, has been given permission to become an auto racer.

Morales May Fight Gaspar Ortega

Melton McMorries, the Martin county fight manager, says his boy, Hilario Morales, may get a bout with nationally-ranked Gaspar Ortega in Corpus Christi in January. . . . Morales is now in light training in Juarez. . . . Felix (Doc) Blanchard, the one-time Army football great who comes here later this month to speak at the Lions' Club banquet honoring the high school grid-ders, was born in McCall, South Carolina. . . . He guided the Air Force Academy's freshman unit to wins over the AFA Prep School, Colorado University's fresh, Brigham Young's first year team and Colorado State's fish this year. . . . Blanchard had four assistants to help with his freshman coaching chores at the Colorado Springs school. . . . The Abilene Eagles get hit especially hard in the line by graduation and may be yielding the spotlight among high schools in Abilene to Cooper. . . . Abilene High has four offensive starters back next season, Cooper five. . . . The New York Giants and the Chicago Bears, who clash in a NFL league headliner today, scored 99 points between them in games last week. . . . Spec Gammon, the Odessa scribe, points out that cellar-dwelling Midland Lee figured out to be better than San Angelo in football this year, if you use comparative scores. . . . He reasons it this way: Lee beat Abilene Cooper, 13-9; Abilene beat Abilene High, 19-18; Abilene beat Midland, 18-7; and Midland beat San Angelo, 21-20. . . . Howard Van Loon, one of the stars in the Rotan football line that tested the mettle of Big Lake in that Class A playoff game here Friday night, was the state Class A champion in the shot put and discus throw last spring. . . . He's got still another year of high school eligibility. . . . Davey Moore, the world's feather-weight boxing champion, is scheduled to fight Mexico City's Fili Nava in San Antonio a week from Tuesday night. . . . Nava is supposed to have been unbeaten in his last 29 fights but he'll be no match for the classy Moore, who has ruled his weight division since he bowled over Hogan (Kid) Bassey in 1959.

Phillips Interested In Two Steers

Burn Phillips, the Texas Western College football mentor who stopped here the other day enroute to Cisco and Ranger, expressed interest in the football potential of two local seniors, Eddy Nelson and Walter Minter. Phillips said he was pleased as punch over the three freshmen from Big Spring who graced the Miners' roster the past season—Jerry Tucker, Dexter Pate and Jack Irons. . . . Irons played the least of the three but was hamstrung by illness part of the season and Phillips is due to make good use of Jack's talents the next three seasons. . . . A fourth Big Spring lad at TWC, Jimmy Evans, was already in school when Phillips arrived on the scene and, of course, did the Miners a fine job. . . . Sam Payne, the Odessa scribe, says he disagrees with those who would award District's 2-AAAA's "coach of the year" honor to Big Spring's Don Robbins. . . . Payne contends that San Angelo's Emory Ballard deserves the distinction. . . . Ballard's team wasn't picked to finish last, Robbins' club was by many observers. . . . That Midland Lee B team, which made an issue of the fact that Big Spring cancelled their game, finished the year unbeaten by trimming Midland High, 13-0, in its final outing. . . . Big Spring beat the same club, 18-8. They were expecting 6,000 paying customers for that basketball game Friday night between Hutchinson JC and HJC in the Kansas city. . . . The Hawks drew well every where they played in Kansas. . . . In 48 home games the past season, Big Ten football games played to 2,674,692 paying customers for an average gate of $5,723. . . . The average gain over last year amounted to $27 per game. . . . When Big Spring's Pete Cook officiated the Odessa Ector-Midland Lee basketball game in Midland the other night, his co-worker was J. P. Ward, the former Snyder cage mentor. . . . All season long, the San Angelo paper listed the Bobcats' ace back, Gordon Walker, as a junior but he apparently won't play next year. . . . Too old, they say.

District's Officials Planning Bond Issue

Officials of the Colorado River Municipal Water District conferred here Saturday with Norman Downey, New York City, to plan for an anticipated revenue bond issue to finance an impending waterflood project in northern Coke County.

Downey, representing Dillon, Eastman, Union Securities of New York, has handled the financing preparations for both the 1951 and the 1958 issues of the district.

The district and Sun Oil Company have been negotiating a contract under which the district would agree to supply water to Sun for a waterflood project in north Coke oilfields. The district has submitted a final draft of the proposal to Sun.

As soon as it is executed, the district will proceed with plans to finance the construction of about 49 miles of pipeline and pump stations, plus one or more low-water channel dams on the Colorado. It is anticipated that Sun would take part of its requirements in salt water intercepted on the river; the remainder would come from Lake J. B. Thomas. This would enable the district to meet contract demands with Sun and at the same time help clear up a saline contamination of the river bed.

Having done this, the district then would be in a position to exercise a water permit conditioned on pollution control and proceed with plans for a second dam on the Colorado River.

Conferring with Downey were Charles Perry, Odessa, CRMWD president; R. W. Currie, director; and O. H. Ivie, assistant general manager, both of Big Spring. When required, the bonds will be offered for competitive bids.

Major Portion Of Howard Tax Bills Have Been Paid

Nearly 87 per cent of all current tax bills to the county, common schools, junior college and state have been paid and the taxpayers still have December and January in which to settle their tax bills without penalty or interest.

Mrs. Zirah LeFevre, county tax collector, said that effective Monday the discount for payment of taxes will drop to one per cent. It has been two per cent through November.

She said that current tax payments collected through October and November—the two months that such payments could be made—now stand at $1,148,040.57 which is slightly more than 87 per cent of the total taxes as shown on the tax rolls. The total on the rolls for the year is $1,322,124.45.

This means that only $184,083.82 taxes remain unpaid. Last year, total tax collections, up to the time the payments became delinquent, were better than 97 per cent of the total. She anticipates that this year's collections will be as good, if not better.

The bulk of the taxes paid so far were paid in October. This is the history of collections in the county tax office. The collections for October were $1,119,733.11. Collections in November were $28,307.46.

Mrs. LeFevre announced the disbursements she has made of funds collected in November and October. She points out that the figures above are for current taxes whereas the disbursement is made on all revenue her office collected. The additional money comes from poll tax, payment of delinquent taxes and other sources. Total revenue handled by the office in October and November hit $1,124,157.46.

Old Ironsides To Start Home

HINESVILLE, Ga. — Members of the Army's Old Ironsides division—men and officers of the 1st Armored—start home to Texas within a week.

The division was shifted to the Southeast United States in what was then called a maneuverability exercise as a part of the Cuban buildup. Some division elements later were deployed from Ft. Stewart, Ga., to bases in Florida.

An Army spokesman said the departure for the return to Ft. Hood, Tex., would begin within a week and be completed by Dec. 20.

It took the 1st about two weeks to move from Ft. Hood to Ft. Stewart.

The move home for the Old Ironsides division is part of a general withdrawal of troops from strategic locations along the Southeast Coast.

Rev. Stafford Gets New Post

RICHMOND, VA. — The Presbyterian Board of Christian Education has announced that the Rev. T. Henry Stafford Jr., Houston, will become Director of Christian Education for the Presbyterian educational program in Texas effective Jan. 1. His headquarters will be in Austin.

He replaced Dr. Jack B. McMichael who will move to Richmond as administrative coordinator of the forthcoming Covenant Life Curriculum which will be used by five denominations when it is introduced in autumn 1963. Rev. Stafford formerly was assistant pastor in Midland.

Man Arrested

A 57-year-old man was arrested Friday night for burglarizing cars on the Blue Note parking lot, 1630 E. 3rd. Two witnesses saw the man take a suitcase and clothing from a car and notified police, who took the man into custody.

The disbursements were: Howard County commissioner, collections and assessing fees $541,160.85; Howard County Junior College, $276,996.29; State of Texas, $168,412.80 and Howard County common school districts, Nos. 6, 7 and 25, $137,587.32.

"Each tax bill collected in October has to be listed on reports to the state and county showing the collections total for the state, county, junior college and common school districts," said Mrs. LeFevre. "This report has just been made and it shows 11,952 bills."

She expressed appreciation to the taxpayers for promptness in paying tax obligations.

She warned that December is the last month that a discount can be permitted on tax bill payments. The original discount allowed in October was three per cent. It dropped to two per cent in November and in December will be one per cent. Taxes paid in January will be for the face amount of the bill with no discount.

Co-Op Widens Sales Margin

Cap Rock Electric Cooperative continued to widen its margin of sales for the year on the basis of November reports.

The system already had sold a record amount of power during the year and the November sales of 2,711,352 KWH boosted the year's delivery to 74,119,266, far above the 50,680,278 for all of 1961.

The November sales compared with 2,669,296 for the same month a year ago.

As of the end of the month, Cap Rock had 1,263 miles of line energized, a gain of seven for the month and 91 more than at the same time last year. There were 5,112 members connected, a gain of 48 for the month and 256 for the year.

Evidence Found Of Voting Frauds

McALLEN (AP) — Olivia Villarreal is 21 and she lives in Starr County on the lower Rio Grande.

She testified she did not pay her poll tax this year, did not apply for an exemption certificate, did not request an absentee ballot for an exemption certificate, did not request an absentee ballot and she did not cast a vote in the Nov. 6 election.

Despite these things, an absentee ballot—which she said she never saw—was issued for her and almost certainly was cast for her—without her knowledge.

Then take the case of Hippolito Vidal Sr., and his three sons, Hippolito Jr., Alonzo and Emede. All four have been working in California several months and returned to Starr County only a few days ago.

None of the four said they applied for an absentee ballot or marked one, but a ballot was issued to each and probably voted for them also. None of the Vidals saw such a ballot, they said.

These cases and many more have been uncovered in a state investigation of absentee voting in Starr County. They were disclosed Friday in a public hearing held here by three assistant Texas attorneys general and Starr County Atty. Randall Nye.

"Our investigation clearly shows many people were voted against their will," Asst. Atty. Gen. Sam Wilson said.

"Apparently someone stole a whole family vote," Wilson called an unexpected halt to the probe late Friday, saying: "We know now all we need to know about how this particular part of the absentee balloting was handled. I feel we can use our time more effectively for later stages of our investigation."

Wilson said he does not believe ignorance figured much in the Starr County case.

"You've just got to have someone who wants to steal your vote had enough to make a fraudulent applications. We're working against a very, very old system, and of course, it took a long time to build the system," Wilson said.

Wilson said ignorance is a part of the problem, but the patron—or political boss—is a bigger menace to the secret ballot.

"The power of economic reprisal is the big thing. To these people, the men who were involved in manipulating the absentee ballots represented the patron and they did not want to cross him. One witness said: 'I did it (signed the ballot applications) because we always do it for the New Party.'"

Ballot boxes from the Nov. 6 election from Duval and Zapata counties also were impounded under court orders.

New Equipment Installed In Modern Fairview Gin

The new gin at Fairview, owned by J. R. Dillard and J. O. McCrary, boasts the most modern equipment and appearance in West Texas. The all-electric, push button controlled gin has individual motors for each piece of equipment, and can gin up to 10 bales per hour of damp, pulled cotton. There is only one piece of wood in the entire plant, Dillard said, and the gin is about as fire-proof as it can be made. Cat-walks provide easy access to the cleaners, stands, dryers, and all elevated machinery. They also make checking and working safer for the men. Fluorescent lighting provides daylight working conditions inside the gin. There is no equipment in dark places. The roof is spotted with skylight through the modern pastel colored plastic materials, giving overhead light during the day, to supplement artificial light. The gin was running Saturday morning, and a 10-minute warm up run is always made to get the dryers up to the correct temperature and all moisture out of the machinery. Two bales can be unloaded at one time. Mitchell Super-Champ cleaners and Murray stands take the cotton following the first stage of drying and cleaning. Moss Super "Constellation" and "Revelation" equipment, in tandem, provide faster cleaning and prevent overworking equipment to gin the same amount of cotton as was done with older equipment. The Fairview gin is the only independently-owned gin in Howard County. The first gin was built on the location 35 years ago. J. R. Dillard bought the old gin in 1950. He sold half interest to C. Meeks in 1951 and Meeks sold his half to J. O. McCrary in 1958. "We tried to keep the gin as modern as possible through the years," Dillard said, "but this year we decided to put in a plant that would stand up under the pressure of cleaning damp and dirty cotton. It will also do more good with insect-damaged cotton than older gins. We have used a few pieces of equipment from the old gin but most of it is new. "We now have five modern stands, and 750 horsepower in electric motors. We are not overloading any of the machinery and if a single motor goes out we know it immediately. If the motor on one stand quits, or if something happens to the stand, we just cut it out and go on with the others," he continued. As the cotton leaves the trailers it goes into an airline cleaner. From there it goes into an air separator, or dropper, and then into the first stage of drying before burs or trash are extracted. The next steps, in order, are: Into the separator which drops the cotton into right and left augurs and gives half of the cotton to each cleaner; into the two burr extractors which provide greater cleaning capacity than the old extractors; cotton goes back together again after leaving the extractors and into the second stage of drying; split again for two more cleaners for the double augur process to right and left; then directly into distributors for the stands which separate lint and seed; into a double lint cleaner of two more super units in tandem, and then back together and into the press for baling or into the warehouse for storing. "We feel that we can give farmers better samples with the new gin," Dillard said. "There is a lot of insect damage this year and most cotton so far is grading about 90 per cent middling with light spots. The cotton is not perfectly clean but if we do more cleaning the lint is damaged. It's as modern a cleaning and ginning process as can be found anywhere and we are proud of it."

Captains of the team will be Weldon Myrick of the police department and Bob Condray of the census and weights division of the Department of Public Safety. Team members will be named later.

Captains, coach, and members of the 331st will be named after Tuesday, Dec. 4.

"We believe this is going to be a game everybody will enjoy," Capt. Walter Eubanks of the police department, publicity chairman, said Saturday.

"These men are going out on the field for a good cause and it's going to be played in earnest. If we can pull a few boners on purpose, to make people laugh, we'll do that too."

Practice sessions are being held at the old stadium at 3 p.m. each day, and everyone is welcome to come by and watch the men get their weights down and their muscles limbered up, Eubanks said.

"Forsan High School has made practice uniforms available to us," he continued. The concessions at the game will be operated by the Rainbow Girls.

Yule Programs In Schools Legal If Not Religious

NAPA, Calif. (AP)—Napa County Counsel Daniel York has ruled that Christmas programs in public schools are legal if they are not used primarily as a means of religious instruction. York issued his decision Friday in answer to a challenge from Dr. Abraham Linn, a psychiatrist at Napa State Hospital and father of a student at Phillips elementary school. Dr. Linn said he asked York to prepare an opinion as a result of the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling that authorization of prayer in New York State schools was unconstitutional. He said he would consult an attorney after seeing the opinion to decide whether to take legal action. "My feeling is that religious training or programs (in public schools) are unconstitutional," Dr. Linn said. "I questioned the program only on a legal basis. I am not objecting on a religious basis."

Active Rig Count Takes Sharp Drop

After seven consecutive weeks during which the total of active rotary drilling rigs in the Permian Basin listed increases, the Friday survey of Reed Roller Bit Company for the two-state area, listed a drop.

The figure on the latest count stood at 208 working rotaries, a decline of 35 from the 243 tabulated a week earlier.

The Friday total also was a drop of 20 from the 228 active rigs counted in the West Texas-Southeast New Mexico region on Dec. 1 last year.

Despite a drop of four from 33 to 29 on the latest survey, Lea County, New Mexico, continued in first position on the list.

The county-by-county survey, with previous figures in parentheses, includes:

Andrews 14 (20), BORDEN 5 (1), Chaves 2 (1), Cochran 0 (2), Crane 12 (8), Crockett 5 (8), Curry 0 (0), DAWSON 5 (4), Ector 14 (17), Eddy 9 (6), Fisher 5 (4), Gaines 10 (12), GARZA 2 (1), GLASSCOCK 0 (0), Hale 1 (1), Hockley 1 (1), HOWARD 5 (6), Irion 1 (0), Kent 0 (3), Lea 29 (33), Loving 2 (2), Lubbock 1 (1), Lynn 0 (1), MARTIN 1 (4), Menard 0 (1), Midland 9 (9), MITCHELL 3 (1), Nolan 1 (3), Pecos 16 (17), Reagan 3 (2), Reeves 9 (6), Roosevelt 2 (5), Runnels 3 (11), Schleicher 0 (1), Scurry 5 (5), STERLING 0 (1), Stonewall 5 (8), Terrell 1 (2), Terry 3 (2), Tom Green 0 (1), Upton 6 (7), Ward 9 (7), Winkler 7 (8), Yoakum 2 (10), TOTALS 208 (243).

Kansas Allowable

Heart Of A Water Flood

The Cosden waterflood project in the Moore (Grayburg) field southwest of Big Spring is a compact unit, with only the injection and producing wells scattered. Shown above is the heart of the unit. The settling tank at left helps purify the water before it goes into the tank at the right. In the lower left corner can be seen the well from which water is drawn for injection. At lower right is the plunger pump which forces the water into the pay formation. Barely visible between the tanks in the background is one of the four injection wells.

Cosden Uses Waterflood In Dwindling Moore Field

By JOE BEYER

The die has been cast, with $40,000 put up against a possible return of millions, and Cosden Petroleum Corp. will soon find out how it has fared on the gamble.

That is the approximate cost of a pilot water injection plant Cosden operates in the Moore field southwest of Big Spring. The time when the project should begin paying dividends, if it will, is fast approaching.

The Moore field, one of the oldest in the county, has been profitable, but like many other fields in the area, it will keep much of its oil locked within the reservoir. Since it was first discovered in 1927, the field has produced more than 5.8 million barrels of oil. The figure to Jan. 1, 1962 was 5,835,904 barrels.

ONLY 20 PER CENT

Being a reservoir with a gas solution drive, the least economic variety, it will yield only about 20 per cent of the oil by primary recovery methods. Cosden hopes to double the total take from its leases by using the water flood. Through October of this year, Cosden leases had produced 958,642 barrels of oil and the end of production was believed to be about 2-3 years away.

Oil produced from the field is sweet crude of about 31 degrees gravity. Most of it is taken by Cosden for use at the refinery.

The water flood began Aug. 3 by Cosden is on the L. E. Patterson lease in section 23-33-15, T&P survey. In 121 days more than 145,000 barrels of salt water have been injected into the Grayburg through four injection wells.

"We chose the five-spot pattern because it gets the quickest results," Harold V. Summers, engineer for Cosden, said.

PATTERN

The five-spot pattern uses four water injection wells surrounding a fifth well to drive oil in the reservoir toward the well bore. Another common method uses a line of water wells to drive oil toward a line of oil producers. This is the line-drive method. The peripheral method places water injection wells on the edges of the field in an effort to sweep the oil toward the center of the reservoir.

The Cosden wells used in the pilot program had not yet reached the point where it was no longer profitable to produce them, but production had fallen tremendously. At one time they made the allowable of 64 barrels of oil for each producing day, based on the 20-acre spacing used in development. When they were converted to water injection wells, they pumped about five barrels a day each, according to Summers.

The pay zone is a broad, flat anticline of dolomite about 20 feet thick in the area of the Cosden flood. It is in two parts connected with a narrow "neck." The flood is in the newer eastern section of the field.

FIRST SECTION

The western section was discovered May 17, 1927 by the Continental Oil Co. & Group One Oil Corp. No. 1 J. B. Harding, which was potentiated for 140 barrels of 28.5-gravity oil from a pay topped at 3,125 feet. The eastern extension was opened in 1955 and by now the bounds of the field have been well defined.

On Jan. 1 of this year the field had 230 producers. Recovery in 1961 was 356,239 barrels.

Only water is used in the flood since the field does not produce enough gas for re-injection to provide pressure maintenance. The cost to import gas for this purpose would be excessive, Summers said.

Water is obtained from a salt zone, probably the Santa Rosa, topped about 1,100 feet. A special well had to be drilled for this purpose, Summers said. The water is not too salty and is clean enough to pump down the wells without treatment. The water is pumped from the water formation, into a settling tank, then into a suction tank from which it is drawn for injection. Plunger pumps force the water into the holes.

GAS BLANKETS

While the water is in the two tanks, it is covered with a gas blanket. This prevents it from absorbing oxygen from the air, making it less likely to cause corrosion difficulties. A closed system is used to keep the gas in and air out.

A filter is being used on one of the injection wells to filter solids which might block the producing formation. This safety measure may prove to be superfluous, however, Summers said.

Water is injected at pressures ranging from zero to 500 pounds per square inch. The company is trying to maintain an injection rate of 300 barrels a day for each injection well. The formation is not cased and water is pumped directly into the entire pay zone.

Dolomite does not generally respond well to water flooding, at least not as well as sand formations, but occasional success has given support to this project. In the Iatan-East Howard field, results have been reasonably good on a dolomite currently being flooded, Summers said.

Whenever oil is taken out of a formation, the zone tends to lose permeability, making recovery of oil more difficult. The water injected increases the permeability of the zone, theory holds, and the water bank formed sweeps oil ahead of it to the producing well.

ONE DANGER

One of the dangers which must be avoided is channeling. Should water begin to bypass oil on its way to the well bore, oil production can be cut off. Once such flow is begun, it is difficult to halt. Despite the great variation in porosity and permeability in the Grayburg zone, there has been no channeling yet, Summers said.

As the time approaches when increased production should be noted, Cosden maintains checks on the center test well and producers on the periphery of the flood pattern. If the pilot program works, Cosden will extend the water flood into other parts of the field.

The older section of the field may be flooded later, but it is still in the planning stages. It will have to be utilized because of the leases and well locations. The more economical peripheral method will have to be used because of smaller returns which can be expected.

Atomic Power Not Competitive

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON (AP)—Oil, gas and coal operators have been told they have no reason to fear atomic power as a competitive fuel.

Dr. Robert Wilson, an oilman, scientist, engineer and member of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) gave that estimate.

Wilson said there has been moderate progress in the development of nuclear power but that the road toward a competitive fuel has been longer, harder, and much more expensive than had been expected.

He said one might as well forget about the use of nuclear power for land transportation and home heating, the main markets for oil.

"Nuclear power coming at this moderate rate should really not be considered a threat to the oil, gas or coal industries," he said. "It should be regarded as something that will come along in good time to enable these industries to meet the burgeoning demand for power, which is still almost doubling every 10 years."

Wilson made his observations in the Connecting Rod, the employee publication of the Service Pipe Line Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil Co. of Indiana.

Wilson was appointed to the AEC in 1960, two years after retiring as chairman and chief executive officer of Indiana Standard. He previously had been on various AEC advisory committees.

The magazine submitted this question to Wilson: "Can atomic power compete effectively with oil?"

Wilson said almost everyone in the oil and coal industries was worried about atomic power after the end of World War II. He said most of the worry was caused by a frequently quoted report that one pound of uranium, if fissioned completely, gives off as much heat as 1,400 tons of coal.

Such a claim, he said, presented an utterly false picture.

"In the first place, the figures are really based on uranium 235, the fissionable isotope, which constitutes only one part of 140 of natural uranium," he said.

He said the AEC has spent well over $2 billion in developing various types of reactors and that about one-fourth has been devoted to civilian reactors.

"We have presently operating in this country in three central power stations about 385,000 electrical kilowatts, which doesn't seem very much for all that research and development money," he said. "But many more are well on the way—10 are starting up or scheduled for completion during the next few months."

He said the AEC believes nuclear power will be competitive by about 1968 in large stations in high fuel-cost areas such as New England or the Pacific Coast.

"By about 1968 the savings in the cost of fuel should offset the higher investment for large plants in such limited areas," he said. "Smaller plants, or plants in areas where the cost of conventional fuels is lower, will gradually become competitive at later dates."

He said atomic energy cannot compete effectively in the automotive field.

"Even if you could afford to pay around $100,000 for a small reactor to power an automobile, it would require a three-foot concrete dashboard to shield the driver, and a similar shielding around the engine to protect passengers-by," he said.

PRELUDE TO CHRISTMAS

By KATHLEEN DOZIER

A prelude to Christmas—the parties and gala events exacting feminine beauty. Prevalent now as at no other time of the year are the ornate hair fashions, exciting jewelry, fabulous furs, lovely colors and glamorous gowns. Unmistakably festive were those worn for afternoon and evening affairs this week at the Big Spring and the Cosden country clubs.

Silhouettes moved from sleek star-bound sheaths to the new round shape with soft angular lines. Skirts were sleekly slim, gently gathered and femininely full in the long and the short extremes.

Dramatically contrasted with the full length skirts in the lush holiday fabrics were the stark, molded tops. Full skirted chiffons, topped with rich brocades or satins; swishing taffeta skirts enriched with velvet trimmed waistlines; and the knits, elevated to that of Cinderella's stagecoach apparel. Woven of gold and silver the knitted fabrics ranged from the pastel tints to the deeper hues of holly red and woodland green. Some were detailed with pearl and bugle bead embroidery; while others boasted touches of multi-colored swirls, rhinestones and pearls. Again this year the iridescent jewels reflect the colors with which they are worn.

"Let's Dance" was the appropriate theme for Friday night's party at the Cosden Club. All eyes were focused on the hostesses, pictured above. Mrs. Jake Morgan was in shimmering red satin styled with slightly belled overskirt; Mrs. W. E. Ramsey, sheathed in black sequins and wrapped with jet-beaded sweater; Mrs. Charles Tompkins, in lace and chiffon of black; Mrs. Vernon Smith, lovely in lavender gown designed with gathered chiffon skirt, cummerbund of satin, and a knitted bodice; and Mrs. James Edwards, wearing a black silk sheath featuring a square cut neckline marked with simplicity. Cohostesses were Mrs. Roy Bruce, Mrs. Tom South, Mrs. Fred Kasch, Mrs. M. R. Koger and Mrs. Tommy Hutto. Mrs. Fred Lurting, hostess for a desert-bridge at the Big Spring Club, was radiant with an all-gold look. Her gold silk sheath was complemented with gold jewelry. In the lower left picture, Mrs. E. V. Spence was there in black suit, mink stole and a rose-toned velvet hat and jewelry for notable contrast; the hostess, Mrs. Lurting; Mrs. Bill Edwards Jr., in a just-right shade of blue to be worn with mink; Mrs. Tommy Gage, wearing handsome green knit jacket and matching skirt; and seated, Mrs. J. Y. Robb whose hat of red satin fabric is matched by ornate stitching on her black suit.

Music was by Bernie Howell and his combo from Lubbock.

Spectacular evening attire ranged from after-five to frivolous and formal ballroom fashions. Notable among them were Mrs. Quin Grigsby in a full-skirted red chiffon having beaded bodice detail; Mrs. W. J. Currie, handsomely sheathed in black; Mrs. Modesta Simpson, wearing black sheath with large rose at the waistline; and Mrs. Eva Pyatt, startlingly beautiful in green evening cloak with white fur collar.

Plans Made For Holiday Festivity

Among the many Christmas parties planned is that scheduled for Dec. 10 by the Knott Home Demonstration Club. Arrangements were completed at the home of Mrs. B. J. Williams Tuesday, when nine members were reported in session.

Guests were Mrs. J. E. Skalicky and Mrs. Dana Jarvis. Mrs. Skalicky presented the program on gift wrapping and package decorations.

The holiday party will be held at the home of Mrs. Sonny Shroyer. Each member will bring a covered dish for the event.

Champagne chiffon fashioned the gowns worn by both Mrs. Robert Stripling and Mrs. Charles Head; Mrs. Joe Gunning's attire was surpassed only by her lovely new hair style in that enviable ash tone; Mrs. Arch Ratliff, in backless gown having softly belled, short skirt in toast tone; and Mrs. George Zachariah, radiant in gown of red.

Mrs. Joe Moss chose a shimmering red sequined sheath and matching slippers, contrasting to the many all-white gowns such as that worn by Mrs. C. B. Marcum, and the lovely greens as that worn by Mrs. Tommy Jordan.

WEBB WINDSOCK

By MOLLIE HARTZOG

Saturday, Dec. 1, was the big day! We donned our working clothes and went to the Officers Club for this was the day the members of the OWC were turned loose to decorate the whole club. Many frustrations were beaten out with hammers, and much creative ability was utilized for all to see. Those suffering from neither frustrations or creative ability belonged to a third group that is too widespread, here and there, and they worked at the bending and stretching involved in hanging ornaments on Christmas trees. The ballroom ceiling was tasseled with galaxial stars of frosty white, while the Ivy Room displayed inviting murals of snowy mountain vistas, and the fireplace in the lounge was hung with a giant Christmas stocking and festooned with gifts.

The month of December seems well filled with parties and plans enough to keep us all busy for the next two months. Do not forget to bring to the luncheon a Christmas tree ornament suitable for the adolescent boys' ward at the State Hospital. There will be a container at the door so you can share a little Christmas excitement with them too.

Long Way From Home

Some of the books being unpacked by 2nd Lt. Geraldine Eastman and Ann McGrath at 1013 Wood St. concern their former homes, Alaska and Ireland. The women are nurses, newly assigned to Webb Air Force Base, who are just getting settled in their new home.

City Greet Misses From Ireland, Alaska

By JO BRIGHT

Texas — Big Spring, that is, is greeting among its newcomers a couple of charming misses who come from distant climes—one from the Far North, the other from the Emerald Isle.

It would be easy for a girl who claims both Texas and Alaska as home to be somewhat of a braggart—but 2nd Lt. Geraldine Eastman is charmingly modest about them both. Born in El Paso, Lt. Eastman moved with her family to Curry, about 130 miles north of Anchorage, when her father went to work for the government-owned Alaska Railroad in 1951.

Their first home was a Quonset hut which was hardly visible in the deep snow most of the year. There was no running to the corner grocery for a loaf of bread; food was delivered once a month by the railway. Since most food commodities were shipped or flown in from "the States" prices were extremely high. It became expedient for the family to develop a taste for caribou and moose meat, which remained nicely frozen if simply left outside the house.

Winter sports, which were enjoyed most of the year, were tobogganing, ice skating and snowshoeing. The latter was more a necessity than recreation if you wanted to go for a walk without sinking out of sight.

Lieutenant Eastman graduated from the Emanuel Hospital School of Nursing in Portland, Ore., and joined the United States Air Force last August. She has done a great deal of choir work and is presently practicing with the Webb group on the Christmas cantata to be presented at the Base chapel.

The other pretty occupant of 1013 Wood St. is irrevocably Irish. She is 2nd Lt. Ann McGrath, a fair colleen whose family home is still in Mayo County, Ireland. She lived in Rosport, a resort and fishing center on the Atlantic, with a population of about 20,000. She said her life there was much the same as in the United States "except that there are no TV dinners or teabags in Ireland." She admitted, however, that she has grown accustomed to the packeted tea and would hate to do without it.

Lieutenant McGrath received her nurses training at the London Hospital School of Nursing in London, England. She found much of historical significance in the country that interested her and was especially impressed with the coronation of Queen Elizabeth.

She followed two sisters to New York in 1954 and liked it well enough to remain. With Dublin being only 5 1/4 jet hours from New York City, she has flown back several times to visit her father and two more sisters who still live in Rosport.

Both Lt. Eastman and Lt. McGrath like to read. This is often done to background music provided by their ample record collection. They think they will like Big Spring and will have plenty of time to find out since their enlistment was for two years.

Iron In Liver Dish

Career girl supper: cook liver for yourself once or twice a week. A serving of this variety meat, plus a large green salad, will offer the day's quotient of iron.

'ROUND TOWN

With LUCILLE PICKLE

This is the week for the arrival in Big Spring of CAPT. and MRS. KENNETH L. CHISHOLM and their children, Dawn and Eddie. They will be guests of her parents, MR. and MRS. JOHN FREEMAN, though the Christmas holidays. The Chisholms (she's the former Clara Freeman) docked in San Francisco a week ago and called her parents from Phoenix, Ariz., several days later. They have been stationed at Yakota AFB, Japan, for the past three years. When the leave expires the family will be stationed in Laredo.

MR. and MRS. DOYLE TURNEY and MRS. DAVID DUKE were in Oklahoma City the fore part of last week to see the new Turney grandson, DOYLE MARK, who arrived on Nov. 21, weighing 9 pounds, 1 1/2 ounces. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. W. TURNEY. J. W. is presently singing with the Jubilee Quartet out of Oklahoma City.

Maternal grandparents are MR. and MRS. MARK GATELEY of Oklahoma City.

Nice friendly sounding invitations were sent to friends of the J. Q. HAGOOD family asking them to join their son-in-law and daughter, MR. and MRS. KENNETH LOCK MILLER and their children, Kenda and Kent, for coffee this afternoon. The Lockmillers return from overseas is the occasion for the affair at the Hagood's new home at 701 Highland Dr., Highland South.

Two impromptu gatherings Thursday brought together small groups of friends for visiting.

MRS. CHARLES SWEENEY asked several in to visit her sister, NEMA PIERCE, before her departure for her home in Englewood, Calif. A spur of the moment Dutch luncheon at Cosden Country Club was attended by nine friends to give them the opportunity to have a short visit with MRS. DICK O'BRIEN of Houston who was here while Dr. O'Brien was in Oklahoma City. She was accompanied by her son, DR. RICHARD O'BRIEN. They planned to drive back to Houston Friday.

Eight children of the J. D. SIMS family will not likely forget the 1962 Thanksgiving season. This past holiday was the first time in more than 40 years that the family had been together. The group came together at Granite Shoals.

Included in the group of the immediate family were MR. and MRS. A. E. TRUE of Big Spring; MR. and MRS. I. Y. SIMS, Gatesville; MR. and MRS. R. V. LITTLEPAGE, Goldthwaite; MR. and MRS. C. T. SIMS, San Antonio; MR. and MRS. JOHN GARY, Winona; MR. and MRS. H. W. BATSELL, Kingsland and Fort Stockton; V. V. SIMS, Phoenix, Ariz.; MR. and MRS. KYLE G. SIMS, San Saba. The grandchildren and great-grandchildren of the family padded the number to 41.

JERRY HATFIELD and GARY PICKLE are expected to return this evening from the Williamson ranch near Kerrville where they have visited TIM WILLIAMSON.

MR. and MRS. TRUETT VINES have returned from Comanche where they took his father, E. C. VINES, who has been visiting here the past week.

Also returning home are MR. and MRS. FRED STAGGS and son, CHARLES, with his wife and son, DAVID, who have been visiting in Basile, La.

Observance Planned For Recollection

The Mother's Club of the Immaculate Heart of Mary School is sponsoring a Day of Recollection at the Immaculate Heart of Mary Church. The day will be noted Friday, Dec. 7, with the purpose of observing the beginning of Advent and promoting Christ into Christmas.

The day will begin with mass at 11:30 a.m. Guest speaker will be Msgr. Andrew C. Marthaler, V.G., from San Angelo. All women of Big Spring and the area are invited to participate. The day's program will be ended at 3 p.m.

It is suggested that each person bring a sack lunch. Coffee will be served in the cafeteria at noon. Also, the nursery at Webb AFB will be available at no charge for those from Webb who wish to attend. There will be nursery facilities in the kindergarten class at the Immaculate Heart of Mary School for others with small children.

P-TA To Meet

Sands P-TA will have regularly scheduled meeting Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the high school auditorium. The first six grades will have charge of the program. A Christmas tree will be awarded to the room with the most parents present and registering.

Change In Time For Duplicate

Duplicate bridge games to be held at the Big Spring Country Club Dec. 7 will begin at 2 p.m. The later time is due to the special luncheon set for the same day, according to Mrs. Elmo Wasson, game director.

Twelve tables were in play at the games Friday. Winners in the north-south position were Mrs. Ward Hall and Mrs. Elmo Wasson, first; Mrs. Hollis Webb and Mrs. Ray McMahan, second; Mrs. E. L. Powell and Mrs. Elmo Wasson, third; Mrs. J. Gordon Bristow and Mrs. R. R. McEwen Jr., fourth.

High scorers in the east-west position were Mrs. A. Swartz and Mrs. J. H. Fish, first; Mrs. B. F. Yeargin and Mrs. D. E. Jonker, second; Mrs. Ron Kibler and Mrs. Paul Lee, third; Mrs. Ayra McGann and Mrs. Ben McCullough, fourth.

District President Is Guest Of ESA Chapter

Special guests of Alpha Chi Chapter, Epsilon Sigma Alpha, Thursday evening, were Mrs. Richard Payne, District 8 president, Kermit, and Mrs. John Finney, District 8 coordinator, Odessa. The occasion was a meeting of the chapter at the home of Mrs. Fred Stitzell.

Mrs. Wendall Faris and Mrs. B. E. Reagan spoke on the various industries in Howard County and what they mean to the area. Plans were made for a Christmas dance to be held Dec. 15 at the Cosden Country Club. Also, members made plans for giving a Christmas basket to a family.

Refreshments were served from a table laid with a white cutwork cloth. The centerpiece was a Christmas tree decorated with silver baubles and white snowflakes. The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Roy McMullen, 1502 E. Cherokee Dec. 13.

The Furrtest Year

Little boys and girls having mamas and poppas with great big wallets are also decked in fur during this the furrtest year in two decades.

Fur on the collars, cuffs, and hems too of the swingy skirts on little girl's dresses created by Roman designer Zingone. Fur is too ticklish a situation for lads' suits, but it's warm and masculine on coat collars and caps.

Grating Onions Easy

If you have a sharp coarse grater in your kitchen, you can use it for onions instead of chopping them. Lots of cooks find this method quick and easy. Use kitchen gloves and you'll have no onion odor on your hands!

Curry Sauce Liquid

When a small amount of heavy cream is added to "finish" a curry sauce, you can substitute undiluted evaporated milk with fine results. The curry powder will mask the flavor of the milk.

First Christmas Rose From Tears

The Christmas Rose, a winter blooming plant, first spring up from the tears of a little girl who cried because she did not have a gift to offer the Christmas Child. The child picked the flowers and while kneeling at the crib, Jesus' hands touched the petals and a delicate pink appeared on the flowers. This lovely legend is documented by one company in its exclusive "Legend Series" of greeting cards.

SQUADRON SCROLL

Webb Plans For Guests, Parents Of Graduates

Class 63-C is looking forward to Friday night when the members of the class will graduate from the pilot training program. After the graduation ceremony at Webb Chapel, most of the group will adjourn to the Officers' Open Mess. Because many parents visit during this graduation time, arrangements have been made for the parents of the graduating class to tour the base facilities on Friday.

Mrs. W. E. Franklin of Omaha, Neb., is here in Big Spring for her son's graduation. She is staying at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Capt. and Mrs. Maury Franklin. After graduation activities, the family plans to travel back to Omaha together for the Christmas holidays.

Capt. and Mrs. Dick Heinisch are entertaining Capt. Heinisch's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Al Heinisch, from Topeka, Kan. After Capt. Heinisch's graduation, the family plan to travel to Mrs. Heinisch's home in Maryland and also to Topeka, Kan., before he reports to his new assignment.

On Tuesday, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Von Blon will arrive from their home in Beulah, Mich., to stay for their son-in-law's graduation. While here they will stay with their son-in-law and daughter, Capt. and Mrs. Douglas McPherson.

A baby shower given by Mrs. E. D. Bunton, Mrs. L. A. Woodcock, and Mrs. J. L. Martin was held Thursday evening at Mrs. Martin's home. The guest of honor, Mrs. William Byrd, received a gift from the hostesses along with many lovely gifts from the wives of Class 63-H. As several games were played, the topics of conversations among the wives included excitement about their husbands starting next week on the second phase of the pilot training program in the T-38.

With pitchpipes in hand and song sheets ready, the wives of Class 63-G are busy making plans for the Dec. 13 Student Squadron wives meeting. A coffee will be held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. S. Solomon to check these final plans for the meeting. It is hoped by those planning the meet-

Full Term Pregnancy Is Insured

Women who have never lost a baby during pregnancy have nine chances in 10 of producing a healthy, living infant. But when a woman has had one miscarriage, the odds in favor of a successful pregnancy fall to four to one, and if she has lost two successive babies, her chance of achieving a live birth plunge to less than one in three.

These odds (derived from a study of 5,507 pregnancies in the years 1959 and 1960) can be radically changed for the better with the use of the new progesterone-like hormones, says Dr. Samuel T. Thierstein of Lincoln, Nebraska.

He reports that 48 of 61 women with an average of two previous stillbirths were able to bear healthy babies when they were given large daily doses of Enovid.

Engaged

The engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Carolyn Holder and Pvt. Robert Barnes of the Marine Corps, is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Holder, 410 Aylford. Barnes is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barnes, El Paso. He is presently stationed at Memphis, Tenn. The wedding date has not been set.

Hard Winter Ahead Say The Old-Timers

CRAB ORCHARD, Tenn. (AP)—Lay in your fuel, pile on the blankets and get ready for a hard winter—at least in Tennessee. Helen Lane has spoken.

"I counted nine fogs in August," says Mrs. Lane, "and all the old-timers say it's going to be a humdinger. I reckon it is, too, because the hornets' nests are all down close to the ground. My son, Ray—he's 10—went camping and stepped on a couple, and he got stung."

Those nine fogs, two of them "so thick you could cut them with a knife," mean that there will be at least nine snows in Tennessee this winter, Mrs. Lane says. On the basis of past performance, a lot of Tennesseans would do well to heed Mrs. Lane's warning.

Miss Sawyer Is Bride Of Bailey J. Ellyson

MRS. BAILEY JESS ELLYSON

LAMESA (SC) — Martha Lynn Sawyer and Bailey Jess Ellyson were united in marriage at 6 p.m. Saturday in the Lamesa Church of Christ with W. T. Hamilton, minister, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of S. W. Sawyer. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Ellyson. All are of Lamesa.

The double ring ceremony was performed before an altar banked with baskets of white gladioli, and flanked with candelabra. Vocal selections were presented by a chorus.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, James Sawyer. She wore a street-length dress of white peau de soie fashioned with a bell-shaped skirt and a fitted lace jacket with three-quarter length sleeves. Her shoulder-length veil of silk illusion was attached to a circlet of beaded white satin, and she carried a crescent bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Wayland Wright of Lamesa was matron of honor. She wore a street-length dress of rose velvet designed with three-quarter length sleeves and a softly pleated skirt. She carried white carnations.

The bridegroom's brother, Bill Ellyson of Lamesa, was best man. A reception followed in the Flame Room of Pioneer Natural Gas Co. Guests attended from Lamesa, Seminole, Lubbock, Loop, Midland, Stanton, O'Donnell and Fort Worth.

For traveling to points of interest in New Mexico, the bride chose a brown wool suit with brown accessories. The couple will be at home in Lamesa after Dec. 5.

The bride is a graduate of Lamesa High School and Draughton's Business College, Lubbock. She has been employed in Midland.

Girls Set Sights On Theater

Young girls used to run away from home to break into the theatre and often did not get past the chorus line. Modern girls set their sights higher.

They get family permission, seek training and find it, sometimes with the help of the theatre itself.

Patt McAneny, 19, of Wilmington, Del., is typical of today's theatre-struck girl. The five-foot-one blue-eyed brunette was one of six girls and 14 boys selected from among the 1,000 who auditioned for the American Shakespeare Festive Theatre in Stratford, Conn. She has been understudy, as assistant to the director, while attending the academy connected with the theatre.

"You get experience from actors and directors who are outstanding. It is wonderful for young people, and if you learn Shakespeare real well, you can do just about anything in the theatre."

Gift Wrapping's Easy With Paste

The approaching gift wrapping season will be pleasanter if you rely on paste or household cement available in a self-applicating fold-up metal tube. The adhesive goes on quickly and easily in the quantity and spots you want it, and the presents will look clean, neat and attractive.

If it's a child's Christmas present cut-outs of Santa Claus, snowmen and candles are appropriate and can be glued right onto the wrapping. Bows of ribbon can also be easily attached with glue from the collapsible metal tube.

With the same technique, you can even create your own gifts. A writing portfolio, for example, is easy to construct with heavy cardboard, colorful paper, scissors, ribbons and a tube of glue or paste. In covering the cardboard, make up pockets for a pen and pencil set and for personalized stationery. The writing kit can then be topped off with an attractive ribbon.

Now Every Week Is Sweater Week

The sweater has just been officially recognized via the seventeenth annual Sweater Week sponsored by the Knitted Outerwear Foundation. Unofficially, every week is sweater week, observed by an all-season, all-occasion, all-o'clock dedication to sweater-wearing by every member of the family.

From a one-purpose sports garment, the sweater has bounced into the fashion-forefront as the most popular garment in ready-to-wear, bar none! Production has soared to the huge volume of 159,780,000 sweaters in 1961, as compared with the total of 92,664,000 produced in 1951.

This phenomenal growth has been spurred by many factors, the most important of which is style. Extreme comfort and versatility are other reasons why this new styling in sweaters has been snatched up so willingly by consumers. In no other fashion category has design creativity produced such an evolution, constantly opening up new wardrobe uses.

Table Trimming Is Half The Fun

Trimming the table is half the fun when you entertain at Christmas. Today's busy hostess finds that colorful party goods add new liveliness to holiday entertaining, not to mention their work-saving features. A matching "Santa" set, a honeycomb centerpiece, table cover, coasters, beverage, luncheon and dinner napkins, cups, and two plate sizes. Fun without fuss is the motto of smart homemakers who use these smartly styled settings.

Meet Madame President

Mrs. Zack Gray is a member of the First Baptist Church where she serves as president of the Woman's Missionary Union, teaches a class of 11-year-old Sunday School children, and is director of the 11-and-12-year-old Training Union members.

Also, Mrs. Gray is secretary for the Park Hill Parent-Teachers Association and chairman of its yearbook committee. Active in the Spaders Garden Club, she serves that group as scrapbook chairman, and is also a member of the Child Study Club.

The wife of the manager of Big Spring Truck Terminal, Mrs. Gray graduated from Grady High School and attended Howard County Junior College before her marriage. The Grays have two children, Linda Carol, 13, and Robbie Anne, 10. The family's home is at 1305 Pennsylvania Ave.

Gardening, reading and hat-

MRS. ZACK GRAY making are hobbies of this week's Madame President.

Graceful Dining

Nearly everybody who believes in The Dining Room also believes in the grace and compatibility of dining. Yet, dining rooms in themselves more often are determined by space than by desire alone.

The judicious blending of materials in the dining room—even in restricted space, and on a restricted budget—can produce effects ranging from cheerful Colonial to manor house elegance, according to Arthur Brill, noted designer and fabric consultant who improvises with materials to create a dining room of considerable dignity.

Seed Plaques Can Be Made All Year 'Round

Seeds are something you can find at any time of the year—in the garden when vegetables and flowers are maturing or in the supermarket where dried seeds are sold for food.

The only other materials besides seeds that you need to make a plaque are: a piece of wood, cardboard or construction board on which to glue the seeds, glue-all or mucilage, a soft pencil, an adhesive cloth picture hanger — and lots of imagination.

Start by finding something for the background. Any heavy cardboard, Bristol board, or even a section cut from a fallen log will do.

Next, collect as many different kinds of seeds as you can find. Keep each kind by itself. Dry seeds are easier to handle than wet seeds, so use layers of paper towels to dry any that need it.

Perhaps the background or the kinds of seeds will suggest a design for your plaque. If not, try drawing one lightly on the background. As long as lines are not heavy they are easy to erase if you change your mind.

When the design is settled, lay seeds in place over and along the lines of the design until you're satisfied. Then remove a few seeds at a time, apply glue-all or mucilage to the proper places and replace the seeds, pressing them firmly onto the background. When all have been glued on, put the plaque to dry in a safe place.

Later you can spray it with lacquer, plastic or shellac to give it a finishing touch. Paste the picture hanger on the back and you're ready to hang the plaque on the wall of your bedroom or, perhaps, use it for a birthday or Christmas gift.

Science Is More Fun Her Way

NEW YORK (AP)—Childish enthusiasm for science usually fizzles before it leaves the launching pad, says science teacher Dr. Helen Challand, when it should be maintaining "all systems go."

"One thing we DON'T have to do in elementary science is motivate," says the pretty, freckled teacher. "Kids think science is the most exciting thing in the world."

"But in high school and college, not many of them really love science. Their interest is killed somewhere along the line in elementary school."

In an effort to recycle this situation, Dr. Challand instructs future elementary teachers at the National College of Education in Evanston, Ill., where she is head of the science department. She also edited a new 20-volume encyclopedia of science for children in grades three through nine. (Young People's Science Encyclopedia by Children's Press)

"Doing" is the key word for a fascinating study of science, Dr. Challand explained during a visit to New York. "When a child asks, 'Where does the rain come from?' the best answer a teacher can give is, 'I know a good experiment you can do, to find out.'"

"Teachers sometimes say their schools can't afford expensive equipment, but in this case, for example, all they need is a cookie sheet of ice cubes held above a boiling teakettle of water."

"It's the principle of a hot front meeting a cold front. The cold air can't hold as much moisture as the hot, it becomes oversaturated; the moisture condenses in the form of raindrops."

Dr. Challand says teachers often tell her they don't have time to run experiments. Her answer is that "doing" does take longer than a fast explanation by teacher. But "doing" is more valuable because it is much more apt to be remembered.

Parents can help a child pursue his own individual interests, she says, which a teacher can't always do. They can go on their own field trips. And they can advance as fast as the ability of the child—and the parents—allows.

Prairie Scene

Christmas on the prairie is the name of the holiday art, designed by Mrs. Kyle Cauble. It will be shown in a lecture demonstration at the YMCA. Sunset on Christmas Eve is denoted in the spires of light and colors used. Santa's elves are placed in the reflected light rays.

Lecture-Demonstration Scheduled For Public

A lecture demonstration will be presented by Mrs. Kyle Cauble on home decorations for the Christmas season. The program is planned for Dec. 6 from 7:30 until 9 p.m. in the Piner Room of the YMCA, and will be open to the public.

'Personalized' Home Library

A place for roving through books, listening to music, striding or slumbering through thoughts — and the space and solitude to enjoy it — is a library at home.

More than any other room, the library provides an essential "apartness." And designer and fabric consultant, Arthur Brill considers, also, that a person's own personality should prevail here.

In neutral, livable earth tones, he has designed an unimpressive room that invites contemplation and cherishes comfort. Neither rustically masculine, nor frivolously feminine, the decor welcomes both man and wife with equal grace. Colors are the key, music, art objects — find specific space of their own.

Pearls Good For Girls

AP Newswire
Planning to give pearls for Christmas?
Here's some advice on the best styles for specific ages:

Teen-ager: The short necklace, called the debutante style, of small graduated cultured pearls is the best way to introduce a young girl to her first piece of real jewelry. And this is a style that can be worn by her in later years as a bib with pearls and other necklaces. The circle pin of cultured pearls is another delicate, sedate design, flattering to a young girl.

Women of all ages: The double strand choker is a prize gift. If she already has one, have a special clasp made, or select from among many on the market which combine delicate pearls with other gems.

A Mirror Adds Much

How imaginatively are you using mirrors in your decorative scheme? Take a tip from designers who have found important new ways to star the mirror and carry out a plan of beauty by reflection for the home.

Few accessories do as much to change the appearance and atmosphere of the home as mirrors. They perform visual feats in dimension and perspective. They build in brightness. They apply color, pattern and design to drab settings where these vital decorative elements are missing.

Modern decorators have found ingenious ways to use mirrors to make homes brighter, more spacious and to build in a more pleasing living atmosphere. New ways with mirrors are being featured in every room in the home. They are old ideas with a new twist, styled to complement the need for decorative brightness and individuality in today's home.

When you use a mirror, give it the individual attention it demands in your decorative scheme. With careful planning you can take advantage of all the reflecting magic mirrors provide.

Use Leftover Spuds

Shape leftover mashed potatoes into patties, roll in melted butter and then in finely crushed potato chips. Bake in a hot oven until hot through and nicely browned.

Whipped Topping

When you are using a whipped cream topping for a fruit-flavored chiffon pie, you'll need to whip a cup of heavy cream and add 1/4 cup sifted confectioners' sugar and 2 teaspoons vanilla.

Parallel Terraces

Elimination of point rows is one advantage of parallel field terraces, such as shown above. This aerial view is of the Jack Hopper farm about three miles west of Fairview. He was able to make half the terraces in this field parallel, eliminating many point rows and much costly time in working the land.

Point Rows Are Eliminated, Time Saved In Working Land

The idea of level, parallel terraces is gaining popularity in the Martin-Howard County Soil Conservation District, as well as in other areas of West Texas. These differ from conventional terraces in that point rows are eliminated.

Sergeant Joins And Retires Here

Over twenty years ago, Jack C. Lacy joined the Army in Big Spring. Last week, he was retired at Webb AFB not far from the spot where he entered the service.

Now a staff sergeant and a Food Service Technician, Lacy has been stationed in England, Germany, Okinawa, Korea and France. Sgt. Lacy completed cooks and bakers school at Camp Santa Anita, Calif.

A native of Midland, (his mother Mrs. Fannie B. Holiday lives there) he is married to the former Bonnie F. Keaton of San Angelo. The Lacy's have two children: Jack Jr., and Cynthia, and will make their home in Big Spring at 1219 Harding. Sgt. Lacy plans to go into Civil Service.

technique to his land is Jack Hopper, who farms near the Fairview community. With assistance from the Soil Conservation Service, he devised a method of making parallel terraces on his land in an effort to save time in working the land.

Hopper farms with standard six-row equipment, so he kept this in mind when he went about the task. He built a marker 12 rows wide and mounted it on his tractor. He then used the row marker to help determine other terraces after the first at the upper end of the field had been run.

Only minor adjustments in the terrace line were needed to make it fit the established row system and still meet specifications of the SCS. He repeated the procedure down the slope for each terrace. Hopper found that by using this method, he could make eight of 16 terraces parallel. It worked wherever the slope between the terraces was uniform.

Hopper also used another recently devised method to construct his terraces—building them from below.

A large scraper, such as that used in road construction, was used to cut a shallow, wide strip from below each terrace to build it up. This method helps reduce the slope between terraces, and where there is only a slight slope, it will almost make the land level.

Hopper hopes to reap another benefit from the process in addition to more economical farming operations. With the land more nearly level between terraces, he hopes to find crop production increased because of more uniform wetting of the level ground.

Chaplain Wolfe Arrives At Webb

Chaplain (Capt.) Neil F. Wolfe, former Protestant chaplain at Vance AFB, near Enid, Okla., arrived last week at Webb and assumed duties as assistant to the wing chaplain.

Since joining the Air Force in March, 1955 he has served almost exclusively at Air Training Command bases. The chaplain was graduated from Huntington College, Huntington, Ind., and the Dallas Theological Seminary, Dallas.

Chaplain Wolfe and his wife Venita have two children, Kyle 7, and Kenny 5.

Mail Early And Use Special Yule Stamps

With a small mountain of gaily printed new 4-cent special Christmas postage stamps on hand and with the deadline for the sale of such stamps much nearer than he likes to realize, Elmer Boatler, postmaster, is pressing patrons to do their Christmas mailing now and to make generous use of the special stamps.

It's only a month until the present 4-cent postage rate on first class mail passes from the scene. The new rate will be five cents for letters and the stock of four cent stamps which the post office now has on hand will be slow merchandise to move.

Meantime, the office has been sent a generous helping of the new Christmas stamps to be piled on top of a huge stock of regular four's and an abundant supply of recent commemorative 4-centers which are already on hand.

FIRST ORDER

Last week, Boatler shipped off his first order for the new stamps which are to be put into service Jan. 7. The new stamps and new rates were delayed until Jan. 7 as a courtesy to big mailers who are being asked to hold up their mail during the Christmas rush. These patrons will be permitted time after Christmas to get their delayed mails in the post offices before the new stamps and rates become effective.

The new rates make first class mail five cents; domestic air mail letters eight cents and postcards four cents. Air mail postcards will cost six cents after Jan. 7.

Meantime, post offices all over the country like the one here, are facing a heavy load of extra work in making the changeover. At present the big Christmas mail is the No. 1 problem to be considered.

"We really need cooperation this season," said Boatler.

DEFENDS HIKE

Defending the pending increase in postage rates, the postmaster pointed out that in these times of high cost living the U.S. mail service continues as the No. 1 communication bargain.

Meantime, he emphasizes the attractive new Christmas stamps and cites how they add the holiday lustre to mail—particularly Christmas mail, such as greeting cards.

Greeting cards, he said, are generally regarded by patrons of the post office as first class mail. Actually, they are mostly third class mail. Used at Christmas time for the most part, this type of mail now costs three cents for ordinary mailing. Next Christmas, ordinary third class greeting cards will take four cent stamps to send them on their way.

However, although Boatler points out that you can send your Christmas cards for three cents now, he recommends you use four cent stamps on the cards instead.

"If you send them with a four-cent stamp," he points out, "the card can be forwarded if need arises; it can be returned to the sender; if it is undeliverable—provided, of course, that you put your return address on it."

And these new Christmas four-centers are really attractive additions to your Christmas mail.

ATTRACTIVE

No flood of Christmas mailing had built up at the office last week but the postmaster and his associates are bracing themselves for the big rush they are sure will develop as the holiday draws nearer.

Boatler said that it will be the policy of the post office this year not to make use of extra help if the job can be properly handled by the regular staff.

"We are permitted," he explained, "to let the regular staff work overtime at this season of the year. This gives the staff additional holiday money; it provides the post office with trained workers for the big rush—something that adding temporary help does not."

"We think we are going to have a record-breaking December business. We want to provide the best possible service for our patrons," Boatler said.

"Please mail early and make good use of the new Christmas stamps."

A Devotional For The Day

You are, I know, eager for gifts of the Spirit; then aspire above all to excel in those which build up the church. (I Corinthians 14:12, Neb.)

PRAYER: Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for Thy Son Jesus who was among us and sacrificed Himself to redeem all men. We thank Thee that in Him we find salvation, and in His church strength for service. In His name. Amen.

(From The 'Upper Room')

The Old Bean Box

One of our friends relates how, while in the process of watching her step for safety's sake, she banged her head into an iron traffic control box.

It so happens we have had a similar experience and can testify that the iron box is harder than the hardest head.

Which raises the question: How come these signal boxes, when on poles set in or adjacent to sidewalks, can't be raised above head level? They're just the right height to bean the unwary or the preoccupied—and the latter category just about takes in all of us at some time or another.

Doubly Significant Industry

Elsewhere in today's edition you will find a story about the amount of highway work due to be under contract in Howard County during 1963. The figure runs up to something like $6,000,000.

Included in it are the two legs of the IS 20 loop (accounting for five million or more), a new US 87 overpass on Gregg, a new section of the FM 700 loop from US 80 northward to the Snyder-Gail highway intersection, reworking of US 80 from Union Street eastward; refinishing US 87 through the city.

Not all this work will be accomplished during the year, because massive projects such as the loop will likely stretch over a couple of years. However, not all the highway work is included in these figures, for the county will receive a state allotment for lateral roads. There is due to be a seal-coating project on part of US 87. The county will have its own program of lateral road construction. Hence the amount of work under way before the end of the year could be on the order of $7,000,000.

We would estimate that 50 to 60 per cent of that will find its way into the local economy in the form of labor, materials, supplies, and supervision.

Perhaps this dramatizes a condition that has been a fact for many years around here, namely that building and improving roads is one of our major industries. Since few things, if anything else, stimulate the general commerce of a community in the long run as do excellent roads, the business of building roads is doubly significant.

Portrait Of The African Boss

PRETORIA, South Africa—the big boom of bossism is the black-and-white design of Africa. Americans will not understand anything about the emergence of the Dark Continent's mixed races—and will never look with intelligence and sympathy upon the struggle—until they admit the fact, the necessity and the political nature of the boss.

HE IS AS BLACK as Nkrumah of Ghana and as white as Verwoerd of South Africa. He is a far Leftist in one country and a far Rightist in the other. He is a dictator in the classic, original sense—the man who temporarily says "I say" to preserve law and order while the people are moving toward a congenial form of self-rule.

At its best, the prevailing prototype of African boss is not the kind that the United States recently had in Manhattan, Jersey City, Kansas City and elsewhere. These Tammany-type politicians were a corruption of democracy. The African boss on his mettle is one of democracy's forerunners and manifestations.

MUCH AS IT may jar Americans to hear it, Nkrumah and Verwoerd are figures cut from the same quarry. They are the result of British imperialism. If one is an extremist, so is the other. Both of them use their authority to level the political opposition and to suppress troublemakers. But both have avoided the use of firing squad and torture chamber. They are as unlike Stalin and Hitler as they are unlike Boss Tweed and Boss Hague.

NKRUMAH IS SO anti-colonial that he seems anti-Western. He has been called pro-Communist by no less than former Secretary of State Herter, and denies it with vehemence. Verwoerd is so anti-colonial that he took South Africa out of the Commonwealth. He was accused of anti-English sentiments early in World War II, much as Charles Lindbergh was accused—and for similar reasons. Verwoerd saw that the coming battle for the world would not be between rival factions of the West. He saw that it would be between Western civilization and Communism. He felt, as Lindbergh did, that the war as it began in 1939 was not his war.

NKRUMAH IS for black supremacy. His dream is for a Pan-African political union of some sort, dominated by the Negro race. Verwoerd is for white supremacy. His dream is not grandiose, however. He hopes, by territorial separation of the races, to keep a highly civilized and industrialized part of the African continent for the European races—for Western civilization.

Both these bosses, the black one and the white one, run their countries in a way that Americans wouldn't stand for at home, but in a way far gentler than has been the fashion in the Caribbean area and South America. The iron hand in the leather glove is the African way. It is far more humane than some of the European colonial examples.

IN 1954, NKRUMAH tried to prevent recognition of the Northern People's party, his opposition, and in 1956 tried to prevent a general election. But, restrained by the British from forming a prefabricated dictatorship, he constructed his power plant after independence from Britain. In 1957 he got the Deportation Act, which rids Ghana of persons whose presence is not, in the judgment of the government, conducive to the public good. The Deportation Acts of 1958-59 allow the government to hold persons for five years without trial. The Disqualification Act of 1959 excludes from the Assembly those members who are absent without permission—a device that Nkrumah employed against the opposition leader, Dr. Busia.

VERWOERD'S methods are about the same. In his inaugural speech as Prime Minister, he calls himself a "democrat," by which he meant that he would afford every man a vote, each in his own homeland. Two opposition groups, the Pan-African Congress and the African National Congress, showed their objection by a mass protest, something like the recent one at Oxford, Miss., except that the police fired into the crowd, killing 62 persons, and by a stay-at-home "day of mourning." Verwoerd outlawed both the offending groups. The Verwoerd Government has a Detention Act which puts persons under house arrest up to five years. One of its purposes is to persuade undesirable persons to deport themselves.

WITH SUCH AN apparatus in each country, Nkrumah and Verwoerd have attained bossdom. Yet both men are constitutional rulers by their own standards. Nkrumah's party holds 72 out of the 104 legislative seats. Verwoerd's 105 out of 160. The black leader frankly believes in a "socialist society" which, he writes, "may need backing up . . . by emergency measures of a totalitarian kind." Verwoerd believes in capitalism, and just as frankly states that it will not work unless the unequally-endowed races are separated so that the Negro competes against Negro, white against white.

THERE IS LITTLE in these two bossed nations which the U.S.A. would care to copy, nor do these two countries care to emulate the U.S.A. in the particulars of self-rule. But with the world as it is today, one big difference ought to be noted by Americans:

Ghana, under Nkrumah, has never substantially opposed Red China or Red Russia. South Africa, under Verwoerd, is the one African country that invariably sides with the United States.

Some day, if not now, this difference may be very important to us.

WHAT OTHERS SAY

The Atomic Energy Commission has had a difficult decision to make in connection with a proposal it has just extended to uranium producers.

The United States Government already owns more uranium than there is any visible use for in the next several years. It is buying tons of uranium concentrate at $8 a pound under contracts that run to 1966. Most of the material costs about $5 a pound to produce; so there is a tidy profit.

But the stockpile of atomic weapons has reached a point where little or no further uranium is needed for that purpose. And peaceful uses of atomic power, such as for generating electric power, still appear to be five or 10 years in the future on any economic basis.

Stockpiled silver which the government bought two or three decades ago in a controversial program to help the metal mining industries has begun now to be very valuable. But the known uses of silver did not carry any temptation to pile up destructive capability beyond the capacity of a planet to absorb. Let's hurry along those peaceful uses for uranium.

What About The Dollar? Go To Europe

FRANKFURT, West Germany —Do you want to know how the world feels about the U. S. dollar? Travel!

When I arrived here from Vienna, I had no German money, no marks. I offered the airport porter Austrian schillings.

He shook his head "Nein." Then I handed him a dollar. "Danke schon, danke schon," he said, bowing with recognition and satisfaction.

The incident does not reflect on the schilling. It's freely convertible into marks, or dollars, or francs.

Notwithstanding that Austria is a West German neighbor and has close language and economic ties, the schilling doesn't have the status of the dollar.

To the porter, even as to the central bankers, the dollar is a reserve currency, readily negotiable for goods, services, some other currency, or—for central bankers—for gold.

OPEN SESAME In the Soviet Union, Poland, and Czechoslovakia, the dollar is more than acceptable. It's eagerly sought after—as the open sesame to all markets.

At the Iron Curtain airports, products are priced in dollars. And special shops in Warsaw, Krakow, and Prague offer merchandise for sale in foreign currencies, notably dollars.

When I return to America and people ask, as so often they do, "What's going to happen to the dollar?" I'll reply: "Go to Europe and find out."

In the Bruckenkeller restaurant here, I discovered that I was short of marks. I said to the waiter, "Will you take dollars?" "Of course."

I pulled out a $10 bill. Without a second's hesitation he said, "That is 39 marks." No fuss, no argument, just a small profit on the exchange rate, since the mark is worth 25 cents, and the full rate would have been 40 marks, not 39.

When waiters know the exchange value of a currency, it not only has arrived but you get the feeling it's around to stay.

I have talked to the heads of the central banks of Belgium, Sweden, Finland, and, most recently, of Austria and West Germany. Conclusion: A dollar is a dollar in the world over and particularly in central banking circles.

U. S. MONEY CHEAP Here's how Karl Blessing, president of the Deutsche Bundesbank in this city put it:

"I have never been and am not now a pessimist on the dollar. The United States is such a big, powerful country that a deficit of about two billions a year in your balance of payments is nothing."

"I have felt that if you raised your interest rate by one-half per cent, your loss of gold would be reduced or disappear. Two years ago your industry was less competitive, but we, in Germany, have since raised our costs."

"In the last three years, our wages have gone up 25 per cent. Productivity has increased by only half that. And, in addition, we have had a revaluation upward of the mark by 5 per cent. This boosts the export price of German goods and reduces the price of goods sent by the U. S. and other countries to Germany."

"Other countries in Western Europe show the same trend in costs," Mr. Blessing continued. "On the other hand, U. S. wage increases are within your gains in productivity and your increase in prices has been lower than ours."

In this respect, your competitive position has improved, and your exports show this.

"Some of your investment bankers still offer loans in Germany. Your interest rates are cheaper than in Europe. And this results in some outflow of capital."

ON TOP OF TABLE Dr. Reinhard Kamnitz, president of the Austrian National Bank, was equally as emphatic when I talked to him in Vienna. I asked bluntly, "What do you think of the dollar?" He answered with a blunt question:

"What should happen to it?" He elaborated thus: "The basic economic position of the United States is very sound. Your balance-of-payments deficit is due to the role your country plays in world economic and political life. You can reduce the drain by giving goods in kind rather than in dollars. And from time to time other countries will share the burden with the U. S. and reduce the deficit."

"What happens to the dollar happens to other currencies. Central bankers can't permit anything to happen to it. They realize this. That's why last winter a number of countries made $6,000,000 available in credits in their currencies to the International Monetary Fund. The monthly meetings of central bankers at Basel at the Bank for International Settlements have taken on increased significance. We discuss mutual problems. As a result, central bankers are better informed."

PREVENTABLE COLLAPSE Mr. Blessing made the point that if, in 1929 and 1930, the central bankers of the world had met regularly as they do now at Basel and at periodic meetings of the International Monetary Fund, the financial collapse of the 'thirties never would have occurred.

In those days, central banking and the internal economic affairs of nations were wrapped in mystery, rumor and speculation. Today, except for the Iron Curtain countries, national finances and policies are on top of the table.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Democrat Carl Hayden, president pro tempore of the U. S. Senate, has represented Arizona in Congress ever since statehood was attained in 1912.

Inflamed Diverticulum Becomes Diverticulitis

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have diverticulitis and have a hard time with constipation. I take milk of magnesia every night, eat bland food and drink a lot of milk. Do you have a special diet? I have been told not to have an operation—T.P.

Diverticulitis, much more common than people yet realize, warrants surgery only if there are severe complications, such as obstruction, bleeding or perforation.

The ailment primarily is an outpouching of the intestine, or "diverticulum." If inflamed it becomes diverticulitis.

Sticking to a bland diet, as you are doing, thus avoiding fibrous or rough foodstuffs which could further irritate the diverticulum, is the right thing to do. You don't need any rigid or special diet.

The constipation is another matter, however, and if you report this to your doctor, he can help you.

Use of a preparation containing sodium dioctylsulfosuccinate, and there are now quite a few of them, is beneficial. Another way is to take bulk producers, of which agar is one. Prune juice is a good natural laxative.

Remember that constipation often can be corrected by getting into the habit of bowel action at some regular time each day. Rectal suppositories can aid in getting this time-habit established.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son, 13, developed severe pain in his knees last March. X-rays showed Osgood Slatters disease. The doctor suggested we immobilize him as much as possible and wrap his legs in wide elastic bandages.

He has been checked three times since then, twice without removing the bandages. Lately I notice bruising and swelling around the knees. I keep him as quiet as I can but am worried and would appreciate any further information about treatment. Is there a specialist for this type of disease?

MRS. MCG.

This isn't a very common problem, but it scares the daylight out of parents, and I get a great many inquiries about it since it is a "new" disease each time a family encounters it.

Rest and waiting are the only necessary ones. With this care, the condition will ultimately correct itself. The specialist for this sort of ailment would be an orthopedist, but you'll find that your doctor already has given you.

NOTE TO MR. F.H.: No, these "floaters" or little black spots in the eyes are NOT "forerunners of cataracts." In fact, in the great majority of cases they are totally harmless.

Headaches! You can beat them. Write to Dr. Molner in care of the Big Spring Herald for a copy of the booklet, "How to Tame Headaches." Please enclose a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 20 cents in coin to cover cost of handling.

Dr. Molner is interested in all his readers' questions, and whenever possible uses their questions in his column, but because of the great number received daily, he regrets that he cannot answer individual letters.

Around The Rim

Santa Claus, Dish Washing, And Stuff

Cleaning up some odds and ends, before we get trampled in the Christmas rush:

AND LET'S FACE it, Christmas is on its way. A harbinger at our office is the appearance of letters to Santa Claus, and we are grateful for the fact that the postmaster turns them our way—for forwarding, of course.

About half of the messages are from little scribbles whose requests only Santa can read. One young fellow thoughtfully thanked the Old Gentleman for last year's remembrances, and another was practical enough to list prices of items he wants. Both ought to get special attention from their parents.

GETTING BACK to home, I have here the results of a purported survey that says 72 per cent of all American husbands help their wives with the dishes. It's sorta like church going, not all of them do it all the time, just when they get trapped, when the little woman is ill, or when they have a big black cloud hanging over their conscience.

Only 14 per cent of the guys do the dishes EVERY night. And the survey taker says, "I guess that proves the husband still wears the pants in the typical American family." Sure, you can prove it by looking under his apron.

A YOUNG SCIENTIST, I read, has come up with an equation that sets out to establish the probability of that intelligent human beings from outer space have visited the earth. The formula is: $n \text{ equals } r \text{ p } n \text{ e } f \text{ i } f \text{ c } l$. I could explain this to you, but you wouldn't understand it.

My point is that if they were intelligent beings, they wouldn't want to get caught on this orb of ours. Better to have stood at home.

ALL RIGHT, and another problem. The U. S. Mint has now gone on a seven-day week to fill the rising demand for coins. This is going to call for overtime, and perhaps about $100,000 in extra wages. And if the mint can turn out only $99,000 in new coins, we are in a typical government operation—in the hole.

I don't know why the Mint just found out that there is a shortage of coins. I could have told 'em a long time ago, although I thought it was a matter of maldistribution.

AMONG THE other evidences of progress, 'tis reported, is an automated line in the dairy which washes down the cows. Bossy moves down the line where she is alternately soaked by water jets and scrubbed by whirling brushes.

One individual has lamented that you can put automobiles and cows through the minute wash, but nobody has yet come up with a practical, comfortable way for a fellow to scrub his own back.

POGO HAS his puce stamps, which are not being given out, so that you don't have to save them, so that you don't have to worry with premiums. The idea is so appealing that I want to form a new organization that has no name, no members, no officers, no committees, no dues, no projects, no money-raising plans, no yearbooks, no place to meet, and, principally, no meetings.

This seems an ideal time of year to get it started. If you want to join, let me know and I'll put you on the non-membership list.

Was Cuba Khrushchev's Pawn?

WASHINGTON — Sooner or later, Nikita Khrushchev's tactics in his global chess game will be revealed. What he wants now is the bigger pieces—a checkmate or victory through the dismantling of the offensive bases built up by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization on the Western perimeter of the Communist bloc states.

THE SOVIET PREMIER may have contrived the whole scheme of placing "offensive" missile bases in Cuba with the sole purpose of giving them up voluntarily, so as to be able to demand the withdrawal by the Western powers of all their "offensive" missile bases in Europe and the Middle East.

For the big unanswered question of the year is this: Why did the Soviet Union send its 40 intermediate missiles and short-range bombers to Cuba in the first place?

IF IT BE assumed that the Soviets planned a nuclear attack on this country, then some species of insanity must have suddenly swept the Kremlin. For the Moscow government all along has known that the United States has retaliatory power so massive that the people of the Soviet Union could be instantly destroyed.

The first and most important objective in the minds of the Kremlin's leaders is to weaken the West's military setup in Europe. Premier Khrushchev was quick to let President Kennedy decide for himself what were "defensive" or "offensive" weapons in Cuba. When Mr. Kennedy said the missile bases were "defensive," Mr. Khrushchev probably clapped his hands with glee. For didn't this negate all the talk about the defensive nature of weapons to be used by NATO and of the establishment of missile bases in Turkey and elsewhere? Couldn't Moscow simply declare now that the President of the United States, in dealing with the same kind of missile bases in Cuba, had said they could be used for "offensive" warfare?

TOO MANY PERSONS have concentrated their thinking on the idea that the Soviets have wanted nuclear war and nothing else. Actually, the Russians, ever since their 1917 revolution, have assiduously tried to avoid any major war. They even appeased Hitler for a while. They have preferred to stir up little wars, such as in Korea, in Southeast Asia, in the Middle East, and in the Congo. But significantly they have sent no Russian divisions into any of these conflicts. They keep them ready for a non-nuclear war in which their superior manpower could play a decisive part.

THE SOVIETS, moreover, carry on their worldwide crusade for international Communism wherever they can, in the hope of infiltrating governments everywhere, including Western Europe.

The controversy over Berlin is a good example of the tactics used. This "negotiation" has been going on for four years now. It probably will go on for the rest of the decade. Similarly, the debate over inspection of bases in Cuba has only just begun. It may go on for years.

THE ANSWER to the riddle about the original sending of Soviet missiles to Cuba may not be forthcoming until more international conferences and "summit" talks are held and the Communist demands are spelled out. Already there are hints that the West may withdraw its missiles from Turkey. Some Western diplomats are saying that the missiles there are obsolete anyway and were marked for abandonment this year, long before the Cuban crisis occurred. If that's so, maybe a gesture of "compliance with the Soviet 'generosity'" in Cuba will be forthcoming from the West, though it is probable nothing will really satisfy the Kremlin except the disintegration of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization which has been set up as a Western defense against potential Soviet aggression.

Republicans And The Negro Vote

WASHINGTON — If any serious soul-searching is going on within the Republican party over the indifferent outcome of the November 6 election and the prospect for 1964, it is taking place behind a carefully plastered facade of statements and news releases proclaiming that all is well. Or, well, as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

IN CLOSING ranks the Republicans are setting the signal successes in the governorships in Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York and Ohio over against the loss in the Senate and the failure to gain more than two seats in the House. But this does not obscure a threatened split in the facade. On one side are the newly elected Republican governors who know that national elections must be won in the big-city states. On the other is the Congressional leadership that tends to squander its resources on marginal operations in the South and in wooing the extreme right where the big money is.

IGNORING the conspiracy of silence, some outspoken critics have rushed into this breach. The young Republicans who as seniors at Harvard started the magazine "Advance" have now moved it to Washington where they continue to express the viewpoint of moderate and progressive Republicans. Besides the quarterly magazine, the editors put out a newsletter, the current one taking the form of an open letter to the Republican National Committee. The point of the letter insists that by running segregationist Republicans in the South the party is damaging if not destroying its chances of winning elections in the North.

THE LETTER points out that the Democrats in the South are putting together a steadily growing coalition of liberal and Negro voters. They are aiding the efforts of several large foundations spending $750,000 to help the Negro get the vote. This coalition may ultimately prove unbeatable, the "Advance" editors warn, "if the Republicans cooperate by taking the racist old Kennedy's hands and

They add that the Republican candidate in South Carolina "showed how it is done." He "managed to alienate" the whole Negro vote to militant segregationist Senator Olin Johnston. Running for a fourth term, Johnston was considered to be in a close race with W. D. Workman. He won by 44,782 votes out of 312,000 cast.

IN CONTRAST, the newsletter points out, George Romney exceeded Richard Nixon's percentages in Detroit's Negro wards by between seven and 10 per cent. Scathing attacks on the Kennedy Administration's record on civil rights helped William Scranton get almost double the 1960 totals in Philadelphia's Negro districts and make an 11.2 per cent improvement in the city as a whole. In New York City Governor Nelson Rockefeller and Senator Jacob Javits got over 40 per cent of the vote in Harlem which was twice the score of two years ago.

AS MANY REPUBLICANS are aware, Negro leaders, and perhaps also the rank and file are deeply dissatisfied with the record of the Kennedy Administration on civil rights. In Albany, Georgia, and other important testing grounds the feeling is that the approach has been too timid, lacking the determination and the follow-through implied in the campaign promises of 1960.

Far more than merely politics, it scarcely need be added, is involved. The problem of the two races living side by side with the promise of equal opportunity held out has become acute in recent years. To a rising generation of young Negroes this promise is coming to look like a snare and a delusion. The warning signs of frustration and hatred seem to many observers to reflect the deep resentments beneath the surface.

BUT THIS becomes properly part of the political dialogue. And that dialogue is meaningful only when the party in power is vigorously challenged. (Copyright, 1962, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Smith Slates Open Houses

Two modern homes will be on display Sunday from 1-7 p.m. during an open house being staged in Kentwood Addition and Suburban Heights by E. C. Smith Construction Co.

The Kentwood home, located at 2614 Cindy Lane, is an example of fine living in a spacious section of the city. The exterior is of Norman brick in medium tan.

As visitors enter, they will find themselves in a hallway of quarry tile. A formal living room is off to one side. The living room and all three bedrooms are dressed with nylon textured carpet.

The home contains 1 1/2 baths with ceramic tile and colored fixtures and each bath has a vanity. The entire house is trimmed in light beige to blend with the other colors.

A built-in vent hood, range and broiler, with matching double sink, are the highlights of the kitchen. It and the family room and den are all paneled in Philippine mahogany. The kitchen also has a large formica bar.

In addition to storage within the house, there is a large storage area under the double carport. Adding to the spaciousness of out-

Mastodon Fossil Found In Tarrant

FORT WORTH (AP)—An amateur geologist in suburban Richland Hills says he's found the fossilized remains of a mastodon.

Jack Bean says he believes this is proof that mastodons, an extinct form of elephant, resided in Tarrant County 35,000 to 40,000 years ago.

"If I told where it was, we would have half of Tarrant County digging up that man's property," Bean said.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—

Clifford Smith Jr., former husband of singer Helen O'Connell, told a judge how easy it is to get rid of a million dollars in 18 months.

Smith, one of the heirs to a $13-million Boston investment fortune, inherited $1,037,000 from his grandfather in 1961. He told the court he only has $4,000 of it left. At Miss O'Connell's insistence, he gave the court this accounting of money he spent after the inheritance.

A New York cooperative apartment—$135,000.

For jewels and furs for present wife—$100,000.

For cufflinks—$3,000.

Smith told Judge Mervyn A. Agel that he was willing to pay $500 a month for two daughters by his 9-year marriage to Miss O'Connell which ended in divorce in 1959. He is now paying $20,000 a year.

His request was denied.

Smith's attorney told the judge that Smith's income "is limited to a specified amount, and he cannot touch other assets held in trust."

Seago To Give Research Paper

Three students and one professor from the McMurry College physics department were invited to attend the Texas Academy of Science in Austin last Friday and Saturday, to present papers of research being done in the Abilene College.

Among them was a senior physics and mathematics major from Big Spring, Robert A. Seago. He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. H. D. Seago of Big Spring.

Seago's paper was on a simple electron spin apparatus constructed to observe electron spin resonance in ferrites. He presented the results of measurements on a few samples.

Ordinarily, the attending professors present their research papers to the Academy, while students present their research papers to the "Collegiate Academy," which is in itself a great honor. This year, however, not only were the boys asked to read their papers but were asked to present their researches to the senior academy, made up of the professors and visiting scientists.

Treasure Hunt

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)— Treasure hunters are combing the rubble of a demolished oceanfront estate, searching for negotiable fragments of paper money in denominations up to $100.
Thus far, only one piece of usable cash has been reported found —a $5 bill.

bulldozers razing the estate of William R. Taradash. The manager of the estate, J. Robert Sandercock, said the money was probably hidden by the late Mrs. Taradash. The home was built in 1929, the year the Wall Street crash occurred.

30 days for "economic crimes," Havana Radio said.
Offenses included slaughtering livestock without permission, peddling goods on the street and possessing more than 25 pounds of farm products.

'White Slave Ship' Depicts Sea Mutiny

caged in a floating black pit of horror—all journeying to a living hell of slavery in a wilderness land.

That's the ingredient of a sea adventure film, American International's "White Slave Ship," filmed in ColorScope.

Starring Pier Angeli and Edmund Purdom, "White Slave Ship" opens Thursday at the State Theatre.

"White Slave Ship" is the story of beautiful women prisoners of London's Newgate Prison in 1675 who are sold into slavery to work in England's newly developed American colonies. Caged aboard a sailing ship with them are male convicts, ranging from political prisoners to common cut-throats, who are also being shipped to involuntary servitude in the new land. How the men and women prisoners joined in a revolt against the inhuman conditions aboard ship forms the basis for the story of "White Slave Ship."

History records that prisoners in England's jails of that period were shipped across the Atlantic Ocean to be used as needed labor in the American colonies. The harsh conditions aboard ship depicted in "White Slave Ship" actually existed in many cases aboard the small and primitive sailing ships of the time.

The tale of the revolt of these men and women prisoners features romance and action, with interludes of suspense, gun battles at sea, slashing sword play and daring duels, with death or drowning in the cruel sea the penalty for a slip or mistake.

Further reality and authenticity is lent to the sea sequences, the hurricane scenes in particular, by the use of a full size and automatic replica of an actual 17th Century sailing vessel. The sea scenes were filmed on one of Italy's large-est lakes, Lago de Garda, where the world's largest water film studio is located.

Miss Angeli portrays Polly, leader of the women prisoners' revolt who is both a sentimental woman and a fiery mutiny leader.

MEASURE UP?

The standards of world leadership are changing rapidly. To hold our position in business, in science and invention and living standards, we must apply new yardsticks to higher education.

How are our higher institutions doing? Bravely—but, a crisis is looming. Colleges are in a squeeze, some face shortages. In less than 10 years there will be twice as many applicants.

To measure up in the modern world, we must keep our colleges equipped with good laboratories, modern classrooms and, above all, competent teachers.

Disney Film Tells Wolf's True Story

Walt Disney's Technicolor feature motion picture, "The Legend of Lobo," is based on a true story out of the Old West.

When the buffalo roamed over the United States from the Alleghenies to the Rockies, and from the Great Lakes to Central Mexico, their herds were followed by bands of wolves whose cunning, endurance and steel-trap jaws made them their prey.

After the last great buffalo herds were destroyed and the wolves were left without their usual support, they naturally turned their attention to the cattle and sheep on the ranges. The resulting loss of stock was appalling. In New Mexico alone, the estimated loss in 1878 was 34,000 head of cattle and 165,000 sheep. Arizona and Montana suffered even greater de-redation.

In 1880, the cattlemen declared vigorous war on wolves; traps and poison were imported in vast quantities, a bounty was offered for each wolf scalp and every inducement held out to wolf hunters. For nine years enormous numbers of wolves were killed by cattlemen and wolf hunters.

Wolves seemed to be on the verge of extinction.

Then, in 1889, new knowledge spread among the remaining wolves in an uncanny manner.
Steel traps and poison, the most effective tools of the wolf hunters, became practically useless. The wolves all at once seemed to comprehend modern dangers. The wolf hunter had to rely on his wits to kill his enemy.

During the early 1900's, wolf hunters discovered a basic weakness in their greatest enemy: This animal was completely devoted to members of his family. The rest was easy. Trap one wolf and wait in ambush for the others to come to the rescue. And so, by the 1920's, the wolf was finally eliminated from the range.

"The Legend of Lobo," set at the turn of the century, is basically a true story developed by Disney from the wolf's, not man's, point of view.

"The Legend of Lobo" was produced in color by Technicolor by Canary Productions Ltd. for Walt Disney with James Algar as co-producer for Disney. Jack Cou-ffer of Canary was field producer.

Algar and Dwight Hauser wrote the screenplay, with Rex Allen narrating the Buena Vista release.

Wolf Outfoxes Dog In Movie

Walt Disney, who usually turns out to be dog's best friend in his movies and television shows, pulls a switch in his Technicolor motion picture, "The Legend of Lobo," in which a wolf is the hero and a dog the heavy.

The wolf is Lobo, who became a legend across the great Southwest by dining on prime beef on the hoof, then leading cattlemen on wild wolf chases. The dog is an oversized Irish Wolfhound, who outclasses Lobo in the size and speed departments, but is a mile short on brains.

One of the highlights of the picture is a chase in which Lobo finally frustrates the wolfhound by scampering across a long, narrow fallen tree trunk bridging a very deep gorge. Lobo has the nerve and the wolfhound has not.

LOOKS AT BOOKS

THEM COWPOKES by Ace
Reid. Published by Ace Reid, Harper Route, Kerrville, Texas, $1.

I don't know if a collection of cowpokes cartoons will fracture anyone outside of West Texas, but I suspect it has an universal appeal. Anyone who has seen the prosaic cowboy trying to match his energies against the rigors of nature and the stern demands of the bank will find this booklet about the biggest dollar's worth of fun he ever had.

If it weren't for a sense of humor, which Ace Reid so delightfully captures, there would be years when the rancher couldn't take it or make it. Everyone can laugh at Ol' Jake trying to squeeze a few pennies out of I. M. Tufferell, the dour banker, or the agent for Hard Rock Realty Company extolling the virtues of a dust-free land; or the poor wife observing as her husband piles up dogie lambs in the kitchen that "I can tell by the smell that the water has gone to hell!"

Ace Reid was reared on a ranch near Electra and says he was 21 before he ever saw a fat cow. He had a yen to draw, and he sketched on every piece of paper in sight.
He also had a natural instinct for the dry wit that not only rules out pomposity but makes hard times bearable. You'll probably find this one at your news stand, and you'll need it for your Ace Reid collection.

"John Wilbur Chapman, The Man, His Methods and His Message," by Dr. John C.
Ramsay, $3.95, Illustrated. The Christopher Publishing House, Boston.

The Christopher Publishing House, announces the release of a new biography, "John Wilbur Chapman," by Dr. John C. Ramsay. It is fitting that, at this time when all denominations are experiencing a period of growth and expansion, Dr. John C. Ramsay should bring to us a detailed biography of one of the forerunners of modern evangelism.

For several years Dr. Ramsay served as pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Big Spring.
At the turn of the twentieth century, John Wilbur Chapman, in an effort to reawaken in people a new sense of Christian awareness, conveyed his stirring and dynamic evangelical message to society.
Organizing a group of musicians, singers, ministers and volunteer workers, he made many trips around the world, bringing his Christian message to the far corners of the earth. He achieved international acclaim, throngs flocking to hear him preach where-ever he went, and thousands of conversions being recorded after each campaign.

As Billy Graham, who has written a preface for the book, says:
"Dr. Ramsay's book will be a challenge and inspiration to those who read it. I heartily commend it to Christians everywhere."

Bermuda's first completely new stamp set in 10 years has captured the imagination of stamp collectors. The new issue, 17 denominations in all, features examples of Bermudian architecture.
Each stamp also depicts a portrait of Queen Elizabeth with the St.
Edwards crown.

Among the buildings shown on the new stamps are: old churches, Government House, City Hall, Post Office, House of Assembly, Library and Historical Society and Bermuda House.

In this new set, three new denominations have been issued to replace three lower priced stamps.
Bermuda has issued a commemorative set of six in 1959 to honor its 350th anniversary, but that was not a complete set with all denominations. This new definitive issue runs the gamut of postal prices.

Ethiopia, which traces its Im-ba, has announced an annual series of stamps to commemorate men and women prominent in their nation's history. The first series, honoring the 32nd anniversary of the coronation of Emperor Haile Selassie, consists of seven stamps.

The 10 cents honors Bazen, who ruled from 7 B.C. to 10 A.D. The 15 cents is for Ezana, who ascended the throne around 325 A.D. The 20 cents pays a tribute to Ka-

Safe Holiday Being Urged

Webb AFB officials will initiate the base's "1962 Operation Home-Safe" Dec. 1, hoping to maintain the current string of four consecutive seasons without a single reportable accident during the Christmas season. Base personnel are expected to surpass the more than one million miles driven during the Christmas-New Year's holidays last season. All who took leave last year returned to Webb safely.

"Operation HomeSafe" is a project of driving safety practiced throughout the Air Training Command during the holiday season. All Webb personnel are counseled on the hazards of holiday driving. Project officer this year is Lt.

Col. Jack H. Crawford, assisted by Wieland Brown, Wing Ground Safety officer. They will be aided by project officers within each group and tenant unit.

Emphasis will be on driving safety. Statistics indicate the majority of military personnel involved in private vehicle accidents are one-car accidents, attributed to fatigue and distraction.

Another point of safety officials was that most of the accidents occur within 25 miles of the driver's destination.

The operation includes all types of accidents. Winter sports play a big part in injury statistics in skiing, skating, sledding and other winter pastimes.

Decorations and holiday trimmings, in addition to adding to the season's color and gaiety, add to the list of holiday hazards. Faulty wiring, overloaded electrical circuits, bad connections and makeshift additions crop up each year to claim their toll.

Legislators' Addresses, Profits Are Discussed

To the Editor:

This letter is a postscript to my first letter about displaying in the U.S. Postoffices the names and addresses of Washington legislators.

If a person wishes to write a senator (from Texas), his address is The Honorable John Tower or Ralph Yarborough, United States Senate, Washington 25, D.C.

The address for the representative is The Honorable George Mahon, United States House of Representatives, Washington 25, D.C. Other congressmen may be reached at the same address.

Thank you for printing this information.

My conclusion is regardless of how much capital made available through profits, businessmen will not invest unless we have consumers who can and will buy the product. Only then can he make a profit.

Drive Nears Member Goal

The Lone Star Boy Scout district stands to be the first in the Buffalo Trail Council to reach its membership goals for this year.

Wm. T. McRee, Scout executive, said that the district is within four boys of having as much membership as it had at the close of 1961. It lacks only 81 boys of reaching the goals it had established for itself.

"If everyone of our 55 units will recruit at least two boys between now and the end of the year," he said, "we can go over the top. If we get real busy, we can be the first in the council to accomplish this."

The latest figures show the district with 631 Cubs (the younger boys), which is just 29 short of the goal. There are 518 Scouts, which is 47 below the target for the year. Explorers number 175, a mere five boys from the goal.

"Actually, said McRee, "If our units would wrap up the prospects they have immediately, we could come close to announcing at the annual district banquet on Thursday that we have reached the goal."

Zale's Acquires 20-Store Chain

Duval Jewelers of Florida has joined the Zale Jewelry Company, it was announced Saturday by officials of both companies. The 20 Duval stores, which extend from Jacksonville as far south as Miami, will be operated as a separate division of Zale's.

"With the 20 Duval stores spread throughout the state in 16 major markets, we fully expect to be in a good position for further development into other key cities," remarked Zale President Ben A. Lipsky, Dallas.

"The Duval stores will add 'several million dollars' to Zale's annual volume," Lipsky said. The addition gives Zale's 291 stores in 34 states. Officials hope to reach 200 stores by March 31, end of the fiscal year.

MEN IN SERVICE

Army Sgt. Lester A. Roberts, 26, of Lamesa, was among 2,500 personnel involved when the 23rd Infantry's 1st Battle Group recently participated in readiness tests at Fort Richardson, Alaska. A graduate of Big Spring High School, Specialist Faubion entered the Army in March, 1959. After completing basic training he served in Korea for two years before being transferred to Austin.
