BRAZIL MAKES GOOD ON THREAT TO LEAGUE

SOUTH AMERICAN NATION RESIGNS SEAT IN COUNCIL

LEAGUE NOW FACES NEW SERIOUS CRISIS AT GENEVA

SPAIN MAY QUIT ACTION CLEARS WAY FOR GERMAN ENTRY, HOWEVER

By HENRY WOOD United News Staff Correspondent GENEVA, June 10.—Brazil has made good her threat to resign from the league of nations council and Spain has delivered a similar threat to withdraw if she is not given a permanent council seat.

The league again faces a serious crisis. It is confronted with such possibilities as complete withdrawal of Brazil and Spain from the league, a stronger union of American nations and a body blow at its prestige as an international organization.

Brazil's resignation from the council was contained in a message from President Bernardes at Rio de Janeiro. A hint of similar action by the Madrid government from Queroubo, the Spanish delegate, had preceded its receipt.

The action of Brazil and Spain seems to have cleared the last obstacle against Germany's admission to the league in September. Statement of regret over the threatened action of Spain were made by leading members of the council prior to its adjournment.

Girls of Future to Be "Boyish Type," Round Faced and Corsetless

Women of the future will be of the "boyish type" and extraordinarily slender until at least middle age, if one may place credence in the theories of scientists. This, it is said, will be because of flat-chested and round-faced.

An interesting theory, but unimportant to the woman of today who is gazing fearfully at the encroachment of years, reflected, as it too often is, in an ever-expanding waistline.

It is tragic but true that a great many of us begin to acquire excess physical baggage as we grow older, especially, and this is not to be taken uncharitably, the women folks.

Dieting, as everyone knows, is the best means of reducing. But one must go at dieting carefully. That's where most persons fail. They go on a diet which would starve a sparrow, or else diet one day and delve in the fleshpots the next.

As an aid to the woman who is reducing the following tested recipes will be of value in varying her menus.

Plaits Used as Trimming are needed to develop this model, but it is so chic that it is appropriate for almost any occasion.

The dress is fashioned upon straight lines, being slightly fitted into the figure above the waistline. A pretty idea is to add a wash at the back, the ends of the wash being held down at the underarm seams with tiny fancy buttons.

At the lower edge of the skirt are two ruffles of self-material, laid in fine plaits. The upper edges of the ruffles are stitched to the skirt, then turned over, to avoid adding a heading or other dash. The lower ruffle is spaced about two inches from the edge of the skirt.

Plaited taffeta is used for the lower sections of the sleeves, the vest and the collar. To make plaittings for the inserts, crease and pin the plaits at one edge, as at A. Then, following a thread of the taffeta across, pin them on the opposite edge, as at B. Back across the plaits at each side as C, removing the pins as the fastening progresses. The plaits should be pressed lengthwise.

Even the narrow wristband into which the sleeves are gathered is plaited. It may be trimmed with buttons, if preferred, and buttons may be added to the base of the V-shaped front and either side of the collar. If buttons are used to augment the color scheme, it is best to have them in contrasting color. There are many beautiful novelties in buttons this season which enhance the beauty of dress trimmings.

INCREASED MEMBERSHIP OF WELLINGTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE CELEBRATED BY HUGE LUNCHEON SPREAD MONDAY EVENING

WELLINGTON, June 10.—The Wellington Chamber of Commerce in its membership rally campaign broke all records for membership. The committee's turning in a total of 201 new members.

As a climax to the membership rally a great banquet was spread Monday evening, with some of Texas and Oklahoma most noted men in attendance. The feed was spread on long improvised tables in a garage, which is one of the largest buildings in this section of the state. It was a real Methodist dinner with fried chicken and all the trimmings. Following the invocation by Rev. Uden Hodges, pastor of the Wellington Baptist church, an address was made by Victor Schoffeleymayor, of Dallas, Manager of the Dallas News "More Cotton On Fewer Acres Contest."

Schoffeleymayor stressed the fact that the counties of Texas were increasing their cotton acreage more rapidly than they are increasing the number of bales of cotton, and plead with the business men and the farmers to get behind the movement of producing more cotton on fewer acres, and intensifying the land raising more poultry, more hogs, more dairy cattle, more feed stuff and live more at home. Schoffeleymayor spoke early and before the feed, on account of having to leave the city on an early train.

Telegrams of inability to attend were read from H. J. Adair, Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce, Jasper Pendleton, Altus, Oklahoma Chamber of Commerce, W. D. McCoy and Frank E. Clarity of the Fort Worth & Denver Railway, Fort Worth, Max Bentley and Amos G. Carter of the Fort Worth Star Telegram, Lee Bivins, Mayor of Amarillo, John Boswell, Joe Taylor, and George Dealey of Dallas, O. C. Goodwin and Lindsey Nunn, Amarillo. Probably no banquet held in the Panhandle this year has been so largely attended by newspaper men, besides the men of the fourth estate from the towns of this area. The Dallas News and the Amarillo News were represented by staff correspondents.

E. S. Shoaf, served as toastmaster, and in opening told of the wonderful developments of Wellington and Collingsworth county in the past few years, and of its fine churches, its great schools and its stately homes, and of the $60,000 sewerage system which is now being completed, and also stressed the fact that before the first of September that natural gas would be piped in every Wellington home.

Inserts with red lettering printed on white were laid at each plate inviting the guests to attend the Collingsworth County Fair, "The Fair Worth While."

Judge Clinton C. Small, Mayor of Wellington was introduced as the man with more titles than the crown prince, and as the man that Wellington is putting forth as the logical candidate for vice-president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Judge Small made the welcome address and extended an invitation to the outside world to visit Wellington "The City of Unlimited Possibilities."

The Wellington Chamber of Commerce band which had rendered many delightful numbers during the meal, played "Calif. Of Ralldad" which is one of the numbers which will be rendered at the band concert at Amarillo in June. This number was rendered so perfectly that the rafters of the building shook with applause.

The Clarendon Chamber of Commerce through its secretary, A. T. Holcomb, congratulated Wellington on its many civic improvements, and its ability to secure a vast amount of new members to its organization.

Col. Jack White brought greetings from Hollis, Okla., and the sooner state. C. G. Willie of Quanah, was introduced as one of Quanah's big chiefs. Wiley spoke briefly of the great development of the Panhandle and assured his hearers that town co-operation was the kind of co-operation that it took to put things over. Toast Master Shoaf in introducing band Master M. Lindsey stated that Lindsey had composed a march which had been dedicated to the Wellington Chamber of Commerce, and that this march had been chosen as the official march of the Chamber of Commerce and that with in a short while would be published and presented to every band in Texas, as the new march has been named "Wellington is calling you." Memphis was represented by a large delegation and George Sager speaking for Memphis pledged the co-operation of his town at all times to its sister city Wellington.

L. E. Sheffy of Canyon, who for many years was a teacher in Wellington spoke briefly.

The principal address of the evening was made by Dr. J. A. Hill, President of the West Texas State Teachers College at Canyon. Dr. Hill's address bristled with eloquence as he pled for a better relation between the town and surrounding country, he brought out the fact that the most important things that a town or country produced was its boys and girls and that the Chamber of Commerce was an important organization as it fostered not only movements for better agricultural, but for better living conditions, and better civic improvements and stood for square back of all movements to better education for boys and girls for the men and women of tomorrow. Dr. Hill's address was received with tremendous applause throughout, and as he closed the band played Dixie and the audience went wild.

In closing Shoaf thanked the visitors of Oklahoma and Texas Panhandle for their attendance and for their co-operation and extended thanked to the citizenship for their cooperation in making the banquet possible, more than four-hundred ladies of the Methodist church servers were in attendance. The end of the banquet.

Eucharist Meet Swamp Chicago To Amarillo

CHICAGO, June 10.—The huge task of accommodating four million people with facilities that occasionally sag under their normal load of 3,000,000 is causing some close figuring here now that the first of the pilgrims to the International Eucharistic congress are beginning to arrive. The congress opens formally June 30, but the vanguard of catholic dignitaries may lay delegates indicates that the attendance will run well over a million and the native Chicagoan is wondering whether he will have to stay at home during the meeting to make room for the visitors.

LONGHORN PROF HAS VARIED HISTORY

UDDEN HAS BEEN SCIENTIST, NEWSPAPER MAN, AND AUTHOR

AUSTIN, Tex., June 10.—In addition to being a world famous geologist, Dr. J. A. Udden, director of the Bureau of Economic Geology of the University of Texas, has had an interesting career as could be found. He has engaged in many lines of work besides his chosen profession as a geologist, and has enjoyed and succeeded in all of them. Knight of the Order of the North Star, scientist, newspaper, teacher, author of one hundred and three bulletins on geological and astronomical subjects—there are unique features of the career of Dr. Udden. Comparatively few people know, however, that the genial director of the University bureau of economic geology and technology is entitled to sign himself Sir Johan August Udden, A. B., Ph. D., Sc. D., should be chosen.

Dr. Udden is perhaps the only member of the University faculty who has been knighted by a king and is one of the few men in the United States to have been thus honored for scientific achievements. In 1911, while he was occupying the Oscar II chair of natural history at Augustana College in Rock Island, Illinois, Dr. Udden was knighted by King Oscar II of Sweden through the Swedish consul, in recognition of his distinguished work as a scientist and an educator. He was decorated with the Order of the North Star, an honor accorded by Swedish monarchs to men of merit who have achieved unusual distinction in some field of endeavor. Only about twenty men in the entire United States have had this honor bestowed on them.

While not a native American, Dr. Udden has spent most of his life in this country. Born in Lekasa, Sweden, in 1859, he was brought when a baby to Carver, Minnesota, where his youth was spent.

"All my life, I have been interested in geology," said Dr. Udden. "I took up the work when I was a boy, just because I wanted to. Shortly after my graduation from Augustana College in 1881, I began teaching geology, zoology, and botany at Bethany College in Linsburg, Kansas. I was professor of natural history there for eight years."

It was while teaching in Bethany

College that Dr. Udden did his newspaper work. In addition to his pedagogical duties, he edited two county papers, serving several thousand readers.

"I liked newspaper work very much indeed," said Dr. Udden, "but I found it too hard to do in connection with other work. I took up journalism only as a side issue, I was teaching all the time. Sometimes I wish I were teaching yet because I always enjoyed it."

After leaving Bethany College, Dr. Udden taught at Augustana College for 23 years, from 1888 to 1911. In 1900 he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy from Augustana College and has since been accorded two honorary degrees of Doctor of Science, one in 1921 from Bethany College and the other in 1923 from Texas Christian University at Fort Worth.

"My first public work," the scientist confided, "was the preparation of a geological section through the state of Illinois from Rock Island to Chicago, a distance of about 240 miles. This map was exhibited at the World Fair held at St. Louis in 1904. Later I did a good deal of work with geological surveys in Illinois and Iowa."

Dr. Udden first became connected with the University of Texas in 1903 when he helped make a mineral survey of portions of West Texas assisting Dr. W. B. Phillips who was then head of the University bureau of geology. More than ten years later, Dr. Udden accepted a position as a member of the University faculty and in 1915 assumed the office he still holds, director of the Bureau of Economic Geology and Technology.

"The chief function of the bureau," he explained, "is to make a geological survey of the whole state in order to show just where is located the natural resources and vast mineral wealth of Texas. For such a big state, this is an enormous task. So far only fourteen counties have been completely mapped, and it will be many years before the entire state can be completely surveyed. The mineral resources of Texas almost unlimited. The geological maps which we are making will help prospectors to locate and develop this natural wealth for the benefit of people of the state."

HEREFORD BOY MAKES MAIZE RECORD

HEREFORD, June, 10.—Ulys Pierce, club boy of the West Way community, made a record last year with pure maize seed and proved to the people of Deaf Smith county that seed selection is an important thing for farmers. Last year young Pierce selected a five acre plot of ground as his club project. On half of this he planted pure maize seed which he secured from County Agent R. O. Dunkle. On the other two and a half acres he planted common maize seed that was selected from his crib. Both plots were planted at the same time. The preparation of the soil and the cultivation was the same on both tracts. Pierce threshed 77 bushels per acre, making a difference of 40 bushels between the two kinds of seed. He has sold most of the pure maize at a fair price for planting purposes and intends to use pure seed on a much larger scale in the future.

What Our Neighbors Are Doing

"I'm pleased to tell," says Joe Warnell, "that my wheat looks mighty nice—now all I've got to worry about is what's going to be the price; and just for fear it aint very dear when threshing time comes around, I'm building a bin to store it in—I've been holdin' my ear to the ground. This year I'm in a hurry to sell; I may be right or be wrong, but one thing I know, if my name is still Joe, I'll have wheat when the neighbors have none."

"It takes nine months to raise the crop, why sell it all in a week, they don't need the flour from ALL the grain, till next spring when it isn't so cheap. But I do need my team on the fields to fix the ground for the following crop, and I figure it won't hurt the wheat to wait for hauling when it isn't so hot. So load me some lumber that's branded Long-Bell—think I've got all day to talk? I've got to get back and build that shack 'for ethe Combines begin to balk."

TRUE GREATNESS—"The Lord God of your fathers make you a thousand times so many more as ye are, and bless you, as he hath promised you!" Deut. 1:11.

THE QUESTIONING SPIRIT

The questioning spirit that possesses the youth of today should not be criticized or condemned. True, youth is skeptical and more or less inclined to be irreverent of all their elders have unquestioningly accepted and revered; they do not accept the opinions and dictations of these older folk, as once was the case. "Why, why, why?" they ask; and when we have answered, ten chances to one they will look at our answer askance or with blatant disbelief. The eyes of youth are clear and penetrating. We fail to impress youth because its clear gaze penetrates our pretense, our nice little fabric of lies that we have woven about the circumstance of existence for our own delusion. When we parade our prettied-up shams it shouts, "Lies, lies, lies," and laughs in derision. And rightly so. There is more sham and nasty-nice pretense in life than you can shake a stick at. Why not take youth into our confidence and admit it? Why not say, "Sure, we know there's something wrong with the thing; but it's like all other heirlooms, not quite adaptable to our needs and yet too good to discard altogether." To tell the exact truth, of course, is to admit that we older folks haven't had the requisite courage to come right out and defy sentiment in that way, but we have yet to realize that the direct, truthful way is the only way we can deal with our youth of today. They insist upon all the unlovely facts. Youth adores a show-down and a frank admission of fault; thus it would probably respond to honest talk with a ready grin and would work with us instead of against us. But instead of doing that we persist in our archaic notions of everything, stick doggedly to myths and fairy tales, while the younger generation goes about, experimenting, asking a thousand questions, trying to find out the real truth. The youth of today is the middle age of tomorrow and the world of tomorrow will be a better, more advanced world because of the inquisitive interest of youth.

HOME EDUCATION DECLINES

Schools are a comparatively recent development in education. In our earlier civilization children learned by taking part in the labors of their elders; in this manner they learned also to conduct tribal affairs and to engage in arts and crafts. But when increasing cultural accumulations could not be adequately managed in this incidental fashion, schools, in a very primitive form, were born. From that time forward, bit by bit, training once carried on in the home has been delegated to the schools until home education is practically non-existent. The result has been to more and more thoroughly divorce the child's interest in the home, until today we are aghast at the lightness with which the bonds of home and family relations are regarded. And the solution is far from simple, for the process of turning certain departments of education back into the home will be long and difficult, if possible at all. Parents have found it so convenient to delegate their duties to others that it will take considerable persuasion to get them again to assume this responsibility. But until children are again trained in the home in the duties and pleasures of home making, we cannot hope to create in them a deep realization of being an integral unit of home and family.

THE UNITED STATES

After 150 years of independent existence, the United States, once thirteen struggling colonies, is now a vast and flourishing nation in the full flood-tide of world supremacy. There are larger nations but the fact remains that there is no one nation which can dispute today with the United States in wealth and power. Even statistically considered, and these statistics leave entirely too much to the imagination, this superiority is most impressive. We produce 71 per cent of the world's cotton; 70 per cent of its crude oil; 59 per cent of its copper; 48 per cent of its lead; 50 per cent of its coal; 52 per cent of its timber; 52 per cent of its pig iron; 80 per cent of its automobiles; 40 per cent of its water power and so on down the list. But our foreign investments are increasing by leaps and bounds and already have placed us in a position where we must protect these individual loans. It is this that most often leads an otherwise peaceful nation into wars. For the most part our fate still rests in our own hands, but the same hands now hold in them the fate of millions of others to whom the United States is but name. What our relations to these millions shall be, whether of cooperation or of strife, of sullen exploitation or friendly rivalry; whether the path we tread is to be marked by mistakes or wisdom; whether the power that is ours is wisely used or wantonly misused, will depend on the people of the United States.

DEMOCRACY REJECTED

Democracy is losing its grip in Europe; it is giving way to military dictatorship. Italy has its Mussolini, Spain its de Rivera, Greece, its Pangalos, Poland its Pilsudski and now Portugal its Cabesadas. In Rumania there seems to be a disposition to accept dictatorship, and in Lithuania the army is in virtual control of the government. Only the shadow of democracy remains in these countries and they may join the militarist procession in a few days. France has been considering a dictatorship, and a powerful undercurrent is at work along the same line in Germany. Russia seems to be getting along with extreme democracy. With Egypt, India, Syria and part of Asia at the boiling point the European situation is even worse today than before the world war. America did what she could to make democracy safe in the world but the world evidently does not want it. The American principal of the right of self-determination remains, however, and from that viewpoint the United States has no quarrel with any of its neighbors, and refuses to attempt to jam down their throats something they don't like. Meanwhile the propaganda for a union of England and America to rule the world by force, if necessary, is being vigorously prosecuted.

THE BRITISH COME-BACK

Just the other day Americans rather felt that the British Empire was falling to pieces. The general strike was going to paralyze Great Britain. That would mean quick and sure decay for the mother country, and the transfer to the dominions whatever of real British energy survived. Well, poor old England pulled through miraculously, as she usually does. And then, first thing we know, Americans were rubbing their eyes at the announcement that the British pound sterling had gone above par, and was worth more than our dollar in international change. British money better than American; it was unthinkable.

Luck had something to do with this development, of course. The superiority of the British pound will be temporary. Natural causes will bring it back to parity with the dollar. But even so, this British finance and industry and the vigor of the sudden triumph showed the essential soundness of British economic system. Our English friends have been building strongly and well since the war. Against great odds, they have fought financially as they fought militarily, facing facts without flinching. England is not through yet, by a long shot.

"MONEY IS THE ROOT OF ALL EVIL"

This slander on a good servant is the result of a careless quotation. The Apostolic Paul said, "The love of money is the root of all evil."

There is a vast difference between the inordinate love of money and the possession of wealth, which is wisely used for the advancement of humanity.

It was the Rockefeller millions that established the Rockefeller Institute with researchers in all corners of the globe making invaluable knowledge available to the humblest man.

It was the Carnegie millions that erected libraries in hundreds of American cities, built the Hague Peace Palace and supported scores of humanitarian efforts.

Without money the universities, art museums, libraries, research laboratories, symphony orchestras and experimental research would be impossibility.

We are accustomed to inveigh against "big business," assuming that big business is bad business because it is big.

But big corporations have well lighted factories, safety devices, sanitary protection and efficiency standards. The sweatshop and the wage slave is a product of little business.

Money is a good servant which can be sent on errands of mercy and healing. Money has no mind of its own. It obeys orders. It follows instructions. It reflects the mind of its owner.

Money will make smooth the ways of peace, beautify the world we live in, purchase beauty and opportunity.

Loving money for its own sake is spiritual death. The good servant becomes the bad master. But money remains innocent. The evil that money works is only the fruitage of misplaced love.

UNCLE SAM IN THE ARCTIC

There was much discussion last year of using Uncle Sam's big dirigible, Los Angeles, for an Arctic exploring trip, and public sentiment seemed to favor the project. The proposal has come up again lately, with the sudden fervor of polar voyaging that started with Lieut. Byrd's flight. But most people now will probably agree with Secretary Wilbur that it is better not to use the Los Angeles for such a purpose at this time. Apparently there is plenty of exploring being done in the Arctic region now by private enterprise, or with the moderate assistance of our own and other governments. A dozen expeditions are already under way. The Arctic Ocean is going to be raked fore and aft and crosswise this spring and summer until there will be in all probability, little left for discovery. When that task is being so thoroughly handled without him, Uncle Sam can very well devote his attention and his limited supply of dependable aircraft to other fields. Amundsen's experience has shown the peril to dirigibles in the Far North. It will be time enough for expensive federal adventures around the Pole when this country has attained a moderate surplus of air power.

The Great Political Sideshow

So Think We

We think that the West Texas Chamber of Commerce should decide to cut out all the entertainment features of the convention and have just a group of representative men from the various chambers of commerce, delegates in proportion to the memberships the towns hold in the organization, and transact business through that medium. Its too big this way.

We think the faithful group around the square will compose the special train to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention, but there is one thing certain that the old tighties who have never paid anything before in their life to help boost the town will have to help send the band.

We think when that fellow said that heaven helped those who help themselves did not refer to the shoplifter. Or the modern grocery shoppers.

We think one reason that Rockefeller does not worry is that he has a son to look after his business and plenty of money to meet his bills.

We think the West Texas Chamber of Commerce has been a great factor in the development of this part of the state, and its organization is very helpful, and has done much for Lubbock.

We think that Lubbock must either go forward or backward. There is no such thing as sitting still. There is much that the people of this city should do to make it a progressive city.

We think the reason that Lubbock is sure to go forward is because nearly every citizen here can talk the English language and that makes it more congenial.

We think Lubbock had the highest type of citizenship, and that makes it a mighty fine place in high to live.

We think the negative citizen is one of the most useless things that the town can have within its borders.

We think it is not enough to just refrain from doing evil things but its better to do some good things.

We think that the idle man does not only does not accomplish much but is one long-drawn-out mistake. Though he may possibly be harmless he is nothing short of a perambulating incarnate blunder.

We think that if you are an average man that the world depends mostly upon you.

We think that if it were possible for some people to live 9,999 years that they still would not be members of the chamber of commerce when they finally did kick off.

We think that there is no such a thing as a white lie, unless it is a white man that tells it.

We think that if the average doctor does not know any more about the internals of an automobile, the grave yards would be as crowded as the used car sales rooms.

It Is Reported

That there was a "street preacher" arrested at O'Donnell for preaching on the street. We do not think that a man should be arrested for preaching the gospel of Jesus Christ anywhere or at any time, but the trouble with most of the street preachers is that they do not put out that kind of menu, and merely unload a lot of fanatical stuff, that is not backed up by the gospel, and does not mean a thing in the world when it comes to the saving of souls from a burning hell.

That there is not a building in Lubbock that is big enough to hold the people that will want to hear Dan Moody speak when he comes here on the 19th. There was not a place that would accommodate the crowds that wanted to hear Lynch Davidson. There is a great need for a large auditorium that will take care of the crowds.

It is reported that giant birds will take the place of men on earth some day, according to a French savant. They may be right, for there are some "birds" around there who seem to try to take everything in their hands anyway.

That the road between here and Slaton is going to be graded and put in good shape soon. Wonder what the Slaton Times will have to gripe about then.

It is reported that Lubbock has very good roads in every direction except toward Slaton. There must be a reason.

It is reported that two negroes were seen sitting on the curb Thursday morning playing dice.

A Little Talk on Thrift

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift

"Save in order that you may spend wisely."

Sir Robert M. Kindersley, President of the National Savings committee of England, has given us this excellent epigram, which so aptly expresses the true spirit of real thrift. The continual preaching of savings—the continual harping on the one thought, Save! Save!—without regard to the other great constructive elements of thrift, has been ill-advised. This is true here and it is true in England as the head of the savings organization, which did such splendid work in promoting England's wartime thrift, has pointed out.

"We never preach savings for savings' sake," he says. "In my opinion the reason why the English as a whole were not a very saving nation (I do not refer to Scotland) was this: that people would teach what they called thrift. They simply said to the people 'Save! Save!' Those who study European affairs know that there are certain countries where saving becomes almost a vice, and simply turns itself into hoarding, which instead of being an advantage to the state, is a disadvantage. Our gospel, is not a gospel of simple saving—it is a creative gospel, a gospel of wise spending."

It is worth saying over and over again that the people of the United States are not as much in need of being imbued with the spirit of saving as with knowledge of the correct use of money, time and energy. The growing tide of deposits in our savings banks and in our school banks, testifies to the fact that, as a whole, we are becoming a saving nation. But the loss of more than one billion dollars a year through frauds of various kinds—which means the regular sweeping away of the savings of millions of people—shows that we are very much in need of a better understanding of how to use our savings.

Let us understand that there is just as much virtue in spending wisely as in saving.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

TEN DOLLAR GOLF HOSE

I am no Walter Hagen, but I drive and pitch and try to put; I can not play like Bobby Jones, My game produces countless groans, I am a golfer, I suppose, But I don't wear ten-dollar hose.

"Now gaze on these," the store man said— A pair of hose in gray and red. "There's nothing like them made on earth For durability and worth. These stockings are the final word." They were the loudest I have heard.

"Listen one moment, now" said he, "These stockings have a history, The sheep on which this wool was grown, A king in Europe used to own, And Robert Bruce, I am informed,

In hose like these, his ankles warmed.

"Unless my memory sadly fails The still unmarried Prince of Wales When golfing garters round his knees A pair of stockings just like these." Said I: "Twere shame to shove my toes Through royal and historic hose.

"The Prince of Wales wears these? He can! The Prince is not a married man!" "Behold, how truly these are made!" "They all look bad when once they're frayed."

"Ten-dollar hose, Serve your pride!" "My game's not worth it," I replied.

HUBBERS WALLOP PLAINVIEW INDEPENDENTS HERE 13 to 2

HARD HITTING HUBBER LINE-UP GET TO "LEFTY" HOLMES FOR SEVENTEEN BLOWS AND CHALK UP THIRTEEN RUNS YESTERDAY

The same story shall have to be related in the Hubber clash with the Plainview that has been told in all of the other games in which the Hubbers have worked, that is, they are yet undefeated with the wallowing victory over the Plainview nine here yesterday afternoon at the Merrell park by a score of 13 to 2. This is the Hubber's tenth straight go. The Hubbers cracked "Lefty" Holmes to every corner yesterday collecting a total of 17 safe blows, several of which were doubles and singles.

Not a bobble was chalked against the Hubber nine yesterday—it was a perfect day for the locals in fielding. However, not so much can be said of the visitors as four mark in the error column.

"Red" Gaither, flashy outfielder, has settled his eye on the ball and is merrily upping with his batting average getting three hits out of four trips, a double and two singles. "Red" Hamilton also rapped three for four in yesterday's tilt.

"Don" Anderson, fleetly outfielder of the Hubber nine, appeared in the Lubbock line-up for the first time yesterday and was every anxious to do his duty, fielding the center garden in a neat and graceful manner.

The next contest for the Hubbers will be in Lamesa on Sunday, when they meet the Dawson County's hardest aggregation.

Rix-Baker Get Close - Shaves For 6 to 2

It was too many close shaves for the Barbers yesterday evening at Merrill park when they met up with the Rix-Baker nine and were defeated with a score of 6 to 2.

The Rix-Baker nine got to Ernest Karr, the short, heavy set barber for only two bingles, and Norton Baker was credited with both these blows. Eight strike outs were given E. Karr in five innings.

The whisker-getters were seemingly out of practice—rather not in practice as plays came up that caused unnecessary runs and thus lost them the game.

Sherrod-Myrick Tight With Bankers

In one of the best games of the city league season the dealers of hardware, the Sherrod-Myrick nine, defeated the money changers by a score of 6 to 5 in a fast game. Raley, Sherrod-Myrick moundman, was at his best and swept through the batting order of the cash lads for 8 strike outs.

Smith, the fast money handler, however, turned five of the hardware peddler batters away in five frames in which he worked.

Errorless ball marked its first chapter in the city league in this game when the five sessions were up the error line of the hardware men was missed. Playing airtight ball behind heavy hitting gave the Sherrod-Myrick the lead over the bankers.

AMERICAN GOLF PROS DISQUALIFIED

FORMBY, England, June 10.—Abrupt disqualification of two American professionals, Jim Barnes and Joe Kirkwood, because they were late for their starting time in the north of England championship, has caused an unpleasant commotion in golfing circles.

The Americans protested vigorously, and the incident is being discussed even more than the victory of George Gadd, of Rochampton, who limped through the final round with a displaced bone in his foot.

YOUNG STRIBLING TRIES WRESTLING, THROWS BERLENBACH OUT OF RING, BUT LOSES DECISION ON BOXING

By FRANK GETTY
United News Staff Correspondent
YANKEE STADIUM, NEW YORK, June 10.—Paul Berlenbach of Astoria, retained his light heavyweight championship with ease in Yankee stadium Thursday night almost making a punching bag out of the vastly over rated challenger, young Stribling of Georgia. The 15 round fight was a walkover for the title holder, who only difficulty was in making the southern boy fight. Stribling, easily Paul's master as a boxer, wilted under Berlenbach's body blows early in the contest and thereafter did nothing but dive into clinches, hanging on and trying to wrestle Paul through the ropes. Once he was usually did dump the champion out into the press box, but this came in the fourteenth round, when Berlenbach had piled up such a big lead on points that nothing mattered.

The champion won eight of the 15 rounds; Stribling having the edge in the second and fifth only.

For a time up until the sixth, it looked as though the challenger might make a fight of it, but once the full force of Paul's mighty left hand began to take its toll, Stribling had enough to do to protect himself.

Round One
Paul put a left left to Stribling as they met in mid ring. Berlenbach landed a left to the ear and another to the body. Stribling jumped in with a light left to the face. Paul hooked a left to the head, but Stribling was covered up and brought down his right to the back of Paul's neck. The champion took the aggressive and forced Stribling around the ring, but in the fighting Stribling was better. Paul sank his left to the stomach and Stribling smashed home two over hand rights to the head. The round was about even.

Round Two
Stribling rushed in and tried to wrestle. Paul landed a left to the heart. Stribling put two hard lefts to the head. The Georgia boy was making Paul look foolish as a boxer. Paul landed a left to the side of Stribling's head and the crowd booed as Stribling wrestled. The challenger was warned for holding. He kept dancing away and suddenly ripped a right to the body. Stribling blocked a left to the body and had the better of the round.

Round Three

Stribling landed two lefts to the face. Paul put two lefts to the body which made Stribling wince. Stribling put a right to the jaw. The champion punished stribling at close quarters and made him dance away. Stribling hooked a right to the body. Berlenbach kept younding away with his left, Stribling blocking most of the blows. Stribling missed a right uppercut and Paul chased him around the ring. The champion had

HELEN WILLS PERFECT IN MUSCULAR DEVELOPMENT, SAY SURGEONS; SHE HAS CALM NERVE UNDER KNIFE

BY RALPH HEINZEN
United News Staff Correspondent

Copyright 1926 by United News
HELEN WILLS, of Berkeley, Calif., is the finest specimen of girlhood ever seen by Dr. Thierry De Marel, the greatest surgeon in France, who operated upon the American tennis champion for appendicitis only six days ago.

perfect specimen of girlhood, one whom all women of the world could wisely copy.

"Her moderate life, her quiet temper and her devotion to sport have made her body remarkable," the surgeon continued.

"Only such a girl could carry an infected appendix for such a time as she did, and play tennis under such circumstances."

"Dr. De Marel, who operated upon as many as 15 persons a day, told me he never before found the equal of Miss Wills. It is exceedingly rare even among men that such harmonious development of body muscles is found."

The two surgeons examined Miss Wills' heart and lungs and found them perfect, Dr. Marel said.

"Like her whole body, they were marvelous," he added.

"She is a splendid example of what sport can do for women. It should encourage all girls to do two things: First, select some sport and play at it moderately; second, seek to cultivate such excellent calmness as hers, which is largely responsible for her quick recovery."

"Miss Wills' excellent physical condition and morale enabled her to dress and walk around her room in the American hospital this afternoon," said the physician enthusiastically.

Dr. Murel now predicts that the Californian will be playing tennis again within four weeks.

Dr. Gabriel Marange, who assisted exclusive interview with the United News Thursday night that Miss Wills' unusual muscular development permitted the removal of an appendix for the first time in the history of French surgery—possibly of the world—without cutting the abdominal muscles.

"When Dr. De Marel had made an incision one inch deep and found no fat whatever, he was able to pry aside the right abdominal muscle and reach the appendix underneath, whereas customarily a surgeon is obliged to make a horizontal incision in this muscle," his colleague explained.

Helen Wills' "poker face" came in for more enthusiastic comment from the French physicians.

"You're Miss Wills not only is a wonderful athlete," said Dr. Marange. "She is undoubtedly one of the calmest characters in the world. This has enabled her to convalesce at record speed."

"Whereas ordinarily only the best patients rise on the tenth or twelfth day after such an operation, Miss Wills ate heartily of chicken on the fourth day and rose this afternoon, walking about her room without danger or pain."

"She is physically a 100 per cent afternoon session upon the grass beside the lake under the shade of the trees which surround the lake."

The directors authorized the advertising committee to let a contract to the Groggin Sign company to mark the trail each mile and at cross roads for a sum of $250. They also authorized the committee to have fifteen large signs erected along the trail giving the mileage to the towns both ways. These signs will be erected at a cost of $300.

Directors from each town reported on road conditions in his part of the trail and gave reports on proposed construction and road improvement programs.

Hamilton Wright, secretary of the association reported that the official guide books are off the press and have been distributed over the entire trail and to every tourist bureau in the Southwest.

"We've all got to work together and get the Lubbock link of the trail designated and hard surfaced," W. K. Dickinson stated last night.

"Lubbock county is further behind in road construction than any West Texas county and if we want to get the benefits of the tourist trade, we have got to get the highway leading into Lubbock in good condition."

REDS RISE AGAIN AS PIRATES LOSE

By United News

Cincinnati jumped back into the leadership of the National League Thursday afternoon by defeating Brooklyn, 4 to 3, while the world's champion Pirates were losing an old fashioned slugger to the lowly Phillies, 13 to 2.

Luque, the calm Cuban, pitched a strong game for the Reds, letting the Dodgers down with five hits, while his team mates got nine off the combined efforts of 3 Brooklyn hurlers.

Pittsburgh scored all its runs in two big innings but Philadelphia overcame the nine run lead by a concentrated act in the last four.

Bigbee and Henline cracked out homers.

The Yankees continued to parade through Western opposition in the American league, taking the hard hitting Tigers into camp, 8 to 1.

Only five hits were made off Herb Pennock's left handed shots while the Yankee sluggers made ten, including homers by Lazzeri and Meusel.

Old Jack Quinn masterfully pitched the Athletics to a 6 to nothing victory over Chicago and Boston gained an 8 to 3 over Sisler's Browns.

Washington took Cleveland into camp by making a four run rally in the last inning to win 5 to 3.

The Boston Braves continued to run rampant through National League opposition, making it eight straight by defeating McCarthy's Cubs, 8 to 4.

The Cardinals handed the Giants another artistic lacing and Flint Rhem the star rookie and National League sensation, hung up his tenth victory for the season. The score was 3 to 2. The Giants got only five hits, one a homer by Kelly. Douchitt's four base clout proved the margin of victory.

FIGHT

the better of the third session.

Round Four
Stribling landed a left to the jaw as they met. They continued to clinch too much for it to be a really good fight. The referee was the best man of the three in the ring.

Stribling shook Paul with a left to the jaw and the champion landed the hardest blow of the fight to date, a left to the body. Stribling again was warned for holding as Paul staggered him with lefts to the head.

Round Five
Berlenbach came out confidently and Stribling kept clinching. Stribling put a hard right to the jaw and Paul sank his left to the body, followed by another to the head which was partly blocked. Stribling cut loose with a hard right to the body and a left to the head. It was still a poor fight because of Stribling's wrestling tactics. Most of Paul's blows were landing on Stribling's gloves. They exchanged rights to the head. If anything, Stribling has a shade the best of the round.

Round Six
Paul hooked a light left to the body and the challenger rapped a left jab to his neck. Stribling brought up a right uppercut at close quarters and Paul hooked a left to the head. Stribling hung on and then kept jumping into clinches. Stribling ripped left to head and Berlenbach complained because the challenger kept wrestling and hanging on.

Paul landed a left to the jaw and had to take a hard right to the body. He nearly knocked Stribling off his feet with left hand punches, all of which were blocked. Berlenbach seemed to have a shade in this round.

Round Seven
Stribling landed a hard right to the body and a left to the side of Paul's head. Another left made Paul blink and spit. Stribling waded into a clinch, Paul nearly broke him in two with left hand body punches. The challenger was putting his head below Paul's waist, wrestling, and stepping on the champion's toes. Paul punished Stribling with lefts to the body and an occasional left to the head, which made the challenger run away. Paul had all the better of it and Stribling was "hissed" for hanging on. His ribs were red and Paul put a left to the head. The champion's left eye was cut but probably from Stribling's head. The challenger did not land an effective blow. Berlenbach round.

Round Eight
The champion forced the fighting in the eighth. Stribling landed a left and then tried to wrestle Paul, who threw him into the canvas. No count was taken. Stribling pushed Paul against the ropes and made much more wrestling. Paul landed a left to the mouth. The challenger kept shooting rights to the body which enabled him to grab Paul's wrist and get on. Paul hooked a left to the head. Stribling again opened the cut on Paul's eye. Stribling jumped in with a left to the head but was punished with body blows at close quarters. It was a very poor fight at this stage due to Stribling's tactics. The eighth was about even.

Round Nine
Stribling put a right to the body and hooked two light lefts to the jaw. He jabbed his left to the head

Round Ten
Stribling again ducked into a clinch and was warned by the referee for foul tactics, holding and butting. Stribling sunk a low left to the body and pushed Paul through the ropes, nearly out of the ring. Paul brought up three lefts to the jaw which had Stribling hanging on, while Stribling did nothing but leap Berlenbach hammered the body in with his head down and grab the champion. Three hard lefts shook the challenger who kept jumping in without striking a blow. Paul put a right left to the head which drew blood. Stribling swung a wild right and a hard left knocked him nearly off his feet. Another to the jaw staggered him. He was groggy and hanging on. He wrestled Paul across the ring. Berlenbach's round.

Round Eleven
Stribling cut loose with a right to the face which shook Paul. Berlenbach forced the fighting and put his left to the head and body. Berlenbach ooked three lefts to the body and one to the head as the challenger winced. Stribling hung on as Paul cut loose with some more hard body punches. It was a miserable exhibition. The Georgian merely waited until he could catch a wild of Paul and then walked the champion across the ring to the ropes. Stribling hit low but Paul was not hurt. The challenger kept backing away and occasionally cutting loose with a right at long range. The spectators booed and hissed Stribling. Berlenbach's round, by a shade.

Round Twelve
Stribling had forced his way into a clinch before the echoes of the bell had died away. At close quarters Berlenbach beat the challenger about the body and drove him away. Paul put his left to the ribs. Paul jumped in and tried to force the fighting. Paul put a left to the head. Stribling put a light left to the head and was badly hurt as Paul hooked two lefts to the head. The challenger's mouth was badly cut. Paul drove a left first to the body then to the head, then to the body and back to the head again and won the round with ease.

Round Thirteen
Round thirteen, Stribling began to box and put his left to the champion's jaw three times without a return. Paul missed a left swing and Stribling seized him about the waist "Pa" Stribling had told his boy to box more and the challenger was trying to obey instructions. He put a right hook to Paul's jaw but the champion got in some more deadly lefts before the round was half over. Stribling put a left to the head and Paul bored in, hooking with his left for the jaw. They were in clinches most of the round which was about even.

Round Fourteen
Round fourteen, Stribling was the first to land, sinking a hard right to the body. He jabbed a left to the jaw and then the inevitable clinching and body punching began again. Stribling backed Paul against the ropes and then picked up Berlenbach's legs and proceeded to dump him out of the ring in a sitting position. Paul said he was not hurt, but he had slowed up and Stribling landed two lefts to the jaw. Stribling kept on crawling into clinches and trying to push Paul through the ropes. The champion landed three glancing lefts to the head and the round was about even.

Round Fifteen

coming president will fill the place of A. G. Waugh of Lamesa, who has presided over the conference for the past two years. Secretary books for the Chapters represented at the conference were turned over to the Standard of Efficiency committee Thursday and by night they had been reported on.

In the afternoon athletics were stressed for the program of the day but not much results were forthcoming. Baseball was to have been the center of attraction, but no team answered the challenge made by the League team, so no score game was not played. Tennis fell to almost the same lot but out of the tournament that had been arranged for Plainview and Clarendon had a tilt upon an excellent campus court. Clarendon ner of the conference.

Morning water was something like deserted this morning, only about thirty were present but the ardor and fervor of that early devotional was not marred by the sleepiness of the greater number who did not attend. Classes are running on a basis that would put to shame an ordinary college and schedule assemblies are exact each time. At the morning assembly College Day was observed, I. A. Wade of Clarendon College made an earnest appeal for higher education, stressing his college as one of the best places to learn Methodism and the isms. At once Dr. Hunt, president of McMurry said that what Mr. Wade had spoken was true, as it was materially what he himself had said about McMurry.

A dip and a swim at beautiful Lytle Beach, some little distance from Abilene relieved the heat of the late afternoon for a large number of the delegates who are unused to weather so much warmer than what it is up on the cap. In the evening Dr. Jaimar Bowden a missionary of several years experience delivered a stirring address for the platform hour.

Friday marks the last day of the conference and completes this years work.

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

By DOROTHY A. F. MARCELL

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc. THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED with Irene Rich is a picture of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Bob Mannering is in jail, charged with manslaughter, the car in which he was riding having crashed into another and killed a woman. Bob's father, John Mannering, the District Attorney, declares his purpose to prosecute him. Eileen, the wife and mother, meanwhile hires other lawyers to defend the boy. Mannering is being opposed for reelection by Jerome Wallace. "Slick" Jennings, a ward-heeler, is managing Wallace's campaign, while E. J. Hledose finances it.

"No," he merely nodded. Perhaps he didn't even do that. I am not certain," said the lawyer, beginning to gather up the papers before him and place them in his brief case. "There is nothing more to be done at present, Mrs. Mannering. I think. Anyway here is the jailer. Our time is up."

Eileen arose and, moving over to Job, took hold of his hand as the officer approached. Mechanically the youth got to his feet, and as he faced her his lips began to quiver. Instantly she gathered him in her arms, and the brave smile with which she had regarded him became a pathetic grimace over his shoulder as she fought back the tears which brimmed her lids.

"Mother, you are crying; you must not," Bob protested as, with drawing from her embrace, he gazed into her face a moment later.

"Oh, no, darling," she protested with an effort which would have deceived nobody. "That's the penalty of vanity—there is some mascara in my eyes."

"Well, anyway, I'm all right. I'm getting along fine, getting a great rest," he declared with a sorry attempt at a smile, which quickly faded. "There's dad, mother; it's pretty hard on the pater, this sort of thing, with him in of see."

"Yes," she agreed, but with a final embrace she followed the jailer without another word to turn almost fiercely upon the lawyers as the door of the visitors' room closed upon them.

"We must win," she said. "Do you understand? We must win!"
And so, with her thoughts dwelling upon the plight of her son, Eileen emerged from the jail just as the big car of her husband drew up at the curb. Filled with surprise, even with suspicion, she watched it. What was it doing there? Did its presence bode ill to Bob? As she waited John Mannering descended. What was he doing there?

Suddenly Eileen was aware with a wave of feeling that he looked wan and tired—yes, dreadfully tired. Promptly she steeled her heart. Why should she care? Ah, but under the strain which burdened him John might become ill, said a wee small voice within her. Let him, cried the iron in her soul; he could not prosecute Bob. But somebody else would, persisted that same voice. So, a prey to her conflicting emotions, Eileen hesitated there on the jail steps, then waited for her husband.

He drew near, his arms filled with packages and a certain apology in his manner as he indicated them.

"Just a few things for Bob," he explained.

There was a vague aloofness about Eileen as she regarded him. It was thoughtful of him to remember Bob, to think of his comfort. He loves him, too, said that wee small voice within her. Yet why? Why her heart grew cold as steel if he loved Bob, how could she prosecute him, hold him in prison in that horrid place of carelessness, of changing moods and hard, steel bars. She shivered at the thought of them.

"I can stay but a moment," he went on. "If you care to retrace I can run you out home on my way back to the office."

Eileen decided to wait, and, seating herself in the car, fell to thinking first of Bob, then of her husband. How swift had been the change in her feelings towards him. Yesterday he had been all in all to her; today she did not know. Oblivious to everything about her, she sat there wondering.

Thus it was that she did not perceive the approach of Jerome Wallace's car. Nor for that matter did Wallace himself become aware of her presence until, having parked his own machine, he descended and started to cross the sidewalk. Then he paused, clearly surprised to see her there. But not for long. Too resourceful was Wallace to be at loss over a course of conduct for any extended length of time. As coolly as if he had but that minute caught sight of a friend with whom he was on terms of the closest intimacy, Wallace made for the Mannering car.

Deep in somber thought, her face pale and weary from loss of sleep and anxiety, Eileen was leaning back in the seat with her eyes closed as Wallace drew near.

For a second he paused, peering in at her, drinking in her beauty. Then bold as brass he stepped up to the door.

"Why, Eileen, how do you do?" She opened her eyes and stared at him, startled at his presence and amazed at the familiarity of his address. Then swiftly came the remembrance of his illness.

Without a word she turned to gaze into the distance with unseeing eyes.

He did not flinch under this cold reception; instead, with an impulsive unaccustomed in a man of his poise and reserve, he threw open the door of the car.

"Eileen," he burst forth as if driven by overwhelming sympathy. "I know of your trouble and I would gladly be of service to you if I could. Isn't there something, some little thing, that I could do for you?"

Amidst her suspicions, it seemed to Eileen that not only was there warmth in his tones, but that sincerity rested in his face. Could she have been mistaken about Wallace? Was the friendship he professed the disinterested regard of an honorable man? Very lonely and forlorn had Eileen felt since her break with her husband. She needed sympathy, encouragement, help—yes, help from any source which would benefit Bob.

He seemed to sense something of the drift of her feelings and it gave a new direction to his words.

"Because fate has seen fit to array me against your husband in the race for District Attorney has meant no feeling of unfriendliness on my part. The nomination came to me undesired and unsuspected. To one who realized as fully as I the esteem in which your husband is held in this community it has partaken somewhat of the nature of a forlorn hope."

Into his words was creeping a greater warmth.

"I tell you frankly, Eileen, the thought of being District Attorney has meant little to me—that is, until this moment. Now, for the first time, I realize the power of the office and recognize what it would enable me to do for you and your son."

Eileen's heart leaped and her coldness departed. Were not these the words of a friend? Of a true friend who, seeing eye to eye with her, recognized what would benefit Bob?

But even as she changed, he changed. Wallace, appearing to regret his impulsiveness, grew contrite.

"After all, it is very stupid of me to go on talking in any such strain," he declared. "Doubtless your husband will be re-elected, and who could do more for you than he? Who could do more for a son than his own father?"

Insect Pest Threatening

By R. R. REPPERT, Entomologist

Web Worm

Various sections are reporting the presence of the web worm, or "careless" worm, and it is evident that damage is now being done, or may soon be expected from this insect, to cotton, in all parts of Texas.

This worm hatches from eggs laid on careless weeds or on alfalfa. Observations we have made in the field lead us to believe that the egg is never laid on cotton itself, but that damage to cotton results only when the worm migrates from alfalfa fields, or from careless weeds. When because of continued rains careless weeds, even though very small, sprout in the fields, and eggs are laid on them, damage to the cotton crop when the worms migrate may become very serious. In this case, the cotton over the entire weedy area will likely require treatment. On the other hand, where the field is generally clean, and the worms migrate from weedy margins, heavy spraying of a zone of cotton, even though with a strength that kills this limited area of the crop will be profitable because it results in the protection of the larger acreage beyond. In such case however, careful watch must be continued lest later migrating worms cross this area and continue the damage.

The "careless" worms, like most others are best poisoned when very small. Unfortunately at this time, they feed mostly on the lower leaf surface, leaving the upper epidermis with its covering of poison. Also they protect themselves by spinning a web over themselves as they move about feeding, that prevents applications of poison from reaching the feeding surface. By the time the worms have begun to eat through the leaf, they have attained a size that renders them harder to poison.

Thus it happens that where the entire field becomes infested on account of weedy cotton, the control of the web worm becomes a difficult matter. One can not use poisons in such case in heavy concentration. We believe however, that a light spraying or dusting with arsenicals will effect a control that will make such treatment profitable. In dusting lead arsenate is safest but is costly. Calcium arsenate will be best all things considered. Use three pounds of either lead arsenate or calcium arsenate per acre, directing the dust onto the cotton rows, rather than merely allowing it to float. If Paris green is used, mix with an equal amount of hydrated air-slacked lime, and apply three or four pounds of this mixture per acre.

In spraying, use one and one-half pounds of either lead arsenate or calcium arsenate, or one pound of Paris green, per fifty gallons of water. Where Paris green is used, slake one pound of quick lime and add to the water also. Apply sprays to the lower leaf surface if possible, as well as on top.

White arsenic will kill the cotton, and should not be used except on a few rows where migrating worms are to be stopped.

Leaf Worm

Leaf worms have already appeared in the Houston section. This is a month earlier than they have appeared so far north in any previous years. This does not necessarily mean that heavy damage will result this season, and farmers should not be discouraged. They should keep careful watch however, and apply poisons early should small worms appear. It is especially important that supplies of poison be purchased in early anticipation of its need, or that at least sources of ready supply should be located. This insect is much more easily controlled than is the web worm. Use the same poisons, preferably in the dust form, and while the dew is on the plants. Spraying may prove more practical in the drier sections.

Grasshoppers

Local infestations of grasshoppers are reported in some of the western counties, and around Dallas. Watch fields bordering lowlands especially, and light grasshoppers if they appear, with poison bran mash. Any county agent will be able to furnish the formula.

FLAGG PLANS BIRTHDAY PARTY

CASTRO COUNTY TOWN WILL BE ONE YEAR OLD ON JUNE 20

HEREFORD, June 10.—Flagg, Texas, Castro county's baby town, will be one year old June 20. As this date comes on Sunday, a huge celebration is being planned for June 19. An old time picnic, with barbecue at noon, a rodeo, baseball games, races of various kinds, and speaking by prominent men is being planned for the occasion.

Flagg was opened last June with a real western celebration. Since that time the town has made rapid strides, but the country around it has even developed faster. People from all parts of the country are expected to flock to Flagg for the celebration, June 19.

Wild horse riding promises a thrill for the visitors. The worse horses of the plains will be turned out on the common as they did years ago, and old time cowboys will have a try them. Goat roping, calf roping, and races for the young and old are being planned.

Olton and Earth, two strong plains teams will cross bats at four o'clock. Then the Flagg Jack Rabbits (Flagg's baseball team) will be chased by the Hounds from Dimmitt. Prominent speakers, including Col. C. T. Herring, Hon. Chas. Clements, Judge Joiner, and M. R. Avery will deliver addresses.

Tatum Gas Well Comes In With Oil

BROWNFIELD, June 10.—Word has just been received from Tatum, New Mexico, today at Brownfield that the Maljamar well which was drilling well over 3,900 feet and which has been New Mexico's biggest gasser, is flowing oil over the top of the well this morning. This well is southwest of Tatum, New Mexico, and is on the West side of the Plains in Lea County, New Mexico and is the extreme western district of Brownfield's trade territory. This report is very strong confirmation of the geology that indicates this field will extend on through Lea county through Yoakum and into Terry.

DAILY MARKETS

New York Finance

By United News
NEW YORK, June 10.—General Motors assumed leadership of the market Thursday, filling the place held by steel common earlier in the week.

Both steel and General Motors are identified with the same banking interests and it is recalled that these two companies served to rally the market at the bottom of the decline through very favorable dividend action. This is accepted as plain evidence that the very powerful banking interest stack of these two companies are exceedingly confident of present conditions and prospects for the near future.

There is plenty of basis for this optimism in daily trade reports; for instance, car loadings are again over the million car mark which in itself is a very constructive sign at this time of the year. With merchandise moving at this rate and without any appreciable change in price levels, it is obvious that business is recovering rapidly from the moderate depression caused by the abnormally late spring.

There is an under current of doubt in regard to the motor industry. In motor circles there is a persistent belief that Ford is going to bring out a six cylinder car, possibly with a change in transmission to conform to the market standards in sixes, selling around $1,000, companies in that field would have to face the same kind of competition that gave Ford the control of the low priced four cylinder field.

Whether this is the basis of the steady selling of other companies operating in that class or whether the market is confirmed in the belief that 1925 was an abnormal year can not repeat, is a mooted question. The fact remains that Dodge, Hudson, Jordan and other companies of that class are meeting with sufficient selling to hold back any attempt at a rally. General Motors should suffer as heavily as any other company from the new competition if it develops, but so far no fear of this has been apparent on the stock ticker tape.

There was a fair degree of irregularity in trading all during the day although at the close of the rails were up.

IT'S JUST TOO BAD IF SONNY DOESN'T LIKE SCHOOL; VISITING TEACHER WILL KEEP MAMA AND PAPA INFORMED AS TO WORK

At a recent meeting of the school board it was decided to enforce the compulsory attendance law at the beginning of school next September. An officer will be employed to give here full time to the work, and she will be called the Visiting Teacher.

M. H. Duncan, superintendent of the schools, made the following statement about the employment of the visiting teacher: "Most people acquainted with the work of the public schools agree that they are not close enough to the people. Too frequently the work of the school becomes a dead, mechanical process and fails to reach the life of the average pupil. Teachers are so busy with the daily routine of their work and are so exhausted when the day's task is over that they haven't the energy, if they have the time, to come into the close contact with their patrons so necessary to bringing the school and the home together. Hundreds of pupils, especially boys, leave school every year because they do not feel that the school is in sympathy with their real needs. Many of these boys go to school for only a short time, some go longer, and some drop out just before the close of the school when summer begins to approach, and fail to get credit on their year's work. In many cases parents do not know that these boys have dropped out, and are surprised at the end of the year or later to find that they have not attended school regularly. The boys go from their homes in the morning, return about the right time in the afternoon, there is no phone at the home to give the teacher opportunity to communicate with the parents, and so the year goes by almost a total loss to the pupil. Many of these boys could be saved to themselves and to the community if they had some one to advise and direct them, but as it is they are leaving the schools unprepared for the problems of life, and in many cases filling our jails and penitentiaries at a great cost to the state."

"It will be the business of the visiting teacher to reach such cases and to save them to themselves and to the community. She will have her office centrally located. Just after the opening of school each morning teachers will hand to their principals a list of their pupils who are absent unexcused, and whom they suspect of truancy. The principal will at once phone this list to the 'visiting teacher' who will investigate each case and find out why the pupil is not in school and both parent and visiting teacher will have opportunity to work together to see that the pupil attends school regularly.

"Frequently the pupil's failure to attend school regularly is due to a lack of interest on the part of the parent. The visiting teacher will have opportunity to show such parents the importance of the child's being in school, and point out to them the disastrous results of his attempting to go through life without an education.

"The visiting teacher will have the power of a truant officer, but her weapon will be moral suasion rather than force. Force will be used only when milder means are ineffectual. She will show herself a friend to the boys and girls and seek to impress upon them that she is not an officer of the law to compel them to do something not to their best interests, but that she is trying to get them to do the thing that is best for them to do. The visiting teacher will thus take the place of a big brother and will attempt to lead rather than to drive. She will deal with each pupil in such a way as to get hold of the higher impulses of his life. Every boy has good within him that can be reached by the right kind of methods. The classroom teacher has so many duties that she has no time to study the different cases with which she comes in contact, and as a result there are many pupils she can not reach. The visiting teacher will have just this one thing to do—to study the difficult cases—and she will make it her sole task to see that they are in school regularly and that they get most from their school work.

"Some may feel that if the schools are here, parents and pupils should take advantage of them without compulsion; if they do not do this, it is their own business. However, this is too narrow a view to take of the matter. It is to the interest of the state, if from no other than a selfish standpoint, to see that every child has opportunity to go to school. The state is not only responsible for the education of its children, but it must pay heavily for its failure to educate them. It is to the interests of the state to see that each one of its citizens is developed to their full capacity, physically, mentally, morally, and otherwise, and it would be a short-sighted policy on the part of the state not to develop all of its human resources just as it develops all other resources at its command. The school is the means of developing these resources, and certainly every child ought to be in school every day possible for him to be there. The cost of a visiting teacher is insignificant compared to the loss due to the child's not attending school regularly. In fact, the amount the schools will save because of the more regular attendance of the pupils and thus getting through with their work earlier will more than balance the cost of many teachers."

OIL STORE
"The Nation does not face sudden failure of oil," said Chas. E. Hughes, counsel for the American Petroleum Institute at a hearing before the Federal Oil Conservation Board. "Deeper drilling may greatly increase supplies. The considerable reserve from wells already producing, the deeper sands in those fields are reassuring, but must be supplemented by continuous discoveries. The key to finding these reserves must be freely moving prices to induce men and capital to take risks."

PLAYGROUND TO BE ASKED FOR PLAINVIEW CHILDREN

PLAINVIEW, June 10.—Plans by a consolidated committee, composed of members from various clubs of Plainview, are well under way for an early completion of a three-unit playground at the city park in South Plainview.

It is planned to have a unit system of three divisions in order to provide a different unit according to the ages of the children. When completed the grounds will probably contain all sorts of appropriate apparatus, such as giant swings, merry-go-rounds, swinging bars, poles and rings, ladders, slides, swimming pool, wading pool, sand piles, tennis courts, basketball courts, baseball diamond and plots for all kinds of outdoor games. A competent and regularly employed supervisor will have charge of the grounds.

The general committee having in hand the project is composed of members of three committees appointed by the Rotary, Kiwanis and Elks' Club and is composed of W. J. Lloyd, B. E. Rushing, W. J. Klingner, Paul Huey, Rev. J. W. White, D. D. Bowman, E. M. Ballengee, Jack Woodward, A. B. Martin and E. B. Miller. The committee will arrange for financing the project and the provision of equipment. Sub-committees have been appointed to work out other details.

Memphis Man Is Now Manager of Martin's

G. H. Pettigrew, who for three years has traveled this territory out of Memphis, Tennessee, for the American Tobacco Company and is one of the best known salesmen making this section, has put aside his sample cases to assume management of Martin's Confectionery.

The employment of the manager for the confectionery was made in order that Mr. Martin might give his entire time to his fast growing wholesale bakery business.

DEMONSTRATION ON CANNING GIVEN BEFORE CLUB AT WOODROW

At a community meeting last Saturday evening, the people of Woodrow, in this county, raised funds to purchase a high pressure steam cooker to be used by the Home Demonstration Club in canning the products of the gardens of that community, which are producing larger yields of vegetables this season than has been the case in several years.

Miss Hazel Hammer, county home demonstration agent, yesterday afternoon conducted a canning demonstration at the Woodrow school which was attended by all members of the club who took keen interest in every phase of the work.

Miss Hammer stated yesterday that the women of Lubbock county are going to do more canning this year than ever before, due largely to the splendid yields of all garden products coupled with the desirability for economizing on grocery bills in order that profits from the farm might be expanded for luxuries that are more common in this section than in other sections of the state.

OVER 5,732 LOTS IN PLAINVIEW ON THE TAX RECORDS

PLAINVIEW, June 10.—A check of the tax records of the City of Plainview by Tax Assessor Paul Bryan, reveals that this city has 5,732 lots in platted tracts, 1,295 acres in acreage holdings with a total of 3,065 acres in the city limits and twenty-two platted additions to the city. Under the 1925 renditions there were approximately 1,700 holdings in the city and it is expected that there will be 2,000 in 1926. The largest individual holding in the city limits is 100 acres, owned by the Mrs. Emma Williamson estate. The smallest individual holding is three eighths of a twenty-five foot lot.

Americans have gained control of rug and carpet making in Persia and the designs made famous by the Persians are giving way to those from this country.

YOUTHFUL ROBBER RELEASED ON BOND

JOHN CASE OF PETERSBURG RELEASED FROM JAIL AT PLAINVIEW

PLAINVIEW, June 10.—Bond for John Case, seventeen year old boy, charged with robbing the Security State Bank of Petersburg last week, was set at $1,500 after examining trial was held before the justice of the peace at Plainview. Bond was made by his father and others in the community in which he lived.

Officers at Plainview said the case was one of the most peculiar that ever came to their attention. John Case, quiet, unassuming youth, who lived in the vicinity of Petersburg, a small town south of Plainview, walked into the bank and pointing a .38 pistol at Cashier R. A. Jefferies had him fill a flour sack with the cash in the tills of the bank, amounting to $346.00 and then walked out holding the pistol on Jefferies and on reaching the door tried to make his get-away on foot.

Young Case cooked to be used by the Home Demonstration Club in canning the products of the gardens of that community, which are producing larger yields of vegetables this season than has been the case in several years.

Pure Seed Grower Making Good

HEREFORD, June 10.—J. P. Robinson, living just outside the city limits of Hereford, is farming twenty-one acres of land, and is interested in the production of pure seed.

He and County Agent R. O. Dunkle intend to co-operate in the establishment of a pure seed farm on the Robinson tract. The seed will be of the grain sorghum varieties and is to be grown and propagated by the latest scientific methods. The seed that is being planted was secured from the Lubbock Experiment Station and from B. M. Whitaker of Haskell, Texas. Mr. Whitaker won $100 on an exhibit of ten heads of white milo maize that he exhibited at the West Texas Fair at Abilene last fall. This seed is of the latest improvement and the acre production should be increased by the planting of such seed.

Officers at Plainview said the case was one of the most peculiar that ever came to their attention. John Case, quiet, unassuming youth, who lived in the vicinity of Petersburg, a small town south of Plainview, walked into the bank and pointing a .38 pistol at Cashier R. A.
