Southwest begins enforcing no-show policy

Passengers now forfeit ticket's value for canceling; United glitch gives fliers steep discounts

Associated Press

Passengers who fail to cancel bookings on Southwest now face loss of the ticket's value if they don't show up.

The new policy took effect with Friday's flights. Customers who buy nonrefundable tickets such as Wanna Get Away fares must cancel at least 10 minutes before scheduled departure or forfeit the ticket's value.

In the past, there was little incentive to cancel because Southwest let customers use the value of the unused ticket toward another flight within one year. That meant seats flew empty when Southwest could have sold them to somebody else.

A Southwest Airlines Co. spokesman says there's been no reaction yet from customers.

Southwest is still letting passengers change nonrefundable tickets ahead of time without penalty. Most other big airlines charge a $200 change fee.

United to let lucky travelers fly on $0 tickets

United Airlines said on Friday that it will honor the tickets it accidentally gave away for free.

The decision is good news for people who snapped up the tickets on Thursday after United listed airfares at $0. Many customers got tickets for $5 or $10, paying only the cost of the Sept. 11 security fee.

The mistake was an especially good deal for any passengers who bought tickets for travel within the next week. For instance, a Houston-to-Washington Dulles flight for next weekend would have cost $877, according to United's website on Friday.

Airlines have posted so-called mistake fares before. They generally decide on a case-by-case basis whether they'll honor the ticket. On Friday, United Continental Holdings Inc. said it was honoring the tickets "based on these specific circumstances." On Thursday, United said there was an error in filing the fares to its computer system.

United would not say how many tickets it accidentally gave away nor how much the mistake cost. The wrong fares were available on its website for a few hours on Thursday. It eventually shut down bookings on the website until it could fix the problem.

Some passengers bought their tickets for flights on Friday, and then immediately checked in online and printed their boarding passes, figuring that would give them their best chance of being able to use their ticket.

Mike Nehmer bought a ticket for him and his wife to fly from Houston to San Francisco on Friday. But he chickened out after a United agent told him that his ticket would be rejected at the gate. He ended up changing his ticket to December.

"I decided it wasn't in my best interest to show up and be denied at the gate," he said. "I have a pretty unhappy wife, too."

HOUSE TALLY: 10,000

Tracye Vaughan and her daughter, Bobbie Grimes, work on removing framing Friday as they and others with Christmas in Action help renovate the organization's 10,000th home. The house is on English Drive. Vaughan is the daughter of Christmas in Action founder Bobby Trimble. The 10,000th home project is being completed by the 40 house captains.

Odessa native incorporates experiences as meth cook into novel

By Tyler White
twhite@mrt.com

A native Odessan involved in methamphetamine cooking and distribution in the Permian Basin has used his drug addiction and run-ins with the law as inspiration for a novel.

Cecil Ware, 47, of Winters, wrote "Pushed" after spending time in prison beginning October 2009. While in prison, Ware said he realized he had the ability to turn his life around and beat his addiction and wrote the novel as means of getting clean.

"I was in a spiritual battlefield in dealing with what was right and what was wrong," Ware said.

He said "Pushed" is reminiscent of the TV show "Breaking Bad," which tells the story of a high school chemistry teacher who goes from a small-time meth cook to a major drug kingpin in New Mexico. Ware said his book and the series include police chases, gun shoot-outs and emotional character development.

He said he based the protagonist on himself and while there are events and plot points in "Pushed" inspired by real-life experiences, other parts were dramatized to develop the story.

Ware, who cooked meth and sold the drug in Odessa, said he began smoking marijuana when he was 12 or 13 and by age 16 he was using meth to achieve an even greater high.

"I was never really at peace with myself," Ware said. "I would look in the mirror and I was never able to appreciate the person that was looking back at me."

Ware was released from prison in September of last year and next month will celebrate four years of sobriety. He said by writing "Pushed" and getting off of drugs, he learned to love the person he sees in the mirror and was able to take his "negative past" and turn it into a positive future for others struggling with addiction.

Ware will be signing copies of "Pushed" 2-5 p.m. today at Hastings, 3111 W. Cuthbert Ave., in Midland, and 6-9 p.m. at 3895 E. 42nd St., Odessa.

The novel is published under the name C.S. Ware.

A sign alerting boaters to the presence of zebra mussels is displayed around Lewisville Lake, near Dallas, on July 2. Texas state officials are seeking public comment on a proposed rule to stem the migration of zebra mussels in North Texas by requiring all boats operating on public water in 17 Northeast Texas counties be drained after use.

New boating rule aims to limit invasive mussels

Associated Press

LUBBOCK — State officials concerned about the migration of zebra mussels in North Texas have proposed requiring all boats operating on public water in 17 counties be drained after each use.

The Texas Parks and Wildlife Department is seeking public comment on the restrictions it proposed this week. The proposal would extend beyond lakes where mussels have been found so far.

The prolifically breeding mussels were first found in Texas in 2009 at Lake Texoma. Since then, mussels or their larvae have spread to three other Texas lakes, most recently Lewisville and Bridgeport lakes.

The invasive species clogs public-water intake pipes, attaches itself to boat hulls, jams water-cooling systems and can be a hazard to boaters and swimmers because of its sharp edges, according to the department.

The proposal would require draining live wells, bilges, motors and any receptacle or water intake system coming into contact with public waters.

Zebra mussels can expand their range by hitching rides on boats and trailers.

"We know there's a lot of traffic coming between lakes in that area," said Ken Kurzawski, the department's freshwater fisheries regulation coordinator.

It is a Class C misdemeanor statewide to possess or transport zebra mussels.

The public may comment on the proposal online, by mail or at three hearings next month.

The species is originally from the Balkans, Poland and the former Soviet Union. It arrived in the Americas in the 1980s through a ship's ballast water. The mussels were first found in 1988 in Michigan, and within 10 years had colonized all five Great Lakes and the Mississippi, Tennessee, Hudson and Ohio river basins. They have infested at least 29 states and more than 600 lakes or reservoirs in the U.S.

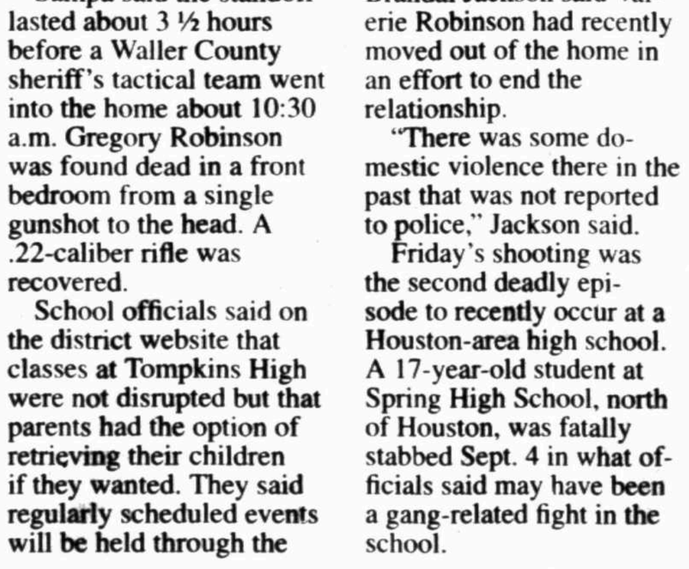
The Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission is expected to take action on the proposed change at their Nov. 7 meeting.

If approved, the additional restrictions would cover public waters in Collin, Cooke, Dallas, Denton, Fannin, Grayson, Hood, Jack, Kaufman, Montague, Palo Pinto, Parker, Rockwall, Stephens, Tarrant, Wise and Young counties.

The public hearings are Oct. 1 in Fort Worth, Oct. 8 in Denison and Oct. 9 in Garland.

Woman fatally shot at Houston-area high school

Associated Press



Associated Press

SWAT officers approach a home where a suspect was in a stand off with police in Brookshire on Friday. Valerie Robinson was fatally shot Friday morning as she arrived for work in the cafeteria at Tompkins High School in Katy, west of Houston.

KATY — A man gunned down and killed his estranged wife in the parking lot of a suburban Houston high school, then engaged officers in a standoff that ended when he turned the gun on himself and committed suicide, authorities said Friday.

Fort Bend County sheriff's deputies arrived at Tompkins High School in Katy, west of Houston, to find two coaches performing CPR on Valerie Robinson in a rear parking lot of the school shortly after 6 a.m. Friday.

Robinson was a cafeteria worker at the school and was shot as she arrived for work. She was taken to a hospital but died from her wounds. Superintendent Alton Frailey said in a message posted on the school district website that Robinson was a longtime employee of the district.

Texas Department of Public Safety Sgt. John Sampa said witnesses saw an armed man flee in a white pickup. A state trooper found that pickup just west of Katy at a home in the small town of Brookshire, he said.

The suspected shooter, identified as 54-year-old Gregory Robinson, lived at the home along with his wife's father, Sampa said.

When additional officers arrived, the father walked out of the home to see what they wanted, Sampa said. The unidentified man was taken by authorities for questioning and appeared to be unaware of the shooting.

Sampa said the standoff lasted about 3 ½ hours before a Waller County sheriff's tactical team went into the home about 10:30 a.m. Gregory Robinson was found dead in a front bedroom from a single gunshot to the head. A .22-caliber rifle was recovered.

School officials said on the district website that classes at Tompkins High were not disrupted but that parents had the option of retrieving their children if they wanted. They said regularly scheduled events will be held through the weekend but that "heightened security measures" will be in place.

Calls to a Katy district spokesman were not returned.

Brookshire police Chief Brandal Jackson said Valerie Robinson had recently moved out of the home in an effort to end the relationship.

"There was some domestic violence there in the past that was not reported to police," Jackson said.

Friday's shooting was the second deadly episode to recently occur at a Houston-area high school. A 17-year-old student at Spring High School, north of Houston, was fatally stabbed Sept. 4 in what officials said may have been a gang-related fight in the school.

Flooding forces evacuations across NM

Associated Press

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. — Heavy rains pushed previously drought-stricken rivers from their banks and flooded streets and mountain canyons across New Mexico Friday, forcing evacuations from Las Vegas to the U.S.-Mexico border.

In southern New Mexico, Truth or Consequences officials said people around Las Animas and Palomas Creeks were told Friday morning to immediately leave their homes and head to the city's convention center for emergency shelter. Authorities became concerned after the Rio Grande, which had been dry for months south of Albuquerque, overflowed.

Truth or Consequences Mayor Pro Tem Sandra Whitehead said the city had experienced days of rains before the rivers and creeks began to overflow.

"We needed it to rain," said Whitehead. "But this is too much rain at one time." Whitehead said she didn't know how many people were evacuated but said only a handful used the convention center.

The three to four days of rain that have been falling across the state stem from the same storm system that has battered Colorado, causing at least three deaths.

Kerry Jones, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Albuquerque, said the recent storm system was responsible for record rainfall in some areas in New Mexico that aren't used to handling the rain.

LOS ANGELES

Robert R. Taylor, creator of SoftSoap, dead at 77

Soft soap in a bottle that could be dispensed by a convenient little pump handle on the top.

Robert R. Taylor knew he had a phenomenal product on his hands the day he invented it, one that would revolutionize the way people wash their hands.

He was so certain, in fact, that he worried that as soon as word got out about what he called SoftSoap, a much bigger company would put out its own rival brand, shoving his right off the nation's store shelves.

There was only thing to do: If a big company started putting soap in a bottle, figured Taylor, who died last month at age 77, he'd have to make sure they couldn't get it out — at least not conveniently.

Leveraging his company for $12 million, every penny it was worth, he ordered 100 million little bottle hand-pumps from the only two U.S. manufacturers that made them. That created a back order so huge the companies couldn't make pumps for anybody else for more than a year, giving Taylor's brand time to become established.

The risky gamble paid off handsomely. In six months, Taylor had sold $25 million worth of SoftSoap. Earlier this year, Inc. Magazine declared his cornering of the hand-pump market one of the three shrewdest business moves ever made.

Taylor, who died of cancer in Newport Beach on Aug. 29, would go on to create and sell more than a dozen businesses during his lifetime, including those that produced toothpaste, shampoos, various kinds of soap and several hugely popular fragrances.

Most well known among the latter was likely Calvin Klein's Obsession, which he marketed in the 1980s with what was for the time a winkingly risque ad campaign.

"Between love and madness lies Obsession," became the fragrance's popular and sometimes parodied catchphrase.

It was SoftSoap, however, that made Taylor's reputation as a business genius.

"He was just driving to work one day, and he had been looking at the soap in the sink and seeing how messy it was, and he was like, 'There's got to be a way to not have to deal with that,'" his daughter, Lori Lawrence, told The Associated Press on Thursday.

He came up with the marketing concept first. Then, through home experimentation and some trial and error, created the soap.

He had been doing business since he was a child growing up in Ohio, his family said, once selling a home pigeon to a pet store several times.

He earned a Master of Business Administration degree from Stanford University in 1959 and, after working as a salesman for Johnson & Johnson for a few years, he and a college buddy formed their own marketing company. In 1964 he formed Village Bath Products with $3,000, later renaming it Minnetonka Corp.

He initially ran the business out of his Minnesota home, making hand-rolled soap balls marketed in homey glass jars and baskets, fruit-scented shampoos and other bath products.

Carmaker saves West Texas drive-in theater

An automaker has presented a West Texas drive-in theater with a digital projector, preserving its access to Hollywood fare despite an end to 35mm film distribution.

A Friday statement by Honda says its Project Drive-In chose the Graham Drive-In as the third of five U.S. outdoor theaters to be presented with the new-age projectors.

Movie studios are phasing out 35 mm film prints, and the switch to all-digital distribution is pushing the outdoor theaters with huge screens to make the expensive change to digital projectors. However, industry observers say many of the 350 or so of theaters still operating could be forced to close because they can't afford the expensive technology.

Graham is a town of about 10,000 residents about 80 miles northwest of Fort Worth.

Texas will hold a referendum on proposed amendments to the Texas Constitution. It will be the first statewide election where officials will enforce a law requiring voters to produce a photo ID card to vote.

Election judges will accept driver's licenses, concealed handgun licenses, U.S. passports, military IDs or naturalization certificates with a photo. Anyone who does not have one of those documents may apply for a free election ID on Saturdays through Nov. 2.

Today in history

In 1814, Francis Scott Key was inspired to write a poem, "Defence of Fort McHenry," after witnessing how an American flag flying over the Maryland fort withstood a night of British bombardment during the War of 1812; the poem later became the words to "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Lee High School Band Director Randy Storie prepares to tell the 220-member Mighty Rebel Band members they were selected to perform in the 126th annual Rose Parade in Pasadena, Calif., on Jan. 1, 2015. Lee was the only Texas band selected to perform in the parade, and it is Lee's first time to participate in the parade since 1993, when Storie took over the band.

Mighty Rebel band selected to perform in 2015 Rose Parade

By Meredith Moriak
mmoriak@mrt.com

Lee High School junior Drew Gagliardi started hooting, hollering and jumping up and down the moment the words "Congratulations, on behalf of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses Association" came out of band director Randy Storie's mouth Friday afternoon.

Storie, who has been Lee's director of bands since 1980, read a letter of congratulations to the 220 members of Lee's Mighty Rebel Band on Friday afternoon before departing to attend the Abilene Cooper-Lee football game at Grande Communications Stadium.

"I've always been a fan of the Rose Parade and football, so to learn that we're going is so exciting," said Gagliardi, a trombone player. "I consider it a great honor to be selected to do something as great as that."

Lee's band was the only one from Texas selected to participate in the 126th annual Rose Parade on Jan. 1, 2015, in Pasadena, Calif.

"This is the granddaddy of them all. It's televised all over the world," Storie said. "This is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and is unbelievable."

Lee's last performance in the Rose Parade was in 1993, and Storie said students who went on that trip did everything they could while they were in California.

"We left after Christmas and went to Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, Universal Studios, the beach and attended the Holiday Bowl," Storie said.

He said the booster club and Lee administration will be instrumental in deciding what activities students will participate in during the 2015 trip.

All band students in the classes of 2014 through 2018 will be eligible for the trip, said Estephan Quintela, assistant band director.

"This year's seniors will have the option to join us if they want to. (Storie) did the same in 1993 and had a few (students) that joined," Quintela said.

The 2015 trip will be Quintela's second to the Rose Parade. He was drum major at Permian High School in 2004 when the Permian and Odessa High School bands marched in the parade.

"It was a great experience and I think the kids will have a lot of fun," said Quintela, who recalls waking up at 4 a.m. to prepare for the six-mile parade.

MISD Fine Arts Director Deb Shaw and Chief Academic Officer Patrick Jones, who served as Lee's principal from 2004 to 2007, were present for Friday's announcement and congratulated students on the accomplishment.

FROM WIRE REPORTS

MISD to locate, re-enroll dropouts during Recovery Walk

Midland ISD will hold its sixth annual Recovery Walk from 8:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. today as a way to locate local dropouts and encourage them to return to school.

District staff and community volunteers will visit the homes of students who were expected to return to school this year but did not; students who withdrew from school last year but have not enrolled elsewhere; and students in the 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, or 2016 cohorts who have dropped out.

"The community has expressed how important the Recovery Walk is toward the betterment of society by individuals volunteering their time. School district personnel, community leaders, residents, grandparents, neighbors, and new arrivals to our community have consistently participated in this incredible event," said Deborah A. Acosta, MISD dropout prevention/recovery and at-risk coordinator. "The message of working together to help students succeed is a vision shared by all volunteers who want to assure the growth of a safe, strong, and promising community."

Volunteers will present students options for returning to school and record information about a students' move, family needs or other important information.

The Recovery Walk, which was initiated in 2008, is connected with the statewide Expectation Graduation Campaign and has been a great benefit to MISD during the past few years, Acosta said.

MISD's current longitudinal dropout rate, which measures the percentage of students who drop out before high school graduation, is 9.9 percent, a significant decrease from 16.1 percent reported in 2007.

Students interested in re-enrolling may contact Acosta at 689-1980 or deborah.acosta@midlandisd.net.

MISD introduces new gradebook system

Midland ISD introduced a new gradebook system this week, and parents must complete a waiver form at each child's campus before gaining access to their child's grades.

txGradebook is replacing Gradespeed as the district's online attendance and gradebook program because it will update daily, unlike Gradespeed, said Elise Kail, MISD's executive director of accountability.

txConnect is the parent portal linked with txGradebook, and for parents to gain access, they must complete a waiver, found online at www.midlandisd.net/grades, and turn it in to the office at each campus their children attend. Parents will receive a student portal ID necessary to register on txConnect.

For specific information about registering with txConnect, parents should visit www.midlandisd.net and click on the "grades" icon.

txConnect will be linked with MISD's ParentLink mobile app, Kail said.

Student grades posted by teachers are updated in txConnect at 5:30 p.m. each day and attendance posted by teachers and/or updated by campus attendance personnel are updated in txConnect periodically throughout the day. txConnect will indicate the most recent date and time of update on the screens.

MISD policy does not require teachers to post grades on a daily basis, but they should be posted by Monday of each week.

Using txConnect, parents can sign up for emails regarding student grades, attendance and assignments.

Book giveaway to help teachers build classroom libraries

The Midland Reading Council will hold its second annual New Teacher Book Giveaway 5 to 6 p.m. Monday at the cafeteria of DeZavala Elementary School, 705 N. Lee St.

All new-to-Midland teachers can receive books donated by the Midland County Public Library, MISD libraries, MISD employees and residents.

The giveaway is not exclusive to MISD teachers and is meant to help teachers build their classroom libraries.

"We are pleased and delighted to provide literacy support for our community and fellow educators," said Heather Chavez, Midland Reading Council President and a sixth-grade teacher at DeZavala.

Individuals wishing to donate books for future giveaways can email Chavez at heather.chavez@midlandisd.net to arrange a pick up time.

Board of Ed hears testimony on service

Associated Press

AUSTIN — A State Board of Education committee has appointed 175 teachers, parents and experts to review a controversial social studies curriculum system designed to help teachers meet state standards, board member Marty Rowley said Friday.

Conservatives contend the lesson plans included material that is too liberal or anti-American. Supporters defended the system as critical for small school districts that lack the resources to develop their own lesson plans.

Thomas Ratliff, a Republican board member from Mount Pleasant, has accused conservative and tea party political candidates of ginning up outrage over the system best known as CSCOPE to gain support ahead of the Republican primaries.

While the board has authority over textbooks, it has no legal authority over lesson plans, Rowley acknowledged Friday. But he said the results of the CSOPE review will be made available to school districts, which do have a legal obligation to review curriculum systems before teachers can use them.

CSCOPE was developed by the state's education service centers to provide teachers with lesson plans that ensure students are taught all of the information necessary to pass state standardized tests. Individual districts decided whether to participate in what was a proprietary online system and pay a subscription fee.

Some parents mobilized to protest the system when they discovered a lesson plan that called for a discussion on whether the Boston Tea Party could be labeled a terrorist act.

Another activity talked about how socialist nations used symbolism in designing their flags and recommended that teachers allow students to design their own socialist flags as an exercise.

Scooter Store shuts down after scrutiny

Associated Press

NEW BRAUNFELS — A Texas-based company that sells wheelchairs and motorized scooters to people with limited mobility announced Friday that it's shutting down for good, following federal scrutiny over its advertising and billing.

The Scooter Store, which filed for bankruptcy protection earlier this year, plans to phase out operations and furlough its remaining 370 employees and managers, the San Antonio Express-News (http://bit.ly/19QnyuK) reported, citing a company statement. About 200 of those jobs are in the company's headquarters in New Braunfels, with the rest at 55 distribution centers around the nation.

The decision came from the company's board of directors, according to the statement.

A message left with the company by The Associated Press was not immediately returned Friday night. The company website bears only a statement that the company was undergoing "a business revitalization intended to sharpen its focus on meeting its customer's most critical needs, efficiently and in partnership with government and mobility industry expectations.

The company's announcement comes after the U.S. Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services notified The Scooter Store that it would lose federal contract for reimbursement of the sale of its products, effective Oct. 26. The federal decision "effectively eliminates" its ability to sell its assets in a Chapter 11 reorganization, so it will liquidate, the company said in its statement to the Express-News.

The Scooter Store was one of the industry's leading companies, with TV ads promising freedom and independence to people with limited liability. But critics say the ads convince some seniors that they need a scooter to get around when many don't.

Some members of Congress say the ads lead to hundreds of millions of dollars in unnecessary spending by Medicare, which is only supposed to pay for scooters as a medical necessity when seniors are unable to use a cane, walker or regular wheelchair. According to congressional testimony, Medicare accounted for about 75 percent of The Scooter Store's revenue.

Allegations of Medicare fraud within the industry go back nearly a decade.

The U.S. Justice Department sued The Scooter Store in 2005, alleging its advertising enticed seniors to obtain power scooters paid for by Medicare, and the company then sold patients more expensive scooters that they did not want or need. The Scooter Store settled that case in 2007 for $4 million.

Reno Air Races embraces 50th birthday

Associated Press

STEAD, Nev. — Bob Hoover is an aviation legend who was once friends with Orville Wright, Charles Lindbergh and Chuck Yeager and spent 16 months in a German prison camp after his plane was shot down during World War II.

The 91-year-old also witnessed the tragic crash that killed a pilot and 10 spectators two years ago during the Reno National Championship Races, and he described it as one of the worst things he has seen outside of his war years. He thought at the time that the crash would spell the end of the event.

"I did not believe for one minute that we would be here now," Hoover said on the eve of the five-day event that features flight demonstrations, stunts and high-speed races in which specially modified planes fly at more than 500 mph wing tip to wing tip barely 100 feet above the tarmac.

But organizers kept the event going, and they are embracing this year's 50th anniversary of the races as they try to put the tragedy behind. Hoover, listed by the Smithsonian Institution as one of the 10 greatest contributors to aviation history, is among those being honored tonight at the event.

Hoover said he's overjoyed that the racing community rallied to support the continuation of the Reno races that began in 1964 and are now host to the only competition of its kind with multiple aircraft classes, including the fastest jets and fighters.

It's part of an effort to ensure the future of an event that looked like a longshot before race officials satisfied the Federal Aviation Administration with added safety precautions last year, and persuaded state tourism officials to pony up sponsorship money to cover a doubling of insurance costs.

"It was important to get last year's event under our belts, part of a healing process," said Mike Houhgton, president and CEO of the Reno Air Racing Association.

Spectators watch Rob Sandberg, of Seattle, cross the finish line in his SNJ-4 "Honest Entry" on Sept. 14, 2012, in the T-6 class prelims at the Reno National Championship Races in Reno, Nev. Organizers are embracing the 50th anniversary of the National Championship Air Races this year as they continue try to put behind them the 2011 crash in the high desert north of Reno that killed 11 injured dozens more and jeopardized the future of the event.

Houghton expects as many as 75,000 people to visit the 2013 competition through Sunday, for a weeklong, overall attendance of 200,000, compared to about 190,000 last year.

During World War II, Hoover's Mark V Spitfire was shot down off the coast of Southern France. He was imprisoned in a German camp before stealing a plane and flying to freedom under fire from allied troops who mistook him for the enemy.

Four years after his dramatic 1945 escape from Nazi Germany, Hoover was sitting on the roof of a hangar on Labor Day weekend in Ohio watching what would be the last National Air Racing Championships at Cleveland Municipal Airport when he saw pilot Bill Odom lose control of a P-51 Mustang, veer off course and into a home, killing him and two others on the ground.

"The plane snapped and went into a house and that ended the Cleveland Air Races," Hoover said.

He had the same sinking feeling two years ago when he witnessed another vintage P-51 slam into the apron of the grandstand at Reno-Stead Airport, killing longtime Hollywood stunt pilot Jimmy Leeward and 10 people on the ground and seriously injuring scores more.

"We all watched the whole thing as it happened, just appalled at what we were seeing — just devastating," said Hoover, who was in a golf cart near the carnage on the tarmac.

Hoover admits he never thought the competition would get off the ground when Bill Stead — a World War II flying ace, wealthy Nevada rancher and hydroplane champion — first approached him about trying to help persuade casino mogul Bill Harrah and others to revive the competition that hadn't run since the Cleveland crash in 1949.

Stead owned more than 1,000 acres north of Reno that he thought would be the perfect place to build a race course, but Hoover told him Reno wasn't big enough to support such an event.

"I said Reno is just too remote. It wouldn't be financially successful," he recalls. Stead told him, "It will catch on."

"And now," Hoover said, "we've got them coming from all over the world."

Top doctor aboard Navy hospital ship relieved of command

Los Angeles Times

SAN DIEGO — The top doctor aboard the Navy's hospital ship Mercy has been relieved of command because of allegations that he falsified his physical fitness and weight records, the Navy announced Friday.

Capt. William Cogar, commanding officer of the hospital aboard the San Diego-based ship, was relieved by Rear Adm. Thomas Shannon, commander of the military sealift command.

Shannon took the action Friday after an investigation by the Navy's inspector general found "irregularities" in Cogar's records.

Cogar, 59, underwent an admiral's mast, a non-judicial punishment procedure.

During the mast, he was found to have negligently failed to comply with the Navy's physical readiness program, as well as failure to obey an order and conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman, the Navy said.

Cogar was reassigned to Navy Medical Center San Diego. Capt. Jeffrey Paulson, a former commanding officer of the Mercy's hospital, was temporarily assigned to take Cogar's place.

US rig count up 1 this week to 1,786

HOUSTON — The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in the U.S. this week increased by one for a total of 1,768, according to Houston-based oilfield services company Baker Hughes.

There were 1,361 rigs listed as searching for oil, down four; 401 as searching for natural gas, up seven; and six as miscellaneous, down two. A year ago this week there were 1,413 rigs searching for oil, a difference of 52, and 448 rigs searching for gas, a difference of 47.

By trajectory, there were 248 directional drilling rigs, down two; 1,076 horizontal drilling rigs, up one; and 444 vertical drilling rigs, up two.

The U.S. had 1,864 rigs exploring for oil and natural gas a year ago this week.

The number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in Texas increased by 12 this week for a total of 850. At this time last year there were 878 rigs in Texas.

Rounding out the top five states by rig count were North Dakota with 168, unchanged; Oklahoma with 164, down 6; Louisiana with 113, up two; and New Mexico with 70, down four.

Among the other major oil- and gas-producing states, Alaska lost two rigs and Colorado lost one. California and Wyoming each added one rig. Arkansas, Ohio, Utah and West Virginia were unchanged.

The Permian Basin added four rigs this week for a total of 460. A year ago this week there were 508 rigs in the Permian, a difference of 48. The Granite Wash lost two rigs, ending the week at 68. The Eagle Ford added three rigs for a total of 234. The Barnett had 31 rigs, down one.

In the U.S. there were 1,682 rigs listed as on land, unchanged; 21 as in inland waters, up one; and 65 as offshore, unchanged. The Gulf of Mexico added one rig for a total of 63.

The number of rigs exploring for oil and natural gas in Canada decreased by nine this week for a total of 380. All losses were oil rigs, giving Canada an oil rig count of 238. There were 142 rigs searching for natural gas and zero rigs listed as miscellaneous.

The total number of rigs searching for oil and natural gas in North America was 2,148, a decrease of eight. At this time last year there were 2,218 rigs in North America.

NEW YORK

Oil slips as Syria talks continue; pump price down

The price of oil fell Friday as the U.S. and Russia held discussions in Geneva aimed at getting Syria to give up its chemical weapons.

Meanwhile, the average price for gasoline in the U.S. dropped another penny to $3.54. That was the price three weeks ago, before the U.S. ratcheted up talk of a military intervention in Syria.

Benchmark oil for October delivery fell 39 cents to close at $108.21 a barrel. For the week, oil dropped 1.7 percent after closing last Friday at a two-year high of $110.53.

American and Russian chemical weapons experts huddled in a Geneva hotel to haggle over technical details that will be critical to reaching a deal for securing Syria's chemical weapons arsenal. Meanwhile, U.S. Secretary of State John Kerry and Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov met to examine political developments and plot a new international conference in Geneva to support the creation of a Syrian transitional government.

"I will say on behalf of the United States that President Obama is deeply committed to a negotiated solution with respect to Syria," Kerry said after his meeting with Lavrov.

Syria is not a major oil producer, but oil traders say the possibility of a wider conflict could interrupt production and shipping routes in the Middle East and cause prices to rise. In recent days, oil prices have risen and receded in accordance with the perceived likelihood of a U.S. military attack.

At the pump, the national average for a gallon of regular gasoline is now $3.54 after dropping 4 cents over the past week. The price is down 33 cents compared with this time last year.

One factor bringing down the price of gasoline is ample supplies. The Energy Department said Wednesday that supplies of wholesales gasoline are 10 percent above year-ago levels.

The November Brent contract, the benchmark for international crudes, rose 17 cents to $111.70 a barrel on the ICE Futures exchange in London.

NIGERIA

Community rejects Shell compensation offer

LAGOS — Nigeria's Bodo community in the oil-rich Niger Delta has rejected a compensation offer from Shell for two oil spills in 2008 that devastated the mangrove and fishing area, lawyers and the company said Friday.

"It is a great shame that the negotiations have not led to a settlement. I had hoped that this week would at last see the end of the litigation and enable us to start the process of rebuilding the community," said Chief Kogbara, chairman of the Bodo Council.

Shell has acknowledged liability for the spills five years ago, but it disputes the amount spilled and the impact on the community.

The Bodo community's law firm, Leigh Day, said that 13,000 fishermen lost their livelihoods because of the spills, and 31,000 inhabitants of 35 villages were affected in and around the Bodo lagoon and its associated waterways.

Independent experts estimate between 500,000 and 600,000 barrels were spilled, devastating the environment and contaminating more than 75 square kilometers of mangroves, swamps and channels, the law firm said.

But a spokesman for the Shell Petroleum and Development Company of Nigeria Ltd., Jonathan French, said the number of fisherman impacted is likely lower, given the size of the area. The company also said a joint investigation team estimated that only 4,100 barrels were spilled. Shell blames most of the spills in the region on militant attacks or thieves tapping into pipelines to steal crude oil.

Investigators: 36,000 game disability system

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Social Security made $1.3 billion in potentially improper disability payments to people who had jobs when they were supposed to be unable to work, congressional investigators said in a report Friday.

The Government Accountability Office estimated that 36,000 workers got improper payments from December 2010 to January 2013.

The numbers represent less than 1 percent of beneficiaries and less than 1 percent of disability payments made during the time frame. But GAO said the overpayments reveal weaknesses in Social Security's procedures for policing the system.

"The report lays out clear, common-sense steps that the agency can and should take in order to avoid improper payments," said Sen. Tom Carper, D-Del., chairman of the Senate Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee. "However, if we're serious about preventing waste and fraud and ensuring that these critical benefits get to the people who need and deserve them, Congress must also do its part and provide needed resources and access to basic anti-fraud data to the Social Security Administration."

The Social Security Administration said its accuracy rate for disability payments is more than 99 percent. But the agency noted that even small errors translate into big numbers.

"We are planning to do an investigation, and we will recoup any improper payments from beneficiaries," Social Security spokesman Mark Hinkle said. "It is too soon to tell what caused these overpayments, but if we determine that fraud is involved, we will refer these cases to our office of the inspector general for investigation."

More than 8.2 million disabled workers received disability payments in December 2010, a figure that has grown to nearly 9 million. Last year, the agency paid out $137 billion in disability payments.

Before people can receive disability benefits, there is a 5-month waiting period in which they can, in general, earn no more than about $1,000 a month. The waiting period is to ensure that beneficiaries have long-term disabilities.

Using a federal wage database, investigators checked whether a sample of disability beneficiaries had worked and earned significant wages during the waiting period, the report said. They found that most of the improper payments went to people who worked during the five months they waited for payments to begin.

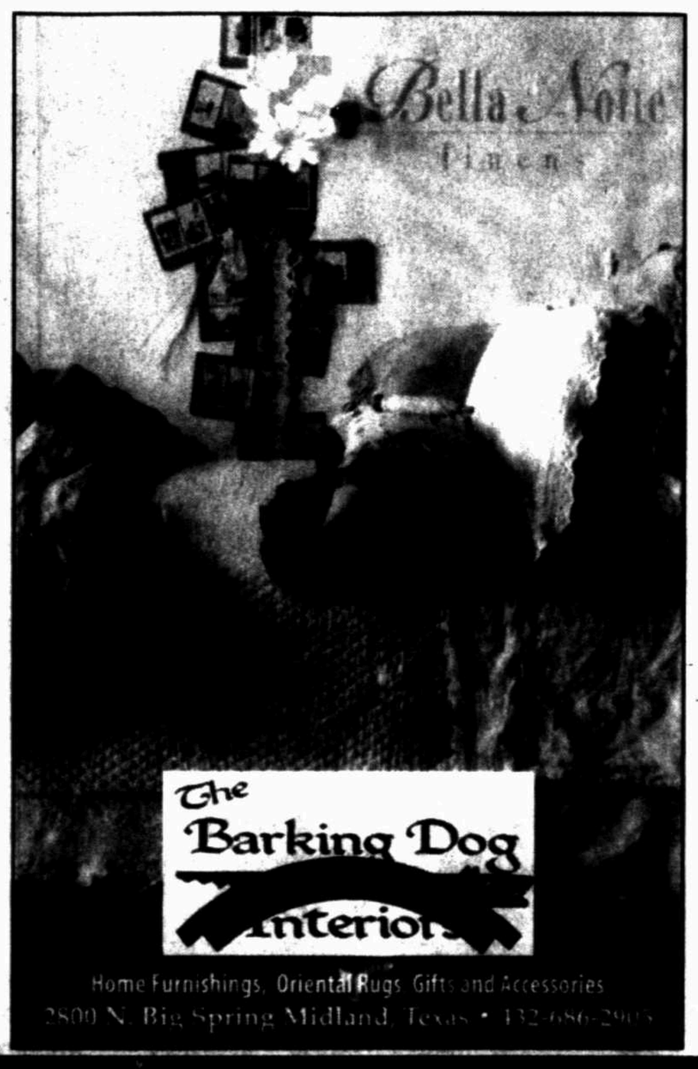
Once people start receiving benefits, they can return to work and still get benefits during a trial work period, in an attempt to reenter the workforce. Using the same wage database, investigators checked whether another sample of disability beneficiaries earned significant wages after their trial work period had ended, the report said.

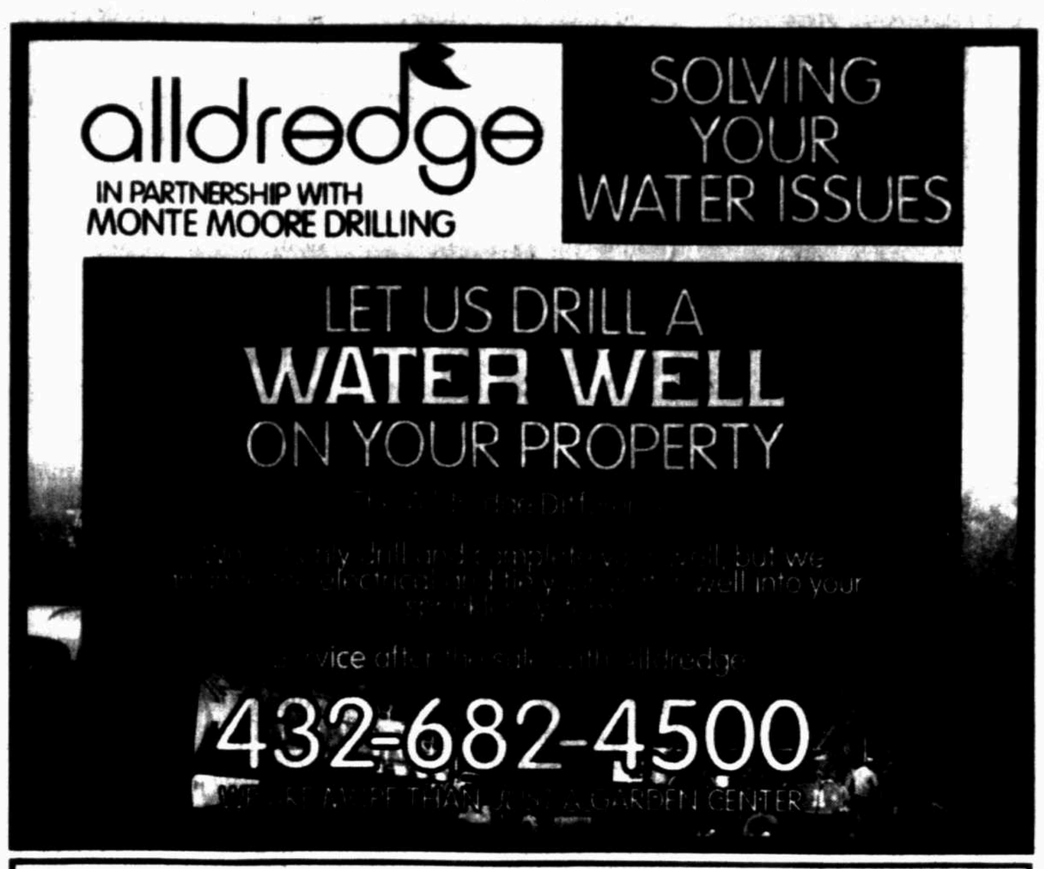
Based on their findings, the GAO estimated the amount of improper payments and the number of people receiving them.

Citing a potential weakness, the report said Social Security might not detect a person who worked during the waiting period if the period started in one year and ended in another. For example, if Social Security starts paying benefits in February, the agency might not detect significant wages earned the previous November because they weren't earned in the same year that benefits were awarded, the report said.

In a written response to the report, the Social Security Administration agency questioned whether GAO overestimated the amount of overpayments. The agency said investigators did not determine whether the work activity qualified as an unsuccessful attempt to return to work, or whether there were any other special circumstances.

The report comes as Social Security's disability program faces a financial crisis. If Congress doesn't act, the trust fund that supports the disability program will run out of money in 2016, according to projections by Social Security's trustees.





Great Lakes program inspires rare bipartisanship

Associated Press

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. — Nowhere has the fervor to cut government down to size been more dramatically on display than in the industrial Midwest.

Republicans have seized control of statehouses across the traditional battleground region, where they've slashed budgets with a vengeance. Their counterparts in Congress have waged war with Democrats over federal spending, led by Rep. Paul Ryan of Wisconsin, architect of blueprints that renounce "earmarks" for local projects and even target Social Security.

But there's a 94,000-square-mile exception to the Republicans' crusade to starve the federal beast: the Great Lakes.

For all their indignation about government overreach, Republicans in the eight-state region are matching Democrats' enthusiasm for an array of federal programs benefiting the inland seas, from dredging harbors to controlling invasive predators like the fish-killing sea lamprey.

When a House subcommittee this summer tried to cut 80 percent of President Barack Obama's Great Lakes Restoration Initiative, which has pumped $1.3 billion into 1,700 grants for cleanups and research since 2010, alarmed Republican freshman David Joyce of Ohio quickly weighed in to get most of next year's money restored. A bipartisan parade from neighboring states is now backing his push to get the rest of the money or even increase it.

Where the Great Lakes are concerned, party politics really does stop at the water's edge.

It's a marriage of convenience, explained partly by the lakes' equal importance to the economy and the environment. They supply the drinking needs of more than 30 million people, support 1.5 million jobs and generate $62 billion in wages annually. They're also home to more than 3,500 plant and animal species.

More fundamentally, the vast lakes are cultural icons, inspiring poetry such as Longfellow's "The Song of Hiawatha" and countless memories of fishing with grandpa or camping on the beach.

"There's just something about the Great Lakes that's part of our DNA, I think," said Rep. Candice Miller, a Republican from suburban Detroit. "It's hard to explain. It's about our way of life."

In Congress, vote-rich states such as Illinois and Ohio, along with neighboring Pennsylvania and New York, pack considerable punch when they stick together.

Other clean-water programs lacking such an impassioned constituency haven't fared as well. Federal funds that provide loans for drinking water and sewage treatment improvements also were cut 80 percent. No one has come to their rescue.

"The Great Lakes Restoration Initiative is among the most fiercely defended programs in the country," said Andy Buchsbaum, regional director of the National Wildlife Federation. "The last two years, Congress has given it the exact level of funding the president called for in his budget. That's almost unheard of, given the partisan toxicity right now."

Even Republicans who were elected with tea party backing — Reps. Sean Duffy and Reid Ribble, of Wisconsin, and Dan Benishek, of Michigan, among them — protect the program. The irony isn't lost on some budget-cutting purists.

"It looks like a lot of so-called conservative Republicans have their sacred cows," said Jack Hoogendyk, a tea party activist and former Michigan state legislator who ran unsuccessfully for Congress.

If he were elected, Hoogendyk said, he'd vote against the Great Lakes program.

"I suppose I'd be out of a job two years later," he admitted.

President Richard Nixon signed the initial Great Lakes Water Quality Agreement with Canada in 1972, when polluted Lake Erie had been declared biologically dead.

Despite some progress, scientists warn that pollution has brought the lakes near "tipping points" of irreversible damage. Lake Huron's once-thriving salmon fishery has all but disappeared.

President George W. Bush signed cleanup legislation but provided little money. Obama requested ample federal funding.

The grants go to government agencies, nonprofits, Indian tribes and universities. They've restored wildlife habitat, advanced cleanups of river mouths fouled with PCBs and strengthened defenses against the dreaded Asian carp.

The congressional supporters are pushing the program this fall even as conservatives gear up for another clash with Obama over spending. Thirty-eight members of Congress have endorsed a request for $300 million for 2014. Joyce is seeking $475 million.

The program's popularity with industry helps give Republicans political cover. In a region beset with the collapse of its manufacturing backbone, the lakes are essential to building a "blue economy" based on abundant water, said Ed Wolking of the Detroit Regional Chamber.

Glaspie involved in 5 TDs as Stanton dominates Forsan

STANTON — There was no doubt who had the stronger herd of Buffaloes this season.

Thanks to a stellar defensive performance and K.J. Glaspie accounting for five TDs, Stanton (2-1) dominated Forsan (2-1) from beginning to end in a convincing 35-6 victory in the Battle of the Buffaloes at Buffalo Stadium on Friday.

Stanton's defense held Forsan to just 87 total yards of offense and didn't give up a first down until the 6:18 mark of the second quarter.

"It was tough physically up front, on both sides of the ball, they kind of had their way with us tonight," Forsan coach Jason Phillips said. "They're a good team. They're much improved over last year. They're going to make the playoffs and they're about as physical a team we've seen."

While the Stanton defense was stifling Forsan, Glaspie had the Stanton offense hitting on all cylinders. The junior quarterback had a terrific performance passing for three TDs and rushing for two more as Stanton racked up 328 yards of total offense.

"My receivers did really well, my linemen were good, Esteven (Chavez) ran very well and opened stuff up," Glaspie said. "Everybody just played a really good game and I just happened to get to throw some passes they caught."

Glaspie and the Stanton offense got off to a hot start, leading the Buffaloes on an eight-play, 60-yard drive he capped with a 6-yard TD pass to Austin Bird with 8:22 left in the first quarter.

Glaspie scored on a 17-yard TD scamper early in the fourth quarter and put Stanton up 21-0 when he found Bird on third-and-18 for a 40-yard TD pass with 3:06 left in the first half.

"K.J. is coming into his own," Stanton coach John Peterson said. "He's become a big-time leader for us ever since (senior running back) Tim Anderson went down with a (knee) injury. He's seeing the field, he's seeing the routes and those kids are running great routes for him to help him out. It's a Aron Dobbins' most important carry of the night wasn't his longest, and it wasn't even a touchdown.

But a physical 14-yard run on third down with the clock winding down clinched a 42-35 victory for the Rebels against Abilene Cooper on Friday at Grande Communications Stadium.

Dobbins finished the night with 196 yards on 23 carries and a touchdown, but his performance was one of a number of big ones for Lee in its District 2-5A opener.

Quarterback Caden Coots completed 17 of 25 passes for 285 yards and three touchdowns, while his top receiver Isaiah Johnson had 151 yards receiving and five catches, including a 75-yard TD on the first play of the game.

But the most clutch performance might have come from Lee's defense. The Rebels (2-1, 1-0) allowed more than 500 yards to the Cooper offense, and had some struggles on third down, but in six-man like fashion they had two key stops, one in the third quarter and one in the fourth, to help Lee keep its cushion on the explosive Cougars (1-2, 0-1).

"The defense played great ... the whole team played great," Dobbins said. "We've got to thank God and the coach for giving us this chance. The defense played amazing, they played great."

The Rebels entered the second half with a 28-21 lead, and after stopping the Cougars on fourth down early in the third quarter, they responded with an impressive eight-play, 96-yard drive. The drive included a pair of 36 yards runs — one by Dobbins and another by Simeon Mayberry.

It was the first of two answer drives for Lee in the second half. After Cooper drove 96 yards itself with a drive that Joe capped with a 1-yard run early in the fourth quarter, Lee answered less than four minutes later.

Nathan Bailey scored on a 1-yard run with 7:20 remaining, but that play came one play after an impressive 18-yard pass and catch from Coots to Johnson.

Lee held a 42-28 lead with just over seven minutes remaining, and then two minutes later Logan Vitello broke up a Joe pass on fourth down near the goal line to keep Lee's two-touchdown lead.

Big Spring rolls past Lake View

By Nick Wendel

BIG SPRING — Big Spring left no doubt during its homecoming matchup with San Angelo Lake View as the Steers rolled to a 48-0 victory at Memorial Stadium on Friday night.

Big Spring improved to 2-1 and bounced back from last week's loss at Midland Christian.

Junior running back Hunter Hill rushed for the Steers' first two scores, the first of which was a 38-yard scamper in the first quarter.

After Hill had been stuffed on a couple of attempts after a couple of Lake View defensive adjustments, junior Big Spring quarterback Tobyn Tannehill snatched the spotlight, rushing for a 31-yard score before throwing two touchdowns on consecutive drives to senior wide receiver Tate Kennedy.

Tannehill

Tannehill rushed for one more touchdown and a two-point conversion later in the contest. He finished with 130 yards rushing and had 173 yards through the air.

Lake View's Brandon Lee was his first career start at quarterback, but Big Spring didn't exactly roll out the red carpet for the junior, forcing three interceptions. Eventually, Lake View gave junior Roland Ageuro some reps in the second half. Ageuro did not attempt a pass, but rushed for 22 yards.

Lake View (1-2) did find ways to sustain its drives over the course of the game, possessing the football for over 32 minutes of a 48-minute contest. However, the Chiefs never advanced the ball beyond Big Spring's 30-yard line until the final minute of the game.

Hill may have proven himself the most versatile athlete on the field. After rushing for the Steers' first two scores, Hill also scored on defense,

Athletics top Rangers to start key series

By Schuyler Dixon

Athletics 9
Rangers 8

ARLINGTON — Yoenis Cespedes hit a three-run homer in the first inning, and the Oakland Athletics survived a shaky night from the bullpen to extend their AL West lead with a 9-8 victory over the Texas Rangers on Friday night.

The A's handed the Rangers their fourth straight loss and moved 4 1/2 games ahead of Texas in the opener of the final series of the regular season between the past two AL West champions.

Elvis Andrus and Alex Rios had two-run singles in a six-run eighth as the Rangers tried to rally from a 9-2 deficit. Cespedes, playing left field, ended the threat by throwing out Rios at third on Adrian Beltre's third hit.

Cespedes' 23rd homer came off Derek Holland (9-9), who is winless in a career-high seven straight starts.

Former Midland Rock-Hound Dan Straily (10-7) allowed two hits in 5 2-3 innings to win his fourth straight start and beat Texas for the second time in 11 days.

The right-hander might have stayed around longer if he hadn't struggled with four walks and a hit batter. The bullpen was wild, too, and it almost cost the A's the game.

Sean Doolittle struck out Jurickson Profar with the tying run at second base in the ninth for his second save in seven chances.

Brett Anderson walked Beltre and A.J. Pierzynski to start the eighth, and Ron Cook later gave Ian Kinsler a free pass with the bases loaded for Oakland's eighth walk.

Andrus followed with a single to right field, and Rios singled to center after a passed ball moved both runners into scoring position. Rios tried to go from first to third on Beltre's hit and was ejected by Andy Fletcher for arguing the call.

First-base umpire Joe West tossed Texas pitcher Matt Garza for complaining from the dugout in the top of the ninth.

Josh Donaldson homered and drove in three runs, and Brandon Moss hit his 27th for Oakland. Derek Norris had three hits.

Holland's shortest outing of the season ended with no outs in the fourth after consecutive singles from Norris and Kurt Suzuki. The left-hander has been stuck on nine wins since Aug. 4 and is 0-3 with an 8.78 ERA in three starts in September.

Holland gave up eight hits and six runs in three innings in his second loss to the A's in 10 days.

The Rangers dropped to 2-9 in September and fell a game behind Tampa Bay for the AL wild-card lead.

Straily walked his first two batters with a 3-0 lead, and Kinsler and Andrus both scored to get Texas within 3-2. But the 24-year-old right-hander bounced back with five strong innings before losing his control again in the sixth.

Beltre had both hits off Straily, driving in Kinsler with a single in the first before Pierzynski brought home Andrus on a sacrifice fly. Beltre had an infield hit in the sixth, and Straily didn't make it out of the inning after hitting Pierzynski with a pitch and walking Jim Adduci.

Jerry Blevins got Craig Gentry to ground out with the bases loaded to end the sixth.

NOTES: Every starter in the Oakland lineup had at least one hit and the A's finished with 14 hits, just two nights after getting a season-high 22 in an 18-3 win over Minnesota.

Furyk becomes 6th player to shoot 59 on PGA Tour

By Doug Ferguson
Associated Press

LAKE FOREST, Ill. — Jim Furyk crouched to study the 3 feet of green between his ball and the cup, a short distance with such large implications.

He thought back to a similar putt — slightly downhill, sliding to the right — that he made the last time he won a tournament three long years ago. That one at the Tour Championship was worth $10 million. Friday at the BMW Championship, it was for a piece of golf history.

Furyk capped off a magical day at Conway Farms with a birdie on his last hole to become the sixth player in PGA Tour history to shoot 59.

And with a bogey on his card, no less.

"I guess the moment kind of struck me the most at No. 9 when I hit the wedge shot in there close, and the crowd erupted and I started looking around and it just hit me how many people had come over to that side to see the finish and how excited the crowd was," Furyk said. "It was kind of like winning a golf tournament, to be honest with you. It made it that much more fun."

It was a day he won't forget, in the same town — the Chicago suburbs, anyway — where he won his lone major at the U.S. Open in 2003.

After starting his round on No. 10, Furyk stood in the ninth fairway, 103 yards away and a gap wedge in his hand, and realized what was at stake.

"I said, 'How many opportunities are you going to have in life to do this again?'" he said. "Got to take advantage of it. Tried to knock it in there tight and make it as easy on yourself as you can."

The gallery lined both sides of the fairway about 150 yards down from the green and gave him a huge ovation when he walked onto the green. One fan screamed out, "Jimmy, I'll give it to you!" Furyk smiled and waved at him as if he were more than willing to pick it up.

He rolled it in and repeatedly pumped his fist, turning for the gallery in the grandstands to see, and then he hugged caddie Mike "Fluff" Cowan and tapped him on the head. It looked like a Sunday afternoon, and had the occasion of a winning putt.

There's work left for the trophy. Furyk was tied for the lead with Brandt Snedeker, who was nine shots clear of Furyk at the start of the second round and shot 68.

ASTROS 9
ANGELS 7

HOUSTON — Jose Altuve hit a three-run homer and Matt Dominguez's grand slam powered a big fifth inning to give Houston a victory over Los Angeles for its fourth straight win.

The Astros trailed by 1 entering the fifth before Trevor Crowe singled in two runs to put Houston up 5-4. Dominguez then hit his 20th homer off the wall in left field to extend the lead to 9-4.

Dallas Keuchel (6-9) yielded 10 hits and six runs, but tied his career high by striking out nine in 5 2-3 innings for his first win since July 27. Josh Fields struck out two in a scoreless ninth for his fifth save.

Houston tagged Angels starter Jason Vargas (8-7) for nine hits and a season-high eight runs in 4 1/3 innings.

RED SOX 8
YANKEES 4

BOSTON — Jarrod Saltalamacchia hit a tiebreaking grand slam in the seventh inning, Koji Uehara closed with another perfect inning and the Boston Red Sox beat the New York Yankees 8-4 Friday night.

David Ortiz and Stephen Drew each doubled twice as the AL East-leading Red Sox won for the 15th time in 19 games. Saltalamacchia also doubled and scored twice.

MINNEAPOLIS — Chris Archer pitched six scoreless innings and Tampa Bay added to its slim wild-card lead by beating Minnesota.

The Rays hold the second wild-card spot with four teams still in striking range. They nudged their edge to 1 1/2 games over Cleveland, and a loss by New York pushed the Yankees to two games back. Baltimore (2 1/2 games behind) and Kansas City (3 1/2) are lurking, too.

ORIOLES 5
BLUE JAYS 3

TORONTO — Chris Davis hit his major league-leading 50th home run, a tiebreaking solo shot in the eighth inning, and Baltimore erased a 3-0 deficit to beat Toronto and snap a three-game losing streak.

Davis became the 27th major leaguer to join the 50-homer club, and the first since Jose Bautista in 2010. Davis led off the eighth with a blast to center off All-Star reliever Steve Delabar, connecting on a 2-2 pitch.

DETROIT — Prince Fielder homered and drove in three runs, and Justin Verlander pitched effectively into the seventh inning to lift Detroit to victory over Kansas City.

Detroit remained six games ahead of second-place Cleveland in the AL Central and dealt the third-place Royals a setback in the postseason race. Kansas City is one of several teams hoping at least to catch Tampa Bay for a wild card.

INDIANS 3
WHITE SOX 1

CHICAGO — Danny Salazar struck out nine in 3 2-3 innings, Ryan Raburn hit an RBI double and Cleveland beat Chicago for the 10th time in a row this season.

Salazar's pitch count was limited to 85, and after allowing Dayan Viciedo's single with two outs on his 78th pitch, he was replaced by Nick Hagadone with runners on first and third.

National League

PADRES 4
BRAVES 3

ATLANTA — Chase Headley hit a tying homer and Logan Forsythe drove in the go-ahead run in San Diego's two-run eighth and the Padres beat Atlanta 4-3 on Friday night to spoil Braves rookie David Hale's debut.

Hale pitched five scoreless innings and struck out nine, the most by a Braves pitcher in his first major league game.

PITTSBURGH — Anthony Rizzo hit a towering go-ahead, two-run homer off Jason Grilli in the seventh inning and the Chicago Cubs rallied past Pittsburgh.

Brian Bogusevic went 3 for 4 with his fifth homer of the season for Chicago. Dioneer Navarro added two hits as the Cubs ended Pittsburgh's four-game winning streak.

NATIONALS 6
PHILLIES 1

WASHINGTON — Wilson Ramos homered and drove in three runs, Ross Ohlendorf pitched five innings in place of Stephen Strasburg, and Washington won its seventh straight.

Ian Desmond had two hits and two RBIs, and Ryan Zimmerman (3 for 4) hit a solo homer and scored three runs for the Nationals, who began play trailing Cincinnati by 5 1/2 games for the final NL wild card.

METS 4
MARLINS 3

NEW YORK — Lucas Duda hit a three-run homer and the New York Mets overcame two solo shots by Giancarlo Stanton to beat Miami.

Andrew Brown also connected for the Mets, outhomered 13-0 by Washington at Citi Field in a four-game sweep that ended Thursday. Jonathon Niese (7-7) struck out seven and walked none in 6 1-3 innings, improving to 4-1 in seven starts since returning from a shoulder injury last month.

MILWAUKEE — Carlos Gomez went 3 for 4 with 5 RBIs while Kyle Lohse retired 23 consecutive batters during one stretch and finished with a four-hitter to lead Milwaukee.

Cincinnati had three consecutive hits to open the second, but then didn't get a base runner until Jay Bruce walked with two outs in the ninth en route to its third loss in four games.

CARDINALS 2
MARINERS 1

ST. LOUIS — Pete Kozma scored on catcher Mike Zunino's passed ball with the bases loaded and two outs in the 10th inning, and St. Louis regained the NL Central lead.

The Cardinals, now 6-1 on a nine-game homestand, lead the division by a game after Pittsburgh lost.

Lee, MHS squads open district play

By Len Hayward
lhayward@mrt.com

The Lee and Midland High tennis teams will being District 2-5A play today in Lubbock and both will have a tough task in taking on perennial district power Lubbock Coronado.

This year, though, a loss may not mean as much as it used to. The University Interscholastic League has added an area team tennis tournament this year, which means that four teams qualify for the postseason instead of two.

It's an added carrot for teams that have had trouble breaking into the top part of a tough district, but as both teams enter district play that is the furthest thing from their minds.

Midland High will take on Lubbock Coronado at 8:30 a.m. and Lee will face the Mustangs at 2 p.m. in Lubbock.

"We want to go out there each and every single match concentrating on that match at hand," Lee coach Andy Cariens said. "We don't want to get ahead of ourselves. Every match starts off at 0-0 and there's not a pre-determined winner, and until that last point is finished we are really concentrating on the now."

Midland High enters today's match with a 7-4 record, and its last match victory was against Midland Christian last week.

Bulldogs coach Alan Biel said that no matter how many teams go to the postseason, they still have to concentrate on winning.

"We want the kids to do the best they can, whether two teams go to the playoffs or four teams go to the playoffs," Biel said. "The most important thing is that they do what they are capable of doing."

NASCAR adds Gordon to Chase field

By Jenna Fryer
Associated Press

JOLIET, Ill. — NASCAR added Jeff Gordon to the Chase for the Sprint Cup championship field Friday, a stunning and unprecedented step in the fallout from at least two attempts to manipulate the results at the season-ending race at Richmond last weekend.

NASCAR chairman Brian France said he had the authority to expand the field to 13 drivers for the first time since the format was implemented 10 years ago.

Front Row Motorsports asked for a deal from Penske Racing in the closing laps at Richmond and then helped make sure Penske's Joey Logano made the Chase field by having one of its drivers, David Gilliland, slow down, according to an Associated Press review of radio communications.

France said NASCAR could not determine there was a bargain between Front Row and Penske, but still believed the move was necessary to protect the "integrity" of the series. He said both teams had been placed on probation for the rest of the season.

"Too many things altered the event and gave an unfair disadvantage to Jeff and his team," France said. "More than anything it's just the right thing to do. There were just too many things that went on Saturday night."

Gordon, the four-time champion, now joins Hendrick Motorsports teammates Jimmie Johnson, the five-time champion, Dale Earnhardt Jr. and Kasey Kahne in the Chase.

"Wow we just gained 1250 points!" Gordon tweeted shortly after the announcement. "Very appreciative of (at)NASCAR consideration on this matter as well as fans overwhelming support."

Owner Rick Hendrick agreed.

"I applaud NASCAR for taking the time for a full review," he said. "We're extremely proud to have all four cars in the Chase for the second consecutive season. Jeff and the No. 24 team earned this spot."

Trading favors on and off the track is common in NASCAR, but the series is already trying to rebound from the embarrassment of another team manipulating the outcome at Richmond. Earlier this week, NASCAR punished Michael Waltrip Racing and three of its drivers for shenanigans over the final seven laps and pulled one of them, Martin Truex Jr., out of the Chase field in favor of Ryan Newman.

The Chase begins Sunday at Chicagoland Speedway. NASCAR will hold a mandatory team and driver meeting Saturday to clarify "the rules of the road" moving forward. France would not specify what won't be tolerated going forward.

Newman was on his way to a victory at Richmond that would have given him the final spot in the Chase field when Clint Bowyer spun, bringing out a caution. That set in motion a chain of events that cost Newman the win and the Chase berth. It also cost Gordon a Chase berth and put Truex and Logano into the final two spots.

NASCAR reacted by replacing Truex with Newman in the Chase field and hitting MWR with a $300,000 fine. It suspended general manager Ty Norris indefinitely, while MWR teammates Bowyer, Truex and Brian Vickers were docked 50 points each, and their crew chiefs were placed on probation through the end of the year.

Weighty issues, big money for Mayweather-Alvarez

By Tim Dahlberg
Associated Press

LAS VEGAS — Listen to Floyd Mayweather Jr.'s people and Canelo Alvarez wanted to fight their man so badly he offered to drop a few pounds to get him to sign on the dotted line.

Listen to the Alvarez camp and Mayweather wanted the fight at an even lower weight that Alvarez would have to starve himself to make.

"The truth," promoter Richard Schaefer says, "lies somewhere in the middle."

Weight is always a big deal in fights, and it is center stage again in one of the biggest fights in recent years. Saturday night's megafight is officially for a version of the 154-pound title held by Alvarez, but will be fought at a catch weight of 152 pounds that will be harder for Alvarez to make than it is for Mayweather.

"They're the ones who said they would fight at a lower weight," said Leonard Ellerbe, Mayweather's manager. "We can't help it Alvarez has idiots for managers, but we're going to take every advantage they give us."

Alvarez is a full-fledged junior middleweight and has been for more than three years now. He's physically bigger at 5-foot-9 than Mayweather and has had to lose good amounts of weight in the final days in some of his recent fights just to get to the 154-pound class limit.

But when the chance came to move in to the upper stratosphere of fighters against Mayweather — with at least a $5 million payday attached to it — Alvarez had to give up a few pounds against a fighter more used to fighting at 147 pounds.

"They wanted me to go to 147," Alvarez said earlier this week when he said he was already down to 154 pounds. "I said that was physically impossible. Then they wanted 150 and then 151. I wanted to make the fight so I agreed to 152. Then they forced me to be quiet about it."

Alvarez was 152 pounds at the official weigh-in Friday, delighting a raucous crowd of about 12,000 who packed the MGM Arena to watch. Mayweather weighed in at 150 1/2.

a poor job of adjusting to it," Cooper coach Todd Moebes said. "That's on me. We'll go back to the drawing board and get it fixed next week."

Cooper did score with 2:12 remaining when Joe connected with Aaron Anderson for a 20-yard catch to cut the lead to seven. Joe completed 20 of 28 passes for 336 yards and two touchdowns.

But after Lee recovered the ensuing onside kick, the Rebels looked to have the game locked up after Dobbins ripped off a 42-yard touchdown run.

The run was called back, though, and now Lee faced a third-and-12 with just over a minute remaining. Dobbins, though, found a crease and powered his way for 14 yards for the game-clinching first down.

"I didn't even think too much about it," Dobbins said of the negated TD run. "We are still going to get this win either way. I knew I had to get the first down by any means necessary, and went out there and did it for my team."

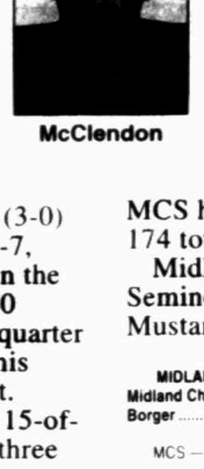
McClendon breaks MCS passing record in win

From staff reports

BORGER — Elias Aguirre scored three touchdowns and quarterback Mason McClendon threw for three more as Midland Christian rolled to a 51-7 victory over Borger at Bulldog Stadium.



McClendon

This was actually a fairly close game with Midland Christian (3-0) leading Borger, 21-7, at the half. But then the Mustangs scored 30 points in the third quarter to run away with this non-district contest.

McClendon was 15-of-23 passing for the three TDs, one interception and 242 yards. The three touchdowns thrown now gives McClendon, the senior, the school career passing record with 72, surpassing Jamie Beeghley's career mark of 69.

Justin Fender also scored two rushing touchdowns for the Mustangs.

Defensively, MCS held Borger (1-2) to 174 total yards.

Midland Christian hosts Seminole next Friday at Mustang Field.

Glaspie added a 5-yard TD run in the third quarter and a 28-yard TD pass to David Ramsey in the fourth, capping Stanton's scoring for the game.

Forsan's lone points came in the third quarter when Kolby Self broke off a 95-yard kickoff return TD immediately after Glaspie's 5-yard TD run. Even then, not everything went right for Forsan as Stanton blocked Trevor Williams' ensuing point after attempt.

"It was a good game by our kids. They came ready to play," Peterson said. "It was our last home game in pre-district and it was homecoming so they wanted to make a big home stand statement."

Statement made.

Spotlight to shine on birthplace of night football

Michael Rubinkam
Associated Press

MANSFIELD, Pa. — Pennsylvania's Mansfield University hosted the first-ever night football game in 1892, a contest that ended at halftime when the ref declared it "inconvenient to continue."

Why? Because the lighting was so poor.

This weekend, the spotlight will shine far more brightly on Mansfield as it plays a home game under the lights for the first time since that shortened contest more than a century ago. Saturday night's opponent, Princeton, took part in the first-ever college football game in 1869.

Mansfield is heavily promoting its long-delayed return to night football — and poking a little fun at itself in the process.

"We got a little bit burned by technology, and we weren't ready to jump back on again until we were sure that all the bugs had gotten worked out," joked Steve McCloskey, the school's director of athletic operations. "After 121 years, we're pretty sure this night football thing is going to catch on, and we want to be right there at the forefront."

The first night game, against visiting Wyoming Seminary, drew thousands of spectators to the Great Mansfield Fair on Sept. 28, 1892. Part of a barnstorming effort by General Electric to sell rural America on newfangled electric lighting, the game was illuminated — barely — by strings of lights powered by a dynamo. It was so hard to see that confused players tackled their own teammates and even the referee. Ball-carriers had trouble avoiding the makeshift lamppost in the middle of the field.

The game, such as it was, ended in a scoreless tie. And that was that.

The town of Mansfield wouldn't be electrified for another five years, while Mansfield University never saw a need for lights at its athletic stadium because the football team traditionally played on Saturday afternoons.

But the 20th century finally won out. In went the lights, along with an artificial playing surface that'll be shared by the football, field hockey and soccer teams.

"Every kid at every school in this county knows that Mansfield was the birthplace of night football," McCloskey said. "So when we got lights this summer, it was a no-brainer for us to celebrate that history."

Throwing the ceremonial switch on Saturday's season opener will be 101-year-old Chester Bailey, a Mansfield historian and longtime newspaper owner who helped gain recognition of Mansfield's role. Bailey stumbled on a newspaper account of the 1892 game when he was a 15-year-old printer's apprentice, and, decades later, pursued it with the pro and college football halls of fame.

"It was history that I knew, and a lot of people didn't know about," he recalled.

The Mountaineers play in the eight-team Collegiate Sprint Football League, in which players can weigh no more than 172 pounds. Mansfield joined the league after its traditional, and far more expensive, football program fell victim to budget cuts in 2006.

After practice this week, players at the 3,400-student, state-owned university in northern Pennsylvania spoke in well-rehearsed tones about ignoring the hoopla and staying focused on Princeton. But, with thousands of fans expected in the seats, they know it's a special game.

"It's a very long time since the lights have gone on here, and it's going to be a pretty historic night for us," said Jeremy Estremera, a slotback from Allentown.

COLORADO CITY — Colorado City beat rival Coahoma on Friday in a non-district game, winning at Wolf Stadium.

It was the first win of the season for the Wolves (1-2), while Coahoma (0-3) dropped its third straight to open the season.

Coahoma next hosts Denver City at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Sands 92 Grady 86, 2 OT

LENORAH — Grady's E.J. Rodriguez fumbled the ball at the 1/2 yard line in double overtime as Sands survived the non-district thriller between the two rivals at Tunnell Field.

The game was tied at 78 at the end of regulation after Grady came back from a two touchdown deficit. The Wildcats (1-2) scored with less than three seconds remaining and Grady coach Greg Kuykendall said he decided to go for one point on the PAT with a run attempt instead of the kick, and the Wildcats had a bad pitch on the conversion attempt.

Both teams then were tied at 86 after the first overtime.

Sands (3-0) scored in the third overtime and then came up with the big stop on the Wildcats.

Rodriguez rushed for 107 yards on 14 carries to go with 9-of-14 passing for 196 yards, three touchdowns and no interception. Joseph Briseno added four receptions for 132 yards and a touchdown, plus 50 yards passing.

Grady is at Trinity next Friday.

Trinity 48 Lubb. Kingdom Prep 25

LUBBOCK — Trinity scored three touchdowns in the third quarter to help it clinch its first victory of the season on Friday against Lubbock Kingdom Prep.

The Chargers (1-2) were ahead 16-12 after halftime but then scored the three TDs to take control of the game. Ethan Samuels scored on a 21-yard pass from Vincent Baiano, Boomer Selvera had a 3-yard run and Powers Ramsey had a 12-yard run.

Ramsey led the Chargers with 197 yards on 11 carries with two touchdowns.

Trinity will take on Grady at home next Friday.

Texas president says he supports Mack Brown

By Jim Vertuno
Associated Press

AUSTIN — University of Texas President Bill Powers said Friday he supports coach Mack Brown amid speculation that Brown's job is on the line after three sub-par seasons and an embarrassing loss at BYU.

Powers spoke briefly with The Associated Press before Saturday's game against No. 25 Mississippi (2-0). Powers called last week's 40-21 loss to BYU a "bad week" and says Brown is "trying to fix it."

The game

NO. 25 MISSISSIPPI AT TEXAS

When: 6 p.m. today
Location: Darrell K. Royal-Texas Memorial Stadium
TV: Longhorn Network

Brown fired defensive coordinator Manny Diaz the day after the defeat.

"Mack's our coach. He gets we had a bad week and he's trying to fix it," Powers said.

Powers dismissed the idea that Brown faces a minimum standard of wins or a Big 12 championship to keep his job, saying there have been no discussions about ultimatums for the coach. Brown won the 2005 national championship and is in his 16th year at Texas.

"Mack has my support," Powers said.

Powers and Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds are key allies for Brown amid growing fan unrest over Texas' fall from Big 12 powerhouse. Since playing for the national championship at the end of the 2009 season, Texas is 23-17 since 2010, including an 11-9 mark at home.

In an interview with the Austin American-Statesman this week, Dodds said "Mack's fine."

Brown is under contract until 2020. He will earn about $5.4 million this year with annual raises built into his contract.

Brown has said he has no plans to retire and said before the season he would not be fired while praising his support from school leadership. He also predicting he has his best team in years, one capable of winning the Big 12 and returning to national prominence. Texas starts its Big 12 schedule next week against Kansas State.

Round 2

Aggies, Crimson Tide set for another clash

By Ralph D. Russo
Associated Press

HOUSTON — The last blockbuster of the summer is set in Texas.

No. 1 Alabama vs. No. 6 Texas A&M. Johnny Football trying to derail the Crimson Tide dynasty. Who is the hero and who is the villain depends upon your perspective. And, of course, it's a sequel.

The Tide (1-0) and Aggies (2-0) meet Saturday in the most anticipated and talked-about game of the season.

Just how big is this game, Tide coach Nick Saban?

"Obviously this is an exciting game for our team, the players in our program," Saban said.

OK, so Saban isn't much for hype, but there's no doubt this is huge.

Looking online for a last-minute ticket to Kyle Field? Be prepared to shell out $700, give or take a hundred. A hotel room in town? Better have a plan B. Most of the space was booked not long after the Aggies upset Alabama 29-24 last November in Tuscaloosa. Texas A&M was expecting a crowd of around 50,000 at the stadium for midnight yell practice Friday night, the Aggies' unique version of a pep rally, which will be televised by ESPN.

Last year's victory propelled A&M quarterback Johnny Manziel to the Heisman Trophy. For the Tide, the loss was a detour on the way to a second straight national championship. Saban's team is trying to become the first to win three straight titles. The Aggies have championship aspirations, too.

In a couple of tuneup games leading into Saturday's Southeastern Conference opener for both teams, Manziel has looked better than ever (six TD passes and 520 yards), showing no signs that an offseason in the spotlight has had any adverse effects on his game.

Alabama's only game was a 35-10 victory against Virginia Tech that — by Tide standards — was almost a letdown.

"After Virginia Tech everybody is talking about being disappointed in us," guard Anthony Steen said, "and we've got a chip on our shoulder ... and we're ready to prove something."

REINFORCEMENTS: Texas A&M's defense has been leaky against Rice and Sam Houston State. To plug the holes, the Aggies get back four key players — linebacker Steven Jenkins, defensive end Gavin Stansbury and cornerbacks Deshazor Everett and De'Vante Harris — after they missed much or all the first two games because of various suspensions. Jenkins is one of the few seniors on defense.

"Just to have that confidence out there on the field, that swag, was permeating throughout the team yesterday in practice," Aggies defensive coordinator Mark Snyder said earlier this week.

THE OTHER QB: AJ McCarron is no Johnny Football, but Alabama fans aren't complaining. The senior has two national championship rings and is one of the best quarterbacks in the country. One of his few mistakes last season was an interception near A&M's goal line late in the fourth quarter. The best-laid plans for Alabama probably don't involve getting into a high-scoring game with A&M's super charged, up-tempo offense. But if it goes that route, McCarron and the Tide's myriad playmakers should be up to the task.

THREE THINGS TO KNOW ABOUT THE LATEST SEC GAME OF THE CENTURY

HOLD THE LINE: Alabama's rebuilt offensive line was one of the few areas of concern for the Tide coming into the season. The Virginia Tech game did nothing to soothe the worry warts. The Tide didn't crack 100 yards rushing against Hokies.

TODAY'S TEXAS/BIG 12 COLLEGE PREVIEW CAPSULES

NO. 1 ALABAMA (1-0) AT NO. 6 TEXAS A&M (2-0), 1:40 P.M. (CBS)

LINE: Alabama by 7 ½.

SERIES RECORD: Alabama 3-2.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: This is the first game of the season with true national championship implications. Alabama is looking forward to the rematch after the Aggies handed the Crimson Tide its only loss in last year's national championship season. The Aggies are out to prove that last year's game, which helped Johnny Manziel become the first freshman to win the Heisman Trophy, wasn't a fluke.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Alabama: WR/KR/PR Christion Jones. Jones earned SEC special teams player of the week honors in Week 1 after a 72-yard punt return for a touchdown and a 94-yard kickoff return for another score in Alabama's opener. He also had 47 yards receiving with a third score to finish with 256 all-purpose yards.

Texas A&M: CB Deshazor Everett. Saturday will be Everett's first full game after he sat out the first half of Texas A&M's opener serving a suspension for violating team rules before drawing his targeting penalty and another suspension in the second half against Rice. He intercepted Alabama's A.J. McCarron near the end zone in the fourth quarter to help secure win by the Aggies last season.

LAMAR (1-1) VS. NO. 12 OKLAHOMA STATE (2-0), 6:30 P.M. (FOX SPORTS SOUTHWEST)

LINE: Oklahoma State by 46.

SERIES RECORD: first meeting.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: After convincing road victories against Mississippi State and Texas-San Antonio, Oklahoma State finally plays at home, looking to avoid a letdown against an FCS opponent. Lamar, from the Southland Conference, is coming off a competitive 27-14 loss at Louisiana Tech last week and is looking to pull off what would be a monumental upset.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Lamar: QB Caleb Berry threw for 272 yards and a touchdown, but was sacked five times last week at La Tech. His offensive line will have a tough time doing better than that against the potent OSU pass-rushers, who recorded five in their two contests.

Oklahoma State: RB Jeremy Smith, who has scored a rushing touchdown in 11 straight games, will be looking to bounce back from last week, when he gained 34 yards on 12 carries. Along with Walsh, who ran for 125 yards and a TD against Mississippi State Aug. 31, the Cowboys have a strong ground attack.

TULSA (1-1) AT NO. 14 OKLAHOMA (2-0), 10 A.M. (ESPN2)

LINE: Oklahoma by 24½

SERIES RECORD: Oklahoma leads 17-7-1

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Oklahoma wants to maintain momentum heading into a difficult three-game stretch following Saturday's game, with contests at Notre Dame, at home against TCU and in Dallas against Texas. Tulsa, often an afterthought in a state with two Big 12 Conference teams, wants to strike a blow for the little guy. A win by the Golden Hurricane would help ease the sting of an embarrassing lopsided loss to Bowling Green in the opener and could cement their status as perhaps the team to beat in Conference USA.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Tulsa: LB Shawn Jackson, who is on the verge of breaking two school career records. Jackson needs 1½ tackles for loss to tie the school mark in that category and two sacks to match the school record of 20 (a mark now co-held by former NFL lineman Dennis Byrd). Last season, despite missing three games due to suspension, he led a defense that recorded 53 sacks, second-best in the Football Bowl Subdivision.

Oklahoma: QB Blake Bell, who will be making his first career start. Bell saw plenty of action the past two seasons in Oklahoma's "Belldozer" power-running package but lost a preseason competition to Trevor Knight for the starting job. Knight is out with a bruised knee, opening the door for Bell to state his case as a starter.

NO. 25 MISSISSIPPI (2-0) AT TEXAS (1-1), 6 P.M. (LHN)

LINE: Texas by 2 ½

SERIES RECORD: Texas leads 6-1

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Mack Brown's job? One game won't decide it, but the pressure is rising in Austin after a blowout loss at BYU, pushing to the point where every game this season may be a referendum on Brown. For Mississippi, a quality road win over a wounded Texas would show the Rebels could be for real this season.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Texas: QB David Ash or Case McCoy. Starter Ash left the BYU game with head and shoulder injuries and his status may not be known until Saturday. Ash passed for six touchdowns in the first two games. McCoy, a senior, is a risk-taker prone to turnovers.

Mississippi: DE Robert Nkemdiche. The freshman was one of the top recruits in the country last year. He doesn't have a sack yet, but a big night against a shaky Texas offensive line could be his coming out party nationally.

IOWA (1-1) AT IOWA STATE (0-1), 4 P.M. (FS1)

SERIES RECORD: Iowa leads 39-21

LINE: Iowa by 2 ½

WHAT'S AT STAKE: More than just bragging rights. Iowa hasn't beaten an FBS opponent since last October, and Iowa State opened with an ugly loss to Northern Iowa. Both teams are in search of a marquee win that will get their seasons going in the right direction.

PLAYERS TO WATCH

Iowa: WR Damond Powell. The Hawkeyes continue to look for ways to get their fastest but least experienced Hawkeye involved in the game plan.

Iowa State: LB Jeremiah George. The senior leader of the Cyclones defense needs to bounce back after a poor performance two weeks ago.

TODAY'S TOP 10 GAMES

TENNESSEE (2-0) VS. NO. 2 OREGON (2-0), 2:36 P.M. (ABC)

LINE: Oregon by 27½.

SERIES RECORD: Oregon 1-0.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Oregon's high-powered blur offense gets another shot to measure up to a team from the Southeastern Conference. The Ducks defeated the Vols 48-13 in Knoxville in their only previous meeting in 2010. That season Oregon faced another SEC team, Auburn, in the BCS national championship game. Overall the Ducks are 4-5 against teams from the SEC, but they've won the last three of four — with the only loss coming against the Tigers in the title game.

NO. 4 OHIO STATE (2-0) AT CALIFORNIA (1-1), 67 P.M. (FOX)

LINE: off.

SERIES RECORD: Ohio State leads 6-1.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Ohio State is looking to extend the nation's longest winning streak to 15 games in its toughest nonconference test of the season. California is seeking its first win over a top 5 team in 10 years to give first-year coach Sonny Dykes a signature victory.

NO. 5 STANFORD (1-0) AT ARMY (1-1), 11 A.M. (CBS)

LINE: Stanford by 29.

SERIES RECORD: Tied 5-5.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: The Cardinal entered the season with high expectations and the team's highest preseason ranking. Army should be a tuneup. A victory over Stanford would be Army's biggest win in decades.

NO. 7 LOUISVILLE (2-0) AT KENTUCKY (1-1), 11 A.M. (ESPN)

LINE: Louisville by 13½.

SERIES RECORD: Kentucky, 14-11.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: Louisville seeks its third straight win over in-state rival Kentucky and its second consecutive 3-0 start. Kentucky begins a four-game stretch against ranked teams over the next five weeks aiming to beat its first top-25 opponent since October 2010 (South Carolina).

KENT STATE (1-1) AT NO. 8 LSU(2-0), 6 P.M. (ESPN)

LINE: LSU by 37½.

SERIES RECORD: First meeting

WHAT'S AT STAKE: LSU aims to build on its early season momentum in advance of its first Southeastern Conference game against Auburn the following week. The Tigers also cannot afford an upset to a five-TD underdog if they hope to retain their top-10 ranking. Kent State seeks a landmark first victory against an SEC team — after losing in 11 previous tries — in what is also the program's first foray into Death Valley.

NEVADA (1-1) AT NO. 10 FLORIDA STATE (1-0), 2:30 P.M. (ESPN)

LINE: Florida State by 33½.

SERIES RECORD: First meeting.

WHAT'S AT STAKE: All the praise Florida State and quarterback Jameis Winston have gotten since the Seminoles trounced Pitt 41-13 in the season opener. Winston completed 25 of 27 passes for 356 yards and four touchdowns on the road — the most productive start by a freshman QB in school history.

Second-grader is all alone facing schoolyard bullies

DEAR ABBY

Write Dear Abby at www.DearAbby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069. Her column is distributed by Universal Press Syndicate.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 8 years old and in second grade. I'm writing because I'm being bullied at school. I'm really smart, and at my school that's a really bad thing. I try hard to be nice, but here that's worse than being smart.

The teachers didn't help me with the bullies, so I stopped telling them. My mom told everyone she could about the bullies, but nobody helps. It keeps getting worse over time. Every day someone picks on me, pushes me or makes fun of me. Please help me. — FEELING TORN IN TEXAS

DEAR FEELING TORN: Because you haven't told your teachers that the bullying hasn't stopped, they may think that it's no longer going on. Tell them again what you are experiencing, and be sure your mother knows. She should discuss this with your teacher. If things don't get better, she needs to talk to the principal and, if necessary, the school board. Many schools offer programs that discourage bullying and train students who can help.

As a last resort, your mother should consult a lawyer. You have a right to an education that's free from this kind of pressure. Lawsuits have been filed and won because school districts didn't give it the attention they should have. Be sure to show this to your mother and tell her you wrote it.

DEAR ABBY: I am agoraphobic. Although I have managed to make accommodations for special occasions like birthday parties and dinners with my family, I am not comfortable at extremely large gatherings.

My parents understand this, but my sister and brother-in-law think that if I'd just "try harder," everything would work out. Abby, I must take a mild tranquilizer to go to small gatherings, and I have told them this. Would people tell someone who is allergic to something to just "try harder"? How can I explain this better? — AFRAID IN TAYLORSVILLE, UTAH

DEAR AFRAID: I'm sorry to say this, but individuals have been known to give people with severe food allergies items containing their "trigger foods" because they are convinced "just a little" won't hurt them — or worse, that the problem is imaginary.

Your sister and brother-in-law do not understand phobias. A medical professional might be able to explain it to them, but until they're ready to consult one and really listen, it would be healthier for you to ignore them and limit your time with them.

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I disagree about when and where it is acceptable to yawn. I believe a public yawn during dinner or conversation is not appropriate. She sees no reason why a natural human trait such as yawning should be stifled.

Again, my assertion is that yawning denotes boredom or lack of interest in what people are conversing about or doing. What are your thoughts? — NOT A YAWNER IN FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ.

DEAR NOT A YAWNER: My thoughts are similar to an observation made by English writer G.K. Chesterton (1874-1936), who said, "A yawn is a silent shout." I have never seen anyone who is intensely interested in something yawn, and to do it in the presence of others implies that the yawner is tired, bored or otherwise not fully engaged.

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The stars show the kind of day you'll have: 5-dynamic; 4-positive; 3-average; 2-so-so; 1-difficult

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Sept. 14, 2013:

This year you feel unusually fortunate, and you'll manifest what you want. Your desires might not arrive in the form that you think they should, but it will happen nonetheless. Be careful what you wish for, as you are likely to receive it. If you are single, you will meet someone through your friends, or a friendship could become more. If you are attached, the two of you will experience a lot of romance, but don't forget to work on your friendship as well. CAPRICORN could be very attracted to you. Proceed with care.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) ★★★★ Others look to you for their plans. Be ready for a lot of changes and good times. You flex well and know how to adjust. Someone will become very contrary. Your creativity could help loosen up others — especially this person. Tonight: Watch a spontaneous party begin.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) ★★★★★ Make calls early in the day. You will want to readjust your schedule, so make that OK. Conversations could evoke many different thoughts. Listen to someone's words, and you will gain more insight into what is happening in his or her mind. Tonight: Choose a movie.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) ★★★★★ You will be happiest dealing with one person at a time. You usually feel good around a close loved one, though he or she can be rigid at times. Your flexibility might be needed in order to help this person process his or her feelings. Tonight: Visit over dinner at a new restaurant.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) ★★★ You might want to see a situation differently, but you could experience difficulty getting to the bottom of the matter. Someone you care about might put up a wall that you can't seem to break down. If you give this person some space, he or she probably will come forward. Tonight: Out and about.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) ★★★ Get into a favorite game. Exercise will reduce tension levels. A dear loved one might start discussing something that he or she always has wanted to have happen. You will be inclined to manifest this desire. The two of you will become much closer as a result. Tonight: Pace yourself.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) ★★★★ Your imagination speaks. Others respond in kind and share their thoughts as well. A loved one might surprise you with a choice involving a goal that might not be totally grounded in reality. You have the gift of practicality. Can you make it happen? Tonight: Hang loose.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) ★★★ Stay close to home. You have much to do, like convincing a family member of the rightness of an idea that could influence both of your personal lives. A male friend could push you hard to go along with his idea. Don't be afraid to say "enough." Tonight: Settle in. Make it easy.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) ★★★★ Listen to what is going on behind the scenes. You know what is acceptable, and you know your limits. The wise move at this time would be to not push too hard and to let matters fall as they may. Do not interfere with a child or loved one. Tonight: Head to a favorite haunt.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) ★★★ Curb a tendency to overindulge, regardless of how difficult it might be. Look at the ramifications, then decide. You could be missing a major point concerning a financial decision. Do not make any commitments at this present moment. Tonight: Pick up the tab for dinner.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) ★★★★ Others seem to be very enthusiastic, no matter what idea you throw out. You could be exhausted by everything that is going on. Remain sure of yourself, yet process new information. A misunderstanding could happen far too easily. Be careful. Tonight: Out on the town.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) ★★★ Sometimes you enjoy vanishing and letting the chips fall as they may. You want and need privacy more than most other signs do. Try not to worry about what others think. Get into a major project where you can burn off some excess energy. Tonight: Do only what you want.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) ★★★★ Surround yourself with friends, whether you're at a sports event or off at your favorite haunt. Somehow you'll feel far more upbeat as a result. News from an important loved one could toss you into an ambivalent moment. Worry about this later. Tonight: You are the party.

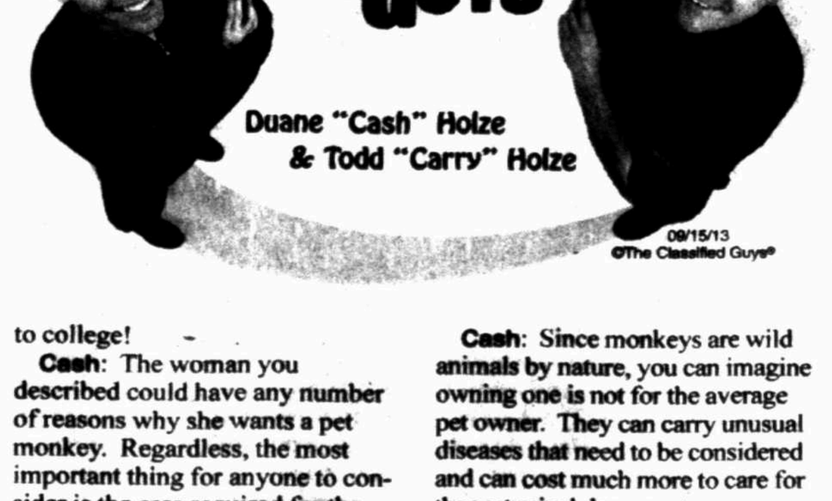
Ask the Guys



Dear Classified Guys,
I used to watch the cartoon, Curious George, with my son when he was younger. Cute cartoon, but I always thought it was strange that a grown man would have a monkey as a pet. Then the other day I saw an ad where a woman wanted to adopt a pet monkey. She claimed that she couldn't have any more children and wanted a monkey to love at home. I'm thinking this woman is crazy. Monkeys belong in the wild, or a zoo, not at home. If she wanted a pet, why not get a dog or a cat? If she wanted a baby, try adopting. Substituting a monkey to fill the void seems like a bad idea to me. I thought it was illegal to own a monkey in the United States. I know it's possible to get almost any type of pet these days, but is owning a monkey really a good idea?

Cash: It should be no surprise to you that so many people think of their pet as one of the family. In fact, some people dress them in outfits, buy them health insurance and even send them to day care during work hours.

Carry: Before you know it, people will be sending their pets to college!

Cash: The woman you described could have any number of reasons why she wants a pet monkey. Regardless, the most important thing for anyone to consider is the care required for the pet. This applies whether it's a dog, cat, rabbit or yes, even a monkey.

Carry: The legality of owning a monkey is controlled on a state or town level. Presently, some states prohibit them from being owned as pets while others have strict regulations or require permits. The laws are constantly changing so it's important to do the research before considering such an exotic pet.

Cash: Since monkeys are wild animals by nature, you can imagine owning one is not for the average pet owner. They can carry unusual diseases that need to be considered and can cost much more to care for than a typical dog or cat.

Carry: And while they're cute and cuddly when they are small, their temperaments do change as they reach maturity, sort of like an out-of-control teenager. They can become aggressive and even destructive, especially if left alone or bored.

Cash: So if this woman is simply looking for companionship, she may be best to consider a cat or dog and leave the monkeys to the Curious George cartoon.

Fast Facts

Monkey Business

While some may remember Michael Jackson for his "Thriller" career or Neverland Ranch, others may recall his pet chimpanzee, named Bubbles. It was reported that Michael rescued the animal from a cancer research facility in 1985. Bubbles was trained to use a toilet by himself and eat his food using cutlery. As he grew older though, the chimpanzee became more aggressive. Today he is living at the Center for Great Apes in Wauchula, Florida.

Entertainment Tonight

As humans we seem to have a fascination with celebrities. Between news programs, movies and TV shows, we can't seem to get enough. However, a recent research study suggests the obsession may go deeper than just the influence of the media. Researchers at Duke University found that monkeys were also mesmerized by images of "celebrity" monkeys. When given a choice between receiving their favorite fruit juice or viewing pictures of dominate or "celebrity" monkeys, the pictures consistently won. The study was conducted as part of autism research.

Monkey Talk

Every so often my brother Larry and I get our families together for a dinner. Since both of us are biology teachers, it's usually not long before we get into some sort of intellectual discussion at the table.

At the last dinner we somehow found ourselves on the topic of Darwin's theory. After a long-winded debate on the controversy of creation versus evolution, I posed a question to my 13-year-old daughter. "Do you think it's possible that our relatives long ago could be apes?" I asked her.

We all laughed when she looked at my brother and replied, "It makes sense. I mean it would explain Uncle Larry!"
