

Moslems Besiege Christians

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Leftist Moslem militias appear to be gaining control of much of war-torn Lebanon, a police spokesman said today. A rightwing Christian leader called for immediate American or international intervention, but Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger warned against outside involvement.

Police said they had lost contact with posts in the north, east and south but that the last messages reported scores of tiny Christian villages besieged by Moslem tribal warriors.

Interior Minister Camille Chamoun, leader of one of the private Christian groups fighting Moslems and Palestinians, called for intervention by the United Nations, the United States or the European Common Market nations.

"The situation is developing rapidly. This requires an immediate internationalization of the crisis and an immediate international intervention or we will end in catastrophe," he declared.

During a stopover in Copenhagen on his way to Moscow, Kissinger warned against outside involvement in "the tragedy now befalling Lebanon. He said the war 'has the potential for drawing in outside powers,' but he warned against 'any unilateral action that could lead to an expansion of hostilities.'

Chamoun, who as president in 1958 called in U.S. Marines to end another civil war situation, issued the call after being evacuated by helicopter from his besieged seaside mansion south of Beirut for a meeting with President Suleiman Franjeh.

The World At-A-Glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will name chief federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr. to be secretary of labor, a job for which he has waited nearly three years, according to White House sources. These sources confirmed Usery's selection and said the nomination was expected to be announced today. If confirmed by the Senate, he will succeed John T. Dunlop, who resigned, effective Feb. 1, because of Ford's veto of the "common site" picketing bill.

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter says he's "tremendously encouraged" by the backing given him by Iowa's Democrats in the nation's first contest among presidential hopefuls for grassroots support. Carter, who led a field of six candidates for the party's presidential nomination in voting during Monday's precinct caucuses, credited "a large and dedicated group" of volunteers for his success in Iowa. With reports from 2,080, or 82 per cent, of the state's 2,530 voting precincts counted, Carter held 27.7 per cent of the delegates picked for March 6 county conventions. The county meetings are the next step in selecting Iowa's 47 national convention delegates. Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana was second with 13.3 per cent of the delegates, followed by former Sen. Fred Harris of Oklahoma with 10.1 per cent. Two other Democratic candidates who campaigned extensively in Iowa ran well behind. Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona had 5.9 per cent and Sargent Shriver 3 per cent of the county convention delegates.

DEMOCRATS ASSAIL FORD

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) — President Ford's budget proposal for 1977 was assailed by Democrats today, who charged that it was a thinly veiled attempt to raise taxes and cut social programs.

Democrats Assail Austere Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will send Congress a $394.2-billion budget tomorrow, but congressional Democrats are already attacking it and marshaling their strength for imminent veto battles to test their strength in the election-year spending dispute.

The outlines of the budget Ford will submit Wednesday were made clear in his State of the Union message Monday night as he urged spending restraint and renewed his proposal for a balancing income tax cut.

In his address, Ford said the nation's condition was better now than it was a year ago but that it's still not good enough. He proposed cutting income taxes by $10 billion, raising Social Security levies $4.2 billion, adding catastrophic health insurance for Medicare recipients, encouraging business expansion by offering new tax incentives and providing housing assistance for 500,000 families.

A White House data sheet announcing the budget total for the 12 months beginning next Oct. 1 says the budget will be $43 billion in deficit. The deficit for the current fiscal year is estimated at $76 billion.

Democrats responded with a chorus of charges that Ford was putting what they called an arbitrary spending ceiling ahead of the needs of the unemployed in an economy just beginning to recover.

The Democrats also signaled that the forthcoming disputes over vetoes and the federal budget will bear the seeds for future political issues in this election year.

Ford raised some political themes in his address, possibly trying to "new realism" as a campaign slogan and obliquely criticizing his Republican opponent, Ronald Reagan.

The first veto dispute comes next Tuesday when the House will vote whether to override Ford's veto of a $45-billion labor-health, education and welfare appropriation heavy with funding for social programs. They would need a two-thirds vote to override, and the outcome is in doubt.

House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said Ford's economic plan would throw an additional 200,000 persons out of work. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said Ford failed "to come to grips with the problem of unemployment and the sluggishness of our economy."

In another major squabble between the Democratic Congress and Ford, the House votes next Tuesday on a $112-billion defense appropriation that contains a ban on using U.S. funds to help any faction in the Angolan civil war. The Senate already has approved the ban.

"We must not face a future in which we can no longer help our friends, such as in Angola, even in limited and carefully controlled ways..." Ford told Congress in the nationally broadcast address.

He said such actions as the Senate's vote for the Angola funds ban were "very shortsighted."

House Speaker Carl Albert has said he cannot conceive of Congress approving Angola aid on the basis of arguments put forward by the administration. Albert called Ford's spending restraint-tax reduction plan unworkable.

Ford said his tax-cut and spending-ceiling proposal, essentially the one Congress refused to vote last year, would provide a $10-billion tax reduction in addition to the compromise cut in effect until mid-year. He said it would mean $227 a year in additional take-home pay for a family of four with $15,000 income.

But Ford also proposed an increase in another tax, the payroll levy paid by employers and employees to support the Social Security system that has been running a deficit and dipping into its reserves.

Effective in 1977, the increase would raise the maximum tax paid by an employee to $1,014, up from $855 this year. All but $49 of this proposed hike might occur anyway under automatic provisions of present law.

Ford also proposed a revision in the Medicare health program for the aged. It would cost the over-65 patients more for short-term illnesses, but set a $740-a-year ceiling on what they could be charged for covered services. The limit, he said, would protect them against catastrophic costs for serious illness.

While Ford's message foreshadowed clashes on a number of issues with the Democratic majority in Congress, it also staked out some positions that would set him apart from Reagan.

While Reagan has proposed large-scale transfers of federal programs to the states, Ford came out for tightening rather than abolishing federal welfare programs.

Ford also called for what he described as "long overdue reform of the scandal-ridden food stamp program." A major change would limit benefits to those whose net income is below the poverty level, currently $5,050 for a family of four.

He said temporary extensions of special unemployment benefits will continue in 1976 and that he will ask for continued job training funds in 1977.

He renewed his call for a five-year extension of federal revenue-sharing with states and localities.

One Killed In Prison Rebellion

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — An uprising in a maximum security wing at Trenton State Prison ended peacefully at dawn today, 10 hours after a shootout that left one inmate dead and several other persons injured. A police official said the rebellion was "an attempted breakout."

Prison officials said they had removed the last of more than 100 rebellious inmates from the eighth tier of No. 7 Wing, a "segregation section" for troublesome prisoners.

The head of the New Jersey State Police, Col. Clinton Pagano, characterized the rebellion as "an attempted breakout." He said officials had determined that a van seen parked outside the prison was part of the alleged plot, but he did not elaborate.

Pagano said, "My gut feeling is that we did a real fine job. There were no injuries beyond the initial confrontation."

Kissinger Vows Nuclear Parity

COPENHAGEN, Denmark (AP) — Heading into a new round of nuclear arms negotiations, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger pledged today that the United States "will never concede strategic superiority to the Soviet Union."

At the same time, Kissinger told a news conference during a brief stop here on the way to Moscow, that the Ford administration will not be deterred by political concerns in trying to achieve a new weapons treaty.

"The necessities of world peace will not be affected by our electoral process," he said.

In answering questions, Kissinger assumed a tough stance toward Moscow. He warned against continued intervention in the civil war in Angola and promised that any arms agreement would serve to maintain a balance between the two superpowers.

"We have an obligation to make sure that the Soviets do not gain a military advantage," he said.

On other subjects Kissinger said:

"The violence in Lebanon is 'a tragedy' for that country and 'has the potential for drawing in outside powers.' He warned against 'any unilateral action that could lead to an expansion of hostilities.'

"That he would discuss with the Soviets the prospects for new peace negotiations between Israel and the Arabs. But, he said, cooperation between the United States and the Soviet Union was "complicated by the situation in Angola."

On the transatlantic flight U.S. officials told newsmen that they feared Angola was lost to the West.

With only $50 million in aid, a senior American official said, pro-Western factions could have defeated the Soviet-backed Popular Movement — MPLA — which is getting the upper hand in the former Portuguese colony.

Kissinger said he was determined to break the deadlock that has held up completion of a treaty to put a ceiling on the two powers' ballistic missiles and long-range bombers lasting until 1985.

Man Claiming Hit While Handcuffed Fined $476

Steven Warner Hurst, 25, Loraine, was fined Monday for speeding, fleeing from a peace officer and reckless driving.

Hurst, who claimed a peace officer hit him after he was handcuffed, was fined $200 each for speeding and fleeing. Justice of the Peace Bob West set these fine amounts, which included court costs of $2.50 each.

County Attorney W. H. (Bill)

Eyssen Jr. said Hurst was fined $25 plus $51 in county court costs for reckless driving.

Texas Highway Patrolman Wade Turner said he chased Hurst at speeds up to 120 miles per hour from the outskirts of Stanton to near Big Spring late Sunday night.

Hurst said he did not know which peace officer hit him after he was handcuffed. Texas Highway Patrolmen denied Hurst was hit after being handcuffed.

Carrillo Relates Parr Impeachment Threats

AUSTIN (AP) — Suspended District Court Judge O. P. Carrillo today identified a series of checks made out to him by a store allegedly operated as a subterfuge but was not always able to recall the transactions they represented.

Carrillo denied flatly that he was involved in any conspiracy with Rodolfo Couling, owner of Benavides Implement & Hardware, to receive funds for rentals to Duval County for equipment that never was used.

He identified a $1,000 check, made out May 20, 1971, with the notation that it was for purchase of a store counter. Couling had said he bought no counter from Carrillo.

"I sold him (Couling) a counter from the drug store I obtained when I bought the Vaello Sales Building at a bankruptcy sale. He (Couling) is lying. I sold him the counter," Carrillo testified at his senate impeachment trial.

Carrillo's lawyer, Arthur Mitchell, showed him a $2,640 check, with the annotation: "loan."

"Do you have any independent recollection of the loan?"

"No, I don't," Carrillo said.

Another check, for $1,200 and also marked "loan," had a peculiar story behind it, the judge said.

The check was issued June 21, 1971. Carrillo said Benavides Implement & Hardware had leased a water well rig from the Carrillo-owned Farm & Ranch Store and in turn rented it to Duval County.

"George and Archer Parr took it to drill irrigation wells on their farms. We never got our money. I complained to Mr. George Parr. He said, 'You are going to get your money.' They owed us by then $20,000 or $25,000 in rentals," Carrillo said.

He indicated the Parrs funneled $1,200 as a rental payment through the county and Benavides Implement & Hardware to Carrillo.

In Monday's testimony, Carrillo said he was given a choice in May by Rep. Terry Canales, D-Premont: remove himself as judge in legal proceedings against Archer Parr, then Duval County Judge, or face impeachment.

A few days later, Canales introduced the resolution that resulted in Carrillo's present impeachment trial before the state Senate.

Canales was attorney for both Archer Parr and his uncle, the late George Parr, in disbarment proceedings filed in Carrillo's 229th District Court by the State Bar of Texas.

"Mr. Canales told me if I did not step down and refuse to hear these cases, which I took to be the Parr cases, that he would file an impeachment resolution in the House against me, but if I did step down and refuse to hear the cases, that he would not file the impeachment resolution," Carrillo said.

By that time George Parr, the "Duke of Duval," had shot himself to death.

A few days after the telephone call, Carrillo said, Canales filed his resolution. Ultimately, Carrillo did take himself off Archer Parr's disbarment case. Parr later was removed as Duval County judge.

Dreamers And Builders

As we get deeper into our Bicentennial year, perhaps a lot of Americans will awake to a basic fact: Our Founding Fathers, rather than being mystical figures in white wigs possessed of calm reason and wisdom, were a bunch of reformers who wanted things to be different and better.

Fellows like Thomas Paine weren't Establishment defenders. They weren't talking about preserving or conserving — they were talking about building a new, free system. The men who brought it off were visionary risk-takers. Some of their actions were rash, their counsel sometimes inflammatory.

That is our tradition. We were born as a nation in the white-hot passion of imprudent men. The task they urged upon their fellow colonials reeked of impossibility: Tackling the might of the British Empire with their bare hands, to create a nation based on a radical system of government of unknown shape. Dreamers, the lot of them. Not the kind of political leaders who would be welcomed in the best circles today, perhaps. In a way, they were the counter-culture of their era — calling into question the traditions and institutions of society, and recommending radical reform. Somehow, in this our Bicentennial year, we need to recapture the spirit which kindled a flame in 1776. We need leaders who are dreamers and builders, who are concerned with how things can be made better as well as preserving our noble heritage.

Foregone Conclusion

It was almost a foregone conclusion that the attempt to keep the Postal Service from boosting first-class mail rates would fail. For unwelcome as they may be to postal users, the inescapable fact is that barring an increase the Postal Service would be forced even deeper into the red. This in turn might bring further reductions in service — the elimination of Saturday deliveries, for example. As long as Congress sticks with the idea that the Postal Service should ultimately pay for itself instead of being subsidized as most federal services are, the pattern is set. Patrons will have to keep on paying more and more for postage to compensate for rising costs.

My Answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: I am concerned about my husband, who quit his job about a year ago and seems content to take his unemployment benefits and not try to find another job. Some of my friends tell me I am a fool to support him and should divorce him. However, my marriage means a lot to me, and I am not sure this would be the best way out. What do you think? — Mrs. B.L.

DEAR MRS. B.L.: The Bible teaches that there is a God-given dignity to work and wherever possible, we are to be useful workers within society. Paul urges the Thessalonians "to aspire to live quietly, to mind your own affairs, and to work with your hands, as we charged you; so that you may command the respect of outsiders, and be dependent on nobody" (I Thessalonians 4:11, 12, RSV). He later told them, "If anyone will not work, let him not eat. For we hear that some of you are living in idleness, mere busybodies, not doing any work. Now such persons we command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ to do their work in quietness and to earn their own living" (II Thessalonians 3:10-12, RSV).

If your husband is a Christian he should understand that it is not God's will for him to be idle if he can secure a job.

The Bible takes marriage as a very serious, God-ordained institution, and there is no Scriptural basis for divorce in your circumstance. You will want to avoid nagging your husband about this matter, but at the same time he must come to face his own responsibilities. Most of all, I encourage you to begin to read the Bible together and pray together. As he becomes interested in God's will for his life, he will find a new motivation for living and working.

A New Logo

Art Buchwald

WASHINGTON — NBC came up with a new logo a few weeks ago after hiring a research company for what is reported to have been $750,000. It turned out to be the letter "N." Much to their horror and surprise the NBC big shots discovered that the Nebraska Educational Television Network was using the same N which they had developed for less than $100. The only difference in the design was that NBC's N was red and blue while Nebraska's was all red.

EVERYONE was laughing at NBC, but it's not very funny. Selecting a new logo for anything is a very serious business as I discovered when I decided to change the one on this column.

I went to Cratcher & Thumb, the industrial designers, and gave them the problem. "The logo on my column seems old-fashioned and not up to date. I would like you to design a new one which would look modern and catching to the eye."

"Money is no object," I told him. "When someone changes his logo, he has to be prepared to pay for it."

Thumb said, "We may have to hire some outside help. We only have 100 industrial designers on the payroll."

FOUR MONTHS later we had the big meeting.

The lights were dimmed and the first slide was flashed on the screen. It was a large A superimposed over a large B.

"It's not bad," I admitted, "but is this the image we want to give? It seems to me the B dominates the A. Don't you think both letters should be the same size?" "Yes, we do," said Thumb. "What's why we threw that one out and came up with this one." He buzzed for the next slide.

I STUDIED IT closely. Finally I said, "The A and the B are the same size, but they seem awfully small. There is so much white space around it. Editors hate white space of any kind. They're afraid someone in advertising might try to slip a classified ad into it."

THE NEXT slide just showed the letter B.

"Where's the A?" I asked. "That's just it," Thumb said. "Everyone is going to say where's the A? It will call attention to the logo and you'll double your readership."

Cratcher said, "Look at NBC. They have only an N. One-letter logos are the wave of the future."

"Well, why can't it be an A then instead of a B?" "It can," said Thumb, buzzing for the next slide. "Cratcher and I and the entire staff all decided last week it should be an A instead of B."

THE A CAME on the screen. "It looks just like an A," I said. "Notice," said Thumb, "this isn't an ordinary A. The right leg is longer than the left leg."

"Gosh, you fellows did a great job. What do I owe you?"

Thumb said, "Six hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars, including the cost of the art materials."

"Why," I said surprised, "that's $100,000 less than NBC paid for its logo."

Less Medical Care?

John Cuniff

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans this year are faced with making a chilling, life-death decision long postponed: In order to hold down costs, are we willing to accept less than the best possible medical care?

We are demanding more doctors and services, said Alex McMahon, president of the American Hospital Association, while at the same time wanting lower prices. He maintains it cannot be done.

Clearly, this problem has as much meaning to Americans as the present discussions of the federal budget deficit or inflation, but it hasn't been dealt with. We've hidden from the issue.

Said McMahon: "The American people must ask themselves, 'What do we want from the system?' The hospitals, he said, want direction. Priorities must be established for health care.

What do priorities mean? The answer: less than what might be possible, a level many Americans consider to be nothing less than their right. They might accept imperfections in manufactured goods, but not in health care.

"I answer we can't afford it," said McMahon. "We don't have the people. With the facilities we have I don't see how we can deliver on such a broad promise."

Speaking for more than 7,000 voluntary hospitals, he warned:

"The promise we no longer can make in good faith is that we will provide maximum care of the sick and injured. We need to find more cost-effective ways to prevent sickness and injuries."

Health care, in other words, must be subjected to the same cost limits as other goods and services. We could, for example, build an automobile as reliable as a space vehicle, but nobody could afford it. Affordability is a dictate.

If priorities are to be established, who makes them? Who decides who gets less and by how much? Said McMahon: "The public must answer. This is not a decision hospitals and doctors can make."

Considerable public discussion will be taking place over the next few months. By July 1, the secretary of health, education and welfare must issue a statement of national health goals, objectives and priorities.

"We welcome the discussion because we think it will bring some rationality into the establishment of priorities," said McMahon, who feels that until limitations are established, continued cost increases are inevitable.

Some possibilities for savings are seen in new methods of care for the elderly, but in the absence of priorities, these possibilities are difficult to put into practice.

Surgery & Varicose Vein

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have varicose veins in my legs that have to be removed. Is there any way to do this except by surgery? I have heard there are other methods. — Mrs. N.D.

I believe you are referring to the injection method. Great hope was held out for this procedure, but in recent years it has been used less because of certain disadvantages. It is used only in cases of mild varicosities. In this, a sclerosing (hardening) solution is injected into the affected vein, causing a blockage. The blood then follows the path of least resistance to nearby vessels.

One of the problems occasionally encountered in this is the escape of the injected fluid into nearby tissue, resulting in considerable irritation. In most cases, other surgical methods are preferred. In one, the vein is tied off. In the other it is removed (stripped).

Varicose veins, besides being a complication of pregnancy in some cases, can also occur in persons whose jobs require prolonged sitting or standing.

The blood in the leg veins, already fighting the laws of gravity, tends to stagnate a bit. This can place extra pressure on the vein valves, which are intended to prevent just such a backing-up of blood. Folks in such sedentary occupations should make it a point to get up occasionally and move about.

You can still take advantage of this advice. Exercise can help prevent further varicosities. This is something to keep in mind after your recovery from your surgery. My booklet, "How to Deal with Varicose Veins," discusses this in more length than I can go into here. For a copy, send 25 cents to me in care of the Big Spring Herald, and enclose a stamped (13 cents now) and self-addressed envelope.

Since your doctor has suggested removal of the veins, I suspect your varicosities are rather extensive and not amenable to the injection procedure. Surgical results are usually excellent.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told I have colitis. I am 49. I'm all right so long as I am near a lavatory. If I eat only a sandwich I can get the runs. But the queerest part of this is that when I go on a vacation the situation reverses itself and I get constipated, like for five days. Then I'm all right. How do you figure this out? I haven't pushed the panic button yet. — P.L.

I doubt there's any need to push it. This sounds like an irritable colon, and it can be related to your non-vacation time activities and pressures of work. On vacation you relax, and so does your colon.

In many ways the term "colitis" is an unfortunate one. The "itis" portion of the term implies an inflammation, which often indicates an infection. Yet, this is not always the cause. Colon disturbance can exist without any infection. On the other hand, so-called "functional colon problems" can be either the result of an infection or be part of a generally nervous condition.

So to be on the safe side you should have a thorough colon examination to identify the exact nature of your colitis.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have been told that I have dystrophy of the cornea of my eyes. I have a blur. Is there a cure for it? — L.R.

Corneal dystrophies are disorders stemming from faulty nourishment of the membranes. This results in a clouding and progressive lessening of vision. There is no inflammation present.

The cause is not known, but it does tend to run in families. I cannot say whether this type of disorder would be correctible by corneal transplant. I suggest you discuss this further with an eye specialist. I rather doubt that it would be.

Champs Anyhow

Around The Rim

Troy Bryant

I just watched the Pittsburgh Steelers beat the Dallas Cowboys for the championship of professional football.

I saw every play and concede that the final score was Pittsburgh 21 and Dallas 17.

BUT I ALSO saw a Pittsburgh player commit an atrocity which I believe does not belong in a championship game, or on a championship team.

It's common as a reporter to hear the excuses made by fans after a hard loss and the most common excuse is that 'we wuz robbed' by the officials.

We weren't actually robbed, but any admiration I ever had for the Pittsburgh Steelers went down the drain on that play.

IN THE fourth quarter, Pittsburgh was ahead 15-10, when Roger Staubach, working out of his own end of the field, threw a pass to Charlie Young who was stopped short of a first down. The foul was committed away from the ball on that play when defensive back J. T. Thomas for the Steelers knocked down Dallas receiver Golden Richards, then pinned Richards to the turf with his knee on his neck while Richards tried to get up.

THERE WAS no way in my mind that the incident was unintentional, although an official watched the incident, but never threw a flag.

Richards was helped off the field and didn't play again in the game. A penalty there would have given Dallas a first down and another chance to fight back.

PITTSBURGH won the game and probably deserved to win with outstanding efforts by other players such as Lynn Swann and Terry Bradshaw, but now the Steelers are going down in my book right beside the Washington Redskins, about as low as you can get.

Although I disagreed with some of the tactics of the Cowboys, I believe they played a great game and shouldn't be ashamed of coming up short on the scoreboard in a game like that. They gave the Steelers all they wanted.

In my mind the Cowboys are the champions of Super Bowl X, not in the same way that the Steelers are, but in the way that the team made it to Miami in the first place.

Chou, Chiang, China

Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — No one would listen to Chou En-lai 30 years ago. This was a tragic mistake, which cost the U.S. billions of dollars and thousands of lives.

TWO BITTER WARS in Korea and Vietnam could have been avoided, in my opinion, if the U.S. had only paid attention to Chou.

In those critical days following World War II, most Americans were listening to Chiang Kai-shek. The U.S. embassy in Chungking saw him as China's man of the future. The correspondents thronged to his press conferences.

But because I was the lowliest of the correspondents in postwar China, I was assigned to cover Chou En-lai. I found him at the end of a slimy-covered, cobblestone alley. He occupied the lower floor of a dingy house, which served both as headquarters and living quarters for the Chinese Communist mission in Chungking.

THE WINDOWS were covered with greasy brown paper, which trapped stale cooking odors inside. To gain admittance, I would identify myself through a speaky-style peephole — a useless conspiratorial ritual, since Chiang's secret police occupied the room overhead.

I dropped by regularly in search of news. I visited with Chou in the privacy of his living quarters. I talked with him over egg rolls and moo goo gai pan.

It was the political wisdom in those days that the Russian and Chinese communists were inseparable. But Chou insisted that Russia, because of its proximity, was a menace to China. He kept repeating that China, if it should come under communist rule, would want to cultivate friendship with America.

CHOU ALSO contended that it was American support alone that kept Chiang in power. There was evidence of this in Chungking, evidence also that Chiang's regime was thoroughly corrupt.

Its inevitable collapse was less apparent to me at the time, I must admit, than it now appears in retrospect. But there were unsung diplomats in the U.S. embassy who foresaw what was coming.

In their diplomatic dispatches, they disputed the myth that the Red Chinese were controlled by the Kremlin, and they warned that Chiang would not be able to defeat the communists in a civil war.

BUT CHIANG exerted an inordinate influence over the foreign policy of the United States. With one hand, he grabbed up billions worth of U.S. aid; with the other, he passed back millions to U.S. politicians, businessmen and hirelings. They formed a pressure group that came to be known as the China Lobby. This gaggle of Chiang supporters succeeded in creating a climate in Washington that equated criticism of Chiang with treason against the U.S.

Oil's Warning

Rowland Evans

WASHINGTON — The American oil industry, its paranoia over the future heightened by President Ford's signing of the energy bill, is posting warning signals of deepening dependence on foreign oil.

DEVELOPMENTS WITHIN the industry now being signaled began long before Mr. Ford's fateful decision. But what oil men, correctly or not, regard as betrayal by the White House seems to be intensifying the trends: cutting corners on federal regulations at the cost of production; elimination of less profitable production; continuing emphasis on foreign oil operations; diversification into non-oil operations.

ONE OIL expert sums it up by forecasting that many companies will "go into a maintenance mode" domestically — keeping up present operations without expansion. Confirming that, the vice president of one of the huge Seven Sisters sees forced divestiture of his company's integrated oil activities in the foreseeable future and perhaps nationalization beyond that. This mood could exaggerate the worst effects of the new energy law, causing reduced domestic production and increased imports — to the detriment of this nation's security.

The oil executives are apparently not bluffing to win government favors. To the contrary, since Mr. Ford's energy bill approval, the oil men have clamored up about their plans. But many clearly feel that since Mr. Ford has accepted what they see as permanent government controls, the industry can ignore the national interest in making decisions.

FOR BIG OIL to say "no more Mr. Nice Guy" mocks a consuming public conditioned by politicians castigating the industry. But some objective observers believe the oil companies generally did not prosper and did act in the national interest during the Arab oil embargo. Now, however, more and more companies are starting to live up to the industry's sour reputation. More warning signals include: 1) One company is using its low-priced "old" oil as fuel for its tanker fleet to bring in higher-priced foreign oil — a process that beats the regulatory system penalizing holders of "old" oil. Such evasion of government regulations will proliferate. The net impact: higher imports.

Signal 2) One company is planning to shut down costly production of low-grade crude in California's Wilmington offshore field because the government regulated price of $4.21 a barrel is uneconomical. The Federal Energy Administration (FEA) may soon reverse itself and increase the price, but that won't solve the problem. With a weighted average of $7.66 for "old" oil under the new bill, the FEA simply cannot make this sort of production profitable.

A Devotion For Today

"Every day will I bless thee; and I will praise thy name for ever and ever." (Psalm 145:2)

Home Builders Still Look Out For 'The Little Housewife'

DALLAS (AP) — Despite all the talk and the action about women's liberation, the exhibitors at the annual National Association of Home Builders in Dallas still have an eye out for the little woman who cleans, cooks and cares for the home place.

There are some fancy things for the housewife, and so me to make the daily chores easier, and some to relax her after the sun sets.

About 50,000 persons were in Dallas for the annual home builders convention with a couple of thousand exhibits on display.

Some of the devices shown were not new, but improved, more sophisticated, and easier to operate.

For the gal who has almost everything, there is now on the market a "soaking tub," 40 inches by 40 inches, where she can slip down into the warm water up to her neck. If she prefers another type of bath, there is the "one piece bathing suite," a combination tub and shower with built in shelves for the shampoo, and soap, and a projection where she can sit down and shower.

There are the ever present microwave ovens, that can cook a ham or a roast quicker than the time it takes the wife to put on her lipstick.

Also, there's the new hot-tap to install on the kitchen sink, where with a flip of the wrist you can get 190-degree water for your instant coffee or soup or whatsoever. That saves putting on the kettle.

Earthquake Prediction Appears To Come True

WICHITA FALLS, Tex. (AP) — Just to be on the safe side, it might be a good idea to take cover if psychic Clarisa Bernhardt predicts a natural disaster for your hometown.

Mrs. Bernhardt said earlier this month that the Wilmington, N.C., area would have a major earthquake Saturday, Jan. 17, "give or take a few days."

Few took her seriously at the time but if she took a trip to North Carolina, Tennessee or Kentucky now she could probably make a fortune with a crystal ball from believing residents.

An earthquake measuring 3.7 on the Richter scale rocked the Kentucky-Tennessee border region north of Cumberland Gap near Harlan, Ky., and also was felt in North Carolina. The quake area was located about 500 miles from Wilmington.

The U.S. Geological Service Earthquake Information Service said the quake was of intermediate magnitude and there were no injuries or damage reported.

Mrs. Bernhardt said Monday, "The earthquake partially fulfilled my prediction...it fitted into the time period of my forecast."

The forecast was made Jan. 10 while she was attending a convention of parapsychologists at Davidson University in Davidson, N.C.

She also took credit for a strong earthquake that hit the remote Termadic islands in the Pacific last weekend at almost the exact time of her prediction for Wilmington.

She said a friend who has researched the quake told her "if you could drill straight through the earth at Wilmington you would come out in the area of the Pacific earthquake."

Crashed Plane Contained Two Tons Marijuana

HOUSTON (AP) — A light airplane crash-landed on the southwest side of Houston about 5 a.m. today and police said they found two tons of marijuana in the slightly damaged craft.

Officers said there apparently was only one person aboard and he quickly disappeared on foot, an indication any injuries he suffered were slight.

The plane went down behind the Meyerland Shopping Center in Bellaire, an island city surrounded by Houston. One of the first policemen on the scene, reporting there was little damage, said, "This thing is full of marijuana."

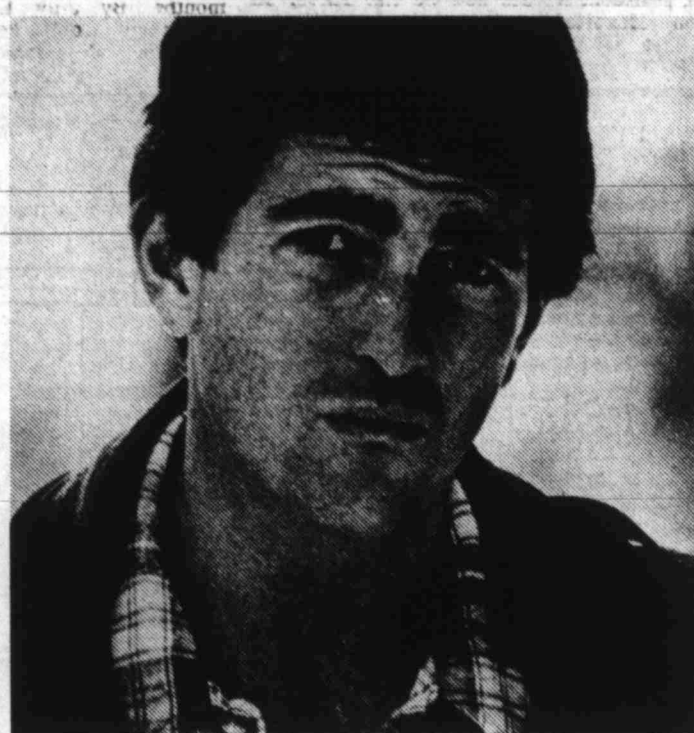

Liquor Vote

Likely Feb. 17

ABILENE — A local option liquor election for Precinct One in Taylor will likely be set by the commissioners court today for Tuesday, Feb. 17.

It would be the first time since 1938 that Taylor County voters have had a chance to vote in a local option liquor election which would affect the entire city of Abilene, excluding a portion around Lake Fort Phantom Hill in Jones County.

DATSUN. NOW AMERICA'S #1 SELLING IMPORT.

Why should I care?

Not many people give any thought to the fact that one auto company is outselling another. But that doesn't mean it isn't worth thinking about.

After all, Datsun outsold all other imports in 1975 for some good reasons.

Probably the most important is the way Datsuns stretch gas.

But there's more to it than that. Let's look at Datsun's strong points:

Choice of Models.

At a Datsun Dealer you can select from an entire economy car pool, wading right through hardtops and hatchbacks, stylish sedans and our legendary Z-Car. Wagons, too. Fourteen models in all, including America's #1 selling small pickup, Datsun L17 Hustler.

Gas Mileage.

While other cars are learning, their fuel keeps burning. Datsuns knew how to pass up a gas pump a long time ago, and we keep getting better. Right now, our champion gas squeezer, the B-210, gets an amazing 41 MPG on the highway and 29 MPG in the city. (EPA mileage estimate. Manual transmission. Your mileage may be more or less depending on the condition of your car and how you drive.)

Parts and Service.

Datsun takes care of its own. You can count on a dealer network with nearly 4,000 factory-trained service technicians, and a nationwide, computer-connected parts system. Your Datsun Dealer's very big on small car experience, too.

Value and Durability.

Datsun puts 'em together to stay together—with 43 years experience building today's size cars. Quality features like unibody construction, crankshafts with five main bearings and all-vinyl upholstery mean a Datsun not only saves, it survives.

The whole point is that we want you to know we're number one, but not to do a number on you. Datsun outsells other imports for good reasons: economy, durability, a wide selection of models and a fine dealer network. If you're in the market for a car, it's something you ought to care about. A lot.

Come look at number one.

State Rep Maced By Woman

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Ben Bynum, D-Amarillo, was "Maced" over the weekend by a young woman in his apartment building, a police report shows. No charges have been filed.

The chemical Mace comes in an aerosol can and is used to disable a person temporarily without lasting ill effects.

Sharon Ward, 22, a beauty school student, told police she sprayed Mace on Bynum after he forced his way into her apartment saying he wanted to talk.

The police report said Bynum "appeared to be highly intoxicated" when officers arrived around 5 p.m. Saturday. "Subject had a very cocky attitude and was saying he could get her evicted," Bynum is a state legislator, it said.

Bynum, chairman of the House Insurance Committee, said he left his apartment because "she was in the halls raising a bunch of Cain. I told her to go back and calm down. She got mad because I told her to go in and settle down and shut up ... She maced me standing right there in the hall of my apartment house."

He said he was not intoxicated but might have appeared so to the police because of the macing.

Big Thicket Included In Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., says money for acquisition of land for the Big Thicket National Preserve will be included in President Ford's budget despite a recommendation to the contrary by a government budget office.

The Office of Management and Budget had reportedly recommended that no money be appropriated for fiscal 1977 land acquisition for national parks.

However, Tower said Monday he received assurances from the White House that the President will include in his budget proposal $8.3 million for park and acquisition for the Big Thicket.

Tower wrote to Ford last month that land acquisition had to begin immediately in order to preserve the Big Thicket from timber cutting. More than 2,500 acres of the proposed park are "imminently threatened," he said.

Dallas Probes For Arsonist After Fires

DALLAS (AP) — Fire officials said Monday they suspect arson in at least three fires in a residential-commercial area north of downtown Dallas.

A four-alarm blaze destroyed the Plantation Club Sunday night after firemen tapped out a nearby grass fire earlier.

Both fires were just a few blocks from the Oak Lawn Plaza apartment complex which burned late Thursday. Three persons died in that fire.

Chief arson investigator J.E. Tuma said the Plantation Club, scheduled to open next week, looked "like it may have been set afire."

"Fire was coming through the roof when firemen got there, but whether it was related to the (apartment) fire, I can't say at this time," he said.

Tuma said he did not believe the club fire was set by flaming rolls of paper tossed into the building as officials suspect in the apartment fire. Tenants in nearby apartments reported flaming rolls of paper thrown into their complexes about the time of the Oak Lawn Plaza fire.

Investigators said several persons were under suspicion in the fires. Officers were searching for a man seen running from the area of the grass fire shortly before it was spotted.

An 11-year-old girl was killed Sunday in a South

Dallas residential fire. Carolyn Renee Dennis died of smoke inhalation after she lost grip with her grandmother as they tried to escape. The grandmother was not injured.

Another fire Sunday caused $50,000 damage to roofing supplies at the Certain-Teed Products Corp. The blaze was blamed on a grass fire that spread into the company's yard.

HERE'S HELP FOR TAXPAYERS — II

Earned Income Credit Offered

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following is the second in a series of five articles entitled "Coping With Your Income Tax." They were written to help taxpayers prepare their 1975 tax returns.

By R. GREGORY NOKES
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Low-income workers, and students with part-time jobs, are among persons who may be overlooking valuable income by not filing tax returns, even if they are not required to.

The law exempts single persons with income below $2,350 and married persons with joint income below $3,400 from having to file a tax return.

But for 1975 the government has enacted an earned income credit that could result in benefits of up to $400 for a low-income worker with a dependent child.

Although most students don't qualify for the income credit, many probably forego tax refunds each year by failing to file tax returns for part-time jobs where tax money has been withheld from their pay.

The earned income credit is equal to 10 per cent of a worker's earned income up to a maximum of $400 on incomes of $4,000. Above $4,000, the credit is reduced by 10 per cent of the amount by which total income exceeds $4,000.

The credit disappears entirely when total income reaches $8,000.

A married couple with a child and with $3,000 in earned income could be sacrificing a $300 check from the government by failing to file a tax return, even though they aren't required to.

To claim the credit, a worker must have a dependent child and must file a joint tax return, if married, using the 1040 short form if he or she wishes. If the taxpayer owes a small amount of tax, the IRS will first deduct that from the credit before sending the balance to the taxpayer.

But it must be remembered that the credit is only for earned income, not for such things as unemployment benefits, retirement income, welfare benefits, interest or dividends.

One purpose of the earned income credit is to give low income persons an additional incentive to engage in at least some work, even though they are receiving welfare benefits, for example.

Income from a job at home counts as earned income.

Single persons without dependents are excluded from the credit, however. The law requires that the worker maintain a household that is the principal place of residence for him or her and also for a child under age 19, or a student, who qualifies as a dependent.

But even before the earned income credit came along, an IRS spokesman said some workers, especially students, were neglecting to file tax returns when it would have paid them to do so.

An IRS spokesman says the government suspects that many persons forego tax refunds from the government, simply because they do not know they are entitled to them.

He said this is particularly the case with students who have taxes withheld from their paychecks during summer jobs. Although they do not earn enough money to have to file a tax return, they likely would have the withheld taxes refunded to them if they did file.

Received Lip Cut In Wreck

John Robert Hall, OK Trailer Court, 3701 West Highway, was treated for a lacerated lip after an accident on Wasson Road.

Hall was northbound on Wasson early Sunday morning when he lost control of his car rounding the corner of Wasson and Whipkey, according to police reports. He collided with a stop sign on the corner and came to rest in a lot belonging to the city on Whipkey.

An ambulance was notified and Hall was treated and released from Webb AFB Hospital.

Are your heating dollars going right through the roof?

If you don't have at least six inches of insulation in your attic, you're losing a lot of energy through the roof.

Your home needs plenty of insulation in the attic and between the walls. If your home is a pier and beam construction, you need insulation under the floor, too.

Weatherstripping around doors and windows also keeps the warm air inside, and the winter air outside.

By bringing your home's insulation up to the latest FHA standards, you can reduce your heating costs as much as 20 percent.

For more ideas on how to get your heating dollars' worth, call Texas Electric. We'd like to help.

Moms' March Garners $850

Manning March of Dimes headquarters for the Mothers' March last night were 30 volunteers. The evening netted approximately $850 for the fight against birth defects.

Because a number of areas were not covered due to factors including illness and the cold, blustery day, MOD executive secretary Rose Teems estimated that final Mothers' March returns still will surpass those from last year's drive.

Mothers' March chairman Darlene Leatherwood reports that those areas not covered yesterday during the main push of the campaign will be reached during the next week.

Special recognition goes to Mrs. A. J. Pirkle Jr., chairman for the Moss Elementary School area. Volunteers in that area collected $365, or more than 40 per cent of the total from all Big Spring, during Monday's portion of the drive.

Wayne Murphy, 5-Watters president, and fellow radio buffs manned a citizen's band radio hook-up and fleet of cars for making pick-ups of contributions from volunteers who walked in the Mothers' March.

Five-Watters who worked during the March included Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. David Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Benzie, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Hall, James Baird, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Kennedy, Buddy Perry and Curtis Witte.

Other volunteers at the Texas Electric Reddy Room last night included MOD chapter chairman Vaughn Martin, Darlene Leatherwood, Rose Teems, Norma Porter, Edith Gay, Craig Fischer, Sandy Sibinsky, Ray Owen, Carole Owen, Betty Kloor, Donny Knight, Steve Hughes and field representative Ed Ramey.

A Security Police investigator and an aircraft maintenance specialist have been selected as the 78th Flying Training Wing NCO and Airman of the Quarter at Webb AFB.

Sgt. Louis E. Holloway, NCOIC of the Security Police Investigations Branch, has been selected by a board of five officers as the 78th FTW NCO of the Quarter while AIC Mark H. Schiele, 78th Organizational Maintenance Squadron Recovery Branch, was selected as the 78th FTW Airman of the Quarter.

Airman Schiele said that he was excited about his selection, although he had been a little bit nervous when he went before the review board. "I don't know how much being selected the Wing Airman of the Quarter will help me while I'm here," said Airman Schiele, "but I know it can't hurt!"

CHAMBER'S MAN, WOMAN OF YEAR (WITH PLAQUES) Speaker Bob Cox, Joe Pickle, Janell Davis, CC Prexy J.D. Nelson (L to R)

Citizens Of Big Spring Honor Pickle, Mrs. Davis

By JAMES WERRELL

Joe Pickle and Mrs. Janell Davis were named as Outstanding Man and Woman of the Year by the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce at the annual chamber membership banquet Monday night.

The banquet was attended by 428 Big Springers and chamber representatives from area cities, including Lamesa, Andrews, Midland, Odessa, Lubbock, Snyder and Fort Worth.

Other awards included John Arrick, the Jaycee's Outstanding Young Man; Ben T. Faulkner, outstanding service to Jaycees; Airman I. C. Theron Bennett, T. Sgt. Kirby Owens, and S. M. Sgt. Gordon M. Jackson, outstanding awards from Webb AFB.

The Outstanding Man and Woman Awards turned out to be a double-barreled affair. Congressman Jake Pickle, brother of the man honoree, and Congressman Omar Burleson telephoned from Washington, D. C., to make the citations. Although they left the combined House-Senate sessions before President Ford finished his state-of-the-union address, the call did not come through until after Dr. Henry Butler had been obliged by the program to read the presentation. On the heels of this the call came through, and unaware of the prior presentation, the solons gave a repeat performance.

Congressman Pickle fondly remembered earlier years in Big Spring and noted that his brother has long been active in all phases of civic activity, including involvement with church, professional and chamber projects.

Recently retired as editor of the Big Spring Herald, Joe Pickle plans to continue to take an active interest in the growth and betterment of the community.

Congressman Burleson made clear the fact that Mrs. Davis is also never far from the pulse beat of the community. She is co-chairperson of the Big Spring Bicentennial Commission. She is a former speech and drama teacher for both Big Spring High School and Howard College, and has dedicated herself to civic activity ever since she came to Big Spring.

The Jaycee's Outstanding Young Man, John Arrick, previous president of the chamber's Ambassadors, has been involved in an impressive list of chamber activities. He has also led a dedicated drive to enrich youth sports programs for children in Big Spring.

In his citation Ben T. Faulkner was lauded by the Jaycees for his outstanding work for the club on a state and local level.

Col. Robert A. Owens, wing commander for Webb AFB, presented the base's awards for Airman, NCO and Senior NCO of the Year.

Airman of the Year Airman I. C. Theron G. Bennett is a native of Brownwood. He is an administrative specialist for the administrative security branch of the Webb Security Police.

"It's probably the greatest honor that's ever been paid to me," he said.

T. Sgt. Kirby W. Owens of Wichita, Kan., named NCO of the Year, is first sergeant of the Hospital Squadron and a 14½-year veteran of the Air Force. He is also a member of the Big Spring Chapter of the American Legion, the Air Force Association and the West Texas Sports Car Club.

Named as Senior NCO of the Year, S. M. Sgt. Gordon M. Jackson is a native of Elizabethton, Tenn. He is superintendent of the avionics branch for Field Maintenance Squadron. Very active in community activities, he is president of a local elementary school PTA and a member of the Protestant Chapel Parish and chairman of laymen activities.

Adding a humorous touch to the evening's festivities was guest speaker, Bob Cox, a high school teacher from the Denison area with a colorful background as a Baptist minister, a salesman and a lumberjack.

He took the audience on an imaginary guided tour of the real town of Fink, Tex., which has gained international fame through its various civic functions. Near the end of the tour, Cox noted that Fink has only nine citizens and said, "If Fink can gain international fame with just nine citizens, think what Big Spring can accomplish with 30,000."

Cox offered up a variety of sketches, stories and vignettes, and ended the evening with a patriotic poem.

YOUNG MAN — Perry Culwell, president of the Big Spring Jaycees, presented John Arrick (right) with the club's award for Outstanding Young Man of Big Spring.

WEBB AFB AWARD — Tsgt. Kirby W. Owens received Webb's NCO of the Year award from Tom Locke, president of the Century Club, at Monday night's annual Chamber of Commerce Membership Banquet.

Demo Seminar To Be Held

Calvin Guest, chairman of the Democratic Party of Texas, has announced that a workshop seminar would be held Saturday in Graham from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Site of the seminar is the American Legion building. Luncheon will be served at 1 p.m. Guest will be the speaker.

Guest stated that all Democrats residing in the 22nd, 24th, and 30th Senatorial Districts will be welcome, and that there will be no charge for the seminar, except that each person is expected to pay for or provide his own lunch.

Topics will be the new presidential primary; new rules as related to precinct and county conventions; precinct organization; the new voter registration law; and the use of campaign volunteers.

Guest pointed out that this is the first program of its type in the history of the Democratic Party of Texas, and is a massive program to encourage participation by the grass roots Democrats and the traditionally underrepresented minorities to train them to be effective political participants.

Persons interested should contact Marguerite Snyder or Charles W. Stenholm, or their local Democratic County Chairman.

School Count

Down Eight

Total registration at Big Spring schools is down eight from last week, at a total figure of 6,413. The major drop was in the state hospital classes where there are six less students.

There was a loss of two students in all elementary schools. The high school remained the same, Goliad lost one and Runnels gained one so the status quo held for secondary schools.

RUMOR KNOCKED DOWN

Mayor Calls Sen. Tower's Visit 'Very Encouraging'

The visit of Sen. John Tower to Big Spring two weeks ago was "very encouraging," Mayor Wade Choate reported to the Base Community Council meeting Monday.

The mayor told the council that Sen. Tower will continue to make a 110 per cent effort to keep Webb a viable Air Force base.

Addressing himself to a rumor reported earlier in the meeting that the current round of defense department cutbacks might close Webb, Choate said that there is no such list of base closings at this time, as best the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce's Legislative Action Committee can determine.

The mayor added that there is no doubt that the cut in defense spending in Washington will force some reevaluations.

But, Choate said, no announcements are expected during an election year, although he said the reevaluations will have to be faced across the nation the following year.

The mayor said that he felt Webb's assets and air space plus the many days of good flying weather put the base in an excellent position, and he vowed that the Legislative Action Committee will continue working hard throughout the year.

Col. Robert Owens, wing commander at Webb, told the community council that the wing had just completed a training command inspection and was found satisfactory in all respects. He added that the Base

Promotion

Nominations

Announcement was received here of promotion nominations of two former Webb AFB wing commanders.

Nominated to the temporary grade of major general is Brig. Gen. Stanley M. Umstead Jr., now commandant of the Air War College at the Air University, Maxwell AFB, Ala. He was assigned here from Aug. 3, '72, thru Aug. 21, '73.

To be a permanent brigadier general is Brig. Gen. Anderson W. Atkinson, now assistant deputy director of J-3 (Command and Control) of the Office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. He was at Webb from April 1, '70 thru July 31, '71.

BAD PLACE TO KILL IT?

A man was lying on the ground behind a local funeral home at 5:46 p.m. Monday.

Police arrested the man and charged him with public intoxication. Quipped one officer, "Tell him it's dangerous to lie around these premises in an unconscious state."

Community Council program was rated "noteworthy" and described as a model for the rest of the command.

It was disclosed that a rabies vaccination drive will be held at Webb Jan. 31 and efforts will be made to coordinate it with a campaign within the city itself.

The drive, of course, will involve the vaccination of pets. The council report was made by Maj. Meredith Little, who said that with the addition of two new animal wardens the rabies threat should diminish.

Lt. Col. Don Tokar and Jimmy Taylor head the committee shaping plans for the mini rodeo and barbecue, which likely will be staged in May for all enlisted men and their families. It appears now a dance will be staged in conjunction with the events, with a Western band providing the music.

Lt. Gen. John W. Roberts, commander of the Air Training Command, has scheduled a Webb visit Feb. 20 and the council is making plans to greet him.

Other committee reports made during the noon luncheon at Coker's Restaurant were Police, Health and Safety Committee, made by Maj. Meredith Little; Housing and Commercial Committee, by Lt. Col. Ron Miller; Recreation, Education and Public Welfare, by Chaplain Jim Baggett; and Hospitality Committee, by Lt. Col. Don Tokar.

City Councilman May Head PBRPC

The board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission will meet Wednesday in Pecos following the luncheon meeting of the semi-annual membership of the organization.

Delegates from 17 counties and cities that belong to the Permian Basin Planning group are expected to attend the luncheon at which time new officers will be elected.

Harold Hall, Big Spring city councilman, is one of the nominees for president of the organization. If he is elected, it will be the first time that the board will be headed by a city official. All other presidents were county judges including Judge Barbara Culver, Midland; Judge Leslie Pratt, Lamesa; Judge Buck Luttrell, Fort Stockton; Judge Chester Taggart, Monahans and the current president, Judge Marcus Crow, Seminole.

Mrs. Culver is now a national officer in council of government associations and Crow is a state officer.

Ed Foreman, former Congressman in the 16th District of Texas and also a former Congressman from

New Mexico, who is now regional director of transportation, will be the key speaker at the luncheon.

At the board meeting, one of the two items to be considered will be a resolution giving review and comment to the application of the city of Big Spring for funding of improvements of the sewage treatment plant.

The board is also to consider a resolution accepting the favorable review and comment of the Alcoholism Advisory Committee on the grant application of Permian Basin Community Centers for Mental Health and Mental Retardation titled "Community Alcoholism Drying Out and Intermediate Care Facilities."

A large delegation from Howard County and Big Spring are expected to attend Wednesday's meeting.

Two Enter Guilty Pleas

Waylon Wade Whitely, 30, Odessa, and John Edd Williams, 38, 1604 Donley St., have entered guilty pleas in Howard County's 118th District Court.

Whitely pleaded guilty to theft of $961 from the Kent Oil Service Station, 3206 West Hwy. 80, July 25, 1975. He was placed on 10 years of probation and ordered to make restitution.

Williams pleaded guilty to second-offense driving while intoxicated and was placed on five years of probation.

THEFTS

Dora Wilson, 1606 Lancaster, reported two speakers and two floor mats stolen from a vehicle at that address. Report made at 2:58 p.m. Monday.

Dallas Pay Phone Rates Unchanged

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas pay phone customers must continue to dig in their pockets for two dimes instead of one, despite a city councilman's complaint that no other major city in the country has a similar charge.

An attempt by Councilman Bill Nicol to return pay phone charges to a dime instead of 20 cents was thwarted Monday when only Mayor Wes Wise and Mayor Pro Tem Adlene Harrison supported his resolution to review the charge.

Council members voted down Nicol's resolution after Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. division manager LaRue Robinson warned that the firm would have to make up the lost revenues through other charges.

Nicol said the higher charges here are a hardship on low income families and added that the 20-cent phones create a "bad impression" on travelers visiting Dallas.

"They land at the airport and see pay phones that cost a quarter," Nicol said. "Then they come to Dallas and the pay phones cost 20 cents. It makes them think this is an expensive place to live."

Robinson said, "It's not really accurate to say it costs less to make a phone call in New York than in Dallas."

He said the metropolitan system here allows an individual to call over a 1,000-square mile area.

CAPTURED ON WOOD — The historic 'big spring', from whence this city derives its name, has been captured in a wood carving by Bill Brooks. He is shown here with the work, which was commissioned by the Heritage Museum and sponsored by Mrs. Toots Mansfield, left, museum Bicentennial chairman. Brooks did the intricate carving from what is probably the earliest photo of the spring, showing the original T & P pumphouse at the upper right. The carving now is on display at the museum.

KEEPING CHILDREN WITHOUT LICENSE

Odessa 'Y' Defies Law

ODESSA, Tex. (AP) — The director of the YMCA here says he will continue to provide daytime programs for Odessa elementary school pupils until he is told by the attorney general that what he is doing is illegal.

The State Department of Welfare has told the YMCA that it cannot take care of the pupils without a child care license, but the YMCA board defied the warning Monday.

When the John Ireland elementary school burned last week, school officials decided to send the John Ireland pupils to Reagan Elementary during the afternoon while Reagan pupils attended in the morning. This setup would last through the remainder of the school term, with some pupils going to the YMCA for the half-day they are not in school.

YMCA executive director Dave Sanford said, "We're just trying to do something for the city and the parents and all of a sudden there's this hassle with the government."

A State Department of Welfare case worker told the YMCA it would be in violation of the Child Care Licensing Act of 1975. The act stipulates that any person or agency who keeps children under 14 years of age on a regular basis has to be licensed by the state.

"We talked to our lawyers and legislators (Sen. Kent Hance of Lubbock and Rep. John Hoestenbach of Odessa) and it is their understanding that YMCA and other youth-serving programs do not come under this law," Sanford said.

"It's not that we can't meet the standards, but once we get licensed for this then we might have to hire a bookkeeper and four secretaries to handle other licenses," he added. "And it's not just us but everywhere in the state."

Sanford said a strict interpretation of the law "would mean you would have to license every swimming class in the state."

The pupils are allowed to swim, play games and have arts and crafts at the center.

State Welfare Commissioner Raymond Vowell said in Austin he was puzzled why local authorities did not go ahead with an offer from the state welfare department to give the YMCA a provisional license after a fire and health inspection.

"The legislature amended this law and it does not exempt this situation. We want to help any way we can in this emergency situation but if they want us to test the law I guess we will have to do it."

"If they do not accept our offer I would want to discuss it further with my legal staff," Vowell said.

Sanford said the YMCA would take the case to the attorney general, if necessary.

Tollett Gains Law Degree

Raymond Lee Tollett Jr., son of Mrs. Iris Tollett and the late Raymond Tollett, received his law degree from St. Mary's School of Law in San Antonio this month.

A graduate of New Mexico Military Institute at Roswell, N.M., in high school, Tollett received his pre-law degree at the University of Texas. He has been employed by a Dallas firm, where he will begin practice March 15.

Mrs. Tollett and Ann went to San Antonio for the graduation exercises at the school of law.

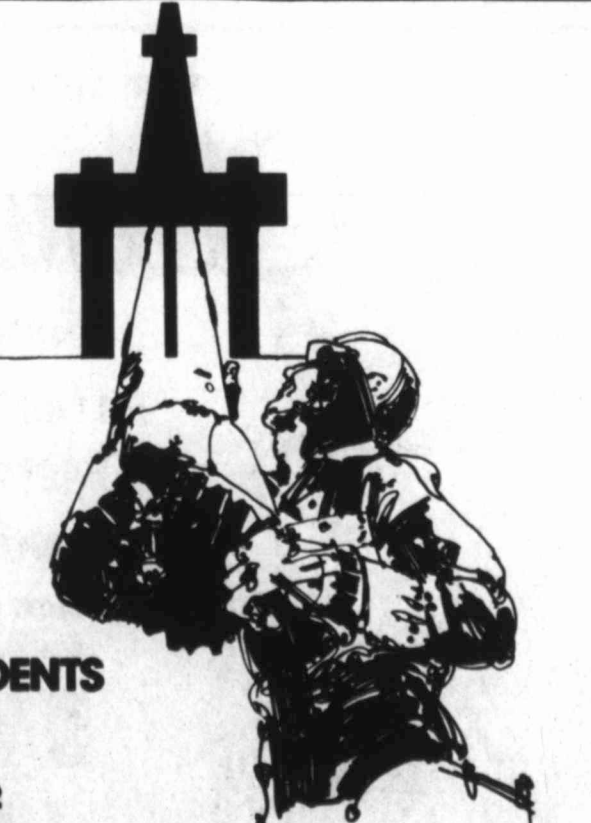

Registration At UTPB Static

ODESSA — A record spring registration was set Monday at the University of Texas in the Permian Basin when 81 late signups were registered Monday.

These 81 added to the 1,264 registered last week brought the total to one more than last spring with a grand total of 1,345. Late registrations continue through Feb. 2. After today, there will be a $5 late registration fee, according to A. W. Keith, director of registration.

'Mini' Pig Developed

A "mini" pig has been developed by the United States Department of Agriculture for use in swine research projects. Called Greer-Radeleff hogs, the "mini" pig thrives in small pens and is very docile, permitting research work which requires frequent handling. Greer-Radeleff hogs have normal gestation and farrowing compared to standard hogs, but do have smaller litters.

Her Father Wants Proof Boyfriend Is Eligible

DEAR ABBY: I am 16, nearly 17, and I'm an honor student. I have always had a good relationship with my parents—until now.

About three months ago I met the most wonderful guy in the world. I'll call him Sammy. It was love at first sight! Sammy is really 23, but we told my parents he is 20 because if they knew how old he was, they wouldn't let me go with him. Sammy is also divorced and has a 3-year-old son who lives with his ex-wife. We didn't tell my parents about the little boy. We just told them that Sammy was divorced.

Sammy wants to marry me, but we don't plan on getting married until I am finished with school.

The problem is my father. He has a very suspicious mind. He says I can't see Sammy again until Sammy produces legal evidence of his divorce.

Abby, I trust Sammy, but I'm afraid if I ask him to show my father proof of his divorce, Sammy will be so hurt and insulted at having been called a liar he will quit seeing me. Don't you think my father is being unreasonable?

I love Sammy so much. I can't live without him. Please help me.

SAMMY'S GIRL

DEAR GIRL: Sorry, I'm inclined to go along with your father. You and Sammy are already withholding the facts about Sammy's real age and his son, which is deceitful. If Sammy doesn't want to bring all the facts out in the open, he's less than "wonderful." Be wise. Listen to your father.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, age 64. Last year I met a man my age whose wife had died the year before.

We are in love. He would be an ideal mate except for one thing. He is very egotistical and likes to see how he registers with other women (waitresses, especially). In other words, he tries to make me jealous.

This is a small town and there are no men around with whom I can make him jealous, so I am unable to get even. Please tell me how to handle this successfully.

HURT AND JEALOUS

DEAR HURT: Don't try to fight fire with fire unless you want your chances to go up in smoke.

Tell him frankly that you are hurt and jealous when he flirts with other women. (He'll be flattered.) If he doesn't cut out the flirting after that, you'll know he doesn't care how you feel.

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago I had a son out of wedlock. We talked of marriage, but it never came about.

I named my son after his father (first, middle and last name) with his approval.

I would like to know if it is illegal or immoral to name an out-of-wedlock child after his father.

CONFUSED

DEAR CONFUSED: It is not illegal. But if the father has a legitimate son named after him, two sons with identical names could create embarrassment and confusion.

And to intentionally create such a situation, when it could have been avoided, I think is morally wrong.

DEAR ABBY: About that bride who didn't want any fat bridesmaids to ruin the appearance of her wedding: I hope her fat friends will remember her with "skinny" wedding gifts!

Nitrates Used In Meat Curing

Use of nitrates in curing meat products is a safety measure since nitrates inhibit the development of the dreaded, often fatal, botulism toxin. Nitrates also give cured meats their typical color, flavor and keeping qualities.

Cupboard Will Reveal Wise Garden Planning

COLLEGE STATION — Although the frost is barely on the pumpkin, it's not too early to begin planning for next season's home gardening and food preservation, Marilyn Haggard, a foods and nutrition specialist, says.

"Your cupboard and freezer can tell how wisely you planned last year. A surplus of some items — but a short supply of others — can be avoided with a little advance planning before planting or buying fruits and vegetables for preservation," she said.

Miss Haggard is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

She advised planting enough vegetables enjoyed by the family for eating during the growing season and to preserve for use through the rest of the year.

"If you have a surplus of vegetables, try bargaining with neighbors or friends to obtain different vegetables or fruits. And remember to use all of last year's foods before using newly preserved foods," the specialist said.

Members met in the home of Mrs. Ray Swann.

Mrs. Joe Parrish read a devotional from Mark 16:1-4.

Mrs. D. S. Phillips reported on the recent HD Council meeting.

Sick calls and visits were reported by Mrs. Leroy Echols.

The next meeting will be at 2 p.m., Feb. 18.
