Peace Dawns For India As Gandhi Wins Long Struggle For Salt Rights

SENATE SUSTAINS HOOVER'S SHOALS BILL VETO

Shame For Mother's Life Brings Suicide Of Vivian's Daughter

NEW YORK, March 3. (US)—Overcome with shame over the revelations that came with the murder of her mother, Vivian Gordon, prospective vice witness, six days ago, 16-year-old Benita Bischoff killed herself late this afternoon.

She turned on gas jets in the home of her father, John E. C. Bischoff, in Audubon, N. J. Her stepmother found her at 5:30 o'clock, unconscious. All the blinds in the home had been drawn.

The girl was hurried seven miles in an ambulance to the West Jersey Homeopathic hospital in Camden, where a pulmotor was applied and six physicians tried to save her. She expired a few minutes after she arrived.

Taunted in School

Taunts of her schoolmates in Audubon High school, where she was a sophomore, mortified the girl so that for two days she had remained at home, unable to face them. The girl also dreaded the morbid interest of friends and sympathizers who had stopped her on the streets to express unwanted sympathy and ask questions that brought blushes to the schoolgirl's cheeks, it became known.

The girl's father, a deputy U. S. marshal at the Lorton, Va., reformatory, was in the office of District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin in the Bronx, when the tragedy occurred. He was there in connection with testimony in the Gordon murder case.

Father Divorced

He had obtained custody of Benita, and a divorce, as the result of the arrest and conviction in March, 1923, of the girl's mother, whose real name also was Benita, on a charge of immorality.

Five days before she was strangled and thrown by a roadway in Van Cortland park, New York City, the girl's mother had visited headquarters of the Seabury vice inquiry and had begun a story she hoped would win her vindication on the immorality charge. She accused Bischoff and Patrolman Andrew J. McLaughlin of having "framed" her so that Bischoff could get custody of Benita. Both men denied it.

VIVIAN'S DIARY DISCLOSES CLUES

NEW YORK, March 3. (AP)—Cryptic broken sentences from the diary of Vivian Gordon—phrases that threw flashes of light into Broadway's half world—today opened a new avenue to a solution of the murder that has set New York agog.

The diary notations led to the questioning of two men who admitted they had lived at 851 West End avenue an address described in the diary as "a terrible place." The men, Harold Doman and Louis Zeno, were whisked from police station to police station and then to the Bronx district attorney's office as detectives hurried to obtain all information possible from them.

Feminine Pepys

The diary revealed that Miss Gordon, vice graft tipster and alleged blackmailer, as a feminine Pepys who set down her hopes and fears and all that happened to her—even the most harrowing.

COURT TO REST WHILE DOCTORS EXHUME BODY

Second Post Mortem Study Of Arlene Draves' Organs Is Ordered

SISTERS COLLAPSE

Members of Slain Girl's Family Protest Move For Examination

VALPARAISO, Ind., March 3. (AP)—The body of Arlene Draves will be taken from its grave in a country cemetery tomorrow to offer evidence in the trial of Virgil Kirkland, her accused slayer.

Four doctors will study the physical condition of the girl to uphold or disprove the defense contention that a more complete examination might reveal an attack by Kirkland and four friends was not necessarily responsible for her death.

Court Recesses

Tomorrow court will stand recessed while the body, at rest beside the mother who died when Arlene was a child, is the subject of a second post mortem examination by two surgeons representing the state and two representing the defense.

Two of the Draves sisters fainted after Judge Grant Crumpacker ordered the exhumation.

"Don't they need my father's consent for this?" cried Carolyn, 26, slumping to the floor in front of the judge's bench. Mrs. Murrell Clemens, 32, and eldest of the four sisters, collapsed as she was leaving the Porter county courthouse.

Father Indignant

The father was angry. "Why did they have to do this?" he asked. He will be at the graveside when the body is raised from the Reynolds, Ind., cemetery.

The defense petition for exhumation followed an unsuccessful attempt to have the judge direct a verdict of acquittal. The Kirkland counsel argued the state had not substantiated its allegations of attack and murder, but was overruled.

Dr. R. B. Harger, professor of toxicology at Indiana university, was the first witness for Young Kirkland, but his testimony proved a boomerang for defense attorneys. After testifying he found small amounts of grain alcohol, wood alcohol and formaldehyde in the girl's stomach, during the first post mortem, he was asked:

"Would it have been possible for this death to have been caused by poison alcohol?"

"No, sir, not this death," he answered cross-examining prosecutors.

BRIAND ENDORSED

TAXI-ING ALL OVER CANTON, COST ONE CENT

IN CANTON, CHINA, you can hire a ride from one end of the city to the other for one cent. The "taxi-barrow," pushed by one man, is the commonly employed means of transportation. The device is more crude than a gin-rick-a-shaw. Passengers are distributed so as to balance each other. Three or four persons, at the most may ride at one time. Automobile dealers' used car advertising in the classified want-ad section of this newspaper offers bargains that are almost as unbelievable. The newspaper-reading public should patronize these dealers more when purchasing used cars, automotive equipment, and service of any kind.

CIVIL STRIFE ENDED WITH CONCESSIONS

National Party Scores Victory in Pact With Viceroy

BARRIER OVERCOME

Minor Disputes Solved After Chief Gains Crucial Point

NEW DELHI, India, March 4. (Wednesday) (AP)—Peace dawned for distracted India this morning after a year of civil disobedience activities had torn great Britain's Asiatic domain by strife.

Viceroy Lord Irwin, representing the British government, and Mahatma Gandhi, half naked little chieftain of the Indian Nationalists, reached an agreement at 1:30 o'clock this morning after Gandhi yesterday had won from Lord Irwin tacit agreement that Indians along the coast had a right to make their own salt from sea water instead of buying it from the government monopoly. This was one of the principal points for which the Nationalists had fought in a year of civil resistance, and with accord on this matter it was felt one of the most serious obstacles to restoration of peace in India had been overcome. Other points were settled later.

Mahatma Gandhi has led a long series of boycotts and civil resistance campaigns against the British crown, but his latest, now apparently brought to settlement, began in 1929 when Great Britain failed to name a native on the Simon commission appointed to determine the degree of self-government which safely could be extended to India.

The master showman centered his campaign about the British salt monopoly, urging his followers to make their own salt by evaporation from the sea, and there ensued bitter months in which police laid about with staves dispersing Indians marching to the sea.

Gandhi Seized

The crown carefully avoided molesting Gandhi himself until the Mahatma, marching 150 miles from Allahabad to Dandi, made salt in defiance of the law. He was arrested. The demand for his release swept all India, and the round table conference at London was called to consider conciliatory measures.

Gandhi boycotted the meetings, contending the delegation was "packed" with proved loyalists, but out of the conference came the closest approach to dominion status India yet has been offered.

It was protected by safeguards upon important departments of the proposed dominion government, and most of the safeguards were unsatisfactory to Gandhi's all-India congress party, but he and other important party leaders were released from prison to agree upon their plans.

Harvard Students Lay Bets on Prof's Lecture

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 3. (UP)—A literary lottery is the new "racket" at Harvard university.

Raising the question whether "racketeering" is to have a place in higher education, the Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily, has called attention to a gambling fad which has intrigued students of Prof. Irving Babbitt's course in comparative literature.

Each day tickets numbered from 1 to 100 are sold at 10 cents each to course members.

Two students are delegated to count the authors mentioned by Professor Babbitt during the lecture.

The holder of the number corresponding to the number of authors named wins the daily pool.

Brisk Trade Inaugurates Bonded Wheat Market

NEW YORK, March 3. (AP)—Spirited trading marked the inauguration of a bonded wheat futures market today by the New York produce exchange, and at the close it was estimated nearly 1,000,000 bushels had changed hands.

May opened at 61½ cents and later sold up to 62⅝, strengthening in the late trading in sympathy with the stronger Winnipeg market. The low price reached was 61⅜ cents, and the May contract closed at the high for the day.

For the present trading will be confined to contracts for future delivery on the basis of delivery at Buffalo of bonded Canadian wheat.

Seven States to Join Oil Relief Conference at Texarkana Monday

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 3. (AP)—A second oil relief conference, with assurance at least nine states would send representatives, was set for Monday at Texarkana, Texas, by Gov. W. H. Murray today.

The conferees are expected to work further along the lines drawn at Fort Worth, Texas, last weekend, when Murray proposed state prohibition of corporations importing foreign oil. The Fort Worth conferees, from Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas and New Mexico, asked President Hoover to help them stop oil imports and took steps toward planning a uniform conservation program.

Murray said he had been assured Wyoming, California, New Mexico, Louisiana, Texas, Kansas, Arkansas and Ohio governors would send representatives to the Monday conference.

Today the Oklahoma governor, in a special message to the legislature, set our recommendations for payment of oil proration umpires by the state from a special one-twentieth of one per cent tax on production. The plans also contemplated non-salaried committees in each state oil field and appointment of proration enforcement officers by the governor or with his approval.

At the same time Murray intimated he later would ask that a

Demo Plans Baffle All Prediction

WASHINGTON, March 3. (AP)—Chieftains of the Democratic party assembled in Washington today, but after many conferences left the rank and file still in doubt whether the meeting to be held Thursday would be a love-feast or a family quarrel.

As demands came from the East, West and South that economic conditions instead of prohibition be made the predominant issue in 1932, Chairman Raskob of the party's national committee issued a statement reiterating the purpose of the committee session was to discuss "future policies and finances."

About the same time and across the hall from the chairman's hotel suite, Alfred E. Smith, the party's presidential candidate in 1928, told newspaper men he saw no harm in the national committee discussing informally all public questions.

He insisted, however, it was not for him to determine what the meeting should consider as he was not a member of the committee. He added the committee would not fix policies for adoption by the national convention.

Meanwhile, old and new senate Democrats, including the party's floor leader, demanded with emphasis that economic rehabilitation be put forward as the dominant issue in the next presidential race.

Senator Robinson, Arkansas, floor leader and vice presidential nominee on the Smith ticket, said in the senate that Republican leaders still

BANKS GAIN BY MERGERS

Southwest System Tightened by Eliminations

DALLAS, March 3. (AP)—Exigencies of an unprecedented condition created by drouth which touched virtually every state forming the vast area of the Southwest has caused the affected section's financial fabric to be rewoven into a finer and firmer texture.

Out of the reverses, which followed in the wake of crop failures and other economic troubles, there has arisen in Oklahoma, Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Arkansas and Kansas, a more compact system of banks.

Weak banks have been absorbed by stronger institutions, and mergers in the banking business are destined to protect the depositors from a repetition of disasters that befell them in certain parts of Southwestern states in recent months, banking authorities state.

Oklahoma Mergers

Oklahoma had 20 state bank mergers in January and six consolidations in February, the January mergers reducing the number of banks in the state by 10 and the succeeding month's consolidations lessening it by three.

In Arkansas there was a general trend toward consolidation. In a number of cases banks in the smaller towns were merged and moved to larger places. Widespread consolidations are looked for during the present year.

Kansas had 23 mergers and consolidations involving 46 banks with total assets of $19,975,000 since Jan. 1, 1930, two banks reorganizing last year after closing for liquidation.

There were nine state bank consolidations in Texas this year and 32 consolidations and mergers involving national banks in the state.

Few in Louisiana

Louisiana showed less consolidations than any of the Southwestern states. Four banks were refinanced

HOUSE VOTE BACKS ROAD BOND ISSUE

$200,000,000 Project Ready For Action of State Legislature

FOUR OPPOSE MOVE

Committee Adds Approval To Previous Senate Decision

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—The house constitutional amendments committee today voted 16 to 4 to make a favorable report on the $200,000,000 highway bond issue resolution. The proposal previously had been reported favorably from the senate committee.

The vote was taken after a brief hearing in which Representative Anderson of San Antonio led the opposition. Others who voted against the resolution were Representatives Kennedy of Kosse, Stephens of Sulphur Springs and Terrell of Alto.

How They Voted

The roll call showed the following "ayes": Hubbard of New Boston, Van Zandt of Tioga; Beck of Forth Worth, Caven of Marshall, Daniels of Crockett, Engelhard of Eagle Lake, Ford of McGregor, Holland of Houston, Johnson of Dalhart, Johnson of Omaha, Lee of Eden, Morse of Houston, Munson of Wharton, Savage of Dallas, Weinert of Seguin and Wyatt of Stephensville.

The constitutional amendment, if approved by the legislature by two-thirds vote and by the people, would authorize the legislature to issue highway bonds aggregating $200,000,000. Of this amount, $100,000,000 or as much thereof as necessary would be used to reimburse the counties for money they have spent or contracted to spend in helping build state roads. The remainder would be used for construction, but not more than $20,000,000 in any one year.

Speech for Bonds

County Judge T. H. Kenley of Groveton made a short talk for the bond issue. This was one of the main planks in Governor Sterling's first campaign last summer. It lacked only a few votes in the house of receiving the legislature's sanction for submission two years ago.

The resolution was introduced in the senate by Senator Woodul of Houston and in the house by Representative Hubbard.

Girl Wife Held In Farmer's Death

MT. PLEASANT, Texas, March 3. (UP)—Henry Thompson, 25-year-old farmer, was killed instantly today and tonight his girl wife and her brother-in-law were in the Titus county jail charged with murder, the girl claiming to have fired the fatal shot despite word of witnesses, officers said, that the man killed her husband.

The pretty 16-year-old mother, Mrs. Ethel Thompson, and her brother-in-law, Ray Barto, were placed in jail a few minutes after the tragedy.

Thompson was killed by a shotgun charge which struck him in the back, officers said. The shooting occurred in a narrow little road near the home of Barto, where Mrs. Thompson had been living since becoming estranged from her husband recently.

Although the girl maintained steadfastly that she killed her husband, the dead man's father, J. E. Thompson, and his brother both declared, officers said, that Barto fired the shotgun during a heated quarrel after Thompson had attempted to take his year-old son from his wife.

'United City' Called To Renew Fight For Progressive Wichita

You Can't Build a City Where People Have to Boil Their Drinking Water, Marlow Declares; Physician Warns of Danger at Mass Meeting

Spirited pleas for "the elimination of small politics which have been introduced into this campaign on the proposed water bonds, and which betray the optimism, harmony and faith upon which Wichita Falls has been built" were voiced before about 500 persons assembled at the Memorial auditorium Tuesday night in a meeting sponsored by the water improvement campaign committee.

Speakers Tuesday night declared that leaders in the opposition to the bond issue, when challenged to outline some other feasible plan by which mutually desired improvements could be made and to explain why discussion of gas rates had been brought into the controversy, have boasted that "they are playing good politics."

Opponents Admit "Playing Good Politics"

The united front with which Wichita Falls' citizenship has secured desirable civic enterprises in the past was pointed out as the largest factor in making this city the largest in Northwest Texas. Unfailing optimism and determination to build a city was evidenced by the small group of pioneers, it was declared, and immediately embraced by the rapidly growing citizenship as the present city emerged.

Reports made by the United States public health service on the local water system in April, 1930, listing 13 "important deficiencies" demanding early correction, were read by Dr. C. W. Stevenson. The report stated that unless such improvements were made, the "water supply of Wichita Falls should be certified as unsanitary, or prohibited," according to the speaker. Following Dr. Stevenson's address, a motion made from the floor by Ira L. Cain was adopted unanimously by the meeting, requesting the city manager to ask for an immediate analysis of the local water system and supply by the state health department. Mr. Cain offered the motion after stating that opponents of the bond issue have previously declared that the present water supply is all that could be desired. The analysis by state experts, he said, will provide local citizens dependable information as to the exact condition of Wichita Falls' water at the present time.

"I believe we now have as good water as any city in Texas," declared J. B. Marlow, the first speaker of the evening, in his opening statement. "At least, it is from the standpoint of being soft, for it now shows less than four grains of salt per gallon. Now what we want is to keep it that way. When I was mayor, back in 1918-1920, I asked for a bond issue of $800,000 to buy the water system, priced at $740,000. Judge Huff, and some other citizens, told me that seemed like a big price. But when it came to a vote, in January, 1920, the bond issue carried by 825 to three because people knew we needed the water system. I wish we had that same spirit here today—the same kind of willingnes we had then to support a determination to build this city."

"There hasn't been a year during the past 10 years when the doctors haven't told us, at one time or another, to boil our water. Who wants boiled water? One whiff of it is too much. But they knew it needed boiling for health's sake. You can't build a city without water. I think I've sold more farms than anyone else around here, and the first thing any old nester wants to know is about the water supply; next comes churches and schools. But first, it's good water."

"Some of my best friends are opposing this improvement," Mr. Marlow said. "That's all right, of course, if they believe that way. But I don't think they are quite fair when they accuse us of deliberate graft. The young man who has said a lot about the gas rate in this campaign on the water bonds was city attorney when this "ready to steal' charge of 50 cents was agreed upon. The other day one of the opponents of the water bonds was talking to me. I mentioned to him that this gas rate matter has nothing to do with the bond proposition. He replied, 'No, but it's darned good politics.'"

In the enthusiasm of recent public discussion, said Dr. C. W. Stevenson, there has been danger "of losing sight of the most vital factor in the entire problem, that of public health." Such an oversight, he continued, prejudices the welfare of individuals, families, and the entire community.

Serious Health Problem Faces City

"One question we should ask ourselves first, in order to arrive at an intelligent position in this situation," the speaker said, "is this: Do we have a public health problem? On April 21 and 22, 1930, the United States public health service rendered its report on the Wichita Falls water system. Thirteen concrete objections were raised. Among them were mentioned overloaded and ineffective purification units, frequent by-passing of raw water, washing of filters with settled water instead of filtered water, leakage of untreated water into clear water basins, inadequate chlorination, insufficient laboratory control, an unfenced and open ditch, proximity to an amusement pavilion and park, stock water rights at the lake, dangerous crossing with untreated water in the Country Club Estates district, and others. In connection with this report, it should be remembered that the United States public health service is unpartisan, impartial, non-political organization, purposed to do one thing: give the facts. This report then, settles the question for us; we do have a public health problem."

The need of improvements in the water system, Dr. Stevenson said, is "an issue that we can not get around. It is a challenge to Wichita Falls. No civilization ever has survived which neglected its most vital factor, that of public health. I am here as a member of the medical profession, which has always been abreast of every movement for the advancement of public health. I am here to tell you that whether you

SENATORS TIRED

Executive Opposes Move To Put Government In Power Trade

WASHINGTON, March 4. (AP)—The senate recessed at 1:12 o'clock this morning after an agreement that Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, who was urging adoption of a resolution for an investigation of the oil industry would have the floor when the senate reconvened at 9 o'clock.

WASHINGTON, March 3. (AP)—President Hoover's veto of the Muscle Shoals bill was sustained tonight by the senate.

The bill, which the president said in his veto message squarely presented the issue of government operation in competition with private interests, was killed when its friends failed to obtain the two-thirds vote necessary to pass it over a veto.

Norris Leads Debate

The vote came after several hours of debate in which Senators Norris, Republican, Nebraska, and Black, Democrat, Alabama, led an attack on President Hoover for not signing the measure.

Norris charged the president was "with the power trust" and Black asserted he violated his campaign

DEFICIENCY BILL VOTED

WASHINGTON, March 3. (AP)—The senate tonight completed work on the $75,000,000 second deficiency appropriation bill adopting a report adjusting differences between the senate and house. Most of the millions carried by the senate would become available immediately and would be put to work on public improvements throughout the nation.

promises by vetoing the bill.

Administration senators forced the vote when Norris and other advocates of the bill attempted to lay it aside, declaring a vote was useless in view of the impossibility of passing the measure in the house over the veto.

The vote was 49 to 34 for sustaining the veto.

Sixteen Republicans voted to pass the bill over the veto while three Democrats joined with 31 Republicans to sustain it.

Two Thirds Necessary

Two thirds were necessary to pass the bill over the veto.

In vetoing the measure proposing federal control over the war time properties, the president proposed, instead, the states of Alabama and Tennessee set up a commission with representatives from the national farm organizations and the army engineers to lease the plants "in the interest of the local community and agriculture generally."

The president's veto message was dumped into the senate on top of a confused mass of legislation which weary leaders were attempting to straighten out before the clock reaches 12 tomorrow when the session would end before a vote was reached on the veto.

Cattlemen Favor Bills Validating Land Titles

AMARILLO, Texas, March 3. (AP)—Resolutions endorsing the Small and Wagstaff bills validating land titles were passed here today by Panhandle cattlemen and forwarded to the Texas legislature to urge that the bills be passed.

For their own protection against cattle thieves, the cattlemen endorsed a movement sponsored by the city of Amarillo to locate a central slaughter house in this city where all livestock intended for local consumption would be butchered.

W.T.C.C. to Ask State Cattle Feeding Tests Over Territory

Special to The Record News.

STAMFORD, Texas, March 3.—A committee headed by Frank P. Holland, Dallas, publisher and agricultural leader will represent the West Texas Chamber of Commerce before the appropriations committees of the state house of representatives and senate in a hearing on March 5, and present a request for a legislative appropriation for carrying on cattle feeding tests and demonstrations at the state agricultural experiment stations in West Texas.

Arrangements for the West Texas group to appear before the appropriations committees were made by Adrian Pool, member of the state board of control.

Sponsoring the development and enlargement of the practice of feeding Texas grain to Texas cattle in finishing them out for market is one of the objectives of the West Texas chamber for this year and the effort to further the idea by having the state agricultural stations determine the most efficient and practical methods to follow in that work has been widely endorsed.

Agricultural leaders point out that there is much lost motion and other uneconomic items involved in the present arrangement of West Texas producing cattle, shipping them to the northern states for finishing on corn and other grains, and then having the beef shipped back into Texas—while millions of tons of Texas grain sorghum and other foodstuff are being sold at low prices.

The basic idea in asking for the feeding experiment appropriations is to make possible arriving at a way to get Texas cattle and Texas grain together in Texas so as to make the business of producing both commodities mean more to the state.

SPUR EDITOR'S INJURY FATAL

Oran R. McClure Succumbs To Crash Hurts

Special to The Record News.

SPUR, Texas, March 3.—Oran R. McClure, 54, editor and publisher of the Texas Spur, died at the Nichols sanitarium at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday morning as a result of injuries received when he was struck by a car in a snowstorm early Sunday morning.

Mr. McClure was born in Brownwood, July 20, 1877. He was married in 1904 to Ann Baum of Brownwood. There are four children, Weldon, Oran Jr., Max and Wynell, all of whom were at his bedside when he died.

Mr. McClure came to Spur when the town was founded in 1909 and has edited and published ever since. He played a prominent part in the development of Dickens county and for several years had served as secretary of the Democratic county committee.

Funeral services will be held at his residence Wednesday afternoon.

Measures to Reduce Ad Valorem Tax Read

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—Two bills, aimed at reducing the ad valorem tax for state purposes, were introduced today by Representative Satterwhite of Odessa. The bills would limit the amount of ad valorem taxes levied by the state tax board to 20 cents for the general revenue fund and 20 cents for the state available school fund.

Under the constitution the tax board may levy 35 cents for each purpose.

Satterwhite said he estimated the amount received by the general revenue fund would be decreased approximately $2,000,000 and the school fund by $4,000,000. Other sources of revenue would be provided to make up the school fund deficiency to keep the rural state aid school apportionment at $17.50, Satterwhite said.

Baylor Terrace Demonstration Draws Crowd

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Texas, March 3.—One of the most successful terracing demonstrations ever held in this county has been completed here. The visiting cooperators and county agent met at the courthouse with 100 Baylor county farmers. A motion picture was shown of the various methods of terracing and the operation of terracing machinery.

M. B. Oates, agricultural agent of the Denver railroad; A. K. "Dad" Short, of the federal land bank of Houston; M. R. Bentley, extension service engineer, A. & M. college, and P. C. Colgin, county agent of Baylor county, made talks on terracing and its value to the farmer. Four representatives of various terracing machinery companies were present at the meeting. They had their machinery with them, which they demonstrated by actual work on the J. F. Moore and Frisbie farms. About 40 acres were terraced.

Baylor county also furnished graders and tractors to assist in the work. One hundred and eight were present at the demonstration. This was the largest crowd that had ever been present at a demonstration of this kind. Terracing is increasing in popularity among the farmers of this county. Approximately 5,000 acres have been terraced in the past 12 months.

JACKSON VETS SEEK LOANS

Special to The Record News.

ALTUS, Okla., March 3.—Approximately 90 per cent of the American Legion members in Jackson county are expected to secure funds from the fund made available from the partial cash bonus bill passed last week by congress, according to announcement by W. R. Cullen, James Monroe Roach post commander.

This measure which has now been made a law over the veto of the president is expected to release between $150,000 and $200,000 in Jackson county.

House Group to Tour Penitentiary System

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—The house today authorized its penitentiary committee to make a tour of the penitentiary system March 12, 13 and 14. The motion was carried, 95 to 16, after objection had been raised that it might result in suspension of the activity of the legislature by breaking the quorum.

Texas Governor Would Become State Manager Under New Bill

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—A bill which would make the governor the state manager, with continuing power over the budget, was introduced today by Representative Sanders of Nacogdoches, chairman of the house appropriation committee.

Under the bill, the governor would have authority to stop expenditures of money appropriated by the legislature if he deemed the expenditures contrary to public policy. He must determine, under the present system, if an appropriation is necessary and after approving the appropriation has no further authority over the amount appropriated or the unit of government expending the money.

The bill also would give the governor a part in preparation of the state budget which now goes direct from the board of control to the legislature.

The bill was drafted on recommendation of Moore Lynn, state auditor, who pointed out that a budget must be made up a year before any part of it was expended and three years before the last expenditures under it are authorized. Lynn stated it was impossible for any state official to predict his needs that far in advance and that units often found themselves with appropriations for which no need existed, in many instances, the money being expended for no needful purpose.

Provision also was made in the bill for extension of its provisions to municipalities, counties and school districts, each to have a chief budget officer with authority to stop expenditure of money.

The governor now has power to increase appropriations through deficiency appropriations and also should be given authority to decrease appropriations, Lynn said.

HIGHWAY WAGE MINIMUM SET

House Votes Favorably On Labor Bill

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—The house today passed a bill by Representatives Howsley of Albany and Burns of Huntsville setting the minimum wage for laborers on state highway projects at 30 cents an hour. The vote was 91 to 31.

An amendment by Representative Farmer of Fort Worth proposing the minimum be raised to 50 cents an hour was defeated as was an amendment by Representative Albritton of Yorktown, proposing it be cut to 25 cents an hour.

An amendment by Representative Harris of Houston specifying that American citizens be given a preference in the work was adopted. Holland said this would eliminate competition between American and low-priced Mexican labor.

Speaker Fred Minor ruled out on a point of order an amendment by Representative Brooks of Bagwell which would have required contractors to give preference to labor in counties where the work was being done. Brooks said that on a job in his county, the contractor imported negro laborers from Louisiana and gave them jobs although the highway commission ordered the work as an aid to local unemployment in Red River county.

California wheat production has dropped from 40,000,000 bushels in 1890 to an average of 13,000,000 bushels in the last five years, the state university estimates.

For COLDS

We all catch colds and they can make us miserable; but yours needn't last long if you will do this: Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin just as soon as possible after a cold starts. Stay in the house if you can—keep warm. Repeat with another tablet or two of Bayer Aspirin every three or four hours, if those symptoms of cold persist. Take a good laxative when you retire, and keep bowels open. If throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in a quarter-glassful of water and gargle. This soothes inflammation and reduces infection. There is nothing like Bayer Aspirin for a cold, or sore throat. And it relieves aches and pains almost instantly. The genuine tablets, marked Bayer, are absolutely harmless to the heart.

CALM HOVERS OVER KILGORE

Oil Boom Town Quiet After Cleanup

KILGORE, Texas, March 3. (AP)—A strange calm hovered over Kilgore and the adjacent oil fields at the close of the second day of the Texas rangers' reign here.

Led by Capt. Tom Hickman, a band of the rangers, aided by local officers, staged a surprise raid on the town yesterday, rounding up scores of suspicious characters. An impromptu court was held in the Baptist church, a large number of persons being released after hearing. The officers said numerous others had police records. The net total of the arrests was 166, the prisoners being taken to the Longview jail in small groups.

Wagon Is Hearse

The rangers were preparing to take the last group of five prisoners to Longview today when a funeral procession headed by a wagon passed the church, housing the prisoners. Onlookers turned from viewing the culprits and their picturesque captors to watch the strange procession carry the body of Mrs. L. P. Griffin, pioneer settler, to the cemetery. Because of the mud, no cars could traverse the road.

The inside of the church presented an unusual appearance with a pint of whisky on top of the old church organ, the rangers' packs, chaps, and cooking utensils lying about the floor and inside the pews.

Rangers Ready to Move

The rangers refused to say when they would leave, but it was observed that saddle packs were ready for travel and automobile trailers carrying horses were parked beside the church. City officers said the raids had not been requested but were welcome.

That the oil camp was not yet entirely reformed was evidenced early today when the rangers awoke to discover that an automobile had been stolen during the night from a parking place in front of the building where they slept.

The principal activity today consisted of efforts by unhardened Dallas detectives to ride the rangers' cow ponies.

TYLER ROUNDS UP UNDESIRABLES

TYLER, Texas, March 3. (AP)—Following the example of the rangers at Kilgore, Tyler police and sheriff's officers today began rounding up all undesirables in the town. Eighteen men and women had been arrested.

The prisoners were closely questioned and their finger prints taken. Officers said the prints would be checked with those on file in all cities of the state.

RAID CONDUCTED AT HENDERSON

HENDERSON, Texas, March 3. (AP)—Continuing their raids in the East Texas oil fields, rounding up suspicious characters, state rangers and a party of county officers led by Sheriff Will McMurray of Rusk county today visited a domino parlor and rooming house at Henderson, making several arrests, and in the afternoon arrested several suspects at Joinerville, six miles west of here. All of the men arrested were placed in the jail here.

Garner Backs McCrory To Succeed Duval West

SAN ANTONIO, March 3. (AP)—Belief that Judge W. W. McCrory of the 94th district court is "eminently qualified" to succeed Judge DuVal West on the federal bench for the western district of Texas was expressed in a letter received from Representative Garner Tuesday by District Clerk Hart McCormick.

McCormick had telegraphed Representative Garner to seek his support for the appointment of Judge McCrory to succeed Judge West when the latter retires next November.

Hoover Lifts Embargo On Arms to Brazil

WASHINGTON, March 3. (AP)—President Hoover has revoked the embargo against shipment of arms to Brazil.

At the request of the Brazilian government, which represented that tranquility existed in that country, the chief executive issued a proclamation suspending the arms embargo.

The embargo was instituted last October.

Fourth Deep Oil Test Scheduled in Marion

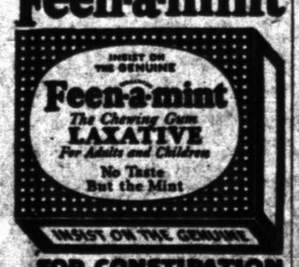

JEFFERSON, Texas, March 3. (AP)—Marion county today was assured its fourth deep test when the Eden Oil company announced it had made location in the R. Hazelwood survey two miles east of Jefferson on a tract owned by the Deware estate. Derrick material was being hauled today and it was announced that drilling would start March 25.

Richard Bergen of Oldham county, Ky., raised a litter of pigs to weight 2,723 pounds when 165 days old.

Murray Again Victorious When Senate Passes Fraternity Tax

(UP)—Governor W. H. Murray won a victory in the senate late today when that body passed the Ballard-Nicholas fraternity tax bill. The vote was 23 to 17.

The bill goes to the house, dominated by administration leaders, before becoming law. All fraternal property except that used exclusively for benevolent purposes will be taxed under provisions of the bill.

Passage of the bill which has been contested bitterly for several weeks, was considered the greatest victory Murray has scored in the present session.

Another administration measure, a bill preventing public utilities from engaging in sale of merchandise, also was passed by the senate late today. The vote was 35 to 4.

Heretofore the senate consistently has blocked measures sponsored by Gov. W. H. Murray.

The governor sent his measure levying a tax of one-twentieth of one per cent of the total value of oil produced in the state to the legislature today. The revenue will be used to pay state-appointed oil umpires.

The house set for special consideration at 11 a. m. tomorrow the $10,310,845.50 institutional appropriation bill which was reported out of the house appropriations committee favorably. The departmental appropriation bill of $8,027,000, also before the house, probably will suffer drastic vetoing with the institutional bill by Murray. He expressed disapproval with many items in the two measures.

The McDougal net income corporation tax bill was reported favorably by the house venue and taxation committee. The bill, one of the most important administration measures of the session, was placed on general order calendar of the house.

REPORT RAPS DAVIS' FUNDS

Huge Expenditures Bared By Committee

WASHINGTON, March 3. (US)—Expenditure of $622,000 on the primary campaign of Senator James J. Davis, Republican, of Pennsylvania, was denounced as "inimical to the public interest" in the Nye committee report to the senate today.

The report conceded there was nothing reflecting on the honor or integrity of Davis and contained no suggestion of a senate censure.

The committee promised to submit a general report later, covering its entire probe into senatorial expenditures, in which legislation will be recommended to curb excessive outlays in the future.

The majority report was signed by Chairman Nye and Senators Dill, Democrat, of Washington, Wagner, Democrat, of New York and Dale, Republican, of Vermont.

A minority report filed by Senator Patterson, Republican, of New Jersey said there was no evidence to adversely affect Davis' right to a senate seat.

In summarizing expenses, the majority report said a total of $1,117,649 was spent for the Brown-Davis ticket in the primary and the Republican ticket in the election. The report added:

"Your committee is impressed by the size of these aggregate expenditures even when due regard is given to the area and population of the state of Pennsylvania. It regards the expenditure of $622,000 as excessive and inimical to the public interest, whether such sum is expended on behalf of one candidate or a group of candidates in any primary election.

"Such a condition can not be permitted to continue unchallenged without the most serious consequences to the nation."

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up a stubborn, lingering cough. It takes but a moment to prepare and costs little, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe and heal the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germladen phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of distressing coughs, chest colds, and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Lovely Bridge Luncheon Honors Dallas Visitor

In a setting of green and white that noted the colors of St. Patrick's day and made the house lovely as spring, Mrs. Carroll Maxwell entertained Mrs. J. A. McPhail Jr., of Dallas, who is the guest of her mother in this city, with a lovely bridge luncheon at her home on Garfield Tuesday. Luncheon was served at the bridge tables which were covered with green and white place cards and centers of white hyacinths and ferns stressing the lovely motif. The entire house was filled with spring blossoms.

Following the delightful luncheon, bridge was played with the pretty scores, tallies and pencils marking the same motif.

In the games, Mrs. Ewing Watkins was fortunate in the high score and received a handsome vase in black and gold; Mrs. Thorton Lomax Jr., was winner of low and was presented with a pair of twin plaques while the honor guest received a handsome set of crystal glasses.

The guest list included with the honoree, Mrs. J. A. McPhail Jr., Mesdames Frank Wood, Darrold Kahn, Dan Ed Whatley, Don Taylor, Wm. Hogue of Pampa, Arnold Cureton, Milburn Nutt, George Dwyer, T. G. Lomax, Ewing Watkins, Thornton Lomax Jr., Misses Dorothy Knight and Frances Lomax and the charming hostess.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

Last Saturday I drove down an alley and turned in a parking space owned by the Wichita Falls Battery company and stopped to gaze at a vehicle in the corner. An old gray hearse stood there with the rags of its once stately grandeur hanging about it.

The large back wheels, the small front ones, the high seat where the white-gloved, black-garbed driver once sat to guide a pair of horses on a sad journey—all were there. The curtains that once upon a time half hid the wreaths of flowers were hanging in rags.

The hearse was used, we heard, for 14 years in Petrolia. Many a sturdy pioneer, many a tired woman, many a child took the last ride in that old gray hearse.

Almost invariably motors take the dead to their graves now. It seemed heartless at first to hurry them to the burial place; it was a long time before people became adjusted to the change from the slow funeral pace. But it is better so; why prolong hours that are heartbreaking?

You who have followed your loved ones; who perhaps have ridden in one of the old-time hacks with a little white casket, know the agony of those hours. Death is irrevocable; the sooner those left become adjusted to life again, the better.

Until a man dies, he has never altogether lost his last chance. Yet it seems sometime as if life can be more cruel than death.

In Walter Winchell's Tuesday morning column in the Record News he wrote of a man who has been dead to fame for many years. Winchell professes flippant cynicisms, but writes some touching truths. "I do wish they'd give Fatty Arbuckle a break," he said, then went on to state that Arbuckle was an able director in Hollywood under an assumed name and in casting his pictures, he gave the "old timers" a chance to make a little money.

"They say he hasn't smiled in years," said Winchell, then states in flat words that it's the women's clubs and civic organizations that force Arbuckle to get by in a small way with a "mask" on.

So many crimes are committed when groups of thoughtless people are intoxicated. And sometimes the criminals have another chance and sometimes society denies it.

It was Eddie Guest who wrote a story about no man living his own life. No man's life belongs to him alone. When we are children we look forward to the time when we can be our own "bosses," and when we are grown we have to live so that our lives will not hurt our dear ones.

A man cannot think himself a free man and get recklessly drunk if he is a man with anyone dependent on him. How does he know that his wife and children will not be suffering for his vaunted freedom?

There must be times in every person's life when he wishes he had not done some certain thing; that he might live an hour over again. Yet the narrow of mind and the set of face will condemn one who has sinned. He may try again, but, they would say, let him try away from decent people.

Tolerance is the noblest of all the virtues.

Demonstration Club Enters County Contest

Miss Ethel Louise Webb gave an interesting lecture on how to feed a family when members of the Westmoreland Home Demonstration club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. C. W. Hulland. She presented a chart showing essentials of an adequate diet and discussed the curative and preventive effects of certain foods.

'Poor but Happy' Wife Disagrees With Miss Dix

Dear Miss Dix—May one who enjoys your column a great deal disagree with you on the importance of the financial side of marriage? My husband and I are both college bred. Before our marriage over a year ago we were each making about $40 a week in a large city. On our marriage we moved to a smaller place, I went to housekeeping and he took a job with a good future, but that pays only $30 a week. We have never regretted this for a moment. We are expecting a baby, to be paid for, I must admit, from money saved before our marriage and not spent on a radio or a car or any of the other luxuries that most people think they need. Of course, we have to look at every nickel as though we never expected to have another one, but we have each other, and we are convinced that if you have enough money for the bare necessities of life and have, in addition, youth, health and love you are rich beyond the wildest dreams of avarice.

What it comes down to is this: Would you rather have real cream in your lonely coffee or share skimmed milk with the one you love best? This decision should not be difficult to any one with a modicum of backbone. Of course, I do not advise this for the very young. They have not yet had sufficient good times to realize that while fun is all right, it offers no permanent satisfaction.

But for those over 25 I am convinced that it is possible to be happy though married in most parts of the United States, not the large cities, on from $30 to $35 a week. Life is a gamble anyway, so why not gamble on the thing that is best worth while? So we say, if you are sure it is love and you can resist the lure of modern advertising—go ahead.

—POOR BUT HAPPY.

Answer—I think this is one of the most heartening letters that I have ever received, because it shows that there are still left in the world young people who have the ability to love greatly and to risk all for love and who can find such happiness in each other's society that they can dispense with outside amusement.

There are not many such nowadays, when we have mostly got so soft with easy living that luxuries have become necessities and when young people may be willing to die for each other, but are not willing to live on a lower scale than that to which they have been accustomed, in order to be together.

Only a few months ago there was published in this column the letter of a young man who wrote me that he and his wife dearly loved each other, but they were going to part and get a divorce because on his salary alone they could not keep an automobile. He said that in his community no married woman could get a job, but that if his wife was single she could go back to her old position, so they were going to break up their home and separate and she was going back to her family to live and he to his, and on the money thus saved he was going to buy a nice little car and expected to be happy again and be able to show his ex-wife a good time.

It is because most young people are like this latter couple and not like my correspondent and her husband that I stress the importance of their considering the financial side of marriage before they enter into it. For it is true that there is not much love that is strong enough to stand the strain of daily and hourly sacrifices of tastes and habits. It is when most young husbands and wives begin to feel the pinch of poverty, when they have to do without cars and radios and good clothes and amusements, when the wife gets shabby and has to pass up the beauty shop and the husband gets seedy and has to push the perambulator instead of playing golf that love goes into the discard and they decide that marriage is not worth the price.

To be happy though married, though poor, takes more love than they posses, and it takes more character than they have. For the reason they are so dependent on material things is that they have no resources within themselves. They are like babies who have to be amused with glittering toys.

Another factor also enters into whether it is safe for a couple to marry on a shoestring and that is the woman's ability to manage and her efficiency in domestic work. That is a matter of nature and of training. Even love cannot turn a woman into a good cook and penny pincher. For among my acquaintances is a brilliant and intelligent woman who fairly worships her husband and who works herself to a frazzle trying to make things go, but on an income that should be ample they are always pinched for money and harassed by debts.

They are exceptions to all rules, and without doubt when a man and woman love each other enough to be all-in-all to each other they can get along and be happy with very little money, but, taking it by and large, most young couples will find it safets to wait to marry until they have some adequate defense against the wolf at the door.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I am married to a mother's boy. Whenever we quarrel he goes to his mother and tells her his troubles. She listens to his story, but never listens to mine. He used to leave me for weeks at a time, but now he comes home, and I love him so much I forgive him. What would you advise me to do in order to make him change?

—MRS. R. L.

Answer—If he only leaves home when you quarrel, the obvious remedy would be to cut out the quarrels. Suppose you try that for a while. It takes two to make a family fight, you know, and if you refuse to hit back he will think he has won the battle and gurgle with delight over his triumph.

But what a poor, childish creature he must be, to be always running home to mother, a tattle tale complaining of his wife! I should think you would tell him to stay with his mother and let her baby him.

And if the mother had a grain of sense she wouldn't sympathize with him and "poor boy" him. She would tell him that if he had a bit of manliness about him he wouldn't tell even his mother about his wife's faults and instead of running away from the responsibilities of marriage he would brace himself up to meet them with courage and dignity instead of sniveling over them like a little boy.

BECAUSE Kotex absorbs by a scientific method, it is safer than ordinary sanitary protection. Gen. Brown Recommends Unchanged Flood Plan

WASHINGTON, March 3. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Lytle Brown, chief of army engineers, today recommended to the house flood control committee that the general flood control plan for the Mississippi river be not materially changed.

In a report to the committee on proposals to modify the Jadwin plan, the engineering chief said he was opposed to adopting the reservoir system of flood control because it would be too expensive.

He estimated it would cost $400,000,000 for a reservoir system to control a flood like that in 1927 and that it would cost a billion dollars for a reservoir system to take care of a maximum flood on the Mississippi.

Telephone Links Cousins After 51 Years of Search

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., March 3.—J. N. Pipes had the pleasure of talking over long distance Saturday night to a cousin at White Deer, Texas, for whom he had been searching ever since he came here in 1901. "The voice sounded as natural as when we last met in Kentucky, 51 years ago," said Pipes, speaking of the incident. Pipes was then 16 years of age.

Colonel Pipes, he is familiary known, bought a relinquishment west of Manitou in 1901 on which he lived until he lost his eyesight nearly four years ago. Up to that time he prospered, buying several blocks of land in old Thacker townsite, adjoining his farm, in addition to a farm near Amherst, Texas. In spite of the fact that he has spent $4,000 trying to restore his eyesight he is one of our few citizens who has never mortgaged any of his places and is still out of debt.

While shingling his residence on a hot afternoon the intense heat and light caused him to go blind almost instantly, and he since had to learn to get about without the use of his eyes. He can now find his way to the courthouse, from his room in Frederick, about as readily as many people who have the full use of their eyes.

Obedient Dice
Racketeering Genius
Companionate Marriage
A British Idea

By EMILE GAUVREAU

A new gambling device, electrified dice, by the use of which taxi drivers are relieved of hundreds of dollars, has been uncovered in a room above a garage in New York. A cast-iron plate connected to wires concealed in the table leg and magnetized at will makes the ivory bones answer any prayer.

It has often been said that the genius which goes into the plans, schemes and achievements of racketeers, if turned to good use, would make some of them notable inventors and first citizens of the land. But perhaps racketeers do not aspire to such honors. To be "boss" of a district, to be feared as a killer, to be pointed out by frightened admirers as the "toughest guy in town," or to go by such uneuphonious appellations as Crazy Butch, Dopey Benny, Kid Dropper, Joe the Greaser is a much more coveted distinction for them.

Legs Diamond and Scarface Capone are both men of means. They could retire comfortably and lead peaceful lives. But there would be no "honor" in such retirement. They would lose the "respect" of their disciples and rivals. Evidently, it is something to be "king," even over criminals.

The Bishop of London, who is so ready to blame the United States for "insidious teachings" in marital doctrines, especially as they concern companionate marriage, might be reminded that companionate marriage is not an American article at all, but according to Professor Westermarck, of the University of London, imported from the British Isles, where the custom prevailed even as far back as the Reformation.

In Scotland they practiced "handfasting." At the public fairs "men selected companions with whom they lived for a year. At the end of this period both parties were accounted free; they might either unite in marriage or live singly." A similar custom existed in Ireland, in a rude form; and the Welsh also, according to an authority of the times, did not marry until they had tried, by previous cohabitation, the disposition and adaptability of the person with whom they were engaged.

Sociologists find nothing insidious in companionate marriages, if intelligently and honorably carried out. But they see much that is insidious in our present marriage practices and divorce. A couple can sin just as soon in holy wedlock as in companionate marriage. But the whole question of sin remains a debatable one. Marriage is holy only when it is founded on love and serves society. Unfortunately that cannot be said of most marriages today.

The death of Mme. Melba in Melbourne, Australia, recalls not only a great singer but a memorable era.

Few names in operatic history have exerted a more enduring fascination over the minds of the people than that of Nellie Melba. The immortal Patti said that Melba was the only diva who had the right to assume her mantle. For over 20 years, beginning with the late 80's, she maintained her supremacy, undisputed and uninterrupted, as the foremost living operatic soprano. Her "Lucia" and "Rigoletto" were triumphs far beyond those now being scored by Lily Pons.

Melba enjoyed to the end the admiration and respect of the elect the world over. She was the toast of a dozen nations. The memory of her liquid voice is still cherished by thousands who heard her in the mauve decade.

Twin liners have been named after Hoover and Coolidge. And we'll wager Hoover wishes he were in Cal's boat.

A publishing house soon to open in New York will issue books without the names of the authors. This undoubtedly will discourage writers contemplating racy biographies of the great.

Too Quick a Diagnosis

ONE of two things is generally wrong with discussions of the nation's business situation. Either it is taken for granted that the country has gone to the dogs and will never be able to lift its head from the pillow again, or it is assumed that everything is really all right and that we need only a little bit of Pollyanna gladness and hope to be as prosperous and happy as we ever were.

Recovery will come, of course—will come, probably, before we have stopped wailing about hard times. Sooner or later we shall be more prosperous and busy than we were in 1928 and 1929, and the time may not be as far off as we suppose.

On the other hand, there is no sense in trying to pretend that there is nothing the matter with us except a pessimistic frame of mind. The bread lines have been real enough; the Red Cross and other relief organizations have been busy enough. There has been plenty of suffering, and one must be a simpleton to deny it.

However, it is possible to strike a happy medium in appraising the situation.

In the current Magazine of Wall Street, Theodore Knappen reviews things and finds that while conditions are bad enough, 1930 has not by any means been a total loss.

For example, he points out that the brunt of the business depression fell on the steel, construction and automobile industries. But even so, these industries were better off than in 1920.

Similarly, the total volume of manufactures in America in 1930 was far above the total for 1920. There was only a slight drop in electric power output from 1929. The gasoline consumption for 1930 was the largest in American history. Department store sales in 1930 equaled those of 1929 in volume, and were only slightly below them in value. Chain store sales increased in volume, and fell off in value only fractionally.

Nor is that all. Savings banks deposits gained during 1930. The aggregate of interest and dividend payments on securities was considerably ahead of that of 1929. Capital issues of domestic securities were larger than in any previous years except 1928 and 1929.

What does all of this mean? Why, obviously, that the country is in better health than we have supposed. This is not to say that there has not been much suffering. It is not to say that there has not been a great deal of unemployment, a great deal of hunger, a great deal of discouragement. But it does mean that the country is on a very sound basis for a healthy trade revival—which can hardly be postponed much longer.

Appreciating the Independent Refiner

THE thought that received the most emphasis at the annual meeting of the North Texas Oil Men's association Saturday night was that the existence of the independent oil producer is dependent upon the preservation of the independent oil refiner. It is a realization that is more and more being brought home to the oil producers of North Texas.

When the major companies were buying oil freely several years ago the independent refiners were not given a great deal of consideration by the independent producers but now that these major companies are more and more acquiring a larger share of the oil production of the country, having their own supply of crude they are requiring less from the independent producer whose importance in the oil industry is constantly shrinking, and who would fade out of the picture in many district except for the market and the competition afforded by the independent refiners.

The independent refiners in turn, as the major marketing companies are more and more increasing the output of their refineries, are more and more dependent upon the few independently owned filling stations.

And the independent filling station is rapidly being eliminated as an important factor in the retailing of gasoline either by purchase by the big companies or through the medium of exclusive contracts for the sale of the products of one or the other of the larger companies.

Two groups in the world's oil industry are now fighting for the control of the American market through the ownership and control of the retail filling stations of the country. During the past year these two groups have added tens of thousands of filling stations under their control. They seem even to threaten the markets of other major but less powerful companies.

Wichita Falls has a large interest in the preservation of the independent oil producer and the independent oil refiner for if they were taken away our very sinew and strength as an industrial and commercial center would be taken from us.

Out of their mutual need and dependence may come a greater mutuality of action which is the hope for the preservation of both.

Scientists Work on Paralysis Causes

SAN FRANCISCO, March 3.(UP)—Science was a step nearer the conquest of infantile paralysis today as the result of a discovery by technicians at the Hooper Foundation laboratories, University of California.

Experiments by Dr. Karl F. Meyer and Miss B. F. Howitt, indicate they said, that the virus that causes the disease is chemical rather than living.

This, it was explained, would indicate that the disease is caused by poison, not a germ.

"As a corollary," Dr. Meyer said, "it would appear probable that the virus may be handled as a chemical, which would simplify study."

Negro Reindicted After Flaw Dismisses Case

DALLAS, March 3. (AP)—Ardell Landers, negro, whose trial for robbery with firearms was halted yesterday because of a fault in the indictment, was reindicted today.

Landers originally received a death sentence for shooting and killing Joe Piccola during the holdup of a grocery. The case was reversed because he had been convicted on a count of the indictment failing to specify "murder with malice." It was then decided to try him for robbery with firearms and ask the death penalty.

THE LOVELY LIAR : BY ROB EDEN

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Deserted by Ted Allison on the eve of their elopement, Poppy Prior flees to New York. Her mother, who thinks she is married, inserts an announcement in the paper. Poppy is arrested for the theft of a bracelet, belonging to Celia Nixson, which she found on the train and considered of no value. Fearful that her mother may hear of her arrest, Poppy lies about her home town under the cross-questioning. Sympathetic Kevin Wallace, friend of Celia, believes Poppy innocent, though she refuses to disclose anything to him, and tells her to call on him if she needs help. Committed to a detention home, Poppy gets away and goes to Wallace for help. He sends her to Jane Rochester, an art student and friend of his. Poppy confides her story to Jane, who gets her a job as fashion model at Randolph's under the name of Poppy Rochester. The assistant buyer likes Poppy's work and selects her to model some expensive gowns for an important customer, Celia Nixson. Celia has Poppy arrested and sent back to the Minnie Bascum home. But she doesn't stay long. Kevin has learned that Poppy was graduating from high school the night Miss Nixson's jewels were taken. He establishes her innocence and Poppy is allowed to return to New York. Celia Nixson rushes up to her apartment to apologize. Afraid that Poppy will sue for false arrest Celia's father offers her a check but is repulsed. Eager to do something to make amends Celia begs Poppy to come to dinner with them the next evening. Poppy goes in order to see Kevin again but finds her evening spoiled by gossip of his devotion to Celia.

Now Go on With the Story
CHAPTER XLIII

Even after dinner, sitting in the drawing room, the gossip went on about Celia and Kevin. Poppy had to listen. Because she was a newcomer everybody thought she ought to know.

"I'm positive they're engaged," a small, elegant product of a finishing school gushed. "Celia's mad about him. Awfully mum, though, when you ask her. Just smiles wisely. And look at Kevin—no eyes for anybody but Celia. Won't give the rest of us a tumble. I wonder what it'll be like, Celia marrying somebody who works, for Kevin won't stop working after they're married. He's the kind who will work all the harder. She's done nothing but play all the time. I wonder what it feels like to work?"

The girl was young and pretty, with discontented eyes, and a drooping, petulant mouth. She was smoking a cigaret from a long amber and gold holder. While she was talking Poppy looked around for Kevin and Celia, but couldn't find them. Half an hour later when she was dancing with Wendell Roche they were still missing.

Poppy felt lonely and forsaken. She tried to be nice to this boy Celia had invited for her, and succeeded because she was forcing herself to. Tried to laugh when her heart was a stone, and her mind followed Kevin and Celia around, wondering where they were and what they were doing.

Why did it hurt so to have people talk about Kevin and Celia? Talk about them as if they belonged to each other, as if there were no doubt. . . . The ache in her heart spread to her body. She didn't hear what Roche was saying to her, but answered him all the same.

Kevin was kissing Celia—as he had kissed her. Kissing her. He had the right. Wasn't he going to marry her? No wonder he had said that night that they shouldn't see each other again. No wonder, when he loved Celia so, when he was going to marry her. . . .

That night at the inn, when she had asked Kevin if he liked Celia, he said he didn't know. But he knew now, because on the plane to Ashland, he had said he was in love.

What right had she, Poppy Prior, to question his love? Torture herself because he loved Celia? Yet she was torturing herself. He knew better than she, when he said they shouldn't see each other. He was wiser. He had guessed she loved him, and was doing the best thing for her. She couldn't see him again, feeling like this, knowing all the while how much she loved him. Knowing, too, that he didn't want her, that he wanted Celia.

Why had she come, anyway? To see Kevin, of course, and find out if he really loved Celia. Well, she knew now. She wasn't blind. He did love Celia.

Then they came in from the roof garden, Celia with a light cloak on her shoulders, her arm in Kevin's, her lips laughing and her eyes full of love for him. Kevin seemed very grave, as he took the girl in his arms and started to dance. After the dance, Poppy saw him standing alone, and walked quickly over to him.

Dancing With Kevin

"I've been waiting all evening to thank you, Kevin." His name was sweet and bitter, too, on her lips. "For what?" His eyes met hers for a second, then turned away.

"For managing things so beautifully, and so secretly—" she choked. She couldn't say more. If he would only be his old self. His old understanding self. He was a different person tonight. Someone she didn't know, standing there, looking at her coldly, distantly.

"I could have done it long before, Poppy, if you had told me the truth. I would have done it before the trip to Ashland, but I was afraid of detectives snooping around before our trip there. Afraid they might find out where you were. I'm sorry you had to go to the home again." There he was more human! More like the Kevin Wallace she knew. "Thanks, too, for being so generous with Celia. It was kind of you to come tonight—"

Why didn't she tell him she came to see him, not to please Celia?

"Celia was pleased—she wants to do something for you. She owes you a lot, Poppy."

"I don't want anything." She was going to say, "from her," but she didn't.

"Just as you say. Shall we dance?"

His arms were about her and she was dizzy with joy. Strange arms, though. Arms that were stiff and unyielding . . . that held her far away, when she wanted to be held close to his heart.

His arms were around her and she was dizzy with joy. Strange arms, though. Arms that were stiff and unyielding. Arms that held her far away, when she wanted to be held close—to his heart.

"I phoned you to thank you—" she murmured.

"Yes, I got the message when I came back from Atlantic City tonight. And Poppy, I got the most peculiar letter from you today. Was it smuggled out of the home?"

Ginger's letter! Then Ginger had succeeded in running away! If she hadn't, Kevin never would have received the letter.

"We're going to the Silver Slipper!" Celia's voice broke in on them. "Right away!"

Poppy followed the girls out of the drawing room, and back to the room where she had left her cloak. She didn't want to go to a night club now. She wanted to go home. Suppose she slipped away? Kevin didn't care. Celia didn't care. She had to tell Celia, though. She found her in the hall, talking to one of the maids.

"I—think I'd better go on home if you don't mind. I have to get to work in the morning, and it's late now—" As good an excuse as any.

"Oh, I'm sorry. Come in here and talk to me before you go." Celia put an arm around her shoulder and drew her through one of the corridors into a room that was like that of a medieval princess. Soft, white bearskin rugs on the floor, a large low bed covered with a spread of yellowish-white ermine, plain gray nun-like walls, two enormous flickering candles framing a stained glass window. Celia's bedroom—this vast chamber, with its dais bed and the great chest at the foot.

"I'm so glad you came, and I want you to come again. I'll call you soon. Now, isn't there something I can do? Money or clothes, though, arms that were stiff and unyielding. Arms that held her far away, when she wanted to be held close—to his heart.

A.—Basically, he must be an excellent cook. Added to this, he must have ingenuity and the ability to create novelties. He must add to the science of cooking through constant experimentation.

Q.—What was the native costume of Ireland in the early days?—J. C. H.

A.—"Costumes Throughout the Ages" says: "Since Elizabethan days the dress of the Irish has had little to distinguish it from that worn in England, but before the time of that queen who, like Henry VIII, made many laws pertaining to the clothing of her subjects, Irishmen wore kilts similar to those of the Scotchman, accompanied by leggings laced in by string tipped with bronze, shoes of brown leather and a plaited linen shirt. Over all was a sleeveless loose cloak that was long and made of bright colored wool. Some wore a fitted coat much like the present-day frock coat with tight sleeves, no collar and a broad girdle at the waist. . . . The women wore a linen undergarment and over this long gowns of the same material, dyed saffron, or a costly fabric imported from the continent. Their long capes had hoods attached. In jewelry, they wore bracelets, pins, brooches, rings and torques about their necks. Today, modern continental dress is found in all parts of Ireland, all traces of the old dress having disappeared."

Q.—What is the business of a church court in reference to social reform?—M. K.

A.—Ecclesiastical courts meet to determine matters of church polity and also the action of the church in conformity with its declaration of principles in regared to social or spiritual matters such as the stand of the church upon marriage, birth control, prohibition, child welfare, education, confederation and many other church principles.

Q.—Is the Star Spangled Banner our national anthem?—H. W.

A.—The Star Spangled Banner has never been recognized as the national anthem of the United States. Congress, as late as 1914, refused to declare so by resolution. Its only official recognition occurred nearly a hundred years after it was written, when it was formally ordered to be played in the army and navy on occasions of ceremony. Its standing is undisputed in other lands, and whenever America is honored, this air is played. No song has ever been legally recognized as the national anthem of the United States.

··Blending makes it better

IN the test kitchen of a great soup maker, the gifted master-chef creates the blend of ingredients to produce the perfect soup. In a scent-laden room in a corner of France an expert blender of perfume invokes his highest genius that our sense of smell may be gratified. In a work-room fragrant with the aroma of many types of coffee beans, a highly-paid specialist concentrates his energies that we may be provided with a coffee blend to please our palates. Whether it's soup or soap, tobacco or tea, music or mustard... blending is vital to the production of the best of each. Equally as vital, if not first in importance, is the knowledge and genius of the blender. He must know how.

The best gasoline, too, is blended. In the processes of a modern refinery three types of gasoline are produced. They are, Natural Gasoline, Straight-run Gasoline, and Cracked Gasoline. Each possesses certain desirable qualities necessary for perfect motor operation... but... no one of them possesses all these wanted characteristics.

So Conoco Gasoline is a blend of the three. There is Natural Gasoline, to give quick starting. There is Straight-run Gasoline, to give power and long-mileage. There is Cracked Gasoline, with its desirable anti-knock quality. Just as carefully as the perfume blender at his delicate task, Conoco refiners have developed their balanced blend of these three ingredients. Theirs is the gift of knowing how to merge the qualities of the three gasolines to create a balanced, triple-test fuel. One brand of coffee outsells all others because of the expertness of its blender. And so, with Conoco Balanced-Blend Gasoline, the skill of the blender accounts for the popularity of the product. Stop today at the sign of the Conoco Red Triangle and have your gas tank filled with this better motor fuel.

BANKS GAIN BY MERGERS

in the past three years, there being only eight rural closures in the state over that period.

C. Graves Shull, Oklahoma bank commissioner, said the psychology in reference to banks was good, with banks as a whole in more solvent condition than at any time in the last 10 years. He said elimination by mergers will mean the banks will draw from a larger territory and make bigger profits.

W. Koeneke, Kansas bank commissioner said "Mergers and consolidations are being encouraged wherever practical" and predicted there would be a larger number combined in 1931 than last year. He said Kansas banks were in a much stronger position at this time than they were 15 months ago.

Banks Stronger

J. E. Roberts, deputy banking commissioner of Texas, said state banks were stronger than at any other time in the past 10 years. R. H. Collier, chief national bank examiner for the 11th reserve bank district, pointed out that the 32 consolidations affecting national institutions did not indicate that those involved were in difficulties but that the mergers came about from the thought such combinations would be good business.

Lawrence Tamme, state bank examiner for New Mexico, said: "There were no bank suspensions in New Mexico during 1930. State banks maintained an unusually liquid condition and have sufficient credit available to meet all legitimate demands. The capital position of banks is being maintained at a satisfactory ratio and the general condition is highly satisfactory.

"Two mergers were effected in 1930 as strengthening moves and two more mergers now are in prospect which are encouraged to correct local 'overbanked' conditions."

were carrying on a campaign to make the people believe the country is prosperous. To support his argument he cited a recently published article by Senator Fess of Ohio, chairman of the Republican national committee.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, in another floor speech, said:

"This is no time to be setting up straw men relating to the wet and dry issue, to religious or to racial issue, when men and women are starving."

Edward P. Costigan, senator-elect from Colorado, asserted in a public statement a canvass of the judgment of Democratic leaders in the North, East, South and West disclosed "overwhelming support for the far-sighted view that the liquor question in America must not at this time be converted into a partisan issue by the Democratic national committee.

"A different decision promises party disaster," he warned.

Senator Morrison of North Carolina repeated the Thursday meeting should steer clear of prohibition discussion.

Raskob said:

"I have been importuned on all sides to make some statement regarding the matters to be discussed at our national committee meeting.

"Manifestly it would be very unfair and most discourteous to our committee members to discuss the business of the meeting itself.

"Therefore I can only reiterate what the call for the meeting stated, namely, that it is called for the purpose of reporting our accomplishments since the last meeting, discussing future policies and finances."

Victim of Oil Fire at Graham Brought Here

B. F. Girard was brought Tuesday night to the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital from Graham for treatment of burns received in an oil well fire near Graham last week which cost two men their lives.

Girard, an employe of the Texas Pipe Line company, was near the well when it came in and caught fire. He received severe burns as he ran through the fire to make his escape. He has been receiving treatment at a Graham hospital since the accident. His condition was reported serious by hospital attendants here.

case anything happens," the diary says.

"Feb. 28: Went to Villa Desti. We had two old fashioned cocktails. At 135 West 45. Ye gods, nothing but gangsters there. About 4 or 5 a. m., we left 135 West 45, went across street to girl's apartment Palace hotel. Harrowing experience. I was nearly killed. Went down fire escape to escape more. Police met me and took in lobby . . . . Officer Tempra gave me $1 for taxi. I went 851 West End. Zeno about 10:15. Saturday a. m. Doctor came. Ye gods, concussion of brain, two broken ribs, bruises from head to foot. 851 West End terrible place—ran into fireman."

Both Unemployed

Doman said he met Miss Gordon in 1929 through a flirtation and introduced her to Zeno. They are both out of a job now, but Doman said he formerly was a salesman.

The woman's body found last week in a bronx gully with a clothes line tight about the neck, was saved from potters field today by her brother, Pierre Franklin of Montreal, who said he would arrange a funeral.

Police were inclined today to abandon the theory Miss Gordon was killed by underworldlings seeking to silence her, but District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin said he had not given up the theory. He enthusiastically proclaimed things were "beginning to break."

"Things are beginning to break, fellows," he called to reporters, "we can see a little bit ahead now."

A short time later he dashed out and away on being informed a small coupe, for which the city was combed, had been found near Central park.

He failed to reveal what the coupe had to do with Miss Gordon, vice graft tipster and alleged blackmail artist, whose garroted body was tossed last week from a speeding automobile into a Bronx thicket.

Soon after the coupe was found its owner, Harold Doman, was taken to McLaughlin's office to be questioned about his relations with Miss Gordon.

British Labor Withdraws Trades Disputes Bill

LONDON, March 3. (US)—The trades disputes bill, "pet" measure of the Labor government which was wrecked by a Liberal amendment in committee last week, today was withdrawn from the labor program. When faced with its defeat, the government had only two courses—withdraw the bill or resign. Premier MacDonald, rather than resign now, prefers a test of strength in the forthcoming budget debate.

The Lovely Liar

I've loads, you know, and you needn't hesitate to ask."

"Nothing."

"You're a queer girl—"

What would Celia say if she knew that the only thing Poppy wanted was Kevin? Would she offer to give him up as easily as she had her money, her clothes? Something Celia had, she wanted. Kevin. Something she dare not ask for.

Kevin's new book lying on the chest at the foot of the bed. "Michael Standish." The gaudy jacket, all blue and red and gray on the dark wood of the chest. Poppy knew it was recently out, but hadn't seen a copy yet. Picking it up idly, she turned over the leaves. Her eyes fell on the fly leaf. "Celia—who taught me many things." The swift flow of letters. The hand Poppy knew so well. No signature, just the words which meant so much to Poppy and yet nothing at all.

"Celia—who taught me many things."

What things? Love? Certainly, love. Didn't Kevin love Celia?

"Kevin's new book—just out today," Celia said proudly. With hands that were not so steady Poppy laid the book where she had found it. She knew she would always remember Celia's luxurious room just the way she had found it. The candles lighted, tall fat candles, guttering in the draft, the chest with Kevin's book on it.

She went home in Celia's car, alone, knowing as she went that she never would come back to the Nixson's apartment again. Wishing all the while she hadn't come in the first place. It had been a terrible evening for her. Too much. A glorious evening for Celia. Could not you look at her and know how pleased she was, know how much she loved Kevin? By the look in her eyes, by her gay, excited laugh when he was near her. . . .

From now on, Poppy thought wearily, she'd have to try to forget Kevin. There was no hope for her. There never had been any hope. Kevin had pitied her, felt sorry for her. Even when he had kissed her he was sorry. She hadn't even had a chance to say good-bye to him. When she had come out in the lobby with Celia, the others were downstairs, Kevin with them.

Celia's world was not hers.

The girl at the phones called her back as she started for the automatic elevator.

"A special delivery letter for you."

Poppy took it and thanked her. From Grace. Important it must be. Were they worried? No, they couldn't be because she had wired last night when she had come in from the home.

But before she read the letter, when she reached the apartment, she took down the framed sketch of Kevin from the wall, and carefully put it in a drawer. If she were going to forget him, she could not be reminded of him constantly by his likeness. Jane might be right after all about Kevin. He had been much like a monk this evening, his eyes somber, his lips drawn into a thin line.

Jane was right about so many things. She had been right about Ted Allison. She—

Ted Allison. Poppy slit open the letter that was addressed to Mrs. Theodore Allison, and took out the enclosure in her sister's school girlish hand writing.

Mrs. Theodore Allison. . . .

SENATE BACKS HOOVER'S VETO

Objections to Shoals Bill Kill Measure

portance" because inquiry had revealed no responsible concerns would offer bids under its provisions, President Hoover said the bill proposed government manufacture of fertilizer as well as power production.

"I am firmly opposed to the government entering into any business the major purpose of which is competition with our citizens," the president said.

"This bill raises one of the important issues confronting our people. That is squarely the issue of federal government ownership and operation of power and manufacturing business, not as a minor by-product but as a major purpose."

Power Regulation

"Involved in this question is the agitation against the conduct of the power industry. The power problem is not to be solved by the federal government going into the power business, nor is it to be solved by the project in this bill.

"The remedy for abuses in the conduct of that industry lies in regulation and not by federal government entering upon the business itself."

Debate was opened on the veto tonight by Senator Black, Democrat, Alabama, who said the president in his message attempted to mislead the country. He said thousands of southerners had voted for Mr. Hoover in 1928 because they had been led to believe he would sign such a bill.

The roll call follows:

To override the veto:

Republicans—Blaine, Borah, Capper, Cutting, Frazier, Hatfield, Howell, Johnson, Jones, LaFollette, McNary, Norbeck, Norris, Nye, Robinson of Indiana, and Steiwer—16.

Democrats: Ashurst, Barkeley, Black, Bratton, Brock, Broussard, Bulkley, Caraway, Connally, Copeland, Dill, Fletcher, George, Glass, Harris, Harrison, Hayden, Kendrick, McGill, McKellar, Pittman, Robinson of Arkansas; Sheppard, Smith, Stephens, Swanson, Thomas of Oklahoma; Trammell, Wagner, Walsh of Montana; Wheeler and Williamson—32.

Farmer Labor—Shipstead—1.

Total to override 49.

To sustain veto:

Democrats—Ransdell, Steck and Tydings—3.

Republicans—Bingham, Carey, Dale, Davis, Deneen, Fess, Gillett, Glenn, Goff, Goldsborough, Gould, Hale, Hastings, Herbert, Kean, Keyes, Metcalf, Morrow, Moses, Oddie, Partridge, Patterson, Phipps, Reed, Shortridge, Smoot, Thomas of Idaho, Townsend, Vandenberg, Walcott, and Watson—31.

Next Generation Holds Settlement of Prohibition

CUSHING, Okla., March 3. (UP)—The next generation—not the next election—will settle the prohibition issue, Mrs. M. E. House of Bristow, president of the State Women's Christian Temperance Union, said here today at a district meeting of the organization.

"The prohibition issue will not figure prominently in our 1932 elections but will be for the next generation to solve," she said.

greater flow be allowed from state oil wells, with maintenance of the price scale. Efforts to break the price as well as the production curb are being led by the Sinclair companies.

HOUSE ORDERS COST PROBE

WASHINGTON, March 3. (AP)—With two oil investigating resolutions awaiting senate action, the house ordered the tariff commission today to make a thorough cost inquiry and report to the next congress. It adopted the Garber resolution directing the commission to investigate relative costs of oil in the United States and in countries from which 2,000,000 barrels or more have been imported in the last two years.

Chairman Hawley of the ways and means committee said under it the commission would complete the work begun in the Lake Maracaibo district of Venezuela, and will include such countries as Mexico, Peru, and the Dutch West Indies.

Representative Sabath, Democrat, Illinois, led the fight against the bill, charging it would make "a political commission investigate for political purposes," so that "some large oil interests will come across for the next Republican campaign."

Representative Ragon, Arkansas, Democratic member of the ways and means committee took exception to a statement by Representative Hoch, Republican, Kansas, "that he would not be fooled by any protestations of support of the policy of protection that may be made from the Democratic side of the house.

"I cannot imagine why the gentleman made that statement unless it was because he played hookey from the Republican caucus," Ragon said. "During seven weeks of hearings on the Hawley-Smoot act, Hoch did not testify once for a tariff on oil, nor did he speak for it on the floor. Democratic Leader Garner and myself led the fight for oil in that committee."

Hoch said his previous remarks had reference to the Democratic policy of speaking for a tariff on one product but voting against a bill presenting the only means of getting it.

A. P. I. ASKS CHANGE IN MARKETING RULES

CHICAGO, March 3. (AP)—The board of directors of the American Petroleum Institute voted unanimously today to petition the federal trade commission to rescind its order withdrawing approval of most of the petroleum code of marketing practices.

The board declared that in its opinion the code was lawful, that its observance involved no violation of the anti-trust laws and that the industry could carry on lawfully under the code.

The 16,000 companies and individuals that have signed the code were asked by the board to continue their adherence pending final action of the federal trade commission and the petroleum institute.

President E. B. Reeser of the institute was authorized to appoint a committee to discuss with the commission the retention of the code upon such terms as the commission may approve and subject to approval of the institute.

REFINERS EXPAND DURING PAST YEAR

TULSA, Okla., March 3. (AP)—Petroleum refiners quickened step in the last 12 months instead of following in the lower paths of other industries.

Presenting its 1931 survey of refineries in the United States, the Oil and Gas Journal will say in this week's issue that the refining branch of the petroleum industry experienced the greatest expansion year in its history in the 12 months ended March 1, a period marked by policies of curtailment in other lanes of industry.

During the year 26 additional refineries were placed in operation and 21 new plants were constructed for producing gasoline by cracking the heavy residual oils left after straight run distillation, the Journal's survey shows. At many refineries the daily crude oil capacity was increased. The survey reflects also an extensive program to improve the standards of refineries.

LONG CONSERVATION MEASURE DISCUSSED

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—Independent oil operators and major oil companies agreed today at a hearing before the house committee on oil, gas and mining, the railroad commission should be empowered to prevent wastage of gas in production of oil. The committee discussed the bill by Representative Long of Wichita Falls to get a state-wide oil and gas ratio.

No action was taken on the bill.

While the operators agreed the commission should have power to prevent waste, they said it would be impossible to set a definite oil and gas ratio because of the varying conditions in the state.

R. R. Penn, independent oil operator and chairman of the central proration committee, said a bill should be drawn to give the railroad commission administrative power to conserve gas and let the commission work out the details, since it was impossible to set an oil and gas ratio for each part of the state by statute.

Petroleum engineers and geologists who appeared before the committee were almost unanimous in the statement that a law should be passed which would give the commission power to prevent the waste of gas in each pool without setting a state-wide ratio.

Penn said the independent operators and major companies were willing to aid the commission in enforcing any measures promulgated for gas conservation and were against the indiscriminate wastage reported from several parts of the state because it lessened the total amount of oil that could be economically recovered.

The engineers will confer with members of a subcommittee tomorrow relative to provisions of the bill.

PRORATION WINS SUPPORT IN KANSAS

TOPEKA, Kan., March 3. (AP)—Proponents of compulsory oil proration in Kansas won an initial skirmish in the legislature today when the house approved for passage the Carpenter bill to invest the public service commission with regulatory powers over the industry.

Copies of Book Added To Polar Expedition Cargo

NEW YORK, March 3. (AP)—Twenty-nine copies of a book, to be prepared in advance and autographed when the party reaches the icy waters under the North pole, were added today to the cargo of the Wilkins-Ellsworth transarctic expedition.

An announcement by George Palmer Putnam and Sir George Hubert Wilkins said the books would be sold at $600 each. Wilkins will write the book, an advance story of the project including a description of the polar submarine Nautilus namesake of the mythical undersea craft described by Jules Verne.

"The amount of money received, over and above the publishing costs of the books, is to go into the expense of the expedition," said Sir Hubert.

THREE OXYGEN PLANTS MERGE

Airco Plans Expansion In Wichita Falls

Merger of the Wichita Falls Oxygen company, the Texas Acetylene company of Fort Worth and the Magnolia Airco Gas Products company of Houston was announced here Tuesday by Sam B. Hord, president of the Wichita Falls Oxygen company.

The Houston company is the Texas branch of the Air Reduction company of New York, while the principal stockholders of the Wichita Falls Oxygen company also own a majority of the stock of the Texas Acetylene company. Consolidation of the three enterprises will place ample capital and marketing facilities back of the Wichita Falls concern, and an early expansion of the plant here is expected, according to a statement by W. A. Sherman of Houston, president of the Magnolia Airco Gas Products company. There will be no change in the personnel of the Wichita Falls plant, which will continue to operate under the direction of Mr. Hord.

Officers and principal stockholders of the Wichita Falls Oxygen company are Mr. Hord, president; C. C. Cabiness, vice president; J. H. Allison, secretary-treasurer, and R. O. Kenley, director. Other plants of the Houston company are operated in Houston, Beaumont, San Antonio and El Paso.

America's highest ranking artists have been used in producing "art galleries" which line our highways in the form of bill board posters, according to John P. Akin of the Wichita Poster Advertising company, who spoke before members of the Ad club at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

Development of advertising by means of posters from the earliest stages up to the present time was outlined by Mr. Akin. A round table discussion of poster advertising by the club's members followed the speech.

An industrial tour to be conducted by the Junior chamber of commerce Friday afternoon at 1:15 o'clock through the Wichita Mill and Elevator company's plant was announced. The group will leave the Kemp hotel at 1:15 p. m.

Conditions Above Average

Dr. J. W. Cantwell is home from a business trip to Detroit, where he spent several days. "The citizens of Wichita Falls should feel grateful for the business condition that exists here," said Dr. Cantwell. Our section of the state and especially Wichita Falls is far better off than the territory about Detroit."

Great Crowds Expected to Attend Spring Opening Sponsored by Bureau

Arrangements for the spring opening of retail merchants of the city continued to go forward Tuesday, when the executive committee of the Retail Trade bureau of the chamber of commerce met. The opening campaign, which will be marked by the showing of new spring merchandise and with special entertainment, will be held from March 9 to 21.

During the meeting Tuesday it was decided to give away premiums and souvenirs to shoppers and to present special entertainment at the Majestic theater on the final day of the occasion. Free rooms during the day have been pledged by the Kemp hotel to out-of-town shoppers.

The bureau was organized last week by retail merchants of the city for the purpose of developing retail trade for Wichita Falls, and efforts will be made to make the city the shopping center of this section. The spring opening will be given wide publicity and many persons from Wichita Falls and the surrounding territory are expected to view the exhibits of merchandise during the time.

The completion of arrangements for the event is expected during the current week, it was announced, and retail merchants of the city are urged to join in the opening celebration whether they are members of the chamber of commerce or not.

WOMAN HANGS SELF BY CORD

State Hospital Patient Ends Own Life

The body of Mrs. Eva Adams, 36, a patient at the Wichita Falls state hospital who was found hanged from her room window early Tuesday morning, was forwarded Tuesday afternoon by the Hines mortuary to Winters, Texas.

A coroner's verdict of suicide by hanging was returned by O. L. Gibbs, justice of the peace, after an inquest. The woman was found strangled to death by a cord plaited from six long shoe laces, Judge Gibbs said. The cord was suspended from the heavy screening of the woman's room.

Surviving are a sister, Mrs. Joe Vinyard of Lamesa, and the parents of Ballinger, Texas.

C-C DIRECTORS ASK AIR MAIL

Service Expected to Start By July 1

Efforts will be made to secure air mail for Wichita Falls at the earliest possible date, on or before June 1, it was announced Tuesday by officials of the chamber of commerce following a meeting of directors. Authorization was granted by congress Saturday for an air mail line operating through Wichita Falls from Pueblo, Colo., to Fort Worth, to become effective not earlier than April 1, postoffice officials announced. The date tentatively set for the commencement of air mail operations through here is July 1. Resolutions adopted by the chamber of commerce board Tuesday to the postmaster general urged that service be commenced at a date as early as possible.

The resolution cited the successful operations for a long period of the Mid-Continent Air Express and expressed the belief that this line is in a position to handle air mail immediately.

Approval of the board was given a campaign now under way by the Gastonia, N. C., Chamber of Commerce urging a greater use of cotton products by southerners.

Health and Diet Advice

Errors in Reducing

Among the more common errors made by those who are trying to reduce are some which are ineffective, and others which are actually harmful. It is to the last class of errors which much of the belief about danger of reducing has arisen. Reducing is not dangerous if it is properly done, and I have never seen a fat person that was not benefited by reducing the weight to normal through careful dieting. One of the common mistakes is to avoid drinking water on the supposition that this will reduce the weight. There are a few cases where some of the excess weight is due to the accumulation of dropsical fluid, as may occur in the water should be restricted, but these are not cases of obesity, for there is no relation of fat to the amount of water consumed. There may be a slight reduction of weight when first discontinuing the use of water, but this is only temporary and is due to a less than normal amount of water in the body and not to a lessened amount of fat. Much damage may be done the body by so restricting the water, because water is needed to flush out the toxins and waste products which are so abundant during any reducing system.

Another method which was popular a short time ago was the use of medicines and preparations containing thyroid extract. This is a very powerful drug, and should never be taken except upon a physician's advice. In many cases thyroid extract has a very disastrous effect upon the one who is trying to reduce. The remedies which are used externally are not usually as dangerous as they are ineffective. Many of them contain white iodine or epsom salts.

Another method which some have tried with distressing results is going without sufficient sleep. This has resulted in a loss of weight in some cases, but at a tremendous loss of vitality. Those who go without sleep too long wreck their health and resistance to disease so that they become easy prey to colds, pneumonia, tuberculosis, nervous and even mental disorders.

Exercise, while really helpful in many cases, is not of very much value by itself in reducing. For one thing, it increases the appetite for the heavy fat-forming foods so that any loss that takes place usually is quickly regained. Exercises unless properly regulated may cause harm.

Massage is frequently used in reducing, and while it is very helpful in addition to a diet, it will not cause much reduction by itself. During a dieting or fasting regimen, the massage may be of value in improving the circulation of the blood through fatty deposits, causing them to be absorbed more quickly than fat in other parts of the body. For this reason it is very helpful in some cases, but as an adjunct.

Taking everything into consideration, there is only one safe method of reducing the weight to normal, and that is for the obese one to adhere strictly to a safe reducing diet. Not every diet will prove satisfactory by any means. An improperly balanced diet may cause actual injury. The diet should be arranged so that although the high caloric foods are considerably reduced, the mineral elements and vitamins are plentifully supplied.

In tomorrow's article I am going to outline a good dieting regimen for reducing.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Bile Retention

Question—Mrs. V. A. V. asks: "Can a severe pain in the pit of the stomach, and extending through the back, be caused by bile that does not pass through the system fast enough? If so, what treatment do you recommend? What are proper foods when the liver is very inactive?

Answer—The pain is going from the pit of the stomach around the right side to the back is a symptom of liver or gall bladder derangement. The best way to start the flow of bile which has accumulated is to take a fruit fast and follow this with a diet free from starches, sugars and fats.

Corn Oil

Question—Mrs. K. H. asks: "May oil made from corn be used as a part of a health menu? Some say it is not very wholesome, but I have been using it for a long time and it seems to agree with me."

Answer—Corn oil is usually pressed from the germs of the grains of corn. It has a pleasing taste and does not become rancid readily. It is quite wholesome and may be used in salad dressings, for preparing French fried potatoes, or in other methods of cooking. Experiments have proven that it contains some growth-promoting and anti-sterility vitamins.

Peritonitis

Question—M. V. L. asks: "Will you kindly explain peritonitis? What is the cause, and is there a cure?"

Answer—There are many causes of peritonitis. Peritonitis means inflammation of the peritoneum which is the smooth covering lining the inside of the abdomen. Various diseases of the intestines or other abdominal organs may induce a spread of inflammation to the peritoneum. The cause is always found in one or more of these inflamed organs and never starts in the peritoneum, itself. Therefore, a diagnosis is necessary to find the cause.

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED THOMPSON

Lloyd Gregory, for one, has again picked the Spudders to finish in the cellar. Admittedly it will be harder for Carl Williams to turn out a top-notch club this year than it was last, when he was provided with a gang of players with talent as their middle name. But we fail to see how Gregory can rate Galveston (nee Waco) in fourth place when it has virtually the same outfit it had last year, and put the Spudders last when we have coming to us such a promising bunch of players.

Gregory, of course, picks Houston to come out first in the season's play. Fort Worth he ranks second. Then Dallas, then Galveston. Shreveport, Beaumont and San Antonio follow, and lastly, the Spuds.

The inexperienced Rambler does not know the talent in this league as well as some of the experts, but from what he has seen and read of the players acquired and held over by other clubs in the circuit, and from what he knows about the players coming to this town, he does not see how the Galveston Buccaneers can come ahead of the Spudders. In fact, he rates the Spudders a first division club. When and if the Spudders get some more pitching power, he will rate 'em higher. For what we need now is pitchers.

Everything else is looking fine, mates. We will not, of course, be privileged to watch a bunch of such fine horsy fellows as Levey, Storti, Burns, et al., but in their place will come an assortment boasting both youth and experience, talent just as proven as will be found anywhere in the circuit.

It is only natural that we await the opening of the season with apprehension. For four long years we have had baseball fit for kings, though we did fade out at the critical moment the last three. Starting immediately after the glorious 1927 season, experts began to herald an early end of such a baseball team. They are still waiting for it. We've fooled them for three years. "Oh," they say, "but it's coming this year; it's bound to come sooner or later." We agree with the last part of that statement, but not the first. Of course we'll sink some day. It won't be the first time the nobility, of baseball or anything else, has been squelched. But we see pleasant visions through the magic lantern. We believe we'll fool 'em again.

The catching situation depends largely on Arthur Bradbury, who by two years' experience with the team has the inside track on the first string job. Assisting him will be Herbert Bryant from the New York-Penn, and there will be other applicants.

The infield presents only one big worry—third base. If Jimmie Geygan can come through with his fielding as well as he did with his slugging last year, that worry will be over. Buck Stanton, last year with Milwaukee, is about all that could be desired at first. If Bear Allday doesn't fill the bill at second, then Art Scharein, last year with Topeka, will. Schaerin is a rustling ball player. Joe Hassler, late of the Browns, and Scott Pullen, the Georgia Tech flash, will fight it out for short, and either should do the job justice. Hassler has the inside track. If Geygan's fielding is weak, Pullen might be used at third, and Geygan relegated to his utility role, as he was last year. And a better utility man we never hope to see. That boy can do my pinch hitting any old day. There are other candidates for these jobs, but those named are the most promising.

We have only one proven outfielder so far, Morris Badgro, whom the Browns will ship here. Herbert Kelly, last year with Topeka, is another standby who should come through. But if the critics scout our outfield prospects, there is the virtual certainty that the parent Browns will give Ted Guillic train fare and tell him to get off at Wichita Falls. Also, we have Robert Fuss, last year with the Scranton club of the New York-Penn.

The pitchers look woefully weak. Steengrafe and Pressnell are the most promising. We have only one left hander, Wallace Hebert, about whom we know little. There are a flock of others, but great hurlers seem few and far between when they are considered. Of the holdovers, Fiorrid and Vincent are due for a good year and probably will get it. They say Ash Hillin is comin' across this year. He owes it to the club to do so, for he did little last year. Lester White may be expected to be his old reliable self, but we hope he puts more punch into his work.

At this writing the star hurler of the 1931 Spudders is none other than Maul 'Em Milton Steengrafe, who won 19 games for us last year. May his hoop-skirt curves bring glory to the Spudder cause in 1931!

The Morning Mail

An open letter, addressed to the sports editors of this newspaper and The Daily Times, was received this morn from the Nocona basket ball team, signed by W. J. Stone, superintendent of Nocona schools, and coach of the Tribe. It follows:

"Dear Sirs:

"During the past two weeks it has been our great privilege to spend four days and nights in the city of Wichita Falls in district and bi-district basket ball play. During the entire time our stay was made most pleasant by the fine people we came into contact with.

"The school authorities extended us a very appreciative welcome and extended us every courtesy possible, the chamber of commerce was on hand making our stay indeed an enjoyable one, and the daily papers and their fine sports writers gave us every possible encouragement and assistance to cause us to be at our best. For these and many other things we are indeed grateful and want it openly expressed that our sincere appreciation is the least thing we would think of offering for such.

"Hoping that it will be our privilege someday to repay some of the many courtesies that you have so graciously extended to us and that we will not in any way fail to represent the true spirit of this section of the state and assuring you that we are going to put forth every effort to bring victory for the districts three and four, at Austin this week in the state tournament, we are.

"Sincerely,

"The Nocona basket ball team, by W. J. Stone, superintendent of schools."

DIETZEL SETS NEW RECORD

Toad Hangs Up All-Time Scoring Mark

FORT WORTH, March 3. (AP)—The Horned Frogs of Texas Christian university won their first Southwest conference basket ball championship here tonight by defeating the Southern Methodist university, 37 to 29, in a game in which the Frogs led most of the way.

Adolph Dietzel, center for T. C. U. smashed the all-time conference scoring record when he made nine points, giving him a season total of 168 points. It broke Holly Brook's previous record of 161 points established in 1929.

At the half, T. C. U. led, 17 to 15. The Frogs jumped in to a big advantage within the first five minutes of the last half, at one time leading 27 to 17.

Ponies Bad on Tip-Off

Inability to handle properly the tip-off proved fatal to the Mustangs, who played an otherwise canny game. After being stopped with one field goal in the first half, Dietzel registered seven points on one field goal and five gratis shots in the second half. Both clubs employed a fast-breaking offense until the fading minutes, when T. C. U., with a commanding lead, opened a stalling game that Southern Methodist university could not fathom.

The Mustangs dashed away to a 4 to 0 lead early in the game and at one time in the first half held a 10 to 5 advantage, but they let this slip when the Frogs, who had been snapping mid-court shots through the air without success, switched their style. With eight minutes of the first half to play, Clyde Robinson made a field goal that gave the Horned Frogs a 12 to 10 lead and never again could the Mustangs forge to the front, although they knotted the count at 14-14.

Toads Settle

Starting the final half, the Frogs leaped into a lead that practically settled the ball game. Clipping the net with successful shots, they baffled the Mustangs most of this period. With seven minutes left, Captain Skeeters, who had turned in a whale of a job guarding Dietzel, left the game on fouls. Realising defeat faced them, the Mustangs opened with a flood of long shots, but few found their mark. It was at this point the Frogs started their stalling and for the last four minutes, they simply passed the ball around while the Mustangs tried unsuccessfully to break through.

Reynolds and Robinson, of the Mustangs and Frogs, respectively, tied for high scoring honors with 11 points each.

MARYLAND WINS SOUTHERN TITLE

ATLANTA, March 3. (AP)—The University of Maryland tonight won the Southern conference championship by defeating the University of Kentucky, 29 to 27, in the final game of the tournament here.

Davis of the bankers was high three games with 506 pins, and high single game with 230. The titular series was played at the Spudder bowling alley. Score:

Unorthodox Golf Clubs Banned by Association

NEW YORK, March 3. (UP)—Additional regulations against devising clubs of unorthodox style were announced by Prescott S. Bush, secretary of the United States Golf association, through the United Press today.

"Club faces shall not embody any degree of concavity of more than one angle of loft," a newly adopted regulation read.

The rule was interpreted as being an advance curb of producing a refined "sand wedge," recently banned by the association.

Rochester Returns Binder to Houston

HOUSTON, March 3. (AP)—At his own request, George Binder, shortstop, has been returned to the Houston baseball club by Rochester, President Fred Ankenman of Houston announced today.

Binder last fall was sold to Rochester for $7,000. Commissioner Landis probably would have ruled the sale a cover-up deal had not Binder requested the Rochester club to return him to Houston.

The shortstop explained he liked to live here and he wanted to play under Manager Joe Schultz.

Commission Refuses Boxers Their Money

NEW YORK, March 3. (AP)—Billy Petrolle, the conqueror, and King Tut, the vanquished, had their day in court before the New York state athletic commission today, but failed to convince the fathers there was nothing wrong with their fight in Madison Square garden last Friday night.

The meeting with managers, promoters and officials, as well as fighters, called onto the carpet, ended in a draw.

HORNSBY BUSY WEEDING OUT

New Skipper Drives Squad At Furious Pace

(This is another of a series of first-hand Associated Press stories of major league baseball prospects.)

By BRIAN BELL

AVALON, Calif., March 3. (AP)—Rogers Hornsby is driving the Chicago Cubs at a furious pace on this winter-locked proving ground.

In sharp contrast to his predecessor, the genial Joe McCarthy, Hornsby keeps his own counsel and delays until the last minute the command, "hold, enough" to his perspiring athletes.

If one meets a player standing with furrowed brow wondering what the waves of the blue Pacific are saying, a good guess is that the hot one is a pitcher or outfielder.

16 Hurlers on Hand

There are 16 pitchers in the camp and after the deluge there will be no more than 11. There are only seven outfielders, but the anguish of two will be no less severe than that of the five pitchers who will go away after a while. Other departments are not so complicated.

If the wild goats on the cliffs and the birds in the trees, furnishing the un-baseball like scenery of the Cubs' camp, could expert, they might pick 11 pitchers, Pat Malone, Charlie Root, Bud Teachout, Sheriff Blake, Guy Bush, Bob Osborn, Bob Smith, Lester Sweetland, Jakie May, Ed Baecht and Lon Warneke.

All but Baecht and Warneke know their way around the National league. Malone, Root, Blake, Teachout, Bush and Osborn are Cubs of sorts. Smith was Boston's best, May wore the Red hose of Cincinnati and Sweetland suffered with the Phillies.

Won 26 Games

Baecht won 26 games for Los Angeles while losing an insignificant 12. Warneke lost more than he won for Reading, but his friends say there were extenuating circumstances, the Reading club for one.

Gabby Hartnett and Zach Taylor form two-thirds of the catching staff, and either Bob Grace from Reading or Bill Campbell from Memphis, will complete the trio.

Charlie Grimm at first, Hornsby at second, Woody English, shortstop, and Lester Bell at third will be the starting infield.

Bell, former Cardinal and Brave, just like his boss, is throwing again after a season of worry over an arm that would not behave. Footsy Blair and Clyde Beck will be around, too.

Battle In Outfield

The outfield is a battle ground. Hack Wilson, home run monarch, is set. So is Kiki Cuyler. Old Hoss Stephenson will fight back the ursurpers if he is right at the bell.

The scramble will be among the extra men. Danny Taylor, well and unfavorably known to John McGraw through a theft of home against the Giants, the veteran Cliff Heathcote, Johnny Moore, back for another trial, and Vince Barton, Baltimore's gift to the Cubs, all have a chance.

Eight Men Awarded Letters at Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., March 3. (UP)—Eight members of the Arkansas university basket ball team which tied for third place in the Southwestern conference this year, were awarded letters today.

Captained by Jim Pickren, the team included Tom Murphy, Johnnie Jelks, Jack Sexton, Kenny Holt, Milan Creighton, Bruce Kendall and Raymond Gibson.

Gus Clifton and Joe Chambers were awarded reserve letters.

Training Camp Chatter

Hunts for Hitters

PENSACOLA, Fla., March 3. (AP)—Manager "Shano" Collins is giving his Boston Red Sox squad plenty of batting practice. Four-fifths of today's practice session were used rotating the pitchers in the box and the batters under the portable backstop.

"I am more interested in finding the best hitters of the squad than the best fielders," Collins explained.

Quartet Joins Phillies

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 3. (AP)—Two pairs of infielders and outfielders joined the Phillies today, the most conspicuous being Buzz Arlett, the Pacific coast giant, who at 32, is up with the majors for the first time. Arlett arrived with Dick Bartell, young shortstop, who was obtained from Pittsburgh in a deal that sent Tommy Thevenow and Claude Willoughby to the Pirates.

Chisox Line Up

SAN ANTONIO, March 3. (AP)—An indication of how the Chicago White Sox will line up against Houston Sunday was given by Manager Donie Bush today.

The infield had Ray Radcliff at first, Bill Cissell at second, Luke Appling and Willie Kamm at third. The outfield will be Smead Jolley in right, Mel Simon in center and Red Eickrodt in left. Carl Reynolds, the leading batsman of the club last season, has not signed and definitely is classed as a holdout.

Reds Get Busy

TAMPA, Fla., March 3. (AP)—All the main cogs in the Cincinnati Reds' baseball machine with the exception of Joe Stripp, third baseman, a holdout, had their complete fast workout today after a week of inclement weather. Wally Roettger, slated for the regular centerfield berth, arrived and participated in spirited practice.

'Our Boys' Still at It

West PALM BEACH, Fla., March 3. (AP)—Despite a high wind the St. Louis Browns today put in their best practice since arriving here. CHURCH ENTRY LISTS CLOSED

Olney Independents And Clara Complete Roster

Entries to the first annual invitational basket ball tournament of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church were closed late Tuesday when the Olney Independents and the Clara High school team entered to bring the total entries to 16 teams.

The tournament opens Friday afternoon and will continue through Saturday night, when the finals will be held.

Trophies to Be Awarded

Dr. Nat F. Grafton, pastor of the church, announced Tuesday night a beautiful gold and silver loving cup had been purchased, and that it would be presented the winner of the tournament. Also a gold basket ball will be presented the "best all-around sport." A committee will be named to choose the winner of the latter prize, Dr. Grafton said.

Nine of the teams entered are from surrounding towns in Northwest Texas and Oklahoma. Olney will be represented by two teams, the Independents and the Pals. Besides these two, and the Clara team, entries will come from Munday, Holliday, Goree, Grandfield, Okla., Byers, and Allendale. The rest of the entries are from Wichita Falls, and are in the two church leagues here, with the exception of the Little Rovers, an independent quintet.

Drawings were held Tuesday morning. At that time the entry list contained only 14 teams, and it was agreed to place the remaining two teams to enter in the bottom places in the lower bracket in the order in which they entered. Clara entered first.

First Round Games

The first round will start Friday afternoon at 5 o'clock with the Ray Community Presbyterians matched with the First Presbyterian church, and games will be played at intervals of one hour thereafter as follows: First Christian vs. Floral Heights Presbyterian, Munday vs. Little Rovers, Olney Pals vs. Holliday, and Goree vs. Grandfield.

Saturday morning starting at 10 o'clock Byers will play First Methodist, and Allendale will play Clara.

The semi-finals will be played Saturday afternoon, and the final will be played that night starting at 7:30. All games will be played on the Floral Heights Presbyterian court.

The First Presbyterians defeated the First Southern Presbyterians decisively for the second straight time to win the Church league title. The score Tuesday night was 42 to 20. They defeated their rivals Monday night, 22 to 15. A best two out of three game arrangement had been made to settle the race, each team having won a half season title. The games were played at the Floral Heights Presbyterian church gym.

The two champions will meet in a play-off for the city championship at a date to be set later.

Helen Hicks Leads East Coast Tourney

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 3. (AP)—Miss Helen Hicks, Hewlett, L. I., was the only one in a field of international stars to break 80 in the qualifying round of the Florida east coast golf championship today.

Her 37-39—76, played on the course whipped by winds of almost gale velocity, was four strokes better than Miss Diana Fishwick, leader of the British golfing contingent and Miss Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, who tied for second place with 80's.

Miss Maurine Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., scored a 40-42—82 for third honors.

Only 10 of the field were able to best the wind and remain in the 80's. A 92 was required to make the championship flight.

Dismissal of Teams Star Leaves Reagan Underdogs in City Series

The Reagan Junior High school basketeers, hitherto regarded as having an equal chance against Zundelowitz in the city championship series opening Thursday, assumed the role of underdogs Tuesday with the announcement of Coach A. D. Beck that he had dismissed from the squad Kenneth Stingel brilliant forward, for disciplinary reasons.

Stingel, hardwood artist par excellence, has been high point man for the Reagan team all season, and around him Coach Beck had built a formidable offense.

With the tournament but two days away, Coach Beck Tuesday began a search for a man to replace Stingel, if such is possible. Even should a man be found it is certain he could not fill the gap left by Stingel's departure, for two days is but little room in which to assimilate the tactics developed during a whole season.

Coach Roy Golden continued his team's rehearsals, and when the whistle blows Thursday night on the Zundelowitz court his regular team that has been functioning all year, will take the floor. The series will continue Friday night, and then adjourn until Monday night. Should additional games be necessary, they will be played Tuesday and Wednesday nights. The city championship will be awarded the team winning three out of five games.

LA SALLE V·8

at the same moderate price

With notable refinements in body interiors and appointments—and with its exterior appearance smartened and enhanced by new hood ports and attractive new colors—today's La Salle V-8 now offers, in even greater measure, those fine-car characteristics which have made it so popular among the select motorists of the world.

Upholsteries are notably finer, as to both quality and appearance. Cushions and seat backs are smooth-trimmed and tailored with piping at the edges. Window mouldings and smoking and vanity sets are finer and more attractive. In fact, the interior ensemble suggests the richness of a custom creation.

La Salle is the first of the Cadillac-built motor cars to be made available to buyers in the medium-price field. Priced as low as $2195, f. o. b. Detroit, La Salle is actually as easy to own — especially when the purchaser takes advantage of the liberal G. M. A. C. payment plan—as a lesser automobile.

May We Send a La Salle to Your Home?

The engineering discoveries made in developing the Cadillac V-12 and V-16 have been applied to all Cadillac-La Salle power plants. As a result, La Salle performance is now so exceptional that we should like to place a La Salle at your disposal for an extended trial drive. Simply telephone your interest, and a La Salle will be sent to your door . . without any obligation whatever.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, March 3. (AP)—An early advance in cotton promoted by relatively firm cables and expectations of an early lifting of the Indian boycott on cotton goods was followed by reactions today. May sold up to 11.39 on the early demand, but offerings increased at this price, and the market sagged off to 11.29 offerings increased at this price, and the market sagged off to 11.29 for that position under realizing combined with some local and southern selling. There was no aggressive pressure, and closing prices showed rallies from the lowest on a renewal of trade buying and covering. May closed at 11.33 with the general market closing barely steady at a net decline of 1 point on March but generally 2 to 7 points net higher.

Trade interests were credited with buying near months and stopping the March notices, but March was relatively easy, closing 97 points under December compared with a difference of 89 points at the close of the previous day. The cotton exchange service estimated world's consumption of American lint cotton at 945,000 bales for January compared with 1,190,000 last year.

Liverpool cables reported covering and Bombay buying in that market and said there was a fair inquiry for cotton cloth although many offers were unworkable. Sales of fertilizer tags in 10 cotton states during seven months ended with February were 970,775 tons against 1,571,743 last year, according to an estimate from New Orleans. Port receipts today 30,952. U. S. port stocks 3,993,646. Exports today 39,420 making 5,068,315 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, March 3. (AP)—Cotton was rather quiet today, and prices were irregular with no definite trend.

Although Liverpool cables were better than due, the market here opened 3 points up to 3 down and after easing off 1-3 point owing to easier stocks rallied on shorts covering and on a rather bullish fertilizer report issued by Secretary Hester, showing a decrease in sales of fertilizer tags in the South to the end of February of 600,968 tons.

Rally 10 to 11 points, the market eased off again with stocks losing 11 points from the early highs. After ruling quiet most of the afternoon and near the lows, the market rallied somewhat in the late trading recovering 5 to 7 points from the lows mostly due to shorts covering. The close was steady with the general market showing net gains for the day of 4 to 8 points.

Market Puts Up Stubborn Fight Against Continued Bear Pressure

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, March 3. (US)—Efforts of bearish professionals to extend the decline in stock prices met subborn resistance today. Several feeble rallies were experienced during the day, but at the close price changes were decidedly mixed. Industrials on the average were off less than a point while Rails closed a slight fraction higher as did also the public utilities.

Neither bear nor bull clique could claim much victory from the day's trading, which was on a smaller scale with volume under 3,000,000 shares. It was a market given over almost entirely to professional manouvering. The bears were helped in their destructive endeavors by a series of unfavorable dividend announcements and the continued influence of the Steel Trade News indicating some flattening out in the curve of operations.

In speculative quarters it was conceded that the market was at a point from which it might shift rapidly in either direction, depending chiefly in the immediate prospects on the technical conditions within the market. Expiration of congress may encourage resumption of aggressive activities in the public utility section, although such activity might properly be interpreted as largely speculative in character. Vanadium moved contrary to the general industrial list, advancing over a point despite the irregularity elsewhere. A good deal of the buying represented short covering, although near the lowest prices some renewed demand was reported from speculative interests who had taken profits near the highest prices of the recent bulge.

From the standpoint of activity, Radio common was again the leader of the market, and continued under pressure. The bull pools seemed most intent upon stemming the downward trend, rather than embarking on renewed aggressive sponsorship. It is likely, however, that the pools and others bullishly inclined will take advantage of any lull in selling to attempt a renewal of the upward movement.

Stocks affected by adverse dividend news were disturbing factors. Phillips petroleum, omission of whose dividend confirms statement repeatedly made here some weeks back of persistent liquidation, sold down to within a fraction of its lowest price of the year. United Carbon, the dividend on which was also omitted, broke more than five points, and Remington-Rand sold down 2½ points to its lowest price on the directors' decision passing its dividend.

With this indisputable forecast of the type of news the market may have to wade through for several weeks more, there appeared little anxiety among the general run of speculators to continue aggressive on the constructive side.

Warner Bros. continued a disturbing influence, selling down to within two points of the year's lowest price. Paramount was influenced by the Warner weakness, but this issue is likely to meet investment demand on any further substantial setback. Recently it has reflected chiefly speculative activity.

Drives by the bears against the more speculative type of issue failed to uncover any particular weakness; rather, these drives seemingly met determined opposition from the sponsors for the stocks. Thus, United Aircraft, in which a pool recently organized has been very active, closed up ; on the day; while Case Threshing closed down less than a point on heavy volume. Foster-Wheeler was steadily absorbed and closed up half a point. This issue is in demand on all reactions. Worthington Pump closed up a half-point. Byers Pipe, in which speculative sponsorship is entirely responsible for its current strength, was the star performer of the day, gaining over three points. Auburn was another favorite to close higher.

Since meeting heavy offerings of stock at last week's peak prices, the leading bulls have been hesitant about resuming aggressive tactics. It is expected, however, that at least another attempt will be made to stir up renewed enthusiasm for the bull side.

Increase of $119,000,000 in stock exchange members' loans is relatively unimportant.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, March 3. (AP)—Tempted by 18 cents a bushel price disparity between old and new crop wheat, numerous traders sought July today, and caused a late advance. Much of the buying, representing wheat yet to be harvested, was against simultaneous equal sales of May, which stands for wheat already available for use. Corn and oats advanced also, but not until both had outdone season bottom price records.

Wheat closed irregular, ranging from ¼ cent decline to ⅜c gain, with corn ½@1c higher, oats ⅛@⅜c up, and provisions showing a rise of 5@17 cents.

Provisions advanced briskly on account of light receipts of hogs.

Sheppard Would Pass Law Creating New List of Crimes

WASHINGTON, March 3. (INS)—The most drastic step toward enforcement of prohibition since adoption of the 18th amendment, was proposed this afternoon by Senator Sheppard, Democrat, of Texas, co-author of the dry law, in a bill outlawing possession of liquor in the home for family consumption.

The measure would require the dweller to prove liquor found in his home had been lawfully acquired before prohibition. It would prohibit possession of all fruit juices, cider, home brew beer or home distilled liquors of intoxicating content.

Auction Bridge

THE OBJECT OF PRE-EMPTING — Lesson No. 26

IN AUCTION bridge, it is well to remember that the only reason for pre-emptive bidding is to shut out a bid which may be dangerous, so if there is no other suit in which a bid is feared, it is unnecessary to pre-empt. For instance, if in addition to a strong heart suit headed by A, K, Q, and four small and also A, J and one or two small spades, his hand would be too strong to pre-empt and he should bid one heart.

BOND MONEY TO 'DRY UP MOSQUITO PONDS,' FISCHER SAYS

Bond Speaker Recalls $350,000 Warrant Issue in Sartin's Term

And Lo, the Roads Ran Right Near His House, Heyser Recalls to Warrior Against Taxes

believe it or not, you are faced with a public health problem, and you should remember and consider it before you cast a vote that will sacrifice the health of this community."

Mr. Cain's brief address from the floor, following Dr. Stevenson's talk, was largely a plea for "impersonality" in the conduct of the current campaign on the water bonds.

"Neither the defeat of this bond issue, nor its successful passage, could be so great a calamity to the losing side in either case as it would be to the city of Wichita Falls for this campaign to divide our citizenship into opposing factions," Mr. Cain declared. "I think it imperative that workers for both sides argue the case on its merits, and leave personalities out of it.

List the Leaders—Then Decide

"I suggest, just as a means of guiding us to an intelligent decision, that each voter make for himself a list of the leaders for the bond issue, and of the leaders against it; go through each list, evaluating each man according to his service to this community in the past; measure what they have done, and measure their respective abilities to shape wise public policy—then see which bunch you should line up with."

In opening his address, Shields Heyser described a meeting of the chamber of commerce held on the evening of his first day in this city, about 20 years ago. Before about 50 men gathered there, he said, including several of the leaders in the present campaign for the water bonds, the late J. A. Kemp declared that "if they kept up the optimism and faith of that moment, nothing could prevent their building a city here."

"Do you know of any city in the state of Texas that has made more progress in so short a time than Wichita Falls?" queried Mr. Heyser. "I don't. I'm glad I stayed here. People have prospered here. Up to 1925, everybody in this city stood together, shoulder to shoulder, on every necessary project for the city's growth. We heard of no reactionary elements within our population during those years. Now we have reached the place where we can build our city still further, or we can go back. We can pass these bonds for needed improvements, or we can let them fail."

"You probably noticed," continued Mr. Heyser, "that opponents of these water bonds first said that no changes were needed. They have quit that now. Their platform has changed. They now say something should be done for the water, must be done, in fact, but it will be done out of revenues from the water department. In other words, they now say they will do what we are trying to do, but will do it some different way. They will take up our job, but will stretch its performance out over 10 or 12 years.

Opposition Without Plans

"We say, do it now. We would obtain the funds for it now, under the cheapest possible plan, and put several hundred men to work when they need work so badly. They—opponents of the bond issue—say something should be done, but they would do it with about 50 men—piece-meal. But my observation is that, jobs like this don't get done piece-meal. It is now that we need better water and more of it, and it's now that these men need work; it is now that materials and money are available at reduced prices.

"I have talked with this group of leaders who are opposing issuance of the water bonds. I turned my attention to this issue with an open mind, ready to be convinced either way. I have asked those who tell you to vote against the bonds, 'How are you going to make these improvements?' They have no idea whatever as to how it is to be done. They have no engineers' plans, no concrete plan of any kind for doing what they admit needs to be done.

"On the other hand," continued the speaker, "I have studied this plan which the city council has recommended, and am convinced that it is one which weighs on everybody equally, so far as its cost is concerned. It is fair, and just, and equitable.

"Now, since they have no plan, nothing to offer except what somebody has said, how are we to know what they would do if we defeated the bonds and bade them improve our water system? Opponents of this bond issue are making many charges against its supporters. Some of them, at least, believe what they're saying. But many people have been misled by these charges without having been given any facts at all to support the statements.

"I have gone to their headquarters, and have said: 'We have our money tied up here, our homes here, we want to live here happily in the future as we have in the past. This is the first time in my life here that we ever indulged in personalities. You are camouflaging the issue by the introduction of these indictments of city officials and other supporters of the water bonds.' Their answer was, 'Yes, but you must admit we are playing good politics.' They said, 'We are going to take over this gas franchise; we are going to build a power plant; we are going to take over the lights, get another telephone company in here.' But when I ask how they are going to do all these things, their answer was, 'Well, of course, we shall have to have some money to do it, but we are going to do it.'"

In a time when citizens of every community are feeling a special need to "stand together," Mr. Heyser said, ex-politicians are "not playing fair with the people when they arouse factions, stir up dissension, and create political turmoil upon which they hope to ride into office."

"Much has been said by the leading speaker of the opposition," Mr. Heyser continued, "about the enormous tax burden now upon the people of the city. At this moment, out here in another part of town, he is appointing himself as Moses to lead a tax-burdened people out of a miserable slavery.

"But he hasn't yet said a word about facts that I read in the records of this county today, and which you may read if you care to look at them; records which show that while he was county judge, he had issued $350,000 in warrants for the construction of roads and bridges out there around the Country Club Estates; warrants which were issued without any election, without any knowledge of the public generally, and for which you are now paying 5½ and 6 per cent interest—on a debt about which you never were asked or told anything.

"Now he calls this Country Club Estates 'silk stocking row,' and yet, I notice that these paved highways built with that $350,000 lead right up to his front yard. Now I approve of those roads; I'm sure they're a good thing; but I don't think that he ought to omit mention of this part of the debt which he 'has saddled off on you.'"

Not one charge of dishonesty or "graft" of any kind can be told, or written, or in any way recorded against any of the city officials, Mr. Heyser declared, because "it just isn't there."

Want Pie-Counter Place

"If this bond issue should be defeated, if the administration should be defeated," he said, "you will find very soon that some of those now fighting to bring about such a defeat are looking for places at the pie-counter themselves."

Judge R. E. Huff, chairman of the meeting, stated that objections had been voiced to having bankers on the city council, and remarked that he had "rather have a few bankers on the job, where financing of a big project is involved, than any other kind of business man I can think of."

Walter D. Cline, the last speaker of the evening, said:

"The statement made by Dr. Stevenson should convince anyone who thinks seriously of the welfare of his home and his community that it will be all right to vote for these bonds."

"The city's always been run by a 'gang,' observed Mr. Cline. "Every organization is run by a 'gang.' Wichita Falls has been run during the past 15 or 16 years by Jim Marlow, Walter Cline, Tom Noble, Frank Collier, R. E. Shepherd, and their respective 'gangs,' and now it's being run by Walter Nelson Jr. and his gang. One of the challenges in this campaign, I admit, is just an ambition on the part of some of our friends to change up the 'gang' that's running the city."

"Get the Facts"

"The object of these men who arranged this meeting," Mr. Cline said, "is merely to get the completest information before you. We don't tell you to vote for or against the bonds on our recommendation, but to acquaint yourself with the real facts, and arrive at an intelligent decision on that basis. Mr. Huff here admits that this is an unfortunate time to have to make such improvements. He doesn't want to. But he is firmly convinced that this must be done, and even if it peels off a little hide, he's for doing it now. You have been given accurate, honest information, both by these speakers and the papers. What you are asked to do is to consider the facts, and vote accordingly."

With the speakers on the platform were Mrs. Newton Maer and Mrs. T. H. Lawson, members of the water improvement campaign executive committee.

A 30-minute concert was given by the Caballeros band, directed by Paul Seeds, before the speaking began. Upon the suggestion of Mr. Huff, the meeting adopted unanimously a resolution thanking the musicians for their services.

Shrine Service Club Hears Madame Queen

Madame Queen, as portrayed by Dr. J. H. Fletcher, was placed on the witness stand and subjected to a severe cross examination Tuesday in the $25,000 breach of promise suit against Andy which is being tried before the weekly luncheons of the Shrine Service club. The trial is now in its second series, jurors and attorneys having been selected at the luncheon last week.

Madame Queen was the first witness to go on the stand and was first questioned by her attorney, Mr. Smith, played by Walter H. Caldwell. Cross-examination by Mr. Collins, played by Guy Rogers, had just got under way when "court" adjourned until next week.

GROCERY BURGLARIZED

Articles valued at about $15 were obtained Monday night by burglars who entered the Parker & Topper grocery at 602 North Wichita street, it was reported to police Tuesday. Several cartons of cigarets, a small quantity of groceries and about $3 in change was taken. Entrance was gained through a rear window.

DEATHS

MRS. ANGELITA ORIDRIQUEZ

Funeral arrangements Tuesday were incomplete for Mrs. Angelita Oridriquez, 58, of El Paso, who died at a hospital here Tuesday morning. The body probably will be forwarded by the Hines mortuary to El Paso Wednesday, it was said.

'AIR AND SUN PURIFY WATER'

Speakers Question Sincerity Of Water Proponents

Flouting as ridiculous the statements by water bond proponents that huge sums can be saved the citizens of Wichita Falls through the correction of the water situation here by the voting of $1,000,000 in water bonds, B. D. Sartin in an address to a gathering of about 200 persons at the Adams Street Methodist church Tuesday night declared that $100,000 from the profits of the city water department would be sufficient to finance all needed repairs and improvements in the water system and to supply a city the size of Wichita Falls with an abundance of pure, soft water at strong pressure. F. W. Fischer criticised the recent published statement of water improvement proponents "that the people should be guided in the issue by the real town builders," and attacked the proposal that a closed water main from Lake Wichita be built to the filtration plant.

Tired of 'Best Citizens'

"I am tired of seeing people standing around on street corners with their thumbs in their vests, yapping about being the city's best citizens," Mr. Fischer said. "Some think that because they blew in here 30 years ago they are the town builders. Well they didn't build it until we got here, did they? Our opponents say that the bonds are supported by the loyal citizens. Who are the loyal citizens?—the Lone Star Gas company? The town builders and loyal citizens are men and women who come here, raise children, put them through school, pay taxes, love their neighbors, and when they vote on an issue they vote to protect their neighbors and benefit the masses instead of a few."

Mentioning the promise that no tax increase will be made to pay off water improvement bonds, the speaker declared that when Lake Kemp was built that it was promised that the tax on that improvement would not exceed 25 cents on the $100, but that the tax was now 70 cents and had been as high as $1. With reference to the proposal for a fund for drainage he said, "They taxed us to get water into Wichita Falls and now they want to put across another bond issue to keep it out."

"Three-quarters of the $1,000,000 is to be spent by the city council if the bonds are carried," Mr. Fischer declared, "and will not affect the quality of our water. If the issue carries the money will be used to fix up Holliday creek and the "mosquito ponds" of Country Club Estates.

"Let Sun Purify Water"

"They say they will enlarge the filteration plant, but we have seen the time when the present plant furnished water when the town was larger than it is now, and I don't see much chance of it getting any bigger with the present burden of taxes."

Declaring that there is no need for a quarter million of dollars to be spent for running a pipe from the lake to the filtration plant, the speaker cited the law suit in which St. Louis sued Chicago for emptying sewerage into the river from which St. Louis received its water supply. Experts testified, it was said, that tests were made and that the water used by St. Louis had been purified by light and air before reaching St. Louis. "Nature," he said, "has provided that water flowing through earth and sunlight purifies; then that $200,000 must be intended for some one else."

A scheme is under way, Mr. Fischer asserted, to make the poor class pay for the benefits of the rich. "Bonds can't be issued without making a lien on property. The present tax rate is $1.40, with 50 cents going to retire present bonds and 90 cents for salaries of city officials. If the tax rate is unchanged with the issuance of $1,000,000 more in bonds and 66 cents is set aside for the retirement of bonds, as proposed, that will leave 16 cents less for salaries. The increased water rate is to make up for those salaries."

Asserting that the poor man would pay that increase in water rates, the speaker, declared that "the man with five or six kids is the one that uses the water." The rich man, he said, is away part of the year and the greater portion of the time instead of drinking water drinks good whisky.

In closing he said: "The bonds won't carry and the city council won't remain in power."

A sum of $610,000 was added by Mr. Sartin to the amount said by proponents to be saved through water improvements. The water will be so fine, it was said, that soft drinks and liquor will be abandoned for a good drink of water and that soap and bath salts will be discarded.

It was suggested by Mr. Sartin that the profits accruing from the operation of the water department be used for improvements in the water system instead of placing these profits in a general fund for the expenses of the city.

Sartin Wants Salary Cut

The speaker attacked the city manager, terming him "The Prince of Dallas," and the city council for rank extravagance in the city expenditures. With reference to the employment of Kansas City engineers to direct proposed water improvements, it was declared that outside advice is not needed; that Wichita Falls people know more about the city than any others, and that a city engineer is maintained by the city who is capable of directing water improvements.

"There is no sense in paying even a competent city manager $10,000 a year," Mr. Sartin said, "and I doubt the competence of Mr. Fairtrace. Ten thousand dollars now is equal to $30,000 in 1926."

Suggesting that the salaries of city officials be cut 50 per cent, the speaker asserted that if the salary of the city clerk was cut from $4,800 to $2,400 there would be 50 applicants for the job by competent men. "When the 'Prince of Dallas' arrived in the city employes of the city began to use Chryslers instead of Fords and Chevrolets," it was said. "The city engineer is paid $4,800 a year to keep up the repairs and improvements for the city and yet they won't trust him with the water improvements. They want to go to Kansas City and pay $50,000 for advice."

The city needs to cut down its expenses and taxes and pay up its bills before incurring more obligations, Mr. Sartin said.

Reporter at Anti-Bond Meeting 'Cramps Style' of Candidate Cox

Judge Kay Tells Audience City Officials Will Raise Both Taxes and Water Rates

Charging the government, state, city and nation with spending far too much money in their operations, Judge John C. Kay flayed the present city administration in his talk against the proposed water bond issue for Wichita Falls at a meeting held in the Buchanan Street Church of Christ Tuesday evening.

Approximately 30 persons attended the meeting. "I am going to say things that will be hard for you to believe," the speaker said.

"All the wheat, corn, potatoes oats and other commodities produced in these United States that reaches the markets will not pay the federal taxes of this nation. Now let someone get the figures and correct that. The congress that adjourns Wednesday has appropriated ten billion dollars and no country can stand that. I am just trying to point out to you what will happen locally by using these illustrations.

Raise Both Taxes and Rates

"Why should one man be more interested in the water in Wichita Falls than another? Judge Huff says all the progressive people are for the bond issue. Now I don't know who the progressive people are but I do know that I've progressed until I have bogged down in it. I have spent approximately $10,000 in taxes in Wichita Falls since I've been here and if I had that money I could move away and let them have it. I like to live in Wichita Falls and I want to live here but I can't do it if they are going to break us all. I've used worse water than we have now and I've seen better water, but it was the present administration that got this water for us.

"Now I come to the most shameless part of this program and right here I want to criticise those who need to be criticised. They say they will not raise the taxes but will raise the rate on water. They will do both and the man who does not believe it hasn't enough sense to live in Wichita Falls.

"Now I don't advocate the raising of taxes of the business concerns downtown but when they put a water meter in every home in Wichita Falls and raise the water rate, and let the business concerns go scott free, I think it is a crude idea of justice. How much water does it take to run the telephone company and the gas company? I don't know whether the railroad buys a nickel's worth of water or not but how much will it affect them?"

In closing his address Judge Kay said "there is a limit beyond which we can't go in taxes and I think we have reached it now."

He Was Only "Fooling"

P. B. Cox, candidate for alderman, in his talk with reference to the bond issue said "I don't feel free to discuss this matter as I would like to do because I see a reporter from the newspaper sitting over here taking down everything I say.

Mr. Cox, in an attack on The Record News declared that he had been quoted seriously regarding the placing of gravel in Lake Wichita when he meant it in a joking way.

"The people of Wichita Falls have supported the two newspapers of this city in every way and I do not think it is fair when an organ which moulds public opinion, as a newspaper does, to try to mislead the people."

In launching out into his argument against the water bond issue Mr. Cox declared that "it is the idea of the proponents of this issue that we need more water. We have water to burn. You can look at Holliday creek and see that we have too much water, in fact more than they want. I think that one of the biggest causes for the proposed need of the water bond issue is because a bunch of people have built homes out there along Holliday creek and they want the tax payers to dam up the creek to relieve them of their mosquito den.

"I'm against the water bond issue, if for no other reason, because the money will not be kept here. If I were trying to run the city and had an engineer that could not draw up plans for improving the water plant, I would fire him and get one that I had confidence in," the speaker said. Mr. Cox pointed his finger at The Record News reporter and said, "Now don't misunderstand me, I think Mr. Rugeley is one of the best engineers in the state of Texas and he is my friend, but they didn't let him do his own work."

Tut, Tut, Tut

"If I've got to live in a city, state or nation that will put such a bonded indebtedness on its citizens, I am ready to quit," the speaker said. Shaking his finger at the reporter he said, "now you can print that in your newspaper and tell them I said so."

In conclusion Mr. Cox declared "The time has come in this country when the masses of the people have got to wake up and stop our government, state and city, from spending money like drunken sailors. It's time for us to think. It is now time to call a halt and see just where we stand."

W. E. George presided at the meeting and appointed a committee consisting of W. F. Shelton, Mrs. J. P. Turner, J. S. Davis, J. I. Street and Sam Davis to get all voters in surrounding neighborhoods to the polls on election day.

HUNGER MARCH ENDS IN FIGHT

Unemployed Riot in Albany Capitol

ALBANY, N. Y., March 3. (AP)—A riot, staged by 200 men and a handful of women who said they were the "unemployed" but whose banners were painted on placards of the Communist party, shook the assembly chamber of the New York state capitol today.

State troopers with hard locust service sticks settled the riot after 20 minutes. Bruised heads of rioters and a few mauled troopers were the net results of the demonstration to produce an audience for the "army of the unemployed" which last week began a march by motor trucks on the capitol.

Hunger March Ends

To the rioters the affair was the culmination of a "hunger march to Albany." To the police who fought the demonstrators in hand-to-hand combat on the floor of the lower legislative house it was a "donny brook" with all the features of that hectic old country fair.

A heavy constabulary guard, forewarned of the march, patrolled the capitol an hour before the demonstrators arrived. The army marched into the capitol between a file of troopers. Two spokesmen visited Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies to ask permission to voice demands for relief to the assembly. This was denied.

When the speaker's gavel fell, nothing untoward occurred, and this atmosphere prevailed until the journal clerk began to read the minutes. Instantly, above the drone of his voice, a shouted demand for recognition came from one of the group in the rear of the chamber. He spoke for a moment, voicing a plea for the "children that are hungry." Then the troopers converged upon him.

Prearranged Signal

This apparently was a prearranged signal. The Communists leaped to their feet, and their massed voices roared through the chamber. The troopers, heeding orders to withhold their sticks unless confronted with physical violence, sought to collar the ringleaders. But blows were struck, and the service sticks swung.

The gray-clad figures of troopers darted through the mob, hats were swept off and trampled to the floor, and the crowd maintained its roaring jeer. One trooper went down under the surge of a gallery mob, and the mob immediately prepared to toss him over the rail to the floor 30 feet below, but police reinforcements saved him. A captain of state police was cut about the head and face, and a senate employe, rushing to the aid of a besieged trooper, was struck down by a stick.

Ten minutes sufficed to clear the chamber. This did not end the trouble. The group immediately gathered on the long flight of steps at the front of the capitol, where they again were driven away.

Optimists to Hear Report on Nominees

Speck Marley's Fiddle band will furnish entertainment for members of the Optimist club when they meet at the Kemp hotel Wednesday at 12:10 o'clock for their regular weekly luncheon, it was announced by Ira D. Brown, secretary of the club.

An additional feature of the program will be a talk on "Health" by Dr. V. E. Wratten. All members are urged to attend as the nomination committee will present their selection of two slates of officers for the club for 1931 and 1931.

Imagine! British Heirs Suffer in Heat Wave

BUENOS AIRES, March 3. (US)—The Prince of Wales and Prince George prepared themselves against Argentina's deadly heat wave by taking a short dip in the cooling waters of Lake Nahuel Suapi this morning. The heat wave has accounted for 17 deaths so far, and the mercury is standing still at 100 degrees.

The Prince of Wales and his brother will spend today travelling by motor and rail, reaching San Antonio early tomorrow night, and coming from San Antonio to Buenos Aires by plane.

BRIDGESLAYING TRIAL HALTED

State Attempts to Impeach Women Witnesses

KANSAS CITY, March 3. (AP)—Presentation of defense evidence at the trial of Mrs. Myrtle Bennett, accused of the bridge game slaying of her husband, was halted today to permit the prosecution's attempt to impeach defense witnesses.

The witnesses were Mrs. Alice Adkins, 67-year-old mother of the defendant, who collapsed during the noon recess, and Mrs. Mayme Hofman, participant in the Bennett's last bridge game.

James R. Page, prosecutor, who contended Mrs. Adkins and Mrs. Hofman had repudiated by their testimony statements made to officers following the slaying of John G. Bennett in his fashionable apartment, called his former stenographer, Mrs. Sam Wiener, to the stand.

Identify Signatures

The witness identified the signatures of Mrs. Hofman and Mrs. Adkins, affixed to statements she said were taken from them by George Charno, former assistant prosecutor. Mrs. Weiner said Mrs. Hofman had inserted penned corrections in the statement before signing it. Recalled for cross examination, Mrs. Hofman denied altering the statement as originally written.

During cross examination, followed by her sudden illness, Mrs. Adkins told the prosecutor she was in such mental confusion the morning after Bennett's death she did not remember what she said, or the circumstances under which she signed the paper.

Page was attempting to show that Mrs. Hofman and the defendant's mother had changed their stories to fit in with the accidental shooting version of the defense, by testifying they did not witness the shooting and leaving Mrs. Bennett the only person able to recount the actual details when she takes the stand.

Accident Discredited

Along with this attack on the credibility of defense witnesses, Page sought to overthrow the defense theory that Bennett was slain accidentally while grappling with his wife.

James A. Reed, defense counsel, previously said powder burns on the shirt Bennett wore at his death, showed the shots had been fired at not more than 12 inches distance.

The prosecution alleges the defendant chased Bennett through the apartment and shot him from a distance as he attempted to reach the front door, two shots going wild before Mrs. Bennett got the range.

At the direction of Page, two police officers and Edward Hickman, gunsmith, tested the former senator's theory in the gallows room. Hickman then took the stand, explaining shots had been fired into broadcloth at ranges from three inches to 25 feet.

Under Page's questioning he described the burn about the bullet hole made by a shot fired at 24 inches as similar to the burn about a bullet hole in Bennett's shirt. This discoloration has been described by Reed as a "powder burn" and by the prosecution as a "bullet burn."

Young Bill Brings Battle Over Fixed Pipe Line Returns

AUSTIN, March 3.—The theory of fixing a "fair return" of 6 to 10 per cent on a public utility oil pipe line was pleaded as a new state policy in the Young bill before the committee on common carriers of the house Tuesday night, and a battery of oil pipe line men, majors and independents, rallied to fight the proposed bill.

A group of 27 listed speakers had not been one-fifth exhausted when the hearing was adjourned until late Wednesday.

Charles B. King, Wichita Falls independent, made telling blows for the bill when he owned on sworn statements of 10 pipe line companies for last year they made over $60,000,000 net income on revenues of $96,000,000 and total investment of $277,000,000, or over 21½ per cent in the year on the investment. The 10 companies' excess profits above 8 per cent, he said, were $37,000,000, or far above the total state ad valorem taxes. He advocated a 40 per cent reduction in pipe line rates to give interior Texas oil a chance to compete with imported oil.

Kilgore Speaks

John Kilgore, Wichita Falls independent, silenced questioners who objected that the state law did not propose to protect a guaranteed return by asking the pipe line attorneys, "will you agree to a recapture clause?"

H. F. Montgomery, Houston, representing Mills Bennet, independent pipe line operator, spoke against the bill, holding the state could not regulate interstate rates.

Ben H. Powell, Austin attorney, argued the railroad commission already has power to regulate oil pipe line rates and the new law would stifle the industry and block further developments.

Long Objects

Buford Long, Wichita Falls independent producer, objected that unjust discrimination in the proration laws, favoring coastal fields, are hurting interior producers, but not the pipe line rates.

Representative Young, author, explained his bill fixing the 6 to 10 per cent return as one bringing down pipe line rates to a basis granting such a return.

Judge Ben Powell of Austin, representing the Humble Oil company, said he did not see how the railroad commission could evaluate the pipe line companies without spending as much as $1,000,000 and taking one year's time in completing the work. He said he feared discrimination because of the difference in the cost of pipe lines.

When the question of convenience and necessity was brought into the discussion and the probabilities of other carriers paralelling those now in existence, Kilgore said there was no field of appreciable importance now in which all of the major pipe line companies were not now operating.

COMMITTEE FAVORS VALIDATING BILL

AUSTIN, March 3. (AP)—The house committee on public lands and buildings tonight voted to report out favorably a bill by Senator Small of Wellington validating the title owners of mineral and grazing lands in West Texas to 15-16ths of the mineral under the soil. Under the bill, 1-16th would be reserved to the state.

The committee voted to report out unfavorably a bill by Representative Graves of Georgetown which would have made the land owners agents of the state and would have reserved to the available school fund one-half the royalties, rentals and bonus received from the land.
