Hatred Of Wife He Murdered Still Haunts George Remus As One-Time "Bootleg King" Keeps Office In Cell And Fights Own Case In Court

"HAPPINESS"—AS DEFINED BY GEORGE REMUS, WHO HAD IT AND LOST IT

BY ALLENE SUMNER NEA Service Writer Here is the definition of happiness that George Remus, who lost his own happiness in the process of making a fortune, gave in his jail cell at Cincinnati: "Happiness is just the love and respect and companionship of men and wife and children in harmonious family life."

He became Remus, the King. I was master in a million-dollar house; I had a marble swimming pool bigger and better than the one in Nero's Golden House. It cost me $30,000 to give a party at the pool. But was I happy?

"Listen, lady, I was never so happy in all my life as when I earned just $5 a week as a drug-seller's devil boy in the back room. I ate for about a dollar a week, paid 50 cent for a room, and saved every nickel I could for night-heaven in Chicago's old theaters."

"I was a Gallery God, and life has never been so sweet since. I saw Joe Jefferson and Sir Henry Irving and Ellen Terry. I saw poor Hamlet and went for mad Ophelia, a snatched at the dagger wounds in 'Macbeth' and Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde sent me home shivering."

"I was just a good kid with life ahead looking sweet to the taste. Then I wanted money. God, what has money ever given me as worth while as those quarter gallery seats in old Chicago?"

our little daughter Romola in Chicago. I had a $15,000 a year law practice. Most of my cases were for women. That was how I met Imogene Holmes. "I don't know why I did it, but she attracted me and amused me and led me on. I got to calling on her. I never had the slightest love for her. We were living with

MUST SHOW CAUSE FOR COURT NOT TO RULE CONTEMPT CHARGE

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—A rule requiring Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and four others to show cause on December 5 why they should not be adjudged in contempt of court as a result of the oil conspiracy jury scandal was issued today by Associate Justice Siddons of the District of Columbia supreme court.

Besides these two others cited in the contempt proceedings are Henry Mason Day and Sheldon Clark, close associates of the wealthy oil operator, W. Sherman Burns, directing head of the Burns international detective agency, and Charles S. Veltch, manager of the Burns Baltimore bureau.

Kidwell Also Charged At the suggestion of Justice Siddons, District Attorney Gordon agreed to file a supplemental petition of contempt in the case of Edward J. Kidwell, Jr., juror number 11, charged with having freely discussed the case during the trial.

Inasmuch as District Attorney Gordon had declined to serve on the committee appointed by Justice Siddons to inquire into the matter of contempt and had had sharp exchanges with the justice, there was some surprise that the district attorney did not take his case to Chief Justice McCoy, as had been expected.

Sinclair Said Leader

Sinclair was charged specifically in the petition with having "ordered, directed and induced" Day and Clark to come to Washington and engage the services of the Burns detective agency, supervise their activities, receivership from them and forward the reports to the chair.

The Furness, it was not known, "will affidavit to be and without truth and fact," the affidavit submitted to the presiding thereby, a provide dence, such as I was, that United States of America, through one of its employees, had tamper with said juror," Glascock

WAFFLES

Plain or Chocolate

A Tested Recipe

2 cups pastry flour 2 eggs
3 teaspoons baking powder 1 1/2 cups milk
1 tablespoon sugar 2 tablespoons Crisco
1/2 teaspoon salt

Sift flour, baking powder, salt and sugar together. Separate eggs and add milk to beaten egg yolks and stir into dry ingredients. Add milk and Crisco and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour by spoonfuls on very hot Criscoed waffle iron. Serve hot with honey or maple syrup.

FOR CHOCOLATE WAFFLES, add two tablespoons melted chocolate with the melted Crisco and follow recipe above.

I use Crisco, not only for my waffles, griddle cakes and hot breads, but for every shortening and frying use. Crisco gives me light tender cakes that you cannot tell from those made with expensive butter; flakier pie crusts; fluffy golden biscuits and all kinds of fried foods without smoke, unpleasant odor or waste.

To test your cooking fat—taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

MANN SEEN AS ALL-AMERICAN IN CONFERENCE

MUSTANGS LOSE HIM AFTER TURKEY DAY CLASH WITH T. C. J.

(Special To The Journal) DALLAS, Nov. 22.—With the passing of Gerald Mann in the Thanksgiving day game against T. C. U. at Fort Worth the Southwestern Methodist university Mustangs will lose a star quarter who deserves serious consideration for the first all-America eleven.

Mann came into considerable prominence a year ago when at least a half dozen nationally prominent critics and coaches gave him the position at quarterback on their third all-America. His pickers included such coaches as Warner and Rockne and such sport writers as Farrell and Billy Evans. He has also been highly praised by such officials as Ernest Quigley and Ed Cochrane.

Mann's Work Uncanny

As a field general Mann's work has been nothing short of uncanny. Tutored by his coach, Roy Morrison, who himself still is talked about as the greatest quarterback ever turned out of the south when he was playing at Vanderbilt, Mann has played the role of the former Commodore star in a natural manner. He is a natural passer, using either hand, and in a broken field he has been aptly called the "Little Red Arrow."

Work is Consistent

Utay bases his conviction on the grounds that Mann's performance has been strikingly consistent, that he has stood up in spite of the responsibilities of his team's captaincy, has used almost super judgment in his flawless selection of plays, diagnosing nearly perfectly the weaknesses and strong points of his opposition, and that he would stand out still prominently were he given a stronger front wall, permitting him more time to get plays under way.

Games have been scheduled with several teams in San Antonio and Austin and others are being arranged. The athletic council of the mines gave its sanction to the trip after a check of the football season, which proved to be very successful, according to Edmund H. Korhn, a member of the council.

Several Good Men

Stewart has several good men around which to build his basketball team. Billy Clark of Austin, star of the football team, is also a star basketball player. Then there is McMillan, San Antonio, who played with San Antonio high school, DeCharme, also from San Antonio, and Hildebrand from Alamo city. Jeff Campbell, from Abilene, also is a forward of no little ability.

About twenty Miners have signed their intention of reporting for practice when Stewart issues the first call. Mack Saxon, assistant football coach, will also assist Stewart with the basketball team.

SALLY LEAGUE ENJOYING NEW PRESTIGE NOW

LLOYD WANER AND OLD MAN WILCOY MOORE AID CIRCUIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Because two of the outstanding stars of the 1927 baseball season in the major leagues were turned out by the South Atlantic Association, major league scouts infused the circuit quite thickly throughout the current season.

Price Of Rookies Is Still Mounting

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—The Chicago White Sox next season will have two of the highest priced players in the history of baseball at shortstop and third base.

Willie Kamm, who cost the Chicago management $100,000 some years ago, immediately won a regular berth but he has never quite proved that he was worth the fancy sum paid for his services.

Billy Evans Says:

Patterson Not Dead

It would seem the dead occasionally return to life. The wire report that Roy Patterson, former member of the Chicago White Sox pitching staff had died, was in error.

Prosperous and happy. Expects to live to a ripe old age and says they will never have to play any benefit for him.

That was the pleasing bit of news I received when my comment relative to his death reached him. One of the finest chaps that ever graced the game, I was genuinely sorry when I learned of his alleged death. Am just as happy to learn it was in error.

Patterson is living on a farm about 50 miles from St. Paul, Minn., and, naturally, was the most surprised man in the world when he learned that he had passed away. He says he doesn't approve of such secrets.

Try this set-up for home-rolled cigarettes

GET some Prince Albert and some makin's papers. Put a fingerful into a paper and roll the grandest home-made cigarette you ever held between your lips. Notice how delightfully fragrant this tobacco is. Now...light one and get that cool, smooth, mild, full-bodied P.A. flavor! A cigarette made with P.A. has that delightful taste that makes you and Prince Albert pals for keeps. P.A. is great in a pipe, too. Try it.

MEXICO HOLDS THREE MEN IN OREGON ORGY

NEW LAW OPPONENTS RELIGION CONFESS RECENT ATTACK

(By Associated Press)
 KILCO CITY, Nov. 22.—Three members of the league defense of religious liberty were arrested as actual leaders of the attempt on November 13 to assassinate General Alvaro Obregón and have confessed to the defense of religious liberty. The men who were in the automobile which was hurled at General Obregon were manufactured and were under arrest. The men under arrest are Luis Vilchik, an engineer employed by the Mexican Light and Power company; Miguel Agustín Pro, described as a Catholic and his brother, Humberto. They were said to have themselves the "defense group" for the defense of religious liberty—an organization connected with the new Mexican religion.

Implicated by Confession
 Information leading to the arrests from confessions of Juan and Lamberto Ruiz, two of the men who were in the automobile for which the bombs were at Obregon. Tirado and Ruiz from whom received when were shot by Obregon's men while attempting to escape. Information from the confession police claim to have of the house where the three leaders and Tirado and Ruiz met to plan the death of General Obregon. Two of three others, yet located, were said to have with them.

REVERSING THE TABLES

Wed at home to work today. The man poor came to the door, dressed in a tattered gown. His stockings were a shame to see, and his shirt was frayed about the knees. Her sorry plight appealed to me. My heart was touched. Said I to her: "Come in and sit you down, and here awhile and maybe I'll get you another gown." and he hurried up the stairs and searched her stock of teddy bears. For things I know she never wears. I found that dame a hat or two and several pairs of shoes. I gave her a small cape and shawl. And she said she'll never use, cleaned her out from head to feet in radiant warm and good and neat. and sent her smiling down the street.

DISMISSAL SEEN IN RAIL ATTACK ON VALUATIONS

(By Associated Press)
 WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The supreme court took action today in the Kansas City Southern Railroad's attack on the interstate commerce commission valuation of its property which under custom would forecast that the suit would be dismissed at an early date.

Having lost in the federal district court for western Missouri, the government appealed the case contending that it was controlled by the supreme court decision in the Los Angeles valuation case. The counsel for the governor was stopped by the court after explaining that the question was in every material respect similar to the Los Angeles litigation and counsel for the railroad was instructed to point out wherein the decision Kansas City Southern suit was not covered by the decision in the other case.

PLAINVIEW AND LUBBOCK MEET ON DECEMBER 6

Neither the Plainview Bulldogs nor the Lubbock Westerners are satisfied with a 6-6 tie game for the 1927 season and arrangements have been made by the officials of both schools for a post-season football game to be played in Plainview on December 2, the week following the Turkey day classics, each will play. For years the Plainview Bulldogs and the Lubbock Westerners have played football games, and the first year is yet to pass, in which a tie game decided the supremacy of the two teams; so the coaches of the two machines have decided that the 1927 game shall not stand as a tie game.

The news of the post-season game meets the desire of many of the high school players, as this season is their last year on the high school team. Numerous high school fans, too, will enjoy the news of the game.

ANNE BRONAUGH

Favorite Stage Star, writes:

"Playing the leading role calls for a perfect voice condition at all times. The throat must always be clear to avoid the embarrassment of coughing during the performance. To have this and at the same time enjoy smoking was a considerable problem for me for many years. I saw so many men smoking Lucky Strikes that I tried them. I am very happy I did. In addition to their most delightful flavor, Lucky Strikes cause me no throat irritation and my voice is always in shape for my work on the stage."

REMUS HATRED

Idea I was giving up my home for her. But one day when I was at her home a plumber began to make trouble. I pitched into him and knocked him down. Unfortunately, I happened in that silk-stocking district of Evanston. Anyone who lived there was 'good copy' for the papers. It was played up big—Prominent Attorney Assaults Plumber in Fair Cities' House.

"My wife divorced me. It was as easy to marry the other woman as to do anything else. My life was ruined anyway. She was a snappy woman and wore her clothes and jewels well. I wanted to be a social leader and I thought she knew how to turn the trick.

Became a Bootlegger "It was for her that I defied the law and came to Cincinnati determined to get out of the $50,000 a year class into the millionaire class by defying that farcical law of prohibition.

Remus paced his office-cell like a madman as he continued. "They might tell you down in the Atlanta pen that this woman, this person, this lump of clay, this mess of pottage for which I sold my home and family, was 'the best woman who ever entered the prison.' They called her 'the angel of the pen.'

"How she loved to show off! She even scrubbed out my cell on her hands and knees, brought me flowers and roast chicken and cake and babied and petted me, just to knife me in the back."

Beads of sweat formed upon the pudgy little man's bulging forehead as he told how his wife looted his mansion of its furniture, even—he says—tearing out light fixtures from the ceiling and placing them in the "doors, setting all his accumulated fortune after wheeling him into giving her power of attorney.

Blistered drop of all to him is his belief that she betrayed him with the very man who had helped put him behind prison bars, and that this man shared in the Remus fortune.

A Regular Office Calling on Remus, the murderer, is not much unlike calling on any attorney in his office. A guard at the main jail door slides back the door so quickly that a reporter's approach that one is barely conscious of iron bars.

I found him tipped back in a chair, a towel under his chin, and a guard shaving him and rubbing bay rum over the bushy fringe of hair edging his heart-shaped bald pate.

Remus, now a prisoner, has his nails pink and as glossy as his black shoes which reflected his blue twill trouser creases, his the an artistic creation of bathed blue bedecked with a lustrous pearl, met me as suavely as though in his own office.

The tiny little cell room was full of a jumbled mass of blankets, boxes, baskets, but there was professional looking desk piled high with Remus' law books, files, a clean white bed, and a private bath in which could be seen "The King's" hair lotion and complexion bottles.

A "secretary" pulls out a chair, and the valet plucks off his towel. "The King" has the entire outfit of jail guards at his beck and call. "And it isn't just for his cigars—he's a guy with a heart," one of them told me.

Sprays of holly decorated the office cell. "From my mansion on 'the hill,' the King proudly explained. There were baskets and vases, too, of withered crimson roses. "From Remus, my daughter," he explained, breaking into his daughter and "only wife," as he puts it.

Seeks Big Words Remus takes his days very seriously now. He is up at 3:30 every morning doing his exercises to keep fit for the trial. Then Remus combs the dictionary for more and bigger words. He never uses one word when six may be squeezed in, nor one syllable when a dozen may be rounded.

"I must corral myself together," the egregious and exasperating principle at stake, "from the tearing fullness of my grateful heart." are some of his pet vocal exercises. (Copyright, 1927 NEA Service, Inc.)

their request, was an affidavit declaring that a petition signed by more than the majority necessary for convoking the house meeting was in their possession.

The governor issued a statement soon afterward criticizing the petitioners, who he said, were "playing fast and loose with the signers of the petition" in withholding the document from his perusal.

"It is a glaring effort," he added, "not only to delude me but to double deal with and double cross the people of the state and every other signer who joined with them in making the so-called petition for recall of the session."

Suspicious of Anonymous "I am always suspicious of anonymous documents," Governor Johnston concluded, "and I do not 'take a cock in this kind of fake procedure.'"

Although the petition has not been made public, its contents are suggested in statements issued October 30, by Mr. Kight and Mr. Hill, the latter declaring that the proposed session was not enough to consider impeachment of the governor. The legislators pointed as reasons for convoking the house meeting the alleged defects in state laws which they said ought to be remedied, and to alleged maladministration in several of the state departments, the highway and the banking departments and the governor's office.

MINE RIOTS

comprised the guard forces. Four airplanes from the guard squadron already were in the area, having been assigned to patrol duty last week.

Louis N. Scherf, chief of staff law enforcement department, in command of the special police, reported that he ordered his men to fire only after the leaders of 400 or 500 persons in the miner delegation refused to heed his command to halt and stormed the gate to the property about 5:30 p. m. Monday.

Report of Witness

An eye witness report of the fight was made to Governor Adams by Sterling B. Lacy, state budget commissioner.

"Day was just breaking when the mob of cursing men, hurling stones, sticks and welding knives, came on like a tornado," Lacy said. "Retreating slowly before them was Louis Scherf with his twenty state policemen, pleading, begging and entreating the mob members to stop.

"Adam Bell, I. W. W. organizer, gave the order for the mob to advance. 'Com on boys. Let's go in an' get em' Bell shouted. He refused to heed Scherf's pleas. A few feet behind Scherf were the state police in two lines. Scherf was cut and bleeding, so were all the members of his force.

"When it became apparent that there was no stopping the force of strikers, Scherf issued an order to fire. The first volley went over the heads of the mob, it did not stop them. The next volley was directed at them. The mob stopped.

A statement issued by the strikers committee blamed "a fool speed cop" for starting the fight by firing into the miners. A shot from this officer, the statement said was followed by a volley from guns of state police.

Two women were among the wounded, one woman dressed in men's clothing was found near the mine. Another was discovered in a hospital at Longmont, where most of the injured were treated. A committee representing striking miners announced all idle workers had been advised to remain at their homes today to avoid possible outbreaks.

Following secret meetings of miners at LaFayette and Erie, in the north field, last night, David Sheehan, member of the committee, today issued the following statement:

Fight for Principle

We are fighting for a principle. Surely the right of free speech is not to be denied us nor our rights as law abiding citizens. The men of the Columbine mine who fired on us are hired assassins of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., and the miners are seriously considering going to Governor Adams in a body to protest against military forces to the northern coal fields.

Our weapons will be forthcoming from the strikers' ranks and we will, compassed by our attitude the support of all Colorado citizens and the nation as well.

We have stronger weapons on our side than fire arms and gas bombs. We prophesy that within

Warrants Charge Murder

Warrants were issued by a judge at Erie, have been made out by a

Justice of the peace there charging Theodore Pert, superintendent of the Columbine and Bud Wyatt of Greeley, under-sheriff of Weld county, with murder in connection with the death of five miners. They are specifically charged with the deaths of John Wasteneo and Nick Spanudacca, miners who fell mortally wounded near the mine entrance.

Sheriff Robinson of Weld county said Pert and Wyatt would be arrested, despite an announcement by A. B. Rompas, Weld county district attorney, that no complaints or warrants would be recognized except those issued by his office or approved by him.

The Weld county coroner has ordered an inquest tomorrow at Greeley in the deaths of the five men.

Officials of the Columbine mine said no attempt would be made to operate it today.

Negroes And White Held For Fighting

Two negroes were jailed and one white man made an appearance bond in the city court here this afternoon as result of the last of three different fights which occurred here during the past twenty-four hours.

Three Mexicans and two white men paid fines in the city court as result of fights last night.

Willie Mason and George Foster, negroes, were arrested at about 1:30 p. m. today as result of a fight following a remark made by one about the wife of the other.

R. C. Sublett, white man, engaged in the conflict in an effort to stop the fight, and as result had to make appearance bond in the city court.

confusin'—he turned the lights off in Benson's living room by means of a switch which positively doesn't exist.
 "Consequently, the suspicion has crept into my mind that he concocted this tale of derring-do in order to shield someone whom he really believes guilty."
 He indicated Markham with a slight movement of the head.
 "Since you, Miss St. Clair, do not wholly agree with me. But then, d'ya see, the legal mind is incredibly rigid and unadaptable once it has been invaded by a notion. You will remember that, because you were with Mr. Alvin Benson on the last evening on earth, and for other reasons equally irrelevant and trivial, Mr. Markham actually concluded that you had had something to do with the gentleman's death."
 He gave Markham a smile of waggish remark, and went on: "Since you, Miss St. Clair, are the only person whom Captain Leacock would shield so heroically, and since I, at least, am convinced of your own innocence, will you not clear up for us a few of those points where your orbit crossed that of Mr. Benson? Such information cannot do the Captain or yourself any harm, and it very possibly will help to banish from Mr. Markham's mind his lingering doubts as to the Captain's innocence."
 Vance's manner had an assuring effect upon the woman; but I could see that Markham was boiling inwardly at Vance's animadversions on him, though he refrained from any interruption.
 Miss St. Clair stared steadily at Vance for several minutes.
 "I don't know why I should trust you, or even believe you," she said evenly; "but now that Captain Leacock has confessed to me—I see no reason why I should not answer your questions. . . . Do you truly think he is innocent of the murder?"
 The question was an involuntary cry; her pent-up emotion had broken through her capacious of calm.
 "I truly do," Vance avowed soberly. "Mr. Markham will tell you that before we left his office I pleaded with him to release Captain Leacock. It was with the hope that your explanations would convince him of the wisdom of such a course that I urged him to come here."
 Something in his tone and manner seemed to inspire her confidence.
 "What do you wish to ask me?" she asked.
 Vance cast another reproachful glance at Markham, who was restraining his outraged feelings only with difficulty; and then turned back to the woman.
 "First of all, you will explain how your gloves and hand bag found their way into Mr. Benson's house? The presence there has been preying most distressingly on the district attorney's mind."
 She turned a direct, frank gaze upon Markham.
 "I dined with Mr. Benson at his invitation. Things between us were not pleasant, and when we started for home, my resentment of his attitude increased.
 "At Times square I ordered the chauffeur to stop—I preferred returning home alone. In my anger and my haste to get away, I must have dropped my gloves and bag. It was not until Mr. Benson had driven off that I realized my loss, and having no money, I walked home. Since my things were found in Mr. Benson's house, he must have taken them there himself."
 "Such was my own belief," said Vance. "And—my word—it's a decidedly long walk out here, what?"
 He turned to Markham with a tantalizing smile.
 "Really, y' know, Miss St. Clair couldn't have been expected to reach here before one."
 Markham, grim and resolute, made no reply.
 "And now," pursued Vance, "I should love to know under what circumstances the invitation to dinner was extended."

ance prevents Markham from arresting Leacock when he's statements strengthen case against the Captain. is brought out that Pfyfe forged Alvin Benson's name check.  NOW BEGIN THE STORY
 CHAPTER XLV
 Tuesday, June 19: 4:30 p. m.)
 The quest for enlightenment which we are now embarked upon, Vance, as we rode up town, prove a bit tedious. But you exert your willpower and bear me. You can imagine what a task I have on my hands. It's not a pleasant one either a bit too young to be sent, and yet, as you know, I'm old you mind telling me why you're calling on Miss St. Clair? Markham resignedly.
 I am, indeed, I deem it for you to know. There are at need elucidation. First, the gloves and the handkerchief nor mandragora medicine there to that sleep which thou owd'at year until you have learned about articles—eh, what?—Then, recall, Miss Hoffman told us he Major was lending an ear a certain lady called upon the day he was shot. I suspect the visitor was Miss St. Clair, and I am rather curious to what took place in the office, and why she came back.
 why did she go to Benson's that afternoon? And what the jewels play in the chit- but there are other items. Ample: Why did the Captain go to her? What makes think she shot Benson?—he believes it, y' know. And did she think that he was from the first? Markham looked skeptical.
 You expect her to tell us all
 My hopes run high," returned Vance. "With her verriy perfidiously knight jalled as a self-confessed murderer, she will have nothing to lose by unburdening her soul. But we must have no blustering, our police brand of aggressive examination will, I assure you, have no effect upon the lady."
 "But how do you propose to elicit your information?"
 "With morbidezza, as the painters say. Much more refined and gentlemanly, y' know."
 Markham considered a moment.
 "I think I'll keep out of it, and leave the Socratic elenctus entirely to you."
 "An extraordinary brilliant suggestion," said Vance.
 When we arrived Markham announced over the house telephone that he had come on a vitally important mission; and we were received by Miss St. Clair without a moment's delay. She was apprehensively I imagine, concerning the whereabouts of Captain Leacock.
 As she sat before us in her little drawing room overlooking the Hudson, her face was quite pale and her hands, though tightly clasped, trembled a little. She had lost much of her cold reserve, and there were unmistakable signs of sleepless worry about her eyes.
 Vance went directly to the point. His tone was almost flippant in its directness; it at once relieved the tension of the atmosphere, and gave a bordering on inconsequent to our visit.
 Captain Leacock has, I regret to say, very foolishly confessed the murder of Mr. Benson. We are not entirely satisfied as bona fides. We are, alas! between Scylla and Charibdis, and can not decide whether the villain is a deep dyed villain or a shallow one. The story of how he acceded to the dark deed is a bit vague on certain details; and—what's most

COOLIDGE RAPS DRAFT PLANS IN HIS NOMINATION

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—President Coolidge disapproves of the circulation of petitions throughout the country urging him to run for re-election in 1938.

The attitude of the chief executive was made clear today at the White House where it was said that Mr. Coolidge hoped the circulation of these petitions would be stopped. The latest series of petitions were disclosed last night in the announcement that an "endless chain" letter series was about to be started urging the re-nomination of the president. It was said today the president did not see that any good could come of the circulation of these petitions.

No Official Notice
The reference to Mr. Coolidge's desire to take himself out of the 1938 race was the first official authoritative mention of the subject since he issued his now famous statement in the Black Hills August 26, that he "did not choose to run." There was no typewritten notice given today as to what the president is thinking about. The information is given in the regular way that Mr. Coolidge's views are made public through the press and no direct quotations were authorized.

An effort was made to obtain permission for publication of the White House statement as a direct and official quotation, but it was said that Mr. Coolidge desired to have it made public in the way that all the news of the White House is disseminated.

SEVEN WHO SAW REMUS SHOOTING ON STAND TODAY

(By Associated Press) CINCINNATI, O., Nov. 22.—Seven men and women who saw George Remus shoot his estranged wife, Imogene, in Eden Park here last October 6, or were near enough at the time to see him standing over her with a pistol, were called as witnesses for the prosecution in Remus' murder trial today.

When Remus' motor car forced Mrs. Remus' taxicab into the curb and halted it for hit fatal attack upon her a traffic jam was created involving the motor cars of those who gave evidence today against the former Chicago lawyer who became the "king of bootleggers." The eighth witness of the forenoon session was Lieutenant William C. Knight of the Cincinnati police department who rode to the hospital with Mrs. Remus. It was indicated by the prosecution that medical witnesses would be called at the afternoon session.

Pat Thomas, formerly of Denver but now in charge of the music department at Barrier Brothers store, has installed a loud-speaker in connection with his phonograph department and music from records is thus transmitted to passers-by on the street and sidewalk. Mr. Thomas says he plans a number of changes and improvements in the music department.

Fleet Of Reo Cars Is Displayed Here

Do you want to drive a new car, the latest in motor transportation? Just step around to the West Texas Reo company, 1106 Avenue L and ask to see the fleet of Reo Flying Clouds and Wolverines which are visiting here today and tomorrow. Get behind the wheel of one and let it carry you over the streets of the city, step on the brakes and feel yourself coming to a dead stop.
That is what they are asking you at the company's office today. The fleet, touring the state, is open for inspection from the citizens of Lubbock and everybody is invited to drive the new cars. The fleet contains three Reo Flying Clouds, two Reo Wolverines and three Reo speed wagons.

Daughter Of Noted Publisher Marries

GIRARD, Kansas, Nov. 22 (AP)—The marriage, on a companionate basis, of Josephine Haldeman-Julius, 18, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Haldeman-Julius, Girard publishers and Aubrey Clay Rosello, former University of Kansas student, took place at the home of the bride's parents here at 10 o'clock this morning. The Rev. L. M. Birkhead, pastor of the All Souls Unitarian church at Kansas City, read the ceremony. The wedding was originally set for Thanksgiving day.

Belgian Asked To Form New Cabinet

BRUSSELS, Nov. 22 (AP)—Premier Henri Jasper, whose coalition cabinet resigned yesterday, was asked by King Albert today to form a new cabinet, when the King received him in audience. Jasper received permission to postpone his reply until tomorrow.
The resignation of the cabinet, which took office May 20, 1926, came after a meeting which revealed the impossibility of reconciling the conflicting views of the socialist and non-socialist ministers on the period of military service. The socialists wanted military service reduced from ten months to six months. Count De Broqueville, minister of defense, proposed that the entire military question be submitted to a mixed commission of deputies and higher officers. This was rejected and the resignations followed.

"DUNLOP CITY"

five times as big as ATLANTA

DUNLOP CITY

Throughout the world the productive Dunlop properties cover so vast an area that—if combined into one place—they would form a "Dunlop City" of over 100,000 acres.

THE great industrial capital of the South—Atlanta, with her 19,634 acres—is but one-fifth the size of "Dunlop City."

And even greater than the size of "Dunlop City," is Dunlop's world-wide reputation for building uniformly supreme Dunlop Tires.

Supreme quality made possible Dunlop's great size. In turn, Dunlop's great size makes possible this same supreme quality, at lower prices than ever.

You can expect more of Dunlops.
