To prove a point

SEOUL, South Korea — Bellicose. Hardheaded. Illogical. Those words have been used often in the past to describe North Korea, and they serve well today. By marching armed troops daily into the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea in violation of their armistice, North Korea appears to be trying, oddly, to achieve peace./3A

Texas voters head back to polls

From Staff Reports

Midlanders join their counterparts across the state today in casting ballots in runoff elections resulting from the Republican and Democratic primaries held last month.

Polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Locally, only two contested races will be on the ballot, and in both cases they will involve Republican candidates.

Those races are:

■ County commissioner, Precinct 1: Melvin "Mac" McEwen and Henry E. Goulet. On primary election day, none of the three candidates garnered more than 50 percent of the vote. Goulet, the incumbent, took 47.3 percent of the vote. McEwen received 38 percent.

■ Justice of the peace, Precinct 4: George D. Zimmerman and John Miller. Among the five people who filed for this newly created position, Zimmerman and Miller fared the best in the GOP primary. Zimmerman took 47.5 percent of the vote, while Miller received 18.2 percent.

In addition, there are three statewide races on the Republican ballot and three on the Democratic ballot.

Following is a list of polling places for the Republican runoff election.

Precincts 101,101A, 102, 103, 105, 105A, 106, 106A: Alamo Junior High School, 3800 W. Storey Ave.

Dow plunges as lower-rate hopes wither

■ Wall Street reaction to strong jobs report further complicates economic outlook in presidential election year.

N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON — Stock and bond prices tumbled on Monday as long-term interest rates continued a swift, sharp ascent that is at odds with the Federal Reserve's policy of keeping rates stable and that analysts said could endanger the moderate rate of growth expected this year.

The latest rise in interest rates was set off by data on Friday that showed the economy creating jobs at a faster-than-expected clip. Although the stock market was closed for Good Friday, long-term rates jumped sharply in the bond market. On Monday that rise, plus a further increase in interest rates, gave the stock market a bad case of the jitters, put upward pressure on mortgage rates and further complicated the economic outlook in a presidential election year.

Early this year, the economy appeared to be running out of steam. But more recently, investors seem to perceive it as rebounding strongly enough to revive fears of inflation. And that fear has set in motion an upward move in long-term rates — including those that make home mortgages and auto loans more costly — that may well act to restrain the economy's growth later this

Fingering a relative: Brother got analysis of Kaczynski's writings

WASHINGTON (AP) — His suspicions raised by the Unabomber's travels and writings, a fearful David Kaczynski launched a private investigation of his brother last fall. He was anguished to learn from a retired FBI analyst that there was a 60 percent to 80 percent chance Theodore Kaczynski wrote the Unabomber's manifesto.

"David wanted very much to believe that Ted was not involved and still would like to believe that," David's attorney, Tony Bisceglie, said Monday. Now, David "is somewhat in shock. I think he believes that his brother is involved."

When Clinton Van Zandt, the FBI's retired chief hostage negotiator, and two of his experts finished analyzing two of Theodore Kaczynski's personal letters at yearend, he telephoned David's private detective that "we felt very strongly this individual could be the author of the Unabomber's manifesto and she

State asks federal court to stay its anti-affirmative action ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas asked a federal appeals court Monday to block an anti-affirmative action ruling and allow universities to consider students' ethnicity in admissions while the state appeals the decision.

In documents filed with the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans, the state argued that the importance of the decision — and its far-reaching effects — warrant a stay while Texas takes the legal battle over affirmative action to the U.S. Supreme Court.

A three-judge panel of the 5th Circuit last month struck down the University of Texas Law School's admissions policy. The court said UT had failed to justify favoring some racial groups.

The decision came in a lawsuit filed by four white law school applicants.

Midland's population grew by five this week as five visitors from Argentina were presented honorary citizenships by Mayor Bobby Burns.

The five are in town this week as part of a Group Study Exchange sponsored by the Rotary Club. A team from the club's West Texas district is visiting Argentina.

"The idea is to get to know each other," said Julian Morley, team leader and from the town of Curuzu Cuatia in the Argentine state of Corrientes. "We feel this is a very valuable program," the 61-year-old rancher added. "The Rotarians aim to enhance understanding between peoples. This way, we can stop wars, hot and cold, and end the mistrust and misunderstanding that makes it difficult to live in peace. This is money well spent by the Rotary clubs."

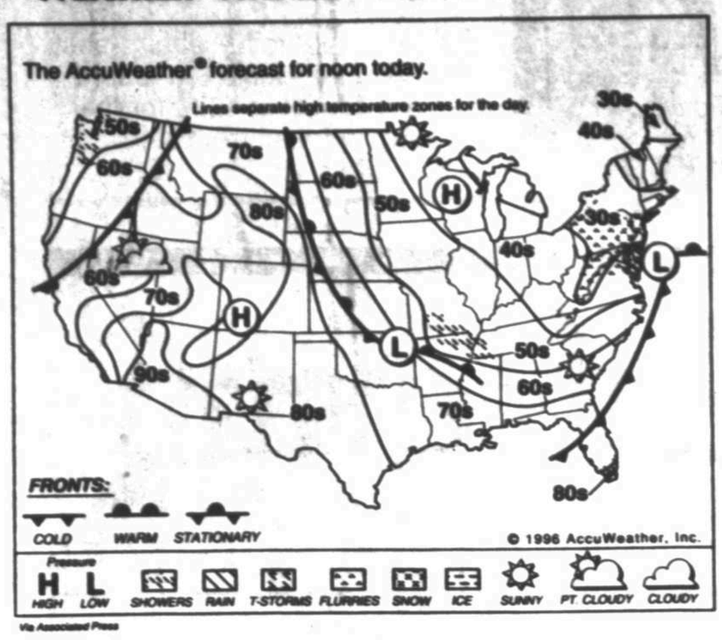

As part of that effort, he presented a letter from the mayor of his home town to Mayor Burns and said he brought letters for the mayors of Big Spring, Lubbock, Amarillo, Plainview and Pampa as well.

Morley, who is making his first trip to the United States, said the exchange project entails outstanding young people — all

WEATHER WATCH

Mr. Weather sees high near 85

Staff Report

The aftermath of April's rare snow is more sunny days.

The weatherman at the National Weather Service at Midland International Airport is calling for a high temperature near 85 degrees today under sunny skies. Winds are to be southerly at 5 to 15 mph.

Tonight is to be fair, and the temperature is to drop to 50 to 55 degrees.

Wednesday is to be a mostly sunny day, when the mercury is to rise between 85 and 90 degrees.

Monday's peak temperature was 79 degrees, and the overnight low temperature was 42 degrees.

The record high temperature for April 8 is 95 degrees in 1963, and the record low temperature for the date is 28 degrees in 1938.

STATE

Sunny skies prevailed statewide Monday as a dry cool front stretched from Lufkin to Waco to Abilene.

Highs temperatures were mostly in the mid- to upper 70s statewide.

At 3 p.m., readings ranged from 69 degrees at Wichita Falls in North Texas and Guadalupe Pass in Far West Texas to 83 degrees at McAllen in the Lower Rio Grande Valley and Lufkin in Deep East Texas.

A trough in New Mexico brought southwest winds at 15 to 25 mph to West Texas. A weak high pressure ridge behind the cold front kept South Texas winds light and variable. North Texas had northerly winds at 10 to 15 mph.

The North Texas forecast is for partly cloudy skies today with highs of 71 in the northeast to 82 in the west. Tuesday night will be fair with lows of 51 to 57.

South Texas is to be sunny today with highs in the 70s along the coast to 80s inland. Lows will be in the 50s and 60s.

Forecasters said West Texas will have mostly sunny days and fair nights through Wednesday. Highs today mostly in the 80s and 90s. Lows in the 40s and 50s.

NATION

Up to 8 inches of snow fell across New England on Monday, and more snow was possible as a new storm headed for the East Coast.

A low pressure system spread snow showers and rain across parts of the middle East Coast during the night and into New England during the day.

Up to 8 inches of wet snow in northern Massachusetts closed schools, caused scattered power outages and forced the Red Sox to postpone Monday's home opener in Boston against the Twins.

"It doesn't happen every year but it's not unusual," said William Babcock of the National Weather Service in Taunton, Mass.

Rhode Island also got up to 8 inches, bringing the state's total since November to 96.8 inches. The previous record, set in the winter of 1947-48, was only 75.6 inches.

"When's this weather going to stop?" asked Madeline Guzman, waiting for a bus in Newport, R.I., with her young daughters.

Not anytime soon.

non-Rotary Club members — from a variety of businesses and professions.

He was accompanied by Aldo Brambilla, a plant manager from Monte Caseros in Corrientes. Brambilla manages a plant that manufactures 25 tons of cotton yarn. He visited South Carolina's textile mills in 1992.

Gaby Tomasella, who will turn 25 Thursday, is from Goya in the state of Corrientes. She is a teacher and a computer programmer. She teaches English as a Second Language to kindergarten and elementary school students and computers to high school students. This is her first trip to the United States.

Also making her first trip to the United States is Noemi Otazu, from the state of Formosa. She is a biochemist who operates her own laboratory in a medical center. She is also a chemistry teacher.

The fifth member of the group is Olegario Royo from Saenz Pena in the state of Chaco. He studied in Australia and Great Britain, earning his master's degree in genetics from the University of Birmingham. He was also an exchange student in Iowa as a 15-year-old. He works for the national institute that does agricultural research, working in the institute's seed bank. He said he hopes to manage the institute's gene bank.

Among the activities the group has participated in since arriving from Big Spring last weekend are attending a Midland Angels baseball game and Easter services at various Midland churches. They will leave Midland for Lubbock Friday and continue on to Amarillo, Pampa and Plainview. Afterwards, some will return to Argentina while others will spend a week vacationing in Florida.

Morley said, and his companions agreed, that his main impression of the state is of the friendship, welcome, hospitality and warmth of Texans.

He added that once the group returns to Argentina, sharing their Texas experiences with other Argentinians as well as the Texans visiting Argentina, will be an ongoing process.

Spending last week in Big Spring, the group got to witness first-hand the variety of weather West Texas can offer, from sunshine to rain to snow.

So the first thing Morley intends to tell his fellow Argentinians?

"I'll tell them to dress warm," hesaid jokingly.

STAY: State seeks to block appeals court ruling

(From 1A)

learning are prohibited from considering race in any manner in their admissions processes," Attorney General Dan Morales and other state lawyers told the 5th Circuit on Monday in seeking a stay.

Morales has said he expects the U.S. Supreme Court to agree to consider the case and predicted that arguments would be scheduled for this fall.

The 5th Circuit by its decision has "effectively overruled" the Supreme Court's 1978 Bakke decision allowing race to be considered as a factor in university admissions decisions, the state said.

"Even if one were to assume that a majority of the current Supreme Court would in the end overrule ... Bakke, it is unlikely to permit a court of appeals to do so," the state said.

"Bakke is itself a landmark decision, in a highly charged area of the law where it is particularly critical to ensure that changes in the interpretation of the 14th Amendment are not simply products of changes in the composition of the federal judiciary," it said.

The 5th Circuit's decision has called into question the permissibility of affirmative-action admissions programs in public colleges, universities and professional schools throughout the 5th Circuit, the state said. The court's jurisdiction covers Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi.

"The threat of disruption to existing admissions programs — including those underway to select students for next fall's enrollment — is also plain," the state said.

"The prospect of changes in admissions practices midstream — which would prejudice students applying at different times for entry into the same academic class — is real," the state said.

Morales has said that any university that accepts federal money is believed to fall under the 5th Circuit ruling.

The University of Texas, Texas A&M and Rice University in Houston have announced changes to their admissions policies under the 5th Circuit ruling's guidelines barring the use of race or ethnicity.

The UT Law School's 1992 policy, under which the white applicants in the lawsuit sought admission, already had been scrapped during the litigation, the state noted. That policy used a separate committee to evaluate minority applicants.

The later policy gave each prospective student "fully individualized treatment on his or her own merits," with race considered among other factors, the state said.

CLUB: Annual ranking reflects corporate overhaul

(From 1A)

Ford Motor Co. in second place, Exxon Corp. in third, Wal-Mart Stores Inc. in fourth and AT&T Corp. in fifth.

Fortune, which is publishing the 500 list in its April 29 edition, ranks publicly owned U.S. companies by annual revenues. The magazine also looks at their earnings, and found they made $244 billion in 1995, up from $215.25 billion in 1994.

Yet total employment at the 500 barely budged from the previous year, rising 0.2 percent. That suggests many companies have learned to do more using about the same, or fewer, workers.

At No. 88 Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., revenue was up 7.1 percent and profits rose 7.8 percent although employment fell 2,700 to 87,390. At No. 7 General Electric Co., revenue rose 8.3 percent and profits jumped 39.1 percent as the company increased its work force by 1,000 employees, or about .04 percent.

At other companies, such as No. 40 Boeing Co., job losses did mean lower revenue.

But not all the job reductions were due to layoffs or the elimination of staff. Employment at No. 16 Kmart Corp. fell to 250,000 from 335,000, partly because the store chain spun off some of its subsidiaries into separate companies. That also helped push Kmart down one notch on the list to No. 15.

Some of the Kmart jobs were added back to the total Fortune 500 employment as OfficeMax, a former Kmart division, joined the list at No. 483.

There was evidence of corporate makeovers throughout the list. Sears, Roebuck and Co. fell to 15th place from No. 9 after spinning off Allstate Insurance — which is so big it debuted at No. 31.

ITT Corp. broke up into three, and all made the list. The conglomerate ranked No. 23 in 1994. Federated Department Stores Inc., after digesting R.H. Macy & Co. Inc. and Broadway Stores Inc., moved up to No. 69 from 141.

Some stalwarts of the past were history: Borden Inc. was swallowed by investment firm Kohlberg Kravis Roberts & Co. Capital Cities/ABC and CBS disappeared as part of the big media merger boom. Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea (A&P to most of us), was evicted from the list because it's now owned by a foreign company.

GM was the most profitable company, earning $6.88 billion for the year. The automaker's employment did rise, to 709,000 from 1994's 692,800.

Employment also was up along with revenues at International Business Machines Corp., which had cut 150,000 jobs from 1990-94.

IBM also moved up in the rankings to No. 6, swapping places with General Electric. Mobil remained No. 8, while Chrysler Corp. returned to the top 10, moving to ninth position from No. 11. Philip Morris Cos. was ranked No. 10 for the third year in a row.

The Fortune 500 is the flagship list of Fortune magazine, published by Time Warner's magazine division.

STOCKS: Long-term rates continue sharp ascent year without requiring any action by the Federal Reserve.

(From 1A)

The Dow Jones industrial average fell 88.51 points on Monday, or 1.56 percent, to close at 5,594.37, after having been down as much as 140 points during the day.

Interest rates on long-term government bonds rose to 6.87 percent, up from Friday's close of 6.82 percent and well above the 6.67 percent rate on Thursday. At the beginning of the year, the benchmark 30-year bond yielded only 5.85 percent.

Investors sell bonds, driving up interest rates, when they believe that inflation may erode the value of their holdings or because they think that the Federal Reserve will raise official interest rates to stem inflation.

Unlike the Federal Reserve, which manipulates short-term rates after lengthy deliberations in an effort to keep the economy on an even keel, the bond market is driven by the self-interest of investors and their snap judgments about whether to buy or sell securities.

Those judgments often play a useful role in guiding the Federal Reserve and in helping to smooth out economic ups and downs. But in this case, many economists said, the market appears to be overreacting to economic data that may exaggerate the economy's strength, and that such a sharp rise in rates may well not be justified, especially since there are few signs of incipient inflation.

But whether its conclusions are justified or not, the market effectively sets mortgage rates and heavily influences other long-term loans. If the current surge in rates continues it could put the economy on the skids later this year, economists said.

"The market is saying that the economy cannot afford much of a re-acceleration in job growth without reigniting inflation," said Mark Vitner, an economist with the First Union Corp., a banking company in Charlotte, N.C. "From a fundamental economic standpoint the market is overreacting. I don't think the pick-up in job growth we've seen this year in any way confirms that the economy is about to re-accelerate or has already reaccelerated."

Previously worried about a faltering economy, the Federal Reserve last cut rates on Jan. 31, when it lowered its federal funds rate by a quarter-point, to 5.25 percent, after cutting rates twice during the second half of 1995. After the January rate cut, most economists predicted further reductions this year, saying the economy was still weak.

But the Federal Reserve held rates steady at the last meeting of its policy-making committee, on March 26, and no one expects it to reduce rates when the committee next meets, on May 21. The outlook for the rest of the year is murky, economists said.

While the heavy selling in the bond market on Friday and on Monday came in response to new data on the economy's strength, the rate increases also reflect the waning hopes of investors for a deal between the Clinton administration and the Republican-controlled Congress to balance the budget in seven years, economists said. A balanced budget would mean less government borrowing and therefore less upward pressure on rates.

FINGER: Upon 1st suspicions, brother gets analysis needed to immediately get her client to the FBI," Van Zandt said in an interview.

(From 1A)

"There are similarities in ideology ... in phraseology and ... in the spelling of certain words," Bisceglie said.

The private agony of David Kaczynski and how the 46-year-old Schenectady, N.Y., social worker came to tip off the FBI about his older brother was detailed by Bisceglie at a news conference here.

Simultaneously at the Justice Department, federal prosecutors from seven states — California, Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, Montana, New Jersey and Utah — met for three hours to plan their legal strategy against Theodore Kaczynski. The 53-year-old former math professor, charged in Montana with possessing bomb parts, is suspected of the bombings that killed three people and injured 23 in nine states over the past 18 years.

Federal investigators have placed Theodore Kaczynski in northern California on dates when bombs were mailed from the region, a law enforcement official said Monday.

In a preliminary discussion of where and how many federal cases might be brought in the Unabomb case, the prosecutors noted that two killings, one in northern New Jersey in 1994 and another in Sacramento in 1995, occurred after the federal death penalty was restored to laws that might apply, a senior federal official said on condition of anonymity.

Merrick Garland, chief aide to Deputy Attorney General Jamie Gorelick, was put in charge of the investigation, the same role he filled after the bombing of a federal building a year ago in Oklahoma City.

Bisceglie was hired by David Kaczynski during the first week of January to relay his suspicions to the FBI. Among the first things Bisceglie told an FBI agent in Washington was the result of the Van Zandt team's comparison of writings by an unnamed individual and the manifesto. "The information was taken very seriously," Bisceglie said.

At that time, neither Bisceglie nor David knew there was a $1 million reward. If they collect the money, the Kaczynskis are considering giving it to families of Unabomber victims.

"Our hearts are with Ted. Our deep sympathies go out to the victims and their families," the family said in a statement Monday. Bisceglie said family members had had no contact with Theodore since he was charged but would see him if he agreed.

David Kaczynski told their mother, Wanda, about the investigation only two weeks ago. "She expressed her sincere belief that Ted could not be the Unabomber, but she also stated that if he were then he had to be stopped," Bisceglie said.

In an interview, Van Zandt, a veteran of 25 years with the FBI, said that last December he was given a 10-year-old, four-page letter and a one- or two-year-old, one-page letter by Chicago private detective Susan Swanson, who was working for David.

Van Zandt, a psychiatrist and a linguist compared them to the 35,000-word manifesto on the inhumanity of industrial society. They looked at "how the sentences were structured, the wording and use of phrases to profile the author's academic training," Van Zandt said. The team also "looked at the ideas expressed for a psychological profile, whether he was a loner or member of a group, in society or separate."

That team concluded there was a better than 60 percent chance the same person wrote the letters and the manifesto.

A couple weeks later, Van Zandt and two communications experts concluded a separate analysis of "the overall themes, the style and form" and concluded there was more than an 80 percent chance of one author.

"I consider David to be a national hero," Van Zandt said. He said that the discovery of a partial and a complete pipe bomb at Theodore's Montana cabin indicates David "could very well have saved lives by coming forward."

David's first suspicions about his brother arose late last summer when he read about the Unabomber's suspected travels, Bisceglie said.

The younger Kaczynski noted that the FBI believed the Unabomber grew up in Chicago, like his brother, and had connections to the University of California at Berkeley, where Theodore taught math in 1968-9, and to Utah, where he had worked in the early 1970s. Bisceglie said David had not seen Ted in six years and was not aware of his traveling outside Montana during that period.

"There was a nagging feeling that Ted had some connection to those locations, but it was dismissed," Bisceglie said, until October when David read the just-published manifesto.

David "was left with considerable unease," Bisceglie said, and hired Swanson.

Bisceglie denied reports that he or the family sought assurances that prosecutors would not seek the death penalty.

He confirmed that the family sent Ted money — hundreds of dollars at Christmas or birthdays.

And he said Theodore as a youth had hobbies of wood carving and rocket making.

North Korea tries to prove a point, dangerously

By Reid G. Miller
Associated Press

■ News analysis

SEOUL, South Korea — Bellicose. Hardheaded. Illogical. Those words have been used often in the past to describe North Korea, and they serve well today.

By marching armed troops into the demilitarized zone separating North and South Korea in violation of their armistice, North Korea appears to be trying, oddly, to achieve peace.

At issue is a treaty that would finally and officially end the Korean War, 46 years after it began with a North Korean invasion of the South.

North Korea wants a peace treaty with the United States, one that would cut South Korea out of the action. Washington would like one, too, but between the Koreas.

North Korea, however, refuses to negotiate with what it calls a puppet state, and has been badgering the United States to come to the bargaining table for two years.

Washington has resolutely declined the invitation and isn't likely to change its position, reiterated Monday by Jim Coles, the chief U.S. military spokesman in Seoul.

"The United States will not do anything that works to the detriment of the Republic of Korea," Coles said. "The U.S. government has stated many times that it will not conduct separate peace talks with Pyongyang."

It's a position President Clinton is sure to emphasize when he meets next week with President Kim Young-sam on the South Korean resort island of Cheju.

Last month, the North said it would take "final steps" to prove that the armistice — which halted the fighting but didn't officially end the war — was ineffective and needed to be replaced by a permanent treaty.

Then, last Friday evening, it marched about 130 heavily armed soldiers into the northern part of Panmunjom, the village straddling the demilitarized zone where the armistice was signed in 1953. They didn't stay long, marching out again about 2 1/2 hours later without incident.

The North repeated the almost theatrical exercise Saturday and Sunday nights, stirring up concerns for national security in the South just days before its national legislative elections. But while it appeared that North Korea would continue the stunt during the next several days, if not weeks, there were no reported incursions Monday.

North Korea accused the South of being the first to violate the armistice by illegally introducing men, tanks, artillery and other heavy weapons into the buffer zone — a charge the South denied.

The North said it was acting defensively. But aside from the nightly incidents at Panmunjom, there was no sign of increased military activity on the northern side of the 151-mile-long demilitarized zone.

So if the Panmunjom exercises aren't truly defensive, what are they?

North Korea's "main intention undoubtedly is to sign a peace treaty with the United States," Dr. Park Young-kyu, a senior analyst at the Research Institute for National Unification, a South Korean government think tank.

Massacre survivors appear after months

SAHMERI, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bekir Husejinovic was one of six men to emerge from hiding in the past few days, stunning relatives who had assumed them dead. "Is it the truth that my son is alive?" his mother, Zineta Husejinovic, cried. "I can't believe my son is in front of me."

The Muslim enclave fell to the Serbs in July, and thousands of men are believed to have been hunted down and slaughtered. Bekir and five other men arrived in government-controlled territory only Saturday, telling reporters and local TV stations that they survived for nine months by hiding in bunkers just a couple of miles from Srebrenica and eating corn kernels and potatoes.

Their extraordinary story comes just as spring's thaw is uncovering suspected mass grave sites.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, APRIL 9, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Others will urge total candor. Be cautious. Always revealing exactly what is on your mind can cause setbacks. A financial surprise will allow you to make some special purchases. The romantic picture is brightest for those who want to settle down. Conscientious and thoughtful, you are close to being the "perfect" partner in either business or marriage. Search for someone who shares your moral values and strong commitment to excellence.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: model Paulina Porizkova, Playboy founder Hugh Hefner, actor Dennis Quaid, actress Keshia Knight-Pulliam.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): The emphasis now is on providing for your financial future. Go over recent savings and checking account statements; you could find an error. A new addition to the family will increase your insurance needs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An unusual career or financial opportunity could arise this week. You need to consult family members before making a long-range decision. Distant affairs can be lucrative.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your financial situation is changed by a stroke of good luck. Your coworkers' pessimism fails to dampen your spirits. A phone call alerts you to a family crisis.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A joint effort to please higher-ups could fall short of the mark today. Refrain from issuing ultimatums. Solo projects enjoy favorable influences.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Any disagreements are apt to center on the right way to disperse funds. A compromise is the best solution. Questions of personal prestige assume new importance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A good day to ask for favors and seek loans. Paying careful attention to detail will prevent costly mistakes. Share a secret with someone in a position to help you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Others will let go of the past if you do. A member of the opposite sex could be waiting for you to take the initiative. Your social life accelerates.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Allow things to settle down before you take a stand on a divisive issue. Modify your plans if you fear that you are being overly confident. A second job is one answer to a cash shortage.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Put a big job aside while you tackle the little ones that have been piling up. A relative may give you the cold shoulder. Withhold judgment until you have all the facts.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Romance looks highly promising. Nothing should stop you from carrying out your plans today. Use the fax and phone to save valuable time. You need to be prompt about paying bills and answering letters.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Keep a low profile and avoid trying to force your views on others. Home is a wonderful place to regroup when you feel stressed. Be honest with yourself. Change can be exhausting. Go slow.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): The emphasis this month is on replacing bad habits with good ones. It may be necessary to travel a long distance today. Before starting out, check to be sure you have everything you need.

Opening lead: King of ◇ South has two reasonable lines to land the six heart contract. What are they? Which of the two is superior?

While we are committed to the principle that opener is allowed to raise responder's major with only three-card support, that only holds true if opener has no better bid. With a stopper in every suit and a balanced hand (we consider four diamonds headed by 10 9 as a stopper in depth), we would prefer a rebid of one no trump by North.

That would probably have made it much more difficult for North-South to reach the excellent heart slam, so who are we to quarrel with success?

After West leads the king of diamonds, what are declarer's chances?

One line is to hope that trumps divide evenly. Cash the two top hearts and, if both defenders follow, you can ruff a spade and conceded only a spade trick. If trumps turn out to be 3-1 and you have a sure trump loser, you can still ruff a spade and need a successful club finesse to land your slam.

The other line is to draw only one round of trumps with the ace. If spades are 4-3, the slam is cold. You can ruff two spades in dummy and, even if a defender overruffs the fourth spade, the trump is your only loser. This line also succeeds if spades break 5-2 and the defender with the long spades also holds the three hearts or if West has the trump length. If the third spade is overruffed by East, and the table's last trump is drawn, you can still fall back on the club finesse.

Obviously, the second line is by far the stronger of the two.

Tammy Faye won't give up trademark heavy mascara during cancer surgery

LOS ANGELES — Tammy Faye Messner, ex-wife of PTL evangelist Jim Bakker, won't give up her trademark heavy mascara — not even during cancer surgery.

Tammy Faye won't have to give up her heavy mascara.

"They didn't make me take it off. I had wonderful doctors and understanding nurses. I went in fully made up and came out fully made up," Mrs. Messner told "Entertainment Tonight" in an interview for broadcast Tuesday.

She underwent surgery for colon cancer on March 7 at Eisenhower Medical Center in Rancho Mirage, where she lives with her husband, Roe Messner.

She said that in spite of bleeding, she had put off a cancer examination for a year because she was embarrassed to see a male doctor. Finally, she found a woman doctor and made an appointment.

"If there's one thing I would like to tell people it is, 'Don't wait when something happens, get it taken care of,'" Mrs. Messner said.

She is undergoing chemotherapy and radiation therapy. Her prognosis for recovery has been described as good.

Bakker served a prison term for fraud connected to his PTL ministry. Roe Messner, a former associate of Bakker's, was sentenced last month to 27 months in prison on a bankruptcy fraud conviction; he is free pending appeal.

NEW YORK — Dan Quayle has some advice for America's parents: Regulate what your kids watch on TV.

In case you were wondering, the former vice president does let his three children watch "Murphy Brown."

"They'd say, 'Hey Dad, your favorite TV show is on!'" Quayle says in an interview in the April 12-14 edition of USA Weekend magazine.

Quayle's book on family values, "The American Family," comes out next week. In it, the 49-year-old Republican also tells parents to talk to their children at meals.

"You should have breakfast talk, lunch talk, dinner talk," he says.

During the Bush administration, Quayle began a controversy when he criticized the fictitious Murphy Brown, a TV reporter played by Candice Bergen, for having a child out of wedlock.

LONDON — Two landowners who rented their castles to CBS for a movie about Princess Diana's affair with her former riding instructor have been fired from Queen Elizabeth II's Scottish bodyguard.

The mostly honorary Royal Company of Archers gave the boot to Lord Palmer and Alastair Hay.

Palmer rented his 108-room Edwardian mansion, Manderston House, and Hay let the cameras into Duns Castle. Both men refused to say how much they were paid.

"I was given no alternative but to resign ... but I don't intend to treat this as a black mark," Hay said Monday.

The estates will represent Kensington Palace and Prince Charles' country home, Highgrove, in the movie, "Princess in Love."

LANSING, Mich. — Ted Nugent took up arms — literally — against booze and drugs Monday. The rock star demonstrated archery as a healthy activity for youngsters.

Ted Nugent takes up arms against booze and drugs.

"Get your kid a bow and arrow and you won't have to worry about nothin' — except maybe a few dead squirrels. And they're yummy," Nugent said during a demonstration on the Capitol lawn.

The avid hunter will serve as archery commissioner for the Great Lakes State Games in Lansing during June 21-30.

Nugent said bow hunting is a good family activity that promotes a natural high for children who accompany their parents.

NEW YORK — "Hogan's Heroes" turned into a big surprise for Werner Klemperer, who played the bumbling Col. Klink on the hit comedy series about a Nazi prisoner of war camp.

When he was first offered the role, "I thought it was a serious weekly series about a concentration camp," Klemperer told the Daily News.

"I am a Jew, my family had just gotten out of Germany after Hitler came to power. The whole idea seemed so bizarre and immoral. I couldn't imagine a more unlikely series."

Ott's column is worth defending

I've been reading Gary Ott's column for over 10 years and cannot sit idly by and allow the assault from Mrs. J.R. Hunt to go by without defending this man of wit and humor.

Gary's column has brought entertainment into my life for years. Yes, there have been times when he touched nerves. Some of them nerves of pain and nerves of pure joy. I have laughed myself into tears of silliness and into tears of joy. But many times he gave me an angle I hadn't seen. Labeling Gary as arrogant just does not fit.

To say that Gary has not had to face the challenges of life? If I recall he went through some tough times himself a few years back, and besides, how can she judge his pains? Gary isn't asking for this woman's respect...he is here to entertain us and inform us.

Mrs. Hunt needs to lighten up. If you don't like what you read then just put it down, but I think the character assassination is way out of line.

In a few days I'll be leaving Midland and will truly miss Gary Ott's smiling furry face. Whether he be a wet-behind-the-ears middle-age lover boy, I know not. I do know that he is a wonderful writer who has put a smile on my face for many years. I wish Gary the best for years to come, and don't you dare change a thing!

Water bill mystery needs to be solved

My water bill went from $50 in January to $150 in February to $100 in March. My past bills have been no more than $50-$60 for 20 years. I have had plumbers and sprinkler system workers check to find leaks. Also two testers from the water department to check meter. The water department says I have a leak — both servicemen say I have no leak and this bill is excessively, ridiculously high.

What is my next move? I think there is a ripoff here. What else can I do?

Nobody wants their child inconvenienced

Just recently, I was interviewed by one of the local TV station reporters concerning the cluster system in our elementary schools. During this interview, I was asked a question that posed a great deal of interest to me: I quote, "Are you wanting Bowie to become a stand-alone school just so your child won't be inconvenienced?" I thought at the time, and still do, yes. Who would want their child to be inconvenienced? Better yet, who would want their child to be inconvenienced unnecessarily?

Due to the manner in which our world is changing today, I think our children have enough pressure without having to burden them with more confusion. Are we too passive to come up with a more efficient design? It seems as if we would rather our children assume heavier responsibilities than shoulder the task ourselves. Therefore, as long as I am living on this earth, I will always try to find better and more efficient ways for my children to cope with everyday life. After listening to the Open Enrollment System (OES) plan proposed by the board-appointed members to the cluster committee, I see a light at the end of a very dark tunnel.

It is my opinion that the Open Enrollment System (OES) would not only cease the unnecessary busing of our children, it would improve the quality of education being offered to our students — something that is very much needed. I implore all of Midland to take a look at the proposed plan and feel that afterwards you will be as enthusiastic as I am about what a great future lies ahead in this plan for our children. Everyone benefits!

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, April 9, the 100th day of 1996. There are 266 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On April 9, 1865, with the Civil War at a virtual end, Confederate Gen. Robert E. Lee surrendered his army to Union General Ulysses S. Grant at Appomattox Court House in Virginia.

On this date:

In 1682, the French explorer Robert La Salle reached the Mississippi River.

In 1833, the first tax-supported public library was founded, in Peterborough, N.H.

In 1939, black singer Marian Anderson performed a concert at the Lincoln Memorial in Washington after she was denied the use of Constitution Hall by the Daughters of the American Revolution.

WILLIAM MURCHISON

Changing laws reflect changing morality

Law, you could say, tracks conviction. What a society believes, it legislates – such as prohibitions against doctors' helping the terminally ill to kill themselves. When convictions waver, the law wavers. When they change dramatically, all bets are off.

That's what is going on now. Statutory law in most states reflects convictions of which society seems increasingly ashamed – the conviction that life is good, that life is of God, that the occupant of a particular mortal frame can't renounce it and that when he tries to renounce it, society has a duty not to conspire with him. In short, no assisted suicides. No Kevorkians.

Murchison

Nonetheless, here come two representatives of the law – federal appeals courts in California and New York – with, shall we say, different viewpoints.

The California court strikes down a Washington state law forbidding doctors to help people kill themselves. The New York court strikes down another such enactment, asking rhetorically, What interest can the state possibly have in requiring the prolongation of a life that is all but ended?

Neither decision is the last word, constitutionally speaking. That word will come from the U.S. Supreme Court.

Meanwhile, here is what goes on: We glide down the famous slippery slope toward moral relativism in the matter of human life. A society that in loose and fuzzy ways sometimes calls itself Christian, is becoming neo-pagan. We are Kevorkianizing ourselves, our convictions, our laws, our institutions. It is no pretty sight.

We need to examine that slope and its slipperiness or we will not understand. The change began with abortion. Here again, the judiciary led the way. In Roe vs. Wade, the Supreme Court declared unborn life a kind of marketplace commodity: If you want to have the baby that's growing slowly in the womb, fine; if you don't, fine also.

In Roe vs. Wade, for the first time in 2,000 years, human life lost its privileged position – lost, you might say, its sacred character. It became an Roption.S The court drew a philosophically and theologically unfounded distinction between desired and undesired life, between lives viewed as full and useful and those seen (by ex-fetuses, naturally) as useless encumbrances.

There for a while, the philosophical ground having shifted, we poised ourselves. It was all right to take some lives. Was that permission confined to the abortion clinic? What about other useless encumbrances?

The slippery slope lay below. Gingerly, we put out a foot. The descent proved easy and satisfying. Couldn't almost-extinguished life be counted as great an encumbrance as almost-formed life? Wasn't it all the same thing? Two federal appeals courts think so. They think so because their members perceive the old absolute – the goodness of God-given life – to be, well, dying.

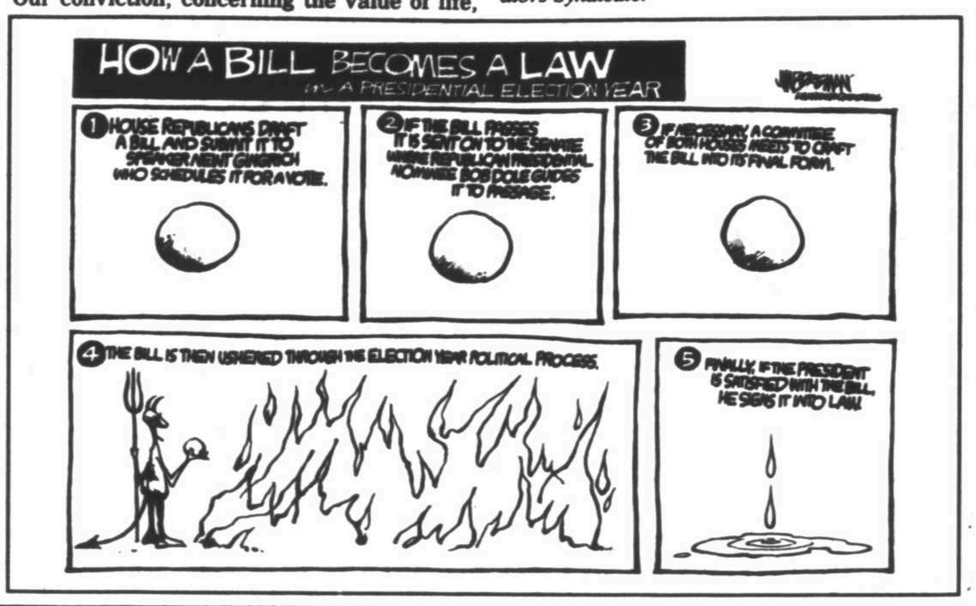

Law, you could say again, tracks conviction. Our conviction, concerning the value of life, presently wavers. Sometimes life is good, sometimes not. And where from here? To many, the slippery slope seems firm enough. How about one step more – just one tiny step, hmmmm? There must be others besides the terminally ill and the unwanted unborn whose lives fail to adorn or uplift society. What of the chronically unhealthy, the unlikeable, the undesirable?

From the right-to-die mob come angry shouts when you raise such a prospect. How dare you, the mob cries, when all we want is to Help Others?

Oh? Where is the principle necessary to inhibit legalized murder, life lately having become an instrumentality rather than a good?

The appeals-court decisions are poisonous and deserve to be overturned by the Supreme Court. But until our philosophical and theological foundations are reconstructed by patient and solid teaching, we can expect more such decisions.

CHARLEY REESE

Presidential election is bad news for America

Well, there's bad news and more bad news. The bad news is that Bill Clinton will probably be re-elected no matter what Pat Buchanan or Ross Perot do. The more bad news is that Clinton's re-election will not be good for the country.

What about the good news? Sorry, there isn't any. Just be a fatalist. The United States has survived two wars with Great Britain, one with Mexico, one with the Confederate States of America, one with Spain, two with Germany, one each with Japan, North Korea, North Vietnam and Iraq. It has survived some of the most crooked politicians in recorded history. It has survived incompetent and venal presidents.

Reese

Very likely, it will survive four more years of Bill Clinton.

I do not know why Republicans chose to nominate Bob Dole, but that's what they did. It's often been said that if you ask Republicans to form a firing squad, they will form a circle. Maybe it was just the old self-destructive reflex. But at any rate, they are giving the people not much of a choice in November – a Wall Street Republican or a Goldman Sachs Democrat.

I do not say flat out that Dole cannot beat Clinton. There are miracles and mysteries in this world. Who wins in November depends on how folks feel in October, and it's a long time until October. I merely say the probability, in my estimation, is exceedingly small that Dole can win. Clinton is not a good president, but he is an outstanding campaigner and, in fact, has done nothing but campaign since he finished his inauguration address.

Furthermore, Clinton looks alive and is cheerful. People tend to prefer live, cheerful candidates over those in which those qualities sometimes appear to be missing. If Republicans are foolish enough to agree to a presidential debate, it will look like Tigger vs. Eeyore (see "Winnie the Pooh" for metaphorical elucidation). I just hope there's plenty of vitamin B-12 in the Republican National Committee's cupboard.

I personally would vote for a three-legged dog with fleas before I would vote for Clinton. He has, not to overstate matters, proven a disappointment. Yes, I know the folks in Arkansas are saying that's only because you didn't know him in 1992. If you had they are saying, you wouldn't have been disappointed – dismayed, but not disappointed.

Not that I will vote for Dole. I didn't say that. I just said I won't vote for Clinton.

And, I'm happy to add, I won't vote for Perot either. Perot has proven to be one of those fellows that the less you know about him, the more you admire him and vice versa. It's real simple, see. He's erratic. I don't care to have erratic people in the White House. The opportunity for mischief is too great – still a lot of buttons around that old house. Get the picture? OK.

You, of course, don't and should not care for whom I vote. This is just a ruse to give you a little political campaign analysis in a conversational tone. The odds are it's Clinton again in November and a lot of dull campaigning between now and then.

It might help to break the monotony if we all chart their positions as they are driven by the shifting winds of the latest polls from issue to issue and from position to position. With two guys who probably don't have a single real belief between them, it will make for interesting graphs.

In the meantime, unless you are one of those millionaires with a vested interest in the two major parties, you might join us in a crusade to dismantle both of them. Register as an Independent. If you know any decent officeholders, urge them to become Independents. Don't give money to Democrats or Republicans. Save it -- you'll need it.

A fatalist will not despair at continued governance by Democrats and Republicans, but it would take optimism of lunatic proportions to believe that either of those parties will solve the pressing problems of our lovely old country. They are both worn out and hollow.

MIKE ROYKO

Political conventions are 98 percent boredom

Chicago Mayor Richard Daley tried to get the Democratic Convention cut to three days instead of the traditional four, but the White House turned him down.

The mayor will get no sympathy from me. It was his idea to invite the Democrats here in the first place, so let him suffer through the full four days of foolish blather.

Royko

My personal plan is to flee town before the first delegate arrives and go to the North Woods and hole up in a secluded cabin that doesn't have a TV set and stay there until the last foolish speech has been made.

By doing that, what will I miss?

First, I will not have to watch hundreds of TV crews take turns setting up their equipment at Balbo and Michigan avenues so pompous TV reporters can jiggle their eyebrows and say:

"... And this is where the infamous confrontation between Chicago police and anti-war demonstrators took place in 1968, the last time the convention was held in Chicago."

The studio will cut to old film footage of Chicago cops gleefully swinging billy clubs at long-haired Yippies, hippies and assorted dippies.

Then the TV creature will say: "In 1968, the mayor was Richard J. Daley, the last of the big-city bosses. But today, there is another Daley in the mayor's office, and the mood of the city has changed. ..."

Yes, and that's why I'll be leaving town. I would gladly stay if I thought the cops were going to bang heads again, because then it would be a fun convention.

I've covered about a dozen political conventions, and 1968 was the only one that wasn't 98 percent boredom.

There are those who say 1968 was a shameful stain on Chicago's history.

Yes, maybe it was. But it was also one heck of a show. What other city has given us liberal delegates being shoved into paddy wagons while hysterically screaming that this was the beginning of the end of democracy and western civilization?

The action in the streets was so exciting that hardly anyone paid attention to what went on in the convention hall, except when a wild-eyed Dan Rather was roughed up – a joyous moment – and Old Man Daley yelled something like "Foo to you" at trembling fellow delegate Abe Ribicoff.

Which was fine, because hardly anything ever goes on in the convention hall that is worth seeing or hearing. Especially for four long days.

Why should it take four days for every self-adoring Democrat to tell us how kind, loving, sensitive, compassionate and caring they are? And that if we have pain, they feel it?

Well, listening to them causes considerable pain in my head and backside. But do they feel that? Of course not. If they did, they would shut up about their goodness, kindness and sensitivity and get on to telling us what is really on their minds.

Which is to pluck as much money from our paychecks as they can get away with and spend it on as many government programs they can dream up that will legally buy them votes.

They could knock that off in one morning. Then spend the afternoon listening to President Clinton accept the nomination and tell us how his cup of goodness and decency runneth over.

But the worst part of a modern political convention is that it is actually two conventions in one.

Besides the politicians and political groupies, there is that giant multiheaded beast known as The Media.

Why, I don't understand, but covering a political convention is still considered a plum assignment for journalists. So they come by the thousands, toting their cameras, laptops and tape machines, from the humblest papers and small TV stations to the limo-riding network anchor snobs and the all-knowing Washington pundits.

And they spend almost a week trying to find genuine news at an event in which there isn't any because everything is planned, programmed and decided in advance.

Before it is over, every delegate will be interviewed about his or her goodness and decency an average of 105.7 times. Most journalists will be shuffling around the convention hall like zombies, interviewing each other or just staring at some political ranting on the TV set, which they could have done just as easily back home. Others, out of frustration, will turn their wrath on the city, describing the shocking fact that Chicago is too hot and muggy or the restaurants charge too much or the city has – eeek – neighborhoods that are segregated, poor and dangerous. Imagine that!

Then it will end and all that will have occurred is that Clinton and Al Gore will be renominated, which we already know is going to happen.

And the only people who will have enjoyed themselves will be the city's restaurant and hotel owners and cabdrivers, who expect a booming business. And they might be disappointed.

As they will discover, when it comes to spending their own money, liberals are cheap tippers.

Authorities review handbill posted at Freemen farm

JORDAN, Mont. (AP) — In a clear declaration of defiance in their 15-day standoff with the FBI, the Freemen posted a handbill near their compound gate Monday branding the U.S. government a "corporate prostitute."

In rambling legalese, the Freemen disavowed allegiance to the federal government, reiterating their belief that they have the right to establish their own government, courts and currency.

The four-paragraph release supported comments made a day earlier by the local prosecutor that the Freemen's refusal to recognize the government's authority continued to pose a key hurdle to a peaceful resolution.

Copies of the handbill were nailed to a post by a member of the group.

"Freemen are NOT a party to the de facto corporate prostitute, a/k/a the United States ... but are in FACT the Posterity of We The People under God, affirming the Law of the land and standing for the republic for which it stands," the statement said.

The group also claimed that those who "prostitute the republic" by substituting the "incorporated fictions" of government for "the Law of the land, are in TRUTH and FACT anti-government."

"Perversion of the Truth does not in FACT change the Law, nor the Truth," it said.

Authorities were reviewing the statement and issued no immediate comment.

Garfield County Attorney Nick Murnion said in Monday's Denver Post that the Freemen remained adamant that they had a right to establish a separate government, impose separate taxes and form their own grand jury.

"We're hung up on the power issue," said Murnion, on whose head the group has placed a $1 million bounty. He declined Monday to elaborate on those comments to The Associated Press.

In rambling legalese, the Freemen disavowed allegiance to the federal government, reiterating their belief that they have the right to establish their own government, courts and currency..

FBI spokesman Ron VanVranken in Billings also refused to answer any questions about the negotiations as the standoff entered its third week Monday. The FBI appeared to be settling in for a long stay.

The standoff began March 25 after federal agents arrested Freemen leaders LeRoy Schweitzer, 57, and Daniel Petersen, 53, on a variety of charges. Others in the compound also face charges.

About a dozen Freemen in the compound face state or federal charges, ranging from writing bad checks and impersonating public officials to threatening to kidnap and murder a federal judge.

Also Monday, a retired insurance broker was arrested at his Las Vegas home on a charge of using a bogus check signed by Schweitzer and Petersen to pay for his mother's funeral in McLean, Texas.

Leonard R. Saye, 70, allegedly gave a funeral home a phony check for $14,600 in February. FBI spokeswoman Debbie Calhoun said police had to use pepper spray to subdue Saye.

Saye was awaiting extradition to Texas, where he faces one felony theft charge with a maximum sentence of up to two years.

Family members at Saye's home Monday said he was not connected to the Freemen.

GOP says video was all for laughs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A video produced for the Republican National Committee Christmas party last December featured top GOP officials in skits parodying cocaine use and lewd behavior.

In one parody of a job interview, GOP convention manager Bill Greener asks a woman, played by a GOP staffer, "What are your qualifications?" He then gawks as she strips to flimsy lingerie.

"I'm an a-- man, but you still got the job," a smiling Greener says on the video. The skit was filmed in 1985 but was dusted off for the 1995 video.

Another decade-old clip shows Mary Matalin, George Bush's campaign political director in 1992, donning dark glasses as she pretends to snort a line of cocaine.

An announcer introduces the skit with a play on words involving Matalin's current job as co-host of CNBC's "Equal Time" political talk show.

"Long before Mary Matalin was doing Equal Time, she was more interested in doing equal lines," the announcer says.

Another scene portrays a man sitting in a chair and apparently receiving sexual favors from a woman who is under a table.

The tape's disclosure comes at a sensitive time for the GOP, which is fending off a lawsuit that includes allegations from three female former employees that Republican National Committee headquarters in Washington is rife with lewd behavior, racism and gay-bashing.

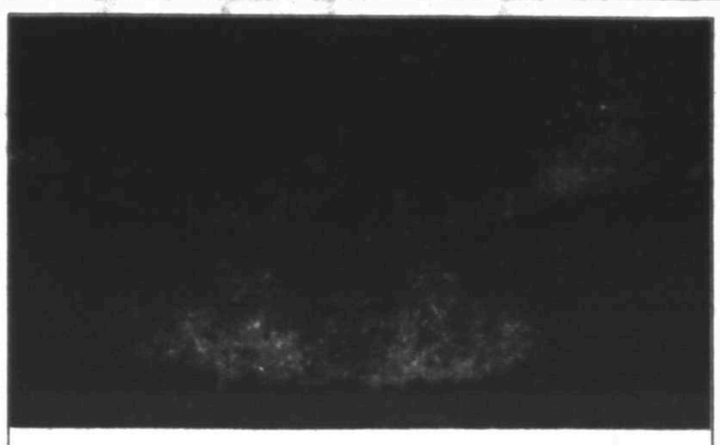

The RNC is contesting the lawsuit allegations, and said the videotape, which was first aired by CNN, has no relevance to the suit.

"Ridiculing inappropriate behavior is the polar opposite of condoning it," the party said in a statement Monday.

"To suggest that old Christmas Party lampoon videos reflect reality at the RNC is like suggesting that reruns of skits from 'Saturday Night Live' reflect the working atmosphere at NBC," it said.

Greener said someone else had scripted his scene back in 1985, and he did not object to doing it because everyone recognized it was satire and did not reflect the way he or other RNC officials really acted.

"The reality is, no offense was intended at the time, and in the 11 years since then, no one has ever expressed any offense," he said.

People campaign for spots in Boston's centennial Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — Peter Cooper qualified easily for next week's 100th running of the Boston Marathon. But then he missed the application deadline, which had been moved up to handle the deluge of entries.

"During my lifetime, for a non-Olympian, this is the race to run," said Cooper, a Pontiac, Mich., dentist and veteran of 39 marathons who wrote a fruitless letter begging for a second chance. "If there were at most 1,000 stupid people like myself, they should still let us in. I don't think it would make that much of a difference."

In fact, nearly 40,000 disappointed runners have appealed for a spot in the race since the Dec. 31 cutoff.

Schoolchildren have conducted letter-writing campaigns on behalf of teachers, parishioners for priests. Husbands wrote to beg for numbers for their wives, and wives for husbands. Women sent in photos of their children, adding the words "Please let my mommy run."

One man furnished X-rays of his feet to show why he had failed to qualify; others offered full-color pictures of injuries, and notes from their doctors.

Then there was the man who broke down in the office of the sponsoring Boston Athletic Association in January, saying he was dying of cancer and had three months to live. He wanted to drop dead on the finish line like the original marathoner of ancient Greece, Pheidippides. Officials turned him down.

"We have hundreds of very special stories of why people ought to be allowed to run," said Guy Morse III, director of the world's oldest annual marathon. "But you have to draw the line somewhere, and it has not been easy. We feel we've made every opportunity to let as many people run as possible."

More than 75,000 people applied to enter the centennial edition of the marathon April 15 — three times the usual number. The narrow 26.2-mile course has room for only half that many. Most entrants qualified by finishing another marathon within set times based on their age and sex. The last 5,000 were chosen by lottery.

Some of those who weren't chosen have taken out classified ads offering to buy a number for up to $500. Race organizers say the numbers are not transferable; anyone caught with one will be turned away at a registration check.

Ann Phillips of Sanger, Calif., will have to watch her husband, brother and best friend run past her. She couldn't get a number in the lottery.

"For me, Boston is the epitome of the marathon," Phillips said. "I was the one who wanted to go so badly and got my husband to train for it, and he qualified and I didn't."

Teresa Egan of Avon, N.J., coaxed her husband into running, though neither met the qualifying time. He got a number through the lottery; she didn't. He sent his back after their appeal failed.

One would-be entrant promised to wash the race director's car every week for a year. Others offered cash bribes.

Some people managed to pull strings. The race's organizers insist that if it does happen, it is rare.

The Rev. Henry V. Petter of St. Paul the Apostle Parish in Dallas scored a spot in the race last week. The priest said the archbishop of Boston intervened on his behalf through a nephew at the BAA.

"It's a Sunday of rejoicing, after all," said Petter, who announced his good fortune to his congregation on Easter.

The first-graders at Palm Springs North Elementary School in Miami pleaded their teacher's case.

"Please let my teacher be in the Boston Marathon," one 7-year-old wrote in carefully drawn block letters on lined paper. "I don't think she will win, but she'll try her best and have fun."

The teacher, Kim Ottaviani, didn't get in.

"I was devastated, but I really have adjusted to it," she said. "That's the beauty of Boston: It will always be there. When you hit Heartbreak Hill, it doesn't matter what year it is, you've set your goal and met it."

Rebels spank 'Dogs, 9-5

■ Midland Lee cruises to 9-0 lead and then watches Bulldogs score five runs in the seventh.

By Sean Wallace
Sports Writer

Justin Ham can ditch the disguise when he goes outside now.

The Midland Lee shortstop made up for what might have been his worst performance by going 3-for-4 with two doubles and three runs batted in Monday afternoon to lead the Rebels to a 9-5 win over Midland High in a District 4-5A baseball game at Christensen Stadium.

"That was a lot better, wasn't it?" said Ham, who collected his fifth and sixth doubles of the year. "I was seeing the ball a lot better today. I just made sure I got a good swing at it."

The Rebels (12-11-1 overall, 4-3 in 4-5A) banged out 10 hits and were helped by five MHS errors to sweep the season series from the Bulldogs (14-8, 3-4). Lee won their non-district meeting in the Tournament of Champions and took both district contests by a combined score of 17-10.

Lee pitcher Mark Holly (3-0) struck out 12 batters in 6 2/3 innings to remain unbeaten on the year and Mike Gonzales got the final out for his second save. Midland High starter Russell Dunlavy (4-2) allowed five runs in the first with control problems to take the loss despite tying a season high with eight strikeouts.

Ham committed three errors in Lee's last game (a 6-3 loss to Abilene Cooper on March 30) but redeemed himself with a two-run double in the first which helped keep a five-run first alive.

"After that last game against Abilene (Cooper) no one was swinging the bat at all and we just weren't getting any hits," said Ham, who raised his average to .344. "We had some really good practices and an inter-squad game during the time off really helped."

The Rebels hadn't played since March 30 but Lee showed no signs of rust. Five runs in the first and four more in the fourth were more than enough for Holly, who didn't allow a base runner to reach third until the seventh inning.

"This was the first time this year I've really felt good enough to go seven innings instead of five," Holly said. "I guess I lost some concentration there. In those kinds of situations, you need to go out there and pitch like it's a 1-0 game."

The Rebels led 9-0 when the Bulldogs finally broke through in the seventh. Third baseman Shane Jobe, who went 3-for-3 on the day, drove in the Bulldogs' first run with a single.

Mike Carrasco and Chad Villarreal reached base when Jason Rogers drove in two runs with a single to cut the Lee lead to 9-3. Dunlavy then blooped a single to right field which scored two more runs to make it 9-5.

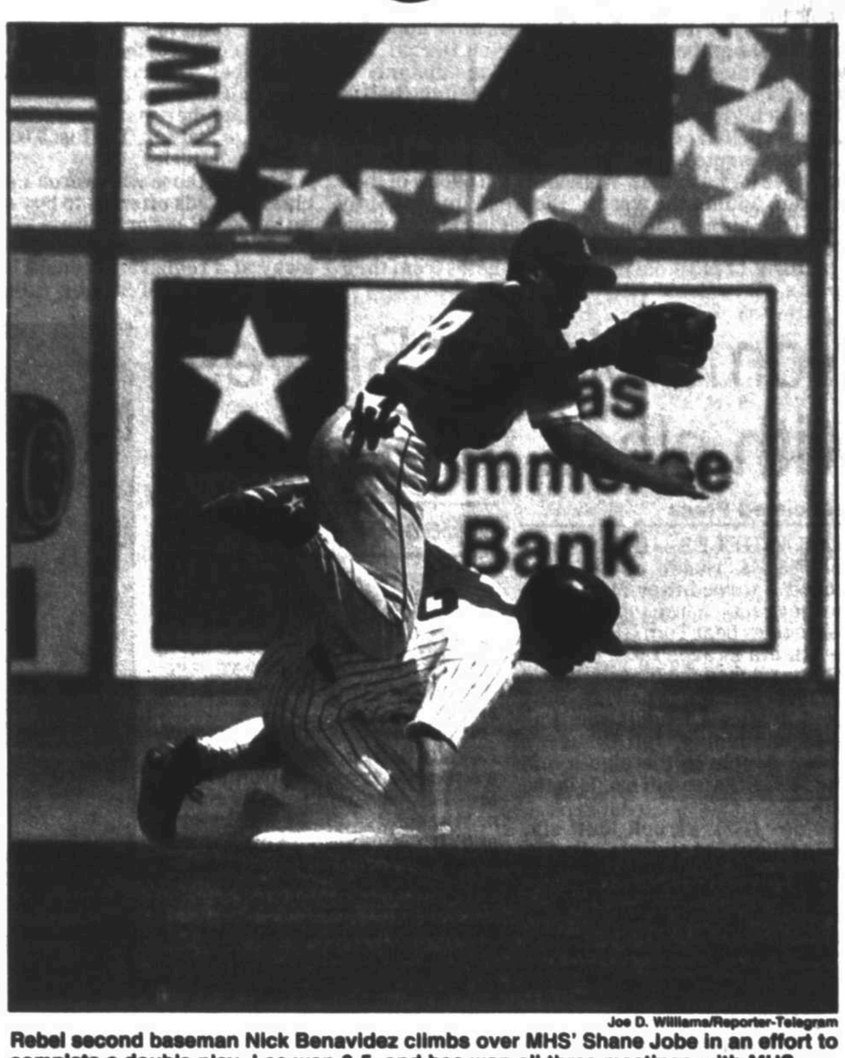

Holly then walked designated hitter Hector Morales to put runners on first and second when Gonzales came in and got Perez to fly out to right field on one pitch to end the game.

Holly upped his team-leading strikeout total to 46 and got more than enough run support in the first inning as Lee scored five times off Dunlavy.

"This was my second bad start," said Dunlavy, who took a 3-1 loss to San Angelo Central last Tuesday. "I don't know what the problem is. I think it was my mechanics."

Dunlavy walked four batters in the first, including three of the first four Rebels he faced, then hit Holly with a pitch to give Lee a 1-0 lead. Ham followed with a two-run double down the third-base line to make it 3-0. A strikeout later, Dusty Crowe lined a shot up the middle, which glanced off Carrasco's glove

Esiason signs

TEMPE, Ariz. — The Arizona Cardinals signed one aging quarterback Monday and got rid of another, signing Boomer Esiason and releasing Dave Krieg.

Esiason, who turns 35 next week, had called the Cardinals and lobbied for the job. He spent the last three years with the New York Jets, who had made it clear they wouldn't re-sign him after spending $25 million over five years for Neil O'Donnell.

Terms weren't disclosed, but Esiason told the Cardinals he would play for far less than the $2.4 million he was paid last year by the Jets.

"A lot of quarterback situations were set, realistically, and this was a team that would fit for me," said Esiason. "I didn't want this opportunity to pass me by."

He said he had feelers from two other teams, but decided last week after dinner with new offensive coordinator Jim Fassel to play for the Cardinals and pass up a network broadcasting opportunity.

Krieg was due to make $1.3 million, and coach Vince Tobin acknowledged the Cardinals would save money while using Esiason as a mentor for Kent Graham and Stoney Case. Last year, the quarterbacks were Krieg, Mike Buck and Case.

But Tobin expects Esiason to start and contribute to rebuilding a team that collapsed last year under Buddy Ryan.

"When you are building an organization, you have to plan into the future, and hopefully Boomer can take us farther into the future than Dave Krieg," Tobin said.

Krieg passed for 3,554 yards, but also threw an NFL-high 21 interceptions in his only season with the Cardinals. Esiason was the NFL's MVP in 1988, when he led the Bengals into the Super Bowl.

1996 TEXAS RANGERS

At 6-0, Texas last of undefeated

By Jaime Aron
Associated Press

AP Laserphoto
Yankee Wade Boggs tries to score as Ranger catcher David Valle blocks the plate as Texas was well on the way to a twinbill sweep Sunday over New York.

ARLINGTON — Everyone laughed at Texas manager Johnny Oates a few weeks ago when he said he expected 60 wins from his four starting pitchers, none of whom had ever won more than 17 games in a season.

A turn and a half through the rotation later, Oates' staff is living up to his lofty expectations.

The Rangers are off to baseball's best start, and the club's 6-0 record ties a mark set in 1979 for the best start in franchise history. Each victory has gone to a starter.

Ken Hill and Roger Pavlik each picked up their second wins Sunday as Texas swept a doubleheader against New York, 7-2 and 4-1. Kevin Gross and Bobby Witt are each 1-0 heading into starts Tuesday and Thursday in Chicago.

The other 54 wins may take awhile, but the way the Rangers are playing shows they may finally be headed in the right direction after 24 frustrating summers that have left them as the only AL team never to make the playoffs.

"You never know what this can do," Oates said. "It can start snowballing, and who knows where it can go. It's only six games, but it was six good games. Now we'll go on the road and see how far it goes."

The only secret behind Texas' success is good old fundamental baseall. They're getting good pitching, great defense and timely hitting. The pitchers aren't walking anyone, and the batters are drawing walks. They're stealing bases and taking early leads, then holding on to them.

"We did a lot of little things right and a lot of big things right," second baseman Mark McLemore said. "When you do that, you've got a good chance to win ballgames."

Consider:

—Texas pitchers have allowed only 12 runs, have a 2.00 ERA and have walked just 18 batters. Starters are averaging nearly seven innings, and the bullpen has given up just six hits in 13 innings.

—The defense, baseball's worst two years ago, has committed just two errors. Neither led to a run.

—The Rangers have scored 40 runs, drawn 42 walks and are hitting .300. They've led in 43 of 46 innings while facing Roger Clemens, Tom Gordon, Tim Wakefield, Jimmy Key, Dwight Gooden and David Cone — three former Cy Young winners and two guys who've come close.

—Texas has been behind for only half an inning: from Bernie Williams' solo homer in the top of the second inning of Sunday's second game until Warren Newson's solo homer in the bottom of the inning.

—The Rangers stole five bases Sunday, making them 9-for-9 this year. The thieves range from speedsters Lou Frazier and Darryl Hamilton to Ivan

Lady 'Dogs host Eagles

The scenario for the Midland High softball team is a pretty simple one. Beat the teams you are supposed to beat and at least a share of the District 4-5A title will follow.

Midland High starts that process today at 4:30 p.m. at the Bill Williams Softball Complex when the Lady Bulldogs take on Abilene High. District leading Midland Lee will travel to Abilene for their 5:30 p.m. game with Cooper.

Midland High, 20-8 for the season and 7-2 in 4-5A, comes into week with their final three games against teams that have the worst three records in the district.

However, Coach Ricci Woodard stays these games will only be as easy as MHS will let them be. If the Lady Bulldogs are focused, no problem if they are not, history makes this difficult.

"We have the bottom three of the district this week," said Woodard, whose team trails Lee by one-half game. "If we let up on any one of them, they will beat us. If we jump on them, we'll be alright."

MHS lost to Abilene High twice by a combined score of 18-2 in a pre-district tournament in Lubbock. However, Midland High has played their best ball in district play. And there is one big reason.

"They are more focused," said Woodard. "They know there is not anyone we can overlook."

MHS takes on an 18-9 and 4-6 Abilene High team that stumbled out of the gate this season and hasn't been able live up to their potential. AHS did beat Cooper in the opening game of the district's second round, and that shows the Lady Eagles and pitcher Kelly Armbruster

Angels put clamps on fourth straight win over Missions

■ Midland third baseman Edgar Alfonzo collects his 1,000th minor league hit as the Angels continue their torrid roll.

By Sean Wallace
Sports Writer

Third baseman Edgar Alfonzo reached a minor league milestone with his bat, but it was his glove that got all the attention.

Alfonzo's diving stab of a hard-hit grounder in the eighth inning saved what would have been the tying run Monday night as the Angels won their fourth straight in an 8-4 decision over the San Antonio Missions at Christensen Stadium.

Midland starter Matt Beaumont (1-0) gave the Angels another quality start on the mound, going 6 1/3 innings and striking out eight to pick up his first win as a Midland Angel. Mike Freehill pitched the final 1 1/3 innings and struck out two in earning his second save of the year.

Chad Zerbe (0-1) went the distance in the loss for San Antonio, giving up 10 hits, walking two and striking out three.

The Angels took a 5-3 lead into the eighth when three straight walks loaded the bases as the Missions threatened to steal a win from the Angels.

San Antonio third baseman Brian Richardson belted a Freehill pitch down the line and looked to be headed for extra bases when Alfonzo — who also collected his 1,000th minor league career hit — made a diving stop, holding Richardson to a single and keeping the tying run at third. Freehill then got Vernon Spearman to line out to shortstop Keith Luuloa to end the inning and the threat.

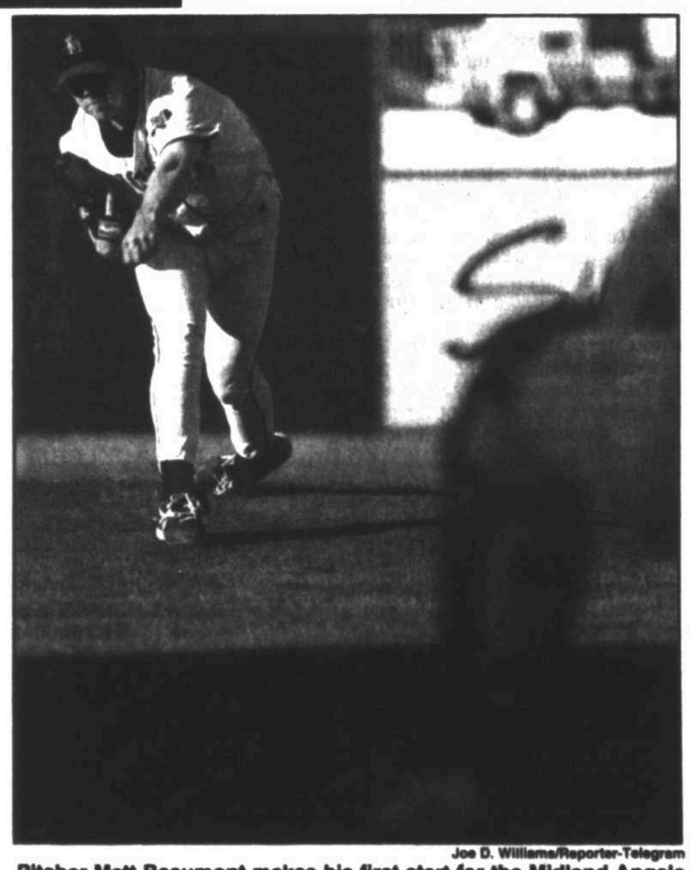

"That saved us. It was a huge play," said Beaumont, who played for Class A Lake Elsinore last season. "Our pitching staff knows that all we have to do is throw ground balls and our defense will be there to get them. Our defense has been great."

Midland put the game away in the bottom of the eighth with three runs, including Ralph Bryant's first home run of the season. The 34-year old former major leaguer led off the eighth with a blast to left-center field to give the Angels a two-run lead. Greg Shockey, who went 3-4 and scored twice, followed with a double and scored on a misplayed infield grounder by San Antonio shortstop Keith Johnson. Right fielder Derrin Doty had a sacrifice fly to right field for Midland's final run.

"We've been hitting the ball fairly well and we've had a lot of situational hits," Shockey said. "We're got a good group of young players here who are committed to winning and playing a full game."

San Antonio took a 2-0 lead into the fourth when the Angels took the lead for good with a four-run inning. Center fielder Basilio Ortiz, who hit only

Some runners try to beg or bribe way to Boston race

BOSTON (AP) — Peter Cooper easily qualified for Monday's 100th Boston Marathon.

Then he missed the application deadline, which he didn't know had been changed to handle the deluge of requests for entries.

"During my lifetime, for a non-Olympian, this is the race to run," said Cooper, a Michigan dentist and veteran of 39 marathons who wrote a fruitless letter begging for a second chance. "If there were at most 1,000 stupid people like myself, they should still let us in. I don't think it would make that much of a difference."

Nearly 40,000 disappointed runners have appealed for official numbers since the cutoff on Dec. 31. For them, training for the grueling hills and distance of the world's oldest marathon was only half the battle.

Schoolchildren have conducted letter-writing campaigns on behalf of teachers, parishioners for priests. Husbands wrote to beg for numbers for their wives, and wives for husbands. Women sent in photos of their children, adding the words "Please let my mommy run." One man furnished X-rays of his feet to show why he had failed to qualify; others offered full-color pictures of physical injuries, and notes from their doctors.

Then there was the man who broke down in the office of the sponsoring Boston Athletic Association in January, saying he was dying of cancer and had three months to live. He wanted to fall dead on the finish line like the ancient Greek marathoner Pheidippides, he said. Officials turned him down.

"We have hundreds of very special stories of why people ought to be allowed to run," said the marathon's director, Guy Morse III. "But you have to draw the line somewhere, and it has not been easy. We feel we've made every opportunity to let as many people run as possible."

More than 75,000 people applied to enter the centennial edition of the marathon — three times the usual number. The narrow 26.2-mile course has room for only half that many. Most entrants qualified by finishing another marathon within set times based on their age and sex. The last 5,000 were chosen in three random lotteries.

Some of those who weren't chosen have taken out classified ads offering to buy an official number for up to $500. Race organizers say the numbers are not transferable: anyone caught with one will be turned away at a registration check.

Ann Phillips of Sanger, Calif., will have to watch her husband, brother and best friend run past her. She couldn't get a number in the lottery.

"For me, Boston is the epitome of the marathon," Phillips said. "I was the one who wanted to go so badly and got my husband to train for it and he qualified and I didn't."

Teresa Egan of Avon, N.J., coaxed her husband into running, though neither met the qualifying time. He got a number and she didn't. He sent it back after their appeal failed.

One would-be entrant promised to wash the race director's car every week for a year. Others more bluntly offered cash bribes.

Some people managed to pull strings and use connections, though the race's organizers insist that this is rare.

The Rev. Henry V. Petter of St. Paul the Apostle Parish in Dallas, for example, scored an official number April 2 after the apparent intervention of the archbishop of Boston.

"I was elated. I was just elated. It was just unbelievable," said Petter, who announced his good fortune to his congregation on Easter Sunday.

"It's a Sunday of rejoicing, after all," he said.

The first-grade class at Palm Springs North Elementary School in Miami pleaded their teacher's case.

"Please let my teacher be in the Boston Marathon," one 7-year-old wrote to marathon officials in carefully drawn block letters on lined paper. "I don't think she will win, but she'll try her best and have fun."

But the teacher, Kim Ottaviani, didn't get an official number.

"I was devastated, but I really have adjusted to it," she said. "That's the beauty of Boston: It will always be there. When you hit Heartbreak Hill, it doesn't matter what year it is, you've set your goal and met it."

As for her students, she said, "They've learned that to make the effort is the biggest thing. If you gave it a shot, you have everything to be proud of. It's not the end of the world."

Ottaviani has cashed in her airline ticket to Boston and plans to frame the fancy $50 application refund check with its centennial logo.

"It's almost as good as getting in," she said.

Nomo blanks Braves with sleek three-hitter

Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Hideo Nomo, the 1995 NL rookie of the year, pitched a three-hitter Monday in the Dodgers' home opener and Los Angeles beat Tom Glavine and the Atlanta Braves 1-0.

Nomo pitched the first shutout of the 1996 season, allowing only David Justice's leadoff single in the second inning, Jeff Blauser's two-out double in the eighth and Fred McGriff's leadoff single in the ninth.

Nomo (1-1) struck out six, walked five and did not allow a runner past second base until the ninth in a game played before a sellout crowd of 53,180. Pinch-runner Jerome Walton made it to third on Ryan Klesko's one-out grounder, then Nomo retired Javy Lopez on a fly ball to end it.

Raul Mondesi drove in the only run with a third-inning single, one of just five hits off Glavine (1-1) in his seven innings. Mike Piazza had three singles for the Dodgers.

Glavine struck out nine and walked two before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth.

Brett Butler singled with one out in the third, went to second on Piazza's single, then beat Justice's throw home on Mondesi's single into shallow right field.

Nomo, who was 13-6 last season with three shutouts, was coming off a rocky 1996 debut. He gave up seven hits and four runs in four innings in a 5-2 loss at Houston last Wednesday.

Cubs 9, Rockies 6

DENVER — Scott Servais drove in a career-high five runs with a home run and double, and Mark Grace added three RBIs as the Chicago Cubs spoiled the Colorado Rockies' home opener 9-6 Monday.

The Cubs, winning their 10th straight road opener, blew a 6-0 lead, but Servais hit a three-run, tie-breaking homer in the seventh off Kevin Ritz (1-1).

With one out in the seventh, Grace doubled for his third of four hits on the day. One out later, Luis Gonzalez was intentionally walked and Servais homered to left.

Reliever Terry Adams (1-0) gave the Cubs four solid innings, striking out his last four batters. His four innings and six strikeouts both were career highs.

Doug Jones pitched the ninth for his first save.

Grace's three RBIs helped the Cubs build a 6-0 lead after two innings.

■ Baseball Roundup

Astros 6, Giants 2

HOUSTON — Mike Hampton allowed four hits and struck out eight in eight innings, leading Houston over San Francisco, stopping the Astros' three-game losing streak.

Houston, rebounding from a 17-2 loss to San Diego on Sunday, got a strong performance from Hampton (2-0), who didn't allow a runner past second after the third inning and struck out three of his last four batters. Todd Jones finished with a hitless ninth.

William VanLandingham (0-2) walked six in six innings for the Giants, allowing four runs and four hits. He has nine walks in 9 2-3 innings over two starts.

Matt Williams' two-run double put San Francisco ahead in the first after Shawon Dunston doubled and Barry Bonds reached on a throwing error by shortstop Orlando Miller.

Houston came back in the fourth. Jeff Bagwell doubled with one out, and walks to Derek Bell and Rick Wilkins loaded the bases with two outs. James Mouton, off to an 0-for-7 start, hit a two-run double to left that tied the score and Miller followed with a two-run single to center for a 4-2 lead.

The Astros got two more runs without a hit in the seventh when Mark Dewey walked Bell with the bases loaded and Sean Berry's groundout to deep shortstop scored Hunter.

After they committed five errors in Sunday's loss, the Astros had only one against the Giants and had a pair of outstanding catches by Bell in right and Brian Hunter in center.

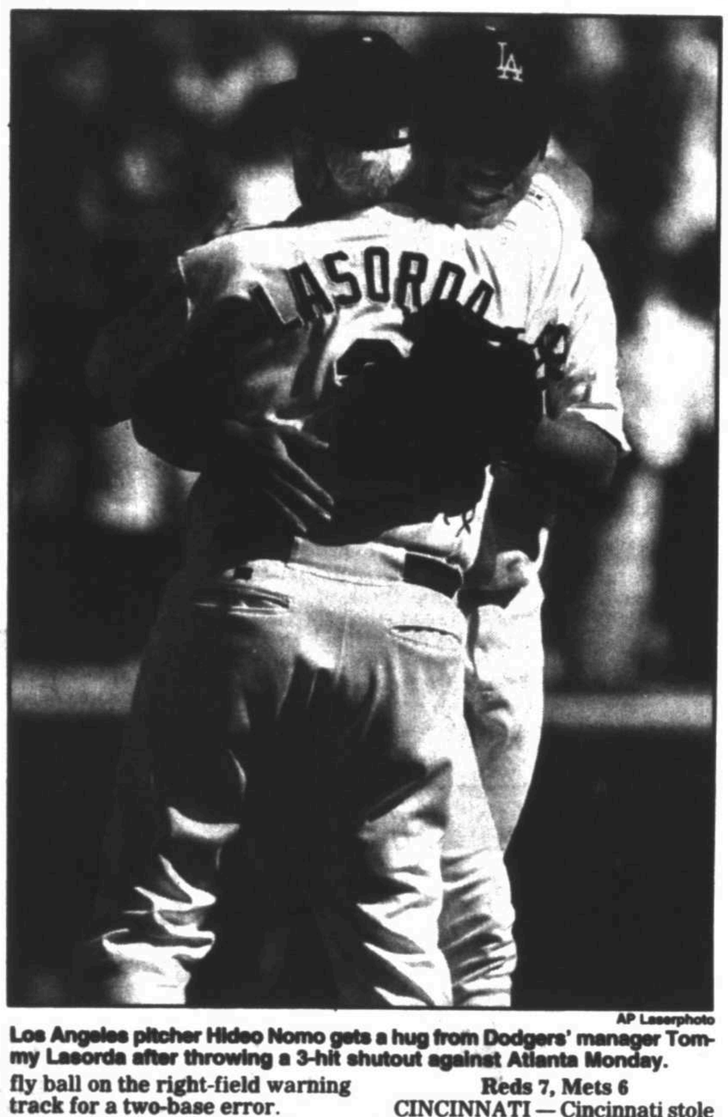

Padres 9, Marlins 2

SAN DIEGO — Ken Caminiti, Tony Gwynn and Wally Joyner kept up their torrid hitting and San Diego rallied to run its winning streak to five with a win over Florida in its home opener.

The Padres, unbeaten since their first game, are on their longest winning streak since taking six straight from May 27-June 1, 1994.

Once the Padres got to Chris Hammond (0-1), they didn't let up.

Caminiti tied the game at 2 with an RBI double in the fifth inning, and two more runs scored when former Padres third baseman Gary Sheffield dropped Joyner's fly ball on the right-field warning track for a two-base error.

Los Angeles pitcher Hideo Nomo gets a hug from Dodgers' manager Tommy Lasorda after throwing a 3-hit shutout against Atlanta Monday.

Phillies 6, Pirates 3

PITTSBURGH — Sid Fernandez and four relievers ruined Pittsburgh's best start in 13 seasons, leading Philadelphia to a victory.

The Phillies led 2-0 even before Denny Neagle retired a batter. Mark Whiten hit a three-run homer in the sixth after the Pirates' starter had settled down to retire 13 consecutive hitters, and Lenny Dykstra homered later.

The Pirates' unexpectedly good 4-1 start and the enthusiasm generated by new owner Kevin McClatchy's buyout of the once-endangered franchise helped draw a near-sellout crowd of 41,416. The Pirates were the only team in the majors not to draw 1 million last season.

But neither the fans nor McClatchy, who spent the night mingling among the crowd, could awaken the Pirates' bats on a 32-degree night that saw snowflakes fall briefly in the fourth inning.

Reds 7, Mets 6

CINCINNATI — Cincinnati stole seven bases — its highest total in eight years — and Jeff Branson homered in the eighth inning for a victory over New York.

Pete Schourek (2-0) allowed three runs on seven hits in 6 2-3 innings in near-freezing conditions. The temperature was 42 degrees at the first pitch and tumbled into the mid-30s by the late innings.

The Reds built a 5-0 lead by putting together five hits, four walks and five steals off Bobby Jones (0-1) in 3 2-3 innings.

Expos 4, Cardinals 3

ST. LOUIS — F.P. Santangelo drove in the go-ahead run with an infield hit in the 10th inning of the Cardinals' home opener.

Mark Grudzielanek singled off Jeff Parrett (1-1) to start the 10th, took second on Mike Lansing's sacrifice and third on a groundout. Moises Alou was intentionally walked and Santangelo beat out a dribbler to the right side.

and plated two more runs and a 5-0 Rebel lead.

Dunlavy settled down and struck out the side in the second, allowed one hit in the third but fell victim to three MHS errors in the fourth as Lee scored four more runs.

Catcher Jeff Burrows singled, moved to third on a base hit by Nick Benavidez and scored on a throwing error by Dunlavy to make it 6-0. Withrow walked to put runners on first and third when Holly got a base hit through the hole at first. Villarreal tried to throw Withrow out at third but his throw went into the MHS dugout, allowing two runs to score, and Holly ended up at third base. Ham then beat out a bunt single for an RBI to give the Rebels a 9-0 lead.

The Bulldogs won't have long to think about the loss. Since the game was pushed back three days because of rain and snow, both MHS and Lee have district games again today. MHS travels to Abilene Cooper for a 4:30 p.m. game with the Cougars. Lee is at home today against Abilene High for a 4:30 p.m. game at Ernie Johnson Field.

eight homers all year, sent his first over the wall to lead off the fourth and cut the Missions' lead to 2-1.

Luuloa and Alfonzo, with his 1,000th hit, followed with singles, and the Angels tied it when San Antonio's Adam Griggs booted a Bryant grounder which scored Luuloa. Alfonzo put Midland ahead 3-2 when he crossed the plate on a double play ball. Catcher Ben Molina got the final run in with a two-out single to left field.

The Missions made it 4-3 in the fifth but the Angels got to run back in the sixth on back-to-back triples by Shockey and Moeder.

The Angels begin a five-game series with the El Paso Diablos tonight at 7 p.m. which will close out the current 10-game homestand. The Angels are expected to send Korey Keling (8-5, 3.47 ERA with Midland last year) to the mound.

Baseball fans slowly coming back

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball fans are slowly starting to come back, judging by attendance figures from the first week of the season.

Despite bad weather that caused seven postponements, attendance was up 4.5 percent for the first 79 dates compared to last year. The first week average through Sunday was 26,579, up from 25,441 for a similar number of games at the start of last season.

When compared to last season's final average of 25,257, attendance was up 5.2 percent.

"Given the weather, which has really been horrendous, I'm very encouraged," acting commissioner Bud Selig said. "I think we're off to a good start."

Last year, average attendance dropped 20 percent following the strike from a 1994 average of 31,257. Baseball officials have predicted attendance will bounce back this year.

Oops! Bulls' 44-game home streak busted

Associated Press

CHICAGO — The Chicago Bulls' 44-game regular-season home winning streak ended Monday as the team they embarrassed just four nights earlier, the Charlotte Hornets, rallied for a 98-97 victory.

The Bulls hadn't lost at the United Center since March 24, 1995 — Michael Jordan's first home game after coming out of retirement. Jordan had 40 points and 10 rebounds Monday but missed a tip-in in the closing seconds.

Though it won't become the first NBA team ever to go unbeaten at home in a season, Chicago (66-9) remains on pace to post the first 70-win season in league history.

Dell Curry made two free throws with 19.4 seconds to go and scored 12 of his 19 points in the fourth quarter as the Hornets avenged Friday's 126-92 home loss to Chicago. In that game, Charlotte trailed 20-0 after four minutes and seemed to quit.

After Curry's free throws, the Bulls had four shots to win but missed them all: a spinning drive by Toni Kukoc, a tip by Scottie Pippen, Jordan's putback try and another tip by Pippen.

SuperSonics 108, Knicks 98

NEW YORK — Seattle pulled off two rare feats, reaching 60 victories and finishing off a 6,000-mile, one-day trip.

The Sonics beat the New York Knicks in a game postponed three months ago by a blizzard that dumped two feet of snow across the Eastern seaboard. It was played early in the afternoon because the New York Rangers played a hockey game at home Monday night.

Seattle had to fly across the continent Sunday, and it started snowing in Manhattan after they arrived. After the game, they trudged back to the airport for the trip back home.

■ Monday NBA Roundup

But they didn't let the jet lag or the Knicks' physical play stop them from becoming the second NBA team to reach 60 victories this season. The franchise record is 63 victories in 1993-94.

Bullets 111, Heat 99

LANDOVER, Md. — Juwan Howard had 25 points, 12 rebounds and seven assists as Washington enhanced its playoff hopes by beating slumping Miami.

Brent Price had 21 points and Ledell Eackles 20 for the Bullets (36-39), whose fourth straight victory moved them within one game of ninth-place Miami in the Eastern Conference standings.

The Heat, who got 28 points and 12 rebounds from Alonzo Mourning, started the day trailing Charlotte by a half-game in the race for the eighth and final playoff spot. Charlotte played the Chicago Bulls late Monday night.

Miami (37-38) has lost four straight. The Heat shot 21 percent in a horrid second quarter in which Washington took control.

76ers 82, Nets 79

PHILADELPHIA — Vernon Maxwell scored half of Philadelphia's points with a season-high 41, and Rex Walters made two free throws with 10.8 seconds left to give the 76ers a win over New Jersey.

Maxwell, who scored 38 points in Philadelphia's victory over Atlanta on Saturday, made seven 3-pointers in a team record 17 tries. He made 15 of 33 shots from the field, and broke the club record of 15 3-point attempts held by Tim Perry.

Philadelphia last won two straight games on Feb. 7 and 13.

Timberwolves 115, Raptors 101

MINNEAPOLIS — Isaiah Rider scored 28 points and rookie Kevin Garnett had 23 points, leading Minnesota over injury-depleted Toronto.

Rider added 10 rebounds as he came off the bench to record his double-double. Garnett made 10 of 14 shots as Minnesota handed Toronto its seventh loss in eight games.

Former Midland College star Spud Webb added 13 assists for the Timberwolves.

Pacers 97, Hawks 95

INDIANAPOLIS — Once Indiana finally found a defense that worked, Reggie Miller went to work on offense to give the Pacers a victory over Atlanta.

Miller scored 24 points, including the Pacers' final eight in the last two minutes, as Indiana held off an Atlanta rally from 14 points down.

Spurs 92, Jazz 91

SALT LAKE CITY — Avery Johnson hit one of two free throws with 43 seconds left and San Antonio escaped with a victory when Utah's David Benoit misfired on a 3-pointer in the final second.

Sean Elliot led the Spurs with 21 points, and Johnson added 17 as San Antonio moved four games ahead of second-place Utah in the Midwest Division.

San Antonio center David Robinson was limited to just three field goal attempts, but made 10 of 14 free throws to finish with 14 points. He added 12 rebounds.

Karl Malone led the Jazz with 21 points and Jeff Hornacek and Antoine Carr added 11 apiece. Utah, which made just 1 of 15 3-pointers, lost for the fifth time in six games.

Chuck Person's 3-pointer with 3:41 remaining gave the Spurs a 91-85 lead.

Golf legend Fred Sherman, 89, dies from heart ailment at home in Escondido, Calif.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Fred Sherman, golf course developer and one of the sport's leading talent agents and teachers, is dead at 89.

Sherman died Wednesday of a heart ailment at his home in Escondido, Calif., it was learned Monday. He taught at the Escondido Country Club for the past 25 years.

Sherman blazed trails in promoting female golfers. He discovered Mickey Wright when she was 13, and she went on to be inducted into the Ladies Professional Golf Association Hall of Fame.

Sherman also gave lessons to celebrities.

RANGERS: At 6-0, Texas flying high

(From 1B)

Rodriguez (two after none last year) and Mickey Tettleton (his first since 1993).

It must be pointed out that all this has come at home and without any adversity. Boston got swept while opening the year on the road, and the Yankees had two of their first four games rained out, in addition to the distraction of Gooden's first big-league game since June 1994.

Now the Rangers take to the road to play Chicago, and they could be without slugger Juan Gonzalez, who had to leave Sunday's first game after taking a fastball from Gooden on his right forearm.

Gonzalez, who is fighting hard to shed a bad-seed reputation, said he couldn't even pinch hit in Sunday's nightcap. A slow return from this bruise — X-rays were negative — would be the first cloud over the team.

But, hey, when you're hot, you're hot, and that's exactly what happened Sunday night. Newson took Gonzalez's spot and drove in two runs and scored twice in the 4-1 victory. His two-out single in the eighth off Steve Howe broke open a tie game and began a three-run rally.

When Ed Vosberg stopped a Bernie Williams grounder and threw to Will Clark for the last out, Rodriguez ripped off his catcher's mask, jumped up and down and took off toward Vosberg in celebration.

The way things are going, the victory could continue.

"Things are clicking right now," Tettleton said. "Hopefully, we can keep it going."

Swimmer Foschi cleared of steroid use

NEW YORK (AP) — Jessica Foschi, the teenage swimmer who tested positive for steroids last summer in a case that brought international reaction, has been cleared of all charges by an arbitration panel.

The American Arbitration Association decision means Foschi, 15, from Old Brookville, N.Y., can compete with a clean slate and without undergoing periodic drug tests imposed as part of a two-year suspension by U.S. Swimming.

It was the latest turn in a bizarre, perhaps unprecedented case of an athlete accused of boosting performance through illicit means, but it probably was not the final legal maneuver.

A lawyer for Foschi, Mark Levenstein, said the family would review lawsuits it has filed against U.S. Swimming and the U.S. Olympic Committee but held out the possibility of seeking damages.

Gooden's debut nice, but just how far can he go?

ARLINGTON (AP) — Now that Dwight Gooden has finally pitched again in the majors, the big question is how close can he come to rekindling his old magic.

Gooden isn't sure. New York Yankees manager Joe Torre is hopeful. Pitching coach Mel Stottlemyre proudly says "absolutely; there's no question."

His American League debut against Texas on Sunday didn't last long enough to be conclusive, although this first outing since June 1994 had enough moments to support all three possibilities.

The doubt was caused by the results: five innings, five hits, four walks, five runs (all earned) and two home runs in a 7-2 loss.

The first homer came on a dumb mistake, an inside fastball to Texas' No. 9 hitter Kevin Elster, a former teammate whom Gooden knows likes first-pitch fastballs. The other mistake was an inside breaking ball to Mickey Tettleton, who guessed right and sent it 422 feet.

"Overall, I thought I threw OK with the exception of those couple of pitches," Gooden said. "I was happy with the fastball, and I finally found my curve."

Gooden's control was inconsistent. Whether intentional or not, he always seemed to miss the plate on the side that would be inside for a righthanded batter and outside for lefties.

In watching Gooden try to regain his old form, it must be pointed out that he wasn't exactly on top of things when he was suspended for violating his drug aftercare program 1 1/2 years ago. At the time, he had lost four of his last five starts and was 3-4 with a 6.31 ERA for the year.

He also didn't have a very good spring, allowing 25 runs in 25 1-3 innings and losing all three decisions.

Gooden knows there are still some kinks to work out, and he knows how hard they'll be to overcome.

"I'm not pleased with the result," Gooden said. "I am pleased with the way things went. I know I'm getting a lot closer."

County helps Christmas in April

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Midland County government will pitch in a fleet of dump trucks, a front-end loader and volunteer manhours in helping with the Christmas-in-April housing-repair project for the low-income elderly and handicapped homeowners.

"Christmas in April is an outstanding community program," said Midland County Judge Jeff Norwood Monday after the Commissioners' Court unanimously agreed to donate use of country Road and Bridge Department heavy equipment on April 27, when Midland volunteers will be working on 117 houses.

Most houses to be repaired are in southwestern, eastern and southern Midland, noted Bobby Trimble, who is president of the 1973-founded project.

"They (Christmas-in-April volunteers) have done so much good work over the years," Norwood said. "And Midland County is proud to continue to be a part of that. Our Road and Bridge (Department) Personnel typically volunteer their time as well. It is a wonderful program. We are proud to be associated with it."

County dump trucks will haul debris, including spent roofing material and flooring, to the city of Midland's landfill, where the city is donating landfill space to Christmas in April.

In the four April Saturdays, more than 2,500 volunteers from churches and businesses will donate about 25,000 hours in repairing the houses. But most of the work will be on the last Saturday in April.

But throughout the year, Christmas in April volunteers have worked on an additional 170 houses mainly in repairing or installing plumbing and heating systems and hot-water heaters.

Since 1973, Christmas in April has repaired about 4,000 houses in Midland.

"The program basically is set up to help the elderly who can't help themselves," Trimble said. "The Bible talks about helping the widows, and if she has family, you are helping the family."

And the low-income homeowners may assist in the project when they are able. "I want the people to have a sense pride," Trimble said, "that they are doing what they can to help themselves through donating."

Test scores up

DALLAS — Scores on the basic skills freshman exam have been falling over the past two years, according to the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board.

Results released by the state agency reveal that nearly half of the Texas college students who took the test last year failed it.

Officials said the test scores show across-the-board reductions in passing rates at Texas' 29 state universities and 70 community colleges have declined over the past two years. About 132,000 students took the test in the 1994-95 school year.

Overall, 51.6 percent of all higher education students passed the Texas Academic Skills Program Test. The passing rate was 62.3 percent at state universities and 46.2 percent at community colleges.

Twirler to perform with symphony during flag salute

By Georgia Temple
Staff Writer

When the Midland-Odessa Symphony and Chorale salute the flag at the Confederate Air Force Hanger at 8 p.m. Saturday, April 13, 9-year-old Tarabeth Echols will twirl her way through the "Stars and Stripes Forever."

The current Miss Majorette of Texas in the 7-9 age division, Tarabeth, who has been twirling four and a half years, holds two World Championships in the sport.

"She loves to twirl," said her mother, Heather Echols, who was the featured twirler at the University of Wyoming from 1975-77. "She's a ham. She enjoys twirling in front of large crowds. The more people there are the better. She loves it."

"I'm excited," Tarabeth said of the upcoming performance.

Twirling isn't Tarabeth's only interest. This third grader at Trinity also sings, dances and plays the piano.

"I like to do everything in front of an audience because I do it better," said Tarabeth.

Tarabeth finds singing the easiest. "I like singing because it's easy, and you can just sing whenever you want to."

Unlike many competitors, Tarabeth seldom has nervous jitters before a competition or show.

"She likes the limelight and rarely gets nervous," Mrs. Echols said.

"Anybody else that would do the things she does, would be nervous, but she's never nervous. I think she thrives on it. Even at competition, she rarely gets upset. If things don't work out for her at competition, she has a great attitude. She's a good loser and a good winner."

Of competing, Tarabeth said, "I like everybody watching you, and you're really good, and they clap for you. It's fun to perform."

Please see DAY/2C

Probationers work to keep Midland clean

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

A local woman is continuing to expand cleanup, beautification and repair efforts by those convicted of misdemeanor offenses — not only in Midland, but throughout Texas as well.

Probationers sentenced to community service hours have provided 50,851 community service hours in Midland since Sept. 1, said project organizer Teresa Howery, who works for the Midland Judicial District Community Supervision & Corrections Department.

Ms. Howery and her probationers recently competed a large project at Coleman High School and are preparing for April 13 when they will be cleaning up 12 miles of highway that they have adopted, she said.

It is not unusual for neighbors to join in with the probationers when they clean up a neighborhood area, and Ms. Howery expressed thanks to two eight-year-old boys who helped out at the Coleman project.

On that project, workers cleaned and painted equipment at Sparks Park and Edward Rodriguez and Gary Ray Carrasco volunteered to stay at the park after the crew had gone to warn people about the wet paint.

"They did a great job and I would like to thank them," Ms. Howery said. "These two young men took an active part in their neighborhood," she said.

The probationers do good work because they are not treated as criminals when they work on various clean up projects in the city, Ms. Howery has said.

Working with them side-by-side, Ms. Howery has attempted to instill a sense of service and of community in the probationers. This has proven to encourage good work from the probationers and even to reduce recidivism by changing some offenders' thinking about themselves and their society.

Ms. Howery started the Texas Community Service Association about a year ago from Midland. The association is now comprised of more than 100 members in cities across the state. "It's going real well, I'm kind of shocked, actually," she said.

Regional and statewide conferences are scheduled for this year in Midland and San Antonio, respectively.

Child molester free from prison

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A child molester labeled "public enemy No. 1" who warned he would strike again if he got out of prison essentially was returned to jail Monday after his release from a psychiatric penitentiary.

Larry Don McQuay, who has asked to be castrated in hopes it would stop his urge to molest, agreed to what officials called unprecedented parole restrictions.

"This self-described monster is not going to be on the streets of San Antonio," said Larry Fitzgerald, spokesman for the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

A former school bus driver who claims to have molested 240 children, McQuay must follow more than a dozen special rules that include living in a locked facility, reporting to four parole officers and being accompanied by security officers on all outside trips such as work. He also cannot have any contact with children 17 or younger.

Any violation could return him to prison, said Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles chairman Victor Rodriguez, who called McQuay "public enemy No. 1."

McQuay also must undergo sex offender treatment. McQuay was in two sex offender programs while in prison but failed both, Rodriguez said.

No other parolees have been placed in a secured facility without first violating or being suspected of violating terms of their release, Rodriguez said. He also said the 24-hour-a-day supervision has not been done before.

McQuay, 32, was transferred from a psychiatric prison in Rusk to the privately managed Central Texas Parole Violator Facility. He arrived about 3: 15 p.m. wearing handcuffs, a gray and white striped shirt and a solemn expression. He didn't speak to reporters as he quickly was escorted inside.

The private jail run by Wackenhut Corrections Corp. houses parole violators along with some state and federal inmates. The downtown facility once was home to the county jail and is sandwiched between the San Antonio Police Department and the Bexar County adult probation office.

McQuay will be kept under lock and key in a private cell, will be under 24-hour surveillance and must wear an electronic monitor on his ankle, officials said.

DAY: Twirler to perform at symphony-chorale show

(From 1C)

Twirling requires discipline, determination and family support. For Tarabeth, it means practicing every day, except most Sundays, between 90 minutes and two hours. In the summer and over spring break, she twirls twice a day.

"Because I twirled, I introduced it to her," said Mrs. Echols. "It's very special because not many people twirl. It takes so much time and dedication on a daily basis from both the parent and the child that most people aren't willing to put that time in. I was willing to help her if she wanted to do i t ."

In addition to learning from her mother, Tarabeth has Gina Adams Martin, an 11-time world champion twirler and the 1990 Miss Grandparents, Mark and Mary Lou Wilson, who lend their support and efforts.

"They're a wonderful help," said Mrs. Echols. "My mother goes to all the meets and makes all the costumes. We have a lot of fun."

Tarabeth confirms her mother's comments.

"My mother did it for me so she knows how to do this," said Mrs. Echols. "She's kind of reliving what she did for me, and now I know what it's like to be the mother of a twirler.

"All the nervous tension that my mother experienced for me, I experience for Tarabeth while she's enjoying herself." Mrs. Echols laughed.

The mother and daughter duo — Tarabeth and Heather — also do shows together.

"I have put on some variety shows around town at different places, and she has twirled and sang," Mrs. Echols said. "She's been involved in a lot of entertainment since she began twirling. She's performed at Celebration of the Arts, Septemberfest, almost all the country clubs and at the Miss Permian Basin Pageant two years ago. She twirled at all these functions and some of them sang and danced, too."

"I like dancing because sometimes I dance with my mom, and we do fun dancing," Tarabeth said. "Last year, we did 'Singing in the Rain,'" and we had black umbrellas and vests and we had really cute hats."

Tarabeth has studied ballet, tap and jazz for seven years.

BUSINESS BRIEFING

Roller-coaster crude

Energy futures advanced sharply then fell back Monday amid conflicting signals about how soon Iraq and the United Nations will reach agreement on "food-for-oil" talks that will flood the market with crude.

West Texas Intermediate for May delivery rose 26 cents to $23.03 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the highest active-contract price since March 20. Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $21.50 a barrel.

Crude led its products to sharp gains, with gasoline rising above 70 cents for the first time in five years, as investors initially shrugged off the start of a third round of talks that could end with Iraq being allowed to sell $2 billion in oil over six months.

They instead focused on continued tight stockpiles, said analyst Gerald E. Samuels at ARB Oil in Los Angeles. The summer driving season is nearing, and gasoline stocks are 5 percent below last year. Heating oil stocks also are tight amid persistently cold weather in the eastern United States.

But the market came under pressure late in the session after Iraq's chief oil-sale negotiator, Abdul Amir-al Anbari, said the distance between the United Nations and Iraq are "not that large" and reiterated his hope this will be the last round of talks.

Dollar mixed

NEW YORK — The dollar traded lower Monday in foreign markets in anticipation of weak U.S. stock prices, but gradually recovered near the end of the day to finish mixed against major currencies.

In late New York trading, the dollar was worth 107.75 yen, up from 107.68 yen late Friday. The dollar also traded at 1.4817 German marks, down from 1.4835 marks.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with Friday: 1.1953 Swiss francs, down from 1.1960; 5.0521 French francs, down from 5.0850; 1,566 Italian lire, unchanged; and 1.3576 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3564.

The British pound, at $1.5290, also was unchanged.

NYSE rules

NEW YORK — The New York Stock Exchange is proposing to loosen restrictions on sharp market swings for the first time since the curbs were imposed after the October 1987 stock market crash.

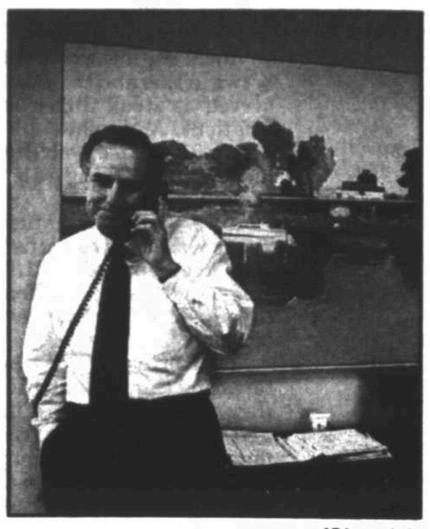

The so-called "circuit breakers" were designed by the NYSE and the Securities and Exchange Commission to slow the market's plunge in the event of another wrenching sell-off.

But concern that the rules are out of date has grown amid a more than doubling in the value of the Dow Jones industrial average since 1988, when the rules went into effect.

PacTel-SBC merger must pass PUCs

AP Laserphoto

Pacific Telesis Chief Executive Phil Quigley must persuade the California Public Utilities Commission to approve the merger of PacTel and SBC Corp.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Pacific Telesis Chief Executive Phil Quigley faces a daunting task as he tries to persuade the California Public Utilities Commission to approve last week's proposed $23.8 billion sale of the telecommunications company to SBC Communications of Texas.

"It's been a busy week: I'm now a Dallas fan, as well as a 49ers fan, and I've learned to say 'y'all' in three different colloquialisms," Quigley told the San Francisco Chronicle.

The PacTel-SBC combo is the first proposed merger of two Baby Bells, and as such, it ushers in a new era of competition in which phone and cable television companies are expected to invade each other's markets to expand their customer bases.

The two companies hope to close the deal by the end of the year, but it could take longer.

Some of the most vocal opponents of the merger are expected to be consumer groups, such as Toward Utility Rate Normalization. They worry that industry consolidation may lead to an oligopoly market and higher prices.

And some politicians, civic leaders and employees are disappointed that the company will be called SBC, not PacTel. The corporate headquarters will be located in San Antonio, causing San Francisco to lose another Fortune 500 company.

In addition, long-distance phone carriers and cable television companies probably will raise opposition.

"This is two gigantic monopolies getting together to form a colossal monopoly," said Spencer Kaitz, president of the California Cable Television Association, an Oakland trade group.

And then there are the shareholders. The buyout forced PacTel to cut its quarterly dividend to 31.5 from 54.5 in the second quarter.

As for employees, they're worried about job security.

Quigley concedes the loss of a headquarters for the holding company is an emotional one. And he acknowledges that some job cuts will be needed at the corporate office.

"There's no question there are redundancies at the corporate level," he said. "There should be little, if any, duplication at Pacific Bell and Nevada Bell; in headquarters functions, there's less than 400 people. In all likelihood, there will be a lot of opportunities" within SBC for those who are affected.

Quigley is ready to carry the company over the hurdles and close the deal on time, he says. He already brought a Texas state flag into his office, where it hangs with flags from California and Nevada.

There would be benefits, Quigley said. About 1,000 new jobs will be created.

The merged company still will be California's largest private employer and PacBell, its biggest subsidiary, will keep its home in San Francisco. In addition, other operations such as Internet services and long distance will be based in the San Francisco Bay area.

Asked if the deal would have been necessary if PacTel had not spun off its high-growth cellular business into AirTouch in April 1994, Quigley hedged. With this year's telecom reforms but without the spinoff, the old PacTel could have been an established player in both wired and wireless.

"Hindsight is wonderful but you can't change history," Quigley said.

Chrysler sells defense unit to Raytheon

BOSTON (AP) — Raytheon Co. said Monday it would buy Chrysler Corp.'s defense electronics and aircraft modification units, reinforcing its commitment to defense business and an industry trend toward consolidation.

The deal also underscores Chrysler's commitment to refocus on its core automotive business. The No. 3 automaker in the past few years has sold off several businesses not directly related to the building of cars and trucks.

Under the deal, Raytheon will pay $455 million in cash and a $20 million dividend to acquire Chrysler Technologies' Electrospace Systems Inc. and Airborne Systems Inc. divisions.

Raytheon will merge the two units with E-Systems, a Texas-based defense electronics business it bought last year for $2.3 billion.

The combination will make Raytheon the leader in the thriving airplane modification market and the "head-of-state" aircraft business — modifying airplanes to make them highly secured command posts, similar to Air Force One, an analyst said.

"This acquisition justifies their acquisition of E-Systems," said Michael Culver, a defense industry analyst with First Equity Development Inc. in Stamford, Conn. "They're the leader in this business right now: integration of high-tech aircraft modifications with the focus on electronics."

Raytheon officials said the deal showed the Lexington-based company's commitment to being a major player in the shrinking U.S. defense industry, even as it shifts more toward civilian business, which now account for 60 percent of revenues.

"It solidifies our standing as a top-tier defense company," said Lowell Lawson, chairman and chief executive of E-Systems. He also said the two companies would complement related Raytheon's business.

Lawson said he did not expect the deal to result in plant shutdowns or major layoffs, although some administrative jobs could be cut, because there is little overlap between the Chrysler subsidiaries and E-Systems.

The two Chrysler divisions brought in about $500 million in revenue in 1995, and they are estimated to be growing at about 20 percent per year. Raytheon will take no special charges against earnings for the purchase, expected to close in the second quarter.

Despite the divisions' strength, analysts said it was the right time for Chrysler to divest because defense electronics companies command a good price right now. The automaker has been plotting a return to its core automaking business.

A (Business) Card Of A Museum

■ Museum has over 150,000 cards, some dating back to the 1800s.

By Amy Westfeldt
Associated Press

ERDENHEIM, Pa. — Think your business card has to be the standard black-and-white issue? Ken Erdman knows better.

His museum pays homage to the business card, often viewed in the workaday world as pragmatic. He knows better on that score, too.

"It is kind of an extension of yourself. It's a little bit of giving yourself to someone else," said Erdman.

He calls the business card one of the most effective but least exploited marketing tools, and he has collected about 156,000 examples.

"Smile, you're under arrest!" is the teasing message on the card of Geoffrey B.W. Little, who bills himself as "Sydney, Australia's smiling policeman."

Not that all cards must be on paper: Erdman, a 70-year-old marketer and collector, has some made of glass, leather, even computer mouse pads.

Salem China Co. tempts potential customers with a saucer, complete with a duck painted in the middle and the company name etched on the bottom.

There's the dentist who produces the Floss Card, a piece of plastic with a string of the teeth-cleaning stuff hanging off the bottom. A glass company passes out glass rectangles; an adult exotic store attaches free condoms.

It's the surprise element that makes a card memorable.

"A business card is really a great card when the person who receives it asks the question, 'Oh. May I keep this?'" Erdman said.

His favorites sit on three shelves in the lobby of his business, a stone building on an out-of-the-way street just outside Philadelphia's upscale Chestnut Hill neighborhood.

Even though more than 90 percent of the 4.5 billion cards produced each year are black and white rectangles, collectors see the art value.

"These days so many people design their business cards to match the stationery. That's fine if that's all they want their card to do," said Avery N. Pitzak, president of the American Business Card Club in Aurora, Colo.

"Because there's so much uniformity out there, it doesn't take much to stand out."

Erdman counts Tuula Helariulta's card among his favorites: a folded-over cutout of the front page of the Finnish journalist's newspaper with his name inside.

Writer Murry Raphel of Atlantic City, N.J., has a folded card containing a pop-up typewriter inside. A page rolls out with the words: "Am I the type writer you're looking for?"

Redwood Unlimited's business card is wooden and shaped like a jagged, circular saw blade.

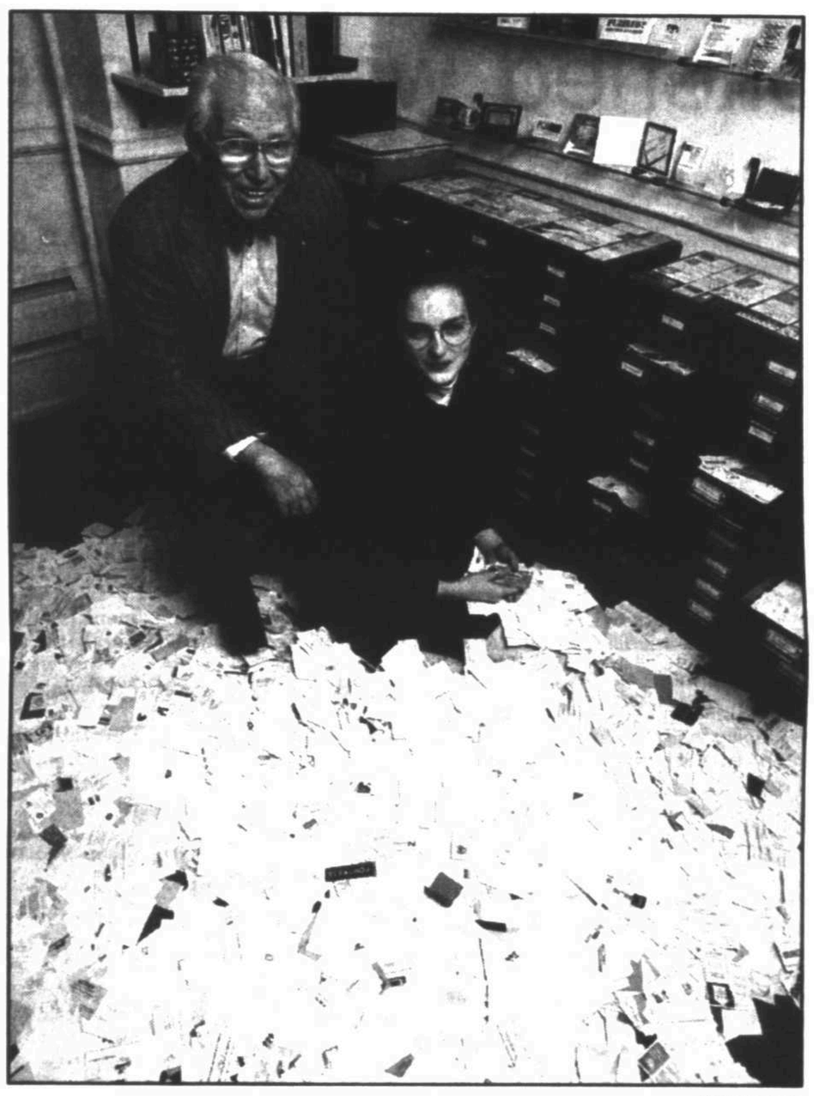

"Putting the bite on pests since 1959," reads Todco Pest Control's card, a thinly sliced wood shaving with gnaw marks at the corner.

The museum has been open by appointment since January and probably will continue in that capacity because it is so small, Erdman said.

Museum curator Jennifer McNulty, who was hired by Erdman to create the museum, sorted cards into categories for a year, discarding those that didn't immediately grab her attention.

The older ones, calling cards with sprigs of flowers passed out by young men and women seeking matrimony, date to the 1850s. They are folded at the corners to send different messages.

"If cards were turned up in one corner, that meant condolences," she said. "A folded outer corner meant they were going out of town."

AP Laserphoto

Ken Erdman, left, the founder of the Business Card Museum, and his assistant, Jennifer McNulty, are surrounded by thousands of business cards in his office in Erdheim, Pa. Erdman, a 70-year-old marketer and collector, founded the museum to honor the business card, a marketing tool he calls one of the most effective but least exploited.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Muni-bonds, bond holders only tax-free investments

By Bill Doyle

Q: How does a person go about making investments that are free from income tax? What indicates the degree of risk and where to make the purchase?

A: When talking about tax-free investments, you mean municipal bonds and investment companies holding municipal bonds. All other types of legitimate tax-free investments have been eliminated by various acts of Congress.

Doyle

"Muni" bonds are debt obligations issued by states and their political subdivisions, such as counties, cities, towns, school boards, sewer districts and bridge, tunnel and highway authorities.

The interest from muni bonds is free from federal income tax but can be subject to the federal alternative minimum tax if you have very high income.

Most states exempt from state and local income tax the interest from bonds issued within the state. That can be important if you live where such taxes are levied.

The degree of risk is measured by rating services, such as Moody's Investors Service and Standard & Poor's Corp., which study each bond issue and its issuer. Moody's ratings run from Aaa down to C; S&P's from AAA to D.

Bonds rated Baa or higher by Moody's or BBB or better by S&P are counted as investment grade. Lower-rated issues have picked up the nickname "junk bonds." Even though investment gems sometimes are found there, junk-bond buying is best left to professionals who have the ability to evaluate each bond issue and resources to risk in case of bond default.

You can make tax-free investments through just about any securities brokerage firm, at many banks and through mutual fund organizations.

Brokerages and banks sell muni bonds and also handle the sale of shares of investment companies holding munis in their investment portfolio.

Those investment companies come in two forms: mutual funds and unit investment trusts.

A mutual fund has a managed portfolio in which investments can change at any time. A unit trust has a fixed portfolio, which changes only in unusual circumstances.

Both types pay tax-free dividends, because they are simply passing along the tax-free interest they collect.

Q: Is it necessary to go to a broker or bank and pay a commission in order to buy shares of a tax-free mutual fund?

A: No. You can purchase shares of no-load tax-free mutual funds directly from the fund organizations. Many no-load fund management groups have one or more tax-free funds.

Assuming you are really out to save investment expenses, make sure you put your money into a true no-load fund — one with no commission when you buy, no redemption fee or contingent deferred sales charge when you redeem shares and no continuous 12b-1 distribution fee.

Q: When a tax-free municipal bond is called in and redeemed, are the proceeds taxed as ordinary income?

A: No. The difference between the price you paid for that bond and the redemption price is taxed as a capital gain.

The short-term capital gains tax, on profit from the sale of securities and other assets owned for one year or less, is at the same rate as the tax on your ordinary income.

The long-term capital gains tax rate is 15 percent if you are in the 15 percent federal income tax bracket and 28 percent if you are in any of the higher brackets.

Jib's: It's a family place with down home Texas style food

You've made the same mistake a thousand times. Each time it ends in a roar of conflicting opinions, a car full of hurt feelings and a general loss of appetite. You renew your resolve to never broach that controversial issue again. Then, it slips after a long, hairy day at the office, "Where should we go for dinner?" you ask absentmindedly.

Now, there's a place Mom, Dad and the kids will all enjoy - Jib's Family Dining. Even Grandma and Grandpa will gladly meet you there.

When you walk through the bright red door you may be overwhelmed by the feeling that you have been there before, a long time ago. The clothespin bedecked wire between the front counter and the cooking area will look familiar. You'll hear echoes of a friendly voice welcoming you. Even the other customers may remind you of familiar faces from your hometown.

You thought it was a real treat to eat at places like Jib's when you were growing up and your kids will love it now. There's nothing more kid friendly than this casual atmosphere where families can relax and enjoy visiting without worrying about which fork Josh is using for the salad. And, if a soft drink spills for the third time, no sweat. Jib's Owner Joe Harper is glad to have the kids around even when it means a little extra cleaning. That's why he has a kid's menu with Blue Bell ice cream on all the children's meals.

Joe has proven that one menu can please the children, as well as Mom and Dad. Too often in the restaurant industry, a kid-friendly menu could be translated "Appetizers- any of a number of formerly frozen, then fried, microwaved or grilled items which have been waiting patiently for you under a heat lamp. Main Course- bring the digestive aid of your choice."

Jib's menu features good old West Texas favorites like steak fingers, chicken fried steak, charbroiled and fried chicken strips and burgers with all the right toppings. Unless you call ahead none of it will be ready when you arrive, but you won't have to wait long.

Jib's made-from-scratch chicken strips are great finger food for the whole family. Charbroiled chicken is just one of the other alternatives on the menu, which features traditional West Texas foods with steak fingers leading the list.

Jib's specialty - steak fingers - are specially cut, all day long, to ensure the greatest tenderness.

"As we cut the meat we can eliminate even tiny imperfections that have to pass in a larger cut. You'll find that our steak fingers vary in size and shape because we cut out any little bit that isn't absolutely tender," Joe explains.

Once the cutting is done, steak fingers are handled like Jib's chicken fried steak and chicken strips. They're dipped in an egg and milk wash, dropped in flour and fried to a crispy golden brown.

You'll see a world of difference between this and the frozen sticks served as steak fingers at many locations. And, while Jib's is not a fast food place, you'll probably have your steak fingers before you finish your salad.

Jib's menu also offers other Texas classics like catfish, green chile cheeseburgers, BLTs, onion rings and fried okra. You'll have to stop in to see the rest of the menu.

That brings up one really interesting thing about Jib's. While they serve Texas food in Texas size portions and have the friendliest, family atmosphere around, they don't ring up Texas size tickets.

"There are not that many places a person can go and eat with a five dollar bill," Joe says. A regular chicken fried steak with salad, fries or mashed potatoes and green beans, Texas toast and all the cream gravy you can handle will only lighten your wallet by $4.95. A full size steak finger platter is $5.50 and a half order is only $4.00.

Kiddie meals include a main course, French fries, soft drink and ice cream or cookie for only $2.75. Jib's family values just can't be beat and you don't need to leave a tip.

"My family works hard to make Jib's a real family-oriented place," Joe says. "We want it to be a friendly place with great tasting West Texas style cooking."

Jib's is indeed a family-operated business. Customers are likely to have a Harper greet them at the front counter or hand cut their steak fingers or even clean their table. "We're proud to have a fine staff in addition to the family, but we like to do a little bit of everything ourselves in order to make sure that Jib's is continually living up to the expectations of West Texas families," Joe explains.

Jib's Family Dining is located at 3316 W. Illinois just across the street from Dunlaps. Carry out orders are welcome when you call 699-3008. Hours are Monday-Saturday 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Softened water saves you money

"How hard is the water here?" asked the newcomer.

"See for yourself," said the Midland native. "Try a slice."

Hard water stops being funny when you realize how much it costs in corrosion and other household problems.

Duane St. Clair at Supreme Water Systems says, "Any water with over 10.5 grains per gallon of hardness is very hard. Midland water has about 30 to 40 grains per gallon."

> "Any water with over 10.5 grains per gallon of hardness is very hard. Midland water has about 30-40 grains per gallon."
> Duane St. Clair
> Supreme Water Systems

Hard water carries with it many hidden costs. Duane St. Clair lists seven ways a water softener can save you money.

First, in the laundry, softened water can reduce the use of soap and treatment chemicals by up to 70 percent. That's a lot less soap to buy in a year.

Using less soap leads to the second benefit, longer lasting clothes. Excess soap and chemicals can reduce fabric life significantly, meaning softened water can save you up to 33 percent on your clothing budget.

The dishwasher is the third savings area, and one where the difference is clearly visible. With softened water, you'll use less soap and eliminate the curding of soap that leads to spots on glasses and tableware.

Fourth, your appliances will last longer. A water softener can extend the life of appliances such as water heaters, dishwashers and washing machines by 25 percent. Electric water heaters and dishwashers are especially damaged by corrosion from hard water, because of mineral build-up on the heating element.

Energy savings is the fifth benefit of soft water. Studies have shown it increases the efficiency of gas water heaters by 22 percent and electric ones by 17 percent.

If you've ever lathered up with shampoo in a town with soft water, you've seen benefit number six. It takes awhile to get used to using just a dab of shampoo or a quick swipe with the soap, so these savings may come on gradually. But once you get used to soft water, you can save up to 25 percent on their use. You may even eliminate the need for any softening chemicals you're using now.

The seventh area of savings is on plumbing and fixtures in general. There will be no more need for lime-fighting chemicals to clean fixtures, no more green-looking crud growing around the shower head and no more ugly stains spreading across sinks and tubs.

Besides what you can see, hard water's hidden damage can be bad, too. It can clog pipes, meaning lower pressure from restricted flow. It can cause corrosion, leading to leaks, which create plumbing bills.

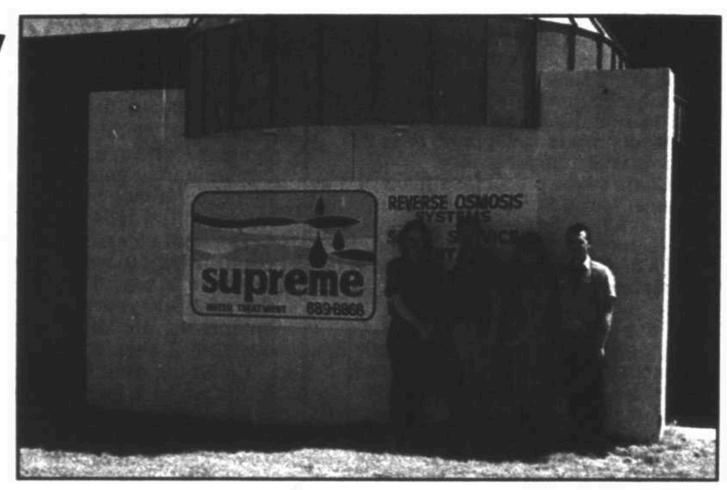

This list makes it clear that a water softening system from Supreme Water Treatment, for as little as $36 per month, can actually pay for itself.

They can install the Eco Water system, a state of the art product that takes hard water's corrosiveness so seriously that no metal parts touch the water. That means the system will last a long time because it can't rust or corrode.

If you need work done on an existing system, Supreme Water Treatment is authorized to service all brands, including Lindsey, Culligan and King.

Any way you slice it, Supreme Water Treatment can cut down your hard water problems.

Supreme Water Treatment has been locally owned and family operated since 1981. They sell and service Eco Water systems, including reverse osmosis units and whole house water softeners. They service all softener brands. Their phone number is 570-1220.

Supreme Water Treatment staff, including Glenda Tarpley (left to right), Scott White, Kathy Wise and J. D. White can help homeowners save money with softened water. Find out how you can benefit by calling Supreme Water Treatment at 570-1220.

Your old central air unit could be worth $500 trade-in

You're familiar with trading in your old car to help pay for a new one; how about trading your old, inefficient central air unit toward the purchase of a new, high efficiency model? Not only will you save on the purchase price, you'll begin to see energy savings from the first hot day.

At Aire Serv, the winter rush is over and the summer rush hasn't started. So between now and May 15th, Aire Serv will give you up to $500 for your old unit toward the purchase of a new unit (this special is not valid with any other offer. The old unit must still be in working order. This special will help you avoid the summer rush should your old unit give out when it turns hot.

Also, if your unit is eight years old or more, replacing it could greatly reduce your energy use. The chart below will help you see how.

By comparing the cost of the Seasonal Energy Efficiency Rating (SEER) of your current cooling system with the estimated cost of today's higher efficiency units, you can easily see the projected savings on your utility bills. You can save up to $1000 with the new equipment.

For example, if your current unit is a 60,000 BTU (five ton) model with an SEER of 5 (typical of units eight or more years old), it currently costs about $1836 to operate under the conditions listed. Replacing it with equipment with an SEER of 12 would cost just $765, a saving of $1071 per year. As you can see, a high efficiency unit pays for itself in just a few years in West Texas.

So don't wait until it's too hot and too busy. Get up to $500 for your old unit now from Aire Serv and save on those utility bills all summer long.

Aire Serv is locally owned and operated by Lee Thompson. The company sells Carrier and other units and offers complete service on all brands. The phone number is 570-7405.

Estimated Cooling Costs for Permian Basin Area

48,000	$1468	$1224	$1049	$734	$612
60,000	$1836	$1530	$1311	$918	$765

Aire Serv is now Perfect Climate dealer for Honeywell accessories

Wouldn't it be great to come home to a house that's just the right temperature—without having to leave the heater or air conditioner running all day? Wouldn't it be great to have clean air, too—for the benefit of your allergies?

Aire Serv has recently become a Perfect Climate dealer for Honeywell's line of comfort accessories, including automatic setback thermostats and electrostatic air cleaners.

Comfort has never been easier than with Honeywell's Perfect Climate Comfort Center. If you get home at 5:15 and want the house at 72 degrees then, just set your Honeywell thermostat to reach 72 at 5:15. With Honeywell's Intelligent Recovery feature, over a few days the thermostat "learns" how long it takes your home to reach the desired temperature. You don't have to set it to come on 30 minutes before you get home and hope that's long enough.

This advanced thermostat can also control a Honeywell electronic air cleaner. It can even control a zoning system that sends warm or cool air to only the part of the house that needs it.

Honeywell's electronic air cleaners can noticeably improve the quality of your air, especially if you suffer from asthma or allergies.

Let Aire Serv help improve the air quality in your home today.

DEAR ABBY

Check your tires for kitten's sake

DEAR ABBY: I hope my letter will spare someone the sorrow of losing a little kitten.

During the night, my cat's three kittens climbed atop the tires of my car. As I approached the car, I noticed a pair of tiny paws on my left rear tire and moved the kitten to safety. Upon checking the other wheel wells, I found the two other kittens, each one on top of a tire. Unfortunately, while I was moving the others to safety, the first kitten returned, unseen by me, and resumed its perch. He's at the vet now, in very guarded condition, and may not make it.

VanBuren

I have seen numerous other kittens on top of tires since. It appears to be a common practice with kittens. They should be taught that cars are things to fear and avoid, no matter how inviting they may be. So, as cruel as it may seem, if the weather is warm, I hose down the wheel wells whenever I see a kitten there. If it's cold, I just fetch them out and keep my fingers crossed.

I've heard of grown cats climbing into motor compartments in the wintertime, but I've never heard or read about kittens resting on tires. I'd bet more kittens are killed this way than cats seeking warmth from a motor. Please say a word or two about it; it may spare a lot of grief. — THE HON. H. HAYWOOD TURNER III, COLUMBUS, GA.

DEAR JUDGE TURNER: Thanks for the warning.

DEAR ABBY: I am disappointed with your response to a letter signed "Old-Fashioned Grandma."

I've been reading your column for years and usually your responses are pretty open-minded, but the fact that you agreed that adult nudity in the presence of young children was cause for concern shocked me.

A father showering with his 3-year-old daughter (as I do with my son) is completely natural and teaches children that the human body is nothing to hide. Keeping "boy stuff" and "girl stuff" separate at such a young age only instills sexual stereotypes and causes sexual hang-ups in adult life. There is nothing sexual or wrong in showering with a young child.

As for bathroom privacy, my children know that a closed door means "Mommy wants privacy" (or whoever is in there), but they often walk in when I leave the door open.

You should have told "Old-Fashioned" that "Jimmy" showering with Mommy (or "Jenny" with Daddy) is totally natural. Today's parents are trying to raise their children without the hang-ups that they have had to overcome from THEIR "old-fashioned" upbringing. — DISAPPOINTED IN TORONTO, CANADA

DEAR DISAPPOINTED: The letters I received from readers show your attitude to be far more popular than mine —especially with the parents who are currently raising children.

Ten whacks with a wet diaper for me!

DEAR ABBY: When I bought a new exercise bike recently, a friend asked me if she could have my old one. I gave it to her thinking she would use it.

After a short while, I found out that she had sold it. Am I wrong in thinking she should have asked me if I wanted it back? Or at least offered to split the money she got from selling it?

I'm really having a big argument about this with my husband. — NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: When you gave your friend the bike, it was hers to do whatever she chose to do with it. The money she received from the sale of the bike was also hers to do whatever she chose to do with it. Your husband is right.

Houston needs ambulances

HOUSTON (AP) — A dramatic jump in the demand for ambulance service has created a potentially dangerous shortage of the emergency vehicles in Houston, a city official says.

The number of runs made by city ambulances each year is up 20 percent since 1990, from 160,000 to more than 190,000, and the number of people transported by ambulance has jumped 48 percent, from 67,000 to 99,000.

During that same span, however, the city has added only two ambulances.

"This is a very serious ongoing problem," said Paul Pepe, director of emergency medical services for the city. "As a person with a family here, yes, I'm concerned."

Pepe said the city has made a good-faith effort over the years to meet ambulance needs, but the continuing increase in demand for service makes it important that Houston buy some new ambulances.

Wes Warnke, the new assistant chief in charge of the Houston Fire Department's EMS division, said the department is requesting five new ambulances.
