285 Officers Invade Gatesville This Week End for T. D. School

From every post, camp, cantonment, arsenal field, or what have you, in the United States, the destination this week-end for 285 officers will be Gatesville, Texas, USA.

These men will be here for the Tank Destroyer School which will open at the City Hall Auditorium at 7:30 a. m. Monday morning, with Brig. Gen. A. D. Bruce, Camp Hood's commanding officer giving them the welcoming address, you might say. Practically every state will be represented by the men reporting here for the school.

Major E. A. Dunnham and others of the billeting personnel have been in a stew since Wednesday, when they were informed that 30 more officers would be here than was originally planned, but everything is "under control" now and places were being found for these "additional" yesterday.

Arrivals will begin today, and will continue thru Sunday, so they will all be "billeted" (an old French word—a "Free French" word) with citizens in Gatesville.

Naturally, we can't give you the intimacies of the school—don't know 'em—but it will be strictly military both in the lecture room and the field.

Well, Mr. Officer, USA, we welcome you in behalf of the citizens of Gatesville and Coryell county, if we may take this privilege.

Births

Mr. and Mrs. Leon Anderson of West Columbia, Texas, announce the arrival of a baby son, who was born in a Bay City hospital Monday morning about 3 o'clock. The youngster, who weighed 5½ pounds, has been given the name John Martin. Mrs. Anderson, the former Miss Beulah Gamblin, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gamblin of Gatesville.

Harry Voss and son, Kenneth, Kit Bridges, Guy Powell and son, Milroy, were business visitors in Dallas and Arlington over the week end.

Mr. and Mrs. Pat Hollingsworth, Mrs. E. P. Holden, James Paxton and Miss Helen Irvin visited relatives and friends in Fort Worth Sunday.

1789 Registered In "Fourth": More News Next Week

Seventeen hundred eighty-nine signed in the Fourth Registration Monday, according to Chief Clerk Mrs. T. K. O'Neal of the Selective Service office.

Approximately 90 of these will be sent to their home counties, but others will be received from different counties, which will leave the total about as it is.

In an "off the record chat" she told us of other impending moves, but they're not for publication yet, so you'll just have to wait.

"Zero Hour" and "Shootin' Starts" In 24 Hours

Headquarters, Tank Destroyer Command announced today, only 24 hours remain to the residents within the area designated for artillery firing to complete their evacuation.

Actual firing will commence May 1 within the area bounded on the west by the old GEORGETOWN road, on the south by the ANTELOPE SCHOOL - ELIJAH road, on the north by the east-west line extending from the tent camp to the road forming the eastern boundary of the danger area.

The Range Officer said, "It is imperative that evacuation of residents and their property, for which they possess removal permission, be completed by midnight, Apr. 30. All civilian activity is prohibited within this area as of that hour."

Headquarters further announced that the date of evacuation of residents in the newly acquired areas in the northwest portion of the reservation has been extended to May 15, because of the recognition of the difficulties imposed by the recent rains and the desire of the Tank Destroyer Command to cooperate as fully as possible with the landowners affected.

In this connection, Lt. Cochran, speaking for the Commanding General, had this to say, "We are well aware of the difficulties of removal facing the owners of this recently purchased ground. We have, therefore, provided an additional two weeks for evacuation. Re-adjustments of the training program have been made in recognition of this problem. May 15 is, however, the final date permissible."

"C. O." 753rd Tank Battalion Thanks C. of C. Here

Major Joseph G. Felber, Commanding Officer of the 753rd Tank Battalion, sends this letter, in thanking the Gatesville Chamber of Commerce for entertaining the men of his command. It reads:

Camp Hood, Texas.
Chamber of Commerce,
Gatesville, Texas.
Gentlemen:

I desire to express, thru the Chamber of Commerce, my sincerest appreciation and thanks to the kindly people of your community for honoring the 753rd Tank Battalion with a barbecue and dance.

Since the organization of this battalion, your invitation of last Saturday was the first of its kind that has ever been received from a civilian community. The members of my command were delighted, not only with the quantity and fine quality of your barbecue and the fine entertainment but also with the fine spirit of friendliness and good neighbor attitude that every one of your community extended to every individual of this command. The impressions and feelings created will be long remembered. For that—many thanks, and my deepest admiration to an American community as unselfish, congenial and hospitable as yours.

Unfortunately, official matters prevented my attendance. For all that I have heard, I envy those who were fortunate enough to attend your social function.

Sincerely,
JOSEPH C. FELBER,
Major, 753rd Tank Bn (M)
Commanding.

Gatesville, you certainly ought to "bend low, sweet chariot". They're really fine words, Major, and all Gatesville wants our reputation as "hosts" to stand up, and not be just a "flash in the pan." Thanks again.

INSTRUCTOR'S COURSE WILL BEGIN HERE MAY 11, THRU 16TH

Walter A. Sandy, First Aid and Life Saving representative of the American Red Cross will instruct a class of Red Cross instructors beginning May 11-16.

This will be a 4-county course, including Lampasas, Bosque, Hamilton and Coryell, and will be held in the GHS auditorium evenings. The course will be limited to 35 from this county, and any one who has finished the advanced first aid courses is eligible.

Rents! Frozen in Coryell by Order OEM and President

They didn't pick out this particular locality to freeze rents, but Coryell county is included in the extensive list in Texas in which the rents are frozen as of March 1, 1942, and other dates. Ours, however, is as of March 1.

The Emergency Price Control Act provides that state and local officers be given 60 days to get the rents in line. This 60-day period will end May 2.

Also, there is that matter of "general maximum price regulation", as announced by the President and Price Administrator Leon Henderson, which is too long to be gone into now, but on which we'll give you some OEM official releases in future editions.

REV. ED BAYLESS RETURNS TO GV.; TO PREACH SUNDAY

The Rev. Ed Bayless, former pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Gatesville, but who has been making his home in Waskom, Texas, has returned to this city as pastor of this church. He will preach Sunday at 11 a. m. and 8:30 p. m., and every one is given a cordial invitation to attend. Soldiers, officers and men are given a special invitation.

Sunday school will begin at 9:45 a. m. at the Presbyterian Church.

MISS JOYCE DICKIE IS NEW MANAGER OF ROYAL BEAUTY SHOP

Miss Joyce Dickie is the new manager of the Royal Beauty Shoppe, located on the south side of the square. She is well known to people in this vicinity, having been employed at a beauty shop in this city for several months. Miss Dickie is a graduate of a San Angelo beauty school.

Mrs. Johnnie Carroll Orbeck, former manager, is still employed in this popular shoppe.

Mrs. Ivy Edmondson is in Temple going through the clinic.

Corp W. B. McBroom and his buddy, Pvt. D. C. Vaughter were visitors in Gatesville his week, while they were en route from Perrin Field, Sherman, to Ellington Field, Houston, where they will take training as twin-motored pilots. They have finished their course at Perrin Field along with a class of 36 others.

Training Institute Begins with State School Staff

A three-day institute with employees of the Gatesville State School for boys has been completed with Miss Lydia Cage of the Division of Child Welfare, State Department of Public Welfare, Austin, in charge.

This is the first of a series in which experts from various agencies and organizations will participate and is supplemental to a program of in-service training the institution is offering its employees.

In connection with this, Superintendent R. N. Winship, Jr., said: "Every employee of this institution is an important cog in the wheel that makes this school operate efficiently and intelligently for the best interest of the individual boy." He emphasized this by saying: "We must be sure that the matron of the dormitory, the teacher, the company supervisor, the vocational instructor, each have a thoro knowledge and understanding of the behavior of boys, in order that they can contribute their share towards helping them become stable, happy, and successful men. Regardless of everything else, this school rises to the level of understanding of the staff that administers it. We feel that these institutes will augment our own efforts and plans toward ever-striving to improve ourselves and our staff to better serve the boys who come to us."

Miss Cage discussed: basic needs of children and how to meet them. She said: "One of the most striking phases of the entire institution is that the whole program is directed toward developing the individual boy in order to help him develop his own capacity and complete successfully as a citizen in later life."

She expressed her enthusiasm as to the progress that has been made, and that the academic school is being directed in the right direction. Also, that the policy of vocational training was good, and especially those being offered in cooperation with the State Department of Education and the federal government in training boys for national defense work.

AUSTIN MOORE HAS CAR TAKEN WED. NIGHT: OUT GARAGE

Austin Moore, Arnett, is short one automobile, which was missing since Wednesday night sometime. It was in his garage.

It was a '34 Ford 2-door, black, No. 264-729, and if you see it, report it to Sheriff J. H. Brown.

This is not a "want-adv", but Mr. Moore would appreciate getting the car back.

Luncheon For Woman's Forum and Guests Is Given At Leaird Home.

The Byron Leaird Jr. home on East Leon Street was the scene of a lovely affair this week when Mrs. Leaird was hostess at a luncheon for members of the Woman's Forum and guests.

All appointments were in bright colors, using fiesta dishes and colored glassware. A globe surrounded by Queen Anne's lace and roses formed the centerpiece for the large table, and placecards were hand-made miniature flags of the different Pan American countries. A three course luncheon was served, and the menu featured Spanish dishes.

Miss Mary Sue Brown, missionary to Brazil, was the guest speaker for the affair, and gave an interesting talk about that country. Mrs. Leaird Jr. sang a Mexican song accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clay Stinnett, who also played excerpts from the Latin American national anthems.

Attending were seventeen members and the following guests: Miss Brown, Mrs. A. C. Schloeman, and Mrs. Denver Roberts of Pettus.

So many wearables to select Mother.

While we have considered some very important legislation this past week, either house has actually passed upon the vital questions of hours of work, of responsibility of unions for their acts, of exhortant fees for the privilege of work, etc. It is true that we have passed a conference report in connection with the last war appropriation bill which specifically authorizes the re-negotiation of any war contracts at any time there may occur any reduction in wages paid, either straight time or overtime. Most government war contracts have contained such a clause, but this legislation was adopted for the specific purpose of making sure that any saving that might be effected in overtime wages as a result of lengthening the work week would accrue directly to the United States, and could not benefit any contractor. There can be no question of the fact that Congress recognizes its duty to protect the government from any excessive costs. There is a general readiness to take all the steps that can be taken by legislation to see to it that those who secure war contracts do not become war millionaires. Unfortunately the legislative branch of the government cannot assure responsibility for the administration of our construction program. It is contrary to the wishes of Congress, but some of the departments are still letting improvident contracts. Some departments still insist on favoring the great corporations as contrasted with the small plants. Some dollar-a-year men still look out for he interests of their own companies, but all in all, it is rapidly becoming more and more difficult for capital to make any undue profits from war production. I think the figures on the profits the airplane manufacturers and other war goods made during the first quarter of 1942 are most interesting. They show that in most every case the per cent of profit is lower than it was before the war.

This control of profits is undoubtedly necessary and desirable. It alone is not enough. I have no way of knowing what recommendations the President will make between the time I write this and the time you will read it, but I am hopeful that he will ask for control of all profits, wages and prices. In no other way can we escape the ills of inflation, and I am not at all sure that even the most rigid control can do more than postpone inflation in this manner. Taxation and the purchase of war bonds are two sure methods of drawing off money which would otherwise be sure to compete for the very limited amount of consumers goods. As long as it is necessary to devote a large part of our productive capacity to war purposes we cannot hope to produce enough goods to meet the consumer demand. If the prospective consumers as a class have idle money they will bid up the price of goods that are available and inflation will set in.

We must meet and deal with this question of inflation. We must also meet and deal with the question of the work week and the right of American citizens to work in the war industries, without being compelled to pay exorbitant fees. The sooner we meet the questions squarely, the better it will be for everyone. Early this week the President asked that Congress take no action on these matters until he sent a message and delivered a speech to the people early next week. In deference to his request, both houses have waited. It is my hope that his message will be a clear-cut request for definite action. I feel that such a message would do much to clear the atmosphere.

Earlier this week the house passed and sent to the Senate a bill increasing by a half a billion dollars the amount of guaranteed loans which the FHA is authorized to write on defense housing. As a practical matter this is going to represent almost all the private construction that can be carried on during the war. It will be practically impossible for anyone to get priorities for material to build non-essential or non-defense structures. This will work a great hardship on many people and many communities, but I am sure that you will readily understand how necessary these restrictions are.

Here in Washington we are all wondering about the rationing of gasoline. We know that the rationing will start in about two weeks but we don't know how much each person will be allowed. Leon Henderson has suggested two and one half gallons per week. That won't let us do much driving, but if it is necessary, and I am sure that some rationing is necessary along the East Coast, am willing to make the sacrifice.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:
The Earl of Dorincourt sends to America for his grandson, who is to inherit the title. He stubbornly refuses, however, to see the boy's mother, an American woman. The boy's engaging qualities cause the Earl to relent. Distressing news, however, threatens to bring sadness to all. Another claimant to the title appears and apparently establishes his claim.

Chapter Six

Overseas in Brooklyn the news of the momentous events that are happening to Ceddle stir great excitement in the hearts of his old chums, Hobbs and Dick. The doings of the 'ristocrats, as Hobbs calls them, are of perennial interest, and both magazines and newspapers are full of accounts of the battle over the Dorincourt succession.

"He can have half of my shoe-shinin' business," Dick says.
"I've always had in my mind that Ceddle would come in with me some day," says Hobbs.
Thumbing through the pages of an illustrated weekly, Dick suddenly let out a whoop.
"Holy mackerel!" He shows Hobbs a picture over the caption: "LADY FAUNTILERROY, MOTHER OF CLAIMANT."
"She ain't so 'ristocrat!" cries Dick. "She's Minna — Ben's wife!"
"You mean it's all some kind of a hocus-pocus?" says Hobbs.
"Sure I do!"
"Well — I'm — jiggered!"
"I never heard of her havin' no kid but Ben's kid. The one Ben went to Chicago to look for when she run off."
"We oughta do somethin' about this."
"I know Alderman Murphy," says Hobbs decisively. "Come along, we'll go right now... Them earls! They've always had a spite against us ever since the Revolution!"
And they're off to consult the oracle, Alderman Murphy.
Some weeks later Minna and Lawyer Snade are quarrelling in Minna's quarters at the Dorincourt Arms when Lord Dorincourt calls. A boy follows Dorincourt into the room. It is Dick. Minna recognizes him as the youngster brother of her husband, Ben, from whom she ran away, and gives a cry in spite of herself.
"Why, hello, Dick," she says.
"Hello, Minna."
Now Ben himself strolls in followed by Mr. Havisham and Mr. Hobbs. Minna gasps but tries to cover up.
"Why, Ben, where have you been all this time?" she says. Ben looks at her in silence. Havisham addresses him.

"Do you know this woman?"
As he nods and looks away, she says: "Funny if he didn't, seem' he was my second husband."
Ben asks for the boy, their son, and Minna tells him the boy died from pneumonia. Dick slides to the bedroom door and opens it suddenly. The boy falls on the floor. Getting up sheepishly he addresses Dick as "uncle". Then both Minna and the boy realize that the show is over and the exposure complete.
"Well, I'll be jiggered!" says Mr. Hobbs.
Ben speaks to his son. He says: "Hello, Tom."
"This is my son, Lord Fauntleroy," says Minna still trying to carry it off.
"Oh, no, it isn't," says Ben. "It's my boy, Tom."
"Oh, shut up," says Minna in a rage. "I'll have the law on the lot

893rd Tank Destroyer Battalion
753rd Tank Battalion

Men with the Colors!

By Frank Slamon

Off the Record

Joe (Curly) Istock is welcomed back to the Battalion after a two weeks detail with the Tank Destroyer Command at Temple. . . . Frank Korzen and Lou Ranck, both of Headquarters Company, were Civil Engineers for the same company while working on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. (the Dream Highway) prior to their induction. . . . Gene Waple, Company C, takes the prize for the "Job I'd Like to Have Department" Gene was a sampler for the Calvert Distillery in Baltimore before entering the Army. . . . Roscoe Strickland and Harry Macht both of Headquarters Company, for a modern "Damon and Pythias" combination. . . . Frank Reddington of A Company was a truant officer for a Correspondence School before making the 1-A Grade in the Selective Service Act. . . . The Bugler Staff is now enhanced by the addition of one Jake Kubanoff who will now take his turn every fourth day pounding air in the brass horn. . . . With the arrival of Arnold (Muscle Lungs) Blews in the Battalion, Headquarters Company threw away its loud speaking system. . . . Sgt. Markunas, Mess Sgt. for Hq. Company, isn't so sure that cook Frank Brennan is an asset. It appears that Brennan eats more than he cooks!

A vote of thanks is hereby given 1st Lt. James Ogden for having done a bang-up job on the establishment and efficient running of the Camp Post Exchange. Lt. Ralph S. Eldridge will take over the reins today and the men of the 893rd wish him continued success of this all-important camp enterprise.

Softball Notes

After dropping three in a row, Recon. Company turned on the steam in the last inning to eke out a decision over the heavy hitting B Company, by a score of 5 to 4. Pacing the attack of Recon. Company were Bottoli, Harris, Sarabok and Piccolo, while Cunningham collected two of the five safeties collected by the B Co. team.

C Company continued to lead the league by swamping the Pill-rollers 17 to 3. The power-hitting C Company were too much for Capt. Hegarty's who only gathered seven hits, and contributed five errors to the cause of their defeat.

C Company defeated Hq. to take over the lead in the battalion league when the minions of Lt. Lavin came out on the short end of a 7 to 3 score. However, the game was played under protest, and an official victory cannot given Capt. Jones' team until the protest has been acted upon by Lt. Albarano, Athletic Officer.
