Motel conversion to prison stirs opposition

By BILL FOSTER
Staff Writer

A proposal to convert a vacant Big Spring motel into an illegal alien detention center has drawn opposition from surrounding property owners.

Conversion of the Homestead Inn, located at I-20 and Andrews Highway, into a holding facility for immigration law violators, would devalue homes and businesses, and increase the potential for crime in the area, said Wesley Yater, who lives one-fourth mile west of the motel.

An announcement by Ed Davenport of Mid-Tex Detention Centers, Inc., Brady, that he is seeking a specific use permit to allow conversion of the motel prompted the property owners to object.

"Such a facility would bring more crime and degrade the local economy instead of helping it," Yater said.

Yater said he has been contacted by at least 12 other property owners who also are opposed to the detention center.

"Many of the people say they would be afraid to let their children outside to play if the center is built," Yater said. "They feel that if they (illegal aliens) can swim the Rio Grande River to get into this country, then they could sure climb a fence to get out of the detention center."

Davenport is scheduled to appear before the Planning and Zoning Commission on at 5:15 on April 25 to request the permit.

The permit is required because the motel is located in an area zoned light industrial.

Yater said he and several others who own property near the motel will appear at next Monday's commission meeting to protest Davenport's

An initial proposal from Mid-Tex to construct the detention center on 18-acres of land at the McMahon-Wrinkle Airpark was abandoned because such a plan was determined to be unfeasible, according to Rutherford.

The airpark facility would have been a medium security facility, Rutherford said. It would have housed illegal aliens serving one to two-year terms while awaiting deportation, according to Rutherford.

Murder trial is scheduled for Fonseca

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

Jeannie Fonseca will be tried for capital murder in 118th District Court here beginning July 25, according to Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby, and her parents have been awarded custody of her premature daughter.

"A trial date has been specially set for July 25," Hamby said early today. "This is not untypical ... it is set to alleviate the irritation of motions for continuance commonly filed by defense attorneys."

"There will be a time in-between that any defense motions and routine matters that may be filed will be taken up," Hamby said.

Seven other Howard County residents are in custody in the Howard County jail on charges of capital murder, as is Fonseca, for three 1987 deaths. Hamby said District Court Judge James Gregg will set a special date for those trials also.

"It is not out of the realm of possibility that some of them will be tried on that (July 25) day," Hamby said today. "We hope so."

Fonseca and her attorney, Javier Alvarez of Lubbock, petitioned the court Wednesday in an effort to have her bonds — totaling $425,000 — reduced, but the court denied the reduction, Hamby said.

She is charged with three counts of capital murder. Fonseca gave birth to a premature baby girl in St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock four weeks ago.

The child, Rebecca Elizabeth Hernandez Rivera, remains in the hospital's neonatal intensive care unit. "She's doing fine," according to her maternal grandmother, Elvira Martinez, of Knott. "As of this morning, as far as we know, she is fine."

Custody of the child was awarded Thursday in 118th District Court, according to Fonseca's attorney. The court named the child's maternal grandparents her

Officials extradite one suspect, seek another

By SARAH LUMAN
Staff Writer

A fourth suspect in the slaying of radio personality C. Vance Kimble has been returned to the Howard County jail, and arrangements to extradite a third suspect in the slaying of an Odessa man from Minnesota have begun.

Dennis Wayne Noggler, 17, of Big Spring, was brought to the Howard County jail at 5:40 p.m. Monday, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said today.

Noggler is the fourth suspect in the case, according to Howard County District Attorney Rick Hamby.

Standard said today that Noggler had waived extradition from Stuart, Fla. where a Howard County deputy was dispatched five days ago to retrieve the suspect.

Pamela Newton, 21, Michael Hodnett, 23, and Patrick Newton, 17, were previously charged with capital murder in the death of Kimble, 61, found slain in his home April 1. They are in custody in lieu of $100,000 bond each.

Kimble died from a gunshot wound to the upper chest, according to Justice of the Peace William Shankles. He was found lying in a hallway between the entrance and the kitchen of his home, three miles south of Big Spring on U.S. Highway 87, according to Standard. The pockets of his clothing had been pilfered.

A third suspect in the recent slaying of Odessa resident Manuel Garcia in Big Spring has been apprehended and is awaiting extradition to Texas, according to a police spokesman.

Robert Flores, 30, of Big Spring, was arrested Friday and is in custody at an undisclosed Minnesota site, according to Hamby. Hamby said today he had written a letter of intention to extradite Monday for officials in Minnesota.

"I wrote a letter explaining our intentions to extradite yesterday and gave it to the lieutenant," Hamby said. "I understand that's one of the elements ... they need to get him in our custody."

Palacios declined to reveal exactly where Flores is in custody.

"Because of the security of the transfer, I would rather not," Palacios said today. "I would not want anything to happen to the man (Flores) or to the officer escorting him."

Garcia's body was found beneath a mattress, boards and a washing machine shell in a west Big Spring sand pit April 7. An autopsy report indicated that he died from a blow to the head, and had sustained a gunshot wound to the head.

Ricardo Flores, 32, of Big Spring, and Leroy Alaniz, 30, Odessa, are in police custody in lieu of bonds of $100,000 apiece, Palacios said.

In the April 1 slaying, Kimble was discovered after failing to come to work for his daily 5 a.m. to 10 a.m. radio show, broadcast by local station KBYG. He had worked in local radio for 37 years.

His 1986 blue and white Chrysler Fifth Avenue was stolen from his home. It was returned to Howard County by a sheriff's deputy at the time Hodnett and the Newtons were brought back from Louisiana.

Louisiana police arrested the three suspects after Pamela Newton attempted to use one of Kimble's credit cards.

Finding body left questions

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Finding out the fate of her daughter answered one question in Laura Proctor's mind, but left many more unanswered.

Laura's daughter, Christie, who was abducted near her north Dallas home on Feb. 15, 1986, was the subject of a nation-wide search until her remains were discovered in a field north of Plano last Thursday.

Collin County Medical Examiner William Rohr positively identified the remains as Christie's early Saturday afternoon by comparing the skull with X-rays taken of her in 1978.

The identification prompted mixed feelings from Laura.

"I have a real mixture of feelings," she said Monday. "I know now that there's no hope of getting her back, but at least now I know she's at peace."

Laura said the preciseness of the identification process left no doubt that the remains — albeit partial — were those of her daughter, who was nine years old when kidnapped.

"There's absolutely no question in my mind," she said. "There are certain characteristics about Christie's skull that are very, very unique."

"The pathologist explained to me that they needed about eight points of identification (to be positive)," she continued, "and they had many more than that. So, I'm convinced that there's no question at all."

Although the discovery of Christie's remains answers the question of her fate, several other questions remain, Ms. Proctor said.

The first question involves the location where the remains were found.

"That area was searched about a week after (Christie's disappearance), and nothing was found," Laura said. "We even flew over the area with a helicopter. It's hard to believe she's been there all this time."

Another unanswered question deals with the identity of a young girl matching Christie's description who was sighted in California a few months after the abduction.

A truck driver reported that a young girl came up to

Coahoma plans salary increases

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

COAHOMA — Most school district employees will be getting pay raises for the next school year under a new salary structure approved Monday by the board of trustees.

The new structure was approved after the board emerged from a two-hour executive session and will go into effect during the 1988-89 school year.

Teachers with a bachelor's degree will be paid $1,000 above state base and those with a master's degree will be paid $1,200 above base under the new guidelines, while secretaries and instructional aides will be paid on a scale providing yearly increments, Superintendent Gary Rotan said.

Cafeteria, transportation, maintenance and custodial employees will be paid an hourly rate, and raises will be subject to an annual review of job performance by the superintendent and school board, Rotan said.

Past discrepancies in employee salaries prompted the revisions, Rotan said. "In the past, there had been pay freezes and salary reductions," he said. "As they froze and reduced, it got to the point where the figures didn't compute. This way, (salaries) will be more uniform."

The new salary structure also provides "half-step" raises for teachers who have reached step 10 — the highest level — on the state pay ladder, Rotan said.

For five years after teachers reach the maximum salary step, the district will provide a minimum annual raise of $550, he noted.

Additional financing for the new pay structure will come from state revenue available through the Texas Education Agency, Rotan said, adding no local tax increase will be needed.

The proposal was approved by unanimous board vote.

In other action, trustees approved: • The resignation of Chapter I reading instructor Lisa Merkle and leave of absence for high school math teacher Carmen Ritchey.

• Adoption of a homestead exemption resolution for 1988 at 20 percent, the maximum allowed by law. • Use of school facilities for the junior/senior banquet and prom.

Forsan schools award carpeting bid

HERALD STAFF REPORT

FORSAN — School district trustees voted to solicit bids for re-carpeting several high school rooms, and awarded a contract to re-roof the Junior-Senior High School building during their regular meeting Monday night.

Trustees also adopted a resolution concerning requests for donations and gifts.

The district will solicit bids for the re-carpeting of about 12 high school classrooms until May 12, Superintendent J.F. Poyner said. The bids will be opened on that date and acted upon at the board's May 16 meeting.

Three bids were opened for the re-roofing contract, and trustees selected Industrial Roofing, of Midland, on the basis of their low bid of $140,080. The firm will re-roof about 61,000 square feet of the building this summer, Poyner said.

Trustees also declared they will no longer consider requests for gifts or donations. Poyner said such requests have been made several times in the past.

He added, however, that the board has refused such requests because district money comes from tax dollars reserved exclusively for educational purposes.

"Several of these requests are legitimate," he said, "but once you start contributing, where do you draw the line? We can't make contributions from tax dollars."

In other business, the board:

- Tabled a proposed policy change concerning the teacher career ladder, pending state board of education action on the matter.
- Announced a special meeting on May 9 to canvass election results and reorganize the board.
- Appointed the judge and clerks of the Forsan polling place as the canvassing board for the absentee ballot box.
- Announced it will hire a repair crew this summer to re-roof district-owned houses that have suffered hail damage.
- Accepted the resignation of second-grade teacher Tami Jones, and approved the hiring of Marisue Bowers to be the district's educational diagnostician. Poyner also announced the district will hire an additional one or two elementary teachers to satisfy state-mandated student/teacher ratios.

Police beat

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Three burglaries and three thefts were reported by Big Spring police Monday.

- G.C. Cooke Jr., San Antonio, told police someone entered his vehicle and stole a video camera, a box of beads, a radar detector, a coat and a tote bag. The items were valued at $2,695.
- Two video recorders and two cassette players were reported stolen during a burglary at Hillcrest Baptist Church, 2000 W. FM 700. The items were valued at $768.
- Tommy Tilley, 2113 Warren St., told police someone broke into a garage at the W.M. Franklin residence, 1410 Runnels St., and stole an air compressor and engine valued at $550.
- Guy Talbot, 814 W. 17th, reported the theft of four BMW wheel emblems valued at $50.
- Doriece Smith, 1000 E. 11th Place, reported the theft of three windows from rental property she owns at 204 E. 11th Place. The windows were valued at $120.
- Jewel Hoyle, 1002 N. Main, Apt. 37, reported the theft of $100.
- Roberto Gonzales, 23, 807 W. 18th St., was arrested on a warrant on a charge of simple assault.
- Paula Sue Taylor, 28, Sterling City Route, Big Spring, was arrested on charges of driving while intoxicated, third offense; driving with license suspended and failure to maintain financial responsibility.

managing conservators.

Fonseca will face capital murder charges in the deaths of Noe Perez, 39, Grand Prairie, and two Mexican nationals, Norberto Gurrola Hernandez and Miguel Villareal Calixto.

Perez's body was unearthed from a shallow grave in Martin County. Calixto and Hernandez were found in the debris of a burned farmhouse near Luther. All three bodies were recovered in October.

Sheriff A.N. Standard said today that no mention was made of Fonseca's pregnancy at the time of her arrest.

"She did not say anything to us about it until about a week later, and then she said she thought she was about three months pregnant," Standard said.

The child was delivered March 24. Fonseca was returned to the jail March 27. According to Martinez, Fonseca was more than 20 weeks pregnant when the child was born.

"I don't know exactly how early she was," Martinez said today. "But she was pretty early."

Standard said he understood Fonseca had no prenatal care before being arrested. She was furnished medical attention by the county during her pregnancy.

"There's going to be a bill on this," Standard said. "It'll be horrendous ... I don't think the county's going to volunteer to pay it."

In addition to the capital murder charges, Fonseca faces an unrelated charge of aggravated robbery, stemming from an incident occurring about the same time the bodies were found in the burned farmhouse, Hamby said.

Also charged with capital murder in the death of Perez are Frankie and Joe Hernandez, Fonseca's brothers, and Arthur Islas, Jr. and Pete Salazar, Jr. All are Big Spring residents and all have been held in Howard County jail since October.

Charged in connection with the deaths of Calixto and Hernandez were Antonio (Tony) Aguilar of Big Spring and two Knott men, Enrique (Ricky) Sabedra and Orlando Aguirre. Those defendants also are in custody in the Howard County jail, where they have been held since October.

Capital murder is punishable by death, by life imprisonment or by five to 99 years imprisonment. Capital murder is defined as murder occurring in connection with or in the course of another felony offense or murder of a police officer.

Fonseca is being held in lieu of bonds totaling $425,000; the other seven suspects in the slayings are being held in lieu of $125,000 bond each.

Hijackers observe religion

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — The hijackers of a Kuwaiti jumbo jet read the Koran and their 35 hostages fasted during a religious observance that appeared to take precedence over negotiations aimed at ending the 2-week-old hijacking.

This morning contact with the Moslem Shiite hijackers began with a request radioed to the control tower. "Good morning," said one of the hijackers, speaking clearly in English. "We'd like to have water for the plane, someone to clean the toilets and newspapers: five in Arabic and three in French. We also need one medicine, interviatorm," a treatment for diarrhea.

A yellow car carried an airport worker to the plane to fill the request.

As the Moslem holy month of Ramadan began on Monday, the hijackers requested copies of the Koran, the Moslem holy book, which were delivered.

During Ramadan, observant Moslems do not eat or drink during daylight hours. At the hijackers' request, a traditional pre-fast meal was delivered to the plane Sunday night for all aboard.

Also Monday, a man identified as a member of Kuwait's royal family spoke from the plane and said he hoped his government yields to the gunmen's demands.

Most of the brief radio message from the man the hijackers said was Fadel Khaled Al-Sabah was impossible to understand, except for the part about their demand that Kuwait free 17 pro-Iranian prisoners convicted in the 1983 attacks on the U.S. and French embassies in the Persian Gulf sheikdom.

"I hope that Kuwait releases all the prisoners," the man said, speaking in Arabic in a feeble, halting voice. Kuwait officials insist they will not give in to the hijackers, who have killed two Kuwaiti passengers.

The recorded appeal was the fourth by a passenger since the plane arrived in Algiers on Wednesday.

The appeal and one visit to the plane by an Algerian mediator were the only signs that the negotiating process was in motion on Monday.

The Kuwait Airways flight from Thailand to Kuwait was hijacked April 5 with 112 people aboard and forced to land in Mashhad, Iran, where 57 eventually were released. On April 8, the jet flew to Larnaca, Cyprus, where two passengers were killed and 13 freed. Since landing in Algiers one passenger has been freed, leaving about 35 hostages aboard, including three members of Kuwait's extensive royal family. The five to eight hijackers are armed with grenades and guns and have threatened to blow up the plane.

A hostage freed on Thursday, 70-year-old Djumaa Abdallah Chatti, flew out of Algeria on Monday night her in an Ontario, Calif. truckstop, and said her name was Christie and that she was from Dallas. This led authorities to believe the Proctor girl might be in the West Coast area.

The largest question remaining, however, is the identity of Christie's killer. Associated Press reported that officials from the Dallas and Plano police departments are meeting this week to determine the future course of the investigation.

Authorities also will search the field where the remains were found in an attempt to find more clues. Ms. Proctor said she and the officers had scheduled the search for Monday, but muddy conditions forced them to postpone until a later date.

"We're going to let the police do their thing, then meet with them (at a later date) to discuss which way the investigation is going," Laura said.

After the search is completed, and officials are satisfied that all of Christie's remains have been found, the Proctor family plans to have a memorial service in Dallas before returning to Big Spring for Christie's funeral.

Ms. Proctor said the family will announce the funeral date when details are finalized.

Labor force, unemployment down

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Unemployment in Howard County increased 3 percent in March, but decreased 1.2 percent when compared with the same month one year ago, according to the latest Texas Employment Commission report.

Local TEC office supervisor John Eckley attributes the decline in unemployment figures between March 1988 and March 1987 to a decrease in the county's civilian labor force.

In March of 1987, the county's labor force totaled 14,745, compared to 14,686 the same month this year, according to the TEC report.

Last month 13,472 people were employed in Howard County, while 1,214 were without jobs, the report shows. A total of 13,531 county residents had jobs in February, compared to 1,183 who were unemployed.

In March 1987, 13,343 people were working in the county and 1,402 were without jobs.

Federal officials visiting Arizona collider site

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — The head of a Department of Energy team that is visiting Arizona's proposed Superconducting Super Collider site says today's inspection of the site is better than just viewing topographic maps and aerial photographs.

Pictures and maps in Arizona's written proposal give some sense of the desert area 35 miles southwest of Phoenix's Sky Harbor International Airport, "but it's not quite the same thing as getting out in the field and kicking the tires," Dr. Wilmot Hess, the DOE's SSC site task force chairman said.

Today's tour, part of a week-long inspection, is the first of seven visits the federal team will make to states with sites recommended as best-qualified for the $4.4 billion federal atom-smashing project.

The Energy Department is to make its final selection in November from among sites in Texas, Arizona, Colorado, Illinois, Michigan, North Carolina and Tennessee.

In addition to the scientific prestige, the SSC is expected to provide thousands of construction jobs and a permanent work force of perhaps 2,500 to 3,000 with an annual $270 million payroll to whatever state wins it.

About two dozen engineers, geologists, technical advisors and other specialists are accompanying Hess, and federal rules preclude any of them from saying publicly what they think of the site or of off-site resources such as state universities.

Although President Reagan has proposed including $363 million in next year's budget for early SSC costs, Congress has proposed a quarter to a half of that and is waiting to see if other nations will join in or will form their own consortiums.

"We believe it's vital this year that Congress take a stand," said Dr. Robert Diebold, director of the Energy Department's SSC division, told reporters in Phoenix Monday.

The agency also is preparing environmental impact statements on each area, but the site inspections will concentrate on other things, Hess said Monday.

For example, the Arizona site contains a rock that can crumble, and engineers will want to know how much shoring would be needed on shafts to the heart of the SSC, an oval underground tunnel 10 feet in diameter, 53 miles in circumference and covering about 16,000 acres.

The track will include six large halls in which protons will collide after being accelerated to nearly the speed of light in opposite directions by 10,000 superconducting magnets at energies of 20 trillion electron volts. The collision energy is estimated to be about 20 times greater than anything now possible.

Arizona officials say they believe that their chief rival may be Texas.

SSC foes are organizing

MURFREESBORO, Tenn. (AP) — Opponents of a $4.4 billion atom smasher proposed in Tennessee have invited two men who helped run the project out of New York to bolster the Tennessee foes' case at a meeting here April 30.

Mrs. Robert S. Sanders, who heads an organization calling itself the SSC Fact-Finding Group, said Monday that all who oppose or want to know more about the project are invited to the meeting.

She said the group is paying plane fare for Jim Alexander and Bill Herbert of Wayne County, New York, whom she credited with helping keep the projects out of their state.

The two men are members of CATCH, Citizens Against The Collider Here, and Herbert said they already have traveled to North Carolina and Illinois, which also are in the running for the "super collider."

Tennessee is one of seven states being considered for the project, a 53-mile, underground ring of magnets that state industry hunters have proposed for a site in Rutherford, Bedford, Marshall and Williamson counties.

Black's contract renewed

CRANE (AP) — Members of the Crane school board have voted to renew the contract of the only black faculty member at Crane High School.

But Marian Bennett, 34, says she is still considering legal action against some board members despite Monday night's action to renew her contract.

The school board had singled her out for individual review last week when the school automatically renewed all other teaching contracts.

School Board President Charles Barrett called a meeting for Monday to vote on the matter again.

The board voted 5-2 to keep Bennett as a study skills teacher and 4-3 to keep her as a coach, Barrett said. He would not name the board members who voted against Bennett.

Bennett could not be reached Monday night. Her telephone was busy for more than three hours after the meeting, the El Paso Times reported.

Bennett told reporter Vanessa Tatum of KMID-TV in Midland that although it would be hard for her to stay in Crane after recently receiving threatening phone calls, she would fulfill the one-year contract.

She said she was working with an adviser from the Texas State Teachers Association to consider what legal action, if any, to take.

The teacher said her decision to complete the new contract was made in part because of all the support she had received from teachers, parents and students.

More than 100 people from the community of 3,000 about 30 miles south of Odessa showed up at the meeting to support Bennett.

The contract was renewed without discussion by the board and when members of the audience attempted to question board members, Barrett said discussion of the problem was not on the board's agenda.

But people went to the microphone anyway. Most of those who spoke told the board they would not stand for racial discrimination by the board.

Customs cracks down in El Paso

EL PASO (AP) — The federal government's drug-interdiction effort has taken a new form with the brief closings of the busiest bridge between El Paso and Ciudad Juarez, Mexico, for a search of waiting cars by drug-sniffing dogs.

If enough drugs are found to justify it, the tactic could be expanded to other border-crossing points, U.S. Customs spokesman Charles Conroy said Monday.

Customs closed the Bridge of the Americas twice last week, Conroy said. During the first 15-minute closure, on April 11, agents found 40 pounds of marijuana hidden in a car, he said, adding that the second search, last Thursday, turned up no drugs.

"It was a very short-time operation in which all the gates were closed and all the Customs dogs in the area were brought in and every car in the area was searched," Conroy said, adding that the unannounced searches will continue indefinitely.

People crossing into the United States are required to state their citizenship and whether they have anything to declare in what is called a primary search.

Alamo

Words exchanged in latest battle

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Alamo is best remembered as the site of a historic battle during Texas' war for independence, but now a new fight is being waged for control of the shrine.

Mexican-American leaders, angered over how Hispanics have been portrayed in descriptions of the 1836 battle, say they will fight to seize control of the Alamo from the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, who have been the site's custodians since 1905.

The League of United Latin American Citizens is critical of the way the DRT has operated the Alamo.

"It may take 100 days or 100 years, ... but we will get legislation to make LULAC the custodians of the Alamo," said Jose De Lara, state LULAC director and a sixth-generation Texan. "After all, we're the ones who built the Alamo. ... We're perfectly capable to be the custodians."

LULAC officials say the planned legislative battle is not only who should run the Alamo, but also which story of the military fight will be told — the popularized, colorful legend, or a more historically accurate account.

The civil rights group claims the Daughters of the Republic, a group of women descended from citizens of the independent Texas nation, have sacrificed historical accuracy for legend in its accounts for the shrine's 2.5 million annual visitors.

Billie Averitte, president-general of the Daughters of the Republic of Texas, disagrees.

"The Daughters have the sole responsibility of (the Alamo), the expense, the care of it and everything and they have done a marvelous job, down through the years," she said.

Contributions of at least nine Hispanics who defended the Alamo have been ignored by the DRT, De Lara claims. He said the Mexican Army is depicted as the oppressor and the battle's account as solely between Mexicans and Americans is not accurate.

Bowie's nose missing from statue

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Authorities expressed shock upon learning that a portion of James Bowie's nose is missing from his carved marble figure on the 60-foot Cenotaph that stands as a shrine to Texas heroes in front of the Alamo.

The disfigured face of Bowie, among the best known of the 189 defenders of the Alamo, was discovered Monday when members of a solemn wreath-bearing procession took part in a Fiesta event known as the Pilgrimage to the Alamo.

Repairs are expected to begin in two weeks after the grandstand is removed from Alamo Plaza, officials say.

Although vandalism is considered a possibility for the damage, officials concerned with repairing Bowie's face also believe that the underlying marble might have flaked off causing the right portion and tip of Bowie's nose to fall off.

"We don't know what happened," Alamo Curator Emeritus Charles J. Long said. "There is no sign of natural breakage and no sign of vandalism. After 50 years, if that's the only damage, that's not too bad."

Long, a sculptor and curator of the Pompeo Coppini-Waldine Tauch Studios, where the Cenotaph was made, first discovered the damage Feb. 12, while walking by the Alamo on his way to eat lunch at a nearby restaurant.

Long quietly kept the damage to himself, only informing key officials in the San Antonio Parks and Recreation Department and current Alamo Curator Steve Beck.

"I saw his nose was missing as I walked by, and I looked around and found pieces of it on the ground," Long said.

"I couldn't see what caused the damage. The tip of the nose is in good shape. It just needs to be glued back on," he said.

Sonoran judge drops charges against five in slaying

NOGALES, Mexico (AP) — A Mexican federal judge has dropped charges against five Sonora men linked to the 1986 slaying of U.S. Customs Service agent Glenn R. Miles.

In an interview, Judge Jorge Valencia Ruiz said he invalidated the charges last Thursday because of discrepancies between physical evidence and confessions to the Feb. 21, 1986, slaying on the Tohono

O'odham Indian Reservation in southwest Pima County. "Their human rights were violated," Valencia said. "They were forced to make their statements."

Two of the defendants — Victor Demara Valenzuela of Santa Ana, and Jose Ignacio Alvarez Arizpe of Sasabe — were charged with murder and the others with concealing the slaying.

Scarlett O'Hara and the budget

"This budget does not fully reflect my priorities, nor, presumably, those of any particular member of Congress," President Reagan noted when he released the last budget proposal of his presidency.

He's right about that. The president's 1989 budget is sober and constrained, if "sober" and "constrained" can ever be apt descriptions of a $1.09 trillion budget. It was designed to avoid fights and partisan confrontation.

The president eschews the drastic social cuts he has perennially sought as well as the hefty increases in defense spending.

In short, it is an election-year budget. It allowed members of Congress to dispose of budget business early so they can get on with more urgent business — getting re-elected.

As such, it postponed painful choices that will have to be made if we are to deal with the biggest peacetime deficits in American history and a national debt that has more than doubled, to $2 trillion, since Ronald Reagan took office.

In this election year, no one in Congress or the White House wants to prescribe a deficit medicine, a bitter concoction of reduced spending and higher taxes. "People don't like to pay taxes," Alan Blinder, an economics professor at Princeton University told The New York Times. "People like the programs the government spends money on and people like to be told fairy tales."

In an election year, politicians opt for fairy tales. What they should be worrying about is the fact that interest payments consume 14 percent of all federal spending.

That means the economy cannot grow as fast as it could. Government cannot turn to deficit spending as a tool when the economy falls into a recession. And the deficits preclude planning for the use of government resources in years to come.

For now, though, there will be no budget battles, only skirmishes. For this year, at least, Washington has chosen the Scarlett O'Hara approach to the budget.

Next president will have to raise taxes

By JACK ANDERSON and JOSEPH SPEAR

WASHINGTON — Remember the last candidate who got within shouting distance of the White House and then proposed tax increases? That was Walter Mondale, and he missed the Oval Office by a landslide.

Presidential candidates of both parties this time around are wisely keeping mum on the issue of tax hikes. But, according to officials of both parties and countless economists, the next president will have no choice but to raise taxes.

For the past seven years, Congress's initial budget proposals have fallen woefully short of an accurate estimate of the federal deficit by an average of $32 billion. The deficit declined between 1986 and 1987, but that was largely a function of one-time savings. The federal government simply must squeeze more money out of the taxpayers to meet the bloated cost of government.

No matter how tactfully the candidates dodge the issue, you can look for a first-year tax plan from the winner, who, secure in the office, will have to face reality.

Some economists are predicting what form those new taxes will take. Among the ideas:

- An income tax on investment portfolios earned by foreigners in the United States could generate $5 billion a year.
- A tax of 0.5 percent on the transfer of stocks and other securities could raise from $5 billion to $10 billion a year for the Treasury.

• Cigarettes and alcohol sales could be tapped for another $10 billion annually. One proposal making the rounds is to return cigarette taxes to their 1952 levels, but adjusted for inflation.

• A 10-cent-a-gallon increase in gasoline taxes would pump $9 billion a year out of your wallets, and it might have the positive effect of decreasing energy consumption.

A report prepared by Economic Advisors Inc. says a package including the above taxes, among others, would make strides toward balancing the budget without trampling the Reagan tax reforms.

"Taken together, this package of competitiveness-enhancing tax increases could raise up to $50 billion annually without touching the 1986 tax reforms," the report says. "Additionally, revenue could be raised by returning to the tradition that the highest income taxpayers should have the highest marginal tax rate."

The report notes that the proposed taxes also will not further skew the trade imbalance. "Piecemeal reforms that do not interfere with firms and workers who are facing fierce competition from overseas thus do offer the prospect of meaningful deficit reduction without the introduction of major new consumption taxes."

Footnote: The "underground economy" of untaxed income — for example, unreported tips or under-the-table wages — is an untapped source of as much as $80 billion annually, but that will require tougher enforcement tactics to catch more of the artful dodgers.

IMPACT ON MEXICO — The United States is just beginning to realize the impact on our southern neighbor of the 1986 Immigration Reform and Control Act. The law gave amnesty to longtime illegal aliens, but it also set the rules for deporting those who don't qualify. Initially, the U.S. government promised the Mexican government that there would not be mass deportations.

A study by the General Accounting Office says that such deportations of illegal aliens back to Mexico would cripple that country's struggling economy.

The country doesn't need an influx of deportees looking for jobs; it already has an unemployment rate of 15 percent, and 25 percent of Mexican workers are underemployed. The GAO says that if our new immigration law forces 2 million Mexicans to go home, the unemployment rate there could double.

If just 500,000 migrant workers here were sent back to Mexico to find work, their presence could drive down wages by as much as 7.1 percent in some sectors. Mexico is already $100 billion in debt and suffers from staggering inflation and sinking wages.

When diplomats begin to tell the truth, the whole truth

By ART BUCHWALD

The only thing you see when world leaders meet is their exit. The only things you hear are pallid declarations as the leaders face the microphones.

"We had a very fruitful exchange which will eventually lead to mutual understanding," the premier says.

The U.S. secretary of state then speaks. "The discussions were frank and open and we hope someday they will produce positive results for the entire region."

Diplomacy demands the two people make such statements. But you have to read between the lines to get the real meaning.

Art Buchwald

This is what the premier really wished to say when he described the talks as fruitful. "When the secretary of state tried to blackmail me by threatening to cut off ground-to-air missile deliveries, I had no choice but to throw the fruit bowl at him."

While the secretary of state really wanted to say, "What can you expect from a man who has devoted his entire life to being short?"

And so it goes. Here is the dialogue — and what the leaders were really thinking:

The premier speaks into the mikes. "We had sharp exchanges but now we can move forward." ("The secretary wants peace and he wants the Russians at the table. How can he have both? The trouble with the American is he plays too much tennis and the sun gets to his head.")

"I want to say," the secretary of state declares, "the areas of agreement are far greater than those of disagreement. I have gotten to know the premier better and that was worth my entire trip." ("If I had seen how little I was going to get out of all this I would have brought De Tocqueville with me and stayed in the hotel.")

The premier is next. "Two great nations can agree to disagree, but this should not stop them from supplying each other with helicopters." ("Not only is the American secretary of state wrong on everything — he is also boring. Anyone who can put my entire cabinet to sleep with his final peace offer deserves a Nobel peace prize.")

The secretary, not to be outdone, asserts, "I intend to come back and continue the discussions we have had today, because only by talking across the table will we be able to reach solutions to knotty problems that confront the premier and myself." ("Even if he agreed to everything I could not accept the terms because I did not understand a word he was saying.")

World leaders always know their remarks will be shown on television and sent around the world. That's why they don't want to look like losers.

The premier has a lot going on in his head when he is speaking into the mikes, but he knows it is wise not to let on what it is — such as, "If we didn't need the new F-16s I would have spilled water all over his pants."

The secretary of state always bites his tongue so he won't blurt, "The premier is stubborn and obstinate and doesn't know up from down. All he wants is war, and if he keeps doing what he's doing he's going to get one. Not only do I disagree with him diplomatically, I don't even like him as a person."

The premier looks at the microphones and declares, "We are now going to have a friendly lunch." But what he says to himself is, "Inviting him to lunch was a mistake. He'll continue to talk and it will just give me another headache."

The basic questions about Star Wars answered

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY JR.

The quarrel over whether to proceed with a Strategic Defense Initiative is the one serious military question that substantially divides most Republicans and most Democrats. Michael Dukakis is opposed to SDI, as is Jesse Jackson; Albert Gore is ambiguous on it. George Bush is in favor. Congress is ambivalent.

The George C. Marshall Institute, established in 1984 for the purpose of developing educational programs relating to the field of science with an impact on public policy, has a "Technical Panel on Missile Defense."

Its seven members were recently consulted to answer the questions that float in the public mind, some of the questions explicit, some inchoate. The results have been published and are the handiest repository of research for the conscientious inquirer. In three columns, I attempt to skim the salient points covered in this study.

• What is a rundown on Soviet offensive nuclear development since SALT I, in 1972?

In 1973, the Soviets had only a few hundred nuclear weapons capable of destroying a hardened military site. In 1979, they had more than 3,000. Today they have some 6,000. The CIA estimates that by the 1990s they will have more than 12,000. The United States has 900 warheads of comparable accuracy and destructive power.

• What could the Soviet Union, if a first strike were decided upon, accomplish right now or in the immediate future?

The progressive accuracy of Soviet warheads — one of the newest is accurate within 120 meters — means that the hundred-odd most important targets in the United States, the command and control centers, could be destroyed with relatively small nuclear weapons.

On the right

• Couldn't we blast them to smithereens with our submarine fleet?

Yes — until the Soviet Union deploys an effective SDI of its own. It has been working on a nuclear defense for 15 years, with the resources of 10,000 Soviet scientists. They are nearly ready for a breakout from the ABM treaty.

The main missing link in their system is the networks of nine huge battle-management radars, which should be completed around 1992. The Soviet nationwide ABM defense will be effective enough to block a ragged U.S. nuclear response — all that the United States would be able to launch after a Soviet first strike.

And once the Soviets' nationwide ABM system is completed, the United States will not be able to place at risk those targets on which Soviet leaders place the highest value: the Soviet military forces and the lives of the political leadership.

• How widely shared is this alarming view of the Soviet threat?

Last summer the Joint Chiefs of Staff "validated" an evaluation of the Soviet threat for the 1990s put together by the entire intelligence community, including the CIA, Defense Intelligence Agency and intelligence organizations attached to the three separate armed services. They judged the crisis so acute that they recommend moving SDI from the research stage into the development stage.

• Why didn't the United States build an ABM defense in the 1970s when the Soviet missile build-up began to look ominous?

In the 1970s, such a defense would have had to be located on the ground, shooting up at the Soviet warheads as they descended.

Such a ground-based defense is readily overwhelmed, either by firing so many warheads at it that its inventory of interceptors is used up, or by such stratagems as "laddering down." That describes exploding a string of nuclear weapons over a target, one after the other, at progressively lower altitudes. The first explosion creates a fireball that disables our intercepting warheads and clears the way for the second warhead.

That warhead descends through the fireball and explodes at a lower altitude, clearing the way for the third. By the time the third or fourth warhead explodes, the ladder has reached the ground and the target is destroyed.

A second weakness, in the 1970s, would have been the critically important radars necessary to track incoming warheads. These would have been located at fixed sites, easily targeted by the Soviets, and vulnerable to destruction in a surprise attack.

• What has changed, since the 1970s?

A new technical situation has developed in the last five years, permitting us to get our defenses off the ground and up into space, in orbiting satellites. A defense based in space cannot be readily overwhelmed.

That means a new ballgame. Space-based defenses are possible through the marriage of technologies of the computer, the satellite and the heat-seeking "eye" (used so effectively in the Stinger and other air-defense missiles). This combination of the heat-seeking eye and the computer brain produces the so-called "smart bullet."

Carlisle girl released

CHICAGO (AP) — A 9-year-old whose frostbitten legs were amputated after she was abandoned in an unheated building is leaving the hospital with most of the abilities — and all the energy — of a cheerful youngster, doctors say.

Darwin Carlisle, whose lower legs were amputated three months ago, has made extraordinary progress with the artificial limbs that were fitted to her several months ago, say authorities at La Rabida Children's Hospital and Research Center.

"She's been doing wonderfully," said Dr. Paula Jaudes, Darwin's physician at La Rabida. "She can ride a bicycle, she can roller skate. We took her to a ballgame over the weekend."

Darwin, who was found in Gary, Ind., was to leave La Rabida today to live with her great-grandmother in Indiana, said hospital spokeswoman Jane Dewey.

Neither Ms. Dewey nor Darwin's caseworker in Indiana, April Davidhizer, would reveal the great-grandmother's name.

Janitor leaves money

BETHANY, W. Va. (AP) — A hard-working, self-educated janitor who wore his lawyer's hand-me-downs and quizzed professors about economics has left up to $1 million to the college where he mopped floors for 30 years.

Lawrence R. Hummel, who died March 22 at age 82, had amassed a fortune in the stock market with knowledge gleaned in part from discussions with professors and from economics classes he audited at Bethany College, his lawyer said.

He lived frugally while investing money from his wages and the sale of his share of his family dairy farm in 1953. That year, Hummel began working at the private college with an enrollment of about 800 students in northern West Virginia.

"He knew the stock market inside and out. He was always at the college library reading The Wall Street Journal to follow the stock market," said Hummel's lawyer, Joseph Gompers of Wheeling.

Hummel, who retired in 1983, spent little on himself, his lawyer said.

Kennedy files released

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The release of secret police files on the 1968 assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy could shed new light on persistent questions about the possible role of a second gunman in the shooting.

Was Kennedy shot from in front or behind? Were there eight shots or more in the pantry of Los Angeles' Ambassador Hotel on June 5, 1968? And how close was the gunman whose bullet found its fatal path into Kennedy's brain?

DUBAI, THE GULF — An Iranian fire-fighting tugboat extinguishes the Iranian-owned oil platform Sirri after U.S. warships attacked it. Earlier in the day U.S. warships also attacked a Sassan oil platform. The attacks came two days after the U.S. warship USS Samuel B. Roberts struck a mine injuring 10 sailors.

Gulf war Capitol Hill shows united front

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress and President Reagan are united behind his warning that Iran will "pay a price" if it persists in trying to trade blows with a militarily superior force of American warships and aircraft in the Persian Gulf.

Iran took a licking Monday when it tried to strike back after the United States destroyed two Iranian oil platforms. In the most intense exchanges since Reagan beefed up U.S. firepower in the gulf last summer, American forces sank or damaged four Iranian attack boats Monday and disabled two frigates that fired missiles at U.S. planes.

The initial platform attack had been in retaliation for the mine explosion last week that damaged the USS Samuel B. Roberts and injured 10 crewmen. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said there is "conclusive evidence" that Iran planted the mine that exploded Friday.

"They must know that we will protect our ships, and if they threaten us, they'll pay a price," the president said in a speech to a business audience.

On Capitol Hill, there was bipartisan support for Reagan's action. Moreover, Reagan won applause for consulting with Congress before sending the military into action.

"The mines have been clearly identified as manufactured by the Iranians and sown in the waters by the Iranians," said Senate Majority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va. "The Iranians were carrying out terrorist acts."

Senate Republican leader Bob Dole of Kansas told his colleagues:

"In my view, now is the time to send only one message to our adversaries: That the United States, the president, the Congress and the people are united and determined to meet our responsibilities and defend our interests in the gulf."

"I hope the ayatollah (Khomeini) gets that message so we can all avoid further bloodshed and violence," Dole said.

Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Iran's decision to fight back amounted to "foolhardy behavior."

"I'm not sure that it's explainable in terms of Western logic at this point," Carlucci said at a Pentagon news conference. "I have to only assume that it's some kind of a fanatical reaction or slavish obedience to a contingency plan."

"It certainly makes no sense whatsoever in military terms. And we hope that tomorrow that will bring peace in the region."

No American casualties were reported, but Carlucci said a Cobra attack helicopter with two crewmen was late in returning to a Navy cruiser and a search had begun.

Court convicts Hamadi

DUESSELDORF, West Germany (AP) — A court today convicted Abbas Hamadi and sentenced him to 13 years in prison for helping abduct two West Germans in Beirut in hopes of forcing the Bonn government to free his brother, TWA hijacking suspect Mohammed Hamadi.

The 29-year-old defendant looked dejected after hearing the sentence and slumped into his chair. He made no comment.

Presiding Judge Klaus Arend said Abbas Hamadi was guilty of the charges of kidnapping, coercion and possession of explosives.

Alfred Schmidt, one of two West Germans kidnapped in the week after Mohammed Hamadi's arrest, has been freed. Arend appealed for the release of the second, businessman Rudolf Cordes, who has been held since Jan. 17, 1987.

"Free Rudolf Cordes and show the world your own humanity," the judge said.

Banks accept deposits

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — Some Panamanian and foreign banks opened for the first time in 45 days, but only to accept deposits. One banker said the opening simply created the appearance that Panama's financial system can recover.

Business was brisk on Monday at a few major foreign banks, but slow at institutions owned and operated by Panamanians.

The Panama Banking Commission ordered the reopening as a first step in the resumption of full banking services. Banks closed March 3 after a run on deposits, prompted by the ouster of President Eric Arturo Delvalle which was orchestrated by strongman Gen. Antonio Manuel Noriega.

Panamanians have been unable to cash paychecks or gain access to checking accounts since the closing and have conducted business on a cash-only basis.

Tutu accuses U.S.

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Anglican Archbishop Desmond Tutu of South Africa charged that the United States, Britain and West Germany support the white-led South African government and its system of apartheid.

"Such big economic and financial interests are involved that the South African government knows too well that, when compulsory economic sanctions will be imposed by the United Nations, they will be automatically vetoed by Washington, London and Bonn," the 1984 Nobel Peace Prize winner told a meeting of European non-governmental organizations working for development.

"The South African government can do the worst things, because it knows that it will be protected," the religious leader said on Monday.

NEW YORK — Democratic presidential hopeful Jesse Jackson campaigns Monday in front of the Puerto Rican flag at a voter drive in Manhattan. New Yorkers go to the polls today to give their opinion on presidential candidate nominees.

New Yorkers give their votes

NEW YORK (AP) — After a campaign described by Jesse Jackson as "so divisive and so violent," New Yorkers were voting today in a presidential primary that could anoint Michael Dukakis as the clear front-runner Democrats have sought for so many months.

The New York vote also could spell the end for Sen. Albert Gore's presidential candidacy. Already deeply in debt, the Tennessee senator needs to show surprising strength to regain credibility as a candidate.

With strong support from the state's large black electorate, Jackson was hoping for an upset that would allow him to claim the status as front-runner.

Pollsters, while saying the Massachusetts governor had a lead of anywhere from 10 to 14 points, also were warning about the volatility of the race.

"We could all be wrong. New York is a killer," said ABC News pollster John Brennan.

Heading into the New York race, Jackson scored a win in Delaware's Democratic caucuses Monday night, beating Dukakis 45 percent to 27 percent. Gore had just 2 percent. But the Delaware contest was dwarfed by the big New York primary, with its prize of 255 Democratic delegates.

Untroubled by any doubts about his grasp of the Republican presidential nomination, Vice President George Bush was expected to sweep the 96 GOP delegates at stake today in New York.

For Dukakis, New York offered an opportunity to break away from his pursuers and finally establish himself as the front-runner as the race moves on to Pennsylvania next Tuesday and Ohio, Indiana and the District of Columbia the week after that.

The latest Associated Press delegate count gave Dukakis 877, Jackson 745, and Gore 417. A total of 2,082 was needed for a convention majority.

The New York campaign was marked by an emphasis on candidate views on the Middle East and by the long shadows of two non-candidates — Gov. Mario Cuomo and Mayor Edward Koch.

Turnout in today's polling was critical, and all three Democratic contenders spent the final hours of campaigning urging their supporters to go to the polls.

"If you stand in the rain today, you will vote in the rain tomorrow," Jackson told supporters in Harlem on a wet Monday. "We've come too close; nothing can stop us now."

"Just don't forget to vote tomorrow," Dukakis told his backers.

Gore campaigned with Koch, whose attacks on Jackson often got more attention than the sparring between the candidates.

During the campaign, the mayor said Jews and other supporters of Israel "would have to be crazy" to vote for Jackson.

Demjanjuk lawyer re-considers

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Mark O'Connor defended John Demjanjuk because he was convinced the retired autoworker couldn't be the Nazi death camp guard who savagely beat Jews on the way to the gas chamber.

Demjanjuk was a gentle old man who'd bounce O'Connor's 3-year-old daughter on his knee, smiling and talking nonsense.

O'Connor, a Buffalo lawyer who specialized in immigration law, moved to Jerusalem to defend the 68-year-old Ukrainian who lived in a Cleveland suburb. O'Connor had insisted it was a case of mistaken identity and warned that an innocent man should not be punished because of a desire for revenge.

That was five years ago. Today, O'Connor is pondering the man he thought he knew, the man who was convicted Monday in Israel of being the sadistic guard known as "Ivan the Terrible."

"Toward the end, I looked at how calmly and coolly he removed me from this case after I fought for him for so many years believing in him, believing in his credibility," O'Connor said. "I began to wonder whether I'd made a mistake."

O'Connor, who was the chief defense attorney until last year when he was removed by the Israeli court at Demjanjuk's request, said the case against his former client was extensive.

The defense depended on creating a reasonable doubt about whether Demjanjuk was "Ivan."

O'Connor tried to show that documents supplied by the Soviet Union linking Demjanjuk to the Nazis were forged. He also tried to cast doubt on the testimony of witnesses, many of whom were old and in frail health.

The court, however, rejected the arguments.

Awards ceremony VA hospital volunteers honored

By LYNN HAYES
Staff Writer

It takes a special person to donate their time and service to help others.

"Most volunteer service is given from the heart," said Joe Pickle, addressing Veterans Administration volunteers Monday night. "Your very presence says in a mighty powerful way to the veterans 'I care.'"

"The important thing about all this — is that you care," he said.

In observance of National Volunteer Week April 17-23, the Big Spring Veterans Administration Medical Center honored its volunteers when 96 volunteers and staff members enjoyed dinner in the Cactus Room at Howard College.

During fiscal year 1987, 350 volunteers served 34,000 volunteer hours, Center Director Conrad Alexander said, and monetary contributions of $52,490.

The local volunteer program is supported by civic and service organizations from throughout the area as far as a 100-mile radius plus Lovington, N.M.

According to Lupe Dominguez, chief of Voluntary Service, two local volunteers, Martha Moody and J.H. Taylor, have earned their 20,000-hour Silver Tray Award.

Moody, 84, who received a standing ovation during the ceremony, has served as a volunteer since 1955, serving 20,806 hours.

She began volunteering after her son, Charles Vernon Moody, was killed in the Korean War.

"I had lost my son in Korea and felt I should help the others (the veterans). My son would have wanted me to do this."

Moody said it was difficult at first. "I've seen sights that would break your heart. I almost quit — but now I can face it better."

Her volunteer services include writing letters, visiting the patients, and taking them to shop at the canteen, assisting with serving coffee, and attending Sunday services once a month.

"I play piano for them twice a week in the home nursing service," she noted.

"She began volunteering the year I graduated high school — and that's been a long time ago," Alexander said with a laugh.

Conrad Alexander visits with Martha Moody after the awards ceremony and dinner in honor of the Veterans Administration Medical Center's volunteers Monday night. Moody has volunteered since 1955.

Staff members who presented awards are Peter Pegan, chief, medical administration service; John Webb, chief, social work service; Dr. Robert Jones, chief of staff; Harold Burnine, associate director; and Alexander.

Volunteers receiving certificates of appreciation for 100 hours of volunteer service are:

Mary Jane Allen, Levi Clark, Zylphia Clark, Mary R. Crawford, Joe Dobbs, Cynthia Dornier, Walter Elkins, Melynda Grifford, Hazel Harrison, Helen Hendrick, Dorothy Holloman, Dorothy Kennemur; Kenneth Key, Teresa Manuel, Ruth Milam, Mary Lou Narmour, Wanda Mae Rudinger, Myrna Sandburg, Ethel Taylor, Shirley Teed, and Odell Turner.

Those receiving certificates of merit for 300 hours of service are:

Daniel Andrews, Verna P. Bailey, Nellie Bunch, Garry L. Fowler, Evelyn Holmes, Janet Lyons, Helen McIntyre, J.G. McFarlen, A.D. Nanny, Hank Narmour, Evelyn Pachall, Edna Peacock, and Tonya Rock.

Those receiving certificates of outstanding service are for 500 hours of service are:

Faye Butler, Laverne Enger, Edmon L. Hardy, Buford Kay, Gladys Kay, Virginia King, John Proctor, Emily Ray, Effie Taylor, Elwanda Tilley, and Steve T. Vincent.

Those receiving certificates of excellence for 750 hours of service are:

Edith Alden, J.R. Gaiton, Lucille McFarlen, Shirley Ott, Emily Pike, Bertha Price, William Pursler, Mary J. Robinson, Roy Rosene, and Nell Sheffield.

Those receiving a VA enameled pin for 1,000 hours of service are:

Suncha Christensen, James Enger, Alton Evans, Virginia Garrett, W.W. Marlin, Steven Martinez, Frances Mathie, Harold Scott, and Joyce Stewart.

Those receiving certificates of hours and years of service are:

Margaret Barnett, 1,411 hours, 15 years; Katie Brown, 1,214 hours, seven years; Bess Childers, 6,140 hours, 14 years; Dorothy Hull, 3,101 hours, 13 years; Marion Irland, 1,915 hours, 15 years; Maxie Irland, 1,385 hours, 15 years;

Doris Jennings, 3,037 hours, 10 years; Joe Jennings, 2,121 hours, 10 years; Vera Leigh, 2,365 hours, 21 years; Joe Lopez, 2,356 hours, seven years; C.G. McKenzie, 1,547 hours, 20 years; Martha Moody, 20,806 hours, 32 years; Wanda Scott, 1,124 hours, 13 years; and Lloyd Tilley, 1,395 hours, 14 years.

Those receiving a bronze pin for 1,750 hours of service are:

Florence Highsmith, Marvin Holland, Fay Kuykendall, and Carol Trevino.

Those receiving certificates of devotion to duty for 3,750 hours of service are:

Annie Branson, Katherine McKinzie, and Samuel R. Myers. L.R. Mundt, a veteran of World War I, who received a gold pin for 5,000 hours of service, said, "It took me 91 years to get this."

Ollie Branson received a certificate of achievement for 6,250 hours of service.

Lilian Holland received a dedicated service award for 7,500 hours of service. She also was awarded the director's commendation. "This is the highest award I can approve locally — it's a very significant award," Alexander said.

Volunteers to be honored

The National Association of Retired Senior Volunteer Program Directors will conduct a balloon launch in recognition of the 75 RSVP projects across the nation.

The RSVP program of Big Spring will honor its approximate 335 volunteers Wednesday at 1 p.m. in the parking lot of the Big Spring Mall.

In addition, bouquets will be delivered to various volunteer stations and to local businesses.

Names of each volunteer will be placed in the balloons, and whoever returns the balloon from the furthest distance will be awarded a prize at the annual recognition banquet in May.

Across the nation, approximately 400,000 multi-colored balloons will be released simultaneously in honor of the number of retired persons who are 60 and over who share their time and talents on a regular basis as an RSVP volunteer.

Lifestyle policy

We will be pleased to announce the news of your engagement, wedding, silver or golden anniversary in the Lifestyle section of the Big Spring Herald. We try to use the story on the date you request, but sometimes space does not permit this.

The information must be submitted to us on a form available at the Herald no later than Wednesday noon before the Sunday it is to be published. The form must include a name and telephone number of a person whom we can reach during the day for more information.

We will use a picture of the couple in the announcement. Or in the case of engagement announcements where a picture of the couple is not available, we will use one of the bride-elect. The picture must be a professional quality studio photograph. We prefer a 5 x 7 glossy black and white print. We ask for this kind of photograph so that it will reproduce well in the newspaper. Following the picture's publication, it may be picked up at the Lifestyle department.

The information for the story may be brought to the Lifestyle department of the Herald, which is located at 710 Scurry. Or it may be mailed to Lifestyle Department, Big Spring Herald, P.O. Box 1431, Big Spring, Texas 79720. Call us at (915) 263-7331 if we can help with more information or clarification of our policies.

ENGAGEMENTS
Information of engagement announcements must be submitted to the Lifestyle department of the Herald anytime after the engagement is a reality until at least three weeks prior to the wedding. Anything closer than three weeks will not be published. The engagement form must be submitted no later than Wednesday noon prior to the Sunday it is to be published.

If the bride-elect, prospective bridegroom or their parents do not now or have never lived in our area, we need to know why you are submitting your engagement to the Herald. If only grandparents live in our area, please give their names and addresses.

List of foods to avoid while taking drugs

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago you published a list of foods that people who are taking certain prescription drugs should avoid. At the time I was perfectly healthy, so I paid no attention to it. However, now my husband is taking three different prescribed drugs, and I am taking two, and it occurs to me that there may be certain foods in our regular diet that could change the action of the drugs we are taking.

Abby, you would be doing all of your readers, especially the senior citizens, a big favor if you reprint that information.

DEAR L.J.L.: Here it is: The Food and Drug Administration, in cooperation with the National Council on Patient Information and Education, has embarked on a program to inform and educate people about the medications they use.

Most people are unaware that there can be an interaction between the prescribed drugs they are taking and certain foods they eat. This interaction can cause some drugs to work faster or slower, or to become totally ineffective.

For example, people who are taking certain prescribed drugs for severe depression or high blood pressure should avoid aged cheese, Chianti wine, pickled herring, yogurt, chicken liver, bananas, avocados, sour cream, and all foods prepared with meat tenderizers.

Persons taking anti-coagulants (blood thinners) should avoid liver and large amounts of leafy vegetables because the vitamin K in those foods tends to promote blood clotting.

Dear Abby

People on thyroid medication should avoid brussels sprouts, turnips, cabbage, soybeans and kale. Dairy products should not be eaten by a person who is taking a specific kind of antibiotic.

Alcohol and even aspirin should not be combined with certain other drugs. Mixing alcohol with a high dosage of Valium or Darvon can be fatal.

The next time you are given a prescription, don't hesitate to ask your physician, or your pharmacist, the following questions:

1. What is the name of the drug, and what is it supposed to do? (Write it down so you won't forget.)

2. When do I take it, and for how long? (Does "three times a day" mean morning, noon and night? Should it be taken before meals, with meals or after meals? If the instructions say "every four hours," should I get up during the night to take it? Should I keep taking it until it's all gone?)

3. Are there any foods, beverages, medications or activities I should avoid while taking this drug? (Is alcohol allowed? How about aspirin and antacids? Please be aware that there is alcohol in beer, liquor and wine.)

4. Are there any side effects? And what should I do if they do occur?

5. Is there any written information you can give me about the drug you have prescribed for me?

6. Is there an approved generic version of this drug? (There usually is, and it is much cheaper and no less effective.)

Readers, for a free brochure about prescription drugs, write to: RX Drugs, Consumer Information Center, Department DA, Pueblo, Colo. 81009. No stamped, self-addressed envelope is necessary, but please allow 30 days for delivery. When this hits print, the center will be deluged.

P.S. Tomorrow: What you should tell your physician before he or she prescribes any kind of medication for you. Also, some valuable tips to help you use prescription drugs safely and effectively.

DEAR ABBY: I have what is known as a "strawberry birthmark" on my face, but mine is purple. It's very noticeable, and people who have just met me ask me if it's some kind of rash or if it is permanent. I am 16 years old and I'm told I am a pretty girl, and this mark bothers me.

Someone told me that you recommended something several years ago to cover blemishes and birthmarks like mine. I would appreciate it very much if you could tell me the name of it, and where to buy it. Thank you.

MARCIE

DEAR MARCIE: It's Lydia O'Leary Cosmetics' "Covermark" — a cream that's waterproof, easy to apply and completely covers the most conspicuous birthmark or discoloration. It's available through your pharmacist or the cosmetic department in many department stores.

Howard basketball coach resigns

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Hawks head basketball coach Jerry Kassin has resigned after one year at Howard College, Athletic Director Bill Griffin announced today.

Griffin said he received a letter of Kassin's resignation Monday, but said he was previously aware of the coach's departure plans.

"We have known for some time that Coach Kassin was leaving," said Griffin today from his office. "We have been quietly surveying the market place for another basketball coach.

"Next Tuesday during our board meeting, Dr. Riley (Bob Riley, Howard College president), will present a name to the board of trustees. The coach's name is Steve Green and he's an assistant coach at the University of Houston, under Coach Pat Foster," Griffin said.

"His name will be submitted to the board for confirmation as basketball coach. If he gets the board's vote of approval, he will be the basketball coach next year," said Griffin.

Griffin said Kassin wasn't asked to resign.

"It was Jerry's decision... He wants to get back to Division I basketball. He wants to get back to an area he's familiar with, and you can't blame him for that."

Kassin, contacted in his office today, said he hasn't made any definite plans. He said he and his family will probably remain in Big Spring until May 10.

"I really don't know what I'm going to do right now," said Kassin. Kassin led the Hawks to a fifth place finish in Western Junior Athletic Conference play this past season. With only one returning sophomore, the Hawks finished 7-9 in league play and 12-17 overall.

"Basically, I'm resigning because I have a different understanding of what it takes and what is expected in regard to a basketball program," explained Kassin.

"I don't feel like I can continue here. I feel that after 21 year of coaching, I — better than anybody — understand what style of ball should be played for the material I have to work with. It's a good situation here, but I don't feel comfortable with it.

"I want to be coaching on a Division I level, whether it's a head coach or assistant."

Kassin also cited lack of fan support and attendance for his leaving.

"I feel that I accomplished something in my year here," Kassin said. "I thank Dr. Riley, Bill Griffin and Harold Davis for giving me the opportunity to coach in this league. We were picked next-to-last in the preseason polls. I feel that I proved I can coach in this league. The year before me they had more sophomores and finished in fifth place. This year we finished fifth with one returning sophomore. In the last six years, only one coach has done better than that, and that was Mike Mitchell, and Howard won the league.

"I think it's a credit to the kids, playing the way they did under a new coach and having little experience."

Kassin coached 17 years in high schools in South Dakota, Nebraska

Donkey hoop big hit with Coahoma fans

COAHOMA — Basketball — "America's game," as described by a cable TV network.

A game of undefinable grace and athleticism. Closing one's eyes, various images of the game come to mind: The arc of a three-point shot, the brute force of a slam dunk, the thundering of hooves... The thundering of hooves.

A different brand of basketball came to town Friday evening as Crosby's Donkey Ball, from Chippewa Falls, Wis., brought its stable of four-legged Doc Irvings to engage in what announcer Jack Colgrove called "the game of the decade."

Donkey basketball — somehow, it's difficult to believe Dr. James Naismith, basketball's inventor, had this in mind when he nailed a peach basket to the wall a century ago.

For the uninitiated, donkey basketball is not to be confused with the traditional game. It's played on a standard-sized court, and the object is to put the ball through the hoop, but the similarities end there.

As the contesting teams — comprised of four members and their mounts — waited for the game to begin, Colgrove explained the rules.

First, team members could either lead or ride their donkeys to advance the ball upcourt, but could neither shoot or pass the ball unless mounted. Nor could they defend against a shot or a pass with only two legs beneath them.

Colgrove added that timeouts were not permitted except when the donkeys — and nature — required a few free minutes.

"Timeouts are allowed only for emergencies, and there's only one kind of emergency in donkey ball," he said.

With the explanations complete, referee John Knor walked to mid-court, dropped the ball and the game was on — in a halting sort of way.

Donkeys are renowned for their stubborn streak, and proved their reputation for the beginning, refusing to so much as move as their temporary masters tugged in

East African wins Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP) — They began running in the scenic countryside west of Boston. They found themselves, 26 miles and 385 yards later, a single stride apart amid the city's skyscrapers.

Just 100 yards from the end of their punishing journey through eight cities and towns, Ibrahim Hussein and Juma Ikangaa were close enough to touch each other. The two East Africans were so close that both thought they could win.

But more than two hours after he began the Boston Marathon on a rainy Monday, Hussein took off down the stretch, a long-distance survivor with the kick of a sprinter.

Under a gloomy sky, Hussein fashioned one of the most sparkling finishes in the 92 Boston Marathons starting with the first running in 1897, when John J. McDermott won by 6 minutes, 52 seconds.

Hussein won by one second. "I like to make history," said Hussein, who bolted past Ikangaa with 100 yards left. "It's great to be the first African to win the Boston Marathon."

The native of Kenya made history in another way. His margin of victory was the smallest ever in Boston, surpassing the two-second victories of Bill Rodgers over Jeff Wells in 1978 and Alberto Salazar over Dick Beardsley in 1982.

In 1982, Salazar's body temperature dropped to a dangerous level after the race before returning to normal. Hussein suffered no serious health problems and crossed the finish line with a broad smile a few steps in front of his Tanzanian rival.

"I wanted to concentrate on relaxing and letting Ikangaa do the work" by setting the pace until it was time to pull ahead, Hussein said.

"I thought that I had won the race" until Hussein whizzed past his right shoulder, and then "It was impossible (to catch up) because it was too late," Ikangaa said.

BOSTON — Ibrahim Hussein of Kenya crosses the finish line Monday to win the 92nd Boston Marathon in the official time of 2:08:43. The second place finisher, Juma Ikangaa of Tanzania is seen in background.

Although Hussein had won his three previous marathons, skeptics questioned his ability. He had never run in a top-flight field like Boston's and he had never run a marathon faster than 2 hours, 11 minutes, 1 second.

On Monday, he won in 2:08:43, the second fastest time in Boston to Rob de Castella's 2:07:51 in 1986. He was within two minutes of the world record of 2:06:50 set by Ethiopia's Belayneh Dinsamo in Sunday's Rotterdam Marathon.

"I think this will convince a lot of people," Hussein said.

Rosa Mota of Portugal, a big favorite, scored her second consecutive victory in the women's portion of the race by a convincing margin of nearly five minutes.

Her time of 2:24:30 was faster than her 1987 winning time of 2:25:21. Joan Benoit Samuelson, the 1983 winner in 2:22:43, is the only woman to run faster in Boston.

She was not among the about 6,700 official entries in Monday's race.

"I like to run by myself," Mota said after her fifth consecutive marathon victory and ninth in 12 starts. "It's better for me because I can look at my split times."

Tuija Jousimaa of Finland finished second in 2:29:26 and Odette

LaPierre of Canada was third in 2:30:35.

Hussein and Mota, the bronze medalist at the 1984 Olympics, each won $45,000 and a car valued at more than $35,000. Hussein also became a virtual certainty to run in the 1988 Olympics in South Korea.

Kenya, Tanzania and Finland all planned to use the Boston Marathon as their Olympic trials.

In the wheelchair competition, Moussetapha Badid of France, broke the world record with a winning time of 1:43:19. The old mark of 1:43:25 was set by Andre Viger of Canada in 1986 in Boston.

Philippe Coupric, also of France, was second in 1:54:58.

The marathon had a heavy international flavor since the top Americans plan to run in the U.S. Olympic Trials. They will be held next Sunday in New Jersey for men and the following Sunday in Pittsburgh for women.

Rodgers, a four-time Boston champion, had the best time of any American, 2:18:17, and finished 28th. Having turned 40 last December, he ran in the masters' competition for the first time and was second to Ryszard Marczak of Poland, who was 25th overall in 2:17:53.

In the regular portion of the race, Ikangaa finished second in 2:08:44 and John Treacy of Ireland was third in 2:09:15. Two Italians finished fourth and fifth, Gelindo Bordin in 2:09:27 and Gianni Poli in 2:09:33.

Italy had three runners in the top seven, while the top 15 included three Tanzanians and two Kenyans.

Hussein, 29, and Ikangaa, 28, were in the lead pack from the start of the race at noon in Hopkinton where the temperature was 48 degrees and a light wind blew from the southwest as the runners headed from west to east.

DePaul guard to bypass final year of eligibility

CHICAGO (AP) — Rod Strickland, dogged by personal problems during his junior year at DePaul, says he's ready to play in the NBA.

The flashy 6-foot-3 guard, who averaged 20 points and nearly eight assists per game along with 75 steals, announced Monday that he will make himself available for the upcoming NBA draft.

"I think it's like any other student in college," he said. "If they were offered $100,000, $200,000, $300,000 (a year), I think they would take it too."

"A lot of people told me to stay. A lot of people told me to go. The big decision was did I want to come back and go to school or did I want to go to the pros and try to make money."

Strickland, 21, is considered by some pro scouts to be a first-round draft pick, but a number of team officials have expressed concerns about his maturity. Their doubts stem from a handful of run-ins Strickland had with DePaul officials this past season.

He began the 1987-88 season on a sour note, being ruled academically ineligible for the fall term.

Then there was a much-publicized New Year's altercation with a dormitory assistant, and several late-season benchings as a result of missed practices and other disciplinary problems.

Strickland, a native of The Bronx, N.Y., closed out the season with two of his better performances in the NCAA tournament, scoring 19 points and adding 13 assists against Wichita State, then 19 points and eight assists in a losing effort against Kansas State.

But the doubts persisted. "His escapades off the court scare the hell out of a lot of people," one scout said in a recent interview with the Chicago Sun-Times. "He is having a hard time showing he cares or has any responsibility at all. What's going to happen when a guy like that makes six figures?"

Strickland, who said he made his decision a week ago, says he's not worried.

"The biggest thing was, 'Did I think I was ready?'" he said. "I have a lot of confidence in myself that I can make it."

Asked what he needs to improve on, Strickland said: "Probably my whole game. That's a big jump, going into the NBA, but I think I should work on my jump shot and defense."

The only other underclassman to announce his eligibility for the June 28 draft is 7-foot center Tito Horford, a native of the Dominican Republic who two years ago set off a collegiate recruiting war before settling in at the University of Miami, Fla.

"It's a mistake for any kid to come out early," said Marty Blake, whose Atlanta-based scouting service is affiliated with the NBA.

"These people aren't ready. The seniors aren't ready," he added.

A station for the baseball fanatic

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine a television network that broadcasts nothing but baseball, 24 hours a day, seven days a week, from the first spring training game until the last day of the season.

It may be only two years away. A 24-hour baseball network on cable television could be in place for the 1990 season, baseball officials say.

"It would come on with the first game at noon Eastern time and would not go off until 2 a.m., or the last West Coast game ends," Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said.

When there are no live games, there could be tapes of the previous day's games, minor-league games, highlight films, scoreboard shows and scrolls of boxscores and averages, according to Ueberroth and Bryan Burns, baseball's senior vice president for broadcasting.

Ueberroth said the network would have a fixed schedule, but it would be able to switch to any game of interest.

The network would be part of basic cable, meaning that consumers would not have to pay an additional fee for the channel, like they must for Home Box Office or Showtime.

Games from local teams could be blacked out so as not to interfere with local stations, and an out-of-town game could replace it in that market, according to Burns.

Burns said Monday that regulation changes under consideration by the Federal Communications Commission could hurt superstations such as WTBS in Atlanta and WGN in Chicago, and that if enacted, the rule changes may make a baseball cable network more advantageous than superstations.

"You would be able to watch the same number of games but have a better mix," Burns said, pointing out that most cable systems carry only one or two superstations because of the cost.

Planning for the network is in a preliminary stage, Burns said. Its start depends in part on whether ABC and NBC exercise their rights to extend the current contracts, which expire after the 1989 World Series, through 1991.

The networks must make their decisions to extend between Dec. 1 and Feb. 1, 1989.

Netter's win nice surprise

HOUSTON (AP) — Melissa Gurney was prepared to be the underdog and the outsider when she met hometown favorite Lori McNeil in the Virginia Slims of Houston tennis tournament.

Ignoring gusty winds and the partisan cheers for No. 3 seeded McNeil, Gurney scored heavily with passing shots en route to a 4-6, 6-2, 6-3 upset victory Monday night.

"I knew what it was going to be like so I tried to pretend that they were cheering for me," Gurney said.

As the match neared the end of the final set, Gurney had won some followers with her pin-point passing shots that off-set McNeil's attempts to rush the net.

"I had some difficulty with the wind and she was playing very aggressive," said McNeil, now 0-2 lifetime against Gurney, Asheville, N.C. "I kept trying to come in but she was passing me very well."

Top seeded Martina Navratilova plays Iva Budarova of Czechoslovakia and second-seeded Chris Evert plays Maria Lindstrom of Sweden, highlighting today's first round matches.

It was Gurney's first victory over a top 10 ranked player. McNeil is ranked No. 10 in the world and Gurney is 96th.

Gurney, 19, took Evert to three sets as a 15-year-old schoolgirl in 1984 before losing 4-6, 6-4, 6-0 and in 1986 she upset Kathy Jordan in the U.S. Clay Court Championships.

"I've played just about all the top 10 players to three sets but I've never beaten them," Gurney said.

Cavs out to quash negatives

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — The Cleveland Cavaliers have heard the negatives all season and refused to listen.

"People were saying we were too young, a good team for the future. We want to be a good team now," second-year guard Mark Price said Monday night after he hit two late free throws to wrap up a 112-107 victory over the Indiana Pacers.

It was Cleveland's ninth win in the last 11 games and sent the Cavaliers into the playoffs for the fifth time in team history and only the second time in 10 years. Cleveland is assured of at least the No. 7 playoff spot in the Eastern Conference and could go as high as fifth.

The Pacers, who have lost seven straight road games, fell a full game behind New York and Washington, who are tied for the final two playoff spots with three games to go.

The Cavaliers clinched Monday's only NBA game with strong rebounding and defense from Larry Nance, Brad Daugherty and John "Hot Rod" Williams, who had 10 rebounds each. Nance led Cleveland with 24 points, while Price and Ron Harper had 19 each. Daugherty scored 18.

Indiana trailed 58-56 at halftime after Cleveland's Craig Ehlo hit a 3-point shot just before the second-quarter buzzer. The Pacers would not lead again, although they tied it at 101 when Steve Stipanovich made a layup on a fast break with five minutes to go.

The Cavaliers made the rest of their points from the foul line, hitting nine of 12 in the final 4:13.

Sports Briefs

Softball meeting scheduled

The United Girls Softball Association will have a coaches and managers meeting Thursday at 7:30 p.m. at the Big Spring Bowl-A-Rama.

Slowpitch tournament slated

LAMESA — The Knights of Columbus Men's Slowpitch Softball Tournament will be April 23-24 at the Lamesa softball field. Entry fee is $80 per team and entry deadline is April 20. The first four teams will receive team trophies and T-shirts. A T-shirt will also be awarded to the player who hits the most home runs.

Ladies to host golf meet

The Comanche Trail Ladies Golf Association will sponsor the Delores Hull Memorial Two Lady Scramble April 23 at Comanche Trail Golf Course. Entry fee is $60 per team, with $10.50 extra for carts. This fee includes lunch at the Branding Iron Inn. Prizes and trophies are planned for three flights with nine blind holes. First place will receive a set of woods, second place, a graphite driver set and third place, a metal wood set, plus many more prizes and awards.

Softball tournament slated

ODESSA — The Best in Texas Men's Slowpitch Softball Classic will be April 30-May 1 at the University of Texas Permian Basin Complex. The tournament is for two divisions; Class A&B team entry fees are $120. Class C&D entry fees are $110. The first three teams in each division will receive team trophies, and travel money will be awarded to the winners.

Industrial league organizing

An organizational meeting for the Big Spring Industrial Softball League will begin at 8 p.m. Thursday in the meeting room at Highland Lanes. All persons interested in playing, coaching or umpiring are urged to attend. For more information contact Noel Hull, 263-6841.

Donkey

Another bit of strategy that met with varying degrees of success was during fast breaks. A group of two or three players would converge on the basket and create a traffic jam of sorts, temporarily immobilizing their steeds and allowing for a more-or-less unhurried shot.

During the course of the game, however, the donkeys proved who was in charge on the court. For every successful fast break, there were many times the donkeys would simply stop, drop their heads, and deposit their unwanted riders on the court.

The graceful swish of a ball going through the basket would then be replaced by the resounding thud of a player's body meeting the hardwood.

And the emergencies, one may ask?

Fortunately, the animals were well-behaved in that regard. The pooper scooper only had to be used once, for which everyone — including the fans — were obviously grateful.

Despite their obvious losing battle to control their beasts, the players — consisting of Coahoma

High School and Howard College students — enjoyed their time in the limelight.

"It was fun," said Rose Phipps, a 17-year-old Coahoma student who was the only female on the court. "It's my last year here, so I decided to go out with a bang."

As for why there weren't more female participants, Rose said, "I was the only one willing to make a fool out of myself."

For the record, the Doomsday Bombers beat the Harlem Donkey Trotters, 6-2, for the championship. Winning Coach George Herrera credited the victory to his Hispanic heritage.

"You've got to have a Mexican coach to communicate with those things," he said.

Money raised by the event went to benefit the Coahoma Lion Club's general scholarship fund at Coahoma High School.

Clark finds Metrodome toothsome

By the ASSOCIATED PRESS Jack Clark finally got a taste of the Metrodome. He liked it.

Clark, who was injured and missed last year's World Series when the Minnesota Twins beat his St. Louis Cardinals, changed addresses in the offseason. In his Metrodome debut as a Yankee, he had three hits and three runs batted in as New York routed the World Series champions 18-5 Monday night.

In the process, Clark snapped an 0-for-10 slump that included eight strikeouts and an ejection on Sunday.

"Sometimes you need to get upset," he said. "I wasn't getting upset at the umpire as much as I was getting upset at myself. I don't feel completely comfortable yet, but I'm getting closer."

Clark never got close to playing in the '87 World Series.

"It was really frustrating ... when we didn't win," he said. "I thought about it a little. But I had too many other things to think about — like getting my swing together."

All of my swings had their swings together as the team scored 18 runs for the first time in six years. Dave Winfield added three hits and knocked in four runs as New York collected 20 hits.

Minnesota has been outscored 65-32 in going 4-7 this season. The Yankees are 3-0 against the Twins, outscoring them 31-8.

"It was a bad day," Twins manager Tom Kelly said. "They beat us fair and square. It's going to happen like this some time during the season. You just hope it doesn't happen too often."

Elsewhere, it was Oakland 5, California 4; Chicago 4, Seattle 0; Boston 4, Texas 3; and Detroit 4, Kansas City 2.

Yankees 18, Twins 5
Aside from the offensive onslaught, the Yankees got three-hit relief from Charles Hudson.

Bobby Meacham and Rafael Santana, both of whom have been benched by the Yankees — Santana as recently as last week — each came up twice in a nine-run fifth inning, with Meacham doubling and scoring, then hitting a sacrifice fly. Santana homered and doubled for two RBIs.

Winfield hit his fourth home run of the season, and his four RBI gave him 21 in 13 games. Claude Williams also hit his first homer.

Athletics 5, Angels 4
The dreaded balk got the Angels. DeWayne Buice balked home the winning run with two outs in the eighth inning, capping Oakland's three-run rally.

The Athletics stormed back after the Angels took a 4-2 lead in the top of the inning on Wally Joyner's first home run of the season.

Terry Steinbach singled leading off the A's eighth and Buice replaced starter Dan Petry. Mike Gallego ran for Steinbach and went to second on a wild pitch. Stan Javier doubled Gallego in and, after Glenn Hubbard singled Javier to third, pinch-hitter Dave Henderson hit a sacrifice fly.

Carney Lansford was safe on second base as Mark McLemore's walking error and, with two outs, Jose Canseco fielded, leading the bases. With Don Baylor up, Buice, 0-2, balked home the winning run.

"The game was definitely lost by us. It wasn't won by them," Buice said. "Balks can change the outcome of a game, just give it to another team."

White Sox 4, Mariners 0
Chicago, which had only five home runs this season, got a pair in a four-run fourth inning off rookie Mike Campbell. Ivan Calderon hit a two-run homer and Carlton Fisk followed with a solo shot.

Dave LaPoint, 2-1, pitched seven shutout innings and Bill Long worked the last two innings.

"LaPoint told me when he came in tonight, 'I showed up, your work is over,'" White Sox manager Jim Fregosi said. "The kid's a character. He looked at me after I took him out tonight and said, 'Manager, that was a wise decision.'"

Red Sox 4, Rangers 3
Mike Greenwell's sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth won it. Wade Boggs walked and went to third when Jim Rice doubled off loser Mitch Williams, 0-1.

The Rangers had tied the game with two outs in the top of the ninth when Rick Cerone's passed ball allowed Scott Fletcher to score from third.

"On the way into the clubhouse, Rick said to me, 'Thanks for picking me up,'" Rice said. "He felt bad about what happened, but we won the game and that's all that counts."

Lee Smith pitched the final two innings for his first AL win.

Pete O'Brien hit two solo home runs for Texas.

KC adds minority interns

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Kansas City Chiefs have established a minority intern program and signed a "statement of cooperation" with the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), pledging to continue efforts to hire minorities.

The intern program will offer four positions to college students in their junior or senior year in the Chiefs' marketing, public relations, accounting and ticket offices.

"The plan reaffirms the Chiefs' policy of providing equal opportunity for minorities," said Chiefs President Jack Steadman after he signed the statement with Benjamin Hooks, NAACP president, and Marcus Jackson, president of the Kansas City chapter.

The statement details the team's current efforts to use minority suppliers in purchasing, do business with minority financial institutions and advertise in black media.

The agreement was the first of its kind in the NFL. The NBA and NAACP reached agreement in July.

JEANE DIXON'S Your Horoscope

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 20, 1988

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Two incomes will be better than one. Investigate any opportunity to moonlight. Those with college tuition to pay should be prepared for unexpected expenses. Travel may be too expensive unless you have piled up "frequent flier" points. Tighten credit spending and you will save a bundle! Recent tax changes favor you if you play by the rules. Something as simple as fastening your seat belt could keep you safe and sound. Romance thrives in a new atmosphere.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: pitcher Milt Wilcox, Yankee MVP Don Mattingly, drama coach Nina Foch, actor Ryan O'Neal, artist Joan Miro, Justice John Paul Stevens, actress Lara Jill Miller.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You will shine in any business group today. It may be hard for you to hold back your feelings in a relationship. Do all you can to instill high ideals in your children.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Fight off self-doubt and your dreams will eventually come true. Look beyond the rhetoric to see whether a money deal will work for you. Life in the fast lane will leave you out of breath today.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Hold off on making a deal or signing a contract. Details may be unclear. Be sure you are making the right choice and not just indulging yourself. A former associate reap-

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Persistence will enable you to sort out financial problems and get back on top. You have imaginative ideas, but are sometimes too impatient for them to work. Slow down! Enlist allies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Nothing will hold you back now. Be a leader, not a bully. Avoid issuing ultimatums. An open exchange leads to a more meaningful relationship for you and partner. Your sparkling personality wins friends.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Deal with people and problems directly to achieve the best results. Something happens to jolt you out of a rut. Replace bad habits with good ones. Do nothing to jeopardize your health.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Others may judge you by superficial values. Use your mediating skills if the situation calls for it. Give an inexperienced person the benefit of the doubt. Kind deeds will be richly repaid.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Additional education will help further your career. Your friends are supportive. Use tact and sensitivity when dealing with someone who is shy. Make certain you stick to the facts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Resurrect old talents and hobbies — they will bring good luck! Postpone asking for loans. Romantic plans could change suddenly. Your head is a more reliable guide than your heart right now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Turn limitations into opportunity. Use your special talents to help those who deserve a better break. Raises and bonuses come now. Plan a small party to celebrate with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Bringing obscure knowledge to the attention of the right people earns you a bonus or promotion. Try to make creative ideas more practical. Business offers abound. Seek advice from experts before investing money.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A great day for mixing business with pleasure. Do not rush anything. Higher-ups are pleased with your willingness to learn. Devote more attention to financial investments. Larger returns are possible.
