Gas Shortage May Cut Off 500,000 U.S. Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A looming natural gas shortage may start forcing as many as a half million Americans out of work in a matter of weeks unless Congress and the Ford administration can reach a compromise on national energy policy.

Congressional testimony has indicated some 500,000 workers may be out of jobs when the anticipated natural gas shortage hits this winter. There are predictions the layoffs could begin soon after Nov. 1.

No one in Congress has challenged the prediction, but neither Republicans nor Democrats in the Senate have indicated willingness to budge from their positions on energy pricing — the issue that has put the Democratic-controlled Congress at odds with President Ford for almost nine months.

Each side has its own proposed solution for the gas shortage forecast for 14 states this winter. The Federal Power Commission says either bill could help reduce the shortage to manageable proportions.

Republicans are seeking an end to all price controls on natural gas. They say ending controls would increase the price and therefore the supply of gas available to the 14 threatened states.

Democrats have pushed for emergency legislation that would permit gas-short states to buy gas directly from gas-producing states, mainly Louisiana, Oklahoma and Texas, for about $1.25 per unit. That price is almost 150 per cent above the current controlled price.

But Republicans, with the President's blessing, have refused to consider the emergency legislation except as part of their effort to eliminate price controls on natural gas permanently.

Democrats are refusing to allow a vote, saying elimination of price controls would bring the oil-gas industry a bonanza and worsen inflation and unemployment. They note House leaders say there is no chance of passing a long-range gas bill in the House this year.

An attempted compromise was defeated Wednesday.

By a 55 to 45 vote the Senate rejected an amendment by Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill., that would have let the well price of gas rise sharply over the next five years, with oil prices reduced during the same period. At the end of five years, the President could have, with congressional approval, modified the price controls or removed them altogether.

In general, Republicans say price controls have created gas shortages by denying the petroleum industry money needed to develop more energy. Democrats generally agree that prices should be allowed to rise somewhat — but not to the level that might be expected if controls were eliminated.

The proposal was rejected after the Senate, on a surprisingly close 54 to 35 vote, defeated an amendment by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., seeking to break the nation's largest oil and gas companies into numerous smaller firms.

The shortage is expected to be greatest in 14 states, which have nearly six million workers whose jobs are dependent on natural gas. These states are Ohio, New Jersey, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Pennsylvania, New York, Kentucky, West Virginia, Delaware, Missouri, Iowa and California.

Brown To Reenter Borden Failure

H. L. Brown Jr. of Midland has filed application to reenter and clean out to original total depth of 8,240 feet, at No 1-368 Miller, Borden County wildcat failure, six miles northwest of Fluvanna.

It originally was drilled by the same operator, and plugged and abandoned Jan. 11, 1973.

It flowed gas at the maximum, daily rate of 70,000 cubic feet, and recovered 1,722 feet of free oil, 188 feet of heavily oil- and gas-cut mud, 94 feet of mud and water, and 188 feet of sulphur water, on a drillstem test from 7,770-7,799 feet.

An earlier drillstem test from 7,712-7,735 feet recovered gassey mud and a test from 7,672-7,692 feet yielded 2,200 feet of gas and 30 feet of oil- and gas-cut drilling mud.

Location is 1,980 feet from south and 2,173 feet from east lines of section 368, block 97, H&TC survey, one mile east of the depleted Canyon opener in the Myrtle field.

Operator Reopens Lea's Llano Pool

The Llano (Pennsylvanian) pool of Lea County, N.M., has been reopened with completion of McMoRan Exploration Co. of New Orleans, La., No. 1-31 State.

It swabbed on 24-hour potential test, making 34 barrels of oil and 312 barrels of water. Gravity of the oil and gas-oil ratio were not reported.

The producing perforations at 10,061-10,085 feet, had been acidized with 1,500 gallons.

It was drilled to 10,091 feet, and has 5½-inch pipe set on bottom.

It is 1,980 feet from north and 660 feet from east lines of section 31-11s-35e, ¾ mile southwest of the depleted original opener.

C&K Completes Lea Extension

C&K Petroleum, Inc., Midland, has completed No. 1-34-A Shipp as a third producer and location west extension to the Casey (Strawn) oil field of Lea County, N.M.

It flowed 480 barrels of 42.3-gravity oil on 24-hour potential test, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,198-1. Production was through a 20-64-inch choke and perforations at 11,390-11,400 feet, which had been acidized with 500 gallons.

Location is 660 feet from north and 1,980 feet from west lines of section 34-16s-37e, six miles east of Lovington.

Nolan Oil Field Gains Producer

The Chinquapin (Strawn) field of Nolan County gained its seventh well and a location southwest extension with completion of James P. Dunigan, Inc., Abilene, No. 1 Beno Collins Jr., 13 miles southeast of Sweetwater.

It gauged a 24-hour potential of 58 barrels of 40.5-gravity oil, with gas-oil ratio measuring 1,050-1. Production was through perforations at 5,585-5,599 feet.

Location is 545 feet from north

Russian Dissident Sakharov Awarded Nobel Peace Prize

OSLO, Norway (AP) — The 1975 Nobel peace prize was awarded today to Russian physicist Andrei Sakharov who helped develop the Soviet hydrogen bomb and then turned dissident.

The award to the 54-year-old scientist was announced by the Norwegian Parliament's Nobel committee which was understood to have discussed 50 candidates.

The prize amounts to $140,000. A gold medal and diploma go with the check to be presented at the Nobel ceremony here Dec. 10.

Sakharov's fight for civil rights in the Soviet Union and opposition to tight Communist party control cost him the rewards and position as a leader in the Soviet scientific community.

In recent years he has repeatedly spoken out in favor of other Soviet dissidents and appealed for amnesty for political prisoners.

In a recent book he also criticized Western nations for failing to prevent Communist takeovers in South Vietnam and Cambodia.

In the citation, the Nobel committee said:

"Sakharov's personal and fearless effort in the cause of peace among mankind serves as a mighty inspiration to all true endeavours to promote peace. Uncompromisingly and forcefully Sakharov [illegible] not only against the [illegible] power and violations of human dignity in all its forms, but he has with equal vigor fought for the ideal of a state founded on the principle of justice for all.

"In a convincing fashion Sakharov has emphasized that the right of man can serve as the only safe foundation for a genuine and long-lasting system of international cooperation. In this manner he has succeeded very effectively, and under trying conditions, in reinforcing respect for such values as all true friends of peace are anxious to support."

Bottles Of Eyewash Solution Contaminated With Mold

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 20,000 bottles of boric acid solution, often used as an eyewash, are being pulled off the market in 10 western states because they are contaminated with mold, the Food and Drug Administration said today.

The nonprescription solution, manufactured by Whiteworth Inc., of Gardena, Calif., has been distributed in Arizona, California, Colorado, Hawaii, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Texas, Utah and Washington.

The FDA said there were 7,004 four-ounce bottles, 12,000 eight-ounce bottles and 1,200 sixteen-ounce bottles, bearing the lot numbers A387673, D439673, H197324 or J197324.

The FDA classified the recall as a priority situation "in which the consequences may be immediate or long-range and possibly or potential life-threatening or hazardous to health."

Refugees Hold Five Hostages In Argentina

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — Eleven Chilean refugees and a Brazilian holding five U.N. officials and employees hostage under threat of death appealed today for the "good will" of international leaders to find a country where they can go.

They specified the country should be a democratic one and said negotiations for a haven have extended to seven countries. They say they want to leave Argentina because they are destitute here.

Argentine officials have agreed to let them go if a country can be found to take them.

"My understanding is that the United Nations is now negotiating with six or seven countries to find one that will take us," a refugee spokesman said by telephone. "But so far no answer."

He said the countries included mark and at least one unidentified Socialist nation. He did not name the others.

A Buenos Aires radio station said without citing any sources that the group might leave at noon on a plane, but the refugee spokesman said: "That's news to me, and I don't think it's true."

He said the group was determined to remain in the U.N. High Commission for Refugees offices, which they seized at midday Wednesday, until their demand is satisfied.

The spokesman clarified the exact number of refugees but declined to identify them by name. The Brazilian appeared to be the leader and was referred to as "Number One" by the others.

"We are simply waiting," he said. "By now, we have established a family atmosphere, and we are guarding only in turns as a precautionary measure, but if police use violence we must respond in kind."

He said the group had revolvers and a hand grenade.

The group seized 14 hostages, but eight women and one of the men, an Argentine who suffered an epileptic attack, were later freed. The group spokesman told The Associated Press by telephone the hostages were freed as a sign of good will. But he said the remaining hostages would be killed if police tried to move in.

Robert Muller, chief of the commission office and one of the hostages, said in a telephone interview:

"There is no problem. The matter is being dealt with in Geneva by the high commissioner for refugees with the respective governments ... now with Argentina, but perhaps others later."

Sandwiches, pizzas, blankets and cigarettes were sent up to the eighth-floor penthouse offices in an aging building at the corner of Suipacha and Sarmiento in downtown Buenos Aires.

Police rolled a paddy wagon to the door of the building, but the officer in charge said the group could sleep peacefully until morning since the matter was being handled at higher political levels.

The Chileans claimed that thousands of their countrymen were living in Argentina without proper documentation, without jobs and with hardly enough food to keep them alive.

They blamed "the backward officials of the United Nations" for not doing more.

Muller, who arrived last month to study the refugee question, estimated there were 5,000 Chilean refugees who have lived here since the Chilean army overthrew Marxist President Salvador Allende in September 1972.

Other sources say as many as 20,000 Chileans came to Argentina, including some who entered illegally.

Houston Wiretaps Detailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Houston policeman said today his department conducted 700 to 1,000 illegal wiretaps in narcotics cases over four years and that federal agents witnessed some of them.

Anthony V. Zavala told the House intelligence committee he was personally involved in 35 wiretaps during the four years, from 1968 to 1972, and is to begin a three-year prison term next Tuesday for conviction of wiretapping.

In his testimony, Zavala did not say whether the conviction was for one of the 35 wiretaps he cited.

Committee Chairman Otis G. Pike, D-N.Y., said the hearing on illegal wiretapping was part of the committee's investigation of risks of U.S. intelligence operations. "This is the risk of average people having their personal communications intercepted by government and private agencies," Pike said.

When the FBI began an investigation of illegal wiretapping in Houston in 1972, Zavala testified, "our department conveniently knew about it in advance.

"One of my superiors told us to 'knock off the wiretaps for a while. I just got the word from the Feds. A task force is in town ready to arrest anybody it finds wiretapping — even police officers.'"

The 700 to 1,000 illegal wiretaps during those four years were conducted by Zavala's narcotics division alone, he testified.

Zavala said other divisions in the Houston police department

Ford To Hold News Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will hold a news conference at 7 p.m. CDT today, Press Secretary Ron Nessen announced.

Nessen said the session, to be held in an auditorium in the Old Executive Office Building next door to the White House, would be available for live television and radio broadcasting.

CBS and NBC said they would carry the conference live, but ABC said early this afternoon it had decided not to provide live coverage of the event.

When Ford sought network time Monday for address on tax policy, ABC was the only one of three major networks to broadcast the speech live.

Nessen discounted any idea that the President's decision to hold a news conference was connected in any way with Monday's events. He said discussion of holding a news conference had begun at least a week ago.

"He's realized it's been a long time since he had a news conference," Nessen said of the President.

The President has not held a broadcast news conference since July, but met with reporters in his Oval Office for a news conference in mid-September.

LATE BULLETINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas today denied a request to release Lynette Fromme from jail on her own recognizance.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., today said he was reliably informed that the White House would cancel by this weekend the moratorium on the sale of grains abroad.

Indian Judges Weighing Validity Of 'Gandhi Law'

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A five-judge panel of India's highest court today began considering the validity of legislation freeing Prime Minister Indira Gandhi from a conviction of corrupt electioneering that could drive her from power.

Seven weeks of courtroom drama ended with Mrs. Gandhi's political opponents again arguing that on the court's decision hangs the future of democracy in India.

The court, which has a long tradition of independence from politics, gave no indication when a decision might be forthcoming, but opposition lawyers estimated it would be at least two weeks.

If the court upholds the retroactive legislation, the case will be over and Mrs. Gandhi's hold on power will appear unbreakable.

But if the court strikes down the constitutional and statutory legislation, both sides will return to the courtroom to argue the merits of the appeal of Mrs. Gandhi's June 12 conviction by the Allahabad high court that she illegally used government officials to help her 1971 parliamentary election campaign.

Shanti Bhushan, chief attorney for Mrs. Gandhi's political opponents, said he was "98 per cent certain" the supreme court would strike down a constitutional amendment nullifying retroactively the right of courts to hear an election case dispute involving the prime minister.

For the case as a whole, Bhushan said the chances were "55-45" the court would rule in his favor.

"Even if the case as a whole goes against me, my hope is that the court will strike down the constitutional amendment," Bhushan said in an interview.

"This amendment would lay down a principle which would be harmful to democracy," he said. "What happens in an individual case is not that important. What happens to democracy is."

The court will also consider an election laws amendment passed by Parliament in August just before Mrs. Gandhi's appeal was to open—removing the specific charges [illegible] Mrs. Gandhi was convicted [illegible].

The amendment in effect declared that what were offenses were no longer [illegible].

Bhushan based his case on the claim that the retroactive legislation [illegible] an unconstitutional [illegible] of a 1973 supreme court ruling that the fundamental [illegible] of India cannot be

Terminal Parking Space May Increase

Paved parking space for the general public at Midland Air Terminal will be increased by 45 per cent from 389 to 550 spaces under a plan being considered by the Midland City Council.

The present car overflow there forces many vehicles to park on no-parking zones in grassy fields at the airport.

"We need to put some organization and control over it," Col. Wilson Banks, airport manager, said this morning.

"We need additional space for the public," he said. "... and we need to resurface the parking lot one of these days."

To up the controlled parking space, the Midland councilmen would authorize the leveling of a service station near the regulated parking lot and convert it to regulated parking spaces. Now unregulated, cars nevertheless park on and around the service station.

That measure could increase parking space by some 80 slots, Banks said.

Employe parking now to the immediate north and south of the air terminal building would be converted to public parking regulated by meters. Employe parking would be relocated a block away.

Revenue to help maintain the parking spaces may be increased, Banks said. The proposal is to raise the per day rate from $1.25 to $1.50. The current hourly rate of 25 cents for the first hour and 10 cents for each additional hour would be hiked to 35 and 15 cents.

The parking fee rates among the lowest of airports statewide, he said.

Income from landing fees, Col. Banks said, help out in the operation and maintenance of the city-owned airport.

"They are helping us in our capital expenses," he said, referring to Continental Airlines and Texas International Airlines.

"We need some (revenue) over and above that. I don't think it's right for the airlines to pay for everything."

Temperatures Rise In Midland

Midland temperatures are rising as the weekend approaches, with the weatherman predicting a high temperature near 90 for Friday to follow today's anticipated high mark in the upper 80s.

The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Air Terminal reported Wednesday's maximum as 88 degrees, followby an overnight low of 58. The low tonight should fall in the low 50s.

Low clouds or fog covered much of East and South Texas early today, keeping the weather uncomfortably warm, while western areas of the state had clear and cool weather behind a nearly stalled cool front.

Damp air which billowed ashore from the Gulf of Mexico spread the sultry weather over roughly the southeast two-thirds of the state.

At the same time a Pacific cool front which eased into the Texas Panhandle the day before hovered close to a standstill from the Big Bend country in far West Texas to the Upper Red River Valley near the Panhandle. Official observers looked for it to start moving again and progress as far as a line from Northeast to extreme Southwest Texas before coming close to a halt again Friday, The Associated Press reported.

Clear to partly cloudy and continued warm weather was forecast throughout the state.

South winds gusting up to 30 miles per hour sent thermometers climbing across the broad areas ahead of the frontal system Wednesday afternoon. Readings mounted to 91 degrees at Abilene, Childress and Wichita Falls and to 92 at Cotulla.

Temperatures near dawn today stayed as high as 73 at Galveston on the coast. At the hour it was 49 at Dalhart in the Panhandle.

500 Persons Await Arrival Of 'The Two'

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — More than 500 persons hoping to catch a glimpse of a mysterious couple who preaches salvation through UFOs waited in vain for the pair in front of the main public library.

The Wednesday night session had been canceled well in advance, reportedly because of publicity over persons who had left their homes and families after attending earlier sessions in Oregon and California.

The leaders, identified only as "the two," say they are several thousand years old and come from a higher order. They promise converts that they, too, can be transported by spaceship to this higher level.

Some in the crowd said they wanted to go.

"I believe it. I want to hear what they have to say," said a bearded young man who said he journeyed here from Portland, Ore., on the chance "the two" might show up.

The crowd, made up almost entirely of young persons, gathered in clusters around a man in his early 20s who said his name was "Lightborne" and professed to be a follower of "HIM." He did not address the crowd, however.

A radio talk show host who talked to the group's leaders said Wednesay they told him nearly 100 followers are at a secret Colorado camp preparing physically and emotionally for what they believe will be a spaceship ride to a utopian planet.

"In a call yesterday, they confided there were 90 to 100 persons there who were healthy and well," said Victor Boc of station KOME. "They said no one forced anyone to be there."

He said the callers told him the followers were forfeiting their earthly belongings, giving up sex, living on fruit and undergoing emotional and mental training to prepare for a UFO flight to the paradise they call "a higher being."

Boc said they told him the camp was located near Pagosa Springs, Colo.

He said the group turned down his suggestion that a list of all persons at the camp be released to ease the concerns of relatives.

Federal Building Employes Stress Fire Prevention

The General Services Administration has put together a campaign on fire prevention this week for the some 350 federal employes in the Federal Building and Post Office.

The effort coincides with National Fire Prevention Week Oct. 6-10, according to Don R. Rogers, GSA building manager.

Scheduled for this morning was a fire drill, a demonstration by Midland firemen on the use of fire extinguishers and the showing of a film on fire prevention, Rogers said.

MC Scholarship Funds May Grow By New Program

A new grant program which could increase money available for Midland College scholarships by $5,000 to $10,000 was discussed at a conference last week attended by Bill Burns, the school's financial aid officer.

Burns was one of 225 state college counselors who attended the Texas Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators Conference in San Antonio.

The conference reviewed the financial programs that presently are available to college students and introduced the new Texas Public Education Program.

This program would boost Midland College's scholarship money by matching local funds with federal allocations.

Students Witness Decision-Making Process

By GEORGE MASSEY

Students at Midland College got a chance to witness a little of what is known as controversial government decision making Wednesday when a small group of students and faculty sat in on a regular session of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Board of Directors.

The regional government directors were at Midland College to participate in the "Democracy in Action" phase of the college's National Issues Conference.

The excitment came when a request was presented to the PBRPC board for an application to the Texas Department of Community Affairs amounting to more than $100,000 for a "Three Tier Learning Center" at Odessa.

Representatives of the center came to the regional government for funding after being refused funding by the Ector County Commissioner's Court. Board members of the PBRPC noted that the center's application and project was an "Ector County deal." The PBRPC directors denied the funding application on an eight to four vote after a motion by Odessa City Councilman Willie Hammond failed.

Hammond indicated after the meeting that he had wanted an opportunity to further study the positive aspects of the center's program which is designed to assist public school drop-outs with academic, emotional and vocational efforts.

Several members of the PBRPC board voiced opinions against funding the center's project "because it does not operate on a regional basis and is a duplication of efforts already being made."

The project as suggested by the center would work with "deficits in 100 young persons (presently all but two from Ector County) with a staff of nine individuals including a project administrator, director of teachers, four teachers, two teacher aides and a secretary."

The center's activity has operated for the last three years on funding from Ector County.

Winfree Brown, Midland county commissioner and PBRPC board member, said after the meeting, "There have been strong indications that even if the project had passed here it was going to be denied when it reached the state level."

In other action the regional government:

— Approved a grant application by West Texas Opportunities, Inc. (Lamesa-Dawson County Community Action Council) for $103,427 from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare to fund the 1976 Head Start Program in Lamesa, Stanton and McCamey.

The program will serve 100 four-year-old children, with Lamesa's center serving 60 at a budget of $65,066 and Stanton and McCamey center's each serving 20 children on budgets of just more than $19,000.

— Approved a request by the West Texas Opportunities, Inc. for a $91,784 grant from the General Services Administration for 1976 general services programs in Lamesa, Stanton and McCamey. The program budgets call for a $32,448 in-kind contribution from the communities, making a project total of $124,196.

The Lamesa budget proposal covers $16,324 for administration and $17,441 for general services. For Stanton, the budget is $25,581 and for McCamey, $32,402.

— Approved a grant request of $60,349 from the Criminal Justice Division for continuation of the PBRPC Regional Crime Prevention projects.

— Approved a request by the PBRPC for a $65,000 grant from the Criminal Justice Division to supplement a regional police radio communications project.

— Approved the appointment of Andrews County representatives Dr. Albert Recio and Raymond McCabe to the Alcoholism Advisory Committee.

— Approved the 1975 Drug Abuse Plan for the Permian Basin which includes studies on incidence and prevalence data for the 17-county area and an inventory of drug abuse prevention resource units available in the region. Action agenda lists are provided to prevent or deter drug abuse, and have been assigned priority ratings by the Drug Abuse Advisory Committee.

Ford Plan Draws Airline Opposition

By JAY PERKINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford's plan aimed at stimulating competition in the air transportation industry is drawing strong opposition from airlines.

Ford announced Wednesday he is asking Congress to remove some of the authority of the Civil Aeronautics Board, to allow airlines more freedom to raise and lower fares and to start and stop service between cities.

Administration officials contended the legislation would result in lower over-all air fares for the public by stimulating competition.

Major airlines objected to the proposal, saying it would lead to higher prices and turn the nation's transportation system into chaos.

The heads of House and Senate subcommittees involved with studies of airlines indicated agreement with the effort to make air travel more affordable, but withheld immediate judgment on the Ford proposal.

Rep. Glenn Anderson, D-Calif., chairman of the House Public Works aviation subcommittee, called Ford's proposal "commendable."

Sen. Howard Cannon, head of the Senate Commerce Committee's aviation subcommittee, said, "I admit there is too much regulation. I am not ready to form a judgment on the legislation until I see it."

Much opposition to the Ford proposal was aimed at a provision that would let airlines start or stop service on routes. This proposal, which would be effective Jan. 1, 1981, would allow airlines to begin flights on routes which they now have no CAB authority to serve. It also would let them halt service on unprofitable routes unless the federal, state or local government agreed to subsidize losses.

SW Bell Adds New Charge

FORT WORTH (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. disclosed Wednesday a plan to start charging for calls to directory assistance in the Fort Worth metropolitan area.

It will allow Fort Worth customers to place three calls to directory assistance each month within the 817 area code zone without charge, a company spokesman said. The proposed plan would apply only to Bell customers in Fort Worth. Other telephone users in the 817 area would not be affected.

Each directory assistance call beyond the three will cost 20 cents.

Division manager Bill Serrault said the 817 area extends south to Waco, west to Cisco, north to Wichita Falls and east to the Tarrant County (Fort Worth) line.

Serrault said the charge eventually will be made in Dallas County as well.

State Constitution Will Be Discussed

The proposed state constitution will be the topic for Friday's forum at Midland College, scheduled to begin at noon in the learning resources center.

State Rep. Mickey Leland of Houston and state Rep. Tom Craddick of Midland will discuss the proposed constitution as part of the student senate-sponsored National Issues Conference.

Their discussion will be followed by a town hall meeting moderated by Jim Allison Jr., publisher of The Reporter-Telegram. That session will be at 1 p.m. in the student center.

Friday's sessions mark the end of a week's programs featuring guest speakers and local governmental groups. The meetings are open to Midland College students, staff members and guests.

Midlander Gets Five Years

Randy Jones, a 21-year-old Midlander who had been under two probated terms handed down by 142nd District Court Judge Perry D. Pickett, this morning in a revocation hearing was sentenced to five years in prison.

Jones was already on probation for three years on a forgery conviction when last March he was given a five-year probated term after pleading guilty to theft of barbed wire. The judge had, in effect, continued the man on probation following a revocation hearing.

Today's hearing stemmed from two violations of his probation terms. Without permission of his probation officer, E. H. "Kirk" Kirksey, Jones left Midland County for Fort Worth where he was picked up for driving while intoxicated (DWI) and subsequently convicted of the offense in the Tarrant County court.

The judge revoked the five-year probated term on the theft conviction and dismissed the three-year term for forgery.

Former Midlander Dies At Dallas

DALLAS — Benny A. Curliss, a former Midland resident, died Wednesday in his Dallas home following a lengthy illness. He was 43.

Services will be at 2 p.m. Friday at the Midway Hills Christian Church directed by the Dudley M. Hughes Funeral Homes. Burial will be at 11 a.m. Saturday at Hartshorne, Okla.

Curliss, an employe of Hunt Oil Co., lived in Midland prior to his transfer to Dallas six years ago.

Survivors include the widow, Betty Curliss; three sons, Mike Curliss, Mark Curliss and David Curliss, all of Dallas, and a daughter, Mary Cyl Curliss also of Dallas.

The family requests memorials to the leukemia center of the Wadley Institutes of Molecular Medicine, 9000 Harry Hines Boulevard, Dallas.

Senate Defeats Amendment To Ban U.S. Technicians In Sinai

WASHINGTON (AP) — Moving closer to giving President Ford the authority to send American technicians to monitor the Sinai accord, the Senate today refused to bar the use of U.S. armed forces to rescue the technicians in an emergency.

An amendment by Sen. James Abourezk, D-S.D., banning military personnel and equipment was defeated 75 to 15.

The amendment was offered as a substitute for a House-approved amendment specifying that congressional approval of up to 200 Americans at Sinai desert stations would not give the president additional authority to introduce American armed forces into hostilities.

The House amendment by Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., was adopted Wednesday night before the House passed the technician resolution 341 to 69.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn., asked the Senate to write the same language into the Senate resolution to make it conform to the House resolution. This would avoid the need for a conference to adjust differences while Congress is in a week-long recess next week, he said.

A final Senate vote on the technician proposal is set for Friday.

The deployment of American technicians in the Sinai was part of the United States commitment in the peace accord between Israel and Egypt.

President Ford had sought approval of the stationing of the technicians in the buffer zone between Israeli and Egyptian forces by last Friday, but the Senate has yet to act on the proposal.

Abourezk had moved to scuttle the measure by returning it to the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for further work.

Senators said they would take final action on the issue Friday, the day they recess for their vacation.

If the Senate does take final action on the measure this week, it will have to accept the amendments tacked on to the proposal in the House and turn down a dozen others proposed by senators. Otherwise, final action would have to await the end of the week's vacation, when the two chambers could iron out their differences.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., manager of the measure on the Senate floor, urged his colleagues to adopt the proposal as offered by the House. Humphrey said time is essential, noting that congressional action on the measure will trigger final implementation of the peace accord.

Before approving the resolution, the House passed an amendment specifying that the measure gives the President no authority to introduce U.S. military force into the Middle East.

The amendment by Eckhardt won approval of supporters of the technician resolution, including Rep. Wayne Hays, D-Ohio, who said it would not bar Ford from using U.S. military strength to rescue the civilian technicians if they were in peril.

The House also approved on a voice vote an amendment requiring Ford to report to Congress on the feasibility of replacing the Americans with technicians from other nations.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, who negotiated the interim settlement, has said both sides demanded that American technicians monitor the peace from a demilitarized zone in the Sinai.

U.S.-Soviet Grain Deal Accord Reportedly Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S.-Soviet agreement on American grain sales may be near and could involve a separate accord for the U.S. purchase of Russian oil, government sources say.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Richard E. Bell, one of the negotiators, was scheduled to arrive here today "with no assurance that an agreement had been reached" for long-term grain sales, a senior Agriculture Department official said.

But White House Pres Secretary Ron Nessen said there had been no snag in the grain deal and that the U.S. team's chief negotiator, Undersecretary of State Charles Robinson, had left Moscow for another meeting in Paris.

Other sources said Wednesday night, however, that Robinson had remained in Moscow in hopes of putting final touches on at least an "agreement in principle" on both grain and oil.

The sources stressed that the dealings do not involve a barter of U.S. grain for Soviet oil and that the two are being considered as separate trade packages. The sources also indicated that formal agreements still could be some time off.

The sources indicated that if accords are worked out, announcements would come simultaneously from the White House and the Kremlin.

Meanwhile, President Ford is under pressure from farm groups and congressmen from rural areas to lift an embargo on grain sales to the Soviet Union. Ford announced Sept. 9 that the sales moratorium would remain in effect until after a new U.S. crop report in mid-October and to allow time for negotiating a long-term grain sales agreement.

The administration acted after concern was expressed by various labor groups and others that the exports would increase U.S. food prices by driving up grain prices.

The Agriculture Department will announce a new 1975 harvest estimate on Friday. It had been implied strongly that if record crops are still indicated — as they had been earlier by USDA — further sales to Russia could be permitted without undue stress on U.S. supplies.

The lid on grain sales was triggered in July when Russia bought 9.8 million metric tons (more than 2,200 pounds each) of grain from U.S. firms to help make up drought-shortened harvests of its own. Under threat of a ship-loading stoppage by maritime unions, Ford halted further sales to Russia.

Doctor Says Consumer Activists Stifle Heart Disease Research

DETROIT (AP) — One of the nation's pioneer heart surgeons says major breakthroughs in treating heart disease are being stifled by consumer activists whose threats of malpractice suits are frightening physicians.

Dr. Dwight Harken of Boston, here to deliver the keynote address to an international symposium on cardiac surgery, said in an interview Wednesday that the "well-intentioned and often good efforts" of many consumer advocates have frequently proved harmful.

"There has developed a public attitude that could kill creativity" in heart surgery, said Harken, the first surgeon to successfully remove shell fragments from the heart during World War II.

"Consumerism and overkill in demands for absolute safety have become so restrictive that many errors of omission may replace a few errors of commission.

"The public requirement that the practitioner be completely successful or be responsible in the courts is a devastating inroad.

"That any failure of a device or procedure may be penalized has stifled innovation, restricted industry and unfavorably affected the quality, distribution and cost of the delivery of health care."

Harken was the first physician to place a totally implantable pacemaker in the body and has developed heart valves, heart lung machines, instruments and surgical techniques for treating heart disease.

He said it is important that more doctors work to develop still better instruments and techniques, but the "popular growing wave of consumerism plus the epidemic of malpractice suits" now sweeping the medical community has caused hesitation among many would-be pioneers.

"We need a new era of public awareness that a doctor tries to give the patient something better than what he has," despite the fact that the effort may not always be successful, Harken said.

Harken suggested that binding arbitration is the most feasible solution to malpractice disputes.

Jelly Side Down

Facts Confuse Children

One of the basic troubles with children is that, while they never seem to tire of asking questions, they rarely listen to the answers.

Two years ago I found my son teetering precariously on the edge of the garage roof with six pigeon feathers taped to each arm.

"Come down from there THIS INSTANT!!!" I bellowed.

For the next hour I carefully explained the principles of flight, detailing the procedure by which an airplane's propeller sends air to the rear of the plane, creating a condition where there is greater pressure on the under-surface of the wings than there is on the upper surface.

"So you see," I concluded smugly, "a human being couldn't possibly fly with only six pigeon feathers taped to each arm."

I no sooner finished congratulating myself on having clarified the entire theory of flight with such an incredibly succinct explanation, than I saw him up on the garage roof again. With eight pigeon feathers taped to each arm.

Of course, the fault is not always with the child. Just as often, his question is misinterpreted.

You must have heard the story of the child who one evening demanded to know where he came from.

His father, shaken but rising admirably to the occasion, spent the next hour and a half explaining in patient detail the entire story of conception and birth.

"Gee," replied his son, clearly mystified. "Here I thought I came from Chicago."

Dear Abby

—By Abigail van Buren

Not All Hookers Women Of The Street

DEAR ABBY: I am a direct decendant of General Joseph Hooker, who served valiantly in the Civil War.

I do not know how my family name became a synonym for prostitute, whore or harlot, but I find it very offensive.

There are numerous other Hookers who are respectable, law-abiding citizens, and I am sure I speak for them when I say we Hookers are slandered by this commonly accepted immoral connotation.

I have two daughters and a son, and the girls especially have been embarrassed numerous times by people who have made jokes about their being a couple of "hookers."

My son is seriously considering changing his name because his fiancee doesn't want to be a "Hooker."

Am I overly sensitive? Or have I a point?

A PROUD HOOKER

DEAR PROUD: You have a point. Little can be done about thoughtless people who use your family name as a synonym for a woman of the streets, but I'll print your letter as a reminder. Also, if your son wants to change his name, it's his privilege.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Do You Belong To A Book Or Record Club?

Dear Heloise:

Here is a tip for subscribers to book and record clubs.

In a notebook, keep a record of the date you ordered, the price and the name of the article you ordered.

When the article comes, put the date received and the check number that you paid with.

This may sound like a little extra work, but I belong to two book clubs and it helps keep things straight for me.

If there are any questions, I have all the information right there instead of second guessing.

E. Becker

I belong to a record club and never have known how many more I need to buy or exactly what I have bought.

I am going to start a notebook right now and be just a little bit more organized.

A little bit more than nothing is a step in the right direction, right?

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

I got too old too soon — before I learned half as much as I read in your column.

Ethel B.

Dear Heloise:

Here is a hint that I would like to add to your column about shoelaces.

In lacing up the shoes, put the laces through the top holes and lace down to the bottom.

My little boy doesn't have any trouble in keeping his shoes tied now that he does it this way.

He even started a fad at school and now all the childern wear their laces "upside down."

Mrs. B.E. Jordan

I have done this for years on my desert boots and tennis shoes.

It does seem to help. I think that it must be because there is less pressure on the bottom of the foot.

National Folk Ballet Of Korea Scores In Midland

Midland Community Concerts Association's new season is just a week old, but already two-fifths of the way through. This is just another way of observing that two of the five attractions booked this season have already come and gone, which has got to be some kind of a record!

Now I didn't relish the thought of two MCCA events coming within six days of each other, and I doubt many Community Concerts members did, either, BUT (and this is the heart of the matter) if such doubling-up was necessary to accomodate the tour itinerary of the National Folk Ballet of Korea, in order to bring that fascinating troupe to town, then the tight schednle is worthwhile!

The troupe, better known as the "Little Angels of Korea," performed Wednesday night in Midland High auditorium, and what a performance it was! I think it must be regarded as one of the most dazzling presentations to be seen here in recent years, and undoubtedly it will go down as one of THE entertainment highlights of the whole 1975-76 season in Midland.

The name "Little Angels" can be slightly off-putting, perhaps calling to mind precocious little moppets doing some tender and "cute-sy" bits onstage. Well, be assured that while these are indeed children (and teenagers) they are not just precious darlings going through appealing little songs-and-dances. They are disciplined, intensely-rehearsed and virtually professional in their stage demeanor and stage responsibilities! Ranging in age from 8 to 15, these performers have the expertise, poise and assurance of pros twice their ages.

The troupe, now on its eighth transcontinental U.S. tour in a decade, provides outstanding examples of centuries-old Korean dances and entertainments (some amounting almost to masques), combined with elements of more contemporary folklore of the country. The performers are accompanied by a half-dozen musicians who form an "Aak," or court music orchestra, utilizing any number of exotic Korean instruments.

A Review

Bringing the whole tableau of sight-and-sound into the most exquisite focus are the costumes in the show. They are sumptuous and colorful, finely-detailed, stunningly eye-pleasing

Not a single segment of last night's program in Midland High auditorium was without its charm or special impact but among the most notable, to my way of thinking, were the gentle "Spring Time" segment, the "Wedding Day" tableau, the "Sword Dance," a charming "Doll Dance" and a colorful and visually-splendid "Flower Festival." On the lighter side were a fool-the-eye segment titled "Travey by Night," and the "Mask Dance," a charming little episode revolving around a not-very-ferocious lion.

Absolutely mesmerizing in its movement (and stunning in its beauty) was the "Fan Dance" segment, and amazing it was to see how the Oriental fan used in numbers can create so many illusory patterns. Some of the flower patterns created were breath-taking

The "Penitent Monk" segment, with each participating dancer working with six drums, called for, and got, virtuoso performances from each. The precision work was splendid.

A charming change-of-pace offering was the folk-singing number, with each participant plucking a Kayakum, an elongated stringed instrument, for accompaniment. The folksong had an interesting plaintive melody.

The grand finale of the evening was "Nong Oak" or the Farm Dance, and it was fine, utilizing the entire company in a four-segment tableau. Especially notable in the number was the work of a ribbon twirler, a sort of Korean equivalent to a Western rope-twirler. Talented and skilled, his routine brought down the house.

To conclude the first half of the program last night, children of the company presented a special salute to America's Bicentennial celebration. Organized and created on their own initiative, the children's offering was "The Toy Soldiers," utilizing John Philip Sousa's immortal "Stars and Stripes Forever." It was splendid!

To close the second half of the program, full company assembled onstage to present a special song-fest, with piano accompaniment, and what a delight it was! Imagine, if you will, Korean accents singing such songs as "Do Re Mi" from "The Sound of Music," "Get Me To the Church On Time" from "My Fair Lady," plus "The Yellow Rose of Texas" and "God Bless America," and you get an idea of the warmth that this happy, gentle, unspoiled troupe left behind when the curtains closed.

Only rarely do I feel that a standing ovation is really-and-truly due a performer, or group of performers. Wednesday night, I felt such tribute was overwhelmingly deserved by the "Little Angels" (a feeling obviously shared by the majority of the near-capacity audience) and we couldn't rise to our feet fast enough. They had won us completely!

Houston Theater Opens Season With 'Indians'

HOUSTON — The Alley Theatre, Houston's widely-known resident professional theater organization, will open its "Heritage Season" celebrating the nation's Bicentennial on Oct. 23.

Opening with Arthur Kopit's acclaimed play, "Indians," the seven-production, 36-week Heritage Season will call upon 31 actors— 21 newcomers to the Alley stage and 10 Alley veterans — to supply the wide spectrum of characterizations demanded by entertainment ranging from T. S. Eliot to Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur.

The Alley's 1975-76 resident company of performers brings to Texas a rich variety of theatrical experience that should provide a young, dynamic style for the theater's audiences. New company members were engaged following auditions in Los Angeles, Chicago, New York City and Houston.

Rejoining the Alley company after various periods of absence are a number of other players, including Lillian Evans, Haskell Fitz-Simons, Dale Helward, Margo McElroy, Tony Russel, David Wurst, Philip Davidson, Mimi Carr and Cristine Rose.

Following its Oct. 23 opening, "Indians" will have a month's run before the second offering of the season is unveiled on Nov. 30. It is " the late T. S. Eliot's famous verse play, "The Cocktail Party."

Other productions planned for the Alley's oncoming season include the Hecht-MacArthur comedy, "The Front Page," arriving at the Christmas season, and English playwright Harold Pinter's "Old Times," due in the spring. Other productions are to be announced

The season-opener, "Indians," is described as a saga of how the West was won— an electrifying and highly entertaining combination of Wild West Show, vaudeville and fun house.

'Fly American' On A USAF C-47

By JEAN THORAVAL
Agence France-Presse

HANOI—Now one can "Fly American" between Hanoi and Saigon—aboard U.S. Air Force C-47, C-130, DC-4 and C-119 planes left behind at airstrips in South Vietnam when the Americans pulled out last April.

Most of the aircraft are still in camouflage paint with Air Force registration numbers on the fuselage—although the USAF white star has been replaced with the yellow star of North and South Vietnam.

After a swift retraining course, Vietnamese military crews that had been flying Soviet-built planes are flying American-built ones as an air link between Saigon and Hanoi. North Vietnamese daily papers now reach Saigon in record time.

But although the American planes have official approval to enter North Vietnam, it is a different story for the thousands of Japanese mopeds and motorcycles left in the South after the collapse of the Thieu government and the takeover by the Communists last April.

Many are smuggled across the border with the connivance of canny truck drivers, but as soon as they reach Hanoi they are relentlessly confiscated by the police or customs for "registration"—which is unlikely to be forthcoming.

As for the cars that crowded Saigon, European four-door saloons and big American limousines, they can still be counted on the fingers of one hand in the streets of the northern capital.

'Anne' Enters Second Weekend

Midland Community Theatre takes its current attraction, "Anne of the Thousand Days," into the second weekend with performances tonight, Friday and Saturday nights, and Sunday afternoon.

The Maxwell Anderson drama of one of history's most famous love affairs opened at Theatre Centre last weekend. It is MCT's fifth major production of its 1975 season.

Because of the historical and dramatic significance of the play, MCT is offering special student rates on tickets for tonight's performance and for the matinee this coming Sunday.

Students may see either performance for $1 each, it was announced. In addition, school- or teacher-sponsored groups of students may attend these or any of the other performances in the schedule for the the same $1 rate. Arrangements for group attendance at a performance may be made through the theater office, 682-2544.

Tonight's performance will have an 8 o'clock curtain, while Friday and Saturday presentations will be at 8:30. The Sunday matinee will begin at 2:30.

The schedule presently calls for final performances of the drama on Oct. 11 and 12. Seats for all remaining presentations are available to MCT season members and to the general public by telephoning the box office. Tickets also are on sale at the theater one hour in advance of curtain time on each performance day.

Running Water Draw Art, Craft Festival Coming Up

PLAINVIEW — An art and crafts show with an intriguing title comes up here Oct. 17-19.

It is the Running Water Draw Art and Crafts Festival, deriving its name from a geographical landmark in this area.

The event, to be held in the Hale County Agricultural Center here, is an official American Revolution Bicentennial event in Plainview. As such, it will be an opportunity for exhibiting artists and craftspeople, as well as visitors, to share in a Bicentennial celebration of American art forms.

Southwestern art will be well-represented by the many displays of jewelry, painting and pottery. Gordon Suits of Amarillo will show both pottery and handmade stoneware, as well as original silver, coral and turquoise jewelry. Teri Sodd of Lubbock will exhibit crafts based on Indian traditions, including turquoise and feather jewelry. Dean Powell of Lubbock also will display silverwork of traditional and historical types, and Randall Sherrod of Amarillo will display bronze sculptures utilizing the "lost wax" technique.

American tradition crafts will include the dip-and-drape Bicentennial dolls shown by Betty Stephens and Jewell Hicks of Lubbock (dolls painted to represent Betsy Ross and other patriotic figures). Barbara McMurran of Plainview will shown pen-and-ink drawings and special Bicentennial plaques. Effie Kerr of Plainview will display fine needlework, while Kay Fleming of Lubbock will demonstrate the fine old art of "quilling," which is the use of shaped and glued, rolled paperwork to form decorative items. Gwen Reed of Lockney will be exhibiting her talents as a spinner and weaver.

These are only a few of the several dozens of artists and craftspeople who have reserved booth space for the big festival, which also will offer square dancing and other special entertainment during its two-day run. The festival is sponsored jointly by the Plainview Rotary Club and the Llano Estacado Museum, with assistance by many interested citizens in Plainview and throughout Hale County. Dr. C. Gwin Morris of the Wayland Baptist College faculty here has been in charge of preliminary planning and arrangements for the festival.

Army Proposes Baytown Flood Area Relocation

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers here has recommended the federal government undertake a $16.9 million program to relocate families in the flood-proned Brownwood area of Baytown.

The Brownwood area, which contains about 1,500 residents, has been one of the areas hit hardest by land subsidence. Land there has sunk as much as seven feet in the past 30 years.

A report issued by the corps said the government should buy Brownwood, which includes 450 homes, and turn it over to the city of Baytown.

The corps report said the relocation plan had been endorsed by 90 per cent of Brownwood residents in a petition presented to the corps.

'Learn Not To Burn'

A home fire in a rural area just outside Sapulpa, Okla., last Sunday took the lives of five children. You undoubtedly read the news story.

It certainly wasn't the kind of news recommended for launching the annual observance of Fire Prevention Week, was it?

It is hoped, however, that this horrible tragedy will influence persons across the width and breadth of the land to pay special attention to fire prevention measures which could save the lives of countless other youngsters.

It at least should tend to emphasize the real significance of Fire Prevention Week, and its objectives.

Sponsors of the nationwide observance urge everyone to make fire prevention a habit so that every week is Fire Prevention Week.

"Learn Not To Burn" is the slogan of the present observance. It is explained that knowing how not to burn literally can mean the difference between life and death, between a safe home and an unsafe one.

The slogan means learning to avoid starting a fire, whether through accident, carelessness, or just plain ignorance; and learning how to keep your environment fire-safe by not giving fire a place to start.

It also means learning how to save yourself if you, or your clothes should catch on fire, as well as learning how to escape quickly into the fresh air in case of fire where you live, work, study, play or just happen to be.

The National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) reports that in a single year in the United States an estimated 11,700 lives are lost in 2,694,000 fires costing $3.2 billion in property loss.

These certainly are not figures of which to boast. Rather, they should bring a sense of shame to every American, along with a determined desire to do something about it.

The figures can be reduced. They certainly should be reduced.

Men, women and children must become aware of the fact that most fires start because of carelessness in ordinary, everyday situations. Recognition of this fact by persons of all ages would reduce the figures significantly.

This, then, should be the goal of all citizens. It is the objective of Fire Prevention Week here and elsewhere across the nation. But everyone must help, if the goal is to be achieved.

It is said that fire's victims are children about 30 per cent of the time. Approximately 3,500 U.S. youngsters through age 15 perish from fires each year. This fact alone should be enough to interest a vast majority of the citizenry in fire prevention.

The real tragedy of this terrible toll is that most of these disasters could be prevented.

"The nation's fire loss record, in terms of both lives and property, can be substantially reduced if everyone seriously tries to develop fire-safe habits at home and on the job . . . if everyone acts as if every week were Fire Prevention Week," President Charles S. Morgan of NFPA said.

Midland has been more fortunate in fire losses this year than have been many other cities of similar size. In fact, the number of fires and the amount of property loss to date this year are considerably lower than in 1974. The Midland Fire Department, through August, reported 628 fires, compared with 754 during the same period last year. Insurance losses reported paid through August totaled $91,161, compared with $144,764 last year.

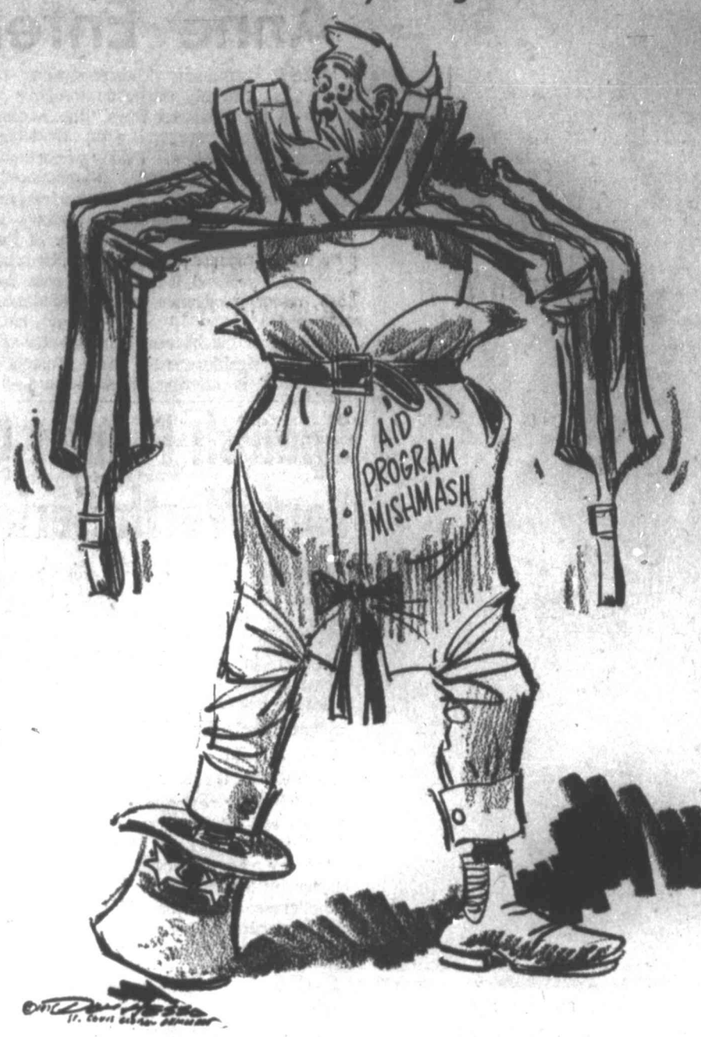

Fire Marshal Bill Tarver says, however, that this should not lull Midlanders into a false sense of security. He urged residents to continue to practice recommended measures as a means of establishing an even better record in the future. He said the Midland Fire Department will be glad to answer any and all questions on the subject.

Let's all join hands in making fire prevention a habit.

Hear This, Henry, No Defense For New York

WASHINGTON — "Mr. President, are you ready for this morning's briefing?"

"Yes, Henry, go ahead."

"Congress has just passed a bill making it possible for us to give arms to Turkey."

"Good. How much do you think we should give them?"

"Maybe $500 million to start with. Those bases mean a lot to us."

"It's a steal."

"We've just made a deal with Spain for aid and naval bases over the next five years."

"That's nice. What will it cost us?"

"I would say between six and seven hundred and fifty million dollars over the next five years. They wanted $2 billion in military aid, but we put our foot down."

"I'm glad you did. We can't throw money around."

"We hope to get the $2 billion for Israel and the $750 million for Egypt before the end of the congressional session."

"I should think so."

"We're getting a little resistance on the defense budget from Congress. We asked for $120 billion, but the House only wants to give us $111 billion."

"Dammit, don't they realize such reductions are a sure way to make us No. 2 in a world where only No. 1 counts?"

"I warned them about that, sir, but you know how they are on The Hill. They never think about being No. 1."

"I'm going to have to go out to some more Republican fund-rasing dinners and warn the American people that Congress is playing fast and loose with national security."

Art Buchwald

"I think you should, sir. The people want to see you, and they want to hear what you're up against."

"What else do you have to tell me?"

"The Treasury revised the U.S. deficit figures from $60 billion to $70 billion and possibly $90 billion at the rate we're borrowing money."

"Well, it can't be helped. We need a strong economy, and we can't do it with a balanced budget."

"There's one more thing. Mayor Beame is in the outer office to see you about a loan for New York City."

"That's ridiculous! How does he expect the United States to loan him any money?"

"He's offering you U.S. air and naval bases. He claims his are better than the ones we have in Turkey and Spain. He says he'll give you the Brooklyn Navy Yard, La Guardia Field and Staten Island on a long-term lease."

"That's outrageous! We're not going to finance Beame just because he has military bases we need."

"He also said he is willing to pull his troops back from the George Washington Bridge and out of the Lincoln Tunnel in exchange for $2 billion in aid."

"Beame thinks he can get out of his fiscal problems by scaring us with war with New Jersey. But it isn't going to work. If he gets away with it, we'll be blackmailed by every mayor in America."

"Exactly my feelings, sir. We can't play sugar daddy for every bankrupt city in the country."

"Right, Henry, we've got to draw the line somewhere. Is that it?"

"South Korea wants $750 million to beef up their defenses."

"Well, give it to them, for heaven's sakes. If we don't help our friends, who will?"

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By JACK ANDERSON
with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON—The House UnAmerican Activities Committee, whose witch hunts terrorized Washington in the 1940s, simply won't let go of the public purse strings.

This was the committee that made Richard Nixon, as a young Communist hunter, a national figure. But because of its irresponsible tactics, the committee became badly discredited.

At first, its members merely changed the name to the House Internal Security Committee and dressed it in sheep's clothes. But this didn't fool the public. So the House voted last January to disband the committee altogether.

Thus the committee disappeared, presto, from public view, unblessed and unmourned. But its staff and its files remained behind. The dethroned chairman, Richard Ichord, D-Mo., urged House Judiciary Chairman Peter Rodino, D-N.J., to absorb the entire staff into his own fold and to carry on the investigations.

After months of haggling, Rodino agreed to retain eight of the dispossessed subversive hunters. This will cost the taxpayers $140,244 a year.

But 30 other investigators, research analysts, secretaries and clerks remained on the congressional payroll until June 30. Most of them just hung around, looking sinister, at a cost to the taxpayers of another $236,296 in salaries.

HOFFA'S SUCCESSOR: While the search continues for the body of ex-Teamsters boss Jimmy Hoffa, his successor, Frank Fitzsimmons, is moving into a $270,000 home under the California sun.

Hoffa is believed to be a mobster victim. Fitzsimmons' new house reportedly was built by a company with

Jack Anderson

The La Costa Land Co., which contructed the Fitzsimmons hacienda, allegedly was established with mobster money. Title to the house was transferred to Fitzsimmons, according to our investigation, on July 10.

Although Fitzsimmons heads the nation's most powerful union, two subcontractors admitted to us they used non-union labor on his home. Another company used non-union labor in furnishing some of the concrete for the home.

Fitzsimmons has stated tht he wasn't sure whether he would purchase the house. But the architect's plans in our possession are marked "Fitzsimmons' home." The plans were drawn by the San Diego architectural firm of Paul Thoryk and Associates.

A spokesman for La Costa said he was unaware that non-union labor had been used. "All the people we do business with are union," he said. He said the use of non-union labor was a violation of the contract.

We spoke to several subcontractors who said they were paid by La Costa. The spokesman said Fitzsimmons paid La Costa for the home.

Footnote: We made repeated calls to Fitzsimmons' office for his comments. The calls were not returned. We also called hos lawyers who refused to discuss the La Costa project.

BAILING OUT BAILAR: Postmaster General Benjamin Bailar has made repeated trips to Capitol Hill to explain how frugal he is. But there is one sacrifice he is unwilling to make. He doesn't want to give up his big government limousine.

The House, under pressure from President Ford to cut government spending, obligingly has passed legislation that would require 800 government bigwigs to turn in their limousines for smaller, cheaper cars. Only a few top officials will be allowed to retain their present models.

Bailar happens to have a large, gleaming Mercury Marquis. Anything smaller, he feels, would not befit a person of his importance. So two of his aides slipped up to Capitol Hill last week and insisted that Bailar keep his Marquis.

"The postmaster general wants his limousine," they told aides of Rep. Mames Santini, D-Nev.

Bailar also wants to raise the price of stamps to help balance the postal budget.

Footnote: A Postal Service spokesman said the lobbying to save Bailar's limousine was done without his knowledge. The spokesman acknowledged, however, tnat Bailar thinks "any postmaster general should have such a car."

POLITICAL PRISONERS: The Moscow chapter of Amnesty International, a world wide group which keeps tabs on political prisoners, has itself been all but wiped out by Soviet secret police action.

In a private letter to Rep. Donald Fraser, D-Minn., the State Department said Amnesty's Andrei Tverdokhlebov, Sergei Kovalev and Mikola Rudenko have been charged with various political crimes.

The chapter chairman, Valentin Turchin "was interrogated by the police and has since been inactive in the organization." Another leader, Vladimir Albrehkt "has lost his job (and) other members have been interrogated...and their homes have been searched."

At least two members were under arrest as recently as a few days ago.

The Tough, Cruel World We Live In Today

WASHINGTON — As our government's innards are exposed by relentless investigations, we often forget what goes on in that tough, cruel world out there.

We fuss over the CIA's sin of opening people's mail, but what's that compared with the horrible torture still inflicted in many nations on those suspected of subverting the state?

Fred B. Morris, an American citizen, learned some lessons the painful way last fall in Recife, Brazil, when he suffered four days of torture by beatings and electric shock. His tormentors were secret police officers of the Brazilian army. The torture was stopped only after U.S. intervention at the highest level.

Now Brazil is best known to Americans as the booming nation, rich in resources, which accomplished an economic "miracle" about five years ago. Brazil also is known for its multiracial harmony and for its military government administered by social action technocrats.

Consequently, Brazil has been touted as a "comer" in the line-up of upward-bound nations, and its practice of systematic torture was pretty much overlooked.

But not by Morris, who, as a missionary of the United Methodist Church, arrived in Brazil in 1964 and became an activist in ecumenical activities with the Roman Catholic Church. He directed an urban community service center in Recife, which, because of its terrible poverty and health problems, is Brazil's No. 1 eyesore.

It was inevitable that Morris, in his zeal, would become a friend of Archbishop Helder Camara, an outspoken critic of the military government. "Who isn't against this regime?" Morris asks. Morris trafficked with people identified as "enemies" of the state and was warned by authorities to stop meddling in Brazil's internal affairs.

Then on Sept. 30, 1974, Morris was seized by security agents, along with a known subversive whom he was with at the time. What happened to them both is a nightmare Morris can't forget, and which his friend still suffers because he remains in prison.

Morris details the torture he went through in the current issue of Harper's. Stripped to his shorts, and shoved into a 7-by-4-foot cell, he was denied a U.S. citizen's right to see the U.S. consul. A hood was put over his head, so he couldn't see his torturers. He was beaten, kicked in the groin and told that his fiance soon would be arrested and tortured until Morris confessed of his work for Brazilian Communists.

According to Morris, one voice screamed at him, "Why does an s.o.b. American like you come down here to subvert our country? Your own country's gone to hell. You can't even keep your Presidents."

Then came the electric shock treatment, with the electrodes placed on various parts of his body. Morris writes that he repeated the 23rd Psalm to himself to find the strength. He needed it for "the worst shocks of all," those applied to his ear lobe ("I felt like the top of my head was actually going to burst.")

Morris was rescued from this agony by intervention of powerful and influential people back in the United States. He spent 13 more days in prison before being deported. Eventually, his fiance, now his second wife, was allowed to join him in the United States.

Morris portrays himself as an innocent victim of a cruel police state. The Brazilian government officially denies that he was mistreated and cites a long list of allegations that Morris met with subversives; served as their liason with Catholic clergy; allowed his home to be used as a meeting place for Communist agents, and worked to "tarnish the image of Brazil."

No question that Morris was an active person. Besides his ministry, he also pursued a business career — with the help of his future father-in-law. Morris' resume lists "extensive management experience in both profit and nonprofit activity" and the claim that he increased production in his firm by 120 per cent in three months.

Morris also filed news stories to AP and Time magazine and wrote for religious publications. His resume somehow omits his ministerial experience.

Since returning to the United States, Morris, now 41, has appeared on many radio and TV shows; sold an account of his ordeal to Time magazine (Nov. 18, 1974) and also to Harper's. He can't seem to forget it. People sympathetic to Morris arranged a temporary consultantship for him at the Library of Congress.

Those non-Brazilians familiar with the outrageous suffering Morris endured observe that he made himself vulnerable to being seized by engaging in "activism."

The bottom line here is that Brazil is only one of many "civilized" nations where torture survives as a means of political control, and that American citizens who choose to get deeply involved in internal affairs of such countries are asking for big trouble.

This is the kind of world we live in.

Damage Suit Filed In Uranium Hassle

FORT WORTH — Texas Utilities Services Inc., a subsidiary of Texas Utilities Co., announced that it had filed a suit against Westinghouse Electric Corp. in federal court in Dallas to require Westinghouse to furnish uranium at the price stipulated in an agreement dated May 11, 1973, or to pay damages in lieu of performance of its contract.

Texas Utilities is the parent firm of Texas Electric Service.

W. G. Marquardt, president of Texas Electric, said, "We contracted for this fuel well in advance and at a favorable price. Since Westinghouse has now informed us that they will not fulfill this contract, we find it necessary to file this suit to protect the interest of the people we serve."

Texas Utilities Services, as agent for Texas Electric, Dallas Power and Light Co. and Texas Power and Light Co. had entered into the agreement with Westinghouse to purchase uranium at prices substantially below today's market. This fuel would furnish the first two years' requirements for each of the two 1.15 million kilowatt generating units now under construction at the Comanche Peak Steam Electric Station near Glen Rose.

On Sept. 8, 1975, Westinghouse notified the company that it would not supply all the uranium at the contracted price because of substantial increases in the market price of uranium brought on by the world evergy crisis.

Pecos Gas Pool Gets Third Well

Mid-American Oil Co. has completed its No. 1 Effie Sibley, reentry project, as a third Devonian gas well and four-mile southwest extension to that pay in the Gomez field of Pecos County.

It gauged a calculated, absolute open flow of 1.27 million cubic feet of dry gas daily, through perforations at 19,178-19,560 feet, which had been acidized with 23,000 gallons.

It originally was drilled as an Ellenburger wildcat to 12,450 feet, and is plugged back to 20,000 feet.

Wellsite is 1,980 feet from north and west lines of section 76, block OW, TMRR survey, 12 miles northwest of Fort Stockton.

Reid Chosen New President

BIG SPRING — Clay Reid of Coahoma has been chosen president of the newly organized Howard County Chapter of the Texas Farmers Union.

Other officers named were R. C. Thomas, vice president, and Doris O. Ray, secretary-treasurer.

Guest speaker was Jay Naman of Waco, state president, who said he advocated working through politics for a national food and fiber program.

"If this fails, I would favor an international cartel of agricultural producers setting our prices like the oil companies do," he said.

Naman said the country is ready for a Farmers Union, and the group favors approval of the new state constitution.

Committee Approves Money Sharing For Coastal States

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee has approved a bill to give coastal states a share of offshore oil cash from federel leases off their shores.

The vote Wednesday was 14-8. The legislation must pass the full 31-member committee in order to reach the House.

Rep. John Breaux, D-La., a subcommittee member, said the action may be just a preliminary step, but it marks the high tide so far in a House push for a state share in offshore billions.

"I think there is agreement in the committee and in the House that the concept of sharing offshore revenue with coastal states is an idea whose time has come," he said.

A similar bill was introduced in the Senate but Breaux said the House subcommittee came up with a different formula for determining how much a state would get.

"Under the Senate formula, a state would have to have offshore production of at least 100,000 barrels a day to be eligible," he said."Louisiana is the only state that could qualify. That would be very difficult to sell, I think."

The subcommittee formula would set up a sliding scale of sharing based on six criteria which take into account the offshore acreage under lease, the number of people working in the industry and other factors. Any state with oil operations off its coast would be eligible.

Ten per cent of all lease income or royalties received by the federal government would go into the fund. Breaux said Gulf Coast states would share in about $584.6 million the first year.

Since Louisiana provides 92 per cent of all U.S. offshore oil production, the state would draw at least 75 per cent of the Gulf states share.

Under the bill, sharing would be to "lessen the adverse environmental effects and control the secondary social and economic impact" of offshore oil.

"An annual grant shall be used for construction of such public facilities and for provision of such public services that are required as a direct result of such energy activity," the bill states.

Lone Star Faces Daily $200 Fine

COOPER, Tex. (AP) — The Cooper City Council told its lawyer Tuesday night to take whatever action necessary against Lone Star Gas Co. after the company said it would not obey a recently-passed ordinance.

The city ordinance stipulates that utilities must have a serviceman-in-residence or face a $200 per day fine. The council passed the ordinance in an emergency session last week after Lone Star announced it was withdrawing Cooper's serviceman.

Lone Star took the action after the City Council tabled a company request for a rate increase. The gas company said it would send a serviceman from nearby Surphur Springs three days a week and during emergencies.

Lone Star District Manager J. M. Holland of Sulphur Springs delivered a letter Tuesday to the mayor and the city's lawyer, James Allison. Lone Star said in the letter it feels the ordinance is invalid.

Allison said Lone Star, rather than going to court, chose to violate the ordinance.

Allison told the council it could file a civil suit seeking an injunction against the gas company or bring criminal action against the company for violating the ordinance.

High Island Pipeline Price: $453 Million

HOUSTON (AP) — Cost estimates now exceed $453 million for proposed pipeline projects to transport natural gas from the Texas offshore High Island area.

United Gas Pipe Line Co. and Transco Companies, Inc., announced Wednesday that affiliates have applied to the Federal Power Commission for authority to build a $49 million system to link High Island production with onshore pipeline facilities.

United Gas, Transco, Texas Gas Transmission, and American Natural Gas announced plans Aug. 18 for a $343 million 200-mile High Island Offshore System.

Stingray Pipeline Co. announced plans Sept. 25 for a $61.9 million, 42-mile project to extend its Gulf of Mexico system into the High Island area.

The project announced Wednesday will be known as the U-T Offshore System and involves 30 miles of 42-diameter pipeline. It would link the High Island Offshore System with Transco's onshore facilities near Johnson's Bayou in Louisiana's Cameron Parish.

Initial capacity of the U-T system will be about 490 million cubic feet of gas per day. Additional compression, dehydration and separation equipment could boost the eventual capacity to about one billion cubic feet per day.

Rebels To Test Rugged Bobcats

By BOB DILLON

SAN ANGELO — The undefeated Midland Lee Rebels take on state-ranked San Angelo in a big District 5-4A showdown battle Friday night in Bobcat Stadium with a crowd of more than 10,000 expected to be on hand.

San Angelo took a narrow 9-7 victory over Abilene Cooper here last week while Lee stormed past Odessa High, 39-10 in 5-4A openers and this one points to another wild finish.

Central is sixth in one poll and ninth in another state ranking.

Lee and Central shared the title last year with the Rebels gaining the playoff spot by virtue of its 21-7 victory over the Bobcats in the Tall City.

Two years ago, Lee dropped a 16-14 decision to the Bobcats who were the No. 2 team in the state at that time. Lee, under the guidence of Jim Acree, posted a 38-26 win over Central in Midland in 1972, but the Concho Cats hold a big 11-3 edge in the overall series.

Its a big game for both the Bobcats and Rebels. A Central victory would put the Bobcats in the driver's seat, but a win by Lee, would enable Abilene Cooper to get back into the thick of things if the Cougars take care of OHS.

Central sports a 3-1 season record compared to Lee's 4-0 reading and that one loss was to Killeen, 27-18. The Bobcats are the 5-4A favorites, but Lee hopes to change that Friday night.

"This game will be a much bigger test for us, because they (Central) are so big in the line," said Acree. The Rebel coach feels like his team will be ready for an all-out effort Friday and likes the way his Rebs have been blocking and protecting the passer.

David Hobbs, 170-pound junior, will start at quarterback after his good showing in Odessa last week in which he hit five of seven passes for 85 yards. "Hobbs and Brad Wright will share the signal-calling duties against San Angelo," added Acree.

Joining Hobbs in the backfield will be hard-running Bobby Humble, a 205-pound junior at fullback along with the gifted Clyde Gary, 180-pound junior tailback and senior Rusty Laughlin, a 155-pounder, at the wingback slot.

Lee must stop the running of tailback Bill Woodard and the passing of Mickey Abbott. Both are juniors and outstanding athletes. Woodard has rushed for 225 yards in 59 carries for an average of 3.8 yards per carry while a Abbott has connected on 25 of 71 passes for 394 yards and three touchdowns. He has been intercepted four times, however.

The Bobcats have a balanced attack, rushing for 701 yards and an even 400 through the airways in four games.

Lee, meanwhile, has gained 677 via the infantry route and 280 through the air. Hobbs has hit nine of 16 passes for 148 yards and two touchdowns while Wright has connected on nine of 20 aerials for 102 yards and one TD.

Junior Miller, 6-6, 225-pound senior tight end, is the favorite target along with split receiver Robert Johnson, a 160-pound senior. Miller has latched on to nine passes for 137 yards and three TDs while Johnson has six catches for 56 yards. Steve Sledge, split end, has come on strongly in the past two games with three receptions for 44 yards.

San Angelo has the size up front on both offense and defense with 6-5, 240-pound senior Floyd DeWitt anchoring down the line. Jeff Hurd, 200-pound senior along with Lee Atkins, another 200-pound senior, give the Bobcats good size. Harold Ledet, a 220-pound senior joins Atkins, DeWitt and Hurd in the front four on defense.

Humble, who plays fullback on offense and tackle on defense, is the leading rusher with 187 yards in 39 carries for the Maroon Platoon while junior tailback Brian Crowell, who backs up Gary, has 101 yards in 21 carries and those yards have come in the last two games. Gary has 142 yards in 19 carries and like Crowell, has only played in two games after missing the Lubbock and Snyder contests.

Steers Always Give Bulldogs Difficult Time

BIG SPRING—"We're trying to prepare for Midland High and these Texas fans over here keep giving me a hard time about Saturday's OU-Texas game," complains Big Spring Coach Bob Burris.

"So I hauled out my red, National Championship shirt and started wearing it," said Burris, a former Oklahoma halfback. "Maybe that'll hush them up for a while."

Both Burris and his coaching foe Friday night, John Reddell, played on national championship football teams at OU back in the 1950's, but what's going on in Dallas this weekend is the least of their worries.

Both teams take 2-2 records into the game and are 0-1 in District 5-4A play.

"We are young," says Burris. "Of our top 35, only 12 are seniors. In fact, we are starting three sophomores."

Big Spring played three good games and then came last week's 34-6 loss to Abilene. "Abilene played real well and we played real bad. That's the sort of thing that can happen with a young team like ours."

The Steers got down 13 points quickly against the Eagles, "And we had to shuck our game plan and everything we'd been working on," said Burris, "in an attempt to catch up."

Injuries will be a factor for Big Spring this week. "We have several players hurt and although they might be available by Friday night, I hesitate to go with players who haven't been working out all week."

Fullback Jesse Doss, offensive guards Steve Ruiz and Rusty Phillips and linebacker Mark Stark are out. Earlier Big Spring lost linebacker Ricky Watkins with knee surgery, which means both 1974 starting linebackers are out.

In sizing up Midland, Burris points out "They are a lot like us in offensive and defensive size. They are one of the quickest and most aggressive teams we've seen and linebacker James Zachery is the best linebacker we've seen or will see all year."

Reds Are Confident

Tiant Faces Gullett Saturday

Reporter Telegram SPORTS

1B—THURSDAY, OCT 9, 1975

BOSTON (AP) — After stealing the National League pennant, the Cincinnati Reds are planning the biggest haul of all—the World Series.

The Cincinnati gang, which stole bases almost at will in a three-game NL playoff sweep of the Pittsburgh Pirates, prepared to hijack the rich world championship of baseball with a similar plan.

"We can steal, we can hit, we have the bullpen," says Pete Rose, brash ringleader of the National League champions. "We did everything against the Pirates. I don't see why we should stop now."

Although the Red Sox will have the advantage of the extra home game in this best-of-seven series, the Reds have been installed as slight favorites by virtue of their extravagantly successful season.

Led by Rose—alias the "Cincinnati Kid"—the Reds flashed through the National League West and knocked off 108 victories en route to the division pennant.

"This is the best team I've been on in my 13 years playing in Cincinnati," says Rose, who had 210 hits, including 47 doubles, a .317 batting average and 74 RBI in the leadoff position this year. "This is the most complete team. This team has the long ball, the defense, home run hitters, speed, good starting pitchers and the great bullpen."

Among the muscleboys on the Cincinnati club are Johnny Bench and Tony Perez, two right-handed hitters who'll no doubt have their batting eyes fixed on the friendly left field wall in Fenway called "The Green Monster."

Bench, possibly the best catcher in baseball, was bothered by a sore arm for most of the year but still managed to wallop 28 homers and bat in 110 runs. Perez, the first baseman almost traded by the Reds last winter, belted 20 homers and had 109 RBI. Second baseman Joe Morgan, another strong wheel on the "Big Red Machine" and possibly its most important cog, had his best season in 1975—a .327 batting average, 94 runs batted in and 67 steals.

Along with the lusty hitting and the gorgeous defense, the Reds have a pitching staff that includes Don Gullett, the opening day starter, Fred Norman and Gary Nolan and a bullpen anchored by Clay Carroll, one of the best in the game.

The Red Sox, who are starting unflappable Luis Tiant in the first game, know exactly what they have to do to beat the rugged National League kings.

Points out catcher Carlton Fisk: "You can't stop good baserunners. But if the pitchers do their job and keep them off the bases, that's how you stop them."

If Tiant pitches anywhere like he did in last week's American League playoffs against the Oakland A's, the Red Sox are in business. Boston's "old man" pitched a three-hitter against the three-time world champions, triggering the Red Sox to a shocking three-game sweep.

The Red Sox, in the World Series for the first time since 1967 and only the third time in owner Tom Yawkey's career in Boston, are a perfect blend of age and youth.

Canadiens Destroy Kings In NHL Opener By 9-0

By The Associated Press

The game had been billed as a forecast of the James Norris Division first-place race: the Los Angeles Kings against the Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League season opener for both clubs.

It was, in fact, a preview of things to come, there's trouble on the West Coast. The Canadiens destroyed the Kings 9-0, with four players scoring two goals apiece and goalie Ken Dryden stopping a Bart Crashley penalty shot.

All the scoring Wednesday night was by the Canadiens, who took a giant stride towards matching the league-leading 374 goals they collected last year. Jim Roberts, Guy Lafleur, Jacques Lemaire and Bob Gainey had two goals apiece for Montreal, and Yvan Cournoyer had the other for Montreal, which took 48 shots on Kings' goalie Rogatien Vachon and netted six shots in the third period.

Ten other clubs opened their NHL seasons Wednesday night, as the California Seals surprised the Atlanta Flames 4-3, the St. Louis Blues tied the Detroit Red Wings 1-1, the Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers tied 2-2, the Kansas City Scouts and New York Islanders tied 1-1, and the Vancouver Canucks edged the Minnesota North Stars 3-2.

Seals 4, Flames 3

The young Seals came back from a 3-1 deficit to beat Atlanta, which got two goals from Tom Lysiak and one from Curt Bennett.

Flames' Coach Fred Creighton was philosophical about the loss. "If we had won, it wouldn't have been the Stanley Cup; but we lost and it's not the end of the world."

Seals' scorers were rookie Ralph Klassen, Dave Gardner, Larry Patey and Bob Murdock.

Bill Lochead, sprawled on the ice five feet from the St. Louis goal, swept in a pass from Dan Maloney with 1:55 remaining to lift the Red Wings into their tie with the Blues.

An outstanding game by goalie Jim Rutherford kept Detroit, outshot 34-19, in contention until Lochead scored. Chuck Lefley had broken a scoreless tie at 3:05 of the third period.

The performance pleased new Wings' Coach Doug Barkley. "These players are giving that extra effort. It's something that's been lacking in Detroit for quite some time."

Black Hawks 2, Rangers 2

Fleet center Bobby Sheehan celebrated his return to the NHL with the goal that gave Chicago a 2-1 lead in the eventutl tie.

"He came to training camp, without a contract, to earn a spot on this hockey club. You've got to give him credit for that," said Coach Billy Reay of the Hawks, who obtained the rights to Sheehan three years ago, before he jumped to the World Hockey Association.

Scouts 1, Islanders 1

Referee Bob Myers disallowed an apparent goal by New York's Jude Drouin that would have put the Islanders ahead with 47 seconds to go. Myers ruled the puck had been knocked in with a high stick.

Of course, "It was a tough call, but it was great," according to Scouts' Coach Bep Guidolin. "The referee was right on the play."

"I'd like to see a replay," was all Drouin could say.

Guy Charron scored for Kansas City, Billy Harris for New York.

Canucks 3, Minnesota 2

The coaching debut of Ted Harris at Minnesota was ruined by a bad break when the stick of North Stars' goalie Cesare Maniago snapped in half just before Jerry O'Flaherty scored the game-winner.

It was Vancouver's first road victory against the Stars in nine games, going back to Jan. 8, 1972. The game was played before just 8,911 fans; the North Stars lost some 3,800 season ticket patrons through last season's dismal showing.

Don Lever and Dennis Ververgaert also tallied for last year's Smythe Division champs. Dennis Hextall and Lou Nanne counted for Minnesota.

Trinity Blanks Goddard B Team

Over the weekend, the Chargers lost a 14-8 decision to Cistercian Prep School in Irving, but came back with an 8-0 victory over Goddard's eighth grade B team Tuesday.

The victory Tnesday was the first one in 11 years for Trinity over Goddard. Trinity is now 3-2 on the year.

Stanton, Heard Gain Victories In Golf Matches

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Australian Bob Stanton and American Jerry Heard posted double victories Wednesday in the rain-marred $117,500 International All-Star golf matches.

Stanton will face Tom Weiskopf while Heard goes against Jack Nicklaus in Thursday's early semifinals.

Hometown favorites Weiskopf and Nicklaus were seeded into the semifinals in the unique, three-day event over the par-72, 7,000-yard Muirfield Village Memorial course.

The finals will be played late today with first prize of $25,000 on the line. The runner-up earns $15,000.

Stanton whipped Japanese Tsutomu Irie 3 and 1 after upsetting J. C. Snead 1-up in 19 holes. Heard's victories were over fellow Americans Eddie Pearce 1-up and Tom Kite 3 and 2.

Heard and Stanton both survived terrible starts to capture their third-round matches in consistent afternoon rain over the year-old course designed by Nicklaus.

Heard bogeyed the first hole to go 1 down to Kite, but won three of the next four holes to seize a 2-up lead. He was two over par for the 16 holes.

Stanton pulled his opening tee shot out of bounds and fell two holes behind Irie after six.

"That's when I went to my three wood, just put my drives in the fairways and shot for the greens," said the Australian. From that point on, Stanton displayed three-under-par golf.

Football Playoff Gets Opposition

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Representatives of at least four major conferences appear set to oppose formation of a long-awaited national collegiate football playoff for large schools.

But the president of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which announced Wednesday it will put the matter to a vote, says such opposition should be weighed.

"We, the members of the council, are merely forwarding the proposal for a vote by members of Division 1 (large schools)," said John A. Fuzak of Michigan State, president of the 707-member NCAA.

A breakdown of the vote among a 17-member football championship feasibility committee which recommended the playoff was declined by Fuzak, who is also chairman of the NCAA's policy-making council.

Prior to the Wednesday announcement, however, the AP learned that the tabulation was 8-4 for advancement of the proposal, with five committee members absent from a meeting last weekend.

The opposition to such a recommendation, it was learned, came from faculty representative Marcus L. Plant of Michigan, Big Ten Conference; athletic director J. D. Morgan of UCLA, Pac-8 Conference; Commissioner Boyd McWhorter of the Southeastern Conference and Alan Chapman of Rice, Southwest Conference.

Those in favor of advancing the proposal were said to include athletic director Ernest C. Casale of Temple, the feasibility committee chairman, and the Rev. Edmund P. Joyce, executive vice president of Notre Dame.

The January playoff would involve a two-team or four-team format.

A Near Upset

Upsets are the spice of football life. I relish them, and they occur nearly every weekend. The problem is trying to find upsets before they occur so you can be there to see it.

To be very frank, I was not looking forward to the prospect last Friday of seeing Andrews take on the third ranked Monahans Loboes in a District 2-AAA game. I even threatened to boycott the area circuit last week to see Permian and Midland High tangle. For once, I was glad I didn't.

As you know by now, Andrews did not defeat Monahans, but all that green that is worn in Estes Field every Friday night was turning pink before that game was over.

After seeing that game, there is no way I can cope with the fact that Andrews is 0-5 on the year. They held Monahans to a mere 84 yards rushing on the night, and this is a team that is ranked among the best in AAA circles.

Monahans scored 14 points in the final quarter to overcome a 21-10 deficit to win 24-21. There is a lot you can say about how Monahans came back to win it, but in the long run, Andrews just beat themselves with five fumbles. That could be the story in a nutshell for Andrews. It has happened all season. When the ball bounces on Friday night, you can bet it will go against the Mustang grain.

However, Andrews can hold their heads high after last Friday. It was a supreme effort by a winless ball club, and that kind of character deserves recognition.

I was 21-4 in the picking game last week and the season record stands at 109-35 for a .757 percentage. Let's look at this week.

Don't Listen To Joe

McCAMEY 30, STANTON 14 — Here's a promise to never listen to another sob story by Coach Joe Neill as the Badgers continue to roll. I'll be there Friday night.

ALPINE 20, REAGAN COUNTY 14 — This is predicting an end to the Owls' three game winning streak, but I'm tempted to pick the upset here.

KERMIT 10, ANDREWS 7 — I just don't think the Mustangs can be ready mentally for this one after last week's heartbreaker.

RANKIN 42, ROBERT LEE 18 — The Red Devils end non-conference play on an up note.

CRANE 34, VAN HORN 0 — The Cranes make up for losing to a Class A team last week with a slaughter.

LAKE VIEW 34, LAMESA 12 — The Chiefs are undefeated, Lamesa is winless. Enough said.

Permian Flexes Muscles In JV

Odessa Permian stands alone in junior varsity football action following its smashing 40-0 victory over the Midland High Bullpups last week in Odessa.

The Panthers sport a 4-0 record and appear to have their strongest JV outfit in recent years. While MHS was taking it on the chin to Permian, Lee eased past OHS, 18-10 while Cooper posted a wild 44-36 victory over the Snyder JV and Big Spring upended Abilene, 21-12.

Lee entertains San Angelo at 7 p.m. today in Memorial Stadium while earlier in the day, Midland travels to Big Spring for a 4:30 p.m. date with the Steers.

Ector Tries Seminole In AAA Tilt

By TERRY WILLIAMSON

Even though Districts 2-AAA and 3-AAA enter second week loop play Friday night where everything counts, two non-conference games highlight the area football schedule this week.

Two old rivals will tee it up at McCamey where the AA Badgers will host the Class A Stanton Buffaloes while highly regarded Alpine travels to Big Lake to take on the revitalized Reagan County Owls.

McCamey, picked by many to finish last in the upcoming 7-AA chase, has been the surprise team of the area with their respectable 4-1 record, including a 19-12 upset over Coahoma. Stanton has been up and down this year. The Buffs were beaten soundly in their opener against Tahoka before winning three straight. Last week they faltered again in a 27-6 loss to Wall. If the Buffs can come back as strong as they did after their first loss, this contest could be a real barn burner. McCamey is coming off a 42-0 victory over Van Horn, and the Badgers had scored only 48 points in four previous games.

Alpine and Reagan County both own 3-2 records. Alpine is favored to run away with the 8-AA title for the fourth year in a row, and their only losses have come to AAA teams, Kermit and Pecos. The Owls have recently ended a nine game losing streak and have since won three straight, including a big 25-7 win over AAA Lamesa.

The key matchup in 2-AAA this week will pit Odessa Ector against Seminole. It will be the district opener for undefeated Seminole and Ector already is 1-0 in loop play. Andrews and Kermit will battle in a survival battle, both owning a loop loss. Monahans plays Fort Stockton in the other meeting. Undefeated Pecos is open.

The biggest battle of all will come in District 3-AAA where Snyder travels to Lubbock to meet Estacado. Both teams are 1-0 in loop play, and the winner could be the district favorite. However, Lake View is undefeated this season and appears headed for a strong run at the 3-AAA crown. The Chiefs travel to Lamesa Friday. The Tors have yet to win a game this year and Lake View is expected to be 2-0 in district play after that encounter. Lamesa could vault back into the district race with a major upset. Lubbock Dunbar will play their district opener Friday against winless Sweetwater in a game that could be classified as unattractive.

In other area action, Crane's Golden Cranes, who suffered a 12-0 blanking by Mason last week, will try to rebound against a weak Van Horn squad. Crane was the preseason favorite to win 7-AA, but their prestige was hurt a bit in the loss to a Class A school.

The Rankin Red Devils, fresh off a 38-0 blanking of Class B Sanderson, will end non-conference play Friday when they travel to Robert Lee. Rankin appears headed for a rough district challenge from Iraan and Balmorhea in 6-A, where the Devils have owned the league for the past three years.

In other feature games, Iraan will take on Menard while Ozona battles a tough Brady team. Class A's top ranked team, Seagraves, takes on Sundown, a team among the top 10 Class B squads.

Don January Takes Lead In North Texas PGA Meet

DALLAS (AP) — Tour veteran Don January battled a 25-mile gusting wind to a standstill to shoot a two-under par 69 Wednesday and move into the lead of the $10,000 Northern Texas Section PGA championship at Irving's Las Colinas Country Club.

The former National PGA champ who returned to the tour on a full-time basis this year after being inactive for three years, had 35-34—69 for a 36-hole total of 141, two shots better than Ras Allen going into Thursday's third round. The tournament ends Friday with the winning card taking down $1,000.

January had three birdies and three pars on the front, then came home with birdies at the 10th and 13th, the latter on a 25-foot putt.

Allen shot two-over par to retain second place. Hot pro Rives McBee, leader after the first round with a 68, soared to a 10-over par 81 on the second round to drop eight strokes off the pace.

Beathard Joins Oakland Raiders

OAKLAND (AP) — Veteran quarterback Pete Beathard joined the Oakland Raiders Wednesday and Larry Lawrence, who had been the backup man to Ken Stabler, was placed on the National Football League's injured reserve list.

Coach John Madden said Lawrence would undergo surgery to repair a knee injury suffered Sunday at San Diego. He started the game in place of Stabler, who had a minor knee injury.

Beathard started the season with the Chicago Wind, a World Football League team which went out of business after a few games. He has played with several NFL teams, and Madden said, "We felt we had to get a veteran quarterback. We know what Pete can do."

Stabler played in the second half of the victory at San Diego and expects to be ready to start Sunday against the Kansas City Chiefs.

Chaps To Drill At MHS Tonight

Coach Chester Storey's Midland Chapparal basketball team will hold an intra-squad scrimmage at 7:30 p.m. in the Midland High School Gymnasium today.

Storey urges the public to attend with no charge to see what MC will offer on the hardwood this 1975-76 season. Storey has recruited players from the area and Kentucky and hopes to have a contender.

the 1967 Red Sox team, calls this year's edition the best Boston club he's ever seen. Third baseman Rico Petrocelli, the other veteran, agrees with Yaz. And so do a lot of Red Sox-watchers.

Yastrzemski, who played first base all season while the Red Sox were using rookie flash Jim Rice in left field, went back to the outfield for the playoffs after Rice suffered a broken hand in the homestretch of the divisional race. The former Golden Glove outfielder shows no nervousness over the quick switch.

"I can play left field in my sleep," says Boston's acknowleged team leader.

The Red Sox dethroned the A's with dispatch and won't be easy pickings for the Reds, despite the Reds' verbal thunder. The Red Sox are just as adept at defense and had the best hitting team in the American League this season, led by rookie Fred Lynn. The young centerfielder, a dazzling defensive player as well as a hitter, hit .331, whacked 21 homers and drove in 105 runs.

Cecil Cooper, a .311 hitter, replaces Yastrzemski at first base. The Red Sox also have a highly-efficient double play combination in second baseman Denny Doyle and shortstop Rick Burleson. Either Dwight Evans or Bernie Carbo, two more from the talent-deep Red Sox pool, will play right.

Behind Tiant, Boston Manager Darrell Johnson has Rick Wise, Reggie Cleveland and Bill Lee as starters and Dick Drago, among other hard throwers, in the bullpen.

OU-TEXAS DRILLS

Texas Stirred Up For Sooners

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Texas Coach Darrell Royal says that injuries have cut into Longhorn ranks so severely that halfback-fullback Joey Aboussie will suit up for the Oklahoma game even though he has worked out only once this fall.

"He has had no contact and only one day of practice," Royal told the Longhorn Club Wednesday. "We're going to be hurting if he's in there."

Texas, in effect, has only one fullback and one quarterback as Royal disclosed that second-team quarterback Ted Constanzo had twisted his knee against Utah State and "is not running well at all."

After Royal had recited a long list of injuries, a fan asked, "What's the good news?"

Royal appeared stirred up, too, and anxious to get back to preparation for Saturday's game at the Cotton Bowl in Dallas matching No. 2 Oklahoma and No. 5 Texas, both 4-0 this season.

He started his pregame report for club members before many of them had finished munching boxed lunches of fried chicken and sandwiches "to get back to work."

His week has been so busy with planning for Oklahoma, Royal indicated, that he had not even looked at the film of Texas' 61-7 thrashing of Utah State last Saturday, which he narrated for the club.

Royal said defensive end Travis Couch, offensive guard Will Wilcox and wide receiver Landry Minor—"are trying to force it, they want to get into the ball game" so badly, but "they will not play" against Oklahoma because of injuries.

"Everyone else is 100 per cent," said Royal, including fullback Earl Campbell, who bruised his knee two weeks ago, and halfback Jimmy Walker, whose blocking is a key to Texas' Wishbone-T offense.

Quarterback Marty Akins' "execution has been just beautiful," Royal said. "Watch how he runs up in this guy's face and pitches the ball back." The film showed Akins tossing a pitchout to halfback Gralyn Wyatt, who scored untouched on a wide sweep.

Royal fretted, however, over two long Utah State passes which rolled out of the receivers' hands as they hit the turf. "We're still commiting those errors," he said. "Two times the receiver was open, and they didn't make connections."

He also said Texas' goal line play on Utah State's two-yard touchdown run was "terrible. They're standing straight up and getting pushed back into the end zone."

Royal noted that Texas had fumbled 11 times this season but recovered nine. "We've been very, very lucky," said Royal.

Against Oklahoma, it should take much more than luck.

The black sheep of Canadian liquors.

Soft-spoken and smooth, Yukon Jack is unlike any Canadian spirit you've ever tasted. Its hundred-proof potency simmers just below the surface.
Straight, on the rocks or mixed, Yukon Jack is a taste born of hoary nights when lonely men struggle to keep their fires lit and their cabins warm.

Hearst Kidnap Called Retaliation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Members of the Symbionese Liberation Army kidnaped Patricia Hearst in retaliation for the arrest of two comrades in the murder of an Oakland school superintendent, according to an SLA document published in part by the San Francisco Examiner.

The newspaper, which did not say how it gained access to the material, printed lengthy excerpts from an SLA manuscript which explained the Feb. 4, 1974, kidnaping of Miss Hearst, whose father, Randolph A. Hearst, is president of the Examiner.

The manuscript was included in a variety of written material confiscated from the San Francisco apartment where SLA members Bill and Emily Harris were living when they were arrested on Sept. 18. Miss Hearst and artist Wendy Yoshimura were arrested later the same day at another apartment they shared here.

The manuscript quoted in the Examiner, apparently written by several SLA members, said the Hearst kidnaping was aimed at securing the release of SLA "soldiers" Russell Little and Joseph Remiro, who were arrested Jan. 10, 1974, for the slaying of Marcus Foster.

"We didn't have any doubt that the Hearst family could arrange for a release of Osceola (Little) and Bo (Remiro), but we needed to know whether the pressure of their daughter's kidnaping would be enough to put this power into operation," the manuscript said.

"We were f— p—off that the pigs had our two brothers and we all made a commitment at that time to come back strong. One of the objectives of the kidnaping was to test how much bargaining power we needed to get our comrades released."

Little and Remiro were convicted this year of the 1973 Foster slaying. They have been sentenced to life imprisonment.

The Examiner said the documents taken from the Harris apartment consisted of 175 to 200 pages of writings ranging from intellectual statements of revolutionary philosophy to coarse indictments of the establishment.

There were also personal histories of several SLA members and accounts of some major SLA actions, the newspaper said.

The only portion of the documents published by the Examiner was that dealing with the kidnaping of Miss Hearst. It said the SLA never directly demanded the release of Little and Remiro because Hearst's response to initial SLA demands made it apparent he would not influence authorities to free the pair.

The SLA had demanded that Hearst feed the poor people of California. He set up a $2-million food giveaway, but the SLA later denounced that effort as insincere.

In another development in the Hearst case Wednesday, 14 prosecutors who believe they have cases involving the SLA met to discuss what a source called "the order of battle" in trying their cases.

Prosecutors in Los Angeles and San Francisco are vying for the opportunity to try Miss Hearst first. She faces federal bank robbery charges in San Francisco and state kidnap, robbery and assault charges along with the Harrises in Los Angeles.

The source said Los Angeles prosecutors want to try Miss Hearst and the Harrises together to save the expense of two separate trials.

Wang Retains Power As Third Ranking Chinese

TOKYO (AP) — Peking's official Hsinhua news agency today listed Wang Hung-wen of Shanghai in his customary third position in the Chinese party hierarchy, in the wake of speculation he might be slipping in favor.

The 38-year-old protege of Mao Tse-tung's wife was listed after Mao and Premier Chou En-lai among those who presented wreaths at a memorial service for the late Chou Hsing, 70, a Yunnan political leader.

Questions about Wang's hold on power were raised following a two-month absence from the public eye. He did not attend the Oct. 1 anniversary ceremonies in Peking but did appear in Shanghai.

Public Meetings Scheduled On Pine Springs Area Plans

CARLSBAD, N.M. —National Park Service officials will hold two public meetings to receive and review comments on alternative development plans and accompanying assessments for the Pine Springs Canyon area of Guadalupe Mountains National Park.

The first meeting will be at 7 p.m. Nov. 5 at the Rodeway Inn, 3804 National Parks Highway in Carlsbad, N.M. The second meeting will be at 7 p.m. Nov. 6 at the Howard Johnson's Motor Lodge, 8887 Gateway West (at the Hawkins Road exit on IH 10), El Paso.

Both oral and written comments will be accepted on the alternative development plan assessments. Those wishing to make oral statements should notify the Superintendent of Carlsbad Caverns and Guadalupe Mountains National Parks at 3225 National Parks Highway in Carlsbad, N.M. 88220 before the first meeting; written comments will be accepted for 30 days after the meetings.

Representatives of governmental agencies, conservation and travel organizations, area chambers of commerce and interested individuals concerned about the future use and development of Guadalupe Mountains National Park are urged to attend the meetings.

Copies of the draft environmental assessment on the development plan alternatives are available at the National Park Service office in Carlsbad, the Chamizal National Memorial office in El Paso and the Southwest Regional Office of the National Park Service in Santa Fe. Copies are available for inspection at the Carlsbad Caverns National Park Visitor Center and the Frijole Guadalupe Mountains National Park.

Kissinger Proposes Significant Korean Conference

By EDWARD NEILAN
Copley News Service

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's proposal for a conference on Korea to be attended by North and South Korea, the People's Republic of China and the United States is significant on several counts.

The overlooked importance of the move is that it is the very first Asian initiative put forward by the United States since the loss of Indochina.

For all the expressed inclination to sweep that experience under the rug, it simply cannot be done.

Every capital in Asia has been waiting to see what statements, gestures or actions the United States would take in the aftermath of the disasters in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia.

All that talk about the United States "living up to our commitments" in Asia did not carry much weight.

On the other hand, Kissinger's positive proposal on a movement toward easing tensions in Korea did have impact among Asian diplomats.

Such a four-party conference, Kissinger said, could explore the possibilities of a larger conference that might include the Soviet Union and Japan "to negotiate a more fundamental arrangement."

The U.S. initiative also served a purpose by reiterating before the world body just what is the issue on the Korean peninsula today.

While the tough domestic practices of the Seoul government in the South have been getting headlines along with calls for removal of the 40,000 U.S. troops stationed there, those are not the basic issues.

The crux of the matter in Korea is whether there should be one or two Koreas.

South Korea would like to formalize the division of the peninsula on the model of East Germany and West Germany.

North Korea wants a one-Korea solution and will only settle for unification on its own terms (communism).

The United States supports South Korea actively. Japan could be said to support this position also, if somewhat less forcefully.

North Korea's chief backers are the People's Republic of China and the Soviet Union.

Dreams—If You Make The Most Of Them You Might Even Get High

By LEW SCARR
Copley News Service

You say you don't dream? Nonsense. We all do, about two hours every night, about 20 minutes per dream, and if we're smart we'll make the most of them.

That from Dr. Joseph Katz, one of the nation's leading authorities on dreaming, who says:

"Personally, I could never see getting high on drugs. To me my high is a wild dream."

Katz doesn't recommend that everyone should be turned on by his own dreams, but he does suggest that we review them more carefully in order to learn more from them.

"I think it is a mistake to go into deep, intellectual, mythological interpretations," Katz said in an interview, "but we all can get a bit of an emotional message from each dream."

Katz, a faculty member of the National Psychological Association for Psychoanalysis and, author of "Dreams Are Your Truest Friends," said dreams may indicate intelligence but may also be misleading in that regard.

"I have received some very creative, unusual, deeply involved dreams from seemingly simple, uneducated people," he said.

On the other hand, Katz said he has confidential access to some of Albert Einstein's dreams which he said he is not at liberty to make public.

"But I was amazed at how banal his dreams were.

"They were simple, everyday dreams giving no inkling at all that we are dealing with probably the greatest genius who ever lived."

Some people can slop a dream in midstream if it appears as if it will turn out to be unpleasant. Katz said that is a common and good thing to be able to do.

Dreaming in color?

"More and more people are dreaming in color, perhaps because of color TV. Women dream more in color than men perhaps because they have more accessibility to their feelings and are more emotional.

"I think it is a mistake try to think that we can analyze all dreams. Some are unfathomable and we have to accept that."

Low Drag, Low Power May Be Answer To Jet Noise

By ANDREW WILSON
The Observer, London

LONDON—A bright ray of hope for millions of people who suffer from jet noise near airports has come from the German airline Lufthansa.

Five years ago a small group of Lufthansa pilots, helped by others from British Airways, Pan American and Swissair, developed at Frankfurt, a new technique for noise abatement known as "low drag, low power." The method won approval from the International Air Transport Association, which recommended it to other airlines, and from the International Civil Aviation Organization, which relayed details to numerous governments.

"Low power, low drag" is a landing technique. What it means is a change in the method of handling the aircraft in the vital minutes when speed is brought down from the high-level approach speed to the relatively low speed required for touchdown.

The old method—still practiced by many airlines and enforced by air traffic control at many airports—was to fully extend landing flaps and put down landing gear at 3,000 feet and about 12 miles from the runway.

Because of the "drag" thus set up, it was necessary to apply more power, and thus create more noise, adding to the misery of those living near or beneath the flight path.

In the Lufthansa system, the plane approaches the airport faster, enabling it to be flown "clean" (without extended gear and flaps) to a point close to the runway where an intermediate flap setting is used to slow it down.

Its approach up to this point has been made almost without power and therefore with minimum noise.

Depending on weather conditions, the loaded weight and other factors, the final application of full landing power, to compensate for the then extended flaps and wheels, can be held off until something like 40 or 50 seconds before touchdown.

At this point the plane will in most cases have passed over any residential settlement and so avoid creating a community nuisance.

Study Says Regulation Boosts Milk Price 20 Cents A Gallon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's anti-inflation agency is studying dairy industry prices after an economic analysis concluded that government regulation boosts milk prices by about 10 cents a half gallon.

The Council on Wage and Price Stability hasn't made up its mind yet about the validity of the analysis, which started as an economist's doctoral dissertation. Indeed, the Agriculture Department, which the analysis blamed primarily for the higher prices, has attacked the conclusions as based on false premises.

But Michael H. Moskow, the new director of the inflation-monitoring wage and price council, said in an interview Wednesday the agency has initiated a review of milk prices because milk is such an important product for American consumers.

The economic analysis found that the actual price for a half-gallon of milk in 38 of the 56 federal marketing areas during 1960 was 42.8 cents. The study estimated that with no regulation at all the price would have been 39.4 cents.

In those areas in 1970, milk cost 57.8 cents a half-gallon, but would have been 47.4 cents without price regulations, the analysis said.

Moskow said, "It is a very controversial issue. Once we have a better idea what the evidence shows, then I think we can see whether any policy action is appropriate."

The council can hold hearings on subjects and subpoena evidence. It has no power to order price rollbacks or changes in regulation, although its composition of top economic specialists gives it considerable political influence.

MOSKOW SAID the council is looking at federal and state regulations dealing with milk prices as well as the entire dairy industry.

One of the recent studies which attracted the council's interest was by John E. Kwoka Jr. He studied federal milk marketing orders while working toward his doctorate at the University of Pennsylvania and refined the study while assistant professor of economics at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill. He recently went to work in the Bureau of Economics at the Federal Trade Commission.

Under federal milk marketing orders, the Department of Agriculture sets the minimum prices which farmers must receive for the milk they produce, according to whether it's finally used as table milk, cheese or dried milk.

The federal regulations, which amount to a floor under prices, now cover the 56 marketing areas around major metropolitan centers. Those marketing areas cover about 70 per cent of the nation's population.

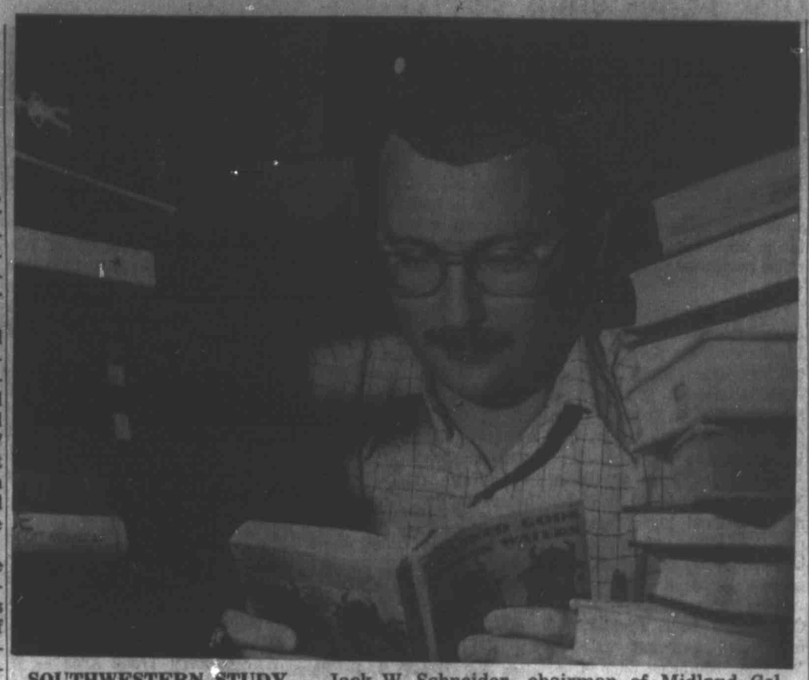

Kwoka's analysis attempted to construct a price for milk assuming there was no regulation. Although his study did not specifically deal with retail price regulations in the 17 states with the authority to set such prices, Kwoka said in an interview his findings could fairly be applied to both state and federal regulations.

Kwoka said the effect of the federal regulation is to preserve inefficient milk producers while blocking expansion of market power by the most efficient milk producers, primarily those in the Minnesota-Wisconsin area.

ALEXANDRIA, La. (AP) — One of the biggest livestock auction barns in Louisiana caught fire Wednesday night and the flames killed 10 cows.

About 40 firefighters battled the blaze at Dominique's Auction Barn, bringing it under control an hour after it was reported at 9:30 p.m.

Hirohito Proves Loyal Mouseketeer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Japanese Emperor Hirohito fulfilled a "long cherished desire" in a daylong visit here, eating California avocados amid mariachi music and shaking hands with two of his favorite personalities, John Wayne and Mickey Mouse.

The emperor was scheduled to fly to San Diego today for a tour of the city's acclaimed zoo and to visit the Scripps Institute of Oceanography in nearby La Jolla. He flies to San Francisco late in the day for his next-to-last stop on a 15-day U.S. tour.

The emperor's plane circled the Grand Canyon briefly before arriving here from Chicago on Wednesday, and he later rode a tiny steam-engine train through a Disneyland exhibit showing the evolution of the national landmark.

The 74-year-old emperor and Empress Nagako were greated at the amusement park gate Wednesday by Mickey Mouse and the Seven Dwarfs, then were seated on wrought-iron chairs for a command performance of the park's musical salute to the Bicentennial, America on Parade.

Hirohito and his wife earlier were hosted by Mayor Tom Bradley and other state and local officials, including Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., at a lavish luncheon in the downtown Music Center.

The lunch included filet mignon and California wines, and Hirohito's interest was piqued by the avocados in his salad and the music of a Mexican mariachi band in the hall. He toasted the mayor and citizens of Los Angeles before stopping briefly to chat with actors John Wayne and Charlton Heston on the way out.

Hirohito is a Wayne fan and had met Heston some years ago in Tokyo during the Japanese premiere of the movie "Ben-Hur," the emperor's news secretary said.

The emperor ended his day by dining with members of the Japanese-American community.

Roberts Daughter To Get $135,000

DALLAS (AP) — Heirs to the estate of missing Dallas investor Robert L. Roberts have agreed to an out of court settlement of $135,000 with the Roberts daughter who had been left $1 in his will.

Mrs. Yvonne Davison of Detroit, Mich., had contested the validity of the will which became public after the elderly Roberts and a companion, Jessie Forstye disappeared in 1970.

Roberts later was declared officially dead.

Panel Proposes Eliminating Deduction For State Gas Taxes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some motorists may no longer be able to deduct state gasoline taxes from their federal taxes if Congress approves a proposal by the House Ways and Means Committee.

The committee met Wednesday to consider a plan designed to simplify tax returns. The plan would have granted a $1.3 billion tax reduction to the millions of Americans who itemize deductions each year.

But by the time the meeting was over, the committee had turned the proposed tax cut into a $575 million tax increase.

Committee members were considering a new "simplification deduction" which would substitute a lump-sum figure for miscellaneous deductions listed on itemized tax forms. But they voted 17 to 6 to repeal the nonbusiness itemized deduction that allows taxpayers to write off the state tax they pay on gasoline.

"The gasoline tax deduction may be considered inconsistent with the national energy policy. The deduction lowers the price of gasoline for taxpayers who itemize deductions," the panel was told by its staff tax experts, who estimated that eliminating the deduction could reduce gasoline consumption by 60,000 barrels of oil daily.

The gasoline tax deduction was included in a package proposal for ending or changing miscellaneous itemized deductions and replacing them with a lump-sum itemized deduction of up to $650.

As many as 27 million Americans normally itemize deductions rather than simply taking the standard deduction. Repeal of the nonbusiness gasoline tax deduction, if approved by Congress, would take effect Jan. 1, 1976.

3 Spanish Army Officers Charged With Sedition

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — Police investigating sedition in the military have arrested three army officers, well-informed sources reported today.

The three were arrested Wednesday night in this city on Spain's northeastern Mediterranean coast, where police have been battling a terrorist offensive for seven months.

They were the first military arrests since police discovered an underground cell of dissident army officers in Madrid two months ago and arrested nine officers on sedition charges.

Those arrested Wednesday were identified as artillery Maj. Enrique Lopez-Amor, Capt. Juan Diego Garcia and Capt. Arturo Gurrearan Granados. All are known for their liberal views and were named last August in papers filed against the nine.

Informed sources said Lopez-Amor had been recalled from duty at Tenerife in the Canary Islands within the last 48 hours. They said he was a prominent figure at a clandestine meeting of dissidents in Barcelona last February.

Reports of the new army crackdown came hours after terrorist violence claimed yet another life. Nine policemen and four civilians now have been killed in the nine days since five terrorists were executed.

The latest victim was a young policeman wounded in a terrorist attack in Madrid Oct. 1 as Gen. Francisco Franco celebrated the 39th anniversary of his rise to power. Three other policemen were killed the same day.

Earlier Wednesday, policemen killed five innocent people — including two of their own men — moments after a hail of submachine-gun bullets from a passing small, white car hit no one in a police barracks in the working class district of La Verneda.

Moments later, a second white car approached, followed by a police jeep, and authorities said jumpy guards blazed away.

A Spanish official said the only possible consolation in the accidental killing "is that this may cool the boisterousness of the police."

The official, who spoke privately and declined to be identified, called the latest killings "a terrible mistake."

Jury Convicts Security Guard In Fatal Shooting

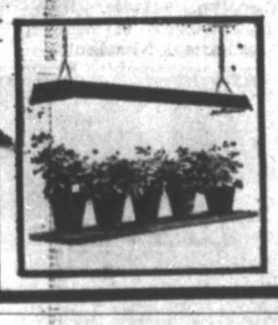

DALLAS (AP) — Punishment arguments were scheduled today in the trial of a Dallas security guard convicted of involuntary manslaughter for the fatal shooting of a 16-year old shoplifting suspect last summer.

Gene Guinn, 43, faces two to 10 years imprisonment and a fine of up to $5,000 for the conviction as possible penalties.

The jury in state district court here Wednesday deliberated 2½ hours before returning the guilty verdict against Guinn.

Since January 1975, these people have been working 7 days a week, on 3 shifts, to make lids for home canning jars.

That's how hard we've been trying at Ball to meet the demand.

Ball has increased production of replacement lids by 30% over last year because of the effort these people have given.

Even so, some people haven't been able to buy enough lids.

If you have any extra lids, won't you please share them with your neighbor.

Taking Containership Through Frisco Bay Not An Easy Task

By MIKE DAUGHERTY
Copley News Service

The containership crept through the early morning darkness toward the Golden Gate Bridge at the entrance of San Francisco Bay.

Seven stories up—inside the bridge control room of the SS President Jefferson — the atmosphere was tense.

Capt. C.E. Gedney, master of the 668-foot American President Lines containership, had taken the vessel through the bay more times than he could remember but that didn't put him at ease.

As light showed on the horizon and began filtering through the dim room, Gedney said entering the bay is always difficult due to its strong currents emptying into the open sea and the constant presence of fog.

The 20,208-ton vessel slowed to pick up a San Francisco bar pilot—an expert on whom Gedney would rely to bring the ship safely to the Port of Oakland.

Meanwhile, some of the 42 crew members—those not on duty—slept while others were preparing for the Oakland arrival which would mean liberty for some and going home for others.

The President Jefferson was on the final leg of an 81-day Far East voyage carrying containers loaded with imports and exports bound for almost every part of the world.

Capt. Arthur Avers, a bar pilot, barked orders to the second mate and helmsman for adjustments in speed and steering as the ship passed beneath the majestic Golden Gate Bridge.

A pilot boat eased alongside the containership at the entrance of the Port of Oakland as a new port pilot boarded the ship and Avers got off.

Gedney ordered the second mate to wake up the chief and third mates for a 6 a.m. duty call. They would be needed to stand watch as the vessel docked.

Capt. John Wilson, the Oakland port pilot, mastered the ship through the main channel as it approached the APL dock where a land crew waited to tie up the ship.

The atmosphere became tense again as Wilson turned the Jefferson 180 degrees in the narrow channel, sometimes with only a 100 foot clearance.

Through a walkie-talkie, Gedney monitored the movements through frequent bow and stern clearances from the chief and third mates.

The vessel was docked—the voyage was over. Gedney ordered the main engines shut down silencing the bridge and engine rooms.

Almost simultaneously the ship and the docks were overcome with longshoremen, port union agents, customs and APL representatives—all who would take part in preparing the vessel for another 81-day voyage beginning the next day.

The adversary on a containership is time.

"It costs $16,000 a day or $700 an hour to operate this ship," Gedney said. "I'm constantly aware of that."

His records showed 61 days were spent at sea while much of the remaining time was spent in 12-hour increments loading and unloading.

Very few days were spent at ports.

When the ship arrived at the Port of Los Angeles, it was scheduled to load and unload containers in about 20 hours before sailing for Oakland.

But the departure time had changed several times, extending the port stay so the ship could take on fuel and additional containers.

The ship was loaded by longshoremen based on a computer preplan compiled in the APL headquarters in Oakland.

After more than 25 hours in port, Gedney and the rest of his crew appeared anxious to get under way.

"It always seems to be more intense when you are on the final leg of the voyage," he said.

"Many of the men, myself, are going home once we get to Oakland."

Almost immediately, when the last container was tied down, Gedney gave orders to get the ship under way.

As the huge containership headed north, slicing through the calm waters, Gedney spotted a southbound foreign tanker traveling in the wrong traffic lane.

He ordered the second mate to adjust the course so the Jefferson would travel outside the lanes until they had passed the tanker.

Gedney said bridge officers must keep a constant watch for other vessels, especially pleasure craft.

"Even though the shipping lanes are set aside for commercial vessels, a lot of pleasure craft do not keep clear of the lanes," he said.

When it appeared the containership was on course, Gedney left the bridge for his office and quarters one deck below to catch up on some paperwork and get some rest.

Work on board a ship such as the Jefferson is systematic.

Most of the crew, with the cooks and stewards an exception, are assigned to four hours' duty with eight hours off, and so on.

During most of the voyage, the off-duty crewmen usually stay in their quarters or in their respective recreational rooms.

Several crew members said the biggest problem on a ship is fighting the monotony. And there aren't many things to do on a ship but sleep and read.

Life for most crew members on the Jefferson did not change day or night.

Bridge officers at night, however, must be extra careful because of limited visibility. Instead of watching through binoculars, the officer in charge usually keeps a fixed watch on the ship's radars.

The bridge is kept dark in order to see any outside lights.

Throughout the night, the Jefferson pitched through heavy swells and relative winds up to 70 miles an hour—a ride in which any newcomer would find it hard to sleep.

When the Jefferson was loaded in Oakland, she began a new voyage to Taiwan, the Phillipine Islands, Singapore, Malaysia, Hong Kong and heading back through Japan and Los Angeles.

Obese Women More Likely To Get Cancer

By C. G. McDANIEL

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Women who were obese as teenagers have a higher chance of developing cancer which affects the lining of the uterus, researchers at the Medical College of Wisconsin have found.

Those who were obese both as teen-agers and as adults have an even greater chance of developing such a cancer, they say.

However, researchers said they found no association between being overweight and development of other cancers, although obese persons are more prone to develop some other diseases than persons of normal weight.

One theory about the origin of the cancer suggests that it is associated with the long-term presence of hormones in tissues.

Obesity induces a consistent presence of low-level estrogens stored in fat cells and thus might stimulate the development of cancer in the genital area, if the theory is correct, according to Dr. Alfred A. Rimm, associate professor of preventive medicine.

Rimm and colleagues at the college studied 56,111 women who were members of a weight-reduction club, which has funded research at the college on obesity problems.

Rimm reports in a study to be published in January in Preventive Medicine that women who were obese as teen-agers have a 62 per cent greater chance of developing endometrial cancer than those who had normal weight as teen-agers.

Women who were obese in adolescence and are obese now had a 75 per cent greater risk, he found in a statistical analysis.

Lumber, Fish Put Village On Map

By ARTHUR RIBBEL
Copley News Service

NOYO, Calif. — Lumber, in an age long ago, put this little village on the map of California and fish helped it to stay there.

Worn and beaten beams and boards on California relic houses from the 1860s and 1870s may have come from a Noyo mill. The salmon steak you savor at a San Francisco restaurant may have been caught in Noyo waters and shipped from a Noyo processing plant.

The 35-mile Noyo River and the harbor at its mouth, down from the tree-mantled hills, have poured the plasma of cash into the economy of Mendocino County.

Even during prohibition, rum runners would slide into the narrow channel and unload their expensive contraband and start other dollars running at Noyo. The tiniest of bays and harbors along the California coast were not spared the dark commerce of the booze boats during those rousing bootleg years.

Salmon is king here now, but around 1939 and for a period afterward the despised shark was the prize of the deep. His liver yielded an oil which is rich in vitamins A and D and brought up to $12 a pound on the market. Now those vitamins are made synthetically.

Tourists, their eyes alight with visions of hauling in big kings (king salmon) hand over fist until their muscles ached and the deck was agleam with prizes, flock here each summer for the sport.

When the word reaches the docks that the "kings" are running, a veritable armada of boats of all sizes and style, which are moored in the Noyo Basin, gear for action and chug-chug out to sea.

If you bring your caught salmon to Shirley Stribling he'll can it for you at his cannery and put your name on the cans. Then you can take them home and display to your skeptical pals solid pack proof of your victory at sea.

(Is there anyone who doesn't like his own canned salmon?)

If you've priced fresh salmon in the fish markets ($2.25 a pound fillet at one market; $2 otherwise for some, or some canned salmon for $1.89 for a seven-and-three-fourths-ounce-can) you can measure the eagerness of the fisherfolk to hook generously on to the kings and "silvers" (silver salmon).

Jim Tennison, a commercial fisherman at Noyo, said at a dockside interview, that the cost of fishing also has skyrocketed. It now costs a sport fisherman $20 for a half-day on a chartered boat carrying from six to eight persons, he said. The cost of gear is up 40 per cent; bait (anchovies and herring) up 10 cents to 85 cents a dozen; diesel fuel up to 40 cents a gallon; and increased insurance costs, to name a few inflated costs, according to Tennison. His boat is the Aquila, a 48-foot steel craft.

"There are more fishermen now and less fish," he observed. He said he gets $1.10 a pound for king salmon. Writers of the old days said big salmon from the river sold for 25 cents each. Silver salmon were so plentiful a single seine haul would bring up 500 of them. The old boys could catch 40 or 50 king salmon from a rowboat, using only a lure consisting of a hook attached to a kitchen spoon.

Above the channel which leads to the open sea is the Lt. Charles Larson Bridge, named after a World War II hero and rugged bluffs flank the waterway, but many brethren of the salmon don't see all this so busy are they girding for the kings.

The talk in the village is salmon, salmon, salmon and the amateur sports fisherman who comes ashore loaded with fish wears a smug look, fancies himself a hero of the wharf, a man filled with triumph and achievement, be he tycoon or be he bum. Some have the covert looks of veteran Ike Waltons who think they've found a great fishing hole and don't intend telling anybody where it is.

The nautical and piscatorial names on places here are appropriate: Snug Harbor Cafe, Cap'n Flints Restaurant, The Docks Restaurant, Salmon Inn, Custom Cannery, Wharf Restaurant, Anchor Marine. Salmon smoked gives off a tantalizing scent and oftentimes impels the sniffer to a market to buy a chunk.

Even if you don't catch anything, Noyo is a pleasant experience, patriots of the village aver. You can absorb the charm and beauty of a classical fishing hamlet.

You can listen to the fish talk of old-timers affixed to worn benches. You can grit your teeth and swallow your envy and watch luckier brethern of the salmon unload their fat sacks on the docks.

(Just ignore their smug looks.) You can try a seafood restaurant just a short cast away. You can commune with the sea nuzzling the sea-salted pilings. It is always a thrill to see the Coast Guard cutter hustling to a rescue. You can go sight-seeing on a boat or gather driftwood.

The salmoneers also can plan for another go at the kings on the morrow, and that is what most of them do first.

Rickover To Keep Job 2 More Years

WASHINGTON (AP) —Adm. Hyman G. Rickover, at 75 the oldest U.S. military officer in uniform, has been reappointed for another two years of active duty.

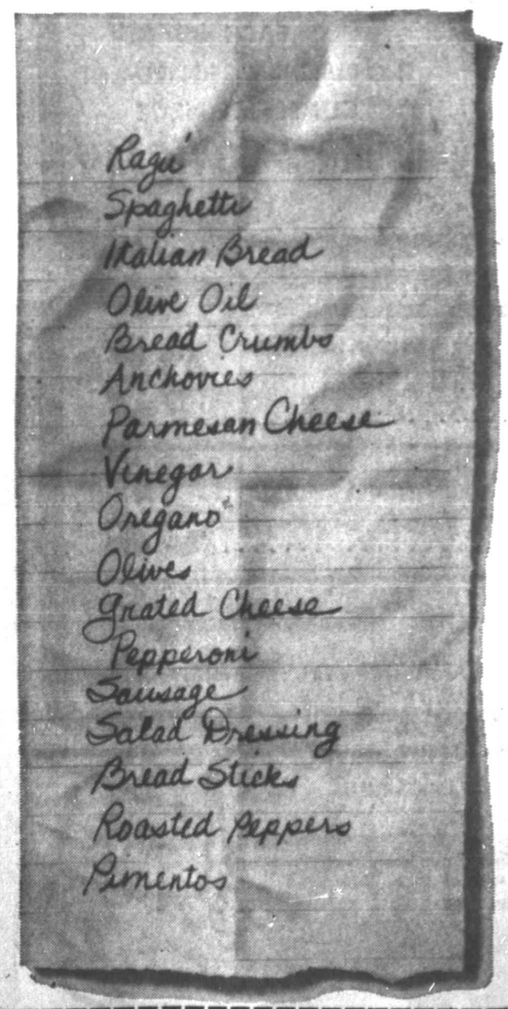

Secretary of the Navy J. William Middendorf II announced that Rickover would continue as head of the nuclear propulsion team, where he is the principal figure in the Navy's atomic ship and submarine program.

Man Builds Home Sweet Dome

By MICK COCHRAN
Copley News Service

JACKSONVILLE, Ill. — In midsummer, 1972, Bobby Fischer was in Iceland ready to play Boris Spassky for the world chess championship, the Rolling Stones had just made another billion dollars on a U.S. tour and Jerry Noble was thinking about domes.

In fact, most of the young home builders of the day had probably thought about domes at one time or another. But that's not unusual since Life magazine, scores of newspapers and several issues of Popular Science magazine had devoted spreads in their issues to the "boom" in dome building.

Noble, though, even after reading about leaky joints and weird room shapes, went one step further. The idea, which was spawned by one of those Popular Science articles, was carefully nurtured by more research. Noble went to book after book, looking for the things he needed to know.

"...I bought the 'Dome Book' (the Bible, according to some dome builders), and started planning the dome I would build."

Noble said two pages in the "Dome Book" are all anyone needs to build a home like the one he is about to complete after applying a fiber glass and rubberized paint coating to the dome's surface.

Noble looked for the center of his 75 acres of rolling farmland and began building the dome house he had spent years planning.

With help from a Federal Land Bank loan, cash from the sale of a couple of five-acre plots and some currency from his father-in-law, the dome now sits atop a ridge, reflected in a man-made pond on the north, and overlooking a woodsy swamp on the south.

West of the house is the family's goat.

"There stands the beginning of my goat herd dynasty," he said. "I bought him from a student at MacMurray College in Jacksonville. I didn't find out until weeks later that he'd been castrated." The goat kept eating grass, ignoring Noble's laughter.

And even if the goat herd fizzled out for lack of a sire, Beth and Jerry Noble are slowly beginning to experience some of the things they had dreamed about.

Inside the dome, when Jerry isn't slapping butyl paint on the exterior, and their daughter Cara has ceased her frog catching, the evenings are quiet. A stand of trees to the south blocks any noise from U.S. 36-54, a favored semi-tractor trailer route about a mile from their house.

On cool evenings, members of the family sleep in their respective, but as yet unfinished, bedrooms. On the warm, sticky nights, they all descend into the basement, where they sleep on a water bed in a partitioned-off room made from the corners Jerry cut off the plywood sheeting on the dome's surface.

It seems a shame to throw away all that good lumber. And that is one argument against domes.

Even though it takes less lumber to enclose the same amount of space, one finds oneself wasting a lot of timber in the process. After all, there's not a sheet of plywood that was ever factory-cut into a triangle.

"This thing is supposed to be very economical," Noble said, with a note of skepticism in his voice. But then he added reassuringly, "But I guess there is a savings on the whole. I'm hoping that when it is finished the bank will be able to compare it to a conventional home so that a practical mortgage arrangement can be made.

"And after I put on this fiberglass coating and the thing is finished I'll be able to turn her upside down and float her."

Not a very practical plan, but pretty reassuring when one sees photographs of people living in domes with buckets under every leaking crack in the ceiling. As a matter of fact, Noble may be ostracizmg himself from the rest of the dome dwellers by having a waterproof dwelling. In the past, the test of a dome builder's mettle was just how much water he could stand without resorting to casting a black plastic shroud over his entire house.

And Noble's "triple redundant" system of filling all joints with silicone caulking, putting rubber tape over that and then laying on the fiber glass and two-coat butyl skin should be enough to seal the sinking Titanic.

"I probably made this thing absurdly strong," he said.

After the white butyl and fiber glass surface is finished, a yellowish rubberized coating will be the last step.

"I told the manufacturer to come up with a color that would closely match a wheat field and this is what I got," he said pointing at the partly finished yellow-gold surface. "It's pretty close to what I asked for."

The surface, he says, will last 16 years. Not long in terms of the Taj Mahal, but then a homeowner would paint his house several tines in that period. And nobody has come along with an aluminum siding for domes. (Although some domes have been made out of sheet metal and even car tops.)

In many ways the Nobles are building a home similar to most of the homes being built today. Their ideas are not really "far-out" and just because their home is round they haven't been bothered by irate neighbors. Children play around the construction in the same way children have played around sweet-smelling wood for generations.

But underlying that is their plan for self-sufficiency. That's really what living out in the woods is all about—at least in their case.

Growing one's own food, supplying one's own heat, building a shelter and then being happy after all that work is done is not all that unattractive. And for some reason, in these days of 70-cent gasoline and rising food bills, the self-sufficient lifestyle doesn't seem all that radical.

First Cyclathon Slated Nov. 2

Midland County Heart Association's first annual "cyclathon" has been slated for 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 2 around the Midland College campus.

Plans for the event were discussed Tuesday afternoon when association members met in the college's board room.

Jack Swan will be chairman of the cyclathon, with Jack Camden as co-chairman. Also named chairmen for the event were Vic Vasicek, prizes; Pat Owens, rider recruitment, refreshments and first aid, and Mike Swihart, grounds.

Ex-Bishop Counsels On Drugs, Alcohol

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) —Former Nebraska Episcopal Bishop Robert Varley, who says he had to overcome alcohol and drug dependency, is now counseling others on overcoming addiction.

Varley, who resigned his church post last summer, is now a private counselor at the Omaha Consultation Center.

"I'm going to be doing marriage and family counseling," said Varley. "Dependency and alcoholism are family diseases so we are treating families."

Don't Fall In Love With Minimum Hand

I'm not really sure that we carry away great moral lessons from the bridge table. If we do, today's hand might teach us all not to fly too high.

South should avoid falling in love with his hand. He should not expect to make a game unless North responds with vigor and enthusiasm.

Opening lead — ♣ 4

When North makes a weak response in notrump and then shows only a preference for spades, South must settle for a part-score contract.

The opponents start the clubs, and South ruffs the second round. He takes the top hearts and ruffs a heart in dummy. South is not alarmed when East overruffs, since this may well cost East a trump trick that he was sure to win sooner or later.

CONTINUE HEARTS

Back comes a trump, and South wins with the ace. He gives up a heart trick and ruffs the club return. Now he can afford to draw a second round of trumps.

This leaves one trump out. South leads his last heart to make East use up his last trump. It was for this purpose that declarer set up his hearts before touching trumps.

South wins his own five trumps, two top hearts and the ace of diamonds. If East refuses to ruff a heart, South won't win so many trump tricks, but he wins the trick that East refused to ruff.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: S-J1098, H-92, D-KQ6, C-AQ73. What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three spades. This forcing raise shows 13 to 16 points with strong trumps. You would prefer a trump suit headed by the queen or better, but few things are perfect in an imperfect world.

Foreign Grain Buyers Cheated Of Unknown Amount By Firm

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A government lawyer says it is impossible to estimate how much foreign grain buyers were cheated during 12 years of shortweighting ships loaded at Louisiana and Texas grain elevators.

The Bunge Corp. of New York, one of the world's biggest grain exporters, pleaded no contest Wednesday to a federal charge of conspiring to steal grain from its customers. It was fined $10,000 by U.S. Dist. Court Judge Jack M. Gordon — the maximum fine allowed.

"All I can say is that it was a hell of a lot of grain," said Asst. U.S. Atty. Cornelius R. Heusel. "If we had even a ball park figure we would have put it in the indictment. God only knows how much it was worth."

The corporation, with an estimated $2 billion a year in sales, also pleaded no contest at the same hour in U.S. district court at Houston and was fined $10,000. The Texas charge was issuing false weight certificates at the Bunge grain elevator in Galveston.

Officials said foreign buyers were cheated out of thousands of tons of grain by the shortweighting of ships loaded at Bunge grain elevators at Destrehan, La., and at Galveston.

Robert Isakson, an FBI special agent, testified that "in the beginning it was decided that the company would have to steal grain" to cover operating losses and create excess grain stocks.

U.S. Atty. Gerald Gallinghouse said two Bunge executives pleaded innocent and face trial. They are Vice President W. F. Mulloy of Kansas City, Mo., and Clayton E. Wilcox of Hinsdale, Ill., an assistant vice president at the St. Louis office.

Gallinghouse said 10 other executives or former employes filed guilty pleas or have agreed to such pleas.

In its plea in New Orleans, Bunge agreed to set up strict new controls to give customers honest weights and grades instead of shortweighting grain loaded onto ships for export.

Heusel said the indictment didn't allege specific instances of shortweighting.

Lions Speaker Describes Alcoholism Breakthrough

A major breakthrough in the prevention and cure of alcoholism is "just over the horizon," members of the Downtown Lions Club were told Wednesday noon at their meeting in the American Legion Hall.

The speaker was Hargrove "Skipper" Bowles Jr., of Greensboro, N.C., a former North Carolina state senator.

Responsible for the possible breakthrough about which he spoke is the Center for Alcohol Studies at the University of North Carolina. Bowles is president of the center.

Bowles said that extensive research at Chapel Hill, when coupled with other research, "shows that there is a difference in the blood chemistry of individuals. We believe this to be the key — the enzymes involved in brain chemistry."

He said this explains why alcohol affects different persons in different ways... why some persons become problem drinkers and others don't.

"It now is believed that 70 per cent, or maybe all problem drinkers and alcoholics inherited this difference in their blood chemistry," Bowles said. "They were doomed to alcoholism from the day they started drinking.

"This exciting breakthrough in research allows us to see the light at the end of the tunnel. Alcoholism can be prevented."

He explained that the goal of the scientists now is to develop a preventative. Recalling that the discovery in research labs of the Salk vaccine for the prevention of polio has all but wiped out this dread disease, Bowles said the same thing can be done for alcoholics. "We now know that it can be prevented," he said.

"But our biochemical scientists now are confident that they have the answer — a practical solution to the problem," he said.

As to how long it will take to find this medical preventative, Bowles said it might be found next year, or perhaps in five years, but "we sincerely believe that with the proper team working together, that it can be accomplished within no more than 25 years."

He pointed out also that the Chapel Hill center is the only such institution working in the specific area of prevention and cure of alcoholism.

Bowles cited an urgent need at the Center for Alcohol Studies for four additional scientists to work with the two presently engaged in the studies.

"To do this job, will require a million dollars over a five-year period," he explained.

Although making it clear that he is not on a fund-raising visit to Midland, Bowles made it equally clear that all contributions to the center to help carry on its work will be appreciated.

Foes, Backers Of Mutineers Do Battle With Rocks, Guns

OPORTO, Portugal (AP) — Demonstrators supporting mutinous far-left soldiers clashed with opponents overnight, and hospital authorities said between 60 and 80 persons were injured, two with bullet wounds.

Most of the victims, including six soldiers, were injured during rock-throwing battles between the two groups, they said.

It was impossible to fix the origin of the shots in the general confusion.

At the height of the demonstration, rebel troops fired blanks at the crowd of several thousand and drove a tank into the midst of the crowd in an attempt to break up the demonstration outside their barracks.

The demonstration, grouping about 5,000 members of the centrist Popular Democratic party (PPD), began in the heart of Portugal's second largest city 175 miles north of Lisbon. The demonstrators shouted their support for Portugal's current, moderate government.

Large sections of the crowd then crossed a bridge over the Douro River and headed for the rebel artillery regiments barracks, where they were confronted by a few hundred leftists who are camping outside the headquarters in support of the mutineers.

There were rock-throwing battles and charges behind makeshift wooden shields by both sides before the firing broke out and the military regiment sent in its tank.

Fear of civil war has increased in Portugal as more and more army units have taken sides between moderate leftists who control the government and the radical left which preaches revolution.

The moderates, led by the Socialists and the Popular Democrats who won two thirds of the vote in April's national elections, seek restoration of traditional discipline within the military, while the Communists have promoted dissent.

The current Portuguese government is the sixth since military reformers overthrew the old rightist regime in April 1974.

The Communists say the revolutionary ferment in the armed forces is not "chaos and anarchy" but "a lively expression of the struggle of working people and an affirmation that ... order in the armed forces can only be attained by removing reactionaries from posts of command."

Historian Believes Taped Interviews Will Improve Johnson's Public Image

EDITOR'S NOTE: The late President Lyndon B. Johnson gave a fellow Texan, history professor Joe Frantz, the job of compiling an oral history of Johnson't life. Here, in an interview, Frantz talks about the project.

By JACK KEEVER

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Ted Kennedy talked easily to interviewer Joe Frantz in 1969 about former President Lyndon B. Johnson, but he insisted that the interview remain secret until after the 1976 presidential election.

"That," said Prof. Frantz, his eyes twinkling as he himself was interviewed, "has always intrigued me."

As early as 1966, Frantz said, "Johnson began to think about his history," and he chose The University of Texas history professor in 1968 "to be kind of an Arthur Schlesinger to his administration. Johnson never did ask me (to accept the job)—it was a beautiful Johnson performance—he started introducing me to people: 'This is Joe Frantz. He's going to run my oral history project.' "

Frantz has recorded approximately 400 interviews, often doing several with the same person, such as Kennedy, and has supervised another 700 to "enrich our understanding of what took place (and) why it took place" during Johnson's 32-year political career in Washington.

Last year, Frantz, 58, passed the project on to the LBJ Library staff which, only recently, was able to interview Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., and former Senate secretary Bobby Baker.

Frantz, however, is preparing to listen to the Johnson story as told by the younger daughter, Luci Johnson Nugent, and possibly Mrs. Johnson, too.

Ironically, Frantz never was able to tape an interview with Johnson, who apparently would rather have clutched a rattlesnake than permit someone to record his conversation.

Why?

"That's for a psychologist to figure out," said Frantz, who then described the problems of aides with Johnson's memoirs.

"He did that with his aides on 'The Vantage Point.' They were always scribbling like mad, trying to remember. We joked about hiding a tape recorder in the brush, but which one of us was going to take it (Johnson's fury) if he ever—it wasn't worth the hazard."

The 1,100 tapes, along with the transcripts, are locked up at the library here that also holds Johnson's 31 million presidential papers. Some 200 interviews are open to researchers.

Some specified that their interviews could be used only for background, not quotation, and others demanded time restrictions that will keep their interviews off-limits until after the year 2000.

"I've played, to a certain extent, an actuarial role and went for older people," said Frantz. "I got skewered on occasion. I went very hard for Sen. Carl Hayden, who was 91, and missed Bobby Kennedy."

Ted Kennedy, said Frantz, "felt very strongly that Jack had a real affection for Johnson—the two men understood each other and worked like a couple of pros, but you could put him (John Kennedy) and Johnson and Bobby in the same room together under the most favorable of circumstances and there was something in the chemistry—they'd be jaw-to-jaw before it was over."

"Teddy," Frantz added, "felt very grateful to Johnson, because when he had that airplane crash, Johnson had shown him more attention than anyone else."

"I liked her more than I expected to," said Frantz. "I came away with the feeling that she probably exists on several levels, and on mine she was existing like some sort of responsible but petted West Austin housewife — no glamour or flamboyance or anything. She had on pants and a sweater; we sat down and visited and she poured coffee—it was all very low key."

Others were not so accessible.

The late FBI director J. Edgar Hoover and former Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz refused to be interviewed, Frantz recalls, and former Supreme Court Justice Arthur Goldberg said he "had some things he disagreed with Johnson about, and he wasn't going to join the kiss-and-tell crowd."

But Frantz has enough from the interviews that are available to put together with a former student of his, Dr. David McComb, chairman of history at Colorado State University, a 1,900-page manuscript—"a sort of Studs Terkel approach on what his contemporaries thought about him (LBJ)."

After the manuscript is cut, Frantz expects it to be published nationally.

How do the interviews describe Johnson?

"I think they will improve the image," said Frantz. "I don't think they are too full of surprises .... I think the facts are generally known—the richness is in anecdotal depth."

Court Of Appeals Rules Former Securities Commissioner Liable In Lake Falcon Scheme

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — A former Texas securities commissioner has lost an appeal of a court decision ordering him to join his alleged co-conspirators in repaying $50,000 to investors bilked in a Mexican real estate development scheme.

Investors, mostly from Florida, were enticed by descriptions of "Lake Falcon Country Club" that supposedly included condominiums, golf courses, a private airport, bull ring and jai-alai courts.

The 3rd Court of Civil Appeals upheld a decision by state district court judge Tom Blackwell that Austin lawyer G. Bradley Bourland must take part with James Richard Taylor and Dennis Robert Levy in making restitution to investors.

Bourland was state securities commissioner from 1954 to 1956 and was an assistant attorney general for four years before that. He also was president of the University of Texas student body.

Atty. Gen. John Hill sued the three under the Texas Deceptive Trade Practices Act.

Bourland said he wasn't part of any conspiracy, claimed he was just the attorney and declared that he was, in fact, duped by the other defendants.

The appeals court noted that Bourland received deposits from potential investors, wrote the corporation's checks and was introduced to Florida investors—without protest—as "the man that has your money in trust in Texas."

In fact, the court said, at that very moment Bourland knew that of $43,000 in investors' money that had been deposited, less than $1,000 remained in the bank. When some uneasy Floridians came to Austin to ask about Taylor and their money, he told them Taylor was in good financial shape, the money was in trust in Mexico and "everything was fine," the court said.

"Other investors fearing, in time, that perhaps talk of the lips tended only to penury made further inquiry into the title of the land in Mexico and the status of the project. Their concern was justified. The record shows that Taylor owned no acreage in Mexico on Lake Falcon and, of course, neither he nor his corporations had placed any improvements on such land," the court said.

It found Bourland knew what was going on, intended to participate and "share in the gains."

"Because Bourland held the purse strings," the court said, "he knew to whom the investors' money went. An examination of the checks which Bourland signed shows that he knew that Taylor, who but only months before had been practically dependent upon him for bread, was now living in the manner of a grandee, complete with Cadillac automobiles and expensive apartments. For the same reason Bourland must have realized that little, if any, of the investors' money was being used to further the building of the project."

Bourland has the right to appeal the decision to the Texas Supreme Court.

Threatening Ford Earns Kentuckian New Prison Term

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Thomas D. Elbert, released from prison last May after serving five years for threatening the life of former President Richard M. Nixon, has been sentenced to another five-year prison term — this time for threatening President Ford.

Elbert, of Louisville, Ky., was sentenced Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas J. MacBride, the judge who is handling the case of Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme, accused of attempting to assassinate Ford in Sacramento last month.

Secret Service agents said Elbert telephoned the Secret Service office in Sacramento on Aug. 15 and said, "I'm going to kill your boss, Ford."

He was arrested two days later after telling people at the Gospel Mission about making the threat, agents said.

"He's the type of fellow who seems to enjoy prison life and I think we're going to accommodate him," an agent said later.

Houston Will Discourage Trick-Or-Treat Activity

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston City Council has joined a growing trend to discourage trick-or-treating on Halloween by passing a resolution recommending alternative parties and recreation on Halloween.

"Some very sick people inflict horrible injuries and even death to children during Halloween trick-or-treating," the council's ordinance said.

The council ordinance recommended that parents forbid their children from trick-or-treating for candy or other food and urged citizens to discontinue the practice of handing out treats.

The council suggested, instead, that civic, religious and neighborhood organizations, provide supervised recreation and Halloween parties for children.

The City of Deer Park earlier passed a resolution similar to the Houston resolntion. Pasadena Mayor John Ray Harrison said his city council will take a stand on plans for a safe Halloween.

The Houston council cited the death last Halloween of Timothy O'Bryan, 8, of Deer Park. The boy died after eating Halloween candy laced with cyanide.

The boy's father, Ronald Clark O'Bryan, was convicted of murder and sentenced to death. He has appealed the conviction.

King Olav Visits Home For Elderly

NEW YORK (AP) — King Olav V of Norway was greeted by cheering Norwegian-Americans on a visit to a home for the elderly on Staten Island.

Many residents of the home wept when they saw the king Wednesday.

"I spent my childhood in Norway and my heart is still there," said one elderly lady. "This is the first time I've seen the king."

Backyard Swimming Pool Could Be Good Investment -- Even In Winter

By RICHARD M. DANIELS
Copley News Service

Before the year is out, thousands of American families will make a big splash in their own backyards for the first time—getting in over their heads—so to speak.

Backyard swimming pools already dot the residential landscape by the thousands and more are being installed every day as more families have become attracted to water recreation and the convenience of having a swimming pool a few steps away.

The energy crisis which reared its head last year may have had mixed results in the pool industry.

For one thing, the cost of power to operate the pool has been an important fact to consider, especially in the economic doldrums of the last 18 months. However, that has worked the other way as many families have decided to invest in a swimming pool and spend their vacations at home. Depending on a family's particular lifestyle, whether they prefer to travel or to spend time at home, the swimming pool may make as much sense economically as it does recreationally.

Responsible pool contractors and lending institutions are willing to give the prospective swimming pool owner advice as to whether a swimming pool is feasible for that particular party. Limitations in yard space or in family income are important factors to consider before emotions come into play.

The heaviest demand for swimming pools is in summer. In spite of the trade's concerted efforts to persuade homeowners to order their pools during the slack winter months, the results come out the other way. The big rush comes during the warm summer months when the swimming season breaks down buyer resistance among pool prospects.

For the most part, last year the average-size pool, 16x32 feet, cost from $5,500 to $6,000, depending on materials and features of the pool.

Swimming pools are available in any number of shapes and sizes with prices just as varied. In some of the luxury jobs, it's not uncommon to find pools that cost $15,000 or more.

Modern construction techniques have permitted pool designs so flexible that a casual freehand drawing can be converted to an actual swimming pool configuration, provided the particular site can physically accommodate the pool.

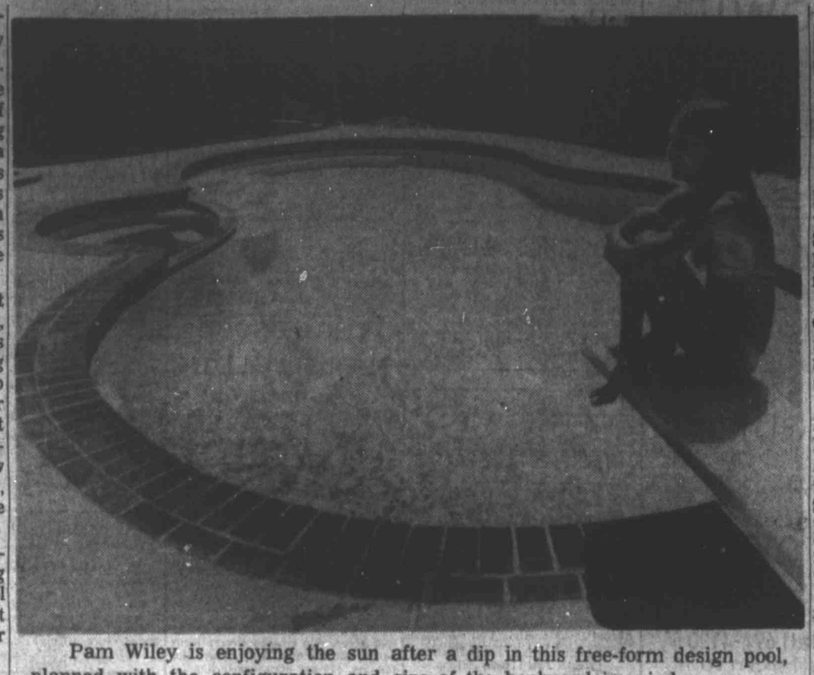

One accessory gaining popularity among pool buyers is the hydrotherapy pool, the "whirlpool." With its jet aerators stirring up a whirlpool of water to more than 100 degrees, the whirlpool spa apparently is a must for many buyers considering a new pool.

Several contractors have reported that more than half of the swimming pools being installed today include a hydrotherapy pool. These spas can be designed in various shapes and sizes, ranging from a mini-spa with three aerators in a bench seat at pool's edge to a separate pool.

Most owners also want automatic cleaning equipment, recognizing that maintenance is a continual task in swimming pool ownership. Contractors also report that more than 80 per cent of their buyers want heating systems. Many pool-heating systems are now powered with solar energy, which makes a big difference in monthly operational costs.

Recreation equipment that accompanies several swimming pool installations includes pool slides, diving boards, equipment for water basketball and water volleyball.

Prospective pool buyers should also consider the effects the pool will have in their yard landscaping when they are determining what the pool will cost. For example, wide decking around the pool can add greatly to the appearance. Fountains, waterfalls and even small streams also can contribute to a backyard swimming pool environment.

English Committee Sets Conference Friday

Area English teachers from kindergarten through college will meet Saturday at Lee High School for the Texas Joint English Committee's annual regional conference.

This year's program, a half-day session beginning at 9 a.m., focuses on "new but practical methods of individualized teaching in the classroom."

Bill Jamison of Austin, representing the Texas Arts and Humanities, will show a film and address the teachers on "Artists Available to the Schools' Program through Funds from the National Endowment for the Humanities."

Dr. Robert Gerry of The University of Texas of the Permian Basin will be the luncheon speaker. His topic is "How to Implement Plans for Meeting Individual Differences in the Teaching of English."

Also on the agenda is a panel discussion on "Meeting Individual Needs in the Teaching of Language Arts and Literature." Area teachers on the panel are Robert Dain, Rusk Elementary School in Midland; Sarah Macina, Midland High School; Gary L. Grant, Howard College in Big Spring, and Alice Derkson, Fort Stockton Junior High School.

This year's officers for the organization are Joyce Bellomy, Midland Lee High School, general chairman; Dr. Margaret Neussender, UTPB, program chairman; Flo Lambeth, Odessa Permian High School, corresponding secretary, and Gene Puckett, Big Spring High School, treasurer.

Inventor Looks Back

SALISBURY, Conn. (AP) — Inventor Edward E. Kleinschmidt never finished high school, but in his 100 years he has had his hand in inventions as varied as macaroni twisters and the teletype.

And through his years of tinkering, the slender, white-haired centenarian has played a key role in speeding communications around the globe.

Kleinschmidt, who has just celebrated his 100th birthday in his summer home here, claims credit for inventing the teletype, still used throughout the world by news wire services. He and his wife spend the winter in Bal Harbour, Fla.

He has 118 patents and takes credit for inventing or helping develop the high-speed stock ticker, an automatic fishing reel and railroad signaling devices. His last invention, at the age of 92, was a miniature teletype for use in police cars so messages would not have to be sent by radio, where they could be intercepted.

The inventor, now hard of hearing although generally healthy, "felt the Morse Code was too slow at the time and he wanted to speed up the transmission of communications," his wife Eleonora said in an interview recently.

In 1914, The Associated Press became the first news organization to install teletypes.

Eleven years later Kleinschmidt merged his business with its only competitor to become Morkrum-Kleinschmidt, later known as Teletype Corp.

American Telephone and Telegraph Co. bought the company for $30 million in 1930.

In 1940, Kleinschmidt was honored for his invention of the teletype with the John Price Wetherill Medal, awarded by the Franklin Institute of Philadelphia.

The inventor was born in Germany and was 8 years old when he came to the United States.

He began experimenting at the age of 15 and, according to his wife: "he's read every book on electronics in the New York Library."

"Kids used it to run all kinds of things," he said. But the acid in the device had a tendency to spill.

Kleinschmidt persevered and in 1898 opened a shop in New York and hung a sign over it saying, "Inventions Developed."

"I think he got interested in Morse Code originally and electronics just was something he became terribly interested in and he pursued it," his wife said.
