FIRST A TEXAS-STYLE BARBECUE, THEN ENTERTAINMENT FOR COSDEN EMPLOYEES

Tuesday night party at Garrett Coliseum here attracted hundreds

To barbeque, games and Tom T. Hall

Cosden treats employees, family

Nationally-known Tom T. Hall and the Storytellers slipped into Big Spring Tuesday to entertain employees of Cosden Oil and Chemical Company and their families.

Cosden treated its work force to varied stage entertainment, barbecue, floor games and finally, to dancing at the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum as a way of saying 'thank you' for the safety record accomplished at the local refinery.

Several weeks ago, Cosden's employees were given a gift certificate, redeemable at Big Spring businesses, after they had achieved a million hours of work without an accident requiring medical treatment.

The record endures to this day. As of Tuesday, the refinery personnel had gone 1,194,969 hours without an on-the-job accident.

Hall is a singer-composer with outstanding credentials. Among other tunes, he composed "Harper Valley PTA," which Jeanie C. Riley used as a springboard to fame.

Upwards to 1,600 people crowded into the coliseum for fun and frolic. Executives of Cosden and American Petrofina, the parent company of Cosden, were the 'victims' in a 'baseball dunk' booth. Those in the house party paid money to throw at a target which, when hit, unloosed the spring that sent such men as Paul Meek, president of American Petrofina; Ken Perry, president of Cosden; and Ron Medley, Cosden vice president, plunging into the water. Proceeds from the game went to the Howard County United Way.

It cost $5 for three balls to aim at the target when Meek sat in the booth, $3 when Perry was the victim and $2 when Medley took over.

Walter Blaney, one of the country's better known magicians, a man who has represented the United States at the World Congress of Magicians, opened the evening's entertainment with some sleight-of-hand tricks.

The Odessa Chuck Wagon Gang came over to serve the barbecue. Actually, the serving got under way at noon when shift workers assigned to the evening shift were given the opportunity to eat.

Throughout the evening, cold drinks and ice cream were available without charge to everyone.

To control attendance, name badges were presented at the door only to those eligible to attend.

Among company officials present were R.T. Galland, chairman of the board and chief executive officer for American Petrofina; Meek, Perry, Joe A. Moss, Petrofina's vice president and general counsel; Glenn Selvidge, vice president, employe relations; Rene Brown, vice president, refining; Norwood Chiears, Bob West, Joe Horton, Bill Cahill and Frosty Robison.

Hoyle Nix and his Band provided music early in the evening for the gathering and remained to play for the dance.

Long-sought triumph arrives for Reagan tonight at convention

DETROIT (AP) — Ronald Reagan's long-sought moment of triumph and decision arrives tonight when the Republican National Convention nominates him for President of the United States and then awaits his choice of a running mate.

While the outcome of the presidential balloting is a foregone conclusion with Reagan the only surviving candidate from a once-crowded field, his choice for second spot on the ticket remains the convention's only guessing game.

Will it be George Bush, the man who gave him the toughest fight in the Republican primaries? Or Rep. Guy Vander Jagt of Michigan, whose convention keynote speech was put off until tonight when Tuesday night's program ran past midnight. Or Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, whose supporters staged a noisy, sign-waving demonstration when he addressed the convention Tuesday night.

Others on most speculative lists include Sens. Richard Lugar of Indiana and Paul Laxalt of Nevada, and former Cabinet members Donald Rumsfeld and William Simon.

Party leaders streamed in and out of Reagan's suite on the 69th floor of the Detroit Plaza Hotel on Tuesday to discuss the vice presidential nomination and most came away with the same impression: Reagan had not made up his mind.

For Reagan, the balloting on the presidential nomination will be like a moment out of one of his Hollywood movies.

Beaten in two earlier tries for the nomination, he tried again, his last chance at age 69, and this time he overwhelmed the opposition.

The former California governor, following tradition, has no plans to go to Joe Louis Arena until Thursday night when he will accept the nomination with a speech, already written, which will make a strong appeal to Democrats to cross party lines and vote for the Republican ticket.

But Nancy Reagan, the candidate's wife, and his two oldest children, Maureen and Michael, attended Tuesday night's session. They were welcomed by cheering delegates and chants of "Viva, Ole" from the Texas delegation.

The chants reminded many onlookers of the moment four years ago when Nancy Reagan and Betty Ford arrived at the convention hall in Kansas City with the presidential contest between their husbands still undecided and delegates on both sides started up competing demonstrations.

Before Mrs. Reagan took her seat at one end of the hall this time, the convention had quickly approved a conservative platform spiced with sharp attacks on President Carter's record and calling for a tougher foreign policy, broad tax cuts, boosts in defense spending and restraints on growth of government in other areas.

RONALD REAGAN

Potential fights over two planks — one dropping party support for the Equal Rights Amendment, the other endorsing a constitutional amendment banning abortions except to save the life of the mother — didn't materialize.

Opponents had failed to muster enough support to get a roll call vote on the platform. A majority in at least six state delegations is required to force a roll call vote.

Big Spring delegate nails Abilene's 'rumor-monger'

Harte-Hanks Election Team

DETROIT — Lila Rekhop didn't leave the floor of the Joe Louis Arena as she came Tuesday night. When she joined other Texans in the balcony, a "Jesse Helms for Vice President" sticker was on her left hip.

She sighed and ripped it off, mumbling about the chaos on the convention floor and sweating from the heat the activity generated.

Through the narrow aisles, other delegates lobbied for their favorite vice presidential hopefuls, pushing buttons, petitions, stickers — and rumors.

Mrs. Rehkop of Athens said the Texas delegation largely ignored the activity and did not sign any petitions. "One news photographer took our picture because we were just sitting there trying to see what was going on."

That statement, like most others to come out of the Republican National Convention here, is open to dispute.

Fred Gray, delegate from Pasadena, was behind one petition supporting Sen. Jesse Helms of North Carolina for the vice presidential nomination.

His optimism was unphased by that night's rumor that Ronald Reagan had asked former president Gerald Ford to be his running mate, despite denials by Reagan.

BILLY MAC SHEPPARD

"It just won't happen," Gray said, adding that Ford wouldn't take, in effect, a demotion.

Ernest Angelo, a longtime Texas leader in the Reagan presidential efforts, reacted similarly.

"I don't believe it," the former Midland mayor said on the convention floor Tuesday night. "I can't imagine a situation where a person had been president and would even consider it (the vice presidency)."

Other Texas delegation reaction to a possible Ford candidacy ranged from cautious hope to vehement opposition.

"He would be less popular in the Texas delegation than any other delegation in the hall there," said Billy Mac Sheppard, delegate from Big Spring.

Sheppard had just come from the floor and clutched a new "Reagan-Lugar" button, an unsolicited gift from fans of Indiana Sen. Richard Lugar. Sheppard said he likes New York Rep. Jack Kemp, but he'll take George Bush.

As for the Ford rumor, Sheppard joked that the was sure it started within the Texas delegation — with Abilene alternate delegate and "rumor-monger" Marcus Anderson.

"That's probably where NBC and ABC and all the rest got it," Sheppard said.

Anderson voted for former Texas Gov. John Connally in an informal poll Monday. Tuesday, however, he said Ford is a better idea.

Five white policemen shot, wounded in Miami Tuesday

MIAMI (AP) — Gangs of black youths roamed the streets of Liberty City overnight after five white policemen were shot and wounded, and 500 officers temporarily cordoned off an area of northwestern Miami.

Police said most of the youths had gone home by dawn and barricades were removed later in the morning.

More than 25 people were reported injured during the night of rock and bottle-throwing, sporadic looting, arson, firebombing and sniper fire.

About 20 people were arrested by early today said Dade County police spokesman Joe Keefe but authorities could not give an exact number.

Traffic was allowed to resume this morning through the predominantly black Liberty City area and a smaller black area of Coconut Grove which had also been sealed off by police carrying shotguns and automatic weapons.

The nightlong violence by hundreds of youths was triggered Tuesday by a plainclothes officer's attempt to stop two black youths from robbing a white motorist in the same neighborhood devastated by race riots two months ago, officials said.

"Hell, man, we're fighting back," one black teen-ager said.

"Blacks have to stand up, man," said 17-year-old Jerry Pounder. "The way they (the police) handle things is all wrong. It's just a disgrace. They come in here bluffing somebody down."

Firefighters were battling three fires, including one at a gasoline service station where youths shoved a tow truck into the middle of a street and set it afire.

Police, hampered by sporadic gunfire, also were trying to move several garbage bins that had been shoved into the path of a freight train. The train stopped before reaching the bins.

"We've had numerous sniping incidents reported throughout the night," said Dade County Central District officer Jim Bigler. "But for the most part, we've been trying to stay out of the area and let things calm down. The tension (from the May 17 riots) has not eased. It is still acute."

"My concern is that the police will be so fearful we won't be able to get any protection down there."

Action/reaction: 'Hangar 18' notices

Q. What kind of notices is the picture "Hangar 18" getting? It seems to me the world premiere should have been here because most of it was filmed here. Has it been booked locally yet?

A. The reviews have been invariably good in the few places it has been released, or so we are told. The local management has been trying to find out when it will be available for local show. So far, zelch.

Calendar: Kavanagh to talk

ONE WAY TO BEAT THE HEAT — Some days employees of the water department of the City of Big Spring probably feel they should go ahead and wear their bathing suits to work. The doughty men have been repairing leaks in the water mains all over town, often in water up to their necks. Here, Bobby Earl, Wendell Campbell and Curtis Williams plumb a pipe by feel, not by sight. This break occurred at Seventh and Nolan. Well, it's one way to neutralize the threat of sun stroke.

French surgeon arrives to examine Shah

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — A French surgeon arrived in Cairo today to decide whether the deposed Shah of Iran must undergo surgery again, this time to drain an abscess in his left leg, an Egyptian doctor treating the former Iranian monarch said.

But the Egyptian doctor, who has proved reliable in the past, denied reports in the Cairo newspapers Al Ahram and Al Akhbar that the surgery already had been performed. "He arrived at three in the morning today," the Egyptian doctor said of the French surgeon. "He hasn't done anything yet."

The Egyptian doctor, reached by telephone at Maadi military hospital, added that "even if we decide to open the abscess it won't be today." He said the ousted shah's condition was "fine. I'm with him now and he's awake and talking and all right."

Both the Egyptian doctor and the French surgeon requested anonymity.

Al Ahram said the abscess was "the size of an orange," had developed at the top of the thigh and that doctors considered surgery necessary because they feared a blood clot could develop and block circulation.

Al Ahram said monitoring systems were brought back to the intensive care unit opposite the shah's suite, and a state of emergency had been declared, with doctors keeping a 24-hour vigil by Mohammad Reza Pahlavi's side.

The shah's spokesman, Mark Morse, said the abscess developed at the point on one of the shah's legs from which a blood sample was taken for a routine test. He said the infection caused concern because of the shah's generally weakened condition.

"Little things in his condition have a bigger impact because his body is not in good shape right now," he said.

Marxists sentenced

NEW YORK (AP) — Two self-proclaimed Marxists have been sentenced to prison terms of a year and a day on convictions for throwing red paint on the U.S. and Soviet ambassadors to the United Nations.

The defendants, Steven Yip, 29, and Glenn Gan, 30, both former residents of San Francisco, were arrested April 30 after disrupting a Security Council meeting at the U.N.

They hurled paint at Ambassador William Vanden Heuvel, deputy U.S. delegate, and Ambassador Oleg A. Troyanovsky, the chief Soviet delegate, in a protest against what they said were the imperialistic policies of the two nations. They were sentenced Tuesday.

Brown vetos tax bill

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — A bill that would permanently have prevented wage earners from being pushed into a higher tax brackets because of cost-of-living raises has been vetoed by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

The bill, which would have cut state income taxes by $231 million in 1982-83, would have made permanent a provision due to expire in 1982 that adjusts tax brackets in relation to inflation. That measure is activated by inflation of up to 3 percent a year.

The veto, issued Monday, does not affect a permanent law that adjusts tax brackets for inflation greater than 3 percent.

Songwriter servant slain

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A servant of songwriter Jerry Herman was beaten and stabbed to death, according to police who found his body in a closet at the lyricist's Bel Air estate.

The body was discovered Thursday while Herman, who wrote the lyrics for "Mame" and "Hello, Dolly," was in New York, police said Tuesday. The identity of the servant was withheld pending notification of relatives.

Police are also investigating a similar slaying about eight miles from Bel Air, according to Detective Sgt. Glen Varner. A decomposed body was found July 4 in a house there, Varner said.

Extradition not sought

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — The state will no longer seek the extradition of a man who fled an Alabama prison road gang 25 years ago and has lived quietly in Chicago ever since, Alabama Gov. Fob James has announced.

James Cowsen, now a Chicago warehouse worker, was serving a three-year sentence for stealing scrap copper wire from a coal mine when he escaped. His past came to light last fall when he applied for a license for a .22-caliber rifle.

The governor had no comment on his decision Tuesday.

Cooking fire kills one

NEW YORK (AP) — An explosion set off by a cooking fire rocked an old hotel off Times Square, killing one woman and seriously injuring a man, police said.

The man was cooking in Room 526 of the Times Square Motor Hotel on Tuesday when the blast went off, said Chief Milton Schwartz of the Midtown South Precinct.

Witnesses on the street said that after the blast they saw a woman in the room next door "stagger to the window and sort of roll out," landing on a second-floor ledge, Schwartz said. Neither the man nor the woman were identified, pending notification of relatives.

U.S. industrial production down

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's industrial production plunged 2.4 percent in June, the fifth monthly decline in a row, as the recession continued to spread through the economy, the government reported today.

June's severe drop follows a similar 2.4 percent falloff in May, the Federal Reserve Board said. Originally, May's decline was reported as 2.1 percent.

The decline last month was the largest since January 1975, when production in the nation's factories, mines and mills plummeted 3.4 percent, the Federal Reserve said. That occurred during the depths of the nation's last recession.

All American Convict Band 'Plus One' booked Thursday

A variety of music from country and western, blues, rock-and-roll, country rock, rhythm and blues and contemporary gospel will be heard in a concert by the All American Convict Band (Plus One) Thursday in the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater at 8 p.m.

The All American Convict Band (Plus One) comes from the Big Spring Federal Prison Camp, where John Allman is superintendent. The band consisting of eight inmates, will be escorted by a staff sponsor, Don Cobbs, who plays in the band. The musicians in the band bring together highly experienced musicians from every part of the country.

As a community project in Big Spring, the inmates of the All American Convict Band (Plus One) have been playing concerts at Highland Mall for United Way, the State Hospital, and the Senior Citizens at the Industrial Park.

Gospel singing groups from the North Side Church of Christ and the Mt. Bethel Baptist Church, originally scheduled for July 13, have rescheduled their Gospel Sing Concert for Sunday, July 20, at 8 p.m. in the Comanche Trail Park Amphitheater.

Franks named executive at Security State Bank

Terry Franks, back in West Texas where he lived for 33 years, is the new executive vice president of Security State Bank.

He recently was associated with the First City Bank in Dallas, where he was assigned to the Correspondent Banking Department. He served as a liaison between the First City Bank and affiliated institutions in West Texas and the Panhandle. He was approached by J.D. Nelson, president of the Security State Bank here, and accepted an invitation to join the staff.

Franks graduated from Sweetwater High School before graduating from Texas Tech with a petroleum engineering degree. He moved to Abilene where he received an accounting degree from McMurry College. During his final year there he went to work for First Southwestern Company in Abilene.

He was employed by an independent insurance company for six years. Then he moved to Dallas in February of 1972 where he worked in the Texas Bank and Trust Bond Department for five years. He was in the correspondent department for three years.

During that time the name of Texas Bank and Trust changed to First City Bank.

Franks has a wife, Suk Cha, and two children, Melissa, 17, and Michael, 19. Melissa is a UT El Paso freshman and Michael is in the ninth grade.

County commissioners hear plea for $6,000

By DON WOODS

Howard County Commissioners received a request for $6,000 for industrial prospect literature from Industrial Foundation member Granville Hahn and Chamber of Commerce Manager Leroy Tillery today in a special meeting of the commissioners court.

The literature will provide information about the Big Spring Industrial Park and other prospective sites for industrial development that will "sell" Howard County to prospective indistrict.

"At one time we in West Texas were in bad shape as far as water and now we're better off than the cities" said Hahn. This was one of the things the literature will include about the area.

Also to be included is information about plots of land around the area that could be developed.

The literature is part of a project developed by Texas A&M University outlining a proposed program to draw industry here.

Hahn and Tillery received the proposal approximately one month ago.

Commissioners met to create pay increases for county employees but did not progress past the discussion stage. They are considering the amount of the increase.

In addition to the funds provided by the county, in the A&M plan Big Spring will be asked to provide $15,000. The Big Spring Industrial Foundation will provide $6,000 with the Chamber of Commerce providing $3,000.

"We think we have leased all the buildings (on the Big Spring Industrial Park site). We still have some office buildings," said Hahn.

Hahn said that the loss of work positions caused by the loss of Lantex and Midas were brought back up by the operation of Western Container, Texas Tube, Champion Blower and Cotton Machinery. However, the number of work positions were not increasing by addition of new industries, said Hahn.

The A&M University study proposed addition of two new sites at the industrial park and opening of the railroad. Hahn said many companies considering new plants need railroad access.

"The first thing a prospective client wants to see is something about your own," said Hahn.

Texas Electric Service Company has provided technical data needed in the form of a brochure but Hahn proposed redoing the brochure.

Some industries have been turned down. "We've learned early that if we endorse them, the people of Big Spring will do things, extend them credit..." said Hahn.

Commissioners Louis Brown had doubts of the legality of joining with the Industrial Foundation in financing the plan. He suggested letting the county attorney check laws relevant to the proposal.

Howard County's portion would be 20 percent of the $30,000 budget.

Domino tournament begins here July 24

The third annual national "Texas-Style" Partnership Domino Tournament, which will be held in the East Room of the Dorothy Garrett Coliseum in Big Spring, will begin its three-day competition Thursday, July 24. The local tournament has received entries from many states in the Southwest who will be competing for top prize money.

The top prize money for the third annual tournament will be determined by the total number of teams entering the 1980 competition. As in past years, the top four teams will receive cash prizes. In addition, those teams reaching the quarterfinals will receive their $100 entry fee back and a cash award and small trophy.

Competition for the large tournament will be divided by groups of 12 teams each. Winners of these groups will play the winners of other groups of teams. The winning teams will be determined by a computer and the top six teams of each group will advance to the Championship Bracket. The remaining six teams of the group will advance to the 2nd Chance Bracket. Winners of these groups will then advance one step closer to the quarterfinals.

Individuals interested in competing in the local tournament are asked to contact the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce as soon as possible so that adequate plans can be made for the upcoming competition.

Robledo draws prison term

Jose Robledo entered a guilty plea today to a charge of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle June 27.

He was sentenced to two years in prison.

Sticker price means very little in today's automobile market

By the Associated Press

Remember when shopping for a new car meant a kick at the tires and a furtive glance at the price sticker, knowing the salesman would knock off a couple of hundred dollars?

You can still kick the tires, but for some cars, you might want to kick the sticker price.

A high-mileage car may cost more — reportedly up to $1,000 more in southern California, where imports are now a majority of the market.

On the other hand, full-size cars are a drag on the market. Although dealers won't pay you to drive them away, rebates and heavy discounts are widely available.

A small car does not automatically command a premium price — what counts is mileage, and if you're willing to accept just ordinary mileage, you can make deals on some Japanese imports in today's depressed market. Some Europeans such as Fiat are offering rebates.

"The only thing you can hustle somebody on today is something that gets more than 27 miles per gallon," said an executive of one automaker in Detroit who did not want to be identified.

Joe Tetherow, Chrysler Corp. spokesman in San Francisco, explained: "The sticker is only a recommended price. We can't tell a dealer you've got to sell this car for this price. The dealer can charge whatever he wants. If you've got a hot car, you get what you can for it."

Asked if his company had a policy of discouraging price premiums, a Toyota spokesman who requested anonymity said his company "by law can't even get into that" with dealers. He said he has to tell complainers that selling above list is "the right of the independent American businessman."

"The prices on our small cars are averaging $400 to $900 above the sticker price," said Al Lascurittes, assistant sales manager for Cooper Motors Chrysler in Hayward, Calif. "The market is bearing that now because we don't have that many to sell. And that applies to used cars, too."

Lascurittes said the manufacturer's suggested base price for the Plymouth Champ is $5,500. It's selling for $6,100. A 1979 Champ with air conditioning goes for $5,795, $295 more than the suggested price for a new Champ.

The Champ, made by Chrysler's Japanese affiliate, Mitsubishi Motors, is the economy champ of cars bearing traditional U.S. nameplates. One model is rated at 37 mpg in city driving by the Environmental Protection Agency.

Mitsubishi cars are hard to find. Chrysler can get only 150,000 this model year. It sold almost 130,000 in the first nine months.

Not every Japanese import is popular. Even Toyota, whose sales rose 24 percent the first half of the year, is stuck with a dog. The Celica, 23 mpg at best, is widely discounted.

"We ask for list price on every car," said Michael Coston, assistant manager of Toyota of Dallas. "But if a man only has $6,000 and I can make a profit on the car, I'll sell it to him."

The cheapest Celica lists for $5,679, but the others are $6,159 to $6,919, and the most popular is $6,619.

On the other hand, Toyota's Tercel, a new 31-mpg entry that is the company's "price leader" and Toyota's first try at front-wheel drive, seems to need cash to coax it out of hiding.

"We get $500 over list for them," said Coston. "We sold three yesterday and I've only got one left."

The cheapest Tercel lists for $3,948. Toyota says freight to Detroit should add about $80, undercoating a similar sum. That would make it $4,108 before sales tax.

Salesman Bill Shoebottom of Royal Toyota in Royal Oak, Mich., near Detroit told a caller he usually got "$300 over list" but offered a "base car" Tercel, including "weatherizing, preparation and freight" for $4,368 — $260 over what Toyota said should be list.

"It'll be here in 15 days, and there are no names on the waiting list," Shoebottom said.

Prices can fluctuate sharply with time and place.

John Boulianne, sales manager at Schonlaw Chevrolet in Hollywood, said prices for Chevettes and Citations had been several hundred dollars above sticker price, "but that ended about a month ago" as the market slumped.

Michigan registers proportionately fewer imports than any state because of employee and commercial loyalties to the domestic auto industry. Perhaps for that reason, Dennis Vallimont of Joe Haney Datsun in Detroit offered the Datsun 210, which sometimes commands a premium, for "$400 off" but warned, "We've only got two left."

Larry Grimm, sales manager for Serramonte Oldsmobile in Colma, Calif., said all Oldsmobile models — big and small — are selling below the suggested retail price.

The four-door Olds Omega, one of General Motors' "X-body" compacts highly prized a few months ago, is selling for $7,200, although it carries a suggested price of $7,600, he said. A Cutlass mid-size car sells now for about $7,400 — down from a sticker price of $8,240.

Grimm said a $13,550 Olds Ninety-Eight will sell for $11,500. He added, jokingly, "But we'll take anything for that. I can't say we've been selling many of those."

Pam Crenshaw Fund started

A special fund has been started at the First National Bank for Pam Crenshaw, a Big Spring resident who is being treated for cancer at M.D. Anderson at Houston (as an out-patient).

Pam's medical expenses are mounting and friends now have the opportunity to offer her some help.

Checks made out to the Pam Crenshaw Fund can either be mailed to or taken by the bank.

Registration is important to us all

Next Monday, young men in the 19 and 20 year age bracket are expected to report to their nearest post office to register for possible military service. Those born in January, February and March 1960 will lead the way.

Before the signups are complete July 31, more than four million males should have responded to President Carter's call for general sign-up.

CARTER AND others in the administration, no doubt, can feel opposition to the registration mounting. The thought of military service offends a lot of young men in this country — people, no doubt, who remember stories about the nation's wasted effort in Vietnam.

Despite the opposition to registration, it is important that the government has some sort of record of the whereabouts of its young men. After the military draft ceased a few years ago, the Soviet Union has shown an increasing tendency to run things its own way around the world. America's military muscle has been deteriorating badly for a long time now.

Registration does not mean, of course, that anyone will be drafted. It would be dangerous, however, for the nation to continue without some sort of plan for conscription.

It is, of course, important to keep in mind during the flak the government is catching over the impending registration that some key military decisions must be made.

THE SIZE of the military budget for the next fiscal year, which in an election year, becomes an explosive issue, is one factor that enters into consideration. Another is just how far the American people are willing to go in projecting U.S. military forces around the world, especially in 'hot spots' like the Middle East, to protect U.S. interests.

During the next few months, final decisions are due to be made on the MX missile system, a new superbomber, greater reliance on an updated and 'uncurbed' Cruise Missile.

First and foremost, however, the American people must make up their minds if they have to resolve to make the sacrifices — in money and men, if necessary — to maintain our present position as the last bastion of freedom.

Reagan's choice

Joseph Kraft

LOS ANGELES — Barry Goldwater, the last conservative to become the Republican presidential candidate, won the nomination after a bitter, personal fight that carried all the way to the convention floor. In the partisan frenzy of the moment, he picked in William Miller, a running mate who offended the Republican moderates. The result was an historic disaster — for the country as well as the party.

Ronald Reagan tied up the nomination early this year in a benign campaign that left few hurt feelings. So he has had the chance to pick at leisure a running mate who broadens his appeal. But if he misses the chance, if he does not name one of three prominent moderates, he reinforces the damaging stereotype of the right-wing idealogue.

IN ALL FAIRNESS, the stereotype may be a grotesque caricature. Reagan, seen on his home field here in Los Angeles, does not come on as a threatening person. Witness, his love of making people laugh with one-liners. Several of his stands, for example being against draft registration, clash with the hard-line position.

But the moderate Republican vote takes on very special importance this year. For one thing, John Anderson will be in the race bidding for Republican moderates. For another, the crucial battleground lies in states — Illinois, Ohio, Michigan, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and maybe even New York — where moderates plainly outweigh conservatives.

Moreover if the ideological shoe doesn't exactly fit Reagan, there is a certain correspondence on major matters as well as such emotional issues as women's rights. In economic policy, for example, the Reagan stress is on an across-the-board tax cut. That would promote the interest of the haves. Add to that his previous refusal to divulge tax returns, and you have the makings of an economic royalist, soaking the poor.

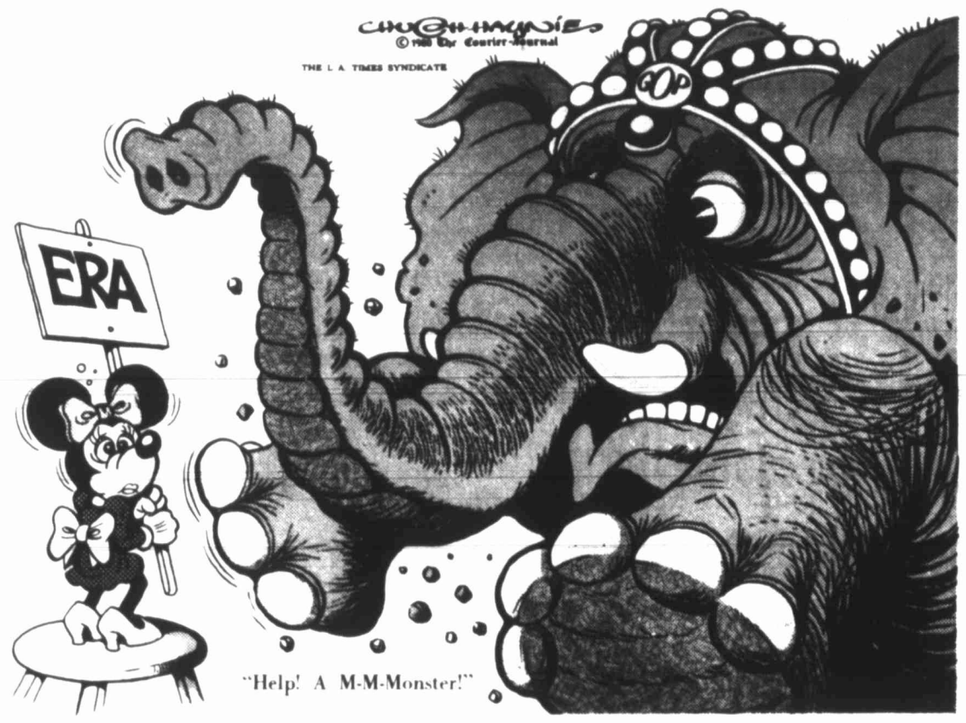

In the energy field, the Reagan position emphasizes inducing a new burst of oil supply by decontrol of prices. Unfortunately almost all forecasts — both private and government — suggest that reserves in this country have been depleted to the point where even the price incentive cannot stimulate higher output. So the Reagan position lends itself to the critique that without solving the problem, it offers giveaways to the big companies.

In the cloudy world of foreign policy, the telltale issue is China. That country ties up a significant portion of Russia's armed might. It challenges the Soviet claim to supremacy in the communist world. It engages Japan in a tilt against Russia. It is, accordingly, crucial to any serious American hope of checking Soviet expansion.

Still Reagan would give Peking the wet mitten by a more formal diplomatic presence in Taiwan. Why? Because, the argument can be made to go, he is such an idealogue on the abstract issue of communism.

Join to those issues inexperience in national and international affairs and age, and there emerges a candidate extremely vulnerable to the kind of piranha politics Jimmy Carter plays with a vengeance. Except that by a rare stroke of good fortune, Reagan can erase the stereotype by picking one of three possible running mates.

GEORGE BUSH is the obvious choice. The former director of Central Intelligence, an envoy to China and to United Nations, covers Reagan on the questions of experience and age. He has an appeal on the East Coast, whence he hails, and in the industrial states of the Midwest where he showed strong in the primaries.

Only one true body temperature

Paul G. Donohue, M.D.

Dear Dr. Donohue: I am having a running battle with my daughter. I've told her that the only way to get an accurate temperature is to take it rectally. She won't believe me. She continues to take the kids' temp by mouth. Is she getting the right temperature? — Mrs. J.J.O.

You are technically both wrong.

The most accurate temperature is called "core" temperature. It is the temperature of the blood in the aorta, the large vessel through which blood leaves the heart. Core temperature must be taken with probes in the esophagus or with a device that measures the temperature of the ear drum. I'm certainly not suggesting these methods for your daughter. I mention them to try to settle your argument. You both are wrong (to a "degree"). Now to your question.

Rectal temperature will be about a degree higher than that measured under the tongue. The higher rectal temperature is caused by the bacterial activity occurring in the rectum. If the oral temperature is taken properly (if the child is not breathing through the mouth) there is no real basis for saying one method (oral or rectal) is superior to the other.

As a poor third, underarm temperature is also acceptable but it will register two degrees lower than rectal and one degree lower than oral.

For obvious reasons it may be more convenient to take a child's temperature recatlly or underarm, especially in very young children. It takes a bit of experience. Since you seem to have it, you can help by explaining the method to your daughter just in case the doctor wants her to take it that way in the future.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Why did I get a yeast infection from taking antibiotics? — Mrs. I.M.

We have on and in us many microscopic organisms — bacteria and fungi (yeasts). They do us no harm. They actually do us good. Some of them, for example, make vitamins.

When an antibiotic is given for any reason, it can kill off the normal "germs" as well as the one causing an illness. The place where the normal germs are killed off now becomes a good place for the unwanted yeasts to multiply and predominate. They just "move in," so to speak. Previously, in fact, their numbers had been kept down by the "good germs." It is an unpleasant, but often necessary price to pay to cure an illness.

Dear Dr. Donohue: My problem is dandruff. I believe it is a scalp condition. My friend tells me that frequent shampooing has a negative effect because it removes natural oils. Have you any general suggestions? — F.C.

Dandruff results from two processes — either a speedup of the natural shedding of outer layers of skin or overproduction in the scalp oil glands. Frequent shampooing is not a prime factor and, in fact, most authorities recommend daily shampooing to control dandruff.

If your scalp is very oily, you may need to use a medicated shampoo daily. Such shampoos contain selenium sulfide or tar products. If your scalp is extra dry, the medicated shampoo would be needed two or three times a week. On the days when the medicated shampoo is not used you can use your regular one. In particularly stubborn cases, a lotion with hydrocortisone (a steroid) helps.

Dear Dr. Donohue: Is there anything I can do for my cold hands in winter? They get very bad when I am out in the cold. I am 65 years old. I do smoke. — Mrs. T.W.

I can suggest two steps. You can spend the summer breaking that habit, or you can take advantage of a summer sale and buy a pair of warm gloves. Since I'm not trying to sell gloves, I suggest you quit smoking.

Nicotine tends to narrow the tiny blood vessels, and those of the extremeties (hands and feet) are most easily affected.

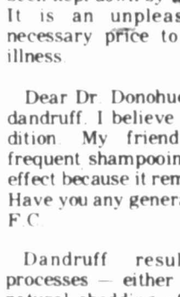

Dear Dr. Donohue: A neighbor is enthusiastic about a new nutritional plan which emphasizes uncooked fresh fruits and vegetables and one-food (like bananas) meals. Combinations of foods at the same meal are no-nos. No breakfasts, no cereals, no meats or eggs, etc. We will be grateful for your comments. — J.B.W.

Those are definitely whacko nutritional ideas. Whoever wrote them is rowing without both oars in the water, and if my own mother advocated this, I would call her bananas.

Do you have problem hair? Dr. Donohue's booklet, "Good Health for Your Hair," shows how proper treatment can result in healthier, more attractive hair. To get a copy, write Dr. Donohue in care of the Big Spring Herald, enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 50 cents.

Your thryoid plays a critical health role — in everything from eyesight to fertility. The booklet "Your Thyroid: How It Works for You" explains this important, and misunderstood gland. To get a copy, enclose 50 cents and a long, stamped and self-addressed envelope to Dr. Donohue: in care of the Big Spring Herald.

Dr. Donohue welcomes reader mail but regrets that, due to the tremendous volume received daily, he is unable to answer individual letters. Readers' questions are incorporated in his column whenever possible.

My answer

Billy Graham

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Do you think it is right for a Christian to be concerned about money problems? I find myself worrying a lot about things like inflation and whether or not I will have enough money when I retire. — P.S.A.

DEAR P.S.A.: I believe God would have you make prudent and careful plans, but it would be wrong for you to be consumed with worry about the future. Such worries would actually be a lack of trust in God, and that is why Jesus commanded, "So do not worry, saying, 'What shall we eat' or 'What shall we drink?' or 'What shall we wear?' ... your heavenly Father knows that you need them" (Matthew 6:31, 32).

Does that mean you are to never think about such things, or make plans for the future? No — there is a difference between planning and being consumed with worry. God has given us the ability — and even the responsibility — to work so we can provide for our needs (and the needs of others who may not be able to work). In ancient Israel it was common to store up food from bountiful harvests to provide food for years of famine.

But that is a different thing than worrying about the future instead of trusting God. God has promised to take care of you if you are His child. That does not mean you will always have everything you want — but it does mean that God will meet the needs you really have when you look to Him.

The Bible is concerned about the future, but most of all warns us against putting our trust in material things instead of God. "Do not store up for yourselves treasures on earth ... But store up for yourselves treasures in heaven ... Seek first His kingdom and His righteousness, and all these things will be given to you as well" (Matthew 6:19, 20, 33).

Red-letter days

Around the rim

Robbi Crow

Remembrances of red-letter dates decorate the scrapbook of everyone's mind.

You know, like that day you correctly spelled the word 'xiphosuran' in the school spelling bee, making you victorious over the classroom brain who had won the title consecutively for the past four years.

AND THEN THERE was the time your orthodontist unexpectedly decided it was time for your braces to come off just in time for the high school senior prom.

Such moments and the recollection of these moments, instill within us a motivation to keep on going, reinforcing us that life is worth living.

The average American male, no doubt, recalls the date he landed that 24 ¾-pound catfish (give or take 10 pounds) at his favorite fishing spot as his most memorable experience.

Following closely is that occasion when he accomplished his first hole-in-one at the local country club immediately after the club pro sliced his shot directly into a distant sand trap.

As I was thinking over the red-letter days of my life, one stood out above all the rest.

Not many occasions during my almost 22 years top the day I pranced out of TSO sporting a pair of brand new, sparkling blue contact lenses.

After having been forced to wear glasses for the previous five years because of my progressively worsening vision, I welcomed the switch to contacts.

For once I'd be able to walk out into the rain without raindrops splashing and then drying on the lenses of my glasses. (I've often wondered why they don't put windshield wipers on the things).

For once I'd be able to look out of the corner of my eye and still visualize things as clearly as I could looking straight forward.

Glasses always made me feel like I was living inside a framed fishbowl. Nothing ever seemed to be stationary. When I moved, the walls, floor and furniture seemed to bobble as if they were floating in water.

But I must be honest. Accompanying the cherished happiness I've found with my plastic eyes have been thousands of tears as well as fears: tears every time we get hit by one of our usual West Texas sandstorms, and fears whenever I have to tell my husband, 'I've lost another one.'

THERE'S ONE THING for certain, contact lenses aren't quite as easy to keep up with as glasses. I'm sorry to say not my first, second nor third pair ever made it to see 1980.

Some met their tragic endings in a deep, dark bathroom drain pipe, never again to be found. Others were accidently stepped on and broken when they weren't recovered soon enough after their departure from my eyes.

But I'd say the majority of my 'lost' contact lenses have found refuge in a 'contact colony' that I know must exist somewhere in the carpet at my house.

I still panic at the thought of losing one. Take away my corrective lenses and I might as well be marked incapacitated.

Getting contacts may not sound as memorable to you as the time you beat up the class bully in front of your girlfriend, or the day your acne miraculously cleared up on the day of your big date, but to me it was.

It meant trashing my glasses and I haven't regretted it yet.

Senility issue

Jack Anderson,

DETROIT — Would a 70-year-old president have the mental vigor to grasp all the facts in a crisis situation and make the necessary hard decisions? Or would he tend to become confused over complicated matters, his mind wandering because of approaching senility?

Ronald Reagan, who will be 70 just 17 days after Inauguration Day, managed to keep his age from becoming an issue in the Republican primary campaign. But if Jimmy Carter's primary strategy is any indication, he'll show no compunctions about injecting sly attacks on his opponent's advanced years into the election battle.

WE CONSULTED SOME of the nation's most respected experts on the aging process to see whether there is any need to be concerned about Reagan's mental health. The consensus of the experts in gerontology — including some admittedly diehard Democrats — was that Reagan's age by itself should not be a factor. If they agreed with his political views, they said, they'd have no reluctance in voting for him.

They did, however, add one caveat. Nearly all the experts on aging suggested that Reagan should be routinely but carefully monitored for signs of "senile dementia" — the umbrella term for a number of diseases associated with progressive deterioration of the brain, characterized by memory lapse or errors in judgment.

As one gerontologist told my associate Tony Capaccio, Reagan at 69 is approaching "a high-risk age" when senile dementia is more likely to occur. At 60, he explained, the chances of senile dementia are only 1 in 100; at 65, they are 2 in 100. But between 70 and 75 — the age period that would encompass a Reagan first term — the chances of senile dementia rise dramatically to between 5 percent and 12 percent.

There is a standard set of neurological and "mental status" tests, the experts told us, that would identify the onset of senile dementia "with reasonable accuracy." Yet Reagan has apparently not taken these tests. He has, of course, promised that if he grew senile in office, he'd resign — without specifying how a senile president could be convinced of his own senility.

THE EXPERTS ALSO generally agreed that a person in his early 70s who is thrown into a stressful situation would not necessarily contract stress-related illnesses. If a person managed the stress properly, such as Reagan seemed to do during the primary campaign, he shouldn't be any worse off than a younger person. Nor would the tensions associated with the job abnormally enhance the aging process.

Barring physical or mental deterioration, the specialists concluded that Reagan would have no trouble in the vital area of decision making. When given time and necessary information, a man in his early 70s has about the same decision-making ability that he had in his 40s.

But for all that, one expert quipped, "I wish he were 10 years younger."

DRAGON DE-FANGED: When Charles Duncan left the Pentagon to take over the Department of Energy, he took his general counsel, Deanne Siemer, with him. The move was greeted with sighs of relief by many a general and admiral at the Pentagon, where Siemer had earned the nickname "Dragon Lady" because of her short temper and authoritarian manner.

Sources at DOE say that Siemer practically runs the agency as Duncan's special assistant, and has lived up to her sobriquet, breathing fire on anyone who displeases her.

Memos from Siemer never recommend or suggest; they state that this or that "shall be done." One official reported that at top-level meetings, Siemer sits at Duncan's side "glaring at everyone." The official added glumly: "Her basic nature is to be unhappy with everybody and everything."

Nothing, apparently, is too small to escape Siemer's attention. For example, she ordered the public affairs office to stop reprinting editorial cartoons about the agency in its daily news summary. It was, she said, "derogatory to the department."

Recently, however, Siemer got in hot water with her boss when her stepson, Jonathan Willens, took a summer job with a consulting firm that does work for DOE. When Duncan heard about it, he reportedly hit the roof. He ordered that Willens quit, which the young man did.

TOP-SECRET CORRECTION: When the CIA discovers that it made a mistake in its top-secret Weekly Review, it informs its readers — in Congress and the White House — the way newspapers traditionally do. It runs a correction.

Thus, a report in June 1975, that spent reactor fuel rods were removed illegally from an Argentine nuclear reactor site, proved to be wrong. So in August 1975, the Weekly Review ran a correction headed "Argentina: No Safeguards Failure." The red-faced CIA editors explained: "The report was in error; subsequent information indicates that the fuel had not left the site." It had just been stored.

Like many embarrassed editors, the CIA buried its correction story deep inside the weekly report.

WATCH ON WASTE: General Accounting Office auditors have uncovered flagrant waste at the federal correctional institution in Ashland, Ky. Prison officials laid out $220,000 to renovate the facility's sewage treatment plant, unaware that the town was planning to connect the prison to its sewage system. The prison plant was scrapped, and $82,000 more was spent connecting up to the town sewer. The GAO found also that $100,000 had been spent renovating the dormitories. Part of the spruce-up was installation of "dropped" ceilings. Then it was discovered that inmates were using the ceilings to hide contraband, and they had to be ripped out.

LBJ Grasslands — Texas' best kept secret

DECATUR, Texas (AP) — It's not what you'd call Paradise Lost, or found, but the LBJ National Grasslands may be the state's best kept secret.

Hardly an hour's drive from the Dallas-Fort Worth Metroplex, the grasslands offer a variety of hunting, fishing, camping and hiking opportunities.

Or, if you prefer, you can sit and envy someone else's cattle and oil wells.

Indeed, it's that kind of mixed bag, scattered over 20,000 acres in a vaguely confusing patchwork of federally-owned sections concentrated north of here in Wise County.

Though free and open to the public, few know of its existance and accessibility.

"I guess fishing is our biggest attraction, but we do have campers and hikers and some quail and dove hunting," said Kent Evans, the assistant ranger here for the U.S. Forest Service.

"We also got lots of oil wells and cows," he added with a grin, "and savages from the city."

Ranchers lease pastures to graze their cattle, and former landowners who retained mineral rights have exercised options to drill for oil and gas.

The "savages" referred to by Evans are the trigger-happy punks who shoot up the forestry signs and even the windmills that grace the countryside.

During deer season, Evans wears bright orange clothing to discourage near-sighted hunters from shooting him.

"We're working to cut off, or at least shorten, the deer season," he said, explaining that the mid-November-Jan. 1 season and three-deer limit are "absurd" for grasslands hunting.

"We have tremendous habitat but the deer are few and far between," he said. "It's more appropriate for quail and dove, but there's not a real heavy population of either."

Much of the land is undeveloped recreationally, a boon to outdoorsmen but a nuisance to those who prefer picnic tables and plumbing.

Black bass, sunfish and catfish can be found in the five small lakes of the grasslands, but the biggest, Cottonwood Lake, was recently drained to kill out the carp.

Cottonwood is being restocked with fingerling bass, channel cats and hybrid sunfish but is closed for fishing until 1982.

"Camping and other public uses will continue," Evans said.

The grasslands here and a sister tract called the Caddo Grasslands in Northeast Texas are rich in Indian history, and the Caddo unit derives its name from the first inhabitants of the land.

This unit was known as the Cross Timbers until June 1974, when it was renamed the Lyndon B. Johnson National Grasslands in honor of the late president.

After the Caddos, Commanche and Apache came the original stockman, who found a land teeming with great herds of bison, antelope, deer and elk.

They burned the wooded areas and cultivated them for grazing.

Next came the patch farmers who built log fences and houses. By 1850, much of the area was grazed by cattle, and farms were scattered along the drainages.

During this period, a historian observed, Wise County "had the dubious distinction of having more people killed and more horses stolen by Indians than any county in Texas."

In the 30 years preceding the turn of the century, an estimated 10 million head of cattle were driven northward from Texas along the Chisolm Trail through the Cross Timbers.

By the early 1900s, much of the land was cleared and farmed. But careless farming methods and overgrazing exposed the soil and paved the way for destructive erosion.

To this day, moldy storm cellars and concrete ruins attest to that economically turbulent era.

The government, in an attempt to restore the lands to productivity, purchased 20,332 acres in Wise and Montague counties in 1938.

Managed for a time as reclamation projects, the lands were transferred in 1953 to the U.S. Forest Service and renamed the National Grasslands.

Great emphasis, however, remains on restoration through soil and watershed protection and erosion control.

"Off-road vehicle traffic is prohibited because of the extremely erosive soils," said Evans, whose job it is to ticket offenders.

But that's about the only restriction on visitors, some of whom stumble onto the grasslands largely by accident. Evans admits the charms of his grasslands have been something of a secret.

At least until now.

ACU band camp attracts 13 Big Spring students

ABILENE—Thirteen junior high students from Big Spring are attending the 10th annual Abilene Christian University band camp this week on the ACU campus.

The students are: Tonya Sneed of Box 75, Carlene Westfall of Box 283, Bryan Letz of Box 311 B, Mary J. Salazar of Box 383, Greg Cass of Box 281-E, Angela Craft of Box 314-D, Ken Cobb of Box 304, Dawn Crawford of Box 325, Lisa Eddins of Box 359, Lori Elliott of Box 37, Donald Ewing of Box 39-C, Johnny Gage of Box 148, and Laura Kerby of Box 100.

Approximately 200 students participating in the camp are receiving individual instrument instruction as well as instruction in several classes of their choice, including twirling, drum majoring, flags, ensemble, marching, conducting and rhythm.

More than two dozen instructors from throughout Texas, including professors from the ACU and Baylor University music departments, are conducting the classes and giving private lessons.

The band will present a concert on the last day of camp. The concerts which are scheduled for 6:30 p.m. in ACU's Cullen Auditorium, will be free to the public.

The junior high camp, for band students in grades six through eight, began July 14 and will conclude July 18. The high school camp for students who will be in grades nine through 12 this fall, was conducted last week.

Relief systems may be thwarted by high

By the Associated Press

Two weather systems that could provide some relief from the Texas heat wave moved towards the state from two directions today, but forecasters said they doubted either could provide significant relief.

A weak cold front was trying to move southward from northern sections of the Texas Panhandle and a weak tropical wave moved westward in the Gulf of Mexico, bringing with it some shower activity for the upper Texas coast.

The strong upper level high pressure system that has kept the state hot and dry for almost a month was expected to thwart the movement of both systems.

Forecasts called for showers along the upper Texas coast and for scattered showers and thunderstorms in far West Texas and in northern sections of the Panhandle.

Skies were to be clear over the remainder of Texas.

Highs were to be around and slightly above the 100-degree mark over most of the state today and were expected to range upward to as high as 106 in North Central Texas and up to 108 in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Most temperatures were above 100 Tuesday with highs including 107 at Wichita Falls, 106 at Dallas-Fort Worth, Tyler had 103, Abilene 102, Waco 101 and Longview 99.

Some heavy thunderstorms were reported before dawn today in northeast sections of the Panhandle. A heavy thunderstorm was reported located just north of Canadian, extending eastward into northwest Oklahoma.

Some showers fell during the night in far western sections of the state and in the northern Panhandle. There were no reports of significant rainfall.

Skies were mostly clear early today although a few low clouds were reported from along the upper coast near Palacios northwestward to the San Antonio-Austin area.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 70s and 80s. Extremes ranged from a comfortable 63 at Marfa in the mountains of Southwest Texas to a stuffy 85 at Dallas-Fort Worth.

WEATHER FORECAST

WEST TEXAS — Fair and hot through Thursday except partly cloudy over and west of mountains and northwest Panhandle. Widely scattered thunderstorms extreme west and northwest Panhandle. Highs 95 to 108. Lows 68 to 78 except near 60s higher mountain valleys.

EXTENDED

WEST TEXAS: Continued sunny and hot days with fair and warm nights. Highs in mid 90s north to near 108 along the Rio Grande in the Big Bend. Lows upper 60s north to upper 70s south except near 60 southwestern mountains.

Chrysler stands to lose $1.2 billion in 1980

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chrysler Corp., facing more risks in its struggle to survive, will lose more than $1.22 billion in 1980 and may need up to two-thirds of its federal loan guarantees before year's end, the government says.

The troubled automaker received preliminary approval Tuesday from the Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board for up to $300 million in new loan guarantees as the second installment in a $1.5 billion government bailout package.

The board, which approved the first $500 million June 24, said that despite the deteriorating financial picture, it still believes Chrysler can recover if the company's new line of compact cars sell well next fall.

The loan board endorsed $250 million in loan guarantees pending a congressional okay within 15 days. It also favored another $50 million in guarantees if Chrysler can match that with private financing.

Chrysler has informed the Treasury Department it wants to sell the new guaranteed bonds on July 31.

The loan board said government analysts now believe that despite public denials, Chrysler could need up to $1 billion in government loan guarantees before the end of 1980 and $1.2 billion by sometime in 1981.

"They are going to try to hold their request (this year) to $800 million," said Treasury Secretary G. William Miller, who heads the board. But he said this "would squeeze them a little tight. We see the prospect for $200 million more."

The board stressed that the risks facing Chrysler have mounted in the past month, with the nation's third-largest automaker hit particularly hard by the general slump in auto sales and publicity of its financial struggles.

Chrysler on Tuesday reported a loss of $1.017 billion for the first six months of 1980 — about $146 million more than estimated as recently as May.

The loan board's revised projection forecasts another loss in the third quarter, but a profit in the fourth quarter, with an overall 1980 loss of more than $1.22 billion.

Chrysler, which lost $1.097 billion last year, estimates its 1980 loss at almost $1.04 billion, worse than its earlier hopes of about $850 million.

"Market demand for Chrysler's Omni-Horizon line has weakened and the inventory levels of these cars have increased," the loan board said.

It also noted that "financial reserves available to Chrysler were lower now than previously forecast" and said the automaker could have problems agreeing with Mitsubushi Motors Corp. on financing of Chrysler's imports of the Japanese company's vehicles.

On the light side

Wrong turn for speeder

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A woman who took a wrong turn in St. Louis on her way to Oklahoma was nabbed for speeding four times in three hours while driving across Missouri, police said.

The first time the 23-year-old Youngstown, Ohio, woman was caught Monday, she was doing 99 mph, Lt. Ralph Biele said Tuesday. She promised to pay the ticket by mail, he said.

A short time later, she was pulled over for doing 68 mph and gave the officer her driver's license instead of posting bond on the ticket. The summons served as a temporary license.

The third time she was caught, also at about 68 mph, the highway patrol decided they ought to take her to the Lafayette County Courthouse.

As she was headed for the courthouse, the woman was pulled over again for speeding, Biele said.

"At that time, she threw a can out of the window toward the patrol car and we booked her for littering," Biele said.

No beer, please

BLACKFOOT, Idaho (AP) — A 39-year-old Pingree man has learned the hard way that rattlesnakes don't hold their liquor very well.

Paul Gallegos is nursing a blackened finger after he was bitten by a pet rattlesnake he and friends were trying to get drunk with beer, his wife, Joyce, told the Blackfoot News.

"Sometimes I think he's 13," Mrs. Gallegos said. "This was just too much. I hope he's learned his lesson."

Gallegos, a mechanic, and friends were taunting the snake in the back of a pickup truck on West Bridge in Blackfoot early Saturday, Mrs. Gallegos said. The snake belonged to one of the friends, she said.

After the snake struck, Gallegos was rushed to Bingham Memorial Hospital, where he was kept overnight for observation.

Still making money

DEADWOOD, S.D. (AP) — Ross Sorenson has set up a museum of prostitution in Deadwood in hopes of making up for some of the money he lost when the real thing was shut down recently.

For $2, the curious can tour the Pine Room, one of the four houses of prostitution that operated openly in Deadwood for a century.

Tours of the brothel began Monday and Sorenson, owner of the building that housed the Pine Room, described business as "fine."

Robbery not only motive in deaths, police suspect

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities say they are investigating the possibility that robbery was not the only motive in the execution-style slayings of three young people at a northside bowling alley.

Detective Willie Young said police are looking at several stories from friends of the victims who say "somebody may have been mad at somebody."

Investigators waited for the recovery of Gregory Garner, the only known witness to the slayings. Garner was shot in the head, but survived and was in critical but stable condition at a Houston hospital Tuesday.

"He's still got a tube down his throat," Young said. "But you can bet they'll be there as soon as he can talk."

Young said Garner had hinted more than one person was involved in the killings. The attackers lined the four young people up on the floor and shot them in the head.

The four had volunteered to stay overnight at the Fair Lanes Windfern Bowling Center after thieves broke in and stole coins from the alley's machines Saturday night.

Garner's father, Ira, discovered the bloody scene early Monday after a phone call from his son. Garner said his son told him he did not know the killers.

A Fair Lanes spokesman said about $800 was taken from the main cash register near the bodies early Monday.

Three of the four victims worked at the bowling alley. The fourth was the girlfriend of one of the employees. Their ages ranged from 17 to 25.

Fair Lanes, which operates 72 bowling alley across the country, has offered a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killers.

Tempers rising with temperatures, officials reporting

By the Associated Press

Tempers are rising with the temperatures, some officials are saying, and the three-week heat wave that has killed 689 people in the South and Midwest may be to blame for a rash of child abuse in Dallas.

The heat prompted Alabama Gov. Fob James to declare a state of emergency Tuesday. A state of emergency was put in effect Monday in Missouri.

President Carter directed federal officials to make $6.73 million available in six states to provide relief for poor people put in dangerous situations because of the heat wave. The money will be used to pay utility bills, buy fans and air conditioners and fund transportation to relief centers

Carole Bowdry, director of the child abuse program in the Dallas County child welfare department said that incidents of child abuse have increased steadily since June 23, when the heat wave began in Dallas.

"If you're hot, you're going to get angry faster," Ms. Bowdry said Tuesday.

"That applies to parents and especially to children," she said. "Historically our wort cases of child abuse have happened in extremely inclement weather of one type or another," Ms. Bowdry said.

Temperatures were in the high 90s or over 100 Tuesday in a broad section of the country stretching from the Southwest to the Southeast and from Illinois to Alabama. Among the higher readings were 110 in Hutchinson, Kan., 109 in Kansas City, Mo., and 104 in Bowling Green, Ky.

The National Weather Service has said no relief is in sight, at least until the end of the week.

Deaths from the heat have been reported in 17 states, with Missouri having the most at 154, according to an unofficial count by The Associated Press.

However, in Minnesota, rain, high winds and hail were the weather problems Tuesday night.

More than 45,000 customers in the Minneapolis-St. Paul area were left without electricity when power lines were toppled. The winds also broke windows in homes. In southern Stearns County, in the central part of the state, hail of one-half to one inch was reported.

In Alabama, Gov. James said that by declaring the emergency, he could make National Guardsmen available to help the elderly combat the heat wave. He said competitive bidding laws can be ignored during a state of emergency, so needed equipment can be obtained more quickly.

States to receive the federal assistance ordered by Carter are Texas, Missouri, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Kansas.

Carter also told the Agriculture Department to monitor distribution of assistance to farmers affected by the drought. Agricultural losses have been estimated at more than $2 billion.

Closeup: A farmer and his corn crop

ELMWOOD, Ill. (AP) — Jim Gutshall searched the sky for a hint of rain, but there was none.

The ground had been bone dry for two weeks and the temperature hovered at 100 degrees. Six hundred acres of Illinois corn lay before him, a year's work, broiling under the July sun.

"We can't be very far away from a ruined crop," he said, sweat running down his face. "We're not hurting too bad yet, but this weather's bound to affect us. Another week of this and it's going to get serious."

It already is serious for farmers farther west, from Texas to the Dakotas, where hot, dry weather has parched their land and destroyed their crops. Now the heat wave has spread into the heart of the Midwest Corn Belt.

Gutshall farms about 670 acres of corn and soybeans on a patchwork of undulant central Illinois land that his father farmed, and his grandfather before him. It is rich black loam, some of the best in the world, but unless there is rain soon, the harvest will be lost.

"Last year, we had rain at the end in August and it saved the crop," said Gutshall, 57. "We need six or eight inches over the next month and we need it spread out in timely fashion. It's like everything else, if you don't do it timely, you've been had."

Blistering temperatures and a lack of rainfall have plagued the Southwest, the Mississippi Delta area and now the Midwest Grain Belt. It has resulted in fears of reduced yields at a time when world demands are high, analysts say.

The heat spell has driven up the price of grain used to feed livestock and, eventually, will take its toll by sending meat prices even higher.

Illinois is a key corn state. Last year, American farmers harvested a record 7.8 billion bushels of corn. Illinois ranked second only to Iowa at 1.4 bushels.

But the heat wave that has now moved into Iowa and Illinois has come at the worst possible time. The corn is pollinating and temperatures of 95 degrees or higher inhibit that process, leaving fields of cobs without kernels.

Gutshall is a typical family farmer in the region. He is a big man with a broad smile, brown skin leathered by the elements and deep crow's-feet at the corner of eyes the color of the sky.

He and his wife, Juanita, have three children.

"Back in 1970 there was a blight," he said Monday, pulling his white seed-corn cap off his head. "It took 60 percent of the crop. Then, in 1974, the weather hurt a lot of folks. Too wet, flooding on French Creek and the Kickapoo."

He has not yet added the drought of 1980 to the litany of bad years. It is still too early.

"Unfortunately nobody will know whether pollination has occurred until the corn has been harvested," said Chuck Doubet, manager of the grain elevator in Elmwood. "We probably haven't lost any of our crops yet.

"Farmers here are actually happy because they're getting a good return on their investment and they've got the crop. Of course, all that could change in two weeks."

Farmers sell their grain at the elevator for the going price. In the last few weeks, the price for those who survive the heat wave promises to be good.

The price of a bushel of corn has risen about 30 cents in the last month. And in farming, every penny counts. For a farmer with 500 acres, the price rise in the last month could mean an extra $22,000 or more.

The elevator in town is where they come to check the price. It is a casual gathering place. There is a deck of cards on the counter and the restroom doors say "Heifers" and "Steers." The conversation hasn't changed much in 50 years: politics, the weather and the price of corn.

On Monday, an elderly farmer with spectacles, a straw hat and suspenders stood peering into a television screen on the counter to check the prices on the Chicago Board of Trade.

"They're trading the limit today," he said, referring to brisk buying among speculators at another good price.

He grinned. Like all those engaged in the risky gamble of farming, he is an eternal optimist. It will rain, his crop will come in and the price will be good.

Somehow, he is certain of it.

A block away on Main Street in Rushing's Cafe, an old fellow named Ray talked about the last big drought.

"Back in 1936," he said. "The corn around here looked pitiful. There was no weather and the ground was dust. It looked like a fire had gone through it."

But that is not the case here yet in the heart of corn country. Not yet. If they can hold on for rain, they will be saved.

"I'm concerned," said Ray. "I've got corn in the ground, so I'm concerned. But I'm not worried yet."

Your Daily HOROSCOPE

from the CARROLL RIGHTER INSTITUTE

FORECAST FOR THURSDAY, JULY 17, 1980

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You can solve a difficult problem when you are fresh and thinking clearly early in the day. Take constructive steps to overcome obstacles in your path of progress.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Look to experts for advice you need. Take time to concentrate on making your life more harmonious with close ties.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on how you can be more productive in the days ahead. Sidestep one who likes to waste your time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Ideal day to improve conditions at home. Use your own excellent taste where clothing and furnishings are concerned.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You can get your points across to others easily in the morning and get ahead in career activities.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Handle matters of credit intelligently in the morning and later you can join congenials for recreation. Be happy.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Going after your personal aims will see you gaining them quickly. Try to meet the expectations of family members.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Morning should be spent taking care of personal matters, then go after what means the most to you financially.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Close friends can be helpful in a new project you have in mind. An intuitive prompting could be wrong so forget it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Let others know that you are a good citizen. Study a new outlet that looks promising. Relax at home tonight.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) New ideas you have can be put in operation quickly with good results following. Strive for happiness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Handle your duties wisely, then engage in more pleasurable activities. Avoid the expenditure of too much money.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Make better arrangements with those you wish to be associated with in the future. Be practical in making your plans.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will have the knack for getting others to join in some worthy cause, and should have sufficient education in order to make the most of the ability. One who can easily gain the cooperation of others in almost any endeavor.

"The Stars impel, they do not compel." What you make of your life is largely up to you!

Carter's brother 'has to get a job'

AMERICUS, Ga. (AP) — Deep in debt to a foreign government, Billy Carter says he has to get a job — but has been too busy even to think about what kind of work he should do.

"I've been tied up almost constantly with this stuff," President Carter's younger brother said Tuesday, referring to negotiations with the Justice Department that led to his registration as an agent of the Arab government of Libya. "I've been in Washington 11 times this month."

Carter registered as an Libyan agent on Monday, and acknowledged that he has received various gifts and a $220,000 loan from the government of the African nation.

But he said he has never promised to do anything for the Libyans and has had no contact with Libyan officials — besides accepting the loan checks — since October 1979.

"My main crime, I think, is to show friendship to a country that is not normally shown friendship in the United States, and I have not backed down," Billy Carter told reporters.

The American Jewish Committee, however, called Carter's association with Libya an attempt to "misuse the office of the president of the United States." Sen. William Roth, R-Del., called it "absolutely outrageous" and said he would push for a Senate investigation.

Carter said his once lucrative personal-appearance schedule vanished when his Libyan connection became controversial 15 months ago.

Since then, he has had no income and multiple problems, all expensive — medical treatment for alcoholism, investigation by a grand jury probing loans from Bert Lance's bank to the Carter family peanut warehouse when Billy Carter was running it, and finally the 15-month probe of his status as a foreign agent.

"It's extremely hard to get a job with anybody when you have a grand jury investigation in process," Carter said. "It's been a real hassle."

He borrowed from the Libyans because he "needed the money," Carter said. "I spent all my time the past year in the drunk tank or the grand jury."

The Justice Department's legal complaint against Billy Carter referred to his receipt of the Libyan money without calling it a loan, but Carter insisted that he is obligated to pay it back, with interest, although he declined to disclose the terms.

State welfare would rise if budget okayed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Welfare payments to needy Texas children would rise from $33 to $44 a month under a 1982-83 budget request approved Tuesday by the State Board of Human Resources.

For the first time, total welfare spending in Texas — state and federal — would hit the $2 billion-a-year mark if the 1981 Legislature approves the spending request.

In other action, the board:

— Voted to replace Dallas electronics magnate H. Ross Perot's insurance company with a New York firm to operate the state's Medicaid program, which pays medical bills for 700,000 needy Texans.

— Heard Jerome Chapman, state commissioner of human resources, report that federal spending cutbacks deprived almost 38,000 Texas women of birth control services in 1980. Chapman said women on welfare had a birth rate 51 percent higher than other Texas women last year.

— Formally instructed the Department of Human Resources to stop using federal funds for abortions, in line with a U.S. Supreme Court decision upholding the so-called Hyde Amendment.

The budget request approved by the board would spend $1.97 billion in 1982 and $2.25 billion the following year, compared with a 1981 appropriation of $1.7 billion.

Most of budget consists of federal money, but spending from state tax dollars would rise by $195 million in 1982 and another $130.6 million in 1983.

With Gov. Bill Clements and most lawmakers wanting to cut taxes or at least not raise them, the board faces an uphill fight to get the budget approved by the 1981 Legislature.

Raising average monthly welfare checks for needy children from $33 to $44 would hit the Texas constitutional limit of $80 million a year on total state grants to the poor.

The board selected Bradford National Corp. of New York City to operate the $400 million-a-year Medicaid program starting in September 1981.

National Heritage Insurance Co., founded by Perot specifically to operate the Texas Medicaid program, also bid to continue in that role but lost out.

Board experts estimated that over the four-year life of the contract, Bradford would be more than $20 million cheaper than National Heritage.

Two charged in deaths of four Lubbock men

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Two Lubbock teen-agers have been charged with four counts of murder each in connection with the deaths of four men outside a small east Lubbock pool hall, authorities said.

Justice of the Peace Charles Smith said he accepted the charges Tuesday against two 19-year-old Mexican-American men involved in the Sunday night shooting that left four men, including three members of a family, dead.

The suspects remained at large Tuesday night, Smith said.

District Attorney John Montford said he has recommended bond of $100,000 on each count.

Authorities also said they were seaching for a juvenile in connection with the incident that apparently arose from a fist fight. Police said several men entered the hall and followed several patrons outside, where the shots were fired.

One of the suspects was believed to have been wounded during the shootings, Montford said.

Blood donors are sought

Next Thursday has been set aside for The Medicine Shoppe to hold a blood drive at its place of busiess. Members of the community are being asked to donate a pint of life.

Concern for neighbors and loved ones has become more apparent due to more community awareness and participation in helping meet blood needs of patients in surrounding hospitals.

Parks singing for beans

NEW YORK (AP) — Bert Parks, who spent years hosting the Miss America pageant, is now promoting the idea that beauty is beans.

Parks turned out in a tuxedo Tuesday to make a commercial for Chock Full o' Nuts coffee. The set was decorated with a banner that read "American coffee pageant." A young woman by his side wore a coffee can.

Parks introduced the "beauties" — regular coffee, instant coffee and de-caffeinated coffee.

Parks was fired from his job as master of ceremonies for the Miss America pageant this year when he turned 65.

Chock Full o' Nuts paid Parks $200,000 "as down payment" for three 30-second commercials.

Vance daughter a lawyer

NEW YORK (AP) — Amy Vance, a young New York lawyer, had a rather unusual sponsor for her application to practice law in federal courts — former Secretary of State Cyrus Vance.

Vance and his wife, Grace, appeared in U.S. District Court in Manhattan Tuesday as their daughter, 30, was sworn with about 35 other lawyers by Judge Robert W. Sweet.

Miss Vance, who began practicing law after graduating from Fordham Law School three years ago, rushed to the clerk's office after the ceremony, paid an $18 fee and received a certificate permitting her to practice in the courts of the state's southern district, which includes parts of the New York metropolitan area.

Col. Sanders readmitted

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Col. Harland Sanders, 88, the symbol of Kentucky Fried Chicken, has been readmitted to the hospital, this time suffering from a problem with his esophagus, according to an official of the restaurant chain.

Sanders was hospitalized in early June for pneumonia, and doctors also discovered he had leukemia. Sanders was released and began receiving chemotherapy. On June 30, he was again admitted to the hospital for pneumonia, but was released Saturday.

Kathleen Partlow, spokesman for the fast food company, said Sanders' condition was not serious.

"It is a condition which makes swallowing difficult," she said.

Networking and forming a woman's center were also discussed and how those might be vehicles toward closer support for women helping women. The two major conclusions drawn from that meeting were that information and education is needed both by the general public and by women themselves. Efforts to relay this information to employers is also a prime importance.

All women of the Big Spring area are invited to this meeting whether or not they are presently working.

The meeting will be coordinated by Johnnie Lou Avery. More information can be obtained by calling her at 263-1451 or by calling the Chamber of Commerce office at 263-7641.

Before running, 5 to 10 minutes of warmup activites is a must. Stretching of the muscles and joints can be in progression from the upper body to lower.

A gradual colling off or slowing down period is needed at the end of the run for approximately 10 minutes. Sitting or standing during the recovery period immediately after the run should be avoided.

If chest pains develop during running, the runner should stop immediately and get in position of rest. If the pain disappears with the rest, a medical examination is advised.

Running is an enjoyable sport as well as physically beneficial; however, precautions will benefit runners observing preventive measures.

Iran's borders closed to retain rebels

Iran's ruling Revolutionary Council ordered the nation's borders closed today and Thursday to prevent the escape of conspirators in the plot against Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime, the official Pars news agency reported.

"From this date, all arrivals and departures through the land, air and sea borders of the Islamic Republic of Iran are forbidden for 48 hours," Pars said.

"It is only for a limited period, as approved by the Revolutionary Council, but of course if it is necessary during this period the matter will be reviewed," the prosecutor-general, Ayatollah Musavi Ardabili, said.

Hasan Habibi, the council's spokesman, said Iran has asked Turkey to extradite two Iranian air force lieutenants involved in the plot. The officers flew their helicopter to Turkey over the weekend and asked for asylum.

On Tuesday, Tehran Radio reported the "headquarters for neutralizing the plot" had been informed that some of the plotters "could cross the borders. Therefore, the head of the Islamic revolutionary courts decided to close all the Iranian sea, ground and air borders from the present moment for one week and no entry and exit will be allowed."

However, Pars said an informed source in the office of President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr told one of its correspondents the ruling council decided to reduce the period of closure to 48 hours.

In London, both Iran Air and British Airways, the only lines flying between London and Tehran, said they had not been advised of the border closing and had canceled no flights yet.

The Iranian government announced late last week it had crushed a military plot to overthrow Khomeini's regime. By Sunday, about 500 people, many of them military men, were reported arrested in the alleged conspiracy.

Iranian authorities said the plot called for air force planes to bomb Khomeini's home and a number of other targets in Tehran and other cities.

Meanwhile, the 52 Americans still held hostage in Iran faced their 255th day in captivity, and Secretary of State Edmund Muskie announced that the hostage freed last week, Vice Consul Richard Queen, would be flown from West Germany to the United States on Friday.

Doctors treating the 28-year-old American at the U.S. Air Force Hospital in Wiesbaden announced yesterday that he is suffering from multiple sclerosis. Sources in Washington said that he would be treated there and eventually sent to his parents' home in Camden, Maine.

Texas delegation picks Kemp in poll for GOP veep nominee

By
ELEANOR MORTENSEN
Harte-Hanks Election Team

DETROIT — U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp of New York outdistanced Texan George Bush of Houston Monday as the top choice for GOP vice presidential nominee in an informal poll of Texas delegates and alternates.

The poll was unofficial and later was denounced by Texas delegation leaders.

But it has to be weighed as a big negative to Bush's chances for a running-mate nod from soon-to-be presidential nominee Ronald Reagan.

Kemp, a former professional football player and favorite of the more conservative GOP delegates to the Republican National Convention, won 55 of the 107 first-choice votes cast by Texas delegates and alternates.

Bush collected 38 first-choice votes, Rep. Phil Crane of Illinois, 10, former Texas Gov. John Connally, two, and Sen. Richard Lugar of Indiana, one.

Other parts of the informal poll were even more damaging to Bush. He received only five second-choice votes, compared with 17 for Kemp and 46 scattered among other possibilities.

He headed the category in which delegates listed any persons who were unacceptable as a running mate for Ronald Reagan, with 43 votes. The other candidate to receive a significant negative vote was Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee, who is opposed by many conservatives because he voted for the Panama Canal Treaty.

Surprisingly, neither Texan Anne Armstrong nor former President Gerald Ford was even mentioned on a ballot.

"If the other candidates were eliminated, most of the votes for them would also go for Kemp," one delegates said.

The poll came during the state's first caucus Monday morning and surprised state party officials, who later denounced it at an afternoon news conference.

Ernest Angelo of Midland, chairman of Reagan's primary campaign in Texas, said at the news conference that "the poll was not sanctioned by anyone. I would hope that he will not give it (the results) to you folks (the news media)."

Angelo referred to Jerry Smith, the state Republican Executive Committee member from Houston, who arose at the caucus session and asked delegates to participate in the poll.

Smith said he decided to take the poll after hearing from a top Reagan staff official — whom he declined to identify — that Reagan remained open-minded on a running-mate and wanted comments on various possibilities.

Angelo said he did not think the poll "serves any purpose and is potentially divisive." Asked if the poll was aimed at eliminating Bush, Angelo declined to speculate."

Clements also said he was chairman of the Reagan-for-President Campaign in Texas and he already has started on a phone bank operation, a technique which helped him get elected as the state's first Republican governor in 100 years.

Clements said a tentative campaign budget of between $2 million and $2.25 million has been set for the Reagan drive in Texas. He added that he hoped to get about $600,000 of that from the National Republican Committee.

Both Angelo and Clements said Reagan's primary campaign workers will not necessarily be the same ones guiding the fall campaign. He admitted that some may have a lesser role and others may have a bigger part in the general election effort.

But the governor said people should not be concerned at this point where they will fit int. "They will be told when the time comes," Clements said.

Angelo also told the media that contrary to reports, "Bill and I are not feuding on how the campaign should be run."

What is a Girl Scout?

GLENDA ROBERTS
...modeling senior uniform

WHAT IS A CADETTE GIRL SCOUT?

A Cadette Girl Scout is an "older" Girl Scout of the seventh, eighth or ninth grade. She sells calendars and cookies, and excells with fund raising projects for troop trips and Wider Opportunities.

Some Cadettes earn badges, some concentrate on Challenges. Some work on earning the First Class Badge. All love to do things for others — like helping in Day Camp, serving as guides for Open House or Brownie Day at Camp, helping Junior Troops bridge to Cadettes. They go on Council sponsored trips such as the Eyes on Texas historical tour summer 1979 or Savannah, Ga. trip to the Birthplace of Girl Scouting, 1980. Some are old enough to apply to attend the international center, Our Cabana, Cuernavaca, Mexico. Cadettes like to go!

The Cadette program shares a career awareness exploration project for older girls "From Dreams to Reality" with the Senior Girl Scouts. A new program and a new uniform is being developed to update the Cadette horizon.

WHAT IS A GIRL SCOUT SENIOR?

A Girl Scout Senior has been called the "Cream of the Crop" — she is sometimes a ninth grader, or a tenth, eleventh, or twelfth grade student.

She may have been in Girl Scouting since Brownies; she may have earned her Brownie Wings and her Junior Sign of the Star and Sign of the Arrow and 37 Junior badges; she may have earned a vest full of Cadette badges and Challenge pins, and the First Class award; she may be working on Senior Service bars Dreams to Reality career exploration; she may be wearing a ten-year pin.

More importantly she may be serving on a Council committee (as Stefanie Ausmus did on the Camp Committee for three years); she may be a troop leader; she may be a consultant for the Junior Badge Workshop as several Big Spring Seniors did in 1979.

She may be attending a Wider Opportunity and earning credits for job applications by participation. She may take Counselor in Training (C.I.T.) at resident camp and then work as a camp Counselor, taking a responsible role in the leadership of younger girls.

Two Senior Girl Scouts graduated this Spring; Lavelle Bradford and Stefanie Ausmus were welcomed to an adult position in Girl Scouting by the Council President, Mrs. J.B. Cooper Jr. of Roscoe.

Senior Girl Scouts of Big Spring Troop 360 acted as official timers for the Track Meet held April 19 at Blankenship Field.

Senior Girl Scouts of a Six Council Exchange meet annually at a TAWASI Conference. (TAWASI means Friendship). Four Scouts from Big Spring attended the March 30-April 1, 1979 Alpine, Texas TAWASI.

Six Seniors have planned a Canoe Trip for July 21-24 down the Brazos. Jackie Hancock, Leader, Carol Ann Ivey, and Lois Ivey, canoe specialist, will participate.

Big Spring Seniors have applied to be a part of the two patrols to Our Cabana, summer 1981.

Bee pollen dangerous?

How sweet it is and how dangerous. According to an item in a recent Family Circle, eating bee pollen, a food favored by some who are into health foods, can be harmful if you are sensitive to ragweed. Dr. H. Cohen and J.N. Fink, of the Medical College of Wisconsin, Milwaukee and Dr. J.W. Yunginger of the Mayo Clinic report on three patients with long histories of mild hay fever who developed acute allergic reactions after eating bee pollen.

Karen Fortson is feted at recent bridal shower

A bridal shower feting Karen Fortson was given July 11 from 5-7 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Bill Draper.

Miss Fortson is the future bride of Craig Barber.

Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. A.J. McNallen, Mrs. Cecil Suttles, Mrs. H.C. Blackshear, Mrs. Tacoma Draper, and Mrs. Bob Carlile.

Others included Mrs. Larry Ray, Mrs. David Draper, Mrs. Jane Upton, Mrs. Noel Hull, Mrs. Pete Hull, Mrs. Ernest Welch, Mrs. Bill Draper and Mrs. G.C. Ragsdale.

They presented the honoree with a Mix-Master Kitchen Center Mixer.

The refreshment table was set with silver appointments. An arrangement of mixed summer flowers with apricot accents enhanced the table. Guests were served a cool apricot punch and tea cake.

Miss Fortson will wed Barber Aug. 2 at College Baptist Church. Dr. Jimmy Law, Midland, will officiate.

Dear Abby

Why Teen-agers Ought to Know

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old girl who lost my virginity when I was 17. I've had several venereal disease three times. The last time it cost me my right to bear children because I had to have a hysterectomy.

The guys will tell you there is nothing wrong with them, then you find out too late there was. I suppose some guys don't even know they have a disease, but any guy who goes from girl to girl should know that he is taking a big chance.

I just wish I could tell every girl who goes to bed with a guy how foolish she is to take the chances I took. There would be a lot more virgins. I wish my mother would have listened to me when I started asking questions about sex. I was 10 years old and already interested in guys, but my mother said I should be ashamed of myself for even thinking about such things.

I sent for your booklet "What Every Teen-ager Ought to Know," and gave it to my kid sister, who is 11. She read it and we discussed it, and she thanked me over and over again. If I had had something like that to read when I was her age, it would have changed my whole life.

Thanks for writing it, Abby, and keep up the good work.

LEARNED TOO LATE IN L.A.

DEAR LEARNED: I appreciate your letter. The response from those who have received my booklet has been gratifying. All parents want to protect their children from V.D. and unwanted pregnancy, but few know how to tell them what they need to know. That's why I wrote the booklet.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have two girlfriends. I'll call Peg and Dot. My problem is that Peg and Dot are not on speaking terms. It's not just a temporary little spat that might blow over soon, they have not been speaking for a long time. I am going to be married soon, and I want them both in my wedding party. (I was maid of honor for both of them.)

Peg says if Dot is in the wedding party, I can count her out. On the other hand, Dot says she doesn't care if Peg is in the wedding party or not, but if she is, she'll ignore her. I want them both, so what should I do?

SEPTEMBER BRIDE

DEAR BRIDE: Don't let Peg force you to choose between her and Dot. Tell Peg you want her in your wedding party, but you intend to invite whomever else you want, and she may accept or decline — the decision is HERS!

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Four years ago, as a volunteer for a crisis center, I gave lectures on how to prevent rape, never realizing that one day that information would be useful to me.

Recently it was necessary for me to drive a houseguest to the bus station at 3:00 a.m. After seeing her off, I returned to my car and started home. Soon I noticed a man in another car following me. To make sure I was being followed, I made several turns. After the third turn, he turned off his lights, but kept following me. I did not go home; instead I drove to the police station and began honking my horn, whereupon the man in the other car took off like a rocket. Then the police came out to investigate. I told them what had happened, they commended me for the way I handled it and gave me an escort home.

I would like to tell women: If you suspect you're being followed, never drive home; always drive to the nearest police station and honk your horn. If you don't know where the police station is, drive to an all-night business place and honk your horn. The worst that can happen is that the owner will think you're weird and call the police.

I never thought this would happen to me, but now that it has, I want to tell other women what to do if it happens to them.

LUCKY IN COLORADO

DEAR LUCKY: Thanks for a useful letter. And Readers, if you don't know where your police station is located, make it your business to find out today.

Doris Guy presides

The Altrusa Club of Big Spring held its initial meeting of the club year with its new president, Doris Guy, presiding.

Members gathered July 10 at noon in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn.

Special guest attending was Carol Hunter. Twenty-two members were present.

Recommendations were made to mail out newsletters each month and a new budget program was approved.

Newsletter reporters selected were Sarah Reed and Mildred Vanderford.

Reports were given by Neva Green, Gertrude McCann, Pat Highley and Bonnie Bennett.

The group will meet again July 24 at noon in the Patio Room of the Holiday Inn.

Bride-elect is honored

The future bride of Mitch Butler, Mariella Wise, was the honoree at a bridal shower held July 8 at 7:30 p.m.

The event took place in the home of Mrs. Jake Glickman, Silver Heels.

Other hostesses included Shirley Deel, Linda Williams, Peggy Sue Crabtree, Gail Meyers, Kay Burns, Mardelle Wise and Laura Mae Pollard.

Special guests present for the occasion were Mrs. Micky Almond, sister of the prospective groom, and Mrs. Mary Ella Winkler, grandmother of the bride, both of San Angelo.

Champagne-colored cider and gingerale punch, mints and cake were served. The table was set with napkins imprinted with the couple's names. Hostesses presented the bride-to-be with an electric skillet.

Miss Wise and Butler will be married in a garden wedding Saturday at the home of the groom's parents in Ruidoso, N.M.

Never be ashamed of true affection

By Robert Wallace, Ed. D.

Dr. Wallace: After reading your column tonight I just had to add my thoughts and respond to the 15-year-old boy who was confused about kissing his dad good night.

I almost cried when I read his letter. My father died not long ago, and I'd give anything to go back and give him a million kisses. I remember all the times I was embarrassed to either give or receive affection from my father. I realize now that he was one of the best friends I had. I miss him so much, and I would be proud to show the whole world how much I love him.

That boy is lucky to have such a loving relationship with his father. Someday maybe he will understand how lucky he truly is. True affection is nothing to be ashamed of, no matter what anyone says. — Timothy, Columbus, Ohio

Timothy: Well said. Thanks for sharing. Your words will help many teens as well as countless moms and dads.

Dr. Wallace: I recently read a book about life after death and it stated that there is no God.

It says that the human being is his own god. I told my mother and she said that the book was wrong and that there is, indeed, a holy God. I'm confused and don't know what to think. I'd like to hear your point of view. — Sharon, Fredricton, New Brunswick, Canada

Sharon: How can one explain the miracle of birth, the beauty of a flower, the grandeur of a mountain, or the mystery of outer space? Yes, I believe there is an Almighty God and that every living soul will have to answer to Him after death.

Dr. Wallace: I'm a 13-year-old girl and I like this guy who is 18. My problem is my mother — she doesn't trust me. She thinks that I sneak around behind her back, but honestly, I don't. I just go walking around and he is always riding around in his car or on his motorcycle and we talk.

My parents treat me like I was 10. I must be in my yard at dark and I have to be in the house at 9:30 and I don't think it is fair at all. Do you agree? — Connie, Florence, Ala.

Connie: No, I don't agree. I think your mother is more than fair and is treating you like you were 13 not 10. In fact, it wouldn't be quite so liberal if you lived in the Wallace house.

Write to Dr. Robert Wallace, TwEEN 12 and 20, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

CHAMPION TITO ARENCIBIA AWAITS BALL

Game in order, says Nicklaus

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, spurred by his U.S. Open victory, is making an untroubled approach to his next major challenge: winning the British Open golf championship for a fourth time.

Nicklaus and fellow-American Tom Watson are co-favorites for the tournament that opens Thursday over the windswept 6,926-yard par 71 Muirfield course on Scotland's East Coast.

"I'm playing all right, hitting the ball all right," said Nicklaus, who has completed three practice rounds here and found nothing amiss with his game.

Nicklaus, 40, won his first British Open title as long ago as 1966, following up with further wins in 1970 and 1978. But then came the longest lean streak of an illustrious career, leading to rumbles that he was over the hill. But his win last month in the U.S. Open silenced the gloom merchants and the Golden Bear was back on top.

Other leading rivals in the tournament that offers more than $400,000 in total prize money are Seve Ballesteros, the Spaniard who added the Masters title to the British Open championship he won last year, PGA champion David Graham of Australia, South Africa's Gary Player, Japan's Isao Aoki, who was runnerup in the U.S. Open and a whole squad of America's seasoned circuit veterans.

In addition to Watson, who has twice won the British event, these include Lee Trevino, a two-time winner, former champions Tom Weiskopf and Johnny Miller, Andy Bean, Hubert Green, John Mahaffey, Larry Nelson, Jerry Pate and Ben Crenshaw, a runnerup in both 1978 and 1979.

Crenshaw told 6th graf

Crenshaw told reporters that he is backing himself to win this time, although he nominated Nicklaus and Watson as his major problems while Trevino was playing "very well."

Wolfe wins 2-mile run

Karl Wolfe, a Big Spring High School student, came in first in the Chile Fiesta two-mile run while Tito Arencibia defeated Travis Hunter in the Fiesta Handball Tournament held at the local YMCA.

Wolfe's winning time was 10:57.

Raul Marquez wound up third in the handball tournament after defeating Jerry Zambrano.

First place in the women's two-mile run was earned by Melinda Cherryhomes, with a time of 16:27. Second place went to Nadine Teague while Linda Ward placed third.

Fred Moren claimed second place in the men's two-mile race. He was timed in 11:03. Joe Moren was third with a 12:46 clocking.

Saturday at 8 a.m., runners from throughout the West Texas area will gather in front of the Big Spring Airport to run in one of three distance events — the 2.5, 6.8 or 13.1 mile races. Registration forms and maps can be picked up at radio station KBST, Big Spring Athletics or the YMCA.

Brett, Gale are back in lineup

By the Associated Press

Don't look now, but the Kansas City Royals have George Brett and Rich Gale back, and a whopping lead in the American League West.

"We went through a period of about two weeks before the All-Star break when we were getting hits and couldn't score," Kansas City Manager Jim Frey said. "Since the break it seems we've turned it around and are scoring runs. The one big thing that has happened since the break is we got George Brett back."

Tuesday night, Gale, the Royals' big right-hander, returned with a winning performance as Kansas City stopped the Boston Red Sox 8-4.

"He hadn't pitched in a couple of weeks, but he threw the ball well and with good control," Frey said. "I really didn't expect him to go as long as he did, hoping he'd go just six or seven innings.

"Maybe he needed the little rest to rejuvenate his arm. His control is better than it was early in the season, but maybe the fact we're getting him a lead once in a while has helped."

Kansas City, 18 games over .500 with a 5-1 record since the All-Star break, leads the Chicago White Sox, the Minnesota Twins and the Texas Rangers by 11½ games in the AL West.

In other AL games Tuesday, Minnesota edged the New York Yankees 5-4, Chicago nipped Texas 2-1, Baltimore stopped Milwaukee 7-3 and California topped Cleveland 7-1.

Gale allowed only five hits for eight innings before needing relief help in the ninth as the Royals pounded out 15 hits. He was making his first appearance since being stricken by shoulder tendinitis July 2 for the second time in three years.

"It's something I thought was over when I felt great all last summer," Gale said. "However, it's there and I'm a little concerned about it. I also feel a little frustrated because it's the second time in two years."

Amos Otis staked Gale to a 1-0 lead with a homer off Steve Renko, 5-3, in the second and Hal McRae made it 3-0 with a two-run shot in the third.

Otis finished with three hits and Willie Wilson, Brett, Willie Aikens and Frank White two apiece against Renko and relievers Win Remmerswaal and Skip Lockwood.

White Sox 2, Rangers 1

Rookie Britt Burns outdueled veteran Ferguson Jenkins in Chicago's victory over Texas. Both pitchers gave up seven hits and Jenkins struck out 13, his best as a Ranger, before being relieved in the ninth.

Burns, 10-7, got a fifth-inning home run from Bob Molinaro and outstanding defensive support from shortstop Todd Cruz.

Future Hawk Queens play

Howard College will be well represented in the annual Texas High School Girls' Coaches Association All-Star Game this week, says head coach of the Howard College Hawk Queens, Don Stevens, as three Hawk Queen signees will be among the top players in the prestigious game.

Carrie Lee Lutrick, a 5'9" forward from Abernathy, and Cynthia Robinson, a 5'8" post from Slaton, will take to the court for the North All-Star Team; and Carol Wasserman, a 5'9" wing from Rogers, will play for the South All-Star Team, said Stevens.

Lutrick, who signed a letter of intent with the Hawk Queens in late May, shot 54 percent from the floor to amass 428 points for an average of 14 points per game. She was also selected to the All-District team and the All-South Plains Area Team.

Wasserman, who signed with Howard College in June, scored 594 points her senior year, averaging 16.9 points per game, and hit 50 percent of her shots. Her high game was 32 points.

Robinson, who just signed with the Queens last week, was selected All-District, All-Regional, and All-State three years in a row. Slaton High School has been the Class AA State Champions for the past three years.

The site of this year's clinic is San Antonio. The clinic will conclude with the All-State game Saturday evening.

Bench jubilant over 347th HR

By the Associated Press

It had been well publicized. Cincinnati Reds catcher Johnny Bench was closing in on another milestone — Yogi Berra's career home run record for catchers. When it finally was over, Bench was understandably pleased.

He stood watching the ball as it sailed deep into the left field seats at Cincinnati's Three Rivers Stadium — No.314 as a catcher, 347 lifetime and 15 for the year.

"As soon as I hit it, I knew it was gone," Bench said. "I don't even know where I threw my bat, but I knew I jumped high in the air."

As the ball cleared the fence, Bench raised his arms.

"I never remember doing that before," Bench said of his melodramatics. "I don't want to show a pitcher up, but I think he understands why."

The historic two-run blast came on the first pitch from Montreal right-hander Dave Palmer, 6-3, and capped a five-run, fifth-inning rally that helped the Reds to an 11-7 victory over the Expos. It followed a three-run homer by George Foster and helped snap a four-game Cincinnati losing streak.

Bench had tied Berra's record Saturday, and he said the toughest part about breaking it "was the long walk to the plate every time with the crowd cheering for me....."

"The fans wanted it, and on that trip I said, 'Please let's get it over with,'" Bench said.

Palmer got two homers in support from Ellis Valentine and another from Andre Dawson. For his own part, he was puzzled.

"I just can't understand what happened," Palmer said. "I was breezing along, and it seems I just lost my location. But giving up home runs to powerful swingers like Bench and Foster is nothing to be upset about."

Paul Moskau, 7-2, pitched Cincinnati's first complete game since the Fourth of July, yielding nine hits but benefitting by 13 Reds hits and three Montreal errors. Two errors were by Expos third baseman Larry Parrish in the third inning and led to two unearned runs.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston edged Philadelphia 3-2, Pittsburgh downed San Francisco 5-2, New York whipped Atlanta 9-2, St. Louis beat San Diego 5-3 and Los Angeles defeated Chicago 6-2.

Astros 3, Phils 2

A win would have tied Philadelphia with Montreal for the NL East lead, but a balk and an error by Phillies right-hander Dick Ruthven gave the game to Houston and dropped the Phils to third behind Pittsburgh.

Tied 2-2, Alan Ashby led off the Houston ninth with a single, and Jeff Leonard came in to pinch run. Leonard took second on Ruthven's balk, and Ruthven threw away Craig Reynolds' grounder to score the winning run.

Joe Sambito, 4-1, picked up the victory with one scoreless inning in relief of Nolan Ryan, who yielded one earned run in eight innings and at one time retired 13 straight batters.

Pirates 5, Giants 2

Dave Parker cracked a two-run single to cap a three-run Pittsburgh rally in the eighth inning that snapped a tie and ended San Francisco's seven-game winning streak.

Mets 9, Braves 2

Steve Henderson homered twice, Lee Mazzilli added a two-run shot in the ninth and Pat Zachry tossed a six-hitter as the Mets reached the .500 plateau for the first time this late in the season since Aug. 19, 1976.

Mazzilli's homer came amid two bench-clearing confrontations between the clubs.

Lamesa team advances in Little League play

In probably the most one-sided game ever played in District 3 Little League competition, the Midland Eastern team walloped Stanton, 37-1, in the American League park here Tuesday night.

The Stanton team was badly bent but it didn't break. It hung on until the end.

Glaspie and Cantu managed Stanton's only hits. For Midland Eastern, Madrid clubbed a triple and a grand-slam home run.

In all, Eastern collected 14 hits. Young connected safely four times while Yorkman, Brito, Madrid and Sims each smashed two hits.

Matta, Dickens, Lozano and Pena each had one hit for the winners.

Midland now plays the winner of tonight's game between the Big Spring Americans and the Big Spring Internationals, who square off at 8 p.m., in the National Park.

In last night's other action, Lamesa bombed Big Spring National, 10-1, to send the vanquished into the losers' bracket.

Kenneth Williams was the winning pitcher for Lamesa. He helped his own cause with a home run. Richard Diaz also smashed a round tripper for Lamesa.

Scott Prentis, Richard Diaz, Gregg Hogg and Jacob Valderama all had singles for Lamesa while Aaron Fuller and Jimmy Scott collected doubles.

Lamesa will go against the Big Spring Texans, who drew a first round bye, Thursday night in National Park.

Midland Western and Midland North Central square off at 8 o'clock this evening in the American Park.

To United States Friday

Freed hostage to return

WIESBADEN, West Germany (AP) — Freed hostage Richard Queen will return to the United States Friday and undergo further treatment for multiple sclerosis before going to his parents' home in Camden, Maine, Secretary of State Edmund S. Muskie said.

Muskie told a group of officials in Washington Tuesday he talked to Queen by telephone at the U.S. Air Force hospital here and "found him in excellent spirits, happy, of course, at his release."

He called Queen's release Friday by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini a "very unexpected and surprising development," and said he has "no doubt" that the remaining 52 American hostages in Iran eventually will be freed.

Informed sources said Queen would be flown to Andrews Air Force Base near Washington and would be treated at a hospital in the Washington area.

Dr. Jerome M. Korcak, the State Department physician in charge of Queen's case, told a news conference in Wiesbaden Tuesday that the 28-year-old vice consul developed "very disturbing symptoms" of multiple sclerosis during his 250 days of captivity in Iran, including incessant vomiting, dizziness and a stiffness or numbness of his left arm.

He said the symptoms first appeared in December, a month after he was taken hostage in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

"It's well known that stress has a part to play in the clinical development of multiple sclerosis," Korcak said. "Whether the conditions in Tehran did that it would be impossible to prove or disprove."

But Korcak said he and Queen's other doctors "have every hope that he will be among that group of patients with mild and transient manifestations of the illness."

Uncle Nasty's bar permit is denied

Juana Mendoza, recently arrested on suspicion of possession of a controlled substance, was denied a beer license for her Uncle Nasty's bar for the third time Thursday.

Howard County Court Judge Bill Tune denied her the license. She appealed the case to 118th District Court, which upheld the county court decision.

Now State Court of Civil Appeals in Eastland under Chief Justice Austin McCloud has denied her the license.

"We felt like we wanted to protest the license because with the reputation Santos (Mendoza, her husband) had it could be a hot spot," said Howard County Attorney Harvey Hooser.

Mrs. Mendoza said in her application for the license that her husband did not have an interest in the tavern. She said in a public hearing that he would have community interest in the business.

An application can be denied for untruth in the form, said Hooser.

Mrs. Mendoza put the names of the people who sold her the bar in the part of the form asking who financed the club. Hooser said this was also not true.

"We knew it was a cover-up to begin with," said Hooser.

Former Big Spring Police Officer Mike Kelly testified that Santos Mendoza's reputation was "bad."

A license may be denied if authorities have reason to believe the license will be misused, said Hooser.

Mrs. Mendoza worked at the Big Spring State Hospital until 3:30 p.m. The tavern would have been operated by Santos and his sons during the day, said Hooser.

Santos had obtained a license previously but lost it due to a violation, said Hooser.

Robert Miller, Mrs. Mendoza's attorney in the civil matter, said he didn't know why the license had been denied.
