Fear Toll From Quake Will Rise

By JAMES C. DEWEY

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP)—Officials fear the toll will rise from earthquakes that rocked wide areas of central and western Colombia Monday.

First official reports said at least 20 persons died and 200 were injured. Scores of houses were destroyed or damaged. Hundreds were reported homeless.

Reports reaching Panama said at least 27 persons died in Colombia, 20 of them in the collapse of a factory in Pereira.

The extent of the destruction was not determined immediately, because the earthquakes knocked out communications with a number of areas.

At least 10 communities were reported without electric or telephone service.

Authorities ordered emergency rushed to stricken areas and armed forces were called out to help move the injured to hospitals.

Preceded by a series of lighter tremors minutes apart, the last and strongest of the shocks registered 9 on an intensity scale of 12 at the Andes Geophysical Institute in Bogota.

It was described as the most severe since an earthquake last December killed 21 persons in central Colombia. A large number of buildings damaged by last December's shocks collapsed under the impact of the latest jolts, authorities said.

Officials said the earthquake's epicenter was 155 miles west of Bogota, in the valley of the Cauca River, which runs between the western and central Andean Cordilleras. The shocks were felt as far away as Venezuelan border areas to the north and Quito, the capital of Ecuador, to the south.

Hardest hit were Manizales and Pereira, towns of 50,000 and 30,000 people about 23 miles apart on the western slopes of the central cordillera. They are about 110 miles west of Bogota and near the earthquake's epicenter.

Call, Colombia's second city, also was battered. Cali is about 140 miles southwest of Bogota.

The shocks shook Bogota's tallest buildings but no major damage was reported.

Officials said the dead in Pereira were women employees of a garment factory which caved in. At least 100 of the factory's 200 women workers were reported injured.

The collapse of part of a church in Cali killed four worshippers and injured a dozen more. Colombian poet Guillermo Gonzalez was reported killed in Manizales.

This huge financial empire in fertilizer sales, grain storage and cotton farming collapsed with his federal arrest last March.

Estes is charged by the state on four counts of theft by fraud involving manipulations of mortgages on fertilizer loans which state and federal agencies say do not exist.

The attempt to obtain a jury in Pecos occurred in late June. The defense agreed after several days that a jury could not be obtained. However, it fought against transfer of the trial.

WHICH ONE HAS THE WIG?—In this instance both the doll and Paty Lyn Bost, 4, are wearing wigs. Paty's was a birthday gift from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ted Bost of Norman, Okla. Mrs. Bost said her daughter's normal hair growth was affected when she was only 7 months old and that she had been bald since. Doctors said a burn and subsequent anesthetic caused the damage which may be permanent. (AP Wirephoto)

Filibuster Continuing

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., questioned the veracity of Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana today in a stormy Senate session over the Kennedy administration's bogged-down communications satellite bill.

Morse, one of the leaders of a filibuster against the measure, said, "I do not believe the majority leader."

At another point Morse challenged the accuracy of a statement by Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., the Democratic whip, or assistant leader.

At issue was an assertion by Morse that he was denied the right to state why he objected to a unanimous consent request Mansfield made during last week's debate and Mansfield's account of what took place.

When Morse said he didn't believe Mansfield, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, the Republican leader, asserted that Morse had put "the veracity of the majority leader at issue" and invoked a Senate rule against reflection on fellow senators.

Mansfield told Dirksen he appreciated but didn't need protection. Bristling with anger, Mansfield added that each senator could form his own judgment as to Morse's accusation.

Earlier, Morse directly disputed an account Humphrey gave of a warning Humphrey made last week that some senators might lose their seats if the Senate doesn't get along with its business.

Morse insisted Humphrey "took the crack at" opponents of the satellite communications bill and suggested they would be in trouble at the polls in November.

In measured tones, Morse said Mansfield and Humphrey are no longer his majority leader and party whip and "I shall never again look to them for any protection of my rights in the Senate."

He said that Mansfield knew "and I charge" that he (Mansfield) "denied my right" to explain his objection to the unanimous consent request.

Mansfield jumped up to say that "the senator from Oregon can charge me with anything he wants to" and read from last week's record, and outlined what he said was the position he took at the time.

It was at this point Morse declared "I don't believe the majority leader."

Things quieted down after that and Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., took over the chores for the filibuster with the resumption of a speech against the bill.

Sen. George A. Smathers, D-Fla., assistant Democratic floor leader, said a cloture petition—to cut off debate—would be filed today.

This would force a showdown on the motion to bring the bill formally before the Senate. However, it's been 35 years since the Senate last agreed to limit debate and this force a vote on a measure.

Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., one of the Democratic liberals trying to kill the satellite bill which would create a private corporation to own and operate the space network, told reporters he was confident the cloture move would be beaten.

It requires the votes of two-thirds of the senators present.

The filibuster group brushed aside a warning Monday that they may be endangering the November election chances of their Democratic colleagues and pressed on with their speeches.

Gore held the floor five hours up to recess time Monday night after a session running 11 hours and 42 minutes.

Sen. Maurice B. Neuberger, D-Ore., spoke for 4½ hours, slipping out of her high-heeled shoes and standing in her stocking feet in the final minutes.

More Nuclear Tests Hinted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States strongly indicated today that its high altitude nuclear tests in the Pacific will be continued.

An announcement from the Atomic Energy Commission and the Department of Defense reported substantial damage to the Johnston Island launching pad for the rockets that propel the nuclear test devices into the skies, as a result of the failure of a launching effort July 25.

It said several weeks will be needed to repair the launching site and prepare it for "the remaining high altitude tests in the Dominic series."

Accordingly, the announcement said, the restricted area around Johnston Island has been temporarily disestablished. It added:

"An announcement of the next event and declaration of an appropriate test area will be made in advance, as has been the practice in the past."

Officials said, however, that the final decision on whether to go ahead with the trials is up to President Kennedy.

Today's announcement means that the technical staff of the AEC and military are getting the pad in shape for use if and when the overriding policy decision to go on with at least one more high altitude shot is made.

Some officials indicate it might be eight weeks or even longer before repairs could be completed because of the substantial damage done when the Thor missile was destroyed while still in its launching position.

May Gen. Alfred D. Starbird, chief of Joint Task Force 8, arrived in Washington late last week and participated in the discussions which led to decisions to rebuild the pad.

The general was still in Washington today.

Award Won By Sheriff

An entry submitted in a recent contest by Sheriff Edward Abercrombie has made him the winner of a portable typewriter.

Termed the "Abe Suman Award" the contest was open to all law enforcement officers in the state. They were asked to submit what they considered "Texas Law Enforcement's Most Urgently Needed Legislation."

Sheriff Abercrombie's suggestion was that a valid warrant in any state be made enforceable in any other state. In other words, he asked for an end to extradition proceedings.

Ten winners were named at the Crime Seminar of the Sheriff's Association meeting in Austin on July 17. Sheriff Abercrombie was the only sheriff to win an award.

Names of the winners are listed in the Texas Law Enforcement Enforcement which has just been issued.

Estes Trial Set Sept. 24

TYLER (AP)—Dist. Judge Otis Dunagan set the Billie Sol Estes theft-trial today for Sept. 24.

The trial was transferred here from Pecos, Estes' home town, after failure to obtain a jury there.

Estes is also under federal indictment for fraud and under state and congressional investigations.

His huge financial empire in fertilizer sales, grain storage and cotton farming collapsed with his federal arrest last March.

Estes is charged by the state on four counts of theft by fraud involving manipulations of mortgages on fertilizer loans which state and federal agencies say do not exist.

The attempt to obtain a jury in Pecos occurred in late June. The defense agreed after several days that a jury could not be obtained. However, it fought against transfer of the trial.

IN DAD'S FOOTSTEPS—The frail, young singer approached the bandstand in Disneyland Plaza near Anaheim, Calif., and asked if he could make a guest appearance. Granted permission, he stepped to the mike and belted out a familiar Cole Porter tune as if the famous songsmith had written it just for him. The singer, Frank Sinatra Jr., age-18, Frank Jr. may talk it over with Frank Sr. but the bandstand folks say they would hire him if his name were Joe Smith. (AP Wirephoto)

Rebels Hold Boudiaf

By MICHAEL GOLDSMITH

ALGHIERS (AP)—Mohammed Boudiaf, dissident vice premier Ahmed Ben Bella's bitterest political enemy, was held under arrest by pro-Ben Bella forces somewhere in eastern Algeria today, jeopardizing moves to reconcile the nation's warring political factions.

Boudiaf's arrest by guerrillas of Wilaya (Zone) No. 1 raised the threat of violent retaliation from an estimated 10,000 fierce Berber guerrillas of Wilaya No. 3, Boudiaf's stronghold in the Kabylie Mountains east of Algiers.

Other leaders of the rival camps converged on Algiers for a new effort to end the dispute which has paralyzed Algeria since French rule ended four weeks ago.

The peace moves seemed doomed to failure as long as Boudiaf was held.

Boudiaf, a vice premier in the government of Premier Ben Bella, was picked up Monday on a visit to his native village, M'sila, about 110 miles southeast of Algiers. The village on the sun-dried Hodna Plateau mountains lies a mile outside the anti-Ben Bella Wilaya No. 3.

When Boudiaf, escorted by four of his Berber soldiers, arrived at his home for the first time since the end of the Algerian war, the house was promptly surrounded by a well-armed detachment of Wilaya No. 1 men.

Local Moslem officials said Boudiaf and his escort put up no resistance. They were whisked off to an unknown destination, probably the mountain headquarters of Wilaya No. 1.

The first reaction in Tizi Ouzou, Boudiaf's Kabylie headquarters 65 miles east of Algiers, was caution. Col. Mohamed Ould Hadi, commander of the Berber forces, said he was sending officers to investigate.

Boudiaf and Ben Bella became bitter political and personal foes during five years they spent together in French captivity during the French-Algerian war. When Ben Bella's drive to take over the government picked up steam last week, Boudiaf and Vice Premier Belkacem Krim set up headquarters in Tizi Ouzou and called for all-out resistance to Ben Bella's bid for power.

It was not known whether Boudiaf was arrested on Ben Bella's orders or on the initiative of the local guerrilla commanders. Men of Wilaya No. 1 arrested another member of Ben Bella's cabinet, Interior Minister Lakhdar Ben Tabbal, in Constantine last week but released him the next day.

Ben Kheifia, virtually isolated in the former summer palace of French generals, general in Algiers, issued an appeal for freedom to save the nation from anarchy and economic collapse.

He said the dispute among the leaders had caused a new panic exodus of Europeans and led Algeria to the brink of ruin. He said this was the last moment for reconciliation, and he called on the politicians to meet in Algiers to end their quarrels without delay.

Even before Ben Kheifia's appeal was published, Ben Bella's right-hand man, Mohammed Khider, came to Algiers to continue private peace talks, he has been holding.

Khider said he would meet Krim and possibly other leading opponents of Ben Bella today. Ben Kheifia may take part in the discussions.

Khider, a former vice premier in Ben Kheifia's government, told newsmen before leaving Oran. Ben Bella's headquarters, that the crisis was almost over and a solution was in sight. That was before Boudiaf's arrest became known.

Algiers remained under control of the guerrillas of central Algerian Wilaya No. 4, who took over the so-called autonomous military zone of Algiers in a bloodless coup Friday, putting an end to several weeks of unbridled violence and arbitrary arrests.

The junta commanding Wilaya No. 4 described itself as neutral in the political struggle and said it only wanted to make the capital a safe place for the nation's leaders to meet and settle their differences.

At a special called meeting of the city council last night, approval of the proposed 1962-1963 budget was voted.

The total budget for the coming year was set at $901,134. This is an increase over the current year of $31,780.

The same tax rate of $1.65 per $100 assessed valuation was maintained with $444 going to the interest and sinking fund and $1,066 for general fund.

A large portion of the increase will go to the street department, with $10,000 budgeted for seal-coating. An additional $10,000 has been budgeted for remodeling the Central Fire Station, and an additional $1,000 for electric power.

The increase in electric power costs are to provide the current to the new street lights installed this year. Actually however, an increase in the franchise fee paid the city by Texas Electric Service will provide additional income in the amount of about $2,500 which will offset approximately one-half the budgeted increased cost.

General fund revenues are expected to increase by some $9,217 over the present year even though tax revenue will decrease by $4,500 due to the lowering of some property valuations by the T.A.X. Equalization Board. Most of the increase in revenue will come from the Corporation Court. The additional expenditure will also reflect in a lower beginning balance for next year.

An increase of $888 was added to the budget to provide hospitalization assistance for the 24 city employees. The city is presently participating in a hospitalization program in the amount of $3,000 per month per employee with the employees participating on a voluntary basis.

Next year, the city will place all employees under a group plan and pay the total fee of about $4,25 per month. Family coverage will still be on a voluntary basis.

The city council will issue an invitation to Blue Cross and commercial companies to submit proposals for the hospitalization coverage.

In other business at the council meeting the city manager was authorized to advertise for bids on two new trucks to be used by the street department.

The public hearing on the budget was set for the regular council meeting on Sept. 10. The next regular meeting of the council will be Aug. 6.

Panhandle Has Showers

By The Associated Press

Showers and occasional thunderstorms kept on plaguing scattered areas Tuesday in the Texas Panhandle, which already was waterlogged at some points.

Skies were clear elsewhere over the state and scorching heat kept its grip on southern areas.

Terrific downpours in the Panhandle early Monday caused flash flooding in Palo Duro State Park southeast of Amarillo. The sudden rise trapped 33 cars for a time as water up to five feet deep carved five gyps in a park road.

The Weather Bureau predicted isolated thunderstorms through Wednesday in the Panhandle. Generally clear skies were promised other sectors along with temperatures well above 100 in some places.

Monday's top marks included Lawlor 103, Junction, Lufkin, San Angelo and Waco 102, Austin and San Antonio 101 and College Station 100. Amarillo's high was a mild 79 degrees.

Readings early Tuesday ranged from 63 at Amarillo and Dalhart up to 80 at Galveston.

Jacqueline's Sis Denied Fashion Visit

PARIS (AP) — The Givency Fashion House said today it turned down a request by Princess Lee Radziwill, Jacqueline Kennedy's sister, to see Givency's fall and winter collection this week.

A Givency spokesman said the request was refused because Princess Radziwill wanted to view the collection as a journalist. But the Paris fashion world wondered if the designer might have been piqued because the princess, once a customer of his, has started buying from rival designer Yves Saint-Laurent.

Givency has been one of Mrs. Kennedy's favorite designers, and it is understood Princess Radziwill influenced her to buy from him. The princess also is understood to have influenced Mrs. Kennedy to wear a Givency gown during her visit with the President to Paris. It was the only French design she wore during her visit.

Princess Radziwill has been covering the Paris fashion show for McCall's magazine. A spokesman for Givency said because of this, she was told she would have to take her place with other fashion writers who are permitted to see the collection only at the end of August, a month after the buyers. Givency and Balenciaga refused to go along with the other Paris houses who permit fashion writers to cover their collections at the opening of the season.

A Paris newspaper quoted Givency as saying: "The buyers are ferocious but they certainly know their jobs, while the journalists are critical, claiming that my girls (models) have shoulders like football players and that my hats are like flower pots. This makes the readers smile, but for the creator it is a painful thing."

Miss Patterson Tells Of Roundup

Ann Patterson, senior Girl Scout attending the 1962 Scout Roundup at Button Bay State Park, Vt., wrote home to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Patterson, last week.

"Has it been raining there too?" It's winter time here!

"Yesterday I went to the ceremony in commemoration of the Girl Scout Stamp. I was the representative from our troop to go. Last night was the gigantic 50th Birthday Party, since yesterday was our Girl Scout Birthday (July 24). Mrs. Trapp of the Trapp Family (portrayed in "Sound of Music") spoke to us. We had a huge birthday cake (not real) with 50 tremendous candles that were lit as the meaning was related for each candle.

"Our patrol has been asked to sing tomorrow night at the Camp J Campfire on the beach. We have to work up about six songs. Tomorrow we go to the arena to sing our songs and Friday with our bullwhips.

"As I have already told you, I was elected to the Camp Council. It is a pretty hard job, and I have to go to the meetings during the time we are allowed for swapping, visiting, etc., in the mornings.

"The other kids in our troop are great! New York is always kidding us about our accent. (You should hear theirs!). Illinois is always asking us to sing for them; and Washington, D. C., is always asking us to teach them how to pop the bullwhips."

Miss Patterson concluded her letter with "We're about to have a 'Christmas in July' party in our troop—24 girls, popcorn and kool-aid! I gotta run!"

The girls live in tents and cook their meals in individual patrols. The Rattler Patrol, of which Miss Patterson is a member, is made up of Senior Scouts from Abilene, Midland, Sweetwater, Tarrant, and Snyder. Part of the demonstration, which they perfected before leaving Texas, is a bullwhip act. Also, the group worked up a musical demonstration, singing songs which are typical of the West Texas area. They accompany themselves with guitars, ukuleles, French harps and other instruments. These are the demonstrations which Miss Patterson mentions performing in the Arena, and only the outstanding demonstrations are selected to perform.

Fifth Term Is Big Issue In Arkansas Primary Election

By JOHN R. STARR
LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Arkansas voters today on whether Gov. Orval E. Faubus, storm center of the 1957 Little Rock school integration crisis, should have a fifth two-year term.

An estimated 375,000 to 400,000 electors were to choose among Faubus and five opponents in a Democratic primary in which the fifth term was the overriding issue.

Opposing Faubus were Sid McMath, a former governor who launched Faubus' career in state politics; U.S. Rep. Dale Alford, a congressman without a district; Vernon Whitten, a Mount Holly businessman; Kenneth Coffelt of Little Rock, a crusading attorney; and David A. Cox, a farmer from Weiner.

These men all contended that reelection of Faubus would create a dictatorship in the state. That cry drowned out all other issues—including segregation, which Faubus used so successfully in 1958 and 1960.

Faubus' camp predicted confidently that he would poll 58 per cent of the vote. He got slightly less than 58 per cent in 1960.

All opponents forecast he would fall short of the clear majority he needs to avoid a runoff primary on Aug. 14.

Sen. J. William Fulbright 45-opposed by Little Rock businessman Winston Chandler in the only other major race.

Arkansas' four congressmen—Rep. E. C. Gathings, Wilbur Mills, J. W. Trimble and Oren Harris—are imposed in the primary. Trimble and Harris will have Republican opponents in November.

Faubus cited industrial advance, increased funds for public schools and highways, higher welfare grants and an ambitious state construction program as evidence he should be returned to office.

The opposition argued that Fau-buis was dominated by utility, liquor and gambling interests, that he played politics with welfare grants and state employees, and that he was more interested in perpetuating his political organization than in the welfare of the state.

Faubus, who said in March he would retire to rest and write, but then changed his mind, stuck to the campaigning techniques which served him well in past races—extensive, exhausting stumping and frequent television appearances.

Faubus called his opposition the "sorriest group" he has faced, but observers generally agreed he will get his sternest test of a career, which started when McMath named him to the State Highway Commission in 1949.

Faubus later served as governor's aide and highway director under McMath, who was defeated by Francis Cherry in a third-term bid in 1952. Two years later Faubus put the McMath organization together again and beat Cherry in a runoff.

McMath ran a losing race against Sen. John L. McClellan that same summer and then retired to private law practice. He said he got in this year's race because, having been governor, he knew better than anyone the threat posed by a fifth term.

McMath and Faubus broke openly when McMath criticized the governor for using the National Guard to block integration of Little Rock Central High in 1957. Faubus maintained that the actual break came earlier because he would not let McMath pull administration strings.

Alford, who got his political start as a segregationist spokesman, said Faubus is not a sincere segregationist but uses the states rights issue as a political device. Segregationist leaders, while endorsing no candidate, have accused Faubus of betraying their cause.

Plan Launched To Settle Dispute

DALLAS (AP)—Federal officials have been quietly enlisting support for a $35 million plan to settle the old U.S.-Mexico dispute over a strip of El Paso. The Dallas News said today.

In a copyrighted story, the newspaper said the proposal calls for sensitive land trades and shifting the Rio Grande.

There has been no official release and details are not widely known, the News said. It reported the plan has been laid before State authorities, Texas congressmen and El Paso leaders.

Involved is the El Chamizal area between downtown El Paso and this country's Rio Grande border with Mexico. It reported Mexico has claimed the valuable strip since 1895. It has been a sore spot in relations between the countries. The News gave these details:

Whether Mexican diplomats will accept the U.S. offer, yet to be made, remains the big question in the minds of El Paso leaders who have endorsed the plan.

It calls for Mexico to cede 200 to 250 acres of little known Cordova Island, which joins El Chamizal, estimated 400 to 630 acres east of El Paso, and acquire only part of the land under dispute.

Mexico would net 437 acres in the trade.

Six-lane highways and irrigation canals on both sides of the rechanneled Rio Grande are in the proposal, as well as mutual beautification of the area. Much of the land to be ceded Mexico is agricultural or barren but many residences and small businesses are involved.

Bowie High School and nearby Hart Elementary School would remain on U.S. soil. El Paso would lose Navarro, a new elementary school east of Cordova. Peyton Packing Co. and the large union stockyards also would be transferred to Mexico.

Shelter Plan Is Removed From Measure

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House has rejected President Kennedy's request for $58 million to launch a fallout shelter program but approved another $80.5 million for other civil defense projects.

The House upheld its Appropriations Committee which had recommended removing Kennedy's $58,755,000 shelter program request from the $115-billion omnibus bill financing 26 federal agencies.

Kennedy had asked the funds to begin a program of shelter construction, research and development under the Department of Defense. He also had asked $41,455,000 for stockpiling of medical supplies by the Public Health Service but the House voted only $5.5 million.

The House approved $10 million for Civil Defense research and study and $65 million to continue the present Civil Defense program.

In all, the House trimmed about a billion dollars from various administration requests. But it still wound up voting $2 billion more than the same agencies ask in the last fiscal year. Most of the increase—$1,972,365,000—is for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

An authorization bill, approved by a voice vote and representing a compromise between House and Senate, was sent to the Senate for final action. It includes $283 million for moon and planetary explorations.

The biggest amount included in the appropriations bill is the $5,248,433,000 for the Veterans Administration, including $73.3 million for new hospitals and veterans homes.

LIGHTEST MEXICO

BY JOHN ABNEY

OAXACA, Mexico—Chugged into this centuries-old city a few days ago with Mr. Burt Glimm, the photographic gentleman who is snapping shots for Holiday magazine. For the discovery of Mexico appears now to be in full swing. The country is packed with magazine writers and picture takers rushing hither and yon to gather atmosphere for their publications. Typewriters clatter far into the night and cameras become emotional from all the scenery.

Mr. Glimm is one of the Wednesday-in-Tokyo, Friday-in-Vienna, Monday-in-Mexico gentlemen. That is how the magazine and press people operate these days. And it is why your bewildered correspondent quit work and began writing a column.

Anyhow, Mr. Glimm arrived in Mexico City like a fire horse that had just eaten a bucket of hot peppers. Before he said "hello," he grabbed his suitcase and said, "let's get going."

"This threw everybody into a fair tizzy, Mexico being a land where it is considered impolite to make an appointment for 5 p.m. and then arrive before 7:30."

Mr. Alex Aguilar, of the Government Tourist Department, scarcely got both feet into the door of the chartered automobile before we were in Oaxaca. And Mr. Glimm fretting at the delay.

Now editors are inclined to function by a time table that is marked off in seconds. Consequently, their hired hands are expected to do things 20 minutes ago. Mexico operates on a basis of "things have been here for a number of centuries and will still be around next week."

"This causes great gnashing of the teeth on both sides of the river. Mr. Aguilar spent many anxious hours attempting to explain to Mr. Glimm about such things as apoplexy and the dangers of developing varicose veins.

"Hideous thought," said Mr. Glimm. "Tomorrow morning we hire a flying machine and go to a remote and picturesque village. At noon we return to photograph the quaint village of Cullapan, then dash over to Coyotepec for a few pictures, from there to Mitla and come back to Oaxaca for a roll or two of color around the city. After that, we will get down to work."

Mr. Aguilar almost fainted. And while we were having lunch at the Hotel Monte Alban, Mr. Glimm telephoned Mexico City four times and Philadelphia once.

"My sainted aunt," moaned Mr. Aguilar. "We will be dead for at least a million years. Let us relax while we are still alive."

At Cullapan, the Zapotec Indians were restoring the big convent that has been in ruins for decades. Vicente Guerrero, the Mexican patriot, was held prisoner there for two days in 1834 and shot in the courtyard.

The workmen knock off for rest periods four times a day and permanently at 6 p.m. Which puzzled Mr. Glimm.

Indian gentlemen on the farms worked with oxen and wooden plows in the early morning and late afternoon. Like they have done for centuries, Oaxaca is buttoned up for the siesta hour. But life continues.

And Mr. Glimm mentioned finally that Oaxaca was a mighty interesting place. Also that he was fascinated by the easy life the natives lived.

"This morning we went on only two assignments. One hit and the other didn't. Mr. Glimm was not upset.

"I think the pictures we got of the old man playing the flute and the lad walloping the drum over in Tule will be among the best," he said in a casual manner.

"Where do we go this afternoon?" asked Mr. Aguilar.

Mr. Glimm yawned. "Right now I am going up to my room and take a siesta. We will contemplate work after that."

Mr. Aguilar threw away his tranquilizers and ordered two jolts of fine old Oaxaca mescal. Following which we all went upstairs and had our suetas. Stretched out in bed like civilized people.

Ike's Bid Withdrawn

WEXFORD, Ireland (AP)—Wexford's civic leaders decided Monday not to invite Dwight D. Eisenhower to visit there. They feared the town might mull his welcome.

The former president had already indicated willingness to visit the town Aug. 23 in the course of a four-day Irish stay.

A tentative invitation was extended by Mayor John Cullimore.

But when the civic corporation was asked to make the invitation formal it refused.

Aug. 23 falls on a Thursday and councilmen said too few of the town's 11,000 inhabitants would be available in mid-week to provide a fitting welcome.

Estes Grain Is Going For Export

DALLAS (AP)—An Agriculture Department official said today that the bulk of grain being moved from Texas elevators with which Billie Sol Estes was connected is going for export.

T. J. Cunningham, deputy director in the Dallas regional office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said grain cargoes leaving elevators owned by the indicted West Texas promoter or in which he had an interest are "heavily in favor" of shipment to Gulf Coast ports for ultimate transshipment abroad.

Cunningham said about 14 1/2 million bushels of grain have been moved from the elevators since May under a planned program by the department to empty them in 18 months.

The official said the regional office does not have at hand exact figures on how much of the grain was bought for export or to which countries it was shipped.

Cunningham explained that most of the stored wheat was sold for export but much of the milo was sold to grain firms which might eventually export it.

Traffic Deaths At Record High

CHICAGO (AP)—The National Safety Council reported Monday that traffic deaths in the first half of 1962 rose to an all-time high.

The toll rose to 18,120, up 1,210 or 7 per cent from the total of 16,910 for the corresponding 1961 period.

If the present trend continues, the council predicted, traffic deaths for the year could top 40,000 for the first time in history.

Air Pollution Problem Invades West

By BOB WOOD
PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—The West—particularly the hot, dry deserts of Arizona and the cool mountains of Colorado—once was mecca for thousands suffering respiratory ailments.

They left the crowded cities of the East and Midwest and sought the sparsely populated areas with untainted air.

Communities nurtured by these health seekers began to grow at a phenomenal rate. Now these havens of health are combatting the same force that drove the sick from other parts of the nation.

surrounded by the snow-covered Rockies, and Phoenix, an oasis in the American desert.

Denver has a growing air pollution problem.

Dr. William F. Spence of the University of Colorado medical school says pulmonary emphysema, a lung disease, is on the increase. Chronic bronchitis has shot upward in the last few years.

Dr. Cyrus W. Anderson, past president of the Colorado Medical Society, says dirty air is aggravating sinus disorders and having a dangerous effect on the lungs.

And the worst is to come. A 1957 survey indicated that within eight years auto exhaust pollution would triple, industrial pollution would increase by a third, and household pollution would be up one fifth.

To battle this condition, Denver has restricted to certain hours burning of trash in home incinerators. The ordinance also prohibits industrial smoke of greater than specified density. But nothing has been done about auto exhaust fumes.

Phoenix is covered with an almost perpetual haze. From the downtown section, famed landmarks such as Camelback Mountain are lost behind the smoky mantle.

The larger counties—primarily Maricopa (Phoenix) and Pima (Tucson)—demanded action. But many smaller counties feared legislative action might be aimed at their copper smelters.

After a one-year delay, Arizona's legislature passed a measure permitting each county to combat air pollution on its own.

A U.S. Public Health Service study reported that Phoenix had the fourth dirtiest air in the nation, although this was disputed by several Arizona sanitary engineers.

And state health department officials say, "we are only a few years away from nationwide use of suppression devices on all cars to combat exhaust fumes."

PROSPEROUS PONY LEAGUERS — Snyder's Pony League All-Stars came back strong after dropping their playoff opener to Colorado City, 7-11, to mark up 7-0 and 2-1 wins for the series title, then blanked Abilene by scores of 2-0 and 1-0 to gain a berth in Denver City's sectional tournament. They will engage Hobbs, New Mexico, Wednesday at 6 p.m. in their first action there. The host team and Andrews are the other teams vying for the sectional crown. Pictured above is the squad, which is coached by Dan Holt and Fred Kizer.

Sullivan In No-Hit Effort; Smith Victor

Guy Sullivan chucked a no-hitter here Monday night in City Softball League action to lead the Harlin Oilers to an 11-0 triumph over West Texas Machine. He issued a base on balls to George Lee in the third, the only runner he allowed to reach base during the contest, which was stopped at the end of four frames due to the ten-minute rule.

Mickey Sterling, with a two-run triple in the second, and Sullivan, with a one-run three-bagger in the third, landed the big blows for the victors. Also for Harlin, Dale Brown and Tommy Hester each connected for bases—single and double and Kenneth Baker drove in a marker in the fourth with still another two-base hit.

Baker also landed a single to be two for three, while teammates Mert Creswell and Dave Harlin laced out two singles apiece. T. Bentley suffered the loss for the Machemans.

The other contest of the evening went to R. E. Smith by 2-1 at the expense of Greenhill Baptist.

Leroy Leard received credit for that win and Doug Myers went down to the loss.

Jimmy Allen's score was proved to be the deciding run after tripling, upping the score to 2-0 before Greenhill came back in the seventh to chase over its tally. The late rally fell short, as Greenhill left men stranded on second and third when the game came to an end.

Disappearing Act Hits Star In Pocketbook

BOSTON (AP)—Towering Gene Conley returned to the Red Sox family and pitching rotation today after he was fined an estimated $2,000.

Although Boston Manager Mike Hitchcock did not divulge the amount he termed "very substantial," it was known to be the largest since owner Tom Yawkey personally levied $5,000 against Ted Williams for spitting six years ago.

The suspension placed on the 6-foot-8 right-hander for his abrupt disappearance from the team Thursday through Sunday was lifted by Higgins effectively immediately. Conley, perhaps the most solid member of a wobbling pitching staff despite his 9-10 record, missed four games in the span and will lose pay accordingly.

Conley had a brief meeting with Higgins at Fenway Park Monday, then talked to vice president Dick O'Connell and Yawkey before leaving with his wife.

"I'm sorry for what I did," Conley told Higgins. "and I promise I'll never do it again. I want to stay in baseball and with the Red Sox."

Lovington In 5-3 Victory

LOVINGTON, N.M.—Snyder's Colt League All-Stars, their ranks thinned by the absence from the lineup of roughly a third of the team when a group of Roby players were involved in a car accident earlier in the day, were felled 5-3 by host Lovington in their initial sectional tournament outing here Monday.

The Roby nine had won the league championship, and consequently placed the greatest number of players on the all-star squad. Jim Inzer was the only Roby performer seeing action, however, resulting in a drastic re-shuffling of the lineup.

Snyder drew first blood in the contest. After two were out in the second Jimmy Featherston walked.

Spikes Shines For Texans

DALLAS (AP)—Len Dawson and Roubin Eddie Wilson passed for a combined 296 yards and still got beat Monday night in an extra-squad game of the Dallas Texans of the American Football League.

Which just went to show that the defense has the advantage if it can cash in on its opportunities. The defense was given plenty of opportunities under a special scoring system worked out by Coach Hank Stram.

Dawson and Wilson passed to Abner Haybes and Chris Burford respectively for touchdowns and Jack Spikes kicked two field goals and an extra point to give the offense 20 points. But the defense did better and won the game 28-20 to the delight of a crowd of 17,000 that paid the Dallas Police Association a tidy sum.

Pipers, Lucas Both Drifting

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Pipers were a team without a league and Jerry Lucas, pro basketball's hottest new property, was a player without a team to play.

Those two developments came from a surprising action by the National Basketball Association's board of governors, which Monday refused membership to the Pipers. Maurice Podoloff, president of the NBA, said after the meeting: "The Pipers have been declared in default of their agreement with the NBA made on July 10, and the NBA will continue to operate for the coming season with the same nine teams as last year."

That raised two questions: 1. What happens to Lucas, the fabulous three-line All American from Ohio State? 2. Will the Pipers return to the American Basketball League, in which they won the championship in the circuit's first season? "Right now I'm as much in the dark as anybody," said Lucas in Columbus, Ohio.

Former American League pitcher Stubby Overmire is managing Jamestown, N.Y., in the Class D New York-Pennsylvania League.

Los Angeles was hit by a pitched ball, and Blake Roberts drew a pass to load the bases. Pitcher Leslie Brown popped a grounder to second, which was fumbled, and a subsequent overthrow to first allowed the two lead runners to come scampering home.

Lovington tied things up in their half of the same inning following a single off the bat of David Cauble and successive walks to Robert Allen and Randy Kimble. Both Cauble and Allen scored on a wild pitch and passed ball.

Lovington inched out in front in the third when Barry Crutchfield tripled and romped home on a ground out.

Not to be denied, Snyder came back with one of its own to knot the count again in the fifth. After two were out Kenney Gay was hit by a pitch and Tom Kincaid walked.

Harley Bynum singled sharply to right to bring home Gay, that safety being the only one of the game registered by Snyder.

Not to be denied, Snyder came back with one of its own to knot the count again in the fifth. After two were out Kenney Gay was hit by a pitch and Tom Kincaid walked. Steve Bridgforth came on to go the rest of the way and was credited with the victory.

Lovington scored their go-ahead runs in the fifth when Lounie Forner walked, Cauble reached base on a throwing error, and Allen and Kimble rapped out consecutive singles to drive in one run apiece, both of which were unearned.

Brown struck out eight during his stint on the hill.

The other game of the evening saw El Paso mauling Littlefield, 12-1. Snyder and Littlefield met tonight at 6 o'clock in their second contest of the double elimination tournament. Lovington and El Paso are to get together in the nightcap.

WINTER, GRIMMETT HAMMER HOMERS; HOLT HURLS VICTORY

Snyder Americans Earn Sectional Berth With 4-1 Win Over Abilene

By JERRY JACKSON
Snyder's Little League Americans erupted for four runs before the fans had a chance to get settled here Monday night, then coasted home behind the six-hit pitching of Terry Holt for a 4-1 triumph over Abilene Northern and a berth in the sectional tournament which begins in Breckenridge Thursday.

The Snyder nine, coached by Wayne Potts and Bill Fisher, will see its first tournament action there at 5:30 p.m. Thursday. The meet is an eight-team, three-day affair, lasting through Saturday.

A pair of home run blasts in the initial inning led to the demise of starter Jack Ables, who had all four runs charged against him.

Eloy Benitez grounded out, pitcher to first, to begin the home half of the first. Ted Winter followed up by poling one over the scoreboard in left to put the Americans ahead to stay.

Americans Rout Nationals, 9-4

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer
CHICAGO (AP)—The American League, behind the booming bats of Rocky Colavito, Leon Wagner and Pete Runnels, exploded the myth of National League superiority Monday, 9-4.

The usually self-controlled Ralph Houk, triumphant manager of the American League forces, did a poor job concealing his elation.

Ables led off the second frame by hitting Holt's first delivery over the left field fence for what was to be Abilene's lone marker of the evening.

In going the distance Holt struck out seven and walked two. Loser Ables was touched for three hits, walked two and struck out none. Davis, his successor, also allowed three safeties while walking three and fanning 11.

"Well, maybe this will shut those guys up once and for all," the Yankees manager said. "All this talk about the National League being superior is bunk... Look, you know and I know that the All-Star game doesn't prove a thing. I'm not claiming the American League is stronger than the National just because we walloped the stuffing out of them. But I never believed the National League was stronger than our league even when they were beating us, either."

Colavito's home run, with two on, came off Dick Farrell of Houston in the seventh, making it 7-1. The only controversial play of the game occurred a few moments earlier. Following a walk to Brooks Robinson, Billy Moran hit a low drive to center field. Hank Aaron, who had replaced Willie Mays in center field for the Nationals, changed in fast and came up with the ball. Ken Burkhardt, umpiring at second base, ruled he had trapped the ball. One that later, Colavito crashed his three-run homer.

Abilene's most serious threat came about in the third, when Ricky Simco led off with a bunt single, Nick Davis walked, and they were sacrificed down by Ray Donald. Holt bared down to whiff Donald Lightfoot and forced Ables to ground out to end the inning with no damage, however.

Both teams played beautiful defensive ball, as no errors were committed on either side. Four of the six hits given up by Holt were infield singles. Both teams left seven baserunners stranded.

The National League put on a wretched performance before the 38,359 Wrigley Field fans, committing four physical misplays and a number of mental lapses, not to mention errant throws by seemingly tired performers.

"I caught the ball and there was no way about it," said Aaron afterwards. "If I had trapped the ball I would have thrown to second and forced the other man. But I caught it; and was the most surprised man in the world when he signaled safe."

Snyder came back to miss out on a golden scoring opportunity in the bottom half of the same inning when a walk to Grimmett, single by Holt, and another great

A LIKELY PROSPECT FOR HIS HEALTH PROGRAM

Even An Indirect Setback Is Despised By U. S. Soldiers

VIENTIANE, Laos—Good leadership has never been a tradition of American arms and it's a quality notably missing among U. S. personnel here in Endville on the Mekong River.

The United States—to borrow a phrase from the late Gen. "Vinegar Joe" Stilwell—has taken a hell of a licking in Laos.

True, it was a licking once removed—in that our military people were involved only in training and advisory roles, but it was a resounding and humiliating defeat nonetheless.

The Royal Laotian Army was trained, organized, paid and equipped (re-equipped), advised and vetted by our best military brains. But every time it came to the payoff, the Royal Army turned out to have the same raw instinct for battle as Fainting Phil Scott, the celebrated horizontal heavyweight of years ago.

Apart from the affront to American pride, which always holds that one Yank soldier is worth a dozen or so of any other troops, our painful lesson in Laos is important for two big reasons.

First, of course, it gives substance to Communist Radio Hanoi's scornful "Paper Tiger" propaganda directed against the United States. What happened here wasn't a remotely fair test of American fighting prowess but it's too much to expect the Asian peasants to understand this. Secondly, it's terribly important because the sad truth is that the U. S. if it doesn't file a quick claim to the whole Indochinese peninsula must employ native troops or be resigned to committing large U. S. forces here.

For these reasons the post mortem that is now being conducted on the corpse of the military policy here is motivated by more than morbid curiosity. Unless we can learn from our mistakes here, the same disaster could as well befall us in South Viet Nam and, when its turn comes, Thailand.

One of the men most deeply concerned with learning why we failed here is Maj. Gen. H. H. Tucker, who heads the U. S. military advisory group in Laos. Tucker, in contrast with some other high American officials in this part of the world, is candid, blunt and forthright.

He took command here just before the final rout of the same Royal Laotian Army by numerically inferior Communist forces, so his appraisals are not likely to be colored by any considerations of personal prestige.

Basically his position is that the U. S. Army advisers here did a "marvelous" job—in the circumstances. Of course it's a marvelous job fails to accomplish the mission, the inference is that the mission itself was impossible.

General Tucker doesn't (indeed he can not) quite put this in words. But it's plain that is what he means.

"If we had only been dealing with a 'manana' attitude on the part of these people it wouldn't have been so difficult," he told me. "But in this country it isn't tomorrow. It's next year, or even never. There's just no ability, no understanding of the need of planning for the future."

The Laotians may well have learned their logistics from the kookie chap who catered to the Mad Hatter's tea party. To begin with, much of the military hardware was poured into Laos simply remained in warehouses.

One reason for this was the sheer lack of a supply organization that could distribute the arms and equipment to the troops. Another was the Royal Army bosses' sure knowledge that once it was passed on to the troops they'd never regain possession of it.

Safely stored in a warehouse, the equipment was theirs and was, so to speak, insurance against a sudden attack of good sense by the Americans—an event that undoubtedly would have meant a cut-off of all military aid.

"To give an example of their concept of logistics," Tucker continued, "after one battle I asked their head man what he would need to get his troops ready to fight again. He said, 'Seven thousand of everything.'"

There are other deeper failures in our thundering policy failures in Laos. Perhaps the most important is the sheer lack of gumption in the people.

Call them simple and childlike and it's likely every child and simpleton in creation has got a legitimate beef coming. We tried to lift these people from primitive feudalism into the 20th Century—and failed.

Unless we learn from our failures here, the prospects of saving what's left of Southeast Asia are profoundly gloomy.

Dawn Brings Struggle For Middle-Aged

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—One of the daily miracles of our times is how a middle-aged man manages to get up and face life every morning—particularly on the mornings he has to go to work. Young people bounce out of bed because they are full of zest and hope. Old people get up early because they can't sleep late anyway—and perhaps because they realize they don't have too many sunrises left to enjoy.

But when the alarm clock wakes a middle-aged man from a dream—it's usually one in which he is being chased by a bill collector astride a dragon—he just lies there whimpering. He feels like a tired clog in the drainage of humanity.

After he has arisen 10,000 times to face duty. What can this quivering heap of jellied self pity rise and do it again?

Here's what happens in the kind of home many of us may know: "Specter! It's 7:30! Get up! It's 7:30! Get up!" she says ominously, "you'll starve too. After all, you've got 13 years, six months and four days to go to a pension. That isn't so long, is it?"

Grumbling, backing, wheezing and growling, he snatches the gum from his eyes and reaches down blindly with his feet, searching for his slippers.

One hour, one shower, one egg, a piece of toast and two cups of coffee later—and a final stirring five-minute lecture to his wife on the need of more stringent household economy—the middle-aged man stumbles out the front door.

The wife, yawning, creeps with a sense of victory back to the bedroom for another hour of sleep. After all, she has done her main chore—she has once again managed to get a middle-aged husband up to face the ordeal of the day.

The human race has passed another landmark in its long struggle toward the light.

Call 'em at the office, and tell 'em I've got a summer cold, droopy neuritis, buritis, inflammation of the esophagus, a pain in my chest—and a sore elbow," the man mutters feebly.

"You had all those things last month," says the wife.

"Do you want me to starve?" she asks dramatically.

He half-lifts himself to inquire, "How long would it take?"

The wife leaves and comes back holding up his trousers.

"If you don't get up this very minute," she says ominously, "you'll starve too. After all, you've got 13 years, six months and four days to go to a pension. That isn't so long, is it?"

Grumbling, backing, wheezing and growling, he snatches the gum from his eyes and reaches down blindly with his feet, searching for his slippers.

Minimum Age For Grooms Is Raised

WARSAW (AP)—A Justice Ministry commission is drafting a family relations code that will raise Poland's minimum marriage age for men from 19 to 22. The present 19-year minimum for women will be retained.

Poland's press agency said the raised minimum is intended to prevent marriages of "people not yet ready to lead independent lives." The new code will require couples to give the state a month's notice prior to marriage. No waiting period is now required.

The proposed law, certain of passage within several months, is a move by the Communist state to take over some control of domestic relations now exercised mainly by priests in this overwhelmingly Roman Catholic country.

Junior Editors Quiz on JACOB'S LADDER

QUESTION: Is there such a thing as Jacob's Ladder?

ANSWER: The original story of Jacob's Ladder is told in the Bible. Jacob, son of Isaac, left his home to journey to a far land. One night he lay down on the open ground to sleep with a stone under his head. Then he dreamed and saw a ladder leading up to Heaven, with angels ascending and descending. When Jacob woke, he felt that God was with him on his quest, which turned out to be successful. This famous story inspired the beautiful negro spiritual, "We am clim' in Jacob's ladder, ev'ry round goes higher, higher, Soldiers of de cross." On ships (A) a Jacob's ladder means one with wood rungs which is used to climb up from small boats alongside. When a sailor climbs up a mast he does NOT speak of going up a ladder. He is going up the "shrouds" by stepping on the "railings" which are made of rope (B) is a plant called "Jacob's Ladder" or Polemonium because of the rung-like arrangement of its leaves. Another name is Polemonium. It is common in the Northwest, and has funnel-shaped flowers of delicate blue or violet.

FOR YOU TO DO: Although Jacob finally succeeded in his quest, it took many years of patient effort. Read his story in the Bible, beginning with the 25th chapter of Genesis.

(Kevin Hawkes of Fonthill, Ont., wins $10 for this question. Mail yours on a postcard to Junior Editors in care of this newspaper.)

Witnesses Back From Bible Meet

Delegates from the Snyder Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses returned home this week following their three-day Bible meet in San Angelo, Texas, said J. D. Cook, presiding minister.

"Some 5,510 were in attendance at the Bible convention, which attracted delegates from a 12-state area," he said. "This was one of the largest conventions that San Angelo has seen."

"One of the highlights of the three days," Cook said, "was the public lecture 'Take Courage—God's Kingdom Is At Hand!', by W. R. Thomas, Watchtower Society representative.

Thomas stressed the closeness of God's Kingdom as to earth's affairs," Cook said, "and he pointed out that God cannot wait for Christendom to convert the world first as World Almanac figures show the world's population has, in a seven-year period, 1955-1962, increased 5.61 times as fast as the number of so-called Christians."

Cook added, "Thomas further stated that Christendom has been falling away from true Christianity herself, she could not be responsible to represent God. He also showed from the Bible the wonderful conditions God's Kingdom will bring to the earth such as total peace, happiness and health."

Delaware Starts Reapportionment

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Delaware Legislature has agreed on a constitutional amendment to reapportion the state's House and Senate but several steps remain before it could go into effect. It cannot affect this year's elections, and it might take years if it goes through at all.

In Dover, the Delaware Senate followed up approval of the constitutional amendment formula with passage of a bill to submit to the voters in November the question whether they want a constitutional convention to pass on the plan.

But the House had adjourned a special session of the House may be called Friday to put the bill through.

After that comes the question of speeding the process for holding the convention if the electors vote for such a meeting. Under present law it could not be held before September 1965.

The proposal is to increase the Delaware house from 35 to 45 members and the Senate from 17 to 21, and to add members every 10 years if necessary to maintain a balanced representation.

In New York, City Gen. Louis Lefkowitz contended that it would be impractical for a three-judge U.S. District Court to order a change in the state legislature's alignment because "the 1962 legislative elections are so imminent."

In Virginia, U.S. Dist. Judge Oren R. Lewis delayed until Oct. 22 a hearing on a suit by four legislators from the populous northern part of the state adjoining Washington State Atty. Gen. Robert Patton had asked a delay of 60 days from the original Sept. 19 hearing date.

The legislators contend the Virginia General Assembly's apportionment act passed earlier this year is unfair to urban voters.

A three-judge special U.S. District Court begins hearings in Oklahoma City, Okla., today on how—and when—to reapportion the Oklahoma Legislature.

The judges, A. P. Murrah, Ross Rizley and Fred Daugherty, ruled June 19 that present apportionment violates the U.S. Constitution by denying equal representation to city dwellers. They said the legislature must be reapportioned.

At that time the court said that if the state had not taken the initiative by July 31, it would begin hearings to determine a reapportionment plan.

The state did not act.

Gov. J. Howard Edmondson ruled out a special session of the legislature, suggested, by the court, after a poll of legislators convinced him the legislature could not pass a reapportionment measure acceptable to the court.

THE GIRLS AUXILIARY of the First Baptist Church left yesterday afternoon for the Girls Auxiliary encampment in Lueders, Tex. They will return August 3. Those making the trip are Barbara Carter, Jennifer Godair, Wayla Walton, Joan Shelburne, Ralphene Neal, Mina Emerson, Patsy Richardson, Ginger Howell, Anita Pinkerton, Lois Pinkerton and Belita McCravy. Their counselor is Mrs. Wayland Walton, and sponsors are Mrs. Homer Godair and Mrs. Wilson Howell.

Widow May Tend Bar

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Is a lady's place in the home?
 Not for Mrs. Kate Dinenberg, 56, a widowed taproom owner who says she has to tend bar because "I cannot afford two bartenders."

Judge Joseph E. Gold upheld Mrs. Dinenberg, ruling Monday a lady who tends her own bar is no threat to public morals.

Judge Gold reversed a 10-day suspension imposed by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board on the bar. The board had claimed Mrs. Dinenberg was violating the state barmaid act, which says it is illegal to hire a woman to serve liquor behind a bar.

Gold said the act, which also outlaws B-girls, was written for "protection for the public welfare and morals" and clearly did not apply to Mrs. Dinenberg.

Plane Makes Safe Landing

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—A two-engine Trans-Texas Airways Convair with 16 persons aboard landed safely here Monday after suffering an engine over-cottling.

The plane set down at 7:45 p.m. and was met by a fire truck on the runway, but the landing was smooth and there was no fire.

Dr. L. M. Shefts, San Antonio physician and one of the 13 passengers, said there was no apparent excitement when the engine sputtered, stopped and was feathered.

"I was rather surprised that no much concern was evidenced by the passengers," Dr. Shefts said.

He boarded the plane at Mission. A flight attendant, the doctor said, had speculated along the route "where we would sit down in case the other engine stopped."

Royce Kapeller of Mission, on his way to Korea, said there was "no sweat" among the passengers.

Foreign Affairs Contribute To Busy Schedule For JFK

By JAMES MARLOW

 WASHINGTON (AP)—If President Kennedy's first 18 months with Congress looked like an obstacle race, it was foreign affairs which truly kept him hopping.

Events abroad piled up but, because they were scattered over a year and a half and some yet had led to an explosion for the United States, many of them may have looked like minor episodes.

In one way or another, the United States had a stake in all of them and for that reason they were all problems for Kennedy.

His most visible mistake was in permitting the disastrous U.S.-backed Cuban invasion, at least in the way it was carried out. His biggest success was holding firm on Berlin until Premier Khrushchev "sweat" among the passengers.

If anything could be called his biggest frustration it was in the failure to get agreement on disarmament or a ban on nuclear testing, Presidents Truman and Eisenhower could understand this, they went through it, too.

Latin America was one of the busy places.

Besides the various bedevilements of Cuba's Castro, assassination ended the 31-year dictatorship of Rafael Trujillo in the Dominican Republic, armies in Peru and Argentina threw out the elected governments, and civilian-military conflict in Brazil led to the departure of an elected President there.

In between times, Kennedy got hearty approval from the Latin American world for his Alliance for Progress, although his hesitancy in recognizing military regimes showed he doubted progress comes through armies.

Algeria, after months of fury and assassinations, broke out of its independence from France only to be thrown into chaos by the rivalry of its own Moslem factions.

Those old enemies and next-door neighbors, Israel and Egypt, developed rockets. Syria broke loose from its union with Egypt, India and Pakistan were still in their quarrel over part of Kashmir.

Despite its moralizing about beaue, India invaded and seized Portuguese Goa.

At home in Portugal, dictator Salazar began to have some trouble. So did dictator Franco in Spain next door. The United States has bases on Spanish and Portuguese territory.

The Congo got explosive, quiet, and down and may really explode again in the unsettled dispute between the central government and the secessionist province of Katanga.

The United States got more deeply involved in South Vietnam to save it from a Communist takeover, sending in troops and weapons to sharpen the Vietnamese in guerrilla fighting.

There has been no enthusiasm in this country for getting involved in a war in Indochina. Kennedy's toughness in the spring of 1961 about stiff-arming pro-Communist pushes there melted away and he finally settled for a so-called neutralist government which may dissolve into communism anyway.

Meanwhile he sent American troops into neighboring Thailand

WASHINGTON (AP)—Agriculture Department investigators have found shortages of about a million bushels in government-owned grain—mostly corn and soybeans—stored in commercial warehouses in the Midwest. The value of the vanished grain was about $11 million.

The shortages are the aggregate of 11 individual instances previously reported. In eight of the cases, the government has asked federal courts to appoint receivers for the warehouses and to issue restraining orders against further handling of grain by the warehousemen.

More than two billion bushels of government-owned surplus grains are stored in commercial warehouses and in government bins.

Officials said that additional shortages may be found in the weeks ahead as declining grain supplies are pulling much grain out of storage for commercial use. The declining supplies reflect cutbacks in production and increases in use, both at home and abroad.

Officials expressed confidence that no financial losses would result for the government. Many small losses occur from time to time, reflecting shrinkage in the weight of the grain during storage as well as handling losses. Both of these are normal and do not represent wrongdoing on the part of the warehouse operator.

The eight cases on which court action has been taken included: Blissfield, Mich.—Basil & Sons, Inc., shortage of about 273,000 bushels of corn. Durland, Mich.—Basil Haddix & Sons Inc., shortage of about 22,000 bushels of corn. Woodbury, Mich.—Woodbury Grain Co., shortage of 97,745 bushels of corn. Decatur, Mich.—Michigan Grain Co., shortage of about 14,000 bushels of corn. Kenton, Ohio—Kenton Grain & Machinery Co., Inc. shortage of about 114,000 bushels of corn. Remedy Suggested By Buddhist Priest

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Eight men consulted a Buddhist priest, Yang Chi-teh, Monday on the best way to escape the current paratyphoid epidemic in Formosa.

The priest suggested they walk on burning coals. He assured them they would be protected by Pao Chen, a deity supposedly endowed with supernatural power against evil.

The eight men jumped onto a bed of fire and jumped out, all badly burned.

The priest was arrested.

AMA Slates Drug Probe

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
New York City has reported what may be the nation's first infant death involving the drug thalidomide, suspected crippler of new-born babies.

And an Arizona television star has been turned down by a judge in her attempt to get a legal abortion because she fears her child may be born deformed as a result of her taking the drug.

As these developments were recorded Monday, the American Medical Association launched comprehensive research to try to determine what the sedative-acting drug does to unborn infants.

A congressional hearing was set for Wednesday to look into what one senator called indications of "serious communication weaknesses" involving information on the drug's suspected crippling power.

The announcement came on the heels of a report by the Food and Drug Administration that thalidomide pills had been distributed to doctors in 30 states and the District of Columbia. They were not sold commercially.

In one of the states, the New York City Health Department said a 37-year-old Queens woman, who reportedly took 90 thalidomide pills before and during pregnancy, gave birth July 21 to a deformed baby which lived only about 40 minutes.

In Phoenix, Ariz. Superior Court Judge Yale McFate dismissed a suit by television personality Sherri Finkbine who sought to legalize the abortion she had planned.

"Miss Sherri," star of a Phoenix kiddie show, took thalidomide, which has been blamed for malformation of thousands of newborn infants, mostly in Europe. Mrs. Finkbine and her husband said they didn't want to risk such a birth.

The couple said today they would go elsewhere—to "a more favorable legal climate"—to seek an abortion.

All 50 states prohibit abortions, Arizona, and some others, allow exceptions only if the life of the mother is endangered.

The judge noted that Arizona law concerning abortion was not challenged in Mrs. Finkbine's suit. He said the plaintiff sought only to have the court determine that a "miscarriage" was necessary to save Mrs. Finkbine's life.

McFate added that the suit contained no controversy and there fore his court had no jurisdiction in the matter.

In New York, the city's acting health commissioner said the woman whose deformed baby died had taken thalidomide on the advice of a Park Avenue psychiatrist who had ordered the drug from a pharmacy in Germany.

In Chicago, the American Medical Association said it assigned its council on drugs to do the research on thalidomide. The drug has been under clinical evaluation since 1956, the AMA said, but it hopes the council's study will provide information on congenital malformations and that "appropriate measures will be developed to safeguard our population."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., whose Senate Government Operations subcommittee will open hearings on thalidomide, made the comment on "serious communication weaknesses" involving the drug.

Humphrey, said hearing witnesses will include Dr. Francis Keelsey. She is the Food and Drug Administration physician who blocked commercial distribution of thalidomide in this country after being alerted to its potential danger by what the senator called her "chance reading" of a British Medical Journal article.

Climber Is Buried On Jagged Slope

GRAND TETON NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. (AP)—A young Massachusetts mountain climber was to be buried today high on the jagged slopes of the snow-swept peak which claimed his life.

Stephen Smith, 21, of Holden, Mass., died of exposure going up Grand Teton Peak after his climbing party was caught in a snowstorm last Thursday. His grave will be about 1,200 feet from the summit of the 13,766-foot mountain.

The burial party consisted of ranger Pete Sinclair and park employees Jim Greig and Rick Horn.

They were landed by helicopter at the 10,500-foot level just before a new storm hit the area Monday. They radioed park headquarters in Jackson that bringing the body down would be extremely dangerous.

Smith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eric H. Smith, were contacted in Massachusetts and decided to allow the burial, the assistant chief ranger, John Davis, said.

Freighter, Barge Collide

DETROIT (AP)—A British freighter lay a crippled hulk in the Detroit River after the ship and a barge collided Monday night.

The crash tore a great hole in the port (left) side of the 4,400-ton Montrose, and the freighter rolled onto that side as rescue boats removed 41 members of the crew without injury.

The 442-foot Montrose's foredeck was virtually submerged today. Her screw and rudder were high above the water.

Water lapped higher and higher up her port side, finally reaching the big "M" on her stack.

She was held by her two anchors directly under the Ambassador Bridge, which links Detroit and Windsor, Ont.

Crew members were taken ashore and housed in a downtown hotel.

The captain, Ralph Eyre-Walker of Birkenhead, England, and the chief engineer, Richard Fowler of Manchester, England, and the first mate, Nathaniel Brownlee of Belfast, Ireland, remained aboard a time to protect the owner's interests.

Shortly before 3 a.m. EST, the three officers were taken off.

The crew was mostly Italian with British and Irish officers.

David Wheatley of Wadebridge, Cornwall, England, the third mate said he was on the bridge with the captain and the pilot, G. D. Beatty, when the collision occurred. He said the Montrose had just left a pier where she had discharged general cargo.

"I have no idea, really, what happened," Wheatley said. "It all happened too suddenly. There was not much of a jar, really."

The ship lay in about 35 feet of water, listing nearly 45 degrees to the left. Loud clattering and banging sounds occasionally could be heard as cargo shifted and gear broke loose and plunged to the low side of the ship.

Tugs pushed the crippled ship to within 200 yards of the U.S. side of the river. There the vessel hung and her left side settled slowly until the deck was almost at a right angle to the water.

The barge and the tug that was pushing it both escaped serious damage.

The Montrose is owned by Montreal Shipping of London and managed by Burles Markee Ltd. of London. It had left Portugal and sailed up the St. Lawrence Seaway, bound eventually for Fort William, Ont., where she was to load grain for the Mediterranean.

The barge and tug, which were downbound from Port Huron, Mich., to Detroit, are owned by the Becker Towing Co.

William Ademec, captain of a mail boat, said: "The tug was pushing the barge downriver, and the freighter cut diagonally across the river from the terminal dock. We could sense there would be a collision."

"We heard the tug signal, but there was no response from the freighter. Then the tug cut loose with the danger signal, five short, sharp blasts, and reversed her engines. Then the barge hit the freighter amidships."

Iron manufacture was important in Kentucky during the War of 1812. Some of the cannonballs fired by Andrew Jackson's forces in the battle of New Orleans were made in Bath County, Ky.

Couple Leaving To Seek Abortion

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Finkbine, determined to prevent the birth of a child they fear will be malformed, said today they will leave Arizona to seek an abortion.

Mrs. Finkbine, 30-year-old mother of four, says that early in her pregnancy she took tranquilizers containing thalidomide, the drug blamed for the birth of thousands of malformed children in Europe, Australia and Canada.

On Monday Judge Cale McFate of State Superior Court rejected a plea by the Finkbines and Good Samaritan Hospital of Phoenix to sanction an abortion.

This morning, in a statement released by hospital administrator Stephen Morris, Finkbine said:

"Despite medical and psychiatric opinion in the case, the courts have refused to confirm that the recommended treatment would be within the framework of the law.

"There have been repeated published suggestions of prosecution of this case and since we and our physicians do not wish to undertake a solution that might be considered outside the framework of the law we have concluded to seek help in a more favorable legal climate."

Finkbine couldn't be reached for further comment, but Morris said the couple had started making preparations to leave. He said, however, that he understood the Finkbines had not decided on their destination.

All 50 states prohibit abortions, Arizona, and some others, allow exceptions only if the life of the mother is endangered.

The Finkbines' suit, in which Good Samaritan Hospital joined, contended an abortion was necessary to preserve Mrs. Finkbine's health and save her life.

In rejecting the suit, Judge McFate dismissed the Maricopa (Phoenix) County attorney and the Arizona attorney general as defendants, ruling that a legal controversy did not exist.

He noted that both officials had stated in court that if the facts of the case were presented, i.e. that Mrs. Finkbine's life was in danger, there would be no ground for prosecution.

Finkbine's reference to "suggestions of prosecution" apparently referred to a statement Sunday by Deputy County Atty Felix Gordon. He said his office could

First Test For New Law

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—Three Chicagoans, owners of a Chicago-Louisville horse race scratch sheet operation, were fined $5,000 each Monday in the first test of a new federal law barring interstate shipment of gambling material.

Another defendant, Louis Ekeman of Lexington, 62-year-old publisher of the Louisville Daily Sports News, was fined a total of $2,000.

Ekeman and the Chicago men, Thomas F. Kelly Sr., his son, Thomas F. Kelly Jr., and George L. Kelly, were convicted here on July 29. They were the first to be tried under the new law.

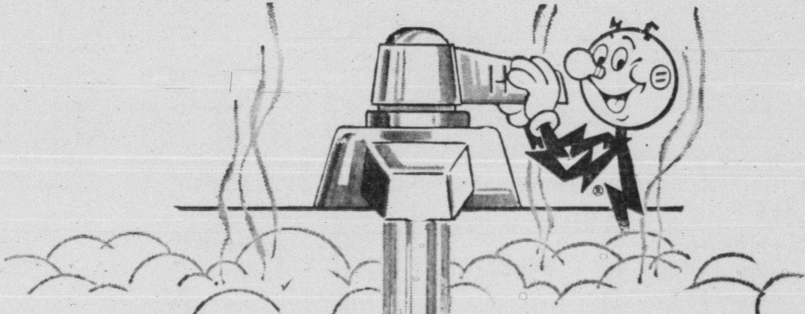

All four were convicted of shipping from Chicago to Louisville copies of the Illinois Sports News—published by the Kellys—and of sending sheets of paper imprinted with only the Louisville Daily Sports News nameplate.

The first compulsory education law in the Western Hemisphere was decreed for all children between 5 and 13 by the Danish government of the Virgin Islands in 1848.

Here's why a flameless
ELECTRIC WATER HEATER
gives you hotter water ... faster

In a flameless, quick recovery electric water heater, two super-fast heating elements are in the water, inside the tank, rather than just one heat source outside the tank bottom.

Element at top heats water at the point of draw-off.

Element at bottom heats incoming water. Notice, too, that heavy insulation completely surrounds the tank, including the bottom. Heat is sealed in, and none is wasted up a flue, since an electric water heater is flameless and needs no flue or vent. That's why an electric water heater gives you the hot water you need for dishes, laundry and other uses... as fast as you need it. See both round and table top models at your dealer's soon!

SAVE NOW... WITH TEXAS ELECTRIC'S $50 INSTALLATION CERTIFICATE

Good for $50 on the retail purchase and installation of a new electric 40-gallon (or larger) glass-lined, quick recovery water heater, replacing an existing water heater, in any home served by Texas Electric Service Company. This certificate offer good only until August 31. See your appliance dealer, plumber, or electrical contractor.
