Tahoka Meets Post To Open Conference

Tahoka Bulldogs open their District 5-AA season tonight with their old rivals, the Post Antelopes. The game will be played in that city beginning at 8 o'clock. It is also the first conference game for Post.

The Bulldog team is crippled up, and some of the starters may not see much action.

Quarterback Gordon Smith may see only limited action, or not at all. He received a badly bruised back in the Brownfield game. Tackle Duane McMillan, one of Tahoka's most dependable linemen, will likely not be able to play because of a leg injury received at Brownfield; and Center Garland Huddleston may also see only limited action. Frankie Jones lineback, who received a broken thumb in the seminole game, is still out; and Halfback Tommy Franklin, who receved a back injury in the Crane game, is not yet up to par but will likely substitute for Smith if Smith is not able to play.

However, Fullback I. V. J. Melton who received a knee injury in the Crane game is expected to play.

Coach "Bing" Bingham's Antelopes had an open date last Friday, and are saaid to be pepped up over a possible victory over the Bulldogs tonight.

Tahoka has a somewhat better record this year than Post, having met larger schools and won four out of six starts. Tahoka has defeated Denver City 32 to 6, O'Donnell 34 to 0, Crane 27 to 20, and Brownfield 26 to 20, and lost to Littlefield 27 to 13 and Seminole 7 to 0.

Post has won two, over O'Donnell 33 to 7 and over Roscoe 7 to 0; tied Morton 7-7; and lost to Hamlin 19 to 6 Crosbyton 32 to 6, and Rotan 26 to 12.

But previous records mean little when Post and Tahoka meet in their battle. Last year Tahoka barely nosed out the Antelopes 20 to 13, and Post has the advantage of playing on its home field this year.

Coach Bingham's boys are explosive, and frequently score from away out rather than on power plays. They like to pitch the ball around, and use lots of pitchouts, short passes, long passes, and also reverse and other deceptive plays.

Bingham declared early in the season the Quarterback Tommy Murray is a better passer than was Jack Kirpatrick.

Those expected to see action for Post in the backfield are: Murray, 148 and Moody Graham, 137, at quarterback; Don Gates, 155, a transfer from Idalou, at fullback; Ronnie Kennedy, 150, Speedy Darrell Norman, 149 Homer Cato, 147, and Raymond Gary, 137 halfbacks

In the line will be: Novis Pennell, 159, at center; Dicky Beggs, 152, and Bowen Stephens 157, or Andy Schmidt, 137, at guards; Junior Smith, 162, and Billy Meeks, 191, or Leon Davis, 156 at tackles; and Ted Tatum, 150, and Mack Terry, 141, or Noel White, 136, at ends.

With the Bulldogs crippled up, the game is almost certain to be a close, hard-fought battle.

Many farmers report their cotton is turning out much better than they had estimated it would.

Legion Starts Member Drive

Marion G. Bradley Post No. 250 of the American Legion will launch its annual membership dirve at its regular meeting on the night of October 25, announces F. W. Chapman, Post commander.

All present and prospective members are urged to attend the meeting. Dues are $5.00 this year, and can be paid to any Legion member or to Johnny Wells at Tahoka Drug.

The Legion members entertained their wives Monday night with a barbecue supper, followed by a session of games. About forty people attended this affair.

Attend District Farm Meeting

N. E. Wood, president of the Lynn County Farm Bureau, and Guy Smith, former president, attended the 16-county District 2 Farm Bureau meeting held in Lubbock Thursday of last [illegible] Galveston [illegible], 9, and 10.

Albert Einstein, German refugee, arrived and settled in Princeton, N. J. on October 17, 1933.

Steps were being taken this week for the formation of a golf and country club and recreation center for the people of Lynn county, to be known as T-Bar Country Club.

Prospects for the recreational facilities becoming a reality were brighter this week following the announcement by a committee composed of J. E. (Red) Brown O. C. Elliott, and Frank Hill, that a 125-acre tract of land would be available.

Other committees are already at work studying the golf course layout, drilling of water wells, and the waging of a membership drive.

As soon as plans are a little further along, a mass meeting of all people in Lynn county interested will be called to put further plans into operation.

T-Bar Country Club is now being organized. Those working on the project intend to make the club a county-wide affair with directors from all areas of the county.

Furthermore, membership and dues will be placed at a minimum and greens fees will be kept at a minimum also, and facilities will be available to every Lynn County family.

The golf course will be nine holes with grass greens, and will also have a putting green and a driving range

The site which has been obtained is rolling land, and is ideal for a beautiful lay-out. Site for the club house is on a hill overlooking the entire course.

Also included in the plans is an airport with two or three landing strips, suitable for use of private planes, crop dusters, and for emergency landing of larger planes. Emory Nance and others interested in flying propose to form a club for development of this part of the project.

Space will be available for almost any conceivable county or community project, such as rodeo grounds, Boy Scout and Girl Scout huts, a VFW or Legion hall, playgrounds and picnic areas.

All of these are theoretical, but none of them are inconceivable.

Local golfers have long sought a permanent site for a golf course where water was obtainable. In the past four golf courses have been built around Tahoka, all with sand greens. Each had to be discontinued for one reason or another, usually because the club did not own the land or because there was no water to plant grass greens. Since the land is owned by the people of Lynn County, this will not happen again. The present site is believed to have plenty of water available and a test for water was to be made this week. Preparations are already being made for the planting of rye and grasses and plans are to plant trees and shrubs.

Each time, local golfers have built these courses themselves with a minimum of hired labor.

On the T-Bar Country Club project, much of the labor for building the course and some of the materials are expected to be donated. Already offered the club free is enough fencing to enclose the 125 acres, use of a well drill, use of several farm tractors, and use of a number of farm laborers.

Since building of a golf course requires many men, have offered [illegible] Nationals or other [illegible] workers when not needed on farms. Plans are to have the course playable next May 1 however.

Considerable interest has already been expressed in the project at O'Donnell, Wilson and Grassland, and people of other areas may become interested now that a site is assured for the recreational center.

Tahoka Wins Over Brownfield 26 to 20

Tahoka Bulldogs wound up their non-conference schedule Friday night at Brownfield by taking a 26 to 20 victory over the Cubs, who play in District 6-AA.

The Bulldogs start conference play this Friday night with the Post Antelopes in that city.

The Tahoka boys trailed Brownfield 20 to 6 early in the second quarter, but came back to hold the Cubs scoreless for the rest of the game and to score once in each of the four quarters.

It was a rough game, Tahoka's third in as many weeks, but this one was rough in a different way. Two boys, one from each team, were ejected from the game early in the contest and two more in the fading minutes.

Except for two long touchdown passes the Bulldogs held the Cubs fairly well in check most of the game rolling up 14 first downs to the Cubs 9 and carrying the ball 324 yards on running plays to Brownfield's 160. The Cubs completed one touchdown pass for 39 yards and another for 60.

Tahoka scored the first time it had the ball but Brownfield came right back to run over three quick touchdowns and take a 20 to 6 lead before the Tahoka boys could get a defense set to stop the Cub offense.

Gordon Smith ran 8 yards for the first TD to end a 67-yard march downfield. Tackle Jimmy Williams covered a Cub fumble on the 40, and Fullback Don Blair carried 33 yards to set up the second TD by Smith. A 41 yard run by Jerry Williams set up Smith's third scoring jaunt of five yards. The fourth was set up on a pass interference penalty by Brownfield on their 16, and Jerry Williams carried the last ten yards for the winning score. The interference penalty, in which Carlton Bell, was the intended receiver, raised the ire of the Cubs.

First Quarter

Tahoka took the opening kick off on the 3, with williams carrying out to the 33. Franklin made 2 Blair 11, Franklin 11, and Williams ran 43 yards to the goal-line untouched, but the play was called back and Tahoka penalized 5 yards for offsides. Two plays later End L. W. Castleberry caught a beautiful 29 yard pass to the Cub 15, and on fourth down Smith went 8 yards around left end to score. Bill Moore missed the extra point kick. Score, Tahoka 6, Cubs 0.

Brownfield, taking the kickoff, marched 61 yards to score. Ronnie Swan, RH, FB Lee Allen Jones, LH Jesse Scott, and QB Phil Addison took turns carrying the mail, with Swan going around right end for one yard to score the Cub's first TD. Addison passed to LE Vernon Brewer for the extra point, and the Cubs led 7 to 6.

In less than a minute, the Cubs had another TD. After the kickoff, the Cubs' Ken Muldrow covered a Tahoka fumble on the Tahoka 34. Set back 5 yards, Addison then threw a long pass to Brewer on the 20, where Vernon juggled the ball and finally made a remarkable recovery and went the remaining distance to score. Jones ran the ball for the extra point. Score, Cubs 14, Tahoka 6.

Second Quarter

Each team lost the ball on fumbles before the quarter ended, and then Tahoka appeared to have a march underway, but the ball was fumbled out of bounds on the Cub 30 and the last man to touch it was a Cub. Four plays netted a first down by an inch or two, and then Scott took a forward pass at midfield and weaved and cut all the way for the Cubs last score. Swan failed to run over the extra point. Score, Cubs 20-6.

It was a few plays later that Jim Williams covered a Cub fumble on the Cub 42. Blair went 33 yards to the 9, Franklin made 6, Smith 3, and then Smith hit the center for the TD. Moore's kick was good this time and the Cubs led only 20-13.

On McMillan's kick-off, Jim Williams covered the ball, and Tahoka started toward the goal again. But with a first down on the Cub 9, the Bulldogs were unable to gain on four plays, and the ball went over as the half ended.

Third Quarter

Receiving the kickoff, the Cubs moved quickly from their 40 to Tahoka's 22, principally on a 29 yard run by Swan, but Tahoka held on the 22 and took over on downs. Here the Bulldogs were unstopable, grinding out 4 to 7 yards a play, moving to the Cub 49. Williams took a pitchout from Smith and went 44 yards to the 5, and on the next play Smith went over. Moore's kick was blocked, and the Cubs now led only 20-19.

Tahoka forced the Cubs to punt following the kickoff, but a lateral was fumbled by Tahoka on the later's 28. Two first downs by the Cubs moved to Tahoka's 4. With a first and goal on the 4, Tahoka seemed doomed, but the Bulldogs held and the ball went over on the 1 and one half. A few plays later, Williams punted from the 10 to the 40, but Tahoka held the Cubs again, this time on the 26, Blair, Williams and Smith carried to the Cub 37. Then Smith threw a pass intended for Bell on the 16, but a Cub came in contact with Bell too quickly, and pass interference was ruled. Two plays later, Williams went for the final score. Tahoka 26, Brownfield 20.

Tahoka's on-side kick taken by the Cubs on Tahoka's 49. Swan made a first to the Tahoka 39 with 2 minutes left in the game. Two plays netted minus 1, Brewer caught a pass for 7 yards, and a fourth down pass was incomplete.

Tahoka took the ball with 1 minute 39 seconds left, during which 15 plays were run, a seeming impossibility. From the Tahoka 34, Franklin made 0 (time out, Bfd.); Smith 1, (Time out Bfd.); Smith 1 (Time out Bfd.); As Williams punted there was 1:05 left on the clock. As Williams pounted out of bounds on the Tahoka 49, there were 55 left but there were 11 more plays to come.

Addison threw three desperation incomplete passed in 20 seconds, and Hamilton came in to pass with 35 seconds left. His was incomplete, and Tahoka took over with 30 seconds left. Blair ran with the ball to the Brownfield 45, but fumbled and the Cubs recovered eating up 10 seconds as the fans and coaches ate on their fingernails.

But, wait, there's still time for five plays in 20 seconds (By the clock, at least). A Cub pass was broken up by Franklin, and the intended receiver took a swing at Franklin and Franklin swung back and both were ejected from the game. The clock still showed 20 seconds. Brownfield passed incomplete again. The clock still showed 20 seconds but jumped to 18 at the end of the play. After Tahoka Coach Bill Haralson had complained, officials had the clock moved down to 16 seconds. Another pass was incomplete. Then Smith snatched the fourth down pass just before it reached the intended receiver and ran the ball back from the 39 to the 42. And there were still 6 seconds left! A Cub jumped offsides to draw a penalty to the 47, and on the next play Smith took the ball and went 5 yards to finally run out the slow-runing clock. It was then, Cubs piled up on the Bulldogs and for a moment it appeared there might be trouble, but cooler heads separated the mixture, and the game was over. In fairness to the Brownfield timekeeper it should be stated that two Tahoka fans found the clock plug pulled, put it back in the socket, and informed the timekeeper, who, in turn, informed the officials. Still, there was a lot of ball played in 1:39, 1:05, 55, or 20 seconds.

Garland Huddleston again turned an outstanding game at center and on defense. Other standouts included Larry Simmons, who played most of the game, Duane McMillan, Stanley Stone, Ware High, Ronnie Brooks, N. E. Wood, Bill Moore, and Jimmy Williams.

Pvt. Derrell Fletcher is on leave after five months spent in Virginia, and is visiting his family and friends at New Home, after which he will go to Canada.

WASHINGTON AND

"SMALL BUSINESS"

By C. WILSON HARDER

An independent businessman catching someone dipping into the till does not rationalize such action away as due to unhappy childhood, nor stays quiet because he may antagonize culprit's relatives or friends.

* * *

C.W. Harder

* * *

To most minds there is no double standard of evil. Evil is evil, and its black mantle falls on those who passively accept evil, as well as those who concoct it. And encouraging evil with financing is beyond most human understanding.

* * *

Many feel Sen. Joseph Knowland, (R., Cal.) would have emerged hero had he stood by demand to sever diplomatic relations with Russia.

* * *

Attempt being made by J. Bracken Lee, Utah's governor, to stop foreign aid spending as unconstitutional, is drawing Main Street support.

* * *

Reports of British Labor Party junket in Red China gave fresh sense of urgency to this feeling.

* * *

Attlee's statement, "I believe that the Chinese peasant has got a government that is doing something for him, which is concerned with the welfare and prosperity of the peasants and rests upon the confidence of the peasant population. The West has nothing to fear from Communist China," and the Bevan statement made in China, "Our presence is itself sufficient to show our support for the Chinese People's Revolution" has thrown chill in many American hearts who realize these people may be but a heart beat away from again ruling England.

* * *

It is also disclosed British gunboats will protect merchant ships going into Shanghai; naval power perhaps paid for in part by U. S. military assistance aid.

* * *

Statements as made by British Labor Party leaders who may again be on eve of power are attributed to either madmen or those who have actually degenerated so morally they can rationalize murder, pillage, slavery. In any event, independent businessmen want to stop use of their taxes to financing such rationalization of evil.

* * *

At present British defend Red China relations on grounds U. S. still sees fit to recognize Russia, a situation publicly deplored by Herbert Hoover as the great psychological mistake and moral tragedy of this century.

* * *

Now many fear epidemic of rationalization of evil is infecting Washington.

* * *

Washington believes special 60 man committee now studying antitrust laws, heavily loaded with college professors and corporation lawyers, will recommend nullifying nation's antitrust laws when it reports in December on grounds U. S. cannot do business with nations without antitrust laws. Already propaganda on this position has been unleashed.

* * *

Thus drive will be to sell American people that in order to live with evil, this nation must adopt the ways of evil.

* * *

But it is held significant that British system of cartel and monopoly business has as its eventual and inevitable result spawned government officials who not only condone, but uphold bloody, red handed evil, just as history shows all nations who have gone Communist have been nations without antitrust laws to protect independent enterprise.

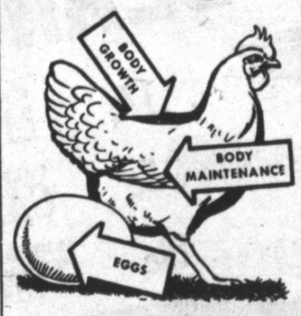
HELP HENS LAY LOTS OF EGGS—And For a Long Time!



To make money from poultry, your hens must shell out lots of eggs for a long time—especially through fall and early winter, when egg prices are best.

To do this the hen must have the right feed to help her grow to maturity, keep up her own body and develop and lay lots of eggs, too. It's a big job.

Purina has built a powerful top feed—Purina Booster Checkers—to help keep hens in top shaps. Ask about Booster Checkers and the Purina Body and Egg Plan next time you art in the store.

WINNERS IN DRAWINGS AT THE FAIR

At the recent Lynn County Fair a lot of folks dropped by our booth and registered for prizes given away each day. The following were winners of Purina Sanitation products: Gerald Short, John Redwine, Tiny Reed, Mrs. Vernon Willhoit, A. E. Ware, and Robert Lee Hagler.

The "'hanging" chicken feeder holds approximately 32 pounds of feed—it's called a P-32. Eighteen ptople guessed the right amount. The winner by drawing was Charles Isham.

Nephew Dies Of Polio At Post

Funeral services were held yesterday, Thursday, for 16-months oul Joe Duane Baker of Post, who died of bulbar polio in the treatment center at Plainview, Wednesday at 12:20 a. m. Little Joe Duane was the nephew of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. (Dub) Kenley, of Tahoka, the boy's father being Mrs. Kenley's brother.

Parents of the child are Mr. and Mrs Bob Baker of Post. Another child three-year-old Charles Lynn Baker, who also has contacted polio, is in fair condition at the polio treatment center in Plainview. Joe Duane was admitted to the center Thursday, Oct. 14, and Charles Lynn was admitted the next day, last Friday. Both suffered the bulbar type of polio.

Services were held in the First Baptist Church of Post with the Rev. Roy Shahan, pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. A. B. Cockerell former Methodist minister at Post. Burial was in Terrace Cemetery at Post under direction of the Mason Funeral Home.

Survivors include the parents; the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ethel Redman of Post; and the paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. L B. Baker, also of Post, and a brother.

The death was the fifth fatality amoung patients at the West Texas Polio Center in Plainview since the first of the year.

Methodist Observe Layman's Day

Layman's Day was observed at the First Methodist Church last Sunday with a special program at the 11 o'clock hour.

Laymen were in charge of the service, with Ira Joe Hart the leader. Short talks were made by V. F. Jones, Calloway Huffaker, Maurice Bray, John Reasonover, and Otis Spears. A male quartet composed of Spears, Hart, Floyd Tubb, and Myron Gilstrap, presented a special.

Monday night, Rev. George Maurice Small, pastor of Trinity Methodist Church of Plainview, made a very fine talk before a large crowd at the church on the Second Assembly of the World Council of Churches which he attended at Northwestern University in Evanston, Ill., during August. Theme of the meeting was "Christ, the Hope of the World." The Monday night meeting was sponsored by the Woman's Society of Chrstian Service.

To The Voters of Justice Precinct No. 1:

I have been asked by some voters if I would accept the office of Justice of the Peace, Precinct No. 1, if a majority would scratch the man nominated by Democratic Committee and write in my name—Sam Reid.

I would like very much to have the job, and if you had rather have me for your Justice of the Peace, just scratch the name on the ticket and write in Sam Reid.

First, I am able to do that work; and, second, it pays $125.00 salary.

Please, Please, Please vote!

Yours Truly,

SAM REID

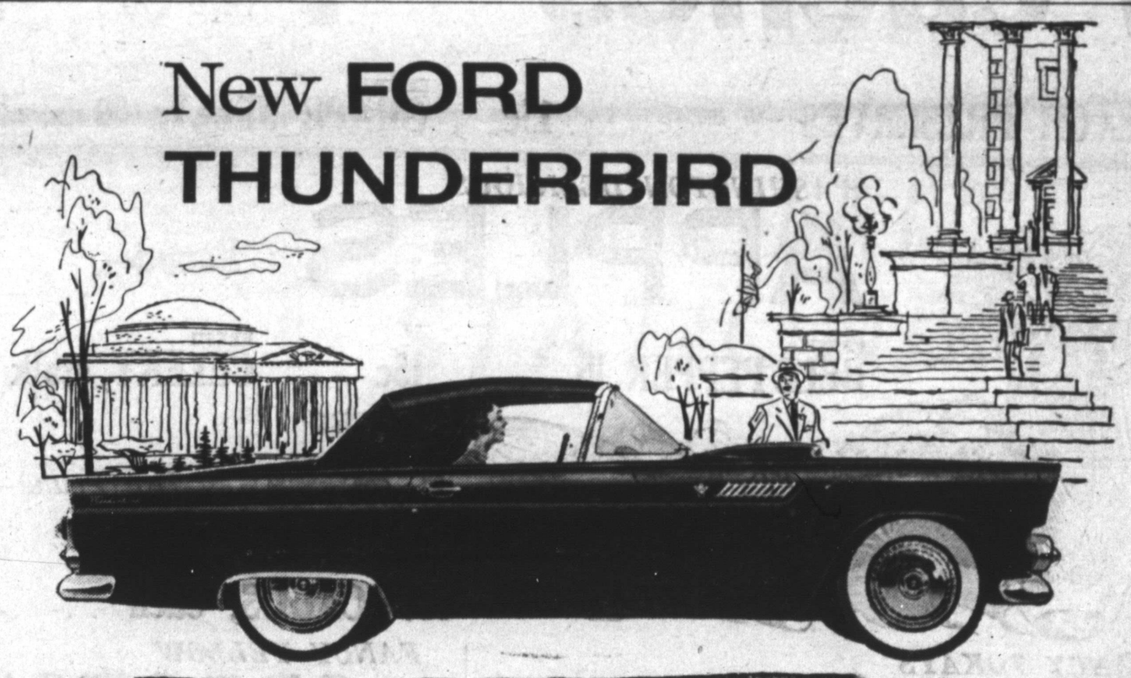
New FORD THUNDERBIRD



A personal car of distinction ...with Trigger-Torque performance

You'll be delighted at the wealth of conveniences the Thunderbird offers. Two tops are available: a disappearing fabric top . . . and an easy-to-lift-on hard top. The extra-wide vinyl upholstered seat is foam-rubber-cushioned . . . power-operated 4 ways. Windows roll up . . . by power, if you like. There is a tachometer . . . and a clock with a sweep second hand. There is a telescoping steering wheel. And you can have power steering and power brakes.

Something totally fresh is here—a bewitching new all-steel beauty that sets the styling keynote for other Ford cars to come.

But, styling gives the merest hint of what the Thunderbird has to offer. In traffic and on the open road the Thunderbird's Trigger-Torque performance is literally a revelation. Here is hair-trigger response . . . fleet, liquid agility . . . backed by a reserve of swift, sure power to meet safety's every demand. Trigger-Torque performance stems from Ford's new Thunderbird Special V-8—a high-torque engine with 4-barrel carburetor, dual exhausts, wide-opening valves and Ford's famous low-friction design. And you can have the Thunderbird with the transmission of your choice—Conventional, Overdrive, or new Speed-Trigger Fordomatic.

Ford's Ball-Joint Front Suspension not only velvet-cushions your ride, it also allows the Thunderbird to handle with utmost ease—to corner with greatest stability.

But, more important, the Thunderbird is the product of the same advanced engineering . . . the same manufacturing skills that have made Ford products so dependable, so value-full and so desirable to so many.

County Pioneer Owner of Mystery Farm No. 15

Last week's "Mystery Farm," pictured above, belongs to Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Turner Sr., pioneer residents of Lynn county. It is located a mile north of New Home.

H. W. "Cotton" Carter was the first town reader to identify the farm, and Mrs. Claude James was the first rural reader to identify it. However, only four other people guessed the place correctly. They were Mrs. Dick Turner, daughter-in-law, Bickie Turner, a grandson, Jimmy Blankenship and Lewis Allsup.

Mr. and Mrs. Turner have been residents of Lynn county nearly fifty years. They bought this 320 acre farm about 20 years ago, and it is farmed by their son, Dick. The place has two irrigation wells. Mr. and Mrs. Turner have retired, and built the home pictured here about four years ago.

Mr. Turner came to Lubbock from Haskell county, and worked as a cowpuncher for Sam Arnett and on the old NUN runch in northwestern Lynn county.

He and Miss Nora Martin were married at Lubbock January 6, 1903, and three or four years later they moved to Section 2 in the extreme northwestern part of Lynn county, where Mrs. Turner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. V. M. Martin, had settled earlier.

The Turners have raised a large family of ten children and say they have had a lot of fun bringing up the bunch, and now they also have 23 grandchildren and eight great grandchildren of whom they are proud.

The children, in order of birth, are: Mrs. Hazel Lee of Haskell, W. T. Turner of Lubbock, Miss Susie Turner of Dallas, Mrs. Pauline Hitt of Wolfforth, Henry of Wichita Falls, G. W. (Dick) Jr. of New Home, W. W. of Lubbock, Mrs. Leta Burleson of Lubbock, Virgil of Levelland, and Mrs. Margie Holly of Midwest, Oklahoma.

J. F. TOLERS ATTEND SON'S GRADUATION

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Toler and daughter, Janelle, a senior student in Texas Tech, attended Army graduation exercises of their son, John, at Fort Riley, Kansas, Thursday of last week and visited with him over the week end.

John has for four or five months been attending the Army Intelligence school at Fort Riley, specializing in both photo indentification and electrical engineering. The school there, the Tolers say, resembles a college campus and is attended by officers and enlisted men alike for specialization courses.

John has now gone to Fort Lewis, Wash., from which place he expects to be sent to the Far East soon. So far, he has not been attached to any particular outfit, but was selected for the special training because of a high IQ test.

He is a graduate of Tahoka High School and a journalism graduate of Texas Tech.

John Banister, a Church of Christ minister in Dallas who is conducting a meeting at the Broadway Church of Christ in Lubbock, visited here Saturday with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Banister.

The Basic Idea Behind the All-New 1955 PONTIAC

On Display October 29 and 30

ABOUT 30 years ago General Motors Corporation presented to America a new car called Pontiac. This new car was the direct result of a very specific idea.

The idea was this: to create a car which took its style, its engineering principles and its features from the very best and most expensive in America—and to build these into a car priced just above the very lowest!

Naturally, such an idea produced a wonderful and highly popular car—a car which millions of satisfied owners have driven with outstanding pride and pleasure.

Now, nearly three decades later, an entirely new Pontiac has been created for 1955—a car completely new from the ground up!

One thing, however, about the 1955 Pontiac remains unchanged—its basic idea—to offer the American public the very finest car that can possibly be built to sell at a price within easy reach of any new-car buyer.

When you see the new Pontiac on Friday or Saturday—Oct. 29 or 30—you will be immediately impressed by its remarkable new styling. No other car in the world looks like this new Pontiac!

When you drive it you will be astonished at its performance. For the 1955 Pontiac introduces the powerful new Strato-Streak V-8, an all-new engine that has already been proved in more than 3 million test miles!

When you price the new Pontiac you will come face to face with the basic Pontiac idea—you will be agreeably surprised that so much car, so much sparkling newness, so much luxury, so much downright goodness can be priced so near the very lowest.

We cordially invite you to come in on Friday or Saturday and see for yourself what a superb all-new General Motors masterpiece has been created to carry the wonderful name "Pontiac" for 1955.

Maid Of Cotton Will Be Named

Lubbock, Oct. 21—South Plains cotton industry leaders have begun their search for an attractive young woman who will be crowned 1954 South Plains Maid of Cotton and represent this area as one of the 20 finalists in the national Maid of Cotton Contest early next year.

Officials of the contest, which has been called "the world's most dignified beauty contest" by the Associated Press, have received confirmation that again this year the South Plains Maid will be an automatic entry in the finals to be held in Memphis, Tenn., early in January. Only five other state contest winners throughout the entire South will receive this rating.

Complete plans for this year's South Plains pageant are still pending, but entries are now being received. The contest likely will be in Lubbock's Fair Park Coliseum about Nov. 22.

All contestants for the South Plains title which offers an all-expense-paid trip to Memphis and a glamorous cotton wardrobe among the prizes, must be between the ages of 19 and 25 inclusive, at least 5 feet 5 inches tall, never married and must have been born in a cotton producing state.

Entry blanks and details of the contest are available by writing: South Plains Maid of Cotton Contest, Box 561, Lubbock, Texas, or by calling at the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce.

The competition is not a "beauty contest" in the usual sense of the word. Judging is on the basis of intelligence,

Young women from throughout West Texas are expected to enter this fifth annual South Plains pageant. Last year's program attracted 21 attractive girls from a dozen different towns who appeared before more than 1,600 persons at the contest finals. Officials are expecting this year's finals to draw a crowd of more than 2,500.

Jones Speaks On Burial Customs

Geno Jones presented a very interesting classification talk at Tahoka Rotary Club Thursday noon of last week on embalming.

He traced the history of embalming from pre-historic times up to date, and told of some of the superstitions and customs in regard to burial rites which have come down through the centuries, many of which originated with the Egyptians.

He told how the Egyptians enbalmed bodies 4,000 years before Christ, and stated that people of that day believed that the soul would return to the body after 3,000 years. Modern embalming was started in the 17th century for preserving bodies for research purposes by doctors. The practice was started in the United States during the Civil War in order that dead soldiers might be taken home for burial. Today, tht principal purpose of embalming is to preserve the body long enough for the funeral and for sanitary purposes.

Among the superstitions he described was that of sitting up with the body, still practiced today in some communities, which originally was for the purpose of keeping "demons" away from the body.

Herschell Coffee of Canyon, former District Governor, was a visitor at the club.

President A. M. Bray told of the Lubbock inter-city meeting at which Herbert Taylor of Chicago president of Rotary International, was the principal speaker, and of the Grassland benefit barbecue being held Thursday night of this week.

ODDS AND ENDS

(BY E. I. THE ELDER)

Last week, Folks, I gave you a bit of the lowdown on an ancient people called Galatians, which is also the name of one of the most-quoted Books of the New Testament. From time to time I expect to give human-interest stories respecting other peoples who figure prominently in the the Bible not only because these stories may be very interesting in themselves but also because in many cases they help us to understand and interpret better the meaning of the Scriptures to which they appertain.

This week, however, I am first going to give space to a continued mythical story which my Mexican friend, Senorita Aurora started in to send me in piecemeal some weeks ago and then was interrupted by a spell of sickness and also by the length of the columns which I have been writing for the News myself. Her contributions are brief, however, and so I am going to give you three of these instalments in this one issue of the paper. I am giving them to you because of their strangeness and because they give you some insight into the kind of literature that pleases our Mexican neighbors.

The title of this mythical or legendary story is "China Poblana," and Senorita Aurora gave us the first instalment of it in our issue of August 20, in which she said: "La China Poblana legend is a general favorite with all Mexican people—the popular ideal of the feminine type." The story has been immortalized in Spanish paintings and in song. It has been the inspiration of Spanish poets like Fidel, who wrote a book of verses, entitled Musa Callejera.

Upon making inquiry, I was informed that Poblana was a name or word derived from the word puebla, a garlener's seed. It is a different word entirely from the Spanish word pueblo, which means a village or town, a collection of houses, or a very large house in which many families live. The word puebla has no relation to the word pueblo. It means a gardener's seed, and hence suggests the idea that it may germinate and spring up and in due time bear a beautiful flower. The same idea may be applied spiritually and become symbolic of a beautiful woman or other human being. Quite a beautiful thought. Musa, originally a Latin word, means a goddess of poetry and music, and an inspiration to poets. But callajera is a street loiterer, or a woman of the streets, which may indicate a very beautiful but less respectable female character. So, blending all these ideas into one individual or personality we get a picture of the Poblana as a gorgeously beautiful human flower that sprang up out of God's earth and therefore of semi-divine origin, who voluptuously displays her beauty on the streets, and soon develops into a wicked woman, a charming but a jealous and vengeful goddess. Just why the word China was applied to her name, making her the China Poblana, is not explained.

So now we will proceed with the recital of Senorita Aurora's legend, "La China Poblana," or "Diosa de la Calle,—The Goddess of the Street"—as Aurora's Aunt Elvira calls the Poblana.

* * *

"The China Poblana is attractive at first sight. Like the poppy, her bright colors attract all eyes. The spangles of her dark red and green skirt shine like sparks of fire—green satin tight about shapely hips and then the flair of intense dark red, which falls in heavy spangled and embroidered folds to slender ankles. The skirt usually is flowered in yellow, white, and black; above the waste, a blouse of fine white or light cream-colored cloth, also beautifully embroidered in brilliant silk, leaves bare slender and graaceful throat—a blouse such as is used today in the hot southern part of the country. Around the throat are necklaces of coral or of lockets and bright beads. Many bracelets adorn smooth brown arms. A "rebozo" or thin shawl is wound around the waist, the ends crossed at the back and hung over the shoulders. Sometimes it may be unfolded and used to cover the head of the wearer, as is the custom when attending mass.

"The China Poblana wears green silk taffeta slippers over bare feet. Her hair is parted evenly in front and plaited into two thick braids tied with green or red ribbons. She is neither pure Indian nor pure Spanish but "mestiza," with hair like midnight, and the bloom of dark roses stain the brown of her cheek. Great black eyes sparkle with life and fun; pouting red lips which make the poets sing. She is far from saintly and somewhat of a flirt.

"Her not overly modest dress; the bareness of her arms, throat, and delicate foot; her coquetish gestures; and the bright colors ODDS and ENDS No. 2 which she prefers—all are indications of her frivolous character; and the literature of today has converted these indications into definite charges against this attractive young woman. In the popular romance of the Mexican "Musa Callejera," the part the China Poblana plays is that of a flirt and trouble-maker among young men. In her small way, she is a Helen of Troy, and more than once the blood of some unfortunate lover has been splattered upon her skirt; and even she herself at times has been known to draw a tiny dagger in jealous attack upon some rival. Under the cloak of her velvet-like womanliness are hidden dangerous tigress claws.

"From this it can be seen that the 'China Poblana' has none of the characteristics of a saint, and it is a surprising fact that this capricious and sinful woman descends from a most godly person, about whom historians have written and whose life was considered worthy of gracious comment by doctors of righteous and orthodox beliefs in the latter part of the seventeenth century. The first grandmother of the China Poblana today, according to the legend, was born in eastern India, in the Magore (whatever that is) in Delhi in 1610, aand died in the celar of a house in Pueblo de Los Angeles in Mexico in the year of 1698. Her name was Mirraha, meaning "Bitterness" in Prakrit, her native tongue. Later she was given the Christian name of Catarina de San Juan, and to this was added the title "La Venerable" by her biographers.

"Catarina's father was a magician or 'Holy Man' possibly a yogi, who went about 'healing the sick, casting out devils and calming storms' with the aid of the magic water of a holy fountain. To her mother, just after the birth of this child of destiny, the Virgin Mary appeared, according to the story, and taking the young mother to a stony hillside uncovered a hidden treasaure of gold and jewels. "Take these," said Saint Mary to the awed young woman, "and bring up your daughter with great care."

Astrologers, who cast the horoscope of the child, predicted that strange fabrics would be spun from her wheel of destiny.

One day the little girl was lost, and after five days of searching, her frantic parents found her safe and sound on a raft of driftwood and debris which had been swept by the mighty waters of a turbulent river into the quietude of a tiny bay. It was then predicted that thus she would be swept by the forces of destiny across oceans and to strange lands.—To be continued.

From this continued story, readers can now plainly see why China Poblana is a general favorite with Mexican people. It is developing into a beautiful story and besides it seems to be thoroughly in tune with the religious beliefs of most Mexicans.

When I was in Mexico two and a half years ago for a period of ten weeks. Elvira and Aurora and W. G. Boyd and I went out on two Sunday afternoons to the Cathederal of Our Lady of Guadaloupe, an immense, beautiful, and popular Catholic Church which had been established especially for the Aztec Indians 423 years ago, and on both occasions we were deeply impressed with the evident sincerity and reverence of the Indian worshipers, and there I bought from one of the officials in the building a little booklet giving in full the alleged story of the building of the first little chapel or church at that site. While in Mexico I also bought a history written by a Catholic, Joseph H. L. Schlarman, in which the same alleged facts are related.

According to the story, first related by Bishop Zumarraga, the apparition of Mary, the virgin mother of Christ, appeared seven times, once on the seven successive days, to an unlettered Indian named Juan Diego, and each time, hailed him and impressively instructed him to take a message to Bishop Zumarraga directing him to build a chapel on the point of a mountain on the outskirts of the present city of Mexico as a place of worship by the Indians. According to the story, Zumarraga at first paid little attention to San Juan Diego, but finally became impressed and convinced and proceeded to have the chapel built. It all sounds silly, but Zumarraga made all the Indians believe he was doing them a great favor, and sure enough that chapael has grown into one of the greatest cathedrals on the North American continent.

And now, in the story that Aurora is sending in, it was a woman of India far across the oceans to whom the Virgin Mary appeared and whom she implored to rear her daughter aright and the result of the Virgin's appearance was La China Poblana on the stage of action.

* * *

A word now about India. If we bar the Hottentots and the Bushmen of certain parts of South Africa, the people of India are about the most backward on the face of the earth. India is bound down and ground down by the fateful caste system, which makes progress almost impossible. In India, if the superstition-ridden old daddy is a goober-grabbler, the son must forever be a gbober-grabbler; or if he is a pig-slopper, the son must be a pig-slopper; if he is a goat-herder, the son must be a goat-herder; if he is a trinket peddler, the son must be a trinket peddler; if he is a snake charmer, the son must be a snake charmer. Well there may be a little variance in the occupations of father and son here and there, but the caste system still lacks most of the wheels of progress.

Furthermore the people of India worship bulls and cows and lousy calves and cobras, and so nobody must kill a cobra, and if a cow impolitely sticks her head in at the marchant's front door and begans to eat up his supply of cabbage he must keep his temter and his good manners and tell her just to help herself. He must not strike either a big fat bull nor a scraggly old orphan calf. He has got to worship them, remembering that when he dies his soul may pass into the hide of one of these animals or some old rhinoceros or alligator or billy goat. He believes in the transmigration of souls. India is the country where many people have pig-pens for homes and where starving men lie down in the parks or by the sidewalks and die, and where the junk wagon picks them up and hauls them off and dumps their bodies into the Ganges. O yes, and it is where mothers dump their dead babies and sometimes their live ones into the stream for the fish to eat.

And yet there are a lot of rich people in India, living in gold bedecked mansions, I am told. And in India many a Lazarus has lain at the rich man's gate where the dogs have come and licked his sores. Some of these times I am going to snoop

Of course, in recent years world progress has forced some alelioration of these harsh conditions, but India is still a big world problem.

Now I know that Aurora is not giving us this story about China Poblana as propaganda for anybody. As a story, it is a good story and I believe that Aurora is one of the finest Christian characters I have ever known, a Sunday Sscool teacher, who teaches the Scriptures to children and succeeds in getting them to memorize more Scripture, I think, than any other teacher I have ever known. Besides, she has a very fine voice, and though she has had little opportunity to train it, she sings charmingly. But recently she has been pretty sick, her aunt writes me, and they crave the prayers of their Mexican friends and their Anglo-Amerivan friends alike. A Lubbock Baptist Minister is now working with them in their little Mission church in Mexico City.

Tales Told of Early Days on the Plains

R. C. Parrack, who died at Lubbock June West Texas. Following is the second installment of his interesting true story of Wildlife in the West in those days before the settlers came as told to Ben Moore (pictured here) of O'Donnell

In the year of 1873 while riding from Ft. Concho (now San Angelo) to Sweetwater I fell in with several Texas Rangers who were headed northwestward on trail of a band of Comanches and Kiowas, the latter having stolen a large number of horses. Indians had a habit of stealing horses then heading for the high plains where pursuers usually gave up the chase on account of their fear of perishing from lack of water, the Indians knew every watering place and found no difficulty in going about over the open country. I was quite a young man and had never stuck my head above the caprock. However, I needed no persuasion, being full of ambition to assist in the annihilation of the redskins, so we were hopeful of overtaking them below the caprock. This we failed to do, but followed on up the general course of the Yellowhouse Canyon then of course unnamed, to the fork of the canyon just above the present Mackenzie Park at the outskirts of Lubbock. Here observances showed that the Indians had broken into four segments, scattering from northwest to northeast. Indications were that they had been pretty hungry since a mule had been slain and eaten with the exception of it's head which I recall was rather gruesome in appearance. Since our provisions were so nearly exhausted, I confess that I was almost glad that the rascals had eluded us by their separating and disappearing into what we then termed the desert.

Turning back toward Sweetwater we passed through the vicinity where the king of buffalo killers, J. Wright Mooar settled some three years later, up on Deep Creek, northwest of the present town of Snyder. The range had long been dry, so when we shot an antelope hoping to add to our depleted supply of provisions we found him to be very poor. I was very hungry so partook ravenously of the sorry flesh which made me so ill for several days following that I thought I should never be able to again taste of what is usually delicious meat.

Once while riding in the rougher sections near the present town of Littlefield a herd of mustangs were flushed, one of which, a twoyear old undertook to bound across a small but deep canyon. His front feet landed allright, but the hind feet were dangling and failing the embankment. I jumped from my horse, and quickly secured my saddleblanket, I threw it over the badly firghtened little fellow. Assisted by my rider companion we over powered and saddled the mustang as the others were fleeing across the prairie. So wild was the creature that he, after a bit of bucking seemed glad to accompany his domesticated brother out of the canyon and to camp. Mustangs, which were as wild as the wildest became very tame and reliable after once realizing that man, after all, was not out to kill him.

While camped i nthe vicinity of what later became known as the Mullins spring along the caprock east of Lamesa I was one morning out after horses when I came upon the body of a man which the Indians had horribly mutilated. He being a member of another band of hunters we were unable to identify him. We found an old shovel which had been left by previous hunters and after wrapping the bady in a blanket, buried it where it doubtless yet remains.

In 1874 we moved into the Cedar Lake section in Gaines county where buffaloes were numerous. Snow covered the ground. Two of us riding ahead of our caravan of killers and skinners suddenly came upon arrows which were sticking about in the snow. Then blood was discovered, the trail of which we followed a short distance to where we came upon the body of a freshly slain man. Our deduction was that he was a wolf hunter, since he apparently was not connected with a buffalo outfit. We buried his body a short distance to the west of what is now looked upon as the greatest alkali lake on the high plains, covering many sections, and in which are a number of large islands. Although seventy three years have passed since we made what might now be considered a gruesome discovery, I believe that I could find the burial spot. (Authors note: The narrator of this passed away a few weeks after our interview with him.

It is, I suppose, pretty well known that many, many buffaloes were slain only for their hides, hunters taking no time for processing the meat by drying. Of course but little could be eaten by the few who were employed in each outfit. Parts of the hump atop the shoulders were eaten, but much of thois choice part was also left to rot on the prairies. But we ate a great many buffalo tongues which were delicious. Sometimes these were roasted in ashes while at other times Dutch ovens were used as a cooking utensil for them.

One of my most vivid recollections is that of a dark night when, as we lay in deep sleep after cooking and leaving a fine lot of tongues but took the utensils as lowing a hard day's skinning a band of thieving redskins slipped into camp and stole not only our tongue but took the utensils as well. Now comes the telling of one of the worst insults ever perpetrated on a bunch of buffalo hunters. The low down, stealing rascals took our Dutch ovens a short distance from cmap and desecrated them in such a manner as to prevent publication of it. It seems very true that they could have scalped every one of us. I can now see that Indians did sometimes possess quite a sense of humor.

Alabama seseded from the Union January 11, 1861, and reentered July 13, 1868.
