Vance Mum On Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)-Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance is refusing to reveal details of his strategic arms talks with the Soviet Union, but a senior U.S. official admits progress was made in one key area.

Vance, who has discussed specifics in the past, said Monday the Russians regard public discussion of items under negotiation to be a "propaganda exercise."

"We do not want to do anything that would jeopardize serious negotiations," Vance told reporters.

Peace In US Hands

HOUSTON (AP)-It is in the hand of the United States to bring peace to the Middle East, a spokesman for the General Union of Arab Chambers of Commerce said Monday in Houston.

Dr. Burham Dajani told a news conference the United States "holds 99 percent of the cards in the peace movement, and it all depends on how they deal them."

Dajani, of Jordan, was one of 25 Arab delegates in Houston to attend a trade mission, aimed at linking together the oil, gas, and mechanical technology of this energy-center of the nation to the oil-rich Arab nations.

Calls Prove Hoaxes

ROME (AP)-A flurry of anonymous telephone calls announcing that former premier Aldo Moro had been executed by his Red Brigades kidnappers was received today by the Italian news agency ANSA. The agency said all had been proven hoaxes.

The calls were received by ANSA offices in Rome, Turin and Milan. One caller said a communique was left in a trash basket and a "surprise" in the trunk of a car parked near the Italian television production center near the Vatican. But an ANSA reporter and police officers searched trash receptacles and cars on the street and found nothing unusual.

Dollar Drops

TOKYO (AP)-The dollar dropped more than a yen today in fairly active trading on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange, pushed down by expectations of the announcement Wednesday of more adverse U.S. trade figures.

The SDN Column

A lot of people around here are hoping for a good rain, but probably none more than Charles Lantrip, SACROC Unit Superintendent.

Unless there is a rain that produces at least 4,000 acre feet of additional water at Lake J.B. Thomas, SACROC will be cut off May 1 from fresh water supplies by the Colorado River Municipal Water District. Lake Thomas caught only a 10th of its usual amount of water last year, and CRMWD is committed to providing water for human consumption first. If the lake doesn't catch some water by May 1, CRMWD officials say the remainder must be reserved for Snyder.

Lantrip said that SACROC would begin using brackish water if the fresh water supplies are cut off. The water district reduced the amount SACROC could take by 50 per cent last fall.

Brackish water, of course, is not desirable for the waterflooding use because it corrodes pipelines and is hard on other equipment.

The situation now is similar to that which existed some seven years ago when a long dry spell on the Lake Thomas watershed reduced the lake's supply to a mere puddle. The oilfield customers had to use brackish water then. And fortunately, the lake did made a catch toward the end of May before there was any problem with supplying Snyder with water. The water district has a lot of water available, but it would require some doing to get it distributed if any of its major sources should dry up, even temporarily. Nevertheless, it is comforting to know that the water is available somewhere, and that it could be pumped into Snyder from distant sources if Lake Thomas should have another dry season.

One good rain in the right place could solve the problem.

Hill Claims Briscoe Back Of Subpoenas

AUSTIN (AP)-Attorney General John Hill said today that Gov. Dolph Briscoe was using "governmental forces to harrass the teachers of Texas."

Hill told the news conference there was no question in his mind that Briscoe was behind efforts of a House subcommittee to get the Texas State Teachers Association political arm to release tapes made of political conversations with Hill and Briscoe.

"They are doing his political dirty work," Hill said, of the subcommittee.

The subcommittee decided Monday to pass the decision on issuing subpoenas for the tapes to the House committees on public education and on administration. "If they can subpoena the tapes, Why can't it be done to any private person, to get their records?" Hill commented.

Reps. Jim Nugents and Hamp Atchinson wanted the public to know - that before the May 6 election staff-what Hill said in his interview with the TSTA's Texas Educators Political Action Committee.

Hill told the news conference he had never asked the political action committee to release the tapes but he had no objections.

"I absolutely never made any promises at any time for a vote," he said.

The political committee endorsed Hill. Nugent said he thinks there was a "back room deal." Hill says it's OK with him to release the tapes, but the committee won't do it.

Sitting as a House subcommittee, Nugent and Atkinson voted Monday to ask the administration and public education committees to consider issuing subpoenas for the tapes.

Rep. Pete Laney, D-Hale Center, administration committee chairman, said he needed to get briefed on his authority to issue subenas for the tapes to the tape issue.

"I have not been keeping up with it. I've got my district to represent...I don't know enough about it to comment," said Laney, a Briscoe supporter.

The committees can't meet without posting five days' notice.

Museum Directors Pay Tribute To Benefactor

Directors of the Scurry County Museum paid tribute to a museum benefactor and showed off new exhibits at a dinner meeting held Monday night in the museum.

Mrs. Edith Whatley McKanna, member of a pioneer Scurry County family, was presented a plaque in recognition of her continuing interest in the museum. Sharon Sutton, museum director, commented on the many ways in which Mrs. McKanna has given support to the museum as well as to numerous other historic and civic groups.

Guests for the dinner meeting were members of the Western Texas College board of trustees. Ernest Sears, president of the Museum Association, welcomed the guests and expressed the appreciation of the museum for the cooperation extended by the college. The museum is located on the college campus.

May will be Museum Month in Scurry County, Sears said, and the current membership drive being conducted in conjunction with the special month has already added 80 new members to the association. New members are welcome at any time, Sears added, and dues may be paid by mail or brought to the museum office.

The new exhibits, dealing with the development of communities in Scurry County and with the oil industry, will be dedicated to the public on May 7. The Scurry County Historical Commission will assist with opening on that day. A preview showing for Museum Association members is scheduled for the evening of May 5.

Following a tour of the building, members of the board and the trustees met briefly to hear a report on the steps being taken toward accreditation by the American Museum Association and some phases of the operation of the museum.

Museum Association board members attending the meeting were Mrs. Billy Huddleston, Mrs. Pat Bills, Franklin Pruitt, Mrs. Herbert Reed, G.A. Parks Jr., Art Feinsod, Bentley Baize and Gene Dulaney. Trustees present were R.C. Patton, George Patterson, Dr. Robert Hargrove, and Bill Jones, along with Dr. Robert L. Clinton, college president. Baize is also a trustee.

Bitsy Hill, Baum Are Due For Coffee

Plans for a coffee to be held Thursday morning at the farm strike headquarters in Snyder were announced this morning.

Special guests at the coffee will be Bitsy Hill, wife of Attorney-General John Hill, who is campaigning on behalf of her husband's candidacy for governor, and Jim Baum of Big Spring, candidate for 17th District Congressman.

The coffee session will begin at 7:30 a.m. and continue to around 9 a.m.

House Expands Farm Credits

WASHINGTON (AP) - The extent and variety of credit programs available to farmers and their rural neighbors would be vastly expanded under legislation approved by the House and expected to be considered soon by the Senate.

The thrust of the Senate's credit measure are the same as that passed Monday by the House 347-23. It would update the familiar programs to reflect today's land costs and the size of present farming operations and provide a refinancing program through next year for the most heavily indebted farmers.

The Carter administration has endorsed most of the major provisions and had asked for many of them last year or early this year.

But the details of the Senate's product are likely to be somewhat different from the House, so the final version would be ironed out by a House-Senate conference after the senators act.

Under the House version:

-A farmer could refinance between now and the end of next year a collection of existing land and operating debts up to $400,000 if the grower is a citizen with "experience and resources necessary to assure reasonable prospects for successful operations" afterwards.

These loans could be repaid over a 30-year period at prevailing interest rates. "Family farms" would have preference in the $4 billion program of guaranteed and insured loans, but that term isn't defined.

-The ceiling on Farmers Home Administration direct and insured ownership loans would be $200,000 instead of $100,000. It would be $300,000 on guaranteed loans.

-For operating loans, the maxiumum would be doubled to $100,000 for insured and $200,000 for guaranteed.

Carter Steps Up Lobbying

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Carter will have more time to lobby for his embattled tax reduction program following a House committee's decision to suspend work on the proposal.

Carter stepped up his lobbying Monday as he met with two Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee.

Committee chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said consideration of the $24 billion tax reduction plan would be delayed while Senate and House negotiators seek agreement on a crude oil tax - part of the president's energy package.

Ullman said he hoped work on the program would be resumed next week, but he refused to give reporters a firm date.

Carter bid for Republican support in meetings with Reps. Willian Frenzel of Minnesota and Barber Conable of New York, the ranking Republican on the committee.

Conable said he told the president his party favors an across-the-board income tax reduction of about what Carter proposed.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, told reporters he expects Congress to pass a bill this year, though the cut might be reduced and its effective date delayed.

Burglary Is Under Probe

City police were busy this morning investigating a break-in at Hoyt Furniture, Carpet, and Appliance Center at 2112 25th St.

Initial reports indicated that nothing was believed to have been taken from the store, but police were continuing their investigation of the matter.

The burglary apparently occurred sometime during the night, police said, when an intruder gained entry to the building through a rear window. The burglary was reported to police at 8:30 a.m. today.

In other reports, Bonnie Tullis told officers that a $90 bicycle was missing from her 2703 26th St. home. That report was filed Monday afternoon.

The only traffic accident occurring yesterday took place at a parking lot at Snyder High School.

According to reports, a parked 1978 Chevrolet owned by Don Elrod was struck by a vehicle which fled the scene. Police were told of the minor mishap at 1:15 p.m.

Meeting Set On Saudi Jet Sale

WASHINGTON (AP)-Showing the first signs that it might consider changes in its plan to sell jet fighters to Egypt and Saudi Arabia, the Carter administration is inviting members of Congress to the State Department to discuss the proposal.

The meeting will take place on Wednesday, the day the administration plans to send its formal proposal to Congress for consideration.

"I am hoping we will see some signs of flexibility," Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, said in an interview. "He can't get the Saudi sale just the way he presents it."

One sign the administration might consider changes was the announcement by Jody Powell, White House press secretary, that the only thing that might delay submission of the proposal to Congress was the possibility of a compromise that would make it more acceptable.

Powell said the only negotiable areas were altering the equipment on the jets and the question of where they could be stationed - both items mentioned by Church as possible bargaining points.

There is widespread opposition to the sale in the House and Senate. If both chambers adopt resolutions of disapproval within 30 of receiving the proposal, it would be blocked.

Carter has insisted that the sale, which also includes jets for Isarel, be treated as a package. Administration spokesmen have said that if a sale to one of the three countries is rejected, the other transactions would be canceled.

The administration proposal includes sale of 75 F-16 fighters and 15 F-15's to Israel; 60 F-15's to Saudi Arabia and 50 F-5 jets to Egypt.

PROGRAM STUDIED - Among the people meeting at the school administration building Monday afternoon to discuss a special educational program were, from left, Dr. Tom Scannicchio, a project coordinator, Ena Flack, a parent, Anne Beuerlein, a student, and Grace LeMonds, program coordinator. regulatory burdens

A two-year drive to winnow absurdities out of federal regulations of agriculture has been launched by The Agriculture Council of America (ACA). Seeking grass roots support for the plan, Lane Palmer, editor of Farm Journal, says, "A sizable piece of our inflation - maybe one to two percent of the annual rate - is attributed to regulations that could be avoided, if benefits were weighed against costs."

"We are being snowed under a mound of regulations," Palmer said. He cited the move against sodium nitrates as an example of a regulation which could destroy a large part of the pork industry. He said, "Methods which have been used for 3,000 years to preserve food and prevent botulism are under attack."

ACA has announced a plan to educate the American public on the need to improve the regulatory process and help the farmer combat his number one problem: inflation.

At a recent meeting of the ACA, it was voiced that farmers could not take on the whole bureaucracy but, it was intended to zero in on the more obvious absurdities and by enlisting other Americans, survival might be attained.

Named the Forum on Regulations (FOR), a two-year drive will attempt to cut the tremendous cost of useless regulations.

The ACA report reminded us of a recent study showing that bacon is safe and that there was no connection established between nitrite-cured bacon and cancer.

How much damage to the pork industry was done by the first adverse publicity will never be known. Like the cranberry scare and the tuna incident, many were damaged and no one was held responsible for the federal irresponsibility.

As long as we have government agencies loaded with overeager regulators who shoot from the hip at the slightest excuse, the economic health of all Americans will be in jeopardy.

We wish the ACA all success in their drive to hold back the activities of federal regulators. It will not be an easy task. It may turn out more in the nature of getting a halter on a wild horse on the open range.

ACA claims the cost of federal regulations to be well above $60 billion. If they can cut it by even one percent the effort will be well worth while.

a season to enjoy

Spring fever, it appears, can be dangerous to our health.

This is the time, with winter behind us and the prospect of ever-better weather ahead, when everything is supposed to be looking up, psychologically speaking.

Not for all of us, however, advises a University of Chicago psychiastrist.

According to Dr. William W. Weddington, for the externally directed individual affected psychologically by his environment, spring does generally mean a time of increased vigor, a sense of excitement and optimistic expectation.

It can be something else for the inner directed, depressed or confined, however. The arrival of spring without a consequent improvement in mood or condition may have a negative effect, making an individual feel worse and triggering psychiatric disorders.

What spring fever really adds up to is an intensely individual experience. And one not to be taken for granted by those fortunate enough to experience its positive aspect.

So enjoy.

Mondays are bad days just about any place you happen to be and the newspaper office is certainly no exception. The newspaper office is hectic just about every day, but Mondays top the list.

There are so many events that have occurred over the weekend to report on and in general it's just a madhouse.

Yesterday was no exception and after the paper was on the press I discovered, or was informed, that I had not put Dear Abby in the paper! Certainly this must be the unpardonable sin to many of our readers. For this oversight on my part I am prepared to take my 30 lashes.

But please remember that this is the first time in about 10 years that I have been on the news desk to have forgotten this, when I laid out or dummied the papers, so kinda go easy on me, will you?

During this week I will try to add a little of Monday's column to the usually daily one as I have the room for it, so you readers will not be shorted on all this good advice.

I will try not to let this happen again, in fact for a few days, I'm sure that I will be reminded by everyone in the office...then I'll be on my own again to see that it gets in the paper.

About the same time we discovered that Dear Abby did not make the paper we discovered that the picture of the pole vaulter on the front page was inadvertly put on the press upside down. Well I'm sure a lot of people never gave this a second look, but if you will look a little closer you will see that the pole vaulter has his pole with him on the other side of the bar. I don't ever recall an athlete in this position before.

For this I refuse to take any blame. But it does give me a little comfort to find that I'm not the only one that goofs.

These things could only happed on a Monday... thank goodness there is only one a week to overcome.

sewer is backing up

This is mostly shop talk--about dirty words on the radio. The Department of Justice says the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) does not have the authority to prevent broadcast of seven bedroom and bathroom vulgarisms.

The sewer in your house is backing up and the FCC is powerless to prevent it.

Five or so years ago a gutter-mouth comic used a string of what we used to call "dirty words" on the radio in New York City. A listener objected to this air pollution and the FCC thereafter issued a specific prohibition against the broadcast of those seven words.

Now the FCC is told that it can't do that; that its ban violates the Constitution's First Amendment guarantee of free speech.

The Justice Department further argues--and this is significant--that "concern for young listeners must not limit adults to hearing only what is fit for children."

May I say this about that: We considered the generation of the 1960s to be "rebellious."

I wonder, though--is it not likely that you and I would have rebelled also?

Suppose you and I, in our formative years, had been told that if we would work hard and profit and prosper, we would be punished with disproportionate taxes, and our money used to subsidize laziness and lethargy and even illegitimacy. I wonder how ambitious we would have matured to be.

Suppose our government had sent us--as recent administrations sent this generation--to both sides of the world to fight pulled-punches wars, perhaps to die, to stop the advance of communism 6,000 miles from home.

Yet if they tried to do anything about the "advance of communism" 90 miles from Florida, they'd be thrown into jail.

So our young hurled a lot of vile and filthy words at the establishment in the Sixties, but the word that was more obscene than all the others was the word which came closest to describing us as we were--that word was "hypocrite."

Dad staggering home drunk and telling Junior, "Don't you dare smoke pot!" When enlightened Junior knows there's not all that much difference.

And X-rated movies. If there's anything that would have me on a picket line today, if I were that age, it would be the fact that society puts an "X" on a movie which in effect says, "Until you become X age, it's dirty. After X age, then it becomes clean?"

Come now; if it's filth it's filth, however old or young you and I might happen to be. If we don't know that our enlightened offspring do.

Now our Supreme Court pleads helplessness in defining what's obscene, though any mother knows which words are the words that justify washing somebody's mouth with soap!

And any mother knows there's certainly nothing "grown up" about that.

Nixon Memoirs Said Biased

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)- Former President Richard Nixon's memoirs contain new information about the Nixon years and "are very definitely biased from his viewpoint," says editor David Frost.

Frost - no relation to the television personality who interviewed Nixon last year - says the memoirs contain some surprising information about the people Nixon worked with and are "very candid, personal straight forward and direct."

"There is no effort to although this is his, Nixon's, side of it," Frost said during a weekend visit here with relatives. here with relatives.

Frost spent eight months at the Nixon compound in San Clemente, Calif., helping edit Nixon's forthcoming book, "RN-The Memoirs of Richard Nixon."

martha angle and robert walters

WASHINGTON-(NEA)- When the nation's newspaper editors met here recently, one of the most significant events was the distribution of a report on the employment status of blacks and members of other minorities within the industry.

The issuance of the report was newsworthy in itself because it represented a revival of the American Society of Newspaper Editors (ASNE) Committee on Minorities, a panel that had been dormant for four years.

The newspaper industry's reaction to pressure from minority groups for a fair share of job opportunities long was typical of other white-dominated businesses: Virtually nothing happened prior to the mid-1960s.

But then came the rioting in Harlem in 1964, Watts in 1965, Newark and Detroit in 1967, Washington in 1968 and uprisings in scores of other cities during a decade of turmoil.

The Kerner Commission's 1968 report on the causes of black alienation dealt as harshly with the news media as with most other elements of society, concluding that "the journalistic profession has been shocking backward in seeking out, hiring, training and promoting Negroes."

ASNE formed a minorities committee in 1971, and a year later that panel reported that a nationwide survey had identified only 253 black journalists among the approximately 40,000 reporters and editors working on the country's newspapers.

The committee functioned for three years, but by 1974 the memory of the riots had faded and other, seemingly more compelling issues had moved to the fore. The committee disappeared from sight.

But others continued to press for minority rights, most notably the Institute for Journalism Education, an organization led by a bi-racial group of talented, concerned professionals.

This year's ASNE committee report is exceptionally candid in its assessment of what remains a deplorable situation: "There has been a significant but nowhere near sufficient increase in the number of minority employees in the nation's newsrooms."

The report estimates that about 1,700 members of minority groups now are employed on the news staffs of daily papers, but that constitutes only about 4 percent of the total, compared with the 15 percent minority representation in the country's population.

The recruitment effort aimed at minority groups "has been considerably less intense in more recent years than it was in the first reaction to the Kerner Commission report," says the ASNE committee's blunt analysis.

The Institute for Journalism Education notes that 96 percent of all newsroom professionals and 99.6 percent of all top editors are white. The ASNE committee agrees that "the number of minority editors is still pitifully small."

Both groups point out that minority employment remains heavily concentrated among big papers in the country's major cities. "Two-thirds of the nation's newspapers still have no minority employees," says the ASNE report.

Institute officials strongly believe that the lack of an informal "farm club" system to help train young minority journalists at smaller papers has become a major impediment to minority group entry and advancement in journalism.

"Nothing I have heard convinces me that newspapers are very different from the rest of American industry," says Eleanor Holmes Norton of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

The Carnegie Commission points out that "scrutiny of field after field reveals that blacks are still materially much worse off than whites, that racial prejudice and discrimination are still pervasive, and that new, more subtle barriers to further progress are being erected."

The news media have been accused often with good cause of evidencing considerable zeal in reporting the shortcomings of other institutions while displaying only reticence in confronting their own problems. In this case, however, journalism has offered a model for others to copy.

money grows

NEW YORK (AP)- "When you invest over a long period of time, just a small amount of money grows into a big sum," said Tom O'Hara, chairman of the National Association of Investment Clubs.

Members of the Mutual Investment Club of Detroit know this. At their first meeting in February 1940 the six organizers deposited $10 each. Each of those deposits is now worth $793.82.

One of the original members invested irregularly during the first 8 years of the club's existence, and has made only sporadic investments in recent years. But his $8,124 investment is worth $83,783.

Another member who joined a year later has deposited $8,238 to date. He has withdrawn $6,000 from his account, but it still has a current worth of $85,696.

O'Hara, who was a founder of that club, reports that the 16 current members have deposited $112,929, have drawn out $193,643, and as of March 31 still had $502,000 on hand.

Over the years members have withdrawn funds for housing, for education and for other essentials and emergencies. They have in a sense lived the biblical parable of the multiplication of the fishes.

Interest is growing again in investment clubs after some relatively bad times when the stock market fell out of popular favor. As small investors withdrew from the market, many clubs were disbanded.

But thousands kept going, and many of them managed not just to survive but to roll up extraordinary gains, if not on a month-to-month basis then frequently in the comparison of one year with another.

Did the Detroit club discover some dazzling insight into the market. Hardly. They discovered some fundamental truths, the kind that many small investors ignore in their eagerness to make a fortune.

First off, they learned patience; that time is important; that time cannot be hurried. People who invest for a quick killing, they learned, often find they have slain themselves.

Those who have patience, however, often find their stocks grow as the economy expands, and often at a much faster pace. And the sole obligation of the investor is to ride along with that growth.

Learning from their experience in the founding club, O'Hara and his associates developed a philosophy that now underlies the thinking of almost all member clubs.

First, the stocks selected for consideration almost always are those of companies growing faster than the industry of which they are a part. And, of course, the industries chosen are also growing solidly.

Second, members are encouraged to deposit a certain amount each month, and all the cash on hand each month is invested.

Third, all dividends and proceeds from sale of stock are reinvested. No dividends are declared by the clubs; all the money goes right back into the market.

If applied, such a philosophy means no in-out trading. Solid stocks are acquired, and held. Short-term fluctuations are all but ignored. So are fads. And as a consequence, commission costs are held down.

When East asked himself this question before playing to the first trick, his answer was that he wasn't going to beat it by playing his ten of spades and waiting for two spade tricks.

Could he beat it by going right up with the ace of spades and leading back the 10 of clubs?

He had no means of knowing, but, as an enterprising player, he meant to find out. Then he rose with the ace of spades and led back the 10 of clubs.

The club shift cooked South's goose to a turn. It didn't matter what he did from then on. He was never going to come to more than eight tricks.

South did duck the first club and played his queen when East continued the suit. West took his king and led back a low club to South's ace. South could have cashed six quick tricks in hearts and spades but, because that would only have postponed the inevitable diamond finesse, South took it right away for down one.

Human Relations Program Given By Mrs. Fortune

Lambda Kappa Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met recently at the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

Wanda Early, service chairman, reported the need for repairing the walls of the Martha Ann Woman's Club. The group voted to donate to the building repair fund.

Dena Ellis, social chairman, reminded members of Founder's Day, April 29, at WTC. Chapter honors were voted on by secret ballot and the awards will be presented at the Founder's Day banquet.

Carolyn Fortune presented the program on "Human Relations." Bad moods have been blamed on anything from getting up on the wrong side of the bed to astrological signs. Ms. Fortune told the group that now you can predict your bad days and good days through the use of biorhythm which is a mathematical formula. After thoroughly explaining how she arrived at the results, Ms. Fortune gave each member a chart of her emotional, intellectual and physical ups and downs for the month of April. Compatibility charts on members and their husbands were then handed out and discussed.

Hostesses for the evening were Marilyn Zoda and Betty Richardson.

Kissing Mentioned Jokingly

NEW YORK (AP)-A woman testified that an officer was trafficking in stolen kisses when he and his partner began writing out a parking ticket.

Gail Baxter, 30, appeared Monday at the trial of traffic control agent Toby Wilkins, 30, on charges of official misconduct and attempted coercion. Wilkins allegedly offered to forget about a parking violation in return for a buss.

"Give me a kiss, and we'll forget about it," she quoted the officer as saying. Wilkins, she testified, put his head in the car window and had "an evil look" in his eyes, "a look of perversion."

Wilkins denied the charge, saying he and another traffic agent, Jerry Brady, approached the car after a truck driver had complained that it was blocking a loading zone.

Brady said it was he, not Wilkins, who mentioned kissing - "jokingly"-while Wilkins wrote out a ticket.

The case was adjourned until next Friday.

AWARDS PRESENTED - Awards were presented last night at a special meeting of the Hike-Bike participants and organizers. The Hike-Bike was held April 8 to raise money for the mentally retarded. Against a goal of $3,000, the organization received pledges of $6,565 and has collected $4,356. Receiving the awards were, from left on the front row, RaiLynn Rundell, elementary; Todd Engelhardt, junior high; Shaun Gould, accepted the trophy for the Ira Community; and George Melikian, college. On the back row are Larry Genuchi, and Ruth Banks. Mrs. Banks won the adult division by raising $1,178. Not shown is Benny Witcher, the winner of the high school division. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Court Sets Stage For TV Violence Trial

By RICHARD CARELLI
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Television violence will be standing trial soon in an unprecedented court case that may restrict the kinds of TV programs Americans will be able to view in the future.

NBC and station KRON-TV are the only named defendants, but all television could be affected when a state court jury in San Francisco decides whether televised violence causes imitations in real life.

The Supreme Court on Monday set the stage for the trial by refusing appeals by NBC and KRON, thus clearing the way for the jury's eventual consideration of an $11 million lawsuit against the two defendants.

The civil suit was filed for a 9-year-old girl who was sexually brutalized four days after a nationally televised NBC movie dramatically portrayed a similar crime.

If the jury decides against the network and station, Hollywood may sharply limit the violent content of future television programs.

In other matters Monday, the Supreme Court:

Temporarily blocked State Department employees from studying secret telephone notes kept by Henry A. Kissinger when he was secretary of state. The material now will remain sealed while Kissinger battles in court to keep the notes from the going public.

Let stand Patricia Hearst's 1976 bank robbery conviction, action that may result in her being sent to prison soon.

In the television lawsuit, lawyers for the girl charge that the defendants were negligent and reckless in allowing the movie "Born Innocent" to be broadcast in the early evening when young people were sure to be in the viewing audience.

The two-hour movie, televised on Sept. 10, 1974, depicted the life of an unwanted teenage girl. In one scene, the girl is sexually assaulted with a wooden handle by older girls at a reformatory. Four days after the broadcast, a 9-year-old San Francisco girl was the victim of a similar attack by four older girls on a local beach.

In seeking to block the trial, now scheduled to begin June 26, NBC and KRON argued in their Supreme Court appeal that constitutional free-speech and free-press guarantees should bar such claims.

The mere possibility of the trial "poses substantial risks of inhibition across the entire spectrum of artistic and journalistic endeavor," their lawyers contended.

The young girl's lawyer, Marvin Lewis of San Francisco, countered: "We do not seek to impose any prior restraint on the media. We merely seek damages."

The issue may return to the nation's highest court. If NBC and KRON should not be satisfied by the jury's verdict, they presumably will again raise their First Amendment arguments in appeals.

Nader Urges Defeat Of Bill

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) - Consumer advocate Ralph Nader, comparing "bodily rights" to civil rights, says a bill before the Connecticut Legislature would deprive the people of their rights to health and safety."

On Monday, Nader urged defeat of a bill that would limit the types of product liability cases that could be brought and increase the defenses that industries may use against such suits. The insurance industry is lobbying heavily for the bill.

Shell Reports Earnings Up First Quarter

HOUSTON (AP) - Shell Oil Co. attributed a 5 percent increase in first quarter earnings today to reduced purchases of high cost foreign crude oil and to improve natural gas revenues.

John F. Bookout, president, said extensive refinery maintenance projects decreased the need for crude by 8 percent and that this, combined with supplies from inventory, permitted a substantial reduction in foreign crude purchases.

He said part of the beneficial effects from reduced imports and from improved natural gas sales was offset by lower chemical margins.

First quarter earnings of $193 million or $1.31 a share compared with $184 million of $1.29 a share the same 1977 period.

Revenues of $2.6 billion compared with $2.45 billion last year.

Capital investment and exploration expenses the first quarter totaled $430 million.

Dormitories To Open For Summer Term

Residence halls at Western Texas College will be open from May 30-July 28 for as many as 48 students attending summer school.

These dates coincide with the nine-week summer term for evening classes. Students may live in the dorm for the entire period for $160 (no meals furnished) or for the six-week period from May 30-July 7 for $100, according to Dr. Duane Hood, Dean of Student Services-Registrar.

Glenn Davis, Director of Student Financial Aids, has announced that a number of summer jobs will be available through his office. Interested students should contact Davis immediately.

Housing applications and summer schedules are available in the registrar's office in the WTC Administration Building.

Kansas City Hammers Rangers, 8-6

ARLINGTON (AP) - Both Kansas City manager Whitey Herzog and Texas Ranger manager Billy Hunter are concerned about their pitching.

"The only difference is that Herzog is in the American league Western Division penthouse while Hunter is groveling the same division's gravel pit, eight games behind the Royals.

Herzog had no complaints about reliever Doug Bird, who went five and two-thirds innings and yielded only four hits to the Rangers as Kansas City won, 8-6.

"Doug had been wild and I wanted to get him some work," said Herzog. "Then he just put the clamp on them."

Texas built a 6-2 lead off of Kansas City starter Jim Colborn with a nine-hit attack including doubles by Al Oliver and Jim Sundberg and Bobby Thompson's triple.

The Royals chased Texas starter Dock Ellis and then decked reliever Reggie Cleveland with a six-run outburst in the sixth inning, capped by Tom Poquette's two-run homer.

Bird gained his first victory of the year against no losses while Cleveland, recently obtained from Boston, was labeled with his second loss in as many decisions.

Hunter, who has seen his Rangers lose nine of their last ten games, said "I am very concerned about our pitching. Don't you think I should be? I think what we've got is going to get better. But we're in a hole and we're going to have to get a whole lot better."

Astros 4, Padres 3

Dennis Walling's pinch single scored pinch-runner Julio Gonzalez from third base with two out in the 10th inning to give Houston its victory over San Diego. Art Howe singled in the Houston 10th and pinch-runner Gonzalez was sacrificed to second by Ed Herrmann. Roger Metzger was walked and Wilbur Howard moved the runners into scoring position with a groundout, setting the stage of Walling's game-winner.

Yankees 8, Orioles 2

Chris Chambliss laced the first of seven consecutive singles and then capped New York's eight-run fifth-inning with a three-run double. Scott McGregor was working on a two-hitter when the Yanks erupted for two runs on one-put singles by Chambliss, Graig Nettles, Bucky Dent, Willie Randolph and Mickey Rivers.

Winner Ron Guidry allowed six hits and an unearned run before being relieved in the eighth. Guidry swallowed some tobacco juice while jumping for a high chopper in the fifth inning, forcing his removal two innings later.

Spurs Trying To Stay In Contention

SAN ANTONIO, (AP) - The Washington Bullets can blast the San Antonio Spurs out of the National Basketball Association playoff picture with a victory in Game 5 here tonight.

But the Spurs hope the Convention Center Arena will not turn into another Alamo, the nearby Spanish mission where a small band of Texans were massacred by huge Mexican forces in 1836.

The Bullets lead the best-of-seven series 3-1 and the Spurs will have to regroup quickly, after three straight losses, to overcome Washington's commanding lead.

A single Washington victory in the next three games will send the Bullets into the Eastern Conference final series against Philadelphia.

"It's tough, but it can be done," said San Antonio forward Mark Olberding about the Spurs' chances to take three straight from Washington and advance in the playoffs.

"I know a lot of people have written us off," Coach Doug Moe of San Antonio said during a workout Monday. "While I'd much rather be up 3-1, there is an advantage in that you work harder.

"We believe even though others don't and that's what is important now," Moe added.

ACU Takes Track Lead

ABILENE (AP) - Abilene Christian takes a respectable 17-point lead into today's concluding events at the Lone Star Conference track and field meet here.

The rest of the field event finals were scheduled for 1 p.m. today and all running finals were set for 3 p.m.

The Wildcats claimed three of Monday's four field events and amassed 42 points.

Tigers To Host Cubs

Snyder High School baseball team was to open round-two of District 3-AAA play here today. The Tigers, 19-5, were slated to host Brownfield at 4 p.m.

The Tigers headed into today's game boasting a .356 hitting average team-wise. That average, or rather a .378 during the first six district games, netted Snyder the round-one championship with a 5-1 record. Lamesa, Snyder's opponent Friday, finished the round with a 3-3 mark, while Brownfield went 1-5.

Top hitters throughout the season for Snyder include pitcher-outfielder Mitch Mackey, .342; center fielder Alvin Ollison, .434; catcher Tracy Witherspoon, .416; third baseman Richard Crayton, .402 second baseman Dray Sikes, .329; and first baseman Scott Crenwelge, .301--all who have had at least 73 at-bats. Others, with 40 or more at-bats, include pitcher-outfielder Sid Everton, .426; and short stop David Lee, .341.

Golfers Set For Regional

ODESSA--Snyder golfers were to join Sweetwater from District 3-AAA as the annual regional tournament gets under way here at the Golden Acres Country Club on Wednesday.

The Snyder team, under direction of Coach Mackey Green, was to leave for Odessa on Tuesday.

Making up the Snyder fivesome are second district medalist Clint Baack, also a member of the all-district team, and Randy Chambers, Benny Parnell, Walt Williams and Lance McMillan. Both Williams and McMillan were among the top 11 golfers in the league and thus were named all-district.

The two-day regional tournament is scheduled to tee off at 8 a.m. Wednesday and go 18 holes. The final round will be played Thursday morning.

The top two teams and top two individuals at the meet here qualify for the upcoming state tournament.

Oilers Cop Campbell

HOUSTON (AP) - The Houston Oilers have taken the drama out of next week's National Football League draft - it will be Heisman Trophy winner Earl Campbell donning the Oiler blue as the No. 1 pick.

The Oilers made it official Monday when they dealt tight end Jimmy Giles, along with their first and second round picks this year, to Tampa Bay in exchange for the Bucs' No. 1 pick next Tuesday. They also gave up their third and fifth selections next season.

There was little doubt in Oiler Coach O.A. "Bum" Phillips' mind about how long it will take Campbell to fit into the Oiler lineup.

Asked how soon Campbell could contribute, Phillips said, "Oh, about as soon as we can hand him the ball."

Campbell, who established career rushing records at the University of Texas, also was pleased with his selection.

"My first reaction was, it's great simply because all the speculation about where I was going to play is over," Campbell, a Tyler, Texas native, said. "A lot of people don't get the chance to play close to home their entire career. I feel real fortunate to do so."

Crash Kills Seven USAC Officials

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) - As authorities continued the grim task of matching names with mutilated bodies, the U.S. Auto Club today started reorganizing its staff to replace seven top officials killed in the crash of a chartered airplane returning to Indianapolis.

With the start of practice for the Indianapolis 500 just 11 days away, Sunday night's devastating crash touched nearly every division of USAC, the chief sanctioning body for automobile racing in the United States.

The seven USAC officials, a physician and pilot were returning from the Trenton 200 championship car race in New Jersey.

"It is so tragic I almost feel inadequate to discuss it," said Reynold C. MacDonald, USAC board chairman.

"Although never thinking that it might happen, USAC has prepared its organization for such an eventuality. We do have experienced men in all positions who will be able to fill the gaps in this emergency."

USAC identified those aboard the plane as Frank DelRoy, longtime technical chairman; Ray Marquette, USAC vice president for public affairs; Shim Malone, director of midget car racing and chief starter for most USAC races; Don Peabody, head of the sprint car division; Stan Worley, chief registrar; Ross Teegarden, DelRoy's assistant; Judy Phillips, typist; Dr. Bruce White, who often served on the USAC medical staff, and pilot Mullendore.

Top Indoor Track Troop

NEW YORK (AP)-The New York Track Writers Association selected Houston McTear and Mary Decker as the outstanding athletes of the 1978 indoor season.

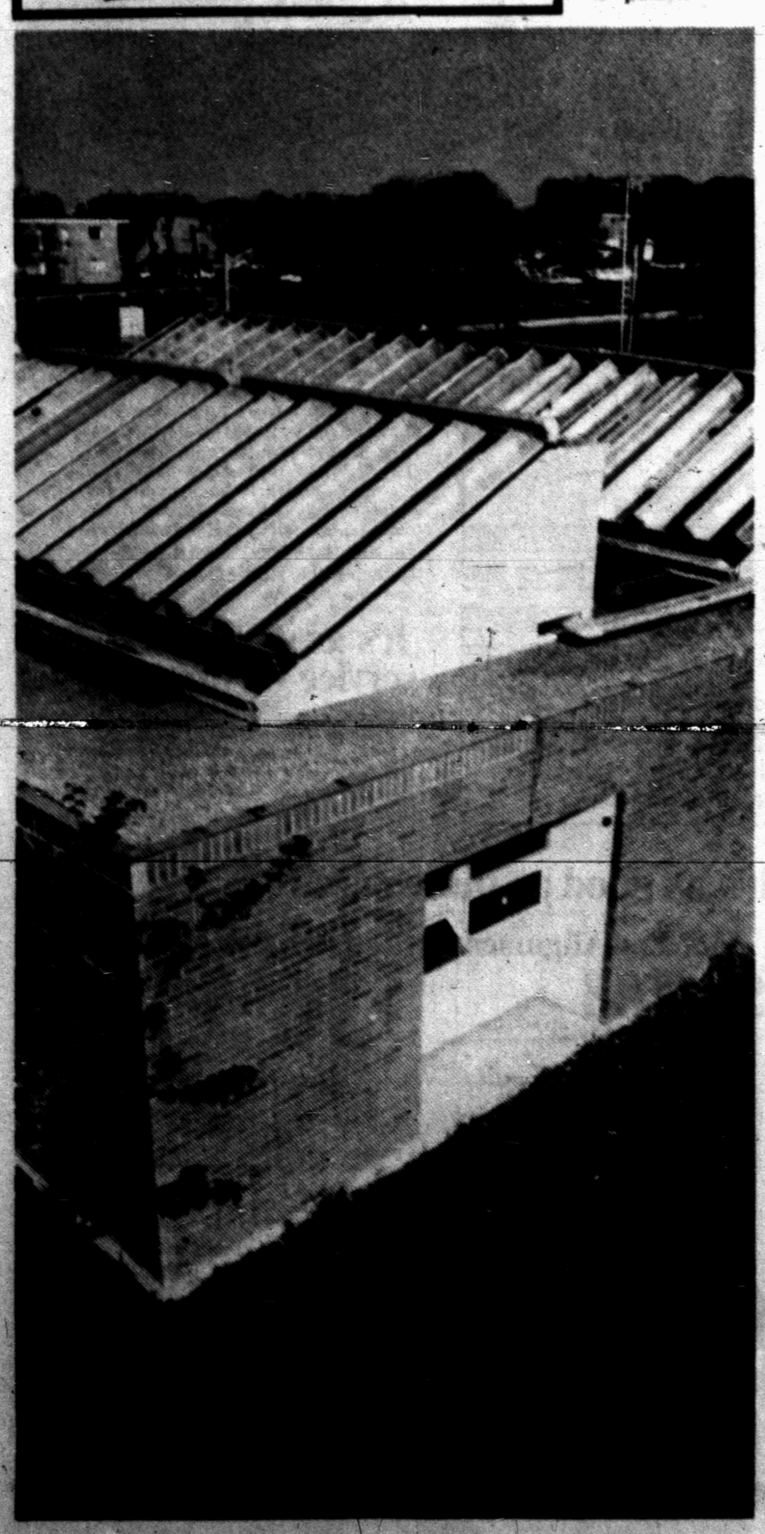

McTear won seven of eight races during the indoor season and set five world records, including 50 meters, 60 meters and 60 yards. He finished one vote in front of high jumper Franklin Jacobs, who set a world indoor record with a jump of 7 feet, 7¼ inches.

Decker was undefeated in four middle distance races, including a record 2:23.8 for 1,000 yards.

The sun heats and cools this home.
Texas Electric does the rest.

This solar house at the University of Texas at Arlington is an experiment. It's one of many research projects Texas Electric is participating in to search for future energy sources.

These solar panels, powered by the sun, produce no electricity. But they do provide the heating and cooling for this home. The electricity for lighting, appliances and the backup heating and cooling system comes from generating plants fueled by natural gas and lignite coal.

Research offers us hope for new energy sources that will be dependable and economical. Until then, Texas Electric must continue to build lignite coal- and nuclear-fueled generating plants to supply you and our solar home customers the electricity needed now—and in the future.

Teacher Groups Endorse Rhodes

DALLAS - Dusty Rhodes, candidate for U.S. Congress 17th District of Texas has received the formal endorsement of the political action committees of both Texas State Teachers Association and the National Education Association.

The announcement was made during a brief news conference at Dallas Love Field this morning.

Chairman of the Texas Educators Political Action Committee, Russell Owen Jr. of Dallas, stated that the West Texas Democrat was selected for endorsement for basically the same criteria that won TCPAC (Taylor County Political Action Committee) endorsement for Rhodes a week earlier. Rhodes' knowledge of business, law, ranching and farming as well as his awareness of the issues of education today and the legislation facing those issues were factors leading to the endorsement of Rhodes by both TEPAC and APAC.

A Dallas based representative of NEPAC (National Education Political Action Committee) Yvonne L. Shafer, said that the endorsement by the Washington, DC., committee was based upon the same criteria of the TEPAC selections except that "The electability of the candidate and more extensive issues were involved."

Rhodes thanked Owen and Shafer and the members of the Education Political Committees for the confidence they placed in him for the endorsement of his candidacy for the 17th District of the U.S. Congress.

Liquor Vote Asked In Abilene

ABILENE (AP)-Two citizen's groups have made applications here to circulate petitions calling for referendums to decide if liquor should be sold both by the drink, and in package stores.

Abilene currently allows for the sale of liquor only in private clubs.

One group, called "Citizens for Moderation" CFM, has begun petitioning for liquor by the drink. CFM made its application for petition Monday morning, and by afternoon it had the required 10 signatures to begin distributing petitions.

About the time CFM began seeking petitions, another group called 'Update '78," made application to petition for sale of liquor, not only by the drink, but in package stores. That group should have its required 10 names by today, officials said.

The last time Abilene voters went to the polls on the liquor issue was two years ago when the drys won by 1,600 votes.

Soft Drink Prices May Come Down

WASHINGTON (AP)-Soft drink prices may come down as a result of a Federal Trade Commission finding that long-standing practices of the Coca-Cola Co. and Pepsi Co Inc. violate federal antitrust law.

The commission Monday said the two giant soft drink companies violate antitrust law by restricting their bottlers to certain territories.

Since 1900, Coca Cola has forbidden its bottlers from selling their soft drinks outside specified territories. PepsiCo has had similar restrictions since the 1930s.

However, both companies promised appeals through the federal courts, which would delay the effect of the decision.

Coca-Cola said, "Our bottler contracts for over 77 years have been on the basis of an economically efficient and socially desirable business system."

PepsiCo called the decision "another example of the government attempting to impose theoretical economic concepts and alter a structure which has been proven in the marketplace."

Both companies sell the syrup and concentrates used to make their soft drinks to independent bottlers. The companies have enforced contracts keeping the bottlers from competing with each other by giving each a specified territory.

The commission majority said this curtails "intrabrand competition," or that between the various Coca-Cola brands and between the PepsiCo brands include Coca-Cola, Sprite, Fresca, Fanta, Tab and Mr. Pibb, and PepsiCo's brands include Pepsi Cola, Teem, Mountain Dew and Patio.

Life Begins Again

By G.G. LaBELLE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP)-"What's Life?" the old joke began. "A magazine," was the reply.

And a magazine it will be again. Time Inc. announced Monday that it would begin publishing Life again in October. The publication in its old 13½-by-10¼-inch page size with the familiar white-on-red title, is the latest step in the rebirth of American magazines.

Ninety-one magazines have announced so far this year that they will begin publication, according to Folio magazine, the trade publication of magazines. In all of 1974, there were 124 such announcements.

Figures from the Publishers Information Bureau put gross advertising revenue for 96 consumer magazines at $1,965,410,809 for last year. The year before the figure was $1,626,656,136.

As it was put by Chuck Tannen, editor of Folio: "The magazine business is booming."

And now there is Life. What's Life? A magazine. What's it cost? Ten cents. Haven't got ten cents. That's life.

The very existence of the joke testified to the part Life played in American life during its 36 years. From Nov. 23, 1936, until Dec. 29, 1972, it redefined photo journalism and showed America its own face.

Robert Capa photographed the Spanish Civil War and David Douglas Duncan the Korean War. In between came jitterbugging, students crammed in phone booths and photographs by Margaret Bourke-White, Carl Mydans, Yousuf Karsh, Alfred Eisenstadt and Henri Cartier-Bresson, to name just a few.

Sir Winston Churchill was published in Life. So were Omar Bradley, Harry Truman, Charles de Gaulle, James Michener and Norman Mailer. Hemingway's "The Old Man and the Sea" first appeared there.

Hedley Donovan, Time Inc. editor-in-chief, said Monday that the new Life will show "spectacular news events, people famous and not, captured in memorable moments: the beauties and mysteries of nature, science and medicine; the world of arts, architecture, sport and fashion."

Fleener To Appeal For Clemency

JERUSALEM (AP)-Terre Fleener, an American serving a five-year jail sentence for gathering intelligence for Arab guerrillas, will appeal for clemency to President-elect Yitzhak Navon, her attorney said today.

Felicia Langer, Miss Fleener's attorney, said she would base the appeal partly on the government's promise to review cases for amnesty to mark Israel's 30th independence year.

PLAN SUPERKIDS REGISTRATION - JoAnn Urban, Jaycee-ette president, and Jim White of Snyder Jaycees, make plans for distributing registration forms for Superkids competition through county schools. Proceeds will benefit the American Lung Association of Texas, West Texas Area, and students 6 through 18 years old may compete. Trophies and medals will be awarded and all Superkids will receive patches. The top money raiser will be awarded a 10-speed bicycle. Registration deadline is May 3.

Canada Is Blamed...

Pipe Size Preventing U.S. Bids On Projects

By MICHAELA LUTZ
Associated Press Writer

BAYTOWN (AP) - U.S. Rep Bob Eckhardt, D-Texas, says the United States is getting the short end of the stick concerning competitive bidding with Canada for projects involving construction of the Alaskan Natural Gas Pipeline.

U.S. Rep. Bob Gammage, D-Texas, adds the United States "is giving Canada the stick to hit us with."

Both congressmen are members of the subcommittee on energy and power of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce which met at city hall Monday. U.S. Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., chairman of the subcommittee, also attended the hearing.

The congressmen were particularly critical of Canada's insistence that 54-inch or 56-inch pipe be used for a 1,100 section of the 4,800 mile pipeline to be constructed from Alaska through Canada to the lower 48 states.

Eckhardt said that move effectively prevented any U.S. manufacturer from bidding for the project since no U.S. firm produces pipe larger than 48 inches. The U.S. Steel Texas Works plant here is the only American facility capable of manufacturing 48-inch pipe.

"I would like for this committee to probe why a 48-inch pipe made at a steel plant in Baytown and found to require the lowest cost of service, was rejected by Canada in favor of a pipe manufactured there," Eckhardt said.

Construction is scheduled to begin in 1981 on the 4,800 mile pipeline at an estimated cost of $10 billion.

Gammage said Canada has set up an agency to assure that Canadian firms would get a large share of the projects connected with constructing the pipeline.

Gammage quoted Canadian Prime Minister Allas J. MacEachen as saying the Canadian government would try to assist the Canadian pipeline company's goal of having Canadian firms provide 90 per cent of the goods and services.

"We're not only taking it on the head, we're giving them the stick to hit us with," Gammage said. "We have failed to institute a set of safeguards for future competitive bidding. The Canadians are wielding that stick very well."

Victor G. Glass Jr., general superintendent of U.S. Steel's Texas Works here, said the Texas Facility was built to provide arctic grade steel pipe for use in transorting oil and gas from Alaska and Canada down to the lower 48 states.

Glass said employment opportunities at the Texas plant would be jeopardized if "we do not have the opportunity to participate in the projects for which our commitment was made."

Deputy Assistant Secretary of State Stephen W. Bosworth told the subcommittee the 56-inch pipe would be used on only 1,100 miles of the 4,800 mile pipeline.

"We fully expect American companies to compete to supply goods and services for all of the pipeline segments, and we will do all we can to ensure that competitive conditions prevail," Bosworth said.

Hill Says He Is Winning

By The Associated Press

Texas Attorney General John Hill says he is winning the race for the Democratic Party's gubernatorial nomination because "many Texans want a governor who will stand up and fight for property tax relief."

Speaking at San Antonio Monday, Hill said Gov. Dolph Briscoe did not fight for property tax relief and has "stood by and watched property taxes go up by $1 billion in the last five years."

Briscoe, appearing at a rally at Amarillo, said Hill has "failed to generate significant support from either business or labor because he puts big government ahead of economic expansion and new jobs."

While both of the two major candidates for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination stayed on the campaign trail, Briscoe continues to lead Hill in daily newspapers endorsements. But several of the state's major daily newspapers, including the Houston Post, San Antonio Express-News and the Austin American-Statesman, have not made endorsements.

Some newspapers have made endorsements in both the Democratic and Republican primaries.

Briscoe has nine daily newspapers endorsements while Hill has only six. In the GOP race, Bill Clements has endorsements from five daily newspapers, and Ray Hutchison from two.

Rep. Bob Krueger has 10 endorsements, while Joe Christie has two in the U.S. Senate race.

Newspapers backing Briscoe include the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal, Dallas Morning News, Abilene Reporter-News, Del Rio News-Herald, Galveston Daily News, Houston Chronicle, Laredo Times, Port Arthur News and the Wichita Fallas Record-News and Times.

The daily newspapers endorsing Hill include the Dallas Times Herald, Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Kilgore News Herald, Jacksonville Daily Progress, El Paso Times and the Edinburg Daily Review, according to Hill's headquarters.

In the GOP primary the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, Dallas Times Herald, Midland Reporter-Telegram, Dallas Morning News and the Corpus Christi Caller-Times have endorsed Clements.

The El Paso Times and the Beaumont Enterprise-Journal have endorsed Hutchison.

Krueger, speaking in Eastland Monday, issued a policy statement on health care and older Americans. He said he favors returning control of health programs for the elderly to local and regional levels. He said that the fact that only three percent of the federal money spent on health care goes to preventive medicine perpetuates expansion and cost increases in medical care rather than curtailing health costs.

Christie said he will support the gradual deregulation of natural gas agreed upon Friday by the U.S. House and Senate negotiators. "This probably is as good a bill as we're going to get. It is fair both to producers and to consumers," he said.

The limpkin, a relative of the crane, is called a courlan, or crying bird after its loud, continuous, wailing cry and is referred to as a limpkin for the halting gait it has while hunting along the ground.

Dear Abby

There's More To Life Than Death

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1978 by Chicago Tribune N.Y. News Synd. Inc

DEAR ABBY: A classmate of mine who lives down the block is slowly driving me up a wall. Here's how it all started:

A few months ago we both started taking an extension course in human behavior at a nearby university. When it came time to pick topics for term papers, this guy I know picked the subject of death. Ever since then I've had it up to my ears with questions like, "Shirley, would you rather die in a plane crash or in an auto accident?" Or, "Would you rather drown or burn to death?"

He's a nice guy, but he has become so preoccupied with death that he's driving me crazy. Every time I see him, he starts in with these depressing questions about death. I've tried avoiding him, but unless I drop the course (which is almost over), it's going to be impossibe.

What should I do? I feel like telling him to lease a hearse and leave town.

SHIRLEY

DEAR SHIRLEY: Tell your friend that you'd rather die by drowning, accident or fire than be bored to death. And he is becoming a colossal bore.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, living on a fixed and very limited income. I have a neighbor who is always hounding me to buy raffle tickets, greeting cards, cosmetics, etc.

I can't afford to buy things I neither want nor need, although I've bought a few things just to get rid of her.

Please help me. I am running out of excuses, and she is very persistent.

SUMMERVILLE, GA.

DEAR SUMMERVILLE: As long as you offer excuses instead of reasons, your neighbor will continue to hound you. Simply tell her that you can't afford it, and that will be the end of it.

DEAR ABBY: I know you hear from plenty of children who wish their parents wouldn't interfere in their lives so much, but what do you think of parents who expect their children who have left the nest to call and write, but who never phone their children or scribble a note to find out how the children are doing?

I am constantly in touch with my parents, as are my older brothers and sisters, yet we feel rather hurt that they don't, on occasion, contact us. It would be nice to think that maybe they wonder how we weathered the last crisis or how the new job is going. Just because we've grown up and out of their hair shouldn't mean that we've also gone out of their thoughts. I'm always hearing how they're doing when I call, but seldom do I get a thoughtful, "How's everything going with you?" I'd sure appreciate your thoughts on this.

SET ADRIFT

DEAR SET: Are you putting me on? Many more children who have flown the nest neglect their parents than the other way around. Stop sulking in silence. Speak up. To THEM—not to me!

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can straighten out my head. My husband and I are in our late 20s and have been married for four years. Our sex life is excellent. The problem is me. My husband begs me to do a striptease dance for him, but I just can't bring myself to accommodate him.

I know there's nothing wrong with it, and I'm no prude, but I just can't go through with it. I've tried, but at a certain point I get a terrible case of stage fright.

I have a nice figure, and I'm a pretty good dancer, but dancing totally naked embarrasses me.

Striptease dancing turns my husband on. He admits it. He has even taken me to striptease joints with him so I could learn how to do it. Abby, what's wrong with me?

STAGE FRIGHT IN ILLINOIS

DEAR STAGE FRIGHT: You're inhibited. You can lose your inhibitions if you really want to, but don't feel guilty if you prefer to leave a little something to his imagination.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SOS IN MACON, GA.": I don't buy that saying, "As you have made your bed, so must you lie in it."

If you discover that the bed you made is giving you a backache, get out of it and make it over. People who sleep on the same mental lumps night after night and do nothing about it but complain, have only themselves to blame.

Are your problems too heavy to handle alone? Let Abby help you. For a personal, unpublished reply, write: Abby: Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

OFFICERS INSTALLED - Annual Awards Banquet for the Women's Auxiliary of Cogdell Memorial Hospital was held last evening in the Stanfield Elementary School cafeteria. The group was entertained by Jane Ann Womack. Cy Miller, administrator, was presented a 15-year service award. New officers for the auxiliary are pictured (l to r) Colleen Duke, president; Donna Allen, first vice president; Lois Bartels, second vice president; Shirley Stewart, recording secretary; Iva Woodson, corresponding secretary; and Ena Carroll, parliamentarian. The auxiliary gave a total of $47, 906.73 in numerous pieces of life saving equipment and donations to scholarship funds.

Bible-Toters Protest Hearing

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)- Thousands of Bible-toting, hymn-singing demonstrators protested at the Wake County courthouse against what they consider state interference in religious education.

The occasion Monday was a preliminary hearing on a suit by the state that would force 63 Christian private schools to file annual reports of information on enrollment, course offerings and teacher certification.

In 256 B.C. the Romans defeated the Carthaginian fleet off the promontory of the Sicilian seaport town of Licata.

PROGRESS FOLLOWS THE POWER LINE

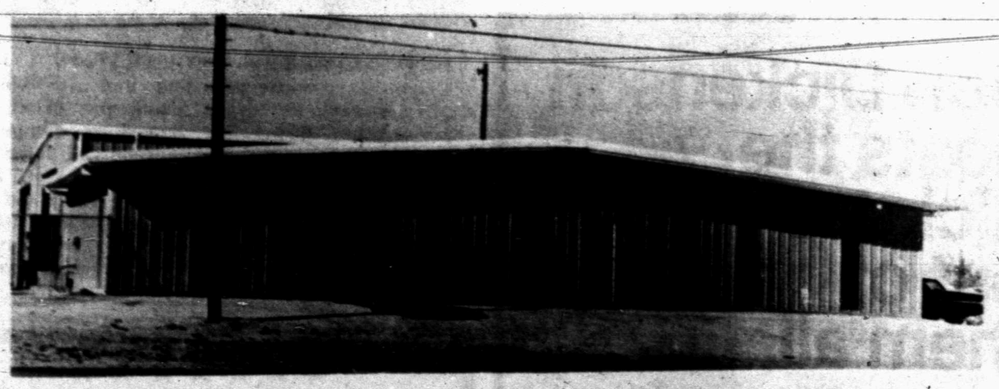

Industry needs a dependable supply of electricity for rural development, rural jobs, rural progress. Agriculture needs reliable rural electricity for the efficient production of food and fibre for everyone.

Panel Told...

Racketeers Are Still Influencing Unions

By DAVID ESPO
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two decades after a Senate committee laid bare a pattern of racketeering in parts of the labor movement, another Senate panel is being told that organized crime still enjoys wide influence over some unions.

Justice Department lawyer Thomas Puccio told the Senate permanent investigations subcommittee that "...many of the individuals whose names first surfaced during those hearings in the late 1950s are today principal figures in illegal labor activities now under investigation..."

The Senate panel was listening today to Labor Secretary Ray Marshall, whose department came under attack from some quarters on Monday for not doing enough to help the anti-racketeering effort.

Justice Department lawyers said there were not enough specially trained Labor Department investigators assigned to the organized crime strike forces set up by the Justice Department.

And Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., acting subcommittee chairman, said, "It is apparent that the Labor Department needs more people and they need to have a new attitude and a new spirit."

In testimony Monday, acting Deputy Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti said an estimated 300 union locals across the country are "severely influenced" by racketeers, with most of the locals affiliated with a handful of unnamed national and international organizations.

There are an estimated 75,000 union locals nationwide.

Civiletti told the subcommittee the federal government's organized crime strike force program "is alive and well, and...we have intensified our efforts in the area of labor-management racketeering."

He said investigators look into cases such as these:

-"Ghost" employees, frequently organized crime members, paid for doing no work.

-Kickbacks to trustees of pension funds in return for loans to shaky investment projects that in turn are looted.

-Payoffs to union officials in return for keeping an employer's labor costs to a minimum.

-Embezzlement from union treasuries.

Civiletti told the panel he was satisfied with an agreement recently reached by Justice and Labor department officials concerning the contribution the Labor Department will make to the organized crime strike force effort.

The department will assign 15 investigators full time to the strike forces and will ask the Office of Management and Budget for an additional 125 investigators who would be available as needed.

Body-building advice

Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Hi! I am 15 years old. I'm writing because I would like to know whether or not there are special exercises I can do to help build up my bustline. If so can you please send me some instructions on how to go about it. Thank you very much. [illegible]

DEAR READER — Don't be in such a big hurry. If you are that impatient you will not be patient enough to get the results you might get from a sensible exercise program. Some things in life take time as you will realize better as the years go by.

Regardless of what those advertisements tell you, exercises do not increase the size of the breast — yours may increase anyway at your age. The exercises simply enlarge the muscle the breast sits on and improve your posture.

The front of the chest wall is covered with muscles, the pectoralis major and pectoralis minor. To give you an idea of what you can do with these look at some of those chest muscles on the "Mr. America" tapes. Think of your breast on top of a muscle like Arnold Schwarzennegger has developed and you'll get the idea. The breast is not muscles but mostly fat but you have the same muscles he has under that breast.

Any exercise that causes the muscles over the front of the chest to contract against resistance will help develop these muscles. The forward motion as used in swimming the crawl is an example. You can lie down on the bed and hold a small weight in your hand — with your arm outstretched. Now holding the elbow straight, lift the weight up above you. This pulls on the muscles over your chest.

You can move the position of the outstretched arm from your side to above your head and all points in between. Since these muscles fan out over the chest wall this change helps work them all.

Another time-honored exercise is to put both hands together in front of you with the palms against each other and push. This too contracts the chest muscles against resistance.

For best results in building muscles over the front of the chest you may want to go to a health club and use some of their equipment.

Also don't neglect to strengthen the muscles between the shoulder blades. What does that have to do with the breasts? It helps prevent rounded shoulders. If you develop good posture with the shoulders back and don't slump, the breast line will be more prominent. And besides, a girl or boy looks better if he or she has good posture.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 53-year-old woman. I haven't menstruated for two and a half years. Is it possible to get pregnant now? I can get no satisfactory answers from my doctor.

DEAR READER — How doctors hate to answer that question. Why? Because it is often difficult to be absolutely sure. As a general rule, though, if a woman has gone through the menopause and has not menstruated for two years and is past 50, it is most unlikely that she will get pregnant. You should be safe from that worry.

For more information about the menopause, readers can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for The Health Letter number 5-12. Send your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Surcharge Rehearing Rejected

AUSTIN (AP) - The Railroad Commission Monday rejected Fort Worth's protest over Lone Star Gas Co.'s collection of $900,000 in back charges.

The commission authorized Lone Star in 1975 to add a surcharge of one cent per 1,000 cubic feet of natural gas in order to pay $900,000 it owes its supplier, La Vaca Gathering Co.

Fort Worth had sought a rehearing in the matter, but the commission denied the request.

Examiner Michele Sanchez said the "retail customers in Fort Worth will never have to pay the one-cent surcharge which they have been complaining about" because the city has not passed it on to them.

Dallas, Arlington and Garland also have refused to allow the surcharge.

Cities have original jurisdiction in such matters.

The commission was being monitored by the commission to make sure that those Lone Star customers who pay, pay only their share.

Snakes Served A La Carte

SPRINGHEAD, Fla. (AP)-Margaret Melton, 81, often serves grits, gravy and fried rattlesnake to guests. "Sometimes I tell them it's rattlesnake," she says with a grin. "And sometimes I don't."

Mrs. Melton, a white-haired great-grandmother, has shot and skinned rattlesnakes all her life, she says. She turns the hide into belts and bands, the meat into a main course and the bones into jewelry.

"I began using a rifle when I was 7 years old and I killed a rattlesnake when I was 10," she says. "Some snakes you kill and some you don't. You kill rattlesnakes."

She says she has skinned, cured and cooked about 500 snakes over the years.

Event Planned For Museum Members

An evening of entertainment and a preview of the revamped oil and community exhibits in the Scurry County Museum are being planned for members of the Museum Association on the evening of May 5.

The Membership Committee of the Association is completing work on its spring membership campaign and planning the preview as Museum Appreciation month opens. Mrs. Billy Huddleston, committee chairman, expressed the appreciation of the committee members for the support they have received from the community. Persons who have not been contacted are invited to send dues to the museum at Box 696, Snyder 79549, or to pay dues while visiting the museum.

Entertainment planned for the May 5 preview will include The Swingers, Snyder High School's popular singing group directed by Bill Lyon, and Emily Collins, who will present a medly of songs from '50s.

The annual art exhibit of secondary school students is also to be shown in the museum during May.

The new exhibits will open to the public officially on the afternoon of May 7. The Diamond M Museum will also be open on May 7. Hours there will be 2-5 p.m.

PLANNING SESSION - Members of the Scurry County Museum Association Membership Committe met to hear reports and make plans Monday in the museum. Left to right, they are Mmes. Ted Billingsley, Mozell Roggenstein, Mickey Sterling, Thane Mebane, Billy Huddleston, Fred Bullard, Billy McCormick, Delbert Downing, Herbert Reed, Weldon Key, Gerald Crawford and Bubby Drum.

DO WE NEED NEW BUSINESSES?

The "Drys", the forces against the LEGAL SALE OF ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES FOR OFF-PREMISE CONSUMPTION, would have you vote to Maintain the Status Quo.

They say things are good, let's keep Snyder the way it is.

Unfortunately, we do not have the option to keep things as they are.

Oil production, the basis of our economy, is falling.

Our taxes will continue to increase alarmingly. Employment will start to fall.

These conditions will harm all of us, businessman and laborer. We in Snyder must build an economy independent of the oilfield.

We must continue to do everything we can to attract new business and industry, to provide new payrolls and tax bases.

We must try to promote "Tourism", and try to attract consumer dollars from surrounding towns.

AND WE MUST.....
Conserve our own financial resources.

Where possible, we have to buy automobiles, clothing, appliances locally.

We have to buy groceries and the necessities of life locally.

We need to spend our money for luxuries locally.

AND WE MUST KEEP THE LARGE AMOUNT OF MONEY THAT IS NOW BEING SPENT FOR BEER AND OTHER BEVERAGES IN SNYDER.

Vote "FOR" progress.

Vote "FOR" Legal Sale May 8th.

If you might not be able to vote on May 8th, vote "Absentee" at the County Clerk's office.

We need every vote "FOR".

Laser Tracks Air Pollution

EDITOR'S NOTE - Air polutants have distinct characteristics, not unlike fingerprints. Thus, a newly developed laser-radar device, tuned properly can nail offenders miles away.

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Editor

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - A new eye of light can tell if a smokestack two miles away is spewing out air pollution, and what kind.

It can tell how badly polluted the air is eight miles away and how fast it might be moving downwind.

And there are prospects it can warn whether certain cancer-causing chemical agents are poisoning the air. By tracing the amount of carbon dioxide in the atmosphere, it promises a report-again at long distance-on wind velocity, air temperature, and humidity to aid in weather forecasting.

Such feats are being performed, or promised, by a sensor known as a tunable laser-radar device, capitalizing on the versatility of lasers, which focus light in incredibly narrow beams.

Stanford University engineers, headed by Professor Robert L. Byer, developed the laser that can identify, at long distance, various molecules of gases, like sulfur dioxide, that make up parts of air pollution.

It sends out pulses of laser light at high energy at different wavelengths or frequencies. Each molecule of gas, pollutant or not, has its own vibration frequency, like a fingerprint, at which it absorbs the light hitting it.

The atmosphere then reflects the light back, like radar. The returning light is gathered in by a 16-inch telescope and then is measured and analyzed by a computer. This process tells how much of a particular pollutant gas is coming from or hanging over a distant smokestack, for example.

The Environmental Protection Agency is interested in the device as a way of minitoring air pollution, and to detect offenders at a distance without hassle of impinging on private property, Byer says.

Also, he adds, the Electric Power Research Institute and members are interested as a means of doing their own monitoring to determine whether stack emissions are within prescribed limits, or to take corrective action if they aren't. Changes could be made in fuel burning if it is clear that the day's atmospherics threatened a concentration of offensive gases.

The laser can detect solid particles, like soot, and tell where it is and how dense, but not its size or chemical makeup, Byer says.

In air pollution applications, the laser can search for various chemicals. One is sulfur dioxide, a leading offender, causing coughing and other ill effects. And nitrous oxide, freon and ethylene, coming from auto exhausts, that causes fruits and flowers to ripen prematurely.

It could monitor for such cancer-causing agents as benzpyrene, vinyl chloride or other agents, giving an alert calling for remedial control of air polluting emissions, he adds.

Peanut Day Hit In NY

NEW YORK (AP) "I didn't know school was like this," 4-year-old Stefanie Burdick whispered shyly on her first day of school.

She had just won a sack race and received plenty of free peanut butter and jelly sandwiches, plus two peanut plants of her own.

Stefanie and about 70 other youngsters from Manhattan preschools each received peanut seeds and a flower pot in which to plant them. They'll return in August to collect prizes for the best-decorated pots and the best-looking peanut plants.

The peanut day Monday was sponsored by the Peanut Association, representing Georgia and Alabama peanut farmers, and the city Parks and Recreation Department.

Your Birthday
April 26, 1978

Your financial opportunities look extremely promising this year, provided you don't involve yourself in projects or schemes in which you lack expertise.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Putting your needs ahead of your family's is something that is normally foreign to you, but today things could get so confusing you'll do just that. Having trouble selecting a career? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Another's actions might anger you today, but instead of speaking out you may find yourself trying to cool down by going off on a spending spree.
CANCER (June 21-July 22) A companion who has taken advantage of your generous nature in the past is going to try to lower the boom on you again. Be careful.
LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't push yourself beyond the limits of your energies. You'll only frustrate yourself if you take on too much now.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something confidential regarding a family matter is best kept to yourself today. You'll be inviting gossip if you don't try to work it out alone.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're likely to find your opinions represent the minority today on important family issues. Why fight city hall?
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Because you aren't listening today you may jump to conclusions and yield to the wishes of another against your better judgment.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) One you'll team up with today is too independent to be a good coworker. Assert yourself or he'll try to be the boss and really foul things up.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be careful in whom you place your trust today. Because you're so willing to share you could fall prey to one whose motives are purely selfish.
AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Sparks will fly at home if you expect others to pick up after you and do things that you should be doing for yourself.
PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be extremely tactful today. One you may have to deal with has an old smoldering that's about to ignite.
ARIES (March 21-April 19) In your determination to push a plan today, you could foolishly overspend. Listen to a wise friend who is trying to stop you.

Donny To Wed In June

HONOLULU (AP)-An early June wedding tentatively is planned for singing star Donny Osmond, 20, and Debra Glenn, 19, a Brigham Young University freshman from Provo, Utah.

The engagement was announced Sunday in Honolulu, where Osmond and his sister, Marie, were filming the motion picture, "Aloha Donny and Marie."

Osmond said he still continues to appreciate his fans and wants them to support him now more than ever before. "They the fans have always wanted me happy, and I truly am that," said Osmond. "I have been blessed with the greatest fans anyone could ask for."

SIDE GLANCES

"Nope, Ernie, the merchandise is still the same, only the packaging technology has improved tremendously!"

Two-Bit Haircut Is Rescued

WOODBURY, Tenn. (AP)-Jim Borren's one-room barber-shop is a throwback to days past. A pot-bellied stove supplies heat. Hardwood benches for waiting customers run along two walls.

But then the 80-year-old Borren is a throwback, too, seeing how he refused to charge more than 25 cents for a haircut and 15 cents for a shave.

Borren's two-bit haircut looked for a while like an endangered species, but a friend came to the rescue.

For the 25 years he has been barbering in his little shop in this rural middle Tennessee town, his landlady, Glera Armstrong, charged him just $30 rent a month, including a living space in the rear. But Mrs. Armstrong died last November, and on Saturday her relatives sold the building which houses the barbershop and a flower shop.

Borren said he bid $15,500, but it was not enough. High bidder Hal Larimer, a Woodbury funeral director, who paid $20,500, said he had no immediate plans for the building but considered Borren a friend and said they will reach some agreement.

"I've buried most of Mr. Borren's family for the past 30 years, and they've been fine people," Larimer said in an interview.

"We've got no intentions of interrupting a fellow's lifelong career," he said, referring to Borren. "I told him just to relax."

Borren said he is relieved to be able to keep his business and home. And the prices are staying.

"I don't want to ever raise the price of my haircuts," the balding Borren said.

Borren said, his ornate leather-and-wood barber chair is probably older than he is. Other than an electric trimmer for fine work along the neck, Borren sticks to oldtime tonsorial tools - the straight razor, comb and scissors - because they are cheaper, he said.

He taught himself the barber's trade years before actually going into business. He got his start one day when his brother needed a haircut. After that, Borren's home was busy with people coming for haircuts.

For years, he said, he has worked six days a week, 10 hours a day, taking only one holiday a year - Christmas.

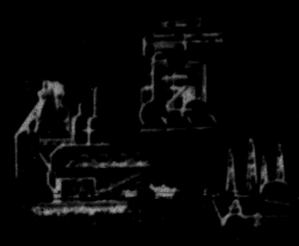

Five other barbers work in Woodbury, but competition has not been a problem, he said. "There's enough for everybody.. I've got enough to do. I reckon I cut about 20 heads a day," he said.

And he added one last comment: "I want to cut hair until I'm 100."

The state of Virginia has 3,315 miles of shoreline while its coastline measures 110 miles.

COMMUTER VERSATILE - Check out the Commuter T-380 series at Hollis Tractor Sales. The Commuter is great for working, playing, or just about anything you have in mind. Stop by and test drive it today.

Hollis Tractor Sales Invites You To Test Drive Commuter 380

Tommy Hollis at Hollis Tractor Sales wants YOU to come test drive the Commuter 380, motor scooter.

It's great for all types of farm and ranch work. The Commuter's three wheel bike is a modern day horse providing dependable transportation.

Commuter's can be used for maintaining irrigation systems, mending fences, herding livestock, hunting, fishing or just riding for fun.

The Commuter TE-380 has an electric start 245 cc, 8 HP Kohler engine with a heavy duty battery making starting easy for all ages.

The longer seat and dependable transaxle drive, coupled with the automatic torque converter, allows two people to ride with ease.

The TR-380 Commuter features the same Kohler engine with compression release recoil starting. This cast iron engine coupled with the TR-380 is the most dependable three wheeler made.

Commuter's new T-380 series of bikes are designed to withstand hundreds of hours of trouble free use. The Commuters dimensions are 39½" wide, 82" in length, has a wheel base of 48" and a ground clearance of 9". It holds 1½ gallons of fuel and 1 quart of oil.

The Commuter reaches a maximum speed of 30 mph with a load capacity of 400 lbs. The tires are 21 x 11:00-8 knobby bar tires with front flotation tire suspension and rear hydraulic shocks.

The transaxle drive, which is an enclosed gear reduction case, eliminates all daily maintenance normally needed with chain drives.

Standard equipment features complete lighting system, transaxle drive, mud flaps, two passenger seat, and high clearance fork. Optional equipment includes winter faring, windshield, front carrier, bar tires and rear cargo carrier.

The Commuter pictured above features the rear cargo carrier with a completely self contained spraying system. This sprayer has its own electric air compressor.

The sprayer is great for spraying cotton rows for Johnson grass or what ever kind of spot spraying you want to do.

Stop by Hollis Tractor Sales and talk with F.B. or Tommy about the Commuter. It's great for work, play, or just anything you might think of.

Hollis Tractor Sales is located at 600 East 37th St.

STAR METAL DEALER - Wadleigh Construction is your local dealer for the Star Metal Building. Talk to Wadleigh Construction when considering expanding or building, your best bet may be the Star Metal Building.

Wadleigh Construction Built Reputation On Quality Work

No doubt, in your business the thought of moving or expanding has crossed your mind. If it has then sooner or later you will be comparing the cost of building.

We hope you take the time to consider Wadleigh Construction in Snyder for several reasons. Wadleigh Construction can help you whether you're wanting a turn-key project or just a metal building.

There has never been a better time to consider metal buildings than now. Cost per square foot, low maintenance, speed of construction seem to be the main areas of concern for most people and metal buildings are best at each of these.

There are many metal building dealers to chose from but few can offer the quality work, materials, and service that Wadleigh Construction has built its reputation on.

Starting out in Snyder in 1953 with a small roustabout crew, the company has now grown to cover most of West Texas. You'll find that all you need is an idea, whether its for a major project or for a new barn on your place.

With company draftsmen, estimators, and several crews, you only need an idea for what will serve you best and Wadleigh Construction will prodivde the plans, cost projection and schedule. In many cases the cost can be used to determine how your ideas can be used to suit your needs.

Since 1964 Wadleigh Construction has been a dealer for Star Buildings which has consistantly been one of the top five rated metal building companies in the U.S. Since then Wadleigh Construction has been honored by Star Buildings for their quality work six times.

If you think a metal building is your answer, why not do it right with a call to Wadleigh Construction at 573-6381 located at College Avenue and Highway 84.
