Workers find another body

■ O'Neill blasts security preparations; GAO reports red tape holding up anti-terrorist measures; Related stories — Page 7C

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Americans removing classified documents from the shattered remnants of the U.S. Embassy annex Friday found the body of a Lebanese woman, but there was no final word on how many people died in a suicide bomb attack.

U.S. Assistant Secretary of State Richard Murphy arrived in Beirut Friday night for an investigation of the third suicide bombing attack against U.S. soldiers and diplomats in the past 18 months.

The death toll — including two Americans — stood at nine or 13, according to conflicting reports. Earlier Friday, embassy officials said the search for victims was complete, and that rescue workers had recovered all the bodies they would be able to find.

But Americans working at the annex found the woman's body in the late afternoon. They placed it in a green vinyl bag and turned it over to Lebanese civil defense workers waiting in an ambulance. The ambulance driver identified the dead woman as Nayla Saoud.

On Thursday, the suicide terrorist drove his explosives-packed van through concrete barricades and volleys of gunfire to within 20 feet of the annex, where it exploded.

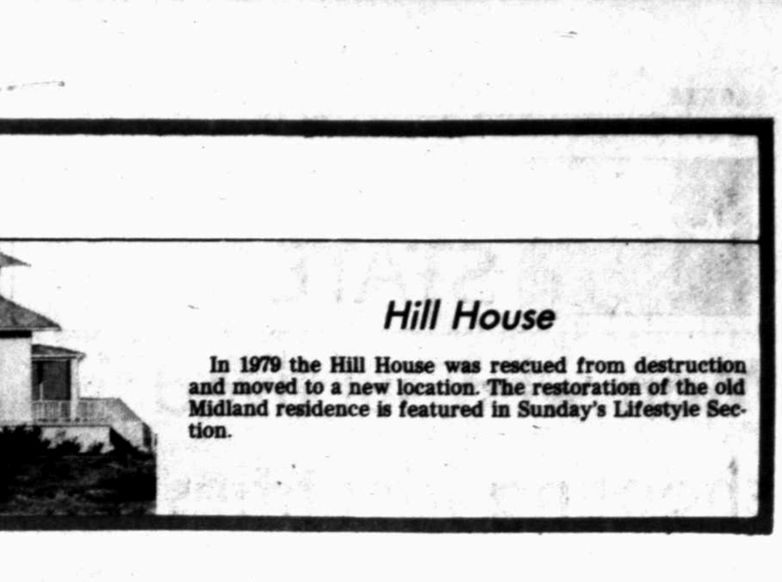

An anonymous caller said Islamic Holy War, an underground Shiite Moslem extremist group, was responsible for the bombing.

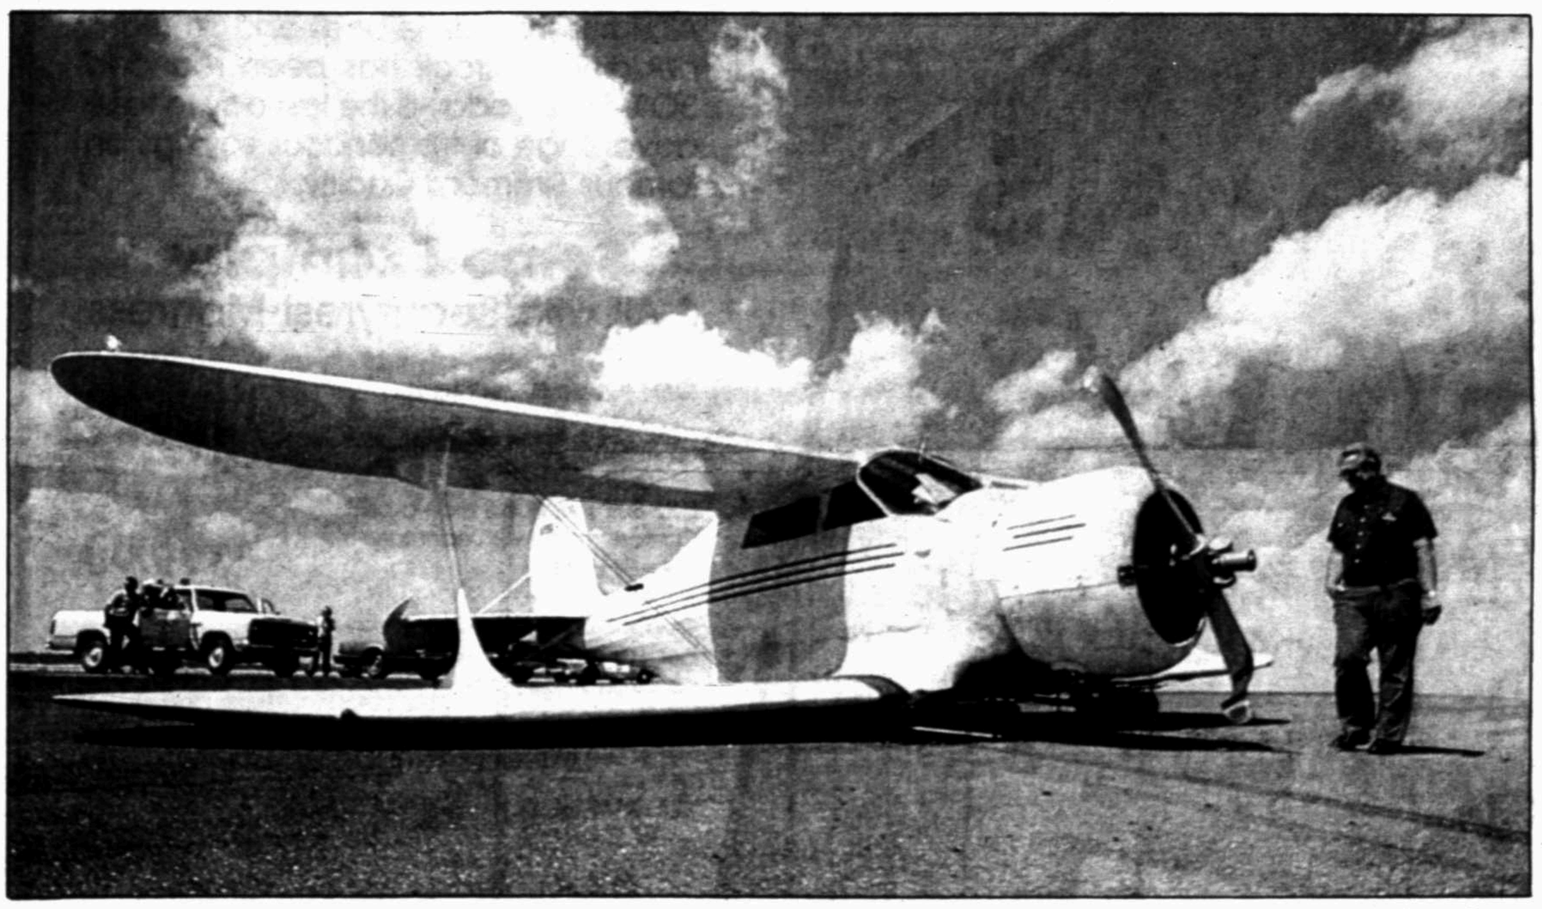

However, Hussein Musawi, an extremist Shiite named by Western intelligence sources as a leader of Islamic Holy War issued a statement in the east Lebanese city of Baalbek disclaiming any involvement.

Before the latest body was found, a check by The Associated Press of six hospitals indicated eight people were killed and 47 Americans and Lebanese were wounded.

U.S. Ambassador Reginald Bartholomew, injured in the attack, said Friday that the bomber shot a Lebanese guard, was fired at, and slumped over the wheel before his explosive-laden van blew up.

Doctors at Serhal Hospital said that among the dead was a Lebanese security policeman, who had been shot.

Pilot James Wilson, of Keithville, La., ruefully checks the damage his vintage 1936 Beechcraft suffered after an apparent landing-gear problem forced him to belly-land the plane Friday at Midland Regional Airport.

Crash landing hurts plane owner's pride

By HALLYE JORDAN
Staff Writer

The belly-landing of a small plane at Midland Regional Airport Friday afternoon resulted in no injuries other than to the owner's pride.

"I don't feel like talking about it right now 'cause it's my pride and joy," said pilot James Wilson, 53, of Keithville, La.

The plane, a 1936 pale yellow four-seat Beechcraft, landed at about 1 p.m. on the north end of 16 Right, taxiing south until the wheels collapsed. It skid about 75 feet before coming to rest at a 90-degree angle, blocking air traffic on the busiest runway at the terminal.

The runway, 16/34, is used most by the airliners because it is the longest, according to airport officials.

"We don't know whether the gear failed or a ground loop caused it," said 51-year-old Nelson Bell of Shreveport, Wilson's only passenger.

"I've had it for 13 years and had no problems," Wilson said.

The two were enroute to El Paso for pleasure "up to this point," said Wilson. Plans were changed and they probably will head back home via commercial flight.

According to Capt. Robert L. White of the Terminal Fire Station, earlier mishaps without injuries occurred when a small craft taxied in before its nose gear collapsed. About three weeks ago, he said, another small craft landed just short of the runway when it had engine failure.

"It's been a slow year," White said.

The most recent major accident occurred a year ago when a charter flight carrying the KOSA-TV news crew home from high school football playoffs crashed. All eight on board were killed.

The plane was removed by a crane and firemen remained on the scene in case a spark ignited the fuel which seeped from under the right side of the plane. The runway has an experimental type of asphalt called porous friction coat. PFC soaks in moisture, distributing it underneath the asphalt. As the diesel was absorbed, it was eating away the asphalt.

Airport maintenance employees were planning to remove a big chunk of the runway and replace it. According to Federal Aviation Administration laws, any runway with a hole 3-feet by 3-feet large must be closed.

Local Jaycees table move to admit women

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

A Friday meeting of the Midland Jaycees has resulted in the door remaining shut on allowing women as members.

The motion to change the bylaws to read "person" rather than "men" was tabled, or postponed, after a discussion during the Jaycees' luncheon meeting. But according to a spokesman with the U.S. Jaycees in Tulsa, Okla., each local chapter's bylaws must be changed or that group's charter will be revoked.

"Officially, all I can tell you is the motion was tabled after a discussion," said President Glenn Jennings of Friday's session. "People wanted more time to discuss it among themselves. This is the most major issue that's come before this chapter in several years."

Because the motion to change the bylaws was tabled, the issue isn't dead. Jennings said it will come before the group for a vote again. However, he had no idea when that would occur. As to how long the issue can remain tabled, Jennings said he would check with an outside parliamentarian whom, he said, is a woman.

The move to change the bylaws stemmed from a Supreme Court ruling in early July in which the justices declared that states may force some male-only organizations to admit women. The decision was made on a case in which a woman was admitted to a Jaycees chapter in Minnesota and the U.S. Jaycees attempted to revoke that chapter's charter.

Kevin Krepinevich, executive director of marketing for the U.S. Jaycees in Tulsa, told the Reporter-Telegram the directors decided not to continue fighting after the Supreme Court decision. On Aug. 16, the national membership — in a majority vote — changed the bylaws to allow men and women. The Texas chapter opened its membership the same day.

"By changing the policy of the U.S. Jaycees," Krepinevich said, "any chapter affiliated with us must admit women. If a woman is turned down, we can revoke that chapter's charter.

"The U.S. Jaycees bylaws supercede any chapter's bylaws," Krepinevich said of the Midland chapter's indecision. "If we find out a chapter is not in compliance, we will notify them" and the group will be given a deadline on changing the bylaws.

"If they refuse, we'll have to revoke their charter," he said.

Nationwide, all local chapters are being given until June 1985 to change their bylaws. And in August — when the national group voted to allow women — about 300 to 500 women joined, he said.

U.S. Jaycees has 7,000 chapters and 272,000 members, according to Krepinevich. In five years, "there should be a complexion change in the organization."

According to Jennings, one argument from the membership was that the move to change the bylaws was sudden. The organization has been a men's only group since 1915, when it was known as the Young Men's Progressive Civic Association. The idea of allowing women into its ranks has been tossed about since 1978 when some chapters abandoned the male-only exclusivity.

Kemp courts disaffected Democrats

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — U.S. Rep. Jack Kemp appealed to disenfranchised Democrats to join the party of "boundless limits" Friday at the opening of the State Republican Convention in Corpus Christi.

About two-thirds of the 5,000 delegates expected to attend the two-day convention were on hand at the Bayfront Convention Center to hear the keynote address by Kemp, a Republican congressman from New York state and former quarterback for the Buffalo Bills professional football team.

"Any leader that tells the American people that the solution to the nation's problems is to reduce their standard of living is not long for this political world," said Kemp, chairman of the House Republican Conference.

The Republican Party is "not just for some but for all, not just for the suburbs but for the city, for blacks, Hispanics...," he said.

"Let the Democratic Party talk about the era of limits, let this party talk aboud boundless limits.

"We're on the side of the people. The Democratic Party is on the side of the decline of the American dream," Kemp said.

Kemp's speech followed an announcement earlier this week by state Republican Party Chairman George Strake of a television and radio campaign in 16 Texas cities "to throw out the welcome mat to conservative Democrats disenfranchised by a Democratic Party gone so far left that it's left Texas."

Strake said Texas Republicans welcomed anyone "who believes in peace through strong national defense, support of the President on Central America, the right to bear arms, crime victims compensation, voluntary prayer in school and Ronald Reagan for President."

The party's attempt to broaden its appeal has also spawned the only controversy marking the convention, a battle for vice chairman.

Saturday morning, delegates will meet to conduct the real business of the convention, the nomination of the party chairman, vice chairman and 62-member executive committee.

Democrats 'drive' for voters

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's top elected Democrats, launching a voter registration drive in advance of the Oct. 6 deadline, predicted Friday that momentum is building for Walter Mondale regardless of President Reagan's lead in opinion polls.

"The key to it's not these polls. Polls don't win elections. The key is registering voters and getting them out," said state Comptroller Bob Bullock.

"There's a momentum, there's a movement out there. People are listening (to Mondale's message)," Gov. Mark White added.

Bullock, White and other elected Democratic state officials joined to announce that more than 5,000 volunteers from local Democratic organizations would work on day-long, neighborhood voter registration drives Saturday in every major county in Texas.

Midland, Odessa unemployment rate shows slight decline in August

From Staff Reports

Midland and Odessa unemployment figures showed a slight decline for the month of August.

For Midland, the unemployment rate was 3.6 percent, down from 4.0 percent in July and from 5.7 percent in August of 1983. The labor force numbered 75,100, down from 76,700 for July, but up from 65,400 in August 1983.

The number of unemployed for the month was 2,700, down from 3,100 in July and 3,700 in August 1983. The work force totaled 72,400, down from 73,600 in July, but up from 61,700 in August 1983.

For Odessa, the unemployment rate was 4.3 percent, down from 4.9 percent for July, and 8.7 percent for August, 1983. The labor force there numbered 79,600, down from 80,900 in July, but up from 73,300 in August 1983.

The number of unemployed was 3,400, down from 4,000 in July and 6,400 in August 1983. The work force totaled 76,200, down from 76,900 in July, and up from 66,900 in August 1983.

State unemployment followed the Midland-Odessa downward trend. Total state unemployment was 5.6 percent, down from 6.3 percent for July and 7.6 percent for August, 1983.

Austin had the lowest unemployment rate in the state, with 3.4 percent. Dallas-Fort Worth was second with 3.5 percent. Midland was third. Odessa was ninth. The area with the highest unemployment was McAllen-Edinburg, with 19.9 percent.

Ed Miller of the Texas Employment Commission, Midland, attributed the drop in the work force to a seasonal fluctuation, with "summer job seekers and students returning to school" and leaving the work force.

"The significant thing is the growth in the labor force," he noted. "It means the economy is healthy. It's no longer booming, but it's very healthy." He noted that at the TEC, job orders are increasing.

Miller called the figures a sign of good, steady growth.

Man who survived shooting identifies suspect from photo

HOUSTON (AP) — A man who survived a gunshot wound to the head identified a drivers license photo that led to the arrest Friday of a suspect in the shooting deahts of four people this week, authorities said.

Charles Edward Goosby was charged with capital murder in the Tuesday night slaying of 3-year-old Christille Lakey. He was arrested at 9:05 a.m. driving away from his apartment, police Sgt. J.C. Mosier said.

Mosier said Goosby, 34, offered no resistance and was unarmed at the time of the arrest. Goosby's was one of between 200 and 300 names listed in an address book found in the house where the killings occurred, Mosier said.

Jesse Lewis, 35, identified a photograph of Goosby, Mosier said. Lewis was under police guard and in poor condition at Ben Taub Hospital, hospital administrator Mike Bullard said.

Information on the killings of three others, including the child's mother, 21-year-old Beverly Ann Clark of Victorville, Calif., will be passed on to a grand jury when charges against Goosby are presented in two weeks, said Don Bankston, first assistant district attorney for Fort Bend County.

Bankston said Goosby was charged in the girl's death "because we get very upset when a 3-year-old child is a victim of violent crime."

"We want to go with the most important case first," he said.

Mosier said police took Goosby's name from the address book.

"Homicide detectives began audit checking the names for criminal history and drivers license photos," Mosier said. Officers obtained the photos from state records.

Mosier said Goosby's was one of several pictures shown to Lewis.

The others killed in the Tuesday night attack were the owner of the house, 36-year-old Larry Gentry, and a neighbor, Lloyd Armstrong, 25.

Lewis crawled through a bathroom window and went for help after the 11 p.m. shootings.

Fake snake wasn't attempt to mislead

HOUSTON (AP) — The maker of a rubber coral snake displayed at the Houston zoo for years says officials did not mean to deceive anyone — indeed, they feared visitors would be misled if they saw the only live alternative, an albino snake.

Thirty-year-old Robert Rothbard's snake was removed from its glass case this week after being on display for more than four years.

"The zoo had an albino (snake), but they didn't want to put that on display and mislead people," said Rothbard, who does drafting and design work for a Houston engineering firm. "If there hadn't been that exhibit, the snake never would have been made."

The fake, first shown in March 1980, came to light Monday after a visitor to the zoo called The Houston Post to say he thought the snake was dead.

"I never thought it would matter," Rothbard said. "It wasn't meant to fool people, though it did."

Rothbard, who designed exhibits for the Houston Museum of Natural Science at the time the fake was made, said he designed the snake for the exhibit, which shows the venomous snakes of Harris County.

The fake was made by casting a mold from a dead coral snake kept in a specimen jar and the rubber result was painted with the appropriate markings.

Hugh Quinn, the Houston zoo's curator for reptiles and amphibians, told Rothbard in a letter that people, "thought the model was a live snake, including many herpetologists."

Quinn said coral snakes frequently die in captivity and officials thought it was not wise to exhibit a live one.

"It was supposed to look real and it did look real," Rothbard told The Houston Post, "except for not moving for four years."

Hispanic community could be link to Latin America

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Hispanic business community could be a vital link opening up U.S. trade with the vast markets of Latin America, the head of the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce said Friday.

"We have in common a language, the same way of thinking and doing business. We can be the U.S. ambassadors and do the job faster because of the ties we have with those people," said Hector Barreto of Kansas City, Mo.

Barreto, who runs an international trade consulting firm, said, "The Hispanic community in this country is a big asset that's being underutilized."

The Hispanic business community "can be the bridge and the link between the United States and more than 350 million people in Latin America," he said.

Barreto said Hispanics have been typecast "as the frito bandito, the sleeping Indian. But we are hard-working, patriotic, God-loving people."

The role of Hispanic Americans now is to take part in the transfer of technology to Latin America so nations there can develop industrially, he said.

Barreto made the comments in a joint interview with Clarence Brown, assistant secretary of commerce.

"The United States has always enjoyed a strong trade relationship with Mexico," Brown said. "It hasn't been as strong with other South American countries."

The trade relationship with Mexico has been hurt by the collapse of the peso and the worldwide recession, Brown said.

Mexico and other developing countries, because of their foreign debts, they have limited U.S. imports into their countries, the commerce official said.

"Mexico has taken strong measures to strengthen its economy and we anticipate an increase in trade with the United States in the coming years," he said.

"Hispanic businessmen and businesswomen will have a natural advantage in that trade. We see that as another method by which Hispanic men and women will continue to grow in economic clout," he said.

"The problem that has developed for Mexico, Argentina and other countries is they have borrowed money on the world market for the development of their highway systems, transportation systems, individual plants. Because of the worldwide recession, they haven't been able to pay for those loans. They are having to export as much as possible to pay off their debts.

Man moves from fields to corporate office

SAN ANTONIO(AP) — Twenty-five years ago, Juan Gutierrez was picking cotton and hauling tomatoes in from South Texas fields.

Gutierrez

Today, he is the head of a multi-million dollar Washington-based consulting firm and the winner of the U.S. Hispanic Chamber of Commerce's Hispanic Businessman of the Year award.

The chamber, holding its annual convention here this week, honored Gutierrez late Thursday.

The leap from the fields to the corporate business world was a rather quick one for Gutierrez, 42.

He worked his way through Pan American University in Edinburg, Texas, and won election as a justice of the peace in Mercedes, his hometown.

Gutierrez, who was 21 at the time, was the youngest elected official in the history of the state.

After spending a four-year term performing marriage ceremonies, presiding over inquests, and handling a docket of small-claims cases, Gutierrez helped set up a federal migrant farm worker program in the Texas Rio Grande Valley.

The job led him into consulting work setting up similar social service programs in other parts of the country where migrants worked.

The experience, he said, introduced him to the consulting arena. In 1968, he and two partners founded InterAmerica Research Associates Inc., based in Rosslyn, Va.

In 1977, Gutierrez bought out his partners and since then sales have climbed from $900,000 annually to $9.7 million in 1983. Revenues of $14.5 million are projected for 1984.

Despite the success of his company, which employs 300 people, Gutierrez says he is far from being a millionaire.

He also has not forgotten his roots.

His father and mother still live in Mercedes, retired from farm laboring. His 11 brothers and sisters still live in the valley and in Houston. None of them are migrants.

"We were farm workers by necessity, not because we wanted to be," he said.

Gutierrez said his education made much of the difference in his life.

"My dad made sure we stayed in school. And he taught me how to work and to work hard. I guess I'm one of the lucky ones," he said.

Gutierrez remembers finishing the sixth grade with 70 other children from migrant worker families. Only a handful of them were left in school when his high school class graduated.

"I just wish we were more conscious of the contribution these people make to our society," he said. "It's a very unequal system. When legislation is passed, there is always an asterisk on it saying this does not apply to migrants. They've never had a voice. They still don't."

WEATHER SUMMARY

National Weather Service NOAA, U.S. Dept. of Commerce
AP Laserphoto Map

The National Weather Service predicts flurries for Saturday for parts of northern Montana. Showers are predicted for an area extending from Arkansas northward to Upper Michigan and for sections of southern Florida.

Skies over Permian Basin to remain partly cloudy

Skies over the Permian Basin will be partly cloudy today and for most of the weekend, but temperatures will remain warm. Today's high will be near 90, with southerly winds at 10-15 mph. Tonight will be fair, with a low in the low 60s, while Sunday will again be partly cloudy and warm, with a high in the low 90s, according to the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Friday's high of 84 was 16 degrees below the record for the date of 100, set in 1977, while the overnight low of 59 was 13 degrees above the 1972 record of 46.

STATE

While 40 Rio Grande Valley families waited to return to their homes following torrential rains, a line of thundershowers Friday pelted the Houston area and spawned tornadoes in Beaumont, Dickinson and Galveston — but drought-stricken Corpus Christi went another day without moisture.

A stalled front off the South Texas coast dumped more than 20 inches of rain in various parts of the valley earlier this week and forced numerous families out of their homes.

State and federal officials Friday toured several communities that suffered an estimated $50 million worth of damage from three days of torrential rains.

Cameron County officials have asked that Gov. Mark White declare their county a disaster area.

Two disaster centers in the Rio Grande Valley continued to assist families forced to evacuate flooded homes and a Red Cross caseworker said an estimated 500 families would "need help getting re-established."

In Southeast Texas, thundershowers dumped between two and three inches of rain in Galveston and Houston areas, while a tornado touched down in Beaumont.

NATION

Elsewhere, a cold front brought showers and snow to the northern Rockies, with 0.99 of an inch of rain at Bozeman, Mont.

Wet snow fell over the mountains of northwestern Montana and 3 inches of snow fell on the mountains north of Logan, Utah. Several more inches of snow were possible in the region over the weekend, with up to a foot of snow on mountain peaks in northern Utah.

In the Atlantic, the remains of tropical storm Fran were about 1,400 miles east-southeast of Bermuda.

In the Pacific, hurricane Norbert was south of Baja California and moving eastward with maximum sustained winds of about 120 mph, while hurricane Odile was south of Mexico City and edging eastward with maximum sustained wind of about 92 mph.

CONVENTION

Strake, Houston oilman, is expected to coast to another term as chairman, but vice chairman Diane Denman of San Antonio has found herself in the eye of a storm following remarks she made concerning registration of Hispanic voters.

Opposing Mrs. Denman for the GOP's number two state post is Lou Brown of Midland, a past president of the 9,500-member Texas Federation of Republican Women.

In a television interview prior to the Republican National Convention last August, Mrs. Denman said the San Antonio-based Southwest Voter Registration Education Project, a group dedicated to registering Hispanic voters, was "looking for people they can control."

She said the organization was "registering people in left-wing areas of the churches that are not going for the betterment of their own people. We are registering the right kind of people who go out and work and support the future of this country."

Saturday, after choosing their state leaders for the next two years, delegates will hear speeches from retiring U.S. Sen. John Tower and the man seeking to succeed him, Republican senatorial nominee Phil Gramm.

Sen. Bob Dole of Kansas is also scheduled to speak.

DEMOCRATS

"We hope to register at least 500,000 Texans and push Texas over the 7.5 million mark for the number of voters on the rolls," said Bob Slagle, state Democratic chairman.

"We are concerned that there are over 4 million Texans who will not have a voice in deciding who will represent them," Slagle said.

Railroad Commissioner Buddy Temple, co-chairman of Mondale's campaign in Texas, said the Democratic contender recognizes how important Texas is in this election.

"Texas is critical to the campaign," Temple said, denying earlier reports that Mondale may have given up on the state. "Texas is probably the most important battleground in the country."

Attorney General Jim Mattox also discounted opinion surveys, saying, "The polls that you're seeing are not accurate."

Ferraro responds with humor to hecklers

By EVANS WITT
AP Political Writer

An Analysis

ARLINGTON — Faced with the most intense heckling of her campaign, Geraldine Ferraro showed the same determination and flashed the same sharp humor Americans saw in August when she was questioned about her family finances by a swarm of reporters at a New York news conference.

Vice President George Bush, faced with the largest group of protesters of his campaign, also reacted with humor. But after he and his aides woke up Friday to a front-page headline that read, "Bush Booed Into Changing His Speech," his press secretary decided to take action.

"You'll have to have your tape recorders going and your pencils moving fast," Peter Teeley told reporters as he announced that he would no longer give reporters advance copies of the vice president's speeches.

However, six hours later Teeley reversed himself. "I think I just changed my mind on it," he said. "You guys can't take a joke."

If reporters had not had advance copies at a Vermont stop on Thursday, they would not have known that Bush, faced with a faulty sound system as well as the hecklers, had indeed left out part of his prepared speech — something he later said he had done for other reasons entirely.

Until Thursday, Bush had largely escaped the protests that have been hounding Ms. Ferraro's vice presidential candidacy.

"It's wonderful," he said, as hecklers kept interrupting him during a stop in Vermont. "This is all very refreshing because you see the country strong and yet you see the great freedom that we protect — to have people who are out of step with the country having their say."

Ms. Ferraro also used the word "wonderful" on Thursday to describe the hecklers who greeted her at the University of Texas campus in Arlington.

"You're wonderful," she told the protesters. "You've figured out how to stop this New Yorker from talking too quickly."

Ms. Ferraro once blamed her tendency to get into hot water with various statements on speaking just a little too fast.

It was with the same sense of humor that Ms. Ferraro responded to questions about her family's finances.

In both cases, she never lost her temper.

She was pushed, but didn't give way.

Asked at the Aug. 21 news conference whether a business decision by husband John Zaccaro left her "surprised, startled, aghast or suspicious?" her response was quick:

"How about none of the above?"

Interrupted in mid-sentence in Arlington by chants of "Four more years" as she tried to talk about Reagan's record, Ms. Ferraro retorted: "I want to tell you — if I had a record like Ronald Reagan's I wouldn't want anybody to talk about it either."

Questioned closely in August about her connection with her husband's businesses, one reporter asked if she was involved in "an attempt to deceive."

"Now you know better than that," she retorted. "I have no intention of deceiving anybody. I released more (financial information) than anybody has released in the history of this country."

Automobile dealers' group launches safety campaign

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Despite the possible price increase facing automobile manufacturers and consumers, the Texas Automobile Dealers Association officially launched a statewide campaign to endorse safety laws requiring the use of child restraint seats and safety belts in automobiles.

The endorsement, announced Friday in Midland by TADA Executive Vice President Gene Fondren, comes one month before state laws go into effect which require children under the age of four be placed in restraint seats and/or seat belts while traveling in motor vehicles. The mandatory law passed by the Texas Legislature becomes effective Oct. 31.

According to Fondren, TADA "is interested in promoting a positive attitude toward state legislation requiring child restraint seats."

He added that TADA also plans to educate Texans about federal legislation requiring the mandatory installation of air bags in all new cars by 1987.

The issue of air bags and mandatory safety belt regulations will likely be addressed in the next session of the Texas Legislature, according to Fondren.

"Unless two-thirds of the population agrees to a mandatory seat belt law by 1987, there will be forced installation of air bags. The cost of installing air bags will have an impact on manufacturer and consumer prices," he said.

Fondren said TADA believes "the air bag system is not a substitute for the seat belt system. It is a supplement. The belief that air bags are the answer to all our problems is not true.

"They're productive only in front end collisions and they're difficult to test. If we're going to do this, then the next step should be to consider the passage of a mandatory seat belt law for adults," he said.

TADA will officially launch the campaign Oct. 15 in conjunction with October being "Child Passenger Safety Month." The association is offering consumers reduced prices on Century 200 toddler seats if they purchase them from an automobile dealer. "Normally the seats retail anywhere between $40 and $60. But we're prepared to sell them at cost for $33," Fondren said.

According to national studies, 78 children under the age of four died in motor vehicle accidents in Texas last year and anther 6,602 were injured. More children under the age of four were killed while riding as passengers in automobiles in Texas during the past six years than in any other state in the nation.

To date, 49 states and the District of Columbia have passed child passenger protection laws.

PUC examiners recommend small increase for TUEC

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Utilities Electric Co., which wants a $304 million rate hike, is entitled to an increase of only $7 million, a Public Utility Commission examiner said Friday.

The recommendation now goes to the three-member commission, which frequently uses examiners' reports as the basis for rate case decisions.

TUEC, created this year by the merger of Dallas Power & Light, Texas Power & Light and Texas Electric Service Co., serves 4.5 million customers in 91 counties. Cities served by TUEC include Dallas, Fort Worth, Arlington, Midland, Odessa, Wichita Falls, Plano, Richardson, Tyler and Waco.

The examiners' recommendation said TUEC ratepayers should not cover any additional costs at the company's Commanche Peak nuclear plant near Glen Rose.

Midlander gets 35 years for intent to sell cocaine

From Staff Reports

A 32-year-old man was sentenced Thursday to 35 years in prison for possession of cocaine with intent to sell in connection with what was described as the largest drug bust of its kind in Midland history.

Mark Edward McFaul, 32, was found guilty Wednesday by a jury in Judge Vann Culp's 238th District Court, which deliberated for almost three hours before announcing the verdict. According to Assistant District Attorney Jack Connors, who assisted chief prosecutor Janet Copeland in the trial, sentence deliberation took about an hour and a half.

About 11 ounces of what Midland police termed virtually pure cocaine was seized during the early afternoon May 28 raid.

Two other persons, Debra Ann Thomas, 23, and Victor Granico, 25, were arrested at the mobile home, two miles east of town on County Road 1140-South.

Street value of the cocaine at the time of seizure was estimated to be about $154,000, according to police narcotics detectives.

Odessan critically injured in mishap

From Staff Reports

An Odessa man was in critical condition with internal injuries in Midland Memorial Hospital Friday night after his car veered across the median on Interstate 20 just east of Midland and hit a trailer being pulled by another car, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Gaylord M. Price, 43, of Odessa, was driving his 1983 Pontiac in the westbound lane at 6:30 p.m. when he suddenly veered across the median into the eastbound lane and hit a trailer loaded with pipe being pulled by Marlyn K. Earnest, of Big Spring, in her 1977 Ford, officers said.

No other injuries were reported.

Car stereo worth $100 stolen

From Staff Reports

A car stereo worth $100 was stolen from a car parked at 2100 N. Lamesa, it was reported to police Friday.

Jack Benson of 1714 S. Loraine told police the stereo was taken sometime between Sept. 7 and Sept. 20 from his '78 Pontiac Grand Prix. The car was parked at the Lamesa address for repairs, he said.

In other police reports, two car stereo speakers worth $80 were reported stolen from an '81 Volkswagen Rabbit belonging to Matthew Moore of 504 W. Storey. Also taken was an Arkansas Razorback ice chest worth $20, Moore told police. The theft occurred between 10 p.m. Thursday and 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Midland to get $866,000 in federal grants

From Staff Reports

The city of Midland will be getting $866,000 in Community Development Block Grant funds next week, according to an announcement Friday from the office of U.S. Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

The grant for 1985-86 will be released Tuesday to the city.

Susan Howell, CD coordinator for Midland, had not been notified of the grant by Friday afternoon. She had been told by HUD officials the application would have to be reviewed first by the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, and its next meeting won't be held until October.

If the grant has been approved by HUD, Ms. Howell said, her next step will be to do environmental clearances, which should take about 30 days. In other words, the city doesn't have the money yet.

"We're just one step closer to spending it," she said.

The money will be allotted for the following uses:

— Rehabilitation of owner-occupied houses, $100,000.

— Demolition and clearance of dilapidated structures, $50,000.

— Code enforcement activities, $50,000.

— Drainage improvements along Scharbauer Draw, $200,000.

— Improvements at Taylor and Garrett Brown parks, $100,000.

— Installation of public facilities near Washington Park, $90,000.

— Installation of smoke detectors for owner occupied houses in southeast and east Midland, $20,000.

— Educational and recreational equipment for Taylor Park Child Care Center, $20,000.

— Freewill Foster Group, provide house for foster care, $30,000.

— Clean Midland for clean-up activities, $25,000.

— New YMCA facility in northeast Midland, $75,000.

— Feasibility study for multi-purpose center in southeast Midland, $6,000.

— Administrative costs, $100,000.

This is the fourth consecutive year Midland has applied for and received the grant.

JAYCEES

The Jaycees, known as a leadership-training organization for men ages 18 to 35, voted not to decide the issue after some members mentioned they wanted to see what other chapters were doing first.

To date, no woman has applied to become a member of the Midland chapter. But if she does and is rejected, "I wouldn't want to get sued," Jennings said. "We need to get women in this chapter who are professional women. We have to deal with women now and in the future. This would be a good training place."

U.S. nuclear-powered sub collides with barge

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The nuclear-powered attack submarine Jacksonville collided with a 270-foot Navy barge off the Virginia coast Friday, but no one was injured and the vessels suffered only minor damage, officials said.

"Damage to the Jacksonville was limited to superficial external damage" to its bow section, said Cmdr. Dave Thomas, a spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet Submarine Force. "The mishap in no way involved the ship's propulsion plant."

The barge was struck midway between the bow and stern, he said.

The accident occurred at 5 a.m. near Cape Henry in Thimble Shoals channel, a little more than a mile north of Fort Story, Thomas said. The site is near where two other Navy ships are being anchored while a temporary pier is being built 800 feet into the Chesapeake Bay.

Laxalt sues newspaper

CARSON CITY, Nev. (AP) — Sen. Paul Laxalt, head of the national Republican Party and of President Reagan's re-election campaign, filed a $250 million libel suit Friday against McClatchy Newspapers.

Laxalt, R-Nev., claimed McClatchy libeled him and his family in articles published last November which claimed substantial sums of money were illegally skimmed from the Ormsby House hotel-casino in Carson City while the Laxalts owned it a dozen years ago.

"The Sacramento Bee went far beyond questioning my political judgment, which is fair comment. For the first time, my integrity and that of my family was seriously questioned. I won't permit that to go unchallenged," Laxalt said Friday in a statement issued by his Washington office.

Frank McCulloch, executive editor of McClatchy Newspapers, replied in a statement, "Other than to say the story speaks for itself, we will have no comment until we have a chance to see the complaint and review it thoroughly." McClatchy owns the Sacramento Bee, the Fresno Bee and the Modesto Bee in California.

Base tightens security

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Officials at McClellan Air Force Base increased security Friday because of a "potential terrorist threat," Air Force officials said, apparently part of a widespread alert issued in the wake of Thursday's bombing in Beirut.

They would not give details of the threat or the security measures, but Pentagon officials who spoke on condition that they not be identified said the alert stemmed from the American embassy annex blast that killed an estimated 12 people, including two Americans.

"McClellan Air Force Base has increased its security measures based upon information indicating a potential terrorist threat to Northern California installations," said a statement read by base public affairs officer Ken Lavin.

Bookstore sues BellSouth

ATLANTA (AP) — A bookstore for homosexuals has filed suit against BellSouth, which rejected an advertisement for the Atlanta-area Yellow Pages because it described the store as selling "lesbian and gay male literature."

The ad for Christopher's Kind Bookseller has already run in the directory for three years, but BellSouth told owner Gene Loring that it would be canceled for the upcoming edition because it violates an ethics policy banning advertising with respect to homosexuals, according to the suit Loring filed in DeKalb County Superior Court.

Judge Carol Hunstein issued a temporary restraining order Thursday barring BellSouth from excluding the ad until the dispute can be resolved in court.

Artificial heart plan OK'd

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A review committee has approved plans for an artificial heart to be implanted in a human patient at Humana Hospital Audubon, with the surgery to be performed by Dr. William DeVries, officials said.

DeVries, who performed the world's only artificial heart implant in 1982 at the University of Utah, transferred to the private hospital in Louisville in July after a review panel in Utah failed to approve a second implant after more than a year of deliberation.

The procedure must also be approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. DeVries is the only surgeon in the nation certified by the FDA as qualified to perform the implant.

Panel upholds UFW rights

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — The state Agricultural Labor Relations Board has dismissed a growers' complaint challenging the right of the United Farm Workers union to renew its grape boycott.

The unfair labor practice charge, filed by the Nisei Farmers League of Fresno, did not contain sufficient information to prove a boycott exists or that growers are affected, Ricardo Ornelas of the labor board said Thursday.

The renewed boycott was announced in July by UFW President Cesar Chavez, who charged that representation elections and back-pay awards are not being enforced.

Wedding of 'perfectly happy' couple ends in tragedy

PADUCAH, Ky. (AP) — Less than 24 hours after the wedding of a "perfectly happy" couple, the groom was dead and his bride was in jail, charged with manslaughter.

David Lucas, 23, of Burna, died of excessive blood loss at 3 a.m. Friday at Western Baptist Hospital after surgery for a bullet wound in his abdomen, McCracken County Coroner Jerry Beyer said.

Lucas' wife Ruth, 28, was jailed in lieu of $50,000 cash bond, and McCracken District Judge David Reed scheduled a preliminary hearing for next Thursday.

The couple were married Thursday in Smithland by Livingston County Judge-Executive Ralph Smith.

"They came in Thursday morning, sometime before lunch, and asked the judge to marry them," said Eileen New, a courthouse employee. "The judge had known his daddy for a long time. They seemed perfectly happy and everything seemed normal."

The shooting apparently occurred after an argument.

"I believe they were both drinking, although we don't have any lab tests back yet," said McCracken Deputy Sheriff Dewayne Spees.

UMW president hails tentative coal contract

WASHINGTON (AP) — United Mine Workers President Richard Trumka hailed a tentative coal contract settlement Friday as containing "not a single concession" and moved immediately to mobilize support for the pact.

Eight hours after he and fellow union negotiators achieved a contract agreement with the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, an umbrella group representing 32 major coal companies, Trumka was greeted with a standing ovation as he arrived to brief fellow UMW leaders on the contract.

In keeping with a strict news blackout imposed on union officials by Trumka during the contract negotiations, the UMW withheld information on the contents of the agreement reached in the predawn hours Friday.

But a union source said the proposed contract, which would last 40 months, would provide miners with a net, modest 10.2 percent pay raise over the life of the pact — or an additional $1.40 an hour. That means a top-scale miner now getting $14.17 an hour would move to a $15.57 hourly rate by the time the contract has expired. The miner's daily pay would rise from $113 to $124.

The source, citing the union's self-imposed prohibition on public statements about the contract, declined to be identified publicly.

This source also disclosed these key provisions of the proposed pact:

— UMW members would get greater protection against the loss of jobs resulting from any move by a unionized coal company to subcontract work or lease its property to another concern. The laid-off union member would get first shot at a job opening at the subcontracting or leasing company, but that firm would not be required to unionize.

— The new pact contains increases for pensioners under two plans, known as the 1950 and 1974 plans, including $10 a month beginning in the first paycheck after the new contract takes effect and $10 per month in 1987.

— Gives UMW members protection in the event a unionized mine is sold by its owner, which would require the new owner to abide by the terms of the labor agreement.

While Trumka told reporters he felt the tentative contract agreement was a good one for the rank-and-file miners, he refused to speculate on prospects for ratification of the pact.

"We feel comfortable with it (the pact). The line officers will not go out into the field and attempt to sell the contract," he said. "We have faith and trust in them (the rank-and-file UMW members) that they will accept the contract if they see it is in their best interests. They will reject it if they don't, and we could learn to live with that."

Upjohn Co. heir resentenced for rape of stepdaughter

KALAMAZOO, Mich. (AP) — Upjohn Co. heir Roger A. Gauntlett, originally sentenced to chemical castration and five years' probation for raping his teen-age stepdaughter, was resentenced Friday to five to 15 years in prison after public outcry that the first penalty was too lenient.

"I strongly suspect that people in this community have in large part already determined what an appropriate sentence should be," said Visiting Ingham County Circuit Court Judge Jack W. Warren, before a courtroom packed with spectators and reporters.

Less than three hours after sentencing, Gauntlett was free on post-sentence bond.

Before he was sentenced, the 43-year-old Gauntlett asked the judge to consider the remorse he has felt during his prison time.

"Because of the media and others, I and my family have been made to suffer humiliation, hardship and stinging embarrassment," Gauntlett said. "There have been many others charged with CSC (criminal sexual conduct)...who have not been given the treatment I have received."

After making his statement, sitting at the defense table, Gauntlett rested his head in his hands briefly.

Warren said Gauntlett would be sent to Southern Michigan Prison for assessment, then reassigned to another prison. He gave Gauntlett 237 days' credit for time served.

Warren said the sentence met legislative mandates for reformation of the offender, punishing the wrongdoer, protecting society and deterring of others.

He set post-sentence bond at $100,000 or 10 percent cash. Sheriff's Department Cpl. James DeLaBarre said Gauntlett was released from the Kalamazoo County Jail, where he had been held since late January at about 6 p.m. — less than 2½ hours after he was sentenced.

Defense attorney William Fette of Kalamazoo refused to comment on the sentence.

Kalamazoo County Prosecutor James Gregart said after sentencing: "I won't take issue with his (Warren's) decision."

Mondale charges security at annex was 'inadequate'

Walter F. Mondale charged Friday that security at the U.S. Embassy annex in East Beirut was "clearly inadequate," while Vice President George Bush said more Marine guards should have been stationed there if it would have prevented the loss of life.

Although Mondale declined to blame President Reagan for the terrorist bombing Thursday, which claimed 12 lives including two Americans, he quoted the president's comments after 241 servicemen were killed in another suicide bombing last year:

"If there is to be blame, it properly rests in the office of the president and I accept the responsibility for the bad as well as the good."

Bush, asked at a news conference if there should have been a larger U.S. security force in Beirut, said, "I guess if a few more people there would have offset this, I guess the clear answer, given the loss of life, would be yes."

Democratic vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro, meanwhile, said in Santa Ana, Calif., there is "an organized campaign" of slurs being waged against her by conservatives. Ms. Ferraro made the comments on a call-in show on KABC in Los Angeles. Her statement came in response to a questioner, who strung together a wide variety of allegations about Ms. Ferraro and her husband relating to abortion and the candidate's finances.

In addition, NBC News on Friday night quoted sources as saying the Reagan-Bush campaign has been running an undercover operation designed to undermine the Mondale-Ferraro campaign. NBC quoted unidentified Republican sources as saying the undercover operation is being led by campaign director Ed Rollins and longtime Reagan adviser Lyn Nofziger.

Rollins denied the allegations. The strategy, said NBC, is to have groups or individuals not officially connected to the campaign demand investigations of Ms. Ferraro's finances, orchestrate a campaign of damaging leaks to the press, organize anti-abortion demonstrations against the Mondale-Ferraro ticket and encourage criticism by the Catholic hierarchy.

North Carolina Senate race most expensive

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The struggle between Democratic Gov. Jim Hunt and Sen. Jesse Helms, drum major of the Republican right flank, is already the most expensive Senate race in history and many see it as second in importance only to the presidential election.

Atlanta Mayor Andrew Young said the outcome will determine "whether the South is going to move forward or...backward."

Individual contributors and political action committees already have pumped $13.5 million into the race, breaking national spending records set by Helms in 1978, when he easily defeated Democrat John Ingram.

Helms' high-profile conservatism has generated much of the money for both candidates by inspiring fierce loyalty among conservatives and sometimes intense hatred among liberals.

The two-term incumbent has been labeled the "Prince of Darkness" by opponents and hailed as "the conscience of the Senate" by conservative backers impressed with his efforts against abortion and for prayer in public schools.

Helms had raised $8.4 million by this spring compared to $5.1 million for Hunt and was slightly ahead in a Gallup Poll conducted Sept. 10-13.

Hunt had a slim lead in polls taken last year, but by May similar surveys suggested it was a dead even race. The latest figures indicate a four-point Helms lead in a survey with a 3 percent margin of error.

Hunt, North Carolina's first two-term governor, is not as well known as Helms outside the state.

But he has earned recognition in education circles for starting a residential high school for math and science students.

Big cats destroyed for tourist market

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Hunters are killing tigers, leopards and other endangered species in alarming numbers in nearby jungles to supply Bangkok's tourist emporiums with skins, teeth and claws, according to Thai and foreign experts.

Thailand has become one of the world's major marketplaces for big cat products and the boom is deadly for the animals that up to now have survived largely because of underdevelopment in the area that also includes Cambodia, Laos and Burma.

At Oranee Sourvenir, one of the tourist shops in Bangkok, a saleswoman was asked if customers could legally leave Thailand with pendants made of tiger teeth and claws.

"No problem," she replied. "Just wear it. Tiger skins are illegal but this is jewelry."

A private, informal group of conservationists, launching what they call "Operation Tooth and Claw," estimate that about 300 shops in Bangkok carry big cat products. Posing as potential customers they surveyed 118 jewelry-souvenir stores frequented by tourists and found that 112 sold ash trays made from animal skulls, cufflinks from small claws and the popular teeth and claw pendants, said to bring luck to the wearer and give males an exotic "macho image."

"Several hundred large cats are found in the showcases of Bangkok at any one time," says one member of the group. This would be a staggering figure given the fact that Thailand's tiger population has plummeted to about 500, while big cat numbers are also known to have been sharply reduced in Cambodia, Laos and Burma in recent decades due to hunting, population pressures, deforestation and warfare.

Thai authorities have yet to move against the jewelry stores but the trade in skins has been forced underground.

Early this year police raided a warehouse above a beauty parlor on a quiet Bangkok residential street and found the skins of 43 leopards, nine tigers and one black panther and 28 skulls of various wild cats.

A few months later, authorities seized skins — sometimes with heads attached — in stores catering to foreign tourists in the seaside resort of Pattaya. Last May customs officials at Bangkok's International Airport uncovered a live leopard about to be illegally flown out of the country.

Boonlerd Angsirijinda, who heads the law enforcement section of the Wildlife Conservation Department, says his team has little expertise in identification of teeth and claws, thus making raids difficult.

The cat specialist group of the Swiss-based International Union for Conservation of Nature and Natural Resources last April sent one of its experts, Dr. Paul Leyhausen, to train Boonlerd's men in identification.

The fight against Thailand's illegal wildlife dealers and poachers has been difficult. Each year, wildlife officers are killed by poachers or loggers in national parks and some of the top government environmental officers allegedly have been threatened by the big operators. The jewelry-souvenir store owners also form a powerful lobby group.

Boonlerd said in an interview that penalties for illegal trading were too low. The maximum fine is 5,000 baht ($217) but the owner of the skin-filled warehouse, for example, was fined only 2,500 baht and given a three-month suspended jail sentence after she confessed. The confiscated skins were conservatively valued at $32,000.

Tiger teeth sell for $100 to $300 apiece and claws $50 to $150, depending on size, condition and the mounting if any. The claws and teeth of a single tiger are thus worth $2,000 to $3,000 while the skin is sold for about $1,000 or more.

Boonlerd said an attempt was being made to amend the existing wildlife law to increase penalties to a maximum fine of 50,000 baht ($2,175) and five years imprisonment. Most species of big cat are protected by the law from both shooting and trading but the law is vague about processed cat products. The wildlife authorities interpret the law as meaning the sale of items like tiger claws made into jewelry as illegal but this has yet to be tested in a court of law.

Stopping the trade at the source is virtually impossible.

Burma is the only country in the world where tigers are not protected. Wild animals, dead and alive, are smuggled across a porous border into Thailand. Borders with Cambodia and Laos are difficult to control.

"The market demand creates great hunting pressure on the big cats, and Bangkok is probably the world's leading outlet," said Dr. Warren Brockelman, an American teaching at Mahidol University's biology department. He and others believe it also spurs poaching in national parks, which shelter Thailand's nine big cat species.

Fifteen Druse arrested for revenge killings

SOHMOR, Lebanon (AP) — Fifteen Druse militiamen, members of the South Lebanon Army, are in custody and face court martial in connection with the revenge killings of 13 people in this Shiite Moslem village, an Israeli military officer said Friday.

Militiamen from the 2,000-man army, which is supplied by Israel, slipped into the sealed-off village Thursday by fooling Israeli army officers into believing they were going to help enforce a curfew, said the officer, who identified himself only as Lt. Col. Giora.

Giora said Maj. Gen. Antoine Lahd, commander of the Lebanese force, told him the militiamen would be court-martialed.

Only hours before the attack, four Druse members of the South Lebanon Army were killed in an ambush in Sohmor. Twenty-five villagers are in custody in connection the ambush, and one already has admitted taking part in the attack, Giora said.

Reporters allowed to travel to the outskirts of Sohmor on Friday were taken to an olive grove where militia members opened fire on 500 male villagers who had been rounded up for questioning following the ambush.

Bloody shirts, trousers and sandals were scattered on the ground.

The villagers were being questioned when Druse militiamen in uniform, some wearing red headbands, drove up to the village of 3,000 people. "Our officers recognized some of them, so they were permitted in," Giora said. "We thought they were there to help us."

But the militiamen ran to the edge of the grove and began firing machine guns. Israeli soldiers and Lahd stood between the militia members and the villagers, Giora said.

One Israeli soldier tackled a militia member and prevented him from throwing a grenade, he said.

Giora said he hoped the revenge killings would not hinder Israel's efforts to leave south Lebanon, which it has occupied since June 1982.

Israel has said it wants to withdraw once its northern border is protected from terrorist attacks, and it hopes the 2,000-man South Lebanon Army will be able to do most of the work.

"This was an act of blood vengeance. But blood vengeance is a social norm in Lebanon," said a military source, who spoke on condition that he was not identified.

"I don't think it will delay our pullout," the source said. "Most of our boys are getting tired of being the policemen in someone else's argument."

In Israel, several newspapers expressed doubts about the future of the Israeli-supported militia. The pro-Labor daily Davar said the militia is not "an acceptable force to the majority of the population."

Ministers bemoan large U.S. budget deficits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though cheered by the snappy rebound in the American economy, world finance ministers gathering here Friday were bemoaning large U.S. budget deficits as the chief culprit behind high interest rates and the dollar's rising strength.

Indeed, ministers representing poorer countries lost little time in issuing a statement criticizing U.S. economic policy.

"Considering the large weight of the United States economy," the statement said, lower deficits and interest rates and a weaker dollar "would have a beneficial impact on the world economy."

The United States was almost certain to respond in upcoming discussions at the 39th annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank that the American economy deserves the credit for leading the rest of the world out of an economic slump.

Just as the meetings were getting under way unofficially Friday, a major U.S. bank, Morgan Guaranty Trust Co., trimmed its prime lending rate from 13 percent to 12.75 percent. Developing countries are very sensitive to this rate, because some of their loan contracts have floating rates tied to the prime.

"The world economy is certainly in a lot better shape than it was in 1983 or 1982," Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said in advance of the meetings.

"There are an awful lot of soft spots in the world's economy and a lot of problems that are facing us," he said. "Nevertheless, the situation has improved in the last 12 months."

The meetings of the 147-member organizations start formally on Monday, but finance ministers from industrialized and developing countries held separate talks Friday. The IMF's policymaking board is to begin discussions Saturday.

Following their meeting, officials of the developing countries released their statement which, in addition to criticizing U.S. policies, called for more help out of their financial problems.

"The economic and financial conditions in many developing countries remained severely constrained," it said.

It said it was "crucial to bring down interest rates" and urged "imaginative solutions" to help resolve the debt woes of those countries.

To help them, it insisted that the current rules giving poorer countries increased access to IMF resources be maintained and that a new issue of the IMF's international currency, called Special Drawing Rights, should be ordered.

Both those topics are on Saturday's agenda of the IMF policymaking board. But the United States wants to trim back the expanded access to IMF resources and opposes a new issue of Special Drawing Rights.

Regan, meanwhile, revealed that he intends to ask the policymaking board for approval to let the rich and poor nations discuss the debt problems at a special meeting next spring sponsored by the organizations.

"We're talking about developing the economies of these countries, not just some quick fix," he said.

Some finance ministers of the poorer countries said they didn't want such talks, called for by those nations, held through the IMF and World Bank.

Colombian guerrillas briefly take hostages

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Left-wing guerrillas fought a gun battle with police and then held 50 people hostage at a Bogota school Friday before ten of the rebels escaped and five others surrendered, police reported.

They said one guerrilla was killed and two policemen were slightly wounded in the brief gunfight before the rebels fled into the high school building and a seven-hour siege began.

Students told The Associated Press that about 20 guerrillas arrived at the school at about noon. They said the rebels, armed with submachine guns and pistols, shouted leftist slogans and talked with students and teachers outside the building during the lunch recess.

About five of the rebels had left when dozens of police sped up in cars and began firing into the air, the students said, adding that youngsters ran screaming in all directions, some back into the school.

The remaining guerrillas fired at the police and retreated into the building, which is attended by about 1,100 youths ages 12 to 18. Once inside, the rebels sent the students out but held about 50 teachers and other school employees hostage, said principal Jose Valoyes.

More police arrived and some 300 officers surrounded the two-story brick building in southern Bogata, but 10 of the rebels escaped out a back door before all of the officers were in place, according to police.

Five guerrillas, four men and a woman, held the hostages for seven hours before surrendering, police reported. They did not identify the prisoners or the slain rebel.

Valoyes, initially among the captives, was freed to relay the rebels' demand that they be allowed to meet with members of a presidential peace commission that earlier this year arranged cease-fires between four leftist guerrilla groups and government troops.

Cassavetes true maverick in Hollywood

ENTERTAINMENT

John Cassavetes and his actress wife, Gena Rowlands, at their home in the Hollywood Hill. Cassavetes, an actor and director, is indisputably one of the few mavericks of the film industry.

HOLLYWOOD — The movie industry has produced very few true mavericks (as opposed to delinquents of various ages), but John Cassavetes is indisputably one of them.

From the moment in 1960 when, at the age of 31, he took his earnings from the television series "Johnny Staccato" and poured them into his first feature film, "Shadows," shot in 16-millimeter for less than $50,000, Cassavetes has been alternating between profitable jobs as an actor (in Paul Mazursky's "Tempest" most recently) and his own intensely personal and unorthodox work as a film maker.

"Shadows," like the others that followed, including "Faces," "Husbands," "A Woman Under the Influence" and "The Killing of a Chinese Bookie" in particular, have left no one indifferent.

Their high-voltage seriousness, their feeling of improvisation, the camera swipes that suggested the photographer was as surprised as anyone at the sudden turns of events, the quick cuts into and out of scenes (and, too, the scenes, like the legendary vomiting in "Husbands," that seemed to go on forever) were all in jarring contrast to every tradition of the so-called well-made film.

But it was evident from the start, to many critics and to a widening cult of Cassavetes fans here and abroad, that there was method in Cassavetes' unorthodoxy — an attempt to peel away surfaces and get to the soul, a drive to get at what his characters were feeling but could not say, at unexpressed wishes and unanswered love.

CASSAVETES' 11TH film, "Love Streams," which opened recently, co-stars Cassavetes and his wife of more than a quarter-century, Gena Rowlands (this time playing brother and sister). Characteristically, it draws on Cassavetes' stock company in the person of Seymour Cassel, the fine actor from "Faces" and "Minnie and Moskowitz," in which he was Moskowitz.

Characteristically, the film was made for relatively little money — reportedly significantly less than $5 million — and was shot principally at the Cassavetes home in the Hollywood hills.

It is about love, communication and women, three subjects that can be said to thread through all his work — including his lighter films like "Gloria" and "Minnie and Moskowitz."

I'm very concerned about the depiction of women on the screen," Cassavetes said over a glass of apricot juice at home one recent afternoon. Off screen as on, Cassavetes looks lean, world-weary and intense, but he is given to bursts of enthusiastic laughter.

The screen treatment of women, he says, "has gotten worse than ever. It's related to their being either high- or low-class concubines, and the only question is when or where they will go to bed, and with whom and how many.

"There's nothing to do with the dreams of women, or of woman as the dream, nothing to do with the quirky part of her, the wonder of her. It makes me very angry.

"Robert (the character he plays in "Love Streams") says, 'Men are boring.' He writes about women."

CASSAVETES' MEN are never boring, but they are egocentric and uncommitting to a grievous fault (a point Cassavetes is always consciously making), and they suffer almost as much as they make their women suffer.

"Love is a stream," Cassavetes says, "continuous throughout time, and it's all that matters. The need for family has followed the ages around, and when we haven't got it, it makes us empty."

"Love Streams" began life as a play by Ted Allan (now co-author of the film), one of three plays Cassavetes presented at his own expense a few years ago at a small theater in Hollywood. Jon Voight co-starred with Rowlands on stage but was unavailable to do the film.

Another of the plays, also by Allan, "The Third Day Comes," was a forerunner to "Love Streams," exploring the family background from which the brother and sister came.

Cassavetes would like to do "The Third Day Comes" with the present cast. "But," maverick to the end, Cassavetes says, "I won't make it unless it can be three hours long. It has to be, and I won't do it shorter to suit commercial demands." The chances, he admits, look dim.

He has just finished acting in a film for Columbia, "Big Trouble," in which he co-stars with his old friend Peter Falk, and Alan Arkin, Beverly D'Angelo and Charles Durning. He also recently played Eugene O'Neill in a biographical play by Mead Roberts that had a limited run in New York.

THERE ARE OFTEN flares of violence, growing out of the emotional stresses, in Cassavetes' films. In "Love Streams," he gets the whey knocked out of him by an ex-wife's present husband. But there are also passages of unexpected tenderness, as when in "Love Streams" he pays gallant and flattering court to the mother of a black singer he has been with. The character seems moved partly by his compulsion to ricochet in and out of women's lives but also by an apparent wish simply to be nice.

"Relationships...," Cassavetes says. "I loved having all those kids in the film, looking at their problems and fears. It's crazy, but only some of the exploitation films really seem to get kids right, what their reality is, where they're at, the danger they live in. They're closer to death than we are, in a way, because they take so many chances. Maybe they want to die before they get to be like us. Even in those films, the women are still just along for the ride, meaningless.

"But I liked the relationships (in "Love Streams"), two or three mother-daughter relationships. To take time out in a film to deal with a woman (the singer's mother) who's more correctly my age than the daughter seemed a little crazy but right.

"You want to put on the screen the way people can relate to each other, the way people want love, not money, not anything else, and the chances women will take to have it."

THE SISTER in "Love Streams" has been in mental hospitals and does eccentric things, like bringing her brother two miniature horses and other livestock. But, for Cassavetes, there is sanity in her eccentricities.

"I resent it when people say Sarah (the sister) is crazy. She'd like love to be something special; that's not crazy; it's just hard.

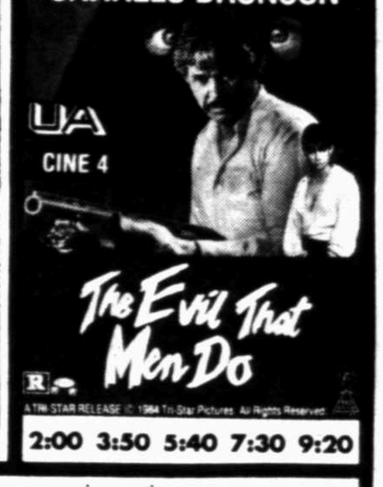

"The only real gain women have won so far is their sexual freedom; otherwise, they've just joined the great bureaucratic game in which it takes six years to get anything done, and the little dreams and ambitions people have are still hard to deliver on. The weakness within their strength is that there are still prejudices against women.

Youths deal in lethal drug trade

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Amid tree-lined streets and lush green lawns, kids on bicycles, on doorsteps and in the park flag down customers in this city's violent drug trade, which has claimed 20 lives this year.

"They kind of figure themselves as a bunch of little gangsters, like in the '20s," says Lt. Mike Wilson, head of the vice squad.

They have names like "The Mob," and "The Family," and they rove the streets, particularly in the isolated, predominantly poor, flatlands, where children help peddle cocaine, PCP, LSD, marijuana and heroin.

As a plainclothes cop drives through one neighborhood, seven children, ranging in age from 5 to no more than 15, crowd around the steps of a duplex in this city of 350,000 people. An older one spots the moving car, flags it down and peers in. "Hey want to buy some smoke?" When the officer identifies himself, the youth yells back, "Get out of here."

Blocks later, a group of teen-agers mills in a park. A youth of about 16 spots the car. He runs into the street, flailing his arms over his head and yelling "weed!"

A BOY RIDES by on a bike, marijuana sticking out of his pocket. An adult up ahead recognizes the police and screams "Vice! Vice!" while the first salesman keeps up his chase.

"The competition for buyers is so great they're waving people down before they ever see who's inside," says Sgt. Dennis Downum of the vice squad.

Although Oakland police say narcotics arrests have more than doubled since last year, sales have become more blatant and pushers have become bolder.

"The street problem has just gotten so out of hand, we don't have enough officers to deal with it," Downum says.

Kids, often too poor for summer camp and too young for work, are enticed by drug dealers who pay them $60 to $200 a day to sell their wares.

CUSTOMARILY officers arrest youths for drug offenses if they spot them, but if children have no record, they are usually released to their parents, Wilson said. Youths with records are usually sent to juvenile hall.

No bail is set for juveniles under 18, and the courts are required by state law to take the least restrictive action, said deputy district attorney Jack Burke, who oversees the juvenile division.

Officials also concentrate on adult drug offenders, but the fight is mired in infighting among city officials and police.

City councilman Wilson Riles, Jr. says Police Chief George Hart "doesn't know what's going on," and that, after 25 years on the force, "it's time for him to go." Riles says the city needs to invest in more innovative drug crackdowns, such as "sting" operations.

HART SAYS "street-level punks" will continue to operate unless police efforts to remove them are supported.

City councilman Leo Bazile says City Manager Henry Gardner should be fired. Gardner says the city is doing all it can following budget cuts brought on by Proposition 13, the tax-cutting initiative approved in 1978. The city manager blames the courts.

"Everybody's pointing at everybody else," Riles says. "It's kind of a Keystone Kops situation."

The size of the narcotics detail already has doubled this year. There are now two seven-member narcotics squads, one that infiltrates major organizations and one that focuses on street dealers. Together they average 400 to 500 arrests a week, Downum says.

Police have started "sweeps" in certain areas. Some places are patrolled 24 hours a day. A drug-education program is planned for the grammar schools.

"EVERYBODY thinks we need a bigger narcotics unit, but we say no," says John Ream, a deputy chief in charge of the undercover and detective force. "We make more buys and make more cases than the courts can handle."

Community leaders say the pushers are back on the streets only days after their arrests, a problem Ream says the department can do little about.

"Drug dealers, like everybody else, have the right to bail. But drug dealers, not like everybody else, have tons of cash on them," he said. It isn't unusual for a busted dealer to pull out the thousands of dollars necessary to post bail, he said. And then, they're right back out, selling, until the case comes up in court — up to three years later.

Alameda County District Attorney John Meehan has ended plea bargaining in drug cases to keep dealers in jail longer. Gardner supports that idea, but says the county needs at least three more judges to relieve the case backlog.

A community group, Organized People of Elmhurst Neighborhood, has presented the city with a plan calling for 12 specially trained narcotics officers to "deal with people hanging out on the corner and interfering with quality of life," says OPEN leader June Norman.

Another community group, the Sobrante Park Home Alert, has started picketing against drug dealing in a neighborhood park each Saturday.

MS. NORMAN, who has joined the picket line, says up to 500 cars would roll by the park when the group first started its protests.

Bulldogs beat Estacado in no frill victory

Cody Bell/ Reporter-Telegram

Midland High quarterback Matt Marcum (14) tries to elude the grasp of Lubbock Estacado's Victor Price during Midland High's 18-7 win over the Matadors. MHS is now 3-0 on the year under new head coach Doug McCutchen.

Midland goes 3-0

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

New Midland High football coach Doug McCutchen would probably rather have four quality quarters than two to show his fans in his Memorial Stadium debut, but fortunately, that's all the Bulldogs needed in an 18-6 victory over Lubbock Estacado Friday night.

"I'm just glad we won the game," said McCutchen after his team scored 18 first half points before calling it quits offensively. "Our young men played an exceptional first half, but offensively we seemed to be satisfied when we came out for the second half. Still, our defense played well throughout the game and that turned out to be a big part of the victory."

RUNNING BACK Keith Byrd, who had 92 of his career high 136 yards in the first half, was a ball of fire for the Bulldogs. He broke a trap play for 50 yards and a TD in the first period and ran for a two-point conversion to give MHS an 8-0 lead on their second possession of the night.

Byrd came back with a nine-yard TD reception from quarterback Matt Marcum in the second period while Richard Fry added the PAT for a 15-0 advantage. The 'Dogs were hot behind Byrd.

"It was just a trap play that broke the long touchdown. The linemen just blocked it great," said Byrd. "But I think we came out with a mental letdown in the second half and that won't happen ever again. We're learning every week and adjusting to a new system."

McCutchen added, "Byrd is really coming around and I think he's going to make it as a running back. Still, a great deal of credit should go to the offensive line. I think Byrd's total yardage is a reflection of how well the line did."

Fry ended the Bulldog scoring with a 33-yard field goal in the second period and turned the trial over to the defense.

And the defense came through in flying colors, holding Estacado's Rodney Jackson to 60 yards on 13 carries. Jackson rushed for over 1,000 yards last year on Estacado's 13-2 team that went to the state finals.

Tim Hickey and Jake Madrid had first half interceptions. Hickey's turnover was followed by Byrd's 50-yard TD romp up the Matador cape and Madrid's pickoff almost payed more dividends, but Madrid fumbled at the Estacado two-yard line to take six off the board.

BUT DEFENSIVE stars abounded, Byrd recovered an Estacado fumble. Willie Hernandez recovered a fumble that set up Fry's field goal. Brent Barton had two key sacks, one causing a fumble for Hernandez to recover and the other stopped an Estacado drive at the MHS 25.

Hernandez just flat out likes to play against Lubbock teams. He was highest rated defensive player against Monterey in a 10-7 MHS win and did another bang-up job against Estacado. He always seemed to be where he was needed most.

The only defensive letdown came in the fourth quarter when Estacado marched 59 yards, which ended with a one-yard TD run by quarterback David Taylor. Still, Estacado was lucky to get that one in since it took a fumbled punt return by Darren Thorpe and a 15-yard pass interference penalty to keep the drive alive.

McCutchen can't ask much more of his defensive unit. It is giving up only one touchdown per game and you can win games with that kind of stoppage.

Quarterback Marcum, a junior, had his worst passing night of the season, completing only two of nine passes and one interception, but McCutchen said, "I'm not disappointed with the passing game. Estacado did a good job in that area and our running game was strong. Our offensive line did a super job in the first half."

EL PASO — Except for a passing attack that managed 205 yards and one touchdown for El Paso Eastwood, Friday night's football game for the Midland Lee Rebels amounted to little more than a practice session as Lee pounded out a 42-7 victory over the winless Troopers.

The game could be considered no contest by halftime as Tyrone Thurman scored two touchdowns on runs of three and 32 yards, Walter Jones from two yards out and Randy Ellis from six. Add four Craig Kamradt extra point kicks and it was 28-0 by intermission.

After holding Eastwood to a loss of one-yard on three plays in the opening minute of the game, the Rebels found themselves deep in their own territory when Trooper punter Brad Watson launched a 70-yard punt to the Lee 15. Fourteen plays later Thurman scored from three yards out and Kamradt kicked the first of six perfect PATs for a 7-0 lead.

Jones, who carried eight times for 60 yards on the scoring drive, crossed the goal line from two yards out early in the second quarter for the Rebels' second touchdown, capping an eight-play, 44-yard drive.

The next time Lee touched the ball it was eight plays and 58 yards for the score with Thurman breaking his 32-yard romp.

FOUR PLAYS later the Rebels were on the move again. This time going to the air for the big gains. Quarterback Dirk Bergoon completed back-to-back passes of 31 and 27 yards to Dextor Traylor to move the ball to the Eastwood 16. Jones covered 10 on the next play and Ellis the final six for the 28-0 lead with 46 seconds left in the half.

Until the fourth quarter touchdown, Eastwood had little positive thinking in its attack. Except, in those last seconds of the last quarter when the Trooper managed to move the ball on four straight completions by quarterback Gary Rinker, playing for injured starter John Brochu, to three different receivers for 59 yards. It was a threat that died two plays later on the Lee 27-yard line when Rinker was sacked for a 10-yard loss to end the half.

It was a different Midland Lee in the second half as nearly every Rebel starter sat out the final two quarters. Traylor, Lee's starting wide receiver, did sneak into the game on Lee's first third quarter possession to run a two-yard end around for a touchdown, but, for the most part, it was second and third stringers in the ball game. They did an admirable job allowing the lone Eastwood touchdown in the fourth quarter while scoring two.

Tors stay unbeaten, barely, 14-13

By BRUCE CASTLEBERRY
Sports Writer

LAMESA — Of all the statistical factors involved in evaluating football players, there's one vital measurement that is often overlooked, and that's heart.

Lamesa's Golden Tornadoes showed here Friday night that they have plenty of desire. The Tors are small and slow of foot, but by taking a come-from-behind 14-13 win over Seminole they played larger than life.

As a result the Tors are 3-0 for the first time since 1973.

A HOMECOMING throng could credit the coaching of Clyde Noonkester and the running of I-back Kenneth Williams in large part for the win.

Williams, a junior who missed most of last season with a knee injury, gained 196 yards on 37 carries and scored Lamesa's second TD. A week ago Williams was also sensational, gaining 221 yards on 33 carries in a 14-8 win over Brownfield.

At the half Williams had gained only 69 hard-earned yards on 14 attempts, and Lamesa trailed 7-0.

Seminole's Indians had taken the lead late in the second quarter on a 62-yard pass play from Rusty Robinson to halfback Sidney Lopez.

Lopez broke two tackles on the Lamesa sideline and streaked in for the score with only 46 seconds left in the first half.

At halftime, Lamesa's Noonkester wasn't going crazy. "I just told them that they had to quit making mistakes. A penalty stuff like that - we made enough mistakes to lose four or five games."

Mistakes had cost Lamesa several first half chances. Drives ended on a dropped pass, and a fumble. Defensively, the breakdown on the long TD pass play took aaway from a strong team effort.

But Lamesa decided to show some pride in the second half. Taking the opening kick, the Tors marched 70 yards in 15 plays to get on the board.

Williams was a big factor, gaining 44 yards rushing on the possession that would consume the first 8:09 of the half. But it was the passing of quarterback Doug Warren that made the critical plays. The first came on the drive's third play, when Warren hit Johnny Gonzales on a crossing pattern for 19 yards on third and nine.

Then when the drive stalled at the Seminole nine, Warren came through again on the same pattern, with Danny Gonzales making the grab in traffic for the TD. The same duo hooked up for a two point conversion when Gonzales crept undetected into the very back of the end zone.

Just think of the lift rides you wasted last week

Hey, buddy, can you spare a dime...so I can recoup last week's losses?

Bucking the line is cruel punishment. But that was the intent of our sermon. To prove that betting against the gamblers is a good way to throw away your money . Just stop and think about it for a minute.

Put it this way, with the money you blew on last week's games, how many lift tickets could you have bought at Taos, Purgatory or Telluride?

At least the college kids showed some mercy. The tally was 8-6. The pros, 0-5, or 5-0 in you want to look at it as a successful sermon.

But it's another week and another painful lesson to be learned....

The SWC....

Tulsa plus six over Arkansas—An old rivalry in which anything can happen. Arkansas may have gotten the bugs worked out in that tie with Ole Miss, but Hurricane may find the key to the goal line after stalling four times inside the 10 in a drubbing at the hands of BYU.

Texas Tech plus seven over New Mexico—It's not often that you can get Tech and points in this game.

Oklahoma minus 18 over Baylor—Sooners back in the Wishbone and after what the Sooners did to Pitt, how else could you pick it.

Rice minus three over Lamar—Lamar, didn't they beat North Texas last week?

TCU minus 6½ over Kansas State—TCU minus points was good last week so why change?

Houston plus 10½ over Washington—Huskies coming off an emotional win. The situation is ripe for the Cougars, but are the Cougars?

Texas A&M minus 16½ over Iowa State—Aggies have had three weeks to think about UTEP game.

The others....

Arizona State even over USC—...in defiance of the evidence. Arizona State was buried by Oklahoma State while USC beat Utah State almost as badly as TCU did, still Sun Devils seem to have a jinx on the Trojans.

Boston College minus seven over North Carolina—If Alabama couldn't stay with Eagles, what chance do Tar Heels have?

Clemson minus 3½ over Georgia—If Clemson is as good as everyone says, it's a bargain, but Tigers have lost 18 of 19 at Athens.

Miami minus three over Florida State—Solely because it's at Miami...I beginning to get the feeling I'm giving points in too many games.

Ohio State plus three over Iowa—Hayden's teams give Buckeyes trouble, but it's at Columbus and the Buckeyes are supposed to be respectable this year.

UCLA plus 8½ over Nebraska—One forecast tabbed UCLA for No. 1. Presuming that the Uclans have something and the Huskers lost Turner, Rozier, Fryar and cast, it ought to be at least close.

Notre Dame minus 20½ over Colorado—This may be the week for the Irish to break loose.

Maryland plus 10 over West Virginia—First big test for Mountaineers.

Virginia plus 6½ over Navy—Cavaliers are proving that UVA is more than just a basketball school under ex Navy coach George Welsh.

Duke plus 7½ over South Carolina—Blue Devils beat Indiana last week. That should count for something.

The pros...

Dallas minus 6½ over Green Bay—Cowboys must show more offense than last week.

Steelers minus 2½ over Browns—Pittsburgh beat Rams last week.

49ers minus 4½ over Eagles—It looks too good to be true.

Redskins minus 1½ over Patriots—Washington picks up tempo.

Giants minus six over Tampa Bay—Rebounding from getting Skinned last week.

Raiders minus six over Chargers—Oakland primed for Monday TV.

KC Royals halt skid, 7-4

Robin Yount, Milwaukee shortstop, stands in disbelief after being called out on strikes.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — George Brett, still hobbled slightly with a pulled hamstring, unloaded a grand slam home run in the seventh inning Friday night to boost the Kansas City Royals to a 7-4 victory over the Oakland A's.

The victory snapped a two-game losing skid for Kansas City, which entered the night with a half-game lead over California in the American League West.

The Royals maintained a one-game edge over Minnesota, a 7-3 victor over Cleveland.

Kansas City trailed 4-2 when Steve Balboni led off the seventh with his 27th homer, off reliever Lary Sorensen, 5-13.

One out later, Don Slaught singled, Onix Concepcion bounced into a fielder's choice, and Willie Wilson singled to bring on Dave Leiper, who walked Lynn Jones to load the bases ahead of Brett's second career grand slam.

The victory went to reliever Frank Wills, 2-3, as the A's saw their three-game winning streak collapse.

Starter Mike Warren struck out eight and walked one through 5 1-3 innings before he was lifted amid the Royals' two-run sixth.

Royals starter Charlie Leibrandt was nicked for a run in the second on a single and stolen base by Bill Almon and Steve Keifer's triple.

Rickey Henderson walked leading off the third, took third on Carney Lansford's single and scored on a groundout by Dwayne Murphy. Lansford, who went to second on the throw home as Henderson scored, scooted to third on Murphy's ball and gave the A's a 3-0 lead when Mike Heath singled.

Wilson walked in the sixth and came home on a double by Pat Sheridan. Brett singled Sheridan to third, then pinch-hitter Hal McRae greeted reliever Tim Conroy with a single that sliced the lead to 3-2.

Tony Phillips singled leading off the Oakland seventh, moved up on a fly ball and scored on Lansford's single to make it 4-2.

Twins 7, Indians 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Ron Washington and Kent Hrbek tripled to key a six-run first inning as the Minnesota Twins trounced the Cleveland Indians 7-3 Friday night to stay tight in the American League West.

The Twins started the night just one game behind first-place Kansas City and a half-game behind California.They sent 11 batters to the plate in the first, punching out seven hits and scoring three runs off Don Schulze, 3-6, who didn't retire a batter.

John Butcher, 13-9, gave up eight hits and no walks while pitching his second shutout and eighth complete game.

Kirby Puckett started the first with his 23rd bunt single and Washington tripled. Mickey Hatcher's single scored Washington and Hrbek's triple made it 3-0.

It was Hrbek's 100th RBI, making him the first Twin to reach that plateau since Larry Hisle and Rod Carew in 1977.

Schulze was yanked after walking Randy Bush, and after reliever Steve Farr struck out Tom Brunansky for the first out, Gary Gaetti and Tim Teufel singled and Puckett drove in the fifth and sixth runs with a two-out double, his second hit of the inning.

Mariners 5, White Sox 1

CHICAGO — Danny Tartabull drove in two runs and Ken Phelps homered to back Jim Beattie's six-hitter and carry the Seattle Mariners to a 5-1 victory over the Chicago White Sox Friday night.

Brewers 5, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO — Cecil Cooper stroked a two-run home run and Don Sutton and Ray Searage combined on a five-hitter as the Milwaukee Brewers broke a five-game losing streak with a 5-1 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Friday night.

Sutton, who has won nine of his last 12 decisions, improved his record to 14-12. He gave way to Searage in the eighth inning.

Yankees 5, Tigers 3

DETROIT — Butch Wynegar and Mike Pagliarulo drew bases-loaded walks to force in the tie-breaking runs in the sixth inning and the New York Yankees went on to beat the Detroit Tigers 5-3 Friday night.

John Montefusco, 4-3, scattered six hits over six innings for the Yankees, who won their fourth straight.Dave Righetti pitched two innings for his 28th save.

Rankin rally nips Valley

RANKIN—Rankin spotted Water Valley a 12-0 halftime lead and then stormed back with 15 third period points to score a 15-12 victory here Friday night.

Fullback Marsial Ramirez ran six yards with 10:12 left in the third period for the Red Devils' first touchdown and then kicked the point.

Wingback Ronnie Thomas raced 53 yards for the go-ahead touchdown with 6:25 left in the period and then quarterback Randy Fulton passed to End Rusty Wilkes for the two-pointer.

Water Valley scored with 10:10 left in the half when Terry Ganwain hit Craig Younts on a 15-yard pass. Before intermission, Daniel Fontenot scored from the six-yard line. Water Valley missed a kick after the first TD and failed on a run after the second.

Gauwain of Water Valley was the game's leading rusher with 117 yards in 28 carries. However, that paled beside the 110 yards of Ronnie Thomas...on just two carries.

Happy wins on forfeit

HAPPY (AP) — Happy defeated Smyer 26-0 Friday night in a high school football game that was halted in the second quarter because injuries left the losers with only 10 players.

Smyer, 0-3, began the game with 16 players, but six were injured during the first half. Smyer coaches forfeited with four minutes left in the first half.

Happy was leading in total offense 225 yards to minus 5 at the time the game was called.

Crane breaks scoring drouth

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

STANTON—When Crane fumbled away the ball on the four-yard-line in the second period, it must have seemed like the sophomore-studded Cranes might not score all season, never mind winning.

That gave the Cranes 10 periods this season without a touchdown.

But the long wait was finally rewarded. Ken Walker and Gerald Mitchell connected a 74-yard pass third quarter that gave Crane its first touchdown of the year and its first victory as well, a 7-0 win over Stanton's Buffs here Friday night.

Class AAA Crane is now 1-2 for the season and Class AA Stanton is 1-1-1.

The payoff pass started out like a power sweep right and the defense rushed up to meet the mob. That's when Walker, an end, pulled up and lofted a pass to Mitchell who took it on the run at the 30 and raced for the darkness at the end of the field.

It made up for the second period frustration when the Cranes marched from the Stanton 43 to first down on the four only to fumble. It was a severe disappointment because that was the first time the Kid Cranes had gotten inside anybody's 20-yard line all season.

Stanton, held to 56 yards rushing and 29 passing, never mounted anything serious all night. Time ran out on the Buffs in the first half as quarterback Kevin Glaspie hit wide receiver Derek Sorley for 19 and 14 yard passes to the Crane 21.

That marked the only time in the game that Stanton punctured the Crane 40.

Crane threatened in the fourth period after a pass interception by Richy DeGraffenreid at the Stanton 48. Mitchell scooted 29 yards to the 19 on a draw, but the Stanton defense got tough and Crane finally surrendered the ball on the 46.

Fullback Cliff Wilson led the Crane offense with 67 yards while Danny Koonce was Stanton's leading rusher with 63.

Longley paces Rangers to victory over Presidio

FORT STOCKTON—Quarterback Chad Longley scored on runs of four and five yards to pace Greenwood to a 33-0 victory over previously-undefeated Presidio here Friday night.

It gave the Rangers a 3-0 record for the season.

Greenwood scored all of its touchdowns in the first half, unleashing 26-point second quarter.

Longley scored with 6:29 left in the first period from four yards out and Terry O'Steen kicked his first of three extra points.

Longley struck from five yards away with 11:09 left in the half and then running back Terry O'Steen scored from the one.

Roger Smith scored on a 21-yard run for the Rangers' third score.

With 1:25 left in the half, quarterback Roger Smith handed off to Tony McCollum who raced 17 yards for the score.

REBELS

SINCE IT was the last game on Lee's pre-district schedule and with game already out of hand, Rebel coach Jack Tayrien didn't want to take any chances on losing starting players to injury, especially with San Angelo as Lee's District 4-5A opening opponent.

"I just didn't feel like it was beneficial to us in any respect and that was why I took the starters out," Tayrien said.

It also gives Lee backup players some playing experience going into the long 4-5A road ahead.

"It was fine. We got some offensive drives and that's what we wanted to do said Tayrien about Lee's performance. "We got some good defense and some good offense and we're pleased with it. It's nice to win."

The final Rebel score came late in the fourth quarter when junior quarterback Tuey Rankin broke free on a 25-yard run with 2:34 left in the game. Four plays after that score, Lee had the football at its own 45 and marched 50 yards to the Eastwood five before the game clock ran out.

BULLDOGS

MHS IS now 3-0 on the season, the first time the Bulldogs have done that since 1979 under Dennie Hays. That team, which featured 1,000 yard rusher Jeff Robinett, went on to finish 5-5 on the year and Hays was fired.

Robinett saw his first MHS game in four years after getting out of Princeton. "I'm back backing the Bulldogs," he said.

McCutchen and the Bulldogs open District 4-5A play against Big Spring next week at Memorial Stadium with a chance to add to its already feathered cap. You have to go back to 1956 when the Bulldogs were last off to a 4-0 start.

"This is the kind of start our kids needed," said McCutchen. "It's got to help their confidence while we are still working on a new system that is completely different from what they had last year."

Gregg sheds no tears for Dallas

IRVING (AP) — You'll have to forgive Forrest Gregg if the Green Bay Packers' head coach doesn't shed any tears for Dallas Coach Tom Landry about the Cowboys' troubles this season with their ground game.

Dallas got only 95 rushing yards in its 23-17 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles last week, and Tony Dorsett failed for the sixth game in a row to surpass the 100-yard mark himself.

To Gregg's displeasure, Green Bay was even more anemic on the ground in its 9-7 loss to the Chicago Bears. The Packers had only 154 yards total offense, including only 32 yards rushing, the fewest in 19 years.

Through three games, Green Bay has averaged only 79 yards rushing, and Gregg said, "I don't intend to live with what I've got, very long."

The Green Bay coach carried through with that threat at midweek of his preparations for the Cowboys. Gregg benched his two 265-pound starting guards, Syd Kitson and Dave Drechsler, and replaced them with a pair of 280-pound reserve tackles, Tim Huffman and Ron Hallstrom.

"We haven't played very well. I'm not overjoyed where we are. Our people will have to play better. If you don't block you can't expect to do much," Gregg said.

Other changes will be made if the offense doesn't show improvement against Dallas, he warned.

Dallas is 2-1 and Green Bay 1-2 going into Sunday afternoon's game in Texas Stadium.

Green Bay has an 8-4 edge in regular and postseason meetings with the Cowboys, but has not beaten Dallas since 1975.

It's the second meeting of the year between the two clubs. Dallas erupted behind quarterback Gary Hogeboom for two second-half touchdowns to beat Green Bay 31-17 in the final preseason game for both teams.

Hogeboom, who was announced as Dallas' starter over veteran Danny White shortly after engineering the victory over the Packers, has quarterbacked every offensive play through the first three regular-season games. White has assumed the punting duties.

Hogeboom completed 22 of 40 passes for 320 yards and one touchdown against Philadelphia. It marked the third straight game in which he has thrown at least 40 passes, a first for a Cowboys' quarterback and more than Landry is comfortable with.

"Our offense is still not where we want it. Right now, our passing game is carrying us," Landry said. "Once our running game picks up, that should make the passing game better."

Although Dorsett has only 242 yards in three games, he's off to his best start ever as a receiver with 15 catches for 107 yards.

Running game, tough defense Tech surprise

LUBBOCK (AP) — The explosive running game and tough defense that Texas Tech displayed last week in its 44-7 victory over the University of Texas-Arlington surprised even its most avid fans.

A "new" staff of five veteran coaches, who have 85 years of experience among them, is the main reason for the surprise, says Jerry Moore, who wants to make his fourth year as head coach of the Red Raiders more enjoyable than the earlier ones, particularly last year's 3-7 team.

Most visible of the new assistants is former Texas A&M head coach Tom Wilson, a popular Texas Tech quarterback during the mid-1960s when halfback Donny Anderson was a two-time all-America.

"I have always enjoyed coaching and I certainly enjoy being here at Tech," Wilson said. "We've had a good time, and hopefully all the hard work we've done will start to pay off for us."

Part of the "hard work" is the hours that Wilson puts in each week poring over the game films of opponents. He's considered a master at detecting weaknesses in a defense and devising an offensive strategy to take advantage of those weaknesses.

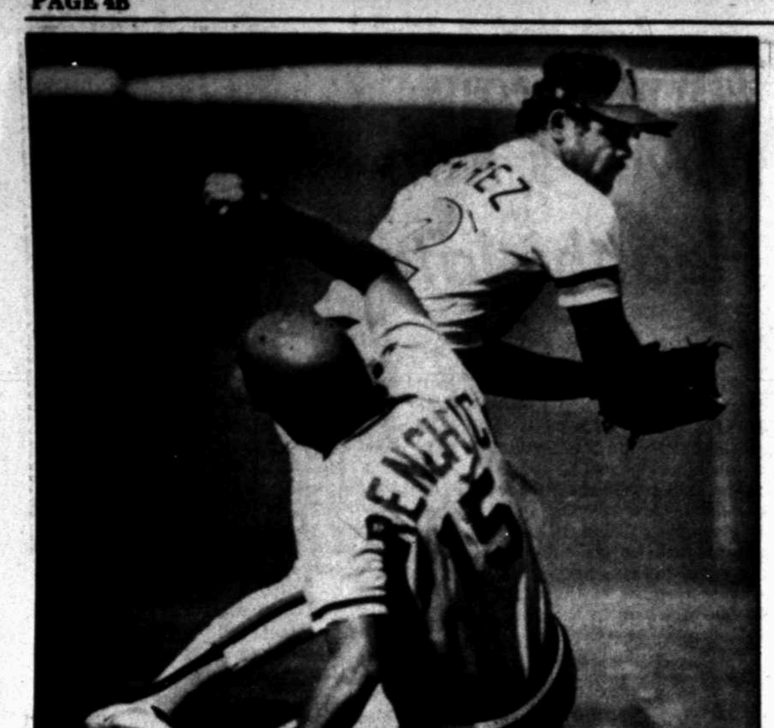

The Raiders are fourth in SWC team offense and second in defense going into their Saturday night game against New Mexico in Albuquerque. The Lobos, who beat New Mexico State 61-21 and West Texas State 27-0 their first two games, are one-touchdown favorites.

"We are going to begin to know if we have a chance to have any kind of team after this week's game," Tech head coach Jerry Moore said. "I think we have to keep last week's victory in perspective."

Wilson, deposed at A&M to make way for Jackie Sherrill, was lured back into coaching by longtime friend Moore after two years of "retirement" in the oil business. His job was clear: to put some spark in a slumbering offense.

"I don't know if we've made any big changes yet," Wilson said. "We are trying to be a little more multiple in our offense. We operate basically from the I-formation, mixing in a little split back to get us into a one-back set," Wilson said.

Cardinals blank Chicago, 8-0

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Rookie Kurt Kepshire pitched a seven-hitter and Andy Van Slyke drove in three runs to help St. Louis beat Chicago 8-0 Friday night and continue to stall the Cubs' drive the the National League East title.

Kepshire, 5-5, struck out four and walked one enroute to his first major league complete game.

Chicago's fifth straight loss kept its magic number for claiming the title at three. Any combination of Chicago victories and losses by the second-place New York Mets totaling three would move the Cubs into postseason play for the first time in 39 years. The Mets beat Montreal 6-2 to cut Chicago's lead to 6½ games. The Cubs have nine games left, the Mets eight.

St. Louis banged out seven hits and scored three times off Cubs starter Scott Sanderson, 8-5, in the first 4 2-3 innings.

Singles by Terry Pendleton, Van Slyke and Lonnie Smith gave St. Louis a 1-0 lead in the first.

A leadoff double by Willie McGee began Sanderson's downfall in the fifth. McGee stopped at third on Ozzie Smith's bunt single and scored when Pendleton lifted a sacrifice fly. Van Slyke then doubled home Ozzie Smith for a 3-0 advantage.

Ozzie Smith's single off reliever Rich Bordi drove home Darrell Porter and Bill Lyons to start a five-run sixth. Willie McGee scored the third run on a wild pitch by Ron Meredith and Van Slyke capped the uprising with a two-run triple.

Mets 6, Expos 2

NEW YORK — George Foster drove in three runs with a two-run home run and a single as the New York Mets defeated the Montreal Expos 6-2 Friday night.

Mookie Wilson hit his ninth homer and Ray Knight hit his third to support Sid Fernandez, 5-6, who snapped a five-game losing streak by throwing 5 2-3 innings. Brent Gaff went 2 1-3 innings and Jesse Orosco pitched the ninth.

Dan Schatzeder, 7-6, pitched six innings for Montreal and allowed five runs.

The Mets took a 2-0 lead in the third inning. Wilson hit the first pitch into the left field seats, Keith Hernandez doubled and Foster drove him in with a single.

Hernandez singled to left with one out in the fifth and Foster then hit an 0-1 pitch over the wall for a 4-0 lead.

Pirates 5, Phillies 1

PITTSBURGH — Johnny Ray picked up his fourth straight game-winning RBI and Tony Pena drove in three runs as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the Philadelphia Phillies 5-1 Friday night.

The Pirates broke a 1-1 tie with a four-run seventh against loser Jerry Koosman, 14-14.

Reds 5, Astros 2

HOUSTON — Mario Soto pitched a six-hitter and drove in three runs with a double, a single and a sacrifice fly in leading the Cincinnati Reds to 5-2 victory over the Houston Astros Friday night.

Soto, 16-7, pitched eight innings and struck out six. Ted Power pitched the ninth for his 10th save. Cesar Cedeno and Dave Concepcion also sparked the Reds attack. Cedeno had a home run, a double and two singles and drove in two runs while Concepcion had three singles and scored twice.

Braves 3, Padres 1

SAN DIEGO — Atlanta's Rick Mahler checked the San Diego Padres on four hits and knocked in the deciding run with a single as the Braves turned back the National League West champions 3-1 Friday night.

It was the first meeting between the teams since Aug. 12, when a beanball war resulted in a series of bench-clearing brawls. There were no confrontations on Friday, however. The Padres, who clinched the division title on Thursday, and the Braves each loaded their lineups with reserves.

TORS

"I THOUGHT the main thing was taking the ball in the second half and driving right down to score," said Noonkester. "It let them know they could do it, and that they could move the ball."

The momentum had switched sides. After Seminole's first second-half possession had bogged down, punter Herby Rios got a bad snap and was dropped for a loss of 13. The Tors quickly took advantage, and Williams scored from four yards away on the third play to make it 14-7.

Seminole responded with a 55-yard drive that was aided by a 15-yard penalty and two passes totaling 30 yards. Tye Bryson smashed over on a fourth and one to make it 14-13.

Indian coach Bill Burling opted to go for two, but the Tors never let Joe Sanchez near the goal line on the wide play left.

Williams almost blew his great performance when Lamesa fumbled a play later. Seminole recovered at the Lamesa 35 and drove to the 13, where Rios missed a 31-yard field goal attempt.

Williams again fumbled late in the game when the effects of 37 carries were felt. But with only 1:43 left, the Indians had to go deep. A screen to Bryson moments later ended in a fumble recovery by Tor lineman Randy Culp when Bryson was swarmed under.

Just three years ago Lamesa was 0-10, and they have now doubled their win total of the last three years. The Noonkester record is now 5-8. Lamesa gets a week off before opening District 2-AAAA play at Andrews. It just gives the Tors more time to enjoy life at the top.

Cubs could upset NFL schedule, too

NEW YORK (AP) — A World Series involving the Chicago Cubs would force a rescheduling of some National Football League games, Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said Friday.

In a statement released by Kuhn's office, the commissioner said that NL Championship Series games at Chicago's Wrigley Field Oct. 2-3 would begin at 1:25 p.m. CDT, or 2:25 p.m. EDT, an hour earlier than usual for LCS day games.

Should the Cubs qualify for the World Series, the statement added, games 3, 4 and 5 would be played at Chicago Oct. 12-14. Friday's game would begin at 2:25 p.m. EDT, Saturday's at 1:30 p.m. EDT and Sunday's at 3:45 p.m. EDT.

The statement said that the NFL had originally scheduled five games in an early Sunday time slot, preceding the World Series. But because of the schedule change involving the Cubs, the NFL has agreed to start those games 30 minutes earlier.

Should the Cubs not make it to the World Series, games 3, 4 and 5 would be played at the American League city at the originally scheduled times — 8:35 p.m. EDT on Friday, 1:30 p.m. EDT on Saturday and 4:45 p.m. EDT Sunday.

Baylor to soak up some more experience today

Associated Press

Baylor senior linebacker Kevin Hancock figures the Bears are getting a lot of experience in their first two football games this fall.

"We played probably the best passing team in the country (Brigham Young), and will have played one of the best running teams in OU," Hancock said, referring to Baylor's encounter today in Norman, Okla., against the Oklahoma Sooners.

No. 11 Oklahoma, victor by 19-7 over Stanford and 42-10 over Pittsburgh, is off to its best start since its 1974 national championship team went 11-0.

OU opened that string of successes with a 28-11 victory over Baylor, which went on to an 8-4 record, its first SWC championship in 50 years and its first berth in the Cotton Bowl.

The Sooners are 19-point favorites over Baylor, which is 0-1 after its 47-13 loss to BYU two weeks ago.

Such match-ups as that and Houston's contest in Seattle against No. 9 Washington, a 13-point favorite, make it unlikely the SWC will be able to dominate its inter-league opponents as it did last week, when conference teams won five of six games and tied the other one.

Not since 1957 had six league teams gone through a football Saturday without a loss.

SWC Football

Besides Baylor and Houston, six other SWC teams are in action Saturday. Only Texas, the nation's No. 3 team, is idle. The home team is favored in all eight games.

Las Vegas oddsmakers favor Texas A&M by 15 points over Iowa State, Arkansas by five over Tulsa, Rice by three over Lamar, Southern Methodist by 17 over North Texas State, Texas Christian by eight over Kansas State, and New Mexico by seven over Texas Tech.

Oklahoma quarterback Danny Bradley ran for two touchdowns and passed for two more against Pitt. Freshman running back Lydell Carr has rushed for 210 yards in two games, the best pace ever for a Sooner freshman.

Junior noseguard Tony Casillas led Oklahoma's defense last week with six tackles, including two sacks for 23 yards in losses.

"Tony dominates the line of scrimmage. We can't block him in practice, and I doubt if anyone else can either," OU Coach Barry Switzer exudes. "He has the ability to completely destroy an offense."

Washington was ranked No. 16 last week but rose in the polls after beating previously third-ranked Michigan 20-11.

Until this season, 1976 Lombardi Award winning defensive lineman Wilson Whitley was the only freshman ever to start for Houston Coach Guy Yeoman. But three UH freshmen — fullback Sloan Hood, safety Randy Thornton and linebacker Robert Harper — started in Houston's 30-17 victory over Miami-Ohio.

Hood gained 11 and 14 yards his first two carries and finished with 98 yards on 17 carries.

"Sloan will be fine. He just needs a whole ton of work. He's only fresh out of (Houston) Yates High School, and I just can't wait for him to get better," Yeoman said.

Andrews explodes, 47-7

From Staff Reports

ANDREWS — The Andrews Mustangs rebounded from last week's loss to Midland High here Friday night with a 47-7 point explosion over the Levelland Lobos in a non-conference football game.

Fullback Jeff Tidwell rolled out 131 yards rushing and scored three touchdowns on runs of six, six and 53 yards. He scored a fourth TD on a 14-yard pass from quarterback Danny Neighbors. Neighbors also scored on a one-yard sneak.

The victory leaves the Mustangs with a 2-1 record for the year.

It was also a big night for kicker Shay Morris, who booted five extra points and hit on field goals of 28 and 30 yards. Dallas Douglas recovered a fumbled punt snap for a TD.

Levelland's only score came in the second period with Andrews holding a 14-0 lead. Quarterback Ron Webb passed to Mike Turner for a 78-yard bomb, but the Mustangs went on to take a 27-7 halftime lead and rolled from there.

Navratilova stretches streak to 56

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Martina Navratilova finally completed a rain-delayed 6-1, 6-2 thrashing of outmatched Melissa Brown on Friday to stretch her winning streak to a record-breaking 56 matches.

With the victory in a first-round match at the Lynda Carter-Maybelline Tennis Classic, Navratilova erased the 10-year-old mark set by Chris Evert Lloyd.

The rain, which had forced the match to be moved back from Wednesday night to Thursday afternoon, and then suspended play at 4-1 in the first set Thursday, caused more problems than Brown, a 16-year-old high school junior from Scarsdale, N.Y.

Ironically, Lloyd was the 55th victim in Navratilova's streak when she lost 4-6, 6-4, 6-4 in the U.S. Open finals earlier this month.

The WTA recognizes the 56-match streak as a modern record. Suzanne Lenglen and Helen Wills Moody might have had longer streaks in the first half of the century, but the records from that period are incomplete, said WTA spokeswoman Peggy Gossett.

Moody charges into Senior lead

CONCORD, Mass. (AP) — Former U.S. Open champion Orville Moody, who became eligible for the Senior PGA tour with his 50th birthday last December, fired a 3-under par 69 for the first round lead Friday in the $175,000 Digital Middlesex Golf Classic.

Moody overcame early chipping and putting problems for five birdies on the last 11 holes to take a one-stroke lead on Don January and Kel Nagle in the 54-hole test at Nashawtuc Country Club.

Moody, who won the Open championship in 1969, went out in par 36 and came back in 3-under 33 in launching a bid for his third triumph on the Senior PGA tour.

Denis Watson barges into five-way Vegas tie

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Denis Watson, the last man to finish, had an eagle-2 on his way to a 3-under-par 68 Friday to pull into a five-way tie for the lead after the third round of the richest event on the American PGA Tour, the $1,122,500 Panasonic Las Vegas Invitational.

The South African, who completed his round at the Las Vegas Country Club in near-darkness, built his effort around a pitch from the fairway which found the cup for an eagle on the sixth hole.

He finished 54 holes of this 5-day, 90-hole event with a 203 total and was 12 under par.

Watson was tied with Johnny Miller and three others. Also at 203 were former Masters champion Craig Stadler, Lon Hinkle and Andy Bean, who had the lead alone until he 3-putted from 4-feet and made double bogey on the 18th hole.

Miller's score was 12 under par — the same as Watson's. Stadler was 11 under, Bean and Hinkle 10 under.

The confusion arises from the format and courses used for the tournament that offers $162,000 to the winner.

The 176 pros are required to play one round on each of four courses — Las Vegas, Tropicana, Showboat and Desert Inn — each day with a different, 4-man team of amateurs, before the field will be cut for the pros-only finish at the Las Vegas Club on Sunday.

The Showboat and Desert Inn courses carry pars of 72, Las Vegas 71 and Tropicana 70. Thus, after 54 holes, since different pros have played different courses, par for their rounds could be 213, 214 or 215.

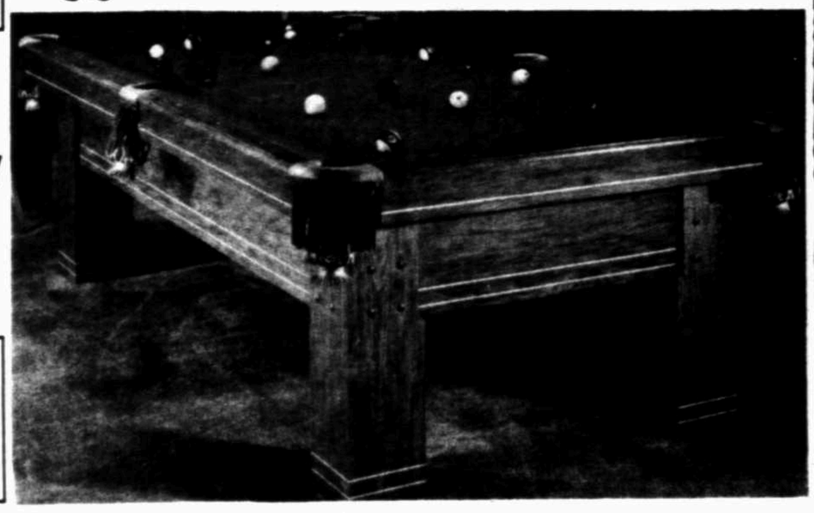

The situation will be resolved by the end of play Saturday. At that time, all pros will have played all four courses.

Hinkle, who led since shooting a first-round 62, struggled to a third-round 73 at Showboat. Stadler had a 68 at the Desert Inn. And Bean salvaged a 69 despite his double-bogey disaster on the 18th at Tropicana.

Miller, hitting his irons with the devastating accuracy of his glory years of the mid-1970s, had a 64 at Las Vegas, that included five birdies from six feet or less. He missed three other from the same distance, hit all 18 greens and didn't even come close to making a bogey.

"I played like I used to play," said the former U.S. and British Open champion.

Another stroke back at 204 were former U.S. Open champ Hubert Green, Canadian Dave Barr, rookie Corey Pavin and Mike Smith. All were at nine under par. Green, trying to fight his way out of a lengthy slump, had a 67 at Tropicana.

Visiting toddlers enliven elderly

Associated Press

LAKE JACKSON, Texas — The preschoolers toddle on unsteady legs in the living room at the Lake Jackson Nursing Home, manuevering around wheelchairs, sofas, chairs and toys. About a dozen residents watch them with gentle smiles on their faces, reaching out an arm to one or talking to another.

"These are pretty children," says one white-haired woman to another.

"Oh, they're beautiful," the other agrees.

Two-year-old Ysela Cruz of Clute walks sturdily over to them and stands there, looking. "How old are you, sugar? 5? 4?" asks the woman. Ysela just looks and smiles at her.

Ysela's mother, Luz Maria Cruz, comes to the rescue. "She's 2," she tells the women. They all smile.

Ysela and the other children at the home are part of a Tots Play Group organized in March by Mary Meadows of Lake Jackson. The children and their mothers visit the nursing home every other Wednesday morning to play with each other and the senior citizens there.

It is an opportunity for the children to be around older people and also an opportunity for the senior citizens to see young faces, says Mrs. Meadows.

"I think it's important, mostly for the residents of the nursing home, because they don't get a chance to see very many children since a lot of them don't have family here," she says.

Mrs. Meadows says she got the idea for the visits from a magazine article she read several years ago.

"I thought that when I had a kid, I would try to do something like that, too," she says.

So she organized a few other mothers with small children, put notes in her church bulletin to advertise the visits, and decided to make the biweekly trips. Usually, she says, about eight or 10 children show up but she'd like to see the number increase and for additional groups to do the same for other area nursing homes.

Mrs. Meadows says that generally, the hour or so at the home is spent in unstructured activities with toddlers and residents talking, visiting and playing together as they wish.

"What we want to do is to encourage the children's interaction with the elderly. Sometimes, the residents just want to watch the children or hold them on their laps...sometimes, it's pretty chaotic but the residents don't seem to mind at all," Mrs. Meadows says with a laugh.

Mrs. Cruz says that she brings Ysela to the nursing home so that she can become accustomed to being around older people.

"Her grandparents are very far away and I wanted to expose her to senior citizens. And also to see the expressions on the residents' faces it gives you a good feeling," she says, watching her pigtailed daughter fondly.

Mrs. Cruz, who is pregnant and expecting twins in February or March, says she will bring her two new ones to the nursing home when they are old enough, too.

"I don't want them to be afraid of the elderly. I think they can learn a lot by being around them, talking to them," she adds.

Although the children all seemed relaxed with the nursing home residents on a recent visit, Mrs. Meadows says initially they were fearful of the situation.

'Some years ago a headline told of three hundred whales which died suddenly. The whales were pursuing sardines when they found themselves marooned in a bay. Frederick B. Harris commented: "The small fish lured the sea giants to their death ...They came to their violent demise by chasing small ends, by prostituting vast powers for insignificant goals."

Pontiff urges strong stand on values

By FRED BAYLES
Associated Press Writer

MONTREAL — A recurring theme of Pope John Paul II in his meetings with clergy on his Candadian visit was the need for them to speak out more strongly on religious values to influence society-at-large.

Church leaders lately have stepped up such efforts in Canada, as they have in the United States.

"We must, more than ever, see to it that the voice of Christianity has a right to be heard in this country...that the developing culture may at the very least feel challenged by Christian values and take them into account," the pope told 3,000 priests and seminarians in Montreal.

But despite his urgings and the large crowds he drew — including a record 350,000 to a Mass he led in Montreal's Jarry Park — there are indications that the populace is highly selective about the church's positions.

Similar divergences are found in the United States.

A poll published by two Montreal newspapers said 68 percent of the province's Catholics oppose the church's ban on contraception; 42 percent disagree with church opposition to abortion and 66 percent are against the church's ban on divorce.

The telephone poll of 1,800 Catholics also found 59 percent of Catholics disagreeing with the Catholicism's ban on ordination of women. Seventy-two percent said they were willing to accept married priests.

A separate national poll by the Southam newspaper group said more than half considered the pope's social thinking "out of touch." Barely one in seven believed his thinking was in line with Canadian society.

But there was one area where those surveyed were were in agreement with the pope and clergy. Some 54 percent endorsed the practice of the church's bishops taking public stands on social issues such as justice and public policy.

The poll follows a continuing strong reaction to a statement by members of the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops critical of Canada's "economic structures" — a subject soon to be addressed Catholic bishops in the United States.

Issued by the Canadian bishops' Social Affairs Commission when Canadian unemployment stood at nearly 15 percent, the statement said layoffs and wage cutbacks "reveal a moral disorder in our society."

The bishops condemned the decision by business and government to emphasize money-saving steps, such as layoffs, over the lives of the workers.

"This orientation directly contradicts the ethical principle that labor, not capital, must be given priority in the development of an economy based on justice," the statement said, sounding a note similar to the pope's criticisms of unrestrained capitalism.

Monsignor Neil Willard, chancellor of the Archdiocese of Montreal, said the statement "aroused a great matter of conversation."

"The position is in part based on the belief that the church should intervene on the behalf of people who are suffering," he said.

Louis Rousseau, a professor of religious history at the Universite du Quebec in Montreal who helped organize the newspaper poll, said the favorable public response to such statements follows two decades that saw the Catholic clergy retrench their role in secular matters.

The Catholic Church in Quebec, which once ran the province's schools, hospitals and social welfare programs, surrendered its leadership in social issues to the laity. That, Rousseau says, may now be changing.

"I think the bishops could have a place as leaders of public opinion," says Rousseau.

Missionary to Africa to address church

Dean Guyer, Free Methodist missionary to Africa, will speak at the Free Methodist Church, 4712 Shadyland, at 7 p.m. Sept. 29 and 11 a.m. Sept. 30.

Mr. and Mrs. Guyer, both trained nurses, went to Africa in 1972. This last term has been spent in the central African country of Zaire. The Guyers held medical clinics in Baraka, Nunda and outlying areas. Guyer repaired an old army field X-ray machine and made possible, for the first time, the use of X-rays in diagnosis at Nunda Hospital. He also helped with the construction and maintenance of machinery.

The Guyers began their missionary work in Mozambique, working as nurses in the hospital at Nhaloi. When missionaries had to leave the country in 1976, the Guyers were transferred to Zimbabwe where they worked at Chikombedzi Hospital. Guyer specialized in X-ray work and assisted in evangelism.

The Guyers have three young children, Bruce, Tasha and Eric.

Both attended Central College, McPherson, Kan. Mrs. Guyer completed her nursing program at Klerksdorp City Hospital and Guyer completed his at Western

Miriam and Dean Guyer

Reife Mine Hospital, both in South Africa. He also studied laboratory techniques at Deaconess Hospital, Oklahoma City, Okla.

Guyer, who grew up in South Africa, is the son of Free Methodist missionaries.

The public is invited to attend.

POSITIVE THINKING

Don't lose the excitement of life

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

As a small boy in bed at night I heard the long, low whistle of the train among the hills of southern Ohio. In imagination I visualized the speeding train, its brightly lighted cars whisking through the night. Always I loved the train. There was no more thrilling sight than a long express speeding over the countryside, brightly silhouetted against the darkness. The chief ambition of my boyhood days was to be a railroad engineer. When such thrills pass, the romance of life is on the way out.

How quickly for some people the zest of life passes away! High hopes, dreams and intense interest are allowed to degenerate into dreary monotony.

What do people generally do when the excitement of life is going or gone? Many try to manufacture thrills forgetting that one thrill calls for another in endless succesion until one loses sensitive appreciation and becomes calloused and cynical.

There are others — honest, wholesome people — who just bravely stand up to the dreariness of life's hardships. But some fortunate ones have found the best method of keeping romance in life like Robert Louis Stevenson, confined to a bed of pain through long years, yet was able to write happy, lilting verses.

"The children sing in far Japan,
The children sing in Spain.
The organ and the organ man
Are singing in the rain."

Stevenson himself knew how to sing in the rain.

The secret of a happy life consists in slowing the pace and taking time to live. Life is a skill, and to be succesful in any skill it is necessary to know the real from the imitation.

Elizabeth Barrett Browning said, "What frightens me is that people are content with what is not life at all." We pass hastily through restless, hurried, anxious days and call it living, thinking if we capture a vagrant thrill now and then that it is life. Deep down, however, we know that real life is better than that, it is an exciting and wonderful experience.

A billboard in a large city reads, "This is a city of wings and wheels." So is most every city. We have the green-light psychology — not that we must make the green light, but how terrible to wait through the red! Watch people waiting for the light to change. Notice that tense expression. That could be one thing wrong with us.

All of this uptightness has had unfortunate physical effects — nerves and high blood pressure and heart trouble widespread. Its psychological effect has had a tendency to make us incapable of appreciating the deeper values. We seem to have the curious idea that everyone must be constantly doing something.

A story is told of some go get it Americans were making their way through Africa. They had a group of natives working for them and had told them they were in a great hurry. The first day they made rapid progress through the jungle and continued the relentless pace the second day. The third morning, hurriedly preparing for another day of speedy travel, they found the natives sitting under the trees refusing to move. When the bewildered employers asked why they were not ready to go, they said simply, "We rest today to let our souls catch up with our bodies."

Man assuredly was never meant by the wise Creator to bet out his life in hurry and stress, wearing out is nervous system, making life breathless. Take time to live.

And that means to realize that the chief values of this world are more important than the mass of details with which our lives are filled. People are not mere machines. They are men and women. We do not primarily live to work. We work to live.

I once had a summer place on a cedar-crested bluff overlooking a lovely bay down by the sea. The salt breezes off the ocean seemed to sweep cares away, the soft sunlight falling on the grass underscored the quiet repose of the good earth, the unhurried sounds of the natural world were so different in quality from strident city noises. And at night when the stars came out, blossoming one by one in the infinite meadows of heaven, a hush fell over land and sea. It seemed we could hear the friendly voice of Mother Nature saying, "This is life. Take time to live it."

Bjorn Borg fails to show up at divorce hearing

MONTE CARLO, Monaco (AP) — Bjorn Borg was a no-show at a divorce hearing Friday, but the Swedish-born tennis star will have to appear in court before his marital match is called off, officials said.

The divorce is being sought by Borg's wife, Marianne Borg-Simonescu, who was present at Friday's hearing, and is not being contested by Borg. But because Monaco does not recognize divorce by mutual consent, Borg must also present a divorce request, officials said.

Before retiring from competitive tennis in 1983, the 28-year-old won an unprecedented five straight Wimbledon tournaments, six French Open crowns, the Davis Cup and scores of other titles. He is among the world's wealthiest athletes, with a fortune reportedly valued at more than $60 million. He moved his legal residence to Monte Carlo in the mid-'70s to avoid Swedish taxes.

He met his Romanian-born wife, also a professional tennis player, during the French Open 10 years ago, and they were married in July 1980. But in recent months he has been seen in the frequent company of 17-year-old Jannike Bjorling, with whom he shared a three-week Hawaiian vacation this summer.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ron Hendren has been replaced as co-host of the daily show business newscast "Entertainment Tonight" in a contract dispute with Paramount Studios, which produces the show, a studio spokesman said.

Robb Weller will be the new weekday co-host of the syndicated program along with Mary Hart, and will co-anchor the weekend edition with Leeza Gibbons, Frank Kelly of Paramount Television Domestic Distribution said Thursday.

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP) — White House Press Secretary James Brady, wounded in the 1981 attempt on President Reagan's life, says he carries no hatred for would-be assassin John Hinckley Jr.

"I feel only pity for him," Brady told a press conference Thursday at the Good Shepherd Home & Rehabilitation Hospital, where he was inducted into the hospital's "hall of fame."

Brady, who was paralyzed after one of Hinckley's bullets tore through his brain, displayed his wry wit as he spoke slowly, still showing some effects of his handicap.

Playing off his Washington nickname, "The Bear," he noted that the head is "the worst place to shoot a bear...He would have hurt me more by shooting me in the rump."

The hospital annually names a hall of fame winner who "has overcome a handicap and risen to a level of achievement that works for the good and benefit of others."

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Harrison Williams, acknowledging that he would lose a fight against ethics charges because of his conviction in the Abscam political corruption probe, has resigned as an attorney.

The New Jersey Supreme Court, in an order released Thursday, accepted Williams' resignation from the state bar "with prejudice" and said the move was equivalent to permanent disbarment.

Cosby comedy attracts most of TV audience

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Just when some experts have declared situation comedy dead, Bill Cosby's first prime-time series in nearly a decade is off to a smashing start, winning glowing reviews from critics and attracting nearly 50 percent of the viewing audience.

According to Nielsen overnights, Thursday's opening episode of "The Cosby Show" was watched by 50 percent of the television homes with their sets on in Detroit, 48 percent in New York, 45 percent in Los Angeles and Chicago, 38 percent in Cosby's hometown of Philadelphia and 35 percent in San Francisco.

The average for the eight cities that Nielsen measures was a 25.9 rating (percentage of all TV homes watching) and a 43 share (percentage of all homes with their sets on and watching).

Judging a series by its debut can be misleading. For instance, CBS' "E.R.," the No. 1 show last week, had a 23 rating for its special Sunday night opening, then fell to a 10.8 rating in its regular Tuesday night slot.

"A successful series needs to work in two stages," said Curt Block, an NBC vice president for public relations. "You want to get sampling in the first or second episode. But the second half of the equation is that people have to come back."

TV critics across the country urged viewers to watch "Cosby." The Los Angeles Times called it "the best comedy of the fall season by a long, long, lonnnnnnng shot." The New York Times said it was "by far the classiest and most entertaining new situation comedy." The Washington Post said it was the "best, funniest, most humane new show of the season."

"The Cosby Show" could reverse a trend. Only one new comedy last fall, "AfterMASH," was renewed, and for the first time in years, no situation comedy cracked the list of top 10 shows last season.

The response to "Cosby" did not surprise NBC or Madison Avenue. NBC's new-show testing determined that viewers liked both Cosby and the series' family concept. Several advertising agencies predicted that "Cosby" would be one of this year's few new hits.

Cosby, the first black to star in a series when he was cast in NBC's "I Spy" in the mid-60s, last appeared regularly in "Cos," a program designed for kids that survived two months on ABC in 1976. Since then, he's become well-known to a new generation for his work on pudding, and other, commercials.

"I'm not here just to make money," says Cosby of his return to network TV. "I could do that in Las Vegas, or for Jell-O or Coca-Cola."

In a recent interview, Cosby said the sad state of programming motivated his return. He said he balked at seeing "one more car go sideways, go two blocks and run through a building and a man drops to his knees (with) a .357 Magnum and a hooker talks to a black pimp and then the end of the story comes...

"We have about six television sets," added Cosby, "so it's less expensive to do a TV series than throw them all out."

The show is not being done in Hollywood, where most TV production originates, but in New York, closer to Cosby's home. "I worked out in LA 15 years and the shows still get canceled," he said.

In the series, Cosby plays an obstetrician who, in an oddity for today's sitcoms, strives for an ordinary family life with his wife and four kids. Another novelty is that this comedy about black people doesn't opt for black-jargon humor. Nor does it have any regular white characters.

"This family will work to show America that behavior is the same all over," Cosby said. He says Nielsen won't judge the show's quality; he will. And he says he'll know it's successful if viewers laugh and say to themselves, " 'that's my family.' "

So, 20 years after Cosby broke ground in an all-white medium, he's again broadening barriers on television. And he sees justice doing it for third-rated NBC.

"NBC gave me a shot with 'I Spy,' " he said. "I'd like to see them on top and say I helped rescue NBC."

Twenty-three cop programs to air on TV fall season

Hearst Feature Service

There will be 23 cop, detective and crime shows on the tube this fall. From the comic-book combustibles of "The A-Team" to the gritty human reality of "Cagney and Lacey," eight new crime shows on the schedule offer enough ammunition and action to make Dirty Harry's day every day for a year.

Five of eight shows star or prominently feature females. Unfortunately, some — like the "Partners in Crime" characters of Lynda Carter and Loni Anderson — come with credentials more glamorous and glandular than those of "Cagney and Lacey." Insiders at NBC are calling the new series "Terms of Endowment."

But women are up front in other ways. Angela Lansbury takes the lead in "Murder, She Wrote," a classy crime drama. The legendary Lansbury has been a capital A actress since appearing in her teens opposite Boyer and Bergman in "Gaslight." Since she's neither young nor jiggly, CBS is hoping the sophisticated "upscale" adult audience of "60 Minutes" — especially its female members — will stick around Sunday nights to watch this show.

The once-bionic Lindsay Wagner also has her own show, starring as Dr. "Jessie" Hayden, a shrink assigned to a large metropolitan police force. This ABC show already has undergone many changes, including a new writing staff and production crew. The network's nervous that it's too internal and intelligent and has ordered the producers to inject at least one "action sequence" — a crashing car or a shootout — into every 15 minutes of show, preferably just before the commercial.

Women are more incidental in the boldest, most innovative and controversial new cop show, "Miami Vice," an NBC series which is apt to have TV's self-appointed moral watchdogs barking at network censors before the first week is out.

Yes, "Miami Vice" is violent. It's also artfully filmed, sharply directed, gripping and inventive in its experimental (for TV) blend of video special effects and an MTV-type soundtrack. This will be the first network TV series to be simulcast on stereo radio, and those few who already have stereo TV capacity will get the full impact its producers (one a former writer for "Hill Street Blues") are after.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Ray Charles, Mickey Rooney, "AfterMASH's" Rosalind Chao and rock star Bruce Springsteen share your birthday. Also born on this date: columnist Walter Lippmann and actor Walter Pidgeon. Many of you give raising a family top priority now. Romance exhilarates the young and comforts the old. A new love enters your life; it could be a pet or a special cause. Do your research well and emerge a big winner in business. The financial outlook is rosy. You may have to adjust your work hours or travel schedule to insure domestic peace. New investments promise larger returns, longtime security.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Try to keep your feet on the ground where romance is concerned. A tendency to fantasize has led you to see loved one in an unrealistic light. A phone call proves enlightening.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your judgment could be faulty today. Do not attempt to get in touch with influential people. An older person slowly comes around to your way of thinking. Be careful not to gloat.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A sermon or social encounter could have great impact on your future. Someone special enters your life. You develop a wider perspective. Make a greater effort to develop family unity.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take care of household chores early in the morning so that you can relax with loved ones later on. A trip to the country gives you new insights. Tension melts away.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Arrange today's schedule to include both family activities and a social event. Efforts to improve your physical fitness enjoy favorable influences. A long walk or horseback ride proves invigorating.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be grateful for something nice that comes your way today. A family member is brimming over with good ideas. Keep a low profile around influential people. Marital ties deepen.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A lack of communication could result in a misunderstanding. Make a Sunday outing a family project, with each person in charge of one aspect of the trip. A busy Virgo inspires you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Someone you meet in church could figure prominently in your romantic future. Reconsider recent decisions and alter anything that is not working out. A busy work week lies ahead.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A message that arrives midday will boost your spirits. Verify any travel arrangements before starting out. Romance deepens. Give a wide berth to a troublesome neighbor. Self-improvement activities are favored.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Someone who lives abroad is eager to get in touch with you -- write or call. Plan recreation that family members of all ages will enjoy. Visit a hospitalized friend or relative.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An excellent day to take a short trip. Careful money management pays off. A romantically inclined Capricorn could make unwelcome advances. Nip the situation in the bud with humor.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): A special outing gives you an opportunity to get closer to your loved ones. You gain new self-esteem as you become more aware of your talents and strengths. Children bring joy.

Gramm favorite in Texas Senate race

AUSTIN (AP) — Rep. Phil Gramm, winner of three elections as a Democrat and one as a Republican, finds himself in an unusual spot for a GOP candidate in Texas — the favorite.

Gramm, a conservative congressman who's quick to emphasize his ties to President Reagan, says his polls show him leading liberal Democratic state Sen. Lloyd Doggett for the Senate seat being vacated after 23 years by Republican John G. Tower.

"Reagan's ahead and I'm ahead," Gramm said while playing down his lead. "If I thought I had it won, I wouldn't be making (stops in) six to 11 cities a day."

Doggett admits Gramm's chances look good. "I come into this contest as the heavy underdog if, perhaps, the sentimental favorite of some Democrats," said the state legislator from Austin.

Doggett said a friend recently reminded him that "the race is not always to the swift, the battle not always to the strong."

"But," he said, "that's a good place to bet your money. A lot of folks have been betting that way."

The candidates are betting plenty.

Gramm's financial disclosure reports show he raised $3.7 million as of June 30, the last reporting date. Press secretary Larry Neal said he doesn't know how much the campaign ultimately will spend.

Doggett campaign strategist James Carville predicted Gramm could spend up to $10 million, and that Doggett will spend between $3 million and $4 million.

A combination of events has helped make Gramm the favorite in a state so heavily Democratic it has had but one Republican governor this century.

While still a Democrat, Gramm coauthored President Reagan's spending cuts and was a "Boll Weevil" congressman who backed Reagan's income tax cut.

That brought the wrath of Democratic leaders, who stripped him of his seat on the House Budget Committee. An angry Gramm quit Congress, returned home to College Station and won a special election as a Republican, the first ever from Texas' 6th District.

While Gramm breezed to the Senate nomination with some 70 percent of the primary vote, Doggett won his nomination in a divisive primary that included a run-off election and a recount. He finally beat conservative Rep. Kent Hance by just 1,345 votes.

Gramm figures to get a boost from President Reagan's popularity — so strong this year that even Texas Democratic Chairman Bob Slagle concedes Reagan leads Walter Mondale in the state. Gramm seldom makes a speech without mentioning his ties with Reagan.

Finally, there's the changing nature of fast-growing Texas. Once a one-party state, the number of Texas Republicans and independents is increasing. "For the first time," Gramm noted, "you can win a statewide race without getting a Democratic vote."

Gramm, 41, looks every bit the college professor he once was. Often arriving at news conferences with sheafs of papers cradled under his arm, the bespectacled Gramm likes to talk economics, the subject he taught at Texas A&M before being elected to Congress.

Doggett, 37, is an 11-year member of the Texas Senate. He earned a reputation as a consumer advocate, known for the sneakers he wore when filibustering against bills he saw as anti-consumer.

Cosponsor of more than 100 bills, he was one of the dozen "Killer Bees" — senators who hid out in 1979 to deny the Senate a quorum and stop debate on a bill backed by conservatives to schedule the state and presidential primaries on different dates.

The campaign's biggest fuss so far arose when Gramm launched an advertising blitz criticizing Doggett for supporting gay rights legislation and taking money raised at an all-male gay strip show. Doggett, saying he knew nothing about the gay strippers, returned $604.

But the major issue is political philosophy.

Plaid shorts, tie, pen protecter give man top prize at 'Nerdfest'

MILWAUKEE (AP) — You could tell by the checkered polyester pants, the pen-laden plastic pocket protecters, the horn-rimmed glasses taped at the nosepiece — these people were nerds.

Steve Rosetti, 23, of suburban Wauwatosa even had close-cropped hair that helped him win top honors as the biggest nerd in Milwaukee at "Nerdfest '84," sponsored by a local nightspot.

Rosetti swore that he borrowed most of his outfit from the father of his date, Jane Gramza, 20, of Greenfield. "The plaid shorts and bow tie are her father's," he said. "So is this pen protector. I swear. Her father is a real, live nerd."

Rather than jumping to her dad's defense, his date agreed. "My father is a nerd. Honest," she said. "He really dresses like this."

Barb Gommermann, 18, confessed that she borrowed a pair of her mother's favorite polyester pants for the contest.

Bank funds fans of Chicago Cubs

CHICAGO (AP) — A lifelong Cubs fan, who also happens to be a banker, wants to help others like himself afford to go to the National League playoffs and World Series.

Wayne Brinkman, president of Woodfield Bank in Schaumburg, said he'd heard speculation about how much scalpers would ask for tickets to the Cubs' postseason games.

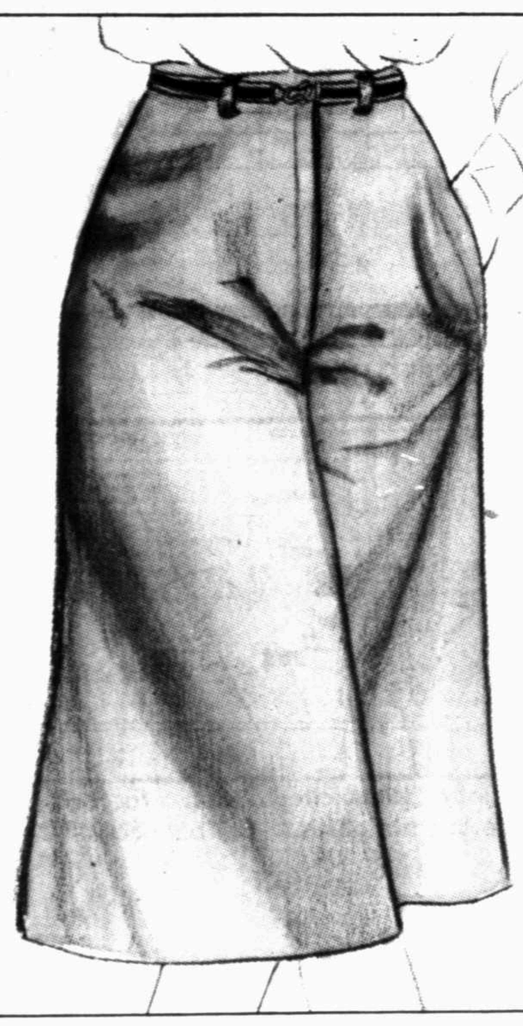

So earlier this week, the bank put up a flashing message: "Go Cubs Go. Need funds to see the World Series? Then let us help."

The damaged U.S. Embassy annex is shown as it appears from a nearby villa, 24 hours after a suicide bomber detonated a car bomb inside the embassy compound in Beirut. The underground garage which the bomber tried to drive into is at the side of the building. The car exploded before the driver reached the garage.

O'Neill calls security 'disgrace'

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Friday it is an "absolute disgrace" that the Reagan administration failed to provide better security for the U.S. Embassy annex in Beirut, and the chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee ordered an investigation into the annex's bombing.

O'Neill, D-Mass., saying "somebody has to take the responsibility," dismissed assertions by administration officials that it is impossible to make embassies completely invulnerable to terrorist attack because they must function as public buildings. U.S. facilities in Beirut have been the targets of deadly attacks three times.

"The truth is, this is something you can protect against," O'Neill said of the suicide car-bomb attack Thursday that left two Americans dead among those killed in the blast.

Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he ordered an investigation to determine "if all necessary precautions were taken." He said he expected the committee's staff would have some preliminary findings within two or three weeks.

"If it appears that measures were not taken that should have been taken, we will urge as strongly as we can that these measures be implemented immediately," said Percy in a statement issued by the committee.

Percy noted that Congress has appropriated $140 million for improved security at U.S. embassies worldwide over the past five years. "We need to ensure that these funds are effectively spent," he said.

While declaring that "it is impossible to protect against all acts of terrorism," he said: "I want to know what can be learned from this incident to prevent it from occurring again. I also want to know if all necessary precautions were taken."

Congressional investigators, meanwhile, said bureaucratic snafus and budget cuts have delayed plans to upgrade security at U.S. embassies abroad, leaving work completed at only 10 of an original 125 sites targeted for improvement five years ago.

The new report by Congress' General Accounting Office blamed bureaucratic and construction problems for delaying security improvements at U.S. embassies considered to be in high-risk areas around the world.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Thursday the devastation in Beirut would have been a lot worse had it not been for security precautions taken after earlier attacks on U.S. facilities in the Lebanese capital.

But O'Neill insisted, "Somebody's responsible in the administration and they ought to bear the responsibility instead of making themselves heroes."

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, "I don't have anything to say to Tip."

In an interview with news agency reporters, a clearly angry O'Neill said that after reviewing his notes from an administration briefing he received on the incident, "I think it's an absolute disgrace."

He said that what was most upsetting was that diagrams of the area shown to him during the briefing indicated only a guard house and four barriers immediately behind it and then a virtually clear road to the embassy annex area.

"The maps they showed us yesterday (Thursday) and the maps that I saw on TV don't appear to be the same maps," O'Neill said, referring to his impression that maps used on television news programs seemed to show more security barriers.

Bureaucratic snafus delay security plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bureaucratic snafus and budget cuts have delayed plans to upgrade security at U.S. embassies abroad, leaving work completed at only 10 of an original 125 sites targeted for improvement five years ago, congressional investigators said Friday.

The new report by Congress' General Accounting Office was released one day after a truck bomb rocked the U.S. Embassy annex near east Beirut, Lebanon, killing 12 people and injuring 72. In April 1983, a similar attack destroyed the U.S. Embassy in Beirut, and in October, another bomb leveled the barracks of the U.S. Marine contingent at Beirut airport.

The GAO report blamed bureaucratic and construction problems for delaying security improvements at U.S. embassies considered to be in high-risk areas around the world.

State Department officials "told us that the fragmentation of responsibilities within the department complicates the administration of the (Security Enhancement Program) and contributes to delays in implementing the program," said the GAO investigators.

They also attributed delays to problems completing architectural drawings, internal disagreements over proposed security improvements and trouble obtaining forced entry doors and shatter-resistant windows.

The State Department had no immediate response to the GAO report, which was requested by Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman.

When first envisioned in 1979, as a response to mob attacks against U.S. embassies in Pakistan, Iran and Libya, the program called for improving security at 125 sites at a cost of $192 million, with work to be finished by 1984. The security plans called for use of outer perimeters to defend the main buildings and safe havens for diplomats' protection in case of attack.

But 69 diplomatic posts "were dropped because of rising costs, limited funding, the closing of several posts and re-evaluation of the long-term threat of mob violence," while six others were added, putting the new number at 62, the GAO said.

As of July, the GAO said security projects were finished at 10 sites, with work still to do at 48 others and four more posts dropped due to limited funding. The State Department now estimates the cost of the work at $145 million, with the new deadline for completion 1987.

The GAO said that at one post, funds were provided to add steel pipe to a car barrier, but that after some of the money was used to make the barrier "decorative," not enough was left to install the steel pipe. The GAO did not identify the embassy, citing security concerns.

A GAO official, who spoke only on condition of anonymity, said the Beirut Embassy was taken off the list of 62 sites after the April 1983 attack because Congress appropriated special funds to pay for construction of a new facility.

This summer, the State Department purchased the embassy annex building near east Beirut as a new site to house U.S. diplomatic personnel.

Beirut observers say security lax at U.S. Embassy

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The suicide bombing attack on the new U.S. Embassy annex east of Beirut was the third time in 18 months that the security system of an American installation in Beirut was breached with devastating effect.

Asked about a protective driveway gate that had not been installed, Reginald Bartholomew, the U.S. ambassador to Lebanon, told reporters after the Thursday attack: "You know, any gate would not have stopped him."

But other diplomatic, military and security officials in Beirut say that much more than a gate was lacking in the security at the U.S. Embassy annex in Aukar, nine miles east of Beirut.

"How many times do they have to be hit before they figure it out?" one Western security source asked rhetorically.

The Americans moved into their new six-story quarters on the Christian-populated east side in July, leaving only a token staff at the former embassy site in west Beirut.

At the time of the move, construction work had not been completed on the new building. Many offices didn't have doors, most lacked furniture and plans were still being drawn up for things such as wide-mesh screens that would shield the windows from rocket attacks.

"It isn't ready, but the feeling was that we had to get out of west Beirut," one American diplomat said at the time.

The move was made because the Americans had become worried about gunfights, kidnappings and threats in west Beirut, the mostly Moslem sector of the city where the main embassy traditionally had been located.

Concern increased after February, when Moslem militias wrested control of west Beirut from the Lebanese army.

In April 1983, a car bomb had destroyed the original American Embassy in west Beirut, killing 63 people, including 17 Americans. Last October, a truck bomber struck the U.S. Marine headquarters at the Beirut airport, killing 241 American servicemen.

A shadowy group called Jihad Islami, or Islamic Holy War, claimed responsibility for those attacks, as it did for the Thursday bombing.

Most security officials believe the attackers are fundamentalist Shiite Moslems, whose faith teaches that they go to heaven if they die in war or in battle for a just cause.

And American security officials in Beirut have often said that it is "almost impossible" to stop an individual willing to die in an attack.

Islamic Holy War has issued several such threats, but many embassy employees said they felt the possibility of such threats being carried out was greatly reduced simply by the move to the Christian area. In east Beirut car-bombings rarely occur, and foreigners are seldom attacked.

"I didn't think it would happen again, especially on the east side," said a Lebanese employee of the embassy who had survived both the 1983 embassy bombing and Thursday's attack.

A variety of Western military and security officials gave the U.S. Embassy high marks for some parts of its security program. All spoke on condition they would not be identified by name or nationality.

They noted, for example, that the American diplomats had been ordered to travel to west Beirut only when necessary, and then usually in convoys and accompanied by bodyguards to discourage kidnappers.

Kirkpatrick says terrorists didn't need reason to attack

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.S. Ambassador Jeane J. Kirkpatrick said Friday those who bombed the U.S. Embassy annex in Beirut were "committed to terrorism" and needed no reason — such as a recent U.S. veto in the Security Council — for their action.

Some observers have pointed to the Sept. 6 veto that blocked the 15-nation council from demanding that Israel lift restrictions in occupied southern Lebanon as a reason for Thursday's bombing.

But Mrs. Kirkpatrick, in a statement to The Associated Press, said:

"We believe that the people who bombed our embassy in Beirut and murdered American and Lebanese are a violent political faction.

"The same sort of attacks, which kill civilians as well as diplomats, have been made on the United States in the past and also on other countries, both Arab and European. The rationalization for these attacks vary according to the circumstance. The fact of violence is constant."

U.S. officials have noted the time relationship between the U.S. veto and an increase in threats directed against the United States from an organization called Islamic Holy War.
