TALKS OF TRUSTS

President Addresses a Large Gathering on the Subject.

MASSACHUSETTS' METROPOLIS

Turns Out in Goodly Number to Listen to the Chief Executive Impart His Views on the Matter.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 26.—The week's work for President Roosevelt in his trip through New England began in earnest Monday afternoon when he departed from the summer home of the junior senator from Massachusetts, Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge, at Nahant, and amid the enthusiasm of the greatest number of people he has faced since the Pittsburg visit on July 4, rode into Lynn under cavalry escort and spoke from a platform in the city hall. Then he was taken to Boston by special train and on arrival went to Symphony hall, there addressing a great gathering of Boston business men. His speech here was devoted almost entirely to the consideration of the trust question. From the hall the president went to the Hotel Touraine, where a little later in the evening he was the guest of Gov. Crane at dinner.

At Boston a brisk shower of rain failed to discourage the crowds that stood along the streets through which President Roosevelt passed on his way to the hall, where he addressed an audience of 5000. From the moment of the president's arrival at the North Union station from Lynn he was warmly acclaimed. He was officially welcomed by Gov. Crane and Mayor Collins.

The party was escorted to carriages and guarded by the First battalion of cavalry, proceeded to the hall. Here every seat and every inch of standing room had been taken. To the strains of "Hail to the Chief," played on the great organ, the president appeared upon the stage, but the organ was soon silenced by the spontaneous wave of greeting.

With a few formal remarks Gov. Crane introduced the president, who made a forty-minute discourse on the question of suppression of illegal combinations. He declared that greater power for the Federal government was the most effective remedy.

The morning will be devoted to constitution and organization, and in the afternoon a schedule of institutes will be definitely arranged and the lectures announced as far as practicable. It is expected that the services of some of the lady lecturers will be available for some of the institutes to be held. Let the friends of this movement support the executive committee in this important meeting and encourage these officers by their presence and friendly counsel.

The State Farmers' Institute, organized at the last session of the Farmers' congress has received a number of invitations to hold meetings in several communities but it has been found necessary to systematize our efforts and so economize our efforts and so economize the time and energy that will be put forth as to improve the agricultural prosperity of Texas.

CINNABAR DEPOSITS.

They Are Much More Extensive Than at First Supposed.

Austin: Dr. W. D. Phillips, professor of field geology in the state university, who is at the head of the state geological survey, has made some important mineral discoveries in Brewster county, according to information received here. It is stated that while conducting the annual survey in that section he discovered some rich veins of quicksilver. The vein of this discovery is about fifty miles northeast of the town of Boquillas, near the Rio Grande border, and about fifty miles east of the Terlinqua quicksilver district. It is believed that the new field will develop into one of the richest quicksilver districts in the country. The rock formation in which these quicksilver veins are found is believed to extend across the Rio Grande into Mexico and a quicksilver district will probably be opened up on the other side of the river.

Mandamus Papers Served.

Austin: Mandamus papers were served on the city officials, secured in the Federal court by J. W. Hamer, representing the bondholders of the old water and light company. The mandamus directs all city officials to do their respective duties in levying and collecting a tax of one-fourth of 1 per cent to pay annual installments of $22,500 in liquidation of $264,250, which was the purchase price for the said plant and satisfying judgments for hydrant rentals.

SHOT ON A TRAIN

An Insane Man Attempts to Kill a Fellow Passenger

AND ENDS His OWN EXISTENCE

By Blowing Out His Brains—The Party Who Was Wounded Was Looking Out of a Car Window.

Denison, Tex., Aug. 25.—There was a tragedy on Katy passenger train No. 1 Saturday morning which shocked the passengers and frightened many of them almost out of their wits.

As the train was passing Chill, I. T., a small station sixty-eight miles north of Denison, about 11:25, a passenger suddenly sprang from his seat, drew a pistol and fired point-blank at I. E. McDonald, a pump repairer, shooting him in the back. The man then turned the weapon on himself and committed suicide.

There is no explanation of the act of the man, only that he became suddenly and murderously insane. His action was so quick and so utterly unexpected that no one had an idea of his intentions.

McDonald was leaning out of a window, when, without a word of warning, the maniac, George Raira, who was occupying the seat behind him, suddenly drew a revolver and fired at his victim, the ball striking him just above the kidneys. The sound of the shooting caused great consternation, which was intensified by Raira running down the aisle brandishing the revolver. He ran a distance of five seats, when he stopped and pointed the weapon at his own head, pulled the trigger and sank to the floor of the car dead.

The bullet had struck him just below the right side of the jaw and passed through his head, coming out above his left eye. His brains and blood were spattered over everything around him. The revolver used was a 32-caliber.

McDonald was taken off the train at Atoka, and his wound was examined by a local surgeon. At first it was not thought to be dangerous, but a second and more thorough examination showed a serious wound, and grave fears were expressed by the surgeon for his life. It was decided to send him to the Sedalia hospital, and he was put aboard the Katy flyer. McDonald was a stranger to the man who did the shooting.

FEARFUL REVENGE.

Shot His Father and Stepmother and Took Own Life.

Salem, Mo.: William Upshaw, 20 years of age, who left home after a violent quarrel last spring, returned Saturday, broke in the house, shot his father through the breast, fired two shots into his stepmother's breast and then blew out his brains on the railroad tracks near their house.

The only cause that can be assigned for the tragedy is that the son opposed his father's second marriage and took a bitter dislike to his stepmother.

Cudahy to Be Manager.

Omaha, Neb.: Edward Cudahy, it is reported, will be manager of the packers' combine with $100,000 salary, and the Nelson Morris plant at St. Joseph is to be closed.

Dream a Reality.

Chicago: Bryant Schick was awakened Sunday morning by a dream that a mishap had befallen his wife. He found the house filled with escaping gas and his wife and two children, one a girl of 2 years and the other an infant, dead.

It is supposed that Mrs. Schick turned on the gas while temporarily insane. She left a note, but it was so poorly written that nobody could read it.

Requires Much Feed.

Portland, Me.: The largest shipment of cattle ever taken across the Atlantic left Saturday night on the steamship Norseman of the Dominion line. In all, there were 1179 head of cattle and 1398 sheep. This, according to Dr. F. W. Huntington, inspector of port, breaks all records of cattle shipments from the new world to the old.

It will take eighteen carloads of grain and hay to feed the cattle during the ten days passage to Liverpool.

Cut Seven Times.

Hereford, Tex.: In an altercation here T. H. Collins, an attorney, was severely cut by W. H. Rayson. There are seven wounds, the most dangerous of which is one extending from near the spine to a point just below the left nipple and penetrating to the pleual membrane. Raysor surrendered to Deputy Sheriff Jewell.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 23.—Five thou- men and women crowded the seum Friday night to hear the ad- s of President Roosevelt. "IT RAINED NIGGERS."

Another Interesting Incident in Street car Affairs at Dallas.

Dallas: Friday morning a large force of men were put to work on Argyle avenue, in Oak Lawn, by the Consolidated railway people They dug a long trench down the center of the street for the distance of nearly a mile, in which, it is supposed, they proposed to place ties and rails

But about noon work was stopped and the word went forth that a search had been instituted by them to secure teams with which to haul ties and rails. They are said to have been unable to secure a sufficient number to go to work in the afternoon.

About 2:30 o'clock A. K. Bonta appeared on the scene in his automobile. Thereafter, to quote the words of H. H. Williams, who was an eyewitness, "it literaly rained niggers."

"Mr. Bonta must have had 500 men at work there by dark," said Mr. Williams. "They did not undo any of the work that had been done by the Consolidated, but merely put their own ties and rails into the trench that had been made. When the men got to work just before dark they were lustily cheered. When it got too dark for the laborers to proceed witout lights every lamp in Oak Lawn was placed at their disposal and mesengers were dispatched for laterns. Many a resident took a kerosene lamp and stood by the laborers, affording them all the light possible until the moon came up, which it did not do until about 10:30 o'clock. Everybody seemed glad to see Mr. Bonta and his men. The women made great quantities of lemonade for the workers, and it was served, ice cold, by the boys of the neighborhood. The men rustled around and procured several boxes of good cigars. Everybody worked, and as they worked they smoked."

By 11 p. m. track had been laid from the grounds of the Dallas Golf and Country club to Oak Lawn avenue and west of the church on the corner many a wagonload of ties had been dumped. The rails were so welded together that it will require almost superhuman power to wrench them apart.

At midnight Judge Morgan granted a temporary injunction against the Consolidated people for interfering with Bonta.

TO BUILD A LEVEE.

People of East Waco Will Be Protected From Overflows.

Waco: The people of East Waco, with four railways co-operating, have about completed arrangements for the construction of a levee on the margin of the Brazos river, which will prevent any future inundation on that side of the river, however high the freshet.

The overflow can be counted upon biennially and sometimes it occurs two successive years, flooding about fifty valuable blocks. The railways intending to help in building the levee are the Texas Central, the Houston and Texas Central, the Cotton Belt and the Missouri, Kansas and Texas. The levee will cost about $15,000 and will be a permanent structure.

Returned With a Bride.

Fort Worth: Hon. Less L. Hudson of this city, Democratic nominee for floater from this district, sprung a first-class surprise on his friends Friday by returning home with a bride. Mr. Hudson left the city some weeks ago and did not confide to even most intimate friends where he was going and when he would return.

Heat on Heart Failure.

Houston: Judge J. C. Matthews, acting as coroner, held an inquest Friday on the body of John McNamara, who was found dead on Clark and Conti streets shortly after noon. EXPLOSION IN MILL

Causes Eight Known Persons to Lose Their Lives.

A NUMBER OF OTHERS MISSING

The Building of a Paper Company in the City of Wilmington, Del., is Badly Wrecked on Wednesday.

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 21.—Eight workmen are known to have been killed, five are missing and four others badly injured by the explosion of two steel digesters in the Delaware Pulp mills of the Jessup & Moore Paper company of the Christiana river Wednesday.

The digesters were located in a two-story building. There were ten of them in the building, each one resembling a vat and about six feet in diameter. They were used for reducing wood pulp. Eighteen men were at work in the building. There were two terrific reports and the next instant the building and other mills about the structure completely wrecked. One digester was blown into the air and fell to the ground 250 feet away.

A dense volume of smoke for a time prevented the outside workmen from going to the rescue of those who were caught in the ruins of the falling building. Several men made their escape without any injury. An alarm of fire was sounded and the entire fire department of the city and a large force of police were soon on the ground and the work of rescue was immediately begun. Several of the workmen were taken out unconscious, only to die after being removed to hospitals. The wreckage was piled up for more than thirty feet and the escaping steam made the work of rescue rather difficult.

Those who were not killed outright were mangled and burned by escaping acid that flowed over their bodies from the broken digesters.

ATTRACTIVE SPOTS.

Pure Water and Beautiful Scenery in the Indian Territory.

Davis, I. T.: The suggestion that recreation for the great outing month of August can be had nearer home than a thousand miles is well exemplified in this vicinity of the Indian country. Notwithstanding that the Chickasaw nation is one of the most thickly populated sections of the south, there are more accessible outing places than can be claimed by a majority of localities. To begin with, there is Sulphur, a town of some 1200 people, ten miles east, consisting mainly of hotels, bathhouses, restaurants and refreshment stands. The medicinal qualities of the water from the cluster of sulphur springs around which the town is built have caused the railroad to recognize it as a watering place, and excursion rates are in effect from nearly all points in Texas to that place. The Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe trains connect with an efficient and accommodating transfer line from its depot in Davis to the springs.

For those desiring a more truly Arcadian vacation the Washita river, which runs within half a mile of Davis, stretches for miles north, west and south of the town, through a densely wooded valley, in a succession of mauve-colored rapids and eddying pools. The Arbuckle mountains are six miles to the south and southwest, while Turner's, Price's Rock, Buckhorn, Wildhorse and Eight Mile creeks so abound in attractive camping places that it is only necessary to locate one of the numerous springs along the banks to decide on a place to unharness the team and swing your hammock.

GIRL MURDERED.

Her Body Found Covered With Leaves and Skull Crushed.

Russellville, Ky.: Zoda, the 15-year-old daughter of C. M. Vick, a prominent farmer of this county, was murdered Wednesday in sight of her father's house. She had gone to the spring for water, and, failing to return, a search was instituted. About 4 o'clock the body, with the head crushed, was found in a fence corner partly covered with leaves.

One hundred men with bloodhounds have gone to the scene of the murder, and if the guilty person is caught a lynching will follow. The Vick home is about five miles from here near the asphalt mines.

Section Foreman Killed.

Daihart, Tex.: At Middlewater, a few miles west of Daihart, W. E. Cook, a section foreman in the service of the Rock Island Railway company, was instantly killed by express matter falling from a swiftly moving passenger train and striking him in the face and chest.

NEGRO RESISTS MOB.

During the Fight He and Others Were Badly Wounded.

Port Arthur, Tex.: There was considerable excitement in the city Wednesday over an attempt made Tuesday night to drive out all the negroes. As a result two white men are wounded, one seriously, and a negro is lying at the point of death, while another white man, alleged to be one of the mob, occupies a cell in the county jail at Beaumont awaiting the outcome of the negro's injuries.

Shortly before 11 o"clock Tuesday night a mob of about twenty men visited different parts of the city where there were houses occupied by negroes and commanded them to leave town. They forced them from their dwellings and started them toward Beaumont. There was very little excitement and the work was being done quietly until the mob reached the house of a negro named Will Williams.

Williams, it is said, warned the crowd that he was armed and several shots were fired. One of the mob fell with a bullet through his right knee. A railroad tie was quickly procured and, using it as a battering ram, the crowd broke down the door. The negro attemted to escape, but was shot down, the bullet passing through the right lung.

The shooting attracted the attention of the city marshal and a deputy and the wounded white man and a white man and a couple of women in a house in the neighborhood were placed under arrest. The man arrested with the woman was held as a material witness and later a young man employed as a carpenter was placed under arrest and held to await the outcome of the negro's injuries.

It is said that during the day Williams was warned several times that he must leave town and was prepared for the mob when it attacked his house.

After the shooting was over it was found that a white man named Jackson had been slightly wounded on the end of the nose by a stray bullet, which entered the house where he was sleeping.

The women arrested had nothing to do with the disturbance, but are charged with being disreputable characters.

Sheriff Landry and a deputy came down from Beaumont and returned with the prisoners.

Stolen Brass Recovered.

Fort Worth: Assistant Chief of Police James Allen and Claim Agent Rowan H. Tucker of the Fort Worth and Denver City railroad have recovered about $400 worth of brass said to have been stolen from the Texas and Pacific, Frisco, Santa Fe, Katy and Denver roads. The brass had been hidden under a cane stock on the north side.

There were 2435 pounds valued at 15c per pound.

His Accounts in Perfect Shape.

Meridian, Miss.: Walter L. Kennedy of Lauderdale, twenty miles north of here, died by taking an overdose of morphine. He was a prominent citizen and business man, an active Mason, a Shriner and a member of a number of secret orders. He leaves a widow and five children.

He was cashier and general confidential man, employed by a large mercantile firm, and he was found dead in the store in which he was employed.

Desperate Mutiny.

Frankfort, Ky.: Fired by a desire to gain their freedom, Wallace Bishop and Thomas Mulligan of Kenton county and Lafayette Brooks of Morgan county, all murderers and desperate criminals, made a futile attempt to escape from the state penitentiary, and as a result Bishop is dead, Brooks is shot through the shoulder and Alfred Ransome, colored, a Louisville murderer, who for a few moments essayed to follow the three daring leaders, is suffering from a wound in the shoulder.

Vitriolic Vengeance Vented.

New York: Fearing her husband, from whom she had been separated for four years, was about to leave the city without paying to her several hundred dollars for alimony, Mrs. Claire Chenau drenched with oil of vitriol and burned him so severely on the face, shoulders, back and chest that it is feared he will not survive. One of the man's eyes was destroyed and his chances of recovery are doubtful.

One Hundred and Thirty Persons, With Exception of One,

THE VICTIMS OF AN EXPLOSION

Blowing Up of the Kai Chuh, a Chinese Vessel, One of the Greatest Sea Disasters on Record.

Washington, Aug. 20.—The navy department has received information concerning the explosion which completely wrecked the Chinese cruiser Kai Chih on June 22 last while the ship was lying at her station off Nanking.

The explosion occurred at 12:35 p. m. The vessel was blown to pieces and all of the officers and men, about 130, were lost, with the exception of a seaman, who was picked up slightly wounded.

The jar of the explosion was felt on board the United States ship Helena, which was lying about half a mile distant from the unfortunate craft. The report was described as a sharp, tearing sound, resembling a gun fired with smokeless powder close by, and afterward, it is stated, an immense column of smoke rose to a great height, the air being filled with broken and burning fragments of the ship as well as shells and scraps of metal. The force of the explosion threw most of the projectiles in an opposite direction from the Helena and no injury was caused that vessel by falling fragments.

In less than two minutes after the explosion six boats from the Helena, under the personal direction of Commander R. R. Ingersoll, were skimming toward the wreck. A heavy pall of smoke settled over the spot where the cruiser had been, and when it cleared away the bow of the Kai Chih was seen sticking in the air. The surface of the river was covered for many acres with splinters of woodwork, but there was no sign of life.

TRAIN TRAGEDY.

Disorderly Negroes Take the Life of a Roadmaster.

Raleigh, N. C.: Roadmaster Stevers of Stevers, Va., was shot and killed and Jim Mitchell, a negro porter, wounded in a fight with disorderly negroes on a south bound Seaboard Air Line train near Middleburg Tuesday.

The negroes had taken seats in the coach reserved for whites. Conductor Clements ordered them to the coach for negroes. The negroes protested, but obeyed. When in the "jim crow" coach one of the negroes named Joe Cole struck at the conductor. Roadmaster Stevers came to the conductor's rescue. The negro pulled a pistol and Stevers clasped him around the body, but the negro twisted his arm around and getting the pistol against Stevers' head, shot him. Stevers falling dead on the coach floor. Mitchell rushed toward Cole as he pointed the pistol at Conductor Clements and was shot in the abdomen.

A Demented Kansas Farmer Took Lives of His Offspring.

Salina, Kan.: Joseph Anderson, a farmer living east of Salina, in a fit of despondency Tuesday drowned his four children—three girls and a boy—in a cistern and then shot himself with a revolver fatally. Financial matters had affected his mind.

The crime was committed during the absence of the mother. The oldest child was 6 years old and the youngest a babe of 4 months. Anderson left a note telling the mother the children could be found in the cistern.

PRETTY HAIR DIES.

An Aged Osage Squaw Passes Away in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, Ok.: Aunt Phoebe Pretty Hair, known as the oldest member of the Osage tribe of Indians, died Monday night of old age, being past 100. She has long been prominent in the tribe, highly respected by the whites as well as Indians. She leaves a white daughter, educated and cultured, who was abandoned by her parents when a baby and adopted by Phoebe Pretty Hair, who has given the girl every opportunity. Recently the girl refused to leave her foster mother to return to her white parents.

IS IN CUSTODY.

Howard McGee Was Arrested in State of Louisiana.

Palestine, Tex.: Sheriff Watts of this county returned Tuesday from Mauy, La., having in custody Howard McGee, for whom the sheriff of Trinity county holds a capias. McGee is charged with the murder of Dr. Cary and Mr. Eggles at Groveton on the night of July 17, an account of which appeared at the time. McGee was arrested by Sheriff Henderson of Sabine parish on request of Sheriff Watts and was placed in jail at that place Sunday night. McGee was placed in jail here and Sheriff Dave Chandler of Groveton came up Tuesday night and took him to that place.

While in jail here he was asked to make a statement. He said he had nothing to say more than that he is not guilty of the charge. He said that he was with Wright Terry and Otto Oldacre the night the shooting occurred and was standing behind a tree with his Winchester by him, but never fired a shot.

"Those people at Groveton," said he, "are very hot headed and any statement I might make they would not believe, and I shall wait until the proper time comes to give any detailed statement of the shooting."

McGee left Groveton on the night of July 19 and since then Sheriff Watts has traced him all over Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois and back down into Louisiana.

He said the reason he left Groveton was that Terry asked him to stay with him on the night of the shooting, and until he could get bond, but the next day after the tragedy Terry was afraid to go back to town and so they parted and he has never seen him since. McGee is 21 or 22 years of age and has a father living at Groveton and a brother who lives here.

When asked what caused the shooting and how the trouble came up he would not say, save that the report about the chicken stealing causing the trouble was false and that they were fired upon first. He says he never fired a shot, but he saw "the man fall" and went and stayed with Terry all that night and the next day and night because Terry was lonesome.

Fifty-Hour Fire.

Galveston: After burning for fifty hours, the fire in the coal bunkers of the British ship Electrican has been extinguished. To accomplish this nearly all the coal on the ship had to be removed, but when the fire was reached a stream of water did the work in a short time. Besides blistering some of the paint no damage was done to the ship.

After a Land Office.

Muskogee, I. T.: A delegation of prominent Cherokees was here Tuesday and petitioned the Dawes commission to establish a land office at Vinita, the largest town in the Cherokee nation for the allotment of Cherokee lands as provided by the treaty. Tahlequah, the capital of the five tribes, will make a fight for it. Tahlequah has but one railroad and Vinita has two.

Shot While in Church.

Carthage, Tex.: Pittman Sample, a negro, while sitting in church Sunday night, was shot from the outside with a shotgun, the load taking effect in the right arm. He was brought to town and the arm amputated. He died Monday morning. Benjamin Jernigan is in jail charged with the offense.

Gin Burns.

Ferris, Tex.: Tuesday fire was discovered in the seed cotton house of the Ferris Gin company, and in thirty minutes the entire building was a mass of flames. This was one of the most complete gin outfits in this end of Ellis county. The owners had just overhauled and enlarged the plant for ginning this fall's crop of cotton. The loss is not less than $10,000, and there was only about $5000 insurance on the plant and none on the seed cotton and a large amount of bagging and ties that were burned.

Knife Wounded.

Cameron, Tex.: In a difficulty between Thomas J. Goree and Thornton Holland near Buckholts, ten miles north of here, Saturday afternoon, Thornton Holland was badly wounded with a knife and Goree and his 13-year-old son were placed under bond of $2000 and $250, respectively, to appear before Justice Criswell for an examining trial. Holland is a tenant on Goree's farm and the trouble is reported to have been about their business relations.

Favorable Cotton Advices.

City of Mexico: Advices from cotton plantations are favorable and a far larger crop than had been looked for is now confidently expected.

DUBLIN, TEXAS, FRIDAY, AUG. 29, 1902

Monday, September 1, is Labor Day and will be celebrated as such in many of the larger cities in Texas.

Arrangements have been made for the carrying of express on the interurban line between Ft. Worth and Dallas.

The Stamford ice factory was burned Wednesday of last week at two o'clock in the morning. Loss $8,000 with an insurance of $4,500.

The democratic convention for the twenty-ninth judicial district was held at Hamilton Monday of this week. F. H. Chandler of that city was nominated for district attorney.

The corner stone for the additions to the Polytechnic college at Ft. Worth will be placed in position on Sept. 3rd at nine o'clock a. m. with appropriate ceremonies. The school will open one hour later for the coming term.

At the republican county convention held at Comanche Tuesday of this week, J. F. McCarty was elected county chairman and F. M. McDermott secretary, both to serve the coming two years.

J. P. Dingler and J. M. Reiger, candidates for representative of Comanche county, will meet in joint debate at Proctor to-morrow (Saturday) afternoon at 3 o'clock. They will speak at Hasse at night.

Henry L. Shattuck of Shellsburg, Iowa, was cured of a stomach trouble with which he had been afflicted for years by using four boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets. He had previously tried many other remedies and a number of physicians without relief. For sale by Overton Drug Co.

The cut and fit of the Buckskin Breeches alone, make them better than any other pants. While you consider good wear and workmanship, than these pants are so much better then any other make that they'd be cheapest even if they cost double as much as the common goods. Best of it is they cost the same as poor pants.

Shatters all Records.

Twice in hospital, F. A. Gulledge, Verbena, Ala., paid a vast sum to doctors to cure a severe case of piles, causing twenty-four tumors. When all failed Bucklin's Arnica Salve soon cured him. Subdues inflammation, conquers aches, kills pains. Best salve in the world. 25c at Overton Drug Co.

The compress company at this place last Saturday finished the placing in position of what they call the "Webb side door attachment" for side pressure in compressing. This new attachment is a new and successful departure in cotton compressing, the one here being only the third ever built and is so constructed as to allow or not to allow its use, as the case may be. The ordinary compressed bale ranges from thirty to forty inches in width, but by the use of the side door attachment, the bale is condensed to twenty-two inches in width and weighs forty-five pounds to the cubit foot, against twenty-five pounds of ordinary compressed bale, making the package more dense than the average pine and a hole can be bored in it the same as in wood or rock. The new process is much slower than the old, however, but the difference in the cost of compressing is more than made up in freight rates. A ship with a capacity of 15,000 bales of the ordinary compressed cotton can carry 20,000 bales of cotton pressed with the side door attachment. The average number of bales that can be pressed in a day with this attachment is about six hundred, against one thousand without it, which makes it decidedly better for the laborer.

His Sight Threatened.

"While picnicing last month my 11-year-old boy was poisoned by some weed or plant," says W. H. Dibble of Sioux City, Ia. "He rubbed the poison off his hands into his eyes and for a while we were afraid he would lose his sight. Finally a neighbor recommended De Witt's Witch Hazel Salve. The first application helped him and in a few days he was as well as ever." For skin diseases, cuts, burns, scalds, wounds, insect bites DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is sure cure. Relieves piles at once. Beware of counterfeits.—Overton Drug Co.

The city fathers of Comanche have discovered that the system of water works being installed at that place will cost about $2,300 more than was at first estimated. The shortage will be made up by cutting down the expenses of the city and the issuance of $1,250 more water works bonds. The election is to be held Sept. 16th.

S. A. Hill of this place, who contemplated running a cotton yard at Carbon the present year, has given up the idea on account of the shortness of the crop and of the fact that the two gins at that place weigh free for their patrons.

THE LANDLADY'S SON

Set Right by a Boarder.

Most people are creatures of habit. The person who thinks he cannot get along without his morning drink of coffee is pretty hard to convince unless he is treated like Mrs. Clara Hoffman of Portland, Ore., treated her landlady's son. She says, "Having suffered with stomach trouble for several years I determined to discontinue the use of coffee and try Postum Food coffee.

"I carefully followed directions for making and the result was a beverage very pleasing to the taste. I induced my husband to give it a trial and soon noticed the improvement.

"He complained of 'heart trouble' but as he drank coffee I felt sure that this was the cause. It proved to be so, for after having used Postum for a short time his 'heart trouble' completely disappeared.

"Last year we went East and while there boarded with a private family. Our landlady complained of sleeplessness and her son of obstinate stomach trouble. It was a plain case of coffee poisoning in both. Knowing what Postum had done for me I advised a trial but the son declared he wanted none of that 'weak, watery stuff.' Well I had been making Postum Coffee for myself and husband and next morning I offered him a cup and he drank it not knowing what it was. 'Well,' I said, 'You seem to like Postum after all.' 'What,' he exclaimed, 'that was not Postum, why that tasted fine. Mother if you learn to make it like this I will always drink it.' The next morning she watched me and I explained the importance of allowing it to boil long enough. After that we all drank it regularly and our landlady and her son soon began to get well. They continued its use after we returned home and recently wrote me that they are improving daily."

A YOUNG LADY'S LIFE SAVED

At Panama, Columbia, by Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrheoa Remedy.

Dr. Chas. H. Utter, a prominent physician of Panama, Colombia, in a recent letter states: "Last March I had as a patient a young lady sixteen years of age, who had a very bad attack of disentery. Everything I prescribed for her proved ineffectual and she was growing worse every hour. Her parents were sure she would die. She had become so weak that she could not turn over in bed. What to do at this critical moment was a study for me but I thought of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera & Diarrhoea Remedy and as a last resort prescribed it. The most wonderful result was effected. Within eight hours she was feeling much better; inside of three days she was upon her feet and at the end of one week was entirely well." For sale by Overton Drug Co.

I have calls for rent houses every day. If you cannot rent your house place it with me. I will rent it for you, collect the rents and only charge you a reasonable commission. —E. W. Abrahams, The Insurance & Real Estate Agent, office with Dr. R. A. Miller, over Tom Miller's.

The Men Who Lose.

John W. Gray is credited with having made $8,000,000 in a recent corner. The men who lost got no credit. This is the story sufficiently told in a newspaper paragraph:

From time far removed along with the grimness of "The survival of the fittest" has been handed down the assertion, "To the victor belongs the praise." John W. Gates is one of those who have survived a critical time, and he is now getting his share of the plaudits of his fellows. It is not the purpose of this article to tell how Gates got his eight millions, or to moralize on the manner of the getting. Every philosopher, real or otherwise, in the country, has presented the moral side of finance times enough.

The plea instead is for the men who lost. The men whose tens, hundreds, thousands, went to make Gates' millions. Why is it that the men who win, honestly or otherwise, get at the same time the attention and interest if not the esteem of their fellow? The men who fail are lost sight of. Bandit Tracy is the last example of notoriety given to outlawry. But outlawry was not the reason for big headlines and long editorials in the papers. The reason was the public's interest. As much space was given to the missionary, Ellen M. Stone, as was alloted Harry Tracy because people have inexhaustible interest for the unique, the strange, the unusual thing. Many a train robber has gone for years in his career without even a single printed line and missionaries without number have battled against fearful odds and then died leaving the record of their life's struggle forgotten save in statistical figures of some musty church records, because the public are not interested in them.

What people appear to be interested in, that they read and talk about. What they are really interested in, is oftimes hidden from their most intimate companions. The story of the "lost cause" is dearer to the sunny south to-day than is the story of the triumphs of its progress, since the reconstruction. And after all, where the heart is there the true interest lies and the interest in the extraordinary is but a shallow one at best.

There is a good to be gotten from interest in the men who lose. Every reader of the Telegram has some one he or she meets often, who is struggling along and maybe being slowly drawn beneath by the undertow of failure.

In such it will pay you to interest yourself and forget for a little time the people who have succeeded. Encourage the unfortunate ones and assure them of your friendship. John W. Gates cares no more for your opinion of his "corners" than does the solitary buzzard poised above in the blue expanse. But your neighbor may need your interest and your praise. Words of encouragement to those who need them are a gift every one can give. To withold them is selfishness and selfishness is the bases of all false success. Help others succeed and you will find success coming your way; not because you have helped them but because you will have achieved man's greatest victory—the forgetting of self.—Ft. Worth Telegram.

For the past two weeks free exhibitions of hypnotism has been a daily occurrence on the streets of Dublin. Several citizens of our town have lately discovered that they possess the power to mesmerize and have been displaying this power in the above way. Among those already developed into hypnotists are, Turner Brown, Will Eddleman, Jeff Sartian, formerly of Thurber, B. W. Lafferty and a young man by the name of Smith. All of the above named have proven beyond a doubt that they possess what the majority of people call a wonderful power, but all agree that it takes only a little study to be able to control the minds and actions of others.

Manager St. Clair of the Dublin Light and Power Co., this week informed a Progress reporter that an extra fireman had been employed by his company, necessitated by the scarcity of water and low pressure at recent fires. This will enable the company, in case of low water in the standpipe, to give pressure direct from the power house, as steam will be kept up all the time, until it rains and the supply of water is greater than it has been. No one is more anxious to have good fire protection than the water company, as they are among our largest property holders. Dublin is not the only town in Texas that has lately been short on water.

It has been given out from Waco that the Texas Central railroad under the general management of Col. Charles Hamilton is making a peach orchard of its right away from Waco to Stamford, Jones county, its present northwestern terminus. The right-of-way is fenced in and with the exception of excavated portions, is peculiarly adapted for the entire length of the route to peach culture. When the plan now in operation is completed there will be a double row on each side of the track, making over three hundred miles of improved peach trees, the fruit of which will be free to passengers.

The enrollment in the public schools of Dublin for the past year was seven hundred and five and the prospects are flattering for a larger attendance the coming year, notwithstanding, the fact that but five hundred and twenty-five students within the scholastic age were reported to the department of education at Austin. The schools open September 15th and it is urged that every student be present the first day. Misses Willie Dow, Maude Harber and Lucile Hall were neither absent nor tardy during the past school year. Let many more join this faithful number.

The congressional convention will hold its third session at Cleburne next week and there is a strong sentiment among the friends of some of the candidates in favor of turning all of them loose to run in the election. Similar agents are being appointed in every county in the United States containing ten or more ginners, and in all cases where practicable, counties having less than ten will be combined with adjoining counties having more than ten. This plan has been inaugurated by congress in order to obtain the exact number of bales of cotton produced in the United States each year.

OUT OF SORTS.

Pleasant Way to Drive Away the Blues.

A food that will bring back health and rosy cheeks to the sick as well as please the palate of the healthy is a pretty good food to know about. A lady in Minneapolis says, "I am such anthusiast upon the subject of Grape-Nuts that I want to state a few instances of its value that have come under my personal experience.

"I was taken ill with a serious stomach trouble, so ill that the slightest movement caused me pain and could take nothing into my stomach or retain even medicine or water. I had been two days without nourishment when my husband suggested trying Grape-Nuts.

"The nurse prepared some with warm water, sugar and cream and I took it hesitatingly at first until I found it caused me no pain and for ten days I took no other nourishment. The doctor was surprised at my improvement and did not resent my attributing the speedy cure to the virtues of Grape-Nuts. He said he had a case on record of a teething baby who grew rosy and fat on the same diet.

"Grape-Nuts are so dainty and and delicious and that it appeals to the whole household and when either husband or I feel generally 'out of sorts' we try confining ourselves exclusively to the food for a day or two with the happiest results.

"For a year I have had for a neighbor a delicate girl—an epileptic—when I first knew her she was a mere shadow weighing seventy pounds and subject to fearful attacks having as many as twelve and sixteen convulsions in a day. At such times she took no nourishment whatever. She had never tried Grape-Nuts and as any food seemed to increase her trouble at such times it was with difficulty I persuaded her to try it. But I told her of my experience and induced her to try a few spoonfuls.

"The taste delighted her and ever since she has made it her chief article of diet. The result has been wonderful; her improvement is the subject of remark with all who know her. The attacks are less frequent and violent and she has gained twenty pounds since last November and her family attribute her improvement solely to Grape-Nuts." Christian Church Revival.

Interest and attendance grows nightly at the meetings on the Christian lawn. Exangelist Haddock is more than meeting the expectations of the people notwithstanding the musings of hearts caused by the reputation of the great evangelist which had preceeded him. The lighting and seating of the lawn has proven wise and necessary. The audiences have been not only more comfortable but much larger than they were in the house. Last Sunday morning the evangelist chose for his subject, "Church Killing" in which he told just how each member was responsible for either the life or death of a church.

Sunday night he began a dialogue between a young man whose mother was an infidel and the preachers to whom the young man came. Each time he would come back to his skeptical mother with his new found doctrine only to have her shatter it with other portions of the bible and wind up by admonishing her son to pay no heed to the bible which she termed a theological fiddle on which every man played the tune he wished, but to eat, drink and be merry for to-morrow he might die. The evangelist, like the writer of a continued story, would lead his auditors each night to where their interest was greatest as to how his honest, common sense farmer friend was to teach him the way of salvation. This was continued until Wednesday night when the young man learned how to be a christian. The meetings will extend over next Sunday.

The Sunday school, 11 o'clock services and Endeavor meeting will be held in the house and services at night in the open air. Cornetist Stanley says he has a good choir but still there is room for more.

R. C. Jones, for ten years the electrician for the light plant at this place, this week informed a Progress reporter that he will leave next Tuesday or Wednesday for Roswell, N. M., where he has accepted a similar position. All Dublin regrets his departure but hope he will find the move to be for the best. His family will probably remain in Dublin a week or two until arrangements can be made for a house at their new home.

Dr. W. R. Hair, who recently come to Dublin to practice dentistry and who had just fitted up a nice office and was getting over his "waiting" days, departs today for Buena Vista, Georgia, in response to a telegram stating that his wife and two of his daughters were very sick with typhoid fever. He will return as soon as his family are able to be moved to Dublin.

Wednesday of last week a little child of J. I. Ketchum of near Alexander had an operation performed for the removal of a lot of pus from the chest. The little fellow had thirty-two ounces taken from him and at the time it seemed impossible for him to live but at this writing he is greatly improved and in all probability will be up in a short time.

Mrs. Smith of near Proctor was brought to the sanitarium here several days ago for a surgical operation but her condition was such the surgeons did not think she could live through it and unless she can be put in better condition will probably die without being operated on. It is sad for one to delay until they are beyond the help of medical and surgical skill.

S. R. Winfrey and wife of Hico were here last Saturday night en route home from Missouri, where they had visited for the first time in twenty-eight years. MALARIA AND YELLOW JACK

(From N. Y. Herald, January 14, 1902.)

"The widow of Dr. Lazeare, who, in the employ of the Government, went to Cuba, was inoculated with Yellow Fever through mosquito bites, and died, applied to Congress for relief to-day."

The above tells of the sad culmination of a series of experiments by the Government, all of which proved conclusively that the familiar mosquito is a dangerous vehicle for carrying Malaria, "Yellow Jack," and other malarial fevers.

Those who are exposed to mosquitos or other malarial influences should take warning. Iron is the fighting element in the blood and provides nature with sufficient resistance to ward off disease. But if the blood is impure or impoverished, or if there is weakness, it means that the fighting qualities of the blood have been lowered, and consequently there is danger. If you would escape, keep the blood pure and properly nourished with White Man Seriously Shot While Making an Arrest.

THREE NEGROES WERE KILLED

The Trouble Originated Over the Theft cf Corn From a Field in the Vicinity of the City of Tupelo.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 22.—A special to the Commercial-Appeal from Tupelo, Miss., says:

A telegram was received here Thursday by Sheriff Long from Deputy Sheriff Sam Young at Shannon, asking that the sheriff come immediately to that place. A report was current here that three negroes had been killed and that James Randolph, one of the best citizens of the county, who had assisted in the arrest of the negroes, had been shot through the head and shoulder. The report caused cons'derable excitement, and fears were entertained that further trouble might follow. Later in the day it was ascertained that Mr. Randolph had been shot seriously.

The difficulty grew out of the stealing of some corn from the field of Messrs. Eubanks, three miles west of Shannon, by a negro named Davenport, who was caught in the act and made to pour the corn out of his sack. The following night the Eubanks went to the cornfield to look out for thieves, and on returning they were fired on by a squad of about forty negroes, who were lined up alongside the road. None of the shots took effect.

Messrs. Randolph, Rogers and Barnett were deputized to arrest those implicated in the shooting, and followed three negroes into Chickasaw county. The negroes barricaded themselves in a barn, armed with shotguns. When they refused to open the door or come out, the door was broken in and Randolph struck a match, when the negroes immediately opened fire on him, hitting him in the head and shoulder. The negroes ran out, and one of them was struck by the shots fired at them in the darkness.

It is reported by the parties who came here Thursday afternoon from the vicinity that three negroes have been killed. Reports are conflicting, and it is impossible to ascertain the facts. Deputies brought to Tupelo jail eight negroes who were arrested. Sheriff Long has returned from Shannon, and reports everything quiet.

HEAD CHOPPED OFF.

Terrible Deed of a Negro in the Indian Territory.

Muskogee, I. T.: James Hope, a negro who lives west of Checotah, was placed in the United States prison here. Wednesday night he cut off his wife's head with an ax after several futile attempts upon her life. Hope is a Creek citizen and owns a good farm in the Creek nation. The neighbors believe he is insane. That night he attacked his wife with a caseknife and hacked her severely about the neck and throat. She broke away from him and ran 100 yards, when Hope overtook her. He had seized an ax, and after knocking her down, the woman's head was severed from the body at a single stroke. The officers had no difficulty in making the arrest.

Fell Twelve Hundred Feet.

Danville, Ill.: At the Homer fair 10,000 people saw the aeronaut, L. A. Sartell of Fairwell, Mich., fall 1200 feet. When he cut loose from his baloon his parachute failed to open. His feet were driven into the earth six inches and there was a compound fracture of both limbs. He may recover.

Sartell's wife was killed two months ago by a fall from a balloon near Cairo, Ill.

Aged Lady Assaulted.

Fort Scott, Kan.: A young negro Thursday entered the home of William S. Taylor, a retired business man, and assaulted Mrs. Taylor, who is nearly 60 years old. Mrs. Taylor was alone when the negro entered the house, and was unable to give an alarm until half an hour after the crime was committed.

A negro giving his name as James Scott was arrested and identified by Mrs. Taylor. The negro was placed in jail, and a crowd assembled.

Boer Generals Affronted.

London: It is announced here in a special dispatch from Brussels that the Belgian government has requested the Boer generals, Botha, DeWet and Delarey, not to enter Belgium, and that the station master at the Northern railroad station has been instructed to summon troops to keep order in the event of his receiving notification of the presence of the generals on board a train from Holland.

RICE CARNIVAL.

Ten Thousand People Were Present at Second Annual One.

Bay City, Tex.: The second annual rice carnival of Matagorda county has passed into history as the most notable event of the coast country. The weather clerk favored the event. Ten thousand people joined in the carnival. Four excursion trains brought in the visitors, one off the Katy with ten coaches loaded to the guards, while the train from Taylor south of LaGrange furnished the greater number. The Southern Pacific special from San Antonio consisted of eleven coaches loaded to the guards. The remainder were Cane Belt specials, and all trains were handled by the Cane Belt, the Katy from Sealy and the Southern Pacific from Eagle Lake. The barbecue was ample and everybody was well fed.

Eagle Lake won the ball game over El Campo by the score of 7 to 1. Bay City played the winners a tie game.

The roping contest was by amateurs, but was exciting.

The rice thrashing exhibition and street parade were much enjoyed.

There is a growing interest in diversification, and especially as to rice culture. The whole people of the interior love to visit the rice fields, and the rice towns and all rice enterprises. It is a revelation to them. The more they see the more they want to know.

Great good will come to the rice development of the famous lower Colorado river from Thursday's exhibition. Several thousand people have taken their first lessons.

Strange Accident.

Dallas: Wednesday night, while taking a bath at his home on Bryan street, Ernest White, a printer of this city, sustained severe injuries in a peculiar manner.

He reached up to turn on the electric light, grasped the metal casing around the globe and received the full current into his arms. The right arm was so mutilated as to require amputation at the elbow. Three fingers were torn from the left hand.

Will of Dunovant.

Houston: In the county court Thursday in the matter of the estate of William Dunovant, deceased, J. A. Robertson was appointed temporary administrator and his bond fixed at $50,000 to manage the whole property, and he was authorized to borrow $15,000. The bond was approved, with John Sealy, J. P. Alvey and H. Wilkins as sureties.

The estimated value of the estate is $300,000.

Ranges Rain soaked.

Austin: Judge S. C. Thompson of Fort Davis, who was here on private business, says that that section of the state has been flooded by the recent rains and that many square miles of grazing land in the vicinity of Fort Davis was inundated to a depth of four feet with the water from the unprecedented downpour. These rains insure fine fall and winter grazing and the cattlemen are happy.

To Build Own Waterworks.

El Paso: After a prolonged fight, urged by the people in massmeeting, the city council decided to advertise for bids for a city water plant, to be located on the mesa. It was at first proposed to give away a franchise to a local company, but the taxpayers met and took adverse action. Bids will be opened in ninety days after the advertisement in Dallas and eastern cities.

Completely Severed Head.

Mount Pleasant, Tex.: A young m named Robert Wilburn, whose home is in Oxford, Miss., was killed by a freight train here Thursday. His head and both hands were completely severed from the body. It is said he tried to crawl under a freight train standing on the track when it suddenly backed and he was caught under the wheels.

Section Foreman Killed.

Dalhart, Tex.: At Middlewater, a few miles west of Dalhart, W. E. Cook, a section foreman in the service of the Rock Island Railway company, was instantly killed by express matter falling from a swiftly moving passenger train and striking him in the face and chest.

Texas Boy Passes.

Washington: Edwin Burke Woodworth of Texas is one of the thirty-one successful candidates for admission to the naval academy at Annapolis, who have just passed examinations.

Kicked to Death.

Beaumont: Julius Eugene, a negro teamster employed at the Burt refinery, was kicked to death by a team of mules which he was driving.

John H. Kirby of Houston was elected president of the Trans-Mississippi congress.

LITTLE FOLKS

Auntie "June," Spinster.

She was the first to rise at morn
 And start the kitchen stove;
She'd bake a dozen loaves of bread
 Before the rest would move.

She'd cook a meal for twenty men
 When harvest came around.
Our spinster, "June," who was so strong
 Where work was alway found.

She cured the babies of the croup;
 In measles she arose,
The sleepless watcher of the night
 While others found repose.

She made the dresses for the brides
 Who went from out the door;
For them she robbed the flowerbeds
 Of all their precious store.

Ah! years ago she came to earth
 When breezes all attune
Went merrily a-down the path
 Of fragrant ways of June.

They called her "June," she was so sweet,
 And crowned her golden head.
They named her "June" in days agone,
 The month when brides are wed.

Beside the stream whose waters cool
 Sung peacefully of rest,
This patient little spinster walked
 Alone and unmolest.

Now lilies nod and daisies bend
 To kiss the grave of this
Old-fashioned spinster who has found
 More love than earthly bliss.

There children tread the gravel path
 When breezes are attune,
And whisper soft as zephys are:
 "This is our Auntie June."

Green Paper Frog.

A friend from Japan has taught us to make a frog of green paper in the following way:

Cut a piece of paper in the shape of a perfect square (Fig. 1 of explanatory design). Fold the paper along the diagonals a-a, turn it around and fold along the lines b-b. When this is done Fig. 2 can easily be made. Fold the ends b and a as shown in Fig. 3. You will now have got a series of eight small wings around o-a as axle. Fold the paper at point a and fold it carefully in such a way that you get two new regular points as shown in Fig. 4. After going through the same operation with all eight wings of the folded paper, you will get Fig. 5. Fold each wing of the paper again, to point S toward the center axle (Fig. 6), and take care that you get the folds at point a as correct as possible. To finish the frog (Fig. 7), unfold two of the upper points (a) and bend them to form the front legs, while you fold the two lower points (a) to form the hind legs. The left side of Fig. 7 shows the points not yet folded, while the right side gives the shape of the finished legs.

Mr. Gladstone's Catch.

"How many members of this house," asked Mr. Gladstone once in the course of a debate on electoral qualifications, "can divide £1,339 17s. 6d. by £2 13s. 8d.?"

"Six hundred and fifty-eight!" shouted one member.

"The thing cannot be done!" exclaimed another.

A roar of laughter greeted this last remark. But it was true, nevertheless. You cannot multiply or divide money by money. You may repeat a smaller sum of money as many times as it is contained in a larger sum of money, but that is a very different thing. If you repeat five shillings, as often as there are hairs in a horse's tail, you do not multiply five shillings by a horse's tail Perhaps you did not know this before Never mind; you need not be ashamed of your ignorance, for it was shared, as has been demonstrated, by the entire house of commons (bar one member), including the then chancellor of the exchequer—American Boy.

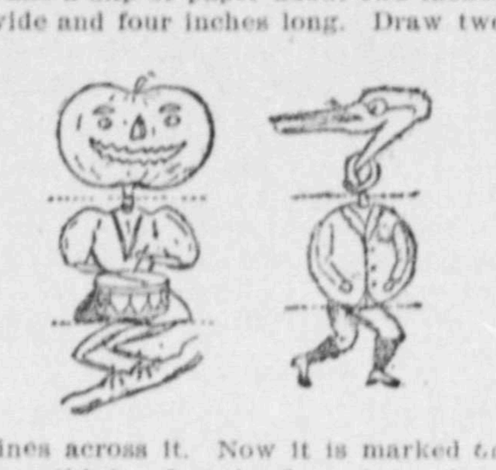

Work of the Plodders.

If we were to examine a list of the men who have left their mark on the world, we should find that, as a rule, it is not composed of those who were brilliant in youth, or who gave great promise at the outset of their careers, but rather of the plodding young men who, if they have not dazzled by their brilliancy, have had the power of a day's work in them, who could stay by a task until it was done; who have had grit, persistence, common sense and honesty, says Success.

It is the steady exercise of these ordinary, homely virtues, united with average ability, rather than a deceptive display of more showy qualities in youth, that enables a man to achieve greatly and honorably. So, if we were to attempt to make a forecast of the succesful men of the future, we should not look for them among the ranks of the "smart boys," those who think they "know it all," and are anxious to win by a short route.

Children's Amusement.

"Head, body and legs"—a game that will afford amusement. Good games are always worth knowing about, especially those innocent games that, with their funny consequences, offer such real relief from the day's cares. No one wants to make a business of playing games, but the greatest minds are not above simple diversions; nay, they must have them. One of the best pastimes of the kind is the old English game of "Head, body and legs," the origin of which is lost in the past. Take a slip of paper about two inches wide and four inches long. Draw two lines across it. Now it is marked od into thirds. Let the first player draw at the top of the slip a head, using only the upper third of the paper. This head may be that of any imaginable or unimaginable creature. If it's something mongrel and absurd, it's all the funnier. The first player then folds the paper down, so as to cover up what he has drawn, but leaving the neck extending just below the fold. He then passes the slip on to the next player, who in turn draws a body on the middle third of the paper, joining it to the neck, and then folding the paper, just so as to leave enough of the body showing to indicate where the legs should join on. A third player then adds legs and feet to the strange being, to suit his fancy. It will add to the fun to have a fourth player name the portrait. Finally, the paper is unfolded. To say the least, the company will be surprised at the queer composite. It may be that the head and legs will disagree over the direction the creature is supposed to be fronting. Oftentimes one of the members will be so out of proportion with the rest as to make the whole effect very ludicrous. The best way to see the possibilities of the game is to try it. You needn't be an artist to make a success of it, since the most awkward hand will frequently produce the most laughable results. The combinations may not always be so comical, but out of half a dozen trials there are sure to be several roaring successes. When there is quite a company assembled, each may be given a piece of paper and a pencil; each draw a head, fold the paper, pass to the next; then each draw a body, fold, pass; then each draw legs, fold pass, and the next name it. In this way all those present will be occupied in the sport, and the large variety of portraits will increase the entertainment.

Riding Upon a Knife.

Split a match at one end and insert into the split the flattened end of a second match, to form an acute angle. Place the two matches on the sharp edge of a knife held horizontally in such a way that the heads of the matches touch the surface of the table. No matter how hard you try to hold the knife steady, to everybody's surprise the matches will begin to move up and down.

To render the experiment more effective, crack the matches in the middle to form the legs of the rider, then cut the upper body out of paper and insert it into a split made in one of the matches.

Trick With Pair of Scissors.

If Alexander the Great were asked to free this pair of scissors tied to the back of a chair, without untying the cords, he would perhaps draw his sword and cut the cords with one blow. We will show him how the trick can be done without force, as follows: Take hold of the cord at A, pull it through the handle B and carry it over the dotted lines. This will free the scissors without breaking the cord.

The lazy man wants things leveled down. The ambitious one tries to have them evened up.

AS THE WORLD REVOLVES

WHERE CRIME IS UNKNOWN.

Island of Tristran D'Acunha Boasts Unique Distinction.

The recent death in his ninety-fifth year, of Thomas Watson, the "governor" of the small island of Tristran d'Acunha, in the South Atlantic ocean, directs attention to a little community which is practically severed from communication with the rest of the world. Tristran d'Acunha was discovered by the Portuguese in 1506, and formal possession was taken of this small speck in the ocean in 1871 by a company of British artillery, the better to keep a watch on Napoleon, at that time a prisoner in St. Helena. On the death of Napoleon the soldiers were withdrawn, with the exception of Corporal Glass and two companions, who, with some whaling men, were the founders of the present settlement. The colony flourished and numbered in 1820 twenty-seven souls, and in 1887 there was a population of ninety-seven. Property is held in common and there is no strong drink, and no crime, while the inhabitants are healthy and long-lived. The oldest inhabitant acts as governor. A ship of war pays the island an annual visit and brings the only mail that ever reaches the inhabitants. The settlement is in a fertile part of the island, and is called New Edinburgh. The population has been for some years almost stationary, and is affected by migrations to the Cape. Watson, the deceased governor, went to Tristran d'Acunha from the Cape sixty-five years ago, and never afterwards left the island.

Powerful Light for London Street.

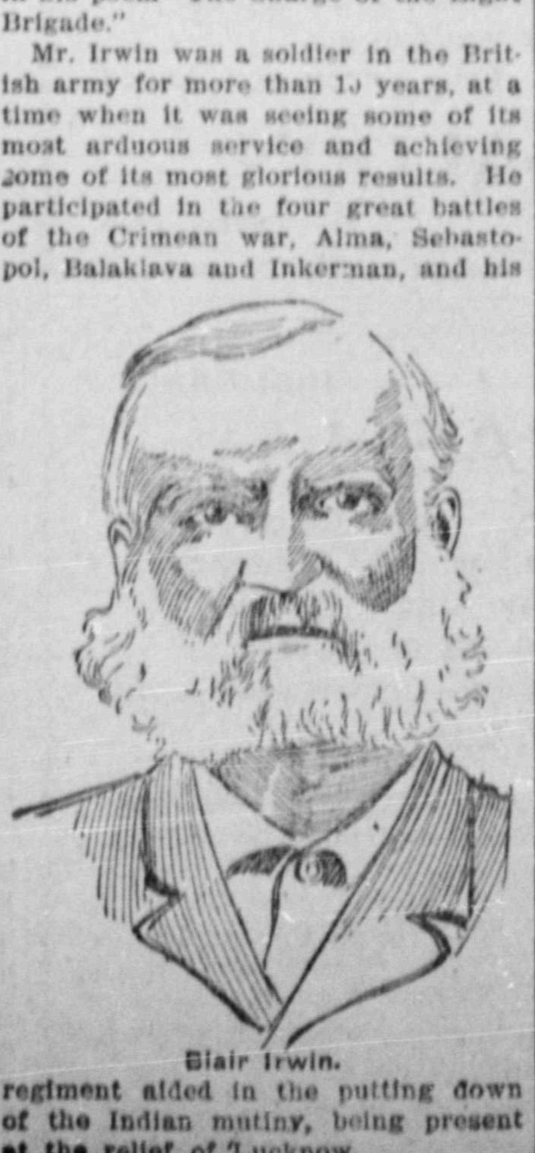

A portable street light of great illuminating power is the device of the Westminster County Council for lessening accidents from London fogs. A cylindrical tank eighteen inches in diameter and two feet high is charged with twenty-five gallons of petroleum, and compressed air forces vapor from the oil into a standpipe provided with a burner. On igniting the torch flares up eighteen inches to two feet, with a power of 1,000 candles.

Sharon, Mass., enjoys the distinction of having as a resident Blair Irwin, who, as far as is known, is the sole survivor of the gallant 600 who made the famous charge at Balaklava during the Crimean war, an exploit which was immortalized by Tennyson in his poem "The Charge of the Light Brigade."

Mr. Irwin was a soldier in the British army for more than 10 years, at a time when it was seeing some of its most arduous service and achieving some of its most glorious results. He participated in the four great battles of the Crimean war, Alma, Sebastopol, Balaklava and Inkerman, and his

The Daffodils

I wandered lonely as a cloud
 That floats on high o'er vales and hills,
When all at once I saw a crowd
Beside the lake, beneath the trees
Fluttering and dancing in the breeze.

Continuous as the stars that shine
 And twinkle on the milky way,
They stretch'd in never-ending line
 Along the margin of a bay;
Ten thousand saw I at a glance
Tossing their heads in sprightly dance.

The waves beside them danced, but they
 Outdid the sparkling waves in glee;
A poet could not but be gay
 In such jocund company!
I gazed and gazed, but little thought
What wealth the show to me had brought.

For oft, when on my couch I lie
 In vacant or in pensive mood,
They flash upon that inward eye
 Which is the bliss of solitude;
And then my heart with pleasure fills
And dances with the daffodils.

Cuban "Cigarette Cartridge" May Appeal to Smokers—Convenient Barb-Wire Stretcher—Cause of Volcanic Explosions.

Cuban "Cigarette Cartridge."

Smokers who enjoy a small cigar or cigarette better than a large cigar may find the "cigarette cartridge" shown in the accompanying drawing to their liking. It is the invention of Alfred Leblanc of Havana, Cuba, and the idea is to provide small cartridges of tobacco, ready to be inserted in a non-combustible holder, the cartridge being thrown away after the contents are burned.

Cartridge Inserted in the Holder Ready for Use.

The holder consists of a metallic or asbestos tube, with a coiled spring mounted at the base of the opening and air ducts leading from the mouthpiece to the outer end of the tube. The outer end is fitted with a conical cap having slanting sides to hold the tobacco in the cartridge against the pressure of the spring inside the tube. The cartridges are to be furnished in quantity, either loaded or empty as the smoker may desire.

To place a charge in the tube the outer cap is removed and the cartridge inserted and pressed downward until the spring is contracted, when the cap is replaced. The cigarette is then lighted through the perforation in the cap and the smoke drawn through the air ducts to the mouth. As fast as the tobacco is consumed the spring forces the ashes out of the cap and renews the supply of the weed in proximity to the air ducts. When the cartridge has been emptied the cap is again removed and the empty tube thrown out. The tubes are made with a slight taper toward the rear end, in order that the spring may slide the tobacco from the tube without clogging.

Barb-Wire Stretcher.

A barb-wire stretcher which weighs only 12 ounces and can be carried in the pocket is the invention of Col. James H. Birch of Plattsburg, Mo., formerly member of Congress from the 4th district. The features claimed for this device are its simplicity, cheapness and effectiveness. With a bar of wood inserted in the ring to give the necessary leverage the wire can be drawn as tight as a drumhead and securely fastened in that position, the weight of the body being used to keep the lever in place, while both hands are left free to drive the staple. A staple-puller is a valuable feature of the device.

Water Supplies in Texas.

The flow of Texas rivers has been studied by the hydrographic parties of the United States Geological Survey. Daily records of water heights and frequent measurements by current-meter of the velocity and volume of water carried by each stream are made. The economic value of such hydrographic surveys is well illustrated by two examples. The flow of the Brazos River at Waco was the lowest on record during the past season and the Waco dam, with a head of 30 feet, developed only 130 horse-power. The minimum flow of the Colorado was found to be only one-fifth of what was popularly estimated at the time the bonds were issued for the dam at Austin. The comparatively small cost of such surveys repays taxpayers and investors a hundred fold.

Causes of Volcanic Explosions.

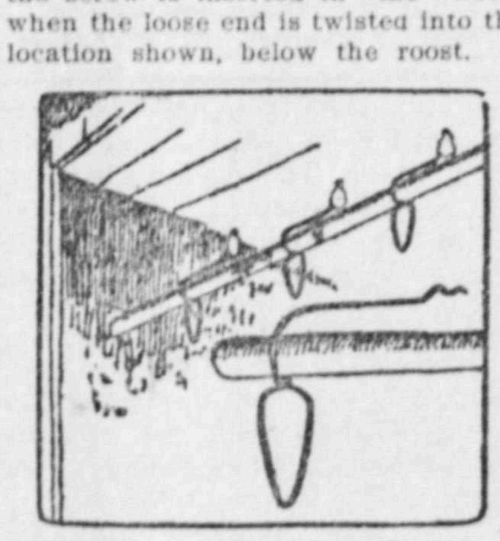

In the Archives des Sciences Physiques et Naturelles M. Brun sets forth a theory of the causes of volcanic explosions based on the experiments of M. Gautier and himself. A few of his results, only, can be referred to here. They have a direct bearing on the phenomena lately displayed in Martinique. His experiments at Stromboli showed that the lava flowing from the crater was at a temperature not above 1,230 degrees C., and that the explosions arise in the superficial layers. Those of M. Gautier prove that all rocks of the earth's crust when heated above redness give off gases, principally hydrogen. The hydrogen is the principal cause of the explosions. Heated to about 1,300 degrees in the crater, it becomes explosive the moment it is mixed with air. A rock containing a 4 per cent constituent of water is shown by calculation to give off enough hydrogen to throw twice its weight for a distance of three miles. The results quoted indicate the main lines of the theory proposed. For its full development the original paper must be consulted.

The Tuberculosis Bacillus.

According to cable telegrams Prof. Behring has just printed a book in Berlin proving that the bacilli of human and bovine tuberculosis are identical, the seeming difference between them resulting from the capacity of the bacilli to accommodate themselves to the organism in which they live. The writer announces that he has successfully infected cattle with virus from human beings, producing in this way fatal animal tuberculosis. He also declares that he has rendered cattle immune to tuberculosis by vaccinating them when they are young. Further reports of these experiments will be anxiously awaited.

Divides the Poultry Roost.

The illustration shows a novelty which will recommend itself to the poultry keeper for two reasons—first, because it will prevent the fowls from crowding each other off the roosts, and, secondly, owing to the provision it makes for bringing a vermin destroyer within close proximity to the fowl while roosting, without the latter touching it. These devices can be brought into use in connection with the roosting poles already in position in the henhouse, and consequently there is no expense for changing the roosts. The invention is a simple one, consisting of a single piece of wire, which is formed into a loop near one end, with the shorter end formed into a screw to aid in inserting it in the wooden roost. The longer end is not bent to its final position until after the screw is inserted in the wood, when the loose end is twisted into the location shown, below the roost. It is an easy matter to attach a small rag or a piece of sponge to the depending end, which can be saturated from time to time with any liquid vermicide, and the vaporizing of this liquid will serve not only to keep the vermin from crawling over the roosts, but drive the lice from the bodies of the fowls, as the odor will permeate the feathers when the birds are on the roosts at night. The inventor of this device is John H. F. Everaz, of Walla Walla, Wash.

Prevents Crowding and Carries a Vermin Destroyer.

Prepares Solid Foundations.

It is not entirely new to render loose soil, such as sand and gravel, stable enough for building purposes by impregnating it with thin fluid cement, which binds with the sand and forms a sufficiently hard concrete mass to serve as a foundation; but this process is always dependent upon certain conditions. Thus, for instance, the soil must contain no water, because the water fills out the interstices of the sand and renders the penetration of the cement difficult, and, in addition to this, the water still further dilutes the cement, which is thin fluid already, so that it is impossible for the cement to bind and form a good foundation. Now comes a Russian inventor with an apparatus to exhaust the water from the soil simultaneously with the forcing into it of the liquid cement. This enables the cement to be properly distributed and also renders it possible to force it into the soil with less pressure than when a single forcing tube was used. As seen in the drawing the two smaller tubes pour the cement into the sand, while the larger central pipe is connected with a suction pump or other exhaust apparatus. This draws the water from the soil and allows the liquid cement to replace it readily, also serving as an indicator to show when the soil has been impregnated by drawing the cement into the tube after the water has been exhausted. The pipes have pointed heads to aid in their insertion in the earth. Nicolas Schietkiewics of St. Petersburg, Russia, has the patent on this apparatus.

Impregnating Sand With Liquid Cement.

Air.

"I tell you," said the landlord of the summer resort near the top of the mountain, "a man can't get too much of this pure air."

"No!" gasped the tenderfoot, who was unused to the elevation. "I can't get half enough."

The ODD CORNER

The Maiden's Lesson.

A maiden strayed o'er meadow fair,
 Full pensive she, and sad;
Nor could the soft wind's gentle air
 Caressing, make her glad.
"Ah, thou, alas, art fickle, too!"
 She sighing said. "Oh, breeze,
How canst thou thus so idly woo,
 A maiden's heart to tease?"
And from her breast a full-blown rose
 Let fall a fragrant leaf—
"E'en thou are like the love one knows
 So sweet, and yet so brief.
Thou, too, art faithless, warbling bird
 That singest from yon spray;
For when one needs thy cheering song,
 Thou'rt winging far away."
But something held the maiden's gown;
 She paused, and stayed to turn,
And, still unknowing, bended down,
 The hind'rance to discern.
And, lo—'twas but a humble weed—
 A burdock rough and old,
That paying to her touch no heed,
 Persisted in its hold!
'Though 'twas a common, ugly thing,
 The maiden smiled anew;
Its message had an honest ring—
 It said: "I'll stick to you!"

Invaded by Polecats.

A colony of polecats, or rather numerous colonies of these undesirable additions to the neighborhood, recently invaded Ellicott City, Md. Their overpowering odor pervades the place.

Last night at the home of Senator William B. Peter a den of polecats was discovered and nine killed. They were found in the boxes beneath the floor. To get at them it was necessary to take up the floor. In the same locality the men about the home of Thomas H. Gaither found it necessary to go gunning after polecats last night. They did not abate the nuisance. In the quarter of this town known as Mount Misery living has been made most miserable by the presence of the same foul odors. Residents of the neighborhood talk of invoking the aid of the County Health Board to drive out the polecats, which have their dens, it is believed, in the caves along a small stream nearby. Their presence has also been discovered in many other localities.

Until last year a polecat was never seen in Ellicott City. Then one day one invaded the Howard House ice cream saloon to the dismay of the proprietor. The cat was promptly grabbed up and soused into a tub of water. Drowning is said to be the best way to get rid of polecats, but you must first catch your cat.

Girls Work at the Forge.

There is a sturdy smithy at Leeds, England, who has eight muscular daughters, all of whom he has trained to assist him at his work. At present four are at work in his shop. The other four wielded the hammer for several years and then left the business to take up the duties of running homes of their own. Every day these four daughters of the master smith are to be seen at the anvils following the trade of their fathers. They are up early and spend the working hours in making gas hooks—broad bent nails, which are used by plumbers for fastening gas pipes to walls. It is not such a hard task, yet the work requires great patience and enduring strength.

The heavy part of the work is performed by a machine worked with the foot. After the mechanical device has finished its labors the fair blacksmiths, with sleeves rolled up, put the finishing touches on the hooks with a hand hammer and get them ready for market. The girls are fond of their work. They toil on a piecework basis, and the ingenious blacksmith calls each a "full hand."

A Surprise for Father.

Rev. Thomas Brown, a prominent clergyman of Tioga county, Pa., married his eloping daughter to J. W. Stone of Alleghany by mistake. Dr. Brown, who is very near-sighted, was spending two weeks at Bowersville, in this state, near the state line. His daughter, Miss Susie, a student at Bryn Mawr, he supposed was on a visit to friends in Philadelphia. She had, however, arranged to meet young Stone and elope. After a two weeks' stay in that city, Stone brought her to his aunt's residence, near Bowersville, and the couple drove to the parsonage.

The regular minister was there, but Rev. Brown performed the ceremony, not recognizing his daughter in her traveling dress. She saw the dilemma she was in, but gave her mother's name, which was her middle name, and at the conclusion of the ceremony and the signing of the certificate made known her identity to her father. He was extremely indignant at first, but a reconciliation has been affected.—Binghampton (N. Y.) correspondence Pittsburg Leader.

Goose With Arrow in Breast.

An Esquimaux arrow of walrus ivory, found imbedded deep in the breast of a Canadian gray goose, is on exhibition in a gun store at Spokane. The goose was shot a few days ago by John Cochran near Liberty Lake. As he picked up the big honker, weighing fourteen pounds, he was surprised to see a little piece of ivory sticking from its breast for two inches.

With difficulty he pulled it out, for the flesh had grown around the arrow. Then he saw that it was an arrow eight inches long and about as thick as a lead pencil. The carvings on the stem where it was tied to the arrow stick are still visible.

No arrow of the sort was ever seen here before. The bird evidently carried it thousands upon thousands of miles from the far north, where it was shot by some Esquimaux.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

Long-Lived Birds.

The swan is the longest-lived bird ... the age of 100 years. Knauer, in his natural history, states that he has seen a falcon that was 162 years old. The following examples are cited as the longevity of the eagle and vulture:

A sea-eagle captured in 1715, and already several years of age, died 104 years afterward in 1819; a white-headed vulture, captured in 1706, died in 1826 in one of the aviaries of Schoenbrunn Castle, near Vienna, where it had passed 118 years in captivity. Paroquets and ravines reach an age of over 100 years. The life of sea and marsh birds sometimes equals that of several human generations. Like many other birds, magpies live to be very old in a state of freedom, but do not reach over 20 or 25 years in captivity. The nightingale lives but ten years in captivity, and the blackbird fifteen. Canary birds reach an age of from 12 to 15 years in the cage, but those flying at liberty in their native islands reach a much more advanced age.

Death Caused by a Rooster's Spur.

That great danger is ofttimes concealed in seeming harmless objects has again been illustrated in the incident which led to the death this week of James W. Carroll, of Lambertville, N. J. Mr. Carroll was driving some chickens off his lawn and stooped to pick up two hens. At this movement a rooster jumped at him and buried one of its spurs in his hand. The hand began to swell at once and the wound became so painful a physician was visited. The swelling was reduced and Mr. Carroll returned home laughing at the rooster's attack. Just after entering his home he was seized with a pain in his head and in a moment fell to the floor dead. It is believed the rooster's spur pierced an artery and thus caused to be formed a blood cot that went to the brain.

Rival to Aladdin's Cave.

One of the most beautiful grottoes in Europe has just been explored for the first time in Switzerland. It is near the village of Statden, not far from Schwytz. It lies at the foot of the hill of Pragel. Many previous efforts had been made to explore it, but they failed on account of the abundance of water, the steepness of the inclines which separate the chambers and the frequent caving in of the walls. The four bold alpine climbers who have finally achieved the dangerous feat are Arthur Wehrli of Bendlikon, Saxer, Simmerman and Widmer-Osterwalder, of Zurich. They entered the grotto on a Friday with provisions for eight days, rope, ladders and acetylene lamps and came out the following Sunday.

Hanged His Wife to a Tree.

Because Thomas L. Smith of Sneed, I. T., attempted strenuous measures in forcing his wife to believe in his righteousness, he is now in the Federal prison at Ardmore, held for attempted wife murder. Smith was charged by her with conduct unbecoming a faithful husband, and he hanged the woman to a limb of a tree in the back yard. In her efforts to free herself from the noose placed around her neck the woman succeeded in getting her arms above the rope when Smith jerked her from the earth, and left her dangling in the air, the rope around her waist. She was suspended thus until unconscious, and was cut down by neighbors who were passing.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Deer's Salt Water Bath.

A deer taking a salt water bath was a sight to which Ferry Beach residents, just beyond Old Orchard, were treated Sunday. Early in the morning a large deer ran down through the streets of the settlement and made for the ocean. He waded out until the water touched his body and began to perform his Sunday ablutions, regardless of the large number who were watching him. As soon as he had waded out some distance he began to run as fast as he could through the water. This done, he took a plunge and swim and then, apparently much refreshed, started for the road and was soon lost in the woods.—Daily Kennebec Journal.

The World's Largest Currant Patch.

The largest currant patch in the world is that in Colorado, which covers a field 80 acres in extent. The biggest currant patch heretofore known is said to be located in Michigan, and it comprises eight acres. The one in Colorado is at Longmont. In it there are 135,000 plants in all. The plants are set out in rows seven feet apart, and there are three and a half feet between the plants in the rows. Big returns are expected from the currant crop. J. H. Empson, a prominent citizen of Longmont, is the owner of the world's biggest currant patch, together with his daughter, who takes an active interest in the plantation.

J. Knott's Big Rhubarb Stalk.

The London Journal of Horticulture says that Mr. J. Knott pulled up a stick of rhubarb in the rectory garden, Black Torrington, Devon, which measured twenty-one inches in length, six inches in girth at the smallest part and seven inches round at the largest part, while the longest rib of the leaf measured thirty inches in length, and the circumference of the outer edge of the leaf measured eighteen feet six inches.

It is probable, however, that American growers can beat this. It seems that stalks this size, though not com-

Modern Fabel.

Once there was a congregation that need money for repairing the church, so the women got together and decided to hold a rasberry festival. Sister Frisbie invited them to come and carouse on her front lawn. Some twenty-two members of the flock flew out and bought a few things to wear, the outlay for washable finery running to about eight dollars per head.

Mr. Frisbie got nine dollars worth of Chinese lanterns and strung them around. He wanted to do the thing up "brown" so as to get a puff in the weekly. The paper came out and said that the Frisbie front yard with its myriad of twinkling lights was a veritable fairy land. That kind of a notice is worth nine dollars of anybody's money.

Mr. Frisbie and three other pillars of the church devoted seven dollars worth of valuable time to unload tables and camp stools.

The women folks ruined fourteen dollars worth of complexion working in the hot kitchen to make angel food and fig cake.

On the night of the rasberry orgie the public came and trampled down forty-five dollars worth of shrubbery.

When it came time to check up the linen and silverware it was found that seventeen dollars worth of spoons with blue thread tied around them had been lost in the shuffle.

The drip from the candles ruined twenty-nine dollars worth of summer suits and percale shirt waists.

Four children gorged themselves and each was tied up in a true lover's knot with cholera morbus before another sunrise.

After clearing the wreck, paying the drayman and settling for the ice cream and berries it was discovered that the church was six dollars and eigthy cents to the good. So everybody said it was a grand success.

A Cure for Cholera Infantum.

"Last May," says Mrs. Curtis Baker of Bookwalter, Ohio, "an infant child of our neighbor's was suffering from cholera infantum. The doctor had given up all hopes of recovery. I took a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera & Diarrhoea Remedy to the house, telling them I felt sure it would do good if used according to directions. In two days time the child had fully recovered and is now (nearly a year since) a vigorous, healthy girl. I have recommended this remedy frequently and have never known it to fail in any single instance." For sale by Overton Drug Company.

Mark McCarley, formerly of Dublin, but now a traveling man, lost considerable wearing apparel, as also did his wife, in the recent big fire at San Angelo. Mrs. McCarley left San Angelo Saturday before the burning of the Landon hotel, probably thus saving her life.

Miss Pearl Moore has returned from attending a special session at the Landon conservatory of music at Dallas, Texas, where she has been taking a thorough course in the famous Mason system of the touch and technic including several new and valuable touches not yet published. She also took a course in the new touches used by the great pianists in chord, octave and melody playing with their artistic application for the charming effects heard upon the concert platform, and a complete course in phrasing and expression. While there she also attended the valuable course of lectures on the pedagogy and psychology of music teaching, and the round table talks where the difficulties occuring in a music teacher's life and work are the best met and overcome. Her patrons will now have the advantage of the best late ideas in the fast advancing art of music teaching, and of the far more rapid learning and superior results coming through these improved methods. She also has an extensive list of the best music, each piece with a delightful story and description. This greatly increases the interest in music study and makes the piece far more enjoyable to all. Not the least value to her patrons will be the satisfaction of knowing that their children are enjoying the best new ideas and helps in the art of music teaching and study. We congratulate our public upon having a teacher who has prepared herself for this improved and advanced work.

THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT FOR CONSTIPATION

Constipation is nothing more than a clogging of the bowels and nothing less than vital stagnation or death if not relieved. If every constipated sufferer could realize that he is allowing poisonous filth to remain in his system, he would soon get relief. Constipation invites all kind of contagion. Headaches, biliousness, colds and many other ailments disappear when constipated bowels are relieved. Thedford's Black-Draught thoroughly cleans out the bowels in an easy and natural manner without the purging of calomel or other violent cathartics.

Be sure that you get the original Thedford's Black-Draught, made by The Chattanooga Medicine Co. Sold by all druggists in 25 cent and $1.00 packages.

Morgan, Ark., May 25, 1901. I cannot recommend Thedford's Black-Draught too highly. I keep it in my house all the time and have used it for the last ten years. I never gave my children any other laxative. I think I could never be able to work without it on account of being troubled with constipation. Your medicine is all that keeps me up.

Slow as a Wink.

We very often hear persons say, "quick as a wink," when they wish to express time that is very short. There is no wonder that we use the comparison, for a wink has been measured and it has been carefully ascertained that the time consumed in the operations is four-tenths of a second in the average individual. That is, two twenty-fifths of a second are consumed in closing the eye, four twenty-fifths in resting and four twenty-fifths in opening it again.

Winks come close to us for we make them and see them every day and there is nothing with which we are really familiar that impresses us as consuming so little time, yet supposing we should talk to light and electricity about "quick as a wink" they would laugh at us; that is, if they could understand us and knew how to laugh, for when we start our wink, if light should start to dart around the world it would make three circuits of the globe and be back in time to see the wink completed. It considers a wink too slow for any use.

Electricity looks with yet greater scorn on the quickness of a wink, for while the eyelid is closing it can girdle the earth once, go around twice more while it is resting and make the fifth circuit by the time it is open.—New York Herald.
