For employees...

City still looking for more insurance bids

By Wade Warren
SDN Managing Editor

Snyder's city administration is still hoping to receive additional bids for employee health insurance before the 2000-01 budget has to be approved, but so far only one firm bid has been received.

"If no other bids are received, then we can accept the one firm bid, or we can extend the present carrier's policy for one month with hopes we get other bids," said City Secretary Jeanne Johnson during Monday night's budget work session.

Johnson said a total of seven bids were submitted by four different insurance companies, but only one included firm rates.

"The other bids are contingent on the insurance companies receiving health information on some of our employees," Johnson said.

She explained that the city has requested physicians and hospitals furnish the health information to the insurance companies, but added that the companies had not received all the information in a timely fashion.

"All in all, we sent out 20 letters to different doctors and physicians. Some sent the information back, and some have not," said Johnson.

Johnson further explained the insurance companies had the bid packages a full month before they were due for consideration. "In that time, only one company called seeking information."

The council voted to table action on employee health insurance until another called meeting Thursday with hopes that additional bids are firmed up.

The only sure thing is that the insurance costs will be higher than last year, said Johnson. Figures presented to the council indicates this could be as much as $86,000.

The council also spent some two hours mulling over the projected budget that begins Oct. 1.

Proposed capital expenditures in the street, water distribution, sewage and landfill departments were presented.

Major expenditures proposed included $900,000 for a new landfill cell, $350,000 for water line replacement, and $69,445 for a filter-to-waste system at the water treatment plant.

The council also looked at several previously proposed capital expenditure purchases that have been deleted from the proposed budget.

The list includes $3,520 from the administration, $17,000 from the fire department and $35,540 from the police department.

Among items cut from the police department's budget is a pickup, and two $5,000 video cameras.

Police Chief Steve Warren said instead of purchasing a pickup, the city will transfer the pickup the former city engineer used to the police department.

The council received additional information about possible budget revisions with little comment.

This includes a proposal for a 2.7 percent pay increase for employees that would add $70,850 to the spending document, and a three percent increase in water and sewer rates which would generate $101,850 in additional revenue.

Information was also provided on how much a penny increase in the present tax rate of $0.3935 would generate. This totals $22,615.

Mayor Pro-Tem Vernest Tippens presided in the absence of Mayor Dayton Robertson. Other council members present were James Ashley, David Harrell, Terry Martin and I.E. Martin. James Jenkins also was absent.

THE SDN COLUMN

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There are a couple of ways to be wealthy – have all you want or enjoy what you have."

Last Saturday was National Cow Appreciation Day.

After the temperature reached triple digits Sunday, we think Mayor Dayton Robertson ought to sign another proclamation: National Air Conditioning Adoration Week (NACAW).

During such a week, make sure that all the thermometers are covered. Also make it illegal for the TV weather guys to tell us the relative humidity that then can be translated into the heat index.

Think cool and the TV guys could feature a showing of White Christmas, or the sports channel could rerun the Ice Bowl between the Green Bay Packers and Dallas Cowboys.

A good laugh could make you forget the torrid heat.

Former U.S. Senator Dale Bumpers of Arkansas sent out a letter soliciting money for the Bill Clinton Presidential Library to be located in downtown Little Rock.

The letter included this curious statement: "We should not let our familiarity with Bill Clinton stop us from appreciating the depth and range of his accomplishments as president."

Still no word if the library will be X-rated or merely PG13.

If you want to stay cool, don't read this.

Congress says it wants and deserves a pay raise.

Members of congress say that in spite of descriptions of a "do-nothing" reputation, members are working hard – thus richly deserving more compensation.

The congressional leadership has endorsed a plan that would allow a cost-of-living adjustment before the end of the year.

Currently, the base pay for a congressman is $141,300, and the proposed increase would send salaries to over $145,000.

House Majority Leader Dick Armey, a Republican from Texas, turns to the Scriptures to support the pay jump.

"The Bible says the worker is worthy of his hire. Members of Congress on both sides of the aisle work very hard – the Republicans trying to get something done and the Democrats trying to stop it from happening."

We have to assume that a pay increase is a bi-partisan issue.

Have you hugged your congressman or air conditioner today?

Chamber agrees to provide hotel/motel funds to projects

Snyder chamber directors Monday approved three hotel-motel requests and discussed upcoming events - including next year's July 4th celebration.

Directors okayed a request for $1,000, without discussion, to help offset the costs of the fireworks for the last July 4th celebration.

Bob O'Day presented a request for $2,500 for next year's Sammy Baugh celebrity golf tournament. Directors granted $1,500 contingent on the event being held in Snyder. O'Day said this year's event was successful and was enjoyed by the guests, but he was disappointed by the small number of spectators.

Directors approved $1,500 of a $2,500 request from Western Texas College Rodeo Booster Club. The request was approved subject to rewording the request to comply with the chamber's criteria for granting funds.

New members, Sweetwater Electric and District Clerk Trina Rodgers, were welcomed to the chamber rolls.

Financial statements and minutes from the previous meeting were approved and executive director Donna Fowler reported on the Texas Commission on the Arts and the Academy of Western Artists, both in July.

The chamber banquet with a Mardi Gras theme is set for Aug. 26. There will not be a guest speaker, but entertainment will be provided by Fiddlin' Frenchie Burk. The Holiday Ramblers will return to the coliseum for a gathering on Sept. 25-29.

Smith named to Ira board

Ira ISD trustees met Monday evening and appointed Shane Smith as a replacement for trustee Dirk Dunn.

Dunn resigned in order for his wife to be hired as a first grade teacher in the district.

Smith is an employee of Ira Pump and Supply and will serve until the May election when the position will be up for election.

In addition to Mrs. Dunn, the board hired Carol Scott as Spanish teacher and Kim Allen as fifth grade teacher.

Back-to-school items adopted included the student handbook and the student code of conduct, plus the discipline management plan.

The early release policy was also approved, as was a catastrophic student insurance policy for the district students.

The district approved Claims Administrative Services as its workman's compensation carrier.

Lottery rules changing

AUSTIN (AP) — Lottery enthusiast Del Wood had three words for changes to this week's Texas Lotto that will make the twice-weekly game much harder to win.

"Boo, hiss, hiss," Wood said Monday. "If they are going to increase the odds, I'm not going to play. I'll take my $3 and buy my scratch-offs."

Wood is not alone, said George Alvarez, a clerk at Austin's Nau's Pharmacy.

"I don't see the excitement yet," Alvarez said. "If anything, people are upset that the odds are increasing. They don't understand that the jackpot will escalate more quickly."

That's not the kind of news the Texas Lottery Commission wanted to hear. The panel discussed the game's changes during its regular monthly meeting on Tuesday.

The commissioners are hoping the changes will help increase sluggish ticket sales, which were down 23 percent so far this fiscal year with average weekly sales of $10.9 million. In the same period a year ago, sales were $14.1 million and nearly $18 million in 1997.

The commission predicts the change will increase sales $166 million annually. Fewer winners results in grand prizes rolling over week after week into gigantic jackpots that should entice more players.

The three-member commission voted unanimously in May to institute the first major alteration in the game since it began in 1992.

It goes into effect Wednesday, when players must match six numbers from a pool of 54 instead of from the current 50.

For Wood, the decrease in the odds of winning from 1 in 15.8 million to 1 in 25.8 million is enough to make him quit the game he's played every week since it began.

"It's just another way to make more money," Wood said.

The commission on Tuesday also discussed a preliminary audit examining a computer glitch that could have caused some lottery winners to be paid improperly during the first two years of the game.

Originally discovered in 1994, the glitch caused winners to be overpaid or underpaid because the computer problem resulted in some ticket sales being recorded twice. Because prizes are determined by ticket sales, the payouts could have been affected.

ASK US

Q—The story in the weekend paper said only one Snyder police officer had an associate degree. Is that accurate?

A—No, actually five city officers have an associate degree and Chief Steve Warren said several others are close to attaining one.

Former doctor pleads innocent to murder charges

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — A former doctor implicated in a string of patient and co-worker poisonings has pleaded innocent to charges that he killed three patients at a Long Island hospital.

An attorney for Michael Swango, 45, entered the pleas in federal court Monday. A nine-count indictment charges him with the 1993 murders at the Veterans Affairs Hospital in Northport.

The indictment also alleges Swango was responsible for the death of a 19-year-old woman and the non-fatal poisoning of another patient at the Ohio State University Medical Center in 1984. Swango was never prosecuted in those cases.

Swango's lawyer, Randi Chavis, said in court that there was "no direct evidence" to support the charges. No trial date was set.

Swango spent 30 months in jail and lost his medical license in 1985 for the non-fatal poisoning of six co-workers in Quincy, Ill.

He was later sentenced to prison for lying about his criminal record on an application for a medical residency. He was days from completing a 42-month prison sentence in that case when the New York indictment was announced July 11.

Authorities have charged Swango with three murders, but the best-selling book "Blind Eye: The Story of a Doctor who Got Away with Murder" suggests he may have killed as many as 35 patients on two continents.

States uneasy in wake of tobacco trial

MIAMI (AP) — In the aftermath of the record $145 billion award against five tobacco companies, state officials across the country believe the verdict will not affect money they are counting on from a national settlement to pay for anti-smoking campaigns and health programs.

But they are taking precautions in case the industry goes bankrupt, threatening their ability to collect approximately $250 billion over the next two decades.

"The consensus we reached was that any verdict up to $200 billion in our estimation would not have an adverse impact on the companies complying with our agreement," said Washington state Attorney General Christine Gregoire, lead negotiator in the 1998 states' settlement.

Attorneys for the five tobacco companies found liable Friday after a two-year trial said the huge punitive damages award would kill the industry.

The legal sparring is far from over.

A final order is needed to move a case to appeal. But the signing of the final judgment will be delayed while the tobacco industry pursues its argument that the trial isn't over until the individual claims of up to 700,000 sick Florida smokers are decided.

In court Monday, smokers' attorney Susan Rosenblatt argued that post-verdict issues, including an industry request to reduce the dollar amount as excessive, shouldn't delay entry of a final order.

Circuit Judge Robert Kaye said he hoped to sign the order this week, but lead tobacco attorney Dan Webb said he wasn't yet prepared to offer motions addressing the legal issues involved.

Meanwhile, the National Association of Attorneys General has hired a California law firm specializing in bankruptcy to represent them in case the tobacco companies declare bankruptcy, Gregoire said.

Colorado Treasurer Mike Coffman fought unsuccessfully last session for "selling" the state's $2.9 billion settlement share for $1.2 billion or less to pay for programs already established.

But lawmakers opposed that plan in favor of annual payments, saying there was no risk that the tobacco industry would go bankrupt.

"I did my best to convince the Legislature there are real risks with this settlement agreement and they shouldn't gamble on the tobacco industry," Coffman said Monday. "This is just one risk out of many."

Ken Lane, spokesman for Colorado Attorney General Ken Salazar, said programs funded in anticipation of getting tobacco money for the next 20 years are not in immediate danger because the $145 billion award likely won't stand.

In Louisiana, Treasurer John Kennedy fears the Florida decision could affect annual payments on the state's $4.6 billion settlement share. He wants to build security for the programs the settlement money is financing by selling bonds.

Ann Donlan, a spokeswoman for Massachusetts Attorney General Tom Reilly, said "the fear is about the health of children and people who smoke. The focus isn't on money."

The multibillion-dollar settlement between the states and cigarette makers to recover health costs for treating sick smokers is the focus of a new TV advertising campaign launched Monday by Philip Morris Inc.

The ads try to "explain to people what we've agreed to do with the states and how that affects the way we do business and why it really is change as opposed to just words," said William Ohlemeyer, associate general counsel with the industry-leading cigarette maker.

Anti-smoking activist John Banzhaf of Action on Smoking and Health reacted to the commercials with disdain. "This sounds very much to me like jury tampering. They want to be ready for the next jury," he said.

Your Birthday

Wednesday, July 19, 2000

Many of your hopes and expectation have excellent chances of being fulfilled in the year ahead. However, you must not expect Lady Luck to simply hand them to you on a platter.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're not careful today you could quite easily dwell in the realm of wishful thinking and mistake it for positive thinking. Unfortunately, the only thing it offers is pie-in-the-sky. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $2 and SASE to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper. P.O. Box 1758, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to state your Zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be especially careful in your commercial involvements today, because someone might have you pegged for a patsy. Don't put up your hard earned money without justification.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Unfortunately, many people, in their desire to be kind, could tell you what you want to hear instead of rendering the frank opinion you need. Seek only honest critiques today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Strong temptations to overindulge in some manner may have to be battled today if you hope to sustain good health habits. Be disciplined in all that you do.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't take the word of just anybody who happens along today when it comes to financial matters. Know your advisers, as well as their track record.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Those with whom you'll be involved today will expect you to honor and fulfill any promises you make. Don't make any commitments you might not be able to keep.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It will gravely impair your image today if those with whom you are associating think you are exaggerating or fibbing. Be forthright in everything you say.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) What will do you in today is ignoring all the opportunities that abound, especially those of a tangible or financial nature. Don't be indifferent or unresponsive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The results will not be what you expect or desire today if you delegate important endeavors to others. Make certain that which is of vital interest to you is guided by your own hand.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't be so anxious to make a deal today that you allow someone else to dictate all the terms, including determining the size of your piece of the action. Let time help with the negotiations.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Expecting more from an arrangement than conditions warrants sets you up for disappointment today. Don't let your prospects and hopes run unrealistically rampant.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There will be no substitute for hard work today. Your wonderful personality, good looks and charm may be quite admirable but not enough to do you any justice.

Assume sanity, not insanity

By Phillip Alder

If a competent declarer does something strange, there is usually a reason behind it other than a momentary burst of insanity. The most likely explanation is that he needs a misdefense and is hoping the opponents don't wake up in time.

In this deal, you are sitting East, defending against three no-trump. Your partner leads the heart 10: ace, queen (you should unblock), three. Declarer calls for the spade jack. Have you made your play yet?

Even if using a 16-18 one-no-trump opening, North's hand is too strong. With an excellent five-card suit and good controls (aces and kings), it is worth 19 points.

When the dummy comes down, you should stop and think for a few moments, even if declarer calls immediately for dummy's card. And one question you should ask is: What is declarer likely to do at trick two? Here, if South doesn't have the diamond ace, he will surely establish that suit. So, when he doesn't do that, it is because he has the diamond ace. Ergo, the suit is ready to run and declarer has eight top tricks: one heart, five diamonds and two clubs. This also means that if South holds the heart king, he has nine tricks. Yet why is he calling for the spade jack? Because he doesn't have the heart king and is trying to sneak his ninth trick.

Don't fall for it: Jump in with the spade ace and continue with the heart jack. Here, partner will overtake with the king and cash out for two down.

Note that if you duck at trick two, declarer will go up with his king and run for home.

Cute invitation gets blown up

NORWALK, Calif. (AP) — A prosecutor's idea to send a cute invitation to a political function really blew up in his face.

Steve Cooley, who is running for Los Angeles County District attorney, wanted Superior Court Judge Patrick T. Meyers to attend his fund-raiser. So he sent him a 5-by-8-inch packet containing a talking greeting card.

Sheriff's investigators, fearing it was a bomb, blew it to bits.

"I can confirm that Mr. Cooley's fine invitation was blown to smithereens," Deputy District Attorney John F. Lynch said Monday.

Lynch said the judge called authorities after he noticed the package contained no return address and was larger than a letter envelope. A metal detector showed what looked like a battery and wires.

Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department arson investigators didn't want to take any chances. The card was obliterated July 6 in a parking lot.

Cooley, the county's chief deputy district attorney, said he didn't know if Meyers made it to the event. The judge wasn't commenting.

Campos, Jones optimistic about upcoming season

WICHITA FALLS (AP) — On the eve of Dallas Cowboys training camp, Jerry Jones was too excited to sleep. He probably came closer than his team's new coach, Dave Campo.

"It's a combination of excitement, nervousness — whatever you need to do to get ready to play," Campo said. "When the adrenaline is going, that's what it's all about."

The adrenaline and perspiration were to begin Tuesday morning with the first day of workouts at Midwestern State University.

At a news conference Monday, Jones said his excitement stems from his belief the Cowboys may be headed toward a big season.

"I think we certainly should be recognized coming into camp as a contender," said Jones, holding up one of his Super Bowl rings to emphasize his point. "I don't think people have read the tea leaves and looked at us real close if they don't think we can contend."

The Cowboys are 24-24 the last three years with just one playoff victory. This season, Dallas is breaking in a new coach while trying to replace former All-Pros Deion Sanders, Michael Irvin and Daryl Johnston.

But coming off a season when St. Louis and Tennessee rocketed to the top of the NFL, every team is opening camp with the belief it can contend.

"One thing about the NFL — parity is here, which is an advantage for everyone," Campo said. "Everyone feels they can have the opportunity to go all the way."

Campo said his 22 starters match up with any in the league.

"It comes down to the attitude difference in my opinion that will make the difference," Campo said. "All of the teams going in will be fairly similar. It's the team that really has that extra little bit of desire and willingness to do a little extra that's going to be successful. I feel like we have those kind of players."

The Cowboys will have all five draft picks in camp, plus newcomers such as Joey Galloway, Ryan McNeil, Dimitrius Underwood and Jackie Harris. There's plenty of breaking-in to be done.

Two-a-day practices will be more grueling than usual this week as temperatures are expected to be well into the 100s. Wichita Falls was tied for the hottest spot in the nation on Sunday at 109 degrees.

"I truly believe the heat helps us," Campo said. "One of the things that championship football teams have is mental toughness. The grind of going out there twice a day in the heat of the day, that's all part of it.

"At the same time, when you start getting to 106, 107, 108 — that's something you have to look at."

Campo's concession: When the Cowboys have two practices a day on consecutive days, the second day's afternoon workout will start at 5:30 p.m. instead of 4 p.m.

"Some would say there's not a heck of a lot of relief there," Campo said, "but last night I could sense a difference."

Singh not intimidated by Woods

ST. ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Vijay Singh will concede the favorite's role in the British Open to Tiger Woods. It's hard not to, even though Singh owns the same number of major championship titles this year as Woods: one.

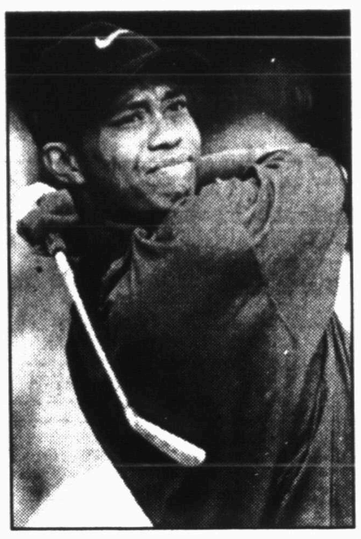

He's not conceding anything else, though he says some players will.

"He puts an intimidating factor on every other player," Singh said of Woods. "He is the favorite every week he plays."

That's especially true this week, where British oddsmakers had Woods a 9-4 choice on Monday, the shortest odds since Jack Nicklaus was 3-1 while dominating in the 1970s. Even that didn't stop a bettor at Ladbrokes from putting 15,000 English pounds ($22,433) on Woods.

Singh, meanwhile, was at 33-1, despite beating Woods at the Masters earlier this year and coming back to the Old Course, where he was in contention the final day the last time the Open was held here in 1995.

"This golf course is set up so anyone can win this tournament," Singh said. "It is playing hard and fast."

Tiger Woods

Singh comes into the Open with something no one other than Woods has — a chance to win his second major championship of the year and the confidence that he has already beaten Woods for one major title.

"If you win a major once, you think, you know you probably got lucky," said Singh, whose first major win was the 1998 PGA Championship. "But you win it again and you start thinking it is not so much luck after all. You are more confident and more comfortable."

Singh got reacquainted with the Old Course in a practice round on Monday, then proclaimed it ripe for the taking by the game's long hitters.

That doesn't just mean Woods, either. Singh is also one of the longer hitters on tour, as he showed in his practice round by almost driving the green with the wind behind him on the 412-yard par-4 sixth.

"Whoever is hitting it long this week has a lot of advantage," Singh said. "The longer hitters are going to be able to hit on to some of the outward greens."

In ordinary years, a player like Singh would probably be considered among the handful of favorites to win the claret jug that goes to the Open champion.

This, however, is no normal year. Not after Woods destroyed the field at the U.S. Open to win by 15 shots.

"Tiger did play very well, as you all know," Singh said. "He played really good and everybody else played pretty average. That is where you get the vast margin. If the guys had played half decent, it wouldn't have been that bad."

Singh acknowledged that Woods will intimidate many players, and is such a force that the rest of the field is often looking to see what he is doing.

That's a mistake, said Singh, who managed to tend to his own business to beat Woods to win the Masters earlier this year.

"When you go out there, if you start worrying about what the other players are going to be doing, especially Tiger, you are already in trouble," he said. "We should almost forget about him and just play our own game. But it is hard to do when he is playing so well."

Singh predicted Woods — or any player — will have trouble running away with this Open because the Old Course will serve up a number of low scores if the wind doesn't howl and players keep out of the 112 bunkers that litter the course.

Birdie opportunities abound on the front nine, but the prevailing winds could raise havoc on the way back to the clubhouse.

The Old Course is indeed playing hard and fast, as always, perhaps harder and faster than ever.

"I was shocked with how firm the greens were and the fairways," Singh said. "And the practice green is almost as hard as concrete. You hurt your hand trying to hit it, but you have to get used to that. If you don't, then you are not going to contend, I guess."

Singh had some success the last time the Open was held here in 1995, finishing two strokes back of John Daly after four three-putts on the final nine holes. And he said he likes the way his game is right now, particularly his putting.

"I think I'm a much better putter than I've ever been," Singh said.

Tribe tops Astros, 8-6

CLEVELAND (AP) — Rookie Tim Drew got his first major league win as Travis Fryman's three-run double capped Cleveland's six-run fifth inning Monday night and sent the Indians to an 8-6 win over the Houston Astros.

Jim Thome homered twice — one a 479-foot shot — and Kenny Lofton, batting leadoff again, went 2-for-3 with two steals and made two nice catches before crashing into the wall in center for the Indians.

Drew, making his second big league start, allowed two runs and three hits in five innings. The younger brother of St. Louis outfielder J.D. Drew walked four, struck out three and gave the Indians a reason to keep him around for a while as their No. 5 starter.

Steve Karsay pitched the ninth for his 19th save.

Down 0-2 in the count with two outs in the fifth, Fryman doubled to the gap in left-center off rookie Wade Miller (0-2), who limited the Indians to one run and two hits before the fifth.

Daryle Ward and Richard Hidalgo hit two-run homers for the Astros.

Hidalgo's 26th homer gave the Astros a 2-0 lead in the second.

Giants down Rangers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — J.T. Snow decided to hit left-handed all the time. It may have been his best decision yet.

Snow hit two home runs, including the go-ahead runs in the seventh inning against the left-handed Doug Davis, and finished with five RBIs as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Texas Rangers 10-8 on Monday night.

Snow, the career leader in interleague RBIs with 69, tied a career high for RBIs with his ninth career multihomer game, his first since July 2, 1998, at Anaheim.

"It was a matter of at-bats," said Giants manager Dusty Baker. "He's fearless. That was a bold and brave move for him to make. Sometimes switch hitters aren't willing to do that. He stuck with it. Give him a lot of credit."

Snow faced a left-hander for the first time in his major league career on Sept. 22, 1998. Last year, he hit .231 against lefties. This year he's hitting .291.

"It feels good to beat the percentages," said Snow. "It's still something special to me to hit off a lefty. It's still new to me. I realize I'm going to get matchups like that."

Texas manager Johnny Oates said the reason is simple enough.

"He's a good player," Oates said. "I've seen J.T. for a long time. Maybe one of the best moves he's made was to stop switch hitting. Sometimes if you struggle from one side, then give it up, you become a better offensive player. He's one of those who has benefited even though he may have been reluctant. For whatever reason, he fits in well."

As for his success in interleague play, Snow doesn't have a clue.

"I don't have an answer for it," Snow said. "It may have been a big deal at first, but now I have as many at bats in the National league as I do in the American League."

Marvin Benard also homered as the Giants won for the 12th time in 14 games.

Rafael Palmeiro hit his 24th homer of the season for the Rangers, the 385th of his career, tying him with Dwight Evans for 37th in major league history.

Luis Alicea's sacrifice fly in the seventh capped a three-run rally and gave the Rangers a 5-4 lead.

Virus turns up in mosquitoes, birds

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — Insecticide spraying is planned in the New York City area this week after health officials found mosquitoes carrying the potentially deadly West Nile virus in the region for the first time this year.

State Health Commissioner Antonia Novello said the mosquitoes that tested positive were from Westchester and Suffolk counties, outside the city.

But two birds with the disease have been found in New York City for the first time this year, the state Health Department said Monday. Birds, like humans, get the virus from mosquitoes. No human cases have been detected.

Last summer, in the first known appearance of the West Nile virus in the Western Hemisphere, the disease killed seven people in the metropolitan area, prompting New York City to undertake a massive campaign of aerial and ground spraying.

In the most serious cases, West Nile can cause an infection resulting in encephalitis, or swelling of the brain.

British ire over 'The Patriot' irks some

CHERRY VALLEY, N.Y. (AP) — The British, upset over their portrayal in "The Patriot," won't find much sympathy in this historic village in the rolling farmland south of the Mohawk River.

Residents note the atrocities the British commit in the Revolutionary War blockbuster are a Hollywood fabrication, but the 1778 massacre carried out here by their forces was a bloody reality.

Most of the killing was blamed on British loyalists and their Seneca Indian allies. But Capt. Kristian Marks, a military history instructor at the U.S. Military Academy at West Point, said about 50 English troops participated in the attack.

In all, 32 people, including women and children, were killed and 16 American soldiers died.

"I don't think we owe the Brits any apology whatsoever," said local historian Sue Miller, pointing out a spot where a family was killed and their cabin burned to the ground.

Acting under orders from British commanders in Montreal and at Fort Niagara, English forces fought a four-year border war that raged the length of this fertile region, the breadbasket of the Continental Army.

Loyalists and Iroquois, enraged at losing their homes when the Americans declared independence from England, returned to the Mohawk, Schoharie and Cherry valleys with a vengeance in the summer of 1778.

Nearly every settlement between present-day Utica and the outskirts of Schenectady was torched and the inhabitants either killed, captured or driven east to Albany.

"It was complete devastation of the Mohawk Valley," said Wanda Burch, manager of the Johnson Hall State Historic Site in Johnstown, 40 miles northwest of Albany.

In the film, Mel Gibson plays a South Carolina farmer-turned-militia leader fighting the Redcoats. The British media and some historians are demanding an apology and a retraction from the makers of the movie for its flag-waving simplification of events.

Britons are particularly incensed that a character based on an actual British officer is shown shooting a child and burning people alive inside a church.

At Larry Thompson's barber shop in Cherry Valley, there's little inclination by the owner to placate British umbrage at "The Patriot." His ancestors survived the 1778 battle after making it to the village fort, where they watched as the countryside went up in flames and their neighbors were killed.

"I'm not apologizing," Thompson said as he cut his brother's hair. "If the British don't like the movie, they have to live with it."

Gambling ship to make trips from coast

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A gambling cruise ship will soon be making trips from the Texas coast to international waters outside the jurisdiction of state laws that prohibit wagering.

The Las Vegas owner of the ship, Viva Gaming and Resorts Inc., plans to base the 420-foot vessel, the "Texas Treasure", at Harbor Island in Port Aransas.

Company officials hope the 1,200-passenger ship will be ready for twice-daily voyages into international waters by mid-September.

Viva Gaming plans to target tourists from San Antonio, Corpus Christi and the Rio Grande Valley. The company projects tourists will generate $1.5 million annually for the local economy, company spokesman Mike Katz told the San Antonio Express-News in Tuesday's editions.

"We can't wait to get this thing launched," Katz said. "We've had nothing but very positive feedback from all of the Corpus people."

The white and blue cruise ship attracted a small crowd as it arrived on the Texas coast Monday and docked in the Port of Corpus Christi — normally the domain of tankers, barges and tugboats.

Texas sends more visitors to Las Vegas than every state but California, accounting for 1.8 million airline bookings a year, and Texans also make up a big chunk of the gamblers in Louisiana.

"The state of Texas has always liked to play," Katz said.

The Port of Corpus Christi is leasing the land on Harbor Island to Viva Gaming, which is responsible for developing the dock, terminal, parking and access to its facilities.

In June, the company began paying the city $3,200 a month on a five-year lease for the six-acre property. The port authority also will receive $1 for each passenger who boards the ship, according to the lease agreement.

High-frequency warning beep doesn't register with seniors

DEAR ABBY: Have you noticed how often people fail to get out of the way of electric carts used to transport people who can't walk long distances at airports? It isn't pure cussedness. It's because the "warning beep" used by these carts is near a sound frequency that cannot be easily processed by the human ear. (See: "How We Localize Sound" by W.M. Hartmann in the November 1999 issue of Physics Today.) Thus, airline commuters cannot tell where the sound is coming from, which is hazardous to both walkers and riders.

This is actually a common engineering blunder. The "beep" to announce an incoming fax on a computer modem and the beep of a modern range timer are both typically at a pitch just above the hearing range of a host of older people. The back-up beeper on trucks and heavy equipment is also in the same frequency range. (The higher sound frequencies are usually the first to go.)

We all know that engineers are set in their ways, but perhaps a wake-up call from you will jolt them out of their ruts. — JACK SALISBURY, PALM COAST, FLA.

DEAR JACK: Yes, I have observed pedestrians failing to get out of the way of carts at airports — but I had assumed it was because they were electric vehicles and didn't make much noise. Of course, the drivers of those vehicles usually wind up warning pedestrians to "step aside!"

However, assuming that engineers responsible for designing modern equipment are younger people in full possession of all their faculties, your letter should serve as a reminder that our population is aging, a condition frequently accompanied by some degree of hearing loss.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the letter from John Gabel about funerals and death — I find it interesting as a funeral director that there seems to be a "funeral police" who dictate what everybody should want for final services for their loved ones. There are no "wedding police" telling people that they need not have elaborate weddings or that just a simple dress will do.

Those who seek to change ceremony and tradition have the opportunity to change their own ceremony and tradition, because that is what is right for them.

Many people think if they don't have a funeral or memorial service, they are not expressing or feeling the grief that comes from losing a loved one. To use your words ... how absurd.

As in any industry, there are those who seek for themselves by any means to make a huge profit. However, thousands of funeral directors and funeral homes are caring and helpful to those who have lost a loved one. They do not "stalk" people for their money, and they do not "guilt" people into spending money they don't have. They seek to make an honest living and to be able to sleep at night knowing they have done the right thing.

There is no other profession so maligned as those who work to comfort those who have lost a loved one. — PROUD OF MY PROFESSION, EUGENE, ORE.

DEAR PROUD: After printing that letter I received a stack of mail from members of the funeral industry reminding me that many funeral homes take pride in serving their communities and do not gouge. Their staff are on duty day and night to meet the needs of grieving families and rightfully take pride in what they do. I also received a few letters from people wanting to air grievances because they felt they had been taken advantage of.

The answer lies in being informed consumers, facing the fact of our mortality, and perhaps taking care of the details before the need arises. An important part of that process is being open with one's family about what one's wishes are, and what arrangements have or have not been made.

Search for cause of wife's eczema

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife has suffered from severe eczema for the past 10 years. Her skin is badly damaged from the itching and scratching. Her doctor offers her no therapy other than cortisone, which she is reluctant to take. What can we do?

DEAR READER: Eczema is a type of dermatitis, marked by inflammation, redness, oozing, crusting, scaling and itchiness. Some forms are caused by allergies to certain substances, such as chemicals, food, animal dander, medications and industrial solvents. Sunlight can trigger eczema.

Other patients appear to have endogenous eczema, a skin reaction related to factors within the body. Often the cause is obscure. There may be an inherited or genetic disposition.

Furthermore, patients who are overly sensitive to a variety of drugs can develop skin lesions identical to eczema. In fact, any medicine has the potential for causing dermatitis in a susceptible individual. Also, some diseases — such as inborn errors of metabolism and nutritional deficiencies — are associated with eczema.

Because the cause of the disorder may be unknown, many physicians attempt only to relieve symptoms. Oils, lotions and cortisone-containing medicines may be useful. Inasmuch as your wife has had a problem for several years, however, I believe that she must get at the cause of her skin irritation. She shouldn't be satisfied with symptom-treatment alone; she needs a thorough medical evaluation to identify any disease, compound, pollutant or drug that could be the culprit. An allergy investigation and scrupulous environmental history may be necessary. Before assuming that her eczema is "idiopathic" (without demonstrable cause), your wife should be tested. Cortisone may be appropriate to use in her case as a temporary measure until the true basis of her skin disorder can be determined. To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Eczema and Psoriasis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Is there any health risk caused by eating lead from pencils?

DEAR READER: Pencil "lead" is not lead at all. It is graphite, a form of mineralized carbon. To my knowledge, the material is not harmful when swallowed, although I cannot for the life of me imagine anyone wanting to do so.

DEAR DR. GOTT: How long is a person with a cold contagious? Some people say three days, others a week.

DEAR READER: As a general rule, people with colds are contagious as long as they have symptoms — usually five to seven days. It's the viruses that are shed in the nasal discharge and in respiratory droplets that spread a cold from one person to another. Usually, viral shedding has pretty well stopped by the time a cold-sufferer begins to feel better.

Here's an additional fact that might surprise you: We shed cold viruses for a day or two before symptoms develop. Therefore, a person is contagious for a significant amount of time before he or she may realize that a cold is on the way. Perhaps this is the reason why colds spread so rapidly within groups of people, such as families and schoolchildren.

"NO CONDEMNATION IN CHRIST"
Paul wrote to Christians in Rome, "There is therefore now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus" (Romans 8:1). Guilt for our sins haunts us and weighs us down. When we entered Christ through faith, repentance and baptism for remission of sins (Galatians 3:26-27), we received, "redemption through His blood and forgiveness, according to the riches of His grace" (Ephesians 1:7).
The supreme message of the Roman letter includes that for those who are in Christ Jesus and walk after the Spirit there is no condemnation. They are acceptable to God, not because they are good, for all are sinners (Romans 3:23), but because God loves them, and because through faith and obedience they accept being accepted!

Heat wave hits Texas and SW

LUBBOCK (AP) — If the recent Southwest heat wave feels like hell, then Texans must be dancing with the devil himself.

A National Weather Service meteorologist said Monday that a high-pressure dome has settled over the southern portion of the country, baking Arizona, New Mexico, Arkansas, along with Louisiana, Oklahoma and Kansas.

But "the warmest temperatures are right under the dome. The dome is right smack-dab over North Texas," said Michael Mach, who works in the NWS Fort Worth office, where the Dallas-Fort Worth area was experiencing its sixth day of above 100-degree temperatures.

The Dallas County Heath Department issued an emergency health alert Monday as temperatures across the city reached and topped the century mark for the sixth day in row. The NWS predicted 100-plus readings would continue at least through the weekend.

Already, the heat is blamed for deaths of two elderly Dallas residents. Eight heat-related deaths were reported last year and 35 in 1998, Betty Culbreath-Lister, Dallas County Department of Health and Human Services director, told The Dallas Morning News.

In the West Texas town of Wink, where temperatures reached 102 degrees Monday, City Secretary Donna Maddux collected fees from sweaty residents in the comfort of an air conditioned office: "They tell me you can get accustomed to it. But I don't see how.

Talks trickle down on day of decision

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — President Clinton met Tuesday with his negotiating team on what could be the make-or-break day in Mideast summitry, as Israel's parliament speaker said the talks could end with a partial deal under which Israel recognizes a Palestinian state.

Clinton has said through a spokesman that he hopes the parties will have "wrapped up their business" by the time he is to leave for Japan Wednesday morning.

Israel's parliament speaker, Avraham Burg, raised the possibility of a partial deal, including Israel's recognition of a Palestinian state, in an interview Tuesday with The Associated Press.

"Listen, let's not fool ourselves, OK?" said Burg, who has spoken often to Israeli Prime Minister Ehud Barak throughout the summit and returned from Washington late last week. "If it walks like a duck, if it talks like a duck, if it sounds like a duck, it's a Palestinian state."

Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat has said he would declare a state by Sept. 13, with or without an agreement.

Burg said Israeli recognition of an independent state would actually help movement toward resolution of other issues. The most intractable are the fate of millions of Palestinian refugees and the status of Jerusalem, claimed by both sides as their capital.

By midmorning Tuesday, the summit's eighth day, Clinton was meeting with his negotiating team, White House spokesman P.J. Crowley said.

An Israeli Cabinet minister on the negotiating team at Camp David said before dawn Tuesday that his team had no plans to walk out of the summit.

"I can say we are not going home ... there has been no such decision," an irritated Amnon Lipkin-Shahak, the transportation minister, told Israel's army radio, which had managed to get a call through to him in defiance of a ban on contacts with negotiators.

Back home, hard-liners on both sides kept up pressure on their leaders not to make concessions.

GOP 'marriage penalty' tax cut nears passage in Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are on the brink of sending President Clinton a centerpiece of the GOP election-year tax relief agenda, a bill cutting income taxes $248 billion over 10 years for millions of married couples.

The Senate was expected to pass the "marriage-penalty" bill Tuesday and send it to the House. But instead of simply passing that version, GOP leaders will seek to change the bill so that it provides more tax relief in 2001 instead of waiting until later years, Republican aides said.

Republicans are aiming to send the legislation to Clinton before the GOP's national political convention begins July 31 in Philadelphia in hopes of drawing public attention to their differences with Democrats on tax cuts.

"We will see who supports marriage-tax relief, and we will see who thinks American families are not entitled to this relief," said Sen. William Roth, R-Del., the Senate Finance Committee chairman.

Clinton has said he could sign the measure into law only under one condition: that Congress also send him an acceptable bill creating a prescription drug benefit in the Medicare program. White House spokesman Joe Lockhart accused Republicans of playing politics by passing the tax-cut bill alone to force a veto.

"They can make political points, pass bills so they can talk about them at their convention, or we can get marriage penalty relief and prescription drugs for seniors," Lockhart said. "It's up to them: politics or substance?"

Elimination of the marriage penalty was the centerpiece of the $792 billion Republican tax cut that Clinton vetoed last year Republicans have spent this year passing bite-sized pieces of that larger tax cut using the huge anticipated budget surplus, hoping to frame clearer election-year distinctions between themselves and Democrats.

Investigation begins into plane crash that killed 56

PATNA, India (AP) — Aviation experts on Tuesday investigated whether a sudden burst of wind may have pushed down an aging Boeing jetliner that crashed into a housing complex, killing 56 people.

A government-owned Alliance Air's Boeing 737-200 crashed into the complex while trying to land at Patna airport on Monday, killing 51 aboard the plane and five people on the ground.

The 56th body was recovered Tuesday, said S.P. Modi, director of the airport authority of Patna. It was apparently the remains of one of those killed in the housing complex, where several people were also injured.

Seven people on the plane survived.

Doctors at the Patna Medical College worked with relatives of the dead Tuesday to identify nine bodies kept under blocks of ice in the mortuary.

A judge was named to head an expert team to investigate the crash, while aviation officials dismissed doubts about the airworthiness of the plane, which was 20 years old and due to be phased out of the fleet in two years.

Engineers have recovered the data and cockpit recorders. Analysis of the data could help experts determine if wind shear — a sudden change in wind direction — caused the plane to suddenly lose altitude, The Hindustan Times newspaper reported Tuesday.

P.T. Bopanna, an engineer who survived the crash, told reporters that that plane lurched and wobbled before it went down.
