

Homecoming preparations begin

Rockport-Fulton High School's annual homecoming activities will kick off at 7:30 p.m. Thursday evening with the lighting of a bonfire on Rockport Beach, RFHS Assistant Principal Russell D. Segler said Monday.

Segler said that students, members of the community and the RFHS Pirate Band will begin congregating at the beach at around 7 p.m. and the bonfire will be lit at 7:30 p.m.

Homecoming ceremonies will precede Friday evening's football game against Beeville, with the crowning of the homecoming queen and her court at 7:35 p.m. The football game is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m.

Nominees for homecoming queen, their sponsors and their escorts include Marla Blair, sponsored by Distributive Education Clubs of America and escorted by Gibson Parks Jr.; Kay Britzius, sponsored by the National Honor Society and escorted by Jimmy Booth; Lee Anna Cassel, sponsored by the Girls' Athletic Association and escorted by George Nava; Erica Chupe, sponsored by the Library Club and escorted by Robert Dominguez; Kristi Cosby, sponsored by the Lettermen's Association and escorted by Doyle

Parr; Mona Cowen, sponsored by the Vocational Office Education Club and escorted by Scott Russ; Robin Davis, sponsored by the Pirate Log and escorted by Tommy Barnard;

Roxanne Flores, sponsored by the Pirate Annual staff and escorted by Ramon Romero; Priscilda Garza, sponsored by the Thespian Society and Drama Club, escorted by Jesse Avila.

Other nominees are Cheryl Hunter, sponsored by the RFHS Pirate Band and escorted by Kevin Billeiter; Stacey Johnson, sponsored by the RFHS Choir and escorted by Randy Mullins; Dolly Lopez, sponsored by the Future Teachers of America and escorted by Tom Weaver; Nancy Martinez, sponsored by the RFHS Drill Team and escorted by Steve Arkell; Kimberly Meyer, sponsored by the RFHS Cheerleaders and escorted by Andy Logan; Yvette Olson, sponsored by the Future Homemakers of America and escorted by William Schmidt; Laura Smith, sponsored by the Science Club and Slide Rule, escorted by David Perkins; and Tammy Wendland, sponsored by the RFHS Student Council and escorted by Bobby Dingenary.

A homecoming queen and four runners-up will be presented with bouquets of flowers after the winner is announced.

Following the football game, a homecoming dance is scheduled from 10 p.m. until 1 a.m. in the cafeteria.

Students are preparing for homecoming this week with a series of special days. Monday, Oct. 24, was Sports Day, Tuesday was '50s Day, Wednesday is Western Day, Thursday is Dress-up Day and Friday is Green Day.

Grant possibilities are outlined during hearing

FULTON — The first public hearing on the need for a grant to do a comprehensive facilities planning study in order to determine the feasibility of a wastewater treatment plant for the Town of Fulton was held Monday evening, Oct. 24, at the town hall.

Garabed A. Harutunian of Triad Engineers of Austin was present at the meeting to explain the different types of grants available under the 1983 Texas Community Development Program. He also explained the procedure involved in making application to a state agency.

If the Town of Fulton were to procure a grant for a comprehensive planning study, drainage problems, streets, easements and lift stations would also be subjects of the study, in addition to a wastewater treatment plant. Alderwoman Pat Loflin read a statement Monday night outlining Fulton's immediate concerns. She presented the following reasons why Fulton needs such a study: drainage problems are present throughout the town; street repair is a constant expense, mainly due to the poor drainage; Fulton residents have been requesting sewer service for an extended period of time; pollution of the bay is a concern of area residents; the town is growing and study of these concerns can help eliminate problems before they develop.

Grants available under the Texas Community Development Program, administered by the Texas Department of Economic Development and the Department of Housing and Urban Development, include the Community Development Project Fund, Economic Development Project Fund, Planning/Capacity Building Fund, Discretionary Fund and the Jobs Bill Fund. Harutunian explained the purpose of each of these five funds, the maximum and minimum grants available and the deadline for application.

The Triad Engineers representative told the council that the third alternative, the Planning/Capacity Building Fund, is probably the town's best bet for procuring a grant. The fund's purpose is to address specific problems in a community. It is designed to aid those communities which are not participating in the Community Development Project Fund or the Economic Development Project Fund. The maximum grant is $25,000 and the minimum is zero. Application may be made quarterly, with the next opportunity being Dec. 1.

Harutunian said that the Town of Fulton could ask for the maximum amount for the study. Two applications would be filed, one with the Texas Community Development Program and the other with the Coastal Bend Council of Governments, which serves as a regional review committee.

Aside from the needs of the community, other criteria for successful grant application include a high unemployment rate in the community, a high percentage of minority residents and the severity of the community's problems. Although Harutunian said he could not guarantee Fulton would receive a grant, he would do everything possible to make Fulton a competitive applicant.

Harutunian will begin work on Fulton's application immediately. He said he hopes to have the application ready by the third week in November so it may be discussed in great detail at the public hearing next month.

During a special meeting preceding the public hearing Monday evening, the council awarded the lease on the bait-concession stand at L.E. Casterline Fishing Pier to the Walter McMillan Family. The McMillans will lease the stand for a period of one year with an option for renewal. They will carry liability insurance on the stand and the pier, pay the pier's electric bill and pay the Town of Fulton 6 percent of the gross from bait, fishing equipment and food sold at the stand.

Also during Monday evening's meeting, Fulton Mayor L.E. Casterline proclaimed Sunday, Oct. 30, as a day of prayer for world peace.

READY FOR CARNIVAL. Monica Clark, teacher, and Vicky Hinojosa, a teacher's aide in Rockport Elementary School's early childhood class are ready for the school's annual Halloween Carnival this Saturday, Oct. 29.

With Monica and Vicky are two of their students, Derrick Reeves and Mandy Clay. The early childhood class will sell balloons during the carnival, from 5-9 p.m., with proceeds to go to the Rockport Elementary PTA.

Notable notes

'Pray-in' planned

Aransas County residents are invited to participate in a specific, continuing prayer effort being sponsored by local religious and civic leaders in response to the recent tragedy in Lebanon. All residents are asked to join in prayer at 10 p.m. each night beginning this week. A "Pray-in" has been set for 3:30 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 30, at the Paws & Taws Building and will be open to the public.

Election school set

A representative of the Texas secretary of state's office will conduct an election school at 7 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 27, in the district courtroom of the Aransas County Courthouse. The school is for all election personnel and any interested persons.

City utilities phone

Rockport's utilities department — water, sanitary sewer and garbage collection — now has its own telephone number. Anyone wanting to reach this department is now asked to call 729-4801.

Volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed to teach English to immigrants. Classes will meet from 7-9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. For more information, call 729-1644.

Free vision screening

A free vision screening clinic will be held Wednesday, Oct. 26, in the lobby of the Corpus Christi Nursing Center, 5607 Everhart Road, Corpus Christi. The clinic will be from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. and is sponsored by the American Red Cross for anyone age 4 years and over.

Doe permit issuance

Doe permits will be issued to landowners or their agents for Refugio County on Nov. 9 from 8 a.m. - 5 p.m. at the County Courthouse. Issuance rates will depend on the landowner's location in the county, refer to map posted at the courthouse. A landowner is eligible for one permit if he or she owns property amounting to at least one half the issuance rate.

Banks show gains in quarterly reports

Third-quarter statements of condition from Aransas County's two banks have been released and are looking good, according to bank officials.

Tim Gilles, president of Allied Live Oak, termed that bank's report "outstanding" for the quarter ending Sept. 30. At First National, R. D. Mosier, executive vice president, said of the report — which showed First National's total assets up by more than $8.75 million from last year — "We've had a nice, steady growth."

Total assets of First National as of Sept. 30 amounted to $65,320,661.11, with $13,458,231.37 out for loan — more than $2 million over the loans in 1982. Deposits as of Sept. 30 at First National amounted to $59,383,461.92, compared to $50,970,639.56 in 1982.

At Allied Live Oak, deposits as of Sept. 30 stood at $40,317,129.32, up 22.4 percent from Dec. 31, 1982. Loans to businesses and individuals in Aransas County totalled $24,025,291.22, a 73 percent increase over 1982, Gilles said.

School district maintenance crews began taking out the damaged floor in preparation for a new one.

City alderman reported doing well after surgery

Rockport Alderman Murray McMillan was reported doing well Monday after undergoing surgery for a blood clot at St. Luke's Hospital in Houston.

McMillan's wife, Patti, in a telephone interview said she and her husband "don't know when he'll be back" to Rockport, but that he had been moved out of St. Luke's intensive care unit into a private room. "They feel he's making good progress," Mrs. McMillan said.

McMillan was originally taken to a hospital in Victoria after experiencing an inability to move his left hand, then was transferred to St. Luke's last week for more specialized care.

Mrs. McMillan added her husband "will require some therapy" but McMillan, who took the phone briefly, said, "I feel pretty good."

McMillan reportedly spoke with Rockport city officials Monday morning about the since-cancelled Oct. 25 council meeting.

Mixed drink sales bring $14,000 in tax revenues

Sales of mixed drinks in Aransas County have resulted in more than $14,000 in additional revenue to the county and incorporated cities within its limits for the third quarter of 1983, according to State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

Bullock said the revenues returned to Aransas County, Rockport, Fulton and Aransas Pass were part of a general $10.7 million returned recently to 219 Texas counties and 416 cities as their share of the state's 10 percent tax on mixed drinks.

The cities and counties receive 15 percent of the taxes collected on mixed drink sales.

Total tax revenues collected in the unincorporated areas of Aransas County for the three-month period ending Sept. 30 amounted to $60,922.86, with the county's share being $9,138.43, Bullock said.

Fulton received $3,041.94 from total collections of $20,279.58 for the three months and Rockport received $1,309.44 as its share of $8,729.59 in mixed drink tax collections.

That portion of Aransas Pass that is in Aransas County received $1,385.39 out of $9,235.91 total tax collections.

The remainder of Aransas Pass, in San Patricio County, received a $3,953.13 share of $26,354.17 in taxes collected.

Gym floor to be replaced

Efforts to replace the gymnasium floor at Rockport-Fulton High School began Monday, Oct. 24, as Aransas County Independent School District maintenance crews began taking out the floor.

The problem began last Friday, Oct. 14, when the gym floor buckled, up to 2 feet in some places. ACISD Superintendent E.J. Randow said last week that the damage to the floor was caused by a loose joint in the coupling of a hot water pipe underneath the floor. Hot water then leaked out under the floor, building up pressure until it buckled.

The hot water system had undergone modification earlier in the year by Powermaster of Texas, a firm which specializes in energy management.

Randow said Monday that the district's maintenance crews would rip out the old floor, salvaging as much as possible and that Powermaster has accepted the responsibility of installing a new floor. The superintendent estimated that it would be at least 45 to 60 days before the new floor is ready to use.

GAS BURNS CLEANER THAN ELECTRICITY

"I fry 'em up with gas because I know that even though electricity looks clean, somewhere something has to burn to turn the generators."

Public hearing on telephone rates set

"Telephone service is a necessity, not a luxury. Yet Texas consumers are threatened with unprecedented and unwarranted increases in local telephone rates as a result of the pending breakup of the Bell System," Sen. Lloyd Doggett (D-Austin) said in Austin last Friday. "Instead of helping consumers, divestiture of Southwestern Bell from AT&T may make telephone service an unaffordable luxury for many Texans. To consider ways to deal with this serious problem, I have called a meeting of the Senate Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs for this Friday, Oct. 28, in Austin."

Public Utility Commission (PUC) Chairman Alan Erwin and Commissioners Peggy Rosson and Phil Ricketts will participate in the hearing, along with representatives of consumer organizations and telephone companies. A major focus of the hearing will be the authority of the Federal Communications Commission and the PUC to impose so-called "access charges" as part of local telephone bills.

"These 'access charges' that would be imposed on all phone customers, regardless of whether they make any long distance calls, are supposedly needed to replace the present subsidy of local phone rates with revenues from long distance calls," Doggett said.

"However, there is little evidence that such a subsidy of local rates ever existed. The purpose of this hearing is to take testimony from members of the public and from experts in the field on whether access charges are justified, and on the effects they would have on the affordability of phone service."

The proposed "access charges" would add about $4 to residential phone bills in Texas beginning next year. They would rise sharply in future years. Access charges are responsible for a large part of Southwestern Bell's $1.36 billion rate increase request, which is now before the PUC. A bill blocking the imposition of access charges is now pending in Congress. The Subcommittee will take testimony regarding appropriate state and federal legislation to expand the ability of the PUC to keep phone rates more reasonable.

"The Subcommittee would welcome comments from members of the public who are concerned about the proposals for access charges and the doubling of local phone rates," Doggett said.

"Please write to us at P.O. Box 12068, Austin, Texas 78711, or call 475-3731."

The Subcommittee hearing will begin at 1 p.m. this Friday, Oct. 28, in the Sergeants' Committee Room of the Capitol.

Explorer Thor Heyerdahl to give public lecture at UT

AUSTIN — Thor Heyerdahl, a Norwegian explorer and archeologist whose voyages on primitive vessels have gained worldwide attention, will give a public lecture Friday, Oct. 28, at the University of Texas.

The talk, at 8 p.m. in the Academic Center Auditorium, will be entitled "Testing Prehistoric Water Craft in Three World Oceans." Sponsors are the Departments of Anthropology, Zoology and the University Public Lecture Committee.

Heyerdahl was educated at the University of Oslo, specializing in zoology and geography. After his first field expedition to the South Pacific in 1937-38, however, he shifted his interests to the origins of the cultures on the Pacific Islands. He later received a Ph.D. in archeology from the University of Oslo.

In 1947, Heyerdahl organized and led the celebrated Kon-Tiki expedition, drifting with five companions across 4,300 miles of the Pacific, from Peru to Raroia in the Tuamotu Islands, to disprove the belief that the aborigines of South America could never have reached Polynesia.

His book on the voyage, "Kon-Tiki," has been translated into 64 languages. Another book, "Aku-Aku" (1958), his description of the historic archeological expedition to Easter Island, also reached a vast audience.

"The Ra Expeditions," Heyerdahl's story of how he and his crew crossed the Atlantic twice in a boat made of papyrus reeds, was published in 1971.

In addition to those publications, he has published seven scientific books and numerous papers on his theories and findings. His theories on South American influence in Polynesia were recognized officially by the 10th Pacific Science Congress in 1961.

In addition to those publications, he has published seven scientific books and numerous papers on his theories and findings. His theories on South American influence in Polynesia were recognized officially by the 10th Pacific Science Congress in 1961.

Heyerdahl's Oct. 28 lecture is being given in conjunction with the Centennial Symposium on Migration Mechanisms and Adaptive Significance sponsored by the UT Marine Science Institute at Port Aransas. He will be the keynote speaker for the symposium, which is being held Oct. 30-Nov. 1 at the institute.

Play therapy workshop set

KINGSVILLE — Parents, teachers and counselors may earn one and a half Continuing Education Units while studying play therapy in Texas A&I University's weekend guidance and counseling minicourse Nov. 4-6. The course is entitled "Play Therapy: Dynamics of the Process of Helping Children."

Dr. Garry Landreth, professor in the Counselor

Education Division at North Texas State University, will lead the sessions. Topics will include the rationale for play therapy, toys and materials and problems and responses. Activities will focus on practical demonstrations and critiques of video tape therapy sessions.

Landreth has worked extensively with children in play therapy relationships and has trained parents and presented programs throughout the United States and Canada. He also authored five books including "Play Therapy: Dynamics of the Process of Counseling Children."

A licensed counselor and psychologist, he also is the supervising psychologist for the Child Study Center in Fort Worth.

Tuition is $25 plus a $15 workshop fee. Limited housing is available in university dormitories and reservations should be made in advance.

For details contact the Texas A&I Center for Continuing Education at 595-2861.

The term "acid rain" was first coined more than 100 years ago by a British chemist, Robert Angus Smith, says the National Wildlife Federation. In 1852, Smith observed that as skies over Manchester became increasingly dirty, the rain became increasingly acidic. It wasn't until the mid-1960's however, that acid rain became a focus of scientific study around the world.

Two checks forged

Rockport police are investigating two forged checks for a total of $750 which were passed at a city bank Oct. 18 and 19. Authorities are looking for a suspect described only as a white female.

The owner of a city bake shop reported that thieves took two dozen cookies when the bake shop was burglarized between 3:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21, and 6:45 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22. The building was entered through a padlocked rear door.

Bessie Miller of Rockport reported that a person or persons broke a small pane of glass out of a Bronte Street building between 10:15 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21, and 6 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 22. Damage was estimated at $50.

The front tire of a car parked beside an Eloise Street residence was punctured with a sharp instrument between 7:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22.

The bathroom window of a Cherry Street residence was reported broken sometime between Saturday, Oct. 8, and Saturday, Oct. 22. Damage was estimated at $50 and the incident is under investigation.

Rockport police made two arrests on warrants and one arrest for public intoxication.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with rules and orders of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of its intent to re-file evidence and appropriate tariff(s) in support of a request to establish rates for the use of certain complex inside telephone wiring in the amount of $54.5 million annually. This request was previously a part of the considerations in Docket 5141 and now has been re-docketed as Docket 5420.

Customers who do not own the Complex Inside Wire associated with their Customer Premises Systems (such as PBX and Key Systems), and who utilize Southwestern Bell's wiring after January 1, 1984, could be affected by this request. On January 1, 1984, all of the Customer Premises Systems presently provided by Southwestern Bell Telephone Company will be transferred to a subsidiary of AT&T and that subsidiary of AT&T will be almost exclusively responsible for the charges pursuant to the proposed tariff on January 1, 1984. After January 1, 1984, customers who purchase their Complex Customer Premises Equipment and do not purchase, but continue to use, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's inside wire will be subject to the charges proposed in the tariff.

The proposed effective date for these new rates is January 1, 1984.

Persons interested in intervening in this matter should file a written motion expeditiously with the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Austin, Texas 78757, as the Hearing on the Merits in Docket 5420 is set for November 21, 1983.

BEWARE OF A HOUSE THAT'LL HAUNT YOU.

The haunting starts just after you settle into a home that doesn't have built-in energy savers. Like insulated walls, windows, doors, ducts, water heater and attic—and an efficient heating and air conditioning system. Without them, ghastly heating and cooling bills appear. Every month. Invisible energy leaks begin to lurk. Eerie drafts wander here and there. A terrifying tale—one that goes on and on. Unless, of course, you build or buy a Good Cents Home. 'One of those frustrating games ...'

Pirates lose to Tuloso-Midway

"Frustrated" is Head Coach Aubrey Schulz's main reaction to the Rockport-Fulton Pirates' 6-0 loss to Tuloso-Midway Friday. Five inches of rain prior to the contest left the T-M field muddy and slick and according to Schulz, the weather was the main factor in the Pirates' loss. R-F repeatedly lost the ball during the muddy game, fumbling seven times in all and losing one pass to a T-M interception. "This is one of those frustrating games that they're going to remember for the rest of their lives," said Schulz.

Sumners take doubles award

Elaine and Bob Sumner retained their hold on the 55-year and over mixed doubles for the third year in a row in the annual Mason "Over the Hill" tournament Oct. 15.

With other members of the Rockport Tennis Association, the Sumners were among 300 entrants participating in the popular seniors' event. Also entering this year's tournament were RTA members Mary John Lynch and Polly Bracht.

In addition to the 55 and over mixed doubles win with her husband, Mrs. Sumner, teamed with tournament founder Helen Tallent, a winner in the 55 and over women's doubles.

Lynch won the 45 and over singles title and she and Bracht took the women's consolation 45 and over doubles.

Evidence of that shows up in the evening's statistics — the Pirates had 218 yards on the ground to the T-M Warriors' 118 and 17 in the air, where the Warriors had none. "They (T-M) got 35 yards right at the end of the game — take that away and that leaves them with 75-85 yards. I'm more than happy with the defense."

Schulz also had praise for the offense, citing Dwayne Walls' 158-yard night. Carrying the ball 27 times, Walls fumbled four carries. Number 22 Scott Russ carried seven times for 58 Pirate yards, fumbling once. Quarterback Rudy Soliz kept the ball seven times, gaining only three yards and fumbling twice.

Soliz attempted four passes and completed two — one a spectacular one-hand connection by Walls and the other to David Cochran.

The muddy conditions also resulted in one Pirate, Guy Haskell, being injured. Injuring a knee on the first play of the game, Haskell was out for the night and remains sidelined. "He bruised his knee and the swelling hasn't gone down yet. They're still not sure what it is," reported Schulz.

The loss to T-M leaves the Pirates 4-3 for the season and out of the running for the district title, a fact that Schulz feels is not of prime importance. "People have asked us about district all year and we've told them that it wasn't that important to what we were trying to do. "We came into this wanting to improve the team and we have. Right now, they've won one more game than they did last year. We've turned their attitude around and kicked off a new program.

"It's evident in the lower teams — JV freshmen teams. The ninth graders are 3-3-1 and the JV is 6-1. That's all because of what the varsity's done.

"What's important is that the team's improved and is competitive."

Children know all about Santa's helpers, the little men with the pointed red caps and long white beards who spend their time making toys for the big boss to deliver. Fantasy land? Not in Erie, Pa.
Although the caps and the beards are optional, the toymakers there are hard at it and have been since 1976 when the idea was taken in hand by Tim Coughlin and Emmy Nolan, director and coordinator for the local Retired Senior Volunteer Program (RSVP). Back then there were RSVP volunteers both eager and qualified to make toys for needy children, but there were no facilities to do so. That is, until the U.S. Marine Corps came to the rescue.

Coughlin and Nolan had heard that at the Marine Corps Reserve Center there was a woodworking plant, fully equipped. They paid a call on Marine Captain Jerry Scienski and told him what they had in mind — toys for tots. He liked the sound of the idea and said, can do.

RSVP set up shop with four volunteers: Wilbur Ulrich, Douglas Loesch, Harrison Hogan and Anthony Schmitt. The quartet had enjoyed very active careers in the industrial sector but their collective hobby was woodworking. They set to work in late November, knowing that they could not meet the Christmas rush and so would target their output for the following year. In the course of it, their numbers increased to a dozen, and by the time Santa was ready to ride, they had made some 350 toys — trucks, cars, farm machinery, doll's cradles and miniature furniture.
Since that first Christmas, numbers have told the story of a volunteer effort which has brought cheer to so many where there might have been none at all. Today there are 25 RSVP workers in the Toys-For-Tots Program, averaging over 1,000 toys every Christmas. More, the scope of their woodworking has expanded to supply aid in other areas of need: making playpens for the Zem Zem Shriner's Hospital; tables and chairs for the Erie Public Library and the Community Day Center; ornaments for the Christmas tree at the Juvenile Hospital. For Erie Independence House, a home for people who use wheelchairs, tables were made for vegetable and flower planting and bunk beds were added to the list for other organizations.

A year ago there were four RSVP groups going at it three days a week. Then, in October, a real wrench was thrown in the works. Word came that the Marine Center was to shut down to make room for a new highway. Still, until the woodworking equipment was moved to Texas, the toymakers kept at it and supplied 1,000 toys this past Christmas.

They began the new year on a low note, wondering if this was to be the end of their remarkable endeavor. The answer came out of a bridge game in which RSVP volunteer Clifford Hougue's partner, Fred Infield, mentioned that the Erie Press System Company was not using its pattern shop. The next day Hougue and fellow volunteer, William S. Hamilton, called on plant manager Gary Lunger, and the result was that Toys-For-Tots was back in operation. Badly needed woodworking equipment was supplied through the local businesses and today Santa's 25 helpers are going full steam. After all, in Erie, Pa., they know the spirit of Christmas is a year-round activity.

International trade is an important source of jobs

International trade has surfaced as an important source of jobs to help keep the U.S. economy growing. Due to widespread attention given the auto and steel industries, which have suffered most from foreign competition, the plus side of foreign trade often is overlooked. Or not fully appreciated.

It is one thing, for example, to understand that exports of goods and services accounted for approximately 4.7 percent of U.S. civilian employment in 1981. (Some people may ask: How important is that in an economy of more than 100 million workers?)

But it is another matter when you realize that export activities are a greater factor in some industries and regions than the 4.7 percent figure would indicate.

In a recent analysis for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, Graciela Testa-Ortiz, director of its forecast section, points out that aggregate figures "mask the extent to which particular regions and industries rely upon exports and are affected by international economic conditions."

In 1981, for example, exports made up 13.5 percent of the value of U.S. manufacturers' shipments. But for seven industries — tobacco, chemicals, primary metals, electronic equipment, transportation equipment and instruments — sales to foreign customers ranged from 16.6 percent to as much as 23.8 percent of total shipments.

Exports accounted for 12.8 percent of total manufacturing employment compared with 4.7 percent of all employment; but in these seven industries exports kept 17 to 19 percent of all workers on the job.

Agricultural exports are even of greater importance to farmers, accounting for 25 percent of all income.

And here's another easily overlooked point. Export jobs create other jobs. In 1981, manufactured exports accounted for 2.6 million jobs directly — and indirectly for 2.2 million jobs in such nonmanufacturing activities as trade, transportation and business services.

Hermann Sons reach 80,000 members

The Order of the Sons of Hermann in Texas, oldest fraternal benefit society in the nation, in early October reached the 80,000-member mark for the first time in its history.

Louis B. Engelke of San Antonio, grand president, announced that Larry Wayne Cox, 31, of Jourdan-ton had been identified by the Data Processing Department as the 80,000th member. Cox, recently inducted in the Jourdan-ton Hermann Sons Family Lodge No. 310, was reported on the Grand Lodge computer listing Oct. 6.

The Order of the Sons of Hermann was organized in 1840 by German immigrants in New York City. It was named in honor of a folk hero, Hermann the Cherusker, whose tribal forces in the Battle of Teutoburg Forest in 9 A.D. annihilated three Roman legions. Since the Romans were thus denied these Teutonic lands, the battle has been listed as one of the 15 most decisive in world history.

Hermann Sons came to Texas in 1860 with the organization of Harmonia Lodge No. 1 in San Antonio. The new lodge was chartered in 1861 and by 1890, when a grand lodge was founded in San Antonio, there were lodges in seven other Texas counties.

In 1921 the Sons of Hermann in Texas ended its 60-year affiliation with the national order and became a separate entity. The Texas group already had more members than the lodges in all other states.

ACRA celebrates 18th year

The Aransas County Riding Association (ACRA) kicked off its 18th year with a barbecue and moonlight trail ride Saturday evening, Oct. 21.

The event marked the association's annual membership drive, held each October. The group was founded by Edward True-love in October 1965.

The non-profit organization promotes horsemanship through trail rides, cookouts, a pet fair, play days, horse shows and other activities.

Membership is open to all interested persons, both children and adults.

Association officers for 1984 are Melvin Moore, president; James Fox, vice president; Alene Mundine, treasurer; Peggie McLester, secretary; Jan Moore, rodeo secretary; Bill Parr, arena director; and Elizabeth King, public relations. Members of the 1984 board of directors are Jody Fox, Kenney Keller, Alvin King, Elizabeth King, David Parr and Mary Nan Parr.

Members for 1984 include Michall Anderson, Billy Joe Anderson, Ken Boyce, Bobbie Brock, Teresa Fuller, Judy Fuller, Alvin King, Elizabeth King, Trey King, Mary Ramsey, Donna Ransey, Clare Keller, Kenney Keller, John Lee, Melvin Moore, Jan Moore, Christi Moore, Amy Moore, Joby Moore, Peggie McLester, Lea McLester, Vel McLester, Benny McLester, Debbie Parr, David Allen Parr, Veronica Parr, Mary Parr, David Parr, Mary Lou Price, Bill Price and Bill Parr.

The ACRA meets on the third Monday of each month. For more information call 729-5130.

Luce named USCG officer

Walter Luce of Rockport has been elected vice-captain of Division VII, U.S. Coast Guard (USCG) Auxiliary, for 1984.

The election came during a meeting of the USCG Auxiliary Division VII executive board on Oct. 22.

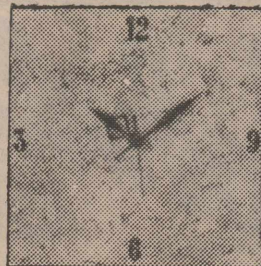

Luce has been very active with the Auxiliary, most recently filling the position of materials officer for the entire 8th District.

The 7th Division covers the area from Austin to Brownsville and from Victoria to Del Rio, and contains nine flotillas, including Rockport Flotilla 79.

Luce and his wife Marguerite are residents of Key Allegro. Mrs. Luce has been the commander of Rockport Flotilla 79 during 1983.

Cast of Characters
Marilyn Monroe was almost penniless when she died 20 years ago. In fact, an investigation into the legendary blonde's estate reveals that she was up to her ears in debt.

Incredibly, the vast bulk of Marilyn's estate was auctioned off for a mere pittance. Even her deathbed, which experts says would sell for as much as $100,000 today, was sold for an amazing $50 in 1963. What's more, the value of Marilyn's furniture and other personal property was only $500, according to the inventory and appraisals filed by her attorney in 1963.

"The Inventory and Appraisal shows the value of the real property being sold at $87,000 (her house), and the value of the personal property being sold at $500," states an official copy of the appraisals by Marilyn's attorney Aaron Frisch.

But several months later, her personal belongings and furniture were valued at $1,089 by California State Inheritance Tax Appraiser James Hall. More than 40 items of furniture were sold from Marilyn's home after she died and the sale price came to a paltry $1,558. At the time of her death, court records showed the equity in her home did not exceed $25,000.

Marilyn was supposed to receive 10 percent of the gross from her picture "Some Like It Hot," reveal court records. That would be more than $500,000. However debts ate up most of that. "It's amazing that Marilyn Monroe's personal items were sold that cheap," says Joe Dougherty, a spokesman for Sotheby, one of the world's most exclusive auctioneering houses. "Just last month we sold one dress that she wore on a USO tour in Korea in 1954 for $1,980. And that was just a dress. In 1981, we sold three items belonging to Marilyn Monroe — a silver-colored handbag, a pair of long white gloves and a pink mesh bra — for $1,040. I find it incredible that her bed was sold for only $50. It could conceivably bring six figures today . . .

News Channel . . . Just off the snowshoes and wax the runners on the family sleigh! An accumulation of approximately 429 feet, or 5,145 inches of snowfall has been forecast to blanket the United States during the 1983-84 winter season. This is about 100 feet more than last winter's official recording of 349.33 feet of snow.

It's not the onslaught of a new Ice Age, but the grand total of computerized individual city-wide snow accumulation predictions — from 5.4 to 130.8 inches — for 114 cities across the country, featured in the fourth "Jacobsen Snow Almanac." The 28-page illustrated compendium of snow facts, folklore and winter history published by the Charlotte, N.C.-based manufacturer of lawn and snow equipment annually issues computerized snowfall predictions, based on 40 years of snow statistics as compiled by the National Climatic Center, Asheville, N.C.

The front-runner for the most snowfall this winter is expected to be Sault Sainte Marie, located in Michigan's upper peninsula with 130.8 inches forecast. Seven other cities have been forecast to receive more than 100 inches of the white stuff, including Caribou, Me., Flagstaff, Ariz., Houghton Lake, Mich. and the upper New York State cities of Rochester, Syracuse, Buffalo and Binghamton.

Salem and Portland, Ore., are on the opposite end of the scale with least accumulation predicted by the Almanac. Salem is forecast to receive 5.4 and Portland 5.6 inches of snow each for the entire winter . . . to be continued next week.

In the wings . . . Getting out of Russia was no laughing matter for standup comic Yakov Smirnoff, but now he's wowing audiences from New York to Oregon and has just had a starring role in his first American movie. Smirnoff tells of his adventures in the USA in the November issue of "Gallery" magazine.

"When I applied to leave Russia," Smirnoff said, "I was immediately fired from my job as a comedian on a Crimean cruise ship." He says he doesn't know why they finally let him (and his family) out, but "I didn't ask." He began yucking it up the moment he entered the immigration office in New York.

Through an interpreter, they asked him what he wanted to do in America. "When I said I wanted to be a stand-up comic, they howled." Finding a job as a bar boy in a saloon, he began to learn English, he found a girlfriend and eventually became a bar boy at Grossinger's in the Catskills — basic-training country for many of our top comics.

"This was made in Poland," he remarks, "but don't look for a union label. I also have Russian designer jeans, Calvin Kremlins. If they could talk, they'd be shot."

Channel Views: . . . Andy Gibb will star and be honored in a major tribute on MCA TV's "Salute! Hosted by Dick Clark." The announcement of the Gibb Salute coincided with the premiere of the weekly Pierre Cossette Productions series. With 80 percent national coverage, "Salute!" emerges as one of the best-cleared programs in first-run syndication. A "Tribute To Jerry Lee Lewis" opened the "Salute" series and during the tribute, Jerry Lee teamed with the Rolling Stones' Keith Richards and Mick Fleetwood of Fleetwood Mac for a rousing rendition of "Your Cheatin' Heart."

The performance marked the first time the rock superstars ever played together. Each week, America's favorite musical host, Dick Clark, salutes a music superstar who performs in person. The programs are full of the music and entertainment most identified with the honoree, as viewers get an up close and personal look at the star's rise to fame.

Every show will be star-studded with top name guest performers who were inspired by or associated with the star being saluted. They join right in the musical celebration with their own production numbers, combining song and dance with personal reminiscences that often reveal previously unknown stories about the honoree . . .

Will Shakespeare once asked, "What's in a name?" Well, according to Tony Curtis the right name is everything. The actor, dropping into the Union Plaza Hotel in Las Vegas to catch "Sugar" said that in his case a change of name meant millions of dollars. "There I was . . . Bernie Schwartz . . . hanging around Sardi's in New York waiting to be discovered," he recalled. "I wasn't exactly Laurence Olivier in the English department. It was strictly dese, dem and doze. The Universal grabbed me and changed by name to Jimmy Curtis. That was better, but not much. Then they changed it to Tony and that was like parting the Red Sea. The whole show came alive and I knew I had it made."

Today's gossip is tomorrow's headlines — Broadway may not be what it one was, but then who is? . . .

Law enforcement explored

State of the region

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

High school students in a growing number of communities are getting the chance to learn whether or not law enforcement careers would be right for them. The chance is through an Explorer Scout Center Program.

Sgt. Ann Pratt is advisor of a Nueces County Explorer Troop and a member of the Council of Governments Crime Prevention Advisory Committee. The Nueces County troop has been established for eight years and seven members have gone into the law enforcement field. Sgt. Pratt says it can be just as important for the young people to discover at this age that police work is not for them as it is to find the career suitable. Troop members are from 15 to 20 years of age.

A new troop is being formed at Flour Bluff. If any law enforcement agency in the Coastal Bend wants to sponsor a troop, Sgt. Pratt will assist. It is a co-educational program for both young men and young women.

Explorer Scouts receive much of the basic training that police officers receive. After receiving basic training, they ride in patrol cars as observers. They see both the bad and good sides of the job.

The troop is of assistance to the law enforcement officers. Troop members direct traffic and handle crowds for local celebrations and other events as well as conducting bicycle safety programs and other community service events with young people.

In Flour Bluff, first indications are that interest is high. At the first meeting, 28 boys and girls showed up, and all 28 came back for the second meeting.

Each year, a national conference is held for the Scouts who are exploring police careers. This year's was held in Colorado. The respect that the program has nationally was shown by the fact that among those in attendance at the conference were directors of the FBI, the CIA, Secret Service and military intelligence. The Nueces County post, competing with 251 posts in the nation, came back with three awards.

Sgt. Pratt says that the conference next year will be Aug. 6-11 in Columbus, Ohio. She suggests any law enforcement agency hoping to take a troop call on her or the Gulf Coast Council, Boy Scouts of America, to get efforts started right away. This would allow time both for training and for money raising that is involved in travel expenses.

Auxiliary finalizes Market Days plans

LAMAR — The Lamar Volunteer Fire Department Auxiliary committees are finalizing plans for the auxiliary's annual Market Days set for Friday and Saturday, Nov. 11-12.

Highlighting the special event will be drawings for twin soft-sculptured dolls made by Jean McVay, a Navajo-patterned afghan by Sandy Sloop and a cuddly brown bear by Jean Wilkerson. These prizes are now on exhibit on the "Whooping Crane" at the Sea Gun Marina.

Chances on the drawings are being offered at one for a $1 donation or six for a $5 donation to the Lamar Volunteer Fire Department. Tickets may be obtained from Captain "Brownie" Brown or from auxiliary members.

Items are still being accepted for the Market Days sale, according to Jan McGlasson, chairman of the event, and may be donated by calling 729-3779, 729-0891 or 729-1016.

Included among the sales items will be a variety of plants. Margaret House is chairman of this department.

'Texas Images'

Conner Museum hosts exhibit

KINGSVILLE — Twenty-four Texas symbols and their stories are presented in the "Texas Images" exhibit scheduled for display at Texas A&I University's John E. Conner Museum Oct. 29 through Dec. 16.

Designed and constructed by the University of Texas Institute of Texan Cultures at San Antonio, the traveling exhibit includes striking color photographs of familiar state symbols such as the bluebonnet, the Longhorn steer, the Lone Star flag and the historic Alamo facade.

Some of the less well-known symbols presented include the unofficial state mammal and bird, the armadillo and roadrunner.

Each symbol, from the very obvious to the obscure, captures the rich variety of geography, natural resources, culture and people of Texas, says museum program curator Pat Purnell.

Winning entries from the local photography contest, "Images of Kingsville," will also be on display.

Hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 2:30-5 p.m. on Sunday, and by appointment only on Saturday. Admission is free.

Pipelines... make good neighbors

America has over 220,000 miles of petroleum pipelines carrying crude oil and products to refineries and storage terminals across the United States. Each day, more than 1.5 billion ton/miles of crude oil and products move through this network. These pipelines have a safety record second to none in the transportation industry . . . and we want you to help us keep it that way.

- liquids on or a mist above the ground in the area of a pipeline.
- Flames originating from an opening in the ground.
- If you become aware of a pipeline leak . . .
- LEAVE THE LEAK AREA IMMEDIATELY.
- Avoid driving into vapor clouds.
- Avoid direct contact with the escaping liquids.

When you see signs like those shown above, they tell you that there's a pipeline nearby. If it's underground, you can't see it, of course. But it's there, working quietly to provide energy for you and other consumers throughout this nation.

Some of these signs list the commodity transported in the pipeline, the name of the operator, and a telephone number where the operator's representative can be reached at all times.

Although pipelines have an exceptionally good safety record, once in a while a leak can occur. Indications of a leak might include:

- A strange or unusual odor in the vicinity of a pipeline.
- A hissing or roaring sound (caused by petroleum or product escaping from a pipeline).
- A dense white cloud or fog.
- A spot of dead or discolored vegetation.
- An accumulation of petroleum

- Avoid creating sparks or sources of heat which could cause the liquids or vapor to ignite and burn. If you find yourself in a suspected vapor area, do not light a match, start an engine or even switch on an electric light.
- Notify the pipeline operator as soon as you reach a safe area. Call collect. Give your name, a description of the leak and its location. If you do not know who the pipeline operator is, call your local fire, police or sheriff's department, or the state police. Advise them of the nature and location of the emergency.

If you see someone digging near a pipeline or doing other construction work . . . or if you plan to do such work near a pipeline yourself . . . please call the telephone number shown on the sign and let the pipeline company know so damage can be avoided. It's in your interest . . . and the nation's.

U.S. economy seems to strengthen

Reaganomics has been pushed off the front pages and the television evening news — right along with the news that the U.S. business recovery is one of the strongest on record.

While the economy is still not out of the woods, signs are growing that it may succeed where past recoveries have failed: achieving full recovery without reigniting high rates of inflation.

Much will depend on whether President Reagan's economic policies, particularly his program of tax and spending cuts — nicknamed Reaganomics and blamed for the recession — can run their full course and what mischief Congress, which is all fired up over budget deficits, creates for the economy.

Its biggest mistake, of course, would be to attempt to solve the budget problems by raising taxes.

In its latest economic analysis, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and its chief economist, Dr. Richard W. Rahn, declare: "Reaganomics is working!"

"Much of the credit for our current economic strength should go to the original economic game plan, which this year is being put into play to a greater extent than ever," says Dr. Rahn. "The plan called for reduction in taxes, outlays and regulation, along with a moderate and stable monetary growth."

Here is what's been happening:

U.S. output for the first six months of 1983 grew by 2.9 percent, compared to an average growth of 2.4 percent in the five last business comebacks.

With 300,000 new workers employed in July, U.S. payrolls have added 2.5 million workers since the first of the year, an unprecedented increase for the beginning of a recovery. The gain is approximately double that of the comparable period following the 1974 recession.

Inflation. For 1983, inflation is expected to average 3.3 percent, a far cry from the double-digit rates before the Reagan economic plan was put into place. Although prices may rise 5 percent in 1984 and 1985, the decline in inflation remains a great success story.

What about federal spending and taxes, which together helped push the nation into an economic slump?

That's the bad news. Despite a series of three reductions in individual income tax rates and unprecedented curbs on spending growth — not cuts in spending, which are out of the question — here is the sad story:

Taxes still eat up 19 percent of the Gross National Product (GNP), all we produce in goods and services. Spending has skyrocketed to 25 percent of GNP.

The best that can be said is that neither taxes nor spending is as great as it would be without Reaganomics.

And that's good news.

The baby weighed 8 pounds, 3 ounces, and measured 21 inches in length.

Maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Serafin Guerra of Rio Grande City.

Paternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Joe Zapata of Sinton.

RRC's Wallace asks for national energy conference

In a letter sent to President Reagan Oct. 21, Railroad Commission Chairman Mack Wallace criticized a key point of the administration's newly announced National Energy Plan and called for a bipartisan national energy conference to "outline the steps that must be taken to help secure America's energy future."

Wallace summarized the contents of the letter to oil and gas industry executives assembled in Laredo for the commission's monthly statewide oil and gas hearing.

present energy situation to the crisis generated by the Arab oil embargo of 1973, Wallace told the president "I believe we are in an equal — if not worse — situation today." According to Wallace, repeated references to "oil glut" and "natural gas bubbles" have deluded the public and the government hasn't realized the seriousness of the situation.

"The fact of the matter is," said Wallace, "at this very moment we do not have enough oil and gas for our own national security."

Highlighting the weaknesses in the U.S. energy posture, Wallace noted that the 350 million barrels of oil in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve would only last 10 weeks if foreign supplies were shut off. He also pointed out that although the U.S. has a 35-day supply of gasoline now, disruption in deliveries and spot shortages would drop us as little as three days after a foreign cutoff.

Wallace said Americans can take little comfort from widely-reported import reductions, since preliminary August figures show imports have risen to six million barrels a day. That is only slightly below the 6.2 million barrels a day imported at the time of the 1973 embargo.

Texas oil production, some 30 percent of the U.S. total, has declined almost a million barrels a day from the 1973 level, Wallace told the president.

Wallace said that although the nation's situation in oil is marginal, its posture on natural gas is much worse. The temporary oversupply could be exhausted by 1985, he said, noting that according to a recent study "more than 40 percent of this nation's future gas demand must be supplied by wells which have not yet even been drilled."

MDA offers patients free flu shots

The Coastal Bend/Valley Chapter of the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) is offering free anti-influenza inoculations again this year to patients who have muscular dystrophy or related neuromuscular diseases covered by the Association's programs, according to Alice Gloria, president of the chapter.

Children and adults with neuromuscular disorders are considered at high risk of serious illness if infected with influenza viruses and should receive flu shots annually as medically prescribed, she added.

The Coastal Bend/Valley Chapter of the Association will pay for flu shots for all patients it serves, whether shots are administered by patients' personal physicians or by physicians at MDA clinics.

MDA supports some 235 hospital-affiliated clinics throughout the United States and in Puerto Rico. In the Coastal Bend/Valley area these clinics are at Ada Wilson Hospital in Corpus Christi and Family Medical Clinic in Mallen.

IDS IDEAS TO HELP YOU MANAGE MONEY

Author tours Texas' borders

Texana author Ann Ruff claims "there really is life after Texas." In her latest book, "Traveling Texas Borders," Ruff travels outside the state — but not too far out — to tell her readers about the many diversions waiting "over there."

Beginning with Texas' southernmost city, Ruff takes her readers clockwise up the Mexican border to New Mexico, then north and east to Oklahoma and Arkansas and south to Louisiana, finally reaching the Gulf Coast.

In her breezy, anecdotal style, she takes a look at the best places to eat and stay overnight and describes some of the seasonal events held in each area. She even throws in exciting stories about notorious outlaws or ill-fated business ventures with all the best details left in.

From the busy markets of the Mexican border to the deserted cattle crossings on the Red River, from the stomping grounds of the famous Billy the Kid to the haunting grounds of the obscure Fouke monster, "Traveling Texas Borders" offers travelers the best of both sides.

Author Ruff, born in Aberdeen, Miss., has lived in Texas since 1950. She owns and operates the Badu House, an historic old building in Llano, which she has converted into a restaurant, a club and country inn. She is also the author of "Guide to Historic Texas Inns and Hotels."

Michael Burke, a native Texan who has traveled extensively in Mexico and the Southwest, assisted Ruff with "Traveling Texas Borders."

"Traveling Texas Borders," 1983, 120 pages, photographs, index, large-format paperback, $9.95 is available in bookstores or directly from the publisher: Gulf Publishing Company, Book Division, Dept. 58, P.O. Box 2608, Houston, Texas 77001. Include price of book plus $2 transportation charge and 6 percent sales tax.

RC continues 100 percent oil production rate

The Railroad Commission has continued the Texas oil production rate for November 1983 at 100 percent of market demand, as Chairman Mack Wallace and Commissioners Buddy Temple and Jim Nugent recently directed the continuance of the top production allowable after reviewing oil companies' November nominations to buy a total of 2,394,185 barrels of Texas oil per day. The November nomination total, a decrease of 31,836 barrels daily when compared to October purchaser nominations, indicates market demand.

Although next month's state total for the permissible rate of production is calculated to average 2,841,195 barrels per day, actual production is estimated to reach 2.3 million barrels per day.

Actual production in November 1982 was 2,383,562 barrels per day. November 1982 nominations totaled 2,475,198 barrels daily.

The Commission first went to the ceiling level for oil production in April 1972, and November marks the 81st month in a row for the maximum allowable. It applies to fields in the state except those that are assigned lower legal rates of production so that reservoir pressures will not be depleted before the maximum amount of oil has been recovered.

Wallace also reported that November 1983 nominations for the purchase of Texas gas totaled 20,232,103 mcf/d (thousand cubic feet per day). November 1982 gas nominations totaled 21,445,840 mcf/d.

Consumer alert

Watch out for common ripoffs

By JIM MATTOX
Attorney General

AUSTIN — People frequently ask me, "How do I keep from getting ripped off?" There is no sure way to avoid becoming a victim of deceptive trade practices, but this week I'd like to review some of the basic rules for shopping. Check to see how many of them you observe:

- Are you wary of claims that promise more than the product or seller can reasonably deliver? Remember, if it sounds too good to be true, it probably is.

- Do you comparison shop before making any significant, non-emergency purchase? More useable, informative information is contained in advertising, store displays and product labels than at any time in our history. For this reason, comparing products and the promise of the stores which sell them is very worthwhile.

- Before purchasing a "performance product," that is, a product that is purchased to do some function, do you review consumer product testing magazines and other literature to see how the experts rate the product you are considering? For example, if you need an economical automobile, you naturally would compare mileage claims made by various manufacturers. An even more important comparison, however, may be the anticipated costs required to keep the automobile in good running condition. This information is readily available from several reliable consumer magazines.

- Do you always read contracts, warranties, advertising brochures and any other documents that are involved in your transaction? If you sign a contract without reading it or purchase a product without knowing the warranty protection afforded, you have no one to blame but yourself if the transaction later goes sour because the product is not what you expected.

- Do you resist high pressure sales tactics? If there is a universal shopping rule it is that high pressure sales equal a low quality product or service. The better the product or service is, the more easily it sells itself. Therefore, if the salesperson feels compelled to pressure you to purchase a product or service, say "no" and take some time to think it over.

- Finally, do you always insure that in significant purchases all important representations are reduced to writing? Memories fade, sometimes naturally and sometimes conveniently, so that oral representations are not reliable. If the representation is an important part of your buying decision, get it in writing.

These basic rules for consumer shopping will reduce your chances of getting "ripped off." The vast majority of all businesses rely on satisfied, repeat customers to stay in business. Unfortunately, it is difficult to know in advance whether you may have fallen into the grip of that small minority of unscrupulous businesses. Be cautious before and during the transaction so that afterwards you can relax and know that you have received your full money's worth. If you have problem or just need more information, contact the Consumer's Protection Division of the Attorney General's Office nearest you in Austin, Dallas, El Paso,

Consulting business topic of one-day seminar at SMU

DALLAS — The SMU School of Continuing Education is sponsoring a comprehensive one-day seminar on "Establishing and Operating Your Successful Consulting Business."

The seminar to be conducted Saturday, Dec. 3, will feature Dr. Jeffrey Lant, a successful consultant from Cambridge, Mass.

Lant earned his Ph.D. degree from Harvard University in British history and taught at the university level for 4 years. A year after he left the teaching profession, as a consultant to non-profit organizations and president of his own consulting firm, he was grossing more than $75,000.

"I didn't know that I was doing," he recalled. "I'd never taken a business course. I never even took math. I was a protected child who spent 25 years in school and was always told I had no common sense. I am the least likely person to have made it in business, but here I am, the role model for the '80s, running a whole empire out of one messy room." He waves his arm at his brilliantly sunny and very cluttered office.

Lant's Ivy League looks, his glasses and parted brown hair, make him look even younger than his 35 years. "What I learned, and what my whole generation has to learn, is that each of us has to adapt to new work styles in the world if we want to get anywhere."

Consulting is a growing segment of the country's economy. It is based on solid knowledge, common sense and management skills. If you are good at what you do for a company, government agency or any type of organization, perhaps you would enjoy offering yourself as a consultant.

The seminar at SMU is invaluable for persons who want to learn guidelines for success as they gain the confidence to "sell themselves and their expertise in their field." Successful consultants can look forward to a career that offers both freedom and financial reward.

Lant asserts that the one-to-one school to job link has been broken, and a whole new entrepreneurial world is opening up. In his nationally best-selling book, "The Consultant's Kit," Lant emphasizes that the world of consulting is exciting and lucrative — in fact it starts to sound like what the government claims the Navy is — not just a job, but an adventure.

"Consultants do very well in a recession," states Lant, who lives in Cambridge. "In periods of both acute decline and rapid growth, businesses will bring in consultants to rescue, streamline or update their operations."

Those attending the seminar at SMU will receive detailed information on every phase of establishing a consulting business. Instruction will include specific material on marketing, negotiating, writing contracts, developing a network and establishing yourself as a leader in your field. There will be plenty of time for questions and discussion.

Registration for the SMU seminar is limited. Those interested should contact the School of Continuing Education at (214) 692-2339 or write to School of Continuing Education, SMU Box 275, Dallas, Texas 75275. Tuition for the one-day seminar, including a copy of "The Consultant's Kit," and handouts is $125.

Nuclear war the ultimate disaster

Nuclear war is the ultimate environmental disaster, says the National Wildlife Federation. A major nuclear exchange would trigger firestorms that could plunge Earth into two to three months of darkness, causing temperatures to drop 36 degrees Fahrenheit, stopping photosynthesis, thereby destroying much vegetation, including the delicate ocean food chain that begins with phytoplankton. The impact on the biosphere could lead to the ultimate extinction of the human species.

Marine industry license seminar set for Nov. 29

Marine industry personnel can review and evaluate proposed amendments to federal regulations on licensing for officers and operators on all types of U.S. vessels at a seminar Nov. 29 in Houston.

"This program will give industry personnel a chance to review the proposals published by the Coast Guard in Federal Register, discuss the impact they might have on their industry segment and the Coast Guard and give participants time to send their comments to Washington," said Dewayne Hollin, seminar coordinator and marine business management specialist for the Texas A&M University Marine Advisory Service (MAS).

MAS is a joint effort of the Texas A&M Sea Grant College Program, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service and local county governments. Advisory agents and specialists work to bring the expertise and research capabilities of the university to bear on problems of marine industries and coastal communities.

At the Marine/Offshore Licensing and Manning Seminar, a panel of Coast Guard and industry representatives will discuss "Proposed Amendments to Regulations for Licensing Officers and Operators and Registration of Staff Officers."

The proposed amendments would, according to Hollin, set up a license system with career pattern for persons serving on all waters and all sizes of vessels, from small passenger vessels to large oceangoing vessels.

Seminar participants will hear discussions on the original law requiring the Coast Guard to establish career patterns and licensing requirements in the marine industry; the major changes under consideration; the anticipated impact to the industry and potential savings for the Coast Guard; and the effect revisions might have on current and future marine training requirements. The luncheon program will focus on the current status and future position of the Coast Guard in the 1980s.

The seminar, sponsored by Sea Grant and the Marine Services Association of Texas (MSAT), will be held in Houston at the Hobby Airport Hilton, 8181 Airport Blvd. Registration, which includes a lunch, is $25.

Sea Grant is a unique blend of federal, state and private efforts intended to bring the resources of leading educational institutions to bear on marine and marine-related problems. MSAT is a non-profit organization which advances marine businesses serving the inland, coastal and offshore waters of Texas.

For more information about the conference, contact Dewayne Hollin, Sea Grant College Program, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843, phone (409) 845-3854.

Woman's body identified

The Nueces County medical examiner identified Monday the body of a Port Aransas woman found Sunday in a drainage ditch 12.5 miles west of Rockport on FM 881.

Judith Marie Derse, 45, was positively identified by the medical examiner's office and an autopsy revealed the cause of death as a gunshot wound to the head.

Derse, who had moved here from Dallas to manage the Casa Del Cortes condominiums in Port Aransas, disappeared in late September while taking a walk on the beach near the condominiums. Her belongings were found undisturbed in the unit where she was staying and her car remained in the parking lot.

The badly decomposed body was discovered at approximately 4 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23, by two Aransas Pass men. Gun shells were found nearby but Aransas County Sheriff Robert O. Hewes does not know if the shells are significant since the area is sometimes used as a practice range for target shooting.

Investigation of the circumstances surrounding the woman's death will continue by Port Aransas and Aransas County law enforcement officials.

Council cancels meeting

The regular meeting, joint public hearing and annexation hearings of Rockport's city council and city planning and zoning board, scheduled for Tuesday, Oct. 25, were cancelled due to lack of a quorum of city council members.

One council member is ill and a death has occurred in the family of another, city officials said.

As of the Pilot's press deadline, no new date and time had been scheduled for the meetings.

Tax

Ingleside, in San Patricio County, received $1,052.30 from $7,015.32 in tax collections for the third quarter. Portland received a rebate of $5.92 out of $39.47 and San Patricio County received $5,480.53 out of $36,536.88.

Bullock said the State of Texas received $26.4 million from the mixed drink sales tax during the three-month period. Total collections for the year to date, for the state, amount to $111.2 million.

Social Security application tips offered

By Eric R. Kingdon
(Fifth of 14 parts)

The place to go for special information about your Social Security benefits is your local Social Security office. That office should give you the best and most up-to-date information and will also help process claims.

There are about 1,340 local offices — covering every state, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands and more — which handle retirement, survivors', disability and Medicare applications as well as Supplemental Security Income applications. Part-time service is provided in smaller communities.

Social Security also publishes pamphlets and provides information and service by telephone through their 33 teleservice centers. Many times a claim can be processed by telephone, so there's one tip to save you time: It's good to call before going into your local office. The telephone number is listed under "Social Security Administration" in your telephone directory. When you call, have your Social Security card in front of you, so you can give the staff your number.

To receive benefits, you must apply for them. The Social Security Administration says you should contact a local office if:

- You're unable to work due to illness or injury that is expected to last 12 or more months.

- You're about to be 62 or older and retired or planning to retire.

- You're a few months away from your 65th birthday. Even if you're not planning to retire, you should contact them about your Medicare benefits, which are available regardless of whether you retire.

- There's a death in your family.
- Someone in your family suffers permanent kidney failure.

If possible, plan ahead. You may apply three months in advance to when you want your retirement benefits to begin.

When applying for benefits you should bring:

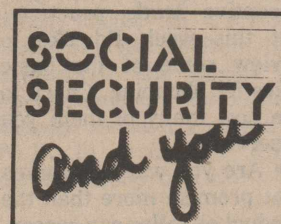

- Your Social Security card and in certain cases the card of each member of your immediate family;
- Your W-2 forms for at least the last two years, or if you are self-employed, your last two federal tax returns;

- Birth certificates for yourself and each member of the family for whom you are applying for benefits.

If you don't have a birth certificate, then other official certificates that prove age, such as a baptismal certificate, will probably do.

Under certain circumstances other items may be needed. If applying for spouses' or widows' or widowers' benefits, for example, bring a marriage certificate; if applying for disability benefits, bring names, addresses and telephone numbers of the doctors and medical institutions that have treated your disability.

If you're not well enough to go to a Social Security office, call. Many transactions can be handled by telephone. If a personal interview is necessary, then tell them about your situation and they will send a representative to your home.

If you are not happy with a Social Security decision, you can appeal it, but you almost always need to appeal within 60 days or the day you receive written notice of the decision.

The first step is to ask for reconsideration of your claim. If the results are still not satisfactory, you may request a hearing before an administrative law judge. Next you may appeal to the Appeals Council. As a final resort, you may file suit in a federal court.

Persistence often pays off. If you think you or a member of your family has been wrongly denied benefits, especially disability benefits, be sure to appeal. Decisions are often overturned on one of the appeal levels. In 1982, 53 percent of the initial disability denials and 63 percent of the disability terminations appealed on the administrative law judge level were reversed.

Help available for stranded whales

As winter approaches, chances of Texas coastal residents or visitors to the coast finding a whale or dolphin stranded along the beach increase. This year in Texas since June 18, cetaceans have beached, according to Raymond Tarpley, head of the Texas Mammal Stranding Network.

"Most beachings of marine mammals (cetaceans) on the Texas coast have occurred during colder months, usually between November and March," said Tarpley, who is also a research associate in the Department of Veterinary Anatomy at Texas A&M University.

Although scientists are not sure why animals beach, autopsies have shown that stress, such as traumatic wounds or parasites might weaken the mammals enough to result in stranding. Tarpley encourages anyone sighting a beached cetacean to notify the Mammal Stranding Network.

"The Network is interested in learning of any stranded cetacean, living or dead, and speed is essential," says Tarpley. "If the animal is alive, we will advise the caller what first aid measures to take until veterinary help arrives. If not decomposed too badly, dead cetaceans can yield a storehouse of information for biologists and strandings are one of the few means available to get specimens."

The Network has two main telephone numbers. For dead or live beached marine mammals, call (409) 845-4344, a 24-hour number at Texas A&M University. For live strandings anywhere along the Texas coast, call (409) 744-4501, a number as Sea-Arama in Galveston, which has veterinary facilities for treating the animal.

According to Rich Tillman, marine agent in Aransas and San Patricio counties, if you sight a beached mammal in the Rockport region, you can also call Tillman at 749-5207 or Ocean Safari (with live strandings) at 943-4502 or the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department at 729-2328; the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge at 286-3559; the U.S. Coast Guard at Port Aransas at 749-5217; or the National Marine Fisheries Service at 888-3360.

In the Corpus Christi region you can call the Padre Island National Seashore at 933-8173 or 937-2621; the U.S. Coast Guard at 939-2079 or the National Marine Fisheries Service at 888-3360 or Ocean Safari.

Never try to push the animal back to sea. It may seem the most natural course of action, but marine mammals, like terrestrial mammals, breathe air and might drown if returned to the water in a weakened condition. With first aid, the animal is better off left where it is found until its condition can be stabilized.

If the animal is in the water, move it to shallow water, being careful with its flippers, which are delicate. Splash water on any parts of its body that are exposed to the air. Keep its blowhole out of the water.

If the animal is on the beach, keep it wet, except for the blowhole, by bathing it or washing it with a damp cloth. Dig pits in the sand under the animal's flippers to prevent damage caused by its weight. Also, apply suntan lotion or a similar cream to protect its skin.

Many cetaceans are either endangered or threatened species. As such, dead or alive, all beached dolphins, porpoises and whales are protected by federal and state laws and may not be collected without a permit.

Tillman will soon have posters and flyers available about marine mammal strandings. These can be displayed in local businesses. Printed by the Network, they list telephone numbers and tips on administering first aid to beached mammals.

The Network gives the following guidelines for marine mammal first aid:

When you find a stranded marine mammal, telephone the Network and stay with the animal until help comes. Keep pets and crowds away.

Sen. Bentsen seeks preservation bill

WASHINGTON D.C. — Senator Lloyd Bentsen urged a Senate panel Friday, Oct. 21, to approve his legislation that would protect historic shipwrecks from destructive salvage operations.

The Bentsen bill would permit Texas and other states to enforce laws protecting historic shipwrecks by exempting from the salvage provisions of maritime law those wrecks which are eligible for inclusion on the National Register of Historic Places.

Bentsen testified on the bill Friday morning before the Public Lands Subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

"I think the members of this subcommittee would agree that many shipwrecks are repositories of historical information on the development of this country and of western civilization," Bentsen said.

"Through an understanding and appreciation of our past, as revealed by these sunken ships, we can gain new insights into our cultural heritage. I believe we have a responsibility to insure that historical shipwrecks that can be preserved and protected do not fall victim to purposeful destruction by salvage firms."

In Texas, more than 1,700 wrecks of all periods have been discovered, 653 of them designated as historic landmarks.

"Currently, U.S. maritime law applies to these historically and archaeologically significant shipwrecks, resulting in a situation where professional salvage firms are able to loot out territorial waters of a wealth of historical treasure," Bentsen said.

"It is not the purpose of this bill to restrict access to submerged lands by scuba divers and other members of the public, nor to punish those who may find a stray coin or artifact on the ocean floor. It is intended only to enable the states and the federal government to prohibit the looting and destruction of historic shipwrecks for the profit of a few individuals under the guise of 'salvage,'" Senator Bentsen said.

Plans being made for Palacios Bay Fest

PALACIOS — Palacios Bay Fest Inc. announces plans for the fifth annual Bay Fest and Barbecue Cookoff Saturday, Nov. 5, in the South Bay Park.

A kick-off dance with disc jockey music and dance contests is planned for Friday night on the pavilion at South Bay Park.

Activities begin in the park at 7:30 a.m. with registration for the 3-mile and 10-kilometer runs. A Celebrity Challenge Run will start at 10:30 a.m. The runs are sponsored by Mid Coast Distributing Co. in El Campo.

Chuck E. Cheese, a giant mouse from Chuck E. Cheese's Pizza Time Theatre in Victoria, will lead the Kiddie Parade at 10 a.m. and give all participants free "Chuck E Bucks." A clown, compliments of Carousel Capers, will also participate in the parade.

The barbecue cookoff and the gumbo cookoff, sponsored by Allison Distributing Co. in Bay City, are also part of this year's festivities. Barbecue teams can begin cooking on Friday evening or Saturday morning. Judging is set for noon.

Judges for this year's cookoff include Larry Souder, anchorman for KAVU Channel 25 in Victoria, State Senator John Sharp from Victoria, Judge Bert O'Connell from Bay City, District Judge Jack Salyer from Bay City, Judge Sam Seal from Edna and Mick Mikeska from Mikeska's BBQ in El Campo.

Judging for the gumbo cookoff is set for 1 p.m.

Judges for the event are representative Tom Usher from Bay City; Henry Wolfe, columnist for the Victoria Advocate; attorney Fred Holub from Bay City; David Dericek, owner of The Galley Restaurant in Matagorda; and Mark Sanders, restaurateur from Houston.

A new attraction this year is the "Cruddy Cowboy Hat" contest, sponsored by Big Jim's Western Wear. Other activities include a baby contest, the mechanical bull, loud and silent auctions, craft, food and game booths and "kiddie rides."

A demonstration of jazzercise by area instructors heads up the all-day entertainment which includes folk guitar music, an impressionist and rinky-tink piano in the Beergarden.

Activities culminate in a dance on the historical Pavillion Saturday night from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. featuring "Rawhide" with Vernon Drozd.

The Palacios Bay Fest Inc. is a non-profit, volunteer organization whose sole purpose is to raise funds for community projects. In the past the funds have been used to help build a swimming pool and a Senior Citizens' Nutrition Center. This year the proceeds will go toward park development and the Senior Center.

The public is invited and there is no admission fee. For more information about participation in the Bay Fest call 512-972-3960, 972-3234, 972-3714 or 972-5335, or write Drawer, C, Palacios, Texas 77465.

Checklist for home buyers

When shopping for a home, look for brick exterior walls. They aid energy performance and keep costs down.

Now is the time to think about buying a home! With mortgages more available and interest rates lower, many families are taking a look at what's available on the home buyers' market.

Here is a checklist that could help you make the choice that's right for you:

- Structural Quality and Integrity: Be alert to such warning signs as cracks in the foundation or basement walls, indications of wetness in the basement, water stains on ceiling or interior walls that aren't straight. If the house is sided with wood, is the paint cracked or peeling or has the siding begun to rot or decay? Are roof shingles properly installed and in good condition?

- Heating: Is the heating system zoned in such a way that you can close off the heat or cooling in unused areas when not needed? Is the house energy-efficient with sufficient insulation? Ask to see utility bills for the past two or three years if it's a used home. The experts at the Brick Institute of America suggest looking for brick exterior walls to aid energy performance and keep costs down.

- Maintenance: Will the house require painting every three to five years or is it relatively maintenance-free? Brick virtually takes care of itself and resists deterioration, helping to cut costs and effort.

- Living Space: Are there enough rooms to meet your present needs? Can the house be expanded to satisfy future requirements?

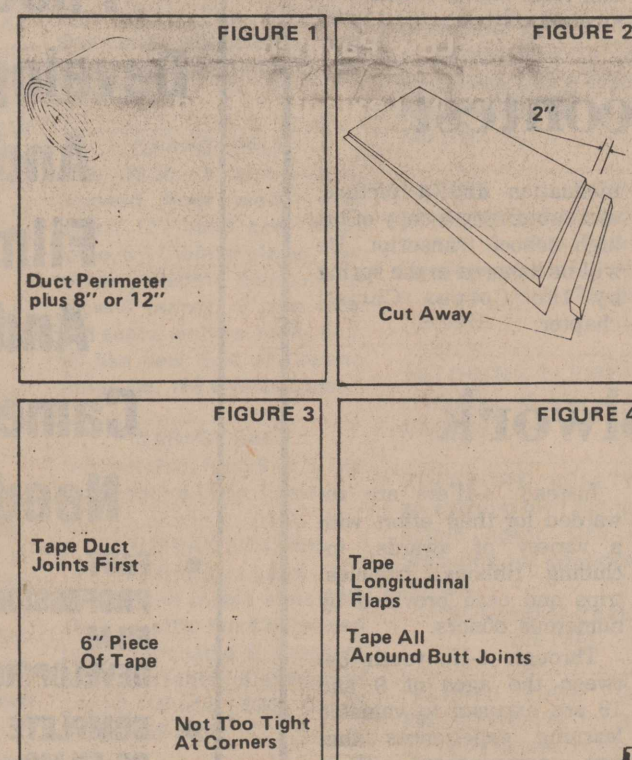

- Safety: Are doors and windows designed so that they're not easy to break into? Windows that are set high not only provide more safety but are more energy-efficient. How vulnerable to fire is the structure? Brick walls help resist fire, which is why brick homes rate lower fire insurance premiums.

- Guarantee/Warranties: The home guarantee may vary depending on the builder and location. Many homes are now covered under the Home Owners Warranty (HOW) program, which provides 10 years protection both for new single-family homes and multi-family townhouse and condominium units. Be sure to check heating system and appliance warranties.

- Resaleability: Look for features that will help you resell your home. These include a family room with fireplace; separate dining room, extra bathrooms. "built-ins" like bookcases, effective landscaping, plenty of storage area and generous use of brick — as trim, on exterior walls, for interior flooring or exposed walls, or in walks, patios and other landscaping features. A brick home generally brings about five to 10 percent more on resale than a comparable wood-frame house.

Hints for homeowners

Insulate your home to increase energy savings

To insulate your duct work measure the duct and add eight to 12 inches. Cut off the piece and remove two inches of insulation from two edges. Wrap your duct work, tape the flap closed and tape

Inside your home, just like in your body, there is a lifeblood system. It's made up, not of veins and arteries carrying blood and oxygen, but of ducts supplying conditioned air for heating or cooling units to the living space.

It's one place many homeowners overlook when it comes to insulating for cutting energy costs. Studies suggest that by insulating sheet metal ducts, you can cut heat loss or gain through the duct walls as much as 75 percent.

Insulating the air handling system in your home can be simple and inexpensive. The typical house requires between 200 and 400 feet of two-inch glass fiber duct wrap insulation. A building materials retailer, home center or heating and cooling contractor should carry the insulation you need. Make sure the wrap is specially manufactured for duct work. Look for a maximum flame spread rate of 25 or less and use two inch wrap with an installed R-value of five.

The tools you will need are large shears or utility knife, tape measure, marking pen, straightedge and a roll of aluminum pressure-sensitive tape. The gray "duct wrap" tape you may be familiar with is not recommended because the adhesive may dry up and fail.

1. First, locate your ducts. They usually run from attic, basement, crawl space, or closet to the vents. Start at the units and follow them to the vents.

2. Seal the duct airtight where you can. Tape all sheet metal joints tightly.

3. Measure around the perimeter of your duct with tape measure or string and yardstick. Add eight inches if your ducts are rectangular, 12 inches if they are oval or round. Mark the distance on the facing of the two-inch thick duct wrap and cut the duct wrap along this line. Turn the insulation over and cut away two inches of insulation at the end, leaving a two-inch flap of foil. Be careful not to cut through the foil flap.

4. Wrap the insulation around the duct with foil side outward so ends of insulation are butted together and the two-inch flap overlaps the foil on the other end. Tack with a six-inch piece of aluminum pressure-sensitive tape.

5. Tape the seam lengthwise, rubbing the tape with firm hand pressure, being careful not to puncture the foil. Repeat steps three and four as you move along the cut, butting each piece of insulation tightly against the piece next to it with foil overlapping. Tape circumferential joints all the way around.

The objective of an air distribution system is to deliver heated or cooled air to the right place as efficiently as possible. Insulating the duct work will allow your home's lifeblood system to operate more efficiently by directing that flow where it belongs — your living space.

RESTRICTIVE COVENANT CRITERIA OUTLINED

Developers sometimes use deed restrictions to control building activities in subdivisions. These restrictive covenants regulate such things as size, style and location of structures as well as the quality, cost and design of any improvements.

The activity of the owners may also be restricted. For example, certain commercial enterprises may be prohibited in residential areas.

Not all restrictive covenants are enforceable, however. Restrictions must meet three criteria. First, they must be reasonable in nature. Second, they must not be immoral or illegal. Third, they must not be contrary to public policy. For example, restrictive covenants forbidding the sale of property to persons of a certain race or religious faith are unenforceable.

If you have specific questions about a restrictive covenant affecting your property — or the property you plan to buy — contact your attorney.

TEXAS HOUSING COSTS NEARING NATIONWIDE AVERAGES

Housing costs in Texas traditionally have been lower than for the nation as a whole. The difference, however, is narrowing as the favorable economy of the state attracts new residents.

In the early 1970s, the estimated average sale price of an existing single-family home in Texas was $25,700. This was 22 percent below the estimated national average. By 1980 this difference had narrowed to 16 percent. In fact, housing costs in some rapidly growing Texas cities exceeded the national average.

The portion of household income needed to make house payments rose along with the cost of new housing. In 1970, about 18 percent of the typical household's after-tax income was spent for house payments. By 1980, the estimated amount was nearly 34 percent.

SHARING RENTAL EXPENSES REQUIRES PLANNING

Sharing rental expenses with a roommate seems like a good way to cut costs, but this arrangement may not always work out. Carefully choosing a compatible roommate in the beginning could save you trouble and money later.

For instance, if one party leaves the arrangement under bad terms, the other is left with paying the entire rent. The remaining roommate also is left with the legal responsibility of fulfilling the lease. A landlord has no obligation to terminate a lease due to problems caused by a roommate moving out. In fact, most leases state that a resident cannot be released on the grounds of loss of a co-resident. According to most leases, if the remaining resident decides to find a new roommate, or sublease, prior consent of the management must be obtained.

Contact an attorney if you have specific questions about sharing a leased residence.

ENERGY EFFICIENCY DEPENDS ON DIRECTION HOME FACES

Did you know that the direction your home faces, its shape, and especially the location of its windows can affect your heating and air conditioning costs?

Ideally, the long axis of a house should run east and west, with most windows located on the south. This makes it possible for the sun to help heat your house in the winter and allows the eaves to protect against the same heat in the summer when the sun is overhead. The home's north side should have only a few windows, thus protecting it from cold winter winds. An attached garage or carport should be on the west or north to protect the home's interior from the hot west sun or the cold winter winds.

Developers in many parts of the country are beginning to lay out subdivisions so homeowners can obtain these benefits, and you may want to consider these facts when you build or buy a home.

TWO TERMITE FAMILIES CAUSE MOST DAMAGE

Termites cause millions of dollars in damage in Texas each year. Two families of termites — subterranean and drywood — are responsible for most of the damage.

Subterranean termites must maintain contact with the soil beneath the structure. This contact provides the moisture needed for the survival of the termite colony. Some subterranean termites, however, are able to survive without soil contact. Leaky plumbing and faulty guttering may provide enough moisture so that soil contact is unnecessary. Drywood termites need no contact with soil to survive. They may establish nests in virtually any wood in the house.

Homeowners should remember that the cost of treating severe infestations and associated repair can be quite high. Finding a competent pest control company may be one of the wisest investments homeowners can make.

Realtors help bills become law

By Meceal Casterline
President, Rockport Area Board of Realtors

"At the same time this spring that realtors in Texas began to experience a much busier housing marketplace, they also found time and energy to lend considerable support to various pieces of legislation related to the ownership of private property. This political involvement by members across the state is being credited with resulting passage of a good number of the bills.

"Our realtors here are glad to see that Governor Mark White has already signed into law the Veterans' Housing Assistance bill and the Broker-Lawyer bill." This statement was made here this week by Meceal Casterline, president of the Rockport Board of Realtors.

"The fact that realtors have served a long time as spokesmen for the property owner in our nation is an historic position. To be supportive of maintaining the welfare of our nation's housing industry is seen as a very important role. Here in the state, over a period of several years, realtors were able to establish a particularly strong Texas Real Estate License Act. This act provides a lot of protection to the public as it spells out many educational requirements and establishes day to day professional regulations.

"The Veterans Housing Assistance bill and the Broker-Lawyer bills are typical of matters that claim our attention. Just briefly, the Veterans' Housing bill creates a funding program providing low interest loans to veterans for the purpose of buying a home.

"Working every day in the marketplace we see the need for many more reasonable opportunities for veterans to find a home they can afford. Here in this bill the maximum loan amount will be set at $20,000 . . . an amount sufficient to meet the down payment.

"Now with the signing of the Broker-Lawyer bill by the Governor we will see the creation of a 12-member Broker-Lawyer committee, appointed by the Texas Real Estate Commission. Six attorneys and six brokers will be serving in this capacity. Their goal will be to draft and revise contract forms for the use of real estate licensees. We see this as a protection for the public, assuring them updated and well-written contracts.

"This law makes clear the rights of the real estate licensee in completing contract forms which bind the sale, exchange, option, lease or rental of property."

Guy Chipman Jr. of San Antonio, president of the Texas Association of Realtors, William C. Jennings, Fort Worth, TAR president-elect, and Robert Wertheimer, Dallas, secretary-treasurer, are credited with providing the strong leadership in the association's legislative work. Also particularly interested and involved were Lawrence Young of Corpus Christi, chairman of the state legislative committee, and Doris Farmer, Longview, chairman of the the Texas Real Estate Political Action Committee.

The Texas Association of Realtors was founded in 1920 and has a membership of over 42,000 members and 129 boards. James T. Sawyer of Austin is the executive vice president of the association. Tommy Townsend of Austin is the association's director of public affairs.

A Public Hearing will be held by and before the City Council of the City of Rockport, Texas on the 8th day of November, 1983 at 7:00 p.m., in the Council Chambers, City Hall, Rockport, Texas for all persons interested in the above proposed annexations. At said time and place all such persons shall have the right to appear and be heard. Of all said matters and things all persons interested in the things and matters herein mentioned will take notice.

BY ORDER OF THE CITY COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF ROCKPORT, TEXAS, this the 27th day of September, 1983.

Precautions suggested by Hinojosa for maximizing Halloween fun

Although Halloween is a time when ghosts and goblins are supposed to make their presence felt, for parents the Halloween spooks are all too real.

To minimize the risk of tragedy on a night which is supposed to be filled with fun, Rockport Police Chief Joe Hinojosa has offered the following suggestions:

Children should wear loose-fitting reflective or light-colored clothing. Wigs should be made of non-flammable material and masks should not obstruct vision.

Flashlights should be carried both to allow children to see as well as to allow others to see them.

Toy weapons should be made of cardboard.

Children should walk on sidewalks where possible or on the side of the highway facing traffic. Adults should accompany young children at all times.

Unlit houses should not be approached.

Children should not, under any circumstances, accept rides with strangers.

Trick-or-treating should begin early so children can be home early.

Finally, Hinojosa says, no candy should be eaten until parents have a chance to inspect it. All unwrapped or open candy should be thrown away immediately. All food items should be cut in small pieces before eating.

Parents should notify the police or sheriff's departments immediately if they suspect something is wrong, Hinojosa adds.

BEST FRIENDS Andra Luigi, left, and Yvette Olson walked off with top honors in the 1983 Shrimpor beauty pageant last weekend in Aransas Pass. Andra, sponsored by Elegance, was crowned Miss Shrimpor.

Teen and Yvette, sponsored by Irwin Palm Harbor Sales, was chosen first runner-up. Both girls are sophomores at Rockport-Fulton High School.

Campus news

Kathy Denise Rogers of Rockport was among 350 graduates of the University of Texas Graduate School at Austin who received master's degrees at the close of the 1983 summer session. Rogers received a master of science degree in nursing.

Mary Randow of Rockport has been nominated for Gaillardian honors at Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos. Gaillardians are all-campus favorites at the university and a traditional part of the school's annual homecoming activities. Randow was nominated by Tau Beta Sigma music service sorority.

Perkins wins DAR Good Citizen contest

David Perkins, a senior at Rockport-Fulton High School, has been chosen the winner of a Good Citizen contest sponsored by the Corpus Christi chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Perkins was chosen by a panel of 10 senior faculty members as the RFHS winner. He was chosen on the basis of leadership, dependability, service and patriotism.

He will now go on to compete in the South Texas competition of the contest after filling out a questionnaire, sending in letters of recommendation and a picture, and submitting a copy of his high school transcript. He will be honored in the spring by the Corpus Christi chapter.

4-H can aid schoolwork

Perkins

Young people can complement their school curriculum with 4-H as an extracurricular activity.

4-H Club activities with more than 50 project areas offer opportunities for applying what is learned in school, says Kathy Farrow, county 4-H program coordinator with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

Writing a theme or making a speech, for example, are easier when they are related to a young person's pet, camera or clothing project, says Farrow. Other 4-H activities, such as tours and workshops, also offer interesting learning experiences.

4-H is based on "learning by doing," and 4-H'ers also learn by teaching others. Making exhibits, demonstrations and visual presentations about 4-H projects are proven learning methods that 4-H uses, Farrow says. Tests in 4-H come in the form of contests, but there are no grades.

Instead, 4-H'ers are rewarded for their effort with a variety of awards, including ribbons, trophies, trips and cash provided by numerous donors.

Through 4-H, youth between the ages of 9 and 19 are exposed to valuable learning experiences that can complement their school tasks and have life-long impact as well. To get involved in this "action-oriented" program, contact the county Extension office, says Farrow.

Mark Setterbo enlists in Navy DEP

Mark Douglas Setterbo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Setterbo of Rockport, has enlisted in the U.S. Navy's Delayed Entry Program.

This program, known as DEP, allows young men and women to reserve a year before they begin active duty. A local area Navy recruiter said Setterbo chose the Navy because of his aptitude, scores and interests in the educational opportunities offered and the wide variety of jobs available.

Setterbo will travel to Chicago for recruit training in May 1984. He is a graduate of Rockport-Fulton high school and was enlisted through the Navy Recruiting Office in South Corpus Christi which covers the Rockport area.
