Five Races Undecided, Demos Lead

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine days after the national elections, there are still five races undecided—an Indiana senator, a congressman in Kentucky and governorships in Rhode Island, Oklahoma and Maine.

The results, which may take weeks to finalize, could give all the races to Democrats, if their current slim leads bear up.

In the House and Senate battles, Congress may have to make the final decision. Losers in a recount could challenge the results, thereby throwing the final choice to Congress as provided by the Constitution.

Incumbent Sen. Vance Hartke, a Democrat, has the lead over Republican Richard L. Roudebush for an Indiana seat in the Senate. Final official tallies are expected today for comparison with the unofficial lead given to Hartke of 4,562 votes.

If he wins, the GOP will have gained only two Senate seats, giving the Democrats 54.

A winner is expected to be declared in the tight Kentucky race, where Rep. William O. Cowper is pitted against Democrat Romano T. Mazzoli. Mazzoli's lead is a slim 210 in unofficial tallies. A canvass was expected to be finished today.

Cowper has already asked for a review of registration records in 23 precincts.

Oklahoma's first recount for a state-wide office is due for completion Saturday. Democrat David Hall has a 2,371 vote lead over incumbent Dewey Bartlett. Maine Gov. Kenneth M. Curtis, a Democrat, leads Republican Atty. Gen. James S. Erwin by 860 votes unofficially. Erwin has already asked for a recount to start Nov. 23 that could take five or six weeks—this despite the fact that an official count doesn't start until next week.

Absentee vote-counting begins today in Rhode Island, where the official scorecard has put incumbent Democratic Gov. Frank Licht out in front of his GOP challenger Herbert F. DeSimone by 2,142 votes in a recount.

UF DRIVE NEARS END

The United Fund rose to $87,082.41 this morning with additional returns from campaign workers in the big gifts, out-of-town, and employee gifts divisions, leaving $22,892.59 needed to reach this year's goal.

Any campaigners who still have United Fund cards out are urged to work them quickly and return them so that the drive can be wrapped up as soon as possible. Anyone who has not been contacted by the United Fund workers may pick up a pledge card in the United Fund office in the Permian Building.

OKIE OIL CREW Dynamite Blast Kills Nine Men

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A dynamite explosion which erupted at an oil company seismograph crew was conducting an experiment killed nine men Wednesday evening.

Sheriff's and Tulsa police officers began investigating at the first light of the day. Officers said explosives on a truck apparently were ignited Wednesday night by sparks from a high-voltage electric line struck by a crane.

Only one victim was immediately identified. He was David K. Ellis, 26, Tulsa, who had been employed by the Pan American Petroleum Corp. about five months.

The explosion occurred at the Pan American's Bird Creek testing site in northeast Tulsa County. A company official said the crew was conducting an experiment on an underground geologic fracture.

NO SCHOOL BELLS RINGING TOMORROW

More than 400 area teachers and administrators will attend the Texas State Teachers Association Regional Convention in Midland tonight and Friday.

Friday will be a school holiday for students in Big Spring, Sands, Coahoma and Forsan schools.

The conference begins at 7 p.m. today with a House of Delegates meeting and continues through Friday afternoon with special interest sessions, a general session for all elementary school teachers and a general session for all secondary school teachers.

Bandits Loot Corpus Bank

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Three gunmen held up the Texas State Bank today, locked about nine employees in the vault and escaped.

Police freed the trapped bank employees and the president. All those locked in the vault were women except the president.

Amount of money taken was not immediately reported.

Witnesses said one of the bank robbers was about 6 feet 2 inches.

The bank is in a shopping center on the west side of this Gulf Coast city.

FINAL ARGUMENTS IN LACKLAND CASE

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the court-martial of a sergeant charged with maltreatment of recruits at the only Air Force basic training center.

The trial of S. Sgt. Rolando Sada, 27, a veteran of nine years in the service, was recessed Wednesday in observance of Veterans Day after the prosecution and defense rested their cases.

Sada, father of two and a San Antonio native, is charged with slapping, hitting or kicking seven trainees at Lackland Military Training Center.

If convicted, he could receive a maximum penalty of up to six months confinement; a bad conduct discharge; forfeiture of two-thirds pay per month for six months; and reduction to airman basic.

Sada has been relieved of duty as a training instructor pending outcome of the case.

SAN ANGELO (AP) — The trial of San Angelo Police Chief Melvin James came to a sudden halt today when James entered a plea of guilty to the charge of aggravated assault and was fined $1,000.

At the same time he submitted his resignation.

James was being tried for assault with intent to murder in connection with the wounding of a 17-year-old Negro youth, John T. McNelly.

REACHED FOR GUN
The trial began in 119th District Court before a jury Monday.

day. James was to have taken the stand today.

During a morning conference, the state agreed to drop the assault to murder charge and James pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of aggravated assault.

Judge Glen R. Lewis assessed the fine.

James testified Wednesday that, after he had arrested McNelly for taking part in a disturbance at a residence in the city, the youth tried to reach for his gun at the police station and there was a struggle.

James said he was kicked in the groin and nearly fainted before he fired twice in the youth's direction.

"If he would have gotten my gun, I would have been at his mercy," James said. The police chief said he feared for his life.

Asked by defense lawyer Tom Webb if he struck McNelly with his pistol, James replied, "Absolutely, I did not."

Patrolman Richard Self testified that he and other officers had discussed making their testimony in the trial similar to one another's.

Self said he discussed the case with other officers after the shooting, but they agreed not to give similar testimony.

Another policeman, Bill Murray, told the jury there had been much "side taking" in the police department since the last election of a police chief.

He had overheard several officers plotting to testify alike in order to get James removed from his post, Murray said.

Detective Loll Balentine testified he was warned by James that an investigator for the district attorney might "change the ballistics" on clothing worn by the youth the night of the shooting.

The police chief said that if McNelly's mother gave her son's shirt to Charles Martin, the investigator, Martin would change the bullet holes because he did not like James, Balentine testified.

Martin is a former member of the city's police department.

Detective Bennie Plummer told the court that the defendant had asked him to confiscate McNelly's clothing and "change the ballistics."

France Says Goodbye To 'Hero' De Gaulle

Simple Burial Replaces Pomp

PARIS (AP) — France said goodbye today to Charles de Gaulle.

In the magnificence of Notre Dame Cathedral, yet with the simplicity he ordained, world leaders joined thousands of Parisians at an austere Mass concluded with the Magnificat.

DeGaulle's body was not at this Church of Our Lady, where the tall general once celebrated the liberation of Paris from the legions of Adolf Hitler. The body remained at the home village where he lived and died. And there, a few hours later, it was committed to the soil of France.

GREAT CROWDS
Great crowds had gathered at the village of Colombey les Deux Eglises, but a simple burial in a country churchyard replaced the military pomp that DeGaulle had rejected for the final ritual.

Nonetheless scores of world leaders, including President Nixon, made the Notre Dame service the greatest such gathering since the funeral of Dwight D. Eisenhower 19 months ago. And the bells of cathedrals and churches all over France sounded a requiem.

In Paris, the monarchs and the princes, the presidents and the premiers sat on little red plush chairs before the altar of the 800-year-old cathedral for the Requiem Mass celebrated by Francois Cardinal Marty, the archbishop of Paris.

NO TAPS
De Gaulle's name was pronounced only four times in 45 minutes of prayer for his soul.

There was no eulogy, no playing of taps, no symbolic catafalque.

This simplicity heeded to the strong-willed general's wishes, expressed in instructions he wrote in 1952.

About 5,000 people—2,000 of them invited guests—crowded into the limestone interior of the cathedral. The high vaulted ceiling and the mighty pillars holding up the galleries along the nave were brightly lit by television lights. The crowd pressed under the galleries, restrained by police, and prayed aloud as the cardinal celebrated the Mass.

WOODEN COFFIN

Thousands of French men and women gathered for the afternoon burial service at Colombey, the little village in eastern France which De Gaulle chose for his home in 1936. The body lay in a simple wooden coffin in his home there, where the former French president died Monday night of a heart attack.

At the start of the funeral service in Colombey, churches throughout the nation were to toll the knell for the dead.

Parisians streamed into Notre Dame, filling every space not reserved for the official delegations. The cathedral was open to the public until an hour before the service started.

Loudspeakers were set up in the neighboring streets and along the nearby banks of the Seine to relay the service. Radio and television carried it throughout France and Western Europe, and it was beamed by satellite to the United States.

Dear Boss: Got Your Rabbit's Foot Nearby?

DEAR BOSS:

How's your luck been lately? No matter how it's been, it's bound to get worse. Tomorrow is Friday the Thirteenth — our third such day this year.

Remember, I warned you about it in February and again in March? Well, this is one of those rare years in which we have three.

In March I speculated about the probability of having two Fridays fall on the 13th in one year. Right after that I received some data from Bill Fryrear, out at the Experiment Station.

According to his research, the unlucky days come around a bit more often than is comfortable — especially if you're the superstitious type.

In this century alone 10 years wound up with three such black days: Those years are 1903, 1914, 1925, 1931, 1942, 1953, 1970, 1981, 1987 and 1998.

If you'll notice the majority is behind us.

Bill also included the years in this decade in which there are two unlucky days. Those are 1973, 1974, 1978 and 1979.

After tomorrow you can pack your lucky rabbit's foot away until August, 1971, which is the next time a Friday the Thirteenth shows up on the calendar.

And, believe it or not, here's one more reason for the widening of the generation gap. Most youngsters will not consider tomorrow unlucky.

The teachers have a meeting in Midland, and students in area schools will get a holiday.

THE WORLD'S LONGEST SMOOCH — Two Eastern Washington State College students, Beverly Hallmark, of Bellingham, Wash., and Horace Francis, of Kingston, Jamaica, claimed a new world's record for kissing after the couple smooched for 12 consecutive hours. The feat topped the time of nine hours and 12 minutes claimed by students at Southwestern Texas State College.

Public Law Firms Still Tax Exempt

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service said today public interest law firms, a new breed of charitable organizations on the national scene, will maintain their tax-exempt status.

IRS Commissioner Randolph W. Thrower told a news conference the firms will be tax-exempt as long as they meet guidelines specified by the IRS.

The key guideline said such firms should represent a genuinely public interest, not accept fees for services except according to IRS procedures, and not engage in any political activity of any kind, including lobbying.

'PUBLIC VOICE'

Thrower said IRS's decision is confined basically to "the representation of a public voice." He said the ruling had no precedent.

Thrower announced Oct. 9 the IRS had stopped granting tax-exempt status to public interest law firms pending a two-month study.

He said such firms had become a new American phenomenon, setting up to file lawsuits in such public-interest matters as consumer protection and the environment.

The announcement touched off a flurry of criticism, and a Senate subcommittee headed by Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said it would investigate. Hearings are set later this month.

The IRS backed down partially on its earlier announcement, allowing contributions to such firms to remain tax deductible pending the study.

MORE DAMAGING

But Thrower said in a speech at Atlanta Oct. 16 that "Probably nothing could be more dam-

'I Feel Pretty Good, Except For My Lips'

CHENEY, Wash. (AP) — About the only thing Eastern Washington State College student Horace Francis said he needed after emerging from 12 straight hours of kissing was some lip balm.

Francis, a sophomore from Kingston, Jamaica, and Beverly Hallmark, a freshman from Bellingham, Wash., Wednesday claimed a world's smooching record, surpassing the mark of 9 hours and 12 minutes claimed by students at Southwestern Texas State College.

The couple lasted 31 minutes longer than another pair of Eastern Washington participants—Jennifer Weiler, a freshman from Spokane, and Robert Driscoll, a freshman from Caldwell, Idaho.

"I feel pretty good, except for my lips which are kind of blistered," Francis said after the contest. "I think I could go some more."

The contestants discovered there was more to the kissing contest than merely kissing. Eating became quite a feat.

Sipping a milkshake through a straw was easy, but trying to consume solid foods without parting lip contact was a little tougher. The winners received $25 and two trophies.

TRASH CRISIS IN AMERICA—1

Houston's 'Cure' Fizzles

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — Perched on a hill overlooking Houston's Southside, a $5-million garbage incinerator sits idle, fires dead—a symbol of America's lagging battle to remove her trash.

Hailed at its opening in 1967 as a cure for Houston's solid waste crisis, the incinerator was to consume 800 tons of refuse daily—a large part of the city's garbage.

COSTLY TROUBLES
But just five months after opening, it shut down for repairs to air pollution control equipment. The incinerator has operated intermittently since, closing again last June for $250,000 in repairs that won't be completed until next year.

The incinerator troubles, recent shutdown of a privately owned garbage processing facility and demonstrations last summer by residents who didn't want sanitary landfills operated near their homes have given Houston's city fathers a massive garbage headache.

But the city's solid waste problems aren't unique. In fact they are typical of problems plaguing hundreds of municipalities, large and small, around the country.

GREATER HARM
Houston's problems reflect a growing garbage crisis facing America, a crisis that has its roots in the lifestyle of an affluent society that seemingly knows no bounds to technological growth, and consequently, rubbish.

Ecologists warn that growing mounds of refuse have the potential for greater harm to the environment than air and water pollution.

Statistics compiled by the President's Council on Environmental Quality and the Bureau of Solid Waste Management (BSWM) in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare paint a grim picture. They show that in 1969:

—The country's residential, commercial and institutional refuse totaled 250 million tons. Of this, 190 million tons were collected and disposed of in some manner. But 60 million tons remained uncollected, blighting the nation's highways, streets and recreational areas and presenting serious health hazards in countless open dumps.

TONS OF REFUSE
—American manufacturers produced 110 million tons of solid waste, disposing of much of it themselves. But some of the disposal methods have been targets of criticism.

—The mineral industry generated 1.7 billion tons of refuse from mining, milling and mineral processing disposing of most of it in slag heaps, tailings piles or dumping it onto waterways.

—Agriculture generated 2.2 billion tons of animal and slaughterhouse waste, crop residues, vineyard and orchard trimmings and greenhouse wastes.

—Most of the 43 billion metal and glass beverage containers manufactured were discarded after use.

—Of an estimated 7 million automobiles retired, more than 1 million were simply abandoned beside country roads, in city streets or on vacant lots.

The President's council told Congress:

TRAIL OF BLIGHT
"Solid waste etches a trail of visible blight that leaves few corners of the country unspotted. America's well-known penchant for convenience has come face to face with major environmental problems."

Population growth, per capita increases in garbage and changeless refuse collection and disposal methods are the villains.

In 1920, the garbageman hauled away 2.75 pounds of refuse a day for each urban dweller. Now he collects five pounds a day and can expect eight pounds by 1980.

Use of disposable containers has put more paper, plastic, glass and metals into refuse, the President's council said, but collection and disposal methods haven't kept pace with the change.

At the turn of the century, workers dumped refuse from street containers into horse-drawn carts. Today, in most operations, the only change is replacement of the horse with a truck. Workmen still lift and dump trash cans.

And refuse collectors are among society's least esteemed workers. Usually the lowest paid on a municipal work force, they are plagued with high accident, sickness, absenteeism and turnover rates.

From New York to Atlanta to Memphis to Albuquerque, refuse collectors' strikes became city administrators' nightmares.

SOLID WASTE
Disposal problems are just as acute.

The BSWM estimates 94 percent of all land disposal methods are unsatisfactory in terms of health, efficiency or protection of natural resources. And the bureau estimates, 75 percent of all municipal incinerators either add to air pollution on don't reduce refuse volume sufficiently.

In a BSWM-sponsored study, a National Academies of Science and Engineering committee concluded:

"Historically, solid waste management has been characterized by minimum attention, minimum funding and minimum application of technology."

"Much of the problem of solid waste management derives from the continued reluctance of those concerned to come to grips with it and apply existing technology, systems and organizational know-how to its solution—and above all, to pay for these services."

OUT OF SIGHT
The problem, says Houston Mayor Louie Welch is people. "The attitude of the public in general about garbage is out of sight, out of mind," he said.

"The average householder thinks his problem is solved when his garbage can is empty."

The most unfortunate aspect of the solid waste problem, agree scientists, economists and engineers, is the waste of natural resources that garbage disposal, by whatever method, represents. Reusable materials must be retrieved, they warn, if the country is to avoid eventually running out of several resources already in short supply.

"...solid waste material represents a national resource and will in time be a major one," said the National Academies of Science and Engineering study. "Return of fractions of solid wastes to economical re-use must in the long run become common practice and must be a national objective."

The U.S. Bureau of Mines estimates that if all the nation's refuse were incinerated, the metal and glass in the ashes would be worth at least $50 million a year. Recycling raw refuse would yield considerably more.

GLASS PROMISE
Some recycling is under way. American Paper Institute officials estimate that the 11 million tons of paper recycled last year saved 200 million trees. But the reused paper represented only 20 percent of the nation's paper consumption.

Almost 35 percent of the world's aluminum, which has a high value and is easily reclaimed, is now recycled, industry officials say.

The Reynolds Metals Co., a major manufacturer of aluminum beer and soft drink cans, has opened several redemption centers that pay 10 cents a pound for aluminum cans. But although the Los Angeles, Calif., center is averaging 1.5 million cans a month, it is collecting only two percent of all the aluminum cans sold in the area.

Officials say they doubt the return will ever exceed 10 percent.

'NUISANCE' BILL FILED
BALTIMORE (AP) — A City Council member, Catherine Duffy, has introduced a bill to control the "nuisances" committed by dogs and other animals.

The text of the measure introduced reads:

"No persons, having the duty and ability to prevent, shall knowingly permit any dog or other animal to commit any nuisance upon any sidewalk in the City of Baltimore, or upon the floors or stairways of any building or place frequented by the public or used in common by the tenants, or upon the outside walls or stairways of any building abutting on a public street or park."

Persons found guilty will be liable for a $10 fine. The term "nuisance" is undefined in the bill.

Explorer Road Rally Scheduled

With slide rules, stop watches and maps on hand, some 100 teen-age Explorers will be entering the 3rd annual Explorer Road Rally Nov. 21 in Odessa.

The Road Rally is sponsored by the Council Exploring Committee, the Odessa American Legion, the Permian Bass Club, Joe White Lincoln-Mercury and the cooperation of the Highway Patrol.

Registration will begin at 11 a.m. at the American Legion Building in Odessa and the Service Center in Midland.

Explorers will then have their cars checked by the Joe White Lincoln-Mercury Company.

The Rally route will be approximately 125 miles in length taking the teams through all types of city and country driving, testing their ability to follow directions and speed limits through a complicated and unfamiliar route. Upon conclusion of the rally members of the Legion and the Permian Bass Club will provide a fish fry for the Explorers and their dates. Trophies will be presented to the top three winning teams.

Further information is available from the Council Service Center in Midland.

Says Compulsory Health Insurance Provides Answer

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Rep. Bob Eckhardt, D-Tex., says compulsory government health insurance is the solution to spiraling hospital costs and health care problems.

Speaking to more than 40 hospital administrators from throughout the nation, the Houston congressman outlined his plan for a $37 billion annual health insurance program to be administered similar to Medicare and social security programs.

He said he will help sponsor a new health, security act that would make health care a right instead of a "privilege."

Court Plays Put And Take In Bomb Case

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals played put and take with the 99-year prison sentence given Harry Washburn for the 1955 car-bomb slaying of his mother-in-law.

The court said Washburn's prison time should be reduced 2½ years to give him credit for time spent in jail while awaiting the outcome of appeals from his two convictions. This upheld a lower court ruling to the same effect.

However, the state's highest court for criminal cases overturned a lower court ruling that Washburn also was entitled to credit for another 5½ months spent in Waco and Dallas jails awaiting his two trials. The court said it was up to the trial judges to grant credit for time awaiting trial and neither one chose to do so.

Washburn was convicted of murdering Mrs. Helen Harris Weaver in San Angelo Jan. 18, 1955. A dynamite bomb exploded when she attempted to start a car parked in the driveway of her home.

Washburn was convicted first by a Waco jury and assessed a life sentence but the Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the verdict.

He was convicted Jan. 2, 1959 by a Dallas jury on the same charge and given a 99-year sentence.

The State Board of Pardons and Paroles considered Washburn for parole last month but decided to leave him in prison at least one more year.

Start Calley Jury Picking

FT. BENNING, Ga. (AP) — Selection of a jury for the My Lai trial of Lt. William Calley Jr., began today from a court-martial panel which has been unsuccessfully challenged by the defense as biased.

Maj. Kenneth Raby, chief lawyer for Calley, who is charged with murdering 102 unarmed Vietnamese civilians, had described the 10-man prospective jury panel as "psychological in design to convict the accused."

Punishment for the slender, boyish lieutenant, 27, could be death or life imprisonment.

The military judge, Col. Reid Kennedy, rejected defense motions seeking dismissal of Calley's case on the grounds that his rights were violated by the makeup of the panel.

Raby contended Tuesday that three of the prospective jurors are pilots and "pilots tend to inflate the number of bodies they claim they saw at My Lai."

THE FACE OF FEAR AT AGE 101 — Fear covers the face of 101-year-old Mrs. Mary Demske as she listens to a St. Petersburg policeman try to tell her that it is safe for her to return to her residence. Neighbors said they flushed two would-be sneak thieves from her home. Both men fled before the police could arrive.

Insists Police Dogs Not Trained To Scare Latins

HONDO, Tex. (AP) — Mayor George Brucks denied Wednesday charges that city police discriminate against Mexican-Americans by selectively enforcing the law.

He called the claim "ridiculous" and asserted that the police enforce the law without regard to race, creed or color.

San Antonio lawyer John Alaniz, representing the women's auxiliary of the local American GI Forum, told the city council Tuesday night that of 50 arrests for driving while intoxicated during the past 2½ months, only one had been an Anglo resident of Hondo. The others had been either Mexican-Americans or tourists he charged.

"The 49 to 1 ratio is ridiculous," Brucks said. "While there may have been more Mexican-Americans arrested than Anglo it is only fair to point out that in Hondo there are 16 Mexican-American beer joints and only four Anglo ones. The police arrest anyone they find driving while drunk, regardless of race or color."

Brucks said that the figure of 10 arrests for driving while intoxicated was far too high. Exact figures were not available immediately, but he said a check showed only six such arrests during the past month.

Brucks also termed as ridiculous Alaniz' charge that the city police department's trained dog was being used to intimidate Mexican-Americans. He said the dog was only used to accompany the night patrolman and was not to be used unless the patrolman was attacked.

Kent State Jurors Eyed FBI Report

LIMA, Ohio (AP) — The grand jury which exonerated National Guardsmen in the deaths of four Kent State University students saw portions of an FBI document that reportedly said the shootings were not directly provoked, the special prosecutor in the case says.

Robert Balyeat said Wednesday the jury, which returned indictments against 25 students and faculty members on charges stemming from the May 4 trouble, was read portions of the 30-volume report and used it extensively in its investigation.

"We relied every day on the FBI report," Balyeat said. "I can't think of a day that we didn't have 8 to 10 volumes of the report in the grand jury room with us."

A Justice Department memorandum said that on the basis of the FBI report there was reason to believe the National Guard troops fabricated stories of self-defense as a reason for opening fire on the students.

The FBI report consisted of interviews with witnesses to the shooting.

Balyeat said that because the proceedings were secret, he could not go into specifics on what information was presented to the jury.

The Akron Beacon Journal quoted Balyeat as saying the jury did not see a Justice Department memorandum on the disorders.

Dallas Bank Cuts Prime Interest

DALLAS (AP) — The First National Bank of Dallas lowered its prime interest rate Thursday to 7½ per cent from 7¾ per cent. This was in line with approval of lower rates by the Federal Reserve Board earlier this week.

Policemen, Country Club Presented With Flags

On Veterans Day Wednesday Mayor J. Arnold Marshall presented two flags that have flown over the nation's capitol to John Minnick, representing the Big Spring Police Association, and Johnnie Morrison for the Big Spring Country Club.

Marshall said he became aware of the need for a flag at the country club when he was attending a meeting there which began with a pledge of allegiance, and no flag could be found. He said members of the police association once said they needed a flag for parades.

Marshall said apparently an overwhelming number of people had requested flags that had been flown over the capitol, but U.S. Congressman Omar Burrell made a special effort and managed to get the flags for Big Spring in time for Veterans Day.

A representative of the police association said the flag will be flown sometimes from the flagpole in front of the police station.

Clips Prime Lending Rate

NEW YORK (AP) — Chase Manhattan Bank, the nation's third largest, announced today a cut in its prime lending rate from 7½ per cent to 7¼ per cent.

The reduction which reflects the interest charged to a bank's most credit-worthy corporate clients, follows a cut Wednesday in the prime rate by a small Washington, D.C., bank, the First National Bank of Washington.

Today's action follows, too, a cut in the discount rate Tuesday by the Federal Reserve Board. The discount rate is the rate the Federal Reserve Board charges member banks for borrowings. The prime rate has been at 7½ per cent since Sept. 21 when it was lowered from 8 per cent by the country's major banks.

Opening lead: Nine of ♠

A soundly conceived and well executed campaign went for naught when South, the declarer at six no trump, suddenly stumbled while on the very brink of success.

West opened the nine of spades and South won the first trick in his hand with the queen. Declarer could count 11 winners off the top-three spades, two hearts, three diamonds and three clubs. A 12th trick would develop automatically if either diamonds or clubs divided three-three. Failing this, South could fall back on a finesse in hearts.

Declarer tested the diamonds first, cashing the top three honors. On the third round, East showed out, discarding a heart. The clubs came next, however it was West's turn to fail and on the queen of clubs, he shed a spade.

In order to obtain a better count on the hand, declarer played the ace and king of spades, on which East discarded another heart. At this point South could place West originally with five spades, four diamonds and two clubs, which meant that he had only two hearts and that East had started with five of that suit.

By rough calculation, declarer figured that the odds were five to two that East had the queen of hearts. He accordingly led over to the ace of hearts and returned the five. East followed with the nine and the jack was played from the closed hand. West turned up with the queen and he proceeded to cash the eight of spades to register a two trick set.

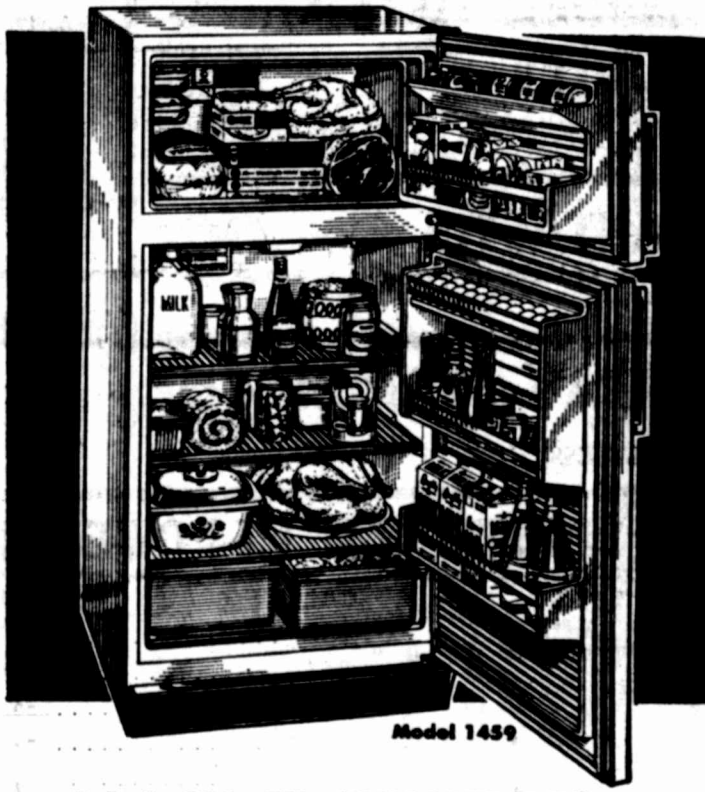

South had reasoned well up to a point, for while the odds unquestionably favored the location of the queen of hearts in the East hand, declarer did not have to rely on probabilities at all. As soon as East showed out on the third round of spades, declarer was in position to assure his contract beyond all doubt. He has only to lead a fourth round of clubs—the suit East is known to be protecting—and now East must play a heart himself.

In other words, East's last four cards are clearly identified as the ten of clubs and three hearts. If he is thrown in with a club, the forced heart return will locate the queen for the declarer no matter which defender actually holds the card.

White House Diary

The White House

If my life can be said to have a pattern it is that, as we go into spring and summer, the crescendo of work mounts. We pack as many engagements as we can into Tuesday and Wednesday and Thursday, and often Monday and Friday are full. On the weekends we go to Camp David or to Texas. If we are here, Saturday is a time to think and plan. Saturday is my day — a blank day on the calendar — a creative day. There must be some days like this to feed the rest of the week, to build on.

I spent this Saturday morning with book work. At a little past 3 Abe Fortas came over, and in the Queen's Sitting Room, my own special little fortress — it has only one door and I can be private there — we talked for an hour and a half on the subject that has engaged so much of my thinking ever since Lyndon got into this job — how to get out and when.

Many months ago I set March, 1968, in my own mind as the time when Lyndon can make a statement that he will not be a candidate for re-election. I was following the pattern of President Truman and I have counted first the years and then the months until that time. Now it is 10 months away. For the first time in my life I have felt lately that Lyndon would be a happy man retired. I feel that there is enough at the Ranch to hold him, keep him busy, and that he can pour himself into some sort of teaching work at the University of Texas — in the Johnson School of Public Service, perhaps, with maybe an occasional lecture at his alma mater in San Marcos.

RANCH LIFE
I find myself enjoying every return to the Ranch more and more. And I do not know whether we can endure another four-year term in the Presidency. I use that word "endure" in Webster's own meaning, "to last, remain, continue in the same state without perishing." I face the prospect of another campaign like an open-ended stay in a concentration camp.

I have thought that Lyndon was of the same mind—that he would at some proper time announce that he would not be a candidate for re-election — but I do not know. All these months I have felt that circumstances might keep him from it, that events might trigger him into running. If the polls became so bad that it looked as if he could not be elected, that might force him to try. Or if the Vietnam war were over, there would be the wonderful beckoning hope that the enormous economic muscle of this country, which in the past six or seven years has grown so vastly, could be thrown into high gear to achieve the goals of the Great Society — rebuilding the cities, redoubling the work on health and education and conservation. That could really be a siren song. Over a cup of coffee Abe and I talked about it. There is almost nobody in the world that I can talk to. To Abe, I feel I can. He was quiet and a little sad, but very understanding. The gist of what he said at the end was that he thought Lyndon had done enough — had worked enough in his life — full. On the weekends we go to Camp David or to Texas. If we are here, Saturday is a time to think and plan. Saturday is my day — a blank day on the calendar — a creative day. There must be some days like this to feed the rest of the week, to build on.

GLOOMY TALK

It was a solemn, rather gloomy talk. Abe was insistent that Lyndon must not make a decision, and certainly not an announcement, before next March. He thought that any such decision or announcement would hamstring — almost immobilize — the war effort and Lyndon's domestic program, his leadership of the country.

At any rate, Lyndon's decision is never far from my thoughts. I cannot control the outcome, though I will have some effect on it. And it will not, I hope, be decided until next March.

MONDAY, June 5

This day began with that most dread and frightening sound that can happen in this house — the sudden ringing of the telephone in the middle of the night. It can never be good news. The insistent ring jarred me from the soft web of sleep.

I heard Lyndon's quick reaction, "Yes." Then a long silence, interrupted on his part by a few crisp questions. He finally hung up and fell back on the pillow. With an almost unbearable wave of sympathy,

I asked him what it was. He said: "We have a war on our hands — in the Middle East." I looked at the clock. It was about 4:30. An hour later the phone crashed the silence again. Once more there was talk with a few clipped questions on his side and then long silences. When it was over, I leaned over and kissed him.

I cannot say I slept anymore. Rather there was a long period of continuing nightmares in which I was lost and wandering, though sometimes the places were familiar. Finally I got up. Lyndon had been gone a long time. Not since that day in October, 1962, (during the Cuban missile crisis) had I felt so tense and strained, known such a feeling of foreboding.

MIDDLE EAST

The news of the Middle East conflict was everywhere, but totally conflicting. The Israelis said the Egyptians started the fighting — the Egyptians said the Israelis had invaded their territory with planes and troops. The Israelis gave the numbers of enemy planes — vast numbers — that they had knocked down. And the Egyptians claimed victories over the Israelis, citing the number of planes downed, though not as many as the Israelis had claimed, with very little loss to themselves. Then there was the news that a State Department official had used the phrase "neutral in thought, word and deed" to define the United States' position in the Middle East conflict. Rusk hastened onto TV to try to clarify the word "neutral."

The UN was struggling, with its major action arm, the Security Council, going into session for five or six hours. I went out presuming for private talks among its members, and then promising to go back into session any minute. Like millions of others I strained with hope toward the UN and what it might produce. But I remembered with dismay the expressions of no confidence that I have heard applied to it these last months by many observers.

I turned off the TV and went over to the bowling lanes, where I used up my energy in three games, hurling a heavier ball than usual and running up scores in the 150's — all by myself. Not much fun, but exercise, and while I'm doing it I don't think much about anything else.

TROUBLE GAUGE

Then back to my little room where I worked, with the great white lights of television behind Lyndon's office glaring at the side of the White House and into the room. In this place there are thermometers of trouble somewhere in the world — the presence of TV vans by the West Wing is always one, and in the space outside the press lobby a commentator with a mike standing in the spotlight's glare. Another is the sudden arrival of a fleet of limousines, some bringing Congressional leadership, and some Chiefs of Staff, to Lyndon's office.

It was a little after 10 when Lyndon came home to dinner. He looked burdened and the lines in his face deeper, and I felt it would be the greatest cruelty for me to ask him to talk about the war in the Middle East. I tried some brisk, bright reports on what I had been doing today, and they sounded hollow.

At 12 his light went out. I prayed that he slept because last night he had had only about four hours.

The evening paper headlines were, "War Rages in Mideast," "UN Attempts to Get Truce in Israel Battle," "Johnson Pushes UN Effort."

And so the anxious day came to an end.

'WHAT'S GOING ON?'

'I Have Never Seen A Lovelier Ceremony'

THURSDAY, August 10, 1967

The White House and LBJ Ranch

Today began in the strangest way. Sometime in the very early morning hours I came awake as I do at the slightest sound or movement, and I thought I could hear a creaking of the boards or of the walls in this old house. I thought of all the White House ghost stories — completely undisturbed by them, however. And then I just knew there was somebody in the room — somebody coming toward the bed. With no sense of fright, I reached out my hand over the side of the bed and a hand closed upon it. I said, "Who is this?" Lynda's voice answered: "Mama, I want to talk to you." She sat down on the side of the bed, and I whispered, "Let's go to your room." But it was too late. Lyndon was awake. Sleepily he rose on his elbow, reached for the light and said, "What's going on?"

'I'M IN LOVE'

I felt I knew what it was. Some lift of excitement in Lynda's voice, some feeling that she was trying to talk to me, but was not quite ready when I had watched her get dressed to go out for the date the evening before, had made me think it was about Chuck Robb—that she was getting more interested in him — just how interested I wasn't sure. She said, "Mother, Daddy, I am in love. I want to get married."

Lyndon was at once wide awake. "Tell us about it," he said. So she told us about him. He is a Marine with six years of service. We've seen him in and out of the house for several months now. He's a Military Aide. In fact he looks as if he ought to be on a poster for the Marines. He has a degree from the University of Wisconsin—Business Administration, she said.

She told us how many brothers and sisters he has and what his father does — he works for American Airlines. And about how much fun they have together. They like doing the same things. And this from Lynda, whose interests have been turning more and more these last two years to people on the stage and screen, cafe society people, people who are very rich or very talented or very social. Chuck Robb, on the other hand, looks like the "All-American boy," wholesome, handsome, masculine. Actually, I know very little about him, except that he plays a good game of bridge. There will be so much to talk about — a wedding date, the lists — very important, Vietnam, for Chuck has requested duty there and that time lies not very far away.

SATURDAY, December 9

Today, Lynda's wedding day, began overcast and gray, though with the promise of the sun breaking through. I went to Lyndon's room early. It begins to sound more likely that he will be leaving for Texas right after the wedding. With the house still full of guests, I will stay on.

Jean Louis had set up a shop in the East Hall and there were several dryers and a screen and dressing table. He and two assistants were combing hair from 9 on. Sometime during the bedlam I had lunch in the Solarium — the last lunch of our busy house party! I went downstairs, calling on all reserves of calm, for a final look at the preparations for the wedding. The cake was gorgeous, and the flowers in the tent a profusion of pinks and reds and pale oranges. And on the tables, the most beautiful bouquets — an absolute triumph from the flower room — ranging from tenderest pink to deepest velvet red.

WHEELS OF ORDER

And then the great wheels of order and convention began to roll. I went to get dressed and Lyndon went to get dressed. And a few minutes before 4, I took my place at the head of the stairs. Bess, still calm in all the tumult, was the major-domo, and at her signal I took White House Aide Brian Lamb's arm and walked down the stairs past the throngs of wedding guests in the entrance foyer and down the hall, to the masses in the East Room, my eyes looking for a moment in a message of love to this good friend and that kin-person, and some childhood friend of Lynda's.

The ceremony began on time, they tell me, with Pat Nugent and Joe Batson coming in first, and then the other groomsmen, and the velvet-clad bridesmaids. Lynda had been right all along — red was a stunning color! Each one looked perfectly beautiful. Luci, looking ethereal and very solemn, was the last to come in, taking her place in the semicircle in front of the altar.

MARINE BAND

Then the Marine Band struck up the march from Lohengrin, "Here Comes the Bride." Every heart in the place lifted. I am sure, and there was a hushed expectant moment. And there at the door was Lynda on her daddy's arm. Beautiful as she was, it was Lyndon I watched all the way — such a mixture of tenderness and farwell in his look. His hair looked whiter than I have ever seen it, and I was full of tenderness for him.

THE SILENT STAGE — Bearded Tim Scanlon, who plays the role of King Henry II, looks up at Dean Alexander who plays the title role in this year's stage presentation of "Becket" at Gallaudet College in Washington. MARINE ASKS NEW TRIAL Italian Court Gives Skyjacker 7 In Cell

ROME (AP)—The young U.S. Marine who hijacked a TWA jetliner from California to Rome a year ago appealed today against his conviction in an Italian court and the 7½-year sentence given him. He asked for a new trial.

Air piracy is not a crime in Italy, but an Italian court found Raphael Minichiello, 21, guilty Wednesday night of kidnapping, assault and bringing into Italy an "arm of war," the M1 rifle with which he commanded the Trans World Airlines craft.

"ARM OF WAR"

The sentence was 13 months longer than the prosecution asked for, and three years and four months of it was on the "arm of war" charge. Parliament created the charge three years ago as a weapon against the Sicilian Mafia. Defense lawyers said the law hadn't done much to the Mafia, but it added a lot to Minichiello's term.

Defense attorneys Giuseppe Sotgiu and Edmondo Zappacosta contended that the court erred "in its evaluation of the facts, in its interpretation of the law and in the extent of the penalty." They said there should be a retrial because the court failed to accept "the insistent request of the defense to question the principal witnesses of the incident—the commander of the plane and members of the crew—thus preventing the disclosure of the actual facts."

AWOL CHARGE

The appeal asked that Minichiello be freed from jail to await the retrial.

Of the 7½ years, he has 4½ years left to serve. He has spent a year in jail since the hijacking, and he gets two years off because of a recent general amnesty.

Still hanging over the AWOL Marine's head is the slight possibility that he might be extradited to the United States. But both defense and prosecution attorneys said they thought it unlikely Italy would hand him over.

Peking's Bid Picks Up Few Votes In U.N.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. General Assembly came around again today to the annual question of China's seat in the United Nations. Peking has picked up some more support, but U.S. and Nationalist Chinese officials figured it still wasn't enough to get the Communist Chinese an invitation.

Last year the vote was 56-48 against Peking, with 21 abstentions. Mao Tse-tung's regime has gained four certain new votes this year.

Canada, Italy and Equatorial Guinea, all of whom abstained in 1969, now recognize Red China. And Chile, which elected a Marxist president last month, has announced that it too will swing from the abstainers to support Peking. Malaysia has indicated that it might vote for Red China instead of abstaining as it did last year.

The only country likely to shift its vote in the other direction is Cambodia, which supported Communist China until a coup overthrew Prince Norodom Sihanouk as Cambodia's chief of state in March. Phnom Penh broke off relations with Peking, which gave Sihanouk refuge.

Each time the China question has come up, the United States has proposed that the assembly declare it an "important question." Such a declaration requires only majority approval but makes a two-thirds vote necessary for approval of the main question, the admission of Red China. The "important question" resolution is expected to be approved again this year, but diplomats predict that the United States will be forced eventually by public opinion to abandon this tactic.

Aware of the turning tide, some of the younger officials in Chiang's government, although it holds only Formosa, still insists that it is the only regime with the legitimate right to represent China and its 700 million people. It now opposes any compromise that would in effect concede Peking's right to represent the mainland.

HAVE PLANE, NEED PILOT — Vernon Hammock wears World War I pilot's helmet as he stands by plane he built in the garage of his Los Angeles home. Hammock, who has never learned to fly, constructed the plane by himself and now needs an experienced pilot willing to test fly it. It took Hammock 18 months to build the plane at a cost of about $1,100.

Number Of People Getting U.S. Food Stamps Jumps

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of people getting government food stamps has more than doubled the past year and Treasury Department presses have been kept busy with demand.

But so far, says the Agriculture

Department—which administers the food aid program—there has been no widespread shortage of the coupons. "We have had some problems with certain denominations in local areas," James E. Springfield, food stamp director, said today, "but these have been only temporary situations."

Food stamps are sold in books of 50-cent and $2 coupons. The 50-cent stamps are included in two books totaling $2 and $3 each, and the $2 ones in books of $10 and $20 value.

Qualified recipients, including welfare families and low income people who are not getting public assistance buy these stamps at a cut rate price and exchange them at food stores the same as cash.

Under the bonus plan, for example, a family of four with a monthly income of $60 receives $106 worth of stamps each month for a payment of $10.

Enrollment in the program was 8.2 million persons in September, compared with fewer than 2.5 million a year earlier.

Springfield said the two-month old automobile strike has had an impact in plant areas.

"We really don't know at this time how much," he said, "but I'm sure it has been substantial in those areas."

There are few strings attached by the government to the food stamp program as long as local officials certify recipients as meeting income eligibility standards and other requirements.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mamie Van Doren's former business agent has pleaded guilty to bilking the shapely blonde actress out of $7,000.

Kenneth Kirk Tracy, a 66-year-old accountant, entered the guilty plea to one count of grand theft in Municipal Court.

He also was charged with another count of grand theft for $9,465. The second charge will be disposed of at his sentencing Dec. 1, officials said.

The district attorney's office said an audit of Miss Van Doren's books showed a loss over the past three years of $46,000. Investigators said, however, that part of that amount may have gone to Tracy as legitimate wages.

Says Cops Start Out 'Honest'

NEW YORK (AP) — Police men start out honest, says the city's investigation commissioner, then they run into unrealistic laws and temptations by businessmen who want to "buy the badge."

Robert Ruskin, whose office receives complaints of police corruption, said Wednesday he believed most policemen want to be honest.

In an interview with the New York Post, Ruskin said, "They start out honest—then a motorist offers him $10 or a restaurateur refuses to let him pay for a lunch. That's the way it starts."

"Many cops take out their wallets to pay for a hot dog and a Coke and the restaurateur absolutely won't take the money," he said. "What is the cop supposed to do—throw it down and run?"

Laws governing sex, gambling, the Sabbath and business operations contribute to the cycle of police corruption and pay-offs, Ruskin charged. As an alternative to enforcing outdated rules, he said, the giving and taking of bribes becomes attractive.

Ruskin said the citizen offers money to policemen, thinking that the worst that can happen is that he'll be rejected. "Actually a cop can arrest him. I think they should, at least to teach them a lesson."

Infection Hits Five More Babies

HOUSTON (AP) — Five more babies have caught the bacterial infection which has affected 24 other newborn babies at the Harris County charity hospital.

Officials at Jefferson Davis Hospital said all of those affected with the infection, E. Coli, have responded well to antibiotic treatment.

Although it is acknowledged the infection can occur anywhere, the hospital staff blames overcrowding in the nurseries.

Former Addicts Speak At BSHS Assembly

Two former drug addicts told today, to tell you about his experiences."

Noah introduced Jimmy — a 15-year-old drug addict, who told students that he had started using marijuana and LSD at the urging of a friend and had quickly "graduated" to heroin.

"My friend urged me to try marijuana, but he didn't have any available, so he offered me LSD. Although I was hesitant he promised to stay with me if anything went wrong. I took it, and I had a beautiful trip," Jimmy said.

"I wanted to stay high all the time, but I was busted in New York City on a week-long LSD trip. My parents came to get me and they arranged for me to talk to people at Teen Challenge. I agreed to try it for one weekend."

"The guys there told me that the answer to my problem would be Christ — and at first I told them that I wasn't interested. But finally I began to pray and I found that praying was the emotional outlet that I needed. Through Christ's help I have become strong enough to get away from drugs. I found the answer to my drug problem, just as young persons all over the country are doing," Jimmy said.

The assembly was jointly sponsored by the Kiwanis Club and the High School Key Club as part of the Kiwanis' over-all program, "Operation Drug Alert."

Burt and Macomber reportedly said they had driven here from Massachusetts and were on their way west. Bond on each was set at $15,000 by Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter.

Election judges and clerks will still receive $1.60 per hour for their work plus $5 for the judges. The salary total will be $3,110.40, which is within the $4,000 budget set by the county commissioners. To pay double would raise the salary expenditure to $4,656.60.

According to Mrs. Black, the payroll for the judges and clerks was being prepared this morning and the checks were to have been mailed sometime today.

Members of the Howard County 4-H horse project group and their families took part in a trail ride in the eastern part of the county last weekend.

The group gathered at the Glyn Mitchell's property, north of Coahoma, about noon Saturday and returned there about 4 p.m. Weiners were roasted over an open fire and served with potato chips, cookies and soft drinks. Martha Eysen was welcomed as a new member of the group.

The next meeting of the horse project group will be at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the county agent's office in the basement of the courthouse.

LAMESA (SC) — Dawson County 4-H clubs met jointly Tuesday evening in the Pioneer Park Building with Mrs. Denny Setfitt, Lorenzo, presenting the program on firearms.

Connie Bartlett (Cap Rock Club) called a meeting to order, and Gwen O'Bannon (Klondike Club) led the pledge to the flag. Sheryl Capwell (Lamesa Club) led the 4-H pledge. Approximately 50 persons attended the meeting.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mamie Van Doren's former business agent has pleaded guilty to bilking the shapely blonde actress out of $7,000.

Kenneth Kirk Tracy, a 66-year-old accountant, entered the guilty plea to one count of grand theft in Municipal Court.

He also was charged with another count of grand theft for $9,465. The second charge will be disposed of at his sentencing Dec. 1, officials said.

The district attorney's office said an audit of Miss Van Doren's books showed a loss over the past three years of $46,000. Investigators said, however, that part of that amount may have gone to Tracy as legitimate wages.

Marijuana Charges Filed

Allen R. Burt, of Santuit, Mass., and Roger E. Macomber, Marston's Mill, Mass., both 17, were arrested by police Wednesday night and charged with possession of marijuana.

Police reportedly stopped the two at a red light in the 100 block of East Fourth to tell them about a tail light on their car and arrested them for alleged possession of liquor.

After further search of the car at the police station, approximately a fourth of an ounce of what police identified as marijuana was found and held in evidence.

Burt and Macomber reportedly said they had driven here from Massachusetts and were on their way west. Bond on each was set at $15,000 by Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter.

DEAR ABBY: There is this wonderful man, 29 years old, who is begging to marry me. He's in a position to give me just about everything a girl could want and he says he's in love with me. My problem is that I'm not in love with him. You see, I am still in love with my high school algebra teacher. I haven't seen him in 13 years and he never did know I was in love with him. I hear he is happily married now and has three children.

I've talked to several psychologists, but they haven't helped me. This algebra teacher is still the first thing I think of in the morning, and the last thing I think of at night. Here I am 30 years old, have a swell guy begging to marry me and I keep turning him down. Should I marry him anyway? I'm afraid I do. I'll be frigid because I'm still in love with somebody else. What is your advice?

DEAR ABBY: You should talk to some more psychologists. You are not "in love" with a person, you're in love with an "image." It's all right to build dream castles, but when you try to "live" in them you're in trouble. Don't torture yourself any longer. You are wasting good years.

DEAR ABBY: What do you think of a husband who, after four years of marriage, still taunts his wife by saying she was too "easy?" Abby, that man chased me, courted me, sent me poetry, flowers and wouldn't give me a moment's rest until I promised to marry him. Now he tells me that a "nice" girl wouldn't have kissed him on the first date, which I did. FREEZER-BOUND. DEAR ABBY: If you don't want to get rid of him—tune him out. But first tell him to grow up.

DEAR ABBY: We received an invitation for a wedding and sent a very lovely wedding gift and awaited the event. Four days prior to the wedding date the groom announced he wanted out, so the wedding was hurriedly called off. Later the couple "made up" and since the groom decided that he wanted to be "engaged," but not married, they postponed the wedding for two years.

A card announcing the postponement was sent to 200 guests with a "thank you" for their gifts. (No gifts were returned, and I understand they received nearly 150.) My question: Is this proper?

Love Lingers For Manson

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Professed fear of reprisals and continuing love for Charles Manson have not deterred a pretty, brunette teen-ager from testifying against him at the Sharon Tate murder trial.

Dianne Lake, 17, testified that she still loves Manson, 35, whose hippie-type "family" she lived with for two years, even though he once threatened to kill her if she spoke to authorities.

Miss Lake is a key prosecution witness in the trial, in which Manson and three women followers are charged with killing Miss Tate and six others. Miss Lake did not get a chance Tuesday to elaborate on the alleged threats, which she said were made at a ranch in Death Valley. The trial was recessed for Veterans Day.

Under cross-examination, she said she had been intimate with Manson and when she added she still loves him, Manson cried out, "She loved everyone. Don't put it on Mr. Manson."

In previous testimony Miss Lake, who said she lived with the Manson family until a few days after the slayings in August 1969, had linked defendants Leslie Van Houten, 20, and Patricia Krenwinkel, 22, to the killings, saying they had admitted details to her.

Defense attorneys attempted to discredit Miss Lake's testimony, bringing out that she had lied to a grand jury—which she admitted, saying she feared reprisals from Manson clan members.

They also pointed out that she admitted hearing disembodied voices and that her memory sometimes failed her. Under cross-examination, she changed details in her testimony but maintained that what she said about Miss Van Houten is true.

Fewer Kissers

DUBLIN (AP) — Fewer tourists kissed the Blarney Stone last year, says Mervyn Johnson, manager of Blarney Castle estate.

The stone, perched high in the battlements of the ancient castle, is reputed to give a new eloquence to those who kiss it.

Every year thousands make a pilgrimage to the castle to kiss the stone, but the weekly attendance has gone down by 20 per cent this year, says Johnson.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Making demands of a personal nature on others could get you into real trouble today. Get out to the beauty or barber shop early. Then handle those business affairs with true efficiency.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take action to clear up worries early, but show that you are conscientious with others or you get bad results. Being more cooperative with creditors is important. Avoid extravagance.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Show more understanding for friends instead of causing them greater problems. Avoid a better time for social activities or you could get into arguments. Get much done in a business way.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Being careful where anything of a business or personal nature is concerned pays off in big dividends now. Safeguard your reputation. Too. Obey all rules and regulations that apply to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Take care you do not run off to far places on some business mirage while important matters are left unattended. Get all the facts and figures necessary so that you get everything straight. Drive with care.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You want to run away from those duties ahead of you, but perseverance will bring fine results. Use good judgment instead of following hunches today, which are apt to be erroneous. Take time for social activities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You must meet associates at least halfway if you want to come to a perfect understanding instead of continuing to argue. Keep poised, though the situation may be rather combustible. Have much fun with mate in P.M. at some social affair.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Doing your work in a wise and efficient manner and listening to suggestions of willing co-workers brings fine results now. Not a good day for shopping.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) If you show those you like that you do not take them for granted and are most polite, you make the future more harmonious. Get into recreations that are not expensive. Keep mate in fine humor by gentle manner with him or her.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Enjoy home delights without annoying anyone who dwells under your roof. Stop criticizing so much. Do something to make your own corner of the abode more charming and in keeping with your tastes.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Showing good friends that you understand their needs and wants and will help them in some way is good now. Working along with others is best today. Being the lone wolf, as it were, yields very little, especially in P.M.

Big A, Big O Spur Bucks By Celtics

By The Associated Press

Mr. A and Big O are proving a potent 1-2 punch for the Milwaukee Bucks in the National Basketball Association.

Mr. A, otherwise Lew Alcindor, scored 44 points and the Big O, the nickname for Oscar Robertson, added 26 for a combined 70-point performance in leading the Bucks to their seventh straight victory Wednesday night by 123-113 over Boston.

The veteran Robertson added 10 assists in what Larry Costello, coach of the Bucks, called "his best game for us" since he came to the Bucks from Cincinnati.

In other games Philadelphia beat Baltimore 119-107, Los Angeles shaded Detroit 117-115, Buffalo overcame Atlanta 134-118, Phoenix tripped Portland 114-100 and San Diego humbled Cincinnati 127-120.

Carolina defeated the New York Nets 106-102 and Kentucky beat Virginia 128-123 in the American Basketball Association.

The Celtics, led by John Havlicek 31 points, took a 10-point lead in the third period, but a 13-2 Milwaukee spur put the Bucks ahead at 78-77. A three-point play by Alcindor broke an 89-89 tie and the Bucks were in front to stay.

Archie Clark threw in 30 points to lead Philadelphia over the Bulls. He got 14 of them in the third period as the 76ers broke loose for 41 points. Wes Unseld topped the Bulls with 28.

Wilt Chamberlain got 27 points to lead Los Angeles over Detroit. The Pistons cut a 10-point deficit to 116-115 with 52 seconds left before a free throw by Fred Hetzel swung it up for the Lakers. Dave Bing was high for the losers with 35.

Bob Kauffman's 35 points paced Buffalo over Atlanta, led by Lou Hudson's 21. Rookie Pete Maravich of the Hawks was "accidentally" kicked in the back of his left knee in the second quarter and suffered a muscle bruise. He did not play in the second half.

Dick Van Arsdale scored 28 points as Phoenix downed Portland. Geoff Petrie was high for the Trail Blazers with 27.

Juveniles Run At Sunland

SUNLAND PARK, N.M. — A wealth of young talent will be seen in action at Sunland Park Friday night as 10 juveniles go postward in the Anthony Beta Sigma Phi Purse over 5 1/2 furlongs.

The majority of those entered are nominees to the Sunland Fall Thoroughbred Futurity which comes up for decision on closing day, Dec. 6. The trials for the six furlong stakes test are to be conducted Saturday, Nov. 28.

Maudie Carter's Misty Quill, a winner over allowance horses while breaking her maiden last time out, is one of the main contenders in Friday's headliner as she goes postward under 117 pounds with Richard Strauss in the irons. Misty Quill scored at first asking locally after campaigning at major Eastern tracks most of the year.

One of her main foes Friday figures to be Louie Allen's Hy Roar, an impressive local winner, who'll have Leroy Clombs up under 120 pounds. John R. Adams' Helera and J. H. Rose's Ricks Eagle, both winners at Ruidoso, and Larry Lambers' Little Decima, who defeated a crack maiden field here, are others who merit strong consideration.

Completing the field are Bruce Moseley's Tillie Sunshine, Richard Bickel and 117; Buster Phipps' Trecentra Dias, Dave Morris at 112; John McKee's

Greens Criticized As Cup Play Nears

BUENOS AIRES, (AP) — Rain, wind, cold and an Argentine general strike faced the 43 national teams playing in today's opening of the World Cup Golf Tournament.

As if that weren't enough, the players also were complaining about the greens on the 6,700-yard Jockey Club Course for the four-day, 72-hole tourney.

"It would be easier to putt on a concrete floor," joked Lee Trevino of the United States after shooting a respectable 69 in Wednesday's Pro-Am preliminary.

A cold rain, lashed by gusty winds, started shortly after the wind-up of the Pro-Am tournament. Today's forecast was for rain and temperatures in the 50s.

Officials, however, said it would have to be a lot worse before the tournament would be cancelled.

"They've played in rain before," said Fred Corcoran, of New York, executive director of the International Golf Association. "In fact, we had one of our finest tournaments in the rain."

A 36-hour general strike called by the country's labor federation to protest the Argentine government's economic policies also was scheduled to begin today.

"We're prepared for that, too," said Corcoran. "There was some concern the regular workers might not cut the grass, so we've lined up some volunteers."

Of the 43 teams, the United States, Argentina, England and Australia were the pre-tournament favorites, although Brian Hugget of Wales and two Japanese professionals drew attention in the Pro-Am.

Hugget, 34, playing in his sixth World Cup, fired a eight-under-par 64, three better than Takaaki Ono of Japan.

The second member of the Japanese team, Haruo Yasuda, fired a 70.

Foresees Kayo

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Oscar Bonavena worked out three rounds Wednesday and repeated he would knock out Muhammad Ali, in their 15-round fight in New York Dec. 7.

She Canbee Sweet, Bobby Harmon and 112; Linda Vaughn's Whitney D., Rola Pruitt and 114 and L. B. Johnson's Hyperkinesio with 117 pounds and no rider. Helera will have Jerry Nicodemus aboard, Ricks Eagle is ridden by Don Lewis and Little Decima will have the services of George Adkins.

Both Helera and Ricks Eagle will be starting for the first time locally but nevertheless should be well regarded in the waning. Helera was fourth in the Ruidoso Futurity after leading to the stretch while Ricks Eagle finished sixth after encountering trouble during the early going. The latter gained added stakes experience on the West Coast, finishing ninth in the $100,000-added Hollywood Park Juvenile Championship last July.

Post time for Friday's 10-race program under the lights is 7:30 p.m. Racing will return to the afternoon both Saturday and Sunday with 12-race cards set to begin at 1:30 p.m.

Topping the weekend's agenda is the $12,250 Fall Quarter Horse Derby on Sunday which will match perhaps the country's two finest three-year-olds, Walter Merrick's Easy Jet and Harriett Peckham's Go Together. The latter posted the fastest qualifying time in the trials by nipping Easy Jet by a nose last week.

fired a 68 to give Japan the best combined scores for the pros. Vicente Fernandez had a 69.

Dave Stockton of the United States shot a 70 to go with Trevino's 69. Another top player in the tournament, Tony Jacklin of England, shot a 69.

Canada and Argentina were the first teams scheduled to tee off.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

There's lots of young talent on the Big Spring Junior Varsity team which buried Odessa High under a 43-0 score here the other night.

Only two of the offensive starters, Gregg Knight and Mike Williamson, are juniors. Joe Pesina, a member of the defensive unit, is also a junior. All the others are sophomores.

Fullback Dick Conley has a little weight problem but he's blue ribbon. Dick could be the hardest running back Big Spring has had since Frosty Robinson, and that is going back 16 years.

Walter Jordan, another member of the JV backfield, probably is the only Big Spring boy other than R. L. Lassater ever to dip under 10 seconds flat in the hundred as a freshman.

Quarterback Scott Carille shows tremendous promise, both in charting strategy and running with the ball. The most impressive thing about the team was its pursuit. Often the Odessa ball carrier wound up looking like the boy who had popped his head through a fence with iron pickets and couldn't squeeze in or out. The JVs have an appetite for violent contact.

A California insurance company held a company golf tournament in the Bay Area not long ago and one of its executives ran into the locker room. Spotting a black face, he yelled: "Hey, boy, where can I get a locker?"

"Yes sir," replied the Negro, "Right over here..." The executive-type then asked if he could get a shoe shine and the genial black man replied, "Yes sir!"

It turned out the fellow he was talking to was Willie Mays, who takes a shine to baseball and makes one disappear occasionally. At 135 big ones ($135,000) per, he won't wind up shining anyone's brogans.

One of the closest relationships in professional football is that between Big Springer Charley Johnson and Wally Lemm, the lame duck coach for the Houston Oilers.

Charley, who quarterbacks the Oilers when he isn't in dry dock with injuries, vowed to try and play the Oilers' remaining seven games after he learned that Lemm was packing it in at the end of the season.

Charley told the St. Louis booster club: "I'm happy for the Cardinals this year but I'm not really as happy for them as I am for myself. One of the greatest things to happen to me was to be a Cardinal and learn the game under Wally Lemm."

Fans Cheer, Then Boo Tech's Black Back

ATLANTA (AP) — Eddie McAshan, first black athlete at Georgia Tech, is a quiet, complex individual whose initial season as quarterback of an otherwise all-white team has ranged from moments of greatness to downright despair.

The cheers roared throughout Tech's Grant Field when the 19-year-old sophomore from Gainesville, Fla., led the Yellow Jackets to three straight victories at the start of the season.

Tech also won its fourth game, one McAshan considers his poorest performance this year, but it was the following week that the fans began booing when McAshan failed to move the team against Tennessee in a 17-6 loss.

MEANT NOTHING

"Sure I heard it, but it didn't bother me," said McAshan. "It didn't really mean anything. Most of the time I just don't see the purpose of it because most fans don't really know what they are booing about."

With three games remaining, McAshan already has become only the eighth player in Georgia Tech history to surpass 1,000 yards total offense in a season, even though he's divided playing time almost equally with senior Jack Williams in the last three games.

Big Track Is Set

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — The San Juan Racing Association received permission Wednesday to build a new $25 million track for night thoroughbred racing. The track, expected to be completed in 1972, is in the Canovanas area, six miles from the present El Comandante track.

After watching game films, Coach Bud Carson said McAshan was off target on only two passes.

"By any standard it was a truly outstanding performance, but considering all the pressure that was on Eddie for the first football game, it was a fantastic performance," Carson said.

"I don't know if there ever field."

"There's been some, but I have been that much pressure on a sophomore quarterback."

MUM ON WAR

McAshan talks freely about football, but refuses to be drawn into discussions of the Vietnam War or social matters.

"I'm all the way against it, but I really can't go into detail about it," he says of the war.

"There are a lot of things that need changing in this country, but I can't really specifically tell you the things that need changing," he says.

McAshan says he's had no racial problems connected with football, and only a little off the can't recall exactly when, where or what," he said. "The main thing I've noticed is when I walk around the campus late at night, a police car may slow up and stop, like I'm in a foreign territory. It makes it seem like I don't have the right to walk anywhere I want to."

His acceptance by his teammates has been total.

"I think the line in our football brochure about him sums it all up," said senior fullback Steve Harkey.

TOP CANDIDATE — Jim Plunkett (above), Stanford quarterback, is considered the top candidate for this year's Heisman Award, given annually to the leading collegiate football player in the country.

Another Speedway Event Is Scrubbed

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — The 400-mile Grand National race scheduled Dec. 6 at Texas International Speedway has been canceled, general manager George Boyett said Wednesday.

It was the third major race date to be scrubbed by the track and its parent company, American Raceways, Inc., this year.

The track opened last fall and two major races were held, the concluding events in both the Canadian-American challenge Cup series, but no major races were held this year.

The other two canceled races were the NASCAR 400-mile event set for June and the USAC twin 200 scheduled last month.

NEW FORMAT FOR PRO BOWL GAME ADOPTED THIS YEAR

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The 21st annual Pro Bowl football game will be played here Jan. 24 with a new format that for the first time since the merger of the National and American Football Leagues matches the two conferences.

For the past 10 years the AFL had its all-star game and the NFL its Pro Bowl all-stars.

Game co-directors Glenn Davis and Jerry Hanes, representing Los Angeles' two metropolitan newspapers which stage the contest, said players on the winning team will receive $2,000 apiece, the losers $1,500.

The coaches will be the losers in the National and American conference games. The winners, of course, go on to the Super Bowl to be played Jan. 17.

SAYS SCHRAMM Special Shoe Aids Kicker

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) — Tom Schramm feels Tom Dempsey's record 63-yard field goal should have an asterisk and the chairman of the competition committee of the National Football League plans to kick about it.

Schramm, the president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys, said Wednesday he has "great admiration" for New Orleans' Dempsey, who kicked the field goal Sunday in the dying seconds to defeat Detroit.

"I have great admiration for Dempsey in overcoming his physical disability but I believe he should use the same surface to meet the ball that other kickers use," Schramm said.

Dempsey has a deformed right foot and wears a specially designed shoe costing $200.

Schramm said the kicking surface on Dempsey's shoe "is like the head of a golf club... with a steelhammer surface. I don't feel he should have such an advantage. He should have a sole (front edge) kicking surface like everybody else to meet the ball."

Schramm said he realized his stand would be unpopular.

But he added "I feel the record should have an asterisk by it. You've got to look at it with the rest of the kickers in the league in mind. Also, Detroit lost an important game that could have a strong bearing on its season."

Schramm said "A year ago the league took action that kicking shoes must be of stock manufacture for retail sale. But a member of the league office inspected various shoes and someone had the rule changed to approve Dempsey's shoe."

"I told them as the chairman of the competition committee I didn't feel they had authority to approve Dempsey's shoe," Schramm said.

Teams Rematched

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The 10th annual Camellia Bowl football game will be a rematch of last year's with the undefeated University of Montana Grizzlies out to avenge 1969's 30-0 loss to the Bison of North Dakota State.

This may be your last chance to get up off your big fat complacency.

Maybe you've heard this before. But think it over for a moment, anyhow.

You're probably just as worried as everyone else about what's happening here in town. And you feel frustrated, because you don't know what you can do to help.

Try this. Pick out one of our United Way agencies. Go to it. Go out into the field with its workers. See for yourself the very real needs of the people it serves. The new and growing urgency of their problems.

Take a good hard look at the new things that the agency is doing to solve these problems. The new approaches. The new programs. The new money they take.

Then, when you pledge your Fair Share, you're bound to make it bigger. You will remember the faces and voices of those you are helping. You will know what must be done.

If you don't do it, it won't get done.

'DRINK WET BUT VOTE DRY'

Booze Showdown Looms

By The Associated Press

The Nov. 3 voter approval of liquor by the drink in Texas dumped the controversial old problem right back in the laps of the legislature.

For more than two decades "drink wet but vote dry" senators and representatives have avoided a showdown on the sticky question.

Actually the Nov. 3 vote was at least the sixth statewide vote since Civil War days in which the people back home were asked to tell the legislature what to do — then they have not always followed the advice.

Many persons, including former Gov. John Connally, thought the legislature had full power to pass a mixed drink law without a change in the Constitution.

BAN 'OPEN SALOONS'
The constitutional prohibition against "open saloons" that was added in 1935 specified that "the legislature shall have the power and it shall be its duty to define the term 'open saloon' and enact laws against such."

But campaign-leary senators and representatives in 1965, 1967 and 1969 have refused to take on the responsibility and said instead, with the blessings of Gov. Preston Smith, that voters should decide.

The voters decided Nov. 3 and now the Constitution reads:

"The legislature shall have the power to enact a mixed beverage law regulating sale of mixed alcoholic beverages of a local option basis."

NO SUCH THING
But the Constitution change does not say the legislature must enact a mixed drink law, just that it has the power if it wishes.

Since 1876 the Constitution has given the legislature authority to pass a corporate or personal income tax but there is no such thing.

If 1971 legislators want to settle down and try to solve the mixed drink question they will find plenty of precedent for it. As early as 1858 the legislature said it was illegal to sell booze to wild Indians. In 1876 the legislature passed a local option law allowing as few as 20 voters in a precinct to call a wet-dry election.

In 1887, legislators presented voters a proposal to dry up the entire state and it was defeated 220,637 to 120,270.

In the 1908 Democratic primary, which was the only election held, voters said they wanted another prohibition amendment on the next general election ballot but the next legislature refused to take action.

Prohibition actually was put to a statewide test in 1914 when Jim Ferguson, an anti-prohibitionist, defeated Thomas Bell 237,662 to 191,558.

The 36th legislature submitted a prohibition amendment to the state Constitution and voters approved it 148,982 to 130,907. However, in the meantime the legislature had gone ahead and ratified the national prohibition repeal amendment in 1918.

Then during Ma Ferguson's second administration, the first of two statewide repeal amendments was approved by voters, the legalization of 3.2 per cent beer and wine.

On Aug. 24, 1935, full prohibition repeal, with strict local option, was written into the state constitution following federal repeal.

And sometime in 1971 the 62nd legislature will act on statewide liquor by the drink — unless they can find another excuse to send it back to the voters.

Gulf Oil Boosts Prices Of Fuel To Its Dealers

HOUSTON (AP)—The price of gasoline to Gulf dealers went up by 20 cents in February, 1969. It leveled off at about 15 cents after most other major companies posted smaller increases.

Dealers will now pay seven-tenths of a cent per gallon more for gasoline.

The crude oil increase represents about seven per cent in the company's domestic purchasing area. There will be commensurate adjustments to all gasoline price supports to be withdrawn nationwide. The supports were prompted at the time of the price wars.

FIRST SINCE '69
This is the first increase by a major oil company since Texaco raised its price per barrel by 20 cents in February, 1969.

It leveled off at about 15 cents after most other major companies posted smaller increases.

Texas crude oil has been selling at $3.15 to $3.25 a barrel. "To reach parity with other elements of the economy and to make up for a decade of below-parity prices, Texas crude should be selling for at least $4 a barrel," Kenneth A. Montague of Houston, president of the Texas Midcontinent Oil & Gas Association, said in his annual report Oct. 13.

Domestic crude prices have been averaging about $3.10 a barrel, while the average wholesale price for gasoline had been about 11.89 cents per gallon without taxes.

DRILLING SLUMP
Heavy fuel oil averaged 6.87 cents a gallon in August, but rose to 7.19 in October.

Oilmen have long contended that crude and petroleum products prices are falling well behind price increases for other commodities.

This has been a major factor in causing domestic exploration for new oil and gas reserves to drop to a 27-year low. Drilling operations are in a 14-year slump, but nonetheless, the industry has been producing more than 10 million barrels of crude oil a day the past month.

A tight domestic supply has also forced domestic refiners to process more residual or heavy heating oils for East Coast consumption.

About 90 per cent of the East Coast's residual supplies have come from foreign sources and prospects are dim for continued supply of heating oil for the winter months ahead.

This has been brought on by increased demand in Western Europe, a shortage of tankers and higher tanker prices.

RESERVES DROP
The domestic refineries have been urged by the federal agencies to increase their output of residuals.

The Independent Petroleum Association of America at its annual meeting last week said prices for both crude oil and natural gas should "and must be restored to levels that provide the necessary funds and incentives" to find new domestic reserves.

The domestic reserves have dropped in seven of the last 10 years and domestic gas reserves declined in the last two years for the first time in history.

Record CRMWD Production Noted

For the first time in its 20-year history, the Colorado River Municipal Water District crossed the 13-billion-gallon production mark in October.

Through the first 10 months of this year the district has pumped 13,146,637,622 gallons, according to Paschal Odom, assistant general manager. This compares with 12,653,997,000 for all of 1969. The big difference this year is in the addition of Midland as a customer.

In October, the cities used 743,313,000 gallons, making 9,614,748,000 for the year thus far, an increase of 38.37 per cent. Odessa used 267,220,000, down 5.48; Big Spring 170,880,000, down 6.76; Snyder 53,508,000, up 5.72; Stanton 1,445,000, down 18.05; and Midland 250,160,000.

Oil company deliveries of 236,856,669 were down 43.83 per cent for the month and made 3,551,880,622 gallons for the first 10 months, or 12.38 per cent less than for this period a year ago. About one-third of the deliveries to oil companies was in non-potable water diverted from the normal low flow of the Colorado River.

October pumping amounted to 980,169,669 barrels, said Odom, which was only 4.26 per cent more than the same month in 1969 before Midland began taking water. The delivery curve may flatten out in November, because all users except municipalities were cut off from Lake J. B. Thomas as of Nov. 1.

Angela Davis Elected Queen Of Homecoming

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—Black militant Angela Davis, facing kidnap and murder charges, has been elected honorary homecoming queen at Sacramento City College.

Miss Davis, 26, is held in a New York jail in connection with a Marin County shootout Aug. 7 which killed a judge and three other persons.

The honorary queen title was bestowed by the 23-member student executive senate of the two-year community college.

Pudgy 'Hee Haw' Star Fights Pain

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—Country music star Roy Clark is undergoing a series of tests in the intensive care unit at Baptist Hospital.

Clark, 37, the pudgy guitar-picking star of CBS-TV's "Hee Haw," was admitted to the hospital with chest pains late Tuesday night.

His physician, Dr. William Ewers, did not rule out the possibility that Clark may have suffered a heart attack, but said preliminary examinations indicated the entertainer was suffering from exhaustion.

The world has entered a new stage of history, the age of the maturity of man and the beginning of a world civilization. The source of this new development was a Man who was exiled, tortured, banished and imprisoned for more than 40 years. He lived during the last century. His name —

MRS. BELLE WILKERSON

Mrs. B. Wilkerson Feted On Birthday

Mrs. Belle Wilkerson was honored Sunday on her 98th birthday with an open house at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jay Wilkerson at Garden City. Over 40 relatives and friends called between the hours of 3 and 5 p.m.

Assisting as hostesses were the honoree's daughters, Mrs. Henry Brunson of Midland and Mrs. Vena Lawson, Garden City. Serving at the refreshment table was a daughter-in-law, Mrs. Jewell Wilkerson of Abilene.

The honoree, who was attired in a blue dress, was presented a corsage of pink carnations.

Refreshments were served from a polished table appointed with silver and centered with a fall arrangement of chrysanthemums and greenery.

Mrs. Wilkerson, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Whiteside, was born in 1872 at Sipe Springs, where she married the late M. A. Wilkerson, Dec. 23, 1891. The couple later moved to the Balinger area where he farmed and taught school, and at one time, he served as postmaster at Norton.

In 1905, the Wilkersons came to Glasscock County in a covered wagon and made their home about 10 miles south of Garden City where he ranched until his death in November.

Club hosted the event, where presiding officers were Mrs. C. A. Hollingsworth, zone chairman, and Mrs. R. L. Grubb, district director.

Bart Barnett, Chamber of Commerce manager, extended the welcome, with response by Mrs. O. R. Little of Midland, a master judge and executive commander of Texas Garden Clubs Inc. The invocation was worded by Bill Allen, Church of Christ minister.

Mrs. M. R. Hurt conducted a workshop on "How to Apply For and Win an Award," and Lee Coil spoke on the Sears Award. The afternoon program, "Christmas Creativeness," was led by Mrs. J. A. Koegler.

Garden Club Sees City Sewage Plant

Bill Brown, supervisor of the city sewage plant, conducted the Men's Garden Club on a tour of the plant Tuesday evening. Brown, also a club member, described how the plant treats sewage and noted that the plant is "very modern for a town of this size."

He explained one of the main problems is caused by laundry detergents. The plant encompasses 15 acres, eight of which are grass. There are three settling tanks to purify the water, and each of the three filters contains 47 railroad carloads of rock. Water is sprayed on the filters and bacteria breaks down the sewage. The treated water either flows into Beal Creek to join the Colorado River, or is used industrially by Cosden Chemical Company.

Dr. Paul Koshi presided at a brief business session. The next meeting will be Dec. 8.

Slender Benders Work On Bazaar

After 28 Years, They Own 'First Real Home'

By LUCILLE PICKLE

The house at 2307 Brent Drive is more than just a house to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rogers. In all their 28 years of married life this is their first real home as all but two of those years have been lived in company houses.

Rogers is refinery manager for Cosden Oil and Chemical Company, and he and Mrs. Rogers came here in April from Mt. Pleasant where they had lived for 18 years. There are some nice things about living in company houses but not for a couple who likes to garden, clip the grass and do all the things homeowners do. In the company house this was all done for them.

When the couple bought the new home, they felt heir to dozens of rose bushes which the former owner had pampered and petted, and they are now thriving and blooming profusely. In Mt. Pleasant Mrs. Rogers had no luck with roses so she is particularly happy with her new yard.

The couple are parents of three children. They are Kent, 25, who is married and a senior at Southwestern Medical School in Dallas. He and his wife have two daughters, Cyndi, 6, and Susi, 18 months. Phil, 23, is a Yale graduate and is presently working on a 'dream research' project at Yale Medical School, one project in a projected series.

The only daughter, Carla, 20, is a junior business education major at East Texas State University at Commerce and is planning to marry on Nov. 14 in Mt. Pleasant.

From 1947 until 1951 Rogers was with Standard Oil at the Aruba (Dutch West Indies) refinery which was, at that time, the second largest in the world for distribution of crude oil. It was here that Carla was born. The family lived on the American end of the island (which is now called Aruba, Netherlands, Antilles) with 800 other American families. The natives lived on the other end of the island so there was no swapping of recipes with them. Mrs. Rogers says they just swapped American recipes among themselves.

Personable Mrs. Rogers was born in Kansas and was named Jaunques by her mother after a favorite friend. It is the major reason that friends don't get on a first name basis readily. They have a hard time learning to pronounce it. But Jaunques Rogers is not as difficult to pronounce as Jaunques Hallenbeck, which was her maiden name. The friendly, gracious newcomer has made many friends and finds that West Texans respond to her friendliness. In fact she is convinced that her love for the greenery and flowers of East Texas might be replaced by the new friends here.

Out here in the land where corn bread dressing is a big part of a turkey dinner, Mrs. Rogers admitted that she learned how to make it only several years ago by asking around among friends in Mt.

Pleasant. Her mother who always made her own light bread, never used anything but lightbread in her dressing. Now she knows about corn bread dressing and blackeye peas.

The au gratin potato recipe has been in the family ever since the couple bought their first gas stove and it was included in the gift cookbook.

With Carla's wedding coming so near to Thanksgiving, the Rogerses don't expect anyone here so they are planning a deer hunt near Kerrville. He hunts, she just goes along.

One big interest of Mr. Rogers is still in the Mt. Pleasant area. It is his hobby of raising whitehead Herefords. He keeps his 25 head on the 50-acre farm out from Mt. Pleasant and busies himself with a modest bookkeeping system on them.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rogers are members of the First Baptist Church where he is director of the Sunday School department and she is active in WMU. Another need she is filling in her new home is working each Wednesday as a volunteer at the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center.

THE NATIVES LIVED HERE — When Mr. and Mrs. Carl Rogers lived on Aruba (British West Indies) they lived on the one end of the island with other American families and the natives lived in the area where she points to on the map. Their daughter, Carla, was born during their residence on the Caribbean surrounded island.

Microwave Ovens Being Made Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has begun eliminating most of the suspicion cast over microwave ovens last January when a survey showed one-third of the quick-cook ovens emitted excessive radiation.

Most important accomplishment since the survey, according to federal officials, is correction of the industry's initial failure to provide for maintenance and repair that would keep the ovens safe in use.

So far, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare has issued safety clearances for all models of Amana, General Electric and Yoshida microwave ovens. The department has also cleared the newest models of Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward and Westinghouse.

Working on a model-by-model basis, officials expect to clear all of the microwave ovens in the nation by the time new radiation emission standards go into effect next fall.

An estimated 120,000 microwave ovens are in service in U.S. homes, institutions, restaurants and vending machines. Another 75,000 are sold every year. Sales are expected to rise to 1.8 million, or 25 per cent of the oven market, by 1976. About 40 per cent of the ovens now in use are in homes.

The ovens, which generate a type of radiation identical to radar, can bake a potato in four minutes.

The Florida Department of Health has reported detecting eye damage among microwave oven repairmen. Cataracts and burns have been reported from excessive doses of radiation among technicians. Sterility and blood damage have been reported in experimental animals.

Easy Oven Meal

This weekday oven dinner family and your food budget. Meat loaf, baked potatoes, glazed carrots, vegetable salad and canned cling peach halves baked with orange marmalade.

Top Hot Cereal

If hot cereals aren't overly popular in your household, try serving them with heated, canned cling peach slices. The cheerful peaches give extra nourishment and extra good taste.

Last January the government reported a survey showed 51 of 155 ovens checked leaked more than 10 milliwatts of radiation, the voluntary maximum standard established by the industry in 1966. Laboratory tests showed some leaking 20 times the voluntary standard.

Robert L. Elder, director of HEW's division of electronic products, said in an interview the industry was generally producing ovens which were safe coming off the production line. But the industry was not prepared to keep the ovens safe under the wear and tear of use, said Elder. Some of the worst leakage was found in ovens which were just plain dirty.

Elder said one producer had no instruments in the field to spot check radiation emissions. Most repairmen were poorly trained to assess the safety of ovens, he added.

As a result of surveys, numerous meetings with the 15 microwave oven producers, industry distribution of radiation detection units and programs such as one producer's safety training of 1,100 repairmen, Elder now says: "I don't have any hesitancy about microwave ovens, particularly the new models." "They have responded on a voluntary basis to clean up their operations," said Elder.

Good Buys This Week In Texas

By The Associated Press

Texas food shoppers found abundant offerings of cabbage, onions and potatoes this week.

Increased shipments of Texas citrus kept oranges and grapefruit abundant and attractively priced, the Department of Agriculture says. Apples also proved plentiful, except for the large sizes which cost more.

Higher prices also were noted on cauliflower, tomatoes and yellow squash.

Bananas, lemons, limes, strawberries and Texas grapefruit cost less than last week. In vegetables, beans, sweet corn and head lettuce were lower.

Shipments of navel oranges and tangerines from Arizona increased. Tomatoes began arriving from Mexico.

Egg markets strengthened under active buying interest. Prices paid farmers were 1 to 3 cents per dozen higher than a week ago.

Protein foods in plentiful supply include turkeys, broilers and pork.

Dress Up Beans With Mushrooms

Frozen green beans have great flavor when prepared this way.

GREEN BEANS FRANCES

3 tbsps. butter
1 large onion, peeled and cut in thin strips (1 cup)
8 ozs. fresh mushrooms
1 beef bouillon cube
2 pkgs. (each 9-oz.) frozen cut green beans
In a 10-inch skillet over low heat, melt butter; add onion and cook gently, stirring often, until wilted and yellowed — about 10 minutes; add mushrooms and cook, stirring often, until wilted — about 10 minutes. Push to side of pan; add bouillon cube and with a wooden spoon mash until thoroughly broken up; mix with onion and mushrooms; cook a few minutes longer. Meanwhile cook beans according to package directions, omitting salt; drain; stir in mushrooms and onions. Makes eight servings.

CALLING ALL HOME MAKERS
By Ted Hatfield

IS GOOD FURNITURE AN EXTRAVAGANCE?
Definitely

not. The only expensive furniture is "cheap" furniture, and here are the reasons we say that.

First of all, your home is the place you'll spend most of your time for the rest of your life. Should having a good chair to sit in, or a comfortable bed to sleep in, be considered an extravagance?

Think of all the dollars thrown away on completely useless and extravagant items in this country each year and you'll realize more and more that money spent on good quality and good to "look at and live with" furniture is the best investment you can make.

This does not mean that we recommend that anyone should spend money beyond what they can afford. What we mean is that the average family furnishes their home only two or three times in a lifetime, and they should make certain that what they buy will be durable both in construction and style. If it is all you can afford, you will be better off buying one good piece of furniture at a time than a household full of poor merchandise.

There's nothing like living in a home that is comfortably and suitably furnished and decorated for yourself and your family, and we stand ready to help you achieve that goal.

1 stick margarine or butter
3 cups oatmeal
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup coconut
Pinch of salt

(This cake stays moist two or three days in a covered cake pan or covered with foil.)

Chicken Scallopine Takes Just Minutes To Table

It takes just 20 minutes to cook a succulent dish of Chicken Scallopine using the juicy meat of boned chicken thighs. They're a snap to bone, says the National Broiler Council. Just slash the meat the length of the bone, scrape it away and remove the meat in one chunk. Pound it flat to make a uniform cutlet that sautes to perfection in only a few minutes, flavored with lemon and herbs.

Pumpkin Muffin Is Brunch Treat

PUMPKIN MUFFINS

1 cup unsifted regular flour (sift to aerate before measuring)
2 tps. baking powder
1/4 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pumpkin pie spice
1/4 cup butter or margarine
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg
1-3 cup canned mashed pumpkin mixed with 3 tps. milk

On wax paper, thoroughly stir together the flour, baking powder, salt and pumpkin pie spice. Cream butter and sugar; thoroughly beat in egg. Stir in flour mixture in 3 additions alternatingly with pumpkin mixture; stir only until smooth after each addition — do not beat. Fill buttered muffin pan cups about half full; bake in a 350-degree oven until cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — about 25 minutes. Serve hot with butter, or reheat. If muffin pan cups are 1-3 cup size, recipe will make 10 muffins.

PANTRY PICK-UPS

When you are frying apples to serve with pork or poultry, you may want to sweeten the apples with molasses instead of sugar. Nice flavor change!

Serve those cooked carrots with sauteed mushrooms for an interesting vegetable dish.

Creamed of celery soup, diluted with a little milk and heated, makes a good sauce for snap beans, green peas or broccoli.

Easy way to prepare chicken for frying: dump one-third cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon paprika into a paper bag. Add the cut-up chicken, a few pieces at a time, and shake vigorously.

Viet War Slips Back Into Lull

SAIGON (AP) — Ground action in South Vietnam has fallen to its lowest level in nine months, and for the first time in five years American forces have gone two days in a row without having a man killed in action, the U.S. Command reported today.

The U.S. Command's casualty summary for last week also reflected the low level of enemy activity that has prevailed for the past six weeks and the accelerated disengagement of American troops from battle.

Headquarters said 31 Americans were killed in action during the week, while 45 died from accidents or illness. It was the second time since 1965 that more GIs died from nonhostile causes than were killed in combat.

FIVE-YEAR LOW
The battlefield deaths were a slight increase over the 24 men killed the previous week, however, when the death count set a five-year low.

Headquarters said this was the sixth consecutive week that U.S. battlefield deaths were under 50.

The command reported 104 U.S. troops wounded in action last week, the lowest number in almost five years.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 216 government troops killed last week, a drop of 93 from the previous week. It said 460 South Vietnamese soldiers were wounded. The U.S. Command listed 1,584 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops killed during the week.

The only American casualties reported Wednesday were four men wounded aboard one of two helicopters shot down in the Mekong Delta. One South Vietnamese soldier aboard their helicopter was killed and six were wounded. There were no casualties on the second helicopter.

BOMBERS BUSY
American bombers kept up their intensive campaign against North Vietnamese supply routes through Laos and Cambodia today. But only small skirmishes and six enemy rocket and mortar attacks were reported overnight, the lowest number since Feb. 6. Four Americans were reported wounded in the shelling.

In Cambodia, government forces sought to repair their northern front along a 32-mile stretch of Highway 7 between Kompong Cham and Skoun after three days of heavy North Vietnamese and Viet Cong attacks left the defenses in disarray. Stretches of Highway 7 and Highway 6, the only land route between Phnom Penh and Kompong Cham, 47 miles to the northeast, remained closed because of blown bridges.

GROUND ASSAULT
A spokesman said the Kompong Cham area was attacked for the fourth time this week and that one Cambodian soldier was wounded in a mortar and ground assault on the city's military airport.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces launched attacks Wednesday on a key road junction 10 miles south of Phnom Penh and on Cambodian forces near Preaek Tameak, northeast of the capital and just outside its defensive ring. No casualty reports were given.

The attack south of the capital, at Kompong Tuol, was described as a probe by a small enemy force that later withdrew. The town is at the junction of Highway 3 and Provincial Route 101.

Snake-Bite Victim OK

An unidentified woman is being treated at Medical Center Memorial Hospital for a rattlesnake bite termed "serious" by hospital officials.

The hospital, at the woman's request, declined to release the name. Dr. Jack Burnett said the patient is now in good condition and will probably be released from the hospital towards the end of this week.

The woman was bitten on the hand Monday night after the reptile crawled into a barn.

Members Observe Baha'i Founding

The Baha'i Community of Big Spring will join millions of believers throughout the world in commemoration of the 153rd anniversary of the Birth of Baha'u'llah, Prophet-Founder of the Baha'i Faith today.

The theme of this year's observance is "Baha'u'llah — Divine Educator for Today." The theme is tied to 1970 being International Education Year. Baha'is regard Baha'u'llah, which means the "Glory of God," as the Bearer of God's Word for this day. They see Baha'u'llah as the latest, though not the last, of God's Messengers who come as Divine Educators to mankind.

A BABY, IS A BABY, IS A BABY — Like most other infants, despite type and size, this baby rhinoceros at the Columbus, Ohio, Zoo gets its bottle. An attendant holds the giant-sized

Whoopers Settle Down For Winter In Texas

AUSTWELL, Tex. (AP) — Fifty-five whooping cranes settled down Wednesday for their long winter stay in South Texas. Eleven arrived Tuesday, pushed along by a mild weather front from the north.

More are expected, say biologists who keep their fingers crossed to ward off any danger to the rare birds on their 2,500-mile migration from the Great Slave Lake area of northern Canada.

More important to the biologists and other bird-lovers has been the arrival of six young of their species that almost was wiped from the earth.

Gordon Hansen, manager of the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge here, said later arrivals should bring more young since they are delayed by the slow loss of babies.

Another 23 or more are known to be in captivity. The number of the tall, graceful birds was down to only 14 in 1957.

Since then they have been carefully protected here, in their annual migrations. So careful are biologists to prevent alarming the shy birds that the courts are made from the air. Counts are made after the passage of each cold front. Hansen said the arrivals have been on schedule.

About last April 4, 56 cranes left the refuge here for Canada.

A severe forest fire threatened the Canadian nesting grounds last July but was contained. Terribly destructive Hurricane Tia struck in the area of the refuge here in the summer but did no damage to the section occupied each winter by the birds.

Coward 'Tired'

LONDON (AP) — Sir Noel Coward, the 70-year-old playwright, has been admitted to a hospital for treatment of pleurisy.

Coward, who was treated for a virus ailment in June, left a plane in a wheel chair after lying here from his Swiss home last week. He told newsmen he was "just rather tired."

Stair-Stepping Water Old Hat

Stair-stepping water to obtain maximum recovery from reservoirs is getting to be old hat with the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

During the past season the district has resorted to the trick it first employed nearly a score of years ago to deliver water to Snyder before the Lake Thomas level reached the intake. A dam was put around the intake and a temporary pump boosted water into the pumping pool.

Last spring the district did this at Lake E. V. Spence to make use of the initial catch in the lake basin. Later it was employed at the Big Spring-Odessa intake at Lake Thomas. If there should not be any runoff in the next two months, the district will be ready for the next step up. A canal has been cut and a temporary pump is being installed.

Swedish Pupil Bucks Order To Get Hair Cut

SAN BENITO, Tex. (AP) — An exchange student from Sweden said Wednesday he will not return to classes at San Benito High School if he must first get another haircut.

Kjell (pronounced shelly) Simonsson, 17, of Gothenburg, Sweden, said he was refused permission to return to classes by Principal Marshall Storey. Simonsson said he had his hair cut last week and again Tuesday before Storey turned him down.

Mrs. Virgil Moore, his American "mother," described his hair as "very short." She said the boy has been popular at the school and has "fitted into our family like he was always here."

Principal Storey would not comment on the incident. He suggested that a reporter "give me a call in a couple of days," said.

"Why all this mess over the hair. It's not that important," Simonsson said.

Book With Homo Theme Revealed

LONDON (AP) — The late E. M. Forster, British writer best known for "A Passage to India," was the author of a novel with a homosexual theme which his executor plans to publish. Forster died in June at the age of 91. His executor, Prof. Emeritus Walter Spott of the psychology department at Nottingham University, said the novel was written between 1905 and 1913 and that Forster had shown it only to close friends.

"He did not want it published in his lifetime because he thought there would be some stir about it and he did not want to be involved in that," Spott said.

Mrs. Moore said that Simonsson, the son of a retired Swedish coast artillery officer, was also sent home at the beginning of the school year and told to get his hair cut. Several other pupils were sent home because of long hair, and Storey had some of them get several haircuts before he would allow them to return to classes.

He told reporters at that time that he believed that long hair and sideburns are "the badge of a bad boy."

Mrs. Moore said she believes Storey is trying to make an example of the youth, adding that she believes Storey did not want an exchange student at the school "in the first place."

"He does not want to go back to Sweden and we are thinking about sending him to another school, but that would be expensive," Mrs. Moore said.

Drafting Bill To Allow S&L Checking Accounts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking Committee said today he is drafting a bill which would allow savings and loans associations to offer checking account service.

Patman said the bill he will offer in the new Congress also will provide 100 per cent insurance for local government deposits with savings and loans groups and permit the associations to handle federal deposits.

Patman, D-Tex., and longtime banking system critic, reported the main features of his omnibus savings and loan bill to the United States Savings and Loan League convention.

"It is a gross absurdity—and a serious inequity—to give the commercial banks a total monopoly over checking accounts," he said in an address prepared for the convention. "Many savers would come to the savings and loans if they could obtain basic checking account privileges," he said.

"The savings and loan industry must also be given a better deal—a fair deal—in the deposit of public monies," Patman said. "This includes the public funds of the federal government as well as those of the local and state governments across the land."

He said the massive federal tax and loan accounts—ranging from $5 billion to $10 billion—now are the sole preserve of commercial banks.

LOAN SHARKS
"I also propose that funds deposited by local governments—school districts, county governments, city governments and others—be given 100 per cent insurance by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp."

A spokesman for Bank of America, world's largest commercial bank, said government deposits in commercial banks are not insured. The Public Deposits Act, however, requires that banks produce 110 per cent collateral in government and municipal bonds for public deposits.

Patman said his bill also would propose authorizing savings and loan associations to make consumer loans for all household furnishings. Such loans now are limited to major appliances such as freezers and refrigerators.

He said this savings and loan service expansion would help millions of consumers to "avoid the clutches of loan sharks."

Devices Used In Top Cardiac Units Faulty

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The American Heart Association was told today that a study of electronic devices used in the cardiac care units of 12 leading hospitals in the United States revealed "significant deficiencies" in all 12.

"The problems varied from time-wasting nuisances to life-threatening hazards," the study said. "Some types of defects could also result in incorrect diagnosis and treatment."

The report from the Wayne State University School of Medicine in Detroit did not name the hospitals or give equipment brand names. It was presented for the annual meeting of the heart association.

ELECTRIC SHOCK
"Both equipment manufacturers and hospitals seem to be at fault," the report said, "although both were anxious to correct the situation once it was discovered."

Of 51 electrocardiographs studied, more than half exhibited unsafe leakage of electrical current, among other problems, the report said.

These devices record heartbeats and are used to diagnose heart illness.

Another device studied is called a defibrillator. It is used to direct an electric shock to the heart through a paddle placed against the chest in an attempt to correct an irregularly beating heart, a critical condition requiring fast action.

The Wayne State investigators, a cardiologist and an engineer, said they studied 41 direct-current defibrillators. "In one brand," the study said, "the main power switch was difficult to find. Loosely fitting connectors were found in two brands, allowing the cable to be pulled out when the operator stretched the cables to reach the patient."

POOR CONTACT
The paddles themselves were not always manufactured well, the study said. Some were easily bent, so they no longer conformed to the shape of patient's chest, the study said.

"When applied," the report said, "there is then poor contact, resulting in arcing, wasting energy and burning the patient."

The team reported studying 57 pacemakers, devices designed to speed up a heart that is beating too slowly by applying a small, regular electric charge.

All 57, the Wayne State team said, contained a defect at the end of the lines leading to the heart that could allow minute amounts of current to go astray and produce an irregular rhythm in the heartbeat.

In addition, a component controlling the rate of the electrical shock was inaccurate in about 40 per cent of the pacemakers, the study said, and electrical outlets were found to be faulty.

Salt Water Wells Work

A new salt water well system to deliver water to the SACROC oil field repressuring unit in Scurry County is working smoothly, according to Paschal Odom, assistant general manager of the Colorado River Municipal Water District.

During its first week's operation, the system has delivered nearly 2 1/2 million gallons of brine water daily to SACROC. In another week, when SACROC is ready to receive it, the rate may be kicked up by another million gallons.

CRMWD developed the system when SACROC contracted to buy the brackish water to fill the gap caused by cutting SACROC off the Lake Thomas supply. SACROC is developing some wells of its own.

A Devotion For Today . . .

Stir up the gift of God, which is in thee. (II Timothy 1:6)

PRAYER: God, our Father, we acknowledge that often we do not use to Thy glory the gifts Thou hast given us. When opportunities come to use our gifts, speak to us, we pray, that we fail Thee not in using them. In the spirit of the Master, who taught us to pray, "Our Father who art in heaven . . . Amen."

Overdue Reform

Justice Clyde E. Smith, member of the Texas Supreme Court, has notified Gov. Preston Smith that he wishes to step down as soon as his successor can be named and then confirmed by the Senate. He said he hoped to devote his energies to an overhaul of the Texas judiciary; indeed, he urged the governor to call a constitutional convention to tackle the herculean task of writing a new state constitution.

Justice Smith has put his finger on two urgent needs, in our view. Neither of them will be brought about soon, if at all. Texas might well capitalize on the experience of some other states in tackling the constitutional matter a division at a time. A total overhaul frequently draws so many obstructionists on so many fronts that it fails in the referendum.

But as to judicial reform, it is critically overdue. Courts are bogged down in a majority of instances. Cases are continued interminably.

The criminal docket is loaded with original and appeal cases in the hope that they will become deadwood and eventually be trimmed off the docket without going to trial.

What it will take to relieve this glut and accelerate the judicial machinery is a matter for experts in the law to formulate against a full consideration to individual rights.

But it seems to us that the ultimate goal ought to be that every case, particularly criminal litigation, be brought to trial within 90 days from the time of filing or from the date of an alleged offense. Justice would be far better served while memories and the facts are fresh.

This may call for more courts, more judges or sub-judges and law clerks. It may call for more juries. In the end, the expense would be worth it, for few things could make a more solid contribution to law and order than an expeditious system of justice.

Last Chance For 'Thanks'

It hardly seems possible, but Friday evening brings up the end of another football season. This is your last chance to see the Big Spring Steers in action: make the most of it.

We think the Steers deserve a full house. Everyone except the boys and their coaches picked them to dwell in the district cellar. Instead they have a 3-3 standing with a chance to make it 4-3. That kind of effort ought to be applauded.

The team has represented our community well, and if all of us had given the same effort to our town as have the Steers, we would be an even better community than we are. These boys and coaches might just put a little frosting on the cake if enough people say "thanks" by turning out to salute them in the final game.

Southerner On 1972 Demo Ticket

WASHINGTON — Strictly for political size, the revival of the Democratic Party in the South in last week's elections has the nuts-and-bolts men at the party's national committee thinking out loud about a 1972 ticket of Maine's Sen. Ed Muskie for President and South Carolina's Governor-elect John C. West for vice president.

Muskie's name is mentioned only incidentally, as it were, because he now seems to be the front runner. The main idea is to put a Southerner on the ticket and thus take Dixie away from President Nixon.

Mason-Dixon line. Others include Reuben Askew in Florida, Jimmy Carter in Georgia and Dale Bumpers in Arkansas. There is also, for that matter, Lawton Chiles, senator-elect in Florida.

SPEAKING generally, these are young men of moderate viewpoints. None of them took a hard-line segregationist position; indeed, they successfully managed to steer clear of the racial issue despite the fact that issue is still very real in most Southern states. Thus, each of them — at this writing at least — meets the standard of a Democratic vice presidential candidate with whom Northern liberals could live. Except in matters of talent and experience, they are in the Lyndon Johnson image.

For better or for worse, depending upon the individual Southerner's political tastes, a majority of Dixie is now much closer to the center.

MUCH OF course depends on how the John Wests et al conduct their official affairs during the next two years. But they have discovered they can win in Dixie without embracing the philosophy of George Wallace. West, for instance, made it despite the fact Watson got a majority of white votes and was the hand-picked candidate of Sen. Strom Thurmond, Nixon's resident strategist. In the coming months, therefore, these potential vice presidential candidates can afford to take a relatively moderate stand.

THUS, JOHN WEST is not the only Southerner mentioned for the No. 2 spot in '72. He is merely a representative of the new breed of Democratic governors elected in states below the

THE REALISTIC professionals in the back rooms of the Democratic National Committee would give their right arms to get a Southerner on the ticket. Their reasoning is that without the South he won in 1968 Richard Nixon wouldn't have a chance in 1972.

Billy Graham

Isn't there serious conflict between the Bible and the physical sciences? How do Bible-believing Christians reconcile these differences?

H.B. Yes, some scientists see "serious conflicts" between science and the Bible. Others find no difficulty in believing the Scriptures. Thomas Huxley, famous biologist, once said to Charles Kingsley: "It seems to me that science teaches in most unmistakable terms the Christian conception of entire surrender to the will of God. Science says to sit down before the facts, to give up every preconceived notion and be willing to be led to whatever end nature will lead you, or you will know nothing."

Sir James Simpson, the discoverer of the anesthetic properties of chloroform and one of the most prominent scientists of his generation was asked to name the most wonderful discovery he had ever made. Without hesitation he gave this reply: "The greatest discovery I ever made was that I had a Savior!"

Scientists, like everyone else, can derive great benefit from the Scriptures if they will. But, believing is a matter, not so much of the mind, but of the will. This is evidenced by the fact that some of the greatest minds of the centuries have been Christian — while others, who were not disposed to believe, were non-Christian. One's beliefs are the product of attitudes, more than rational thought. There is no real conflict in the Scriptures. But they can be manufactured by those who decide not to accept them. Many people do not want to believe, because to believe in Christ would mean changing their way of life, and they don't want to change.

Moreover, history is on their side. The Democrats traditionally have done well with vice presidential candidates from Dixie — John Garner with Frank Roosevelt, Alben Barkley with Harry Truman and, of course, Lyndon Johnson with John Kennedy. Even Kennedy people have always admitted he couldn't have made it without Lyndon. And the elections showed again that the South is more at home in the Democratic Party.

Tea Invitation

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — New Mexico Gov. and Mrs. David F. Cargo recently received an invitation to tea. The invitation was addressed to the Cargos at their former Albuquerque address, which they left nearly four years ago at the time of his election as the state's chief executive.

The governor said the Albuquerque postman was alert when the letter couldn't be delivered at the Albuquerque address.

The postman wrote on the envelope, "Try Santa Fe."

The tea was over by the time the governor received the invitation.

Best way of forestalling strokes, besides long-term control of blood fats, is to keep blood pressure down to safe levels. This, with modern medications and sometimes other treatment, can be done with considerable success today. But it can't be done, or rather won't be done, unless people see their doctors periodically and find out when something needs to be done about their blood pressure, and general health.

YOU NEVER KNOW WHAT MAY COME OUT

Hal Boyle Salutes Celebrity Saga

NEW YORK (AP) — "Dear Pavement Plato: 'I have noticed through the years that you often write about celebrities, but some of them seem to me pretty much like oddballs, as much out of the stream of ordinary life as a walrus in a revolving door. Just what is a celebrity and what does it take to become one?'"

"Puzzled Reader," Dear Pavement:

Your question is not easily answered, but it does reflect the confusion of a confused time.

One would think that, ideally, a celebrity was one who had done a deed of merit to ameliorate the fate of mankind and thereby had won its respect, affection and adulation.

Such a man would be the one who first discovered the value of the wheel, the one who first learned by implanted seed the principles of agriculture and made man a pauper rather than a hunting wayfarer, or the one who first plotted the best pathway from the stack of canned dogfood in a supermarket to the express exit.

Alas, these are among the forgotten but forgotten heroes. They deserved celebrity but never enjoyed it. Time sometimes overlooks the best of human servants.

The dictionary is not a certain key to what a celebrity is. But it does offer some evidence of how the word has declined in staidness. My copy of the Merriam Webster's Seventh New Collegiate Dictionary says a celebrity is "a celebrated person," and, among other definitions, says that to celebrate is "to demonstrate satisfaction in by festivities or other deviations from routine."

This widens the doors: It rather nullifies the difference between celebrity and mere notoriety. The former gap between the two is increasingly lessened.

We tend, more and more, to admire, or at least be interested in, not only those who have done truly great things but anyone who has greatly deviated from the routine.

A celebrity, I would say, today is anyone who has caught the public attention.

This, alas again, tends to put Jack the Ripper on somewhat the same level as Jonas Salk, who concocted a lifesaving serum against infantile paralysis, or one who undergoes an operation in Denmark and comes back to proclaim a sex change.

It is the deviation from the routine, plus the winning of attention, that makes a celebrity.

However, the social importance of what you do isn't the most important factor if you want to become a celebrity. You can do it by throwing a baseball or a football exceptionally well, being an outspoken U.S. Cabinet officer's wife, or, like publicist Jim Moran, finding a needle in a haystack or sitting on an ostrich egg until it hatches.

Get the public eye and ear—and you're in. The deviation from the routine ignites a celebration, another deviation from the routine.

Incidentally, you mentioned a walrus being trapped in a revolving door. If you know of a walrus this can be made to happen to, I think we can make it a celebrity. How about me taking 65 per cent as a finder's fee, 25 per cent to you for managing the walrus, and we'll spend the other 10 per cent to buy fish to keep him happy and on his toes? It's a good deal for all.

There are disadvantages, to be sure, but this pioneer study of the phenomenon turns up relatively few companies having such arrangements, the results are eye-opening.

Ninety-two per cent of workers studied are pleased by the four-day week. Moonlighting is way up. Spending patterns tend to be higher. Family activities and such home hobbies as gardening appear to be greater.

While the latter is still somewhere in the future, the four-day, 40-hour week already is having an impact. Among the relatively few companies having such arrangements, the results are eye-opening.

To Your Good Health Other Causes Of Mental 'Aging'

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.
(Last in a series of three articles)

Problems other than hardening of the arteries can be involved when an older person begins to be a problem to care for.

Small strokes sometimes bring on brain changes such that the patient's attitudes, personality, and thinking processes are changed. The strokes may be so relatively minor as not to be recognized at the time.

Best way of forestalling strokes, besides long-term control of blood fats, is to keep blood pressure down to safe levels. This, with modern medications and sometimes other treatment, can be done with considerable success today. But it can't be done, or rather won't be done, unless people see their doctors periodically and find out when something needs to be done about their blood pressure, and general health.

Keep in mind that certain chronic disorders can lie in the background, contributing to arteriosclerosis and hence to loss of mental powers. I have in mind principally diabetes and gout, both of them widespread, both of them amenable to being kept under control, both of them troublemakers if they are not controlled by diet and - or medication.

Other disorders which sometimes have to be contended with in older folks are what we call behavioral disorders, not strictly physical conditions, but often on the borderline. These behavioral disorders may involve phases of emotional depression, fear, forgetfulness, unusual or bizarre behavior.

They may exist independent of circulatory disorders or they may be part of a mixture. When these troubles come on gradually, they may be corrected by medication — antidepressant drugs are increasingly useful and tranquilizers are an accepted standby in the right cases. However, sedatives, while sometimes glibly prescribed ordinarily are not well tolerated.

There are other important causes of trouble. When a brain problem is acute, and comes on abruptly, it usually can be pinpointed quite accurately as a stroke, tumor, or some toxic condition, and appropriate steps taken.

Another source of difficulty can be — and too often is — emotional: loneliness, worry (economic worries take their toll), abandonment or loss of social contacts, a feeling of being left out. All these can have a very real bearing on emotional and mental responses.

Link with that the fact that older persons living alone, or sometimes an elderly couple, don't eat properly. It's just too much trouble, and they fall into a habit of eating the same restricted and inadequate diet day after day. That, too, can sap mental capabilities.

To sum up, it is not always possible to foretell what will happen when an older person's mind starts to change. Many times it can be corrected; sometimes not.

Many times it is strictly a medical problem — but many times it is not, and the way all of us treat the older folk in our families can be mighty important.

Around The Rim

Different Perspective

Television sure has changed in the last couple of years.

I REMEMBER when I was in grade school, the best programs always came on after my bedtime, or while I was studying. Offhand, I can't really remember what they were, but I know that it seems as though I missed just about every program I ever really wanted to watch.

Even while I was in high school and college, the best programs always came on the nights I had a club meeting to attend or when I had a test the next day.

"WHEN I GROW UP, I'll get to watch all the television shows I want," I remember telling my parents. So how come now there's never anything on that looks as good as those shows I always had to miss.

About the only thing that has stayed the same are the annual reruns of "The Wizard of Oz" and "White Christmas." And I heard the other day that the networks are thinking about cancelling those shows. They think that just because the audience can recite the lines along with the actors that they're going to lose audiences.

COMMERCIALS are also different. I don't remember any of the commercials from my formative years. I certainly don't remember any of the dialogue — such as "Mamma Mia, what spicy meat-a-balls." And I can't remember humming or singing any of the catchy tunes such as those my youngest brother and sister seem to take delight in singing.

And whatever happened to the "Bowery Boys." My mother never had to tell me to hurry home from school — if I didn't hurry I missed the first 15 minutes of the reruns of the Bowery Boys movies.

DON'T ASK ME why I remember them so fondly, they probably were among the campiest of camp movies ever produced.

On second thought, as much as everything else seems to have changed, I'm not sure I want to bring them back. It may be me that has changed.

What The Elections Mean For 1972

WASHINGTON — Out of the total of 124 million persons of voting age, only 57 million — or less than 50 per cent — cast their ballots in the Nov. 13 elections. This means that 67 million stayed away from the polls as compared with the 47 million who did not vote in the presidential election in 1968.

Such a huge bloc of indifferent citizens is not unusual. The percentage of non-voters has been high in almost every election in American history and particularly in off-year contests.

AS FOR THE results, if it can be assumed that the 29 states which, on the basis of current returns, now will have Democratic governors and the 21 states which will have Republican governors would cast their electoral votes for President on the same party basis, the Republicans would get 272 and the Democrats 266. The electoral votes needed to elect a president are 270.

These figures show how really close the party strength is and how, if applied to a presidential contest, a similarly tight race would be indicated.

IN THE FACE of such statistics, it is difficult to say that either party has achieved the ascendancy in American politics. In fact, all that may be inferred is that the Democrats — who go about 43 per cent against 57 per cent gathered by the two other parties combined — have recovered much of the strength lost when a three-way contest was waged for the presidency two years ago.

IT IS SIGNIFICANT that the failure to give farmers adequate price supports and other issues affecting agriculture caused many shifts in the Midwest and Far West in favor of the Democrats. Thus, the Republicans lost governorships in Alaska, Arkansas, Florida, Idaho, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, Oklahoma, South Dakota and Wisconsin. East of the Mississippi, on the other hand, the Democrats took governorships from the Republicans in only three states — Florida, Ohio and Pennsylvania — and Democratic governors were defeated in Connecticut and Tennessee.

AFTER AN election is over, the realistic in appraising what happened. While local conditions varied in different parts of the country, it is conceded now that unemployment played a signal part and that the resentment of consumers against high prices and the cost of living was expressed at the polls.

A large number of unemployed white-collar and skilled workers, including an increase in lay-offs of managers and executives, is being reported from many specialized industries. The epidemic seems to have struck the high-salaried as well as the low-paid employees.

The automobile strike isn't helping matters, and construction is showing little gain. More trouble is foreseen from the wage-price spiral, as labor unions are pursuing their efforts for larger pay gains. Costs are on the rise in many lines of business, and agriculture generally is having its difficulties.

IT IS DOUBTFUL whether the extent of the unemployment problem has been realized by political leaders or by member of Congress, for they certainly have not appeared to be greatly disturbed by the increasing rate of unemployment. The emphasis now, however, will be on what can be done in the next two years toward a rebuilding of the national economy. The big question is whether a change for the better will come in 1971 or will be delayed until 1972 or later.

On the whole, the economic situation is worrisome to the administration and to the country. Unless a recovery movement can be initiated and take full effect before the middle of 1972, adverse conditions inevitably will affect the outcome of the presidential election two years hence.

It's Who Loses That Counts

WASHINGTON — Have you ever wondered what happens to a person who loses an election in the United States? It isn't a pretty sight to see.

"Hello is this the AFL-CIO headquarters? I'd like to speak to Mr. Novak. Mr. Novak, this is Jerry Collenberg. . . C-O-L-L-E-N-B-E-R-G. That's right. . . You remember I was running for congressman from the Second Congressional District? . . . Well, as you know, I lost and . . . JERRY Collenberg. . . We had lunch together and you told me how pleased you were that someone with new blood was in the race. . . We did, too, have lunch together! Hal Walker, my campaign manager, was with me. . . You don't remember it? You said labor was very interested in defeating my opponent and you would do anything to help. . . Well, Mr. Novak, I'm sorry I didn't win, but what I was calling about was that I have this $50,000 deficit and I was wondering if . . . Mr. Novak! Mr. Novak! . . . Operator, we've been cut off."

"HELLO, is this the National Assn. of Machine Gun Manufacturers? Do you have a lobbyist named Thompson? Could you please connect me. . . Mr. Thompson, this is Jerry Collenberg. . . C-O-L-L-E-N-B-E-R-G. . . Oh, you remember me? . . . Yes, thank you very much. I was hoping to do better, but my opponent outspent me two to one. . . I have a letter in front of me from you indicating that the National Assn. of Machine Gun Manufacturers was interested in my race and I replied that I was very flattered that you even knew I was running. . . You got my letter? . . . Good. . . Mr. Thompson, I have a deficit of $50,000 and I was wondering if the NAMGM would be willing to help out. . . What's that? . . . You never contribute to congressional elections?

"I KNOW it's against the law, Mr. Thompson, but you indicated in your letter that individuals in the machine-gun business were willing to make personal contributions to my campaign. . . It's right here in your letter. . . I'm asking for a small financial contribution to wipe out my deficit. . . no, I don't need a machine-gun. . ."

"DR. BARTLETT, this is Jerry Collenberg. . . You discussed with me the dangers of socialism medicine last month. . . Yes, I appreciate that, doctor, but my opponent made some ruthless charges and I never had the money to answer. . . Doctor, you told me that the medical association had a political fund for candidates who were sympathetic to the medical profession. . . You do recall our conversation? Then do you remember saying you were going to send me a check of $2,000 to further my campaign? . . . You don't remember that? . . . I was afraid you wouldn't. . . Goodbye."

"HELLO, HARRY, I understand perfectly well why you didn't call after the election. . . I'm not sure, honest. . . Of course you were busy. . . Harry, when I got into this race, you came to me and said it was the greatest moment in your life, and that you'd stand by me whether I won or lost. . . I was wondering if there was any chance of your getting together a committee to help me with my deficit? . . . Oh, you're going skiing? . . ."

"HELLO? Yes, dear. . . What's happening? They've come for the furniture. . . who's come for the furniture? . . . The advertising agency that ran my campaign. . . Oh God, stall them. I'll call party headquarters. . . Surely they'll help us out."

"Hello, let me speak to the party treasurer. . . It's an emergency. . . Jerry Collenberg. . . J-E-R-R-Y C-O-L-L-E-N-B-E-R-G. (Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

Midland Hospital Fee 'Kickbacks' Discussed

NEW YORK (AP) — Testifying at the trial of 10 men accused of conspiring for kickbacks on a Michigan mortgage deal, a Texas lawyer said Wednesday that the splitting of a 10 per cent fee on a Teamsters Union mortgage loan was discussed seven years ago in Dallas.

John F. Townsend said he talked with half a dozen persons in late October or early November of 1963 about a loan sought by the Brown Organization for a hospital project at Midland, Tex.

PROCURE MONEY
Townsend, called as a government rebuttal witness in the trial here, said Herbert Ikin, an undercover informer for the government, and defendants John M. Kelly and David Wenger took part in the Dallas conference.

Townsend said Ikin and Kelly "were represented to us as mortgage brokers who procure financing for this hospital."

At the time, Townsend represented the Brown Organization, a builder of homes and commercial facilities.

Townsend was the final witness in a case that could go to the jury today.

Ikin, 43, was a key prosecution witness whose testimony detailed alleged kickback schemes by a New York - Detroit - Pittsburgh ring seeking a mortgage for Mid-City Development Co. of Warren, Mich., in 1964.

CHARGES PENDING
Townsend said the Brown Organization put $26,500 in escrow toward a mortgage for Parkview Hospital at Midland.

In the 1963 meeting, Townsend added, those present discussed a 10 per cent fee that he said would be split among persons arranging the loan, including one per cent each to Teamsters Union officials.

Townsend testified that Ikin said one per cent would go to Francis J. Murtha, executive secretary of the Chicago-based Central States, Southeast and Southwest Areas Pension Fund of the Teamsters Union; one per cent to Wenger, 50, of Great Neck, N.Y., an accountant who was auditor of the fund; and percentages to others unnamed.

A federal indictment filed here March 25 and still pending accused Kelly, Wenger and four others of conspiring in kickbacks on the mortgage application by Hosero, Inc., for the hospital at Midland.

In summations, defense lawyers attacked Ikin as an admitted liar who allegedly connived in and profited by illicit deals.

Ikin testified he took part in corruption, but operated as an undercover FBI informant who had to go along to conceal his role.

The case originally had 13 defendants, but only 11 men went to trial. One of them, Frank Rosa, 40, of Penn Hills, Pa., won acquittal last week. Before trial, James "Jimmy Doyle" Plumeri had his case separated because of illness and Salvatore "Sally Burns" Granello was murdered in gangland style.

Foreign Aid Extra Shapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is expected to ask Congress for $750 million to $1 billion in extra money for foreign aid, the Washington Post said today.

Administration sources were quoted as saying $500 million of the additional funds would be earmarked for financing credit sales to Israel. The remainder would be dealt to Cambodia, South Korea, Taiwan, Jordan, Greece and Turkey.

The Post called the request the "first big installment" on Nixon administration plans to build up the fighting posture of allied and friendly nations while reducing the likelihood of U.S. interventions abroad.

Melees, Arrests In Casino Area

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — At least twelve persons were treated at local hospitals after 100 Negro youths went on a beating and vandalism spree in the downtown casino district Wednesday.

Two juveniles and an 18-year-old were arrested as a series of melees spread through a 12-block area.

Store windows were broken, purses snatched and cars stoned with bottles and rocks as police tried to contain the outbreak that diminished only when the crowd crossed the railroad tracks into the city's predominantly black west side.

The incident began after a high school football game in which Rancho High School defeated Las Vegas High School, 34-8. Both schools have student populations about 10 per cent black and both have been the scene of racial violence during the past year.

The difficulties began outside the football stadium with a series of fights between black and white students. Police said white students were as much the attackers as the black.

About 100 black students massed in the streets and began moving toward the one nearby street that crosses the railroad tracks dividing the west side from the rest of the city. The downtown casino district was in the line of march.

Sixty-five policemen kept close watch on the crowd, but said they were unable to prevent them from pulling a taxicab driver from his vehicle and beating both the driver and the 83-year-old woman who was his passenger.

CANCER OPERATION Evans Clan Of Gypsies Rallies 200 At Temple

TEMPLE, Tex. (AP) — Most of the Evans clan of gypsies have departed this Central Texas city following a lung cancer operation on one of its members.

Some 200 members of the family came from all over Texas and from out of state for the operation on Yogi Evans, 51, a carnival Barker from San Antonio.

They clogged the hallways in the famed Scott and White Hospital Tuesday, finally retiring to a motel Wednesday, where the men sat around on the lawn and kidded each other.

THREE PACKS A DAY
A hospital spokesman said Yogi was in satisfactory post-operative condition Wednesday.

But the "king" of the family, Joe Evans, 68, of Fort Worth, said the surgeon told him the cancer was "too far gone, and they sewed him back up." Radium treatments are scheduled for the next few weeks, he said.

The king said it was "part of our belief" to gather when a member of the family faces a crisis.

He doubted that Yogi's cigarette smoking—two packs a day—caused the cancer.

"I smoke three packs a day," the king said, taking a drag on a filter cigarette as he sat cross-legged on the grass. "It doesn't bother me. My dad lived to be 85 and he smoked for 70 years. I had a sister who did not smoke and she died at 52 of cancer. Cancer is very little known to our people."

BIG-BELLIED
Gypsies stopped traveling in bands about 25 to 30 years ago, he said. They entered such businesses as land speculation and selling used cars because they lacked the education for other pursuits, he said.

The men wore suits and narrow-brimmed felt hats. Most of them were big-bellied.

PE Workshop To Aid Retarded

A demonstration workshop in physical education for the mentally retarded will be held at 9 a.m. Saturday, in Midland under the sponsorship of the West Texas Education Center. It will be at Stephen F. Austin Junior High, 1400 East Oak.

Consultants for the program are Richard Smith and Charles Warford, who will demonstrate the community and physical recreation program for the retarded which has been initiated by the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

A demonstration of recreation will be held during the morning following an overview of the presentation. The afternoon session will feature gymnasium for educable mentally retarded. Miss Jean Gates, therapist, suggests that those attending wear appropriate dress to participate in the demonstrations with the children.
