U. S. Scores In UN Rap At Russians

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI) —United Nations diplomats said today that U. S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson had scored heavily against Russia in the opening round of the General Assembly's Congo debate.

It was generally conceded that Soviet Ambassador Andrei Gromyko had hurt his own cause Tuesday by launching a new attack on Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold and demanding an end to the U. N. operation in the Congo within a month.

There was some hope among the neutralists that Gromyko now would soften this line and let the assembly get down to serious study of the recommendations of a conciliation commission report on the Congo.

The 99-member world parliament resumes debate this afternoon with Ethiopia, Mali and Albania listed as speakers.

Stevenson's strong denunciation of Gromyko's opening attacks Tuesday showed clearly the new U. S. delegate is prepared to meet the Soviets on any terms.

He reminded the delegates he had sought to avoid cold war recriminations so that some constructive solutions could be found to the Congo situation.

Gromyko's speech, he said, showed that "the Soviet Union does not regard our organization as a means of international cooperation but simply an instrument of international discord."

He said Gromyko's words were "wild and irresponsible" and the United States intended to back Hammarskjold "with all our strength."

Stevenson received a thunderous ovation from the assembly.

The 11-nation conciliation commission, which spent two months investigating the Congo crisis, urged establishment of a new provisional government capable of restoring order and national unity.

The debate over the next few days was expected to focus on just what form a Congo government should take.

JAYCEE OFFICERS — The Junior Chamber of Commerce elected 1961-62 officers yesterday following a dinner meeting in the Palm Room in City Hall. Rotary Meet Begins Here Next Sunday

Between 700 and 800 Rotarians from cities and towns in West Texas and the Texas Panhandle will be in Pampa Sunday through Tuesday for a district Rotary conference.

R. E. (Dick) Batson, president of Pampa Rotary, said today plans have been completed to welcome the district delegates Sunday and to entertain them with the three-day program.

Those in attendance at the conference will represent 43 Rotary clubs in the district.

J. Edd McLaughlin, president of Rotary International, whose home is in Ralls, Texas, will be unable to attend the conference, Batson said, but he will be represented at the meetings by George Means of Evanston, Ill., executive secretary of Rotary International.

President Batson said today the theme of the conference will center around a review of services performed by the various Rotary clubs in the district and to plan to increase effectiveness of future Rotary activities in the clubs.

The regular business sessions will be presided over by District Governor Bruce Pember of Slaton.

E. E. Shelhamer of Pampa will serve as conference chairman. Shelhamer said today one of the features of the three-day conference will be an address by Dr. W. Ballentine Henley, nationally known educator and an expert on municipal government. Mrs. Ed Williams will be chairman of all activities for the Rotary Anns, comprised of wives and Rotarians.

Among special guests at the conference will be L. E. (Pat) Patterson of Midland, who is the nominee to serve as governor of District 573 for the fiscal year 1961-62. Patterson will take office July 1 as the official representative of Rotary International.

The new governor will have his formal election along with more than 200 other district governors, representing some 10,700 Rotary Clubs in 120 countries, at the 1961 convention of Rotary International to be held in Tokyo, Japan, in May.

Plans for the Rotary conference which opens Sunday were the main topic of discussion at this noon's regular weekly luncheon of Pampa Rotarians.

Kennedy Seeks Major Changes In Operations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy today asked Congress for a ffive-year, "fresh approach" foreign aid program, with emphasis on helping countries which help themselves.

He called for major changes in method — a new, central aid agency, authority to commit funds years ahead, a shift from military to economic aid, new terms of repayment, and emphasis on social progress.

But for the first year of the program — the fiscal year beginning July 1 — he asked for the same $4 billion which the Eisenhower administration proposed just before it went out of office.

In a special message to Congress, Kennedy said: "These are the rock bottom minimum of funds necessary to do the job. To provide less would be wasteful, perhaps more wasteful, than to provide more...I am hopeful that Congress will not provide less."

The President proposed:

—A new foreign aid agency under the State Department to combine the functions of the International Cooperation Administration (ICA), The Development Loan Fund (DLF), the Food for Peace Program, the local currency lending activities of the Export-Import Bank, and the new Peace Corps.

—Authority for the new agency to borrow from the Treasury, without annual appropriations, up to $7.3 billion over the five years for development loans repayable in dollars. This would allow long-range planning.

—A shift of $200 million from military aid to economic development.

—Emphasis on development loans repayable in dollars, often at low or no interest rates over terms as long as 50 years, and a virtual end to repayment in local currency except in the food program.

—Empahsis on aiding countries which make social and economic reforms to speed their growth.

— A plea for more aid from other prosperous free world nations to the less developed countries.

Of the first year's $4 billion outlay, $1.6 billion would be for military aid instead of the $1.8 billion former President Dwight D. Eisenhower proposed. Economic assistance would be raised from $2.2 billion to $2.4 billion.

Of the economic aid, $1.5 billion would come in an ordinary appropriation. The remaining $900 million would come under the new aid agency's borrowing authority.

Russian Demand Clouds Nuclear Controls Meet

GENEVA (UPI) — The nuclear test ban conference met for only 23 minutes today in a gloomy atmosphere created by Soviet demands for a built-in veto of any test control machinery.

The United States delegation headed by Arthur H. Dean had planned an explanation of its offer to let Russian scientists look inside any nuclear devices the Americas might use in any peaceful research programs. This offer is conditional on Soviet acceptance of a treaty assuring a carefully-policed ban on all nuclear weapons tests.

Soviet delegate Semyon Tsarapkin not only demanded a veto in the test control machinery set-up, but also warned that continued French atomics weapons testing might have a "negative effect" on this conference.

Western sources saw in this a possible excuse for the Russians, at some future date, to walk out or refuse to sign a treaty if it suits their purposes.

American and British diplomats were particularly disappointed because they had laid on the table Tuesday considerable concessions aimed at breaking the deadlock.

Dean told the Russians at the first meeting in three months that the new administration of President Kennedy would:

Agree to a three-year moratorium on small, hard - to - detect underground nuclear tests. The West previously had proposed 27 months. The Russians had proposed three to five years.

Ask Congress to let Russian scientists inspect any nuclear devices used by the West in an approved program to develop instruments to detect small underground nuclear tests.

Accept the principle of parity of an East-West control commission. Agree to reduction of control posts on Soviet territory and adopt a ban on high altitude tests and monitor it with satellites.

Kennedy Orders Group To Plug Spiraling Prices

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Top industrialists and union leaders were under orders from President Kennedy today to find a way to halt inflationary wage-price movements without federal interference in collective bargaining.

Members of the newly created White House Advisory Committee on Labor-Management Policy also were asked to give priority to problems of automation and competition from lower-price foreign-made goods at their next meeting April 3.

The President opened the committee's first session Tuesday by stressing his concern over the threat of a wage-price spiral, long-term unemployment and the importance of preserving U.S. markets overseas.

He hinted that he would act to guard against inflation unless the committee found some method of preventing sizable increases in wages and prices.

He reminded his audience, which included such figures as Walter P. Reuther and Henry Ford II, that past presidential "exhortations" on the wage-price matter did not have much effect.

"With your help I intend to get a look at this situation before there is a crisis," he said. "I do not want the White House to have to come in at the last minute."

The committee, led by Labor Secretary Arthur J. Goldberg agreed to convene monthly — on the first Monday of each month—at the White House.

Vote Nears On State's Big Spending Measure

AUSTIN (UPI) — When and if the state Senate wants to do some spending, they can do a bang-up job.

Awaiting their vote is a record-big $2.49 billion state appropriations bill and a proposed $800 annual public school teachers pay raise that would cost the state $142.7 million more.

They'll probably vote on the appropriations bill this week. The teachers will have to wait until lawmakers can see where new revenue is coming from.

Senators killed the teachers' pay raise last session.

The appropriations bill could come up for a vote any time. Sen. Ray Roberts, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, gave notice to senators yesterday that he is ready to run with the bill.

The measure calls for $44.3 million more during the next two years from the depleted general revenue fund and the committee estimates it will take $77 million a year for two years in new taxes to cover the program.

Lawmakers yesterday were in a killing mood. They knocked off Rep. V. E. (Red) Berry's horse race betting bill and Sen. Bob Baker's bill to bring the University of Houston into the state system of higher education.

In committee action, the House Criminal Jurisprudence Committee sent to the floor a bill to abolish capital punishment and the insurance committee took under advisement two bills to change the controversial merit plan of car insurance.

Berry helped kill his own constitutional amendment to let voters decide on parimutuel betting. He did it after he learned he did not have the 100 votes needed for passage. The action saved his backers from having to go on record for a cause that could hurt them at the polls.

The house tabled the proposal by a 143-5 vote. Berry voted with the opposition.

Senators Tuesday, by a 14-15 vote, refused to consider Baker's bill to give full state support to the Houston school. The university already receives junior college aid.

Thomas Ferguson, chairman of the State Board of Insurance, told the House committee car rates are going up no matter what the legislature does about the merit plan.

Five Are Found Guilty In British Spy Trials

LONDON (UPI) — Two Americans and three others were found guilty today of spying for Russia by stealing naval secrets from the base where NATO does its war planning against the Soviet Union's submarine fleet.

Those convicted and subject to 14-year prison terms are:

Peter John Kroger and his wife, Helen, whose cottage contained a radio tuned to a Moscow wave length. The Krogers have been identified by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington as Morris and Dora Cohen of New York City.

Ethel Elizabeth Gee, 46, who stole secret documents from the Portland naval base where she worked.

Henry F. Houghton, 55, Miss Gee's fiance. He, too, worked at Portland.

Gordon Arnold Lonsdale, 37, a London business man holding a Canadian passport, but believed to be a Russian and who impersonated an American embassy attache.

Lonsdale was sentenced to 25 years. Kroger and his wife, Helen, were sentenced to 20 years. Miss Gee and Houghton, were sentenced to 15 years.

The jury was out for 85 minutes. Apparently it had no doubt about the guilt of Lonsdale, Miss Gee and Houghton. But the Krogers posed a problem because they were husband and wife, and at one stage the jury returned to ask the judge for clarification. He explained that a man and his wife could not conspire together, but could conspire separately with other persons.

The 12 male jurors then retired, and 35 minutes later brought in their verdict in Britain's biggest spy case since 1950 when scientist Klaus Fuchs was convicted of passing atomic secrets to Russia. Today was the eighth day of the trial.

Lord Parker, lord chief justice of Britain, did not impose sentence immediately. Each defendant was liable to the maximum prison term of 14 years for

Boost In Arms Aid To Laotian Regime Ordered

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has ordered a new increase in U. S. military aid to Laos and may ask members of the eight-nation SEATO pact to intervene to save the country from threatened Communist domination.

High officials said today, however, that the President still clung to the hope that diplomatic pressure would persuade the Russians to abandon their large-scale airlift of military supplies to the resurgent Laotian rebels.

So far, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev has ignored repeated U.S. pleas for cooperation in ending the civil war and helping create an independent and truly neutral Laos.

Kennedy's decision to step up military aid to Laos was taken reluctantly, officials said. But, they said, he had no choice in the face of the continued deterioration of the military position of the central government, headed by Premier Boun Oum.

If the United States decides to seek SEATO intervention, officials said, it probably will propose that forces be supplied by the three Asian members — Pakistan, Thailand and the Philippines.

The other five members of the South East Asia Treaty Organization are the United States, Britain, France, Australia and New Zealand.

Phone Strike Talks In Mexico Stymied

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — No progress was made in efforts at a last minute agreement to forestall a nationwide telephone strike called for noon today.

Anti-Castro Bomb Kills 2 In Havana

HAVANA (UPI) — One of several bombs set off by foes of Premier Fidel Castro killed two persons Tuesday night in Havana's fashionable Vedado district, it was reported today.

The unidentified victims were burned to death when a bomb went off either underneath or inside the parked car in which they were sitting.

Earlier, it was announced that the pro-Castro union of private school teachers had petitioned the Education Ministry to do away with Cuba's private schools.

The petition proposed that the schools be converted at first into "cooperative" schools, financed jointly by the ministry and the pupils' parents "according to their income," and transformed into public schools as soon as the government is able to take them over.

Swiss embassy officials representing U.S. interests here said meanwhile they have been unable so far to get permission to talk to Howard Anderson, a service station operator from Miami arrested last week by the secret police.

Friends Ask Financial Aid For 3-Year-Old Victim Of Leukemia

Friends, neighbors and fellow employees of the Harold Myers family of Pampa today asked for financial assistance to aid in the hospital and medical care of the Myers' three-year-old son, Lynn, now a leukemia victim in Baylor Hospital, Dallas.

Lynn has been hospitalized in Dallas for four weeks and prior to that time was treated for the disease in Highland General Hospital.

Cabot employes last week donated some 50 pints of blood for replacement at the Dallas Blood Bank. They also contributed $500 for expenses of the Myers in Dallas where the parents have been since the boy was admitted to Baylor on Feb. 24.

There is a service charge of $20 on every pint of blood used in addition to the cost of $30 per pint. The blood expense has been taken care of for the 47 pints used up to March 20. The service charge has not been paid. Funds also are needed to cover expenses of $21 a day for the hospital room. Medical expenses also have not been paid.

The Myers have been forced to give up the home they were buying because of inability to make payments any longer.

Friends of the family say the family is in dire need of assistance since Mr. Myers now has no income.

As long as Lynn's parents were able to stay in Pampa, the family asked for no help and were able to carry on alone. Since it became imperative that they be in Dallas with their son, it has been impossible to make payments.

Upset Of Congo Truce Is Feared

LEOPOLDVILLE, Congo (UPI) —Diplomatic sources warned today that the return of U.N. special representative Rajeshwar Dayal to the Congo might upset the delicate truce between U. N. and native forces.

Several diplomatic representatives here were said to have urged their governments either to delay the return of the Indian official or to press for the early appointment of a successor.

It's The Law In Texas

LAW OF NATIONS

You will find strange words in the U. S. Constitution: "Congress has the power to define and punish piracies and felonies committed on the high seas, and offenses against the law of nations." No man owns the high seas, and no nation rules it. So that when a crime like piracy takes place, the law does not look upon it as against any one nation, but against the law of nations.

For centuries, all maritime nations have had the right under international law to capture on the high seas persons guilty of piratical acts and to punish them.

Piracy is an international crime, but each country punishes it under its own laws. Any nation has the right and duty to police the high seas, and any pirate loses the protection of the flag he may be flying.

As one court put it, the pirate is "treated as an outlaw, as an enemy of all mankind."

How far this idea of the "enemy of mankind" may go, is now a question before world opinion.

The treaty of Versailles, for example, held that Germans who had broken the law and customs of war should go to trial before the courts of the victors.

World War I Germans did not face trial but those of World War II did and were convicted at Nuremberg. The right of victors to try war criminals has been warmly argued ever since. The forthcoming Eichmann trial in Israel has created additional debate in recent months.

Where did we get the idea that there is a law of nations?

It has come to us through centuries of international trade, commerce, war and treaty-making. Chiefly it came down through Roman law, and found expression in the belief that God decreed a law of nature through man's reason which is binding on men and nations.

(This newsfeature, prepared by the State Bar of Texas, is written to inform — not to advise. No person should ever apply or interpret any law without the aid of an attorney who is fully advised concerning the facts involved, because a slight variance in facts may change the application of the law.)

States Reported Running Low On Benefits Money

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Labor Department reports that by the end of the week as many as 40 states may have run out of funds to pay unemployed federal workers and ex-servicemen unable to find civilian jobs.

A department spokesman said it was impossible to name each state affected because of differing state laws. But approximately 26 already had exhausted the federal money given them for compensation benefits, he said.

Under the special program, the federal government acts as an employer and allocates money to the states to pay the veterans and civilian workers.

President Kennedy has asked Congress to appropriate an additional $70 million to continue the grants.

Sugar Activities In U.S. Still Shrouded in Much Mystery

The mysterious and complicated actions that have surrounded sugar activities in this country for a number of years will probably continue to be shrouded in mystery, at least temporarily. It is difficult for the people of this country to understand the back filling, the double talk and in many instances misrepresentation by implication that seems to accompany any attempt to uncover any information about sugar operations in this country. It is high time for a complete and full scale investigation of what is going on in this business, and I intend to do my level best to find out. Those of us who have tried to work to the end that this country may become more self-sufficient in its sugar production have tried to handle the matter on a reasonable, agreeable and non-controversial basis. However, we have been met with a total disregard for the rights of American people, and especially farmers who are and might be affected by this problem.

On July 5, 1960, the last day of the long session of Congress last year, a bill extending the provisions of the existing Sugar Act was being considered by the Congress. The Act would have expired on December 31, 1960, at a time when Congress would not be in session. Hence, it was necessary to pass permanent legislation before Congress adjourned or extend the Act so that there would be time after Congress returned either in 1960 or in 1961 to pass such legislation. The fight was bitter because of several issues. One was the fact that under the Act 45 per cent of our domestic sugar needs came from foreign countries. Two-thirds of that amount was being purchased from Cuba. All of you know what Cuba had been doing. The Congress stayed in session all that night fighting over the Sugar Bill. The Conference Committee, made up between the Senate and the House of Represntatives, finally reported that a bill had been agreed upon which would permit the President to reduce the quotas of foreign countries (this meant Cuba) and reallocate in accordance with a procedure agreed upon in the bill. As a part and parcel of the agreement, the Conference Report included the following statement:

"As a part of the understanding reached by the conferees, it was agreed that the conferees on the part of the House would undertake to pass a Sugar Bill and transmit same to the Senate on the earliest possible date after the reconvening of the House in August."

The Conference Report was agreed to by the House primarily because of such agreement and understanding. August 1960 came and went with no Sugar Bill, but with the understanding that action would be taken in the early days of the 87th Congress and before the Act expired on March 31, 1961. A number of us have been pressing constantly for action since this Congress convened. However, our pleas have fallen on deaf ears. Instead of any proposed permanent legislation or the consideration of permanent legislation, all that being considered is an extension of the present Sugar Act for an additional 21 months. This is not in keeping with the promise made on July 5, 1960, to the American farmer and the American people. And I would point out further that the consideration given this Bill has been behind closed doors and not in accordance with the understanding of a number of Members of afforded an opportunity to be heard. The only person who was permitted to testify on the subject was the Secretary of State, Dean Rusk. The Bill is being brought before the Congress (and, incidentally, will have been before the Congress before many of you receive this newsletter) under a proceeding which prohibits any amendments and limits debate to 40 minutes. Even the Rules Committee has been circumvented.

The extension of the Act for 21 months means this — the Cuban quota of approximately three million tons of raw sugar, if not purchased from Cuba, must be purchased from other foreign nations. In other words, the American farmer is denied the right to participate in any portion of the quota which is taken away from Cuba. It will go as a windfall to other Latin American nations. We are all interested in helping Latin America, but the President has only recently indicated a request for $600 million for that purpose. How can the taxpayers of this country assume a burden of that kind if they are to be denied the right to produce products necessary to provide for their own subsistence? One-fourth of the Cuban quota assigned to domestic producers who must carry the tax load would go a long way toward solving three problems. One, it would help the economic situation in areas that can grow sugar beets. Two, it would permit the planting of sugar beets, a non-surplus crop, and thereby reduce surplus crops. Three, it would help to stem the outflow of gold from this country. And, I might add, that it would not hurt our foreign relations, because the foreign countries would not lose any tonnage. In fact, they would be gaining the remaining 75 per cent of the Cuban quota. But it would appear that those interests who have gained control of the sugar business are so overcome by their own greed that they are willing to risk anything to prevent additional domestic production of sugar or permit the people to be heard on the subject.

If this present proposed extension is jammed through the Congress, I would say to those responsible that it would be well to remember the old Indian saying: "If you fool me once, it's your fault. But if you fool me twice, it's mine."

Report Is Given To C-C Members On Aircade Meet

The monthly membership meeting of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce yesterday noon featured talks by Ott Shewmaker, Jerald Simms and Calvin Whatley on their recent trip to Tulsa to attend a U.S. Chamber of Commerce aircade briefing on national affairs.

Calvin Whatley explained that our nationl debt exceeds by 47 billion dollars the combined debts of all other governments in the world. He also explained that the depressed areas appropriation of 394 million dollars would, at best, provide jobs for only around 30,000 people and hence was not the answer to the chronic unemployment in areas which have had economic dislocations.

Federal aid to education was touched upon by Ott Shewmaker who said that education was a "nation-wide problem, but not a national problem." This speaker explained that community needs were now adequately being filled and that disclaimers to the contrary, accepting federal funds, even under plans now offered, would mean federal control.

Shewmaker also commented that government medical care plans were nothing new inasmuch as Germany instituted one in 1883. The ineffectiveness of such plans, explained Shewmaker, is illustrated by the fact that 25 percent of the people of England are covered by private plans, in spite of the massive government program.

The topic of unemployment insurance was handled by Gerald Simms who said that the definition of the number of unemployed was arbitrary and that government figures didn't always reveal the whole picture. As an example, Simms cited the fact that there are presently 5,000,000 more people gainfully employed than at this time last year.

Simms also said that increasing the minimum wage could lead to an acceleration of the wage-price spiral that has been plaguing us the last fifteen years. He also said that many employment opportunities for marginal workers and young people would be eliminated by raising the present minimum.

Speaking for a few minutes before the regular program was Texas Attorney General Will Wilson. In town because of his statewide campaign for the U.S. Senate, Wilson extended his greetings and called for Texans to be alert to the opportunities for developing more native industry which would utilize the state's natural resources. He emphasized the potential in feeding-out Texas cattle here in Texas with our own grain sorghums.

The meeting was presided over by E. Roy Smith, chamber president.

C-C Directors Told '61 Stock Show Was Tops

Members of the board of directors of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce met yesterday to hear reports on recent and future activities of various chamber committees.

The directors' meeting preceded the regular monthly membership luncheon in Coronado Inn.

Clyde Carruth, general superintendent of the recent Junior Livestock Show reported that the 1961 exhibits were by far the best of any junior show staged here. Carruth said the show was a financial success and expressed thanks to Pampa business and professional men who supported it.

Ralph Prock, chairman of the chamber's Aviation Committee, reported on the final brief filed with the CAA in Washington this week in support of Pampa's application for airline service. Prock also stated that contracts had been entered with the Federal Aviation Agency in Amarillo for a direct line to the Amarillo weather bureau for weather information and for filing flight plans. The service will be available only to subscribers to the service, Prock said.

James Gallemore chairman of the Sports Committee, reported on plans for a July 4th celebration to be held in Pampa's Recreation Park. The board voted to sponsor the observance for the third year. Gallemore said a Texaco sound system will be installed in the park to improve program listening facilities. He stated there would be a brief program preceding what is expected to be one of the best fireworks displays ever staged in Pampa. All fireworks this year will be of the aerial type with the exception of the ground display which will close the program.

It was announced at the directors' meeting that the April membership meeting will be held April 24 when the main speaker will be Fred Koch, Wichita, Kans., businessman, who will speak on the topic, "A Businessman Looks at Communism."

Crusade Planned By Cancer Group

Plans for the April Crusade of the local chapter of the American Cancer Society were made at a breakfast meeting this morning in Woody's Cafe.

Mrs. Homer Johnson, Crusade chairman, said the Gray County goal has been set at $5,200. Mrs. Roy Bourland was named chairman of advanced gifts and Mrs. O. B. Worley was appointed chairman of fthe house-to-house canvas.

A coffee will be held April 6 in Lovett Memorial Library for team members in the city and county solicitation drive.

Mrs. Johnson said the society is again urging cancer protection on the family basis. Theme of the drive again will be, "Fight cancer with a check and a check-up."

"Two out of three families in Gray County," Mrs. Johnson said will eventually be struck by cancer. Regular health check-ups are the best protection against the disease and your checks are the best means of supporting the scientists in their research for a cancer cure."

Mrs. Johnson said the fact that more than a million Americans now living have been cured of cancer is proof of the effectiveness of the educational program of the American Cancer Society.

"We need more funds to save more lives and to support the research which will find the cure for cancer," Mrs. Johnson said.

The drive chairman also issued an appeal for volunteer workers to help in the many jobs during Cancer Crusade month.

Mrs. R. E. McKernan, chairman of the local Cancer Society board, presided at today's meeting.

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI)— A complete blueprint for the "liberation" of Cuba even to the point of naming a provisional president has been completed by anti-Castro forces, the Houston Chronicle said today in a copyrighted story.

The newspaper's report out of Miami, said a hard-trained, well-armed "liberation army" is waiting in at least five Latin-American countries for orders to "reinvade their homeland."

making an appeal to the general public to help Mr. and Mrs. Myers pay Lynn's medical expenses. They say the local chapter of the American Cancer Society does not have funds for that purpose. Most of their funds go for research. The Red Cross cannot take care of an individual case, they stated.

These friends issued a direct appeal today:

Said one of them:

"Through our prayers and medical science, doctors and nurses, we pray Lynn will be able to return to normal boyhood. But, until something new has been discovered there is no known cure for leukemia. Only prayer and trust in God.

"Will you please give so that Mr. and Mrs. Myers may return to Pampa with clear mind and heart to devote to Lynn, not financial indebtedness to hospitals, doctors, druggists and all the many things which come with sickness.

The fund has been arranged through these friends and neighbors. Contributions, large or small, should be sent to the Lynn Myers Leukemia Fund, Citizens Bank and Trust Co., or to the Rev. J. S. McMullen, Assembly of God Church, Box 1020, Pampa, Texas.

violating the British official secrets act.

Lord Parker told the jury it must be satisfied that the prosecution has proved conspiracy to obtain information and that the information was of value to an enemy.

"Having heard Captain Symonds (a naval official) in the witness box—as good a witness as you are ever likely to hear—you may feel little doubt in your minds that at any rate some of the information which was, or about to be, obtained was quite clearly of use to any enemy," the judge said.

"Your task is to take each accused in turn and ask yourselves are you sure that he or she agreed with one or more of the others, named or unnamed, to do the acts alleged," he said.

The prosecution contends Lonsdale is a Russian, although he carries a Canadian passport. Lord Parker told the jury it was immaterial whether he was Russian or a Canadian. The question was whether he was involved in a conspiracy.

"It is said," he added, "that the irresistible conclusion is that Lonsdale was in the matter with the Krogers, each of them up to the hilt, and it may well be that you will think that his was the directing mind."

Couple Lies In Silent World That Has Stirred Many Hearts

TEMPLE, Tex. (UPI)— The tragedy that struck a Temple family was a strange, almost unbelievable twist of fate.

The odds that such a situation could ever happen are staggering, yet it did. It happened to the Carl Tune family, one that friends and neighbors number among Temple's finest.

It started last Dec. 8. It was a fine, warm winter day and Tune, 46, decided to walk to work. As he crossed a street, an automobile struck him down. It broke both of his legs and he never recovered consciousness from head injuries.

Mrs. Tune, 44, a registered nurse at one of Temple's hospitals, spent all of her off-duty time at her husband's bedside. He never moved, not once.

On March 5, Mrs. Tune decided it would be all right for her to leave his side for the first time. She and a daughter, Janet, 19, decided to take a trip to Denton, Tex., to visit another daughter, Kay, 20, who was a student at North Texas State Colege.

Near Waxahachie, a tire on their car blew out. The car careened out of control, overturned, and Mrs. Tune was thrown out. She suffered head injuries and after treatment at a Dallas hospital, was taken to Temple. Her daughter was less seriously hurt.

Today, Mrs. Tune and her husband lie side by side, in the same room at Scott and White Memorial Hospital. They are both critically injured. Neither have awakened from the accidents.

Kay had to drop out of North Texas State, and Janet dropped her studies at Temple Junior College to help support the family. Only Carl Jr., 13, is still in school.

The family never asked for help. But soon, it became known that hospital expenses were mounting.

The Temple chapter of the Communication Workers of America, an organization the family had never been connected with, started a fund drive strictly for the children.

Within a few days, cafes were donating coffee sales to the family and funds were started by railroad employes and the King's Daughters Hospital, where Mrs. Tune graduated in nursing.

Truett Tomlinson, president of the Temple CWA, said in less than 10 days, the fund has grown to $1,600.

"The case is unique," he said. "Both parents in the same condition from separate accidents three months apart. The children need help.

"It sure is gratifying to see strangers open their hearts to help other strangers."

Meanwhile Mr. and Mrs. Tune lie silently side-by-side. Doctors say they have done all they can. The end of the story is up to someone else.

Dear Abby...

Perhaps Talk Will Improve Hearing

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about a teacher who doesn't do her job? My daughter is in the fifth grade and is failing in her work. She brings home papers that some child has corrected and everything is marked wrong. Unless I, and the rest of my family, have forgotten everything we ever learned in school, a good portion of her answers were right. Still the teacher accepts the grade given by a mere child. We used to grade each other's papers once in a while when I went to school, but the teacher always went over the papers again herself. Don't tell me to talk to the teacher because I have tried that, and she is either hard of hearing or doesn't care.

ANGRY PARENT

DEAR ANGRY: Give the teacher one more chance. Write her a note telling her that you would like to talk to her before you talk to the principal. I think you'll find her hearing improved.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 52 years old and for the last six months we have been trying to get him to take a bath. He wears the same shirt, socks and underwear for three weeks straight. He insists they are not dirty. I have to sneak his clothes out of his room when he's asleep in order to launder them. He claims it is too cold to take a bath or shower. He does wash his hands and face when he gets up in the morning. He is a real sweetheart in every other way. We've tried everything. What now?

WIFE AND FAMILY

DEAR WIFE AND FAMILY: There is something wrong with a grown man who is afraid of soap and water. If you can't get your "sweetheart" to listen to a doctor's lecture on the importance of bodily cleanliness — pray for an early summer.

DEAR ABBY: At a family get-together (at the home of a sister-in-law) I offered to help her clear the table after dinner. She said, "Thanks a lot — I'd rather do it myself — these ain't my PLASTIC dishes, you know."

Abby, I felt like two cents. Maybe my dishes aren't as good as hers, but I can certainly carry dishes from the table to the sink without breaking them. I just stood there, red in the face, and didn't say a word. What should I have done?

HURT

DEAR HURT: You did exactly what you should have done—minus the red face. The embarrassment you felt should have been for HER, not yourself.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "VERY MUCH AFRAID": There is nothing to fear. Had your friend been even slightly infectious, she would not have been discharged from the TB hospital. Therefore, it is far safer to associate with her than someone who has never had a chest X-ray . . . and could be one of the estimated 100,000 Americans walking arund with active TB and doesn't know it.

"What's your problem?" For a personal reply from Abby, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Who pays for what? For Abby's pamphlet, "How To Have A Lovely Wedding.", send 50 cents to ABBY, Box 3365, Beverly Hills, Calif.

Moral Behavior Topic For Lee Jr. High PTA

Rev. Ronald Hubbard discussed "Moral Behavior: What Is It?" at the recent March meeting of Robert E. Lee Junior High PTA held in the school auditorium.

Following an introduction by Mrs. Dona Cornutt, Rev. Hubbard asked "From whose eyes do we look for moral behavior? From the policeman's eyes, it is to stay out of trouble and out of jail. From an employer's eyes, it is to be honest and nice to customers. We should be careful what we call moral and immoral."

"Man's trouble," Rev. Hubbard continued "is that he can excuse what he really wants to do. The Bible gives ten eternal laws of morality. Christ explained to the people that our mental thoughts are as important as our actual deeds. If we give God our love and obedience, then our relationship to others will be that which is right."

"Children need parental relationships with set rules. A happy child is one who knows what his parents expect of him. According to God, a man is immoral because he has not given his love to God and to his neighbors. This can be so even though this man had done no evil deeds.'

"Moral issues are not taught," Rev. Hubbard said. "They are caught and absorbed by children from their associations with others. The relationship of the family with their children; the way they treat and feel towards others day by day can determine how the child grows in its moral relationship toward others."

During the business meeting, conducted by Mrs. Joe Sears, president, secretarys' report was given by Mrs. Derrel Hogsett, and the treasurer's by Mrs. C. J. Howard.

Following a recommendation by the executive board, members approved that the president and eight delegates be sent to the Spring Conference to be held in Childress on April 25 with expenses to be paid by the unit.

It was also announced that the Lee PTA will have charge of the April 7 radio broadcast over a local station at 9:15 a.m.

Members were asked to write their state representative in Austin and let them know their wishes in legislation concerning public school teachers' pay, school transportation cost, teacher sick leaves and a plan for public schools to receive money according to current needs. Each member was also reminded to vote in the coming school board election.

Following a report by Jack Nichols, school principal and nominating committee chairman, the following officers were elected for the next unit year: Mmes. Dona Cornutt, president; Homer D. Johnson, vice president; W. T. Fain, secretary; Jeff Bearden, treasurer; E. E. Shelhamer, parliamentarian; Derrell Hogsett, historian; J. W. Flynt and H. V. Wilks, City Council representatives.

It was announced that the next PTA meeting will be on April 20 at 2:30 p.m. at which time parents are urged to visit all grades from 2 p.m. until 2:30 with a special invitation to ninth grade parents. Ninth grade students will have a patt on the program.

Mrs. Sears closed the program with the following quote from Sam Levenson: "PTA is a wonderful thing. It keeps the parents off the streets at night!"

Unemployment

There appears to be something in the way of a national cry of alarm over what the federal administration indicates is a great deal of unemployment.

Nothing too precise seems to be known or if known isn't reported. Estimates place the figure of unemployed at between six and seven million. This is fairly wide of precision and leaves a great deal of doubt.

Few people realize that in point of fact the jobless have not been counted at all. The loosely drawn figure of between six and seven million is a composite of some three and a half million drawing unemployment payments and an estimate based on a monthly sampling of 35,000 households out of 50 million house holds.

Also, what few are aware of in times such as these is that there are normally about three million who are not working.

One of the reasons for the lack of preciseness in listing the unemployed relates to the manner and the calibre of the sampling. An other reason relates to the matter of defining just what unemployment is.

Here is a story that illustrates what we mean.

In a given plant a husband and wife both go to work in separate departments. After approximately half a year's work, the woman quits her job and applies for unemployment insurance. Her husband stays on the job.

Of course, the state unemployment people tell her that she cannot collect unemployment insurance if she has quit; it is necessary that she have been fired. She concocts a story that she was fired but that the employer, who is always held up as some kind of an arch-fiend, fired her, but does not want her to get her unemployment compensation.

After a tear - stained recitation which might do credit to a junior Sarah Bernhardt, the lady begins to collect her unemployment compensation.

This payment may be extended for three months, for six months, or longer, depending on the local state laws. In some states it can run as long as a year.

This woman is now officially listed as unemployed. She is being paid by the government for staying home and, meanwhile, her husband is working.

When the time of her unemployment payments expire, she may go back to her old job if they will take her on. We know of instances where this has been done.

Meanwhile, her husband quits and tells the same story. He is now eligible for unemployment payments while his wife works.

Thus, in this particular family, one person works but two persons draw pay. One of them is listed as unemployed.

How many times this particular ruse is used is not known. But there is more than a sprinkling of this kind of thing.

Within our own knowledge we have run across persons who refused to accept work when the pay for the work offered was only a fraction more than the amount of unemployment compensation being received.

These people reason, not illogically, that there are certain costs which they incur by reason of being steadily employed. They must spend carfare, keep themselves looking fairly well groomed, sometimes spend lunch money, sometimes hire baby sitters. They can, after deducting these various costs, sometimes conclude that they are better off not working yet drawing their rocking chair money, than they would be if they were working.

To combat present unemployment, which appears to be fractionally above seasonal levels, Mr. Kennedy has released several billion dollars in additional unemployment payments. There is no doubt at all but what these sums will extend and expand the numbers of unemployed.

To combat it further, Mr. Kennedy is demanding a minimum wage of $1.25.

This will, of course, throw additional people out of work. Employers who can hire ten workers at a $1.00 per hour figure, may find that they will be forced to get along with eight employees if the figure they are required to pay climbs by $2.00 per day for each of their workers.

This creates further unemployment, further demands for unemployment money. Meanwhile, taxes must be raised in order to gainfully disemploy those who don't want to work or who can't be employed at the going wage.

The Kohler Strike

Sylvester Petro, law professor at the New York University of Law, has given us some further insight into the danger and the evil lurking in labor union goonism.

The professor has done a brief and succinct document on the subject of the Kohler strike and the unconscionable actions of the NLRB, which, in spite of the record, ruled that the Kohler Company had been guilty of improper conduct.

This account has been published in book form under the title: "The Kohler Strike. . .Union Violence and Administrative Law" (Henry Regnery Company, Chicago $3.00) and is well worth anyone's time and effort.

The book is divided into two main sections. Part I confines itself to a recitation of the actual Kohler strike. It runs thru events which preceded the strike, recites briefly the gangsterism, the violence, the massed picketing, the beatings, mob actions and other events stemming from union organization and occurring under union order.

It discusses the efforts made by the company to bargain with the union; and recites in some detail the repeated abuses, and the truculent attitude maintained by the union throughout.

Part II of the book takes up the NLRB decision. And here is where the full weight of Petro's experience and knowledge come into play.

For, as the professor tells us, the NLRB is not a proper court. And since its decisions are only quasi-legal, it is not in a solid position when it comes to rendering an objective or just decision.

Nonetheless, the National Labor Relations Act which set the board into motion is such a peculiar piece of legal garbage that it has the merit of finding the Kohler people guilty, altho they are innocent, and of fining them and otherwise injuring many innocent people, though in all probability, a proper court of law, when it gets to review the case, will reverse the NLRB ruling.

But let us use the professor's own words here:

". . .There is reason to believe that the NLRB's decision will be reversed in the appeal which has been filed in federal court. But the present rules are such that the employer cannot in a case of this kind put off reinstating the strikers while waiting for a decision from the appellate court. For if the decision of that court affirms the NLRB, the employer will have to give back pay to the strikers for the whole period between their application for reinstatement and the actual date when they are given jobs. At $18 per day for 1500 strikers, the cost to the Kohler Company would come to $135,000 per week or over $8,000,000 per year. Few employers can afford such a risk, especially since it often takes as much as two years for a court to reach a decision on the validity of an NLRB order."

In other words, altho ordinary common sense and a proper reading of the evidence indicates that the NLRB acted as a "kangaroo court" and sought deliberately to injure Kohler, and, additionally, to do so during an election year in a effort to attain a political advantage, the Kohler firm dare not disregard the findings, harsh and unrealistic though they are.

In consequence, men who were responsible for hundreds of illegal and immoral actions during the strike are to be reinstated in their jobs; and innocent persons who have been working at Kohler from one to five years must be fired and their families compelled to move to other areas.

Looking Sideways

By WHITNEY BOLTON

NEW YORK — Since we are a nation with a galloping and unquenchable thirst for creating amiable heroes, I don't see how we can do less than take into our hearts the little grinning, obviously happy, hand-shaking chimponaut who made it round-trip the hard and untried way and came back laughing like crazy. You keep the bemedalled military boos or the captains of industry. I'm voting for Ham.

While most of the rest of our newspapers, have been filled, rightfully enough, with dire predictions, dark moments and cold crises, they also have had space for the hilarious and delightful pictures of this incessantly slapjack little ape with his lips drawn in evident joy at being alive in the world and his teeth shining like marble spikes in the moonlight.

He is the most engaging thing that has come along in years. He has a hair-do that looks as though he has rolled under a power mower, a sort of Streuelpeter hair - comb with the locks sticking out in all directions and 'giving his imp face a pleasantly daffy look. And, he's smart. Look how quickly he learned to reach for a lever instead of a hotfoot and he has mastered early and quickly the good old American pastime of the handshake. He was a handshaker from the start, but mainly shook hands with the scientists who tended and trained him. Once he was fished from the sea and let out of the capsule that thrust him to the frontiers of space he shook hands all around, scientists, sailors, anybody. He roved the decks on a hand-shaking spree as though to say: "Mitt me, pal. I made it."

Chimpanzees have a special kind of gamin air at all times. They have a sense of humor that is outrageous but never vicious. They like human beings, like to be around them when humans treat them sensibly and with consideration. They'll steal the hat off your head without any compunction, but if you give them a job of work they dig right in and do it to the best of their abilities, and those abilities are pretty high.

Our misfortune is that not yet has anyone ever been able to teach a chimpanzee to speak. If we could have, I'm sure old Ham would be right in there yakking things up and saying, "Man, I had a ball. That ride was crazy. But look out for that first step. It's a dinger."

He sat it out for long hours in relatively alien and sometimes probably terrifying and cramped surroundings. He was laced down into his crash-couch for some four hours before he even got off the ground at Cape Canaveral and that's a long time for a young fellow patiently to wait for the action. Then he had that long wait in the sea, with a slight leak sloshing water under his feet.

When they derricked him out of there at the end of a cable slung under a helicopter, he probably was swayed back and forth like a pendulum and became queasy from it. But when they opened the capsule and unlaced him and let him get his legs working again — admittedly he wobbled from the long, tied-down confinement — he marched around proud and happy and giving out the handshakes.

The story out of Cape Canaveral and the rescue vessels is that everyone in sight and involved has a crush on Ham. They think he's the greatest little fellow that ever came down the pike—or down from the edge of space. They are beginning to say, not too loudly, that they hope the astronaut chosen from our trained seven will behave as well and jauntily when his first ride to out there and back is completed But you know how ground crews and deck sailors are: among themselves they don't have a vivid case of the awes. They look on an astronaut as just another guy doing a job the brass assigned him to, and this kind of crewman is saying he hopes the humans match up to little Ham, the first one out there and back in one piece and ready to try it again.

This, then, is a recital of some of the reasons I am charmed by the chimpanzee, the laughing astrochimp from Cape Canaveral.

A terrific little guy.

To recite only one of the places where the NLRB ruling was based upon political expediency and prejudice, Petro points out that during the entire strike period the Kohler company, on the record, usually agreed to arbitrate with the union.

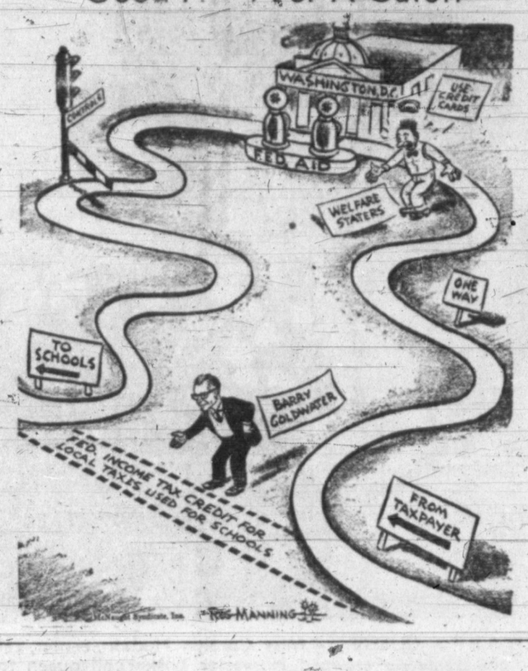

The NLRB, despite the record, found that the company would not bargain. The facts are that it DID bargain.

"The Kohler Company was held guilty of unlawfully refusing to bargain only during the periods in which it engaged in sustained negotiations. During all periods in which it absolutely refused to meet with the union the company was held to have committed no violation of the duty to bargain."

As Petro sums up this peculiarity: "The innocent must be punished most severely when they are most innocent."

For those persons who insist that unions are peace-loving, constructive agencies, this book is MUST reading. We know of few other books so capable of revealing what a fraud and sham the union and the NLRB actually are.

Allen - Scott Report:

Probe of Khrushchev Intentions vs. Alaskan Employment Behind Kennedy's seesaw on Soviet Crabmeat

ROBERT S. ALLEN PAUL SCOTT

WASHINGTON — A remarkable story of long-range summit-level diplomacy is behind President Kennedy's curious on-again - off-again shifts on revoking the ban against the importation of Russian crabmeat.

Of major importance to one state, Alaska, this seafood product has suddenly become the focal point of a potentially far-reaching test of U.S.-Soviet relations.

For in Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson's four-hour meeting with Premier Khrushchev in Siberia, the boisterous Kremlin ruler consumed the first hour fulminating against the crabmeat boycott — which was imposed 10 years ago on the ground it is produced by slave labor.

Khrushchev lengthily and irately denied that, and inferred that removal of the embargo could lead to improvement in the ties between th two countries.

Following are the details of this extraordinary backstage episode:

To Thompson's astonishment, Khrushchev opened their discussion by vehemently shaking his finger and shouting, "If you want better relations, as your President claims, why don't you stop lying about us?"

Quietly, Thompson, who speaks fluent Russian, pressed Khrushchev to be specific. The Soviet chief responded with a tirade against the crabmeat embargo.

"As long as you keep lying about our using slave labor to produce crabmeat," he bellowed, "we will lie about you in the United Nations. The charge that we use slave labor is an outrage against the Russian people. If you continue this lie, we will continue to lie about you. We can do that just as well as you."

To support his heated denial, Khrushchev showed the veteran career diplomat a voluminous report on the number of workers in the crabmeat industry, their pay scales, and the location of their communities and canneries.

"If this is slave labor," said Khrushchev, "then you have plenty of it in your country."

In Thompson's cabled account of their talk, he recommended revoking the crabmeat embargo for the express purpose of probing Khrushchev's intentions. The Ambassador expressed the view the price would be "relatively cheap" to gain this highly important information.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk heartily approved this strategy. He urged the President to lift the decade-old crabmeat ban.

The President got the same advice from other cabinet members and UN Ambassador Adlai Stevenson. All agreed the move was worth making to ascertain whether the Kremlin really desires better relations, particularly in the United Nations.

With this unanimous counsel, the President, out of the clear blue, announced the lifting of the crabmeat restrictions.

This drew little attention on the U.S. mainland, but in Alaska it was a bomb shell.

Fishing is a principal industry there, and crabmeat is a major part of it. The 49th State let out a loud and furious roar of protest.

Leading this anvil chorus were Senators Ernest Gruening and E.L. Bartlett, both Democrats and supporters of the President at the Los Angeles convention.

Gruening phoned the President, who left a conference to talk to him.

"This is political dynamite in Alaska," warned Gruening.

"It is also international dynamite," replied the President. "There is a great deal at stake in this matter. The interests of the entire country are involved."

"The interests of the country won't be helped by increasing unemployment in Alaska," contended Gruening. "And that is exactly what will happen by allowing cheap Russian crabmeat to take away our market. You are fighting the recession, and we are considering a number of measures you have submitted to Congress for that purpose. Lifting this embargo is in direct conflict with that."

This plea impressed the President.

After again discussing the matter with Secretary Rusk, Ambassador Stevenson and other advisers, the President reimposed the ban "pending further review."

White House insiders say that means waiting to see what the Soviet does in taking a more conciliatory attitude, particularly in the United Nations. The next move is up to the Kremlin.

Meanwhile — no crabmeat from Russia.

FLASHES — Senator Herman Talmadge (D., Ga.) is credited by White House assistants with persuading President Kennedy to name the cabinet committee to study the textile problem. Commerce Secretary Hodges, former North Carolina textile executive, is head of this potent group that will submit recommendations on what should be done about Japan's voluntary textile quota agreement that expires this year. Talmadge carried a lot of weight with the President by submitting a report that "since 1956 more than 700 American textile mills have closed and more than 400,000 textile jobs have been eliminated chiefly as the direct result of the loss of markets at home and abroad to foreign manufacturers."

. . . .Colonel Maurice Fletcher, director of the Army's world-famed Prosthetics Research Labaratory, Forest Glen, Md., is being highly lauded for a survey he has made of Mexico's Institute de Rehabilitacion, with a number of recommendations for its development as an amputee center. In Fletcher's findings, he states, "The Mexican Institute of Rehabilitation has an enormously important potential to fulfill in Latin America, and this fulfillment can be achieved more readily and efficiently in a partnership of efforts of the two countries. . . .The Institute is still in its formative stages, and it will need for some time the technical guidance and coordination of ICA if it is to become the beacon for Latin America."

Pompeii Easy Place For One To Get Lost

POMPEII, ITALY — This is an easy town to get lost in. The streets are all very much alike, and so are the houses, and if one isn't very good at reading a map one is likely to find oneself isolated in a kitchen that dates to 45 A.D. or a wine shop that was flourishing in B. C. times.

This happened to Mary and me today, only we didn't wind up in a kitchen or wine shop but in what went for a snack bar in the days before Vesuvius vent its wrath on Pompeii.

The jars for hot soup or stew were just as they were before that fateful day 79 A.D., and so was the serving counter. All that was lacking were a few signs reading "Please Pay When Served," "No Checks Cashed," and a juke box in the corner to make a 20th century visitor feel right at home.

In seeking our way back to Pompeii's Main Street we got lost again, and wandered outside the city proper and came to a spot where new excavations were under way.

There was a fence about the diggings, and a sign said "No Admittance" in four languages, but curiosity made us interpret the "No Admittance" sign as "Visitors Welcome," and we walked right in.

I'm glad we did, too, for it was our first look at an excavation of this sort and watching the past come to life before your eyes is much more exciting than when the past has been prettied up and readied for public viewing.

While we stood by — and no one ever told us to move on and get out of the place — workmen completed uncovering the portion of a wall of a house.

Carefully — but not quite as carefully as one would suspect — the men dug away the earth, or ashes, or whatever covers Pompeii, and the wall came to light.

It stood seven or eight feet high, and was about the same length. It was covered with a lovely fresco, in many colors, and a fish and a deer-like animal were as clear as if they had been done a week ago.

Two thousand years is a long time, and to see the unveiling of a fresco that had lain unseen for that many centuries, gave me an eerie feeling.

I couldn't help but wonder who had been the last to lay eyes on that fresco. The man of the house on the morning of 79 A.D.? Some curly-headed child? Or some slave passing through with a tray of fruit for the breakfast table, not knowing that in a few hours Vesuvius would seal off the room, not to be opened again until March 1961?

Time and earth had been kind to the wall. Its very freshness added to the shock of seeing it exposed. Its presence evaporated time, and looking at it I felt almost as if the people of the house might walk into view any second, and be able to tell of their life two thousand years ago.

I wish they had, great as would have been the shock. What a story they would have to tell! What fun it would have been to hear of those days, to have the dry pages of history leap to life.

So, when you're next at Pompeii, get lost. Wander away from the guide and the group. There's no telling what you might see.

FEDERAL SCHOOL AID BLASTED

Ludlow (Ky.) News Enterprise

We are glad that someone with influence has spoken out against Federal Aid to Education as did Archbishop Karl J. Alter, of Cincinnati early this week.

The Kentucky Education Association and, in particular, the Northern Kentucky Education Association, should be ashamed of its stand for aid for the schools from the Federal Government. The latter has said that it urges aid providing it does not entail Federal Control.

As Archbishop Alter said, "You won't get Federal dollars without Federal controls." We editorialized not so long ago and pointed out that Federal Aid without Federal Control is wishful thinking for we wouldn't want our government to give out our money without knowing what's to be done with it.

As the Cincinnati Archbishop points out, the drive behind Federal aid is a desire to transfer control of schools from the citizen and local school boards to professional educators and avoid having the people understand and regulate the enormous tax burden imposed upon them.

He chided the thinking that concludes that there's nothing wrong with education that more money won't cure. The same refrain is constantly re-echoed, he said: "More money for education — never or hardly ever — more education for the money."

As Mrs. Walter Ferguson, Enquirer columnist, points out, "Since we are confronted with the need of more money under the present (educational) system, is it not clear that we will some day soon be forced to drop the frills and use our resources for real education — the imparting of ideas and the formation of ideals in the rising generation."

Pegler Says:

Maricopa Slim Was A Mean 'Railroad Bull'

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

TUCSON — A few days ago I met a passenger brakeman toiling along with that enormous, battered black book which they carry and seemed glad of an excuse to set it down and pant a few heaves in the noonward sun when I said, "excuse me; did you ever hear of Maricopa Slim?"

"Yes," he said, "sure I did, but this man behind you could tell you better." The man behind me is a tall, skinny man about 60, with weathered nose with little memento on it as though he had been in a few fights. He is Thomas Jefferso Grisham, now retired these eleven years from the Southern Pacific after a heart attack. He lives in the Lewis Hotel, one flight up. You turn left at the top of the broad stairs and past the desk where nobody was keeping store when I called next day. I hollered "hey" and a cleaner - woman appeared. When I asked for Mr. Grisham she said "I'll see if he's in" and let out a roar: "Jeff!" The first door on the left in the dark hall pulled open and Jeff said "I was just resting a little. After a while I generally go over to the Esquire and drink a little beer, I do not drink any whiskey, but I drink a pretty good bunch of beer. Sit down on the bed."

Jeff said Maricopa Slim was a railroad bull and the most abusive, just unnecessarily darn mean man you could think of. But not mean to other railroad people or any other people. Just mean to hoboes. It has been war between the bulls and the, boes from way back and you can't say the bulls were in the wrong because there was no FBI in those days and the railroad bulls did good work on itinerant safeblowers and stickups and all who rode the freights. They got to know the criminals and passed the word and they helped one another, too.

But Maricopa Slim, he came from the little spot called Maricopa, over to the west of Tucson, not a town at all, really, just a spot with a name.

Well, this colored hobo, he had been working with a little circus and something happend to the circus. Anyway, he was on his way and he had trouble with Maricopa Slim so Slim pistol-whipped him. Hammered his skull and raked his face with the butt of his pistol, the way a lot of impatient fellows do nowadays in any old saloon.

"I wasn't there," Jeff said, "but I heard for years, people were hearing, how this Negro fellow said, 'Mister Slim, I am coming back to see you one of these days.' So he did come back and he shot Slim dead.

"Slim was just darn mean. He didn't have to be so mean. Well, they caught this Negro fellow and he got a prison term but it wasn't very bad."

Jeff Grisham gets a pension which goes up a little next month. That means a little more beer, though he doesn't drink any whiskey. Just beer. In his room he has a hot plate and he had a couple of cans of tamales but he sometimes goes to the lunch counter when he wants a regular meal.

"Man, oh man" Jeff said "when I was a decorator, brakemen were called decorators, we decorated the outside and every brakeman had to set the brakes on five cars when you stopped on a grade and we had some pretty good times. I used to go from El Paso up to Lordsburg and down here to Tucson, really two divisions. But they called it the Dollar division because if you didn't have a union card it cost you a dollar for the brakeman to ride. But I never threw anybody off, except once, I came to a reefer car, a refrigerator, empty, coming back empty from Chicago and the lid was open and I yelled down, 'You fellows got a card?'

"One of them was a fresh guy, he said, 'No, I am just riding on my good looks and my nerve.'

"I said 'you ain't got enough of either, come on up here and show some card or a buck.' He said, 'I ain't killed a white man so long I am out of practice, if I come up I got to kill me a white man.'

"So I went back to the caboose and I got me two red magnesium fuses and I clumb down the ladder and lit one and stuck it in the drain pipe of that reefer. Then I clumb up and lit the other one and th'owed it down that hatch into the car. Boy, those two come piling up and I was standing a little away with my gun and brake club to put in the brake wheel to turn it. I started for them and they took off in the air and one of those boys rolled so hard he almost took down that bob-wire fence.

"Back during the wobblies most 'boes had red cards from IWW, but any old union card was good for a ride. Otherwise, it cost a dollar. Some people said the IWW was commies, but we all used to say 'A man's got to belong to something. Got to belong to the human race'."

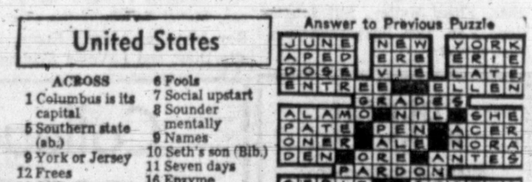

Two blocks west on Broadway, Doctor Weurschmidt, the eye-doctor, who used to take care of General Pershing when Pershing was a patient in town, Doctor Wuerschmidt said he hoboed in a car of lumber from Pecos into El Paso one time, long ago. Went over to Pecos to see a girl and going home he had four bucks but he was too young to be in a union.

So along comes the brakeman and he was the only one without a card. So he gave the shack a dollar.

"That was all right," the doctor said. "The fare was $3.80 so I save some and anyway, people all around down here used to say 'A man got to belong to something. Got to belong to the human race'."

Southern Portion Of Italy Turning Into Busy Empire

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

One hundred years after Giuseppe Garibaldi and his [illegible] brought north and south Italy together as a single nation, the traditionally impoverished south is undergoing a economic face-lifting.

In its own way it is a revolution almost as great as Garibaldi's which brought an end to the private realms of princelings and city states and paved the way for establishment of the kingdom of Italy on March 17, 1861.

Today, hundreds of millions of dollars are pouring into southern Italy to turn a poor and barren land into an industrial empire.

The problem of the "two Italys", the rich, industrial north and the impoverished south, is one that has plagued successive Italian governments. With the loss of colonies and the end of World War II, it became a pressing problem.

The late Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government tackled the problem first.

His program centered on land reform to break up large estates and on such badly-needed public works as roads, land reclamation and irrigation.

Living standards went up but the economic gap remained.

The second stage places heavy emphasis on industrialization, with the state blazing the path and private enterprise following suit. Results so far have been little less than phenomenal.

The big turn came in 1957, with a law under which state - controlled companies, making up half of Italy's heavy industry, were to devote at least 40 per cent of their new investment to the south.

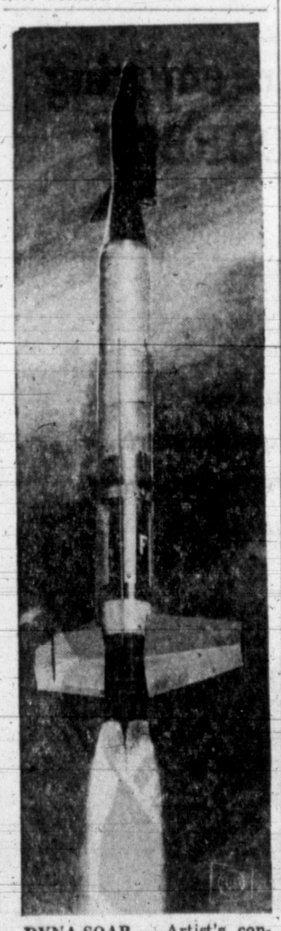

Industry Minister Emilio Colombo told Parliament last month that state and private industrial investment in the south during 1960 totalled between $550 and $640 million dollars.

That figure probably will be exceeded in 1961. Investments in the next five years may total $4 billion, providing jobs for a half million workers.

In the port city of Taranto, a state-controlled company is building a $320 million steel mill. Private interests are applying for space in the Taranto industrial area.

In Bari, a precision equipment factory is to go up, along with tobacco, beer and auto repair plants.

Methane gas, credited with a major role in Italy's general prosperity, has been discovered in Ferrandian in the instep of the Italian boot. New plants going up in what had been Italy's poorest region will supply jobs for 6,000 workers.

DYNA-SOAR — Artist's conception shows launching of a man-controlled Dyna-Soar space glider, boosted into orbit by a Titan II rocket. The winged Air Force glider will be designed to reach a speed of 17,000 m.p.h. at 300 miles altitude, enabling it to circle the world in 90 minutes.

Cattle Raising Not What It Was, Association Delegate Declares

FORT WORTH (UPI)—If you think cattle raising is the same as it's always been, then talk to Ferd Slocum, an oldtimer who runs the Slocum Brothers Ranch near Crescent, Tex., along with his two brothers.

"Has it changed?" the 62-year-old cowman said. "Why nowadays you can't even hire a cowboy unless you have a heater in your pickup truck."

Slocum is in Fort Worth to attend the 84th annual convention of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association which ends Wednesday.

"Now me, I still work cattle from horseback," he drawled. "But my brother A. W. uses a pickup. He dumps a little feed and rattles that truck and those cows will follow him anywhere."

Slocum said he can remember when cowboys wore nothing but clothing made from brown duck cloth, before the blue jeans of today became the standard uniform.

"You know, the first cattle ever driven north out of Texas came from what is now our ranch," Slocum said. "They were four and five year old steers with the horns still on and brought five cents a pound in Chicago.

Signs Advising Against Alley Parking Wanted

City officials are studying the suggestion of a downtown store manager that signs be placed in alleys in the business district advising motorists that alley parking is prohibited.

Lucian Young manager of White's Auto Store, said so many of his customers have received parking tickets for leaving their cars unattended in the alley next to his store that it has begun to eat into his profits.

Young has been picking up the tab on the tickets, he told city comission members at their meeting in City Hall yeserday.

"Many people do not know that there is a city ordinance which prohibits alley parking," Young said. "I believe if the city would put up "no parking" signs at the entrance to the alleys it would eliminate the problem."

Mayor Ed Myatt told Young his suggestion was a good one and that it would be given consideration. There is a city ordinance against parking in alleys.

Bond Issues Strong Challenge To Full House At Cage Banquet

By ARTHUR MAYHEW
Daily News Sports Editor

Jimmy Bond, the gifted Pampan who along with his teammates withstood many a challenge on the basketball court, returned an even-bigger challenge to the people gathered in the Coronado Inn last night at the annual Harvester basketball banquet.

"I dare you to be different," Bond, now studying for his bachelor of divinity degree in Kansas City, Mo., told the onlookers. "I challenge you to make something of your lives, to rise above the common, the ordinary, the average."

These were the closing words to a short — but sincere — talk that kept the 275 diners almost spellbound as Bond mixed humor and sound food for thought. His words were as decisive as his actions in 1953 and 1954 when he helped lead Pampa to its first two state Class 4A basketball championships.

Bond shared the spotlight with Allen Wise, the 6-3 Harvester senior co-captain who was awarded the coveted "Hustling Harvester" honor. Wise, who made the coaches all district second team and led District 3-4A in free throw marksmanship, was the 11th recipient of the award begun in 1950.

It was a night for the girls too as Carolyn Hudson celebrated her 18th birthday by being named basketball sweetheart for 1960-61 before being crowned by Bill Neslage, senior Pampa co-captain. Her attendants were Frances Aftergut, escorted by Pat Carter, and Sue Guthrie, escorted by Wise.

As for Bond, who has a pastorship at Olathe, Kan., although still in school, he wasted little time in getting to his subject.

"I've known many thrills in my life," the blond, crew-cut speaker opened. "These thrills have made me a little above average for I have known the thrill of great victories in high school and college.

"I know the thrill of being carried off the floor after winning championships and being honored for your accomplishments.

"But" — and Mr. Bond's voice took on a new tone —" the greatest — the finest — thrill of my life came as a young boy when I came face to face with God and the thrill I was to have in living in Him."

Bond then turned his talk into the close parallel between basketball and life.

"As in the game of basketball, there are some of the same necessary elements here as in the great game of life," Bond said, looking out onto the crowd.

"If you are to be really successful in life, you must — as in basketball — have a goal, something to shoot for, something to accomplish."

Comparing life to a range of hills, Bond told the young people in the audience to "pick out the tallest hill in the group and say 'that's the one I'm going to climb. I'd like to challenge each of you here tonight to pick out a hill and start climbing and never be satisfied until you have reached the top."

Coupled with a definite goal, Bond added, each must have a sincere desire to attain that goal.

"Many people have a goal in mind, but they lose sight of it because of a lack of desire; then they settle for being average and ordinary."

Before concluding Bond added that in these critical times, the world needs young men and women who are not satisfied with being "just average."

"Each person's life is in his own hands," Bond said. "Make of it what you want to; do what you want to do and be what you want to be.

"Step out of the masses of the ordinary. Follow the challenge to lead the bigger life, a life in and with God," Bond concluded.

James Gallemore, chairman of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce sports committee which sponsored the banquet, was the presiding officer and was aided by Coach Terry Culley, who presented the "Hustling Harvester" award and introduced the junior high and high school coaches and members of the Harvester and Shocker cage squads.

Joe Fischer introduced the guests including several members of the 1953 and 1954 state championship clubs, and Art Aftergut presented gift certificates to the junior high and high school coaches.

Special entertainment was provided by baritone Joe Whitten, director of music at the First Baptist Church, and Maxine Milliron provided the dinner music. Dr. E. Douglas Carver, pastor of the First Baptist Church, gave the invocation. The crowning of the basketball sweetheart was directed by Mrs. Mabel Torvie and Warren Hasse introduced Bond.

Special recognition also was given to Mrs. Roy Kilgore, a member of the Pampa High School cafeteria staff who has fed Harvester athletes for many years.

'Just Ducky' Triumphs

Just Ducky broke out in front and led the field up through the back stretch where Dix Dago moved into first by a half length on the far turn.

Just Ducky, with Bennie Sorensen up, regained the lead by a half length as they came down the home stretch. The margin at the wire was two lengths with Bolerita, the favorite, taking a photo finish from Three Dot Day.

Howard Not Only One Hurting

Tiny Bone Chip May Sideline Dodger Giant

By FRED DOWN
United Press International

A tiny bone chip has Frank Howard and the Los Angeles Dodgers hurting all over.

The chip in the left thumb of the $108,000 bonus beauty from Ohio State was discovered Tuesday night and Dr. William Scarpa, Dodger physician at Vero Beach, Fla., speculated it could mean the giant slugger will miss the team's National League opener.

The injury came just as Dodger manager Walt Alston and other Los Angeles officials believed they were making solid progress in taming the 6-foot, 7-inch, 250-pounder's batting swing. The loss of Howard would be a hard blow to the Dodgers who plan to alternate him at first base and in the outfield and who are counting on him to produce much of their long-range batting power.

Howard started the 1960 season with Spokane but wound up as the National League's rookie of the year on the strength of a .268 batting average, 23 homers and 77 runs batted in.

General manager Buzzie Bavasi said that Howard, who suffered the injury in Sunday's exhibition game with the New York Yankees, will not rejoin the Dodgers until April 4. The announcement on Howard's injury came shortly after the Dodgers' 16-15 victory over the Milwaukee Braves in

Bonar Sparks ABC Victory

DETROIT (UPI) — Buddy Bomar of Chicago has gained many bowling honors during a long career. The former All-Star champ, national doubles title holder and "Bowler of the Year" in 1946, almost gathered another laurel here Tuesday night in his American Bowling Congress tournament appearance but it isn't likely he will boast of it.

Bomar was anchor man for the famed Munsingwears of Chicago as the team made its Classic Division debut and had games of 165-164-164 for a 493. If his first game had been 164 he would have been awarded an armpatch for rolling a triplicate score.

which John Roseboro hit a pair of two-run homers for Los Angeles and Al Spangler had a triple and three singles for Milwaukee.

Other camp notes: Catcher Dick Brown raised his spring average to .542 with two singles as the Detroit Tigers beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 3-2. . .Left-hander Jim Archer's three-hit pitching for five innings paced the Kansas City Athletics to a 4-2 win over the New York Yankees in a game cut to seven innings because of rain. . .The Boston Red Sox crushed the Los Angeles Angels, 12-3, with the aid of a homer, double and single by Rip Repulski and six errors by the Angels. . .Rookies Nelson Mathews, Danny Murtphy and Billy Williams hit eighth-inning homers to produce an 8-6 victory for the Chicago Cubs over the Cleveland Indians. . .The world champion Pittsburgh Pirates gained their ninth win in 11 games when they topped the Philadelphia Phillies, 7-5. . .The Cincinnati Reds walloped the Minnesota Twins, 10-4, and the Baltimore Orioles nipped the Chicago White Sox, 2-1.

Pampa, Elk City Cross Bats Today

PHS Hikes For Tilt, Prays For Sunshine

ELK CITY, Okla. — Pampa's Harvesers, hoping the fifth time's the charm, took the field at 3:30 p.m. today here seeking their second win of the snow-shortened season.

Currently among the District 3-4A leaders in non-conference play, Pampa will be meetng the same team it defeated 6-4 on March 11 — the first and only PHS outing of the season.

Coach Deck Woldt will start either junior Mike Clark or sophomore Jerry Glover (1-0) in tomorrow's game in an effort to nail down that elusive second victory.

Both hurlers were impressive in Pampa's only victory, striking out nine men between them and allowing only three hits and one run in six innings.

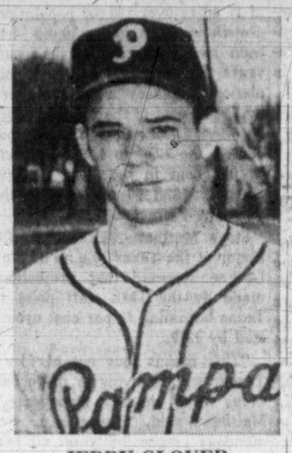

Glover also got his licks in at the plate against the Elks the first time around, banging out a homer and triple in two efforts to spark the nine-hit Pampa attack.

Elsewhere around the infield, senior letterman Larry Stroud will start at first, Ab Cullender will be at second and Butch Crossland will be a shortstop. Keith Gregory, the only other letterman in the infield, will be at third.

Mike Stewart, the clutch-hitting junior who is seeing his first season in a Harvester baseball uniform, will open at catcher and will be backed by Wayne Storrs, a sophomore.

Woldt will start his outfield trio of Roy Don Stephens in center, Butch Frazier in left and Gerrel Owens in right, with John Arthur, who banged out two hits in the first game, slated for front - line reserve duties.

The Harvesters hit the road again Friday for a single game in Hereford — although a doubleheader may be scheduled to make up for a game missed last weekend—and return home Saturday for a pair with Dumas.

Lakers Stun Hawks, Nats Bomb Celts

By United Press International

The way Elgin Baylor and the Los Angeles Lakers are playing of late, don't be too surprised if they roll right over the St. Louis Hawks and wind up in the National Basketball Association's final playoff series.

Baylor, who averaged 39.4 points a game in Los Angele's 3-2 Western Division semifinal playoff victory over the Detroit Pistons, took right up against the St. Louis Hawks Tuesday night in the opening game of the division final series by scoring 44 points.

That boosted the Lakers, who finished second to St. Louis in the regular season race, to a 122-118 victory and a one-game lead in the division final series.

The two clubs play again tonight at St. Louis in the second game of the best-of-seven playoff to determine the division champion.

While on the way to his fine scoring achievement, Baylor tossed in four key points in the final 78 seconds to put the game out of St. Louis' reach. Jerry West chipped in with 27 points for the Lakers, while Bob Pettit paced the Hawks with 28.

Meanwhile, in the Eastern Division final playoff series, the Syracuse Nationals, paced by "old pro" Dolph Schayes, hustled to a 115-98 victory over the defending champion Boston Celtics to even the series at one victory apiece.

Schayes scored 32 points, 19 in the second half that saw the Nats outscore the Celtics, 71-47. Syracuse never trailed after taking the lead midway through the third period. Bill Russell paced Boston with 17 points.

The series resumes on Thursday at Boston.

GOTEBORG, Sweden (UPI) — Sportswriter Sven Ekstroem of the Goteborg Daily says world heavyweight champion Floyd Patterson will make an exhibition tour of Sweden this year. He said Patterson will tour 10 Swedish cities during April or August with the profits gong to the Swedish National Polio Fund.

Field Narrows In AAU Action

DENVER (UPI)—Eight games today and tonight — 12 hours of continuous basketball — will reduce the field in the 54th national AAU tournament to eight teams for the quarterfinals.

Eight seeded teams, including six from the strong National Basketball League, the San Francisco Olympic Club and the U.S. Army, will see action for the first time in this day-night second round.

The top-seeded Denver Truckers, runnerup in the NBL, play Paul's of Dayton, Ohio, and the second-seeded Cleveland Pipers, NBL champions, take on Kirby's of Los Angeles in tonight's feature games. The San Francisco-U.S. Air Force game tops the afternoon card.

The original field of 23 teams was reduced to 16 after five games Tuesday. The eight seeded teams drew first round byes.

Cardinals Eye '61 NL Pennant

EDITORS NOTE: This is the third of 18 dispatches on the 1961 prospects of the major league teams.

By LEO H. PETERSEN
UPI Sports Editor

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI) — The St. Louis Cardinals surprised the baseball world last year when they finished third. It wouldn't be surprised this year if they went all the way and won the National League pennant.

Solly Hemus, in his third season as manager of the Redbirds thinks they can do it if they come up with a little more outfield and catching power and a lefthanded relief pitcher.

Those are the departments the Cards were short in last year when they jumped from seventh to third place.

"We figure to be stronger — much stronger — than last season," said Hemus. "We have a fine all-around infield, young and strong pitching and plenty of outfielders."

The trouble with the outfielders is that they fall ito two categories — those who can hit but are weak in the field and those who can field but can't hit.

"My big problem is to come up with a combination of three who can do the job both in the field and at plate," explained Hemus. "We have plenty of candidates and I'm hopeful they can do the job."

If they do not, Hemus does not think the Cardinals' cause is lost.

"Our infield," he predicted hopefully, "might be able to supply all the power we'll need. Then I can concentrate on defense in the outfield."

His infield is set with Bill White at first, Julian Javier at second, Daryl Spencer at short and Ken Boyer at third. Boyer hit .302 last season with 32 homers and 97 runs batted in. White hit .283 with 16 homers and 79 RBI's.

"Between them they should bat in 200 runs, hit around 60 homers and both hit above .300," Hemus said.

The Cards started to move last year when they obtained Javier from the Pittsburgh Pirate farm organization for southpaw pitcher Wilmer Mizell and installed him at second base. He's a brilliant glove man and while he batted only .237 last season, Hemus thinks he can hit between .270 and .300 this yea, "because he has learned to bunt."

Spencer doesn't hit for an average but is a long ball threat and a good hitter in the clutch.

For infield reserves there are Red Schoendienst, who has won a utility role after being given his free agency by the Braves; Alex Grammas and George Crowe.

Don Landrum, up from Buffalo where he hit .292 with 18 home runs and 75 RBI's, may be the answer to the outfield situation. If he can do the job in centerfield and if he can hit he will beat out another good glove man but weak hitter, Curt Flood.

Stan Musial will see a lot of action in left field, but he will have to hit to hold the job because of his defensive shortcomings. Joe Cunningham is another outfielder who can hit but leaves a lot to be desired defensively. Also in that category are Bob Nieman and Walt Moryn.

There's enough hitting among them but whether it will be enough to make up for their fielding lapses is doubtful.

Dayton U. Edges Temple

Flyers Eye NIT Crown

NEW YORK (UPI) — Providence College and the University of Dayton were mighty lucky to be occupying semifinal berths today in the National Invitation Basketball Tournament.

At least that was the opinion of their straight-shooting coaches —Joe Mullaney of the Friars and Dayton's Tom Blackburn.

"Let's face it, we were lucky all right," Mullaney said after Providence pulled out a 71-68 victory over Niagara Tuesday night in the final quarterfinal game at Madison Square Garden.

"We were lucky, too," admitted Blackburn as he reviewed the Flyers' 62-60 squeaker over Temple in the first game of a doubleheader. "In fact, we must have set the game back a few years the way we played."

Dayton, a 10-point favorite, barely outlasted Temple on a jump shot by Tom Hatton with one second left to play.

Both Dayton and Providence will need more than luck on their side in Thursday night's semifinals. The Flyers will play St. Louis University and Providence will meet Holy Cross in a rematch between a pair of bitter New England rivals.

The clutch shooting of John Egan and substitute guard Ray Flynn carried Providence to its come-from-behind victory over Niagara.

Egan, held to one field goal and only four points by Al Butler in the first half, popped in 10 straight points for the Friars to reduce Niagara's lead from 46-35 to 48-45 with 10 minutes remaining.

Golfers Enter District

Harvester Teams Head For Lubbock Weekend

All roads may have led to Rome at one time, but this weekend most lead to Lubbock as three Pampa Harvester teams head south for important athletic events.

Leading the Green and Gold caravan will be the Pampa golfers who open the first phase of a three-weekend district tournament on Saturday. The first 18 holes will be played at Lubbock Country Club, with the following 36 holes to be held at Pampa (March 31) and Amarillo (April 15).

Tascosa, which has won tournaments at Albuquerque and Lubbock in past weekends, will be favored in the district play, but Pampa, which made good showings at Abilene and Andrews, could give the Rebels a run for the first-round lead.

Also this weekend, Pampa's thinclads enter the second annual Lubbock Invitational Track Meet. Two of the strongest teams in West Texas — Tascosa and Abilene — will not be present due to other meet comittments. Lubbock is the defending champion.

Pampa's Harvester tennis team, 2-1 on the year, enters it first tournament Friday in the Monterey Invitational Tennis Tournament. Most of the District 3-4A teams are entered, with the meet outcome expected to shed some light on the blurred district tennis picture.

On Friday, Pampa's weather-plagued baseball team hikes to Hereford for a single game and returns home Saturday for a doubleheader with Dumas.

Pampa (1-0) has not seen action since March 11 when it defeated Elk City, 6-4. Since then, four games have been canceled due to bad weather.

Aggies Dump Bears, 7-6

COLLEGE STATION (UPI) — Texas A&M bounced Baylor out of the ranks of the unbeaten 7-6 Tuesday in a Southwest Conference baseball game.

Baylor rallied in the sixth and seventh innings to close the gap to the final score and the Cadets called on Bobby Collins, a Dallas senior, to put out the fire.

He retired the final six batters in order, but starter Jerry Warren got credit for the victory.

MLS-ST. Paul, Minn. (UPI) — The Minnesota Vikings have signed Ken Baird, all-around backfield star from Bethel College of St. Paul, Minn., as a free agent.

PATERSON, N. J. (UPI) — The Jose Torres - Bobby Barnes middleweight bout scheduled for Saturday night here has been postponed until April 1. Torres, a Puerto Rican, is suffering from a sore throat.

HOW TO TELL A DODGE FROM A DODGE

Identifying a Dodge has become a problem. Because now there are two. Compact Dodge Lancer. Full-size Dodge Dart. There is an obvious difference. Size, inside and out. Dart, the lower picture, is the larger. But otherwise they are very much alike. Both have a unitized, rust-proofed body. A superb ride called Torsion-Aire. A battery-saving alternator. And both have optional three-speed push-button automatic transmissions. Another difference is price. Dart, the full-size Dodge, is priced model for model with Ford and Chevrolet. The compact Dodge Lancer costs about the same as Comet, Falcon and Corvair. Get to know them better. At your Dodge Dealer's, of course.

The H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store Offers Low Prices, Conveniences

If you enjoy the convenience of shopping from your car and are looking for fine beverages, H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store is the place for you.

H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store 866 W. Foster Street, at the corner of Hobart Street, has a duo-purpose facility that permits one to be served in the warmth of his car, either at the sliding - door or the Dutch door. This, plus the wide awning along the side of the store gives customers protection from the weather, regardless of the whims of the weatherman.

"We try at all times to give our customers the best of it," said Herb Lotz, co-owner of the store with Myron Dorman. "We make no bones about it; giving the best prices, the best quality, plus all the 'little things' that please the customer is our goal. We work at it from the time the doors open, until the doors are closed."

These are the things that have made H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store one of the more successful businesses in Pampa. The old cliche that "We aim to please!" fits all too well in the operations of the Lotz-Dorman firm.

And, better still, the person who is seeking all the select liquors can find them at H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store. All the premium beers, the popular beers, (bottles or cans) four-six-and eight - year old bourbons may be found there, and the prices are "eye-popping" low—a factor we all seek, remember?

Continuing H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store's policy of bringing fine merchandise to Pampa, the co-owners are featuring some of the finest after dinner wines in the market. It boils down to just about, you name it — H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store has it — fine, rare wines, name brand whiskies and all the popular and premium beers, including liquors, brandies and a wide variety of mix ingredients to make you the most popular "mixologist" in your neighborhood.

One of the big sellers at H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store is Busch Barvarian Beer. This beer, priced in line with the policy of the store to give you, the customer, all the best of it, is excellent with snacks, and light meals, and, to make it all the more appealing it is not bitter. It's one of Pampa's top selling beers, but H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store is always fully stocked to be certain to have it in hand at all times.

Another certain front line beer is Pearl bock beer, the seasonal beer that, to many, is the "only beer."

All these, and something else to attract the eye: Pronto delivery. And if you doubt this for one moment, just telephone MO 4-8102. That's right, MO 4-8102, and, literally speaking, start for the front door to meet the deliveryman. For H & M Cut Rate Liquor Store is desirous of always pleasing the customer, and this is just one of the ways it seeks to do so.

Try It. You'll find out, and you'll be pleased.

Johnson Reveals Views About Job Discrimination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson is tackling his new "equal employment" assignment with a conviction that anti-Negro job discrimination springs from unions, past traditions and poor training—as well as from sheer bigotry.

The vice president, named to head the new committee on equal employment opportunity, was reported today proceeding on the theory that his group should be a policy-making rather than an "operating" organization.

Enforcement of policies designed to end racial discrimination in employment on government contracts and others will be left to the Justice Department.

But Johnson, former Senate Democratic leader and sponsor of compromise civil rights legislation, has been advised that the discrimination problem is one compounded of economics and social institutions.

The vice president was said to recognize that much job discrimination is due more to fear by white workers that they will lose their jobs than to sheer prejudice.

Johnson's analysis also suggests that a great deal of discrimination can be traced to union desires to limit the labor market. If there are fewer qualified workers, those already qualified can get better jobs at higher rates of pay.

Twice Daily Home Mail Not In View

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Postmaster General J. Edward Day has indicated he will not restore twice-a-day home mail deliveries.

Even if he wanted to, Congress told him he can not have the $176 millio na year that the extra delivery would cost.

The exchange was disclosed in House Appropriations Committee hearings published Monday night. It apparently closed out prospects for restoration of the two-a-day residential deliveries that were dropped in an economy move about a decade ago.

Cuba Convicted Him With Lies, Ex-Yank Wrote

HAVANA (UPI)—The late Maj. William A. Morgan charged in a letter smuggled out of the death house that his captors tried to poison him and put ground glass in his food, friends said today.

They showed newsmen the ex-American adventurer's last message, written barely seven hours before he faced one of Premier Fidel Castro's firing squads. Morgan's attorneys confirmed it was in his handwriting.

Morgan was executed earlier this month for plotting against the Castro regime. The message said his real crime was opposing communism.

"My trial was a history of lies and injustice," the message said. "I was the last anti-Communist holding the grade of major in the (Castroite) army." The rank of major is the highest in Castro's army.

Morgan said his ex-chauffeur and co-defendant, Marion Marin, testified that Morgan had been aiding guerrillas because of a "deal" in which the government promised to spare Marin's life if he would turn state's evidence.

"During the time I was in G2 (secret police headquarters), I became violently ill," he wrote. "Because and only because I drank a quart of milk and vomited, I am still alive."

The message said Castroite authorities promised to send a doctor when other prisoners threatened to burn their mattresses unless they did so. However, doctor arrived.

"Later, we were transferred to death cells in La Cabana where we were kept for 21 days, during which time we found ground glass in the food twice..." he wrote.

Small Texas Cities Growing Substantially, Report Says

Spectacular growth in metropolitan areas of Texas has overshadowed the less-publicized but highly-important steadiness of population increases during the 1950's in smaller Texas cities.

This is the conclusion of a staff research project by the Texas Municipal League analyzing the 1960 US Census report for Texas.

The TML study points up several "spectacular" trends:

Texas urban population increased 25 per cent more during the 1950 decade than the total population increase for the state. State population gained 1,868,483, while urban population within the state increased by 2,347,951.

Seventy-five per cent of Texas' population now lives in urbanized areas compared with 62.7 per cent ten years ago.

Texas now has more cities in the "100 largest" category nationally than any other state. The nine Texas cities in the top 100 and their respective ranks are Houston (7), Dallas (14), San Antonio (17), Fort Worth (34), El Paso (46), Austin (67), Corpus Christi (74), Amarillo (88), and Lubbock (94).

Texas now has 21 standard metropolitan areas, a gain of six additional since 1950 — representing both the largest total number and the largest gain in metropolitan areas of any state in the nation. The new metropolitan areas designated since 1950 are Abilene, Brownsville - Harlingen, Midland, Odessa, Texarkana and Tyler.

Stightly more than six of every ten Texans live in these 21 metropolitan areas.

The total population of these 21 areas within the state of Texas exceeds the total population of any of 43 other states.

While these instances fall into the spectacular category, TML researchers point out that smaller Texas cities are contributing a highly-important and significant share to the urban growth of Texas.

Examples of the importance of the smaller cities include:

Thirty-nine Texas cities and towns with less than 10,000 population in 1950 more than doubled population during the decade and four such cities increased population by at least 1,000 per cent.

The four fastest-growing cities and the percentage of increase 1950-60 are Irving (1,654 per cent), Mesquite (1,523 per cent), Farmers Branch (1,396 per cent), and Richardson (1,204 per cent). All are located in Dallas County.

While nearly half of the present municipal population in Texas lives in 11 cities over 100,000 population, growth in cities under 10,000 has been steady throughout the past years. Between 1950 and 1960 population increases were registered by 74 per cent of the municipalities between 5,000 and 9,999; 71 per cent in the 2,500 to 4,999 bracket; 60 per cent in the 1,000 to 2,499 category; and 50 per cent in the under-1,000 bracket.

Steve Matthews, Executive Director of the Texas Municipal League reported that projections made by the TML staff point to Texas becoming 80 per cent urbanized by 1970.

"This means four out of five Texans will be living in the urban areas within the next nine years," Matthews said. "There is a tremendous responsibility on all levels of government — state, as well as local — to help get the municipal house in order within this short period.

"Today 7,186,011 Texans are city-dwellers. Ten yeas ago only 4,838,060 lived in cities. Before this decade ends, we may well see a population in Texas municipalities exceeding 10,000,000.

"On their part, municipal officials recognize their heavy burden for maintaining sound, economical, highly efficient government, responsive to the needs of the people and planning ahead so that those needs may be met in time. Public officials at every level—state and local —have parallel responsibilities in permitting municipalities the prudent flexibility required to adjust to the changing demands of the future. Officials at all levels are, after all, working for the same people.

"Our studies indicate that population growth within Texas is coming principally in five areas: the Dallas-Fort Worth metropolitan area, the Gulf Coast area extending from the Lower Rio Grande Valley to Orange, the area following the Balcones Fault Line, the West Texas Permian Basin area, the western half of the Panhandle. Equally significant are the isolated growth areas such as Abilene, El Paso, Tyler and Wichita Falls.

Plans To Launch Manned Capsule To Be Continued

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The civilian space agency has decided to continue with plans to launch a manned space capsule down the Atlantic missile range this spring although a test of the missile's escape system failed.

Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said today they may have to repeat the Saturday shot, a test of the Mercury man-in-space capsule and its pilot escape system.

The capsule was fired from Wallops Island, Va., by a Little Joe rocket to test the escape system under the most rugged conditions. It didn't fire at the right moment.

An oribital launch is still planned for late this year, but before that the NASA wants to give an astronaut a brief ride aboard a capsule launched by a Redstone, hitting a peak altitude of about 115 miles.

Jacqueline Kennedy Escorted To Ballet

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy was escorted to the ballet by Adlai E. Steveson Tuesday night for what was almost a command performance.

The City Center Ballet changed its program to include some of the first lady's preferences.

Mrs. Kennedy devoted her second day in New York to shopping — with as much secrecy as possible — but it was known she bought an 18th century French vase known as a "cachepot" to take back with her to the White House.

BUICK-RAMBLER NEWS
BY TEX EVANS

We have lots of encouraging news for you at Tex Evans Buick-Rambler.

Rambler sales have just set a new record for the first ten day period of March. Sales of 9,103 Ramblers were at a new high for the year.

Buick Specials took first and second places in the eight cylinder, automatic transmission, compact car class of the Mobilgas Economy Run. We know the gas mileages of 25.09 and 24.67 MPG were mighty high, but all competitive cars in the class were driven under the same conditions and the Buicks won the first two places.

In the Pure Oil Economy trials last month at Daytona Speedway, Ramblers ran off with all the honors in their classes. Rambler American Customs with overdrive won the first six places in Class "6" and the Ambassadors swept the first eight places in Class "3". The Pure Oil test tried to copy average driving conditions over a tough stop-and-go course.

There is still time to take advantage of Tex Evans' special offer to buy 1961 license and safety inspection on all new Buicks and Ramblers and Better Buy used cars before April 1st (only nine more days).

Like we said, the news is good at Tex Evans Buick-Rambler . . . Sales are up, Ramblers and Buicks have proven economy, and you save 1961 tags and safety inspection by trading now.

City's Finances In Good Shape, Mayor Reveals

Mayor Ed Myatt gave city commissioners and an audience at yesterday's commission meeting in City Hall an optimistic preliminary report on Pampa's financial condition.

The mayor said a report which would be made public within the next week or two will show that Pampa has total asets of $10,597,881 against outstanding bonded indebedness of $3,924,000.

"I think you will agree," the mayor said, "that Pampa is in pretty good financial condition."

The mayor said some $160,000 worth of bonds were retired in the last fiscal year.

Pampa's 1958 property valuation was $37,121,135. The 1959 valuation figure is $39,139,950. This is an increase of $2,018,715.

The mayor reported that revenue from water and sewer service in the city amounted to $570,815 and departmental expenses were only $180,000 which showed a profit of some $382,000.

"Our cash requirements," the mayor said is approximately $303,000 for this year. We will get $195,000 from taxes and $113,000 from water and sewer revenue."

The mayor said a complete financial statement will be published soon in the newspaper.

SETS ARMED FORCES DAY

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has proclaimed May 20 Armed Forces Day. He called on the people of the United States Monday to use the occasion for special expressions of support for the military services "to enhance public understanding and appreciation of the armed forces of the United States as defenders of freedom at home and abroad."

DIMINISHING RETURN

LORAIN, Ohio (UPI) — Franklin Wildenheim produced a new excuse Monday for speeding. His explanation to the patrolman:

"Well, you see, officer, the car had been acting up and I wanted to get it home as soon as I could."
