All Legal Blocks For Oklahoma Special Session Removed

CASH ON HAND TO BEAR COST OF CONVENING

District Judge Sustains Demurrer to Action To Halt Meet

CAN GATHER NOW

Session Will Have No Power to Appropriate Any Funds

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 28. (AP)—All legal impediments to a special session of the Oklahoma legislature December 6 were declared late today by its proponents to have been removed by the refusal of District Judge Tom G. Chambers to grant an injunction to its opponents and by an informal opinion by the Attorney General Edwin Dabney.

Demurrer Is Upheld

Judge Chambers upheld a demurrer to a petition asking that five leaders in the session movement be enjoined from collecting any illegal expense claims in connection with the session. He explained that the special session would not have authority to appropriate money, and that the proper course of procedure would be against legislators who might attemp to do so.

This point has already been surmounted, E. P. Hill, a leader in the session movement said tonight, by the fact that there remained more than $9,000 appropriated by the regular legislature for expenses, which has not been used. This will more than cover the expense of a special session, Mr. Hill said. The existence of the money was verified at the auditor's office.

Opinion Is Ready

H. Tom Knight, another of the "big four" who are advocating the special session, declared that Attorney General Dabney had prepared an opinion declaring that the legislature had an "inherent right to convene at any time it saw fit, for investigation and impeaching purposes." The opinion, Mr. Knight said, was written last Saturday night but withheld through courtesy to the courts, while the matter was in litigation. Mr. Knight quoted the opinion further as saying that "no power is vested with any authority to control the action of the legislature," and that no other governmental agency could question the right of the legislature to convene.

City Attorneys Will Fight Street Ruling

FORT WORTH, Nov. 28. (AP)—City attorneys from Fort Worth, Dallas, San Antonio, Houston and Austin will combine to set aside a recent ruling of the state supreme court holding that municipalities cannot abandon streets.

This statement was made today by City Attorney R. E. Rouer who said that a date for a hearing would be set some time this week.

Streets have frequently been closed for the erection of large buildings and enforcement of the ruling of the high court will hamper industrial development Rouer believes.

District Attorney Orders Slot Machines "Cleaned Out" of City

Gum Vending Apparatus Termed Gambling Device And Promoters of Crime For Youth

Slot machines must go.

Ben P. Allred, district attorney, announced Monday that it has been called to his attention that several of these machines are being operated in stores in both the residential and business section of the city. Generally they are gum vending machines but as this has been ruled by the higher courts as only a subterfuge to cover a gambling device, the district attorney states he is going to rid the city of them.

Many of these machines are played by youths and are held by Mr. Allred to be responsible for crime.

"The youngsters will steal to get money to play them," he said.

"They do not realize that they have no chance to beat these machines if they stay with them. They are made to make money and to do so the odds must be against the player. I understand that generally the player has odds of 4 to 1 against him. In other words he can win only once out of five plays.

"This is just as much gambling as in any other form and those who persist in running them may be charged with operating a gambling house. This statute is severe and Wichita Falls juries have shown a tendency to convict in these cases."

AIRPORT DRIVE NEARING GOAL

Subscriptions Expected To End This Week

Money is now pouring into the subscription coffers of the Wichita Falls airport following a drive meeting of the airport committee at the chamber of commerce rooms Monday morning.

Many Subscriptions.

C. W. Cahoon Jr., who presided at the meeting Wednesday, reported Wednesday night that the lists given to the committee members at the morning meeting are being worked intensively and that good results were obtained Wednesday afternoon. As there was no meeting of the group Wednesday night it was impossible to get a list of the Wednesday subscribers, but it is evident that a strong response is being given by Wichita Falls men who realize the need of the airport, Mr. Cahoon declared.

The stockholders in the corporation, which is being organized solely to give Wichita Falls an airport at once that it may have the opportunity of getting on the proposed new Atlantic-Pacific airline and the Denver-New Orleans airline, studied the plans for their present campaign to obtain the balance of the money needed at the Monday morning meeting. A. C. Moline, J. A. Kemp, Joe Carrigan, James Williams, W. S. Abbott, C. E. McCutchen, Hubert Harrison and Mr. Cahoon attended.

Committee at Work.

Instead of naming a sub-committee to call on those on the prospect sheets, it was decided that the committee itself do the work which was started immediately after the meeting.

These men will gather again at the chamber of commerce rooms Wednesday morning to make out a complete report of their work.

Horrors of Peace Time Wait "Goofs" Of 40 and 8 at Burk Celebration

BNRKBURNETT, Tex., Nov. 28.—A bunch of "goofs" untamed by the war and its harrowing play, are to be tamed by the 40 Hommes et 8 Chevaux at Burkburnett Wednesday night following the biggest, wildest brightest and most unusual parade ever planned for that city.

This announcement was made Monday night by Burkburnett and Wichita Falls members of the voiture after a meeting at the off town.

Fireworks and a brass band will tell Burkburnett that the 40 and 8 and the "goofs' are on their way to the torture palace where they will be given the third degree and formally induced into the order.

All of Burkburnet has been invited by the organization to see the parade which is to start at the Burkburnett union station and wend its own sweet way to the Legion hall.

Fireworks will outshine anything the city has ever seen in the way of a parade illumination, the 40 and 8 members say. They guarantee light enough to blind the onlookers and music loud enough to deafen them, so that a good time is in store for the town.

The 40 and 8, which is the playground of the American Legion, expects visiting members from Vernon, Temple, Frederick, Wichita

SINCLAIR AND PALS WILL BE PUSHED AHEAD

Court and U. S. Attorney Both Urge Contempt Trials at Once

ASK FULL BENCH

Defendants Will Plead Double Jeopardy In First Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28. (AP)—Indications that Harry F. Sinclair, William J. Burns and their four associates, cited for criminal contempt of court for their part in the Falls-Sinclair jury surveillance scandal, would seek delay on the ground of double jeopardy were met today with the blunt announcement by District Attorney Gordon that no delay in the hearing would be permitted.

In granting the application of the the district attorney that he issue a rule citing the wealthy oil man, his associates and the detectives for contempt in shadowing the trial jury, Justice Frederick L. Siddons, in the District of Columbia supreme court, insisted that the hearing be held at the earliest possible moment. This desire together with the hope of the district attorney that the hearing be completed before January 1 forecast a clash over the subject at the opening of the hearing next Monday.

Burns and Son Served

Burns, his son, W. Sherman, founder and head respectively of the Burns Detective agency, and C. L. Veitsch, their Baltimore manager, were served here today with the citation in the office of their attorney, Charles A. Douglas. At that time Douglas indicated that the respondents would contend that they were put in double jeopardy because the grand jury investigating the government's charges of tampering with the trial jury, had not completed its work.

Douglas also indicated that the counsel for the respondents would ask the court whether any presentments had been returned against any of the sextet and would request Justice Siddons to have the case heard by the full bench. Granting of such a request, however, would be entirely at Justice Siddon's personal desire.

Juror Asks Hearing.

The reply of the detective to the petition of the district attorney charging that Sinclair sent Henry Mason Day and Sheldon Clark to Washington to hire Burns detectives to "spy upon, bribe and otherwise influence the trial jury", will not be presented in court until hearing starts, Douglas said.

A petition presented to Justice Siddons by Edward J. Kidwell, the juror who is alleged to have talked about the case, asking to be made a party to the contempt proceedings was taken under advisement by the justice when the contempt proceedings were started against Sinclair, his associates and the detectives, Justice Siddons asked that Kidwell be included in the petition but the actual filing of the papers had not been made.

In filing any contempt proceedings against Kidwell it is the plan of Gordon to keep them separate from the Sinclair-Burns hearing as he contends they were not the same action.

Council Refuses To Okeh City Expenditures

Request For Approval On All Municipal Bills Declined At Commission Meeting

Efforts of Finance Commissioner Oral Jones to have the city commissioners, as individuals and as a body, approve all bills paid by the city failed at the meeting Monday night when commissioners declined to accept the plan.

Mr. Jones, in connection with the proposal, submitted all city bills for the month of October, totalling $197,673.35, with the request that the commission inspect the items of expense and approve payments. In offering the suggestion, Mr. Jones pointed out that members of the council would be given a definite check each week or each month on all city expenses, whereas at present each commissioner receives a statement showing the total expenditures made by departmental heads.

Wants 'em "Hard-Boiled"

"As a matter of sound business and good accounting, city council members should know exactly what every penny of the city's money is spent for at the end of the week or the month," declared the finance commissioner.

"The more hard-boiled the council is toward all expenditures the better I shall be pleased," he said.

Other members of the council declared that ways and means for the payment and checking of bills and vouchers is already provided for and that for the council to approve a list of payments of this kind would mean the council as a whole would be approving the paying out of thousands of dollars in a great number of bills which the individuals knew little or nothing.

Mr. Jones countered with the statement that each commissioner should know exactly the expenditures made by his department workers.

Newspaper Comment

If we should approve these bills, the newspapers would say we are approving the expenditure of $200,-

White Man To Auction Self Off To Provide Food For His Children

FORT WORTH, Nov. 28. (AP)—An able bodied white man will be sold into slavery at a public auction on the lawn of the Tarrant county court house at noon Wednesday.

This is not a reprint from an ante bellum newspaper man, but is a formal notice of an auction which county authorities today said they would not interrupt.

The man, A. C. Maddox, 31, of Fort Worth, World war veteran, declared he was unable to provide food and clothing for his wife and five children and as a last desperate means of raising money intends to sell himself into a year's voluntary slavery.

Maddox, who was named Alexander Campbell after the founder of the Christian church, said that the only terms he will ask of his "buyer" is that the children be provided with the necessities of life. His "master" will have the right to impose any kind of work or hours upon him that his owner wishes.

BANKS BOOST FOR DIVERSITY

Statement Shows Results Of Diversification

Special to The Record News.

QUITAQUE, Nov. 28.—The effects of a period of diversification in the Quitaque country stimulated largely through the attitude of the banks of this territory are reflected in a recent statement of the First National Bank of Quitaque.

Quitaque territory has long been noted for the diversity of farm crops raised, but there has been a marked improvement in the kind of diversification practiced through efforts of banks making loans to men who wished to buy hogs, dairy cattle, or poultry for their farms. During the past two or three years the dairy farming has increased at least 75 per cent in Briscoe county, until at present, the dairy products and poultry products marketed in the country alone exceeds in value more than one-half million dollars annually.

The increase in dairy farming and this sort of diversification has been attributed largely to the bankers who preferred making loans to farmers to purchase dairy cattle and chickens, as this would enable him to make his living at home. This plan has worked out to the mutual advantage of the farmer as well as the banker in this section of the Panhandle.

A recent statement made by a local produce dealer, is that more farmers are becoming engaged in the production of cream, eggs, poultry products than ever before.

The farmers' condition of this country is somewhat above average, it is believed by an observer of the agricultural conditions of the Plains country. The number of farmers needing credit is very small compared to years of the past.

Cline to Lead Chest Group Today In Final Canvass For $65,000 Fund

Work of cleaning up on the Community Chest campaign will start in earnest Tuesday morning according to W. D. Cline, general chairman of the campaign. The amount raised stands at $60,000 and Mr. Cline will head a small crew that will see those who have not as yet given to the campaign.

One donation was received Monday from P. M. Gatterdam, art dealer of New York. It is a landscape picture by Thomas Coles, prominent American artist. The scene is laid in New England and, according to the signature was painted 100 years ago. It is valued at $800 and was given to the chest in appreciation of the support Mr. Gatterdam has received from local patrons of art.

Picture to Be Sold.

The painter was one of the founders of the National Academy of Design and was also a national academician. He has two or three of his works hanging in the Metropolitan museum in New York City.

The picture is to be sold for the benefit of the chest and will remain at the headquarters in the Hamilton building until the office is closed and then will be exhibited in the Wichita club unless purchased before that time.

"We are in hopes," said Mr. Cline, "that the picture will find a place in the home of some Wichita Fals art lover who is willing to give its true value to the chest for it."

Negroes Contribute.

A. E. Holland, principal of the Booker T. Washington negro school, Monday gave $10 toward the chest campaign, a similar amount for the school and also said that every teacher had given from $1 to $5 and it was 100 percent in donations. Mr. Cline said that the negroes have raised their amount in the chest.

All of the outstanding cards were checked Monday night and will be turned over to Mr. Cline Tuesday morning for the cleanup squad. Other cards are also being checked to prepare the lists of donors to the fund with the amounts given.

COUNCIL VOTES TRAFFIC CODE

Radio Firm to Make Broadcasting Test

000 in city funds without knowing what we were paying," said one commissioner.

After a rather heated discussion, the question was dropped, although it was indicated the council may later consider making a further check on expenditures.

Wichita Falls new traffic code will become effective in 30 days. This announcement was made immediately following the approval of the third reading of the code at the city council meeting.

Radio broadcasting drew a step nearer to the city when the meeting approved a request from Harry Noble and J. R. Kolb, agents for the Atwater Kent radio in the Marchman hotel building, to run temporary wires from the hotel hotel building by the Waggoner building to Clayton's cafe for broadcasting programs by wire.

Plans Development

According to Mr. Kolb, the present plan of his firm is to place loud speakers in several places of business here and to provide studio programs from the Marchman hotel only for those on the wire. His firm hopes, he declared, by this method to stimulate interest in radio broadcasting to the point here where a radio broadcasting station will become an eventual fact.

When the traffic code was presented there was considerable discussion over clause 27 which provides the chief of police with power to designate through boulevard or right of way streets along which stop signs will be placed. The choosing of the type of signs used and the placing of these signs is left to the chief by the clause. Some members of the council thought these powers should be retained by the council, but they finally decided to adopt the code without making the change. Another paragraph which drew fire was the omission of certain classes of heavy vehicles from carrying lights. This was ordered inserted.

Note Executed

The final estimate of $4,186.64 on the $45,000 sewer project of 8 1-2 miles was approved for payment. The mayor was autorized to execute a note in favor of the Foamite company for certain fire equipment recently decided upon. A small bill for curbing and paving at North Eighth and Brook avenue was approved. Payment of $35 to the retail Merchants association for looking up ratings on the delinquent tax list was ordered.

That Wichita Falls may look the part of the holiday season as well as talk about it, the council granted permission to the Vendope Sign company to proceed with plans for the decoration of the business district. This decoration is to include wreaths and a number of small colored lights and Christmas stringers.

The Standard Sanitary Manufacturing company may not build a concrete loading dock by its new building at Fourteenth and Scott streets as a permit to that effect was ordered by the council. A permit for the installation of a gasoline storage tank under the sidewalk and the installation of a pump at the Payne garage, 805 Lamar, also was approved.

Herbert Gray was named in place of Walter Robbins as election judge at the courthouse box December 10.

The adjustment of assessment of several unfinished houses turned back to the Long Bell Lumber company and of several acres of land in the city limits near the refinery on the Burkburnett road also came before the body.

FORD SECRETS BARED FRIDAY

New Model On Public Display Here

The full story of the new Ford automobile, described by Henry Ford as being "superior in design and performance to any now available in the lw price, light car field," will be told first in Wichita Falls, Friday, Dec. 2, according to announcement Monday by local dealers.

A public reception is to be held here simultaneously with similar gatherings at every Ford dealer in the United States, thus constituting a part of the greatest automobile show in the history of the industry.

While no detailed descriptions have yet been given out by local dealers, the Ford Motor company, from its headquarters in Detroit, has announced that the new Ford car will be as far in advance of present public demand for speed, flexibility, control in traffic and economy of operation as the famous Model T was in advance of public demand when it was introduced in 1908.

Dealers have not yet been advised as to the prices at which the new Ford line will sell, but definite assurance has come from Detroit that the prices will be entirely in accord with the policy of the Ford Motor company to provide the best possible automobile at the lowest possible price.

Elaborate arrangements are being made for the public reception here. City officials and prominent business men of Wichita Falls and vicinity have been invited and preparations have been made to give every caller at the show a thorough understanding of this car which is expected to make a new chapter in automobile history.

McClure Tells Danger Of Holiday Decorations

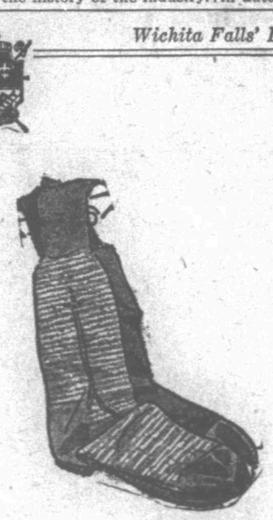

"Think while the thinking is good, and don't say 'if only' after it is too late," was the warning issued Monday by Fire Chief J. L. McClure in anticipation of the coming of colder weather and also of the holiday decorations.

"When there has been no fire to speak of in the homes for some time, double precautions should be exercised," the chief said.

"Instead of planning the Christmas tree with the usual, or rather once-usual candles, plan it with tiny electric lights this year. There is no use in burning up homes and endangering lives for the sake of a little pleasure which can be had in a newer, and certainly safer, manner by using electric lights."

THE NEW FORD CAR

An announcement of unusual importance to every automobile owner

by HENRY FORD

"NINETEEN years ago we made and sold the first Model T Ford car. In announcing it to the public we said:

"'We will build a motor car for the great multitude. It will be large enough for the family, but small enough for the individual to run and care for. It will be constructed of the best materials, by the best men to be hired, after the simplest designs modern engineering can devise. But it will be so low in price that no man making a good salary will be unable to own one.'

"If I were starting in business today, or asked to restate my policy, I would not change one sentence or one word of that original announcement. In plain, simple language it gives the reason for the very existence of the Ford Motor Company and explains its growth.

"IN THE last nineteen years we have made 15,000,000 Ford cars and added to the world nearly 300,000,000 mobile horse-power. Yet I do not consider the machines which bear my name simply as machines. I take them as concrete evidence of the working out of a theory of business which I hope is something more than a theory of business—a theory that looks toward making this world a better place in which to live.

"The Model T Ford car was a pioneer. There was no conscious public need of motor cars when we first conceived it. There were few good roads and only the adventurous few could be induced to buy an automobile.

"The Ford car blazed the way for the motor industry and started the movement for good roads. It broke down the barriers of time and distance and helped to place education within the reach of all. It gave people more leisure. It helped people everywhere to do more and better work in less time and enjoy doing it. It did a great deal, I am sure, to promote the growth and progress of this country.

"We are still proud of the record of the Model T Ford car. If we were not, we would not have continued to manufacture it so long. But 1927 is not 1908. It is not 1915. It is not even 1926.

We have built a new car to meet modern conditions

"We realize that conditions in this country have so greatly changed in the last few years that further refinement in motor car construction is desirable. So we have built a new and different Ford to meet new and different conditions.

"We believe the new Ford car, which will be officially announced on Friday of this week, is as great an improvement in motor car building as the Model T Ford was in 1908.

Smart new low lines and beautiful colors

"The new Ford is more than a car for the requirements of today. It goes further than that. It anticipates the needs of 1928, of 1929, of 1930.

"The new Ford car is radically different from Model T. Yet the basic Ford principles of economy of production and quality of product have been retained. There is nothing quite like the new Ford anywhere in quality and price.

"The new Ford has exceptional beauty of line and color because beauty of line and color has come to be considered, and I think rightly, a necessity in a motor car today. Equally important is the mechanical beauty of the engine. Let us not forget this mechanical beauty when we consider the beauty of the new Ford.

"The new Ford has unusual speed for a low-price car because present-day conditions require unusual speed.

"The world moves more quickly than it used to. There are only so many hours in the day and there is much to be done.

"Fifty and sixty miles an hour are desired today where thirty and forty would have satisfied in 1908. So we are giving you this new speed.

Quiet and smooth-running at all speeds

"The new Ford will ride comfortably at fifty and sixty miles an hour. It has actually done sixty-five miles an hour in road tests.

"Since modern conditions demand more speed, they also demand better brakes to balance this speed. So we are giving you four-wheel brakes in the new Ford.

"The new Ford will be quiet and smooth-running at all speeds and you will find it even easier to handle in traffic than the old Model T Ford.

"The new Ford has durability because durability is the very heart of motor car value. The Ford car has always been known as a car that will take you there and bring you back. The new Ford will not only do that, but it will do it in good style. You will be proud of the new Ford.

"THIS new Ford car has not been planned and made in a day. Our engineers began work on it several years ago and it has been in my mind much longer than that. We make automobiles quickly when we get in production. But we take a long time planning them. Nothing can hurry us in that. We spent twelve years in perfecting our former Model T Ford car before we offered it to the public. It is not conceivable that we should have put this new Ford car on the market until we were sure that it was mechanically correct in every detail.

"Every part of it has been tested and retested. There is no guessing as to whether it will be a successful model. It has to be. There is no way it can escape being so, for it represents the sum total of all we have learned about motor car building in the making of 15,000,000 automobiles.

The new Ford will sell at a low price

"The price of the new Ford is low in accordance with the established Ford policy. I hold that it is better to sell a large number of cars at a reasonably small margin of profit than to sell a few cars at a large margin of profit.

"We never forget that people who buy Ford cars are the people who helped to make this business big. It has always been our policy to share our profits with our customers. In one year our profits were so much larger than we expected that we voluntarily returned $50 to each purchaser of a car. We could never have done that if this business had been conducted for the sole benefit of stockholders rather than to render service to the public.

"No other automobile can duplicate the new Ford car at the Ford price because no other manufacturer does business the way we do.

"We make our own steel—we make our own glass—we mine our own coal—we make virtually every part used in the Ford car. But we do not charge a profit on any of these items or from these operations. We would not be playing fair with the public if we did so. Our only business is the automobile business. Our only profit is on the automobile we sell.

"WE ARE able to sell this new Ford car at a low price because we have found new ways to give you greater value without a great increase in our own costs.

"We did not set out to make a new car to sell at such-and-such a figure. We decided on the kind of car we wanted to make and then found ways to produce it at a low price.

"The new Ford car, as I have said, will be officially announced on Friday of this week. In appearance, in performance, in comfort, in safety, in all that goes to make a good car, it will bear out everything I have said here. We consider it our most important contribution thus far to the progress of the motor industry, to the prosperity of the country, and to the daily welfare of millions of people."

Origin of "Pin-Money"

"PIN-MONEY," as the name of a wife's allowance, dates back to the reign of Charles I. of England. This monarch received about $2,500 a year from the pin-makers; this sum he handed over to his Queen for her private purse.

SOME BRIDES' VEILS. "BY REQUEST"

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

THE refrain of six letters that are spread like a fan before me is the same for each one: "Would you please make a picture of some ways to wear a bridal veil? I am going to be married quite soon!" A Pink letter and a Blue one. The pink one has a tissue lining with rosebuds on it, that grapples with the letter when you try to get it free. The blue one has a curly monogram upon it that keeps the secret of the writer's initials completely until you find her little name. One Grey one—very prim and proper. Two White ones who say: the one, "I cost as much as an envelope ever does"; the other, humbly, "I am quite poor but very honest, and you would like the little flat that penned me, if ever the Fate that keeps folks strangers would make you and her known to each other!" And one Orchid one. So, by the time the last one, all perfumed and fluttering, came posting along, I decided that a lady would be a deviless to ignore the prayer of so nice a thing as a bride-to-be. And so simple a prayer!

I have no letters from grooms-to-be. Their hair, the ring and the choice between two suits to wear is all they have to trouble them. Do you suppose—can it be—I wonder—do they write to Beau Nash—or not at all?

So here are some tips—a "lady-artist's" notions; as many as she can put in an eight-column strip:

If you are a golden-haired symphony in wistful blue and cream and roses, an appealing-eyed Princess type—then you can wear the Princess type head-dress—the affair of pearls like a crown with the veil spraying from under it.

If you have a perfect profile, no matter which sort it is, you can wear the severe cap type, a veil of solid lace held tight down over your head—outlining the shape of your skull—with a circlet of anything you choose, tiny flowers, pearls, or a silver band.

If you have a baby-face, then a baby-bonnet effect was made for you; a flaring, stiff frill making a misty frame for curls and shining eyes. This veil would be all of tulle, to keep the airy, faery look. And held with a wreath of orange blossoms.

If you are ethereal, demure, old-fashioned, then uncovered hair, waved and shining, with the veil held behind your head and over your ears with gardenias, with perhaps the pearls over the top and under your chin to make demureness more demure, would be the thing for you, Mademoiselle.

If you are cute—then lace and tulle, shaped into the very twin of the little felt hat you wear every day, would be very smart, very fetching, and very new.

If you are dark, high-cheek-boned, serious—if you look anything like the girl next to the last one—then the Russian-shaped coif, that fits close around glossy black hair and naked forehead, made of beautiful, rather heavy lace! The chubby, cheerful face doesn't look the most fascinating in the world in this.

The last is one that anyone may try. But had better. Fluted frills flaring back from the fact and arranged to frame it—even under the chin, almost.

Try any of them with an old piece of veiling—little Miss who is soon to be a Missus. I may be mistaken about them all. Miss Demure may be marvelous in the Russian coif. And Miss Russian adorable in the baby-frill!

Tell Meddling Family To Keep Out Or Unhappiness Will Surely Come

Dear Dorothy Dix—I have been married for five years to a good, kind man who is the best husband ever. For the last year he had been going out one night each week to the home of a gentleman friend to play cards with some other men to which I have no objection, but; my family. My husband and his friends play for pennies—no more—and my people are constantly warning me of the danger involved. They tell me that this will whet his desire to play in larger sums; that he will become a confirmed gambler, and that I should not "allow" him to go on with this one-night-a-week pleasure.

Myself, I cannot see any harm in this at all. Moreover, my husband never dictates to me about what I do. What is your opinion, Miss Dix? PERPLEXED WIFE.

Answer:

My opinion is that you should tell your meddling family to keep hands off your affairs, and that when you want their advice about dealing with your husband that you will ask for it.

There isn't a particle of harm in your husband having alittle game of cards once a week with his friends, and there isn't the slightest danger of it leading to anything except an innocent evening's diversion. You are a very wise young woman to speed him on his way instead of raising suetions about it, as your family want you to do.

There is no quicker or surer way of allenating a husband's affections than by being a spoil sport and standing in the way of everything he wants to do. For no man marries to get a jailer, nor does he marry to get somebody to supervise his morals and tell him what he may do and may not do. Particularly he doesn't get married to have his wife's people censor him.

What a man wants to do he is going to do, that is, if you married a man and not a mouse. He will do it openly and above board if you let him, but he will lie to you and do it behind your back if you force him to, for the sake of peace. So the sensible thing is to do as you have done and acquiesce cordially in your husband's desire to have an evening off every week with his men friends.

A friendly game of cards is innocent enough, but your family is committing a crime in interfering between you and your husband and trying to make you take a position that is sure to make you quarrel and estrange you from each other. You are getting along in peace and harmony now because you are broadminded enough not to try to boss your husband or to interfere with his little personal habits and pleasures. But once you abandon that position and begin dictating to him about what he shall do and curtailing his personal liberty the whole atmosphere of your home will be changed. Your husband will naturally resent being henpecked and he will hate your family for their officiousness in attempting to dictate to him.

Just tell your family that you and your husband feel perfectly competent to run your own affairs and that they must keep their fingers out of your pie.

DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Miss Dix—I have been married six years, the most unhappy years of my life. My wife is incorrigible malcontent. Nothing ever pleases or satisfies her. I sent her on trips, paid her family's expenses that they might visit her, kept a maid, as she will not cook or do housework and have spent and lost thousands of dollars in moving to new cities where she thought she would like to live. Now I have reached the limit of endurance. She has gone to another city and refuses to return home, and I simply cannot break up my business again to satisfy her foolish whims. What can I do?

LOOSE ENDS.

Answer:

If you want her back, refuse to pay her bills unless she will come home and do her duty as a wife. The hand that holds the purse rules the roost.

Evidently you have done your best to make your wife satisfied and happy, and equally evident is the fact that she is one of the women that nothing will content. Therefore, there is no use in wasting any more effort in trying to please her, so do the best you can can for yourself. You will have to find your consolation in your business, so don't let her drag you around from pillar to post any more, but stay where you have the best opportunities of success.

Any man is foiish who lets his wife ruin his life either by her extravagance or by her restlessness. Have enough strength to read the riot act to her, and tell her that unless she is willing to do her part that you are going to break up the partnership. You may be very sure that she will have more respect for you and care more for you if she sees that she cannot drag you around by the nose. No woman ever really loved the man she henpecked. DOROTHY DIX.

Dear Dorothy Dix—my family object to the man with whom I am in love on the ground that he is too old for me and refuse to permit him to come to the house to visit me. So the only way I have of seeing him is going to his apartment. Do you think this is wrong?

JACQUELINE.

Answer:

Why, my dear child, it is suicidal. It is something that a decent girl doesn't do, and no matter how innocent you are nor with what respect the man treats you scandal would tear your reputation to tatters if it were known.

It isn't enough for a girl to be good. She has to look good and avoid doing the things that compromise her. Your elderly suitor knows this, even if you do not, and he has small regard for your reputation if he permits you to visit him in his apartment.

Either listen to your parents and give him up, or else marry him, but don't go to his rooms unchaperoned. DOROTHY DIX.

HER HUSBAND'S SECRETARY

By William Almon Wolff

John Goes to New York

AS became a loyal wife, interested in her husband's affairs and his success, Eileen MacVeagh tried to keep herself informed about John's business. It was not easy. He had little time to spend with her, these days, and what time he had he needed, she felt, for rest and recreation. It struck her as unfair to expect a man to work hard all day, and sometimes well into the night, and then come home and bore himself with detailed explanations of matters so abstruse and technical that even a trained business man might well have found them hard to grasp.

What it was essential for her to know she knew, she thought, pretty well. She was familiar with the technicalities of bonds and stocks, coupon bonds, registered bonds, common and preferred shares. She knew how to fill out and sign a proxy for a stockholders' meeting.

Some of the other wives she knew were inclined to reprove her for not making John tell her more than he did. Their husbands, they said, told them everything. Eileen wondered if they really did. She knew, as it happened, some things that their husbands most emphatically did not tell them. Things not connected with business, to be sure, but that a wife, she thought, ought to be even more fully informed about than the details of her husband's daily life at his office or his factory or his store.

She never worried about John in connection with such matters. Not any more. The affair with Marcia Lovewell, that her own intervention had ended, had been John's last fling, it seemed. Even those who had been most curious about the marriage admitted now that Eileen had known what she was doing when she took John. She had acquired not only a husband already successful and destined, if he kept on, to become one of the rich men of the county, if not of the State; she had married, as well, a devoted and attentive husband who never looked at another woman.

On that score, at least, Eileen thought, she would never, like so many women, have to worry. John had sown some wild oats in his youth, perhaps, but he had harvested the crop already. His roving eye had come to rest upon her, and, unless she did something to alienate him, he wasn't likely ever to be seriously interested in another woman.

Eileen had ideas about this business of wandering husbands, in any case. Mostly, she thought, it was a woman's own fault if a man strayed from his own fireside. Few men, she believed, did so just out of wantonness. They were bored at home, or their wives were shrews and nagged them, or they weren't made comfortable, as the man who provided the home was entitled to be. Eileen had a lot of old-fashioned ideas that made some of the young married women she knew call her hopelessly behind the times. But for that she didn't care. She meant to go on as she had begun, taking care of her house, seeing to it that John's home was just as comfortable as she could make it.

Not for a moment, during the weeks that followed John's triumph over Burton and his aides, did Eileen really suspect what was in the wind. She knew that, thanks to her, John had won his fight; that the position they had worked so hard for was secure. But that was about all she did know.

"It's too soon to make any promises yet, honey," John said to her, one day, "but I shouldn't wonder if we couldn't splurge a little, before long."

"Do you know what I'd like most?" Eileen said.

"A new car?"

"No! A vacation for you. I'd like to go off somewhere with you."

"Well, we might run to it—can't tell yet. How'd you like to go East to New York?"

"Oh, I'd love it! I've never been, you know."

"Well, it's a great town. I'd certainly like to show it to you, too. And—well, stranger things have happened. Don't set your heart on it, but—"

She knew that from John that was as good as a promise. He would never have hinted at something he wasn't certain of being able to do. But, as it turned out, he was the one who went first, all alone, and on a flying trip, to New York. He got a telegram with just an hour to make his train; a telegram that made his immediate presence in New York imperative.

"Never you mind, honey," he said, as she helped him to pack. "Our trip's just postponed. We'll get it, don't you fret."

"I know," she said. "It's all right, darling. I couldn't possibly go, at such short notice, even if you wanted to take me."

"It's not a question of wanting," he said. "You know that. But if you did come you'd see nothing of me in New York—and that's not the way I want it to be when we do go. This is just a business trip—and it's going to be just as short as I can make it. I shan't do anything but work all the time I'm there."

Burton, greatly chastened since the day he had called John a madman, met his train and took him to the hotel where he was to stay; accompanied him later, to the office of the great man at whose summons he was in New York.

"Let me give you a tip, MacVeagh," said Burton. "The chief's as easy as an old glove till you get him sore. Then—look out. I happen to know he's going to make you a good proposition. Take my tip and grab it—don't try holding out for more. If you do you stand to lose everything."

"Good Lord—more trading!" said John, wearily. "Aren't you people ever going to get it through your heads that when I say a thing I mean it? I told you my terms a month ago—they're still the same."

"That's a good line," Burton admitted. "That's your story, and you've stuck to it and so far it's worked well for you. But don't crowd your luck. I'm speaking as your friend. I like you, and I don't hold it against you that you beat me, out there in your home section. Though I don't mind admitting I've been on the carpet long enough, explaining how you did it, to wear a few holes in it!"

"Never mind that," said John. "Maybe, after they've talked to me themselves, they'll understand a little better what you were up against."

"You certainly hate yourself!" said Burton. "All right—have it your own way. But don't say I didn't warn you."

To Be Continued.

HURRY IS A HABIT

By Lucy Lowell.

HEY, there, friend! What's your terrible rush? Tumbling along like that with your coat flapping in the wind and that wild look in your eye—where you going?

To catch a train? Well, what of it? Supposing you do miss the first one? There'll be another along in two minutes, won't there? And is two minutes saved worth the way you feel now—all out of breath and full of confusion and about as unfit to start a good day's work or put over a business deal as anybody possibly could feel?

LUCY LOWELL

You can rest a bit when you get where you're going, you say? But that will take time, too, won't it? Why not be a little more leisurely now, give yourself a little fairer chance, and eliminate the necessity for resting later on? A few minutes' idleness may restore your body to normal, but someway I don't believe it will iron the wrinkles of haste and confusion out of your mind.

Hurry is a mental habit, you know, and, like most habits, it is bad. No one who has the thought "I am late—I must make up for it—got to rush"—clamoring at his brain can quite do himself justice.

Of course, it is an error which bests many—most of us Americans, you might say. That is one reason why we are alleged to be full of nerves. Some of us, in fact, rather make a boast of that. We say, "Oh, I go on my nerve," complacently, as if it were a thing to be proud of that nerve, which in this case means instinct or some other blind animal force impels us through our tasks and our amusements rather than the mind which should rule the body and which always works in a leisurely way.

"Haste makes waste," is more than just a saying. Haste may pull you through your day but it will waste you. Give yourself time to breathe, friend.

THOUGH it is often well to get away
From dull routine that rules us, day on day,
When I leave home I miss such faithful friends,
I'm happiest the day my journey ends!

The firelight greets me here when I get back,
Its flames aglow with lights all strange fires lack,
And in my corner of the ingle-nook
I find my well-worn chair, my dearest book,

"Tick-tock, tick-tock," that makes my heart rejoice;
The clock, whose steady accents only seem
To add fresh quiet to this tranquil dream.

Old friends they are, friends honest, true and tried;
When I go out to wander far and wide
So much I miss their notes from life's refrain
That I am gladdest when I'm home again!

What' With Love from Mother' Really Means

By L. Lamar Matthews

THE boy was working in a city and living away from home for the first time in his life. Sometimes he was lonesome and homesick and blue; but, of course, he didn't admit it—not even to his roommate. Sometimes he was tempted, and sometimes he yielded.

One week-end the boy's cousin came to visit him. Then the mother at home seized the opportunity to send her man-child a reminder of her devotion. It was a shining tin box full of home-made cocoanut candy. And right on top there was a little bit of white cardboard on which was written, "With love from Mother."

"Those boys were rooming at my house," said a friend of mine, and when I went into their room next morning and saw that little message of mother-love it made me want to cry.

"On the table I found two glasses that smelled of liquor; and then I remembered that on the night before I had heard the man-child's voice saying, 'No, thank you, I don't want any. I'm eating candy.' He probably thought that was the reason he didn't drink with the other boys; but I have an idea that it was something on that bit of white cardboard that held him back."

"With love from Mother." That means a lot to a boy away from home.

As long as children are living at home, Mother's services, her thoughtfulness, her unselfishness, her devotion are taken for granted. Quite often her sacrifices are not even appreciated. But after the children are miles away from the shelter and comfort of her care they remember little things that have a wholesome influence upon them.

At unexpected moments come visions of Mother's face, beaming affection; reflecting approval or appreciation or sympathy.

Very few youngsters value any particular act of devotion; what they hold in their consciousness is a sort of composite effect that spells M-O-T-H-E-R. And just that is invaluable.

It is the people who have had the loving care of a sensible parent who possess that magnetic thing called "personality." It is not a brilliant mind, nor social position, nor the advantages of wealth that create personality. It is the sort of lovableness and sincerity and common sense that mothers or fathers cultivate in their children.

That is why the children of the middle class go farther, as a rule, than those of wealthy families or of the very poor. The majority of rich women leave the care of their children to hirelings. The majority of the very poor ones have too many handicaps and hindrances to give their children the training that they need.

It is the women who devote time and mind and heart to their children who mother the personable folks in this world.

Correct Forms and Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Invitation to a Dance

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

(1) I expect to give a dance very soon and would like to know if the word "formal" should be placed on the invitations to the girls, and the word "informal" on the invitations to the boys.

(2) When an invitation is sent to three boys in the same family, how do you address the envelope?

CONSTANT READER.

NO, this would not be correct. How would it be possible for the same party to be both formal and informal? Why should there be a distinction as to the sexes, concerning the formality of the party?

As a matter of fact, it is never correct, in any kind of invitation, to write "formal" on the invitation. The formality of the party—or its informality—is suggested and indicated by the form of the invitation. The invitation to the formal party is written in the third person, for instance. Like this:

requests the pleasure of your company at dinner, etc.

Or the invitation for a tea or an informal musicale may be written on a visiting-card.

But the informality of a party would be suggested by writing, say, a note in the first person, like any other kind of letter. Like this:

Dear Marguerite:

Mother and I are giving a small dance on the fifth of December, and we want very much to have you come. It is to be at nine o'clock at—etc.

2. If possible, send each of the boys a separate invitation, since this will please each better. If you really must send only one invitation to the three, write the names under one another, putting the name of the oldest boy first:

Mr. Anthony Ditmars,
Mr. George Ditmars,
Mr. Walter Ditmars.

FASHION FADS AND FANCIES

By Mildred Ash

LINKED to lynx the Winter's mode in fur-trimmed cloth coats features this fur in its natural colorings. Very long shawl collars, deep cuffs and lavish trimming applied in many unusual ways, of lynx, are far more flattering than use of the flat furs, which are also being so strongly featured.

Borrowing bridal snowiness for the smartest evening gowns of the season Paris acclaims white satin as the leading fabric for chic frocks for dining and dancing. Of heavy slipper satin, these lustrous models are extremely simple, being trimmed merely with jeweled brooches and buckles. They are largely dependent for ornamentation upon the costume jewelry which imparts a dash of color. From necklace, bracelets, earrings and rings should warm jewel tones be derived.

Improving with age old sherry, grows richer and richer in color until it becomes that shade of "sherry brown" which is so accurately copied in the Winter's smartest daytime footwear. "Sherry brown" leather fashions stunning pumps, oxfords and sandal type slippers for street and semi-formal wear.

Agreed on tweed as the most swagger fabric for sports coat or suit, fashion authorities are making a matching hat of tweed and felt to complete the sports ensemble. Made of the same material as the costume it accompanies, a small hat combines this tweed with the tone of felt that predominates in its colorings. Often a felt brim is faced in tweed and topped by a tweed crown, whereas some other models have felt crowns with points or patches of tweed appliqued in effective designs.

Well Known Writer Will Lecture Soon At Womans Forum

Wichita Falls is indebted to the Womans Forum in obtaining the promise of Dr. Dorothy Scarborough, native Texan, professor of English in Columbia university, and author of several well known books, to appear in this city at the forum at an early date. Dr. Scarborough is now lecturing in the state of Texas, and although it is impossible for her to arrange to be here this week, it was announced she will be here soon.

Since the appearance of her novel, "The Wind," dealing with the early hitsory of West Texas, Dr. Scarborough has been the subject of a great deal of controversy. Her first novel to appear was "In the Land of Cotton," and her most recent work which has been published but a few months, is "Impatient Griselda." The novel has already joined the ranks of the "best sellers," and seems to predict a success for Dr. Scarborough.

Dr. Scarborough has also written several very interesting treatises dealing with different phases in the history of English.

Aside from the fact that Dr. Scarborough has been successful in her work, and has made herself known throughout the country, she is a native Texan, writing of Texas in her books, and is therefore received with aclaim by the people of Texas.

Control of Water Power

THIS republic has what is known as the federal power commission created by act of congress. This commission has issued its annual report. This report declares control of water power development is not exclusively a federal responsibility, but one which should be shared by the state. It urged that state legislation be adapted in co-operation with federal agents and that means be provided for effective control by the states of water power developments within their border.

Furthermore, one report urged that steps be taken to preserve natural resources. A warning is sounded.

"One principle that should be established and maintained is that that values inherent in a public resource developed and used in the performance of an essential public service by an agency created by law for that purpose, shall not be capitalized for purposes of sale, of establishments of rates, or issuance of securities in an amount in excess of actual reasonable cost," reads the report.

"Another principle to be maintained is that the use of water power resources shall be so planned as to make the fullest practicable utilization and that they shall be developed at the least reasonable cost; that is, that there shall be avoidance of waste, both of the resource itself and of the capital employed in its development."

This commission lets it be known that power development after all is primarily a state problem over which the states should assume major responsibility and it urged the passage of state water power laws based on the policies of full public control of these resources. In addition to this the federal power commission, in its annual report, let it be known that it had no desire to enter the field of rates, service or securities regulation in any cases where the states could act, but said that it had found few states in a position to do this.

This for the people of Texas who are interested in the natural resources of their state. This for the executive and legislative department of Texas. This is for all interest, vitally concerned in the development of water power in the coming year.

Bank Robbers Are Brazen

TWO BANK robbers were shot into another world in the town of Odessa, away out in West Texas. Their slayers will divide $10,000 as rewards of merit and efficiency.

Did the passing of the two bandits lessen bank robbing in Texas? Hardly.

On the very next day the village of Copperas Grove found itself in the headlines. Two youthful desperadoes raided a bank, terrorized its officials, pocketed $600 and made their get away.

This is the open season for bank robbers. This should be an open season for the potting of bank robbers. There is a price of $5000 for the killing of a bank robber while in action.

"Why hunt deer when there is an abundance of big game abroad in the land? A dead bank robber's ears have a value of $2,500 each to the hunter who shoots to kill.

Ears of a dead deer are valueless.

Outlawing of War

"COOLIDGE FAVORS outlawing of war," according to a Washington dispatch. "But the president feels that the constitution prohibits the signing of a general treaty."

Tell it to the American Legionaires. They are for a standing army mighty in equipment and a navy that will sweep the seven seas whenever their sweeping becomes necessary. Furthermore the constitution will not block their plan.

For national defense purposes, the constitution places with congress the responsibility of declaring war.

Then the senators and the congressmen are responsible to their constituents who are the voters and who think they are the masters.

They Ask For Millions

WELL, THE National Anti-Saloon League campaign is on. It was launched in the city of Washington in the shape of a drive for $5,000,000 for campaign and educational purposes. Money talks. Organization counts. What are the champions of the more moisture in the Volstead Act program going to do about it?

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By BURTON RASCOE.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—In times past I have repeatedly heard it argued that in any vote to repeal the dry laws, New York City would go overwhelmingly wet. The wetness of the metropolis has been offered as an indication of the difference between the sentiment of New York City and the sentiment of the rest of the country.

I begin to suspect the validity of the argument. New York is unquestionably wet, but that the city would go wet in any decisive election I beg leave to doubt. There is too much money tied up in bootlegging in New York now. There are hundreds of thousands of people in the city and its immediate environs whose living depend directly or indirectly upon the trade in illicit liquor.

The speak-easies in New York daily become more numerous and more elaborate. A speak-easy in New York is no longer a dreary dump with bare walls, a sawdust floor, chipped glasses and an atmosphere of stale beer. There are speak-easies in the Forties that are as well appointed as the Ritz. The lackeys are in uniform. The bars are on the grand order of the old Knickerbocker. Quiet and order prevails in them; obstreperous customers are quietly given the air and admittance is thereafter refused to them. During the day fully half of the patrons are women, and not women of the kind one might think, but business women and women in town from the suburbs for a day's shopping or for a matinee at the theater.

In most of the better speak-easies the restaurants are now the best in town and the food is reasonable. One may drink or not as one likes. I know one man who is a thorough testotaler who regularly dines in a speak-easy in the West Forties because the food there pleases him more than the food in any other restaurant.

The other day a chap asked me to come to lunch with him. We went up an alley to a door that looked as though it might be the entrance to a livery barn. It was battered and dirty. There was no lookout and the door opened readily. We went down a short barn-like hall and turned into another narrow hall. At the end of that hall there was a barred door with a narrow panel cut in its upper center. Two eyes scanned us for a moment, a name was given, the panel slid shut and presently the door was opened to admit us. The fixtures and furnishings of the place must have cost a fortune.

Now ,there are thousands of such places in New York. The rentals on them run into the millions. In every place, from ten to thirty people are employed as waiters, cooks, sculley hands, bartenders, cloak-room attendants, door-openers and what not. A highly organized army of bootleggers and their employees are also dependent upon the maintenance of these places.

Would all these people vote tomorrow against prohibition and so throw themselves out of work, or at least throw the organization of which they are apart out of kilter? Would the landlords who profit enormously by high rentals and guarantee themselves against loss by requiring the proprietors to post forfeits sometimes as high as $50,000 against padlocking vote wet? One might as reasonably ask me to vote to abolish the newspapers and to scrap all the printing presses. The pocketbook is always the most potent factor in determining an individual's vote, and the number of people dependent for their livelihood upon bootlegging in New York constitutes an enormous voting strength.

MODISH MITZI — The Girls Agree On What's What — By JAY V. JAY

Polly's gift shop is going to stock only the smartest things. That's why all her friends have been buying "stock" for her. That's how she happened to have this new shoulder pin of a mircasite rose with leaves of green stones. To match it there is a large marcasite earring with green drops. Other things among Polly's stock are the modernistic bird pin for hat or dress, and an necklace of fine gold chains, copy of an antique design. The extremes—the antique and the modernistic jewelry—are equally in fashion.

Barbaric jewelry is also very smart. Thin discs of gold form the necklace, the earrings and the bracelet that Polly wears. Another set of necklace and earrings follow a ring and ball design. If Polly can only resist buying from her own shop, she may find business profitable.

It doesn't really pay to have quite so many helpful friends. The idea of having smart things is all very good. Her firends have been a bit too unanimous about this crystal shoulder pin, however. Polly is in a fair way for being overstocked. Too many of even a smart thing are too many.

Tomorrow—Coats and Dresses.

Money Love

By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "SALLY'S SHOULDERS" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL," ETC.

They waited all afternoon but he did not come.

LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS, who have always lived far beyond their means. Lily realizes her highest ambition when she becomes engaged to a rich bachelor many years older than herself, STALEY DRUMMOND. On the day after she promises to marry him she goes downtown to meet her bosom friend, SUSAN CAIN, and sees a good-looking man watching her through the crowd. She feels herself oddly attracted toward him before she notices that he is in uniform and is standing beside a taxicab. Then she jumps into the cab, forgetting all about Sue Cain, and is driven back home. She talks to the driver and he tells her that he is doing this particular kind of work because the hours are short, and that gives him time to work on an automobile piston ring that he is inventing. As Lily leaves the cab she takes his identification card with her. It bears the driver's name, "PATRICK FRANCE," and his picture.

Later that evening, when Staley is at the house, he comes for the card, sure that she had taken it. She tells Staley that he wants to see her about a cab fare that she forgot to pay. But Staley catches her out in her lie when he hears her deny taking the identification card. He is suspicious of her, and Lily is insulted, so she says, because he thinks her capable of being in love with a taxi driver when she is engaged to him, Staley.

Staley goes out of town, promising to call her long distance, and Lily orders CARRIE, her mother's housemaid, to tell him she is too ill to talk to him. Then she hunts up Pat France and his cab and asks him to take her to a luncheon at the home of her friend, ANN BARNEY. On the way she confesses to him that she took the card, and he says it doesn't matter, for he has just arranged to sell his cab to get some spot cash for the invention. Lily decides to forget him and goes to Barney's, where she tells Ann that she has a piece of wonderful news about Staley and herself.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER V.

"I know your news — I know what it is!" said Ann Barney. "You're going to marry Staley, aren't you?"

Lily smiled. "Yes, but how did you guess?" she asked, and Ann picked up her hand, where Staley's diamond glittered and flashed. Her own smile was a bit strained as she looked at it.

Ann Barney's people had dollars where the Lexingtons did not have pennies.

She had been born and brought up in the lap of luxury. She had had governesses. She had gone to school in France for four years. She had been all around the world twice.

And yet she was not the spoiled and pampered darling that Lily was. She was sensible and kind and good, and she looked sensible and kind and good from the top of her dun-colored head to the soles of her low-heeled shoes. Where Lily's clothes were hand-sewn silk, Anna's were fine, plain linen. Where Lily's fingernails were like bits of polished pink coral, Ann's were clipped short and square like a trained nurse's nails. Where Lily's skin was ivory and early June roses, Ann's was freckled and tanned.

Ann was about the last person on earth who looked as if she cherished an unrequited affection for any man.

But Lily knew that she did. She had noticed the way Ann flushed up whenever Staley Drummond walked into a room where she was, and how she looked when anyone spoke his name.

And so she felt a bit embarrassed and guilty now when Ann put her big, muscular arms around her and kissed her on both cheeks.

"Well, I think that's just fine, Lily," she said, with such hearty enthusiasm that Lily was almost persuaded for a minute that she meant what she said.

"I'll tell you what we'll do," she said, brightly. "We'll announce your engagement at lunch today! I'll have some white bridey-looking flowers and candles put on the table, and we'll turn the bridge club meeting into an announcement luncheon for you!"

But Lily shook her head, pinning back the bright waves of shining red hair that curled crisply around her ears.

"I think Mother is planning some kind of announcement party, Ann," she said. "But you were a dear to want to do it for me, all the same."

She looked at her friend's kind, square, homely face, and wished she could tell her that she wasn't so awfully sure that she was going to marry Staley Drummond, after all! For Ann looked crest-fallen, somehow, in spite of the bright smile that she held on her lips apparently by main force and will-power. Her eyes gave her away. There was a hint of tears in them, and they wore a most doleful look. Lily was sorry for her from the botton of her heart.

And yet when she was downstairs at the round luncheon table, with its yellow candles and centerpiece of yellow daffodils making sunshine in the gray, melancholy day, she was certain once more that she was going to marry him. It seemed the only thing to do while she sat here, surrounded by all the friends who were his friends, too—the young "crowd" that was their circle.

"I'll marry Staley, and Sue will marry Jack Eastman—and we'll all live happily ever after," she said to herself, picking at the chicpen pattie and the fresh green peas on her plate. "We'll have a lovely house and I'll have my own car, and the crowd will come in for Sunday night suppers, and we'll all go to the theater together when a good show comes to town. . . . That will be my life, so that's that."

But after the last rubber of bridge had been played that afternoon, and she and Sue were driving home in Sue's little plum-colored car, the feeling of dissatisfaction that had swept over her in waves two or three times lately, swept over her once more.

"Sue," she said, unhappily, "I want to tell you something — I'm engaged to Staley Drummond, and I'm not sure that I want to marry him." She took his diamond from her hand bag where it had lain all afternoon, and slipped it over her finger.

"Last night I cried, and all but had hysterics because I didn't want to marry him, and then a while ago it seemed to be the only thing to do," her voice rippled on. "I can't seem to make up my mind about him."

Sue nodded. She was a small, dark person who always knew her own mind.

"Well, I certainly wouldn't tie myself up to anyone while I felt like that, Lily," she said, in her wise, sure way. Staley's about the nicest man I know—but you're the one who's going to live with him, and unless you're thrilled to death over him in the beginning, what chance have you to be happy with him when you're settled down into married life with him?"

Lily gave a short little laugh that had an unhappy note in it.

"Could you keep a secret?" she asked.

Sue nodded, putting up a small, brown hand to cross her heart. In the early twilight her black eyes and her white teeth flashed in a quick smile. "Shoot!" she said, encouragingly.

They had always shared each others secrets, these two. They had been friends from kindergarten days. They had made mud pies together, and cut out paper dolls, and read "Little Women" aloud to each other, taking turns with it, chapter by chapter.

"Well, then, I am thrilled to death' by a man, but it isn't Staley," said Lily. "A man I hardly know."

"Do I know him?" asked Sue.

Lily shook her head. "Good heavens, no!" she said. "He's someone you'd never know if you lived to be a million—"

"Unless you introduced him to me," interrupted Sue. "I'd like to see him, you know."

Lily thought this over for a minute.

"All right," she made up her mind at last. "I won't introduce him to you, but I'll let you see him. Oh, Sue, he's the best-looking thing—" She sighed over his good looks.

"When can I see him?" Sue always got things settled quickly.

"Tomorrow," Lily told her. "I'll take you to lunch at the Park Lane. How's 1 o'clock? All right for you?"

"Does he often have lunch at the Park Lane?" she asked. "Because I've noticed an awfully good-looking man there lately. Tall and blond and foreign looking—"

Lily giggled. "No, he's never been inside the Park Lane, and he never will be—unless his piston ring is a success," she said mysteriously, and refused to say another word about him, although Sue did her best to "pump" her all the rest of the way home.

* * *

The next day the orange-colored taxicab was not in Albermarle street when Sue's little plum-colored coupe turned into it and parked before the Park Lane restaurant.

It was not there at half past two when they finished their coffee and cigarets, sitting at a little table in the window of the big, brightly-lighted room, with its fashionably-dressed women and well-groomed men, with its cunning flappers in tiny hats and make-up, with its candles gleaming on the little tables, and its orchestra hidden behind the massed palms on a glitt-and-cream balcony.

Every time a man came into the place Sue wanted to know if he was Lily's Unknown Lover, as she called him. But every time Lily shook her head and kept her eyes on the darting traffic of Albermarle street.

"I'll never stir from this chair until I see him!" Sue declared at half past three. "My curiosity is rampant now, and I'll stay right here until it's satisfied!"

So they stayed there all the afternoon, but he did not come. At 4 o'clock they ordered tea and sandwiches and little cakes, which neither of them wanted or touched.

At half past four Sue suddenly changed her mind, and said that she wasn't going to sit there a second longer—no, not if Douglas Fairbanks himself were coming there for dinner!

"I'm going home," she said. "Jack Eastman and I are going to push over a picture show tonight, and I must dress and get a beauty sleep. By-by, darling, unless you're coming with me."

Lily laid a $5 bill down on the table to pay for the untasted tea and the untouched sandwiches. "I may as well go with you," she said, indifferently. "I only wanted to show him to you. I wanted to hear what you'd have to say about him."

They went out into the soft spring air, that was just beginning to smell of buds and growing things pushing up out of the earth. And as they stood on the steps, pulling on their white gloves and tucking their hand bags under their arms, Pat France came cruising along in his cab and drew up just ahead of Sue's plum-colored car.

"There he is now!" cried Lily quickly and breathlessly, and Sue's dark eyes followed hers to the place where Pat France was standing beside his cab as he opened the door for a passenger. "There he is, Sue!"

Sue's eyes became wide with amazement. "Not the—taxi man?" she asked. "You don't mean the taxi driver?".

Lily nodded. "Sue, look at him!" she said. "Isn't he nice? Can't you see that he's an awfully nice kind of person just by looking at him?"

Her eyes were still on Pat France's profile or she would have seen the look that Sue gave her—a mingled look of disappointment, disgust and anger.

"Well, for goodness' sake, Lily Lexington!" she answered, sharply. "You talk just the way you used to six or seven years ago, when you would lose your mind over movie actors or that drawing teacher we had at school — that widower, you remember?"

Lily smiled dreamily at her. "Maybe this is just a crush," she said. "I certainly hope it is. . . . But, whatever it is, it has me running around in circles. Good-bye, Susy. I think I'll ride home with him, anyway."

She went tripping down the stone steps and left Sue staring after her, with her black eyes as expressionless as two jet shoe buttons.

These points are to be determiend at a call meeting on Monday afternoon. The new scout books have arrived and more interest is being manifested by the older girls. There were 42 members and the leader present at the Friday meeting and more are expected next week. The Presbyterian church is sponsoring the movement.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

ASTHMA CURES

Considering that asthma is a symptom and not a disease, it is, of course, very foolish to continue to treat such symptoms with remedies without at least attempting to remove the probable cause.

As I explained in yesterday's article, there are only three principal causes of true asthma or bronchial asthma. These are excessive gas pressure against the diaphragm, lack of mobility to the diaphragm, and excessive formations of mucus in the bronchial tubes. The cure then must come from removing these causes, and fully one hundred per cent of all cases can be cured through properly regulated diet and exercise.

It is utter nosense to consider that the pollen of flowers or the smell of horse hair or rabbit fur can in any way be a real cause of asthma. It is true, there may be many exciting or irritating causes sof bronchial asthma, especially that caused by excessive mucus, but the fact remains that the mucous membranes of the throat and lungs cannot be affected by the irritation of golden rod if the sensitive one will follow some very simple rules regarding exercise and diet. One can thus make himself immune to any possibility of a bronchial wheeze from the effect of irritation microorganisms.

The suffering asthmatic is deluded and deceived many times by promises of cures through the injection of serums and so-called protective agents made from various proteins, the pollen of flowers, and animal hair and excretions. Out of thousands of asthmatics examined, I have yet to find a single case where any one has been benefitted by such treatment. Generally, the contrary is true, and the patient is made worse by the addition to his blood of some foreign substance not harmonious with the body's natural metabolism.

There is, perhaps, some excuse for the continued use of opiates in the form of smoking powders, or for the patient using adrenalin for relief. The asthmatic is justified in relieving his suffering in any way possible until he has learned how to remove the true cause of his trouble. However, when he is seriously attempting to cure his disorder by hygienic measures, all remedies taken to relieve symptoms seem to interfere with the prrduction of a permanent cure.

The asthmatic must entirely eliminate the opiates, and give up adrenalin, at the start of a treatment with dieting and exercising. He often has to spend several days in a hard fight with symptoms, and there is considerable suffering from difficult breathing. But I have never known of a successful cure of asthma through trying to mix the drug and diet treatment.

This special warning is issued to those of my readers who wish to cure themselves of asthma, but who might make the mistake of trying to continue along the lines of their old treatment for relief, and at the same time, use my newer ideas regarding a cure of asthma through diet and exercise.

QUESTION:—W. R. S. writes: "I am a little near-sighted and look very funny in glasses. Could my eyes bo cured any other way besides wearing glasses?"

ANSWER: — Near-sightedness can be helped to some degree by improving the general health, and by taking the eye exercises. These exercsises will strngthen the muscles of the eyes sometimes enough so that you can go without glasses, even though your eye defect is not entirely correct. It is advisable to wear glasses at least when reading as long as the near-sightedness continues.

QUESTION:—P. F. E. writes: "I receive a great deal of help through your daily writings, and am wondering if you would advise eating dried figs, prunes, and fruit of that kind without being stewed."

ANSWER:—The dried fruits you mention can be used without cooking and are even more wholesome when used in this manner. Some enjoy the flavor of the fruits when they are soaked overnight in a small amount of water, and then eaten without being cooked.

QUESTION:—Mrs. Caroline E. writes: "Every time I turn my head to the left my neck snaps. What causes it? Also, my arms at the elbows and legs at the knees become numb and ache if I don't keep them perfectly straight when I sleep. Is it improper circulation, or my nerves?"

ANSWER: — The neck-snapping is caused from some faulty position of the vertebrae or ligaments in your neck. This can probably be corrected by osteopathic or chiropractic treatments. The numbness of your elbows and knees may be caused by a mild formation of rheumatism or by poor circulation due to insufficient exercise.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (Adv.)

SPORTING NEWS — THE RECORD NEWS — FIRST ACCURATE COMPLETE

Western Leaguers Are Bitter Over Oklahoma City And Tulsa Teams Action

AND—

A Column of Et Ceteras in Sport

BY VON

Amarillo versus Abilene.
Forest (Dallas) versus Cleburne.
Sherman versus Athens.
Waco versus Houston.

When these four games, listed above, have been played off, there will remain four teams to complete in the semi-finals for the Texas state interscholastic league football championship. And at a slant from this angle it looks like Waco and Abilene in the finals with the odds favoring Paul Tyson's Tiger gridders to take the state flag.

• • •

On basis of reports that Abilene has as great an eleven as won the state title for the Eagles in 1923, it seems that this week's battle with Amarillo in the quarter-finals will not turn out so well for the Golden Sandstorm. In eliminating the Wichita Falls Coyotes last week for the district championship, the Sandies turned back a powerful foe but they did not meet the Wolf Pack at its full strength. Abilene on the other hand eliminated the Cisco Loboes by a score of 27 to 0 in a game which revealed the Eagles to be a grid power worth reckoning with.

• • •

Forrest High (Dallas) lacks at least one notch of being the class in her district, elimination of Sunset High by ineligibility rulings after this team had already captured the title being responsible for another chance at the flag for the wood choppers. Cleburne has shown considerable power in vanquishing her rivals and bids fair to give Forest High more trouble than she can get out of. Incidentally the Forest-Cleburne game is to be played on the home grounds of the Cleburne team and that counts for something in high school competition.

• • •

The Sherman-Athens game is a hard contest to pre-judge but from this direction the periscope reveals the name of Sherman as the victory eleven. It will not matter however which team wins, for the triumphant team in this bi-district contest will have to meet the winner of the Waco-Houston game and that means elimination for either Sherman or Athens as the case may be.

• • •

Waco has the most powerful high school team in Texas. Barring injury of too many star members of the Tiger eleven, Tyson's boys will breeze into the finals without much difficulty. Houston's chances against Waco are mighty slim. The Housten team too is not the class of its district, Beaumont having won the district title and then losing it because of player ineligibility. To us it appears that it really doesn't matter whether Sherman or Cleburne wins in the other East Texas quarter final. Both teams joined together wouldn't be able to stop Tyson's men when one considers the impressive record of the Tigers over the most formidable foes. Take the Austin-Waco game for instance. Austin High always turns out a pretty fair brand of football teams. Waco journeyed down to the Texas capital after the Austin boys had routed all other rivals by very impressive scores and took the Capitollans to the worst country cleaning in the gridiron history of the school. The final score piled up by the Tigers was 52 to 0 and dispatches from Austin stated at the time that Waco could have added a couple of touchdowns had Tyson not jerked his entire first string and permitted the scrubs a chance at the thoroughly walloped foe.

JACK HOLLAND MADE TARGET

Indians' Boss Opposed To Rookie Rule

Western League clubs apparently are not nearly so riled at the stand of the Texas league in the defection of the Oklahoma City and Tulsa clubs as they are at the owners of these teams. These two teams have for some time been trying to break away from the Western but it took them several years to convince Doak Roberts and his moguls they were within their rights in so doing.

Jack Holland, owner of the Oklahoma City club is particularly made target of the roar at Amarillo. Holland fought the rookie rule of the Western to a standstill and proceeded to tell other owners he did not believe his fans would support such a team. They have not.

The Western league view is shown in the following article which appeared in the Amarillo Daily News of Monday and according to a message received by The Record News Monday is being broadsided to all Texas league cities.

The article follows:

A decision that will have no little bearing on the future destiny of base ball, as well as putting at stake the reputation of Judge Landis for being a square shooter should come to a head when Tulsa and Oklahoma City, make their last stand against the Western league at the Minor league meeting at Dallas, December 6, Cal Farley declares.

"The two Western league clubs have taken it upon themselves to declare themselves "free agents" and apparently not interested in what becomes of the Western league, the circuit that has been home sweet home to them for many years. Their claim is that the Western has no charter, and that at the close of any season they are at liberty to join any other circuit they might choose to run in.

Landis Holds Key

"Dale Gear, president of the Western league, claims that the Western has a charter, and that the two cities are Western property and will remain as such. If Judge Landis is to allow these two clubs to pull out, what is to keep the Yankees from quitting the American league and joining the League of Nations? Certainly they would be equally justified in their actions as the two Western clubs have to take their hit-and-run bag and head for the Texas league.

"How about the Western league's request for permission to put a club in Kansas City, Kansas, George Muehleback, owner of the Kansas City club, of the American association, was never willing to permit the class A circuit to land that close to his dock, so the matter was never carried any further.

"It would seem that a club that has played nine years in any league, regardless of character, should not be permitted to get up and quit leaving the rest of the clubs high and dry. If they can, then the Western should put a club in Kansas City, Kansas, and if Geo. Muehlebach don't seem to like it tell him to take a swim in the Missouri river. It seems to be about as broad as long.

Scores Holland

"Jack Holland president of the Oklahoma City "Indians" appears to be the 'poison pen' in the matter. This makes his fourth attempt at getting out of the Western league. The real trouble with Holland seems to be that he has about played his string out in Oklahoma City, and in order to get the bugs hot enough to crawl out to the old orchard and watch the Indians massacre the enemy, he has been trying to pull this Texas league stuff.

"Oklahoma City is o. k. with Jack to make a little pocket change in, but no place for him to live, so he resides in Kansas City, Mo. Last spring he attempted to give the home town bugs some class D ball in hopes that that was what they wanted, by importing most of the Mississippi Valley league. Naturally, Jack didn't have a very good year, financially, so he started heaving over that fast ball of his with the Texas league hunting on it for the fans to cool off on.

Amarillo Holds Bag

"It is only natural that Amarillo is on the war path, after spending over $100,000 cold berries to build one of the best ball plants in class A ball, then to have such a thing as this come up, with the probability of their being left in the same predicament as Prince Carol —a prince, a very fine fellow but nobody can use him.

"Amarillo proved that it would support class A baseball. With a last division club, it outdrew six of the other clubs in the league. The owners of the Amarillo club donated a couple of oil wells last spring for the good of baseball, thinking that was all. Now it appears they will have to ante a few more to keep Howling Jack Holland pacified.

"However, we have a bunch of rough riding babies out here and the gang's all going to Dallas with their spurs sharpened, so that in case that uncivilized wild cat from Kansas City via Oklahoma City, has to be riden, some one of the five 'pay-as-you-enter' boys from out where the West begins will try and accomodate the stampeding steed," Farley declared.

TROJANS BOW TO IRISH BEFORE BIG CROWD

A crowd estimated at 113,000 jammed Soldiers' field, Chicago, to see Notre Dame defeat Southern California in a titter intersectional battle, 7 to 6, with Flanagan, of the Irish, and Drury, Trojan quarterback, vieing for ground-gaining honors. This Central Press telephoto shows Christy Flanagan making a ten-yard gain in the first quarter.

Sports Done Brown

By NORMAN E. BROWN.
(Exclusive Central Press Dispatch.)

Roaming at large—though the west and southwest still. Pursued by sport stuff instead of pursuing it.

Day or two in Kansas City, and using some of the time for a chat with a man who started work as a claim agent for the street railway company there.

Knew all about the "nuisance value" of a street car victim long before he knew the stars of baseball.

The man is Brick Owens.

American League umpire for years but still recalled as the storm center on occasions while winning his spurs as an arbitrator around Kansas City.

"Where was it you had to beat it out of town to dodge the mob," someone asked him.

"I've run out of every town around here," he laughingly admitted.

It is the general idea that the batters have had the edge in baseball of recent years, since the abolition of freak pitching deliveries and the introduction of the rabbit ball.

But take it from a man who studied pitching for many a year from behind a catcher's mask, the average pitcher deliberately gives the batter the edge day in and day out by trying to be "smart."

"I've watched the younger generation of pitchers in particular," he said during a flabbing bee.

"The pitcher will face a hard hitter. The batter may let the first one go by under order. It will be a strike. The pitcher will toss him something else and get another strike over, swung or called. Then with a two to nothing edge on the batter the pitcher will stick out his chest and chuckle to himself.

"'Guess I'll fool this bird a little now.' Got two strikes on him,' says Mr. Wisenheimer. He promptly tries to cut didoes around the corners of the plate, and before he knows it he has himself in a three or two hole. The batter has the edge.

With the count two and nothing on the batter the batter has just one more chance to hit it. He can't let one go by if there is a chance of it being over because one called ball won't help him. You should never get smart with a batter when you have him in the hole.

"The odd part of it is that the present type of attack, especially in the American league, should help a pitcher who has control. Teams pay little attention to bunting, base stealing, etc. Their main aim is to sock the ball, regardless of what kind of pitching is being served up. The best way to meet heavy hitting is to pitch to it, I believe.

"And that brings up another matter,

"There's no doubt about the Yankees being a great ball club. They rode down the opposition by hammering their way through to victory. The other clubs, however, lacking Ruths and Gehrigs, were foolish enough to try the same against the Yanks and other teams.

"Knowing full well that they couldn't outslug the Yankees, why didn't these teams develop other angles of attack? There was only one team in the league that stole any bases—the Detroit Tigers. And their stolen bases didn't mean anything. Johnny Neun stole five one afternoon, I believe. Game was a terrible affair.

"The sooner baseball teams develop a heady style of attack and a sensible style of pitching the sooner will competition in the American League, at least, become keener."

Banaski Meets J. Hackersmith

Final Match On Wednesday Night Promises Pepper

Wednesday's Mat Menu.

First Preliminary: First round of all-West Texas amateur lightweight wrestling championship elimination.

Semi Final: Art Mondt, 200 Pounds, versus Han Bauer, 205 pounds, not very light heavyweight.

It's Poland against England in the finals, and Greeley, Colo, against Amsterdam, Holland, in the semi-finals.

Wednesday night at the Gym, 605 Scott street, inspection of Promoter Alec B. Ross' card announces to Wichita Falls wrestling fans. For good measure, Ross will present the first round of an amateur elimination for the lightweight wrestling championship of West Texas.

The final match for the card Wednesday night is between Joe Banaski and Jack Hackersmith, light heavyweights. Banaski recently met Paul Jones in a handicap match wherein Jones failed to pin the Polish grappler in a specified time limit. Hackersmith is a fast man for his weight and promises to give the Warsawvian mat artist considerable business to perform to avoid defat.

The semi-final, betdeen Art Mondt and Hans Bauer, will be a rough and tumble affair as all fans who have seen either in action may well know.

Electra Golfers Put Off Tourney

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 28.—The golf tournament in which the trophy for competition of Electra Country club golfers, was not held on Thanksgiving Day as had been previously planned.

The tragic accidents which occurred Wednesday night in which Shirley Shanafelt lost his life, and other members of the Country club sustained injuries, was the cause of the postponement.

G. R. Davidson, chairman of the committee on arrangements, states that the tournament will not be held before the first of the year, the near approach of the holiday season and many other events scheduled to take place in December making it seem inadvisable to hold the tournament during the next few weeks.

Sparky Adams Sent To Bucs For Cuyler

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 28. (AP)—Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler, star outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today was traded to the Chicago Cubs, for Earl Adams, second baseman, and Floyd J. Scott, outfielder.

Earle Adams is better known to Spudder fans as Sparky. He was one of the mainsprings of the famous team of 1923 that engaged in a long and bitter battle with the Fort Worth Cats for the pennant only to be nosed out in the last. He was considered one of the mainsprings of the Cub infield.

Cuyler is the man Donie Bush was criticised so much about in the world series. The tiny Irishman refused to use Kiki after his famous failure to slide to second base.

BRITISH BOXER DEFEATS MUNN

Phil Scott Knocks Out Former Gridman

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—An English fighter tonight had the strange experience of knocking out somebody.

Phil Scott of England, accustomed to assume frequent horizontal positions, knocked out Monte Munn of Nebraska in the last round of their ten round bout at the St. Nicholas arena here tonight.

Monte In Poor Shape

The Britton had the better of almost every round and pounded his big opponent almost at will about the face and body. Scott made a far better showing than was expected of him, but the majority of fans thought that Monte was in poor physical condition.

When the fight was about half over, Scott drew the claret from Munn's eye and thereafter kept pecking away at the wounded optic.

The end came after two minutes and 52 seconds of the tenth round. They were in close quarters, with Munn in a bad way, when Scott started to flail the kidneys. Both men slipped to the floor, Scott being on top.

Hansen K. O's Scott

Phil immediately rose, but Munn who had taken severe punishment thoughout the fight was unable to rise and was counted out.

Knute Hansen knocked out Scott in the first round on Phil's first appearance here, so tonight was the first time that the fans really had a chance to see what the foreigner could do.

Alekhine Takes Chess Title From Capablanca

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 28. (AP)—The 34th game of the world championship chess series between Capablanca and Alekhine was postponed tonight after 80 moves. The game will be continued tomorrow.

The Russian virtually can be considered the new world's chess champion as Capablanca's position was considered hopeless when the game was adjourned. Shortly after adjournment of the game, Capablanca told The Associated Press correspondent that he would resign when the game was resumed Tuesday evening.

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 28.—Earl Sande, idol of the American race track, is taking his medicine—and it's pretty bitter medicine.

Sande is worn and worried. But he has no thought of quitting racing. A new appeal, he believes, will reinstate him, despite the fact that the Maryland Racing commission has upheld the Pimlico stewards' ruling.

Bailey-Inglish Well Reported In Good Show

A number of Wichita Falls oil men left this city in a hurry late yesterday with southwest Cooke county their destination.

A report of finding oil in the Lesh and McCall No. 1 Bailey Inglish was the cause of the exodus. This wildcat has found a number of good looking sands but the new one was reported exceptionally rich.

The formation was encountered at 1920 feet and a six-inch core was taken. Telephone reports here said "the oil runs out of the core."

This well is located in the E. Farris survey, eight miles southwest of Gainesville. Geologists, though keeping their findings strictly confidential, have analyzed several of the formations which have been encountered and many operators have kept an eye turned on this operation during the past two weeks.

Panhandle Production Analysis

Panhandle production averaged 83,060 barrels a day from 1404 wells, compared with 82,686 barrels from 1400 wells the previous week. The table follows:

Standard of N. Y. Buys Russian Oil Over Opposition From Shell

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The Standard Oil Company of New York has signed another contract for the purchase of 360,000 tons of crude oil from the Russian government, according to an announcement just made here. The contract runs for six years and is the third agreement to buy Russian oil signed by the Standard interests since last December.

Total purchases will aggregate 1,400,000 tons of oil a year, representing an outlay of more than $40,000,000 during the life of the three contracts.

Shell Opposes.

In the negotiation of the contract, it was said in informed quarters here, the Standard Oil company encountered direct opposition on the part of its powerful European competitor, the Royal Dutch Shell oil group. Until recently, mutual agreement defined the operating territories of the Standard and Shell interests.

Much of the oil purchased by the Standard under its Russian contracts comes from wells seized by the Soviet government and which were formerly classed as Royal Dutch Shell holdings. This aroused the protests of the Shell group and direct commercial competition between the two companies has already been launched by price cutting in the oil markets of India.

It is understood that the oil purchased by the Standard interests under the new contract will be used in the Near East, and not in American markets, in which at present there is a surplus.

Vacuum Buys.

In addition to the purchases by the Standard Oil company of New York, the Vacuum Oil company, one of the Standard group, has arranged to purchase 225,000 tons of oil a year from the Soviet government and is said to be negotiating for additional contracts, which are expected to be closed within the next few weeks.

It has been reported that the Vacuum Oil company, which confines its sales in Europe mainly to lubricating oils, is planning to enter into competition in Royal Dutch Shell markets by the sale of gasoline and kerosene.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 28. (AP)—The cotton market was under pressure the greater part of the day, rallying moderately at the close on covering. January contracts declined to 18.78 and closed at 18.95, the general list closing steady at 20 to 24 points net lower.

The opening was easy at 7 to 12 points decline and prices continued steadily downward until they showed net losses of 40 to 54 points from the final quotations Saturday. Lower Liverpool cables than anticipated, combined with a show of weakness in the Alexandria market, appeared to cause active initial selling, while later, the market felt the influence of general liquidation on the part of discouraged longs as well as active selling by New Orleans, and hedge selling by the south.

At the decline, the near positions were under the 19-cent level for the first time since early August and there seemed to be a general absence of confidence, despite the fact that the last government crop estimate of 12,842,000 bales was 658,000 bales less than the August estimate. Further reports of curtailment con the parts of leading cotton mills, not only in New England, but throughout the south and reports of a very poor spot demand with evidences of a weaker basis, robbed the market of any buying incentive. An advance in call money to 4½ per cent for renewals and a subsequent decline in the stock market contributed to the weakness in cotton and aside from a fairly good trade demand on a scale down and covering there was an absence of buying power.

The government report on grades and staples in Georgia and parts of Texas and Oklahoma indicating marked improvement in the character of this year's crop over last season's, may have had some influence, as some authorities were inclined to believe that the improvement in grade would be equivalent to a great many bales, owing to the smaller percentage of waste in spinning operations. Near the close there was a partial recovery owing to a falling off in offerings and more active covering, but the undertone was very nervous.

Private cables attributed the decline in Liverpool to hedging, stale long liquidation, continental selling, and weakness in Alexandria market.

Exports today 37,602, making 3,037,434 so far this season. Port receipts 52,493. United States port stocks 2,628,847.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 28. (AP)—The cotton market dropped $2 a bale today but later rallies carried prices upward until the close was only $3 to 26 points down.

Another big break in Egyptian futures and continued favorable weather induced liquidation and considerable short selling which were responsible for the decline.

December sank to 18.79, 59 points under Saturday's close, but recovered nearly half the early loss and closed at 19.04, 34 points net lower fpr the day.

Liverpool was about as due, but private cables were unsatisfactory and Egyptian futures were 55 to 66 penny points down. Consequently, first trades here showed losses of 8 to 9 points with January at 19.27 and March 19.57, which proved to be the highs for the day. The decline started soon and by noon January had traded down to 18.87 and March 19.07. During the afternoon the market ruled steadier and in the final hour prices rallied on covering by satisfied shorts. January closed at 19.12 and March 19.30, 34 to 36 points points down for the day.

Exports totaled 31,798 bales.

Call Money Jumps One Percent When Banks Ask Return Of Loans and Stock Market Tumbles

By BROADAN WALL

By Universal Service

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—Banks called loans and jacked the money rate up a full 1 per cent today and the stock market started for lower levels. There was ample warning that a higher call rate was coming given in Saturday's bank statement. The speculative community returned from the weekend as bullish as ever. When the rate was raised to 4 per cent. The market after having moved higher for the first hour faltered a little. When the rate was pushed to 4 1-2 per cent, and additional loans called a heavy selling wave started that continued until the last hour when short covering brough some recovery. A few specialties kept moving against the main trend but in so far as the general list was concerned monetary conditions dominated price swings with no other fundamental influence having effect.

The Japanese yen rallied quite strongly as European exchanges turned irregular. Cotton slumped on unfavorable weather news while the grain market rallied after early weakness.

If there were any doubt as to the important part money conditions—and, therefore, the brokers' loans—play in the current stock market it should have been dissipated by today's liquidation.

When the brokers are borrowing close to $3,500,000,000 from the banks to carry speculative stocks for customers' they keep closest watch on accounts. When the banks call loans the brokers naturally advise caution to their clients; so long as the banks permit the brokers to have all the money they want at 3 1-2 per cent, there is bound to be widespread bullishness; but as soon as the money punchers is squeezed the broker shivers and his customer runs to get out of stocks.

Montgomery Ward slumped in the general reaction but came back in better manner than other recent favorites coincident with estimates of earnings this year of from $10 to $12 a share. American republics skyrocketed some 9 points as the old Houston crowd seized upon it as the vehicle in which to stage the next technical corner. There is very little of the stock around the street and with its holdings in the Southwest gas fields there is rather fertile ground for pool broadcasting of favorable earnings, prospects, etc. Timken was the other outstanding feature of strength as it responded to a report of the placing of a profitable contract with an automobile company and the benefit of improvement in the railway equipment business next year.

More than a score of traffic violators appeared before Justices of the Peace O. L. Gibbs and R. V. Gwinn Monday as the result of week end police activities according to the two Wichita Falls justices. The majority of these, it was pointed out by Justice of the Peace Gwinn, failed to heed automobile lighting laws. A number of those appearing were discharged.

One of the youngest couples ever to obtain a license to marry from Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, were granted one Monday. W. C. Pepper, the groom, is but 17 years old and Miss Ina Bullard, his bride, a year younger. Both live at Charlie and the mothers of the young couple came with Mr. Pepper to the clerk's office and signed the affidavit giving their consent to the marriage.

W. A. McGee has returned from Burlington where he has spent the past month on his farm.

Who has lost his Ford coupe and wants it back? This is the question Constable Frank Morgan is asking by mail and radio following the finding of a 1926 model car abandoned near Lake Wichita several days ago. "It is strange that the owner of such a car as this would not be after it," Mr. Morgan said Monday.

An Oklahoma license number is the only clue to the owner, said Mr. Morgan.

Dr. Paul Henry Packard of the Highland Heights Christian church will be in Cisco Tuesday to dedicate the new building at Randolph Christian college Tuesday night at 8 o'clock.

Deaths

OTTO O. ADKINS

Funeral services for Otto O. Adkins of Tulsa, were held Monday afternoon from the home of his father-in-law, F. J. White, 1401 Filmore street, with Dr. Paul Henry Packard, pastor of Highland Heights church officiating. Mr. Adkins, for 20 years a resident of Wichita Falls, was brought here from Tulsa several days ago when he became seriously ill. He moved to Tulsa from Wichita Falls in 1925. Burial was in Rosemont cemetery.

Mr. Adkins is survived by his father, W. G. Adkins of Seymour; his wife; one daughter and a half-brother, Rex Adkins of Seymour.

Mr. and Mrs. George Keith, Jr., and little daughter, Letitia, and Mrs. V. E. Stampfli have returned from a visit in San Antonio. Mr. Stampfli accompanied them, and later joined a party going to South Texas on a deer hunt.

Geographic Lines Wiped Out In Clothing Trade, Says Manufacturer

In the clothing business there is no east, no south, no west, since the era of motion pictures, and the farmer's daughter in the wheat belt knows as much about styles as the debuntante of Gotham, according to W. H. Sydeman, New York "ready-to-wear king," who was in Wichita Falls Saturday.

Sydeman, who is a member of the firm of Sydeman Brothers' New York chain clothing store operators, came here yesterday to inspect the company's Wichita Falls store. They operate the Federal Clothing store.

"People today are dressing better than ever," declared Sydeman. "And it keeps the merchant and manufacturer on their toes all the time. What's vogue today is passe tomorrow. It used to be that 'Hiram' down on the farm was the outlet for last year's stock, but since the radio and motion pictures, if the manufacturer gets caught with some of last year's stock, well it's just too bad.

"When the style creators produce something on Broadway, it reaches Wichita Falls and other southern and western cities as fast as the limited express trains can get it here. It was only a few years ago that the mail order houses were doing a land office business selling 'store clothes' to the farmers. But that's all changed now.

"The fellow behind the plow wants his clothes to be as up-to-the-minute as the New York dinner club habitue. His wife wants her clothes to be the very latest style."

Wichita Falls Faces Isolation If Airport Drive Fails, Kiwanis Told

The immediate necessity of cooperation on the part of every man in Wichita Falls with the efforts of the Wichita Falls airport committee in subscribing funds to guarantee an immediate and adequate airport to the city was emphasized by C. W. Cahoon Jr., at the Monday noon luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Kemp hotel.

"Wichita Falls missed the Chicago-Dallas airline because it didn't have an airport," Mr. Cahoon declared. "Whirlwind action is necessary now if we are to have an airport in time for recognition by the new Atlantic-Pacific and the new Denver-New Orleans airline.

"If the city doesn't have the airport ready, it can't be on the main line of these pioneer lines.

"In a few years, the city which is not on a main line of one of the great airlines will be in the same position as the towns which today are not on railroads,—they will be isolated.

Must Fight for Place

"Breckenridge, Tuscon, Pecos, Muskogee and many other cities have installed excellent airports. Dallas, Abilene and others are already a matter of well known record. Where is Wichita Falls? The answer is that the city is in a position where it must fight, work and hustle hard and fast to raise the money necessary.

"The Wichita Falls Airport Company, Incorporated must raise a total of $25,000. We had raised about three-fifths of this sum when a recess was called to make the way clear for the Community Chest drive. We are now continuing, and have about $10,000 to get.

"We ask all members of the Kiwanis club to give their earnest consideration to this proposition when the airport committeemen call and to give solid assistance."

Cigars on Pond

Grover Bullington presided at the meeting.

Gerald Pond caused a smoke screen to be thrown about the Kemp hotel when he passed around the cigars in honor of a new arrival in his home.

R. M. Cordell and Walter Caldwell stopped the show with their caricature stump speeches on behalf of their respective candidates for the Kiwanis presidency, James Williams and D. F. R. Collard, one of whom will be elected at the meeting next Monday.

Will McKemie was in charge of the program of the day. E. C. Ricker played his own guitar accompaniment while he sang a few songs. The purchase of two new boars for the Kiwanis pig club was announced. It was also announced that an effort will be made next Monday to have the first 100 per cent attendance meeting of the club.

$40,000 Damage Suit Given to Jury Here

Members of the jury in the case of Mrs. J. Will Morgan against the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital will resume consideration of the case Tuesday morning. Mrs. Morgan is asking $40,000 damages and alleges that substances put into her eyes last May caused her to lose her sight. The hospital claims that the medicine used did not cause the eyes to fail but that Mrs. Morgan is suffering from a brain tumor which caused the blindness. The case was given to the jury late Monday afternoon.

JUDGE CUTS YOUTH'S TERM

Paducah Youth Told Of Chance to Learn

Judge William H. Atwell of the United States District court Monday morning reduced the sentence of 14-year-old Buster King from four years to three. The youth pleaded guilty to passing altered currency and was first sent to the government training school at Washington for four years. Later Judge Atwell thought the case over and resentenced him to three years instead of four.

The judge spent much time explaining to the boy that the school was in no wise similar to a "reform" school but was one that would provide him with a good education and give him a basis for a real start in life.

Buster was not the sobbing youth of Saturday and seemed to grasp the court's viewpoint although he still said he hated to be separated from his father. The father lives at Paducah and is a cripple.

Tough Time Awaits Holiday Drinkers

"They may stop us from searching houses without warrants, but we will keep them inside the houses and off the streets if they are going to drink," Morgan declared Monday, in outlining plans for an intensive drive against prohibition-law violators in preparation for the Christmas whiskey hush.

That the yuletide celebrating already had begun, Constable Morgan pointed out, was shown by the fact that 18 persons, including one woman, a negro, were arrested on charges of drunkenness over Saturday night.

At the first feeling that your system needs assistance to keep up normal elimination of waste matter, take Black-Draught. You may only need to take a single dose if you heed Nature's warning soon enough. You'll feel better next morning.

American Refining Company Creditors Concur in Plan of Future Operation

Settlement of the American Refining company affairs outside the bankrupcy court is seen in the plan concurred in by 95 per cent of the creditors of the company. The plan, according to attorneys, is to have a committee of seven take charge of the affairs and run them for three years unless the debts are all paid before that time.

The affairs at present are in the hands of receivers named by Judge William H. Atwell of the United States district court when bankruptcy proceedings were filed. One of the attorneys said the taking of the action from the court is no reflection upon the receivers but is intended as a method of saving all concerned added expense of litigation.

Monday Judge Atwell granted the request of attorneys that hearing of motions in the case be postponed from Tuesday until Friday when the case was to have been heard on its merits. The suit for involuntary bankruptcy of the company was filed following the depression in the oil industry when affairs of the company became involved.

Judge Atwell has been heard to express it as his opinion that the company could be made to pay out with very little loss to anyone and possibly be placed on its feet. Many of the lands held by the company are regarded as very valuable and development of these is expected to aid materially in restoring the company to good financial standing, it was said.

The Discovery That Brought Peace of Mind!

Corrects the Chemistry that Make One's Pores Offend

Do you know why thousands of people who never have to take a laxative, do eat a candy cascaret now and then?

They have found that cascara sweetens the whole system—brings an immaculacy of person that means everything. It prevents bodily chemistry from ever making one unconsciously offensive to others. And what a perfect regulator of the bowels!

Salts affect the lining of the bowels. Mineral oils leave a coating that the blood must carry off through the pores. How much better to cascarize the system, and cause the bowels to expel everything by normal muscular contraction. To say nothing of the cleaner, sweeter condition that lasts for days—a wholesome condition that makes the use of dedorants quite unnecessary in January or July. Men and women whose years have brought on sluggishness often find that a cascaret only once a week is all the tonic they needed.

Cascaret is splendid for children, too, and they love the taste of this candy laxative which every drugstore has for 10c and 25c.

"IT WAS YEARS before I knew the one best way to conquer sluggishness. Now, I can do so with the comfortable feeling that I'm removing all taint to perspiration, too. That's the big virtue I see in the candy laxative—

Experiment With This

Ask the man who lives on both sides of you if he is owning his home through the building and loan association. You will certainly be surprised to learn that most of them are. There must be and is a good reason for this. It is simply that the building and loan plan is far superior to all other forms of home ownership loans. It provides a small monthly payment that assures complete ownership within a few years. There is nothing hard about it but there is something definite—ownership, the goal that you are trying so hard to attain by some other method. Let us tell you how easy it is to own a home through this institution.
