HITS REDS — The battleship New Jersey, America's mightiest warship and the only battlewagon in the world on active duty, yesterday shelled North Vietnamese forts and supply lines. Launched Dec. 7, 1942, it saw World War II and Korean conflict service, winning 13 battle stars. In 3½ minutes, the New Jersey can equal the destruction of 60 bombing planes.

Commiss Down 3 U.S. 'Copters

By JACK WALSH
SAIGON (UPI)—Communist gunners Tuesday shot down three U.S. helicopters carrying wounded soldiers and Marines, although the aircraft were plainly marked with red crosses, U.S. military spokesmen reported today.

One helicopter was a Marine Corps CH-34 assigned to fly wounded from the Thuong Duc area where a U.S. Green Beret Special Forces camp was in the fifth day of a siege by a North Vietnamese division of 7,000 men. A spokesman at Da Nang said there were no injuries.

The other two helicopters were U.S. Army medical evacuation helicopters flying wounded men 16 miles west of Tam Ky where a Communist force of unknown size ambushed units of the 198th Infantry Brigade and wounded 28 Americans.

A spokesman for the U.S. Military Assistance Command said seven soldiers were wounded on one helicopter and three were wounded on another. An undisclosed number of wounded were believed killed in the crashes but there was no official figure. One helicopter crashed and burned, the other was recovered.

North Vietnamese gunners also shot down an A-1 Skyhawk acting as artillery spotter for the battleship USS New Jersey, but they paid dearly for it. The mighty ship swung her 16 inch rifles from the targets she was devastating near the Demilitarized Zone and blew the anti-aircraft batteries to pieces.

The two pilots were rescued as the United States chalked up its 902nd air loss of the war over the north. Two other A-1 Skyhawks were lost, apparently by accident, during landings and takeoffs at the Chu Lai Air Base in South Vietnam. Both pilots, Marines, escaped.

The helicopter incidents marked a new flareup in fighting just west and southwest of Da Nang where a small force of Americans and Vietnamese holding the Thuong Duc base were blocking a main Communist invasion route toward Da Nang.

The Communists lobbed artillery into the base again today in a move reminiscent of the 77 day siege of Khe Sanh and used heavy machineguns against planes flying supplies into the base some 30 miles southwest of Da Nang.

Radio Hanoi said today Viet Cong troops had cut off a relief column attempting to lift the siege. It quoted Western correspondents as saying "so heavy was the torrent of shells that it was impossible to fly in reinforcements."

The weather lifted and U.S. planes pounded the surrounding Communist force today.

The ambush of the 198th Infantry Brigade was in the same general area — 16 miles west of Tam Ky and about 40 miles below Thuong Duc. The infantrymen were on patrol when they were struck by a red force of unknown size.

The Reds opened up with a heavy barrage from bunkers and treelines against the Americans sweeping through the open. The Americans dived for cover. (See COMMIES, Page 3)

Band Slates Concert In Aspen Park

Pampa High School's Harvest Band will revive an early U.S. tradition at 2:30 p.m. Sunday when it presents its first concert in the park.

The two-hour concert of marches and popular music will be performed for the public in Aspen Park, between Duncan and Aspen Streets, south of Linda Drive. Curt Beck, chairman of the Fine Arts Association's musical arts committee, said.

Band Boosters will sell refreshments, but no admission charge will be made for the concert. The association is sponsoring the outdoor performance for Pampans to become better acquainted with their PHS band's performance, Beck said.

Proceeds from the sale of refreshments will be used for the band and concert choir's Los Angeles '68 Project, when they will play at half-time of the Los Angeles Rams, Baltimore Colts National Football League game Dec. 15 in Los Angeles. "About 30 years ago, and in the early 1900's, park concerts by symphonies and bands were traditional and are still conducted frequently in several eastern cities. This is a first for Pampa. We hope people who have not had a chance before to hear the band will attend," Beck said.

Subversion In Disorders Cited

By GENE BERNHARDT

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Members of the House Committee on Un-American Activities are satisfied their first session on the street disorders at the Democratic National Convention demonstrated subversive influence was behind the uproar.

Amid commotion and the odor of burning incense surrounding the presence of about a dozen yippies, committee witnesses testified Tuesday the pitched battles between Chicago police and demonstrators were planned by radical elements bent on disrupting the convention.

The yippies, subject of the inquiry and in some cases witnesses subpoenaed for testimony at the next session Thursday, performed their antics with the avowed intent of "burlesquing" what they called a "burlesque" investigation.

They did not testify, but their conduct and the repeated objections of their lawyers to the witnesses' testimony succeeded in keeping the hearing on the edge of disorder.

At least 10 yippies and other protesters, along with five of their lawyers, joined in a silent standing protest to the proceedings and were quietly removed.

Meanwhile six prospective witnesses—two yippies (members of the Youth International Party) and four leaders of the National Mobilization to End the War in Vietnam—filed suit in Federal District Court here seeking to enjoin the hearings.

Most of Tuesday's testimony covered ground gone over by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley in his televised version of the disorders.

But the witnesses convinced Rep. Richard Ichord, D-Mo., chairman of the hearings, "There were more Communists involved at Chicago than I originally thought. There were not only the old-line Communists but there were some new ones."

James L. Gallagher, a committee researcher, testified the "basic purpose (of the demonstrations) can be summed up in one word—Vietnam. The many placards and pieces of propaganda displayed... were clearly in accord with the policies of Hanoi."

Planned Disruption
He said 10 "major organizations planned and plotted to disrupt the convention, going to the point of assembling medical supplies, recording their blood types and arranging for cameramen to film alleged police brutality."

It first appeared the hearing would become even more unruly than it was when a yippie leader was ejected from the building when he entered with a bandolier of five .45 caliber ammunition over his bare chest.

Rusk Asks That Russians Leave Czechoslovakia

UNITED NATIONS (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk called on the Soviet Union today to withdraw its troops from Czechoslovakia as promised and said the world which had begun to speak of a thaw in the cold war feels once again a chill of apprehension concerning Soviet purposes.

Rusk's major policy speech before the United Nations General Assembly was interrupted by a group of 10 or 12 youths in the visitors gallery who yelled "stop the war in Vietnam" and "Bring the troops home."

The demonstrators were ejected by U.N. guards and Rusk continued with his unprecedented condemnation of the August invasion of Czechoslovakia. At one point he directed his remarks squarely at Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and stated:

"Let us say very plainly to the Soviet Union: The road to détente is the road of the (U.N.) charter. He demanded assurances that Russia is not going to place itself above the law of the U.N. Charter."

Rusk, making his first and probably last policy speech in the U.N. General Assembly, assured the world parliament that regardless of the outcome of next month's presidential election in the United States "the American people will remain faithful in support of the United Nations."

Although the Soviet invasion and occupation of Czechoslovakia is not on the Assembly's agenda and the Communist bloc has served notice that it will not agree to discuss it here, Rusk devoted the major part of his

Statement Follows Rebuff By Senate

By ROY MCGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Abe Fortas today asked President Johnson to withdraw his nomination to be chief justice.

In a statement made public by the Supreme Court, less than 24 hours after the Senate, by a wide margin, refused to halt a filibuster aimed at blocking confirmation of Fortas.

"I note the failure of the motion to end the filibuster in the Senate with respect to my nomination as chief justice of the United States."

"The 1968 term of this court begins, according to law, on Monday Oct. 7. I will, of course, be participating in its work as associate justice."

The statement—actually a copy of a letter to Johnson—added: "In view of these circumstances, I ask you to withdraw my nomination as chief justice."

Supreme Court aides said Fortas wrote the letter to the President Tuesday afternoon—apparently just after the Senate voted 45 to 43 to stop the filibuster—14 short of a two-thirds majority.

The letter was typed this morning and hand delivered by Fortas' personal secretary, Mrs. Gloria Dalton, to the White House at 11:15 a.m. EDT.

Fortas told Johnson in the letter: "Continued efforts to secure confirmation of (the) nomination, even if ultimately successful, would result in a continuation of the attacks upon the court which have characterized the filibuster—attacks which have been sometimes extreme and entirely unrelated to responsible criticism."

"Attacks of this sort would be especially inappropriate and harmful to the court and the nation if they should continue while the court is in session, engaged in the adjudication of issues of great importance to the nation as well as the litigants."

Chief Justice Earl Warren, who notified Johnson last spring that he wanted to retire, has made it clear he will stay on until a successor is chosen. Part of the opposition to Fortas was based on the circumstances of Warren's retirement plans—made contingent on qualification of a successor. Fortas faces contention there actually was no vacancy.

Warren, 77, will be in his (See FORTAS, Page 3)

CoC Sponsoring Ten Members In Band, Choir Trip

Directors of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce yesterday voted to sponsor ten students in the Pampa High School band and choir trip to Los Angeles in December.

The band and choir are currently engaged in a project styled, "Los Angeles, '68," designed to raise approximately $15,000 to finance the group's trip to Los Angeles.

The band and choir have been invited to perform at halftime of the Los Angeles Rams, Baltimore Colts professional football game on Dec. 15, slated for national broadcast over the CBS network (Channel 10, locally).

Yesterday's action by the CoC board would provide $350 toward the project, at $35 per sponsored member of the organization. The board also voted to encourage members of the chamber to similarly sponsor a member of the group.

In other business at the meeting, the directors heard Bill Power of The Pampa News report that a Progress Edition will be published Oct. 30, pointing to the progress in Pampa during the last 25 years, with a special salute to the Pampa Chamber of Commerce.

New officers were also elected at the meeting to be installed at a dinner meeting Monday, Oct. 14, at the Coronado Inn. Installing officer will be Wales Madden Jr., president of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce. Elected were George B. Cree Jr., president; Don Lane, vice president; and Jim Morris, finance director. Created named Gene Imel, Norman Fritzler and E. L. Green Jr. to one-year terms on the board and Verl Hagaman and Jim Stallings were elected to fill unexpired terms of the late Mack Hiatt Jr., and Bill Tarpoley, who has moved to Amarillo.

The chamber's annual Membership Banquet is scheduled for Tuesday night, Oct. 29, at 7:30 p.m., in the Robert E. Lee Junior High School Cafeteria. The speaker of the evening will be Nevert Hiescher, humorist, of Shreveport, La. Tickets are now on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office. Only 350 tickets will be available, and they will be handed on a first-come, first-served basis. Members are encouraged to make their reservations early to insure tickets for the banquet.

Certain Fire Extinguishers Can Be Dangerous To Your Health

By JEFF HOLLADAY
Pampa News Staff Writer

Cirrhosis of the liver "could strike you."

Not because of what you drink but because of what you breathe.

That was the warning yesterday from Fire Chief F. E. Dyer, who appealed to all citizens to remove a carbon tetrachloride fire extinguishers from homes, autos and businesses.

Recently released evidence indicates that the disease can develop from exposure to carbon tetrachloride, found most commonly in fire extinguishers.

It can be contracted by breathing the vapors or through skin absorption.

Removal is being urged through the National Fire Protection Association and the American Insurance Association, who sponsor the laboratory.

Carbon tetrachloride is found not only in fire extinguishers, but has been used regularly in some dry cleaners. It's commonly used for spot removal.

It appears harmless. It is clear, colorless, heavier than water and has a sweet smell. Warnings on fire extinguishers and other containers with carbon tet in them usually advise: "Do not breathe vapors."

It is advice, however, that is not always taken seriously. Students have been known to direct fire extinguishers containing the liquid at each other in "horseplay."

If breathed, the liquid vapors will cause some pain but will not usually cause a person to be ill immediately.

But it can be lethal. Its deadly effects may not be felt immediately but prolonged exposure could result in cirrhosis of the liver.

contract the disease, fire officials warned.

Carbon tet extinguishers are dangerous in another respect. Spraying the liquid on a hot surface causes a gas similar in nature to some nerve gases used in warfare, fire officials said.

Most of the carbon tet extinguishers, which are used most commonly in schools and public facilities and as auto extinguishers, have been removed from Pampa schools. And most businesses have been warned of its danger.

But Chief Dyer urged all auto or truck owners who carry fire extinguishers in their vehicles to check and see if they contain carbon tet. House owners who own fire extinguishers have also been asked to check. Extinguishers containing carbon tet may be labeled "pyrene," but some indication will be given as to their content.

Fire officials here said they recommended replacement of the carbon tet extinguishers with pressurized water units.

Or it may not have to be a replacement. One or two exposures might cause one to

WASHINGTON:

Price Is Much Wiser Man Than On That First Day in Congress

By KENNETH SCHEIBEL
(Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON — Rep. Bob Price (R-Tex.) of Pampa, is a wiser man than when he came to Congress two years ago.

He reflected on his first term in Congress in an interview during a break in the House business.

"Our system of government has both strengths and weaknesses," he said. "This term in Congress has broadened my outlook."

At home in the Texas Panhandle, Price found his constituents with a particular point of view.

"But here in Washington we come together with leaders from all over the country," he said. "We learn all facets of the United States."

Price feels being on the scene in Washington is important because "this is the hub of the universe. Being here, and exposed to things the layman cannot see, has given me insight into the problems of the nation I was not aware of."

Price knows now that the wheels of government grind slowly. But the people can exert their force and their will.

"It takes time to make changes," he said, "but we are making progress slowly."

Price is seeking re-election from the 18th district in Texas. He wants to continue the work he has started here—particularly in agriculture and in the anti-crime battle.

"Crime is going to be a big issue next year," he said. "We have to get an Attorney General who will enforce the laws already on the books, and we have to give local police the tools they need." Price also thinks the U.S. penal system needs revising.

During his term in Congress Price has introduced many bills of major importance to his constituents.

They include the farm program, crime, water, oil imports, meat imports, social security and veterans benefits, and education, among others.

He also attempted to limit political activity in appointment of postmasters and to cut down political work of poverty program workers. This bill was passed in modified form. Price also sponsored a one-year extension of the Food for Peace Act, including a ban on aid to any country trading with Communist North Vietnam.

Price also pushed two bills he considered helpful to Panhandle farmers in need of credit and operating loans through advancing Commodity Credit Corp. funds. Another bill would provide capital to farmers from non government sources.

Water continues to be one of Price's major worries.

"By 1985, unless we find other sources of supply, our water will be gone in the Panhandle," he said. "Then, the economy will nosedive."

Price and Texas Sen. John Tower called for a government program to study feasibility of scooping surplus waters from the Missouri River and distributing them to seven thirsty states, including Texas.

Price voted for aid to higher education, increased Social Security benefits, the omnibus crime bill, extension of the farm program, the government workers and postal pay raise, and improved veterans benefits.

He turned thumbs down on legislation controlling the right of a property owner to sell his house, the gun control bill, the poverty program, and foreign aid.

The Panhandle lawmaker played a major role in getting Congress to tighten the Federal meat inspection program. He inserted an amendment, requiring that foreign meat imports meet the same sanitary standards as U.S. produced meat.

Looking back on his career in Congress, Price remarked:

"This is an exciting, challenging job. It is a never-ending challenge."

He arrives at his office at 9 a.m., gets home at night about 8 o'clock. Nearly every night the Congressman and his wife, Marty, are on the social circuit, an important part of a Congressman's life.

Sometimes it is then that Price wonders whether the Panhandle life might be a bit more attractive than life in the big city.

But both he and his wife are becoming more accustomed to life in the Nation's Capital. Might be they have even contacted a touch of "Potomac Fever."

John Bill Ricketts, a famous English equestrian, had the first circus in America, says Collier's Encyclopedia.

In Texas there are about 97 males to every 100 females.

TIME FOR TEA and workers gather around a rowboat for a welcome break in Hadlow, Kent. England's south-east section is experiencing the worst flooding in 15 years as a result of torrential rain.

Hearing Is Postponed On 'Urban University'

AUSTIN (UPI) — A hearing on a proposal that would combine three colleges in the Dallas-Fort Worth area into a new "urban university" has been postponed at the request of persons wanting to submit their own plans.

Dr. Bevington Reed, commissioner of higher education, said the public hearing on the College Coordinating Board's proposal would be Nov. 11 in Austin. It was originally scheduled for Oct. 11.

Reed said the postponement came after Arlington Mayor Tom Vandergriff and Dallas and Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce presidents Morris Hite and Beeman Fisher, requested it in a telegram.

They want "additional time to develop and submit their own plan for meeting the region's higher education need," Reed said.

The recommendation made public last week calls for combining North Texas State, Texas Woman's University and the University of Texas at Arlington under a single governing board. The schools would keep their names and probably have their own presidents.

The combined university would contract with private colleges in the area to provide facilities for research and graduate work.

The University of Texas recently proposed its own plan for the North Texas area, calling for a UT takeover of the private Southwest Center for Advanced Studies and creations of a new senior college under the UT regents.

Reed said Dr. Harry Tansom, chancellor of the UT system, has asked to appear at the meeting discussing the coordinating board's proposal.

Reed said NTNU and TWU regents have not asked to appear at the hearing. Their posts would be abolished under the

Lefors Optimists Honor Dean Crain

LEFORS (Sp) — The Lefors Optimist Club recently met at the Harvester Pit Barbecue in Pampa and awarded Dean Crain a plaque as "Deserving Citizen."

The plaque is given each year for outstanding work with youth in the community through the club.

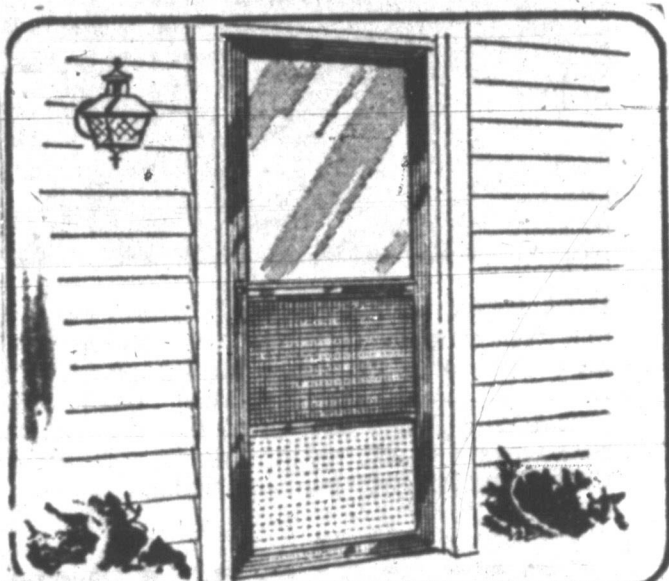

Others nominated for the plaque were Mrs. V. C. Webb and Wayne Moxon.

Those attending the event included Messrs. and Mmes. Luther Welborn, Wayne Moxon, Ben White, Floyd Cotham, Dean Crain, Sam Jordan, Bob Klein, Jessie Ring and Ralph Hix. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. V. C. Webb and daughter, Elaine.

The board's report on North Texas said the 17 institutions in the area "are now largely uncoordinated, lack unity of purpose and are not operating at peak potential."

Warner To Lead Talk On Politics

John W. Warner, Pampa attorney, will be discussion leader for the Business and Professional Women's Club class on political party organization at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the Chamber of Commerce conference room at the Hughes Bldg. The discussion will center on why and how political parties are organized, from the precinct up. Analyses will be considered on why individuals are more likely to be effective in politics by working through established parties.

The class is the second in a nine-session seminar entitled "Action Course in Practical Politics," sponsored by the legislative committee of the Pampa B&P Club. Mrs. H. F. McDonald, committee chairman, stated the course is for both the newcomer to politics and the experienced party worker. Discussions are non-partisan.

Mrs. McDonald said the seminar is open to the public and costs $5 for the study guide and materials. Interested individuals are invited to attend the meetings.

The other octuplet births are recorded as Senora Enriqueta Ruiba at Tampico, Mexico, in 1921 and Mrs. Tam Sing in Kwong Yam Sha, China in June, 1934.

The babies were delivered by caesarian section. It was performed, the hospital said, by a team of specialists led by Miss Margaret Shotton, 53-year-old consulting obstetrician at the hospital.

The babies are under the care of Dr. Ben Wood.

"Surrender or we'll come in and get you," Leeke called through a bullhorn to the prisoners Tuesday from atop a building.

The rioters surrendered, ending a four-hour rampage that left 11 inmates and six guards injured and the penitentiary a "shambles" of smashed furniture, burning mattresses and spouting water spigots.

National Guardsmen and state troopers moved in and secured the prison.

Rusk

Rusk also restated U.S. aims in Vietnam, expressed support for U.N. efforts to bring peace to the Middle East, denounced new Communist threats to West Germany and called for further progress on disarmament despite the setback to East-West relations caused by the Czechoslovak invasion.

"Czechoslovakia today is an occupied country," Rusk told the Assembly. "Six weeks ago, in the middle of the night, suddenly and without warning that small, independent state was invaded by a massive army led by the Soviet Union."

Seminar Is Set Thursday About The 'Exceptional'

The Amarillo State Center for Human Development will sponsor a seminar from 9:30 a.m. to noon Thursday for volunteers interested in working in the Day Care Centers for exceptional pre-school children and young people.

The three-hour session will be held in the center in First Presbyterian Church Educational Building. Mrs. Jack Sloan is coordinator of the center's volunteer aides.

The Gray County Association for Retarded Children is assisting in organizing a Day Care Center for young people. The 12-month center in operation now is for pre-school children, and is taught five days a week each morning.

To enroll a student in the pre-school or post-school classes, parents or guardians should contact Bob Carmichael at MO-5-2323.

The second satellite day care class will be for post-school retarded young people or adults. Ages could range from 13 years up. Depending upon the number of students the classes would be arranged in two half-day sessions or one all-day session from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Carmichael said.

The emphasis in the new post-school classes is on three major areas—socialization, arts, and crafts activities, and the listening to and following direction, he said.

Mrs. Bill Roots is teacher for the pre-school children who learn to participate in activities with others, and develop skills in arts and crafts.

Fair Sex Has Problems Here, Police Indicate

Pampa women were involved in all the major news reported to police yesterday and today, and the fair sex seemed to be having its difficulties.

A 38-year-old vice at 641 N. Hobart last night by her estranged husband. The incident occurred around 8:30. Police said the husband sped out of town with his wife and a widespread search followed after it was reported by a witness to the abduction that the man was armed and had threatened her. The woman was returned home about 2 a.m. today and told police that she would not file charges.

A woman who lives in the 500 block of Doyle St. telephoned police around midnight that a prowler was trying to break in to her residence. She said her husband was gone and only she and her daughter were at the house. The woman said she was "scared to death" when the prowler began to try to break down the rear door, but she said the prowler apparently left after she yelled an imaginary "Shoot him! Shoot him!"

Another woman reported to police this morning that she had put her purse on top of her car, forgotten it, and eventually lost it. She said the purse contained $28 in cash and a $154 check and credit cards. The driver's license is in the name of Mrs. Dorothy Manning, 224 N. Wells.

Warner Slates Lions Club Talk

Pampa Attorney John W. Warner will speak at tomorrow's noon meeting of the Pampa Noon Lions Club in the basement of the First Methodist Church.

Warner will speak on "Developing Our Youth Through Scouting." A former Post advisor and Troop representative, Warner is presently District Commissioner for the Santa Fe Boy Scout District.

Warner spoke at last month's Adult Scout Roundup and will be the main speaker at a District Banquet scheduled here for Nov. 11.

Two Named To Posts In City Tax Office

Two new employees have been named to fill posts created by resignations in the city tax office, according to Aubrey Jones, tax assessor-collector.

They are Mrs. Jo Ann Burch, 1317 Garland, and Mrs. Dorothy Stafford, 1116 S. Christy.

cover and fought back through the day as American warplanes, helicopter gunships and artillery were rushed to their aid.

The New Jersey, the only active battleship in the world, followed up her Monday's first day of Vietnam War action against Communists in the border Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) by pointing her 16 inch guns seven miles north.

Spotter pilots reported the tons of explosives from the big guns quickly demolished four fortress bunkers and a truck.

Crewmen Rescued
The great ship lay beyond the range of shore guns. But the North Vietnamese turned on and downed a Marine A-4 Skyhawk jet spotter, the 902nd U.S. aircraft lost over the North. The destroyer Towers drove toward shore and plucked to safety the plane's two crewmen.

The New Jersey, which saw World War II and Korean action and was summoned to this war from the mothball fleet, continued showering the targets with her 2,700 pound shells.

In South Vietnam, U.S. helicopters whirled through heavy machine gun fire today and delivered ammunition to the small Green Beret camp surrounded for five days by about 7,000 North Vietnamese.

UPI correspondents Nat Gibson and Raymond Wilkinson reported from the camp, 336 miles north of Saigon, that the 25 Berets and their 300 South Vietnamese co-defenders scrambled through sporadic mortar fire to fetch the supplies the helicopters brought.

The Special Forces men then raced back to their dugouts, awaiting a possible human wave attack.

Caught in Ambush
About 20 miles to the south of the besieged Thung Duc camp, near the coastal city of Tam Ky, troops of the U.S. Americal Division Tuesday ran into a Viet Cong trap. Caught between Red bunkers and jungle nests, 28 GIs were wounded. None were killed. The U.S. unit dived for cover. U.S. warplanes and artillery blasted the ambushers.

In other developments:
—In Saigon, a Communist terrorist Tuesday night grenaded a South Vietnam official's home, killing one person and wounding three.

—Two Marine A4 Skyhawk jet fighter-bombers crashed at the U.S. airbase at Chu Lai Tuesday. Both pilots of the one-man planes escaped with minor injuries, American spokesmen said.

—Mrs. Vu Thi Huong, 21-year-old widow of a South Vietnam soldier killed in action, poured gasoline over herself and struck a match. She burned to death. Police today blamed grief over her husband's death for the act.

Johnson was in the White House—Rose Garden area welcoming the visiting president of Chad when the Fortas announcement came. There was no immediate White House comment.

In telling Johnson that he feared continued attacks on the court if the nomination were not pulled back, Fortas said:

"I do not want to provide the occasion for a situation of this sort. My action in submitting this request for withdrawal should avert the danger that it will occur; and I hope that my withdrawal will help to put in motion a process by which there will be an end to destructive and extreme assaults upon the court."

"I appreciate the confidence in my qualifications which led you to nominate me as chief justice. I wish particularly to thank my colleagues at the bar and in the law schools for their support, and to express my appreciation to those members of the United States Senate who have supported me."

"I pray we shall see, in all of our nation, renewed dedication to the principles of fairness and justice and moderation, without which our democracy cannot continue."

"It is in this spirit that I respectfully ask that you honor my request for withdrawal of my nomination as chief justice of the United States."

The first Jew ever nominated for chief justice, Fortas was not at the court when his withdrawal letter was released. A court spokesman noted that today is Yom Kippur, a high Jewish religious holiday, and that Fortas was not in his office.

Johnson nominated Fortas on June 25, same day as he himself.

Obituaries

FLOID (TOM) WILLIS

Funeral services for Floid (Tom) Willis, 59, of Pampa, were held at 3 p.m. today at Church of Christ at Anson with Burial at Bethel Cemetery at Funston. Carmichael-Whalley Funeral Home directed arrangements in Pampa. Lawrence Funeral Home directed services in Anson.

Mr. Willis died Sunday in Worley Hospital here.

ROBBIE JOE CADE

Robbie Joe Cade, 35, died at 6:15 p.m. Tuesday at Casa Del Nursing Center after a lengthy illness.

Born July 28, 1933, at Pioneer, he was reared here, and lived in Pampa several years before moving to Creston, Ill. He returned to Pampa Jan. 10 from Illinois. Mr. Cade was a member of the Skellytown First Baptist Church and Pampa Masonic Lodge No. 966.

He was a pusher for Allen Servicing Co. of Pampa before moving to Illinois.

Survivors are his wife, Norma Jean; two sons, Joe Cade and Michael Cade, both of Pampa; a daughter, Denise Cade, Pampa; mother, Mrs. Reba Cade, White Deer; father, Carl Cade, Skellytown; and one brother, Ronnie Cade, Skellytown.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Thursday in Carmichael-Whalley Colonial Chapel with Rev. Murle Rogers, pastor of Skellytown First Baptist Church, officiating. Burial will be in White Deer Cemetery with Masonic Graveside services. Masons are requested to meet at Lodge 966 at 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

Pallbearers will be Franklin Hussie, Kenneth Crawford, Bobby Brail, Carl Mynear, Bruce Martin and Billy Wade Cofer.

The Lighter Side

WASHINGTON (UPI)—It is exceedingly difficult these days to become a rebel, a nonconformist or even a simple eccentric.

Try doing something outlandish to set yourself apart from the main stream of society and chances are you'll wind up creating a new fad.

Look what happened to the beatniks. They started growing beards as their badge of rebellion. As a result, beards are now as commonplace as crabgrass.

All over the country, rich men, poor men, beggars, thieves, doctors, lawyers, merchants and chiefs are wearing beards. It's the orthodox thing to do.

Hippies Acceptable
The same type of fate befell the hippies. Long hair, love beads, oriental garments and the like currently are seen in the best of circles and are rapidly being adopted by the multitudes.

The Beatles, once the Pied Pipers of rebellious youth, are now the favorite troubadours of middle-aged suburbanites. The wild dances invented by alienated teen-agers have become jet set standards.

And how can an antiwar protester feel the thrill of recalcitrance when his sentiments are reflected in the majority column of the Gallup Poll?

It is, as I was saying, a bad year for unconventionality. The iconoclasts are striving desperately to maintain an aura of radicalism, but they are barely ahead of the Philistines.

These thoughts began scurrying through my head Tuesday as Jerry Rubin, a "Yippie" leader, was having a run-in with police outside the door of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Rubin tried hard to appear revolting. I'll give him credit for that.

Real Trend-Setter
He was shoeless and shirtless. He wore neck, wrist and ankle beads, and face and body paint. He had an African hairdo upon announced Warren's retirement.

The Senate Judiciary Committee held 11 weeks of hearings before recommending Senate confirmation.

But a coalition of Republicans, led by Sen. Robert P. Griffin of Michigan, and Southern Democratic conservatives, led by Sens. Sam J. Ervin of North Carolina and John L. McClellan of Arkansas, mounted a filibuster to prevent the Senate from considering the nomination.

The Fortas foes started their talkathon on a motion to take up the nomination. The Senate never did get to direct consideration of the nomination itself.

Copy Of 'Secession' Ordinance Is Found Behind An Old Picture

By MIKE WESTER
PLAINVIEW, Tex. (UPI) —

The desire to re-frame the portrait of a veteran of the Civil War has revealed what appears to be a lithographed copy of the original ordinance for Alabama's secession from the United States.

The portrait is of James Clark, the great-great-grandfather of Clarence Clark of Plainview who moved to a homestead 16 miles from mountain park, Okla., when the Civil War ended.

Through the years at the family homestead, a picture of James Clark was hung on the wall. Just recently the parents of Clarence Clark died and he and his wife Linda inherited the homestead and furnishings—including the old picture.

Wanted New Frame
Mrs. Clark was intrigued by the portrait, and brought it back to Plainview. She decided she wanted to take the picture out of its worn and battered frame, and put it into a new one.

When the frame was dismantled, she found a document, browned around the edges but virtually unharmed by age. It appeared to be a lithographed copy of the original ordinance for Alabama's secession from the U.S., dated Jan. 11, 1861.

When Alabama seceded from the union, it was required to send a copy of the ordinance of secession to other states in the process of forming the Confederate States of America. James Clark was a signer of the ordinance.

Called Alabama
Mrs. Clark, interested in confirming the authenticity of the document, telephoned the Alabama archives.

"I called Alabama, and they said there were three copies of the document," she said. "The original is in the archives. I have another, and we just don't know who has the third one."

Mrs. Clark doesn't know what she will do with the document. She has been offered money for it, but is undecided.

"I think I'd like to sell it and donate the money to my church for a construction project," she says. "But, I'm just not sure yet."

Subversion

(Continued From Page 1) smeared with Indian war paint. Jerry Rubin was finally admitted when he surrendered the ammunition. He was allowed to keep a toy M-16 rifle and pistol. He later was removed again as part of the stand-up protest.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Peroni Report says the stock market is "practically immune" dropping under the 890-level of the Dow Jones industrial average. It adds that the last quarter of the year should be the best for the market and for a "great number of individual stocks" that have been moving forward all through the year.

Filior Bullard & Smith says the "key to success" with growth stocks is to spot the true performance situations before they reach 50 or 60 times earnings. It may mean holding onto cash for a while until the popularity of many growth situations fades somewhat, the company says, adding that in such a case profits "can be much more rewarding."

Harris, Upham & Co. says a national survey of public opinion reflects an increasingly bullish outlook for the stock market on the long term. The survey by the firm also shows marked increase in interest for the blue chips.

$500 Bond Set

Bond was set at $500 by Justice of the Peace E. L. Anderson today for Harley Oscar Woods, 36, of 623 N. Russell, charged with aggravated assault.

Fire Call Reported

Firemen reported a transformer blow-out and a resulting fire at the old Safeway store on Duncan St. around 10:30 p.m. last night, but the small blaze was quickly extinguished, officials said.

Clifford Challenged:

Does US Have Similar Rockets To The Communists In S. Vietnam?

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH
WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Clark Clifford is being put squarely on the spot to disclose whether the U. S. has rockets similar to those being used by the Communists to indiscriminately batter South Vietnamese communities and civilians.

Also, if the U. S. does have such weapons, why they aren't being employed against North Vietnamese population centers and military targets.

These highly pertinent questions have been bluntly put up to Clark by Rep. H.R. Gross, R-Iowa, influential member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, following an unsuccessful effort to get this information from Democratic congressional leaders.

Their ambiguous and evasive replies to Gross' inquiries about the failure of the U. S. to use ground-to-ground and air-to-ground rockets against the Communists gave rise to the strong suspicion that this country does not have such weapons. To get at the bottom of this deeply disturbing mystery, Gross has written Clifford asking for explicit answers to the following:

"Does the United States have ground-to-ground intermediate rockets and — or missiles capable of being fired from the forward areas of South Vietnam and reaching the centers of population as well as military targets in North Vietnam? If the United States does possess such weapons, why don't we have them?"

"Also, does the United States have air-to-ground rockets and — or missiles capable of reaching ground targets without subjecting our aircraft and crews to the concentrated aircraft defenses of the North Vietnamese. If we have such rockets and — or missiles, why are they not being used? If we do not have such weapons, please explain why we don't have them."

Gross' forthright questions may explode a bombshell in the hectic election campaign now in progress throughout the country.

Admission by Clark that the U. S. does not have intermediate ground-to-ground rockets would almost certainly set off a furious political attack from the Republicans. The Johnson Administration would find itself heavily on the defensive justifying or explaining the failure to develop such weapons.

Gross, in a discussion with Representative George Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the powerful House Appropriations Committee, asserted there is widespread perplexity throughout the U. S. over the failure to use missiles against key North Vietnamese targets.

"Why is it," said Gross, "that we do not use rockets and — or missiles to hit in retaliation the North Vietnam nerve center of Hanoi and the chief supply port of Haiphong to cut off supplies and paralyze the communist war effort? Is it possible we have no intermediate range missiles capable of reaching these sanctuaries and areas which up to now have been left untouched in North Vietnam?"

Mahon, in effect, dodged making a direct answer. Gross thereupon put this extremely

Situation 'Good' For Tourists In Mexico

By KENNETH R. CLARK
MCALLEN, Tex. (UPI)—Riots or no riots, the Yankee tourist never had it so good in Mexico — especially since all those Rhodesians decided to skip the Olympic games after all.

That was the view today of Holbert Glenn, of McAllen, a representative of "Sanborn's" — the largest travel agency on the U.S.-Mexico border.

Glenn said Mexico City now has "an abundance" of hotel rooms available to Americans attending the Olympics, but that "student riots there have had nothing whatsoever to do with it."

Sanborn said the wide-open accommodations — a marked contrast to the situation anticipated earlier in the year, even by his own firm — is the result of what he called unrealistic tourist quotas set by the Mexican office of allotment for small countries of Eastern Europe, Asia, and Africa.

"The office of allotment, which is in charge of apportioning available accommodations among travel agencies, was basing its estimates on population, rather than economy," said Glenn. "They set quotas something like 500 for Thailand and 1,500 for Southern Rhodesia. Of course, those countries didn't come through on the reservations, so now they've got all kinds of room space."

Glenn said the recent uprising, in which students have battled police in the streets and on university grounds, apparently has had very little effect upon the plans of the bulk of Americans who have decided to see the Olympic games.

"I got two calls just this morning from Oklahoma City and from Pennsylvania from clients for whom we've arranged Olympic trips," he said. "They called to confirm reservations, and they didn't even ask about the riots."

Water Deliveries Show Increase In 54 Projects

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Interior Department said Monday municipal and industrial water deliveries from 54 Bureau of Reclamation projects in 16 western states last year showed a 22.5 billion gallon gain over the previous year.

The projects included are the Canadian River Project in Texas; the Arbutus Project in Oklahoma; the Navajo Storage Unit of the Colorado River Project in New Mexico and the La Fria Division of the Lower Rio Grande Project in Texas.

important issue squarely up to Defense Secretary Clifford and is now waiting to see what he does — if anything.

ANTIQUE ARMCHAIRS are not what they seem to be for they are made of glazed pottery, not wood. Derek and Dianne Smithson use the seats, which were found by Robert McGuffie when he moved into his country house at Whittrigg, England. Until he cleared the weeds which covered them, he thought they were wooden. Each chair carries the date 1889 and McGuffie is trying to trace their origin.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Reynolds Co. says the technical indicators of the market "seem to be singing a bullish tune," particularly the Dow Jones Industrial and rail averages. Thus, the company says it continues to "feel optimistic" about the chances of the DJJ industrial average achieving the 1,000-level before year's end.

Shearson, Hammill Co. says the market "appears due for a rest" now that all major indicators have reached new 1968 highs and with volume building up to "hectic" levels. It suggests that investors not "chase after stock that are running too fast" and not be "lulled into overconfidence" by the market's recent performance.

Paine Webber Jackson & Curtis observes that Hubert Humphrey and Richard Nixon both subscribe to the "new economics" and no matter who wins, investors can be assured that federal spending will increase. It says both men are determined to "drive the U.S. economy on to greater growths" and "this should be reassuring to investors."

Quirks In The News

OUCH!
LARAMIE, Wyo. (UPI)—University of Wyoming scientists, who have spent $75,000 in federal funds over the past 13 years trying to find out if mosquitoes actually like biting millions of citizens, haven't made much progress.

Prof. William B. Owen, director of the research program, said Tuesday that although there is no immediate use for the information on the taste sensitivity of mosquitoes, it might some day be used in the manufacture of insect repellent.

Fundamental research always precedes practical application," he said.

NEVER SAY DIE
BREINTON, England (UPI)—Harry Gibson and Rose Jenkins, who met 50 years ago and were engaged for 44 years, finally got married this week.

"It was love at first sight," Harry said, explaining it took half a century for the love to bloom because Rose first had to care for her ailing father, then they waited for Harry to retire from his job as a waiter in Staffordshire because Rose wanted to stay in Brinton.

SOME FUN
ROCHDALE, England (UPI)—Mrs. Nora Luff is tired of being a golf widow.

So from now on, whenever husband Bill is home instead of on the golf course, she will fly a British flag on a 10-foot pole from a bedroom window to proclaim the occasion.

"I think she got cheesed off with my golf friends calling when I wasn't home," said Bill. "I'll treat the whole thing as a joke."

NO-CONTEST
FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI)—Ronald Strable didn't go broke in winning his primary race for the Colorado Legislature.

The Fort Collins Republican said he spent 66 cents for 11 letters at six cents each. He was unopposed in the election.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a young man of 29, if you can call 29 "young." I have plenty of hair around my ears, and also in the back, but I am very thin on top. Oh, let's face it, I'm bald!

I recently bought a very natural-looking hair piece, and if I say so myself, it improves my looks 100 per cent. I get along fine at dinner parties and shows but what do I do when I'm invited to go swimming or boating with some of my new friends, who don't know I wear a rug?

And how about when I'm making out with a girl and she wants to run her fingers through my hair?

PHONY: DEAR PHONY: You can fool some of the people some of the time, but they're usually the wrong people, so don't try to fool anybody. Tell your new friends you've got store-bought locks, and carry on accordingly.

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and my problem is that I come from a long line of "profuse perspirers." In other words, we are champion sweat-ers.

My mother walks around the

THURSDAY, OCT. 3, 1968
GENERAL TENDENCIES: This is a day to make in whatever interests you that has to do with charm, beauty, the romantic or the lighter side of life. To those who are susceptible to art, music, culture and the interests, you can have a field day by placing yourself in a position where you can enjoy these worth-while interests. Let your spirit lead you.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Early start in the world of activity brings you great insight and gain knowledge of true values. Sit down with one who can help you clear up enigmas, problems and show gratitude. Be happy in P.M.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Get on the good side of those good people you admire and they can open real doors of opportunity to you. Do not let the social affairs that are worthwhile. Or if you can swing a party yourself, do so.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get into these activities where you know you will be of real value to others and you find that success comes easily now. Gather data from a highbrow. You have real ability — why hide it behind a fearful subconscious?

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Life is going to straighten out very beautifully for you soon, so start preparing now for betterment. Don't forget to write those friends who are most anxious to hear from you. Why be so providing?

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 23) With all that work ahead of you, what are you waiting for? Get busy. Others want you to complete more willingly. Do so. Evening can then be spent in a charming romantic fashion that appeals.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 22) If you come to a better understanding with associates, you can then enjoy some real fun together later in a social way. Be very friendly in talking matters over that concern all. Get right ready for the party.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show others that you are not only a good worker but a staidler — for precision and punctuality. Make this a day for just keeping your nose to the grindstone. Clear the slate for deeper things tomorrow.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you extend little extra favors to those like you, important in your life, you can easily deepen relationships. You have

Methodist Women Attend September Society Meeting

St. Paul's Methodist Women's Society, held their first meeting of the year recently in the home of Mrs. S. T. Holding.

Mrs. Jim Hall, President, discussed changes in the women's society, which were presented at the Sub-District meeting held in Lefors, recently by Mrs. George Colard of Spearman. October will be charter month for all women's society members, Mrs. Hall stated.

Mrs. Kit Autry gave the opening prayer and presented the program on "Allowing God to rule in our lives."

Names were drawn for prayer pals; and last year prayer pals were revealed.

Refreshments were served to Mrs. Chris Patton, Pat Stewart, Frances White, Ruby McWhorter, Kathleen Parsley, Bernia Hefflin, Mary Brown, Zinnia Gaines, Agnes Hall, Mary Bob Laycock, Betty Tucker, Maybelle Carlton, Virginia Cox, Joan McClelland, Ruby Autry, Georgia Holding, and Hazel Franklin.

Fasten a button to garment in five seconds without using needle or thread. Just use a slender gadget filled with a plastic strip of fasteners. It attaches in a similar manner as price tags are fixed to garments and can be used on shank buttons, sequins, apples, trims, pleating curtains, decorating packages, the manufacturer says.

Wear and Toss Away

Paper dresses have gained popularity among the young set. They call it the "fun dress" and it's so inexpensive. What's more no laundry problems. . . you simply throw it away

BREAKING THE RULES in home decorating helps expand room space for a young couple or a bachelor. A couple with tastes for a rich color palette, and space saving in a contemporary mood (top) start with a wall-to-wall carpet in bronze gold Source fiber. A lemon yellow carpet inset outlines a dining area. As accents to set off terra cotta, mustard earth browns, leaf greens and midnight blue is an antique Victorian wall hanging, a Beate poster blown up as a mural and primitive Indian and Eskimo artifacts. An inventive and comfortable pad (bottom) has structural features easy to duplicate. The long-haired shag carpet is in blue and lights recessed under the bed give a floating aspect. down-to-earth is the headboard of rough Vermont barn siding. Recessed book shelves are white. The Art Nouveau screen at right is Plexiglas.

Smile, Little Doggie! NEW YORK (UPI) — It is important to keep your dog's teeth clean, experts at Dog Owners Guidance Service Association say.

Use a child's tooth brush or a washcloth and peroxide or baking soda. Rub gently, then rinse. Some dogs react violently at first. Most soon get used to it. In any case, you needn't do this more than two or three times a week. If much tartar is present, take the canine to the veterinarian for a professional toothcleaning. Feeding a hard biscuit daily also helps keep teeth strong, clean, healthy.

Before freezing sandwiches for future use spread the bread with softened, not melted, butter or margarine to keep the filling from soaking into the bread. If sandwiches are wrapped in moisture-vapor resistant wrap they can be kept frozen for two or three weeks, say U.S. Department of Agriculture food specialists.

Dry Shoes Properly
Dry damp shoes away from heat. Use shoe trees or stuff toes with paper.
Change shoes two or three times a day for comfort, health and longer wear.

Theta Delta Group Starts Club Year

Theta Delta Chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma Society met for its new club year in the Panhandle Heritage Room, recently with Mrs. Clementine Morgan, president, presiding.

Miss Mary Dean Dozier, secretary, presented the appreciation gift to Miss Mary Ewing, retiring president.

Mrs. Rachel Jones, Hazel Parker, Ruby Riddick, and Miss Ila Pool presented a program on the "Value of Professional Organizations."

Hostesses for the noon luncheon which preceded the program were Mrs. Fedella Hogue, Marjorie Ewing, Thelma Holman, and Mrs. Betty Gill.

Members attending from Panhandle were Mrs. Dorothy Broadway, Vera Copeland Grace Evans, Fedella Hogue, Rosemary Melton, Clementine Morgan, Genie Murry, Nanette Padgett, Jayne Sadler, George E. Simms, Barbara Williams, Betty Gill, Betty Hudson and Misses Marjorie Ewing, Mary Ewing, Thelma Holman, also from Panhandle.

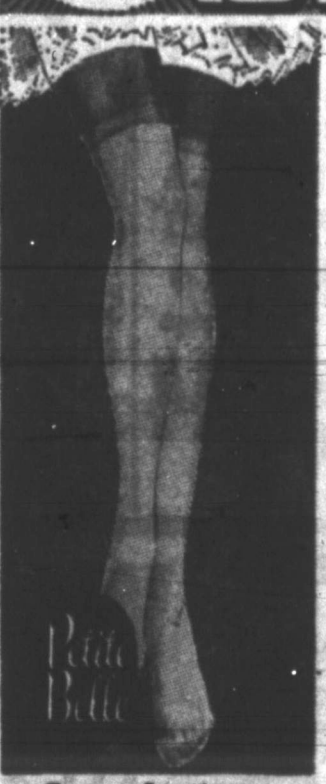

Members from White Deer were Mrs. Shirley Kelly and Edith Morris. Mrs. Kati Strickland from Hart also attended.

Monthly News

OCTOBER, 1968

ARE YOU ALWAYS TIRED?
Real fatigue is brought about by strenuous exercise, hard labor or by illness. Chronic fatigue is usually caused by boredom.

EXAMINE YOUR ROUTINE.
How do you spend your time? Are you always planning to do things but never get around to them? Do you really want to do these things?

AVOID LONELINESS.
Don't spend too much time with yourself. Being alone sometimes is good for the soul but don't overdo it. Take an interest in other people. It can help you to not concentrate on yourself.

PLAN FOR SOMETHING PLEASANT.
Anticipation is one of the great pleasures of life. Plan for something interesting to do when you are finished working.

AVOID EXCESSIVE REST.
Bored, always tired people try to "rest up." If there is no real illness extra rest will not stop fatigue.

HAVE A PHYSICAL EXAMINATION.
The odds are that no serious physical disorder will turn up. But the examination will reassure you and help. For those cases where a vitamin supplement or a tonic is called for, carry a complete stock.

Mormon Choir Broadcast To Be Televised Locally

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah — Sunday morning from 9 to 11. The renowned Salt Lake Mormon Tabernacle Choir, having recently completed a tour of Texas and Mexico, will be featured on television and radio during the 138th Semi-Annual World Conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Oct. 4-6.

The Tabernacle Choir will perform during the session to be broadcast over KPFA-TV, Channel 10, in Amarillo this Sunday morning from 9 to 11. Various conference sessions will be carried over an expanded coast-to-coast network of more than 200 radio and television stations. The 101-year old Tabernacle on Temple Square in Salt Lake City is the site of the convocation.

The choir, in the 121 years of its activities, has given concerts across the United States and Europe. Last year the 375-voice group, under the direction of Richard P. Condie, appeared at the Canadian Expo '67 and in Omaha, Detroit, Boston, Saratoga Springs, Chautauque, N.Y., and Tulsa, Okla. The tour this year has included concerts in Dallas, HemisFair '68 in San Antonio and Mexico City.

The first printing press in the United States began operating in Cambridge, Mass., in 1639.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW
HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes

to watch television by:

The headliners: Tiny Tim appears on CBS-TV's Ed Sullivan Show Sunday... the Beatles perform on the same network's Smothers Brothers series both this Sunday and the one following... a "personal" interview with GOP presidential nominee Richard Nixon in his New York apartment is featured on CBS-TV's new public affairs series, "60 Minutes," next Tuesday... Johnny Carson's late-night NBC-TV show tonight offers highlights of his six years as host.

Gene Kelly, Orson Wells and Milton Berle are guests on CBS-TV's Jackie Gleason hour Saturday... James T. Farrell, author of the famous "Studs Lonigan" trilogy, appears on NBC-TV's "Today" show Friday in a film story that points up the fictional character's Chicago... same day, same series offers a talk with Arthur Krock, former Washington bureau chief of the New York Times, about his book, "Memoirs: Sixty Years on the Firing Line."

Several days after Lucille Ball introduced her new CBS-TV series with her teen-age children, Lucie and Desi Jr., the comedienne's ex-husband, Desi Arnaz, took out a full-page Hollywood trade paper ad addressed to the youngsters... It said: "Lucie and Desi: I am so proud. Love, Dad"... It added: "PS. That red-headed gal playing your mother is the greatest"... Arnaz currently is boss of NBC-TV's "The Mothers-in-Law" series.

Former astronaut Scott Carpenter's stunning wife, Rene, who made a strong video impression in a talk with Jack Parr and Art Buchwald after the assassination of Robert Kennedy, has been named a special NBC-TV correspondent... she will take part in the network's coverage of the Apollo VII space flight, scheduled for Oct. 11... The noted young pianist Andre Watts visits CBS-TV's "Camera Three" Sunday... Bill Cosby returns to NBC-TV next season in a half-hour comedy-drama series about a San Francisco plainclothes detective with a

Hand-Waving Ladies

Thwart Auctioneer

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—She had no cattle, no ranch and worst of all didn't have $1,375 to pay for the bull.

The red-faced lady explained to the auctioneer at the Bluestem National Charolais Association sale Monday night she was only waving to a friend across the ring.

"Okay," sighed auctioneer George Morse, "we'll back up and take the next lowest bid."

That, of course, was her friend across the arena, waving back.

Morse called a halt to the whole thing and delivered a lecture on sitting on your hands if you don't want to buy a bull. Then he started selling the animal all over again.

NAZI ARRESTED

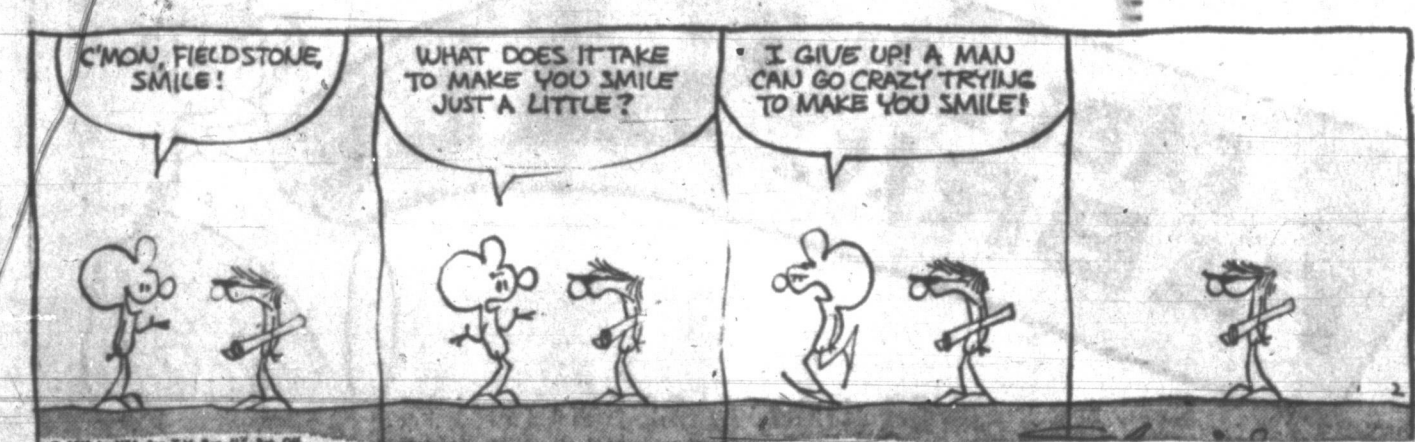

BAD HOFGASTEIN, Austria (UPI)—Police arrested Julian Armandus van Doren, 66, Monday for alleged war crimes committed as a Nazi collaborator in Belgium 25 years ago. Police said he had lived in this Austrian resort for the past 23 years under an assumed name.

Denny McLain

Series Opens Today

By JOHN G. GRIFFIN
UPI Executive Sports Editor

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (UPI)—Baseball's "year of the pitcher" comes down to a fitting climax today when the two best, Bob Gibson of the St. Louis Cardinals and Denny McLain of the Detroit Tigers, match fireballs in the opening game of the 1968 World Series.

Amid forecasts that the first-game pitching duel might foretell the outcome of the whole series, a crowd of 54,575 was expected to fill glittering Busch Memorial Stadium on the banks of the Mississippi River for the start of the game at 1 p.m. CDT.

Odds makers have tabbed the defending world champion Cards 8-5 favorites to take the opening game. And, in line with those forecasts, they quote the Cards the same 8-5 picks to win the whole series.

The opening game spotlight was squarely on Gibson, who had a 22-9 record this year after pitching the deciding victory in the 1967 series against the Red Sox, and McLain, whose 31-6 record made him the first pitcher in 34 years to win 30 games in a single season.

Pitchers' Season And that seemed only proper as the windup to a long baseball season that included five no-hit games and saw the pitchers dominate the hitters so completely that the bats seemed to have turned into toothpicks.

Gibson and McLain both tried to take some of the pressure off themselves by pooh-poohing the "duel." Neither sounded very convincing.

"The only game that matters in a series is the last one," said Gibson, who makes a specialty of winning last games in a series—he's done it twice. "Winning the first game or even the first three games doesn't mean a thing if you don't win the war," was the way McLain put it.

But the contrast between the two flame-throwing right-handers dominated the pre-game speculation.

Gibson, although owning fewer victories, came down to the clash in better physical shape. Unlike last season, when he came back to series glory after breaking his leg during the regular season, the big man with the overpowering fast ball says he is in top condition. "In the series last year," he said, "I felt like I was on ice skates."

Sore Shoulder But McLain is hurting—and right where it counts, in the shoulder behind his right pitching arm. The Tiger star insists the pain, which has bothered him for several months, is from a "torn" muscle. The Tigers' management says the muscle isn't torn, just strained.

"The manager and the trainer say it's not torn," said McLain, "but they're not doctors. My doctor says it's torn. Not ripped but torn, slightly. It hurts even while I'm sitting here talking to you."

McLain, who plays the organ and is a fun-loving fellow off the field, isn't very funny to the Cardinals. As a matter of fact, they think he's a loud-mouth who needs to be taught a lesson. Pinned to the bulletin board in the Cards' dressing room is a crumpled copy of a Detroit newspaper in which McLain was quoted at the Tigers' victory celebration as saying, "I don't just want to beat the Cardinals—I want to humiliate the Cardinals."

Regrets Remark McLain admits he made the crack about "humiliating" the Cards, but he wishes folks would forget about it.

"I said it, but I didn't mean it," McLain said. "I was under the influence of champagne and happiness." The reason the Cards are favored could be the fact that the opening of the series finds the Tigers juggling their lineup while the Cards are still set with exactly the same lineup that played the opening game of last year's series.

Detroit Manager Mayo Smith planned to bench shortstop Ray Oyler, play centerfielder Mickey Stanley at short, rightfielder

Jim Northrup in center, and put Al Kaline in rightfield. It's a great break for Kaline, the aging 33-year-old star who carried the Tigers for many of his 16 seasons and now gets into his first World Series in the twilight of his career.

But for a pennant-winner to be rejiggering lineups in the series is an ominous sign apparently not lost on the odds makers.

Players Set Out To Rewrite Record Book

DALLAS (UPI)—A host of Southwest Conference players are setting out to rewrite conference record books just two weeks deep in the season.

Chuck Hixson, the pass-happy quarterback from Southern Methodist and others including Norman Bulaich, TCU, Larry Alford, Texas Tech, Jerry Levis of SMU have begun the assault at a statistically staggering pace.

Hixson set individual records for pass attempts, completions and yardage in a single game last week in a loss to Ohio State.

The SMU sophomore has attempted and completed twice as many passes as his nearest competitor. He has completed 64 of 117 aerials while runner-up Alvin Flynn of Baylor has a 27 for 57 mark.

TCU's hard running Norman Bulaich replaced Texas' Chris Gilbert as the leading rusher in the conference. Gilbert has led the SWC in this department for the last two seasons.

Bulaich, who missed last season because of injuries, has amassed 251 yards in two games and is running at a 7.6 yard-per-rush pace. Sophomore Tony Conley of Rice moved to second place with 213 yards.

Texas Tech's defense held Gilbert to a mere 29 yards Saturday dropping the Longhorn running back to third place with 188 yards, five yards ahead of Mike Richardson of SMU.

Texas Tech's Larry Alford, cited by Texas coach Darrell Royal as a prime reason for the Raiders' 31-22 upset of the Longhorns, is way out in front of defending the title he won in 1967. He has returned seven punts for 208 yards leading Gary Adams of Arkansas who has returned one less punt but for a total of only 68 yards.

Jerry Levis, all-SWC flanker of SMU, bagged 15 passes against Ohio State bettering by two the old mark set by A&M's Duke McLain in 1965. Levis leads in the receiving department followed by pass-catching mate Ken Fleming.

Van Brocklin Is Falcon Mentor

ATLANTA (UPI)—Norm Van Brocklin is burning the midnight oil in order to bone up as quickly as possible on the Atlanta Falcons.

The "Dutchman" became head coach of the Falcons Tuesday in a poorly-concealed surprise move that saw Norb Hecker get the axe.

He was in town and consulting with his new assistants less than 12 hours after accepting the job from Falcon President Rankin Smith, a multimillionaire insurance executive, who suddenly became fed up with seeing his team lose.

"Last night I made the agonizing decision to replace Norb Hecker," a grim-faced Smith said Tuesday. "I have felt for some time that the club was not making the kind of progress I had anticipated in order for it to become competitive in the National Football League."

But Van Brocklin warned that things aren't likely to be much different at first. "It's hard to make many changes this late in the season," he said.

Van Brocklin has been out of football since quitting the Minnesota Vikings at the end of the 1966 season because of a widely-publicized feud with his quarterback Fran Tarkenton, now with the New York Giants. He doesn't have much time to get back into stride since this Sunday the winless Falcons host the aroused Green Bay Packers. The world champion packers figure to be out for blood after losing two games in a row.

Mollenkopf Coach Of The Week

By KURT FREUDENTHAL

LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI)—They knocked him flat on the sidelines but "The Ripper" shrugged it off as "just one of those things."

He ignored his bruised right arm and elbow, kept barking the orders and greeted his friendly arch-rival, Ara Parseghian, at mid-field all smiles.

It was Purdue '37, Norte Dame '22, Saturday in another one of their classic football scraps that made Jack Mollenkopf UPI's "Coach of the Week." It marks the third year in a row Mollenkopf has been so honored.

Maybe licking proud Notre Dame is getting to be old hat for the burly Mollenkopf, whose boys pulled it off for the ninth time in 13 years, but to the head man of the Bollermakers it's a new thrill every time.

"It's a great victory for Purdue and a great victory for me," he beamed, "perhaps the greatest. I can't think of one game that has meant more to me."

Last year the Bollermakers were 14-point underdogs and won, 28-21, when the Irish also were the top-ranked power in the country. This time Purdue was a one-touchdown underdog and ranked No. 2 by the UPI Board of Coaches. That they would climb to the No. 1 spot after belting the Irish at South Bend was a foregone conclusion.

"It's gratifying being No. 1 so early in the season," said Mollenkopf. "We were fortunate to win and Notre Dame has nothing to be ashamed of. They're a fine football team."

This was a team effort, Mollenkopf let it be known, that started Monday before the game when the battle plans were fashioned.

"We spent a great deal of time planning for Notre Dame," conceded Mollenkopf. "The staff did a great job preparing for the game and our players came through with tremendous execution of plays."

S'West Conference Eye Saturday Foes

By United Press International

Southwest Conference football teams took stock of the week-end damage Tuesday and began preparation for their various contests scheduled for Saturday.

Most of the teams tested their offensive and defensive teams against plays used by their opponents, and a few brushed up on their weak points.

The feature game of the weekend will put Arkansas in Fort Worth against TCU in the conference opener for both teams. The Red Raiders of Texas Tech stand alone at the top with a 1-0 conference record after a win over Texas.

Disappointing Workout TCU coach Fred Taylor said Tuesday's workout badly disappointed him.

"We had better snap back into shape beginning tomorrow to get ready for Arkansas," Taylor said.

Taylor said defensive back Mike Hall has a bad foot and offensive tackle Fred Barber has a strained knee. If they do not make the game Saturday, Gregg Webb and Gerald Kirby will replace them.

On the other side of the fence Arkansas went through two hours of work in pads and

Lemm Says Raiders Were Holding

HOUSTON (UPI)—Coach Wally Lemm of the Houston Oilers charged Tuesday that several members of the Oakland Raiders offensive line held Oiler defenders throughout the game Sunday when the Oilers lost 24-15.

Lemm said tight end Billy Cannon was the worst of the lot. "All he does is grab a guy by the arm and pull him down and roll over him. When he misses his arm, he misses his block. He never made a block successfully that he did not hold."

The Oiler coach said he pulled his defensive end Gary Cutsinger "because he looked like he was not doing his job, only to find out they were holding him. I'd like to show you men the film, but it's against league rules."

Lemm said Cutsinger complained to the officials but it did no good.

"If it takes a flag on every play, that's what they should do. If they did that, they'd have to move Cannon to running back."

Eggers Exploring Prospects For Public Hunting and Gun Training

AUSTIN — Paul Eggers, Republican gubernatorial candidate, said he is exploring prospects for state-sponsored public hunting areas and gun-safety training for young Texans.

Eggers, a hunting enthusiast, said it is paradoxical that Texas faces its greatest wildlife harvest with traditionally inadequate sportsmen's access.

He said this strange condition would not be so acute if the state had finished a game modernization program begun in 1967. Then, he said, hunters supported refinancing of wildlife management techniques through higher hunting fees.

"But the job was left unfinished with the result that more deer now perish from hunger and disease on the overpopulated ranges than are bagged by hunters," he said.

Eggers said it would be up to the sportsmen to again act through their legislators to determine the approach to the needed access program.

The GOP candidate said studies are being made of public hunting land programs in such states as Pennsylvania where acquisitions dating back several years now total millions of acres. He said pyramiding land prices may give the proposal a high priority in future planning.

Eggers said he was inspired to advocate a statewide gun safety program for youngsters because of the high annual Texas toll and the fact the first three fatalities of the current hunting season involved teenagers. One 15-year-old was shot in the back by another boy. A 15-year-old killed himself while trying to load a shotgun. An 18-year-old's shotgun, leaning against a fence post, fired and discharged, fatally wounding a companion.

Eggers suggested state game wardens, many of whom now specialize in safety routine, could provide a nucleus for the official program and be properly rewarded salary-wise for their talents.

Meredith Tops Passers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Long frustrated and much maligned, Don Meredith may find this his year of victory and vindication.

As Meredith has never won league passing honors, his Dallas Cowboys have never won a National Football League title.

After the third week of NFL action Meredith finds himself at the head of the list of passers and the Cowboys with an impressive 3-0 record.

The Dallas signal caller has completed 70.7 per cent of his passes for 615 yards and seven touchdowns and has had only one of his tosses intercepted.

Meredith is followed by the New York scrambler, Fran Tarkenton, who has completed 60.3 per cent for 626 yards and five TD's.

Chicago's Gale Sayers leads the league's rushers with 256 yards with a six-yard per carry average. Bill Brown of Minnesota follows with 221 yards and a five-yard per carry average.

Brown tops the league's scorers with 38 points on six TD's while New York place kicker Pete Gogolak holds the second spot with 32 points.

San Francisco's Clifton McNeil leads the league's pass receivers with 15 receptions for 204 yards. Charley Taylor of Washington is second with 15 catches and 173 yards.

Chuck Latourrette of St. Louis is leading in punt returns with an average run-back of 23.6 yards. Los Angeles' Ron Smith leads in kickoff returns with a 38.7 average. New York's Spider Lockhart is tops in interceptions with four, good for 130 yards and two TD's. Mike Bragg of Washington leads the league's punters with a 45.2 yard average.

EVER STRIVING FOR THE TOP O' TEXAS
TO BE AN EVEN BETTER PLACE TO LIVE

The Pampa News is dedicated to furnishing information to our readers so that they can better promote and preserve their own freedom and encourage others to see its blessing. Only when man is free to control himself and all he produces, can he develop to his utmost capabilities.

We believe that freedom is a gift from God and not a political grant from government. Freedom is neither license, nor anarchy. It is control and sovereignty of oneself. No more, no less. It is thus consistent with the Human Relations Commandments, the Golden Rule and the Declaration of Independence.

The Political Nut-Nuts

When fallible, error-prone human beings start setting themselves up as little tin gods professing to possess the knowledge and wisdom to dictate to others how they must live their lives, spend their earnings and make use of their property, anything can happen — and usually does. Were the results not so tragic, freedom-destroying and disruptive of life in general, one could guffaw and move on to other things.

With some 56 million laws, regulations and administrative edicts already on the books impinging on every facet of our daily lives, apparently the human engineer nut-nuts are experiencing difficulty in finding anything else in the adult world to meddle in and regulate; consequently, they are increasingly turning their energies to moulding and crimping the lives and blotting out the sunshine of helpless children.

Two recent UPI news stories help to make our point. Run these through your think box as examples of bureaucratic arrogance, stupidity and left-handed not-knowing-what-right-hand-is-doing unthinkings.

The first story, datelined Youngstown, Ohio, told how local authorities have passed a law prohibiting anyone over 6 years of age from going barefoot on the city streets. The first offense, under the ordinance, will call for a $5 fine; the second, $10.

How's that for stifling the joys of being young and making lawbreakers out of children? You'd think the city dads, in their immaturity and pretended omnipotence, would remember occasionally that they were once children themselves. Oh, the Youngstown ordinance-passers have a ready excuse, of course. The object of the law, we are told, is to "prevent athletes' foot, lockjaw and warts."

Now, that seems to make just a little bit of sense until one remembers that, in the public school system, children are forced to take baths in common showers where germs really proliferate.

Then, too, what business is it of the authorities if children, with the consent of their parents, want to take the chance, slight as it might be, of picking up the mentioned germs by going barefoot? Those children whose parents don't want them to be exposed have merely to put on shoes, leaving the others in freedom, to go barefoot if they choose, but that wouldn't require a law, and tax paid bureaucrats to enforce it, would it?

The second story, had to do with a just passed federal "poverty war" money bill for schools. The bill contains a curious provision forbidding "the use of federal funds to force the busing of students or forcing any student to attend a school to overcome racial imbalance."

Now, the "curious" aspect of the bill becomes evident, proving that the lawmakers would not know a donkey from a hole in the ground, when one remembers that funds, under other federal provisions, are being withheld from schools which fail to integrate "with all deliberate speed."

Truly, we are living in an age of idiocy.

Hippie Utopia Not Happy

Few stories about life among the hippies have been more revealing of the pathetic nature of that way of life than the short, unhappy history of their Utopia in Harmonsburg, Pa.

The reading of it ought to dispel any notion that there is very much glamor or excitement in the flower children's revolt against the "false-values of society."

Last June, finding the Haight-Ashbury district of San Francisco becoming an increasingly bad scene because of crack-downs by the authorities, some 40 hippie men, women and children migrated to a farm near the tiny community in the northwest corner of Pennsylvania. There they asked only to be left alone, wishing to bother no one and wanting no one to bother them.

At first, the people of Harmonsburg were willing to grant them that. The hippies kept to themselves, existing on what food they could raise and on handouts from the sympathetic and the curious. The latter began to include thrill-seeking teen-agers visiting nearby Conneaut Lake Park, lured by stories of free love and drug orgies, as well as part-time and traveling hippies from elsewhere in the country.

Trouble for the hippie colony started when infectious hepatitis broke out in July. Public health officials administered mass inoculations to head off an incipient epidemic, not only among the hippies but among the hundreds who had had contact with them.

It was narcotics, however, that finally doomed the colony. When the hippies began raising their own crop of marijuana, police moved in, closed the place down and hauled the tenants off on a charge of keeping a disorderly house.

Just as to call the windowless, weather-beaten, ramshackle farmhouse a "house" is an exaggeration, to call it "disorderly" is an understatement that would be ludicrous were it not so pitiable.

The hippies, some of them college-trained, displayed a naivete that is astounding. They did not know enough, or care enough, to dig their common latrine on ground lower than their common well. Dozens of dogs, cats and a pair of goats shared living quarters with the humans.

In the hippie world, apparently everything is beautiful. One hippie explained why a dog running through his food did not bother him:

"Its paws only touched dirt, and dirt is part of God."

Unfortunately for the hippies, as the hepatitis outbreak should have proved, simple hygiene is not an invention of the squares designed to thwart man's desire for union with God. It is the knowledge gained through centuries of human suffering, during which millions of little children died before they ever had a chance to "do their thing."

And the children. Two of the hippie pre-schoolers did not know who their parents were, and one of them did not even know whether she was a boy or a girl.

The Harmonsburg hippie haven is now no more. Whatever insights into truth, beauty or human happiness the flower children discovered there remains an impenetrable mystery to the square world.

News—Russian Style

Stop running so many features and fillers and start printing more news and information in the order that has gone out from the Communist Party Central Committee in Moscow to newspaper editors all over Russia, reports the New York Times.

It seems that local papers are wont to edify their readers with stories about, for example,

"a bird that can fly backwards" or "a wander frog half the size of a matchbox that can kill jaguars."

So Russian newspapers start printing the "news," Kremlin version. Will it be any more believable than tall tales about fantastic birds and frogs?

The Treaty The Russians Want

For many Americans, the nuclear non-proliferation treaty now before the U.S. Senate is profoundly confusing. "Non-proliferation" sounds like gobbledygook and frequently produces disinterest where it does not result in confusion. Yet this treaty, ostensibly designed to halt the spread of nuclear weapons, is a very important matter. If it is ratified by the Senate, the security of free peoples will be gravely endangered.

The control of nuclear weapons is a desirable objective. Since the first atomic bomb was exploded, the U.S. has sought a reasonable policy of control. But the Soviet Union sees control of nuclear weapons in the context of its own plans for political domination and military conquest.

The U.S. public should ask why the Soviets have agreed to the non-proliferation treaty? The answer, based on the evidence of communist actions, is that the Soviet Union regards the treaty as a means of curbing the defense potential of America's allies in the cold war. Specifically, the Soviets see the non-proliferation treaty as a guarantee that West Germany will never obtain any nuclear defenses. And as one of the central themes of Soviet foreign policy is the neutralization of West Germany and its eventual subordination to the USSR, they recognize the treaty as a major step forward for the communist cause.

Even as the treaty was reported out by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which is dominated by senatorial "liberals" such as Sen. W. J. Fulbright, the Russians were asserting a "right" to intervene in West Germany. Free men everywhere were confronted with the spectre of new Soviet aggression directed against the people of West Berlin.

Viewed either in terms of short-run or long-range situations in Europe, it would be shocking and disastrous for the Senate to ratify the non-proliferation treaty. This action would signify to the West Germans, who already are fearful that the United States may seek an accommodation with the Kremlin that costs them their freedom, that Germany can never expect to have the type of defenses that provide the only effective guarantee of security in the atomic age.

Ratification of the treaty, coming on the heels of the Russian invasion of Czechoslovakia, would cause the spread of fear throughout all of America's beleaguered allies in the cold war. As Richard Nixon pointed out recently, ratification now "would leave the impression that we approve the action of the Soviets" in Czechoslovakia. If America signs a treaty with the Soviet Union at this point, it will be grasping a hand that bears the blood of the engulfed Czech people.

The nuclear non-proliferation treaty has been five years in the drafting and discussion stage. Both the Kennedy and Johnson administrations have helped shape it. The draft treaty is illustrative of the illusion fostered by these administrations—the illusion that the Soviets are mellowing and genuine want peace.

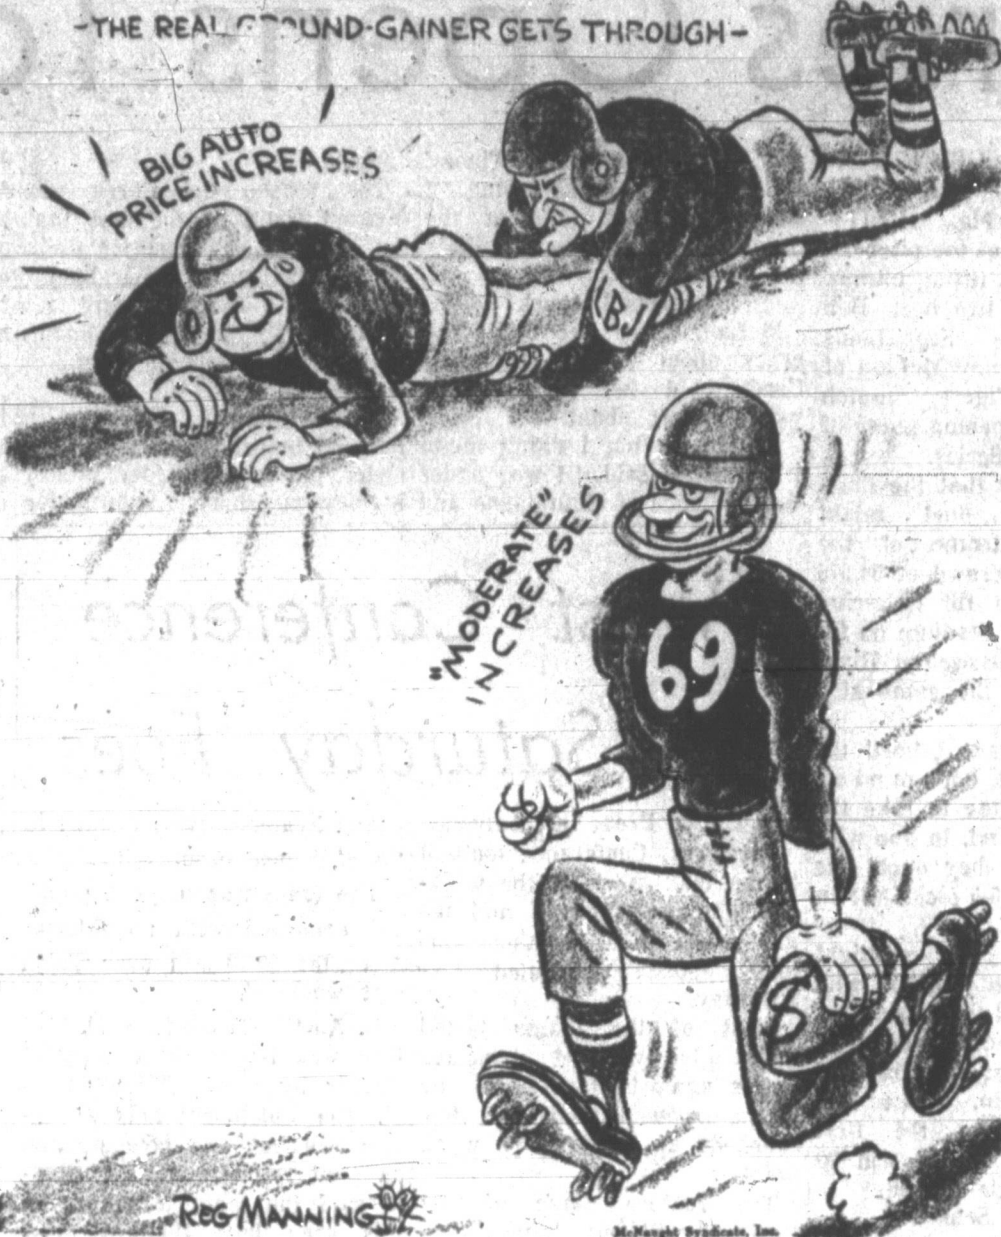

It is increasingly apparent that the American people in the November election will reject the political course taken by the Kennedy and Johnson administrations since 1961. The American people unquestionably want a tougher line in dealing with the Kremlin. To force through a nuclear non-proliferation treaty, scant weeks before a new President is chosen, is an act on a par with Mr. Johnson's last-ditch political effort to impose Abe Fortas as Chief Justice.

If the West Germans discover that they are to be permanently treated as second-class citizens in the NATO alliance of free peoples, they may become bitter and angry and turn away from the United States. How can the United States legitimately and fairly agree to deny nuclear arms to the Germans when both the French and the British possess such weapons?

Behind the effort to ratify the nuclear non-proliferation treaty is some curious thinking that surely is not in accord with what the people think in this country. The reasoning involved in the treaty is that it's better to trust the Russians than the West Germans, who are

Russian Preparations to Dredge and Open Suez Could Trigger Explosive New Clash in Middle East

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON. — Russia is menacingly pouring more highly volatile fuel on the already supercharged Middle East Powder Keg.

In recent weeks, the Soviet has been unobtrusively assembling a flotilla of giant dredges, cranes and other equipment at Port Said, at the Mediterranean entrance of the Suez Canal.

The obvious purpose of this ominous development can only be to undertake to reopen the canal, which has been closed since Israel seized the eastern bank in its crushing defeat of Egypt in the six-day war in June 1967. The waterway is blocked by some 15 scuttled and other vessels, plus more than a year of accumulating silt.

Israel has repeatedly proclaimed it will forcibly resist any attempt to clear the canal without a negotiated agreement with Egypt.

Fully aware of the steadily expanding array of Russian dredging equipment and personnel at Port Said, Israel has privately made it very clear it will destroy any Soviet or other unauthorized craft that seeks to enter the canal.

This blunt warning sets the stage for a possible head-on military confrontation between tiny Israel and super-power Russia.

Should such a clash occur, it is a foregone conclusion that it would inevitably be accompanied by an instantaneous outbreak of another round of the Arabs' prolonged war against Israel. In fact, it's very probable that a coordinated Arab attack would be part of the underlying Soviet strategy.

Such an extremely sinister situation would inescapably involve the U.S. and other Western powers with a vital stake in the Middle East.

What happens after that is anyone's guess.

FOREBODING EVENTS

Military and intelligence authorities are convinced there is a direct connection between this latest Russian move and Egypt's recent greatly intensified truculence toward Israel. It is deemed as no coincidence that last month, shortly after the first Soviet dredges reached Port Said, Egypt suddenly launched a fierce day-long artillery attack along the entire Suez Canal. Subsequently, it was established that Russian officers commanded the Egyptian batteries, using highly sophisticated electrical and radar sighting and aiming devices. The firing was the most accurate ever received from the Egyptian side.

Also cited as disturbingly significant are the now-frequent Egyptian hit-and-run raids across the canal at night. These have all the earmarks of intelligence operations with the primary mission of capturing prisoners for interrogation.

Another ominous factor is the marked increase in the number of Soviet military personnel in Egypt.

These so-called "advisers" and "technicians" are now estimated as totaling around 10,000. They include at least 200 jet fighter and bomber pilots who are flying Soviet-supplied planes with Egyptian markings.

The dredging barges, cranes and other equipment are coming from Russian ports on the Black Sea, chiefly Odessa. After clearing the Dardanelles, they traverse the Mediterranean by circuitous stages. The first two barges wandered around for nearly a month before reaching Port Said.

Ships and planes of the U.S. Sixth Fleet, operating in the Mediterranean, maintain a close scrutiny of these and other Soviet activities.

REUKING JOHNSON — High-placed Democratic resentment at President Johnson's persistent refusal to sell 50 supersonic Phantom fighter-bombers to Israel came out bluntly into the open in an extraordinary discussion on the Senate floor.

Three top Democratic senators made it very clear that they sharply disapproved of the President's unyielding stand. While they said, went unreported in the press, their caustic comments did not escape White House attention. How much effect they will have is conjectural, but they were remarkably outspoken.

Taking part in this unusual exchange were Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield, Mont., Stuart Symington, Mo., former Air Force secretary and member of the Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees, and John Sparkman, Ala., chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee.

Symington opened by charging flatly, "If these planes are not sold to Israel, and if later Nasser succeeds in his oft-repeated declaration to destroy Israel and drive its people into the sea, much of the responsibility for that tragedy will rest with this administration. In a world where friends would seem extremely important, the U.S. will have lost a great and loyal ally."

Mansfield asked if it was true that the U.S. has "furnished jets to Jordan." Symington stated that was correct.

"Is it also true," continued Mansfield, "that we are selling 50 of these jets to Iran?"

"That is so," replied Symington. "That request will be acted upon shortly by the Foreign Relations Committee of which the Senator and I are both members. I would hope we do not agree to sell other countries these jets until it is definitely understood we will also sell them to Israel, especially because the Soviets are supplying planes of this kind to Israel's enemies and Israel can buy them from no one except the U.S."

Senator Sparkman pointed out that Congress recently approved a provision in the foreign aid authorization bill recommending that the administration sell 50 Phantom supersonic jets to Israel.

"For 15 months at least," Symington said, "when it became obvious to Israel that France would not release the jet fighters Israel had bought and paid for, the Israeli have been pleading with our government to sell them planes to protect themselves. I have done my best to persuade the State Department to approve this, but so far to no avail. I think the time is long past when we should supply enough jets to at least reduce the heavy imbalance which currently exists in favor of those countries that consistently proclaim their desire to destroy Israel."

Representative Edward Derwinski, R-Ill., member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, has written Secretary of State Dean Rusk sharply demanding that resumption of diplomatic relations with Egypt be predicated on that country's meeting four conditions.

"It would seem to me," wrote Derwinski, "that a clear-cut public apology by Nasser would be a first prerequisite. We are also entitled to assurances that Egypt will abide by the United Nations cease-fire arrangement and heed the calls of the United States for talks with Israel leading to peace. Further, that Egypt will cease providing the Soviet with air and naval bases. And finally, we should accept nothing less than the withdrawal of all Russian military personnel from Egypt as a minimum condition for resuming relations."

Derwinski has yet to get a reply from Rusk.

HHH Bears 'In' Stigma: Resignation Can't Help

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
Washington Correspondent

CLEVELAND (NEA) — Vice President Humphrey's aides say privately that the political world would be amazed at the identity and the number of key Democrats who have urged him to resign his high office to divorce himself from President Johnson on Vietnam and other issues troubling the nation.

There seems no likelihood at all he will take this step. And more than a few of Humphrey's advisers argue that it would probably do him far more harm than good in his race against Richard Nixon and George Wallace.

Dovish Democrats of the McCarthy stripe appear to believe that if the vice president can just separate himself from the President on the Vietnam war then millions of eager voters will come flocking to his banner and strengthen his now fragile hopes of victory. But supporting evidence is lacking. No polling data or other surveys suggest that acceptance of such dovish terms as an unconditional U.S. bombing halt in Vietnam would unlock the door to great clusters of votes. The biggest likely gain would be the willing field efforts of countless McCarthyites presently sitting on their hands.

Yet that application of dovish energy would not begin to cure Hubert Humphrey's real problems.

The root of his difficulties is the widely held notion among U.S. voters that the Johnson-led administration is presiding over general chaos of which the war is only a part and not necessarily the worst part.

It is crime, riot, the turmoil in the streets and college campuses, the compelling signs of internal party disarray that combine to hit most voters with disturbing force. The country's mood of revulsion against this tide of turbulence may be so strong that nothing can stem it and, consequently, nothing can save Humphrey from defeat. Some of his advisers are wondering aloud about that prospect.

They (and he) have not, however, concluded that this outcome is inevitable. On his brief side foray to see his mother in South Dakota the other day, the vice president held a serious strategy talk just out of a reporter's earshot, and other such talks are being held at furious pace.

This reporter turned up two highly competent party professionals in Ohio, supposedly one of Humphrey's gloomiest spots, who insist that his outlook in the state is far from hopeless. Since the big states run to a pattern, Ohio would have to be better than indicated to give any plausibility to the vice president's claims of good prospect in New York, Pennsylvania, California and elsewhere.

Nevertheless, the foundations of real hope for Humphrey are still not clearly visible. His advisers evidently are looking to what may be called the "Wallace variable" for their greatest encouragement. Wallace's astonishing poll showings have the regulars in both parties aghast. With an indicated present one-fifth of the vote leaning his way, it is agreed by the experts in the two parties that the former Alabama governor is hurting both Humphrey and Nixon.

What cannot easily be gauged is where the hurt will be felt most if Wallace gains any more, or who will benefit most if he starts to fade as the campaign waxes.

It is now an article of faith in the Humphrey camp that they, with labor leaders pressing hard, must get back much of the blue-collar vote Wallace has taken. What Humphrey strategists cannot be sure of is that Nixon might not benefit at least as much from a Wallace fadeout, since his third party candidacy is cutting into the GOP's standard strength in suburban and rural areas.

The vice president really needs to hope that he can recapture voters from Wallace and also drum out a huge Negro and other minority vote while Nixon somehow keeps on suffering the Wallace onslaught. It could prove to be the sheerest fantasy.

There is no sign yet that Humphrey is talking to the nation's mood. His recitals of Democratic achievement, even of 90 months of boom, do not sell. The voters' minds are on the chaos of war and urban struggle. Humphrey must bear the burden of responsibility they are laying upon him. There is no convincing proof he could escape it even if he resigned. Nixon and Wallace have one supreme advantage. They are "out," and Humphrey has been "in" while the country's troubles have built to the bursting point.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economic and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Some say it is logical to lower the voting age to 18 because 18 is the fighting age for males. If these logical gentry were consistent, would they not complain as loudly about granting the vote to women and cripples? If fighting entitles one to vote, shouldn't not-fighting prevent one from voting? Or should we leave our "logical" cake half-baked?

ANSWER: There appears to be merit in the suggestions implied in the questions. We doubt if there is any far or just way to determine who is going to vote for political candidates. The privilege of voting has been granted by politicians, who have usually set qualifications, based on age, literacy, and in some instances on ownership of property.

The age of 21 is an arbitrary one, based theoretically on that being the age of "consent," where a young man is free to marry, sign legal papers and take other acts without obtaining consent of his parents. However, those who are subject to the draft at age 18 certainly have just cause to complain that they have no way to vote against legislators who favor involuntary servitude (the draft).

Perhaps if the voting privilege were based on the amount of servitude exacted against an individual — either in time in the military or taxes on one's earnings and property — the distribution of the privilege would be more nearly just than to grant an individual the vote because of age or literacy.

But if ability to fight in the military services is the criterion to be established for voting, then it could logically be expected that those who are not members of the military service would not be qualified.

In Jakarta, the Indonesian flag flies at half staff and then, 24 hours later, moves up dramatically and flutters from the top of the mast.

Into the jungled hills surrounding the dusty little town of Blitar in eastern Java, birthplace of one-time president-for-life Sukarno, an army squad disappears only to reappear later as a Communist guerrilla force.

From political exile in Bogor, 40 miles south of Jakarta, Sukarno is brought to be asked about crimes against the state "past and present."

And, as part of the ceremonies observing the third anniversary of an abortive Communist attempt to take over Indonesia, strongman President Suharto leads a pilgrimage to "Crocodile Hole," the abandoned well from which the bodies of six Indonesian generals, mutilated by the Communists, were recovered on that morning of Oct. 1, three years ago.

These are the symbols of near-defeat and despair to a victory still not consolidated and of a continuing struggle in which neither Sukarno nor the Communists have yet given up.

And they lead to the question, is a Communist take-over still possible in Indonesia?

Sukarto and his generals say no. A better answer probably is not in the foreseeable future. But it is a question that merits examination.

When the Communists made their move three years ago, theirs was the biggest party outside the Soviet Union and Red China. Membership was listed at three million, plus countless sympathizers.

Through 20 years of rule, Sukarno had built monuments to national prestige and fed his people on slogans.

In the closing days, inflation leaped upward at a rate of 400 per cent per day.

In the weeks which followed failure of the Communist coup, hundreds of thousands of Reds died in a blood bath whose full extent is now known. There were demands that Sukarno himself be made to face the death penalty for compliance, if not complicity, with the coup.

Exams Are Available To Applicants For Service Academies

New applicants for the Army Air Force and Navy academies still have time to take the Civil Service exams scheduled for early October and November, according to Congressman Bob Price.

Price said that vacancies exist in the classes beginning in June, 1969 for West Point, Annapolis, Air Force and Merchant Marine.

Exams are scheduled in Amarillo and other Panhandle communities on Oct. 5 and Nov. 9. "Those nominated as a result of the Civil Service exams will then compete in a battery of tests given by the services," Price said.

In addition to the principals selected on this basis for each vacancy many of the alternates who qualify will also be selected by the services for other vacancies. Price added.

Applications should be addressed to:

Teacher Rose Above Physical Handicap

By PRESTON F. KIRK

HOUSTON (UPI)—Most people first notice the heavy metal braces and scuffed brown oxfords when they meet Carmen Medina.

Only then do their eyes venture a look into the smile of the 22-year-old Houston schoolteacher who rose above the challenge of her handicap to meet the challenge of the classroom.

Miss Medina, struck by polio at the age of four, graduated last May from Our Lady of the Lake College in San Antonio. She now teaches a classroom full of second graders at Thomas Rusk elementary.

The "B" student credited her whole family with the encouragement to seek an education.

"I could always count on them to give me moral support," as well as financial support. But she readily admits "no one ever forced me to get an education and go this far. I did it because I wanted to do it."

Held Two Jobs

Carmen was not only junior class president in college, but spent spare moments working at her mother's flower shop or involved in operation head start. In San Antonio she worked with the War on Poverty and at the campus post office.

And this summer she was licensed to drive an automobile, adding further to her list of credits.

But driving and getting an education sometimes seem relatively simple after coping with classroom problems every day. "I sometimes think I might retire before Thanksgiving," she said. "I teach 7 to 8 year olds . . . mostly in a lower economic group. They are pretty difficult."

Expected Difficulty
Miss Medina said she expected to have to explain to the children a hundred times over about her difficulty.

"I actually found fewer problems than I was expecting. I explained to the children my problem and what was wrong with me. I've only had two children ask if I had been in a car accident."

Although the race is seemingly over, Miss Medina has other plans. "I would like to get certified in special education and work with the orthopedically handicapped."

"I was in a special education class once, and I found so many kids that felt sorry for themselves," she said. "I think I can help—especially on the elementary level, before they get set in their ways."

"There is nothing really to stop me."
