ExxonMobil

Landmen fear case will spur more lawsuits

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

A royalty lawsuit filed by Texas Attorney General John Cornyn against ExxonMobil could have far-reaching implications for the oil and gas industry.

Cornyn announced Thursday that his office would seek to recover tens of millions of dollars in state mineral interests from ExxonMobil. The lawsuit claims ExxonMobil pumped millions of dollars of oil from beneath 50 acres of right of way owned by the state in the Hawkins field.

Under Texas law, the individual who brought the situation to the attention of the attorney general, a landman from Coleman County, is entitled to claim up to 5 percent of any settlement or court judgment.

Erick Hanson, a Midland landman and president of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen (AAPL), said the landman's group was watching the case closely and would begin research on the legal points. He said the lawsuit, which provides monetary reward to the individual who brought it to the attention of the Attorney General's Office, has the potential to stimulate "bounty hunters" to fan out across the state looking for similar cases.

Morris Burns, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, said he was hopeful the case would not lead to a proliferation of lawsuits.

Glen Larum, spokesman for the Texas Department of Transportation in Odessa, said he was unaware of any similar irregularities in West Texas. "I would think this area has been pretty well combed by landmen over the years."

Hanson said in his years of writing oil and gas leases in West Texas, he had never encountered a situation similar to the one in Wood County, but noted there would now be some out there looking. "It will be interesting to see what this case brings."

Perry discusses higher education

By Danielle Belton
Staff Writer

Midland College's Scarborough Student Center was standing room only as more than 100 people packed the room to hear Texas' new Gov. Rick Perry speak on his plans for higher education in Texas.

The reception was warm and hopes were high as Perry addressed the crowd of Permian Basin residents. Perry addressed the audience flanked by state representatives who serve Midland and Odessa — Tom Craddick and Bob Duncan — Higher Education Task Force committee chairperson Jim Adams and a couple of Texas Rangers who were working the security detail.

Perry began his remarks addressing the importance of a skilled work force in the emerging 21st century.

"We have to know exactly what our mission is and be focused on it," Perry said.

Perry highlighted major themes and points from his higher education platform in his speech. Some major reforms he has proposed include doubling the funds from the Texas grant program, raising high school graduation requirements, creating smoother transitions for students as they

Former janitor gets two years in prison

By Richard Acosta

Thomas Boyd Bowen, 70, a former janitor at Midland Christian School, was sentenced Friday to two years in the Texas Department of Corrections, followed by 10 years of probation, after a plea bargain agreement was reached. Bowen was accused of sexually assaulting three small girls between the ages of three and five.

As part of the plea agreement reached by Assistant District Attorney Teresa Clingman and defense attorney H.W. "Woody" Leverett, Bowen pleaded guilty to two counts of indecency with a child in the second degree and one count of aggravated sexual assault of a child.

Bowen signed a judicial confession that stated on or about Feb. 29, 2000, he made sexual contact with each of the three children.

As part of the agreement, Bowen will serve the full two years of his sentence with no chance of parole. Once

State education should be hot legislative topic

By Margaret Rendall
Staff Writer

State Sen. Teel Bivins, a Republican from Amarillo, has been appointed to serve as chairman of the Senate Education Committee for the third time. Education is expected to be the second hottest topic of the 77th Legislature. The only thing hotter this legislative session promises to be redistricting, which will carve directly into legislators' bread-and-butter districts.

Bivins, whose district encompasses Midland County, said legislation dealing with school finance will be at the top of the Texas Senate's agenda.

"School finance is always a big issue," he said.

Bivins said state-funded health insurance for teachers might be the highest-profile issue.

"Many teachers do not have (adequate) health (coverage) and something needs to be done about that," Bivins said. "Unfortunately, there are many financial and legal hurdles."

Although there is a $5.1 billion surplus projected, Bivins

Bands come up with creative ways to fund trip

By Julie Jacobs
MRT Correspondent

The Midland High and Lee High school bands and orchestras, collectively going to Washington as the Sky's the Limit March on Washington Band, are still in the process of raising the money needed to go to the presidential inauguration parade Jan. 20.

After donations from the Abell-Hanger Foundation and other community groups, the bands still need to raise about $250,000. The trip's price tag has been reduced because 70 band and orchestra students won't be traveling to Washington D.C. because they are academically ineligible.

The bands continue to appeal to the community for help and are getting more creative about the way in which Midlanders can get involved in the fund-raising effort.

Lee High school's band and orchestra are selling family travel packages for $1,200 per person. The band is chartering a plane from Dallas to Washington D.C. and will have extra seats available for Midlanders. The $1,200 covers the airfare from Dallas, hotel arrangements at the Hilton Towers in Baltimore and tickets in the grandstand section for the Inaugural Parade. Also included are trips to all monuments and museums the Lee band will visit, such as tours of the capital building, the White House, Mount Vernon and Arlington National Cemetery. Those traveling with the band also will be treated to a dinner cruise on the Potomac River. The purchase of the airfare alone is $400 round trip.

Band, Orchestra fund-raisers

■ Family travel package to Washington for the Inaugural Parage.
■ Support Your Band and Orchestra Nights at Mr. Gatti's.
■ Canvassing neighborhoods.

Another way to support the students is to attend the Mr. Gatti's "Support Your Band and Orchestra Nights." Between 5:30 and 8:30 p.m. this Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, 20 percent of sales will be donated to the bands' fund-raising effort. Children under the age of 12 will receive five free tokens. The bands will receive $1 for all drive-through pizzas ordered.

The two bands also will be canvassing the neighborhoods this Sunday and the following Sunday seeking donations. This Sunday, the students will team up and go to homes north of Neely Avenue and will canvass the neighborhoods south of Neely Avenue on Jan. 14.

For more information on the family package, call Maurene McDaniel at 520-5233. Donations can also be sent to Sky's the Limit March on Washington, P.O. Box 7901, Midland, TX 79708.

Changing times, old scandals end Robb's political run

By Bob Lewis
Associated Press

RICHMOND, Va. — Chuck Robb had been the Democratic Party's dream come true: a lean, handsome Marine who married a president's daughter in a storybook White House wedding, then headed off to combat in Vietnam.

He went on to become a Virginia governor and proved so popular that a Republican senator stepped aside rather than face a challenge from Robb. Someday, Democratic leaders once believed, Robb might reach the Oval Office, just like his father-in-law, Lyndon Johnson.

Yet on the final Friday of 2000, Robb stood in the cavernous, empty room in Washington that had been his Senate office, with four days left to gather up his things and clear out.

He lost his lease in the Nov. 7 election. Still stained by scandals from the late 1980s and early '90s, and less visible to the electorate that once adored him, Robb lost for the first time in his career, going down in defeat to former Gov. George F. Allen, a folksy Republican.

"I don't really feel sorry for myself because I've had more than my share of opportunity to serve in the public arena," Robb, 61, said in an interview.

His political debut was in 1977, when, buoyed by LBJ's legacy, he was elected Virginia's lieutenant governor. Four years later, he was elected governor and was acclaimed for guiding the state through a crippling recession without a tax increase while increasing funding for schools.

A moderate and a deficit hawk, Robb and several other rising Democratic stars began to wrest their party from the left and guide it toward the center. With Robb in the movement was a fellow Southern governor who became its most conspicuous beneficiary, Bill Clinton of Arkansas.

Limited to one term by Virginia's Constitution, Robb sat out for 2 1/2 years and took aim at a Senate seat. In 1988, Sen. Paul S. Trible Jr. chose to forgo a re-election bid rather than face Robb. Robb won with 71 percent of the vote over Maurice Dawkins, a little-known Republican.

"I think back to the early 1980s and the pedestal that Virginians had put him on," said Mark Rozell, a political scientist at Catholic University in Washington. "His popularity then was almost on a par with the founding fathers among Virginians."

Even then, however, scandals were emerging.

First came news reports that Robb, while governor from 1982 to 1986, attended parties where cocaine was used. He denied ever seeing drugs at the parties.

In 1991, Robb admitted receiving a nude back massage from a former beauty queen but denied her claim that they had an affair. The same year, a grand jury investigated how Robb aides obtained a tape of a cellular phone conversation in which then-Gov. L. Douglas Wilder gloated over Robb's troubles. Robb was not indicted.

"That was almost more than people could bear. People had believed in him, and he had let them down," Rozell said.

Though Robb's star was fading at home, he was winning admirers in Congress. He took generally moderate positions and worked as easily with Republicans as with Democrats. He preferred to operate behind the scenes, put in late hours, determined not to miss floor votes and immersed himself in the work of the Intelligence and Armed Services committees.

"Chuck was one of the most respected members of the Senate because his word was his bond," said retired Ohio Sen. John Glenn. The two were particularly close because both were Democrats and former Marines. "He was independent and it showed in the way he voted."

When Robb announced his 1994 re-election bid, it was clear how vulnerable he had become. He faced four challengers for the nomination. After a dirty and bruising campaign that fall, Robb eked out a victory over Republican nominee and Iran-Contra figure Oliver L. North.

Chastened, Robb returned to a diminished role in a Senate where the GOP had gained control. He unabashedly supported tax increases as the nation struggled with a huge budget deficit, voted to clear President Clinton in his Senate impeachment trial and opposed a constitutional amendment to ban flag burning.

Allen, backed by a wealthy, unified and robust GOP, used each of those issues in portraying Robb to an increasingly conservative and suburban electorate as a tax-happy liberal "out of touch with Virginia values."

Weary of partisan spitefulness in the Senate, Robb said he wanted out and secretly tried to recruit other Democrats to run in his place. But none accepted, and Robb began a sometimes lethargic campaign, losing 48 percent to 52 percent and depriving Virginia Democrats of their last statewide elected office.

"Being willing to stick with what he believed was right and not bow to the pressures to change during the campaign probably cost him that election," Glenn said. "I think Virginia probably changed more than Chuck did."

On the final day of the 106th Congress, senator after senator, from Democrat Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts to Virginia's GOP senior senator, John W. Warner, rose in tribute to Robb.

"The fact that he is leaving now — when we so desperately need people who are able to see beyond the usual party divisions — makes me doubly sad," said Senate Minority Leader Tom Daschle.

Robb said he has run his last race. He said he plans to do some writing and help fellow Democrats where possible, but remain in private life, spending time with his wife, Lynda, and their three grown daughters.

"For many years, I'm sure I was guilty of not putting their interests first, and I'm getting the chance to do that more and more," Robb said. "I guess that's the wisdom that comes with time and experience."

OBITUARIES

Virgie Keaton

Elizabeth Virginia "Virgie" Keaton, 101, of Stanton, died on Wednesday, January 3, 2001. Mrs. Keaton passed away in Midland at the home of her son. Funeral services were held at 2:00 p.m. Friday, January 5, 2001, at the First Baptist Church in Stanton with the Rev. David Harp, pastor, officiating. Interment followed at Evergreen Cemetery in Stanton.

She was born March 17, 1899 in Almyra, Arkansas, to Sam and Mollie Byers. She married Lee Keaton on September 25, 1915, and they moved to Stanton, Texas, in 1953.

Virginia's mother died when she was one year and one day old; her father died when she was nine. She lived with her grandmother, who taught her to garden, make rugs, and all about life, except cooking. She learned to cook from her Aunt Jessie, who lived with them when she was ten. Virginia loved to bake chocolate and coconut pies and hot rolls. She was never happier than when she was cooking for someone. She walked to school in the horse and buggy days and rode a horse bareback to bring the cows up. She flew on airplanes and saw men walk on the moon, as she lived in three centuries. In later years, when her eyes and legs were weak, she braided fabric rugs for family and friends using her sense of touch. She was a member of the First Baptist Church of Stanton.

She is survived by a son, Bernie Keaton and his wife, Pat of Midland; a daughter-in-law, Mary Keaton of Stanton; two daughters, Sibyl North of Stanton and Imogene Weatherby of Midland; two grandsons, Ulen North Jr. and his wife, Beverley of Stanton, and Robert Cowan and his wife, Ingrid of Fredricksburg, Virginia; a granddaughter, Jackie Billington of Midland; two great-grandsons, Trey North and wife, Shawn of Lovington, New Mexico, and Heath North and wife, Aimee of Stanton; two great-great-grandsons, Brett North and Bryce North, both of Lovington, New Mexico; and a great-great-granddaughter, Payden Elizabeth North of Stanton.

She was preceded in death by Lee Keaton, her husband of sixty-three years; and two sons, Wayne Keaton and Donald Keaton.

Pallbearers will be Ulen North Jr., Trey North, Heath North, Brent Swink, Bill Swink, and Richard Doggett.

The family suggests memorials be made to the First Baptist Church, Box 1168, Stanton, Texas 79782; the Evergreen Cemetery Association, Box 1087, Stanton, Texas 79782; or the charity of one's choice.

Arrangements are under the direction of Gilbreath Funeral Home.

Edward Lewis

Edward Lee Lewis, 67, of Midland, went to be with the Lord Thursday, January 4, 2001, at Medical Center Hospital after a lengthy battle with his heart.

Services will be held 2:30 p.m. Sunday at Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home Chapel. Burial will follow at Sunset Memorial Gardens.

Mr. Lewis was born May 7, 1933 in Donna, Texas, to Ira and Della Lewis, who preceded him in death.

Mr. Lewis married Gladys Lewis June 1, 1952; and worked and retired at El Paso Products in Odessa.

Survivors include his wife and best friend, Gladys Lewis of Midland; sons, Eddie Lewis, Jr. and wife, Julie, and Mike Lewis and wife, Beth Anne; daughters, Cathy Betzel, and Sharon Burns and husband, Buddy; sister, Helen Kirkpatrick of Andrews; known and loved as "Papa" to them were his grandchildren, Adam, Mandy, Amy, Stefanie, Lindsey, Sara, Karissa, Bobby, Tiffany, Dakota, and Kaytlynn; a great-granddaughter, Makayla; aunts, Grace Holland and Arlene Pack; an uncle, Buck Holland; and many nieces and nephews.

You will always be loved and missed by all, may God bless!

Services are entrusted to Hubbard-Kelly Funeral Home.

Big Spring arrest could reopen murder cases

From Staff Reports

BIG SPRING — An aggravated assault arrest in Big Spring may be the key to murder cases in three states, including Texas.

Devon Stewart Olson, 48, was arrested for aggravated assault with a deadly weapon on Dec. 27 in Big Spring, said Sgt. Roger Sweatt with the Big Spring Police Department.

Following his arrest, Olson asked if he could speak with a detective. That's when Olson began talking about his past.

"He led the detective to belive that he was responsible for possible murders in California, South Texas and Missouri," Sweatt said.

Sweatt said the detective called Sacramento, Calif. and told them what Olson had said. The Sacramento police told the detective that Olson knew details about a murder that police had not released.

The murder in question is a shooting in Yuba City, Calif.

Koy Len Saecho, 48, and Choy Fow Selee, 40, were both shot to death on April 22, 1988. The killer was never found.

All told, Olson claims to be responsible for 10 murders in three states.

Olson is waiting in Big Spring to be taken back to California by the California Department of Corrections.

Olson is still being held, without bond, for his aggravated assault with a deadly weapon charge.

Haile Selassie (above right) is one of the first to ask George W. Bush to seek the position of Governor and eventually seek the Presidency of the USA, while on his radio show. Congratulations Mr President-Elect

A birthday party was given by former Judge Keith Jobe and Mrs. Norma Jobe at their home for Dr. King Haile Selassie on his 67th birthday at 7 p.m. Friday. He may be leaving this part of Texas in the near future, so it may be good to visit the only Crowned Emperor in this part of the world.

MORE: Kelley says state's case is very strong

(From 1A)

Tom Kelley, a spokesman for the Texas Attorney General's Office, said the situation in the Hawkins field had been known previously, but was not brought to the attention of the attorney general until 1999. He said the state's case did not appear to be legally complicated and was very strong, based on evidence submitted by the landman. He defended the legal fee system, saying it was a state law. He also noted counties that discover incidents in which oil or gas have been extracted without permission or payment from beneath county rights of way could submit cases to the attorney general and capitalize on the fee.

The state petition, filed Friday, contends ExxonMobil drilled two wells too close to state lands and began injection that resulted in the oil giant's taking of oil, without permission, from right of way along Highway 80 near the city of Hawkins.

Hanson said the Legislature addressed the issue in 1992, in Article 32 of the Texas Natural Resource Code. "There is a provision for paying compensatory royalty when a well is drilled within 2,500 feet of a state right of way into a reservoir shown to underlie state acreage or draining it."

ExxonMobil claims in 1985, a statute was passed by the Legislature authorizing the state to lease highway rights of way but the statute excluded all existing rights of way within 2,500 feet of producing wells on Jan. 1, 1985. The company said it examined the location of State Highway 80 relative to adjacent wells in 1996 and determined the state's rights of way are within 2,500 feet of producing wells and, therefore, exempt under the claims of the new statute. ExxonMobil said it fully explained its view of the applicable facts in a letter to the Attorney General's Office in 1996 but did not receive a response.

The Hawkins Field was discovered in 1940. The state of Texas approved the plan of unitization effective in 1975 to increase oil production through secondary recovery operations. This increased production brought substantial additional revenue to the state.

According to ExxonMobil, the unit map filed during unitization clearly showed Highway 80 traversing the Hawkins Field Unit. "It was apparent in 1975 to anyone driving on Highway 80 near Hawkins that the highway was in the middle of an oil field." Tom Kelley noted, however, that this was not the issue, and said the state had "extraordinary" evidence.

The oil company called the state claims "groundless" and said it would vigorously defend this matter. The company stated: "We are extremely disturbed in the manner in which the state has handled the issue, choosing litigation instead of discussion."

PRISON: Former janitor gets 2 years for sexual assault

he completes his jail time, he will reappear before the court and be sentenced to 10 years of deferred adjudication.

He also will have to attend a sexual offender treatment program and will have to register as a sex offender with the Department of Public Safety. In addition, Bowen will have to pay a $2,500 fine for each child.

If Bowen doesn't follow those conditions, the judge can sentence him to two to 20 years in prison — which is the range for indecency with a child in the second degree.

"After Bowen serves his 10 years of deferred adjudication, if the judge feels he has not improved, he can add on an additional 10 years," Ms. Clingman said.

Before the sentence was handed down, Bowen asked the judge if he may be allowed some time with his family before beginning his sentence.

'Because of what you did our lives and the lives of your family will be changed forever. I never in my life thought my child's hand print would be on that wall (at the child advocacy center). I pray to God that He may find mercy on your soul.'

— father of one of the victims

The judge turned down the request, but said Bowen could see his family briefly before he would be turned over to the Sheriff's Office.

The parents of one of the victims asked if they could make statements to the court.

"Because of what you did our lives and the lives of your family will be changed forever," the father of a victim said. He said he had been to the child advocacy center and saw a giant wall with the hand prints of children victimized. "I never in my life thought my child's hand print would be on that wall. I pray to God that He may find mercy on your soul."

Next up was the mother of one of the victims who pleaded with Bowen to help the advocacy center.

"I thought I talked to my daughter enough. But that was until she met you. Please, please write down everything you did and how you did it and give it to the advocacy center. I want them to be able to protect children from people like you."

PERRY: Governor gives reasons for increasing Texas grant program funds move from grade to grade and some deregulation of Texas' higher education system.

The governor cited several reasons for doubling the current funds of the Texas grant program, which provides money to high school students planning to attend a college or university.

"Too many Texans miss out on the opportunity of higher education," Perry said.

Perry anticipates by expanding the amount of funds, more students will be able to attend technical and community colleges. Perry also said he intends for these grants to especially help minority students as well as all Texans. He cited statistics that show how many Texans, especially those of African-American and Hispanic descent, do not go on to college.

"If we intend to go forward we cannot accept that number," Perry said regarding the low number of Texans receiving degrees from institutions of higher learning. "No matter what, I will never be satisfied with the status quo in this state when I know that there will be better things in store for us."

In his deregulation plan, Perry said by reducing the number of state regulations and constraints on colleges, they should be able to have more flexibility to meet the needs of their students. Perry also called for Texas colleges and universities to start working together in order to benefit Texas' students.

"We're going to actually get the Aggies and the Longhorns working together," Perry joked. "Except on Thanksgiving."

Adams, who helped Perry develop his education platform, also spoke, reinforcing many of the governor's themes. Adams talked about working to inspire the youth of Texas to aspire for higher education.

"Hov do we empower these children with something that says, 'I can go to college?'" Adams said.

Both Perry and Adams reiterated their main goal was getting more Texans prepared for college for the students' benefit and Texas' benefit.

"Our primary focus is our students," Perry said. "They are the consumer of higher education in this state."

Perry's plan entitled "Higher Education: Moving Every Texan Forward" is his first policy initiative he has taken since he was sworn into office on Dec. 21.

EDUCATION: Legislature to look at teachers' insurance

(From 1A)

does not think it is enough to cover the cost of the teachers' health insurance program. The legal hurdles are even more complicated.

"Do we provide the same health insurance plan to teachers in Highland Park School District and Ysleta School District?" Bivins asked.

Currently, each school district implements its own health insurance plan. A school district can purchase health insurance for its employees from companies like Blue Cross and Aetna, can provide self-funded insurance, or some school districts have no insurance plan at all.

As of Jan. 1, MISD switched to a self-funded health insurance plan. Previously, MISD held a fully insured contract will Blue Cross.

"The insurance benefits for school district employees went down because of cost," Executive Director of Business Services for MISD Art Martin said. "Health insurance is escalating at 10 to 20 percent per year and we did not have the money so our benefits have been reduced."

Martin said if the state could fund a health insurance plan while maintaining benefits it would be beneficial to school districts across the state. However, he recognizes the cost of statewide health insurance for all teachers and school district employees.

"If you include all school district employees, teachers, administrators, janitors, cafeteria staff, etc., there are about 525,000 in the state. It would be very expensive to provide a health insurance policy to cover all employees," Martin said.

Health insurance, however, will not be the only topic debated in the Legislature this session.

"School choice will certainly continue to be a big issue," Bivins said.

Bivins sees a need to re-examine the charter school grant method.

"There is an operation need to help charter schools with start-up costs, as that is the biggest challenge that most of them face," Bivins said.

Bivins is also an advocate of testing a private school voucher program.

"I am not an opponent or a proponent of private school vouchers, however I am a staunch supporter of the scientific method," he said. "I support the idea of testing theories."

Bivins is doubtful a school voucher program would pass through the Legislature this session.

"The makeup of the Senate has changed little since the last session," Bivins said.

Bivins plans to make his own proposition on behalf of teachers this session as well. The idea for his teacher mortgage assistance plan actually came from a Senate Education Committee meeting held in Midland.

A similar program is in place for veterans run through the veterans land board. They can borrow money to purchase property at a slightly lower interest rate than the general public.

"The program has been funded entirely by revenue from general obligation bonds since its inception; it has never cost taxpayers a dime," Bivins said.

The Bivins team is working on the specifics of the plan, according to Cathy Teague, Bivins' communication director.

Car chase lands man wanted in connection with robbery in jail

By Richard Acosta
Staff Writer

BIG SPRING — A case of road rage and a bizarre car chase landed a man wanted in connection with a bank robbery in Arlington in the Howard County Jail.

Sheriff Dale Walker said the incident started when Horace Loman, 20, from Connecticut got into some kind of dispute with a man at a Big Spring gas station.

Loman sped after the other man in the westbound lane of Interstate 20. The man being chased called 911 on a cellular phone and told the operator what was going on.

At that point, Loman pointed what appeared to be a gun at the other driver, Walker said.

However, Loman last control of his vehicle. He drove out of the westbound lane, over the eastbound lane and the service road before running into a mound of dirt.

A deputy then drove up and told Loman to get out of the car. Loman held up his hands with a roll of cash in one and marijuana in the other, Walker said. The gun he had pointed at the other driver was a toy.

Loman had $46,000 in cash he said he earned selling roses.

Officials believe Loman got the money after he allegedly robbed a bank in Arlington, Walker said.

Police charged Loman with reckless driving and possession of marijuana.

He is currently in jail awaiting bond.

Deep freeze locks up Great Lakes

ABOARD THE U.S. COAST GUARD 6506 DOLPHIN (AP) — Helicopter pilot Robert Kornexl looked down in amazement Friday at the ice mosaic forming in the St. Clair River east of Detroit.

Icebreaking ships went through the river Thursday, "but you'd never know it," the lieutenant junior grade told his co-pilot as their craft hovered 200 feet above the semi-frozen water.

Coast Guard icebreakers are busier than usual clearing paths for freighters on the Great Lakes and other waterways because of earlier-than-normal cold across the Midwest.

Last month, two freighters were stuck in the icy Detroit River at the mouth of Lake Erie for two days, causing a shipping traffic jam. Ten to 15 ships pass through the channel each day.

The last time Lake Superior froze over was 1994. It's not that bad yet, but Lake Erie is almost completely iced over. Large portions of lakes Michigan and Huron are also frozen.

So is the St. Clair, a link between lakes Michigan and Huron heavily used for commerce. On Friday, the 290-foot U.S. Coast Guard Mackinaw — the largest icebreaker on the Great Lakes — and the 140-foot Neah Bay sliced a slushy trail for about a half-dozen freighters waiting to get through.

Ensign Scott Rae, operations officer on the 140-foot Bristol Bay cutter, said Coast Guard veterans are calling this year the worst for ice since 1976.

"When the ice first started forming, ships were caught by surprise," he said.

Lake Carriers Association president George Ryan said the ice-filled waterways have affected iron ore, coal, salt and cement deliveries.

"If we did not have the U.S. and Canadian Coast Guards working together to direct this commerce, we would have serious economic consequences for the region," Ryan said.

The Great Lakes waterways aren't the only ones icing up. Last November was the nation's second-coldest ever and December was the seventh-coldest, according to the National Climatic Data Center.

"Things are moving, but the ice is slowing things down," said Paul Roszkowski, a Coast Guard spokesman in Cleveland.

"It's important to keep shipping moving because it stimulates the economy," he said. "Anything that can be shipped by water is shipped on the Great Lakes. We have to keep that moving as long as we can."

Temperatures aren't expected to warm up much: the National Weather Service predicted more below-normal temperatures in January, February and March in the Great Lakes region.

That's good news for ice fishermen, who are under close watch as the Dolphin helicopter crew maps the ice from above. In Lake St. Clair's Anchor Bay, the fishermen drive their trucks a half-mile out onto ice 1 1/2- to 2 feet thick.

"We could probably land this helicopter on it," pilot Eric Hollinger said.

Come spring, the Coast Guard will have other duties. The heavy snow and ice are expected to raise water levels and could cause flooding.

Parties agree on running split Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — Using the new muscle they gained in last November's elections, Democrats won important concessions from Republicans on Friday for running the first 100-seat Senate to be split evenly between the parties.

The new rules will enhance Senate Democrats' chances to block or reshape GOP President-elect Bush's agenda as he tries to push it through the 107th Congress, which convened on Wednesday. Included are equal numbers of seats for Democrats and Republicans on every Senate committee and curbs on each party's ability to block the other's amendments on the Senate floor.

The agreement marks yet another remarkable consequence of last year's amazingly close election. The Nov. 7 voting produced a 50-50 Senate and a House held barely by Republicans as well as the bitterly contested presidential victory by Bush that saw him lose the popular vote but narrowly capture an Electoral College majority.

The procedures were resisted by some members of both parties and as such represented a risk for both Daschle and Lott.

The most vocal critics were some Republicans who insisted on retaining the upper hand, since the Jan. 20 ascension of the GOP's Dick Cheney to the vice presidency when he and Bush are inaugurated will give them a 51st vote in the full Senate. The Constitution lets the vice president vote to break ties.

But after weeks of bargaining between Lott and Daschle, Republicans bowed to the political reality that Democrats had enough votes to block any Senate business until they were satisfied.

"It is a leap of faith and we hope it's not off a cliff," said Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas.

Reflecting the lingering dissatisfaction, the Senate's use of a voice vote to approve the plan avoided a public show of dissension by lawmakers that could have embarrassed the leaders, particularly Lott.

Democrats did not get all they wanted. Some of them wanted to become co-chairmen of committees, but Republicans retained the right to chair all the committees beginning on Jan. 20, when Bush and Cheney take office.

Even so, Democrats were the day's big winners.

Having fought their way from a 54-46 Senate minority last year to a 50-50 tie, Democrats won much of what they wanted. This included parity on committees and in hiring staff, and procedures that will make it harder for Lott to stop them when they try amending bills or debate them for extended periods.

Since Senate Republicans, in the majority since 1995, have more aides than Democrats, the agreement to equalize staffs is sure to end up costing taxpayers more money.

Republicans have also had two-seat majorities — in one case a three-seat edge — on Senate committees.

The plan will allow either party's leader to get bills or nominations to the full Senate after a tie vote in committee. Until now, a tie vote has killed a measure before it reaches the Senate floor.

If a vote by a subcommittee is tied, the committee chairman could still bring the measure before the full committee for consideration.

The agreement leaves open the question of membership on crucial conference committees, which negotiate final versions of bills with the House. Lott told reporters he believed Republicans would get majorities on conference committees.

Though it was not formalized in the Senate-approved resolution, the leaders also agreed to "seek to attain an equal balance" between the parties for scheduling and debating on the Senate floor. And they will share the job of presiding over the Senate, important because the presiding senator recognizes speakers and can thus control the debate.

Significantly, they also agreed that if a senator resigns or dies and the Senate's 50-50 party ratio changes, they would alter the rules all over again and make changes to reflect the chambers' new numbers.

The last time the Senate was evenly divided was for the first few months of 1881, when the chamber had 37 Democrats, 37 Republicans, and two independents who split evenly between the two parties.

Study links convicted doctor to 297 suspicious deaths

By Mara D. Bellaby
Associated Press

LONDON — The patterns of Harold Shipman's medical practice were sinister: high death rates among elderly women, more deaths on Tuesday and Wednesday, a marked tendency for people to die at home soon after he visited.

The general practitioner was already considered one of Britain's most prolific serial killers after being convicted last year of murdering 15 elderly women patients. Now, an analysis of his practice released by the government Friday suggests the number of victims may be far higher — as many as 300 suspicious deaths in 24 years.

"These are harrowing findings," said Chief Medical Officer Liam Donaldson, who conceded officials will probably "never know the true figure" of Shipman's victims.

Shipman, who ran a busy one-doctor practice in Hyde, a small town near Manchester, until his 1998 arrest, is serving 15 life sentences and further prosecutions have been ruled out.

Still, relatives of possible victims and government officials are pressing for answers.

Shipman, accused at his trial of exulting in "the ultimate power of controlling life and death," was convicted of deliberately injecting heroin into 15 elderly women — many in good health — during routine checkups in their homes or at his office. He maintains he is innocent.

At the time of the trial, a local coroner estimated the true number of victims could be as high as 150.

Professor Richard Baker from the University of Leicester, who reviewed Shipman's records, said there were 297 more deaths than would normally be expected during his career. Of those, 237 deaths aroused the most suspicion because they occurred at the patients' homes.

"I feel essentially rage, as a fellow professional, that someone betrayed the trust of people who were completely dependent on him," Baker said.

Baker, who studied death certificates, cremation certificates and medical records of 521 deaths certified by Shipman, found that a disproportionately high number were women between the ages of 75 and 84.

An unusual number of Shipman's patients died between 1 p.m. and 3 p.m., and on Tuesdays and Wednesdays, according to the audit, which examined trends and patterns but not individual cases. In some cases, he had seen the patient only the day before, according to the report.

On one cremation form, Shipman wrote: "Saw patient at home, diagnosis made, arranged admission ambulance, patient dead when went back, all within 10 minutes."

"This seems to me very strange," said Baker, adding that he would have expected Shipman to have noted an attempt at resuscitation.

The analysis doesn't provide conclusive evidence that Shipman caused any of the suspicious deaths, the Department of Health said.

Still, Jane Ashton Hibbert, whose grandmother Hilda Hibbert died in January 1996 while in Shipman's care, said the report was "devastating" for families of possible victims.

"Some of the families are in no man's land, they have got no way to turn, they don't know, they are never going to know, and that's the difficult part of this case," Hibbert said.

"If he admitted his guilt it would make it a lot better for a lot of families."

During his February trial, police investigators complained about Shipman's condescending and arrogant manner, and his claim that one victim, an 81-year-old former village mayor, was a drug addict.

Shipman was himself fined for drug addiction in 1976, but was allowed to continue practicing.

Called to testify, the bearded, graying Shipman refused to look at prosecutors. He mumbled short, gruff answers, nervously rubbing his hands or circling one hand with the other.

Police said they had sufficient evidence to prosecute Shipman for an additional 23 murders, but the Crown Prosecution Service decided against further trials, concluding that it would not be in the public interest.

John Pollard, the coroner for South Manchester, held inquests on the 23 cases, but they served only to establish the cause of death.

A High Court judge, Dame Janet Smith, has been appointed to chair a public inquiry into Shipman's crime.

University of Leicester professor Dr. Richard Baker points to a projected slide as he presents his findings in a report on convicted murderer Dr. Harold Shipman during a news conference at the Department of Health in London, Friday. Dr. Baker said Shipman, who was convicted of murdering 15 patients, may have killed up to 297 others during a 24-year period.

Against the odds, Holbrooke got results at the U.N.

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — As a diplomatic troubleshooter Richard Holbrooke loves challenges, and during his 17-month stint as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, he took on some of the toughest — from reforming the United Nations to trying to bring peace to Africa.

Against the odds, he got results, but not everything he hoped for.

"What's the point of being in the government if you don't try to make things better, which means trying to change things," Holbrooke said in an interview as he reflected on his U.N. tour and his plans now that the Republicans have won the White House.

Holbrooke's most important U.N. victory came four weeks before he was to leave office: He persuaded 188 countries to overhaul U.N. financing and reduce U.S. payments to the world body.

After a grueling 14-month battle in Congress over his nomination, Holbrooke was a man in a hurry to make his mark when he arrived at the United Nations in August 1999. He had successfully brokered the 1995 Dayton peace agreement that ended the war in Bosnia and served as President Clinton's special envoy to Yugoslavia on Kosovo.

But he faced serious obstacles at the United Nations.

A global outcry over the U.S. failure to pay $1.6 billion in U.N. dues had seriously undermined U.S. influence at the United Nations, and the Security Council was deeply divided over Iraq and the U.S.-led bombing of Yugoslavia without council authorization.

A hard-driving fighter with sharply honed diplomatic skills, Holbrooke wasted no time in tackling the U.S. debt, which many observers said was the single most important issue to resolve if he wanted to restore U.S. relations with the organization.

By his own estimate, Holbrooke spent a third of his tenure trying to get U.N. members to agree to revamp the U.N. payment scale for the first time in over two decades. That's because Congress demanded that U.S. payments be cut before it would pay a major chunk of back dues.

AP Photo

United States Ambassador to the United Nations Richard Holbrooke is photographed in his office in New York recently. After serving in the position for 17 months, Holbrooke leaves office at the end of January, with plans to join the Councilon Foreign Relations, the New York-based think tank.

After a year of shuttling to Washington and a last-minute lobbying effort by the Clinton administration, the General Assembly approved a budget deal in December that came very close to meeting the congressional demands.

As his other U.N. priority, Holbrooke chose Africa.

He spent his month as president of the Security Council trying to focus a global spotlight on the continent's problems, which he saw firsthand on two separate trips.

He invited the presidents of the warring factions in Congo to the Security Council to pledge to stop fighting. He brought in Nelson Mandela to brief ambassadors on efforts to forge peace in Burundi. Vice President Al Gore presided over a council meeting on the havoc the AIDS epidemic has wreaked in Africa.

Holbrooke later ushered through a resolution declaring AIDS not just a health problem but a global security threat, particularly in Africa.

Despite the fanfare, Holbrooke has little concrete progress to show for the effort. Congo is still at war and new crises have erupted in Sierra Leone and between Eritrea and Ethiopia.

While acknowledging disappointment, Holbrooke stands by his decision to focus global attention — and U.S. attention — on Africa, which he calls a work-in-progress.

But he acknowledges more could have been done.

With just two weeks to go before he steps down as ambassador, Holbrooke is satisfied that he got a lot done during a short time — though he quickly adds that there is plenty of unfinished business, from solving Africa's crises to reforming the entire U.N. system.

But after eight years of diplomatic problem-solving, the 59-year-old Holbrooke says he's now ready for a break.

He plans to join the Council on Foreign Relations, the New York-based think-tank, and write at least one book.

Israeli critics join debate over killings of Palestinian activists

BEIT SAHOUR, West Bank (AP) — The shattered green pickup truck has been hauled away, and the blood and scorch marks have faded from the dirt track that runs past a little olive grove. On this spot, Israel fired one of the first shots in an 8-week-old shadow war, methodically targeting Palestinians it holds responsible for Israeli deaths.

Palestinians call it a campaign of assassination. Israel says so-called pinpoint killings are a legitimate weapon in the fight against terrorism. But now, for the first time, Israeli critics are beginning to join Palestinians and human rights groups in condemning the practice.

Israel has a long and unapologetic history of hunting down and killing those who stage terror attacks against Israelis. Over the past two months, though, that tactic has taken on a different twist with Israeli forces targeting leaders of the uprising that began in late September in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. Palestinians say more than a dozen leaders have been killed.

Top Israeli officials, while confirming Israel's role in only a few of the individual killings, have spoken with striking openness of the practice.

"I can tell you unequivocally what the policy is — if anyone has committed or is planning to carry out terrorist attacks, he has to be hit," Ephraim Sneh, the deputy defense minister, said this week on Israel radio. "It is effective, precise and just."

In more than three months of Israeli-Palestinian fighting, Palestinian gunmen have staged frequent shooting attacks on Israeli military outposts and Jewish settlements, as well as roadside ambushes that have made travel in the West Bank and Gaza Strip extremely dangerous for Israelis.

Prime Minister Ehud Barak — who himself was a member of an Israeli commando unit that assassinated PLO leaders in the 1970s — reportedly told a parliamentary committee this week that "we are in a state of war, and there's no other way to fight terror."

This week also brought what many Palestinians viewed as an alarming escalation of the Israeli campaign: the killing Sunday of Thabet Thabet, a longtime associate of Yasser Arafat and a senior leader of his Fatah faction.

A 50-year-old dentist who was also a bureaucrat in the Palestinian ministry of health, Thabet represented a departure from the typical Israeli target. Others have generally been younger, active gunmen or bombmakers — not members of Arafat's command structure with political as well as military roles.

To Palestinians, the message was that the pool of potential targets has become far larger.

Barak pointedly refused to deny Israeli involvement in Thabet's killing — a death that particularly infuriated many Palestinian officials.

Even in Israel — where many are badly shaken by the current outbreak of violence that has claimed more than 350 lives, most of them Palestinians — objections to the killings are surfacing.

"We condemn very strongly the policy of assassination that's been taking place in the past weeks," said lawmaker Naomi Chazan, who was present at a Knesset committee meeting this week where she said several others voiced similar views.

Chazan acknowledged she may not find a strong following for her view. But there is some support within Israel's security establishment for the contention that the policy is tactically questionable.

"What it does is create immense and understandable anger, and invites reaction, which is dangerous," Chazan said.

At the same meeting, lawmaker Dan Meridor, known for taking a tough line on security matters, argued assassination should not be used as a punishment or as a deterrent, but only to prevent an attack.

Also this week, the Association for Civil Rights in Israel, a civil rights group, wrote to Barak decrying "this policy of execution."

An ad in Friday's Haaretz daily signed by dozens of Israelis called Thabet an ally of the Israeli peace camp and urged Barak to stop "state-initiated terrorism."

Palestinians insist the killings will not deter the uprising's leaders. Still, some nervousness is apparent: Marwan Barghouti, a reputed leader of the Tanzim paramilitary movement, now travels with bodyguards.

Although Israel characterizes the killings as "pinpoint" attacks, they have claimed the lives of several bystanders. Last month in the Gaza Strip, where a Hamas activist was shot and killed by Israeli troops in what Palestinians claim was an assassination, a Palestinian riding in the same communal taxi also died.

In the West Bank town of Beit Sahour, an Israeli helicopter fired rockets Nov. 9 at a pickup truck carrying Hussein Abayat, whom Israel acknowledged targeting, describing him as a "terrorist mastermind."

He was killed, but so were two Palestinian housewives. Naji Danoun, 65, who lost his 55-year-old wife, Aziza, was inconsolable nearly two months later.

"It's not human, to do a thing like this," he said. "I would rather lose everything I have than lose her. When I saw her body, burned from head to toe, I could not believe such a thing had happened to my beloved."

For the first time, Israeli critics are beginning to join Palestinians and human rights groups in condemning the practice.

Chiefs dismiss Cunningham as coach; Vermeil wants job, but Rams protest

By Steve Brisendine
Associated Press Writer

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Gunther Cunningham was fired Friday after two lackluster seasons as coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, who want Dick Vermeil as his replacement.

They might have to wait to hire Vermeil, who led St. Louis to last year's Super Bowl title, then retired.

Vermeil said Friday he wants to coach the Chiefs, but the Rams still have him under contract and have shown no willingness to release him.

"The Rams have asked the commissioner (Paul Tagliabue) to resolve their dispute with the Chiefs over Dick Vermeil's status," NFL spokesman Greg Aiello said. A hearing is scheduled Tuesday in New York.

The Chiefs announced on their Web site the firing of Cunningham, who worked for 30 years as an assistant before getting his head coaching opportunity.

No news conference was planned, and Cunningham's wife said he would have no immediate comment. Cunningham has been at home since Thursday, when he went to work at Arrowhead Stadium and read reports of his imminent firing on the Internet.

Team president Carl Peterson said in a statement that the decision to fire Cunningham was "difficult because my relationship with Gunther dates far back before he ever came to Kansas City and was one of the reasons that he came here prior to the 1995 season."

"As such, I feel a personal sadness that it didn't work out," Peterson said. "But my responsibility is to see to it that we get this football team back to where it was and beyond. That responsibility outweighs any personal feelings."

Peterson and Vermeil have been close friends for more than 25 years. They coached together at UCLA during the 1970s, and when Ver-

The Chap turned in another key upset Friday night as the Midland Lee Rebels hammered the league favorite San Angelo Bobcats, 62-53. On Tuesday, Odessa Permian came in as a big underdog to Midland High and pulled off a 65-63 overtime victory over the Bulldogs.

What does it all mean? Well, you can start by saying that this may be one whale of 4-5A campaign.

"Boy, we had to have this one," was the way Lee coach Mark Coffman put it after gaining his first 4-5A victory as the new coach of the Rebels. "We feel like we could easily be 3-0, but we let two games get away from us, so this was an important victory for us.

"We've been playing pretty well,

Lady Rebels improve 4-5A mark to 3-2 by outscrapping Central

By Lee Passmore

Friday night's District 4-5A girls basketball game between Midland Lee and San Angelo Central at Chaparral Center wasn't suitable for framing. But who said basketball games had to be works of art?

Lee and Central combined for 51 fouls and 47 missed free throws, and that says as much about the game as any other numbers. But the only numbers which counted at the end read 53-48, the margin by which the Lady Rebels won their second district game of the week.

The victory boosted the Lady Rebels to 3-2 in district, as they face a major game to close out the first half of 4-5A play next Tuesday when they travel to Abilene High.

"We'll take this W," said Lee coach Elise Kail, more relieved than elated over the final result. "It was ugly. I think everyone involved in this game made it ugly."

Few of the participants could claim any style points on the evening. It would have been one thing if both teams had merely had trouble shooting from the floor, but the Lady Rebels (9-12 overall) and Lady Bobcats (7-11, overall, 1-3 in district) approached the free-throw line almost as if it were a snake pit.

What makes Lee's win all the more amazing is that the Lady Rebels had what had to be one

Saints know Minnesota players well

By Mary Foster
AP Sports Writer

MINNEAPOLIS — There won't be many surprises coming out of the huddles of the New Orleans Saints and Minnesota Vikings in Saturday's NFC playoff game. These are two teams with a history.

The Saints and Vikings practiced together for years when New Orleans held its training camp in Wisconsin. This year, the Saints (11-6) moved their camp back to Louisiana, but traveled to Minnesota to play the Vikings (11-5) in the preseason.

Of course, some Saints know the Vikings better than others, having been on both sides.

Saints wide receiver Jake Reed was an expert on the noise level expected in the Metrodome this week. He learned all about it first-hand during his nine years as a member of the Vikings.

Not that Reed will feel any tugging on his heart strings when he steps on the field for the first of the weekend's four playoff games.

"This is not like a homecoming or a family reunion or a pleasure trip for me," Reed said. "This is a business trip. When I get in, I'm going to do the same thing that I do ... before every game. I'm not going out to any dinners. I'm not going by anyone's house."

Then, if things go the way Reed plans, he and two of his new teammates and two Saints assistant coaches will be heading back to New Orleans while making plans for playing in the NFC championship game.

Tight end Andrew Glover played in Minnesota the last three seasons, catching 95 passes for 1,227 yards and nine touchdowns, including career highs of 35 catches, 522 yards and five touchdowns in 1998, when the Vikings scored an NFL-record 556 points. He started four of seven playoff games for the Vikings.

Glover left after being asked to take a pay cut.

Stricker, Els make Match Play semis

By Doug Ferguson
AP Golf Writer

MELBOURNE, Australia — Steve Stricker continued his amazing run through the Match Play Championship on Saturday, winning on the 20th hole to reach the semifinals and ending an even more improbable journey by Nick O'Hern.

Stricker holed a speedy 12-foot birdie putt on the 19th hole to stay in the match, then won it on the 20th with an approach into 3 feet as O'Hern found trouble off the tee.

Top-seeded Ernie Els also got through to the semifinals, putting like a two-time U.S. Open champion to hold off Craig Stadler 1-up.

Els will play Pierre Fulke, who defeated Brad Faxon on the 19th hole.

Stricker, at No. 55 the lowest seed to ever reach the semifinals, will play Toru Taniguchi, who defeated Shigeki Maruyama, 2 and 1, in the battle of Japanese.

The play was lethargic compared to the first three rounds, but no less exciting. Stricker and Els both required clutch putts to survive.

Clinging to a one-hole lead, Els made five consecutive crucial putts to keep his cushion and then buried Craig Stadler with an 18-foot birdie on the final hole for a 1-up victory.

At the point, all Stadler could do was aim his putter at Els like a shotgun. He retrieved Els' ball from the cup and playfully flung it down the fairway.

"It wasn't a very pretty match, but it was a good one," said the Walrus, who received $150,000 for reaching the quarterfinals.

It was the third straight day Els was forced to go the distance, and he has come up with crucial

Young Raiders face uphill battle in Big 12

By Pam Easton
Associated Press Writer

LUBBOCK — Texas Tech may not be ready for what it is about to face. The Red Raiders (6-5) may have a winning record, but they've struggled at home. And they have a lot to improve on heading into Big 12 play.

"I really don't see anything that we don't need work on," said senior forward Cliff Owens, who is averaging 13.9 points and 7.4 rebounds a game. "There's a lot of work to be done."

Texas Tech plays its Big 12 opener Saturday at home against No. 7 Kansas (11-1). The Raiders are 3-3 at home, including losses to Alabama-Birmingham, Texas-El Paso and Texas A&M-Corpus Christi.

This season has been filled with ups and downs for a team composed of four seniors, a sophomore, five freshmen and a junior college transfer.

While the talent is there, it's taking some time to cultivate. And now things will only get tougher.

"Even in the games we've lost, there have been flashes," Owens said. "I don't think any of these guys has time to be a freshman any more. They have to step up and be veterans."

Coach James Dickey is pleased with how his youthful team has responded thus far. He knows his team still has an uphill climb but is working with them to improve shot selection, finishing out games and defensive efforts.

"All of them have come to understand they have to play with a higher level of intensity," Dickey said. "This freshman group is talented. We just need to make shots. We need to make free throws."

The team isn't without bright spots, however.

MHS girls win two

EL PASO — The Midland High girls soccer team started the 2001 season with two wins Friday at the El Paso Del Valle International Club Soccer Tournament.

In the first round, the Lady Bulldogs defeated El Paso High, 1-0, as Adrienne Monroe scored off an assist from Beth Craig in the 15th minute. Emily Shigut was in goal for the Midland High shutout.

In the semifinals, the Lady Bulldogs defeated an old foe in El Paso Franklin, 4-1. For MHS coach Scott Hodkinson, the win was a sweet one.

"This was a bit of a revenge game for us because they knocked us out of the state quarterfinals a few years ago," said Hodkinson. "None of the players on this year's team were on that team, but it was a good win for me."

Amy Brammer started the scoring for MHS with a goal in the 6th minute. The score was assisted by Craig.

In the second half against the Lady Cougars, Megan Dozier had an unassisted breakaway goal in the 49th minute. Franklin cut MHS' lead to 2-1 with a goal in the 62nd minute.

Midland High then put the game away with a goal by Sallye Wilton in the 71st minute. Sandy Nelson and Risa Holland assisted Wilton on the goal. Then in the 76th minute Brammer scored off an assist by Dozier.

Shigut started the game in goal, while Melissa Ketter finished the game in the last 18 minutes of plau.

"It was a good day for my defense," Hodkinson said. "It was team effort all day long. I took 22 players and all of them played."

MHS will (2-0 for the season) next play the this morning's winner of the semifinal contest between El Paso Eastwood and El Paso Del Valle. The finals is set for 2 p.m.

Lee girls split two shootouts

THE WOODLANDS — The Midland Lee girls soccer team opened the season in exciting fashion at The Woodlands Tournament Friday, winning one shootout and losing another.

Lee began the day by beating Houston Lamar 4-3 in a shootout, then fell to the host The Woodlands 2-1 in a similar fashion to get out of the first day with a split.

Raffi Belizaire, Lee's leading returning scorer from last season, carried the Lady Rebels in the game against Lamar. Belizaire scored a hat trick in regulation, and her goal in the 54th minute of regulation sent the game to a shootout.

The shootout went to the final shooter, and Lee's Ashleigh Decker won it by putting the final shot in.

Lee wasn't as fortunate in the second game. Lindsey Farris scored the lone goal in regulation, but The Woodlands scored twice in the shootout and the Lady Rebels scored only once.

"Right now we're just trying to put combinations together and move people around," said Lee coach Mike Simpson. "We're playing some good quality teams and that helps us."

Lee will play Leander today at 8:30 a.m. and will play again at 12:30 p.m. if it wins.

Butler takes MC to school

Staff Report

EL DORADO, Kan. — The Midland College Chaparrals scheduled some tough early-season games to get them prepared for play in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference. On Friday, the Chaps got a hard lesson from Butler (Kan.) Community College.

"We just didn't play hard," said MC coach Junsie Cotten after his team's 91-70 loss on Friday. "When you're on the road, you've got to play hard to give your team a chance to win. Playing a team like Butler on their home court, you have to be prepared for this type of atmosphere. I take full blame for our lack of effort. Playing hard would've solved a lot of our problems tonight. But give Butler credit, the better team won."

Butler (11-2) had a 47-29 halftime lead on the Chaps, who dropped to 11-4 on the season. The Chaps shot less than 50 percent on the field and also made 26 fewer trips to the free-throw line than Butler did.

Quannas White led the Chaps with 21 points, while Danny Anderson added 10 in a losing effort.

It doesn't get any easier for Midland College at 7:30 p.m. today when the Chaps travel to face perennial power Barton County.

GIRLS: Wallace leads way to win with 21 points, 12 rebounds of their worst free throw shooting games of the season win or lose, making only 15-of-43 from the line.

"I'd hate to see how many we missed," said Kail before looking at the final stats. "The sad thing is we've been practicing them all week."

One player on whom it appeared practice rubbed off was Lee junior Wykia Wallace. Not only did Wallace score a game-high 21 points and pull down 12 rebounds, but she made 9-of-12 from the line, including 6-of-7 in the second half.

It was the second big game of the week for Wallace, who in Tuesday's 54-49 win over Odessa High had 16 points and 12 rebounds. Along with seniors Shamera Bryson and Shandi Neatherlin, Wallace has become a reliable double digit scorer.

"I've had to step it up more since district started," said Wallace. "I've been doing good, but I know can do even better than what I've been doing. These last two games are the best I've played all year."

■ See District 4-5A Standings/4B

Kail has been expecting big things out of Wallace, but just wasn't sure how much or how soon they'd come.

"I didn't know that she'd be this far along as far as points," said Kail of Wallace. "I knew she could rebound. She has a lot of athletic ability and when she uses it she can play better than what she did this week."

It's not stretching it to say that Wallace carried the Lady Rebels in the second half. Lee led 29-19 at halftime, but Central scored the first eight points of the second half to cut the lead to 29-27.

Wallace then scored eight points during a 12-2 Lee run to give the Lady Rebels their biggest lead of the game, 41-29. Central inched closer in the final minutes to cut it to 48-44 on a pair of baskets by Ashley Shrum, the last of which was a 3-pointer. But Wallace scored on putback shots on the next two possessions to boost the lead back to eight.

"My dad has always told me to go get the rebounds," said the 5-foot-8 Wallace. "Coach Kail always told me I was too short to be a post and I'm proving her wrong."

Neatherlin had 12 for Lee while Bryson had 10 rebounds, which compensated for a cold shooting night in which she scored only seven points on 3-of-21 shooting from the floor and going 1-for-7 at the line. Shrum led Central with 15 points while Ebony Jefferson added 13.

BOYS: Smith pours in 24 points

but if we had lost a third one to a major contender, we might have had some hanging heads. This one gives us a boost."

And the Rebels did it wire-to-wire with only four players scoring. Senior Wendell Smith led all scorers with 24 points, including hitting 5-of-10 three-point shots.

It seemed like every time Lee needed a basket, Smith was draining the tub, hitting 9-of-15 shots overall.

"We've thought all along that we can beat anyone in the district," Smith said, "so going into this game, we felt like we could win it."

The Rebels exploded out of the gate, leading 22-12 at the end of the first period. The Bobcats, who fell to 21-4 on the season and 1-1 in 4-5A action, closed the gap to six points a couple of times, but Lee led by as many as 15 points, 53-38, with 4:49 left in the game.

It took just four Lee players to get the scoring job done. Post Eric Winston scored 18 points and hauled in 14 rebounds. Guard Drew Coffman scored 10 points, eight in the first quarter when the Rebels got a leg up.

Senior Kyle Shatzer took a while to get warmed up, missing his first seven shots, but he came back with 10 second half points, most of which seemed to put a knife in the heart of the Bobcats. Shatzer also came up with eight rebounds.

"Eric (Winston) is Superman and we're going to ride him all we can," coach Coffman said. "Kyle (Shatzer) missed some shots early, but on this team we don't worry about missed shots. We only worry about the next one, and things started falling for him in the second half.

"And Wendell (Smith), well, he just showed what being a senior is all about. He took control out there."

The Bobcats hit only 18-of-49 shots (37 percent) while Lee was connecting on 23-of-47 shots (49 percent).

Bobcat coach Kevin Pope pretty well summed up the Lee victory, saying, "Lee came in here with their backs to the wall. They were hungry and we were not. We knew Lee was good. We went overtime with them last year and they have about the same kids back.

"In this district, you can throw out the records. It's this way every year. Road wins are going to be gold. If a team wins two or three on the road, they'll go to the playoffs. I think seven or eight wins is going to get a team into the playoffs."

Junior Brian Young led the Bobcats with 20 points, but he hit only 6-of-18 from the floor and 6-of-12 from the free throw line. Jovan Wilcox had 11 points, but was 4-of-13 from the field. You can't do a much better job against those two than that.

Lee returns to action Tuesday with a road trip to Abilene High. Lee should be favored in that one, but most in the league can't seem to figure out if that is a good thing or a bad thing. Maybe it's just a Chap Center kind of thing.

Jacks settle into three-way tie for first after loss in shootout

Staff Report

TUPELO, Miss. — The Odessa Jackalopes had a chance to extend their lead in the West Division of the Western Professional Hockey League, but instead will come out in a three-way tie for first after 3-2 shootout loss against the Tupelo T-Rex Friday night.

The Jacks are now tied with Lubbock and New Mexico for first in the WPHL West. For Jacks coach Don McKee, he knew the opportunity to get more than just one point Friday night slipped away.

"I thought it was here for us to take away tonight," said McKee in a post-game radio interview. "We let a point get away from us.

"I'm very frustrated with our performance tonight. We didn't want to sacrifice the body to make the play."

McKee also voiced displeasure in the Jacks' power play (1 for 6 on Friday) and the goalie play of Grant Sjerven, who only had 14 shots against him.

The Jacks got things started with a goal 3 minutes, 11 seconds into the contest from John Bossio off assists from Konrad McKay and Matt Hoffman. A goal from Tupelo's Mike Van Volsen two minutes later tied the game at 1-1 after the first period.

After a Tupelo goal in the second period, the Jacks responded with a power play goal in the third from Jason Heywood off assists from Mike Lankshear and Tim Hill to tie the contest at 2-2. The Jacks, however, thought they had scored earlier on a power play goal but it was disallowed by the referees.

In the shootout, the T-Rex outscored Odessa 2-1 with the winning goal coming from Tom Stewart.

The Jacks head to Bossier-Shreveport for a 7 p.m. game today.

Jacks Notes: With Lankshear and Hill getting points off assists Friday, Lankshear now has scored points in a league-high 11 straight games, while Hill has scored points in nine straight contests.

The people of New Orleans know how to celebrate, but they're not used to celebrating the Saints' playoff success. Perfect matchup: Raiders' potent offense goes against Dolphins' staunch defense

Associated Press

OAKLAND, Calif. — Cornerback Charles Woodson has read the newspapers and heard the buzz: The Oakland Raiders need better defense to win in the playoffs.

"There are a lot of people talking about how we have the weakest defense of the teams that are left," he said. "But I think we have a pretty good defense. We've gotten the job done this far."

Woodson and the Raiders (12-4) play the Miami Dolphins (12-5) Saturday in Oakland for the chance to go to the AFC title game.

The Raiders' potent offense has overshadowed any problems with the defense, ranked 17th in the league. But Oakland has been surprisingly good at causing turnovers, recovering 16 fumbles and catching 21 interceptions.

Veteran cornerback Eric Allen has six interceptions, running three of them back for touchdowns to break a franchise record. William Thomas also has six interceptions, the most for an NFL linebacker this season. Woodson has four.

They will face the league's 26th-ranked offense, led by Jay Fiedler.

Fiedler, a Dartmouth product who is the first Ivy League quarterback to start in the playoffs since 1970, struggled early in Miami's first-round 23-17 victory over the Indianapolis Colts, throwing three interceptions.

He recovered with 14-of-20 completions for 143 yards and a touchdown in the second half and overtime.

Such comebacks are characteristic for the Dolphins, who have trailed at halftime for their past four games.

"That's definitely a cause for concern. We function better when we're up, but anybody does," receiver Oronde Gadsden said. "If we keep turnovers to a minimum, we'll be fine."

Running back Lamar Smith ran the ball 40 times for 209 yards against Indianapolis. He has 13 touchdowns in Miami's past 10 games, and poses the greatest threat for the Raiders.

The Miami Dolphins' Jason Taylor (99), along with teammate Kevin Williams, celebrates the Dolphins' overtime win over Indianapolis last Saturday. Taylor, a defensive end who made 14 1/2 sacks in the regular season, is one of the leaders on Miami's feared defense.

Despite the Dolphins' obvious offensive weaknesses, Oakland coach Jon Gruden is well aware of the importance of defense.

"I do believe defenses do win championships," he said. "And this is the time of year where that phrase comes into reality."

The most fireworks in the game will likely come when the Raiders' offense knocks into Miami's defense, ranked sixth in the league.

Defensive end Trace Armstrong topped the AFC with 16 1/2 sacks, followed by teammate Jason Taylor with 14 1/2. And Miami led the league with 28 interceptions.

"I think Taylor and Armstrong are the most prolific sack duo in the history of the game. That's the word I have," Gruden said. "We've got to do an excellent job running patterns, being physical, being precise in the passing game. That's the only way to go up against Miami."

The Raiders finished the season with just 20 turnovers, the fewest in the AFC.

"We have a good balanced offensive attack. We'll have a good scheme and we're going to try and go after them," said quarterback Rich Gannon, selected to the Pro Bowl and the Associated Press All-Pro team. "We're not going to be intimidated. We're going to play our style of football. We're going to try and be aggressive."

The Raiders' strength is their running game, the best in the league. Tyrone Wheatley, a cast-off from the New York Giants, has found a good fit in Oakland. He carried the ball 232 times for a career-high 1,046 yards and nine scores this season.

"A lot of it was just him getting an opportunity. He's got an extra gear a lot of backs don't have," Armstrong said. "They're pretty much going to live and die with Wheatley."

Wheatley, who was slowed by sore ankles in the second half of the season, has recovered over the Raiders' first-round bye. Fellow back Napoleon Kaufman, who injured his knee and thigh against the New York Jets, also should be healed for Saturday's game.

While the Dolphins are the underdogs going into the game, Miami has defeated the Raiders three straight times in Oakland.

They'll use that advantage to accompany their defense.

"It gives our guys confidence," coach Dave Wannstedt said. "Hey, we'd love to be playing at home. Who wouldn't? But there's not a sense of concern about going on the road."

year and go from worst to first," Glover said, "then to get a chance to go back to Minnesota and try to knock them off? That's exciting. It's what you dream about."

Running back Terry Allen was with the Vikings from 1990-94. He had 1,000-yard seasons in '92 and '94, but spent all of the '90 and '93 seasons recovering from injuries. Allen joined the Saints late this season after Ricky Williams broke his leg.

New Orleans wide receivers coach Hubbard Alexander held the same position with the Vikings in 1998 and '99, and running backs coach Dave Atkins coached Minnesota's tight ends from 1997-99.

"One of the things I can tell these guys is that the Vikings are very good at what they do," Atkins said. "But you don't have to have been there to know that."

For Reed, a third-round draft choice in 1991, there are many memories. He caught 386 passes for 6,124 yards and 32 touchdowns in nine seasons in Minnesota, including 1,000-yard receiving seasons from 1994-97. He started in nine playoff games while with the Vikings. At one point, Reed and Cris Carter were among the NFL's most dangerous receiving duos.

So Reed spent this week quickly dismissing questions about his return. The trip to his old hometown is important only for one reason: It takes his new team a step closer to the Super Bowl.

"Playing up there in the preseason is probably the best thing that could have happened," Reed said. "I got it out of my system. It's not a distraction. We're going to go up there and play football and I'm going to do my thing. I have a lot of friends up there — players and coaches and people on the staff. I had a great time up there. But it's over."

CHIEFS: Rams object to Vermeil taking job

(From 1B)

meil led the 1980 Philadelphia Eagles to the Super Bowl. Peterson was director of player personnel.

The Chiefs, despite going 13-3 during the regular season twice since Peterson became president in 1988, have not been to a title game since winning the Super Bowl after the 1969 season.

Cunningham, who was Kansas City's defensive coordinator for four years before taking over as coach, led the Chiefs to a 9-7 record in 1999 and 7-9 this season.

The Chiefs have missed the postseason three straight years and have not won a playoff game since after the 1993 season.

"While our record for the past three years is not all a reflection of Gunther Cunningham, the fact is that two of the last three years the Kansas City Chiefs have had a losing record," Peterson said. "We don't think that's appropriate for this organization."

During an interview Friday with ESPN Radio, Vermeil said that he never expected to coach again after leaving the Rams.

"If I'd known I was going to be back, I would have never left," he said.

Vermeil, 64, said negotiations between the Chiefs and Rams were "the due process of the league, the normal business side of these kinds of things."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch reported Friday that the Rams were demanding a first-round draft pick for the right to hire Vermeil. That report could not be immediately confirmed through the Rams' public relations office, which was closed Friday.

"My interpretation is, he can't go to Kansas City without our consent, which we haven't granted at this point," Rams president John Shaw said Thursday. "Right now, there is some dispute. If a coach still has years remaining (on his contract), he can't go to another club without our permission."

On Thursday, Kansas City was awarded third-round draft picks in 2001 and 2002 from the Washington Redskins, who lured former Chiefs coach Marty Schottenheimer out of a two-year retirement to be their coach and director of football operations. Schottenheimer had one year left on a contract with the Chiefs.

Vermeil also said Friday that he was under contract to St. Louis as a consultant for the next three years, not one year as was previously reported.

Giants have plan to stop McNabb

Associated Press

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — Mention Donovan McNabb, and the New York Giants call him the NFL's Michael Jordan.

The Philadelphia Eagles quarterback is that good. He seemingly can take over a game and win it by himself.

McNabb did it last week in the NFC wildcard game against Tampa Bay, and the Giants (12-4) are worried he'll do it again when the Eagles (12-5) visit Giants Stadium on Sunday in the NFC semifinal.

Or are they?

"You look at Michael Jordan, and he was Chicago," said Giants Pro Bowl linebacker Jessie Armstead. "But he couldn't win it all early in his career.

"So is this the younger Michael Jordan, or the older Michael Jordan? That's one thing we all have to find out."

While McNabb finished second in the MVP balloting this season, he looked very much like a second-year quarterback — and a young M.J. — in two one-sided losses in which the Giants controlled the ball for 83 of a possible 120 minutes.

McNabb completed 29 of 64 passes for 343 yards, two touchdowns and one interception. He also rushed eight times for 87 yards and a TD.

Much of the yardage came in garbage time in games the Giants won 33-18 and 24-7.

"He reminds me of a John Elway before they had a running game," Giants middle linebacker Mike Barrow said. "He's like Jordan before they got Scottie Pippen. But unlike basketball, this is more of a team sport."

McNabb insisted the Eagles are a better team than the one the Giants last faced in late October. He also said his team didn't play that well in either game.

"It wasn't them," McNabb said. "We've prepared well all throughout the week, and we just didn't take advantage of the opportunities that they were giving us. On the offensive side, there were times where we could have definitely completed some balls, we could've ran the ball a little bit better, or whatever it may be, we just didn't do it."

New York did it on both sides of the ball.

The offense kept McNabb and company on the sidelines and the defense made the Eagles one dimensional, limiting them to 128 yards rushing in two games, most of it coming with McNabb on the run.

A big reason for the success was the discipline of its defensive front seven. The group did a great job of keeping McNabb encircled. When he did break the containment, there was an assigned defender waiting for him.

"They used a spy, and that's something that I learned (to live) with," McNabb said. "The only way that you get a chance to learn is to be involved in it. I'm excited about this opportunity. I'm excited about this game. We have been waiting for this game for a while and now it's time to strap it on and play."

Armstead feels the same way.

"We're only concerned about ourselves," Armstead said. "If we play like we're supposed to, we're not worried about anybody. If we go out there and play the defensive style we play, we don't care who is out on that field."

Even if it is the Michael Jordan of the NFL.

Barber ready; Giants deactivate Jurevicius for NFC semifinal

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — New York Giants halfback Tiki Barber is set to play Sunday in the NFC semifinal game against the Philadelphia Eagles.

The only questions about Barber are what type of protection he will wear on his broken left arm and whether he will return punts.

"I really haven't decided yet," said Barber, who broke the arm Dec. 17 against Dallas. "We've tried out three different braces and casts and we'll see."

While there have been rumors that Barber will have a limited role, he doesn't see it that way.

"I have confidence in the guys that are going to be in there and I have confidence in myself," he said. "When my number is called, I'll be ready to play. That's all that matters to me."

Ronde Barber, Tiki's twin brother and a cornerback on the Tampa Bay Buccaneers, attended the Giants' practice Friday.

Receiver Joe Jurevicius, who missed the final two games of the regular season because of a sprained right knee, was deactivated Friday along with linebacker Kevin Lewis and defensive lineman Jeremiah Parker, coach Jim Fassel said.

Chargers pin their future on Butler

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The San Diego Chargers are convinced the Butler will do it..

Two weeks removed from a 1-15 season — the worst in the franchise's 41-year-history — the Chargers introduced John Butler on Friday as their new executive vice president and general manager.

As Buffalo's GM the last eight seasons, Butler kept the Bills competitive in the salary-cap era with his drafting and free agent signings. The Chargers, who've missed the playoffs for five straight seasons, hope he can reverse their status as one of the NFL's laughingstocks.

"You haven't seen this much excitement around here in a long time," said safety Michael Dumas, who played with Buffalo in 1994 and attended Butler's introductory news conference.

Butler was fired by the Bills on Dec. 19 because he wouldn't make a commitment beyond February, when his contract was to run out.

The Chargers, without a GM since Bobby Beathard retired last spring, wasted little time in hiring Butler. He agreed to a five-year contract reportedly worth $7.5 million, roughly $1 million more a year than what the Bills paid him.

Butler is undaunted by the Chargers' NFL-worst record and the big decisions ahead, including what to do with embattled quarterback Ryan Leaf and the top pick in April's draft.

"I couldn't be happier," said Butler, who started in the NFL as a Chargers scout in 1985-86 before spending the next 14 seasons in Buffalo's front office.

"I know in this league, 1-15 is not always what you really are," Butler said. "Sometimes things go wrong on you. But it's a challenge, and I love that challenge."

After meeting with president Dean Spanos and other team officials in Las Vegas the previous two days, Butler said he was convinced the Chargers want to erase their image as losers.

"You can really tell in a second if somebody is really committed and they really want to win and they're going to provide you with a chance to win," Butler said. "I'm not fooled very easily. When that was there, and the chance to come back, I jumped at it very quickly."

Since Spanos' father, Alex, bought them in 1984, the Chargers have had just three winning seasons, not counting the 8-7 record in the 1987 strike season. They've been in a free fall since their last playoff appearance in 1995.

"I told him, 'Whatever it takes, just bring me in a winner,'" Alex Spanos said. "I want to start jumping again like I used to. One-and-15, I hide."

Dean Spanos has been critical of the last several drafts and free agent signings under Beathard, whose gambling has left the roster talent-bare.

"We need to turn that around," Spanos said. "That's one of the major things that I think he (Butler) brings to this organization.

"I was kidding him, I said, 'You know, we need a spark,' "Spanos said. "And he said, 'Well, how about a big spark?' "

Butler, an offensive lineman in college, is about 6-foot-4 and 280 pounds.

"It's a start," Spanos said. "And I think you're going to see a lot of positive things in the next month or so."

Of immediate concern is whether Butler will be able to bring along A.J. Smith, the Bills' pro personnel director. Butler and Smith have worked together since the early 1980s. Smith is under contract to Buffalo through mid-February, and reportedly will be forced to serve out the time, unless the Chargers can get the NFL to intervene.

Spanos declined comment on Smith.

Lions to hire Millen as president, GM

DETROIT — The Detroit Lions, who never have been to the Super Bowl, are turning to the only player who has won it four times with three teams.

Matt Millen will be hired as president and general manager of the Lions, an NFL source said Friday.

"It should happen early next week," said the source, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Calls Friday to Millen's home went unanswered.

Lions owner William Clay Ford has been out of town and was expected to return at the beginning of the week to announce Millen's appointment.

Detroit has not won a championship since 1957 -- nine years before the first Super Bowl — and has won only one playoff game since then.

The Lions have allowed their coaches — Wayne Fontes, Bobby Ross and Gary Moeller — to run the football operation since Russ Thomas resigned as general manager after the 1989 season.

The organization was interested in hiring the former NFL linebacker and TV commentator two years ago, but Millen asked to be removed from consideration.

Change has swept through the Lions in recent months, and that is expected to continue when Millen assumes his position next week.

The Lions fired their offensive and defensive coordinators along with their receivers coach after being eliminated from the playoffs by losing to Chicago in the regular-season finale.

Ross resigned as coach after Detroit lost three straight to drop to 5-4. Moeller was given a 2 1/2-year contract and led Detroit to a 9-7 finish.

It is not known what Millen will do with Moeller or with the organization's seven vice presidents.

Detroit's Robert Porcher hopes Moeller is retained.

"I think he's the right man for the job," Porcher told the Detroit News. "Hopefully, the powers that be will think that he is, too."

Bryant Westbrook echoed his teammate's comments.

"They're not going to get rid of coach Moeller, are they?" Westbrook said. "I hope they don't. In this day and age, players listen to and play for guys like him. He loves the game, which helps him motivate us."

Brad Faxon plays a shot out of a deep bunker during the World Match Play Championships in Melbourne, Australia. Faxon lost a 19-hole match to Pierre Fulke on Saturday.

putts every time.

"From No. 14 on, I had to make a a putt on every hole," Els said, and that's what he did.

He made a curling 5-footer on the 14th, then a 6-footer on the next hole when he hit his 75-foot birdie putt too hard. The 16th required a 5-foot par putt that was downhill and swung sharply to the right.

But the biggest putt was on No. 17.

Els hit into the right bunker and was shocked when his blast out checked up some 10 feet from the hole. He made that par putt, too.

Stadler, No. 92 in the world ranking, was 1-up through seven holes but never gave himself a chance to put any pressure on Els. The few he hit to within medium range were above the hole and required caution.

His best shot? At No. 18, into about 8 feet. He never got a chance to make it after Els closed out the match with a birdie.

"I putted myself out of trouble," Els said. "That's something I learned from Tiger. He hangs in there. You're not always going to play the way you want to play."

Just ask Stricker.

He was so erratic off the tee that he raised his arms triumphantly when he finally hit a fairway on No. 14. But the Wisconsin native has the right parts of his game working — crisp irons, a delicate touch around the greens and clutch-putting.

"I struggled a bit in the middle, but started hitting the ball better in the end," Stricker said. "That's the beauty of match play."

O'Hern was trying to continue his Cinderella story — from No. 103 in the world ranking, to 39th alternate in the World Golf Championship, and almost of the semifinals.

Stricker, who had never trailed in any of his first three matches, never led on Saturday until the 20th and final hole. Thanks to his putting, he at least got to the 20th hole.

With the match all square on the 17th, Stricker hit his 25-foot birdie putt about 10 feet past the hole and had to make it coming back to stay even.

The first extra hole was the 14th, and it appeared O'Hern would win with a wedge that stopped 3 feet from the hole. But Stricker, facing a do-or-die putt, nailed it for birdie to continue the match, then won on the next hole.

Fulke, who has all but clinched a spot on the Ryder Cup team for Europe, holed out a bunker shot for eagle on No. 12, but was wild off the on the 17th and the match went to extra holes, starting on the 14th.

Fulke took a huge gamble that failed, hitting driver on the 319-yard hole where position is everything. He was well left and chunked his approach short of the green. Faxon played an iron off the tee to the fairway, but hit his wedge long into the back bunker, a difficult place from which to save par.

His blast went 20 feet by, while Fulke putted up some 80 feet for a tap-in par for the victory.

For Maruyama, it was the end of his perfect record in Melbourne. Maruyama was 5-0 in the Presidents Cup at Royal Melbourne two years ago, and 3-0 at Metropolitan until he ran into his buddy Taniguchi, who built a 4-up lead at the turn and made a birdie on the 15th as Maruyama was trying to make a run.

Mavs' Nash returns to his native Canada, scores 27 vs. Raptors

Associated Press

TORONTO — Steve Nash put on a show in his home country.

Nash, a Canadian Olympic star, had a career-high 27 points and Dirk Nowitzki scored 13 of of his 29 points in the fourth quarter as the Dallas Mavericks beat the Toronto Raptors 115-105 Friday night.

"I got my first career-high in Vancouver, and to get one in Toronto is a great feeling," Nash said. "A lot of people are rooting for me here, so to have a good game was really exciting for me."

Nash, who received a loud ovation before the game for leading Canada to upsets over Australia and Yugoslavia at the Summer Olympics in Sydney, made his first 11 shots.

"Steve was the difference," Nowitzki said. "He's been aggressive all year. You can see what see what confidence does for you. In the last two years he was passing up a lot of shots, and we told him he's one of the best shooters in the league. He's really done it this year and he did it tonight."

Nash finished 12-for-16 from the field with eight assists.

Nowitzki scored nine straight points during a 19-4 Dallas run bridging the third and fourth quarters. Hubert Davis' free throw gave Dallas an 102-86 lead with just under five minutes remaining, but Vince Carter made a spectacular alley-oop dunk and Toronto went on a 15-2 run as Carter scored 11 points, narrowing the lead 106-101 with 1:15 remaining.

Nash ended the run with a driving layup, and Davis made a 3-pointer to give Dallas a 109-101 lead with 48 seconds left. Shawn Bradley then made two free throws to ice the victory.

"Steve was great in front of his country," Bradley said. "He passed the ball when he needed to. He made shots when he needed to. You have to take your hat off to him, and give him the game ball."

Carter scored 33 for the Raptors, who have lost three straight. The Raptors held a team meeting after the game.

"Oak said it best, you want to be warrior, you have to go out there and act like it. You have to go out and play 48 minutes," Carter said.

Michael Finley added 20 for Dallas.

Nash scored 19 points on 9-for-9 shooting in the first half, but Toronto converted 12 turnovers into 18 points and led 62-54 at intermission.

Notes: Nash's previous career best was 26 points last Dec. 30 against Houston. ... Heavyweight champion Lennox Lewis sat courtside. Lewis won a gold medal for Canada at the Seoul Olympics in 1988.

Celts release former Chap

BOSTON (AP) — Mi.t Palacio's short but memorable stint with the Boston Celtics has ended.

Palacio, whose buzzer-beating 3-pointer gave the Celtics a 112-111 victory over New Jersey on Dec. 28, was waived Friday.

Palacio, a former Midland College player, appeared in 12 games for the Celtics, starting three. He averaged 2.7 points and 1.3 assists per game, playing an average of 15.3 minutes per contest.

The Celtics signed Palacio on Dec. 6 in an effort to shore up a backcourt depleted by injuries. He appeared in 53 games for Vancouver in the 1999-2000 season, averaging two points per game.

Nearly-paralyzed PSU player leaves hospital under his own power

Associated Press

PHILADELPHIA — Three-and-a-half months after severely injuring his spine in a football game, Penn State freshman Adam Taliaferro walked out of a hospital on crutches Friday.

"I never thought of it as a nightmare. I thought of it as a freak accident that happened to occur to me," Taliaferro, 19, of Voorhees, N.J., said.

Taliaferro expects to return to classes at Penn State this summer. He won't play football again, but he was content just to walk again.

"I've still got a lot of work to do, but I'm just thankful to get home," Taliaferro said before leaving Magee Rehabilitation Hospital.

He will continue with outpatient therapy five days a week. His lead doctor, William Staas Jr., the hospital's president and medical director, said Taliaferro should be walking without crutches in a few weeks.

The former defensive back said he was not in pain, except for the fatigue he feels after four to five hours of therapy each day.

He was surrounded by his parents, Andre and Addie Taliaferro, and his younger brother, Bill; a phalanx of doctors and therapists; and well-wishers from both Penn State and Eastern High School in Voorhees.

In his senior year at Eastern, Taliaferro was The Philadelphia Inquirer's all-area high school football player of the year.

"In high school, he was the man. He scored all the points, all the time," said teammate Chaz Brown, one of a half-dozen high school friends at the hospital Friday.

Brown said their high school coaches sometimes kidded the players, saying they simply waited for the man with the S on his chest — Taliaferro — to score.

"I always called him Superman," Brown said. "I knew he was going to walk again. So, I'm just waiting for him to fly."

Taliaferro, a true freshman, was injured making a headfirst tackle in the Sept. 23 game at Ohio State. His head connected with the knee of 231-pound running back Jerry Westbrooks, causing Taliaferro's neck to snap back. His spinal cord was severely bruised, but not severed.

He had successful spinal fusion surgery at Ohio State Medical Center before being transferred to Thomas Jefferson University Hospital in Philadelphia.

Taliaferro thanked the doctors and therapists who pushed him in his recovery.

Dr. Wayne Sebastianelli, Penn State's director of athletic medicine, treated Taliaferro in the crucial minutes after the injury.

"He saved my life on the field that day," Taliaferro said as Sebastianelli, nearby, fought back tears. "Without him, I wouldn't be here today."

The Penn State community has raised more than $200,000 to pay expenses not covered by insurance or the NCAA's catastrophic coverage. Any remaining money will go toward a fund in Taliaferro's name that will assist other college athletes who sustain career-ending injuries.

Mascot gets off with slap on wing

Associated Press

MIAMI — The Miami Hurricanes' mascot won't be disciplined for running onto the field during a touchdown celebration in a 37-20 win over the Florida Gators in the Sugar Bowl.

"There won't be any suspension," said Connie Nickel, Miami's assistant athletic director for events. "We had a chat about how you're supposed to act. It was spur of the moment, he got a little overexcited."

The incident occurred in the fourth quarter of Tuesday's annual game in New Orleans. Sebastian the Ibis, the Hurricanes' mascot, ran into the end zone and embraced Miami running back Najeh Davenport after he scored a 3-yard touchdown to put Miami up 36-20.

The mascot's celebration resulted in a 15-yard unsportsmanlike penalty on the team's extra point. A later penalty forced Hurricanes' kicker Todd Sievers to make a 50-yard extra point attempt.

Miami head coach Butch Davis was visibly upset with the mascot's antics and could be seen yelling on the sidelines. Sebastian was then removed from the field, but returned in time to celebrate the victory with the team.

Nickel said the man who works as Sebastian, whom she did not name, apologized to Davis.

"Obviously, we won the game so it wasn't a big deal," Nickel said.

UCLA's Mitchell will go pro

LOS ANGELES — Freddie Mitchell, one of the nation's top wide receivers, will forgo his final year of eligibility at UCLA to make himself available for the NFL draft.

And the loquacious 6-foot, 188-pounder said Friday he'll tone down his colorful behavior as a professional.

College Football Briefs

When last seen, Mitchell was waving good-bye to Wisconsin's Jamar Fletcher, who won the Jim Thorpe Award as the nation's top cornerback, on a 64-yard pass play in last week's Sun Bowl. Mitchell drew an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty for his gesture.

"You won't hear no more trash talking from Freddie Mitchell, those are the big boys, I'm just a little kid again," he said.

"I'm humble."

One of three finalists for the Biletnikoff Award as the country's top receiver, Mitchell had 77 receptions — second-most in UCLA history — for a school-record 1,494 yards and nine touchdowns this season. He caught nine passes for a Sun Bowl-record 180 yards and one TD in UCLA's 21-20 loss, and was named the game's MVP.

Henson will stay at Michigan

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Drew Henson decided he still has unfinished business as Michigan's quarterback.

Opting to continue playing both college football and minor league baseball rather than entering the NFL draft, Henson said Friday he will return for his senior season.

"I feel another year in college will get me closer to my degree and help further my development as a quarterback," Henson said in a press release.

He led Michigan to a 9-3 record and No. 11 final ranking this season. Despite missing the first 3 1/2 games with a broken foot, Henson completed 61.6 percent of his passes for 2,146 yards with 18 touchdowns and only four interceptions this season.

He was 15-of-20 for 294 yards with two touchdown passes in Michigan's 31-28 victory over Auburn in the Citrus Bowl on New Year's Day.

A few days before the game, Henson said he would seriously consider all of his options after the season.

His goals at Michigan include winning a national championship and the Heisman Trophy.

He probably would have been a first-round pick in the next NFL draft, perhaps even a high choice.

Or Henson, a prospect in the Cincinnati Reds' organization, could have chosen to devote his time to baseball and found out if he was talented enough to play third base in the major leagues.

Minnesota gives Ohio State permission to talk to Mason

MINNEAPOLIS — Minnesota has given Ohio State permission to talk to Golden Gophers football coach Glen Mason about the Buckeyes' coaching position.

"(Ohio State athletic director) Andy Geiger said he'd like to talk to our football coach, and I said I was not going to stand in the way of doing that," Minnesota athletic director Tom Moe said Friday. "I don't know any more than that."

The Buckeyes fired John Cooper on Tuesday, one day after the Buckeyes' 27-7 loss to South Carolina in the Outback Bowl.

Moe said he had "no idea" when Ohio State officials would contact Mason. But, Moe added, "If there's anything I can do to see that he stays, I will."

Also Friday, Pittsburgh denied Ohio State's request to talk to coach Walt Harris. Harris, who in four seasons has coached Pitt to its only two bowl appearances in 11 years, was Ohio State's quarterbacks coach — and was offered the offensive coordinator's job — before being hired by Pitt in 1997.

Minnesota spokesman Bill Crumley said Mason told him he would be unavailable for comment.

Mason played on Woody Hayes' 1970 Big Ten champions at Ohio State. He later coached at the school under Hayes and Earle Bruce from 1978-85.

Former Kentucky assistant admits NCAA violations

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Kentucky's former recruiting coordinator admitted Friday that he committed NCAA violations when he sent $1,400 in money orders to a Memphis high school football coach.

Claude Bassett made the admission during a live interview on WKYT-TV. He previously denied any knowledge of the money orders or payments to Melrose High School coach Tim Thompson.

"I just felt it was necessary to stand up and look people in the eye and tell them what I did," Bassett said.

"Bottom line, to all the fans and to all the people that I have caused any undue hurt, I fully apologize. I know that doesn't mean much to some people, but right now it's about the best I can do."

The Courier-Journal reported last week that it had obtained copies of four cashed money orders totaling $1,400 purchased Oct. 25 at the University of Kentucky Federal Credit Union and made payable to Thompson.

On each money order, Thompson's name was written by hand into the space designated for the payee.

not to shoot," Shropshire said.

"If we can get that out of Marcus every night, a lot of teams wouldn't be able to play their zone," center Andy Ellis said. "We've got a lot of versatile players."

And that versatility helps the team, which remains limited by scholarship restrictions for a significant number of major NCAA violations, including recruiting and unethical conduct, which took place throughout the university's athletic programs in the 1990s.

"All the freshman have stepped up really big this year," Ellis said. "They've all done a great job. Now, it's just a whole other step into conference play. If we can adjust to that, we'll be okay."

The Red Raiders face their toughest Big 12 test right out of the gate against the Jayhawks, the league's highest-ranked team.

Ellis, the team's leading scorer with 17.2 points a game, said the Red Raiders need to stay close and then finish off games. They have lost three games in the final minute.

"We can play with anybody for 35 minutes," Ellis said. "I think it just came down to a confidence factor, that hopefully we cured this week against New Mexico State."

Tech's 71-65 win over the Aggies was by far their most consistent performance this season, Dickey said. Tech held on throughout the game and took the lead for good on Shropshire 3-pointer with just more than a minute to play.

The Red Raiders know they have a lot of young blood, and in some ways they may not realize what they're getting into. That may be a good thing.

"We're not going to play scared," Shropshire said.

Compassion Ministries teach life skills

By Rodney Carmichael
Waco Tribune-Herald

WACO — Give a man a fish and he'll eat for a day. Teach him how to fish and he'll eat forever.

That's the essence of Compassion Ministries' six-month-old co-partner program. By pairing up its shelter residents with community volunteers, Compassion Ministries is teaching homeless men and women how to manage their lives with independence and confidence.

Every Thursday, 28 volunteers meet at Central Presbyterian Church with the 12 residents of Compassion Ministries' outreach program to give them guidance and advice on budgeting and maintaining gainful employment.

The life skills are pragmatic for a purpose. By helping residents set realistic goals for themselves, Jill McCall, the director of Compassion Ministries, hopes to empower them toward positive change, she said.

Brenda Vasquez could use such a change. When she came to Compassion Ministries in August, she had been in a drug treatment program for three months. What began as recreational use had finally consumed her, said the 38-year-old divorced mother of three.

She then went through what she called a "deep depression" after losing three loved ones in a three-month period.

Trouble with the law compounded her problems and she soon found herself in a hole she couldn't seem to dig out of. The co-partners she meets with weekly have helped her find the light of day again, she said.

"I wish I had gotten here a lot sooner than I did," Vasquez said. "I wasted a lot of years, but everything happens for a reason."

She's starting over from scratch, learning how to be self-sufficient.

Catholicism calls woman to lifelong process

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

For some, the big turnover has come and gone; others mark this year as the beginning of a new century and a new millennium. For Kathy Reeves, Midland's county tax assessor/collector, 2001 will mark a series of intensely spiritual anniversaries.

This time last year, Ms. Reeves was at the threshold of her conversion to Catholicism, having begun the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults (RCIA). In RCIA she would learn, through study, lectures and intense soul-searching, what it means to be a Catholic.

She had been a lifelong Methodist, had been instrumental in establishing a United Methodist church in Midland, and had brought her children up in the Methodist faith. She said the need for a change had manifested itself not so much through the often-described "feeling of emptiness," but rather through a gradual shift toward a desire for a more structured liturgy, and a general realization that some basic beliefs had changed.

"I had been drifting more and more toward the Catholic faith, and every time I would visit the Catholic church, I would just get this feeling that I was at home," she said.

The official conversion to Catholicism, however, is not an overnight process, Ms. Reeves explained.

"In order to convert, I went through almost a year of religious teaching, with RCIA classes every Saturday night from 1 1/2 to 2 hours, and every Sunday morning after Mass we would study another 30 to 45 minutes."

During the early stage of the process, termed the "inquiry" period, candidates are encouraged to ask questions of their teachers and their sponsors —

Spiritual journey takes woman from Catholic to Baptist church

By Johnnye Montgomery
Religion Writer

Jenny Rhoads and her husband, Terry, have taken a twisting path on their journey in faith since their marriage at St. Edward's Catholic Church in the town of Spring in 1975.

"I came from a very strong Catholic family, and I was born and raised a Catholic, eighth child of 12," said Mrs. Rhoads. "Terry was a Baptist. My parents were very upset when they learned that Terry was Baptist, and my father even threatened not to go to the wedding."

However, the priest who counseled the couple before their marriage had grown up in a family where the parents were of mixed denominations, and he was comfortable with the notion.

"He told us to pray about it, and to go where God led us,"

'Church of Refuge' program serves displaced ministers

By Loretta Fulton
Abilene Reporter-News

ABILENE — A little paint is all a house owned by North Park Baptist Church needs to fulfill its new mission. It already has the most essential element heart.

As soon as a displaced minister calls, needing refuge from the reality that even pastors can be forced out of a job, the house will be ready to serve that need.

North Park, pastored by the Rev. Louis Johnson, is one of only four Baptist churches in Texas to sponsor a Church of Refuge, as the Baptist General Convention of Texas calls it.

"That church has a wonderful heart for wanting to restore people," said Sonny Spurger, associate coordinator of minister/church relations for the BGCT.

'Our hope is that some of those churches will use those empty times to support a church of refuge.'
— Sonny Spurger, associate coordinator of minister/church relations

The state Baptist convention started its Church of Refuge program five years ago, but recently the program has gained a new emphasis. The renewed interest came not out of a greater need now than before, Spurger said, but a greater awareness.

Sunscape Ministries of Colorado, which serves clergy in crises, reported that in all denominations across the United States, 1,600 ministers per month are terminated or forced to resign their pulpit.

If the minister and his family are living in church-owned housing, losing a job carries an extra burden.

"If they are terminated from their church, they not only lose their paycheck but also their home," said Johnson, who has been the minister at North Park almost 10 years.

The Church of Refuge program offers more than just a roof over the head of a pastor and his family. It also allows the family to become a part of a church family where they can experience emotional and spiritual healing, Johnson said.

The program also provides for professional counseling and an opportunity for volunteer service to the church. The home is provided rent-free for up to one year. Utilities are paid for the first three months, and then the family is expected to take over that expense.

Johnson, who has experienced the pain of termination, understands how important the Church of Refuge ministry is. Although his own experience was distressing, Johnson believes it prepared him to see the wisdom of opening a Church of Refuge in Abilene.

"That is one of the things that has given me the heart for this kind of ministry," he said.

As important as the free housing is, the sense of being in a refuge may be what the minister needs most. Spurger, with the Baptist General Convention of Texas office in Dallas, said the concept is based on the cities of refuge mentioned in the book of Exodus. In bib-

Resolution making can be easier when God is included in the process

Definitions of the word pink include the usual suspects: "red pigment mixed with white" "a leftish politician," "a saw-tooth edge."

Williams

However, definitions of pink also include the following: "trousers worn by army officers," "a ship with a narrow stern," "a British fox-hunting jacket," "a carnation" and "to pierce with a rapier."

On the other hand, the word resolution (as in those pesky promises we make every year at this time) contains no such interesting variations: "firmness of purpose," "determination," "perseverance, " "tenacity," "fortitude" — all boring concepts that require more of us than we want to give. What, for example, is fun about fortitude?

More accurate definitions of resolution might be "an annual inside joke played on oneself," or "the tension between one's lofty nature (the will) and one's lower nature (the body), in which the body always wins," or "fertile ground for the seeds of guilt, sown from mid-February on, when one finally abandons the unpleasantness caused by a desire to improve."

Last year's guilt is still pricking me because I am still wearing last year's resolution around my middle — the five extra pounds of fat that never made it off my waistline.

I have come up with some guidelines for making resolutions:

■ Never decide on something important. If it matters, chuck it. For example, don't resolve that you'll never get angry at your children. Resolve instead to learn every song from, say "The Sound of Music." That way, when the resolution fails, you won't have lost anything more important than the words to "Edelweiss."

■ Resolve to do the opposite. For instance, promise yourself never to exercise. Reverse psychology kicks in and what you can't have starts to be appealing. Pretty soon, you'll be sneaking to aerobics behind your own back. Or, promise yourself to eat three candy bars a day — morning, noon and night. By the end of the second week, you'll be so sick of chocolate, you won't want to see another Mars bar until next January.

■ If you resolve to lose weight, don't do it the slow, hard way. Make an appointment for liposuction.

■ Resolve something that involves buying yourself a reward. My personal resolution this year (after liposuction) is to use real dishes for supper instead of paper plates. (This one has been a guilt-pricker for years because my mother raised me to know better.) But the reason I don't use our dishes is because they are too big to fit comfortably in the dishwasher. The obvious solution is a new set of dishes.

In all seriousness, resolutions are so hard to keep because we try to accomplish these things on our own steam; we don't include God in the process. If we're serious, we'll pray. Not only will God give us insight into what He wants us to change, He gives us the power to fulfill the resolution.

The Latin root of the word resolution includes "re" (again), "se" (apart), and "luere" (let go, set free). In Christ, we are thus set apart to be set free again and again.

ner program. Besides getting a job within 21 days, they're also encouraged to set a savings goal they would like to reach by the time they leave the program.

When Vasquez leaves in February, she hopes to have saved enough money from her job at Walgreen's to afford an apartment and a vehicle.

"I try to keep it realistic and be thankful," said Vasquez.

Meanwhile, her co-partners are teaching her to save receipts after every purchase, even for minor stuff "like a pack of gum," Vasquez said. "I wasn't good at that in the beginning."

Helen Bridges used to be one of her co-partner counselors. Bridges still volunteers with the co-partner program. She and her husband Ken had previously been financial donors to Compassion Ministries and began donating their time as co-partners in August after being asked by McCall.

Bridges was drawn to get involved in the program as a budgeting volunteer because of the program's "genuine concern to share with the residents that somebody in the community cares about them and is willing to help them learn the skills that they need to help them turn their lives around," she said.

She's growing and gaining just as much along the way, said Bridges. "I feel like I get a lot more out of it than I put into it."

Beyond ensuring that residents are getting along well at work and sticking to their weekly budget, co-partners also share words of encouragement with them during their weekly 45-minute two-on-one sessions.

Some co-partners focus on budgeting while others focus on employment concerns. After meeting with McCall for 15 minutes at the outset of each meeting, the volunteers split into their pairs and go to separate rooms in Central Presbyterian Church to visit with their assigned resident.

Each resident sees two co-partner groups per night, which allows them to get budgetary and employment guidance.

JOURNEY: Couple trusted sound advice from marriage counselor

(From 1C)

said Mrs. Rhoads.

"I said I was never going to become a Baptist and Terry said he'd never be a Catholic."

The Rhoadses had entered their marriage knowing that each had a strong background in faith. While dating during college at Texas A&M, they had spent much of their time at various Christian outreach functions.

"In fact, I was saved at a Baptist Christian Union outreach service. Terry and I went out to this Christian Outreach Night and I listened to the guy talking about accepting Christ as your personal savior, and I realized that I didn't have a personal relationship with Jesus Christ," said Mrs. Rhoads.

"When you grow up Catholic, you know that when you are confirmed, you're saved, you're a Christian, but I had never had that kind of experience.

"I accepted Christ that night, but I was still a Catholic."

It should be noted here that after her epiphany during the Baptist outreach event, Mrs. Rhoads had been baptized by immersion at her request, in College Station.

"I felt that I needed that baptism, so I asked to be baptized in a Baptist church, but I didn't join the church," she said. "When I joined First Baptist here, they recognized that baptism."

The Rev. Gary Dyer, pastor of First Baptist, said while Baptist churches are autonomous, the requirement that members be baptized by immersion is universal among Baptist churches.

"Baptism means immersion, so to us; to be baptized means to be immersed. If (Mrs. Rhoads) was baptized in a Baptist church, in most Baptist churches that meant that she automatically became a member of that church. She may not have known that," he added.

Mrs. Rhoads said after their marriage, the couple agreed to find a church they both could be comfortable with, but their resolve crystallized 13 months after their marriage with the birth of their son, Michael, who is now 23.

"We were determined that he wouldn't be torn between two religions," she said. "We were living in Brownfield at the time, where Terry was an engineer with Amoco, and we joined the First Christian Church.

"I would go to Mass with my mother when we went home to visit, and I always attended Midnight Mass at Christmas."

In 1979, the family moved back to Lubbock where Rhoads entered Texas Tech University law school, and the church they settled on was non-denominational Trinity — a "full-blown evangelical church," according to Mrs. Rhoads, "with people speaking in tongues and the presence of the Lord was awesome. Terry and I never spoke in tongues, but we were completely at home, because we knew that was where God meant for us to be."

After Rhoads finished law school, the family moved to Midland and visited First Baptist in their search for a church. Mrs. Rhoads said one of her main objections to joining a Baptist church had always been their no-alcohol/no-dancing rule. She took her concerns to Daniel Vestal, then pastor of First Baptist Church.

"I just told him that I didn't think it was a sin to drink or to dance, and he said he would still like to have us as members," she said.

They joined First Baptist. Yet, Mrs. Rhoads has continued to attend Mass whenever she goes back to Spring to visit her family.

"There was never any dispute with my family over my choice to join another church, although I know that it really hurt them for me not to be raising my children as Catholics," she said. "My father's mother had been secretary to the bishop in the diocesan office, and ours had always been a very strong Catholic family. Yet, they understood that what was important was the relationship with Christ."

When Stonegate Fellowship mission started up as an outgrowth of First Baptist, the Rhoadses volunteered to transfer. Mrs. Rhoads said the family is heavily involved in Stonegate and that they love it.

"I could be a Catholic again," she said. "I love the holiness and the reverence for God, and I do miss that.

"I'm glad that I've been everything I've been. But this (spiritual journey) is not about religious disputes, or about man-made rules, but about the love of Christ.

"Terry and I have been married 25 years. We've followed the priest's advice and prayed, and this is where God has led us."

PROCESS: Sponsor was mail carrier

Catholics who volunteer to serve as spiritual companions and supporters through the journey, listening and sharing, to help the candidates feel at home.

Ms. Reeves' sponsor was George Duarte — her U.S. Postal Service mail carrier — who had first talked to her about his faith. She had first attended church with Duarte and his wife.

At the beginning of the second initiation period — the catechumenate — inquirers are presented to the congregation by their sponsors, who mark their ears, eyes, lips, heart and feet with the sign of the cross as a symbol of their Christian discipleship. During this time, candidates observe the Liturgy of the Word and after Mass are given additional instruction in the Scriptures.

At the end of the catechumenate period — which usually coincides with the beginning of Lent — the candidates celebrate a second step in the conversion process. In the Rite of Election, they receive the "Call to Continuing Conversion." Ms. Reeves said she and the other catechumenates traveled to San Angelo for the Rite of Election.

"This is a very moving ceremony," she said. "The bishop (Michael Pfeifer is bishop of the Diocese of San Angelo, which includes Midland) blessed us, and wrote our names in a big book and it's something that I'll always remember."

The candidates, officially known as the "elect," continued through a time of prayer, fasting and reflection — known as the period of purification and enlightenment. It is the final preparation for the Sacrament of Initiation, which occurs at the Easter Vigil on Holy Saturday.

Ms. Reeves said the intensity of Lent, with its emphasis on self-examination, as well as the putting aside of old sins, was heightened by her first experience of the Stations of the Cross.

"I had never done anything like that before, and it was very, very moving," she said. "And then I was one of seven individuals chosen by the priest to receive the foot-washing."

At the Sacrament of Initiation, Ms. Reeves said she took on her saint's name, St. Rita, "the saint of the impossible, which I thought was appropriate." Along with the other confirmands she knelt at the altar in the company of her mother and her father and her sponsors/godparents Duarte and his wife. She received the laying-on of hands by the Rev. Tom Kelley, pastor of Our Lady of San Juan, received Communion and became a full member of the Roman Catholic community. But she still had to go through the final stage in the RCIA process — the "mystagogia," which lasts the 50 days of Easter. During this time she further explored the meaning of Easter.

Now that the initiation is over, Ms. Reeves said she continues to walk in pilgrimage, which is a lifelong process, marked regularly by epiphanies.

"With every ritual, I get this wonderful sense of who God is," she explained.

"I was in New York and I visited St. Patrick's Cathedral. The feeling I got there was simply indescribable.

"And the bonding that began during the RCIA process just keeps on getting closer. One thing Father Tom insisted on was that we all do 20 hours of community service, and we formed a wonderful esprit de corps doing that.

"Another thing I love, is every Sunday morning at Communion, the little children line up with their hands crossed over their hearts, and Father blesses them. I'm such a softie for kids."

Ms. Reeves said last year at the start of her RCIA journey, she had told her son of the hours and hours of study and work it would take before she could convert.

"He looked at me, and said, 'Boy, it's not easy becoming a Catholic, is it,'" she said, laughing. "This may not be the answer for everyone, but it's the right thing for me."

REFUGE: Austin church may soon available

(From 1C)

lical times, the perpetrator of a crime could seek refuge in a designated city without fear of retribution.

Ministers moving into a Church of Refuge aren't escaping from crimes, Spurger said, but still need a place where they feel welcomed, loved and safe from more criticism. A person losing a job in the secular world has his church to turn to for support, he said, but not so a minister who is terminated.

"You have lost your greatest support group," Spurger said.

While not every church owns an empty house that can be used for a place of refuge, many Baptist churches do own missionary houses, Spurger said. They are used by missionaries who are home on furlough from international service. However, many of those houses sit empty much of the time and could be used for refuge.

"Our hope is that some of those churches will use those empty times to support a church of refuge," Spurger said.

Currently, only Abilene and Dallas offer houses for displaced ministers to live, although Baptist church camps at Lueders, Stanton and Austin also provide temporary housing. A push is on right now among the Baptist associations in Texas to let ministers know of the program.

Referrals are made through the state office in Dallas. The Abilene house is available to an eligible minister from anywhere in the state. The house owned by North Park at one time housed a youth minister. But the church now relies on lay leadership instead of hiring a paid youth minister.

The house has stood empty for two years, and shows some signs of neglect. But church members are sprucing it up with a good cleaning and paint job. It now stands ready to serve its new mission.

"We have to believe the Lord has it there for us for some purpose," Johnson said. "And we believe this is it."

Slain officer's mother blames prison officials for death of son

By Susan Parrott
Associated Press

DALLAS — The mother of a slain police officer says lax security in the state's prison system is to blame for the breakout that led to the death of her son.

Irving Police Officer Aubrey Hawkins was killed in a hail of bullets while responding to a Christmas Eve robbery linked to seven inmates who escaped Dec. 13 and are still on the lam.

Jayne Hawkins said she was offended that Carole Young, the vice chairman of the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, has said there is no reason to question the state's detention system because circumstances of the escape were so unusual.

"It's an insult to the life of my child," Hawkins said from her Dallas home, while clutching the flag that was draped across her son's casket. "There's no doubt in my mind there was negligence."

The gang broke out of the Connally Unit in Kenedy, southeast of San Antonio on Dec. 13. The inmates overpowered 10 civilian workers and a guard in the maintenance shop where they worked, stole work clothing, a pickup truck and firearms.

Hawkins blamed prison understaffing for the escape of the men — two murderers, two armed robbers, a child abuser, a serial rapist and a burglar.

"You don't have seven hardened criminals in an area they don't belong guarded by one civilian officer," she said. "It's ludicrous to think they can't learn something from this."

Young did not return repeated phone calls Friday from The Associated Press. Prison board chairman Alfred M. Stringfellow was out of the country Friday.

In a letter to the editor of The Dallas Morning News, Hawkins was forceful in her criticism.

"Ms. Young may see no reason to question the detention system in the great state of Texas, but its lack of functioning and her lack of ethics are what killed my son so I question it and will continue to question it," she wrote.

She said prison officials have not contacted her or offered condolences.

Prisons spokesman Larry Todd said Friday "we empathize with the great loss suffered by the police officer" and his family.

"Next week, our serious incident review team investigation report will be released to the general public," he said. "That will relate every detail of the escape from the Connally Unit."

In another letter to the editor, the TDCJ's Glen Castlebury defended the agency's record, arguing that the number of prison escapes had dropped in recent years. Castlebury was responding to a letter by former prison board member Charles Terrell questioning prison security measures.

With 150,000 inmates, the Texas prison system is the nation's second largest behind California. In recent years, despite its size, the system has had relatively few escapes and a good record of recapturing escapees.

Over the last 15 years, 1986 was the worst in Texas for escapes with 33 inmates fleeing. In 2000, prior to the Dec. 13 breakout at the Connally Unit in South Texas, only seven escapes had been reported and only one inmate was listed as a fugitive. Officials said that inmate had fled to Mexico and was under surveillance.

Texas Sen. Carlos Truan has urged the Legislature to investigate how the prison system failed to stop the breakout at the Connally Unit. Truan said he hoped joint hearings on the matter would be conducted in the next few weeks.

Hawkins said she is not planning any legal action but hopes to initiate change in the prison system.

"I want a platform to get something done," she said. "The public is outraged and needs to stay outraged until we get something done to honor Aubrey."

Hawkins described her 29-year-old son as a kind, caring man whose lifelong dream was to make the world better by fighting crime. Hawkins, who lived in the Fort Worth suburb of Watauga, had joined the Irving police force a little more than a year ago.

"I am proud of him," she said. "He focused on what he wanted and attained that."

She said he was a dedicated father to Andrew, his 9-year-old son by a previous marriage. Aubrey Hawkins and his wife, Lori, would have celebrated their fourth wedding anniversary next spring.

Also Friday, Irving Police Department spokesman David Tull said tests on blood found in the car used in the robbers escape from Oshman's came from three sources, including the slain officer.

"Now we have very good reason t believe two of the suspects were injured at some point," Tull said.

Investigators have not determined how the robbers were injured, he said.

Autopsy results show Hawkins was shot 11 times — six times in the head — and run over shortly after arriving at an Oshman's USA store in response to a call. Authorities said they believe the suspects took his weapon.

The developments, including filing of federal weapons charges against the escaped inmates, came as Texas law officers followed up on reports of simultaneous sightings of the seven in several states.

The most promising lead was centered in San Marcos, Texas, about 210 miles south of Dallas.

San Marcos Police Chief Stephen Griffith said witnesses have twice identified two of the inmates as being at a local bank.

"It is our belief at this point and time, based on witness identification of two sets of photos, that we have an accurate sighting," he said. "We believe there was a bank casing going on."

Police are analyzing security camera footage and possible fingerprints, Griffith said. Officers are on high alert, he said, and SWAT teams are on standby.

Prison officials said they could not confirm any of the sightings.

More than 1,200 leads have been received since the escape, many of them at the command center in Garland, a suburb of Dallas. Capital murder arrest warrants were issued in Hawkins' slaying and the FBI has filed separate federal charges of unlawful flight to avoid federal prosecution for capital murder, broadening the manhunt nationwide.

Irving police also released updated sketches of the seven convicts on Friday. The sketches, available on the department's Web site, are based on witnesses' accounts from the Dec. 24, Oshman robbery and other sources.

The drawings depict slight changes in the escaped convicts' appearance, including weight loss and facial markings. Convicts George Rivas, believed to be the ringleader, and Larry Harper appear with eyeglasses. Harper also has markings from what appears to be an infection on the right side of his mouth.

Rivas, 30, was serving a life sentence for aggravated robbery and kidnapping, while Larry Harper, 37, was serving 50 years for aggravated sexual assault in El Paso.

The other men are Randy Halprin, 23, serving 30 years for injury to a child; Michael Rodriguez, 38, serving a life sentence for capital murder in San Antonio; Donald Newbury, 38, serving 99 years for aggravated robbery; Joseph Garcia, 29, serving 50 years for murder in San Antonio; and Patrick Henry Murphy Jr., serving 50 years for aggravated sexual assault with a deadly weapon and burglary in Dallas.

Irving Police Department Public Information Officer David Tull answers questions during a press conference in Irving, Friday, about the latest artists rendition of the seven South Texas prison escapees. Texas police were wearing bulletproof vests and increasing their firepower in the biggest manhunt in state history for seven escaped convicts. In the three weeks since they broke out of prison the convicts are suspected of pulling off at least two robberies and killing a police officer.

Bush team eyeing rollback of last-minute Clinton orders

AUSTIN(AP) — For now, President-elect Bush can do little but watch as President Clinton orders last-minute changes big and small — from protecting millions of federal acres to changing the presidential license plates to promote statehood for Washington, D.C.

"He has been a busy beaver," Bush spokesman Ari Fleischer said Friday, promising a review of "each and every one" of Clinton's orders once Bush takes office. "We are taking note of them all."

But while the incoming administration clearly has an eye on undoing some of what Clinton has done, turning back the clock is not always easy — either politically or procedurally. Some executive orders can be canceled simply by issuing later ones, but new federal rules are hard to undo.

Also, Bush could risk blotting his own "compassionate conservative" label by rolling back new environmental or workplace safety rules.

Publicly, the Bush team isn't criticizing Clinton's exercise of his legal and regulatory authority to produce late-term changes.

After all, it is something all outgoing presidents do — presidents who, in turn, had it done to them while they were waiting to assume power.

But some advisers privately — and Bush's allies in Congress publicly — are fuming.

Rep. Jim Hansen, R-Utah, the new chairman of the House Resources Committee, said new restrictions on road building and logging are among "the most egregious abuses by the Clinton administration" and should be undone by Bush and Congress.

On Friday, Clinton acted to finalize that order, putting 58 million acres of federal land off limits to road building and logging. He also signed an executive order to reorganize the nation's counterintelligence efforts.

And he mounted a last-ditch campaign for Senate ratification of a global nuclear test ban treaty — a pact Bush opposes.

White House spokesman Jake Siewert defended the Clinton administration's rush of executive orders, recess appointments and executive orders.

The incoming Bush administration is ready to try to tackle some of what it considers the most-provocative Clinton orders and rules.

Gale Norton of Denver, Bush's choice for secretary of the interior and an advocate of oil and gas drilling in areas environmentalists want off limits, says she looks forward to discussing such issues with the Senate at her confirmation hearing.

Once a federal regulation is put in place, revoking it is a cumbersome and time-consuming process.

Several lawmakers have said they might try to use a never-invoked 1996 law that authorizes Congress to rescind a regulation within 60 days.

However, the courts have ruled similar devices unconstitutional, including a previous "legislative veto" law under which Congress had sought to block regulations from taking effect.

Congress could pass a new law to reverse a specific regulation — but that, too, could be time consuming and difficult. And, in the case of the anti-logging rule, it could provoke a political tempest.

Anna Nicole Smith drops fight for oil fortune

By Mark Babineck
Associated Press

HOUSTON — Saying they've gotten what they wanted in a $475 million California bankruptcy judgment, lawyers for former stripper and Playboy Playmate of the Year Anna Nicole Smith withdrew Friday from the Texas courtroom fight for a piece of her late husband's oil fortune.

"She has won her case, she got her judgment in California, and there is no reason for her to pursue this case any longer," Tom Cunningham, Smith's chief Houston attorney, said after dropping out.

Smith was not present Friday, but she made a rare appearance at the ongoing probate trial Wednesday and announced to reporters that she wanted to pull out.

Smith and disinherited stepson J. Howard Marshall III had sued his brother, E. Pierce Marshall, claiming he blocked their rightful inheritance following the death of J. Howard Marshall II.

On Dec. 29, a California bankruptcy judge awarded Smith $475 million from the fortune, ruling Pierce Marshall deprived Smith of her expectancy of an inheritance. Pierce Marshall is appealing the decision.

The Houston trial, which began in September, will continue for Howard Marshall III. His attorneys expect to wrap up presenting evidence by midmonth. The defense then will begin its case, which includes countersuits against the plaintiffs claiming the entire case was frivolous.

Cunningham said the countersuits don't have any merit, saying Smith sued "in good faith."

Rusty Hardin, an attorney for Pierce Marshall, said he expects Smith to remain available to testify.

"She'll be on the stand in this case. The question is what the scope is," Hardin said.

Harris County Probate Judge Mike Wood said the jury, which did not view a morning hearing, would not be notified of Smith's decision until her lawyers stop attending court. Her attorneys will continue to attend until the countersuit is settled.

The elder Marshall was 89 and Smith was 26 when they married in 1994. He died a year later, and the battle for his estate ensued soon after.

Los Angeles federal Bankruptcy Judge Samuel Bufford initially found in favor of Smith on Sept. 27, but waited until last week to issue his final order.

David Margulies, spokesman for Pierce Marshall, said legal experts they've contacted believe Smith eventually will lose her California case.

"(Smith) and her lawyers declaring victory because of a California bankruptcy ruling is like the captain of the Titanic declaring victory over the iceberg because the ship did not sink immediately," Hardin said.

In a brief statement, Pierce Marshall accused Smith of withdrawing to "flee the facts."

Laura Bush to wear red scoop-neck gown to inaugural balls

NEW YORK — Laura Bush will be the Lady in Red at the inaugural balls Jan. 20.

She chose a red-scoopneck, embroidered Chantilly-lace gown by Dallas-based designer Michael Faircloth, according to Women's Wear Daily.

A sketch of the column dress, which will take three women 100 hours to complete, was unveiled in Thursday's edition of the fashion-industry newspaper.

Faircloth, who has a studio at the upscale Dallas boutique Lilly Dodson, designs nearly all of Bush's daytime and social occasion clothes. He met Bush in 1993 just before her husband became Texas governor.

It took just moments for Bush to choose the inaugural gown.

"I know Laura and her taste really well," the 41-year-old designer told Women's Wear. "It's all about classics and interpreting them for her style. She's an extremely intelligent woman with lots of self-confidence, and she knows what works for her."

Faircloth also designed a peacock-colored wool boucle suit with brown stitching and a blue overcoat trimmed with camel hair for Bush to wear at the swearing-in ceremony, the newspaper said.

He plans to hand-deliver the inaugural wardrobe to the Bush family ranch in Crawford, Texas, before Bush leaves for Washington.

CUSSETA, Ga. — Mel Gibson was scouting possible locations for a proposed film about Vietnam in this west Georgia town bordering Fort Benning Thursday. Surrounded by admiring waitresses at the Four Winds restaurant, he pointed toward retired Lt. Gen. Hal Moore and whispered: "He's the real hero."

Moore, co-author of the best seller "We Were Soldiers Once ... and Young," smiled when he heard Gibson's remark, then said Gibson could play him in a movie based on the 1992 book.

"I had always thought that John Wayne would have been the ideal choice. But Mel will do."

Moore, who lives in Auburn, Ala., was a commander with the 11th Air Assault Division in the 1965 battle of Ia Drang Valley, the American forces' first major confrontation with North Vietnamese Army regulars.

NEW YORK — Jerry Seinfeld is the master of his former television domain.

He and his producers won an appeals court ruling that says a lawsuit over the George Costanza character should be dismissed.

The unanimous decision by the State Supreme Court's Appellate Division on Thursday upheld a lower court ruling that the creators of "Seinfeld" did not violate Michael Costanza's privacy rights when they created the character. The Long Island man sought $100 million.

Costanza, 43, claimed the defendants violated his privacy rights by using his "name, likeness and persona" to create the neurotic and nutty character.

Costanza said he and Seinfeld had been friends at Queens College. He said he and the sitcom's Costanza, played by Jason Alexander, had similar physical and personality traits, and even had held some of the same jobs.

"Seinfeld" publicists say the character was based on Larry David, the show's chief producer. David called Costanza a "flagrant opportunist" who exaggerated his relationship with Seinfeld.

In June 1999, Justice Harold Tompkins wrote, "While a program about nothing can be successful, a lawsuit must have more substance."

In upholding the ruling, the appeals court said the show's creators did not use Costanza's "name, portrait or picture," except in one episode in which the plaintiff appeared briefly as an actor.

The judges also said the statute of limitations had run out since Costanza did not sue within one year of the show's inception in 1989.

NEW YORK — Britney Spears is a big fan of Madonna, and vice versa.

Spears expressed her admiration for Madonna in the October issue of Elle magazine: "I remember I read this harsh review about my show, and one of my friends told me that this was the exact same stuff people said about Madonna. And it's like, she didn't care. Madonna just came out and was herself. I respect that a lot."

In the magazine's February issue, on newsstands Jan. 16, Madonna returns the compliment.

Madonna, 42, told Elle: "Can I just say that I find it really irritating that everyone beats up on Britney Spears. I want to do nothing but support her and praise her and wish her the best. I mean, she's 18 years old! It's just shocking. ... I was so gawky and geeky and awkward and unsure of myself."

JACQUELINE BIGAR'S STARS

The Stars Show the Kind of Day You'll Have: 5-Dynamic; 4-Positive; 3-

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Saturday, Jan. 6, 2001:

You have unusual energy and get-up-and-go. Once you focus on a goal, it is as good as done. Others find your sense of direction remarkable. You also have an unusually creative way of making money. Your sixth sense plays into your decisions. If you are single, you could meet someone through your work this spring. It will be fall before you are in a full-blown relationship. If you are attached, you work well with your sweetie, making quite the team. Plan on doing something you both want to do this fall. Your relationship increases in vigor. GEMINI adores you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)

★★★★★ Make calls. You go way overboard with others, but that makes you happy. Don't minimize another's importance in the whole scheme of things. Reach out for another. Indulge someone who might be very special to you. Discussion establishes common ground. Tonight: Movie and dinner.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

★★★★ You tend to go overboard without meaning to. You like the good life, and no one can spend quite like you. You enjoy yourself wherever you are. Loosen up about potential. Just enjoy. Not everything needs to be goal-directed. Discussions are animated. Tonight: Someone wants to talk turkey.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

★★★★★ Your personality melts others' natural resistance. You might not always have the right answer. Reach out for someone at a distance. Discuss with a dear partner what has been on your mind. Another clearly wants to indulge you. Tonight: Whatever puts a skip in your step.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)

★★ Take a deep breath and think before you do anything spontaneous. It is one thing to indulge and go way overboard. A partner reaches out for you. Caring warms both of you. Aim for what you want. Tonight: Where your friends are.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)

★★★★★ Do not lose your focus, even if another knows how to distract you. Enjoy what this person offers. Someone weaves magic around you. Enjoy, but define what reality is. Make a must appearance. A conversation proves to be highly informative. Tonight: Where the gang is.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)

★★★★ Others look to you for answers. Check out what is going on with someone who is close to you. One-on-one relating allows positive feelings to flow. Your nurturing and extremely caring nature makes all the difference. Take an image suggestion to heart. Tonight: All eyes turn to you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)

★★★★★ Work on understanding another. Not everything is as you think it is. Loosen up a little and become more experimental. Your perspective changes because of a willingness to talk through a problem. Your libido feeds your imagination. Tonight: Anything is possible.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)

★★★★★ One-on-one relating takes you in a new direction. Be more willing to discuss what is on your mind. Dote on an older relative or family member. Doors open up as you make the impossible possible. Congratulate yourself for breaking past a barrier. Tonight: Let the good times roll.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)

★★★★★ Others run with the ball. You might feel a bit indulgent or lazy. Let it all happen. You are in a position to pick and choose what it is that you want. Popularity soars. You have a dream in mind, or a special mission. Tonight: Just don't be alone.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)

★★★★ You might have a project on the back burner. Make this day special for you by doing something you really love. You also might have an idea about making more money through a natural talent or interest. Know that anything is possible once you decide to make it so. Tonight: Do your own thing.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)

★★★★★ You have many ideas, but you also have the creativity to manifest them. Realize that anything can happen when you feel this good about yourself. New possibilities knock on your door. Think about what works for you in a special relationship. Tonight: Let the kid in you out.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)

★★★★ Make time for family and loved ones. Feelings of adoring and indulging flow from you, making anything possible. Your sense of what you need to do is key. You seem to have a strong inner clock or sense of direction. Take advantage of your gifts. Tonight: You don't have to go far.

HOW TO WRITE A CLASSIFIED AD THAT WORKS!

❶ Promote Your Merchandise - The more descriptive you are the more likely your merchandise will appeal to someone.

❷ Check The Market Value - The most common mistake that occurs is over or under pricing your goods.

❸ Always Include The Price - People are more likely to respond when they know the price range.

❹ Keyword Your Ad - Begin each ad with the name of the item, such as "Stove" or "Guitar" rather than "Kenmore" or "Gibson". "Ford 1997" instead of "1997 Ford", or by its key reference point, such as location or area in real estate ads.

Evolution of luxury & utility: 2001 Chrysler Town & Country minivan

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

With numerous new minivan features and refinements inside and out, the all-new Chrysler Town & Country minivans seek to redefine the standards by which all other aspiring luxury minivans may be judged. The folks at Daimler-Chrysler sought to evolve rather than re-invent their entries in this hotly contested market – having created the luxury minivan segment with the 1990 Chrysler Town & Country, introduced in Spring 1989.

Available in front and all-wheel drive configurations, the Chrysler minivans are offered in LX, LXi and Limited models with a choice of standard (LX) or extended (LXi, Limited) wheelbase bodystyles. Built exclusively at the automaker's St. Louis, Mo., manufacturing plant, the new minivans are superior in every way over the models they replace. Buyers can choose between two six-cylinder engines – 3.3L 12-valve SMPI or 3.8L 12-valve SMPI – both joined to a four-speed automatic transaxle with overdrive.

Both engines have received a power boost for 2001. The 3.3L is up 22 horsepower, while the 3.8L packs an additional 35 ponies. For those consumers desiring more punch, Chrysler is introducing a powerful new 3.5L V-6 later this year. This prime mover carries a wallop, delivering an additional 15 horsepower over the larger displacement 3.8L engine.

On the road, the Chrysler is smooth, powerful and very quiet. Throttle response is much improved with the bump in horsepower and torque for both engines.

An all-new body structure features a 20 percent increase in torsional stiffness contributing to the vehicle's strong, quiet quality. The front suspension is equipped with iso struts with integral gas-charged shock absorbers, coil springs, asymmetrical lower control arms, link-type stabilizer bar, urethane jounce bumpers and rubber-isolated cast aluminum cross member. All-wheel drive models feature stiffer springs and higher control shock absorbers.

The rear suspension setup includes rubber-isolated longitudinal single-leaf springs, tubular beam axle, track bar and gas-charged shock absorbers. All-wheel drive models feature multi-leaf springs. The optional Trailer Towing package is equipped with revised rate springs and load-leveling shock absorbers. The LX model is shod with P215/70R15 A/S tires, while upscale LXi and Limited models come with P215/65R16 A/S rubber.

Inside the cabin, Chrysler has rethought everything. The dashboard and center stack controls are new and very easy to read and operate. Power points are located the dashboard, center console and rear cargo area. A removable center console adds to the minivan's flexibility. Available power dual sliding doors with manual override and obstacle protection are the best currently on the market.

Seating is roomy and comfortable throughout the passenger compartment. Chrysler is offering a 50/50 split bench option for third row seating that increases the seating configurations between cargo and passengers. With a commanding 17.8 cu. ft. of cargo area behind the third seat and 167.9 cu ft of space with the second and third seats removed, the Town & Country will continue to reign as the leading luxury minivan in the marketplace.

By the numbers

Engine performance figures are as follow: 3.3L – 180 hp at 5,000 rpm and 210 lb/ft of torque at 4,000 rpm; 3.8L – 215 hp at 5,000 rpm and 245 lb/ft of torque at 4,000 rpm; 3.5L – 230 hp at 6,400 rpm and 250 lb/ft of torque at 4,000 rpm. EPA Fuel Economy calculations range from 18 city/24 highway for the 3.3L to 16 city/22 highway for the 3.8L with all-wheel drive. All three engines are designed to use regular unleaded gasoline, although midgrade 89 octane is the preferred grade for the new 3.5L motor.

Environmentally conscious consumers should know the 3.3L six-cylinder engine is also designed to run on E85 methanol. There is no additional charge for this capability and the fuel economy using E85 is 13 city/18 highway. Properly equipped the Chrysler Town & Country has a towing capacity of 3,500 pounds.

Standard safety/security equipment includes: dual front airbags, four-wheel disc brakes with anti-lock and power door locks. LXi adds fog lamps, remote keyless entry and universal garage door opener. Limited adds front side-impact airbags, traction control, Sentry key theft deterrent system full-size spare tire and security alarm. Optional safety/security equipment includes: security alarm ($175), full-size spare tire ($145) traction control ($175)(LXi) and front side-impact airbags ($350)(LX, LXi).

The base Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the 2001 Chrysler Town & Country minivan ranges from $24,430 for the LX up to $37,175 for the Limited all-wheel drive model. Destination charge adds $690. Dealers are reporting ample supplies of the new Chrysler minivan.

Pushing the envelope: 2001 HONDA CIVIC COUPE/SEDAN

RoadWorthy!

By Ken Chester, Jr.

Since its introduction 28 years ago, the Honda Civic has been the benchmark by which all other small cars have been judged. Dependability, quality, reliability and efficiency have been the watch words that have moved some 10 million Civics in more than 140 countries. Since 1986, small Honda has been built by Honda of America Manufacturing in East Liberty, Ohio, and by Honda of Canada Manufacturing in Allison, Ontario, Canada. The new seventh generation 2001 Honda Civic is billed to be "In a Class by Itself", featuring outstanding safety, a fun-to-drive feel, excellent family comfort, sporty styling, economical operation and a good-price-to-value relationship.

Available in two-door coupe and four-door sedan body styles, the front-drive Honda Civic is offered in DX, LX and EX models. The prime mover has increased in displacement for this year – now a 1.7L four-cylinder – offered in three versions. A five-speed manual gearbox is standard, with a smooth shifting four-speed automatic an $800 option.

Environmentally conscious consumers should note that all Civics are certified to meet California's stringent ULEV (Ultra Low Emission Vehicle) standard. For those looking to go the "extra mile," the nameplate will again offer its fuel economy champ, the HX coupe – available with a five-speed gearbox or next generation CVT transmission (continously variable transmission).

Honda will also offer the Civic GX sedan, boasting the world's cleanest internal combustion engine and receiving California's SULEV (Super Ultra Low Emission Vehicle) certification. The SULEV standard is 80 percent cleaner than the ULEV standard. The GX sedan features a 1.7L four-cylinder engine that burns compressed natural gas instead of gasoline. This powerplant is bolted to a CVT transmission for excellent range and fuel efficiency.

On the road, the 1.7L engine version in the LX model joined to the optional four-speed automatic is peppy and responsive from rest. A new four-wheel independent suspension set up with MacPherson struts in the front and a compact double wishbone design at the rear has been refined for enhanced ride and handling. The EX sedan and coupe are shod with Firestone FR690 P185/65R15 M/S tires while P185/65R14 M/S rubber performs the duty of surface grip for all other coupe and sedan models.

Inside the cabin, the driver enjoys good outward visibility. Improved displays and controls are easier to use and well laid out. Seating is comfortable throughout the cabin, with special attention paid to the rear seating area. The rear floor is flat – without the space robbing tunnel for engine exhaust. This allows two adults to enjoy a trip in the back seat over long distances.

Nooks and crannies built into the vehicle allow consumers to stow plenty of personal items – without having to put them in the trunk. The center console features two molded cupholders, the dashboard has a single power point for portable electrical devices. A single cupholder is built into the rear of the center console for rear seat passengers.

Sedan models are equipped with hand grips at all four doors to facilitate entry and exit. Coupe models feature both hand grips on both sides of the rear seat and a foot mounted release on the front passenger seat to improve access to the rear seat. Cargo space for both the coupe and sedan is 12.9 cu. ft.

By the numbers

Engine performance figures are as follow: 1.7L SOHC 16-valve (DX, LX) – 115 hp at 6,100 rpm and 110 lb/ft of torque at 4,500 rpm; 1.7L SOHC VTEC (EX) – 127 hp at 6,300 rpm and 114 lb/ft of torque at 4,800 rpm; 1.7L SOHC 16-valve VTEC-E Lean Burn (HX) – 117 hp at 6,100 rpm and 111 lb/ft of torque at 4,500 rpm. EPA Fuel Economy numbers range from 35 city/43 highway for the HX coupe to 30 city/38 highway for the DX/LX automatic. All three engines burn regular unleaded gasoline. Underhood, Honda has relocated the oil dipstick to a location at the top of the engine – easy to check, easy to find. All other fluids are conveniently accessible but not uniformly marked.

Standard safety/security equipment includes: dual front airbags, immobilizer theft deterrent system and emergency trunk release. HX adds power door locks. EX adds four-wheel anti-lock brakes and keyless remote entry. Front side-impact airbags are a $250 option on all models. Traction control is not available.

The base Manufacturer's Suggested Retail Price (MSRP) for the Honda Civic starts at $12,760 for the DX coupe up to $17,960 for the EX sedan automatic equipped with front side-impact airbags. Destination charge adds $440. Dealers report improving supplies of the new Civic. There are no rebates.
