The ticket sales force for the annual July 4th celebration here plans to work extra hard, according to Tommy LaRoux, chairman, because they have a definite goal and a reward in store if they meet it.

They need to sell about 6,000 tickets this year to finance the fire works exhibition and take care of other expenses connected with the big Independence Day event.

And, incidentally, this could be one of the last big fireworks displays. The federal government already has taken steps to prevent sale and firing of fireworks except for special events such as the July 4th celebration here, and there is a move on to rule out all fireworks of any description and for all purposes eventually.

But, getting back to the ticket sale, if 6,000 or more tickets are sold, Chamber of Commerce Manager Mickey Nunley has agreed to submit to a haircut—not just any type of haircut, according to LaRoux, but one that meets specifications to be drawn up by Bill Gilliland.

If this "reward" is earned, the payoff should be one of the major public attractions in the park on July 4th—say, at the pavilion just before they give away the prizes.

Do you remember the first sandstorm you ever saw? The Borden Citizen, the publication of the Borden County Historical Committee, carries an account of a "first sandstorm" by Mrs. Mozelle Johnson.

She said her family had just moved to Union, five miles west of Snyder, in 1917, from Coleman, "Where we had never heard of, much less seen, a sandstorm," Mrs. Johnson recalled.

"My father bought a farm, where he was sure he could raise anything in the sandy land with the help of a little rain. He plowed the land west of the house as soon as we moved in. After he finished he decided he would go into Snyder. He left early and never noticed any difference in the western skies."

Well, that old sandstorm rolled in, with a mother and three children who had never seen such a thing before, at home alone. It got so dark that chickens went to roost in mid-afternoon, and the old cow came up to be milked. They all came through after some apprehension and Mrs. Johnson said that, although she lived in West Texas for nearly 30 years after that, she never saw another sandstorm that would equal that first one.

As if to show that the versatility of the weather around here was evident in those early-days; the same issue of the Borden Citizen has some recollections of John Johnson that refer to a big rain in 1902 when the Colorado River got on its biggest rise in history. It kept the old Watkins man on the other side of the river for a couple of days, Johnson said.

The Watkins man was an important visitor in those days, because he brought wares that were not available from any other source, unless you went to town, which took a lot of time in those days.—WACIL McNAIR

ARMS AID PROMISED

Nixon Moves To Syria

By KENNETH J. FREED
Associated Press Writer

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — President Nixon promised increased arms aid to Saudi Arabia today and then came to Syria for an important third stop on his tour of the Middle East. There was a brief period of concern just before Nixon landed when Syrian jets approached his plane.

As the presidential jet approached this capital, four Soviet-built MIG jet fighters of the Syrian air force approached, two off each wing.

Nixon's pilot, Col. Ralph D. Albertazzie, unaware the Syrians had planned a jet escort, put the Boeing 707 into several sharp turns in order to identify their markings and get time to determine their intentions.

A White House spokesman said Albertazzie took the evasive maneuvers while he contacted the Damascus airport tower about the fighters. The Syrians confirmed the planes were escorts.

The President looked tired as he shook hands with a long line of Saudi dignitaries at Jidda, the Saudi Red Sea port, before leaving for Syria.

A hot, dry desert wind swept the airport as Nixon chatted privately for a several minutes with King Faisal, the Saudi leader, before boarding his blue and silver jet. Mrs. Nixon shook hands with the monarch and made a slight bow at the top of the boarding ramp.

In remarks earlier at Faisal's palace, Nixon said:

"The United States will see to it that the level of security consistent with its responsibility to the Middle East is raised.

"If Saudi Arabia is strong and secure, as it will be, it will enhance the chances for peace."

The public reception here was muted. Nixon and his wife were officially welcomed by President and Mrs. Hafez Assad at the Damascus airport.

A 21-gun salute boomed out. A large number of Syrian officials were present at the airport, but there were no large crowds of Syrian citizens.

U.S. and Syrian sources predicted here on Friday that the United States and Syria would re-establish, during Nixon's short stay, the diplomatic relations which were broken off by Syria during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Since then Syria has maintained close ties with the Soviet Union.

The day was sweltering with the temperature at 93 degrees in downtown Damascus.

High Court To Consider Co-Conspirator Question

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court agreed Saturday to consider whether a federal grand jury exceeded its powers in naming President Nixon as a Watergate co-conspirator.

At the same time, the court denied a motion by the White House and Watergate prosecutors that the entire record of the grand jury proceedings be made public, except for one excerpt.

The one passage which was made public said:

"On Feb. 25, 1974, in the course of its consideration of the indictment in the instant case the ... grand jury, by vote of 19-0, determined that there is probable cause that Richard M. Nixon (among others) was a member of the conspiracy to defraud the United States and to obstruct justice charged in Count 1 of the instant indictment, and the grand jury authorized the special prosecutor to identify Richard M. Nixon (among others) as an unindicted co-conspirator in connection with subsequent legal proceedings in this case."

The high court ruled that "other than this disclosure, the sealed record shall remain sealed."

Both Leon Jaworski, the special Watergate prosecutor, and James D. St. Clair, chief presidential attorney, had asked that the list of co-conspirators be made public.

In agreeing to hear St. Clair's argument that the grand jury overstepped its authority in naming the President as a co-conspirator, the Supreme Court fixed oral arguments for July 8.

The brief order noted that Justice William H. Rehnquist took no part in consideration of the case.

The list of co-conspirators was sealed by order of U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who will preside over the Watergate cover-up trial scheduled to begin Sept. 9.

Sirica lifted his secrecy order at St. Clair's request after the White House confirmed newspaper reports that the President's name was on the list.

The six defendants in the cover-up trial, however, asked the Supreme Court to keep the report sealed.

Defendants in the cover-up trial are former Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell, former White House aides H. R. Haldeman, John R. Ehrlichman and Gordon C. Strachan, and former presidential campaign workers Robert C. Mardian and Kenneth W. Parkinson.

WTC Work-Study Grant Approved

Congressman Omar Burleson has announced approval of a college work-study grant to Western Texas College in the amount of $32,150 for an estimated 66 students.

Federal funds will provide 80 per cent of the students' payroll and a matching college or campus agency contribution will provide the remaining 20 per cent.

Fiery Train Crash Blocks Highway 84

"There was an explosion and there was a big ball of fire. Then, it just sort of mushroomed up."

That was the way Texas Highway Patrolman Gary Brewer of Snyder described a rail pile-up Friday afternoon on the Santa Fe 10 miles northwest of Snyder.

"Two or three of the railroad cars started burning. About 30 minutes later there was another explosion as another tank erupted, and then after about 15 or 20 minutes there was a third explosion," said Brewer who witnessed the incident as he was "working radar" on U.S. Highway 84 near the site of the derailment which wrecked 18 cars on a 56-car southbound Santa Fe freight train.

Cars loaded with a chemical identified as cyclohexane exploded and burst into flame, blocking U.S. 84 and stalling rail traffic.

Brewer said law enforcement officers began routing traffic around the Polar Road after sealing off U.S. 84 near the site of the derailment for about a mile. Motorists still were using the detour Saturday at noon.

Jack Berry, a radio operator with the Texas Highway Department's Snyder office, said the fire was still smouldering Saturday morning and there could be a danger of another explosion until the fire burned itself out.

Miraculously, there were no injuries in the explosion and fire. Galyean Ambulance Service of Snyder was called to the scene in the event of injury. City Police and Sheriff's Authorities also were called to the scene to help rout traffic away from the scene and around the detour.

Alfred Kohl, Snyder Fire Chief, helped let some horses out of a barn near the scene of the explosion.

"Smoke was really billowing up, and I didn't know for a minute if I was going to get out of there," he said.

High point of the invitational banquet will be presentation of "Best of Show" award and gold medallion awards for the outstanding work in categories of oil, watercolor, drawing and sculpture. Criteria for judging the works will be historical documentation of the cowboy in art as well as artistic excellence.

The "Best of Show" award goes to the creator of the piece of art selected by the judges as the outstanding work in the exhibit. The piece may be in any medium, and the winner will receive an engraved and silver plated Remington 1875 revolver with the Texas Cowboy Artists' brand carved into its ivory grips.

New officers will also be installed at the invitational banquet Saturday evening. Jim Thomas, Amarillo sculptor, is the new TCA president, taking over the reins from Kenneth Wyatt, oil painter from Tulia. Jim Ward, painter-sculptor from Canyon, will be vice president and Wyatt will become secretary-treasurer.

The annual exhibit of cowboy art will be open to the public in the coliseum Sunday, June 23, from 2-5 p.m. There will be no charge for admission.

C.T. McLaughlin has also announced that the Diamond M Foundation of Snyder will open its museum of art to the public from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in conjunction with the TCA exhibit.

How to 'double up' when the time comes

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1974 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: Here is my story: After 34 years of marriage, my wife died. I bought a double plot—one for her and one for me when my time comes. I couldn't decide on what kind of headstone I wanted for my wife's grave, so I put off buying one.

Meanwhile, I met a woman and things started happening so fast I couldn't believe it. To make a long story short, I married her. In the meantime, my wife's headstone slipped my mind, so my married son got disgusted with me and he bought one and put it up. Then he told me to buy two more lots—one for myself and one for my new wife because he was sure his mother wouldn't want me buried next to her if I couldn't even wait three months to get married again.

I asked him what he planned to do with the empty plot beside his mother, and he said he'd find some other dummy to bury there.

What should I do now? PUZZLED

DEAR PUZZLED: I'd buy another double plot—unless your present wife has already made plans to double up with someone else when her time comes.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old married man who has had this problem ever since I could tell the difference between a boy and a girl. You guessed it. I can't resist women. Maybe I should say the problem is that women can't resist ME. I'm a pretty good looking guy [I'm told] and have an athletic build and keep in shape, but the ladies tell me it's the sexy look in my eye that gets them.

I love my wife [we've been married for seven years and have two children] but I can't leave other women alone. Right now I have something going with my best friend's wife, and also with my wife's best friend. It's not a heavy love affair in either case, but it's fun.

In my defense, let me say I've never propositioned a woman in my life. They approach me, and I can't say no. Can you help me? LADIES' MAN

DEAR MAN: I'm all choked up. You can say no if you want to. And you'd better start trying, before somebody does your wife a favor and tells her.

DEAR ABBY: After 32 years of marriage, I finally got up enough gumption to divorce my husband. Although I still cared for him, I couldn't take any more of his cruel and inhuman treatment.

One week after our divorce was final he married another woman. Now listen to this. On his honeymoon he sent ME a dozen roses with the following card: "To a lovely lady with love."

A few days later I received a menu from a resort hotel where he and I had spent our honeymoon. He had written on it: "Remember this place, Darling? Love," . . . and then his name.

This has been very upsetting to me. What do you make of it and what should I do about it? BAFFLED

DEAR BAFFLED: Ignore it. But if he sends any more reminders of him or the past, write and ask him to please keep OUT of touch with you because you want to forget him. He sounds like a very cruel [or sick] man.

DEAR ABBY: A young woman wrote that she was in love with a fine young man but her mother didn't want her to marry him because he was too short.

You suggested that one should measure a man from his eyebrows up. That isn't low enough. You must go to the base of his heart, for there you will find all of his emotions, including love, which is basic to a man's character.

DEAR RAY: Right on!

1953 Slaying In Odessa Cleared

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A man who "just got tired of looking over his shoulder" says he's responsible for a death that happened in Texas more than 20 years ago, police report.

A. L. Bates, 47, was in the Broward County Jail here today awaiting extradition to face charges of strangling a man in an Odessa, Tex., motel room on Dec. 4, 1953.

Police in the Fort Laudedale suburb of Pembroke Pines said Bates surrendered Thursday and said he wanted to turn himself in.

"He told me the murder had been real heavy on his head for the last 20 years and he was just tired of looking over his shoulder," said Sgt. Tom McGuire, chief detective for Pembroke Pines.

McGuire said Texas authorities veritifed that Bates is charged in an outstanding murder warrant with strangling Daron Switzer, 31.

Officers said that Bates said he and Switzer were looking for jobs in the Texas oil fields when they met in a bar and later went to Switzer's motel room.

Bates told police that he struck Switzer in the neck and then choked him when Switzer made a sexual advance toward him.

"After he killed him, Bates said he headed for Arizona and has been drifting ever since," McGuire said. "He had several other brushes with the law."

McGuire said police in Odessa had looked for Bates under the name Howard Lacy, an alias he was using at the time.

Crash

There were 17 or 18 cars of the 56 car-train that derailed, according to Brewer. He said seven or eight of them were involved in the explosion and fire that followed.

The train was No. 495. It originated in Denyer and was headed for Houston. Several cars carrying the chemical cyclohexane were added to the train in Amarillo.

Santa Fe Railway Company officials were hoping they could use trucks to pull the derailed cars off of the track Saturday afternoon and repair the track late Saturday. Meanwhile, regular service along the 1,400 mile line will be interrupted until repairs can be made.

P.R. Buchanan, trainmaster from Slaton, went to the scene Friday afternoon and returned Saturday morning to see about repairs. Conductor of the train was D.M. Barry of Slaton. The engineer was Wallace White of Slaton.

Santa Fe officials said the train carried a mixed lading of milo and cotton, lumber, wood products and some chemicals. The derailment occurred near the middle of the train.

Other witnesses confirmed there were three separate explosions. They said the first two went straight up but that the third one shot flame across the highway, then went up. Asphalt on the pavement was scorched and some grass was burned.

Mrs. J.T. Sullenger, who lives in a home on the Eiland Ranch across the highway from the scene of the explosion, was warned to leave her home by one of the train crewmen.

Cause of the derailment had not been determined, but railroad men speculated that equipment failure on one of the cars involved possibly could have been the cause.

Demo Rules Committee Proposes Quick Recess

By ROBERT HEARD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — The rules subcommittee of the state Democratic Executive Committee (SDEC) recommended today that the party's Sept. 17 state convntion be recessed two days so it will not conflict with a Jewish holy day.

The SDEC cannot vote on the recommendaton for 30 days.

Of the more than 5,000 delegates to the state convention, 214 are Jews.

Sept. 17 is Rosh Hoshanna, a Jewish prayer and family day on which work is prohibited.

Orthodox Jews celebrate Rosh Hoshanna for two days.

State political conventions are set by law on the third Tuesday in September in even-numbered years.

This is the first time in this century that Rosh Hoshanna falls on the third Tuesday in September in an even-numbered year.

The recess resolution asks that at the convention quit as soon as it convenes. The motion was adopted by voice vote. There were no opposition votes.

The rules subcommittee of the State Democratic Executive Committee was scheduled to meet at 9 a.m. and make recommendations to the 64-member SDEC at 10 a.m.

The rules subcommittee heard a long line of witnesses Friday afternoon and night, most of them Jewish delegates protesting the conflict.

"Don't make me choose between being a Jew and a Democrat," said Ted Siff, Austin delegate.

Siff and most of the Jewish delegates appearing urged the state party committee to juggle convention rules and let the state convention be called to order on Sept. 17 by a few chosen officials then immediately recessed until Sept. 19 or later.

There was almost unanimous opposition from those appearing against a plan already endorsed by Gov. Dolph Briscoe, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, and other top state and national leaders to let Jewish delegates give their convention votes to others as proxies.

"Proxies would not satisfy the problem," said Al Schulman, Houston. "It does not permit participation and that is what Jews want."

Several other Democratic delegates contended that the convention should go on as scheduled.

"Any change we make now would be breaking faith with delegates elected at the precinct conventions" said Margaret Carter of Fort Worth.

Hobby presented the subcommittee a proposed legislative bill that would be presented to the 1975 legislature to prevent any such conflict in the future. It would call for state conventions of all state parties on the third Tuesday in September of each even-numbered year, unless it falls on the date of a "universally recognized religious holiday." Hobby offered no solution to the current situation.

"I believe that the good will of the Texas Democratic Party is at stake," said Rep. Ronald Earle, D-Austin. "Even unintentional disrespect for any religious faith is only slightly less respectful because it is unintentional."

MRS. BRUCE CARLTON BELL

Double Ring Vows Spoken At Hurst

Priscilla Faye Norvelle and Bruce Carlton Bell exchanged double ring wedding vows June 1 at 8 p.m. in the Bellevue Baptist Church of Hurst. The Rev. Douglas White of the church officiated at the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip M. Norvelle are the parents of the bride and reside in Hurst. Mr. and Mrs. Bob D. Bell of West Thirtieth St. in Snyder are the groom's parents.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of chantilly lace with a scoop neck and long sleeves edged in lace. The skirt featured layered lace tiers and to complete the costume the bride wore a net veil edged with lace and attached to a tiara of iridescent jewels.

Shirley Calloway of Bedford served as Maid of honor while Phyllis St. Hohn of Hurst sister of the bride, served as Matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Patricia, Paula, Peggy and Patsy Norvelle, of Hurst, all sisters of the bride. Their dresses were of a flocked iridescent sheer over tafeta in rainbow colors with each bridesmaids dress matching the shirt of the groomsman who escorted her. The colors were coral, pink, aqua, blue, yellow and orchid.

Before the ceremony the bride presented a long stemmed rose to her mother and following the ceremony she presented a long stemmed red rose to the groom's mother.

At the close of the ceremony the bride and groom each took a candle and together set flame to a single Unity candle.

The bride's mother was dressed in a full length dress of orchid and blue flowers on a white background. The mother of the groom was attired in a pale yellow, full length gown with an empire waist and a high neck. Each mother wore a purple orchid corsage.

Best man was Brett Bell of Arlington, brother of the groom. Other groomsmen were Dick McGuire, Randy Levens, Coy Rhodes, Rocky Land, all of Arlington and Tommy Bell of Billings, Montana, cousin of the groom.

Ushers were Phil Ator and Mike Keller of Arlington.

Vickie Martin provided organ music and the soloist, Margee Robinson, sang "Twelfth of Never."

The reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The tables at the reception carried out the bride's rainbow colors. The bride's table was covered with a white draped satin and lace cloth. The white cake accented with rainbow colors was flanked by candelabra entwined with flowers. The crystal punch bowl was set in the center of a circular table covered with an orchid cloth.

Twenty six were present for the rehearsal dinner which was hosted by the groom's parents in the private dining room of the Bonanza on East Division in Arlington.

Their were six grandparents in attendance at the wedding.

Following a wedding trip to Dallas and Ruidoso, N.M. the couple will reside at 3051 East Park Row in Arlington where the groom is employed by Pitney Bowes. The bride wore a fitted blue pant suit trimmed in white braid for the trip.

The bride graduated from L.D. Bell High School in Hurst. The groom is a graduate of Snyder High School and attended Texas Tech University where he was a member of the Texas Tech band.

A COUNTRY JOURNAL. By Michael Harwood & Mary Durant, Dodd, Mead. 245 Pages. $7.95.

"As society becomes increasingly urbanized, fewer and fewer of us have any sense of contact with the earth: the land is still there, but we're not," the authors note at one point in this journal — another on the steadily growing shelf of books dealing with a return to the "good life."

What they say is true, but only up to a point, for not everyone can decide as Michael Harwood and his wife, Mary Durant, did that, "It was time to leave New York and return to civilization. It was time to move back to the country." Whether because of job, family or lack of money, many who think they would like to move to a simpler life cannot.

The authors of this book were able to do it, however, and they cover in these pages about a year spent living in a small town in northwestern Connecticut. The two alternate throughout the book in telling of what they found in their new life and a good bit of it is mildly interesting although a lot of this same ground has been covered before in books dealing with similar themes. And, for those with only moderate interest in the subject, they are awfully heavy on bird and plant descriptions.

But the couple also is quite aware that while country living has a lot going for it, everything isn't coming up roses.

Tips For Buying Sneakers

COLLEGE STATION—Sneakers provide popular footwear for casual play and active sports, one expert says.

Marilyn Brown, consumer education-clothing and textiles specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System, emphasized the importance of choosing good quality sneakers—also known as tennis shoes or canvas shoes.

"This footwear should exhibit the same quality construction as other shoes the family buys. After all, it receives hard, sometimes constant, wear.

"In addition, these shoes should be sturdy, comfortable and designed for good foot support."

The specialist discussed factors that indicate good quality sneakers.

—Firmly woven fabrics.

"Popular fabrics for uppers include canvas, denim, poplin and corduroy—of cotton, nylon, polyester-cotton or nylon-cotton."

—Soles with nonslip treads.

—Foam-cushioned innersoles or arch supports.

"These result in greater foot comfort and support," Miss Brown explained.

—Reinforcement at the heel and other areas of stress.

"The counter (heel) area should be reinforced with extra stiffening and stitching for shape-retention and better heel support. Also, back seams should be securely stitched and located squarely in the middle of the heel.

"Other areas of stress—such as eyelets and sides—should have extra fabric layers and -or stitching."

—Neat finishing.

"Choose sneakers with secure, even, straight stitching—without rough spots inside or out, wrinkles, bulky seams or gummy adhesives."

—Firm attachment of sole to upper.

"Select those with a single strip of rubber (called foxing) around the base of shoes, which tightly attaches the sole to upper."

—Toe guard.

"This piece of rubber covers the foxing and front portion of the upper fabric, protecting sneaker fronts from excessive wear—making it especially useful for children's shoes."

—Good fit.

"Always try on sneakers with the kind of socks that will be worn with them. Socks are essential to absorb perspiration," she added.

—Washability.

"Since sneakers soil easily, they sould be washable either by hand or by machine. Check labels or hangtags for this information.

"When washing them, use warm water and regular detergent. Avoid chlorine bleach and don't dry them near heat. Both can damage the rubber," the specialist warned.

If an old refrigerator or freezer is left in the yard or garage, remove its door completely. This takes only a moment using a screwdriver and may save a child's life, emphasizes Lillian Cochran; home management specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

Ex-Miss World Is Discharged

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Former Miss World Marji Wallace has been discharged from Methodist Hospital, 11 days after she nearly died from a drug overdose.

Miss Wallace, who was stripped of her beauty queen title last March, said after her release Friday she would seek a career as an actress.

Miss Wallace, 20, was hospitalized June 3 after taking what her mother described as an overdose of a prescription sleeping pill. Doctors said she was comatose when brought to the hospital by her sister, Nancy Wallace.

Marji's mother, Alice Wallace, said her daughter was "quite upset" over the death of her close friend, race driver Peter Revson, who was killed while practicing for the South African Grand Prix in March.

A few week's before Revson's death, officials of the Miss World pageant revoked Marji's title because of publicity about her relationship with British soccer star George Best.

Editor Advocates Women's Freedom

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — Editor, writer, and mother of four children Harriette Rhawn Behringer wants it known that the women's movement is not for women only.

"It is not a movement for women, but one for freedom and human dignity," said the editor of Alert, a 22,000 circulation women's legislative review published here monthly.

"Husbands and friends of women in the movement are ardent supporters of our work. We look upon men as friends, and we must destroy the myth that women in the movement are hostile to men," she said.

Ms. Behringer, a title she prefers, had edited Alert during a year's leave of absence from Xerox Corp. as part of the company's social service program.

"We don't just represent militant feminists, but a broad spectrum of women from every geographic area of the state," she said in an interview.

Alert concentrates most of its efforts on politics because "women have learned where the decision makers live and that's politics," she said.

"With strength of numbers, women in Connecticut can establish power — a word foreign to women."

Ms. Behringer said Alert's efforts during the 1973 General Assembly session helped create a state Commission on the Status of Women, helped change laws penalizing pregnant working women and helped ratify the federal equal rights amendment after it was defeated by the assembly in 1972.

"We have a long way to go, but it indicates the strength of dedicated feminists in the state," she said.

Ms. Behringer said she is also attacking the problem of human dignity by writing for children.

What's Cooking In Florida?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

We could never bake Cuban Bread that was the real thing until we used the recipe for it in the recently published "Jane Nickerson's Florida Cookbook" (University of Florida Press). Then the loaves came out of our oven crusty and delicious and stayed fresh for several days. When we phoned Jane Nickerson, who lives in Lakeland, from New York we asked her whether Cuban Bread was truly representative of Florida cooking. "It certainly is," said Jane. "You find it in stores all over the state. Along with Chicken and Yellow Rice it's the greatest culinary contribution Cubans who have settled in Florida have made.

"The biggest thing writing my book did for me," Jane added, "is to make me a fresh fruit and vegetable enthusiast. Gastronomically, that's what a great part of Florida is all about. When I started the research, it was like jumping into a produce stall.

"From what I read of the latest and best nutrition work, I gather most American adults can decrease meat and up vegetables with great benefit to their health. If this were 20 years ago and I had to bring up my children all over again, I'd investigate vegetables much more than I did. The tossed salad has been done to a fare-thee-well, but home cooks generally seem low on interesting cooked-vegetable dishes."

As you'd expect, Jane's cookbook has a fine group of vegetable and salad recipes, but it does not neglect the other parts of Florida cuisine — appetizers; poultry, meats and game; fish and shellfish; breads and other cereal products; desserts; preserves. Intertwined with the recipes there's a fund of information for anyone fascinated by regional American cooking. Jane gathered and tested all the recipes herself; hers is a cookbook you can rely on. And she's a recipe-writer of no mean repute.

That's because she was food news editor of The New York Times for 15 years, preceding Craig Claiborne, before she went to live in Florida due to her husband's business interests. The recipe style she worked out for The Times is the one that newspaper still uses. With two of her children of high-school age and two at college, nowadays Jane devotes her time to being food columnist and food editor for 10 Florida newspapers owned by The Times. A native New Yorker who went to college in New England and traveled abroad, Jane has a rounded view of the whole food scene and is a demon researcher. Her introduction to her cookbook is a fine thumbnail sketch of how the various styles of Florida fare evolved.

"Although few Floridians bake their own Cuban bread, it can be done easily and enjoyably," Jane says. Indeed it can, and here's our adaptation — for reasons of space — of her recipe.

JANE'S CRUSTY CUBAN BREAD

6½ cups (about) unsifted flour
2 packages dry yeast
2 cups water
2 tablespoons sugar
2 teaspoons salt
Yellow cornmeal

Stir together 2 cups of the flour and the yeast in the large bowl of the electric mixer. Heat water, sugar and salt, stirring, until very warm to the touch; add to the flour-yeast blend. Beat about 3 minutes at high speed or until smooth. Stir in enough additional flour to make a stiff dough. Turn out on a lightly floured surface. Knead 12 to 15 minutes or until the dough becomes bouncy and elastic. Cover with a large bowl and let rest 45 minutes. (Meantime grease a baking sheet and sprinkle lightly with the cornmeal.) Divide dough in thirds. Using a rolling pin, roll each third into a rectangle about 13 by 10 inches. Starting from the widest side, roll each rectangle jelly-roll fashion, pressing the dough into the roll at each turn; press ends together to seal and then fold ends slightly under the loaf. Place seam side down on the baking sheet. Make small diagonal cuts across the top of each loaf with a sharp knife. Brush all over with water. Let rise in a warm place until doubled, about 20 minutes. Set oven temperature at 400 degrees and, without preheating the oven, place the loaves in it; bake 45 to 50 minutes. Cover lightly with foil if they brown too rapidly. Cool on racks before cutting. May be wrapped appropriately and stored in the freezer. Makes 3 loaves.

Opera Premiere

GLENS FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — The Lake George Opera Festival will present an opera world premiere this summer, on Aug. 8.

"The Child" is based on a Cuban poem written by Jose Marti in 1876. The locale is Guatemala.

MR. AND MRS. TERRY MAX ROBINSON

Couple Repeats Vows

Double ring wedding vows for Susan Eiland and Terry Max Robinson were read on May 31 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Key at Gail.

The Rev. Ken Andress, pastor of the First Baptist Church, officiated at the ceremony. The couple stood before the fireplace, where an arrangement of talisman gladioli decorated the mantle.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Eiland of Snyder and Mrs. Nancy Eiland of Vernon. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Robinson, also of Snyder, are the parents of the bridegroom.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of silk organza and venise lace over peau de soie. Lace outlined the portrait neckline, marked the empire bodice and bordered the pyramid skirt. The skirt, fashioned with unpressed pleats, swept to a wide chapel train.

The bridal veil of silk illusion was attached to a matching camelot of venise lace. The bride's bouquet of white frenched carnations and ivy leaves was centered with a white catalyn orchid.

Mrs. Key attended the bride as matron of honor. Denise Voss was bridesmaid. Mrs. Key wore a floor length dress of navy blue and white chiffon, while Miss Voss wore a formal length gown of beige linen. Mrs. Key carried a colonial bouquet of yellow daisy palms.

Mr. Key served the bridegroom as best man. Weldon Beck was groomsman.

Ralynn Key was flower girl, and she wore a sleeveless floor length dress of white silk with a bandeau of yellow daisies. Brice Key, ring bearer, wore a navy coat and blue and white checked trousers and carried the rings on a satin pillow made by his grandmother, Mrs. Robinson.

Mrs. Eiland chose a gown of pale yellow for the wedding. Mrs. Robinson wore a gown of pale blue. Both wore corsages of white orchids.

Mrs. Key and Miss Voss presided at the refreshment table at the reception which followed the ceremony. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of yellow daisy palms. Coffee and cake were also served from the bridegroom's table.

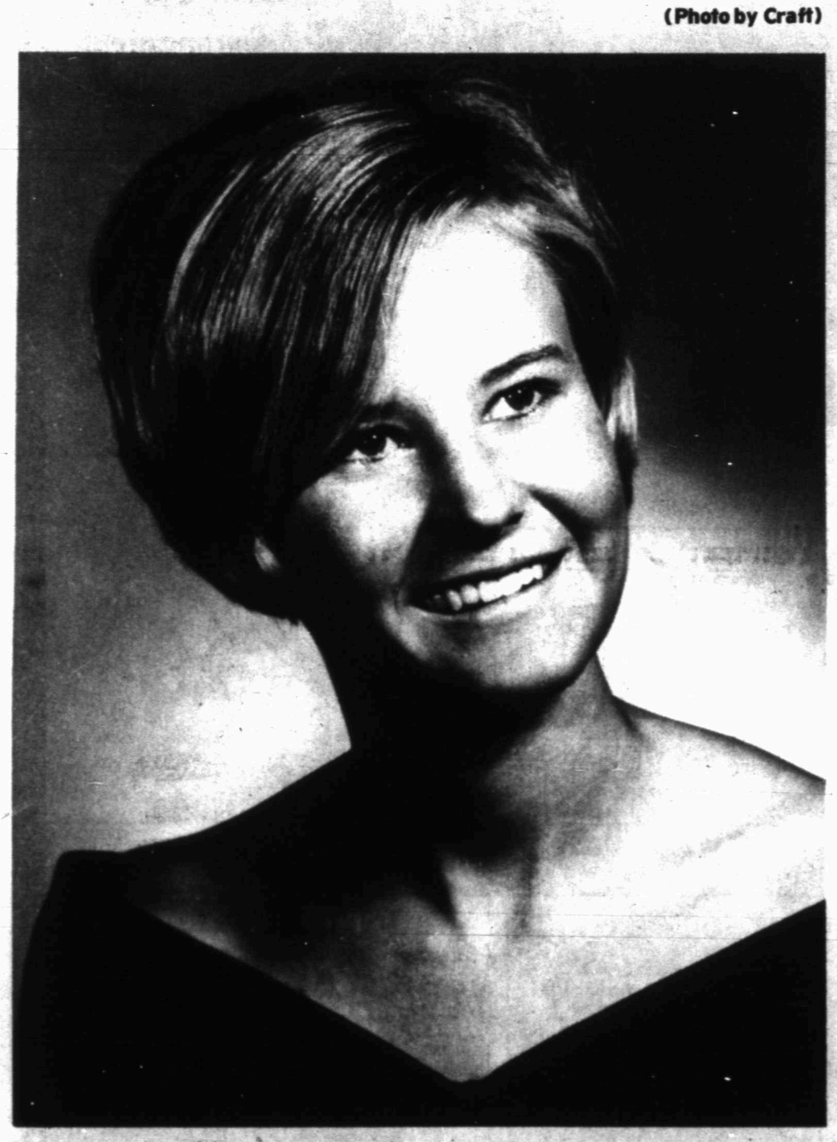

When the couple left on a wedding trip to the Gulf Coast, the bride wore a street length frock fashioned with a sleeveless bodice of navy blue and a skirt of gray check with a matching jacket. Her corsage was the white orchid taken from her bridal bouquet.

The bride is a spring graduate of Snyder High School and is employed by the Scurry County Sheriff's Department. The bridegroom was graduated from Snyder High School and received the Associate of Arts degree from Western Texas College in May. He is engaged in farming and ranching near Snyder, where the couple will be at home.

When using cloth diapers for baby, save time— and your hands——by letting the washing machine "wring out" the soaking solutioon. Empty container—solution and all—into the machine and set it for final spin. Then launder as usual, suggest Lynn Bourland, home management specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Bill Joe Clifton of Rt. 2, Hermleigh, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Lisa, to Richard Alan Bowman, son of Mr. and Mrs. J.W. Bowman of Hermleigh. An August 10 wedding is planned at the St. Stephens Episcopal Church in Sweetwater.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Beryl H. Williams, Rt. 1, announce the marriage of their daughter, Patricia Ann, to Gordon Maynard, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Maynard of Houston. The couple was married June 14 in Houston and will reside there. (Photo by Raun)

QUOTABLE WOMEN

By The Associated Press

Here are some quotable quotes from women during the week:

"Once a month I pack everything in the office that'll move into my old Chevy — baby scales, hemoglobin machine, diabetic screening equipment, the works — and move the clinic around." Ruth Murphy, a registered nurse in Elk County, Kansas, a 650-square-mile area where there have been no doctors for 15 years.

"In Portugal now, four million women have the right to speak out. One does not and it's me." Mrs. Carlos Palma, women's rights activists and wife of Portugal's new prime minister, explaining that her husband's job will cause her to be less active.

"Anything which affects our society is a woman's issue. Interrelationships between government and industry must be studied in reference to their effect on our society." Cathleen H. Douglas, Washington attorney and wife of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, speaking to the 104th graduating class of Cedar Crest College, Allentown, Pa.

Decision Due On Fireworks

WASHINGTON (AP) — A decision on the legality of traditional Fourth of July fireworks will be made by Monday, government officials said Friday.

Chinese and American fireworks makers have petitioned the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission to delay until after July 4 its ban on fireworks.

The petition was filed by the Oklahoma Pyrotechnics Association, Macao Fireworks Manufacturers Association and Li and Fung Ltd., a Hong Kong trading company.

If the new regulations are put into effect, the petitions said, the firms may be forced to repurchase $50 million worth of banned fireworks.

The commission said its lawyers would work through the weekend on the petition and a decision would be made "by the close of business Monday."

Crocheting To Begin

Scurry County Summer Recreation will offer a crocheting workshop Monday through Friday from 2 to 4 at West Elementary cafeteria.

Mrs. Lou Duncan will be the instructor and is the owner of the Yarn Shop where she teaches crocheting.

The workshop costs the fee of the membership which is $1 for adults and 50 cents for students. The course is offered to women and teens.

Giving a child an allowance before he's five-years-old probably won't have much training value. Most preschoolers really can't understand how money operates, notes Dorthy Taylor, family life education specialist, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The A&M University System.

Lost City Of Incas Is Booming With Tourism

By NICK and EARLEEN TATRO
Associated Press Writers

CUZCO, Peru (AP) — The journey begins here, in the city that was once the heartbeat of an empire stretching from northern Ecuador to central Chile, a conquest equalling that of Julius Caesar.

It ends on top of a mountain 75 miles northwest of this ancient Inca capital, in the long-deserted city of Machu Picchu in the Peruvian Andes.

Earth, sun and clouds — elements held sacred by the Inca — meet in the grassy citadel perched 6,750 feet above sea level.

Cuzco fell to the Spanish conquistadors, who marched inland from Lima in search of Inca gold in the 1500s. One by one, the fortresses, the temples, whole cities of the Incas fell to the conquerors of the New World.

But not Machu Picchu. The Spanish never knew it existed. The Inca empire crumbled, and Machu Picchu was abandoned.

Time tugged a jungle-like carpet of undergrowth up the mountainside and hid the city. It remained hidden until 1911 when American archaeologist Hiram Bingham found Machu Picchu by chance and dubbed it "the Lost City of the Incas."

Today, the city stands serenely atop the mountain. There are no souvenir stands here, none of the "Cathy-loves-Randy" and "Rosa-y-Luis" graffiti that mar other Peruvian ruins.

Tourists who visit Machu Picchu enter through a gate manned by government employes, but it's out of sight beyond a large boulder.

A 14-room hotel — a minute's walk outside the gate — is the only modern structure on the mountain top.

Except for the thatched roofs that rotted away centuries ago, Machu Picchu is intact.

It's almost as though its 2,500 inhabitants left yesterday, not four centuries ago. Why they left is a mystery. The Inca left no written histories, for they never learned to write. They had mastered the arts of governing and engineering far better than most of their Old World contemporaries, but they never discovered the wheel nor created an alphabet.

Machu Picchu is a multi-leveled, stair-stepped city. Farming terraces, still irrigated with rain water trapped and channeled in an elaborate series of narrow gutters, grow green with grass where the crops were once potatoes and corn.

The stairways climb to the houses, the plaza, the jail, the temple, the watch towers.

A watch tower guards the approach of the royal Inca highway, a granite road which led over the mountain tops from Cuzco, through seven other Inca cities to this citadel.

The Inca highway is still walkable. Occasional hikers make the trip that way.

But the more conventional tourists — 80,000 of them last year — come to Machu Picchu by rail from Cuzco. There are no roads for motor vehicles.

The trains leave at dawn. First is a three-car express pulled by a diesel engine; next is a three-car train pulled by a turn-of the century steam locomotive; then comes a modern single-car autowagon, and finally there is a decrepit local.

All must climb from the serpentine track from Cuzco, which is 11,000 feet above sea level, to an elevation of 12,000 feet — a feat that requires six "switchbacks," maneuverings akin to taking one step backward and two steps forward.

Then the trains begin a gradual descent into the valley, following the slivers of track that parallel the Urubamba and its rapids.

The traveler enters a time tunnel where the only visible concession to the 20th century is the brightly colored plastic the Indians buy by the yard to tie around their shoulders when it rains.

It's a five-hour trip from Cuzco to Machu Picchu, counting the 20-minute motorized dash that takes the tourists up the final mountain stretch to the lost city. Minibuses ply the 10-foot-wide gravel road that zigzags the face of the mountain in a dizzy series of hairpin curves.

Although Machu Picchu was discovered in 1911 and the railroad tracks laid in 1925, the tourist trade didn't begin until 1964 when the Peruvian government began promoting the place.

The tourist onslaught began in earnest in 1969 when a modern airport was built at Cuzco. Two airlines now bring hundreds of sightseers a day from Lima.

The boom is off and running, but Cuzco, a city of 200,000, lacks facilities to handle the tourists. It has 60 hotels, but only 12 are rated second-class and not one is first-class. Good food is just as scarce.

As Marco Bustamante, a lifelong resident of Cuzco who has worked as a tour guide for seven years, observed about the failure to continue the tourist development: "Since 15 years ago, we have a road; since nine years ago, we have a new hotel; since four years ago we have a cable car.

"But as you can see, it is all plans," said Bustamante, 26.

At the same time, he fears that over-development at Machu Picchu would be disastrous.

"If 1,000 to 2,000 people a day come here, what do we do with them? And if we ever build a road to Machu Picchu or put big hotels there, Machu Picchu will truly become the Lost City of the Inca."

More Records Sold

NEW YORK (AP) — Manufacturers' sales of phonograph records and prerecorded tapes in 1973 rose 4.8 per cent over levels for 1972, says the Recording Industry Association of America.

At list price value, combined record and tape sales in 1973 amounted to $2.017 billion, compared with $1.924 billion in 1972.

Disc sales in 1973 went to $1.436 billion, up 3.8 per cent over the 1972 level. Of this total, sales of albums rose to $1.246 billion, an increase of 3.6 per cent, while singles rose to $190 million, a rise of 5.6 per cent.

Total sales of prerecorded tapes were up 7.4 per cent, increasing to $581 million in 1973. Sales of eight-track cartridge tapes were up to $489 million, an increase of 15.1 per cent, but cassette tape sales declined by 25 per cent to $76 million in 1973. There was a 50 per cent drop in reel-to-reel tape sales, to $4 million. Quadraphonic tape sales doubled, going to $12 million in 1973.

Junior Editors' Quiz on RAINBOWS

QUESTION: How are rainbows formed?

* * *

ANSWER: The rainbow is a beautiful natural spectacle which appears when the sun shines through water droplets. It frequently appears when the sun is shining after a brief thunderstorm in the late afternoon. This arch or bow of beautiful colors may spread all the way across the sky following a heavy rain. There are seven colors in each bow: violet, indigo, blue, green, yellow, orange and red. The colors blend into each other. This natural display is caused by the reflection and refraction of the sun's rays as they fall on drops of rain. The rainbow is an arc of 180 degrees if the sun is at the horizon, and cannot appear if the sun is high in the sky. Rainbows are often observed in the spray from a waterfall, a lawn spray or in mist. Occasionally, the lunar rainbow is seen in the early evening after a rainstorm when the moon is nearly full. It is weak with very faint colors.

Aristotle of the ancient world probed the mystery of rainbows as did Descartes of the 17th century. A scientific explanation was not made until light and the spectrum were understood.

2381 sq. ft., –So many delightful features are crammed into this beautiful two story, Spanish style house that it takes a lot of careful study to note them all.

Inescapable, of course, is the drama of the distinctive exterior with the two storied archway and the lovely sheltered balcony above those massive double front doors. And the drama of high ceilinged foyer too is particularly exciting with its beautifully designed circular staircase.

The living room is also one to remember. Note that sunken conversation pit before the big stone fireplace. Behind this room a separate, formal dining room contributes its full share to the luxury and elegance of this house while, at the back, is one of the pleasantest, most practical kitchens imaginable. Note its big, efficient L-shaped work area, its separate pantry and the island range unit. And see that pretty breakfast nook with its sliding glass doors.

A family room, with a continuation of the same 17 foot high ceiling found in the foyer, is pleasantly situated beside an extra large patio, sheltered for maximum privacy by the big double garage.

Upstairs, opening from the charming balcony that edges the massive "main hall" area of this modern day "castle," are four lovely big bedrooms. Note their good sized closets, especially the large walk-in closet in the master bedroom, and the two baths, each with double lavatories. And for a bonus rarely seen in today's houses there is a fireplace in that master bedroom too! Note finally that two of these bedrooms have direct access to that delightful second floor deck.

For a beautiful house which leaves nothing to be desired in any aspect of delightful living, this design rates right up at the top of the list.

Car-Truck Crash Kills 8 Persons

ARTESIA, N.M. (AP) —A car-truck headon collision near Artesia that sheared the top of the car killed eight persons, including at least three children ages 10 to 13, and injured three.

Six of the dead in the Friday night crash on U.S. 285 six miles north of Artesia were tentatively identified by state police today as Floyd and Carol Reneau of Roswell, ages unavailable; Pat Briones, 19, Carlsbad; Chris Ruiz, 10, Carlsbad; Carolina Ruiz, 13, Carlsbad) and Liza Nuez, 12, Carlsbad.

Two of the dead, a male and a female, weren't identified, police said.

Officers said all but one of the dead were decapitated as the 2½-ton truck crashed through the top of the four-door, 1966 car after impact.

In the Artesia General Hospital were two teen-agers, Libby Sanchez, 16, of Roswell, and Romulo Rico, 15, Roswell. Rico was in serious condition after emergency surgery. Miss Sanchez was reported in good condition after treatment for bruises and contusions. They were in the car carrying the eight persons who died.

The truck driver, Jerry Davis, 34, of Roswell, alone in his vehicle, was in critical condition at St. Mary's Hospital in Roswell with back, hip and jaw injuries.

The car was in flames after the crash.

Davis, truck was pulling a low-boy trailer carrying a dump truck on the trailer bed. After the truck crashed through the top of the car, shearing it, the truck traveled another 60 to 70 yards before stopping just off the road.

The car was thrown across the highway onto the southbound lane shoulder.

3 Million Horses Are Vaccinated

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Three million animals have been vaccinated against Venezuelan equine encephalitis in Mexico this year and no cases of the disease have been reported, the Agriculture Ministry said Thursday.

The ministry said 68 suspected cases of the disease, which several years ago killed large numbers of horses, mules and donkeys in this country, were investigated and all proved negative.

The last case of encephalitis reported in Mexico was in September 1972, the ministry said.

AI PREGNANCY TESTING CLINICS SET

You livestock producers who are interested and have not had the opportunity to attend an A.I. and Pregnancy Testing Clinic will have that chance in coming months. Four additional clinics have been set for this training.

The clinic schedule is as follows: Aug. 12-26, San Angelo; Sept. 9-13, Mercedes; Sept. 23-27, Bryan; and Nov. 11-15, Midland.

The clinics, each four days in length, are a joint effort of the Texas Agriculture Extension Service and the Curtiss Breeding Service. Thirteen similar clinics involving the American Breeder Service were announced earlier.

These clinics are designed to provide highly technical field training in A.I. and pregnancy testing in addition to detailed information on managing the breeding herd. Discussion will cover nutrition, disease prevention, selection and records.

TOMATO PROBLEMS

One of the common questions at our recent Plant Disease Clinic was "why won't my tomato blooms stick." This ia a common problem and is usually attributed to hot weather. This is a physiological trait that the tomato plant has of compensating for the rapid transpiration during hot dry weather.

Sometimes earlier setting out of tomato plants in the spring will help. Shading the plants also helps to cut down on transpiration and may induce more blossoms to stick.

Another physiological problem of tomato plants which may show up shortly is blossom end rot. This disease is characterized by the appearance of water soaked areas near the base of fruit which rapidly turns dark and eventually rots.

The exact cause if unknown, but is believed to be caused by plant roots being unable to take up water as fast as it is being lost by the leaves. This loss of water drains moisture from the fruit causing the rotted area. These conditions causing blossom end rot may have occurred two or three weeks before the symptoms appear. Soils which are too wet or too dry inhibit uptake of water by plant roots and this results in the rot.

Fortunately this is a temporary problem. Mulching around plants will help provide a more even supply of available moisture by cutting down on evaporation loss.

CROP CONDITIONS

Crop conditions around the county are not as rosy as I have seen in past years. I estimate approximately 75 per cent of the cotton and 40-50 per cent of the sorghum has been planted. Of the cotton that is up, I think maybe 40-50 per cent could be considered a stand. Some areas have not been able to plant. Many places were planted, but with less than sufficient moisture, so these stands are very spotted and irregular. It has often been said "that this area can promise more and produce less, and promise less and produce more than any area in the country." This is the attitude we are taking at this time.

Luce Getting A look At Other Side Of Picture

By MAX B. SKELTON
AP Oil Writer

HOUSTON (AP) — John Miller says it is rather ironic but that he is sympathetic with Charles Luce.

Miller is president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America, whose membership has dropped from 7,500 to 4,000 since 1954.

Luce is the Consolidated Edison Co. board chairman who formerly was an undersecretary in the Department of Interior.

"The picture of Mr. Luce fending off his angry stockholders and trying to explain the financial plight of his company by pointing to the high price of fuel oil stirred some memories around our office," Miller said.

Higher fuel prices were among the factors that prompted Consolidated Edison directors in April to fail for the first time in 85 years to declare a dividend.

Miller said Luce once threatened to use oil imports to force domestic gasoline prices down but now is unhappy with the current high prices for foreign oil.

"Mr. Luce was undersecretary when a very modest gasoline price increase of something less than a penny occurred in February of 1967," the independent operator from Allegan, Mich., recalled.

"Independent producers hoped this was the harbinger of an improvement in crude oil prices which had been flat for years. But no such luck."

Miller said Luce became involved in the 1967 situation because Stewart Udall, then the Interior secretary, was in the Middle East.

"So Undersecretary Luce had to take care of the 'jawboning' on this particular price increase," he said.

"He summoned the New York Times, the Washington Post, and the Wall Street Journal to a private briefing in which he practically threatened to dismantle the domestic oil industry if this price increase was not rescinded."

Miller added that one of the things Luce threatened was "to open the gates and flood us with 'cheap' foreign oil."

"Well, it was that kind of government attitude toward the domestic industry that made petroleum exploration uneconomic in America for almost two decades," Miller said.

"It was that kind of government attitude that caused a massive flight of capital and a flight of about half the former active independent explorers and producers out of the domestic industry since the mid-1950s."

It was that kind of government attitude, Miller continued, that brought the nation, through dependence on the Arab bloc of oil producers, its first discomforts and inconveniences of doing without fuel.

"It might be observed that it is an irony that Mr. Luce, former government jawboner on domestic oil prices, is explaining his economic problems at Con Ed today by reference to the inflated cost of that formerly 'cheap' foreign oil on which he is now dependent," Miller said.

"There isn't an independent oil and gas producer surviving today who doesn't understand Mr. Luce's problem. Simply stated, he is confronted with a massive cost-price squeeze caused by the quadrupling of foreign oil prices. Independent producers suffered from a worsening cost-price squeeze for years, but nobody would listen, so we began quitting the game by the hundreds. I hope Charles Luce has better luck, even though he formerly was part of our problem."

Miller said it can be said without much dispute from any reputable economist that the basic cause of the nation's energy supply problem was too many years of $3 oil and 16-cent natural gas.

"The historical footnote brought to mind by Con Ed's problems may seem an irony, but the sad part of it is that we haven't learned anything, because the only thing that is the same today is the government attitude for which Mr. Luce was a spokesman in 1967," Miller said. "It still prevails. No, it is not just prevailing; it is intensifying."

Baling Wire Deal Nixed By Bureaucrat

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — U.S. Rep. James R. Jones has charged that an obscure bureaucrat's decision has been a major factor in the baling wire shortage.

Jones identified the official as Converse Hettinger of the Commerce Department. The 1st District Democrat called Hettinger an "invisible bureaucrat."

Jones said an investigation by his staff has revealed that Hettinger made a ruling that killed a "carefully negotiated agreement to barter 10,000 metric tons of scrap steel for 5,000 tons of baling wire a month for seven months."

The agreement had been negotiated between Killman Stone Ltd., San Antonio, Tex., and officials of the Mexican Steel Industry and the Mexican government.

Hettinger recommended a rejection of Killman's application for an export license, however, because the firm had no previous record as scrap metal exporters.

Commerce Secretary Frederick Dent upheld the ruling despite objections from a congressmen from both parties, including House Spaker Carl Albert, Jones, and Republican Sen.s Henry Bellmon of Oklahoma, Robert Dole of Kansas and John Tower of Texas.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Mayor Maynard Jackson says he will not accept a courtesy call from a visiting South Africa official because of that country's rigid policy of racial separatism.

"As long as I, and other black citizens of Atlanta and the United States, would not be welcome as equals in South Africa, I will not legitimize the present regime or the racist system upon which it operates," Jackson said Friday.

Van NeiKerk, South Africa's information chief in New York, is scheduled to visit Atlanta June 25. Jackson had been asked to receive NeiKerk.

Shumate Had Tough Battle Off Court

PHOENIX (AP) — John Shumate, Notre Dame basketball All-America says his toughest battle was off the court, when he was flat on his back.

Shumate, first round draft choice of the Phoenix Suns, signed a multiyear contract with the National Basketball Association team Friday.

"I would lie there at night, forcing myself to stay awake, even though the pain was terrible," he said in an interview. "I was afraid to fall asleep...afraid I wouldn't wake up in the morning."

The episode occured three years ago following an injury which he first thought was a muscle pull.

Shumate, son of an Elizabeth, N.J. minister, said he was deeply religious oefore he came face to face with death. But the excruciating experience only reinforced his belief.

The problem began after Shumate's freshman year at Notre Dame in which he averaged 22.4 points and 13 rebounds.

"It began with what was thought to be a muscle pull. But there was a blood clot they didn't know about. And the treatment for the pulled muscle worsened the blood clot, loosening it and forcing it to move about," he said of the injury.

Shumate's health deteriorated rapidly and the 6-foot-8 star lost 45 pounds.

"I had to drag my left leg around. I could hardly walk. The pain was so intense that there were moments when I thought of just giving up."

Shumate went into the hospital where his problem was quickly diagnosed. A month of treatment followed.

"When I got out, I had to learn to walk all over," he said. "There were long sessions of therapy. I had doubts that I could ever be an outstanding basketball player again."

Shumate finished last season by averaging 24.2 points and 11 rebounds a game and hitting 62.7 per cent of his shots from the field.

He will make his first appearance in a Suns uniform June 25 when the team holds a rookie camp in Phoenix.

Trojan Coach Doesn't Like Aluminum Bats

By DAN EVEN
AP Sports Writer

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Coach Rod Dedeaux of Southern California wants to take the klink and klank out of college baseball.

The object of the outcry by Dedeaux — and many other college coaches — is aluminum bats, used this year for the first time.

"The bats are changing the game," says Dedeaux, "and the question is, is it good for the game?"

Aluminum bats made by about only five manufacturers were legal in college baseball this season. But the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association approved the use of any aluminum bat in 1975, regardless of the manufacturer.

Dedeaux, a 33-year veteran of college ball, says the new bats have increased hitting averages, reduced low scoring games, created a false "hitting sense" among players and hiked fielding injuries.

But most of the coaches and players in the 28th College World Series here feel the bats are a boon to amateur baseball.

"I like them," says Southern Illinois Coach Richard "Itchy" Jones. "They have really helped the hitter and I don't think they have hurt the defense any."

All but one of the eight teams that qualified for the College World Series came to the classic hitting more than .300.

Also, 47 of 72 players who started in the series were .300 hitters or better — including six with averages above .400.

And at least 90 per cent of the top hitters use aluminum bats.

Miami Coach Ron Fraser, still undecided about the aluminum bats, feels they help a ball hit off the handle.

"Normally it would break a wooden bat, but you can get a hit off that type of ball with an aluminum bat," he says.

Economy is often mentioned in support of the new bats.

"It may cost $50 for a dozen wooden bats, and you go through 20 dozen in a season — and that's conservative," notes Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson.

"Compare that to aluminum bats, which sell for about $18 for a good one — or $216 a dozen. It's easy for a dozen to last a season or you may need only a half dozen. That's a saving of maybe $800 or so. For schools with limited budgets, that's a big plus," he explains.

Vicki Lee Wants Major League Career

BORGER, Tex. (AP) — Twelve-year-old Vicki Lee is made of sugar and spice and everything nice. And a first-baseman's mitt.

And Texas' first Little League girl baseball player wants to be America's major league woman player.

"Oh, I love it," says Vicki. "It's just the greatest!"

Here, high up in the Texas Panhandle, girls traditionally dream of marrying a rich, handsome rancher, becoming a Hollywood star or serving coffee, tea or milk aboard a jetliner.

"Not me, boy. I want to play in the major leagues," Vicki said Friday.

"Who for?"

"I don't care. Anybody. I just want to play."

Vicki went to bat Thursday night for the Phillips Pirates. It was something of an historic first, especially in this conservative, windswept ranching area. Values here tend to be traditional. Girls belong in the kitchen or tending chores. Boys belong in the pasture playing ball or tending chores.

"I think we ought to have equal rights, too," Vicki said.

Vicki's coach, W.R. Pagie, said he had no choice but to let Vicki play with the Pirates after Little League attorneys advised him of new rules.

Vick's debut wasn't spectacular the Pirates lost 24-6. But she learns fast.

"I struck out the first time at bat and walked the second time. The third time at bat I let the pitcher hit me so I could get on base," she related.

The pitched ball raised a knot on Vicki's leg but she said "it didn't hurt much."

"I was real nervous my first time at bat," she said. "I just stood there patting my foot and twisting the bat."

"The suit fit me just fine. I put my hair up in a pony tail so it would fit under my cap."

Vicki didn't have any baseball cleat shoes to wear so she wore tennis shoes.

"The boys all say they think I'm pretty good. I don't know. I guess I can hit better than some of them," she said.

May Purchase Houston Teams

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston offshore drilling rig firm president says he will decide by July 1 whether to purchase a part of the controlling interest in the Houston Rockets and the Houston Aeros.

"My attorneys are looking at it now," said Joe Atwood. "This thing looks interesting to me. I'll be making a move by July 1."

Irvin Kaplan, who owns controlling interest in the Rockets of the National Basketball Association and the Aeros of the World Hockey Association, confirmed that Atwood has an option which must be acted on by July 1.

"We're working toward bringing him in," Kaplan said. "He has the right to come in and buy stock in both clubs."

Kaplan, who bought controlling interest in the two teams last December, would not elaborate on details of Atwood's stock option other than to say it involved a partnership in the controlling stock.

Atwood is president of Atwood Oceanics, an offshore drilling rig firm.

Girl Throws No-Hitter

CLAY, W. Va. (AP) — Eleven-year-old Bunny Taylor turned in Thursday what probably is the first no-hit game ever recorded by a girl in Little League competition.

For sure, it was the first female pitching gem since Little League officials announced earlier in the day that girls would be allowed to play in all 9,100 leagues across the land.

She struck out nine and walked only three in leading her Valley Fork team to a 16-0 win over the Proncious No. 2 team.

Rebs Rip Bullets 9 To 3

The Rebels defeated the Bullets 9-3 in a Junior Teenage League baseball game here Friday night.

The Rebs' Glenn Davis and Kerry Young combined forces for a two-hitter, giving up a double to Tracy Witherspoon and a single to Dray Sikes.

Sikes' single drove in one run for the Bullets in the 6th inning after they had scored one unearned run each in the 1st and 4th frames.

The Rebs tallied two runs in the 1st, three in the 2nd, two in the 4th, and one each in the 5th and 6th innings.

The Rebels collected 10 hits. Kenneth Thompson stroked three singles, Glenn Davis hit two singles and drove in two runs. Doyle Browning tripled, driving in two tallies. Alvin Ollison also tripled, driving in a run. Bryan Walton, Kerry Young and Jeff Robbins each hit a single, and Robbins' hit drove in a run. Fred Kesner was credited with an rbi.

I'm Not Superhuman-- Golfer Johnny Miller

By BOB GREEN
AP Golf Writer

MAMARONECK, N.Y. (AP) — Johnny Miller almost seemed to be pleading for understanding.

"I'm not superhuman," he said Friday in the aftermath of a fat 75 — including a horrendous, quadruple-bogey seven — that all but ended his chances of a successful defense of his United States Open Golf crown.

"Let's face it," the slender blond with the All-American boy good looks said, "I've played above my head for the last year. I played probably as good as anybody in the world."

He paused, reassessed the statement and corrected himself.

"I played better than anybody else in the world. Better than Jack Nicklaus. Better than Gary Player. For the last year I've been the best player in the world.

"I won the U.S. Open. I won the World Cup (in Spain). I won the Lancombe (in France). I won five tournaments this year. Nobody else has won that much in that length of time.

"I was playing over my head. It's ridiculous to think that I could keep up that pace.

"I'm just not that good a player."

Miller has been the most sensational player in the game for the last 12 months and has dominated the pro tour up to now. He won the first three tournaments of the year — a record performance — then added the titles in two more prestige events, the Tournament of Champions and the Heritage Classic.

He has won $203,690 for the year.

Now he's calling a halt to it.

"I won't play much the rest of the year," he said. "I don't know when I'll play again."

He definitely will not play in the United States for the next five weeks. And he may skip the British Open, the next of the Big Four championships and a tournament in which he tied for second last year.

"There's an excellent chance I won't play in the British Open," he said, and explained that his wife Linda is expecting their third child about that time.

"If she wants me home for moral support about that time, I'll stay home," he said.

Miller said his fast start this season killed his desire.

"It's like a miler. If he runs the first half in 1:30, he doesn't have anything left for the second half," he said.

"Oh, I'll play the last two rounds here," he said. "But I'll just be yukking it up, having a good time."

French Finals Slated Today

PARIS (AP) — Chris Evert and Olga Morozova have played each other five times, and Miss Evert has won each time. But the stakes will be higher Sunday when they meet in the final of the French Open Tennis Tournament.

Miss Evert, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla., is seeking her second major international championship. Miss Morozova is aiming for the first big title ever won by a Russian player. She is the first Russian player ever to reach the final in Paris.

Top prize in the women's singles is $8,000 out of the $200,000 total prize money. The loser gets $4,000.

Miss Evert won her semifinal match Friday from Helga Masthoff of West Germany 7-5, 6-4, while Miss Morozova defeated Raquel Giscafre of Argentina 6-3, 6-2.

Before playing against each other Sunday, Miss Evert and Miss Morozova will play together today as partners in the women's doubles final against Gail Chanfreau of France and Katja Ebbinghaus of West Germany.

Heading Saturday's program, however, are the men's singles semifinals, pitting Francois Jauffret of France against Manuel Orantes of Spain, and Bjorn Borg of Sweden against Harold Solomon of Silver Spring, Md. Solomon was the surprise winner over Ilie Nastase of Romania in the quarterfinals.

The last American to win the French men's singles title, recognized as the world clay court championship, was Tony Trabert in 1955. Billie Jean King won the women's crown for the United States in 1972.

Union Aids Girl Infielder

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has threatened to file suit unless a 9-year-old female infielder who's batting .500 is reinstated in a boys' baseball league.

Directors of the Catholic Youth Recreation Association voted 6-0 Thursday night to fire Coach Michael R. Ousley of Denver, who allowed Ann-Marie Sandquist to play second base in four games.

The ACLU wants Ann-Marie to continue playing and Ousley to return as volunteer coach.

Otherwise, the ACLU said, it will press the Denver Parks and Recreation Department to prevent the association from using city-owned baseball diamonds for its games, a spokesman said.

Astro Attendance Is Sagging Badly

HOUSTON (AP) — Attendance is sagging badly for the Houston Astros this year and officials of the National Baseball League club blame it on the economic pinch.

Only 456,433 customers have paid their way to see the Astros during the first 35 home games. This compares with 683,142 for the same period last year. This year's average attendance is 13,041 compared with 19,803 last season.

"What we are not drawing are the people within easy driving distance who are not coming to the games," said Wayne Chandler, director of publicity. "I think it's an economic thing.

"This involves the guy and his family who drives to the Astrodome, parks, and goes up and buys his tickets. This is where the sales are down significantly, where our big decline is.

Chandler said middle income families and those below are feeling an economic pinch because food prices are higher, clothes cost more and gasoline has climbed in price.

Astros General Manager Spec Richardson said there was no early indication of an attendance drop since season ticket sales were higher, mail order sales were higher and group sales were up.

The Astros are 31-31 for the season but the attendance slump began opening day. When the team was just one game out of first place in the National League West, prior to a 10-game losing streak, attendance already was 80,000 below 1973.

The home attendance record of 2,151,470 paying fans was set in 1965, the first year the Astrodome was in operation Last year's total was 1,394,004.

The Astros have attracted more than a million paying customers every year since the Astrodome opened and Chandler is confident they will do it again this year.

Aztecs Hit With Suits

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Two professional soccer players from Argentina have each filed suits of more than $1 million against the Los Angeles Aztecs claiming the owner of the team had them arrested as illegal aliens after breaking their contracts.

Attorney Joseph Mijares filed the suits in Superior Court Friday for Hector Bentron and Miguel Ferrari against the owner of the North American Soccer League team, Jack Gregory.

Both suits seek $500,000 general damages for false arrest and another $500,000 in punitive damages.

The suits claim the team promised the players air fare from Argentina, and agreed to pay apartment rent and pay the players $1,000 a month each for six months.

On April 11, less than a month after training started, they were fired from the team one day after refusing to sign a second contract which Gregory claimed was required by the league, the suits contend.

The players' attorney said the second pact was actually a release from the first and both were in English, which neither athlete is able to read or write.

The suits said Bentron was evicted from his apartment April 15 and both were arrested May 23 after Gregory reported them to officials as aliens living in the country illegally.

OUR MAN ON BROADWAY
Dick Maurice

Isaac Hayes, star of American International's "Truck Turner," is a man of many talents who works in many media. In a few short years, Hayes has scored four movies, including "Shaft" for which he won both the Oscar and the Grammy, made his motion pictures acting debut, recorded a half dozen albums, toured the nation, and generally became one of the top figures on the pop and soul scene.

MAURICE: Tell me about your latest film, "Truck Turner"?

HAYES: Well I play the part of Truck Turner who is a skip tracer and one of the last of the bounty hunters, living on blood money and borrowed time. It's a real adventure picture. In addition to starring in it I also composed and performed the music score.

MAURICE: You've proven to be a man of many talents. In what direction would you like your career to go?

HAYES: I'd really like to get into this acting thing. I've just started in it and like to go further with it. It's almost like an extension of what I've been performing on stage.

MAURICE: You mention the word skip tracer. Could you tell me where expressions like that and lay it on me come from?

HAYES: Well, they come from the corners. Brothers are the authors of those words, I would say. And without having to go to the English language and say two, three, or four words and whole sentences, one or two words can mean a lot of things. It's just applicable to whatever the situation is and it says the whole thing.

MAURICE: Where do you think your talent came from?

HAYES: It was a gift from God. I haven't had any formal training so it had to be a gift.

MAURICE: Without any formal education, how do you go about composing your music?

HAYES: I put it in a tape recorder and sometimes I sit with the guy who puts it on paper for me. I'll hum it to him, or I'll play it to him, or I'll call the notes out and he'll put it on paper. And that's the way it's done.

MAURICE: Were you surprised with the success of Shaft?

HAYES: Yes I was. I had no idea that it would go that far.

MAURICE: What were your occupational goals when you were younger?

HAYES: When I was in grammar school I wanted to become a physician. I really did. And then I became fascinated and wover whelmed by my musical desires that I wound up in music.

MAURICE: So many black entertainers have such great musical talent.

HAYES: Being a descendant of the continent of Africa, blacks have all kinds of rhythm and that's the way they communicated—through rhythm, through sounding of drums in the jungle. Their whole social structure was built around rhythm—dancing and chants. So that's why they are super-talented in this area.

MAURICE: What is Soul music?

HAYES: There are so many different explanations for it. I would have to say that Soul music is an expression of a people—it's more like folk music. You could say black folk music. You might compare it to hillbilly music which is white folk music.

MAURICE: What direction do you think the music scene is now going in?

HAYES: I don't know. It's like one big conglomeration, man. It's so vast and there are so many different types and it's like a whirlpool. As there are so many different types of music, there are groups of people who like these different types.

MAURICE: Is it harder to get on top or to stay there?

HAYES: It's harder to stay on top. Once you are there, there is a tremendous amount of responsibility. You have to answer for a lot of things because you are in a position to influence a group of people. Also, you are looked upon more critically. So you have to be very careful of the moves you make in your career. You can't make any mistakes because if you slip and fall you are criticised and people think you are falling.

MAURICE: What is the biggest advantage of being a celebrity?

HAYES: The biggest advantage, personally for me, is you feel wanted. You have a sense of belonging. I grew up in kind of a lonely childhood. My grandparents raised me. I kept to myself.

MAURICE: Do you get involved in various movements?

HAYES: No, I try and stay away from them because nowadays things are so radical and change so abruptly. You can get involved in one thing and the stream will change and you can be caught up in it. People are so fickle. It's not safe unless it is very sound and it's an obligation as an individual.

MAURICE: How do you feel about violence in movies?

HAYES: Violence has been in everyday life since there were a Cain and Abel. Let's take America. In the founding of this country you had violence. Then you had the Civil War. Writers always reflect what is happening in society. So people yell about violence but really what it is is just a mirror and they are looking at themselves. I feel that if there were no violence, then there wouldn't be violence on the screen. This violence had to be inspired by something.

MAURICE: Can anyone be a soul brother?

HAYES: Yes. It's black and white. A brother is more or less a brother in spirit. Four or five years ago it was a brother of race but now it's not isolated anymore.

MAURICE: Do blacks stick together to help each other out?

HAYES: Well, not like they should. Many times they are thrown in a situation and have no choice. Their lack of togetherness may stem from slavery days when you had black house hands and black field hands. One was compensated by divulging information when there were violations.

Professor Defends Vitamins

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. William Proxmire's criticism of recommended daily allowances of vitamins and minerals plays into the hands of charlatans and quacks, a University of Wisconsin professor says.

In a Senate speech this week, the Wisconsin Democrat called the recommended daily allowances unscientific and said the group which drafted them was "influenced, dominated and financed in part by the food industry."

But Alfred E. Harper, a biochemistry professor who heads the University of Wisconsin's Nutritional Sciences Department and was chairman of the group which drew up the standards, dissents.

"Statements such as those you have made are irresponsible," Harper said in a telegram to Proxmire. "They play into the hands of every charlatan and quack whose aim is to convince the average person that his or her diet is inadequate and that his or her health depends on the use of unneeded, overpriced vitamin pills and food supplements."

Harper told newsmen Friday his committee consisted of professors from five universities, representatives of the U.S. agriculture Department and the National Institutes of Health, but no representatives of the food industry.

The study was paid for by the National Institutes of Health, Harper said.

Central Texas Has Many Attractions

Abundant family entertainment for Texans stretches down the center of the state, an easy ride from the Fort Worth-Arlington complex to Austin and the Hill Country.

The distance from Tarrant County to the state capital: 193 miles. Some cars can drive it on a tank of gasoline, observing today's 55 mph speed limit.

It's not only a sound vacation idea, says J. Fike Godfrey of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, but it's a fuel-saver that aids the Texas tourist industry.

The West Texas Chamber serves this area from its Abilene office, said Godfrey, WTCC executive vice president.

Gov. Dolph Briscoe notes that more than 600,000 Texans are employed in the state's $2.2 billion tourist business.

The area to the north, from Gainesville near the Red River to Jacksboro, features the old Butterfield Trail Route. And a train for vacationers, the Firefly, crosses the sometimes rugged terrain between Bridgeport and Fort Richardson at Jacksboro.

The Fort Worth area has Six Flags Over Texas, in its 13th season; Seven Seas, in its third; Lion Country Safari, Texas Rangers baseball, and the newest sight worth seeing: the Dallas-Fort Worth Regional Airport, the world's largest.

Arts enrich Fort Worth through the Amon G. Carter Museum of Western Art, Kimbell Art Museum and the Fort Worth Art Museum. For theater there's Casa Manna.

Eighty-seven miles south along Interstate 35 is Waco and Fort Fisher, home of Company F of the Texas Rangers. The fort is a replica of one established in 1837 and is the site of the Homer Garrison Memorial Texas Ranger Museum.

Austin, 106 miles farther, can be explored for its own beauty or serve as a jump-off for the Hill Country or the Highland Lakes, both to the west.

Scenery comes in many forms in Austin, much of it historical: the 46-acre capital grounds; French Legation, built in 1841; the home of writer "O. Henry," a resident from 1885-95; and the newest and most popular attraction, the Lyndon B. Johnson Library.

The LBJ Ranch and National Historic Site is just over an hour's drive west of Austin, near Stonewall. Horse-drawn vehicles are used for visitors.

Hill Country memories last longer after detours through the small towns, some of them German in origin, with their reputations for tasty, solid food.

This 200-mile, eastern fringe of West Texas is incluced in a new map published by the WTCC, the Wonderful West Texas Fun and Adventure Map. It and more than 200 brochures on individual cities of West Texas are available from: West Texas Chamber of Commerce, Box 1561, Abilene 79604.

Houses Are Too Expensive

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Only one American family in three can afford to buy a new house anymore, the president of the American Association of Homebuilders says.

"Almost 90 per cent of the homes under construction today are being built for the top 36 per cent of the population," Herman Smith told a conference of Texas housing officials Thursday.

In Texas urban areas, it is no longer possible to build a house that sells for $15,000, he said. Building costs have escalated to $18 a square foot, and city codes and ordinances usually limit the size of new construction to at least 1,000 square feet.

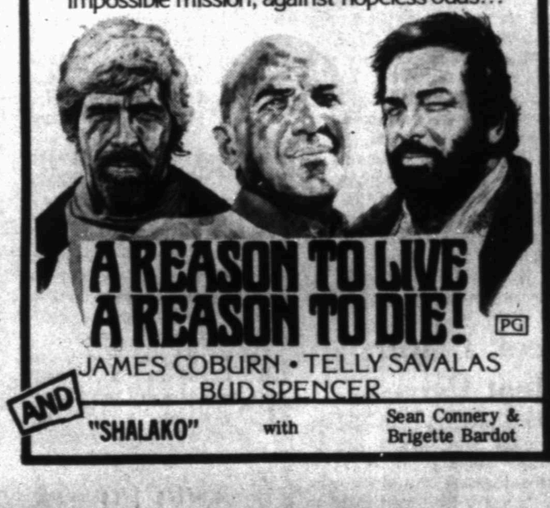

Tom Forrester Lord, president of the Houston Housing Development Corp., agreed that families with low or moderate incomes are being priced out of the new housing market.

Lord said a Houston firm that built houses for $13,000 in 1968 sells exactly the same house for $21,000 today. In 1968, a family with an income of $500 per month could qualify for a loan to buy the house. Now it takes a monthly income of more than $1,000.

"What's happened to us is nobody's fault," said Everett Mattson, senior executive vice president of the Lomas & Nettleton Co. of Houston, a mortgage banking firm. "It's inflation—inflation is the culprit of the whole thing, and we've got to figure out how to get it under control."

Plea For Law Career Advice

Career Corner
by Joyce Lain Kennedy

Dear Joyce: I am very much interested in becoming a lawyer. But the information I've received never seems to satisfy me. I start college this fall. I have been advised to select political science as my major because it deals with aspects of governments. However, other people have given me different advice about my pre-law major -- it gets confusing at times.

Also, I am thinking about majoring in philosophy because it gives you more of an understanding about life, particularly as it concerns human equality.

If it's possible, I would like to know where the number one law schools are located? -- G.A.C., Camden, N.J.

I changed your venue to the American Bar Association (ABA). Here's what an ABA spokesperson said:

"The American Bar Association does not rate law schools comparatively. The many factors which make up a law school must be appraised by the individual student. That is, the school that is 'best' for one student may not be so for another."

(However, a survey of deans of professional schools reported in Changing Times magazine, Jan. '74, lists Harvard, Yale, Columbia, U. of Michigan and U. of Chicago as 5 top law schools.)

By writing to the ABA, Information Service Department, 1155 E. 60th St., Chicago, Ill. 60637, you can get a single free copy of "Law Schools -- a review of legal education in the U.S." This 60-page booklet lists all the ABA-approved law schools, gives some information about each, and summarizes the educational requirements for bar admission.

ANOTHER ABA BOOKLET, "Law As a Career," (costs 40 cents per copy from ABA address above) discusses pre-law majors.

"Questionnaires several years ago asked leaders of the Bench Bar which pre-law subjects they considered most valuable. The following subjects were listed, in order of preference: English language and literature, government, economics, American history, mathematics, English history, Latin, logic and scientific method, and philosophy. Accounting (not bookkeeping) and public speaking also were recommended."

The ABA booklet suggests that the student's college courses be geared to the development of a broad cultural background, habits of thoroughness, intellectual curiosity and scholarship, the ability to organize materials and communicate the results and verbal skills. Courses in literature, language, speech, composition, logic and semantics are directly concerned with cultivation of the necessary skills.

Since you need help deciding, make an appointment to talk with the executive director of your local bar association. Ask the director to arrange appointments with several lawyers, each in a different law specialty. Have a list of questions prepared so you don't abuse the kindness of any lawyer who counsels you. Write each lawyer a thank-you note for his time and valued advice. A good lawyer is resourceful -- this is a chance to develop that quality in yourself.

Brezhnew Says Soviets Prepared For Agreement

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev said Friday the Soviet Union is prepared to agree immediately with the United States on phasing out underground nuclear testing.

But Brezhnev did not indicate whether the Kremlin is prepared to allow on-site inspections — a major obstacle in previous talks.

American negotiators have consistently asserted that on-site inspections are necessary to prevent cheating, but the Soviets have argued that underground blasts can be detected electronically and have rejected on-site checks.

"We are ready to reach an agreement with the United States right now on the limitation of underground nuclear tests up to their full termination according to a coordinated timetable," Brezhnev said in a final campaign address before Sunday's elections to the Supreme Soviet.

While the outcome of such elections is predetermined, the campaign speeches are often used as a vehicle for major policy statements.

Brezhnev's declaration, coming less than two weeks before the start of President Nixon's visit here, indicated the Soviets hope that an agreement could be signed during the summit.

American technical experts have been in Moscow for two weeks exploring ways to broaden the 1963 test ban treaty, which prohibits atmospheric and undersea tests but makes no provisions for underground test.

Brezhnev's address coincided with an announcement that Nixon will attend a North Atlantic Treaty Organization summit in Brussels on June 26, the day before he departs for Moscow.

Brezhnev strongly defended Nixon's visit against "pessimistic estimations" in the foreign press. "Of course, nobody is going to solve in a rush questions which have not yet matured. But it is impossible, comrades, to make no headway."

He hailed the agreement to limit strategic arms signed by the United States and the Soviet Union in 1972, but he added: "We urge that the Soviet Union and the Unied States by mutual accord show the maximum restraint in further development of their armaments."

He attacked "those circles in the United States" which he said try to pin the escalation of the arms race on the Soviet Union.

Easing Of Price Hikes Is Less Than Certain

By STEPHEN H. MILLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The less than certain prospects for an easing of price increases were underlined this past week in announcements by the government and two of the country's biggest corporations.

The Labor Department said wholesale prices were up a sharp 1.5 per cent in May, even though farm and food prices were down.

Herbert Stein, chairman of President Nixon's Council of Economic Advisers, said he felt May was the end of the price surge touched off by the end of federal controls, although more increases were probably still ahead.

Stein's prediction came one day after higher prices were announced by the leading companies in two of the country's most important industries — steel and cars.

U.S. Steel, which announced a wide range of price increases five weeks ago, said it was raising charges an average of 8 per cent on a nuhber of products.

General Motors took action which makes remaining 1974 vehicles an average of $118 more expensive, but contended it hadn't really raised prices at all.

U.S. Steel, biggest of the American steelmakers, said its increases would bring in less than 3 per cent more revenue and it still wouldn't recover ground lost during government controls.

General Motors said that its move wasn't a price increase since it was merely making standard on many models what had formerly been optional features, such as radial tires, electronic ignitions and power steering. Thus, GM contended, customers were getting more for their money even if it did take more money to get a GM product.

Metals and machinery were among the factors, along with fuels and chemicals, which accounted for three-quarters of the May increase in wholesale prices, the Labor Department said.

Over-all, wholesale prices were up 16.4 per cent from a year earlier, with industrial prices up 20.1 per cent and farm products, processed foods and feeds up 8.1.

The May figures pushed the government's wholesale price index to 155.0, which meant it cost $155 to buy what $100 would have bought in 1967.

The Labor Department also reported, however, that while the cost of living from April 1973 to April 1974 went up 13.3 per cent, the cost of alcoholic beverages in that period went up only 6.7 per cent. Whiskeys, they said, had gone up just 0.7 per cent.

While many liquor dealers predicted an increase before long, one New York dealer said consumer resistance had driven the price of French Bordeaux wines down 25 to 30 per cent. A California industry spokesman predicted imported wines would wind up costing about 10 per cent more than they did in 1972.

Firms Face Fraud Charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Corporations in Texas and Nevada and four Los Angeles men are accused in a 31-count indictment of defrauding more than $100,000 from would-be book distributors.

After the indictment was handed down Thursday, Asst. U.S. Atty. J. Lawrence Handzlik said the defendants falsely represented themselves as authorized agents of large, well-known publishing firms.

For about $4,000, Handzlik said, persons were to receive distributing rights for bestselling hardback books in what they thought would be exclusive territories. For another $2,000, he said, the defendants offered to find their clients store locations—but never did so.

Charged with 30 counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy each were David Rosen, 48; his son, Charles, 27; Louis E. Roberts, 36, and Albert U. Diamond, 52.

Also named in the indictment were Consolidated Dynamics, Inc., of Reno, Nev., and International Enterprises, Inc., of Corpus Christi, Tex., which also has offices in Beverly Hills.

Sees Son First Time In 57 Years

SIOUX CITY, Iowa (AP) — Frances Royalty, 75, met her son this week for the first time since he was an infant. Now she is poring over a scrapbook in her nursing home room to learn all about him.

The book contains picturs of John Jacobs' early childhood and school years, clippings from his Navy days and photos of Mrs. Royalty's three grandsons.

Jacobs, 57, of Trenton, N.J., searched for his mother for 10 years before he found her at the Leeds Nursing Home earlier this year. He and hospital officials decided to wait for the right moment to break the news so it wouldn't be too much of a shock.

Mrs. Royalty was 18 and unmarried when she gave birth at a hospital here to a son she named Joseph Creighton Bruning. The infant was placed in a children's home, but Mrs. Royalty said she hoped someday to take him to live with her.

Mrs. Royalty, who later married, but had no other children, said she was told her son had died. But "I didn't believe that," she said.

Nursing home administrator Mrs. Charles Sullivan told Mrs. Royalty about her son being alive and the two were reunited Tuesday.

"I thought somebody was kidding me along," Mrs. Royalty said. "I said, 'Are you sure?' and I almost called them a liar."

Jacobs said he first realized his foster parents were not his natural parents when he discovered his baptismal certificate in 1946.

He was adopted by the Jacobs' family and lived with them at Bancroft, and Mason City, Iowa. After a Navy tour in World War II, he married and settled in Trenton, hometown of his wife, Dolores.

He applied for a defense-related job and needed proof of his citizenship. That was when he found his baptismal certificate with his natural mother's name.

Jacobs said he eventually located his mother's sister at Onawa, Iowa, and learned the story of his birth. After finding his mother, Jacobs' wife prepared the scrapbook so Mrs. Royalty could learn about her son before she met him.

Seek Lower Meat Prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ways to lower meat prices will be probed Monday at a White House meeting of everybody in the industry from cattlemen to supermarkets, White House economics adviser Kenneth Rush said Friday.

Meat prices are too high, Rush said, and the meeting is being called to explore ways to lower them.

Meat packers and retailers are enjoying the highest profit margins on meat in a long time and they appear to be "higher than they should be," Rush said.

On the other hand, he said, feedlot operators are in serious financial difficulty because they are loosing as much as $100 to $200 a head in a squeeze between high grain prices and the low prices they receive.

The answer, Rush said, is not to reimpose quotas on meat imports, as advocated by many in the cattle industry.

He said retailers and packers need to decrease prices to increase sales and Monday's meeting will focus in part on ways to do this.

Hill Rules Column Not Contribution

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Hill has ruled that a newspaper is not making a campaign contribution—possibly a criminal one—when it publishes an officeholder—candidate's column for free.

To hold otherwise, Hill said Friday, would be to violate the constitutional guarantee of freedom of the press.

Hill's opinion went to Rep. Ed Harris, D-Galveston, chairman of the House Elections Committee. Like Hill, Harris distributes a column to newspapers.

The attorney general said he did not think his personal interest in the question "influences our view of the law."

He noted that if publication of such a column by a newspaper was a campaign contribution, it would be a criminal offense should the paper be owned by a corporation. State law prohibits corporate political contributions.

Gasoline Is Plentiful

HOUSTON (AP) — The Texas division of the American Automobile Association says gasoline is plentiful in the state.

The association's weekly survey released Friday showed that only six-tenths of one per cent of the Texas service stations are out of fuel. This compares with four-tenths of one per cent for the nation as a whole.

The report said Texas has the lowest gasoline prices in the nation with regular brand averaging for 51.2 cents a gallon and premium 54.9. The national average is 56 cents for regular and 60 cents for premium.

The report indicated 21 per cent of Texas stations still are limiting purchases and that 33 per cent now are operating on Sunday.
