Portales Eulogy

By ETAOIN SHRDLU

Mr. Jno. C. Boyce, this city, writes as follows: "In answer to this week's problem the man will have to drive 60 miles per hour to maintain his 30-mile-per-hour average. Am I right?" How about it, Mr. Boykin. Mr. Boyce also sends a problem for Mr. Boykin which we will publish next week.

+ + +

And from John Adams comes the answerer of 40 miles an hour for the last mile, in order to make up the 30-mile average. Mr. Boykin did not furnish us with the answer, so we're asking you to look to him for your solution. Or, if Mr. Boykin would give us the privilege, we feel sure that we could furnish you with the information. What say, Mr. Boykin?

+ + +

And, by the way, Mr. Boykin, we failed to hear from you in regard to the moon and earth problem. We didn't, by any chance, get a hard one for you, did we? Accept our apologies.

+ + +

And for this week's example: Draw a complete square, the size to be decided by the contestant, divide it into 16 equal parts. Use the numbers 1 to 16, one figure in each one of the squares, and arrange them so that after added, up and down, across and diagonally, each row will total 34. You may have the rest of the week in which to solve this one. Mr. Boykin is invited to participate.

We are told that Italy is contemplating withdrawing from the League of Nations. Seems as though the League is similar to our Eighteenth Amendment, slightly used. But, supposing she does withdraw, what of it?

+ + +

Disregarding Italy's contemplations, and reverting back to the world war: If the event Europe enters into another war, just remember that we have Lafayette paid up in full. So that's that. Well, it's a very poor subject, anyway.

+ + +

Over in London, England, a young bride of five years got tired of married life and decided to put an end to it. In fact she did just that—with the aid of her husband. Her devout husband agreed that she had been "a good girl," and signed the legal document, allotting her $25,000 a year the rest of her life. Oh, well, this bachelor's life isn't so tough after all, not to speak of the $25,000 yearly.

+ + +

And if you don't think Portales is on the map, just drop around Thanksgiving day and see the crowd that's going to be here to partake of the big free barbecue and to attend the big game between Portales high school Rams and the Clovis high school Wildcats. It's going to be fun, folks. Plenty fun. And to think of free barbecue. Sounds like a fairy story, but we've been informed and reinformed it's on the level.

Of course you are acquainted with our friend Jack Walker? Oh, Jack's a good boy, but there's no demand for good boys these days. And, in the fight Jack should lose a hand (either one) would merely be the removing of his figure of speech.

The question was put to us the other day: "Do you suppose Sitting Bull would have lived longer had he taken more exercise." And speaking of the more primitive days, some one adds philosophically, "the old fashioned girl used to stay at home when she had nothing to wear."

Alexander Kerensky, a Russian, living in Manhasset, N. Y., is married (or was married) to a Scotch girl. One day Mrs. Kerensky insisted that Alexander take a cold-water bath. Alexander refused, and in the ensuing argument, Alex struck his wife. She called the police and had him placed behind the bars. Now he's in hot water.

A famous Greek philosopher added that a bachelor is a man who would not take yes for an answer.

To Mr. Boyce: Lack of space prohibits us publishing your example this week. We'll try to make room for it in next week's issue. Sorry.

WILL BEGIN ON PUBLIC WORK

EXPECT TO GET UNDER WAY BY LAST OF WEEK; SIX PROJECTS CONSIDERED

The committee which went to Santa Fe last week for the public works program returned last Friday night and on Saturday morning a mass meeting was called at the court house to lay plans for this work.

The federal government asked that six projects be designated for this county, work which was to start on same by the last of this week.

It was also stressed the need of registrations for those who desire and needed this work, as funds would be based upon the number of applicants.

Committees were appointed to secure registrations of all who needed this work, and on Monday these committees drove to the outlying sections of the county to get the applications signed up.

This is strictly a relief program and will later be supplemented by other public works programs to take care of the farmers of the county who need drouth relief.

Another committee left Sunday for Santa Fe to meet with the federal officials on Wednesday of this week, to aid in speeding up this work.

This public work will put many thousands of dollars into circulation in this county and will give needed relief to many of the farmers of the county who have been hard hit for the last year or so.

Those who desire work on these projects and have not as yet signed their applications are urged to do so at once.

New Mexico U May Play U. of Mexico

The Lobos at the New Mexico University are all pepped over the fact that they have a chance to play the University of Mexico in Mexico City.

The university at Mexico City asked for a game during October, but this could not be arranged nor could the date of December 2, which they suggested but the date of December 16 has been offered to this school.

WORK FOR ALL SOON PROVIDED

In a short time work for all who need work will be provided under the public works program, each county which is to receive its allotment.

Roosevelt county projects are being submitted to the department and this is expected to be one of the first counties ready to start this work.

Every farmer in Roosevelt county, who has been hard hit by crop failures and other economic conditions, will be provided work to aid him in getting ready for another crop.

Texas Slim Rodeo Here This Week-end

Elsewhere in this issue will be found the advertisement of the big rodeo being staged by Texas Slim, Shorty Kelso and Sam Gee, in which Brahma cattle will be used. These cattle are from the herd of Mr. Black, old time rancher of this county.

The world's champion cowboy will take part in this rodeo, and three days of rodeo amusement will be supplied to the general public.

See advertisement for further details.

RAMS DEFEAT MELROSE BY A 20-0 DECISION

BALL WAS IN MELROSE TERRITORY DURING THE ENTIRE GAME

RAMS POWERFUL

BRIGGS SCORED IN FIRST 3 MINUTES OF PLAY ON LONG PASS

The Portales Rams defeated the Melrose Buffaloes by a decisive score of 20-0 in a game at Melrose last Friday afternoon.

The Rams scored on the third play after the kick-off on a pass from Taylor to Briggs. And again in the first half.

The ball was in Melrose territory during the entire game and the Portales goal line was never in great danger.

The Melrose aggregation is one of the strong teams of this territory, having defeated Ft. Sumner by a larger score than did the Rams when they played the Ft. Sumner eleven in their local field. This made the Melrose boys feel confident of a victory over the local gridsters.

Terrell, left halfback, was out most of the game from injuries received in the Institute game. The rest of the squad played almost the entire game with only two substitutions for Portales.

The Rams are playing much better than at first and will be in the peak of condition for the Clovis game here Thanksgiving day.

To Provide Funds to Finance Homes With Federal Aid

WASHINGTON, D. C. Nove. 22.—New funds for home financing will be provided for American citizens with the granting of 20 charters to federal savings and loan associations.

The federal home loan bank board, set up to furnish funds for home building, is patterned after the federal reserve system.

Each of the savings and loan associations will be members of the home loan system much as commercial banks are members of the reserve systems.

Associations have been formed in seven states, John H. Fahey, bank board chairman, said, and preliminary approval has been given to 86 more in 26 states.

Organizers for nelly created savings and loan banks in the following states include: Francis S. Mason, Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi and New Mexico.

IN APPEAL FOR LOWER TAXES

At a meeting of the New Mexico Cattle and Wool Growers association at Santa Fe on Monday of this week, that association asked the tax commission for a reduction of 25 per cent on all cattle.

The organization also asked that adult sheep be valued at $2.00 per head and sheep under one year old be valued at $1.50 per head, representing a 50 per cent reduction.

The association also asked a flat cut of 50 per cent on grazing lands.

NO POLITICS GETS GOVERNOR HOCKENHULL O. K.

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 22.—Expression by President Roosevelt that the civil works program must be kept out of politics today had the hearty endorsement of Gov. A. W. Hockenhull.

"In these trying times," the governor said, "we should put politics aside. We should put aside too the selfishness and other hindrances that are keeping us from working in a united effort."

GOVERNOR IN FAVOR OF PARK

SEEKS BIG RECREATIONAL SPOT WITH PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM

SANTA FE, Nov. 22.—Governor A. W. Hockenhull today announced he was trying to get a state park on the east side of New Mexico, primarily to provide immediate employment in the drouth stricken area for poverty stricken farmers.

Two hundred to 300 men could be put to work immediately under the civil workrs program just announced by the federal government, he said. Land probably could be obtained from the state, he said, and he is looking into that question now. About two section, 7,280 acres, would be required, he said.

The governor explained the northern counties had obtained their road work money, or were getting it forthwith, which was not true on the east side.

The park would be in Roosevelt or Curry county, on highway 60. It would not interfere with the Carlsbad caverns, he said, but rather would tend to increase number of visitors there by providing a rest spot on the way. The park idea is recreational and not scenic, he said.

The state game and fish department has offered to cooperate in in providing fish and game. The park would include a game preserve, some fishing waters, trees, shubbery, playgrounds for children picnic grounds, swimming and boating accommodations. There is an abundance of shallow water available a few feet down, the governor said.

"The farmers of that region need money," the governor said, "and they need it now. The drouth took them for everything they had. This park could get under way qiucker than roads, I believe, and I am pushing for it. Perhaps we can have both park and road projects going almost together. That depends on the federal government."

RAMS MEET WILDCATS ON LOCAL FIELD

WILDCATS HAVE BEEN UNOFFICIALLY PROCLAIMED STATE CHAMPIONS

TO CLOSE SEASON

WILDCATS ARE DOPED TO BEAT RAMS BY A LARGE SCORE ON THAT DAY

The Portales Rams will meet the Clovis Wildcats in the last game of their 1933 schedule here on Thanksgiving day. Although reputedly outclassed, the Rams will go into the game confident of a victory.

The Rams started the 1933 football season with only four of last year's letter men, Terrell, Briggs, Burke and Gregory, the rest of the squad are first year men. They began the season show with little power, but have gained in strength beyond expectation. They will start the Clovis game with eleven seasoned veterans who are familiar with every technicality of the football sport.

The Wildcats opened the season with almost all of the team's veterans of previous years, and have played brilliant football all season, defeating every team they have met, including Hereford, Roswell, Artesia, Tucumcari and Deming, and they have already been proclaimed the high school State Champions by the Clovis Evening News Journal.

The Rams will start the Battle with the entire squad in good condition. Much interest is being manifest, and a large crowd is expected out the witness the game.

CHURCH OF CHRIST

Bible Study at 10 a. m.

CHAVEZ WINS ELECTION AS NATIONAL COMMITTEEMAN; SWOPE VOTED CONFIDENCE

Congressmen Elected 103-21 in Santa Fe Meeting

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 22.—Congressman Dennis Chavez today was elected democratic national committeeman from Ne Mexico to succeed the late Gov. Arthur Seligman.

The congressman's election by a vote of 103 to 21 was made by the democratic state central committee meeting here today. His only opponents were George Cook of Socorro, N. M., and Robert W. Isaacs of Clayton.

Election of Chavez was received with considerable applause and shouting by the committee members.

Chavez was placed in nomination by Mrs. Jennie Kirby, and his name was warmly received by the committee members. Cook was nominated by Meliton Torres of Socorro.

Just before the roll call was completed and the vote announced Union county changed its vote from Isaacs to Chavez, giving the congressman 103 votes to his opponent's 21.

Isaacs Nominated

Robert W. Isaacs of Clayton was nominated by the Union county delegation, the only delegation to vote for him, but in the din of the Chavez supporters it escaped all but those close to the group.

J. R. Gallegos, auditor in the state comptroller's office and a brother-in-law of Congressman Chavez, was interpreter for Meliton Torres of Socorro, who nominated Cook.

Juan C. Jaramillo spoke for Mr. Cook.

Swope Gets Vote

State Chairman Ed Swope was given a rising vote of confidence by the state central committee.

The vote for committeeman (Cook only with balance to Chavez was Bernalillo [illegible] 4, Mora 2, Sandoval 2, Santa Fe 1, Sierra 1, Socorro 4, Torrance 1 and Union

GRAN' BYRN DIES IN AMARILLO

Mrs. W. H. Byrn, known to her Potrales friends as Gran' Byrn, passed away at the home of her daughter Mrs. B. O. Tolletson in Amarillo, Texas, at noon Monday.

Mrs. H. W. Stewart, her daughter, left at 4 o'clock the same day to attend the funeral. Mrs. Stewart had been in Amarillo with her and had only returned a few days before for a little rest.

Mrs. Byrn had had a stroke of paralysis and was unconscious for some time before her death.

Mrs. Byrn was born, Ella B. Jones at Hazelhurst, Miss. She was married to J. H. Shaw November 11, 1880. Two girls, Mrs. H. W. Stewart and another daughter, who preceded her mother, when she was only 20 years of age.

She was married to W. H. Byrn September 20, 1888. One girl, Mrs. B. O. Tolletson, was born to this union. Gran' Byrn as she was affectionately called, leaves to mourn her passing two daughters, three grand children and three great-grandchildren.

REV. SCOGGINS PREACHES AT LOCAL CHURCH

Rev. Scoggins, the new Presiding Elder of the newly organized Clovis district preached at the local Methodist church Sunday evening.

His subject was the "Golden Rule," and he showed how it could be applied in a practical manner.

After the sermon the first quarterly conference of the local church was held.

Rev. and Mrs. Scoggins will be at home in the district parsonage at Clovis.

Gov. A. W. Hockenhull in a talk to the meeting asked for continued cooperation and called for party harmony.

PORTALES TO BE HOST ON NOV 30

OPEN HOUSE OF EASTERN N. M. NORMAL ATTRACTING WIDE INTEREST

The Thanksgiving celebration, when the Board of Regents and the Portales Chamber of Commerce will hold open house at the Normal School building is attracting state wide interest.

Arrangements have been made to entertain thousands of people on this day with an interesting program and a big free barbecue.

Ten beeves have been arranged for, and everything completed to handle this large crowd in an efficient way. The program will start at 10:30 in the morning and be completed by the noon hour, when barbecued beef and coffee will be served to all.

A feature for the afternoon is the annual football game between Portales and Clovis. The game this year is of special importance, as in the past six years, Portales has won three games and Clovis three games.

Many prominent citizens of the state have been invited to this celebration and a short speaking program will be given, with music furnished by the Portales and Clovis school bands.

George Wilson, the Indian singer will be on the program and give several numbers. Mr. Wilson is a singer of note and this alone is sufficient attraction to p[illegible] you for coming.

The business houses of Portales will be closed all day and the merchants will join in this celebration and do all in their power to make the day a pleasant one for all visitors.

You will have the opportunity to inspect the building and furnishings of the Normal School, which is one of the most complete educational buildings in the state.

Gov. Hockenhull Accepts Invitation for Thanksgiving

Governor Hockenhull has accepted the invitation of the Portales Chamber of Commerce and the Board of Regents of the Eastern New Mexico Normal school to be here on Thanksgiving and deliver an address.

Senator Hatch has promised to be here if he is not called back to Washington before that date. Congressman Dennis Chavez and Senator Bronson Cutting hase been invited to participate in the gala Thanksgiving celebration. Also Former Gov. R. C. Dillon has been asked to attend.

Dr. J. F. Zimmermen, president of the New Mexico university has also been invited, together with with many other prominent state officials.

The program committee is busy outlining the program for the day, and committees for grounds and caring for the crowd have been appointed.

The Portales Woman's club will supervise the serving of the barbecue, assisted by a number of young ladies from the Potrales high school.

Every arrangement is being made to make this day one of real pleasure and Thanksgiving.

YOUR OLD MAGAZINES

Everyone having old magazines they do not want please phone Mrs. Chester Hobbs at the city hall today or Friday, or else put your magazines on the front porch and they will be collected by the Junior Woman's club Saturday, to be distributed in the country to those who do not have magazines.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Freeman were in Clovis on business Tuesday.

Nearly All of Beeves Donated

Arrangements for the big barbecue on Thanksgiving day are about completed. Beeves have been contributed zy Dr. E. T. Hensley, John Plummer, J. H. Bond, J. G. Greaves, J. B. H. Young, C. M. Compton, Geo. Littlefield, and a fat lamb by P. E. Jordan.

The arrangements have been made to serve from long tables by the Woman's club, assisted by a number of young ladies. Paper plates will be used, and the beef, roast sweet potatoes, pickles, coffee and bread will be served.

Four lines will be served at once to enable the crowd to be handled in the shortest possible time.

A loud speaker will be used in the program so that all can hear without difficulty.

In the Thanksgiving issue will be published the names of all who contributed to the expense of the celebration, as they are still coming in and the list is incomplete at this time.

Two more beeves are needed, and these will possibly be contributed before the week ends.

Grounds committee: H. E. Taylor, Chas. Ison, Graham Ribble and Mr. Irvin.

Program committee: Coe Howard F. D. Golden, E. T. Hensley, Jr., J. G. Greaves, A. D. Ribble, C. M. Compton and Mrs. J. G. Greaves.

News to Publish On Wednesday of Next Week

Next week The News will publish on Wednesday so that the entire force may be at liberty to take part in the Thanksgiving celebration.

In order to do this it will be necessary for the advertisers to cooperate and have their copy ready not later than Tuesday noon.

All correspondents are requested to have their copy in this office by noon Tuesday, and all news items must be in early.

Publishing a day ahead so that the paper may be distributed before Thanksgiving, has long been a custom of The News and while it taxes the ability of the mechanical force it can be done with a little cooperation on the part of the public.

Help us make the Thanksgiving issue a worth-while paper.

American Legion to Hold Charity Dance

They have secured the Clyde Damph six-piece orchestra of Amarillo, Texas, for the occasion.

This follows the big Thanksgiving celebration and barbecue.

NOTICE TO MERCHANTS

In our Thanksgiving issue, which will be published on Wednesday of next week, there will be a double page spread boosting the Portales Rams for the Thanksgiving game and the Normal celebration.

All merchants are invited to carry a space in this spread, and help encourage the home team.

If our solicitor has not seen you call 83 and a representative will call on you.

Portales Valley News.

Col. Albert T. Woods and son, Sidney, of Artesia were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Coe Howard Wednesday and Thursday. Mr. Howard, Mr. Woods, and son, spent the day in Amarillo Thursday.

Portales to Decorate for Christmas Holidays Week After Thanksgiving

The week following Thanksgiving Portales will decorate for the Christmas holidays.

Plans of the decoration have not been completed, but it will either be a large Christmas tree on each corner of the square, or the trees that are now on the square will be lighted up with colored lights.

Plans are also for a large star to be placed on the court house and streamers of colored lights to run to the four points of the lawn.

These decorations are sponsored by the Portales Chamber of Commerce and will beautify the town and lend to the Christmas spirit.

The committee will have completed arrangements for the decorations by the last of next week.

Portales Chamber of Commerce To Entertain Rams at Luncheon

On Tuesday of next week the Portales Chamber of Commerce will entertain the football team and coaches at luncheon, as has been the custom for a number of years.

The Chamber of Commerce as well as all citizens of Portales are backing the Rams, and predict a victory for them on Thanksgiving day.

VENISON DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Yoachum were at home Wednesday evening of last week to Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Brough and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Stinnett at a most delicious venison dinner. After dinner the time was pleasantly spent playing bridge.

NORMAL OPENING REQUIRES HOUSING OF STUDENTS

With the opening of the Eastern New Mexico Normal School next summer, Portales is facing a condition that is serious. There will be many students, who will require housing accommodations, and now is the time to plan such buildings.

There is a good opportunity for the foresighted citizen, who builds a modern boardingn house for students, convenient to the Normal School.

There is no better time to build than now, when building supplies and labor are cheaper than they ever will be again.

Portales should see to it that there is ample accommodations for students coming here to attend the Normal School.

PORTALES TO BE HOST THANKSGIVING DAY

The big Thanksgiving celebration is a splendid move for Portales. On this day the Board of Regents of the Eastern New Mexico Normal School will hold open house to the public, not only of Roosevelt County but of the entire state.

Ten beeves will be barbecued and coffee will be served to all visitors.

The Normal school is now equipped and in shape for the opening which is planned for next June.

There is no educational building in the state better appointed than this one, and Portales is proud to show this building to the many thousands who will be here on that day.

The school will open with full attendance, all the present building can take care of.

The faculty will soon be selected, and work begun for the opening of the summer term.

This school owns over 100,000 acres of land,s some in the heart of New Mexico's best oil field, and money from these lands will go far in supporting the school.

Portales invites everyone to attend this Thanksgiving celebration, and assures all a good time.

In the afternoon the Clovis-Portales annual football game will be played, and after inspecting the normal building visitors will have the opportunity of attending this game.

Everything is free with the exception of the football game, the usual admission, of which will be charged.

FARM LOAN RELIEF

If the farmers of Roosevelt county are to receive any relief from the Federal Land bank, they must get together and establish a value on their lands.

One can readily see that a loan would not be considered in excess of the value that you place on your land, and the loan value would not exceed 33 1-3 per cent of the value placed.

To secure a loan of $10.00 per acre the land should be valued at $30.00 per acre.

Then again when your lands are valued according to production you will value them more and take better care of them.

Lands valued from $20.00 to $40.00 per acre are more attractive to land buyers than $3.00 and $5.00 lands.

The first step to get fair loan values is to place a fair value on the lands, and see that the local appraisers place a fair value on them.

Then when the Federal Land bank appraisers come they can make a cut to save their face and you still receive loan sufficient to retire your debts.

Say that you only need a loan of $3.00 per acre.

If in your application your land is valued at $25.00, this makes a better loan, and you need not ask for more than you need, thereby holding down your indebtedness.

Every farm loan association in this county should get together and place fair valuations on the farming lands of this county.

It is true that Mr. Fields, the head of the Federal Land bank of Wichita, Kansas, has conducted his bank in an autocratic manner and given little consideration to the farmers of New Mexico. The farmers themselves can remove this Mr. Fields, around the first of the year, and put this bank back to a service of the people, the intent for which it was organized.

REFORESTATION IN ROOSEVELT COUNTY

In the early days of the county, a large tract of land in the Black Water Draw, through the efforts of J. A. Fairley, was set aside as forest reserves.

Mr. Fairley had a dream of seeing this land planted to trees, and creating an immense forest. Later this land was withdrawn from the forest reserve and opened to homestead.

This was a serious mistake, as had this been planted in black locust, it would have been returning a good profit to the government at this time.

Government lands are scarce in this county, but it is not too late to have all tracts in the shallow water belt placed in the forest reserve and planted to trees.

Planted in Black Locust, these lands would within five years produce in posts from $50 to $100 per acre.

Such a project would help give employment to a number of men and boys, and come under the reforestation finances.

This is a matter that our Chamber of Commerce, County Commissioners and all civic organizations should get behind.

AN EASTERN NEW MEXICO PARK

Governor Hockenhull is in hearty sympathy with the establishing of an Eastern New Mexico park and recreational center on the Portales-Clovis highway.

This section, in which an abundance of shallow water can be found will make possible the establishment of a lake for boating and swimming.

Such a park in this section of the state will be of untold advantage to both Clovis and Portales, and will be the means of giving employment to many that are in need.

The governor is to be congratulated on his vision of the future of this section of the state, and The News trusts that work will begin on this project before the year passes into history.

SOCIAL ANNEX

By THE BOSS

For the past two weeks the News office has been appropriated by the ladies working on the Red Cross Roll Call.

Nothing fair about it unless they give one-half of all funds received for office rent.

All in favor of this say Aye.

The lady who left sack of candy week, can get the sack by calling for same.

Folks, it will soon be Santa Claus time.

Have you planned to make some unfortunate happy on Christmas?

It is more blessed to give than receive.

A little Christmas cheer for some unfortunate child will strengthen its belief in God and humanity.

By so doing your Christmas dinner will have an added flavor.

Quail season will soon be a thing of the past and these little birds will again have a chance for their life.

The closing of the season on December 10 is a Christmas gift for these birdies.

So far no duck hunter has produced a good hunting story for the News, accompanied by substantial evidence.

Boy Scout News

Eastern New Mexico Area Council Boy Scouts of America

On Friday, November 24, the Eastern New Mexico area council will hold its Tenth Annual meeting at the Woman's Club at Roswell, New Mexico, beginning with registration at 1:30 p. m. and closing with a banquet starting at 6:00 p. m.

As a Scouter who has contributed a great deal to the movement we are especially desirous of having you present. Also, the ladies will be more than welcome and we extend to them a most cordial invitation.

There will be a number of very entertaining and inspirational features on the program which I am sure all of us will enjoy. These will include special music, scout demonstrations and perhaps an address or two. In addition to this we will have some very important matters of vital interest to all of those interested in the welfare of our boys and our respective communities.

Please turn to your calendar now and set this date aside and make your plans to attend this meeting where you will meet men from all over Eastern New Mexico and part of Texas who, like you, are interested in the Boy Scout movement. I am looking forward to seeing you at this meeting.

Sincerely yours for more and better Scouts,

P. V. THORSON,
Executive.

RICHLAND HOME MAKERS CLUB HOLD MEETING

One of the most successful meetings of the year was enjoyed by the Richland Home Makers club Thursday, November 16.

We met in the home of Mrs. Boyd Rice, our president. A pleasant social hour was enjoyed before the delicious lunch, served at noon.

During the business meeting, plans were made for many worthwhile projects for the coming year. One of these plans is to improve the cemetery with the help of the entire community.

The club also plans to help the school in various ways.

We drew names for Christmas gift exchanging. No gift to cost more than 25 cents.

The next meeting will be Thursday, December 21, in the form of a Christmas party, an all-day meeting. Our hostess will be Mrs. Dee Broyles.

John Crabtree of Ft. Sumner came by Portales Friday and visited a few hours with Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Voyles. They are old friends and enjoyed the visit very much.

W. W. King and his sales organization attended the district sales meeting in Clovis Thursday evening.

Buy Seed Now for Spring Planting

The last few weeks have been exceptionally favorable for harvesting the certified seed crop of New Mexico says G. R. Quenesberry of the New Mexico State College. No frosts came until all certified seed were well matured and dry, and there was little mositure. Growers are now attempting to sell their seed at much below the average prices they have received for the last four or five years, hoping to cash in now instead of holding until spring. This seems to indicate higher spring prices for the smaller stocks unless farmers generally lay in a supply now.

The finance companies are taking up a considerable quantity of the best early matured pure Acala seed for distribution to their growers next spring. Every cotton farmer has an opportunity to buy better certified seed than ever before and should do so. Some of the best fields are not only making a good yield, but getting a turnout of from 41 per cent to 42 per cent of 1 1-8 inch lint. By looking to these Acala fields for a supply of planting seed and buying it early, there should be no excuse for a poor stand or poor quality cotton in 1934.

Some farmers in the southern part of the state have begun the placing of their orders for seed potatoes and have had certified early seed delivered and stored locally for their March planting. They are using largely Triumphs and Cobblers from the Tres Piedras area.

The movement of certified sorghums, alfalfa and such crops has been much slower but the quality of seed is superior to the recent previous crops.

The certified corn seed crop is now being harvested. It is mature, dry and of high quality.

Savory Meat Has Appetite Appeal

The flavor of meat, if properly cooked, has a strong appeal to most appetites says Miss Veda Strong of the New Mexico State College. A good cook, therefore, must know how to buy meat and how to cook and serve it in a variety of appetizing ways.

A rule for meat cookery, is, 'Know 'your meat cuts and how to cook and serve them according to the cut." Some cuts are tender, some are less tender, dependingn upon the location on the animal. In a beef side, both knids are found; the tender cuts are the loin and rib, the less tender cuts are the chuck, rump and round, which have more connective tissue.

If you want to conserve food value and give your meat the best flavor or "appetite appeal" cook tender cuts either by roasting or broiling. The less tender cuts should be cooked by braising, or some other method of long, slow cooking in a covered utensil that holds in the steam and softens the connective tissue.

PUBLIC HEALTH

SEAL SALE

The New Mexico Tuberculosis Association has for its major project in 1934 a survey of the health needs of this state, with special reference to tubcrculosis. This will involve examinations to find out how many people, and especially children, are infected with tuberculosis. Clearly it will not be possible to examine every individual in the state. Samples must be taken which truly represent every element in the state and our conclusions must be based on a study of these samples.

Understanding this situation the people in some communities are asking already: if we contribute to the Christmas seal sale, and through it to the survey, will the money be spent in our community.

Most communities will receive much more than they contribute, because services are being contributed to the survey by three national organizations from national funds. The director of the survey, Dr. Carl Buck of New York, will do his best to see that some work is done in each community. If any community should not be a part of the sample they can at least be sure that the benefits to public health from this survey will be state wide. Thus, if it is shown that provision should be made for the care of indigent tuberculosis patients, with facts so indisputable that the next legislature will agree to make that provision, then clearly every community in the state will benefit. In matters of public health no community can live entirely to itself—the health of one is the safety of its neighbor.

AMEBIC DYSENTERY

Amebic dysentery used to be considered a disease peculiar to the tropics, but we now know that it may occur wherever people infected with the ameba travel. In New Mexico it has been found in Taos county.

Recently an outbreak of this disease has been discovered in several hotels and eating places in Chicago. Doctor Bundesen, the health officer of that city, informs us that he has records of cases that have carried the infection to many parts of the United States. Since the disease is a rare one it has not always been recognized and some patients have been operated upon for appendicitis or treated for ulcerative colitis.

Amebic dysentery is a notifiable disease in this state and any cases found in New Mexico will be reported through the regular channels. However, the state bureau of public health is especially anxious to trace any cases that may be due to infection incurred recently in Chicago. Such cases, or cases which are suspected to be dysentery, in individuals who may have come recently from Chicago should be reported immediately to the state bureau of public health at Santa Fe.

To bring out that savory flavor of meat, enough heat to brown the outside should be applied at some time during the cooking process. Tender cuts, with a good covering of fat on the outside are best if browned first, very quickly, then the temperature reduced to a moderate heat to finish the cooking.

The experts who have been working on meat cookery will tell you to cook all tender cuts in an open pan with no water added. An open roasting pan with a rack is best for all tender roasts of beef, lamb and pork with a good covering of fat. The rack holds the meat off the hot pan, so that the bottom doesn't overcook. As for panbroiling beefsteaks and lamb chops the same rules apply. Use a heavy skillet. Never put a lid over them. Never add a drop of water. Use a high temperature first for browning, then finish cooking at a moderate temperature.

Plant Bulbs in Fall To Bloom in Spring

Fall planted bulbs normally produce the best spring flowers, says H. C. Stewart of the New Mexico State college. This is because fall planted bulbs have more time in which to develop a root system. Bulbs intended for spring flowers should be planted from September 1 to December 1. The large bulbs should be planted to produce the best cut flowers.

Planting may be done in rows or in masses, according to the taste of the gardener. They may be planted in full sun but partial shade will be good in the warmer parts of the state. A well drained, sandy loam is best, but good results may be had with the heavier types, if worked deeply and well supplied with decayed vegetable matter.

The depth of planting varies with the bulb. Most of the hardy ones should be set in the ground four to six inches, or at least one and one-half times the thickness of the bulb. In localities where the dirt frosts in winter, the top growth is wisely retarded by nature, giving the bulbs an opportunity to produce to a good orot system.

In Southern New Mexico, deep planting will substitute for ground freezing, keeping the bulbs cool and encouraging root development. As the ground freezes deeply, mulch with leaves or straw. Three or four inches of this material should prevent alternate freezing and thawing, which is not good for the bulbs. The mulch had best be applied after the ground freezes.

A worthwhile selection of bulbs should have tulips, hyacinths, freesias, narcissi and a few lilies. There are many kinds of these beautiful flowers, such as Darwin, Cottage and Breeder tulips; exhibition, garden and Dutch-Roman hyacinths. Bulbs are not usually expensive, and produce some of the cheapest and prettiest flowers that can be grown around the home.

A. J. Whiting of Clovis, district manager of the New Mexico Utility company, visited the local office Friday.

ROGERS HOME MAKERS CLUB

Rogers Home Makers club met with Mrs. J. W. Thompson Thursday, November 16 in an all-day meeting.

Each member took a covered dish and a delicious dinner was served at noon.

Mrs. Edith Martin had a box of Christmas toys suitable to be made from a scrap bag on display.

There were eight members present and one visitor.

The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Gene Blakely on December 7, in another all-day meeting. There will be an array of Christmas gifts on that day. The ladies are very much enthused over their club, and hope to have Mrs. Martin with them again at the next meeting.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Little Miss Tina Mae Keller with the help of 17 of her friends, celebrated her fifth birthday at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Keller, Friday afternoon. Miss Lena Keller and Miss Thelma O'Dell conducted the games.

Pink and green was the motif carried out on the long table at which the guests were invited to sit and upon which the lovely birthday cake with its candles was the center of attraction.

The following were the guests.: Arthur Ann Brown, Donald Brooks Sonny O'Dell, Lavetta Jones, Ruth Ann Craddock, Junior Hatch, Bobbie Kent Saunders, Dorothy Lane Saunders, Eybil June Stool, Julia Ann Steiner, Jack Gordon Lorts, Billy Jo George, Dorothy Kenyon, Vance Tow, Malveta Barnett, Darrell Bazemore, Kathleen Ison.

W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank Galloway. The following officers were elected:

Mrs. Frank Galloway, president.
Mrs. Henry Carr, vice-president.
Mrs. J. B. Raymond, secretary and treasurer.
Mrs. Fred L. Ohr, superintendent of Bible School.
W. F. Craddock, medal contest superintendent.
Mrs. Lorts and Mrs. C. R. Nelson, program.
Mrs. W. H. Catt, jublicity.

Mrs. Galloway conducted the meeting. For her scripture lesson she read the 6th chapters of Matthew.

Mrs. Catt and Mrs. J. N. McMinn assisted Mrs. Galloway with the program. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. C. R. Nelson on December 15.

CHRISTIAN LADIES' AID

The Christian Ladies Aid met Thursday at the home of Mrs. W. B. Jones. Her daughters, Mrs. W. B. McCombs of Lone Wolf and Mrs. Bob Crosby of Roswell assisted their mother as hostess. Mrs. Joe Cooper of Kenna was a special guest, being an old friend of the family. There were 30 present at this interesting meeting.

Mrs. Claude A. Lorts was leader. She was assisted by Mrs. J. J. Spires, Mrs. E. C. Luna, Mrs. J. W. Clem, Mrs. W. H. Catt and Mrs. V. O. Beck.

Rev. Lorts summarized the lesson. Mrs. Jones assisted by her daughters, served a delicious plate lunch.

"MADAME MAJESTY"

The play was one of the best put on by local talent in years, each part being played up to the expectations of the audience. In fact each player was a star, there being no weak places.

The play was put on by the Finance committee of the Woman's club, Mrs. J. C. Compton being chairman. Mrs. K. J. Brough a member of the club coached the play.

The characters were: Mrs. Carl Yoachum, Mrs. Sidney Stone, Miss Monte Creek, Miss Ruby Hatch, Miss Elsie Parnell, Miss Mildred Lyons, Messrs. Jay Thompson, Eurith Compton, Earl Stratton, Green Kerr, Clarence Kirksey.

The vocal numbers by Green Kerr and Eurith Compton with Mrs. Taylor McCasland at the piano were also especially good.

The entire cast was the guest of the Finance committee and Mr. and Mrs. Brough at the Brough home for dinner at the close of the play.

All circles of the B. W. M. S. meet in the monthly business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. J. J. Phillips with the Dosier circle as hostess. A number of important matters will be taken up.

R. L. Young, vocational agriculture teacher in high school, took Albert Woodburn, Arnold Bettenger, Jim Robinson, David Jones, and Brice Pinnely to Lubbock Saturday to practice judging stock. These boys will enter in the stock judging contest to be held in Clovis soon.

The schools of Portales will be dismissed from December 22 to January 2, for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones B. Smith, and Clark Foster were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorace Disney Sunday.

Mrs. Roy Morris of Clovis was in Portales Friday and Saturday visiting friends and relatives.

Smelly Skunk American Animal That Has No Fear

What is the most fearless American animal . . . mountain lion, grizzly bear?

Whether it is fearlessness or just unmitigated gall, many farmers and woodsmen concede the skunk a "strong" reason for being accorded that distinction. The odor of burnt coffee which the animal has the knack of disseminating is declared to inspire the beast with a degree of self-confidence which would not deter it from facing much larger—but perhaps not so fearsome—carnivorous animals.

It is this inherent fearlessness of the skunk which, authorities claim, render the wood pussy so indifferent to human habitations when it is hungry for poultry and eggs. The skunk makes no bones about establishing its den under a dwelling house or barn if food in the wild is less plentiful than around the barnyard.

As to the skunk's activities in game covers, the More Game Birds foundation in its recent booklet, "More Game Birds by Controlling Their Natural Enemies," declares it is particularly destructive to the eggs of ground nesting birds. For the farmer or sportsman who reduce the number of skunks by trapping, a significant bait, rotten eggs, is recommended.

The vile fluid, which is the skunk's unenvied means of defense, will cause severe inflammation of the eyes, and cases are cited of Indians who have lost their sight from this cause.

Dolls Once Figured as Objects of Fear, Hate

Dolls, which are today the best-loved toys of little girls, were once objects of fear or hate. They figured in strange rites of black magic and were specially cherished by women. They were used to terrify and cast spells upon rivals, enemies or unfortunate husbands. After certain "magical" ceremonies, it was thought that whatever was then done to the dolls would be felt by the man or woman it resembled. Sometimes the doll was placed before a fire and allowed slowly to melt. As it melted the bewitched person was supposed to die of fear.

According to a distinguished German scholar, during the late Stone age every family needed these idols to keep off evils, and manufacturing them became an industry. During excavation work archeologists have found doll-sized idols made from all sorts of materials, from stone to terra-cotta, tin and bronze. Some were cut out of sheet-tin and look much like modern tin soldiers. In early Asia and Egypt the tombs of important people were filled with quite a population of doll figures. These acted as substitutes for the usual wholesale human sacrifices. In other places it was the custom for a bride to sacrifice her dolls to the goddess Diana just before the wedding.

W. W. King and his sales organization attended the district sales meeting in Clovis Thursday evening.

Go Out and Get It

JOAN VERNE closed her shorthand note book and looked across the smooth expanse of the glass-top desk at the harassed middle-aged executive at the other side.

"Business seems to be picking up, Mr. Walker. How about a raise?"

Mr. Walker said the usual thing. Profits were increasing; so were expenses. No chance of real improvement without continued economy. Besides, she wasn't worth a cent more than she got.

Joan looked bored, thought a moment, and then asked him if it would be putting him in a jam if she left that afternoon.

"Why, you couldn't possibly do that!" he said. "You're the only person beside myself who knows about that deal in Pittsburgh. You must be crazy. I'd be out hundreds of dollars if you should leave me new. There's a law against such a thing."

"Maybe so," she said, "but there's nothing to stop me from having a nervous breakdown or something, and never coming back. Except, possibly, seven dollars more a week."

"Make it four," he said.

"Split the difference, and make it five-fifty."

"Oh, all right."

"Thank you very much, Mr. Walker," she said in her most business-like manner.

Joan was a favorite at the beauty parlor, not because of her docile approval of everything that Maggie and Maurice and Olga did, but because of her insistence on perfect work.

"You are the loveliest woman in the world," Stanley Jones told her when she met him in the lobby of the Smith-Bradly. "Absolutely, you are the loveliest woman in the world," he told her again as they sat down at their table in the roof garden dining room. "Don't you know that you are gorgeous?"

"But I'm just a very ordinary sort of person," she said. "Just like thousands of other stenographers working to make an honest living in a big city."

"But you could do a great deal better than that if you only knew it. With your wonderful personality and intelligence. You don't half appreciate yourself. I don't believe you get a cent more than my own stenographer. And you're worth infinitely more to any man. You wouldn't even ask for a raise, I suppose, you shy little girl. With your personality and intelligence and charm, there would be no limit to what you could do. But the trouble is other people take advantage of you. What you should do is make up your mind what you want and then go out and get it, the same way other people do without half your ability."

"I don't like to be scolded," Joan told him. "I wish you'd say something nice."

"But, Joan, I've told you how—how adorable you are. I've said all the nice things I dare. You're the most wonderful woman I ever knew. You're positively glamorous."

"But I'm really not a bit glamorous," she said. "And the only time I ever pretend I am is when I'm with you. I never attract attention."

"But you could if you wanted to," he said, "if you wanted to doll up and use make-up and spend money on beauty parlors as other girls do. You know I've often wondered why you never used rouge or any of the other kinds of war paint."

"Oh, you're scolding me again," Joan told him. "First, because I didn't ask for a raise, and second because I don't go to beauty parlors."

"It's all part of the same scold," Stanley said. "It's a fault that makes me love you all the more."

"But you just said you wanted me to doll up and go to beauty parlors."

"Not for my sake," he said. "Only for your own sake, to give you more confidence, and to make you seem as utterly lovely to yourself as you always do to me—so that other people would realize, and you'd know they realized, how charming you are."

"Perhaps I will sometime," said Joan. "Only men are likely to misunderstand a girl's motives."

"And that," said Stanley, "was precisely the sort of thing you would say. But don't you see, if you dolled up, they couldn't. Because with your exquisite taste, it wouldn't be obvious. They'd never even suspect it. Will you do it sometime for my sake?"

"Sometime," she said.

"The sometime will be when you have consented to be my wife," he said.

"And you won't ever tell me that I ought to make up my mind what I want and then go out and get it—as you told me I ought to ask for a raise?"

"No, Joan," he said. "Because if you'd ever gone out after things there would never have been a chance of persuading you to marry me."

Farm Notes

Peanuts

Some of the peanut roasters have been going almost day and night the last few days. One has run day and night.

amount of peanuts that were roasted in Portales the last two weeks. However, one firm roasted 24,000 pounds week before last and 38,000 pounds last week.

Most of the hauling is done by trucks. The truckers act as a salesman, also. The principal states named where the peanuts are beshipped are Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Colorado, Arizona, and California.

Some think that the price will hold up. There is ready sale for all that are roasted at the present time.

Broomcorn

Bromcorn is proving to be one of the leading money crops of this county this year. In fact the farmers on the streets speak of it and cotton as the money crops for the year.

J. W. Maupin has handled a considerable amount this season. He thinks that the grade of corn has been fair. Some of the farmers have had to take considerable dock on account of bailing the corn too wet.

Maupin stated that he had some corn in his yard that could not be shipped for two weeks on account of being too wet.

Frank Shaw has not purchased his broom corn for his factory yet. However, he has handled a considerable volume of corn for other concerns.

B. F. Newman has his potatoes in the house for winter. He states that his peanuts turned out fair.

H. A. Morirson thinks that his crop could have been considerable more this year. The broom corn is fair. He made plenty of feed.

Roy Terril of the Rogers community was in Portales the first of the week. He seemed to be in better spirits than he was the first of July.

Lindsey Haragan of the Floyd community was among the hunters that got his buck on his deer hunt this season. He stated that he had been planning to go deer hunting for a long time and this year he got off.

J. W. Terry is not as well satisfied with his yield of Irish potatoes as he might have been. However, he is not complaining about the yield of his other crops.

R. A. Adams of the Rogers community was in Portales Saturday afternoon with a load of cat fish that he raised in a surface lake. These fish were about ten and eleven inches long on an average. They had as good a flavor as fish caught out of a running stream.

Adams stated that he planted the fish some time in July. He fed them bread, clabber and rice.

Several of the Portales people had a good mess of cat fish that were caught by means of "the silver hook" and were not out as much money as they would have been for gasoline to get to a fishing hole.

Miss Ruth Wheeler has been substituting in the grade school this week in order that the teachers might visit other classrooms.

County Commissioners D. A. Gordon, Tom Haslip and R. L. Allen, A. E. Hunt, C. J. Sparks, Mrs. Paul Morrison and Mrs. Esther Clevenger left Tuesday morning for Santa Fe to meet with the drouth relief officials.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere appreciation to our friends and neighbors for their sympathy in the death of our wife and mother, Mrs. M. J. Jessie.

ROGERS

Who's Who in the Rogers Faculty.

Miss Vesta Brannen, third and fourth grades:

Miss Brannen was born in Blum, Texas. Her pre-school life was spent in the western part of the states of Texas since her father was a traveling salesman with his headquarters located at El Paso. Later she moved to Central Texas where she started her school career. After her first year of school the family returned to Blum, where she completed her grammer school education.

After the completion of grammar school work Miss Brannen entered a high school in West Texas, and at the end of her third year in high school she was granted a teachers certificate and began her teaching career at Afton, Texas, at the early age of 15. She later finished her high school work and entered an exclusive girls school in Dallas where she received special training in dramatics and speech. Miss Brannen also did work at Texas Tech at Lubbock, Montezuma college and Las Vegas Normal university, at Las Vegas, New Mexico.

Miss Brannen first taught at Rogers in 1929-30, was absent from the state four years and is now employed as a member of the Rogers faculty.

Mrs. Carl Allison, primary department:

Mrs. Allison, the first daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Brashears, was born at Los Angeles, Cal., December 14, 1905. Her parents moved to New Mexico while she was a small child, and later settled in the Inez community where Mrs. Allison received the first eight years of her education. After completing her elementary education she entered high school at Portales, New Mexico, from which she was graduated with the class of '24. After the completion of her high school education she attended college at Eugene, Oregon, and at the University of Oregon. She has also done work at the New Mexico Normal university. Her work included a major in education and a minor in music.

Mrs. Allison was married to Carl W. Allison, of Missouri, in May of 1931 at which time he was employed as a member of the faculty of the Clovis schools and who is now a member of the Rogers faculty.

This is Mrs. Allison's seventh year teaching all of which has been done in Roosevelt county. She is teaching her third year in the primary department at Rogers.

State Furniture Purchased

A set of wicker furniture, consisting of a divan, two chairs, and a flower stand has recently been purchased by Mr. Gordon for use in school plays. At the beginning of the school year a plan proposed by Mr. Gordon, was adopted by all classes, which would enable the classes to pay for the furniture and consequntly donate that much to their school.

The plan adopted was for the Senior class to give 50 per cent, the junior class to give 50 per cent, the sophomore class to give 75 per cent, and the freshmen to give 100 per cent from the proceeds of their respective plays to be applied toward payment of the furniture.

Heretofore all stage furniture used in school plays had to be borrowed and this plan will eliminate the necessity of borrowing at least in a large majority of plays.

When not in use on the stage the furniture makes us part of the equipment in the Home Economics department.

Freshman Class Play

The freshman play "Spooky Tavern" will be presented in the high school gymnasium Friday evening, November 24, at 7:30 p. m. Miss Vesta Brannen, dramatics instructor is in charge of the play.

The play in a thrilling mystery drama in three acts and begins when Joyce Wingate brings her younger sister and colored Mammy, Bedelia, out to gloomy old Mill Tavern on a stormy evening, with a view of buying it and turning it into a tea room, and renaming it Spooky Tavern. She is followed hither by two college mates who are rivals for her affections, and by a timid and stuttering freshman who has been sent here to spend the night as a part of his fraternity initiations. A ghost, woman, presumably the Spirit of Murderess prowls about, uttering blood-curdling screams. Excitement and thrill upon thrill, with a lavish sprinkling of laughs evoked by the nervous tremors of the superstitious Belelia and the ghost-ridden freshman. It is bound to delight an audience that likes it's mystery snappy and funny.

Lon Hacker, Roger Parks.
Ghost Woman, Maurine Givens.
Lucy Hacker, Berneita Hendrix.
Joyce Wingate, Jearldine Carter.
Florabel Wingate, Bonnie Killion.
Bedelia Wilma Depperman.
Ralph Channing, Burney Carter.
Terry Tanner, Hollis Fullerton.
Willis Worgle, Thomas Walker.
Blackie Simms, J. R. Guhl.
Farone, Paul Grant.

The funds from this play will be given entirely to pay on the new stage furniture.

The sophomores will furnish the amusement between acts, and the Hhythm band, conducted by Mrs. Allison, will make it's first appearance to a public audience on this night.

Vocational Agriculture Notes

The Rogers Vocational Agriculture class will enter a team in the district stock judging contest to be held at Clovis, Saturday, November 25.

Donald Gordon, superintendent and agricultural instructor said 9 boys would be entered in the district contest, which includes events in livestock, dairy, poultry, meat clutting, grain, shop, and public speaking. The team has not been picked as yet, since the outcome of this week's preliminary contests will largely determine the personnel of the teams.

The outcome of Saturday's contest at Clovis will largely influence Mr. Gordon in deciding whether he will enter a team in the state contest to be held at State College in December.

Comptition Keen for Basketeers

Because of a large number of experienced men, competition is proving very keen for places on the Rogers high school basketball quintet this season.

Those showing up strong for forwards are Odell Smith, Herman Clark, Cecil Dobbs and Lester Clark. All except Lester Clark are lettermen. Smith and H. Clark won their letters last year at Rogers and Cecil Dobbs at Dora. Lee Richards, also an experienced player, and a letterman of Dora's team last year is showing well at center. The main contenders for guards are Leo Terril, Everett Givens, Lynne Judah and Clyde Greathouse. Terril made guard on the all state team in 1931 and guard on the second all state team in 1933. Givens and Judah were also letter men last year, Givens having played on the Rogers team and Judah at Causey. This is Greathouse's first year but he is showing up well.

Bill Givens, Thurston Tollett, Foster Zimmerman, and Ted Clark are going to make competition even keener if they continued to improve with the season, as much as they have in the last few weeks.

Hard Work for the Eagles.

Coach Radcliff is now working with the basket ball squad in an attempt to perfect a series of plays. The boys are now scrimmaging each day and are expecting to play their first match game about Thanksgiving, since foot ball is not a major spotr of Rogers.

The team is a little weak at the present on account of some few students having to remain out of school for harvest, but it is expected that all of the wrinkles will be ironed out in a short time.

It appears that the 1933-34 team will be as strong or stronger than last years team, and a bright season is predicted for the Eagles.

DORA NEWS

There wasn't so very many at Sunday school Sunday, but there was a large crowd at singing Sunday night. Everybody come back next Sunday and Sunday night.

Mrs. H. K. Watkins son and daughter visited Mrs. B. L. Gammel Sunday afternoon. Mr. Watkins spent the afternoon with A. L. Powers.

Harold Watkins spent Sunday with Keith Price.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Price spent Sunday afternoon driving around.

Mr. Overton Powers left for East Texas last week.

Misses Jessie and Eva Inglis drove out to see their brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Inglis Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Eual Prihard has just recovered from a lengthly illness.

The changeable weather has been the cause of a great many colds in this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Creamer and daughters, Edith, Doris and Jo Nelle and Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Battle spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marshall of Portales.

Miss Malena Evans spent Sunday with Marie Richards.

Ross Creamer spent Sunday with Johnny Martin.

Mary Edith Venable spent Sunday with Virgie Lee Gibson. They spent the afternoon kodaking on the Victor Hilll west of Dora.

Marguerite Gaines spent Saturday night with E va Gresham.

Finice Moody spent Saturday night with Willie Victor.

We are glad to hear that most of the men of this community have work for the winter, hard surfacing the Lovington highway from Portales to Lovington and the Elida highway from the Texas line to Elida. We are expecting more business houses in Dora now, as we are going to have good roads running through here.

School News.

We are taking our monthly examination this week.

Sidney Preston spent Monday night with Ross Creamer.

Sports

The Dora basket ball boys played Richland Friday night at Rogers. They were defeated 12 to 13. The Dora boys fought a hard battle. This was the first game of the two teams had played. We are planning on playing Causey Saturday night.

This week a V-8 Ford truck was on exhibit in Portales which has made an economy run under log for 14,000 miles, having been operated in Wyoming, Colorado, Nebraska, Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas. It was brought through in order that the dealers might see the truck. The truck averaged 11.8 miles per gallon of gas under log.

Rev. T. E. Sowell, son, Leroy, and brother, came to Portales last Tuesday night after his wife, Mrs. Sowell, who has been ill at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Watts, for the past few weeks. They returned Wednesday to Oceolla, Okla., where Rev. Sowell was transferred to from Afton, Okla., at the last quarterly conference.

The schedule of games is not available at the present time but will be completed and printed in the near future.

RICHLAND

Only 21 were present at Sunday school Sunday. Brother Rankin failed to fill his appointment Saturday night and Sunday

Sister Brant preached Sunday afternoon.

Several were present at the Sunday school and church services last Sunday.

We have singing every second and fourth Sunday night. Everyone invited to attend.

A few of the students are still out of school pulling cotton. We hope they will be back soon.

The Richland boys with Coach Fuller, left the school building about 6 o'clock Friday evening enen route to Rogers, where they met the Dora team. The Richland lineup was: Forwards, Alton Chenault, Jim Stroud; center: E. T. Brown; guards, James Creighton, Junior Willson. at the end of the first quarter the score was 7 to 0, in favor of Dora; at the end of the first half Dora still led by a score of 9-4. During the last half, however, with aid of able coaching the boys did some real team work, resulting in a Richland victory of 13-12.

ARCH

The attendence at Sunday school was not so good Sunday. We urge everyone to come and take part. It is Brother Clary's day to be with us next Sunday. Let's give him a good crowd.

Mrs. C. B. Alls and son were here on business and visited in the Ben Townsend home.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Powers are the proud parents of a new son. This is the second boy of the family.

Mr. Willingham, Ola Willingham and Ollis Gleghorn of Hope, Ark., are visiting in the Ollie Davis home.

We are glad to announce Mr. Copeland is able to sit up part of the time, now.

Misses Lucy Marquis and Doris Terry and Mr. Olen Marquis took Sunday dinner with Miss Rea.

Miss Helen Lovorn of Portales visited in the Pate home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Pierce, Mrs. Dacus Della Dacus, Mrs. McCrory and daughter, Lorene, were shopping in Clovis Saturday.

A number of friends enjoyed a delicious supper at the home of

Mrs. Willis Slaten and daughter, Berwyn, and grandchildren, Keigm and Adele Harp, visited Mr. and Mrs. Leon Slaten in Clovis Monay evening.

Mrs. Griffin Chapman returned Saturday from Hot Springs, greatly improved in health. Rev. Chapman remained for a longer stay. He, too, is improving greatly.

Certain Retailers Not Exempt In Smaller Towns

WASHINGTON, D. C.—National Recovery Administrator Hugh S Johnson issued the following interpretation designed to exclude from the exemptions allowed in the President's Executive order of October 23, employers located in towns of less than 2,500 population but whose operations extend "over a relatively wide area and include a number of communities:"

"The Executive order of October 23, 1933, exempting from the provisions of the President's Re-employment Agreement and from approved codes certain employers located in towns under 2,500 population applies only to employers engaged in trades or services of which the operations are customarily confined to local areas. It does not apply to those trades or services in which operations ordinarily extend over a relatively wide area and include a number of communities. The Executive order therefore does not exempt from the provisions of the President's Re-employment Agreement and from the provisions of any code those employees engaged in selling at retail such products as lumber, building materials, building specialties, builders' supplies, and coal.

President Is Encouraged By Progress Reports

WASHINGTON, D. C.—After a close study of charts showing increases in employment and total wages now being paid, the President believes the recovery program is making commendable progress, Secretary of Labor Perkins reported that the average hourly wage rose during October from 42 cents to 51 cents, while the average hourly work week declined from 42 to 36 hours. A special report by government economists asserts that the reaction in production in some of the major industries, principally confined to textile, leather, and steel, was the result of overproduction between March and July; hence a recession in those lines was unavoidable.

It was between March and July that the National Recovery Administration to control hours of work was being organized. The President credits the NRA with the increase in work wages and decrease in hours.

The latest chart shows the prices received by farmers for their products have increased from the spring up to October 11 from an index figure of 40 to 52, while the prices paid by farmers increased from the index figure 68 to 77, or 3 points net in favor of the farmer.

Answers to NRA Inquiries

Q. Can the minimum wage be divided between two employees at a soda fountain?

A. Not unless each is worked only part time.

Q. Is it permissable for trade associations to require a deposit which would be forfeited in case of proved violation of codes or agreements, both from members and nonmembers of the association?

A. It is for the industry to provide its own regulations. It may set up such police measures as it desires, subject to approval of the NRA membership on the Code Authority (governing body) of the industry.

Q. How are the costs and prices computed under the NRA?

A. The National Industrial Recovery Act provides (section 3 (a) that "The President may, as a condition of his approval of any such code, impose such conditions (including requirements for the making of reports and the keeping of accounts) for the protection of consumers, competitors, employees, and others, and in furtherance of the public interest."

Q. Please advise status of code or modified Presidential agreement as to hotels.

A. There is no substitution for the President's Agreement applying to the hotel industry, and a code for hotels has not been approved.

Q. Where is the line drawn between North and South in fixing minimum wage schedules in codes?

A. That depends upon where the difference in labor costs and other costs occur, to be agreed upon within the industry, after which such differentials either are approved or disapproved by the NRA.

From Democratic Headquarters

STATE SUPERVISOR OF TRANSIENT RELIEF ON JOB TO PROVIDE CARE

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 22.—Immediately following announcement from Washington that $400,000,000 from the public works funds were to be spent throughout the nation to put men to work at once, the state highway department acted to obtain its share of this relief money.

The government had already granted $970,000 for drougth relief through highway construction, in the six east side counties falling in the drougth area. This sum approximated $16 per capita.

The highway department asked for an additional $5,800,000, for use in the remaining 25 counties, basing its request on the $16 per capita already fixed by the government in its drougth relief grant.

This request has already been approved by the state public works board and forwarded to Washington for final approval.

The highway department is optimistic over possibilities of obtaining this additional amount of money. If obtaned, it will be used largely in improving secondary and dirt roads in the various counties.

Since the money will be apportioned among the counties on a per capita basis, all sections of the state will benefit equally.

In addition to the above application, the highway department will submit to the public works board at its next meeting a proposal to eliminate all grade crossings in the state through construction of grade separations.

It will cost approximately $4,300,000 to eliminate all the crossings on the main lines. This allows approximately $50,000 for each crossing, with $200,000 for the one grade separation on East Central Avenue in Albuquerque.

The Democratic administration has seized on every opportunity to obtain its share of funds from the public works board, in order to assure jobs to all needy persons during the winter months.

The administration is now gathering data on needed improvements for streams, channels, and bank repairs, parks, etc., which work will be done with federal money under local supervision. The jobs to be done will be chosen by local communities.

It is possible that considerable work can be done on the Rio Grande river to strengthen its banks and prevent another flood such as destroyed many homes and crops a few years ago.

When the government recently announced its plans for transient relief, the state acted immediately, with the result we now have a state supervisor of transient relief on the job to provide care for the transients and thus remove this financial burden from the state and local communities.

First NRA Court Test Gives Wages

DENVER, Colo.—The first and only court case to date involving an employer's NRA agreement was decided by Judge Frank McDonough, of the district court in favor of the plaintiffs.

The action was basde on a Presidential Reemployment Agreement, commonly called "the blanket code," signed by Major Avondale, restaurant owner. In awarding $107 to be divided between Kenneth Beaton and Warren Williams for wages due under the minimum-wage provision of the agreement, Judge McDonough said:

"Avondale's contract with the President was made for the benefit of third parties—his employees—and they are entitled to the full benefit there under."

Q. How are artists, including commercial artists, to be classified under NRA?

A. If their work is creative, they are professionals; otherwise, if their work is of routine nature—filling in, coloring, lettering—they are subject to maximum-hour provision.

MORTGAGEES TOO URGENT IS CHARGE

STATE MANAGER U. S. HOME LOAN SAYS SITUATION DEMANDS FORECLOSURES NOT BE PUSHED

An appeal of extreme urgency, involving the future of hundreds of home owners in Albuquerque and New Mexico, was directed to mortgage holders Wednesday by E. C. Robertson, state manager of the U. S. home owners loan corporation.

"I am appealing to the honesty and patriotism of every mortgagee, urging them not to foreclose on distressed home owners who need only time in order to secure a federal home loan," the loan head announced.

"Some mortgagees have been misled to believe that by foreclosing on a home owner they can obtain quicker action on the home owner's application for a federal loan. Instead, a bad tangle is only made a worse tangle, and action on the loan is delayed. On top of that, the distressed home owner is made to take on a greater loan burdened through the addition of ten per cent of the amount of the loan to pay fees of the foreclosure attorney."

Robertson also made a plea to applicants not to write to senators and the congressman in Washington in an effort to secure special preference, in cases not involving actual danger of loss of homes. Correspondence is doubled and efforts of loan employes are taken from the main work, he said.

Realizing that both applicants for loans and mortgage holders who are waiting to see what action is taken on applications are anxious to know when particular cases will be disposed of, Robertson explained that conditions resulting from the flooding in of 2,000 applications has made it impossible to estimate when cases not in actual distress will be reached.

"Our efforts still have to be concentrated on the cases where foreclosure has already occurred or is occurring at once," said Robertson. "We are doing everything in our human power to expedite the work, and the staff here has worked long past ordinary closing hours ever since we started. I am asking authority for additional help, and in the next few weeks we hope to be able to increase the rate of handling loans to 200 a month."

Only 24 employes have been allowed for the five offices in New Mexico, and some of them were put on as emergency help, pending authority from Washington.

RETAIL TRADE COUNCIL FOR EVERY AREA

WASHINGTON.—The National Retail Trade Council, representative body from the retail trade in the administration of the Retail Code, with the approval of the National Recovery Administration has issued preliminary regulations governing organization and operation of local Retail Trade Councils to assist in administration. The National Council contemplates that local councils will be functioning in every local trading area before the end of the year. Initiative in organization is to be taken by local merchants' association or chambers of commerce "or any other local organizations of the retail trades."

If no action is taken locally, they will be organized "by the National Council or by the NRA." They are to be made up of members from each division of the retail trade represented in local areas. Upon receipt from local councils of data to be requested by the National Retail Trade Council, such data will be submitted to NRA for approval of the local committees.

Thereupon NRA will issue certificates authorizing local councils to commence operations. The regulations point out that complaints from employees regarding hours wages, and other labor provisions of the code are not to be handled by local councils of the retail trade but are to be referred to the District Compliance Directors of NRA or other agencies to be set up.

The Student Fraternity Murder

THE STORY

CHAPTER I.—Stricken during initiation into the Mu Beta Sigma fraternity, Stuart Jordan, university student, dies almost immediately. A physician declares he was poisoned. Tommy Rankin, Philadelphia detective, takes charge of the investigation.

CHAPTER II.—An injection of cocaine is shown to have been the cause of Jordan's death. Rankin finds all the student's shoes are marked with thumbtacks. His only known relative is his uncle, Howard Merrick, St. Louis banker, also his guardian, and his heir.

CHAPTER III.—Two students from the vicinity of Vandalia, Ill., Jordan's home town, Ralph Buckley and Walter Randall, figure in the investigation, also the fact that a St. Louis physician, Arnold Prince, was chiefly responsible for Jordan's admission into the fraternity. A prominent lawyer, Edward Fletcher, present at the initiation, also engages Rankin's attention.

CHAPTER IV.—A significant fact discovered is that a student, Larry Palmer, Mu Beta Sigma member, was dragged by Ralph Buckley on the night of the initiation, and his keys, including a key of the fraternity house, stolen from him.

CHAPTER V.—Jordan has been paying, by check, $400 a month to some unknown person, but the canceled checks are not among his effects. Howard Merrick, as Jordan's guardian, had supervision of his conduct until he was twenty-two years old, when the boy's large fortune became his own. Poison including conine, is stolen from the university laboratory. A student, Ned Patterson, is suspected of purloining it. A mysterious woman seeks an undelivered letter to Jordan, but Rankin secures it.

CHAPTER VI.—The letter is from Edward Fletcher's young wife, and reveals that Fletcher has been suspicious of Jordan's attention to her. On the night before the fraternity initiation the pledgees, according to custom, were taken to an isolated spot and abandoned, to get home as best they could. The poison stolen from the laboratory is found in Patterson's room.

CHAPTER VII.—Tracing Jordan's movements the night before his death Rankin finds that, on his abandonment, he telephoned from a farmhouse to Mrs. Fletcher, who came for him in an auto. Hidden in Fletcher's roadster Rankin finds a hypodermic needle. Evidence seemingly conclusive, involving Ralph Buckley, is secured. Ned Patterson pawns a watch, obviously not his, which the detective secures.

CHAPTER VIII.—Rankin learns of a series of thefts in the fraternity house. Questioned concerning the watch he had pawned, Patterson admits the thefts. He also admits stealing the poison, claiming he took it with the idea of suicide. Rankin is satisfied of Patterson's innocence, but swears out a warrant for Buckley's arrest. Walter Randall is forced to leave school on account of his health. He has a doctor's certificate. Explaining suspicious actions, Buckley confesses the forgery of a fellow student's name to a check. Sifting the facts, Rankin is forced to eliminate Buckley from the list of the murder suspects.

CHAPTER IX.—Fletcher denies all knowledge of the hypodermic needle the detective had found. Rankin accuses him of fixing thumbtacks to Jordan's shoes for the purpose of identifying his victim in the darkness of the initiation chamber. Fletcher scoffs. He admits visiting Jordan's room, but for another purpose. He was after evidence that might convict Jordan of immorality and drive him from the university and the proximity of Mrs. Fletcher. He also admitted taking letters from the desk in the room. He had read them, and they are from Jordan's wife. It was to her, in St. Louis, that the student had been sending $400 a month. The marriage had been kept secret, since Mrs. Jordan was an actress, and Howard Merrick, Stuart's guardian, might have objected to the alliance. A young and attractive woman comes to Rankin, claiming to be Mrs. Jordan.

CHAPTER X.—The visitor claims to have only just heard of the tragedy, having been five days on an ocean voyage. Her story is plausible, but the letters show that because of her infidelity Jordan had left her, in St. Louis, and she had threatened him.

CHAPTER XI.—Investigating Mrs. Jordan's ocean trip, Rankin discovers that another woman had impersonated her, a Myra Prentiss, from whom he secures a confession. She mentions Dr. Arnold Prince as more than a friend of Mrs. Jordan.

CHAPTER XII.—Rankin interviews Doctor Prince. The physician is forced to admit undue intimacy with Mrs. Jordan, but Rankin, after the interview, is satisfied he has solved the mystery and knows the identity of the criminals.

Though he had traveled by air before, he experienced a thrill, as it raced bumpily across the field. The ground tilted crazily beneath, causing him a sinking sensation, and abruptly it shot out of the area of light. Almost imperceptibly, it climbed higher and higher into a black void, until the illumination dwindled and the humans on the ground became mere pigmies. Then the plane straightened itself and soared eastward.

There was, of course, no conversation between the flyers, the drone of the engine precluding any efforts. Below, the detective estimated the distance down to be about two thousand feet. He could see only a blotch of darkness, punctuated by twinkling dots so tiny as to resemble glowworms; after the broad stream of the Mississippi river was passed, an occasional cluster suggested a village. He was not comfortable, cramped against a pile of mail-sacks, stacked to his very seat. And the cabin had no heat; with the plane racing at a speed of two miles a minute, the wind whistled into it bitterly. But Rankin was too thankful at being permitted to make the passage to dwell on his distresses.

Indianapolis, two hundred and forty miles from St. Louis, was the first stop; at exactly four o'clock, the airship volplaned to earth and took off again in ten minutes. The next stretch, passing from Indiana into Ohio, was the one hundred and sixty-seven miles to Columbus. In this passage, crossing from west to east, Central time changed to Eastern; the lost hour added sixty minutes to a journey that would have taken one hour and a quarter. Long before the plane landed at the state capital of Ohio, however, at sixtwenty-seven, faint shadows of light in the east proclaimed the approach of dawn. Intently, almost breathless, Rankin watched them spread like clutching fingers, tinting the sky and dimming the brightness of the stars. Night faded slowly as deep purple turned into blue, and blue into pinks that turned orange, yellow and red; the clouds became a canvas for colors of unearthly beauty.

Half the distance covered, the plane delayed longer to refuel and change pilots. The new man, shorter and heavier set, was some years older; but he possessed just as clear an eye and steady a hand. Again, the mail was unloaded, additional mail taken and the ship roared off, climbing now into daylight. One hour and eleven minutes later, innumerable black smoke-stacks, a sooty sky and the impressive junction of the Ohio river and the twin Allegheny and Monongahela identified Pittsburgh, the next stop. At seven-forty-eight, the travelers sank into Bettis field, to ascend again ten minutes later. After that, in Pennsylvania, as far as Harrisburg, the observant detective noted the distinct change in the topography. Ohio had been uniformly low and level, dotted by a kaleidoscopic and colorful pattern of small farms and hamlets. But now, there were rugged brown uplands; whose range of uneven wooded peaks extended upward, succeeded by valleys. Often, they were several thousand feet in height and the plane had to double its altitude to keep above them.

At quarter after nine, the flyers crossed the Susquehanna river and landed at the Pennsylvania state capital. From then on, the last lap was about ninety miles to Philadelphia.

As they aproached their destination, Rankin's excitement increased and a sense of exultation at his accomplishment filled him. Actually, he had made the flight purely on a surmise, arising from his discovery, logical enough to warrant the journey, yet not so certain that he could communicate it to headquarters for his colleagues to act on. The delay of one night would not be fatal; either he was too late before he started or he would arrive in time. And if he proved wrong, at least his mistake was not public to subject him to ridicule. Besides it was a natural youthful zeal that made him want to participate personally in the solution that had baffled him so long. For there could be no doubt the case was ended, whether by his failure to bring all the criminals to justice or by a vindication of his conclusions.

Now Rankin could see the Quaker city, the incredible expanse of its area and its identifying landmark the City Hall tower, crowned by the statue of William Penn. Like an arrow, the plane shot across the Delaware river, over Camden and into New Jersey.

At ten-ten, after exactly seven hours in the air the plane circled above the Camden airport, and volplaned to earth.

The amount of Rankin's fare had been settled and paid in St. Louis. Accordingly he could leave at once; he crawled out of the cabin, less crowded than when he had started but stiff and disheveled, nevertheless, and shook hands with the pilot.

To reach the heart of Camden Rankin took the first Philadelphia bound bus down the boulevard outside the airport. He left the bus at the first taxi stand and hailed a cab; but he did not instruct the cabman to drive to headquarters.

"Get me to the University of Philadelphia in a hurry," he directed, "I haven't much time." He flashed his badge. "Don't be too particular about the regulations," he said. "This is special police business."

At exactly ten-forty-five, he drew up before the greenstone front of the business school. Inside, he located the main office; and when he had revealed his profession to a somewhat flustered secretary, he asked her only two questions. Upon her replies, though she was ignorant of the fact, hung the ultimate success or failure of his entire investigation. They brought, however, an enthusiastic exclamation from his lips and a gratified smile to his face. Breathlessly, he re-entered the cab and motioned the driver to continue.

"Now keep on going until we pick up the first policeman we see," he instructed. "Then let us both off at the lower entrance of the student dormitories."

Five minutes later, he dismissed the taxi outside the arch that opened into the end of the quadrangle, where the projecting dorms cut it in two. Having already briefly explained the situation to the officer, the two men entered the campus; past the dead boy's quarters, Croft hall, they hastened into the adjoining building in the line, Pelham hall. They climbed the bare, outer stone stairs to the third floor, where Rankin borrowed the blue-coat's whistle.

"You stay here in the corridor," he told him. "I don't expect I'll need your help; I can probably handle the affair myself. But if it goes difficult, I'll blow this whistle for you to come in and lend a hand."

Farther down the hall, he knocked solemnly on a door and waited. There was a faint stirring within, then Walter Randall, in his civilian clothes, opened it. Obviously, he had just completed his preparations for leaving the university permanently. Several bureau drawers stood open, yawning blankly. Two large black suitcases, both of leather, rested beneath the washstand, closed and strapped. The student himself wore a dark suit, fastidiously tailored, and his overcoat lay upon the bed from which the bedclothes had been removed.

"I merely dropped in to bid you good-by, Mr. Randall. I'm glad I'm not too late; I wasn't sure I would still find you here. I thought, perhaps, you might have been able to get away before Monday, after all."

"No, I couldn't," the student returned with an effort at self-possession. "I had to make arrangements for closing my account here and dropping out of classes and the office was shut over the week-end."

"Classes?" The detective spoke with deliberate incredulity. "You came from the office of the business school a few minutes ago, didn't you?"

"I . . . yes, I wanted a copy of my records in case I should ever be well enough to return to school."

Abruptly, Rankin's tone grew harsh with menace. "Then it wasn't the letters your physician wrote that you recovered?" he demanded. "They supported your claim to being ill to get you away from school conveniently. And are you sure you weren't afraid to leave before today?"

"Letters . . .?" the boy faltered. Afraid to leave? I don't know what you mean by that."

"You didn't want to chance arousing my suspicions," Rankin attacked viciously. "It was wiser not to make your appearance as Mrs. Laura Jordan on Friday coincide too closely with your final departure from the scene as Walter Randall. I might connect them and discover what a clever actress you are!"

The stark terror that lit the student's features brought his voice from its former husky resonance to an abnormally high pitch for a man.

"Oh, my G—d! . . . You're crazy! I don't know what you're talking about!"

"Only that I've penetrated your disguise at last," the detective announced solemnly. "I arrest you, Mrs. Laura Jordan, for the murder of your husband, Stuart Jordan, and I warn you that anything you may say will be used against you!"

All Woman, She Furiously Used Woman's Weapons.

He was alert for any move she made toward escape, yet her actual effort nearly caught him unprepared. The actress did not try to resist. Instead, still holding a match with which she had lighted a cigarette, she reached into her pocket and drew out several papers. She turned swiftly away from Rankin and a flame spattered in her hands; simultaneously, he hurled himself

Wanted—Ban on Feminine Bar Flies

A disgusted "gentleman" writing to the Chicago Tribune, enters a unique complaint: "Will you not suggest to the thousands who are making plans to sell beer that one of them somewhere in Chicago open a bar for men only? I would go a mile out of my way to get to the place, and I have heard many other men express a similar notion. Even some of the better hotels now are catering to females in their beer bars. When you approach the bar you are accosted by females unknown to you with invitations that you join them in a drink. Since they drink liquor and smoke cigarets until they carry a man's breath, since they no longer have either modesty or feminine charm, cannot some one open a bar where a gentleman may escape conact with them?"

Mrs. M. A. Page has had the pleasure of a visit from her niece and husband, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Yitton, of Hazelhurst, Mississippi. They have been on a three-months' tour of the United States and it was a pleasure for Grandmother Page to have them. They left Tuesday morning for Dallas and Houston to visit relatives before going back to Mississippi.

Mrs. J. W. Gray, Mrs. J. J. Carter and Mrs. T. B. Carter of Rogers were very pleasant callers at the News office Tuesday.

KENNA NEWS

Kenna is having a real old time sand storm today. The cattlemen are hoping we get a rain or snow to make moisture, as things are pretty dry around here.

Miss Rowena Crume entertained 24 young friends at a birthday party last Thursday evening. All appeared to enjoy the evening, and Rowena appreciated the lovely gifts she received. Her mother cut the big birthday cake, with 15 candles on it, at 9 o'clock. All departed for home at 10 o'clock.

There was a lively dance at the Nicholas home Saturday evening. Those present report a jolly time.

Miss Florence Clark and Cliton Crume were up from the Clark ranch at Boaz Saturday evening.

Ky Davis was up from Roswell Sunday.

Mrs. Essie Southard and a friend from Ft. Sumner visited in Kenna Sunday.

A number of Kenna folks, members of U. E. S. at Elida enjoyed the meeting last Wednesday evening. The Grand Worthy Matron and many other visitors were present.

Miss Norene Yoachum, Douglas Wallace, and Horace Echols motored to Clovis Thursday evening to visit with Miss Yoachum's sister and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Little, and Mr. Echol's brother, Coy Echols.
