Bloodhounds corner James Earl

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray was tracked down early today by a brace of bloodhounds named Sandy and Little Red, ending a desperate 54½-hour flight for freedom from life in prison.

At the end of a three-hour, three-mile run through a wooded creek valley and up thickly covered mountain slopes, the assassin of civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. was found hiding in a pile of leaves.

A few hours after Ray was seized, police arrested another of the six inmates who had fled with him — leaving only one fugitive at large.

The 49-year-old Ray, driven and exhausted, covered with mud and sand, offered no resistance to his captors. His first words, according to prison guard Sammy Joe Chapman, Sandy's handler and the first officer on the scene, were: "I feel good."

Chapman, 33, petted Sandy after returning with Ray and said: "She's the prettiest dog in the world." Sandy and Little Red are 14-month-old sisters.

The location of Ray's recapture was only five miles from the Brushy Mountain State Prison where he and the six others escaped over a wall with a makeshift pipe ladder on Friday evening.

The sixth fugitive, Donald Ray Caylor, 24, was spotted this morning by a patrolman walking along a street in Oak Ridge, 20 miles east of the prison. Officers said Caylor had no identification on him and the patrolman brought him to police headquarters where FBI agents and prison guards identified him.

Joel Plummer, state public safety commissioner, said authorities were delighted with the success of the manhunt.

Caylor's return to the prison left only Douglas Shelton, 22, still free.

Two others were captured Sunday. Larry Hacker, 32, Hamilton, Ohio, serving 28 years for armed robbery and safe cracking, was the reputed ringleader of the escape. Earl Hill Jr., 34, Erwin, Tenn., convicted of murder and rape, was a former cellmate of Ray's.

Another fugitive, David Lee Powell, 27, Chicago, was recaptured Saturday. He was serving 100 years for murder.

Plummer said Gov. Ray Blanton was "extremely pleased with Ray's capture."

Blanton said earlier he had kept U.S. Atty. Gen. Griffin Bell briefed on the search and that Bell had kept President Carter informed.

Plummer said Ray's capture "concludes one of the largest manhunts in the history of Tennessee."

The capture, at 2 a.m., was reported at 2:35 a.m. and Ray was returned to the prison soon afterward in a squad car driven swiftly through the gate to the administration building.

Ray appeared tired but alert and wide-eyed. His hair was wet and matted and his clothes, a black sweatshirt and black pants, were covered with sand and mud. His face also was smeared with mud.

It was not known whether Ray had eaten during the weekend chase, said Warden Stoney Lane.

He was examined by a medic and placed in a prison hospital. Lane said this was "routine procedure."

Lane said Ray would be placed in "administrative segregation" for three days while a hearing on the escape is conducted. "It is not solitary confinement, but his movements inside the prison are sharply restricted," the warden said.

Dutch marines riddle terrorists with bullets

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

ASSEN, The Netherlands (AP) — Dutch marines shattered the South Moluccan terrorists's command post at the head of a hijacked train with more than 7,000 rounds of 50 caliber machinegun fire, riddling the sleeping gunmen, a Justice Ministry spokeswoman said today.

"They were completely torn to pieces," spokeswoman Toos Faber said. "We could recognize them, but they were riddled with bullets. They were stone dead."

Six terrorists died in the dawn assault Saturday, as did two of the 51 hostages they held for 20 days on the commuter train stopped in a pasture near Glimmen, in northern Holland. Troops also burst into the school in Bovenmilde, 12 miles south of the train, freeing four teachers, and seizing four gunmen.

One hostage, Saskia Sein, 48, said another captive told her a terrorist killed the male hostage, 40-year-old M. Van Baarsel. The other dead was a 19-year-old girl, J.M.O. Monsjou. Mrs. Sein's report was told to the Associated Press by her husband.

Roelie Brihkman, 18, gave another account. She said the man was killed because he obeyed a terrorist's order to stand up.

Miss Brihkman, quoted by her fiance in a telephone interview, said, "One man, who apparently panicked" obeyed the order to stand when the marines attacked "and was gunned down. I do not know whether he was hit by a shot from the gunmen or by fire coming from outside."

The question of how the hostages died probably won't be resolved until authorities release results of autopsies performed Sunday. The report, including results of ballistics studies to determine what type of bullets killed the hostages, was expected Tuesday or Wednesday, a Justice Ministry spokesman said.

Justice Ministry spokesman Wim van Leeuwen said today the bodies of the six terrorists have been released to their families. He said it would be up to the families to release their names.

He said the bodies would be brought to Assen, where a service was scheduled for tonight at the South Moluccan Evangelical Church.

Van Leeuwen said interrogation of the other terrorists was continuing at various locations and said they would be brought before a judge on Wednesday who was expected to order their detention for 30 days. One gunman, wounded in the attack, remained in critical condition at hospital in Groningen.

One of the dead terrorists identified by the government was Hansina Autosia, a 22-year-old dental assitant, from the farming village of Bovensmilde, reportedly the home to several of the terrorists.

The terrorists' leader, 24-year-old Max Papilaya, also died in the hail of gunfire that ripped the train, authorities said.

The four teachers held hostage in the school could have escaped several times, one of the them told a news conference Sunday. But she said they feared the other group of terrorists aboard the train would harm some of their captives in retaliation.

"On one occasion, the Moluccans all fell asleep, and we had a key with which we could have gotten out of the building," said 35-year-old Sjaan Abbink. "But at that time, they still had a direct telephone line to the Moluccans on the train and we feared for the lives of the hostages."

The six uninjured terrorists were split up and put in separate jails in northern Holland. The law required their appearance before the public prosecutor today, but official sources said the prosecutor would probably visit them in prison instead of having them brought to court.

Young South Moluccans among the community of 40,000 exiles in The Netherlands angrily mourned the dead terrorists as martyrs to their struggle for the independence of their native islands from Indonesia.

"Our comrades were murdered by the collaborators of Indonesian fascism," said a spokesman for the South Moluccan Youth Liberation Front.

Hinting at more terrorist action, he added: "Our revolution might need a lot more victims among our sons and daughters."

Somebody stole home

Pampa police still are searching for clues in the theft of equipment from the Lions Club Ballpark sometime Saturday night.

Thieves literally stole home plate from the park; it was discovered early Sunday.

The 18-inch square home plate rested on a two by four-inch foundation which was buried eight in ground before it was liberated by some shovel-wielding crook.

Pampa Police Chief Richard Mills said this morning the theft of home plate "will be assigned to an investigator, just like all theft cases."

But the police chief said no additional information as to the identification of the thieves or why they stole home plate.

"I don't know who we're looking for," the chief said, "unless someone out there is trying to start their own ballpark."

Girl Scouts found beaten

LOCUST GROVE, Okla. (AP) — Three Girl Scouts were found beaten to death in their sleeping bags at a summer camp today, the Oklahoma Highway Patrol said.

Initial details from the scene were sketchy, and police gave no indication whether there was any suspect in the case.

The patrol said the bodies were found at Camp Scott in hilly, wooded country about two miles south of this Eastern Oklahoma community about 45 miles east of Tulsa.

The girls were reported to be 8, 9 and 10 years old. Identification was withheld until their relatives were notified.

State police said the deaths were caused by beating, but they gave no immediate indication of the weapon used or the condition of the bodies. They also declined to say who found the bodies.

Rob Pyron, press secretary to Gov. David Boren, said the Oklahoma State Bureau of Investigation was ordered to assist in the investigation at the request of Mayes County officers. The Highway Patrol also was investigating.

About 100 girls and 30 staff members were at the week-long camp, operated by the Magic Empire Council of Girl Scouts. The camp has been in operation since 1928.

Gas figures wrong accuses Briscoe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe accused the Carter administration today of using "highly misleading" figures in predicting that deregulation of natural gas will send gas prices for consumers soaring.

Testifying at a Senate hearing, Briscoe also strongly denied that gas producers are deliberately withholding production to await deregulation. He said he would welcome a federal probe to put such allegations to rest.

Administration witnesses have told congressional hearings that natural gas deregulation — opposed by President Carter — would add up to $100 annually to the bills of some 40 million homeowners.

"Their figures are highly misleading because they assume immediate and total deregulation of all gas, or assume some unrealistically rapid roll-over of gas currently under contract," Briscoe testified. "No such proposal has been seriously considered."

Briscoe noted that under the form of deregulation voted by a House subcommittee last week, only newly drilled natural gas would be free from price controls. This would result in only gradual increases to gas users, he claimed.

He did not say by how much gas prices might rise under deregulation of new gas, but said it would not approach the figures cited by the administration.

Hearts open to Hobo

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Staff

Hobo is still running free but he's had plenty to eat, clean, fresh water to drink, and a lot of attention over the weekend.

Hobo is the name given to a fluffy little brown and white puppy by Mrs. W.H. Carr who first noticed him about a month ago in a field about 12 miles east of Pampa on Highway 60. Since then she has seen him many times in her daily trips between the two cities.

Mrs. Carr has tried several times to coax the pup to come to her, so she could find it a more appropriate home, but the dog will not let people come too close to him before trotting away.

The News reported on Hobo's plight in the Friday edition and Mrs. Carr said today that when she went out Sunday to check on the pup, she found that others had been there too. There was dog food under the trees alongside the road and next to a culvert someone had put a piece of steak and a pan of water.

"I don't know how many people have called," Mrs. Carr said.

One caller told Mrs. Carr he had a friend with a live animal trap "and he assured me it wouldn't hurt the puppy," she said.

And the man who owns the land recognized his gate in The Pampa News photo and he called Mrs. Carr and told her he would be glad to build a little dog house out in the field for the homeless waif.

"What if it's got some puppies out there somehwere?" one caller asked.

"It would be easy to tell if it's been nursing puppies," Mrs. Carr said.

One caller contacted The News this morning and offered to provide a good home for Hobo if he can be captured.

"I don't need a dog," she said, "but I've just got to help this pup."

She said her own dog died about a year ago of cancer and she still has a dog house in the backyard.

"I treat them just like they were human babies," she said.

Dr. Kenneth Royse, consulting veterinarian for the City of Pampa, said use of a tranquilizer gun to capture Hobo would not be practical.

"Tranquilizer guns are very erratic," he explained. "It takes 10 minutes to an hour for the drug to take effect and in that time he could run quite a distance from the pain and the noise of the report ... out in that tall grass he could get where you could never find him."

Other problems in such a method of capture would be the size of the target.

Dr. Royse said the animal should be shot with the tranquilizer in the leg muscle which could be difficult since "This little guy probably wouldn't weigh but a few pounds."

And there is the danger of overdose. Speaking of the use of tranquilizer guns shown in some TV programs, Dr. Royse said, "They are using a strong drug, a dangerous drug. They don't show you the third they kill with overdose."

If an attempt is made to capture Hobo in the live animal trap, "they'll have to cut down on the surplus food for awhile," Dr. Royse said, so that the pup can be coaxed to enter the trap for the food used as bait.

"I'd be sure to use some kind of food that wouldn't spoil," he added.

Commenting on the number of calls and offers to help she has received, Mrs. Carr said, "So many people think the world's gone to pot. I have never believed that. There's too many good people."

Feds lacking in security

Last year the General Accounting Office reported that more than 100,000 pounds of uranium and other "special nuclear material" could not be accounted for in the inventories of 34 government facilities that handle it.

There was less alarm about that report than there might have been because regulatory agencies pointed out that only 6 or 7 per cent of the missing material was "weapons grade," and that much of the shortage could be attributed to "bookkeeping" discrepancies. The fact the material was not accounted for did not necessarily mean it had been lost or stolen.

All this comes to mind with the startling story — now confirmed by officials of the European Common Market Commission — that a whole shipload of uranium disappeared in 1968 bound from Antwerp, Belgium, the European Atomic Energy Community which was responsible for the uranium, can hardly explain this as a fluke in "bookkeeping."

There's a suspicion that the 200 tons of uranium aboard the freighter may have wound up in Israel. The Israelis deny any involvement, but they also have been equivocal in responding to the recurring report that they have built atomic bombs.

Regardless of what finally comes to light about Europe's missing uranium shipment, one thing is already clear. Government agencies responsible for the security of nuclear materials — in this country and abroad — are doing a poor job of building public confidence in themselves.

Americans, and people in other countries, have been assured by regulatory bodies that there is airtight security surrounding the handling and transportation of nuclear materials. The possibility that terrorists might manage to acquire the ingredients to build an atomic bomb is dismissed as an exaggeration. Those assurances have been easy to accept, considering the danger and difficulty that would be involved in pirating radioactive material.

Perhaps we should take some satisfaction from the fact that security provisions around U.S. nuclear plants were visibly tightened after last year's GAO report. The '68 incident reported from Europe, however, again raises the question of whether the atomic energy community as a whole is fulfilling the trust that a nervous public places in it.

We have argued that President Carter is shortsighted in proposing to drop development of a breeder reactor and the fuel reprocessing system that produces its plutonium fuel. We still think that would be a mistake in view of the need for nuclear power in the future. There is no reason why substances like uranium and plutonium cannot be inventoried and controlled carefully enough to prevent their diversion into the wrong hands — if there is a firm enough commitment to make sure it doesn't happen.

Oh, to be Young (Andy)

When a poor debater gets caught in a corner for propounding some sort of error one of the most common strategems is to universalize the error. It is the logical equivalent of the "Big Lie" in political propaganda: you expect people to believe it precisely because it is so unfathomable. Only the debater might actually believe it himself. Rape is the implied threat by which all men keep all women intimidated; an idiotic women's liberationist will assert in a widely noticed book; and some of the most illustrious leaders of society will nod that the perfectly plain lunacy is entirely true.

Here's another: the establishment is inherently racist. That one was popular during the stormy 1960s. It has faded lately because the most vocal popularizers of the malarkey have become the beneficiaries of the establishment's minority favoritism.

Which brings us to Andrew Young, whom President Carter rewarded for racialist politicking by promoting him to UN ambassador. Andy Young's mind is still back in the 1960s where it steeps in the establishment - is - racist bromide. He was a civil rights activist, then a preacher, then a U.S. congressman from Georgia. Jimmy Carter assigned him to draw in the "black vote" during the presidential campaign last year. Why a liberal society that is supposed to be color blind would actually suffer from one of its presidential candidates a lieutenant especially charged with the responsibility of handling black voters is a question that can be tolerated only insofar as its people willingly overlook the most profound contradictions.

It comes to this: A society will never stamp out racism so long as it listens to politicians who can get mileage out of stamping out racism. It is a very ugly paradox, but by all signs we are stuck with it. David Brudnoy is absolutely correct when he refers to "professional Negroes."

None is more professional than Andy Young. The ambassador specializes in the most inane statements about the world, seeing racists under more beds than the most lunatic rightwinger sees communists. The more outrageous and ridiculous his statements the more praise he earns from Jimmy Carter, who most recently called Young the finest public servant he'd ever known. At the White House press conference last week a reporter demanded to know why Maj. Gen. Singlaub was pulled out of Korea on the dubious grounds of contradicting U.S. policy while Ambassador Young has contradicted U.S. policy time after time impunitively. The president straight - facedly denied that his friend Andy had ever contradicted policy — this from the man who promised he's never lie to us.

A few weeks ago — back when the State Department virtually had opened up a special office for issuing daily "corrections" of Andrew Young — the ambassador sat in a British broadcast studio and told his interviewers the British had "invented racism." Once the fury settled, Young explained — tee hee — that it was all a joke. He apologized to the British, and you may be sure his apology was directed and perhaps even phrased by Washington.

He still, however, believes his own twaddle about racists lurking everywhere, and if there was any doubt he went sailing the other day right into the poor debater's error. Now we hear from the ambassador that everyone is racist. Not just the South Africans and the Rhodesians, mind you, but the Russians, the Swedes and, oh, just everyone is racist. "It's impossible not to be a racist if you talk of racism as ethno - centricity," Young elaborated. "Nobody is immune. I'm only saying that overcoming cultural difficulties and cultural insecurity is something you have to work at very consciously." The problem with that kind of psuedo - socio - psychological claptrap is that you don't know if it is a moral indictment or a neutral description of the nature of man. Or both. Lord help us. If it is the former, the notion is plainly preposterous, the general run of mankind being aracial saints on that issue, so far as we can tell (besides, they tolerate Andy Young). If it is the latter, the only reasonable response is: so what? Most everybody has a tendency to like home cooking, too. And that is not the kind of wisdom we expect to be imparted by a UN ambassador.

We said the tendency to universalize an error is the resort of a poor debater. We'll be less delicate. It can be arrant demagogy as well, and coming as it does from Andy Young's mindless motor mouth it greatly poisons the world's perceptions of truth.

Social Security burden gets heavier

Years of congressional tinkering with Social Security pretty well drove it into the ground as an "insurance" or "pension" system. The administration's plan to start shoring it up with general tax revenues would plant a headstone over the grave.

Social Security checks probably will continue to await Americans in their retirement or as a benefit for disability, but the principle that we earn them as contributors to an insurance plan is now fully exposed as an illusion.

This is not the only epochal change which Health, Education and Welfare Secretary Joseph Califano Jr. outlined recently on behalf of President Carter. While heretofore employes and their employers have shared the Social Security payroll tax equally, it would now become a burden falling more heavily on employers.

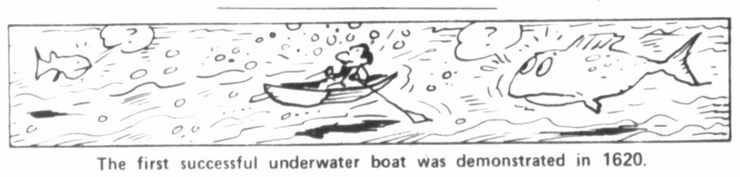

Under the plan, workers would pay the 6.05 per cent Social Security tax on earnings up to $19,500 by 1979. That ceiling would continue to stand on what the worker pays. But there would be no ceiling on the employer's tax. The 6.05 per cent tax would be applied across the board to all wages and salaries. The result would be an additional $30 billion in the tax burden on business and industry over the next five years.

Califano says "there's plenty of money on the corporate side" to bear this new burden. This may be news not only to corporate treasurers but to members of Congress who are in the process of enacting tax incentives to business to encourage them to hire new employes. What's the point of that kind of "stimulus" for business firms when the government will be making it more expensive to hang on to the employes they already have?

Further, personal and corporate income taxes are going to be burdened with the $14.1 billion in revenue which the administration may take from the general fund over the next five years to keep Social Security from running out of money.

We now are getting a glimpse of what it is going to cost to keep feeding the Social Security system that began with modest ambitions some 40 years ago. There were no cheers in Congress when Carter's plan to rescue the system was delivered. The cheers are reserved for those moments when the eligibility for Social Security is broadened or the promise of future benefits is sweetened. There have been many of those occasions over the years.

What the administration is proposing is a whopping tax increase. We can't say much for the equities of the plan, particularly for those who cling to the hope that Social Security might survive as something other than a government dole. But if Carter accomplishes nothing else, he may have jarred us all into an awareness there is a piper waiting to be paid.

Cat thief gets around cul-de-sac

By JIM FITZGERALD

Well, at least I never helped anyone steal a cat.

That's my friendly answer to the newspaper in Grosse Pointe, Mich. (which is a suburb of Detroit, where I live), that recently said nasty things about me. I really don't want to argue; it's too nice a day. I'd rather write about cats, and the Grosse Pointe woman who swiped one.

You may remember last February when a Grosse Pointe real estate agent, John Brink, proposed that many cul-de-sacs be constructed in Grosse Pointe streets to make it more difficult for Detroiters to come calling.

Brink is concerned that prices of Pointe homes are falling, thus shrinking his sales commissions. He blames Detroit. "Anything in it has a stigma," he said. "Cross the street from Grosse Pointe to Detroit, and the values drop in half."

Brink figures cul-de-sacs would help keep the stigmas in their place, picking cotton. Cul-de-sacs in Grosse Pointe are the same as blind alleys in Detroit, except we can't afford the hyphens.

I wrote one of my typically objective columns aobut Brink, accusing him of envisioning cul-de-sacs that would automatically tilt and exude a smoke screen when approached by a black person.

The Grosse Pointe newspaper took exception, charging that I "did not go to the source or study the proposition in any responsible journalistic fashion."

That didn't make me angry. I never did meet a responsible journalist who would buy the first round. And it is true that I did not go to Grosse Pointe to study the proposed cul-de-sacs, some of which will be back - to - back. I admit I am not intellectually equipped to argue hyphens with anyone who writes editorials for the Gross Pointe newspaper. So, peace.

Except, about that cat. A while back the Grosse Pointe newspaper published a classified ad reporting that a beautiful black - and - white cat had been found. This was marvelous news for a friend of mine whose name will be withheld to protect the guilty.

My friend had recently lost her beautiful black - and - white cat of which she was exceedingly fond. She phoned the finder and described the missing cat. It was a perfect match. Tears of joy. A reunion was quickly arranged.

While they were driving to the finder's home that evening, my friend's husband asked what she would do if it turned out to be the wrong cat. My friend said such a thing surely couldn't happen, but if it did, she would take the cat anyway because she needed a cat, the cat needed a home, and the finder didn't want to keep it.

The husband, who has a Catholic conscience, said, "Yeah, but what if the real owner showed up at the finder's home the next day, too late to reclaim what was rightfully his? What if the true owner were a sick child who had been crying himself to sleep every night since his beloved cat disappeared?"

The issue was unresolved and appeared irrelevant when my friend got her first look at the found cat. It was hers. She scooped it up and nuzzled it and thanked the finders and quickly carried the cat to her car.

The cat was not impressed. It jumped out of her arms and ran back toward the finder's house. "That is not our cat," the husband said. Reluctantly, his wife agreed. It had looked like her cat in the face, but the rear end was all wrong.

But my friend ran after the cat and took it home anyway. The husband didn't protest because he subscribes to my theory that all ats are the same — useless. Cats are good only for testing myths — do they really always land on their feet, and is there really more than one way to skin one?

My friend is happy with her stolen cat, except sometimes she worries about that sick kid who is still crying himself to sleep every night. To make her feel better, I told her about the beloved cat my family once lost.

It took us two weeks to find it, and then it was dead on the side of the road. Rigor mortis had set in. There was much mourning plus a fitting burial in our backyard with a suitable gravestone.

A few days later a ghost showed up on our front porch. That's right, we had mourned and buried the wrong cat.

Wouldn't that frost your cul-de-sac?

Your Birthday

June 14, 1977

Try to develop the dramatic, creative ideas you'll be getting this year. If at all possible, do it without associates. You'll fare better that way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you value a friendship, don't promise to do something you don't intend to do or can't accomplish. The disappointment will be severe.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Speak as highly today of someone when they're not present as when they are. It's not in character for you to practice duplicity.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Should a well-meaning friend want to plead your cause in a career matter today, try to talk him out of it. His bumbling may have adverse effects.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You've zeroed in on what you want to accomplish today, but there's one problem. You could use very ineffectual methods to go after it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A sharp salesman could palm off some inferior merchandise on you today. You don't pay enough attention to warranties, guarantees or quality.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The family budget could be in for lumps today. Neither you nor your better half are very efficient when it comes to handling money.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Decisions offering an easy way out aren't the best for you today. Unfortunately, you may be tempted to try the "no sweat" route.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Normally you're a no-nonsense person at work. Today you're easily distracted and may indulge in dawdling or daydreaming.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't have fun today at the expense of another. Such conduct could cause more serious consequences than appear on the surface.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You might impulsively make some decorative changes around home today. Be careful what you do or buy; it could be hard to live with.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Take care what you say today. A flippant chance remark could offend someone and you may have difficulty explaining you meant no harm.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Today you're not as quality-conscious as you usually are. You may pay too much for an item of little durability or value.

British Philanthropist

The Smithsonian Institution owes its origin to James Smithson, a wealthy English scientist who never visited the United States. Smithson, who died in Italy in 1829, willed his entire fortune to the U.S. "to found at Washington, under the name of the Smithsonian Institution, an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." The bequest totaled more than half a million dollars, a great fortune in that day.

Trans-Alaska pipeline ready for startup

By ROBERT WELLER
Associated Press Writer

PRUDHOE BAY, Alaska (AP) — Standing in front of a wall of flashing computer lights that would make a mad scientist proud, technicians wait for the order to begin sending oil through the trans-Alaska pipeline.

The order is due June 20, but it probably could be carried out now.

"We could pump oil right now," says Mike Jens, who is in charge of operations at Pump Station 1 for the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co.

That station is where the oil from the richest oil field in North America begins to flow down the 800-mile-long tube.

Alyeska is the consortium of oil companies which have built the $7.7 billion pipeline.

Jens says Alyeska is taking no chances with an early startup.

"We wouldn't feel comfortable starting up now, because we couldn't pump oil reliably ... that's part of startup, to make sure your equipment is reliable," he said.

Testing last week, for example, showed that an important valve was malfunctioning. It had to be flown to Texas for repairs.

And there are "continual last-minute problems," Jens added. "We have put a number of hours on all the equipment so that when we push the button on that magic day we have a great deal of confidence that things will work."

An AP special report

Henry Moller, Alyeska vice president for operations, agreed that oil flow could start earlier than planned but added, "We don't do things in a great rush. Everything should be so practiced that it looks like they are doing it just one more time."

Alyeska has another reason for sticking to the June 20 date.

"We made a commitment to the federal government not to start until we gave 60 days notice. June 20th is the 60th day," Jens said.

Before oil reaches Pump Station 1, it must be extracted from the ground and processed. Two of the eight pipeline owner-companies — Atlantic Richfield and British Petroleum — are responsible for that.

Both collect the oil at what ARCO calls flow stations and what BP calls gathering centers. There the oil is separated from gas and water before being sent slightly less than two miles to Pump Station 1.

Ben Odom, manager of ARCO's Prudhoe Bay operations, says both companies are ready to begin delivering oil.

"We are in communication with Alyeska and BP on a daily basis ... we will do what they want us to do, when they want us to do it," Odom said.

Alyeska handles the oil once it reaches the pump station. Moller compares it with "giving the keys of your car to your son. He has custody, but it's your car."

Each owner-company gets its share of the oil once it arrives at the ice-free port of Valdez, the southern terminus of the line.

Alyeska expects it to take 30 to 45 days for the first oil to reach Valdez. Normally it would take much less time, but the flow will be restrained so the line and pump stations can be monitored carefully for leaks and mechanical problems.

In Valdez the oil will be loaded into tankers. Nobody knows for sure where it will go from there.

There are several proposals to build pipelines from the West Coast to the Midwest or to use parts of existing pipelines, as well as talk of sending the oil to Japan in a swap for Middle Eastern oil that then would be sent to the Northeast.

Another idea is to ship it through the Panama Canal to ports on the Gulf of Mexico. Still another scheme would be to use railroad tank cars to get the crude to the Midwest.

Odom and his BP counterpart are concentrating on making sure they can supply the 600,000 barrels the pipeline is scheduled to carry each day after startup.

Each company is t supply 300,000 barrels. Preparations so far include trial runs in which "we pretend to open the valves. The man will walk to the valve and he will say, 'I am opening this valve.'

"It looks kind of silly, but we don't want to ask him to go open that valve and find he doesn't know where it is," said Odom, who has been with the pipeline from the start.

Two full-scale drills are planned this week.

When the order to turn the oil loose is received at ARCO's Flow Station 1, Dexter Smith and John Harville say they'll be ready.

Harville, who also moved to Anchorage from the Southwest, is a flow station operator. He follows the oil that comes from the wells into the station and out to Alyeska.

Like most of the employes, he works seven days a week, 12 hours a day. Then he gets seven days off, and ARCO pays the air fare to Anchorage.

"We've been kind of spinning our wheels," Harville said. "We're anxious to get going with production."

Smith doesn't have Harville's years of experience in the oil industry. Two years ago he gave up a teaching career to take a job here.

Since then, he has been trained extensively to handle the computer terminal that runs the two dozen wells ARCO controls. He's getting paid twice as much as he did for teaching while working fewer days.

The computer that governs pipeline flow is in Valdez, but there's a telephone hot line to Valdez on Smith's desk, as well as a phone labeled "Startup".

A lot of workers are waiting for that phone to ring.

At Pump Station 1, Jens takes no small measure of pride in the workers' ability to meet the construction schedule set four years ago. Alyeska has promised all along to be in operation by July 1, 1977.

Jens says, "It is really something to set a date four years in advance and go through everything that we've gone through and get it done on time, and it means a lot to a lot of people up here."

Catch frog, then tickle it

By JULES LOH
AP Special Correspondent

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — First you catch a frog. Then you tickle his behind with a peacock feather and watch him jump. For some reason, it is a hilarious thing to do. About 300 people spent Saturday afternoon tickling and laughing and measuring on the lawn of Mark Twain's old house here.

Surely the celebrated author of "The Celebrated Jumping Frog of Calaveras County" would have approved.

Frogs arrived from all over—from the South where they are called "frawgs" and from the North where they are called "frahgs." Three came all the way from California wrapped in styrofoam.

"The only reason for holding frog-jump day is because there is no reason for it," said Dexter Peck, the director of the Mark Twain memorial, which, together with Hartford's Children's Museum, sponsors the event each year. "It seems that everything this year needs a big, profound reason, usually commercial. What makes this so much fun is because that's why it's done. Just for fun."

If it was done for fun, success was rampant.

The kids arrived early to register their frogs with Eileen Fielding, a naturalist at the museum and an expert on frogs. She knows the difference between a pickerel frog, which is a small creature with spots, a green frog, which has dorsal lateral ridges, and a bullfrog, which is simply a big damn frog.

Registration is uncomplicated. "My name is Molly Kehoe. I am 12. My frog's name is Captain Hook."

How did you catch your frog, Molly?

"My father caught him in a net. He let about 75 others get away."

The entry list grew: Buffalo Bob, Prince Charming, Humphrey Bogart, Tiny Tim, Son of Delight, Mustang, Boris, Thunderbolt, Prune Whip, Edward, Kisser, Durman, Bubbles, Yellow Legs, Bullet.

Soon 77 were entered, rarin' to jump.

Meanwhile, the parents of the intrepid frog-handlers sat on the lawn with hot dogs and lemonade and listened to the Hop River String Band twanging out bluegrass music from Mark Twain's veranda.

The Twain House, a wonderfully nooked and crannied old Victorian building with red bricks and a slate roof, was the perfect backdrop.

You could almost visualize the old man looking down from an upstairs window, laughing.

Ancient trees provided shelter from a gentle drizzle in midafternoon, which the frogs cheered and the kids ignored. Two big mountain laurel bushes contributed perfume and pink blossoms.

At last — jump time.

The arena was a platform set in front of bleachers which were donated by the parks department. The platform was covered with fake green grass, donated by the cemetery. Three loose strands of rope held back the pressing throng. The best seats were in a nearby beech tree, its branches filled with cheering children.

In a frog-jumping contest, the creature is tickled three times, his total distance measured in a straight line.

It can be terribly exciting. A few years ago a little boy was so pleased with his frog's performance he squeezed him to death. This year there were no casualties.

This year Buffalo Bob, a celebrated jumping frog from California, survived his airplane trip and won with a hop, skip and jump of 119½ inches.

Schmitt urges energy action

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Harrison Schmitt, R-N. M., said today that there is need for urgent action to relieve the nation's current crisis of energy supply.

The former astronaut said President Carter's energy proposals have created an environment for action but are "extremely disturbing because of the tone they set."

"That tone was negative," Schmitt told the annual convention of the Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association.

Schmitt said a first step for urgent action must be a complete and active energy emergency preparedness plan that would carry the nation through any major and prolonged interruption of energy supply.

Americans also, he said, should be assisted on a broad scale in the reduction of energy waste and cost.

"And the federal government must set a policy of regulatory reform that will rapidly accelerate the domestic production of oil, natural gas, coal, and uranium," he said.

An essential element of such reform, he added, must be decontrol of new natural gas and oil prices.

On Sunday, the Texas independents left no doubt they will reaffirm their traditional goal of obtaining congressional approval of price decregulation of new natural gas for all producers, both large and small.

Bob Hefner III, Oklahoma City, drew no support when he asked the group to publicly endorse his proposal that independents seek decontrol only for themselves.

Carter's energy program would extend current controls on interstate sales to intrastate markets. A House subcommittee voted approval last week, however, of a proposal that would decontrol new gas.

John Watson, Houston, told Hefner he was opposed to splintering off from the majors.

"Much oil and gas still is to be found but we can't do it alone," Watson said. "We need the majors and their efforts as well."

Frank Pitts, Dallas, agreed.

"We need all people, majors, independents, everybody, to drill more wells for finding new reserves for the good of this country," Pitts said.

UT would lose $4 million in gas income

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — President Carter's national energy program would cost the University of Texas almost $4 million a year in oil and gas income, a UT regent says.

Ed Clark, chairman of the committee that administers the university's vast oil and gas acreage, made the statement in a letter to all Texas congressmen.

The $4 million is the difference between oil and gas royalties and bonuses under existing price controls and those proposed by Carter.

Clark said the Carter plan does not provide enough incentives for the independent drillers who do most of the nation's exploration.

"The potential supply is undoubtedly there, but where are the oil and gas finders," he said.

Clark said it was "simply incredible to me that anyone would think that continuation of price controls would encourage a significantly higher rate of domestic drilling activity."

He said that if all price controls were eliminated, the oil and gas income to university lands would run $68 million higher each year than they now do.

Alanreed, Laketon could regain voting boxes

By TIM PALMER
Pampa News Staff

A favorable vote by Gray County Commissioners Wednesday morning could bring Alanreed and Laketon voters one step closer to regaining the voting boxes they lost in 1973.

On the commissioners' agenda is a proposed resolution to separate precincts four and five and precincts one and six.

Precinct four in Alanreed was joined to precinct five in McLean in September, 1973, when a new state law, 2.04b in the Texas Election Code, mandated that there be a minimum of 100 voters in each precinct.

At the time, Alanreed had 89 voters. Precinct six in Laketon had 92 and combined with precinct one in Lefors.

The law was changed recently, said County Clerk Wanda Carter, and now a minimum of only 50 voters is required.

"It's been in the backs of the minds of the commissioners to return the voting boxes as a convenience to the people," Mrs. Carter said. "It's a real inconvenience to those voters to have to go so far to vote. Most people just won't vote, and that's not good."

In Alanreed, for example, are a large number of elderly voters who cannot or will not go into McLean to vote. County Judge Don Hinton said that "what it amounted to was denying those people their voting privilege."

If the commissioners vote to return the boxes to Alanreed and Laketon, the move must still be approved by the Department of Justice in Washington, D.C.

The department must investigate the situation "to be sure there's no discrimination" before giving its approval, Mrs. Carter explained.

She said that according to the Voting Rights Act the department should act on the matter within 60 days. If so, the boxes can be returned by election time next year, she said.

Mrs. Carter added that the 1973 law also resulted in the removal of a voting box from precinct 11 in Hopkins. That precinct combined with precinct 13, which covers the rural areas surrounding Pampa. The commissioners court probably will not discuss the Hopkins box on Wednesday, she said.

The county commissioners meet at 9 a.m. Wednesday in the county courtroom in the court house.

Girl's body found in creek

DALLAS (AP) — Exactly four months after Ladina McCoy left from home for school, clutching a purse filled with Valentines for her classmates, a man discovered the remains of the seven-year-old girl in a creek bed.

The badly decomposed, skeletal remains were found Saturday and identified Sunday by the Dallas County medical examiner's office those of the East Dallas first grader.

Robert Maxam, a homicide investigator for Dallas police, said the case is being investigated as a homicide although officers say they have not learned the cause of death.

The girl vanished Feb. 11 while walking the 10 blocks from her home to school on a rainy morning. Some other children said they saw the girl walking and heard a car quickly pull away when they looked away. She was gone when they looked back.

Dr. Linda Norton of the medical examiners office said identification was made largely through clothing since Ladina had no dental records and no history of broken bones.

A piece of red cloth, furnished by Mrs. Barbara Baughman, the girl's mother, proved to be the key in making identification of the remains, Dr. Norton said.

The body, still clothed in the red knit pants, white blouse and a multi-colored pastel sweater she was wearing when she left for school, was scattered over a four-foot area. Officers theorized that the body had been in water that evaporated during the recent dry spell.

Dr. Norton did not disclose the cause of death, saying that police officers had asked her not to reveal anything. The medical examiner's office will conduct more tests in their investigation, she said.

Dr. Norton also said she could not pinpoint the time of death and could not say if the child had been killed in the creek bed.

The girl's family left its apartment here Sunday after learning of the identification and went to the home of a relative in nearby Garland.

Mrs. Wayne Hogan, an aunt, said Mrs. Baughman was "resting comfortably," but would not talk to reporters.

"The hardest part now is accepting the truth. It's been a long, very hard four months. The waiting is over, but what a dreadful way for it all to end," Mrs. Hogan said.

Carter sets news meeting this afternoon

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will hold a White House news conference at 2:30 p.m. today.

The news conference will be carried live by all three commercial television networks.

Carter is expected to be asked about his charges that Congress caved in to special interests last week when it killed his proposal for a standby gasoline tax and a tax rebate for purchasers of fuel-efficient cars.

The news conference will be Carter's ninth since taking office.

Aide's assignment: tame bureaucracy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter is giving his newest White House assistant a task likely to become one of the most important in the administration's effort to tame and housebreak the elephant that is the federal bureaucracy.

Richard Pettigrew, whom Carter appointed assistant for government reorganization 10 days ago, says the President has given him the job of building a public constituency for reorganization — a constituency aware of "what's at stake" in the effort and ready to support it when the going gets tough.

What's at stake, says Pettigrew, is making government manageable.

The going will get tough. Pettigrew knows it. He was speaker of the Florida House and reshuffled the government there a few years ago. He knows about battles with bureaucrats and special interests and legislators with stakes in the status quo.

"There are going to be disagreements about particular plans, there's no question about that," Pettigrew said in a recent interview. "But what we're trying to do is to involve as many people as possible."

To that end, Pettigrew is arranging public hearings, seminars, conferences, committees and task forces. He's inviting counsel straight from the public — "whoever wants to supply information, make recommendations and offer solutions." Send them directly to him: 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue, Washington, D.C.

People who participate in reorganization will understand it better and develop their own stake in it, he says. Then, when reorganization gets threatened by the congressional and special interest constituencies for each of the 2,000 departments, agencies, commissions, boards and committees in the government, the President can appeal to this public constituency for help.

"It's the President's conviction that in order for reorganization to be successful it's going to have to be a cooperative effort with Congress, and there's going to have to be a broad-based understanding of the objectives of reorganization by the public at large, as well as the broadest possible participation in it," Pettigrew said.

Special interest groups and congressional staffs will be invited to the hearings, seminars, conferences and committees, too, Pettigrew said, "so that everybody has had their say, has had their shot in the decision-making process.

"Then, when something is recommended to Congress it can be properly represented that the best thinking that has been developed previously in the Congress has been looked at and the interest groups who feel that they are very directly affected have been consulted.

"That'll give us the best chance of a successful achievement of our goals," he said.

Energy hatchet group looks at business tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee, whose rejection of three White House energy proposals brought sharp criticism from President Carter, is about to decide whether businesses should get a new tax break for conserving fuel.

The panel will vote later this week on still another Carter energy proposal, one which would sharply increase U.S. oil prices and raise the cost of a gallon of gasoline by nearly eight cents.

But heading the committee's agenda today was the President's plan to give businesses a tax credit of 10 per cent of the cost of their investments in such energy-saving equipment as insulation and solar heating and cooling systems. Similar credits for homeowners and renters were approved last week.

While the Ways and Means Committee considers various energy taxes all week, the full House plans to vote on several appropriations bills for the 12 months that begin on Oct. 1.

Included are two bills that could produce the first veto of the Carter administration. The $10.2 billion public works appropriation has raised the President's ire because of congressional insisence that funding continue for 17 water projects that he opposes.

The other bill would appropriate $61.3 billion for the Departments of Labor and of Health, Education and Welfare. This bill, which carries money for numerous social programs, is about $1.4 billion above what the President requested for HEW alone.

The Senate, meanwhile, will focus its attention on foreign affairs. Votes are expected this week on bills authorizing foreign-aid spending and increasing U.S. participation in international lending organizations.

The Ways and Means Committee, which handles all tax legislation in the House, ripped apart Carter's energy-tax proposals last week. The panel rejected outright a standby gasoline tax of up to 50 cents a gallon, which would go into effect only if conservation goals are not met, and turned down a plan for federal bonuses of up to $500 for persons who buy fuel-efficient cars.

Carter's proposed tax on cars that get poor gasoline mileage was defeated in favor of a much milder version. And another panel, the House commerce subcommittee on energy and power, voted to remove price regulations from new natural gas, which Carter opposes.

The White House reacted quickly. Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Carter accused Congress of knuckling under to pressure from the oil and automobile lobbies.

He quoted Carter as saying, "The people of this country will be the ones to suffer if our hopes for an energy plan are thwarted. They will be the ones to pay for ... (Friday's) special interest victories."

Rosalynn to talk to Vance

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Rosalynn Carter will meet with Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance and may appear before congressional committees to report on her two-week journey to Latin America.

After a hectic seven-nation tour, the First Lady planned to rest today and talk with Vance, who leaves Tuesday for an Organization of American States meeting on the Caribbean island of Grenada.

White House spokesmen say Frank Moore, the President's legislative liaison, has discussed the possibility that Mrs. Carter will report on her trip to congressional foreign relations committees.

Mrs. Carter, who flew home Sunday from Caracas, Venezuela, gave her first report to her husband on arrival at Andrews Air Force Base: "They all love you in the Caribbean and Latin America."

She then launched into details of her trip as she, the President and daughter Amy flew by helicopter back to the White House.

As Mrs. Carter concluded her first diplomatic trip, there was talk that she might make more trips. Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, said he "would not exclude the possibility."

During a press conference en route home from Venezuela, Mrs. Carter said she wasn't looking quite that far ahead but did say she feels she will be able to prepare better for the next trip.

Despite briefings, Mrs. Carter said she did not realize to "what depth" her talks would go or "how willing and eager to talk leaders were because they know I can take the message back to Jimmy."

Mrs. Carter said she started off her discussions with Latin American leaders by telling them "our foreign policy was going to be more open, wider, just like our domestic policy."

She said she knew of no adverse reactions from Latin American leaders to her meeting with two American missionaries in Recife, Brazil, who said they had been brutally mistreated in prison.

She avoided comment on student protests and arrests during her visit to Brazil. Although her decision to meet with the two men was seen as an affirmation of the President's human rights policy, she said, "I did not think about it being a big deal."

"They were Americans, had asked to see me, and I wanted to see them. I enjoyed talking with them," she said.

Boren calls session

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The Oklahoma Legislature was to convene at noon today for a special session to consider seven major appropriation bills — and Gov. David Boren's call for a proposed constitutional amendment to limit the length of future sessions.

The regular session ended last Wednesday when the constitutional deadline expired with much of the necessary appropriation work unfinished, forcing Boren to call a special session.

But the governor, instead of agreeing that the legislators need more time, said they need less. In a statewide television and radio address Sunday, he urged the legislature to approve a constitutional amendment to curtail future sessions.

He also called on the voters to put pressure on the legislature to see that it is passed.

Senate President Pro Tem Gene Howard and House Speaker Bill Willis, as expected, opposed the governor's plan, but they stopped short of saying they won't allow it to be considered during the special session, which they hope to limit to five days.

Sessions currently are limited to 90 legislative meeting days. Boren said the 90-day limit is acceptable for odd-numbered years, but he said sessions in even-numbered years should be held to 60 days "to consider only the budget" and emergency matters.

Ray escape stumps officials

By RICHARD PYLE
Associated Press Writer

BRUSHY MOUNTAIN, Tenn. (AP) — The questions linger in the James Earl Ray escape story:

—How did seven convicts get under a live electric wire that dangled less than a foot above the top of the prison wall?

—Why didn't guards in the wall towers notice the breakout in progress?

—And perhaps the most puzzling of all, how was the escape ladder, a contraption of more than 20 pieces of pipe screwed together, made in secret?

Tennessee Gov. Ray Blanton's theory on the 2,300-volt cable is that the fugitives used a notch in the wall to bypass it.

Blanton said Sunday that investigators have found marks on the prison wall where it meets a rock cliff that helps form one side of the compound. There is a gap between the wall and the cliff, creating a notch that makes the wall lower at this point and provides more space beneath the cable. Investigators think the marks on the wall came from a makeshift ladder used for the escape, Blanton said.

C. Murray Henderson, corrections commissioner, said the gap apparently worsened because severe winter weather eroded the aging stone wall.

Another theory concerns a power outage at the prison. Henderson acknowledged that there was an outage the night of the escape, but he said it happened after the breakout and lasted only minutes.

The official explanation for guards failing to spot the breakout is that other prisoners collaborated with the escapees by staging a fight and other minor disturbances in the prison yard to distract the guards.

The only gunfire came from Tower 3, a wall observation post more than 150 yards across the compound. It slightly wounded Jerry Ward, the last man to make it over the wall. Ward was recaptured almost immediately.

Another guard post less than 50 yards away was empty because it is manned "only in emergencies," according to Davis and Henderson. Neither defined an "emergency."

The ladder was custom-designed for the job, with a key-shaped foot at the bottom to keep it away from the wall and an angled piece at the top that fit almost perfectly across the wall. It also could be concealed in pieces and quickly assembled.

The Pampa police activity report for the weekend includes investigation of four burglaries, a theft, one accident with injury and one non-injury accident.

Katherine Diane Shorter, 18, of 207 N. Ward, is in good condition at Highland General Hospital today after she was struck by a motorcycle in the 700 block of W. Francis about 10 p.m. Sunday.

The motorcycle, ridden by Curtis Wayne Matlock, 18, of 401 Yeager, was westbound on Francis when the mishap occurred. Ms. Shorter was walking in the west lane of Francis. Police said Matlock was not cited.

Burglars entered 1001 S. Farley through an unlocked door and removed a 19-inch color television, and thieves took tape cases and tapes from two cars parked at the swimming pool.

A woman told police her purse was taken from her car which was parked at a local grocery store. The purse was later found south of Pampa. Some of the contents were missing.

Five puppies were reported taken from the yard at 937 E. Scott.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms carrying gusty winds, hail and heavy rain over the South and central Great Plains states diminished overnight, with a few scattered storms roaming over parts of Texas, Colorado, Nebraska, the Dakotas and Kansas.

Southeastern Nebraska endured the severe storms that occurred after sunset, with hail the size of golf balls reported in Bladen. Flash floods were reported in Rapid City, S.D., with three cars in the parking lot of the Reptile Gardens tourist attraction reported washed some distance. No other damage was reported but pea-sized hail that accumulated to 1½ feet fell.

Cloudy or partly cloudy skies dominated the nation at sunrise, with mostly clear skies over Virginia and Alabama in the east and western Texas, eastern Colorado and the southwest desert regions.

Predawn temperatures across the nation ranged from 40 degrees at Sawyer Air Force Base in Marquette, Mich., to 83 in Blythe and Needles, Calif., and in Phoenix.

National weather

By The Associated Press

Thunderstorms packing winds in excess of 50 miles per hour and two inches of rain have brought an abrupt halt to scorching hot weather in much of North Texas, but 100-plus readings were still forecast in Southwest Texas today.

Dallas Love Field got a 2.01 inch downpour late Sunday along with near-hurricane force winds. Tree limbs and power lines were downed in both Dallas and Fort Worth, which got only .36 inches of rain officially.

Both cities recorded late afternoon temperatures of 100 degrees before the storm hit, but despite its punch, the severe weather at least had a welcome cooling effect.

A possible tornado was sighted at Sulphur Springs hn the early evening.

The area from the Big Bend to Lubbock, far South Texas and Central Texas also had severe thunderstorms Sunday, with Palacios and Brownsville both reporting more than 1½ inches of rainfall.

Early today, Central and East Texas were buffeted with thunderstorms again, with the heaviest activity along a line from near Paris southward into the Waco-Austin area. Other thundershowers were reported in the vicinity of both Corpus Christi and Galveston on the coast.

Meanwhile the thunderstorms that brought locally heavy rains to portions of West Texas Sunday night had generally dissipated.

Early morning temperatures ranged from 60 degrees at El Paso in far West Texas while much of the southeastern two-thirds of the state reported readings in the 70s, with Beaumont-Port Arthur and McAllen recording 77s.

Forecasters said temperatures would stay warm today, with readings in the upper 90s to near 102 expected in portions of Southwest Texas.

In addition to Dallas and Fort Worth, El Paso and Presidio reached the 100 mark Sunday.

Suit challenges SA

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A $750 million class action suit has been filed challenging the legality of the city's 18-month ban on construction over the Edwards aquifer and its recharge zone.

The suit was filed by attorney Seagal Wheatley, who said his clients would seek an injunction before June 19, when the ban goes into effect.

The city council last Thursday ordered the construction freeze over the aquifer pending receipt of a study of the effects of urbanization on the water supply.

The Edwards is San Antonio's only source of fresh water.

Wheatley said the class action suit claims inverse condemnatio, or the seizure of land by government without just compensation, which is unconstitutional.

The three plaintiffs named in the suit are a developer, a landowner and a real estate agent, all with interests in the aquifer area.

They seek damages on behalf of all persons with similar interests.

City Atty. Jim Parker had told the council before its 6-4 vote last week that such suits could be expected if the ban was approved.

Advice

Dear Abby
By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am a 54-year-old woman who wants to thank you for the best present I have ever received.

Because of an item in your column, I sent for The Living Will. Now I have peace of mind, knowing that if I should become terminally ill, those who love me will not have to endure the agony of watching me die slowly. (I went through 22 months of that when my husband died of cancer.)

Abby, you would be doing your readers a tremendous service by explaining The Living Will and telling them how to obtain one.

B. J. IN CONCORD

DEAR B. J.: The Living Will is simply a document that reads as follows:

To my family, my physician, my lawyer, my clergyman.

To any medical facility in whose care I happen to be.

To any individual who may be responsible for my health, welfare or affairs:

Death is as much a reality as birth, growth, maturity and old age—it is the one certainty of life. If the time comes when I, , can no longer take part in decisions for my own future, let this statement stand as an expression of my wishes while I am still of sound mind.

If the situation should arise in which there is no reasonable expectation of my recovery, I request that I be allowed to die and not be kept alive by artificial means or "heroic measures." I do not fear death itself as much as the indignities of deterioration, dependence and hopeless pain. I therefore ask that medication be mercifully administered to me to alleviate suffering even though this may hasten the moment of death.

This request is made after careful consideration. I hope you who care for me will feel morally bound to follow its mandate. I recognize that this appears to place a heavy responsibility upon you, but it is with the intention of relieving you of such responsibility and of placing it upon myself in accordance with my strong convictions that this statement is made.

To date more than two million Living Wills have been distributed. (Yes, I have signed one.)

I am absolutely opposed to killing for any reason. However, should it be determined that there is positively no hope for my recovery, I believe that it is my right to be allowed to die with dignity.

A California reader donated $1,000 to my favorite charity for acquainting him with The Living Will.

A Texan wrote: "I want a Living Will because when Gabriel blows his horn, no S.O.B. is going to keep me from going."

I requested six copies, and sent a check for $6 to cover cost of documents and mailing. It's tax deductible.

If you send for The Living Will, please be patient. I promise your request will not be overlooked. Be sure you enclose your name and address, clearly written.

The Living Will or the directive for your state can be obtained by writing to The Euthanasia Educational Council, 250 West 57th Street, New York, N.Y. 10019, a non-profit organization. And if your state has passed the law making The Living Will legally enforceable, you will be sent the "directive" adopted in your state.

Everyone has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Ask Dr. Lamb
Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My daughter is 17 and a senior in high school. She has a keloid on one of her ears which grew after her ears were pierced. The earrings given to her looked expensive but later the ear became swollen and started to get a little infected. I took them out at once and after it seemed to be healed the little bump formed and kept growing larger and larger.

Finally I took her to a surgeon. She was 13 then. The doctor cut if off but he said it would grow back. At 15 she had surgery again and now it has grown back again.

Dr. Lamb, please give me some information. Are there any ear specialists? Can't the root be cut out so it won't grow back? Every two years she has this problem. It's bugging me and it is very embarrassing to her.

Also her ear hurts her.

DEAR READER — Keloids arise froms scar tissue. You cannot cut without forming a scar and a person prone to keloids is very apt to have another keloid grow out of the scar tissue from surgically removing an old keloid.

Your letter should serve as a warning that ear piercing is not without its complications.

I think your daughter should see a dermatologist. If he thinks the keloids can be removed surgically he may want your daughter to have X-ray treatment just in the area of the surgery. This sometimes helps to prevent a regrowth of another keloid out of the new scar tissue.

DEAR DR. LAMB — For several weeks I had an ache in my right temple. The hinge of my jaw bone was sore, making a cracking noise. It hurt to chew and there was soreness under my jaw.

I tired to get an appointment with my husband's doctor, but before I did my husband had to go for an emergency so his doctor gave me about five minutes — felt my jaw, looked at my throat and mouth, and asked if I have arthritis. He said he would have the nurse give me an injection which would "take care of it."

This was weeks ago and I am still having trouble. In the early morning hours I wake with the side of my head really hurting. I keep a towel pinned around it at night for warmth. My jaw no longer cracks. During the day my head feels pretty good except that occasionally I get a pain like an electrical current going through the temple and sometimes a sharp stab of pain in my ear.

Somehow I never thought of one getting arthritis in the head. Can all this be arthritis? I am 65 years old.

DEAR READER — Yes, you can have arthritis of the hinge of the jaw. It is a joint and is subject to the same problems of other joints.

I think you should make an appointment to see a dentist. Many problems of that joint can be best managed by a dentist and he may be able to give you some relief from your problem. It is important to know if it is arthritis or a dental problem affecting the joint.

Readers who want information about arthritis can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 4-10, Osteoarthritis: Degenerative or Wear and Tear Arthritis. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Mail your request to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1561, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR POLLY — I want to tell Mary R.B. who has crepe paper stains on her table top that I have used a fine brand of silver polish to remove stains from table and server tops quite a few times and with excellent results. Psychologist analyzes Farrah's style

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Here you've got Farrah Fawcett-Majors; there you've got Dorothy Hamill.

And scurrying to their hairdressers for the jungle look of one or the tossability of the other are women everywhere.

Which they choose — assuming they're drawn to either — says something about them which Dr. Judith Waters is in a position to ponder.

She's a psychologist on the faculty of Brooklyn College with a special interest in physical appearance.

But first a disclaimer.

"I wouldn't invest too much psychological meaning in every hair style that comes along," she says. "Styles are pushed by the media and very often husbands want their wives to be in fashion."

Very often the wives themselves want that, although more often today women want one style they can play with, pull back, pin up, let down. "We want to jog during the day and go out at night and we won't be prevented from taking an active part in life because we can't do a thing with our hair."

Okay, let's get to Fawcett-Majors and Hamill, hyphenated names first.

For openers, "Farrah's style isn't threatening to men," Dr. Waters says. "You have to spend a lot of time on hair like that which implies a return to the traditional role of women." The idle, unliberated lady at home dallying with her tresses.

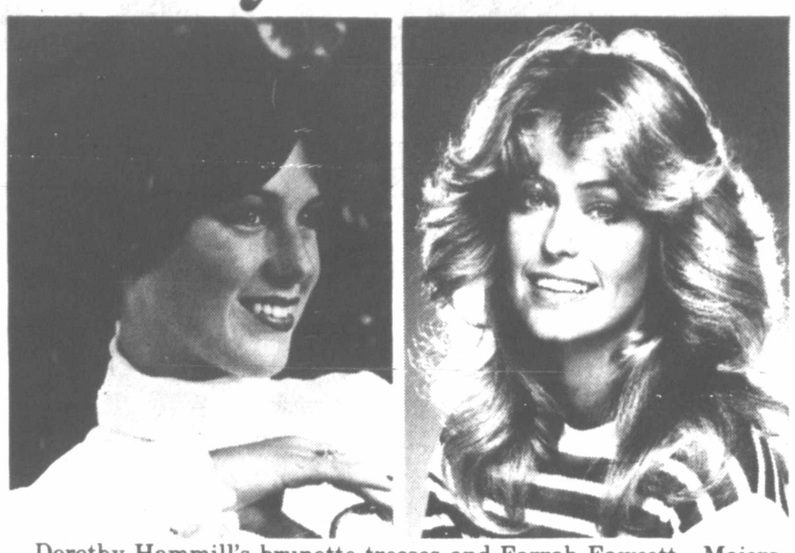

"And it's more openly sexual than a lot of other hairdos. Men can run their fingers through it, they can touch it," and that, she says, speaks of reality rather than artificiality.

"We were involved for a long time with teased hairdos that couldn't be touched and had to be wrapped at night. You could go into a beauty salon every week and the operator wouldn't know if you were coming or going. If your hair isn't touched, what kind of life are you living? If you don't comb it from one week to the next, you're more concerned with superficiality than reality."

So Farrah's hair style shrieks of tradition, sensuality and down to shoulders realism.

Her hair color says other things. Treading carefully here — if the shade is natural, then its blondeness connotes childhood with its "innocent, virginal look."

"That, incidentally, is why Alfred Hitchcock likes to use blondes in his films," Dr. Waters says. "Blood on blondes has more shock value."

Dorothy Hammill's brunette tresses and Farrah Fawcett - Majors high - lighted blonde hair both suggest reality rather than untouchable artificiality.

Grisliness aside, natural blonde hair also makes you look younger. "But," she cautions, "we wouldn't like to see Farrah's style on Marlene Dietrich, for instance, because that would say — here's a person who can't let go of youth." And that's disturbing to the young who dread ending up that way themselves.

Continuing with color, when you get to blatantly bottled blondeness, "You're dealing with part of a total package. You don't do your hair one way and dress another. If you see long, bleached blonde hair along with hot pants and hip boots, say, you're pretty sure you have a certain kind of person because we attribute traits to people based on their appearance."

There's nothing wrong with bottled sun, of course — Dr. Waters openly admits to streaking her own brown hair — but the less artificial it appears, the better.

And the more gradually you effect the change, the better, perhaps.

"Sometimes a drastic change in hair color is threatening to people," she says. "You may not be trustworthy any longer. If you show up at a church supper suddenly as a blonde, every woman will pull her husband away."

The chances of their pulling them away from the Dorothy Hamill look, however, need scarcely be mentioned.

First, Ms. Hamill is a brunette and that says she's eminently trustworthy.

"Because the color is natural, brunettes are thought to be more stable," the doctor explains.

And these days, the shortness of her hair indicates only a desire for manageability and a flattering silhouette. It holds none of the meaning that short hair, well, very short hair, has held in the past.

"Nuns as well as recluses cut their hair as a symbol of giving up their interest in sexuality and worldly goods," she says. "The hair is a direct link to the genitals. That's why men think they're losing their sexual powers when they lose their hair."

Hairdresser calls cutting art

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Richard Stein of New York is a very unusual hairdresser. He doesn't brush hair or color it. He doesn't curl it or tease it or spray it. He just washes it and cuts it.

"I strive for an anti-coiffeur look — a really natural hairdo — cut perfectly for easy care at home between haircuts, a haircut that is unique for the individual."

Most beauty parlor ministrations "are addictive," in his opinion. If you begin using a hair conditioner, you must continue using it; color or bleach must be maintained or hair roots will darken. Or it might be a permanent wave that will need to be kept up, he said.

"Hair care has become too big a deal for women. And too expensive. Why put a lot of energy into devices — curlers, pin curls, sprays and so on—when you can, instead, give all that time to improving the hair itself," he says.

"I am trying to introduce a European approach to haircutting, treating it as a craft, an art, a very serious business," explained Stein, who was born in London and apprenticed there at 15, coming to the United States 10 years ago. "We want to show customers how to care for their hair between haircuts, a period of about two months."

It takes 30 to 45 minutes to get one of the super haircuts at his salon, where his staff has been trained in the technique. It is all done with scissors and comb.

At the end of the cut, the hair is almost dry, anyway, he points out. If a little help in drying is needed, a blow dryer is used for a few moments, otherwise no heat is used. He doesn't use hair brushes, which "can break the hair."

"It is really an uphill struggle, though, to sell the idea," the 29-year-old father of two explained. "But once a woman has such a haircut, she usually is thrilled."

As if to confirm his statement, one of his young customers who had just had a haircut by a member of his staff eagerly volunteered her pleasure. Her own slight wave was stimulated into body and movement that provided a kind of controlled bounce.

"If you understand what hair will do, you can find haircutting a great challenge, providing possibilities for changing styles with one cut. It need not be covered with rollers, teased or sprayed," Stein maintains.

For spring he anticipates longer layered hair. To get it in shape he suggests washing it once a day with seven parts water to one part shampoo because "most shampoos are too concentrated and leave a film on the hair." If the shampoo is diluted, the hair can be washed each day.

And if you want to condition it, try mayonnaise — use a few tablespoons of it, combing it through the hair, cover it with a shower cap and leave the cap on for two hours before shampooing the hair several times. It is a good treatment for dry, coarse hair, he said.

Liquid vitamin E and baby oil are other good hair conditioners, Stein says. Apply the oil to dry areas with a cotton pad, wearing rubber gloves. Soak a towel in very hot water, wringing it and wrapping it around the head. Leave it on until the heat dissipates.

To give hair a sheen, rinse it with a mixture of equal parts of nettles, rosemary and dill (two teaspoons of each) that has been steeped in a pint of hot water for about one half-hour. Use the strained cool liquid as a final rinse, he suggests.

New York haircutter Richard Stein shows two versions of his new longer - back look which are possible from one haircut.

Parole head calls for overhaul

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Chairman Paul Cromwell of the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles said Sunday the board's six commissioners don't take orders, and this hampers its work.

Cromwell, who is quitting July 1 to take a job as Tarrant County director of juvenile services in Fort Worth, called for a drastic overhaul.

He made his statements on "State Capitol Dateline," an interview program broadcast on the Wendell Mayes stations.

The commissioners are independently appointed to help the board expedite its work and deal more directly with convicts than the three board members.

"The board cannot fire a commissioner. . . . . We had some commissioners spending a great deal of time going about their own business, or being involved in other areas of the agency where their duties did not lie. Their duties are primarily to interview people for parole and make parole decisions. I asked the commissioners on numerous occasions to stick to the parole function, to stay on the (prison) units as much as possible, to confine their traveling, attending seminars and so forth, to conserve funds as well as to conserve time . . . The commissioners in most cases refused to follow these directions. There were no sanctions available to me. Under the current administrative set-up, this is a very inefficient way to operate," Cromwell complained.

He said a bill making the commissioners appointees of the board and placing them under its authority passed the Senate but died in the House "after a great deal of lobbying by the parole commissioners."

"I don't think you can run an agency of this size with nine people making independent decisions," he said.

Not all is bleak on the parole scene, Cromwell said. Only seven per cent of parolees have been returned to prison in the past five years, compared with the 26-year average of 20 per cent, he said.

"So I feel our efforts here are not futile," he said.

He said he hoped he wouldn't have to make a decision on a death penalty commutation case before leaving the board and asserted that execution does not deter murder.

Most murders are spontaneous, he said, and "in the few cases were it has been premeditated and planned and thought out, the people who did it did not think of the consequences because they did not think they would be caught."

This amounts to about $218 billion. In contrast, the entire federal government spent $365.7 billion in 1976 — $65 billion more than it was budgeted to take in. Which proves practically nothing, but it is interesting.

If you wonder why we're in the midst of an energy crisis, you might note that among the top ten industrials, only one company — IBM — has nothing directly to do with the development, manufacture, distribution or use of energy.

Bidding 'spirited' at auction

WINNSBORO, Tex. (AP) — Buyers pouring into this East Texas town almost doubled its population Satuday when the assets of Malvin Cain, the Cain Banking Company and several of its creditors went on the auction block.

The sale was ordered by U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Joe D. Huffstutler to secure funds to pay off depositors and unsecured creditors of the Cain bank, one of a handful of private banks in Texas until its closing earlier this year.

Proceeds will also be used for creditors of four other companies, three of which were forced into bankruptcy when the Cain Banking Company folded following the suicide of Malvin Cain last January.

Betty Lewis, of Wayne Cook Auctioneers & Appraisers, Inc., said she had registered 1,500 persons from all over the country by 11 a.m. for the sale, which was expected to last into the night.

The auction began at the Cain homestead where Mrs. Lewis said the bidding was "spirited."

The death of Cain, a 63-year-old bachelor, shocked this town of about 3,200, located about 100 miles from Dallas. About 2,500 persons had placed approximately $4,500,000 in the bank, officials said.

Grayford Jones, owner of the Winnsboro News, said at the time of Cain's death that Cain left a suicide note alluding to the fact that he had made a mistake in overextending himself to some local businessmen.

The Cain bank, which paid no interest on savings accounts while servicing checking accounts and making loans, was not insured by the federal government.

Officials said the bank had more than $1 million in outstanding loans to two businessmen.

Cain wrote a will the night he killed himself directing that his estate be sold for the benefit of the bank's depositors.

Cain was technically the manager of the bank while his mother, Susan, was the owner.

Different approaches to the same subject produced three masterworks of Renaissance art on display in the new Italian wing of the Detroit Institute of Arts. Painting of the "Madonna and Child with Cherubim," left, is by the 15th - century artist Benozzo Gozzoli. Madonna and Child sculptures in marble, center, and silver, right, are from the same period.

Moses' hurdles record highlights AAU meet

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Hurdler Edwin Moses might have been nudged out of the limelight if Dwight Stones had been successful at one of his last three high jump attempts. But as it turned out, Moses was the man of the meet at the National AAU Track & Field Championships.

A quiet and studious physics major at Atlanta's Morehouse College, Moses even did a little showboating, laughing and throwing buttons bearing his picture into the stands as he took a victory lap.

His jubilation was warranted.

Moses, who had set a world record in winning the Olympic gold medal in the 400-meter hurdles at Montreal, rewrote the mark Saturday, the final day of the three-day AAU meet at UCLA.

In a race that was supposed to be close between Moses and NCAA champion Tom Andrews, Moses won by 10 meters. He was timed in 47.45 seconds, bettering his earlier world standard of 47.64. Andrews finished second in 49.03.

"I heard all the talk about Tom Andrews," said Moses, who passed up this year's NCAA meet.

"So I decided to put the afterburners on. I feel I can run faster. I haven't been training as hard as I did last year when I was pointing for the Olympics."

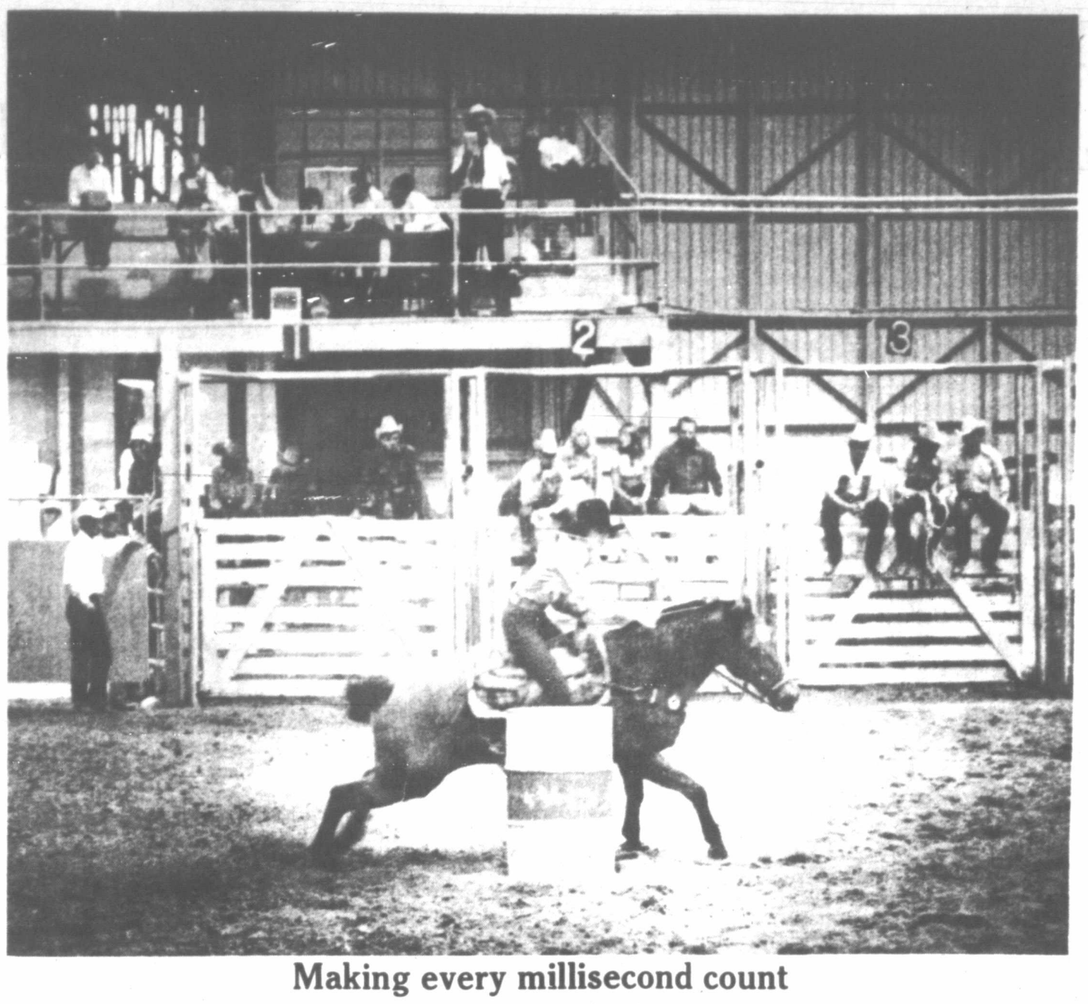

Moses, who has complained recently that he has not received the recognition deserved by an Olympic champion and world record-holder, almost had to share the limelight at the AAU meet.

But Stones, shooting for his own world record of 7-7¼ in the high jump, missed three times at 7-7¾. His good jump at 7-6¼ won the event for him, however.

Moses and Stones, along with other American winners — or top finishers — at the AAU meet became eligible to represent the United States at the inaugural World Cup Games next September in Dusseldorf, West Germany.

That meet is seen as an annual international championship to be held in non-olympic years.

Other highlights of the AAU competition included Steve Scott's upset of Kenyan Wilson Waigwa in the 1,500 meters. Waiga had whipped Scott in the NCAA finals, but Scott, of UC-Irvine, ran a 3:37.29 here to nip Waigwa at the tape.

Making every millisecond count

Finishing third in barrel race competition at the Tri-State High School Rodeo Association Finals was Regina Benyshek of Pampa with a time of 28.877 seconds on two runs. In a contest where thousandths, not hundredths, of seconds count — the Pampa barrel racer trailed the second place finisher by .042 seconds and the winner by .093 seconds — Benyshek rounds one barrel and pushes her horse on to the next. She went to the finals in fifth place in the barrel race. Other Pampans placing in the finals were Ronnie Hill with a second in bull riding and Greg Terrell with a third in the bulls. Lesa Stewart was first in breakaway roping. Competitors at the finals were the top 15 contestants in each event.

Porsche victory 'saves' Le Mans

LE MANS, France (AP) — A record fourth triumph by Belgian Jackie Ickx in a Martini Porsche Turbo 936 may well have saved the Le Mans 24 hour endurance race for yet another year.

The triumph of the German car in this weekend's dramatic edition of the race dealt a severe blow to the ambitions and prestige of the Renault Alpine team, which had entered four cars and dominated the first part of the race only to see its entries knocked out one by one.

"We just cannot avoid coming back again next year," said Renault team manager Gerard Larrousse, himself a winner here in 1973 and 1974.

He was clearly referring to the $350,000 the state-owned French company had invested in preparing the Le Mans team, hoping to sweep the event and then concentrate on Formula I racing starting early next month in the French Grand Prix at Dijon.

With costs soaring and the German Porsches dominating endurance races and the manufacturers' championship, most car builders have concentrated on Formula I, and Le Mans has gradually slipped.

LPGA to Japanese

NORTH MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — A jubilant Chako Higuchi said after winning the Ladies Professional Golf Association Championship Sunday, "It's going to be a great thing in Japan."

"I'm so happy, I'm speechless," the Japanese pro said through her interpreter, Margaret Narumi, a UCLA graduate. "It's a dream to come here and be able to win."

Mrs. Higuchi made the traditional Japanese head bow to the gallery at the first tee of the Bay Tree Plantation course and went on to finish the final round with a 69 for a 72-hole total of 279, nine-under-par. She won $22,500.

Mrs. Higuchi finished three strokes ahead of Pat Bradley, Sandra Post and Judy Rankin, who tied for second with 282s and earned $10,953 apiece.

Mrs. Higuchi said she deliberately did not look at the scoreboard until after the last of her five birdies, on the 15th hole. "It was not until that point she knew she was going to win," Miss Namuri said.

The 31-year-old winner also had two bogeys and 11 pars. Three of the birdies and two of the bogeys came on the back nine.

Overseas horseman challanges Slew

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

If horses were like prize fighters, the air would be ringing today with grandiose plans for a knock-down, drag-out duel for racing's 3-year-old "Championship of the World."

The principals would be Seattle Slew, America's new wonder horse, and the pride of the British Isles, The Minstrel, winner of the English Derby. Pronounce it "Darby," please.

The site would be a neutral one — Paris. The event: the Arc de Triomphe, one of Europe's classics. Besides the thundering hooves of the season's most notable sophomores, the test also would match the wits of French-born Jean Cruguet, Seattle Slew's reinsman, and Lester Piggott, the leathery British veteran who rode The Minstrel to Piggott's eighth English Derby victory.

Such a race boggles the imagination, but it won't take place — not this year, at least.

"I wouldn't think of it this year," said Billy Turper, the tall, soft-spoken trainer of Seattle Slew. "It would be too much of a strain on this horse. Next year? Maybe, we'll wait and see."

Vincent O'Brien, Irish trainer of the English Derby champion, had his challenge flying across the Atlantic well before Seattle Slew destroyed seven rivals in the 1½ mile Belmont Stakes and became the 10th horse in more than 100 years of thoroughbred racing to capture the Triple Crown — the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont.

He became the first ever to do it without a single splotch on his record.

"I reckon we would welcome a shot at Seattle Slew in the Arc de Triomphe in September," O'Brien said with typical British restraint. "We rather think we could take him."

Seattle Slew now has won nine races in a row, without a defeat, and he's going to be permitted to munch on oats in his stall and take it easy for a while.

If anybody gets a shot at him in the near future, it will be Forego, king of the stakes winners.

Trap trophy won by woman novice

AMARILLO, Tex. (AP) — A 25-year-old woman who has been shooting for just less than a year has captured first place honors in the handicap competition at the annual Texas State Trapshooters tournament.

Dolores Wilkerson of Big Spring, who weighs 125 pounds, and had been shooting for only 51 weeks, outscored about 400 other shooters to take the handicap event.

It was the second time in the history of the event that a woman took first place and only the second time that the winner had a perfect 100x100 score.

A.D. Horner of Wichita Falls won first place in the singles competition.

Horner defeated Neal Crausbay of Sweetwater, Troy Collier of Wichita Falls and Willia E. Sharp of San Antonio. Horner won the shootoff with a perfect score of 25x25 after all four finished the regular round with 199x200 scores.

Runner up in the handicap event was Robert Fussell of Houston, who scored 99x100. He defeated three other shooters, Luke Rampey of El Paso, Don Radtke of Midland and Troy Collier of Wichita Falls in a one-round shootoff.

Geiberger wins Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Al Geiberger, emotionally and mentally drained after what he called a double victory in the Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic, said he faces one major problem in this week's United States Open Championship.

"The hardest thing to do will be to come back down — return to reality," the soft-spoken Geiberger said.

He had a brief, historic excursion into realms bordering unreality in this event when he shot a phenomenal, record-breaking, 13-under-par 59 in Friday's second round.

That made up the best part of his winning total of 273, 15 under par on the 7,193-yard Colonial Country Club course and, he said, put him under double pressure.

"I'm mentally worn out," he said Sunday after his back-nine rally had produced a four-under-par 32 and a three-stroke victory over South African Gary Player and chipper Jerry McGee. "It's the most emotional thing I've gone through.

"It's like there were two tournaments," said Geiberger, a 39-year-old veteran who collected $40,000 from the total purse of $200,000 for his 11th tour triumph. "It's like the 59 was something separate, by itself, and the tournament was a different thing.

"I didn't have to win the tournament even after shooting the 59. And for a while, it looked like I wasn't going to."

He paused briefly and that shy smile crossed his face.

"It makes a lot better story this way," he said. "You know, in telling it later — and I'm sure I'm going to be telling it a lot of times — it'd be awful to say I shot 59 and then blew the tournament. This makes it a lot better."

Player shot a final 69 for 276. He was tied by McGee, who birdied the last hole for a 67 that clinched him a spot on the American Ryder Cup team.

PWGA tournament slated

The Pampa Women's Golf Association will hold its first Women's Partnership Low Ball Tournament on Tuesday, June 14th.

36 teams from throughout the Panhandle are entered in the event.

Coffee and rolls will be served in the Club House until 9:15, with the tee off slated for 9:30.

Local merchants have donated door prizes, and the championship prizes will be awarded during a luncheon at the conclusion of play.

Chapin-Simmons take Partnership Tournament

The team of Dan Chapin and Dr. Fred Simmons shot a combined score 188 to win the 13th annual Partnership Tournament of the Pampa Country Club, Sunday.

Four strokes back at 192 was the team of David Martindale - Jerry Hamilton, followed by Delmar Watkins - Joe Watkins, 193, Don Forsha - Tom Price, 194, Ken Giggy - Herman Jarrard, 195, Bush Jordan - Ralph Collingsworth, 196, and Howard Lockhard - J.E. Gibson, 197.

45 teams, all members of the Pampa Country Club, were entered in the tourney. Scoring was determined on Saturday by scores minus handicaps, and on Sunday by the best-ball handicap system.

Barrett-Gilbert win doubles at Borger

The Pampa Juniors fared better than the adults at the Borger Open Tennis Tournament which concluded Sunday.

In the Boys 18 singles, Kenny Barrett lost in the finals to Tommy Faulkner of Borger, 6-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Sam Gilbert of Pampa reached the semi-finals of the Boys 16 singles before losing to eventual champion David Wright of Amarillo.

David Walker lost the championship round to Amarillo's Blake O'Brien, 6-3, 6-3, in the Boys 12 singles.

However, the team of Barrett - Gilbert took home the only gold for Pampa by winning the Boys 16 Doubles, 6-3, 6-2, over the Amarillo team of Perkins - Sasser.

In Men's Doubles, Pampa's team of Laycock - Ellis lost in the semi-finals to Alpar - Sullivan, 6-1, 6-2.

The Pampa Women's B team of Durham - Brock also lost in the semifinals, 6-1, 6-2, to Borger's Facker - Ayers.

John White talks about D.C., new ag job

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — John White says he and Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland are working out well in harness as leaders of Jimmy Carter's farm team.

One reason, White says, is that both he and Bergland "have a little political background" which comes in handy around Washington where a wrong step can be as messy as in any old Texas barnyard.

White is deputy secretary of agriculture, the second-ranking job in the department. Until he was chosen by Carter three months ago, White was Texas commissioner of agriculture for 26 years and had had a voice in Texas politics right along.

Friends and some of his enemies say that White's easygoing ways and folksy humor can fool you. Underneath the Texas patina is a John White who can be tough as a buggy whip and twice as stinging when need be.

But for right now, White is enjoying life and saying nice thing about almost everybody. At least that was the way it was at an informal luncheon meeting with a group of reporters last week.

At 52, White could spend a hitch or two in the Carter administration and still have time to get back into Texas politics. At least he admits readily that these thoughts have crossed his mind.

"I told them I would maintain a very strong interest in politics there," White said. "I was, of course, an elected official, but I was also heavily involved in organizational and party affairs."

That was before he came to Washington and got into the full swing of working with Bergland in running USDA, helping evolve administration farm policy, making speeches and trying to placate angry wheat farmers who want higher prices.

"When I said that, I really didn't realize how time-consuming this operation was going to get," White said. "Nor do I even know what my legal standing would be (in relation to Texas politics). But I don't intend to lose interest it it."

Although White has spent most of his life in his native Texas — his father was a sharecropper — he is no novice around Washington. He was a farm trade negotiator for President Kennedy in 1963 and later served as a special trade representative to Greece, Vietnam and Yugoslavia for President Johnson.

"I always thought I had the best political office in Texas as commissioner," White said. "Texas is a little different than most states. The executive department of the Texas governor is basically a ceremonial office, it has no patronage to speak of and very little executive authority.

"So the commissioner of agriculture was one where you could get all the prerogatives of statewide elective office holding but folks didn't pay a hell of a lot of attention. You make a mistake or two and they forgive you, from time to to time.

"As long as you performed reasonably well, you have a lot of room to do whatever you felt like you could do. So I had a wide range of interests there.

As well as being commissioner of agriculture, I was able to take a great deal of interest in party affairs, and I enjoyed it very much."

White's wife, Nellie, likes to redo old houses. They are renting a townhouse at present but are looking at an old beat-up mansion in hopes of buying it.

"It's rough, I mean it is really rough," White said. "But it really has some potential if she can get 'em to accept our offer. So I'm not planning to leave within 30 days or anything like that."

White said he is favorably impressed by co-workers on the Carter farm team and gave Carol Tucker Foreman, in particular, high marks. Ms. Foreman, as she likes to be referred to, is assistant secretary for consumer affairs.

As a former executive director of the Consumer Federation of America and frequent critic of USDA policies, she has drawn considerable fire from some farm groups and members of Congress for her attitude.

Asked about the criticism of Ms. Foreman, White said there has not been as much sniping at her as he had expected.

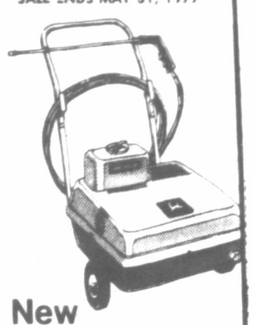

"I'll tell you, most of them have had a chance to be exposed to her and she comes off so well-informed that most of them are currently saying she's smart, she knows what she's talking about," White said.

And being informed is essential in Washington, he said.

"At home, you could get by with sweeping general statements a lot of times — a lot of time you could get by with it. But, up here, my usual biases and my emotional statements — regardless of how authoritative they're said — there's always somebody that's got some facts on the other side and you better have your facts, too, or you're beat.

"This is a town where style and presence is not enough. You've got to have your facts with you, too. Carol has got her facts together pretty good," he said. "That's helped more than anything."

Miners union ununited as election time nears

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United Mine Workers union is anything but united as it prepares to choose new leaders Tuesday in an election that could help determine the amount of coal the nation has next winter.

Only a clear-cut victory by one of the three candidates seeking the union's presidency would offer hope of restoring some stability to the troubled coal fields. But government labor experts and rank-and-file miners themselves see little chance of that happening and believe a nationwide coal strike is a strong possibility in December.

Many feel a divided union will make the coal companies more intransigent in contract talks this fall to replace the current agreement that expires Dec. 6.

The election is expected to be close, with the winner likely to have the support of less than a majority of the 277,000-member union, which includes 8,000 in Canada. One or both of the losers is expected to filelegal challenges.

The incumbent is Arnold R. Miller, 54, who led a reform-minded team that five years ago toppled the autocratic regime of W. A. (Tony) Boyle, later convicted of mudering a union rival.

Miller is being challenged by his former ally, Harry R. Patrick, 46, the union's current secretary-treasurer, who split with Miller last year, and by Lee Roy Patterson, 42, a member of the union's executive board who is identified with the old Boyle faction.

Miller is believed to be the frontrunner, with the power of incumbency behind him. Early in the campaign, Patterson was thought to have the edge because his two opponents were dividing the "reform" vote.

However, Patrick has gained on both rivals in recent weeks, picking up support among younger miners who joined the union in the last five years.

All three candidates have criss-crossed the Appalachian coalfields, campaigning in mine bathhouses and at local union halls, making promises to deliver benefits in the new contract that the coal companies may be unwilling to grant without a long strike.

HD clubs announce clinic on canning

A preservation clinic and a 4-H dress revue are among the summer activities scheduled for the Worthwhile Home Demonstration Club.

The clinic will be at 2 p.m. June 28 at the court house annex.

The 4-H dress revue is slated for July 19, with the 4-H rodeo Aug. 19 and 20. On Aug. 27 will be the 4-H and Senior Citizens Fair at the Clyde Carruth Pavilion.

Next meeting of the club will be June 17 at the home of Edythe West.

Names in the news

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — William Bailey, who went to prison in Michigan after being denied a seat in Rhode Island's legislature, was reported in satisfactory condition Saturday, two days after undergoing surgery for cancer.

Bailey, a 40-year-old Democrat from Providence, was serving a 2-to-4-year sentence in Southern Michigan Prison when it was discovered he had cancer of the rectum. The operation was Thursday.

He was convicted of stealing record albums from an Algonac, Mich., department store in 1975. When Bailey's record of larceny convictions in several states came to light, the Rhode Island House denied him the legislative seat he had won last November.

Michigan authorities demanded Bailey's return and he entered the prison last month after losing a court battle to remain free.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Polygamist Alex Joseph and one of his wives have filed a $4 million lawsuit in against two movie companies.

The action in 3rd District Court names William Edward Thrush Productions, Inc., and American Republic Pictures, Inc., as defendants, and Joseph and his wife Carmen as plaintiffs.

The Josephs allege the movie "Alex Joseph and His Wives" injures their reputations. Joseph lists an address in a Salt Lake suburb.

Joseph, who had one time claimed 13 wives, got national attention two years ago when he led a group of more than 100, most of them polygamists, in an attempt to homestead federal land in southern Utah. They eventually were evicted peacefully.

Joseph is an excommunicated Mormon and the founder of the Church of Jesus Christ in Solemn Assembly.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Income totaling $4 million from the estate of J. Paul Getty will be given to the Malibu museum founded by the industrialist.

Superior Court Judge Neil Lake ordered the distribution Friday at the request of Getty's son, Gordon Peter Getty, and Title Insurance and Trust Co., executors of Getty's will.

The amount, the executors said, is less than half the $8.74 million income earned on the estate between Getty's death June 6, 1976, and March 7, 1977.

The executors told Lake that Getty's estate, based on inventories, totals about $720 million.

LONDON (AP) — A former German officer in Gen. Erwin Rommel's Afrika Korps has been honored by Queen Elizabeth II for service in another violent conflict — the terrorist strife in Northern Ireland.

He is Werner Wolfgang Heubeck, 64, managing director of the Ulster Bus Co., who was awarded an Order of the British Empire in the Queen's Silver Jubilee Birthday Honors list Saturday.

Heubeck got his award for keeping Ulster's buses rolling during the past seven years of sectarian violence in the British province — and making a profit at the same time.

The balding Heubeck began World War II as an explosives officer in Rommel's Korps, and ended up in an American prisoner of war camp. He was an interpreter during the Nuremburg trials. Naturalized as a British citizen in 1948, he went to Northern Ireland in 1967.

14 die violently during weekend

By The Associated Press

Auto accidents as usual were a major cause of violent death in Texas over the weekend, but guns and knives added significantly to the grim total.

According to The Associated Press' weekend violent death count, at least 14 persons died in violence-related incidents between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

The tabulation included five traffic fatalities, five shooting deaths, two stabbing death, and two drownings.

The AP tally included the following deaths:

Jimmie E. Warren, 23, of Dallas was shot to death Sunday at a Dallas residence.

A 30-year-old Garland woman drowned Sunday night at the Garza Little Elm Reservoir at Lewisville after falling into the water from a boat. Her name was not released at once.

Algie Sims, 48, died Sunday in a Lubbock hospital from injuries he received Sunday morning in a traffic accident on a Lubbock street.

Ricky Small, 19, of Lubbock was killed Sunday in a traffic collision in Lubbock.

Claudio Salazar Benites, 23, of Marlin, was killed when his car went out of control and ran off Highway 7 five miles east of Marlin on Saturday, Department of Public Safety officials said.

Sharon Stout, 33, of Dallas, was stabbed once in the back with a butcher knife and killed during a domestic disturbance.

Richard Davis, 48, was shot five times in the chest with a .38 caliber pistol Saturday at his Dallas home.

The bodies of two men, identified as Richard L. Lamport and Ivan Michael Justice, both 34 and from Dallas, were found Saturday afternoon in a field in the Dallas suburb of Irving. Police said the men had been shot repeatedly with a large-caliber pistol and had been dead about five hours.

Sonya Marrows, 8, of Shallowater drowned in a private swimming pool at a party in Lubbock Saturday.

Althea Patterson, 18, of Fort Worth was shot to death Saturday morning.

Police found Roberto Villa, 21, of Fort Worth stabbed to death Friday night at the scene of a fight at a Fort Worth bar.

Clifton Matthew Goss, 22, of Fort Worth was killed instantly in a two-car collision at Fort Worth Friday night.

Gospelman

Gospelman comic strip works 'good'

Faster than a CB signal, more powerful than the U.S. Marines, able to defeat Hustler's Larry Flint with a single spanking . . . it's Gospelman.

Gospelman is the Christian comic strip creation of magazine publisher Walter Zacharius.

Zacharius, a one-time publisher of such girlie magazines as Swank and Gallery, is making Gospelman the superhero of his new family magazine, Nashville-Gospel, which is currently appearing on the stands. The Gospelman vs. Larry Flynt bout, which will appear soon, is seen by Zacharius as the "classic good vs. evil story."

Seem like strange words from a man who played the skin game himself for many years? Not really, says the born-again publisher. "Publishing that stuff is something you're either into, or not. Deep down I knew it was never for me. I couldn't go as far as Flynt, so I pulled out."

The Gospelman character is only one of the ways Nashville-Gospel aims at what Zacharius calls "the new American spirit." Other features in the first edition include "On the Road: Truckin for Jesus," "The Bible Belt Crime Wave," "Oral Roberts: God Doesn't Run a Bread Line" and "Amy Carter: New Kid on Pennsylvania Avenue." Amy is also Zacharius' new cover girl.

There is also one item which has proven controversial. "The Sensuous Van" spotlights "hometown honeys" posed in front of machines equipped for a "kinky, 90 mile-an-hour love life." Zacharius now admits the inspiration for that little bit of inspirationalism was off base. "It was a wrong judgement on my part. Something like that will never appear again."

After all, what would Gospelman think?

Cracks down on tax protestors

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — A government crackdown against protestors who claim that money from the U.S. Mint is counterfeit and income tax is unconstitutional is being centered in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, according to government sources.

Groups such as the Arlington Constitutional Caucus, Montana Patriots, the Little Peoples Tax Advisory Committee, the Christian Posse Comitatus, and the Tax Reform Immediately (TRIM) Committee of the John Birch Society are included in the anti-tax forces, sources say.

The Dallas Times Herald said Sunday that some of the groups have extreme pronouncements. For example, the Christian Posse Comitatus boasts of white male supremacy and calls on its members to hang from a tree at high noon any officials who violate the public trust.

This group has a platform that is anti-black, anti-Semitic and anti-bureaucracy, the sources told the newspaper.

In Fort Worth, 15 tax protesters were indicted this spring on federal charges of filing false tax exemptions. All are, or at one time have been, employed either at the Bell Helicopter plant or Miller Brewing Co.

The indictments contended they filed as many as 99 exemptions on their tax returns.

Eight of the tax protesters had been convicted, three entered guilty pleas, one pleaded no contest, one faces a second trial after the first ended in a hung jury by Friday and two others go on trial Monday.

The protesters remain unruffled and determined despite the setbacks to fight against what they see as an unjust tax system and, in some cases, a liberal conspiracy against them.

The jail sentences handed down by federal judges are deeply resented.

Peggy Christensen of Deer Lodge, Mont., a member of the Montana Patriots, said "The dopers who have criminal records are getting probated setences." She was in Fort Worth last week to attend court sessions.

In North Texas alone, about 200 tax protesters have been identified based on their tax returns this year, Internal Revenue Service district director Alden McCanless says. This compares with only about 50 three years ago, he said.

The protesters wage their war against the IRS either by filing so many exemptions that no money is withheld from their paychecks or by filing a statement that he anticipates no tax liability at all that year.

But some of the rebels refuse to file a return and claim the Fifth Amendment protects them from giving any information that might incriminate them.

The anti-tax groups also hold that federal statute defines a dollar in terms of gold and silver. But the Currency Act of 1968 says the dollar no longer has redeemable value in gold or silver and is merely an unsupported government IOU.

Their argument is that under this premise no one receives any "legal" income and therefore cannot be forced to pay taxes.

Lawrence of Arabia may have been murdered

LONDON (AP) — The British government may have had Lawrence of Arabia murdered for political reasons, the author of a new biography of the World War I hero claims.

Lawrence was 46 when he died in a motorcycle crash in 1935 near his cottage in Dorset. Desmond Stewart, whose book "T.E. Lawrence" will be published in Britain on June 30 and in the United States in August, contends that the government suppressed evidence given by an army corporal who was the only witness to the crash.

Stewart said in an interview Sunday that the corporal claimed he saw a black car approach Lawrence at the scene of the crash. But he was not allowed to tell his story at the inquest, the writer said.

"Lawrence's inquest was held in the morning and he was buried in the afternoon. The corporal blew his brains out in 1940," Stewart said.

Why would the government want to kill the hero of the Arab revolt against the Turks?

Stewart's explanation is that those in power considered Lawrence a sexual masochist and an irresponsible maverick.

"King George V, for example, was convinced that Lawrence might take up arms against Britain after the war on behalf of the Arabs," he said.

His book claims that Lawrence's political views had veered to the far right at a time when anti-fascism was on the rise in Britain. Stewart says author Henry Williamson, who was connected with Sir Oswald Mosley's British Union of Fascists, wrote to Lawrence shortly before his death suggesting that Lawrence go to Berlin to meet Hitler in an attempt to prevent war.

Stewart also claims security agents searched Lawrence's cottage immediately after his death.

"If this had happened in America, it would have been probed much more carefully. Now the truth may never be known," said Stewart, who has written 10 books about the Middle East and eight novels.

The biography, which the author says incorporates revelations from entirely new sources, claims that Lawrence never suffered the homosexual rape and torture by the Bey of Der'a which he described in detail in his book "The Seven Pillars of Wisdom" and which other biographers considered a key incident in his life.

"I'm absolutely convinced this never happened" because Lawrence was in Azra', 19 miles from Der'a, at the time, he said.

Crew lacked training

DENVER (AP) — Although it has not yet determined what caused a Texas International jetliner to crash here on takeoff last November, the National Transportation Safety Board says crew members hadn't received proper emergency evacuation training.

The DC-9 crashed on takeoff from Stapleton International Airport last Nov. 16. There were no serious injuries among the 80 passengers and five crew members.

The board also determined that the flight attendant who tried to open the exit was unable to find the release handle because of poor illumination.

The board made several recommendations to correct the problems it found.

Kennedy III may run

BOSTON (AP) — Joseph P. Kennedy III, eldest of the new generation of Kennedy men, appears to be on the verge of carrying on the political legacy of his father and uncles.

Kennedy, 24, son of Robert Kennedy, the New York senator who was assassinated nine years ago during the presidential primaries, says he may run next year for state treasurer of Massachusetts.

"I'm interested in it," Kennedy said in an interview. "It's an area that will have to take a leading role in the next few years in terms of the state's finances."

But he adds: "I'm not a candidate at this point. I'll have to look at some of the other offices."

Rumors of the emergence of a new generation of the so-called Kennedy dynasty have circulated in recent weeks among Massachusetts politicians.

Joe is brawny, curly-haired and taller than others in his family. He bears a striking resemblance to his father and his two uncles, the late President John F. Kennedy and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy.

The young Kennedy is a Democrat, and if he decides to run for treasurer, he'll have to confront the Democratic incumbent, Robert Q. Crane, who says he will seek re-election.

Crane, who has done political work for a succession of Kennedys, was the object of a well-publicized grand jury investigation into campaign financing. However, the grand jury did not return indictments.

Asked whether he was worried about the reports that Kennedy would challenge him, Crane said, "I don't think 'worried' is the proper word. I'm aware of them. And I'm always concerned about my opposition.

"But I don't think he'll run. For one thing, he hasn't said he will. He's looking at my office just the same as he's looking at others."

Kennedy graduated in 1975 from the University of Massachusetts with a degree in legal services. Since then, he has worked as a juvenile court probation officer. His most important political experience was managing his uncle Edward's Senate re-election campaign last fall.

Kennedy says he is not sure he wants to go into politics.

"I'm trying to find the best and most effective way to spend my time," he says. "And that may or may not be running for elective office."

Names in the news

McALESTER, Okla. (AP) — Former U.S. House Speaker Carl Albert, slightly injured when knocked to the ground by a hit-and-run driver, was released from McAlester Hospital on Sunday.

Albert, 69, was hospitalized overnight for treatment of cuts and bruises received in the weekend mishap.

Authorities charged Sampson Benjamin, 81, with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident.

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrew Young says some reporters are baiting him with leading questions. "I'm learning who those people are, and while I don't say 'no comment,' neither do I fall for those traps," says the American ambasaador to the United Nations.

"I think an honest question deserves an honest answer," Young told questioners on ABC's "Issues and Answers" program Sunday. "I think I'm learning that there are people in your business that don't ask honest questions but are literally trying to set me up."

Asked to concede that the way he's used the word 'racist' has been unwise and undiplomatic, Young said: "I don't know any other word. Ethnocentric probably applies, but that's a little too academic to make sense."

Also on Sunday, President Carter told the Magazine Publishers Association convention in Washington that he was "completely compatible" with Young although some of the ambassador's remarks have been unfortunate.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Black Panther Party founder Huey Newton, now 35 and living in exile in Cuba, will return to the United States to stand trial, his attorney says.

Charles Garry, home after a week-long visit with Newton in Havana, said the Black Panther leader "intends to return in a couple of weeks and stand trial."

He would not discuss reports that authorities are negotiating specifics for the return of Newton, who jumped bail in 1974 while awaiting trial for murder.

"He feels that he was railroaded," Garry said in explaining his client's flight. "His life was threatened by the so-called underworld people because of the Panthers' program against drugs. There was a contract out on him. At the same time, he felt the authorities were working hand in hand with them."

Garry said Newton was in "the picture of health. He's just beautiful. His mind is clear as a bell."

Blacks kill tea drinkers

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Two black youths fired machine guns on four whites drinking tea in a department store warehouse in central Johannesburg today, killing two of them and wounding another.

Eyewitnesses said one of the youths hurled a hand grenade.

Reporters saw police seize two youths, but officials would not confirm any arrests or indicate whether the two were supected of the attack.

Security police converged on the scene as tension mounted in Johannesburg's sprawling black Soweto township with the impending anniversary of the eruption of last year's nationwide black rioting in which hundreds died.

There was no immediate confirmation that the incident near the city's police headquarters was politically motivated.

According to witnesses, the two youths got out of a car near the city's John Vorster Square and walked briefly down the street brandishing weapons.

The attack coincided with a student strike by hundreds of black youths.

Paul Newman uninjured after crash

GARRETTSVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Film star Paul Newman escaped injury in a sports car race when another car flipped into the air and landed on top of the one he was driving.

Newman and Robert Dyson of Poughkeepsie, N.Y., were driving Datsun 510s in the 25-car Sports Car Club of America Cumberland National B-Sedan event on Sunday at nearby Nelson Ledges.

Dyson's car moved to the center of the track and crowded Newman's as the field approached an overpass bridge. Dyson's car then went out of control and collided with a barrier lining the bridge foundation. That flipped his car into the air, and onto Newman's car.

Dyson, also uninjured in the mishap, said he had been trying to challenge the leaders and thought he could make it through a gap in the pack.

Both cars were wrecked.

Plainview gals uncover new fad: nude cruising

PLAINVIEW, Tex. (AP) — The time-honored art of teenaged cruising has been stripped to its barest essentials in this small, dusty West Texas city.

Hale County Sheriff Charles Tue said Saturday he has received several reports that groups of teenage girls have been driving around the city of 23,000 — totally nude.

"I guess it's some kind of fad or something," said Tue. "It just amounts to streaking in an automobile."

One report, Tue said, had three nude girls in a car and another had two high school age females riding around the city in the altogether. "There's several bunches of them," he added.

The incidents have occurred during the afternoon and evening hours, when countless other Plainview teenagers are cruising around, looking for something to do.

Tue said one report came from an irate housewife who was upset by the incident. Another call was received from a man who thought the whole idea was funny.

No arrests have been made, although Tue roked that his deputies are volunteering in unprecedented numbers to investigate the case.

The girls would face indecent exposure charges, which could net them up to a year in the county jail.
