Oil prices hit above $24, bring mixed feelings

Senate debate over royalties continues

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Debate is expected to continue today in the U.S. Senate over the question of whether or not oil companies are paying a fair royalty for oil and gas produced on federal lands.

Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison (R-Texas) attached an amendment to a $14 billion Interior Department spending bill prohibiting the department from implementing new calculations that would increase the amount of royalties collected from the industry, but opponents have threatened a filibuster in opposition to the amendment.

Monday afternoon, the Senate failed to end the debate, led by Sen. Barbara Boxer (D-Calif.), with 55 voting to end debate, five votes short of the 60 required. Still, Ms. Hutchison said she believes the vote was a victory for industry supporters.

"If the senators who were absent had been there, we would have won," said Ms. Hutchison in a statement. "Sentiment is on our side and if the full Senate had been there, we would have won, and it's time for Sen. Boxer to acknowledge that."

The Interior Department wants to peg the crude oil's value to actual market indicators, a move that has been blocked for two years. Supporters believe they have enough votes to stall the changes another year.

Industry critics say the industry has been cheating taxpayers by undervaluing the oil they produce on federal lands.

Ms. Hutchison, along with co-sponsor Sen. Pete Domenici (R-N.M.), said the royalty rules are too complex and the new calcula-

Oil prices jumped above $24 Monday, creating cautious exhilaration and mixed results for area oil and gas operators.

"It's a great price," said Bruno Hanson, a Midland producer, "On my leases, I am doing a lot of remedial work that will show a quick return."

At the same time, though, he expressed concern at what the higher prices might invite. "The possibility of price volatility increases with the price," Hanson said, adding that there is the possibility that higher prices would invite some sort of punitive tax action by the government. "Whenever the price of gasoline goes up, consumers get outraged at the 'greedy' oil industry and seek some sort of recourse."

Jim Orseth, vice president of operations for Collins & Ware, said a $24 oil price adds confidence and would move the company to a higher activity level it hoped to achieve, but he did not know if that was a sustainable price.

"We are still watching prices and prioritizing all our projects to make sure we get the most, best bang for the buck. The higher price certainly makes a lot of the projects we have on hold look more attractive, but I don't think we can expect to experience a $24 oil price for very long." He said the higher price levels wouldn't have as much impact upon Collins & Ware because the company was 65 percent balanced for gas and 35 percent for oil.

Highly balanced for natural gas, Chisos Operating Co. is not looking for much bottom line impact, either. "It is good for our attitude," said Chisos President Buddy Sipes, "but we don't have that many oil wells to add to impact the bottom line. We are mostly all gas."

Sipes also noted that the higher prices were an invitation for OPEC producers to adjust quotas. "The Saudis have said they would like to see Brent crude at $18-$20 and a $24 price will certainly bust that curve."

For companies like Arco Permian, which is involved in a merger with BP Amoco, the rise in price will increase cash flows but has little impact on activity levels.

Habitat volunteers building house in a week

By Ed Todd

Building a home is a lifetime endeavor. But building a house, well, it can take just a week — especially if the heart is right.

And among Midland Habitat for Humanity volunteers, it is.

This week, volunteers from about a dozen churches are constructing a house for the Charlotte and Tellas Lampley family during "Building on Faith" week.

They are "helping a family to have a house of their own," said Rebecca Egg, a Habitat volunteer who put her carpentry skills to work on Monday in Midland

Habitat's 23rd project house since the early 1990s.

"And I think that our convictions are best expressed in our actions," Ms. Egg said.

By noon, the walls were up, the windows were getting in place and the roof was to follow.

The construction was a study in harmony.

"It's amazing. I'm amazed, too," said Alynda Best, Midland Habitat's executive director, who has scheduled dedication for the 304 E. Spruce Ave. house at 2 p.m. Sunday. "We want to get it all decked,"

Riggan to appear on 'Good Morning America' TV show

By Jeff Stevens
Staff Writer

The Casey Riggan vs. Neil Richmond/MISD case will add national television to its credits this week. According to Gail Riggan, Casey's mother, the Midland High School graduate will appear on the "Good Morning America" show.

A crew from "Good Morning America" visited the Riggan home Monday afternoon. "They said they were going to come down here and they were going to fly us up there," said Ms. Riggan.

Ms. Riggan said the interview would be aired Wednesday morning.

Additionally, reports indicated that "Inside Edition" would make an appearance in Midland at today's school board meeting. Ms. Riggan said Casey had not yet decided to do any other interviews, although he had been contacted by "Inside Edition."

Riggan

According to Barney Welch, executive director of communications for the Midland Independent School District, the television show had contacted his office.

"Someone from the staff of 'Inside Edition' contacted this office and left a message that they were coming to Midland. It was more of a heads-up courtesy call," said Welch.

The national media visits to Midland are the latest development in what could be called a media "feeding frenzy," kicked off by USA Today. USA Today reporter Guillermo Garcia wrote a story in the paper's Friday edition about Riggan's lawsuit against the district and Richmond.

The story, reported by the Reporter-Telegram in May, was picked up by several newspapers, radio stations and television shows across the nation.

The Riggan family, as well as Richmond, have been bombarded by calls from news agencies since.

Riggan sued the district in May after the school board upheld a disciplinary decision to suspend him for three days, place him in AEP for five days and require him to write two letters of apology. Riggan also was prevented from walking across the stage at graduation.

Riggan was reportedly punished for retaliation because he possessed photos of Richmond's Suburban parked on a public street outside a female teacher's home.

Richmond, who is married, also claimed that Riggan was the source of rumors regarding an affair between the principal and the teacher.

Richmond, who has stated in the past that his relationship with the teacher was not untoward, would not comment on the case other than to say that he questions the national significance of the story because the judge hasn't even ruled whether to allow the case into court.

He also questioned the coverage, saying, "They only know one side of the story."

Other than discussing the media, Richmond would not address the case itself. "I have been advised by my attorney not to comment."

The case is currently awaiting a decision by Judge Royal Furgeson on whether to dismiss or hear the case.

MISD to discuss raising taxes at board meeting

By Jeff Stevens
Staff Writer

For the second time in two years, the Midland Independent School District could be eyeing an increase in Midland property taxes.

Last September, the school board voted to raise property taxes eight cents, and tonight the board will hold a public hearing to discuss the possibility of raising taxes another four cents.

The hearing is scheduled for 7:15 p.m. and will be held in conjunction with today's regularly scheduled board meeting at 4 p.m.

Before the board even hears that public comment, however, there are at least two board members who are opposed to voting for the tax increase.

"I think what we've done with the raises, is boxed ourselves in," said Trustee Glen Bufler, adding that he is not in favor of raising taxes. "I would like to do something other than raise taxes. It's always the taxpayers that's left holding the bag."

MISD's administrative staff recommended a budget — adopted at the Aug. 24, board meeting — that is already relying on the tax increase along with budget cuts and other cost-saving measures. The district found itself in the hole $6 million because of decreased enrollment and lower property values.

The recommended increase would raise about $1.5 million in additional revenue. Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. said, however, that the board does not have to vote for the increase, despite the adopted budget.

"The adopted budget could be funded in some other way," Baressi said, citing the use of reserves as one option.

He said the board could decide to do anything it wanted, short of raising taxes above four cents per hundred dollar valuation.

"They could even lower the tax rate. The purpose of the hearing is to have public input prior to voting on the actual tax rate," Baressi said.

He added that the board would likely vote on the rate at the Sept. 27 board meeting and that the four-cent increase is the administration's recommendation.

"I would say, all things considered, that's the best recommendation. That's why we made it," Baressi said.

Trustee Pat Hodges, however, doesn't seem to think that's the best recommendation.

"I'm not going to vote for a tax raise," Ms. Hodges said. "I've never voted for a tax raise."

She added, "Whether it be economic or what, I know a lot of people who have had to go without because they've lost their job or for some other financial reason, and they can't go call on the taxpayers to give them more money.

"In my heart of hearts, it seems like taxpayers are always having to come up with money when they don't have it," she said, referring to the recent economic conditions in Midland.

The four-cent tax increase would cost the owner of a $50,000 home about $20 more a year in property taxes.

Also at today's meeting, the school board will reconsider giving top administrators a raise and hear a report on the district's Scholastic Aptitude Test results for 1999.

Both the regular meeting and the tax hearing will be held at the school administration building at 615 W. Missouri Ave.

PRICE: Some are wary of future volatility

(From 1A)

"We love to see the higher oil prices, but in terms of changing our short-term plans, it will make little difference," said Tom Holland, vice president of commercial and external affairs. He said Arco Permian would stick with its long-range plan until later this year when the merger is expected to be complete.

The closing Monday futures price for WTI was $24.21, which, according to a spokesman for Navajo Refining, is the highest price in more than 2 1/2 years. Industry experts attribute the sharp price increase to the lowest crude oil inventories in 20 years and a perception on the part of New York Mercantile Exchange (NYMEX) traders that a shortage could erupt if there is a cold winter and if OPEC stays with its plan to stick to crude oil production cuts through March 2000.

Energy analyst Fadel Gheit said producers should beware of the higher prices. Said the senior analyst for Fahnestock: "Prices went down too fast in 1997-98, and they are going up to fast. It is a situation that invites price volatility."

ROYALTIES: Senate expected to resume debate today

(From 1A)

tions amounted to a new tax on the industry.

"The Interior Department wants to second-guess the sale of oil at the wellhead and make fuzzy exactly when the oil should be valued," Ms. Hutchison said.

Randy Patterson, land manager for Yates Petroleum in Artesia, N.M., agreed that the new calculations "affect the pricing and from what point the production is priced, whether it's net back to the wellhead or the posted price."

He explained, "For companies like ours and small independents who make arms-length trades on marketing with a purchaser, net back is all we get, all we can pay royalty on. The new calculations can adversely affect us if the posted price is higher and we have to pay a royalty on a posted price that's higher than the net back price."

Critics say the government wants to be paid royalties on the futures price as opposed to the posted price.

Jim Ellison, South Permian Production Superintendent for Apache Corp. in Wink, said, "The futures price has nothing to do with us. The posted price is us, and if they're going to tax the gap between the futures price and the posted price, it should go on the guys on Wall Street."

The higher royalties would have a "dire impact on us," Ellison said, observing that "when your money going out exceeds what's coming in, you go out of business."

The Interior Department collects $1.2 billion from the industry through a 12.5 percent royalty fee on production taken from leases on federal lands. It estimates the government will keep losing $5.56 million a month if the rules aren't implemented.

Patterson said the new rules "are trying to get more from some of these integrated oil companies that produce the oil, have refineries and market it at the other end of the pipeline."

Ms. Boxer insists that the new royalty rules would apply mainly to the larger, more prosperous integrated companies that comprise 5 percent of the industry. Ms. Hutchison counters that hundreds of small producers could also be affected, unable to absorb the additional costs.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

FAITH: Dedication of house set for Sunday

(From 1A)

and, she paused, "here comes the electrician."

The house is one of 66,000 houses that the 1976-founded Habitat for Humanity International ministry has build worldwide. Volunteers work with the homeowners, the "partner families" who put in their "sweat equity" and then buy their houses though no-interest Habitat loans.

This week's Midland project is an example of "fulfilling the Habitat ministry of helping God's children in need to build their own home," noted Don Hellinghausen, a co-founder of the Midland Habitat affiliate.

"It's fun," said Leeon Davis, a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. "I've always believed in that" — doing works instead of just talking about them. "If there's something that needs to be done, come up with a solution and do it."

In her noon devotional, the Rev. Molly Krueger, a Methodist minister, noted that "God and God alone sets our boundaries down here in Midland, across the nation and around the world. Who defines what is possible? With God, all things are possible."

"It's not impossible," said volunteer Doug Peters, "that we could build one (house) for every family" in need.

Volunteer Fred Yates, who termed the program "wonderful," noted that it took a year to build Midland's first Habitat project on Jackson Street. Two years ago, 1,000 Habitat volunteers built six houses in 10 days on Jackson Street.

Episcopalian John Holmes, who works on an all-volunteer carpentry crew with fellow Episcopalian Ed Bean, Catholic Jim Ameel and Presbyterian Ben Johnson, said, "there's a lot of people out here who know what they are doing" under the tutelage of Habitat construction supervisor Tony Valles. "He believes in doing things right. If you don't do it right, we'll tear it up and do it over."

Ameel, who enjoys the Habitat camaraderie, said, "the ultimate gratification comes with the day of dedication when the family moves in. And you can see happiness and joy in their face. For all the times we've hit our thumbs and made mistakes (in house building), it's worth it to see how happy they are to be receiving a home."

Judge wanted Starr's office prosecuted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal appeals court on Monday overturned a previously secret ruling that Kenneth Starr's office be prosecuted by the Justice Department for alleged grand jury leaks to the news media.

The decision, which President Clinton's lawyer said he will seek to appeal, undercut one of the most frequent complaints by the president's defenders against Starr — that he leaks grand jury information to the press.

In a 3-0 vote, the appeals court reversed U.S. District Judge Norma Holloway Johnson who directed that the Justice Department act as prosecutor for civil and possibly criminal contempt proceedings she ordered against Starr's office as well as its former spokesman, Charles Bakaly, for leaking a story to The New York Times.

The Times' story, on Jan. 31 amid the Senate impeachment trial, stated that Starr had decided he had the authority to seek an indictment against the president while Clinton was still in office.

"We conclude that the disclosures made in The New York Times article do not constitute a prima facie violation" of the grand jury secrecy rule, said the court.

"Information actually presented to the grand jury is core" grand jury secrecy "material that is afforded the broadest protection from disclosure," said the three judges.

But "prosecutors' statements about their investigation, however, implicate the" secrecy "rule only when they directly reveal grand jury matters," the court added.

The ruling may prove helpful to Starr regarding other allegations of grand jury leaks leveled by Clinton lawyer David Kendall in the Monica Lewinsky investigation. Johnson ruled last year that there were 24 instances of possible grand jury leaks by Starr's office. Some of those dealt with negotiations with Lewinsky's lawyers and were not matters before the grand jury.

The appeals court also suggested that Starr's office, as a government entity, may be entitled to sovereign immunity, making it immune from being prosecuted for criminal contempt. However, the court did not rule on that issue.

Kendall said he will ask the entire Court of Appeals to review the case.

"We believe that the decision of the panel is inconsistent with the precedents of the Court of Appeals," said Kendall.

Starr's office said that "today's decision rejects defense tactics of seeking to distract an investigation through accusations of illegal leaks." Starr praised the appeals court for "noting the important role of prosecutors providing public information regarding criminal investigations."

Bakaly left the office when Starr asked the Justice Department to investigate him about the leak to the Times.

Unknown until Monday was that Starr had waged a behind-the-scenes court battle since last summer to block Johnson from launching contempt proceedings against Starr's own office.

Johnson, who as chief judge oversaw the grand jury that investigated the Lewinsky scandal, issued an order on July 14 directing the Justice Department to serve as prosecutor of contempt charges against Starr's office, as well as Bakaly.

The Justice Department sided with Starr in immediately asking Johnson to withdraw her referral for prosecuting Starr's office, the appeals court disclosed.

Laying out previously secret details, the appeals court stated that shortly after the Times' story ran, Bakaly submitted a declaration saying that he refused to confirm for a Times' reporter "what Judge Starr ... was thinking or doing" regarding whether Clinton could be indicted while in office.

After a leak probe of Starr's office by the FBI, Starr "referred the matter to the Department of Justice for a criminal investigation and ... withdrew Bakaly's declaration," the appeals court said.

At that point, said the appeals court, Starr's office also "abandoned its argument that" the prosecutor's office "was not the source of the information disclosed in The New York Times article."

"Troubled by these developments," Johnson "ordered Bakaly" and Starr's office "to show cause why they should not be held in civil contempt." According to the appeals court, Johnson also "left open the possibility of ... a combination of civil and criminal, contempt sanctions."

A message left for Bakaly's lawyer, Howard Shapiro, was not immediately returned.

The three District of Columbia appeals court judges in the case were Patricia Wald, a Carter appointee; Laurence Silberman, a Reagan appointee; and Karen LeCraft Henderson, a Bush appointee.

Lottery vote pits governor against churches

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. Don Siegelman is asking Alabama voters to ignore their church leaders and get in line with other Southern states that are bucking the Bible Belt image and cashing in on gambling to help pay for schools and college scholarships.

Ministers are condemning the Democratic governor's proposed state lottery, saying it would replace respect for hard work with get-rich-quick dreams.

But they aren't able to stop the cheers Siegelman gets when he points to neighboring Georgia, where a lottery that funds college scholarships and other education programs has been a huge success since its creation in 1993.

"It's helping the kids with college," said Ray Tarver, a school custodian in Montgomery. "They can at least get something I didn't get."

Tarver said Siegelman's proposed lottery is the only way his three children will go to college, unless they get some kind of military assistance.

"I can't afford it," said Tarver, 39. "That's the only thing I hope for is a lottery."

Siegelman wants to use lottery proceeds to give high school students with at least a B average scholarships to a private or public college in Alabama. Lottery money would also go toward pre-kindergarten programs and school computers.

Siegelman used the lottery issue to help oust the Republican governor last November. His plan moved through the Legislature with little resistance and is on the ballot Oct. 12. Recent polls show the public is strongly in favor.

As the governor told state lawmakers, Alabama practically has a lottery already: "Eighteen out of 24 Alabama daily newspapers carry the Georgia or Florida lottery numbers. Why? Because they know what you and I know: Their readers are buying lottery tickets and they want to know if they won."

The money Alabama residents now spend on the lottery in Florida and Georgia needs to stay in Alabama to create a better-educated work force, Siegelman said.

"If the people opposed to the education lottery have their way, things will stay just as they are," he said. "They ought to be ashamed of themselves."

Alabama already allows gambling at four dog tracks, and it is only a short trip to riverboat casinos in Mississippi.

The pitch to keep the gambling money at home was also used successfully last year in South Carolina, where Democrat Jim Hodges was elected governor over a GOP incumbent and a proposed lottery is set for a statewide vote in November 2000.

Thirty-seven states and the District of Columbia run lotteries, while commercial casinos operate in 10 states and Indian tribes run casinos in at least 22 states. Only Hawaii and Utah bar all forms of gambling.

With four weeks until the lottery vote, the Alabama Republican Party has decided not to take the lead in opposing the lottery. That has left church leaders, a few GOP officials and a few conservative political groups to fight it alone.

Peacekeepers: Serbs attempting to undermine security

PRISTINA, Yugoslavia (AP) — NATO's top commander in Europe, reacting to reports of Serbian attempts to disrupt the peace in Kosovo, warned Monday he wouldn't tolerate a return of Serb forces to the province.

"I'm increasingly concerned by the evidence that we see of organized Serb efforts to cause a little bit of disruption here and there and to bring increasing pressure on this fragile community," Gen. Wesley Clark told reporters.

Clark cited the discovery of a Serbian military police identification card on one of three Serbs shot to death by Russian peacekeepers who tried to stop them from beating an ethnic Albanian. Another of the men was wearing a paramilitary uniform, he said.

"We can't permit this," Clark said. "The re-entry of Serb forces is expressly prohibited and therefore it would be a violation of the military technical agreement and the U.N. Security Council resolution."

His comments appeared meant in part to counterbalance an increasing barrage of criticism from Yugoslav President Slobodan Milosevic and his aides of the peacekeeping job NATO and the United Nations are doing in Kosovo, coupled with warnings that Yugoslav troops plan to return to the province.

Belgrade has complained about the inability of the international presence in Kosovo to stop retribution attacks on Serbs by ethnic Albanians seeking to avenge the 18-month Serb crackdown that killed more than 10,000 people and left hundreds of thousands of others homeless.

It took more than two months of NATO bombing to get Milosevic to pull his troops out of Kosovo, a province of Serbia, Yugoslavia's larger republic, and permit the NATO-led peace force to come in.

Clark spoke following a brief meeting with Britain's Prince Charles, who visited Kosovo on Monday for a morale-boosting tour of British troops serving in the province.

Earlier Monday, Clark met briefly with Agim Ceku, the military leader of the Kosovo Liberation Army. The general was met by a full military color guard, which stood at attention during his brief visit to the KLA headquarters in Pristina.

Clark reiterated that part of the rebel force would be transformed into "an essentially unarmed, nonmilitary, civil service" corps after the Sunday, when the KLA has to demilitarize. He said the corps would be trained to provide emergency, humanitarian and reconstruction assistance, among other civil services.

U.N. and NATO officials consider the reform crucial to bringing peace and stability to Kosovo. The KLA was at the forefront of the 18-month war against Yugoslav army troops and Serbian police.

As the deadline approaches, Serbia is increasing its criticism of the plans to reform the force rather than disband it completely.

Russia, Serbia's ally, is also opposed and has signaled it will oppose the plan in the U.N. Security Council.

Powerful aftershock kills 7, injures more than 320 in Turkey

GOLCUK, Turkey (AP) — Terrified residents jumped from windows Monday as a strong aftershock jolted the same area of western Turkey where 15,000 people died in an earthquake last month. At least seven people died and more than 320 were injured.

In the hard-hit coastal town of Golcuk, one building damaged in the Aug. 17 temblor slid into the sea, apparently trapping four people who had gone inside to salvage their belongings.

Rescue workers from the civil defense, the military and a civilian rescue group were on a 6-foot corner section of the building jutting from the water, pulling at the rubble. Navy divers searched the water.

"Our only chance is that they are out of the water," said rescue worker Emre Ayan.

Rescue workers were also pulling debris from at least one other site in Golcuk where survivors might be trapped.

The quake had a preliminary magnitude of 5.8 and was centered in Izmit, just northeast of Golcuk and some 50 miles southeast of Istanbul, the city's Kandilli Observatory reported.

"It was very disorienting," said John Augsburger, a structural engineer from Harrisonburg, Va., who was in Golcuk at the time of the aftershock. "We were right next to a building. It moved so much, it looked like rubber."

Most of the injured suffered broken bones jumping from buildings in hopes of reaching safety on the street.

Isa Ersozer was in a second-floor barbershop in Izmit when the building began to shake.

"The stairs were full of people trying to get out, so I just jumped," he said, sitting in a wheelchair in a field hospital, his foot covered in bandages.

Throughout the town, people rushed to hospitals, desperate for news about their loved ones.

Three people were killed in nearby Kocaeli when a building fell on their car, Istanbul Deputy Governor Ali Cafer Akyuz said. Another three were killed in that town when the building they were in collapsed, he said.

A woman in the town of Adapazari died of a heart attack, state-owned TRT television reported.

More than 320 people were being treated from injuries or severe psychological trauma, state-owned TRT television reported.

The area hit by the quake has not recovered from the devastating Aug. 17 quake. Thousands of residents are living in makeshift huts or in cold, soggy tents. Piles of twisted wreckage mark sites that were once apartment blocks.

Many residents appeared in shock on Monday and were unable to speak. Some stared forward with blank eyes. Others clenched their teeth.

"Life goes on despite everything," said Handan Akcay, who has been living in a tent city since the August earthquake destroyed her home. "But unfortunately, we don't get use to this."

Parents rushed to schools following the aftershock — Monday was first day back to school after summer recess — and grabbed their children in tears, hugging and kissing them.

Many parents had been reluctant to send their kids to school. Some teachers earlier had agreed to meet with students in the playgrounds and not in the buildings, which some parents feared were unsafe.

Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit immediately suspended classes in the area following the aftershock.

"These aftershocks may continue," he cautioned residents. "We hope that none are as powerful as this one. We unfortunately have to live with them."

Clinton's trip produces 'good week for stability'

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — President Clinton, after his summit with Asian leaders, is ready to provide American troops for an international peacekeeping mission in East Timor and considering eased trade sanctions on North Korea under a tentative missile deal.

The United States said Monday it would play a limited role in a peacekeeping operation expected to be led by Australia. "We're talking here about hundreds, not thousands, of Americans that would be involved and not necessarily all of those would be based in East Timor," National Security Adviser Sandy Berger said.

Nobel laureate Jose Ramos Horta, an East Timorese activist, told Clinton that about 200,000 people have been displaced from their homes during his country's independence struggle.

At the State Department, spokesman James Rubin said the United States was awaiting the outcome of talks at U.N. headquarters in New York between the Security Council and the foreign ministers of Indonesia and Australia on a peacekeeping force for East Timor.

Rubin said the United States probably would limit its contribution to providing communications, logistics, transportation and intelligence support, as opposed to sending combat forces.

The administration declared Clinton's talks here a success after the reopening of trade negotiations with China, the missile accord with North Korea following discussions in Berlin, and Indonesia's grudging agreement to accept outside help to restore order in East Timor.

'This has truly been a good week for stability and U.S. interests in Asia," Berger said. Yet, there were some disappointments.

Negotiators failed to complete a trade deal between North Vietnam and the United States. Moreover, the hurried resumption of trade talks with China yielded no immediate progress or deadline for completion, and Clinton and China's president, Jiang Zemin, remained at odds over Taiwan.

Yet, Berger said many Asian leaders were relieved by the improvement in Washington's tie with China. "I can't tell you how many leaders came up to the president today and said they were pleased that our relationship was back on track," he said.

Hungry? Let Don's Deli fix you a tasty plate

Brenda Rister of Don's Deli serves up some of the tastiest home made meals and desserts in town.

Don't have time for breakfast at home? Can't get home for lunch? In a hurry at supper? Don't skip those meals. Let Brenda Rister at Don's Deli fix you a breakfast burrito, a sandwich or a plate for lunch or dinner. It's no trouble—and just listen to what she's got cooking.

Kick-start your day with hot, fresh biscuit combos including sausage, ham and egg, bacon and egg or sausage and egg. Or, wrap your tongue around a freshly-made breakfast burrito. Not only are these about the tastiest breakfast choices around, they're really handy if you have to eat on the go.

Around noontime, Brenda will have lunch ready for you. The best value in town just may be the chopped beef sandwich special. For students, it includes two flavorful chopped beef sandwiches, chips and a medium drink for just $3.49. For adults, make that a large drink for $3.79. That should keep you going for the afternoon, whatever's on your calendar.

But that's only the beginning of the hot and fresh lunch offerings at Don's Deli. Get a home-cooked plate lunch with your choice of sausage, hot links, ham or sliced beef (or any combination) along with three of the following: homemade potato salad, crisp Cole slaw, savory beans or (a big favorite): peach or cherry cobbler!

Rather enjoy a sandwich? That's fine! In addition to chopped beef, Brenda can make sandwiches with hot links, smoked ham, German sausage, pimento cheese or chicken.

Also, every day Don's Deli features special lunch plates. Chicken and dumplings, smoked turkey, smoked chicken, barbecue pork ribs and golden-fried catfish all have a special day.

For a special treat, at home or at the office, pick up one of Brenda's famous pies or cakes. You can buy a whole pie—sweet pecan, tangy lemon, rich chocolate, tasty coconut or deeply flavored blackbottom. You might want to buy a couple—everybody will want some. Her moist, rich cakes include chocolate, carrot and German chocolate. You can also buy a whole cobbler.

Have you tried the brownies, the banana pudding or the banana bread? They're all made fresh every day as well.

Meats are available by the pound and trimmings by the pint, pint and quart. If you have an office picnic, church gathering or other meeting, call ahead and let Don's Deli cater it for you. You'll get the same home-cooked flavors served wherever you need them. They can handle just about any size group.

If you can't make it for breakfast or lunch, take home a family pack. It includes one pound of sliced beef, a pint of pinto beans, a pint of potato salad and a pint of peach or cherry cobbler, all for just $11.76!

Don's Delicatessen has been at 1007 North Midkiff since 1963. Steve and Brenda Rister bought the store in 1993. They serve breakfast, lunch and dinner, including desserts, all made from scratch. The store also carries a selection of convenience store items. Hours are 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday. The phone number is 694-2043.

Let "Assembly Required," Inc. put it all together for you

Never believe the box when it brags, "Assembles in five minutes." Those five minutes always turn into four trips to the hardware store, 20 minutes to interpret the meaning of paragraph one of the assembly instructions, and most of a day wasted on frustration.

It's simpler to call Dan Carnes at "Assembly Required," Inc. Dan's been assembling everything including furniture, gas grills, swing sets, home gyms, trampolines, water beds, game tables and more for over two years. He has the tools needed and his experience lets him work quickly.

Dan is fully bonded and insured. He makes sure the assembly is done right the first time, as if the item were his own. He can do the work when it's convenient for you, many times the day you call. Dan offers free pickup at the store and delivery to your door on items he assembles.

If you tried it yourself first and broke something, don't worry. Dan can probably get you a replacement part.

So, don't sweat the assembly—call "Assembly Required," Inc.

"Assembly Required," Inc. is owned by native Midlander Dan Carnes. His slogan explains his work—"One call assembles it all." He also does disassembly for those who are moving. Call 520-4401 for a free estimate.

Avoid the frustration of assembling things yourself. Let Dan Carnes at Assembly Required do it for you.

Fashion takes special care with draperies

Philip McCain of Fashion Cleaners checks a set of draperies before returning them, carefully cleaned and pleated, to the customer.

When did you last have your draperies cleaned? If it's been more than three years, that's too long according to Fashion Cleaners' Philip McCain. In fact, "Many manufacturers recommend yearly cleaning." Draperies do collect a lot of dust in West Texas.

Fashion carefully cleans drapes individually or in matching pairs. After cleaning, they are hung up to dry, then pleated (NOT creased). This drying method helps them last longer. Draperies are then painstakingly banded to retain the pleating.

If you have a matching bedspread, have it cleaned at the same time to preserve the color match (bedspreads can also collect dust).

When you take down your drapes, check them for stains (water spots from condensation) and sun damage. Philip says stains from water or tobacco can be difficult to remove. Sun damage can't be fixed. It can be prevented by having drapes in east or west windows lined or using blinds to block the sun.

Fashion Cleaners has two convenient locations: 801 W. Wall and in the Imperial Shopping Center at Midkiff and Wadley. They do all kinds of cleaning and laundry, as well as alterations, reweaving and keepsaking of bridal gowns. Pickup and delivery are available.

Price family: We lost weight and you can, too!

"I admit it, I like to eat," says Dianne Price, explaining why she had been a size 12 since high school. For almost a year now, however, she's been at a size 3-4, and has had a lot more energy. Her son, Reggie, lost 40 pounds and 11-1/2 inches on the same weight loss product and likes seeing the changes in his mom. He also says, "I have a lot more energy now!"

Dianne lost her skepticism about this weight loss product because of her son, daughter-in-law and husband. She noticed that after seven days on the product her husband lost 12 pounds and had more energy than before. She realized that something exciting was already starting to happen. Her husband went on to lose 35 pounds. He also experienced a reduction in blood pressure, which had been a problem.

She said that she, too, first felt the product first gave her more energy. It was actually awhile before she began to lose weight. "A loss of two-to-three pounds per week is ideal," says Dianne. The weight has stayed off, too—she began taking the product in November of last year.

The product they use is made of all natural herbal products, and it's made by a company with 19 years' experience in health and nutrition, whose products have been approved for use in 44 countries worldwide. The Prices experienced so many benefits from the natural herbal products that they are now distributors for the company.

"Nutrition is so important," says Dianne. She quotes Nutrition Action Newsletter as saying, "The government now estimates that poor diet and lack of exercise kill about 400,000 Americans every year—as many as smoking does!"

Dianne notes that it is almost impossible to get the nutrients you need from food, for two reasons. "First, the soil has been depleted of many nutrients. Second, many fruits and vegetables are picked before they are ripe, which means they have less nutritional value when they get to the store." The company they represent has a wide variety of products designed to help your body help itself by providing nutrients that are in short supply in most foods. "It is a medical fact that improved nutrition can reduce your risk of developing a long list of diseases," says Reggie. Good nutrition can help your body improve a number of already existing conditions and illnesses such as, high cholesterol and more.

Good nutrition, health and weight loss or weight gain go hand in hand. Dianne and Reggie credit all the natural herbal products with helping their family do "the right kind of downsizing." Find out today how they can help you, too.

Reggie Price and his mother, Dianne, offer natural herbal and targeted products through an internationally recognized company. Call them at 570-4610 and learn how you can lose weight, gain weight, have more energy and beautiful skin or even earn money.

Reggie Price helps demonstrate how his mother, Dianne, no longer fits in her size 12 dress. Call them at 570-4610 to learn how they can help you lose weight with all natural herbal products with great health benefits.

Israelis, Palestinians open talks on permanent peace

EREZ CROSSING, Gaza Strip (AP) — Six years to the day after Yitzhak Rabin and Yasser Arafat exchanged their historic White House handshake, Israelis and Palestinians opened talks Monday on a final peace accord — considered by many to be a last chance for peace.

The friendly atmosphere — including a smiling handshake between Israeli Foreign Minister David Levy and chief Palestinian negotiator Mahmoud Abbas — belied the difficulties ahead. After immersing themselves for years in details, number-crunching and moving pins on maps, negotiators from both sides now must confront their most deeply held beliefs.

Issues like Palestinian statehood, the rights of refugees and the status of Jerusalem go straight to how each side frames its past and views its future — and are all the more daunting for the one-year deadline the sides have set.

Monday's opening at a converted army base between Israel and the Gaza Strip came after two false starts toward final talks, in May 1996 and November 1998.

At a joint news conference after a brief meeting with Abbas, Levy said: "This agreement will bring to an end, God willing, the 100-year conflict that has caused so much suffering between Israel and the Palestinians."

"No one among us has illusions," he said. "We face a difficult task. The permanent status agreement is the final block in building peace, but it is the most complex of them all."

Abbas, Arafat's deputy, urged a speedy resolution, saying, "We cannot afford to lose more time, for lots of precious time was wasted."

"The past was marked with denial. Let the future be based on mutual recognition of self-determination. It is time to feel. It is time to reconstruct. It is the time for peace and peacemakers."

The breadth of the talks dwarf last week's breakthrough agreement on prisoner releases and land transfers.

Within five months, by Feb. 15, negotiators must present the outlines of an agreement on the nature and borders of a Palestinian entity, the status of Jerusalem, the fate of Palestinian refugees and the future of Jewish settlements in the West Bank and Gaza Strip. A full accord is to be reached by September 2000.

Dennis Ross, the U.S. envoy to the Middle East, called the deadline ambitious, but realistic.

"With the right kind of spirit, with the right kind of determination, if the will is there and there is a genuine effort to negotiate in good faith, I believe the parties are not being too ambitious," he told The Associated Press. "I believe it is possible."

Hurricane Floyd menaces Bahamas

NASSAU, Bahamas (AP) — Panicked Bahamas residents abandoned beachfront homes and scrambled for emergency supplies Monday as Hurricane Floyd's 155 mph winds bore down on the vulnerable, low-lying archipelago.

Floyd could slam into the Bahamas as soon as late Monday and hit Florida by Wednesday.

"I have never been this scared about a storm," said shopkeeper Angel Chea as she hastily boarded up her windows.

Floyd was on the verge of becoming a Category 5 storm — the most powerful designation for a hurricane — which features top sustained winds of at least 156 mph with higher gusts.

By comparison, Hurricane Andrew was a Category 4 storm when it struck South Florida in 1992, causing an estimated $25 billion in damage.

■ More on Hurricane Floyd/7A

Bahamian officials warned that storm surges of up to 20 feet could sweep as far as six miles inland. That's a terrifying prospect on this island of New Providence, which is only seven miles from north to south and has some 165,000 people, more than half the Bahamas' entire population.

All of the northwest and central Bahamian islands were under hurricane warnings Monday afternoon.

A hurricane watch was extended for the Florida east coast from Florida City to just south of Brunswick, Ga.

In Nassau, the Bahamian capital, long lines formed at gasoline stations and grocery stores and two major supermarkets ran out of bottled water.

Bahamian schools were converted into hurricane shelters, and officials planned to close Nassau's airport later Monday. The storm interrupted airline flights, cruises and shipping traffic between the United States and the Caribbean. American Airlines on Monday canceled its nine daily flights between southern Florida and San Juan, Puerto Rico, while both Carnival Cruise Lines and Royal Caribbean Cruise Lines sent Bahamas-bound ships to Mexico instead.

Anti-government strike hits Bangladesh

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Rival political factions engaged in street battles and police fired tear gas shells at protesters in several cities in Bangladesh on Monday, leaving one person dead and 50 others injured on the first day of a three-day general strike.

The strike, called by a four-party opposition alliance to demand Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina's resignation, shut down businesses and schools and halted most traffic in 60 cities and towns.

Mofidul Islam, a member of the main opposition Bangladesh Nationalist Party, was hacked to death in the town of Natore, 90 miles northwest of Dhaka. The attack was blamed on Hasina's ruling Awami League party, police said. The clashes at Natore injured 10 others.

The ruling party denied the incidents.

The opposition accuses Hasina's 3-year-old government of corruption, inefficiency and harassing political opponents. The next national election is not due until 2001.

In Dhaka, the capital, hundreds of protesters in small groups marched through the streets shouting, "down with Hasina's government." Riot police clashed with protesters who set off crude homemade bombs. At least 40 people were injured, witnesses said.

Nearly 5,000 security officers, many in riot gear, patrolled Dhaka's streets, where only bicycle rickshaw taxis defied the strike. The rickshaw drivers earn the equivalent of $3 a day and cannot afford to stay off work.

Businessmen oppose the frequent strikes, which cost $68 million a day in lost production and exports.

Hearing over tax hike needs public input

A public hearing scheduled for 7:15 p.m. today will give Midlanders a great opportunity to "put their four cents' worth" in about a proposal by Midland Independent School District (MISD) to raise taxes by four cents.

The school district is seeking public comment on the plan because lower enrollment left the projected MISD budget $6 million less than planned. The four-cent tax increase will recoup only $1.5 million, school officials say.

The coming fiscal year in Midland promises to be challenging for both Midlanders and the city's elected officials.

There are many separate issues involved in the school district's budget — not the least of which is the issue of raises for some of the district's employees. While the public's direction isn't sought for every particular issue on this one it is — and that's good.

Since the tax increase will affect numerous Midlanders, we believe as many taxpayers as possible should make their wishes known to the board at today's public hearing.

The coming fiscal year in Midland promises to be challenging for both Midlanders, many of whom prefer taxes to be as low as possible, and for elected representatives, who have the oftentimes difficult job of balancing the needs of a growing community against the desire of the public for the lowest possible tax cost. It can sometimes be difficult to arrive at a decision that is fair to all involved and which still serves the best interests of the whole community.

To arrive at a decision that truly represents that interest, school trustees need to be aware of how most Midlanders feel about major issues such as the increase in property taxes.

So, be in attendance at tonight's public hearing. Make your voice heard and give some direction to these public servants who have served this community so admirably.

Today in History

Today is Tuesday, Sept. 14, the 257th day of 1999. There are 108 days left in the year.

Today's Highlight in History:

On Sept. 14, 1814, Francis Scott Key wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner" after witnessing the British bombardment of Fort McHenry in Maryland.

On this date:

In 1847, U.S. forces under Gen. Winfield Scott took control of Mexico City.

In 1901, President McKinley died in Buffalo, N.Y., of gunshot wounds inflicted by an assassin. Vice President Theodore Roosevelt succeeded him.

In 1927, modern dance pioneer Isadora Duncan died in Nice, France, when a scarf became entangled in a wheel of her sports car.

In 1940, Congress passed the Selective Service Act, providing for the nations' first peacetime draft.

In 1948, a groundbreaking ceremony took place in New York at the site of the United Nations' world headquarters.

In 1959, the Soviet space probe Luna 2 became the first manmade object to reach the moon.

In 1975, Pope Paul VI declared Mother Elizabeth Ann Bayley Seton the first U.S.-born saint.

In 1982, Princess Grace of Monaco, formerly actress Grace Kelly, died at age 52 of injuries from a car crash a day earlier.

In 1982, Lebanon's president-elect, Bashir Gemayel, was killed by a bomb.

Ten years ago: Joseph T. Wesbecker, a 47-year-old pressman on disability for mental illness, killed himself after he shot eight people dead and wounded 12 at a printing plant in Louisville, Ky.

Five years ago: On the 34th day of a strike by players, But Selig, acting commissioner, announced the 1994 baseball season was over.

One year ago: Ten people were charged in what prosecutors said was the largest Cuban spy ring uncovered in the United States since Fidel Castro came to power. (Five men later pleaded guilty to lesser charges; the trial of the other five has been postponed until May 2000.)

President Clinton continues to disappoint

The controversy that erupted following President Clinton's offer to pardon 16 jailed Puerto Rican terrorists belonging to the FALN if they promised not to do it again misses something.

Thomas

President Clinton may have discovered a brilliant way to reduce the surplus prison population that is costing the taxpayers billions of dollars and warehousing people, many of whom will go back to prison for other crimes should they be released.

Imagine the conversations now taking place in jails throughout the country. Inmates may think if they promise never again to murder, rape, rob, forge checks, burglarize, embezzle, perjure, drive while drunk, sell or do drugs, kidnap or commit other crimes, they, too, could win commutations.

Respect for the law has declined so rapidly under the Clinton administration that the jailed Puerto Ricans were allowed to conduct a conference telephone call to decide whether to accept the president's offer of clemency, which was originally designed to boost Mrs. Clinton's popularity with New York's Puerto Rican constituency, but has since backfired and come back to haunt both her undeclared candidacy and the president.

One must always understand the Clintons' actions in light of their past. We know that Mr. Clinton's sexuality was shaped in large part by two women who fought over him when he was a boy. In the '60s, Mr. Clinton was organizing anti-war protests on foreign soil and evading the draft by lying about his intentions to a military officer. Mrs. Clinton contributed to the process that led to Richard Nixon's resignation. She wanted to deny him the protection of law afforded every citizen. Stories of what happened at the Rose Law Firm, in which she and double felon Webster Hubbell were partners, are well known. The law was twisted and sometimes broken to serve their own political and personal ends.

Mr. Clinton was impeached for lying under oath to a federal judge, and that same judge found him in contempt of court. The judge fined him, but, as usual, someone else will pay. Under normal circumstances, Mr. Clinton would have faced disbarment. Instead, he and Hubbell were invited to address the American Bar Association.

The Clintons have paid no price for their disrespect for the law. They have borne no burden, except what may be scratching their consciences. In so many instances, they have blamed others or denied wrongdoing. They have rarely been held accountable for their actions. So why shouldn't a group of Puerto Rican terrorists think they can win an early release from their sentences?

The Clintons came of political age when the Weathermen were blowing up buildings to protest the Vietnam War; when protesters tried to shut down the Pentagon; when it was "fashionable" among the tie-dyed set to "hate the military" and call police officers "pigs." Illegal acts, even ones that caused harm to property and people, were to be tolerated because they were designed to rid us of a greater evil — the war.

These noble savages thought themselves worthy of the Nobel Peace prize. Deborah Devaney, a former assistant U.S. attorney who was one of the federal prosecutors involved in prosecuting the FALN terrorists, opposes clemency for the convicted Puerto Ricans. In a letter to the editor of the Wall Street Journal, Devaney said: "I know the chilling evidence that convicted the petitioners — the violence and the vehemence with which they conspired to wage war on all of us. I know, too, the commitment and sacrifice that it took the FBI and the U.S. Attorney's Office to convict these terrorists in three separate prosecutions." Devaney's letter details what the convicted terrorists were doing and plotting when they were captured. They had weapons to commit armed robberies. Some were videotaped making bombs they planned to use at military installations.

That those now incarcerated didn't actually kill anyone is not a reason to release them from prison (others among the FALN killed six and wounded dozens in a series of 139 bombings that ended in 1983). If they had not been caught, surely more would have been killed.

But what do the Clintons know about accountability? They've made a career out of avoiding it. Maybe the president is trying to establish a precedent in case he is finally brought to justice for his myriad misdeeds in hopes that a future Democrat president will pardon him (and Hillary).

Not-for-profit group is looking for a new home for its thrift store

Helping Hands of Midland, is a nonprofit (501-c3) agency. We provide financial aid for families in Midland County, who have found themselves in need of a hand up. Our agency was founded in July 1998.

We have accomplished many things during our first year. We have been able to provide a 100 percent volunteer origination, a food pantry, a financial aid department, school clothes and supplies; we provide furniture, household items, appliances, and clothing at no charge for those in need.

We have caseworkers that go to the home to do the interviews and determine the need and why. Our funds come from private donations, sales at our thrift store, and we received FEMA funds this year, which have already been disbursed.

Our thrift store is unique in the fact that if items are sold they are sold cheap enough that everyone can afford them and keep their dignity by purchasing for themselves instead of accepting a hand out. We have had our thrift store at the Old Wolfe Nursery, at the donation of Mark Burns. We have outgrown this building and are in desperate need of a permanent larger building. At this time we are in several locations; our helpline is answered at a volunteer's home. We have Christmas and odd season items stored in two storage units, and other items stored in a volunteer's garage.

Mark Burns has allowed the use of his building for the last 13 months, and we all know we couldn't have had such a great kickoff of our ministry without his assistance, but he has been able to locate a tenant for this location. This is to ask for your assistance in locating a new home.

We take this opportunity to share with you, the financial figures of what you can be a part of in helping Midland County residents.

In the first 13 months we have helped Midland County residents by offering $60,697.21 in rent, utility, medical and transportation assistance; $176,418.56 in food and clothing assistance; and $14,035 for Christmas toys and clothes.

Please help us continue this mission! We need a building to call home that is large enough for all of us to be under one roof. We are prepared to purchase if necessary, if someone will work with us. If you have questions, information, or a building, please call 687-2148 or 620-0085.

In time of crisis, Midland proves to be as good as always believed

For almost 40 years, we said that Midland was a good place to live and raise a family. But on the night of Jan. 8, 1999, we were shown that Midland is truly the greatest place this side of heaven to live. That night, at about 11:15 p.m., we were roused by an explosion in our house to discover that our home was on fire.

My husband, Joe, grabbed Ethan, our 3-year-old grandson and went out the back door with him and our little dog. I went to our utility room to rescue our cats, getting only part of them into our car at that time.

As I emerged from our garage, our neighbors, the Cochrans were already in our front yard, checking to see if everyone was out of the house, which, praise the LORD, we were. An unseen/unknown "angel" wrapped a comforter around me — this was the coldest night of the '98-'99 winter. Another met Joe and Ethan as they were walking down the alley and around the neighbor's house and put a coat on Joe and blanket on Ethan.

After the fire was finally put out at about 3:30 a.m., we spent a few restless hours at our son's house. When we returned to see the results of the fire in the light of day, it was overwhelming, but not nearly as much as the outpouring of love, care, concern and downright hard work given to us by the people of Midland. There are too many to mention and too many to thank and praise in this space allowed. This outpouring of compassion has continued the past several months as we have built a new house and finally moved into it.

We apologize for taking so long to write this letter to the wonderful citizens of Midland, but ask that it be accepted with all the heartfelt thanks we can give. We know now even more why Midland is our home. Kudos and God's continued blessings to you, Midlanders.

Constitution's intent: Stronger confederation

One way to understand how far off the track we've gone from our constitutional roots is think about how government was supposed to be in the United States.

The federal government, as intended by the founders, was to be, in the words of George Washington (the man whose prestige won ratification for the new Constitution), "a stronger confederation." In other words, not something radically different — just a stronger confederation of sovereign states.

Reese

James Madison, in the Federalist Papers, said that in time of peace, 95 percent of the governing would be done by the states, only 5 percent by the federal. If you will sit down and read the Constitution, you will see clearly that it was to be an agent for the states and would do only those things that made sense.

It made sense, for example, to have one standard of measurements, one monetary system, one trade policy and one foreign policy rather than 13 different ones. It made sense to have the mechanism in place for all the states to act in unison if attacked by a foreign power.

The proof of its intent lies in the wording (as well as the historical record) of the Constitution. It was to be ratified by the states, not by a majority vote of the people in all the states. It would take effect if nine states ratified it. What about the other four? They would remain what they were, independent countries with their own constitutions.

In the original Constitution, senators were selected by state legislatures. Their duty was clearly to represent the interests of their respective state governments. They were described in one instance as "ambassadors from the states to the new federal government."

Now, was that a better system than the one we have today? Today, the Constitution is occasionally paid lip service but not otherwise heeded, with the federal government ruling practically every aspect of our lives, either directly or indirectly.

I think the old system was infinitely better because it was pragmatic. It's impossible for a handful of people in a central government to wisely govern a large area and millions of diverse people, whether we are talking Washington, Rome or Moscow. Central governments always collapse eventually from sheer incompetence if nothing else.

The other disadvantage of centralized government is that concentrating so much power in so few hands facilitates corruption and coups. There are, so to speak, only a few pockets to fill or, in the case of a coup, only a few heads to lop off. One bad attorney general with central power can cause a lot of problems. It is unlikely that all 50 states would have bad attorneys general.

Finally, of course, the advantage of the old constitutional system was that the governments that did most of the governing were closest to the people. They could watch them and understand them. They could get to know their officials. That's much less easy to do when dealing with the federal government.

One size does not fit all, and one centralized government mucking about in everybody's lives is bound to make a mess of things. Keep in mind that advocates of centralized government generally imagine themselves wielding the power, not you or I.

Democrat: Justice knew about tear gas in '95

WASHINGTON (AP) — The congressional Republican leading an inquiry into the 1993 Waco siege overlooked evidence the Justice Department sent his committee four years ago showing federal agents used potentially incendiary tear gas near the fiery end of the Branch Davidian standoff, a House Democrat said Monday.

Releasing documents that describe the FBI's use of military tear gas rounds on the standoff's final day — April 19, 1993 — Rep. Henry Waxman asked why the House Government Reform Committee's chairman is accusing the Justice Department of a cover-up when his own investigators missed the same evidence that has suddenly revived the Waco debate.

"Contrary to the allegations of cover-up, substantial evidence of the use of military tear gas rounds was, in fact, provided to Congress in 1995," said Waxman, D-Calif., the committee's top Democrat.

Separately, the Texas Rangers issued a report Monday indicating a house near the Davidians' compound that federal agents occupied before and during the siege contained a dozen spent rifle cartridges preferred by sharpshooters — as well as the FBI and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms. The FBI has long denied firing a single shot during the standoff. ATF was involved in a deadly shootout with the Davidians on Feb. 28, 1993, that launched the 51-day confrontation.

The records Waxman cited, discovered among more than 40 boxes of material compiled during the House's 1995 hearings, include an FBI pilot's 1993 statement recalling a radio transmission in which agents had a conversation "relative to the utilization of some sort of military round ... on a concrete bunker." And post-raid interview summaries include an unnamed FBI agent's explanation that smoke captured on film "came from (an) attempt to penetrate bunker with one military and two (non-incendiary) rounds."

In a letter to the special counsel investigating the controversy, Waxman wrote: "There is no indication that Chairman Burton or his staff thought to review these documents before accusing the attorney general of a cover-up."

Burton spokesman Mark Corallo acknowledged the committee had possessed the records since 1995. However, he said they were part of more than 100,000 documents the Justice Department gave the panel three days before hearings were to begin, "in an obvious attempt to keep congressional staff from having enough time to review those documents."

Added Corallo: "You have to wonder why the attorney general is running around seeming so distraught and upset that people lied to her ... despite the fact that a memo has existed at the Justice Department since 1993 that points to the use of these devices."

Floyd bears down on Southeast

MIAMI (AP) — Hundreds of thousands of people were ordered to evacuate the Florida coast Monday and NASA all but abandoned Cape Canaveral as Hurricane Floyd — one of the most powerful storms ever to threaten the United States — charged toward Florida with potentially catastrophic 155 mph winds.

Floyd was much larger than Hurricane Andrew, which smashed into south Florida in 1992, causing $25 billion in damage, killing 26 people and leaving 160,000 homeless.

Forecasters said Floyd would brush past the Bahamas overnight and could hit land in the next couple of days between central Florida and South Carolina. They predicted it was capable of causing enormous damage.

"It's scary. It's very scary," Gov. Jeb Bush said. "Andrew hit Miami in the middle of the night and it was haunting. This is as strong and ... three times bigger."

Bush declared a state of emergency Monday, giving him the authority to activate the National Guard and allowing the state to order evacuations and suspend tolls on the highways.

The storm could be dangerous even if it does not come ashore. Floyd's hurricane-force winds — at least 74 mph — extended for 125 miles. Andrew's hurricane-force winds extended about 25 or 30 miles.

With a hurricane warning in effect Monday from Florida City, south of Miami, to Brunswick, Ga., residents along 400 miles of Atlantic coastline packed stores to stock up on canned food, bottled water, plywood and aluminum shutters. Navy ships left port to ride out the storm at sea, and aircraft were sent inland.

Coastal and mobile home residents in four Florida counties were ordered to evacuate. That included Miami-Dade, where about 272,000 people were affected. Schools were closed today in 13 counties in Florida and one in Georgia.

At Kennedy Space Center, which is just 9 feet above sea level, almost all of the 12,500 workers were leaving. A skeleton crew remained behind, but they, too, will evacuate if the wind is as fierce as predicted. That would be the first complete evacuation of the space center ever.

Three of NASA's space shuttles were in a hangar that was designed to withstand wind of only up to 105 mph. A fourth was in a building designed to stand winds of up to 125 mph. Four multimillion-dollar rockets were exposed on launch pads and could not be moved.

Universal Studios and other tourist attractions in central Florida that were built in the last 30 years and have never been through a major hurricane prepared by lowering water levels in manmade lagoons and removing trash cans and anything else that could become projectiles.

The storm has consistently moved faster than predicted, said Jerry Jarrell, director of the National Hurricane Center. Forecasters had expected it to turn northward, possibly reducing the danger to Florida. But by Monday afternoon, there was no sign that the hurricane was being influenced by weather systems that forecasters hoped would steer it away.

At 4 p.m. CDT, Floyd was centered near 24.2 north latitude, 73.7 west longitude, about 425 miles east-southeast of Miami. The hurricane was moving west near 16 mph with top winds near 155 mph — just below Category 5 strength, the highest rating for hurricanes.

Only two Category 5 hurricanes have hit the United States since records have been kept: the 1935 Labor Day storm that slammed the Florida Keys, killing 423 people, and Hurricane Camille, which roared ashore in Mississippi in 1969, killing 256. Andrew was a Category 4.

Forecasters stuck by their prediction that Floyd would gradually turn west-northwest sometime Monday night, then northwest today, possibly sparing Miami and other parts of south Florida.

Lawmakers urge Hispanics to stand, be counted for Census

WASHINGTON (NYT) — Hispanics risk losing potential gains in Congress and federal money distributed through population-based formulas if the 2000 Census misses minorities in areas with large Latino populations, a Texas congressman said Monday.

"It goes from representation and redistricting to allocation of federal funds," Rep. Charlie Gonzalez, D-San Antonio, told Hispanic leaders attending a conference sponsored by the Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute.

The caucus seeks an accurate 2000 Census and the use of the sampling to estimate the number of people missed by traditional methods used by the U.S. Census Bureau: door-to-door canvassing and mailed questionnaires. Historically, the Census has missed 2 percent of the population but more than 5 percent of Hispanics and African-Americans.

In addition, Hispanic leaders are calling on Congress to provide full funding for the decennial head count.

Census Bureau Director Kenneth Prewitt has estimated the 2000 count will cost roughly $6.8 billion, more than double the $2.6 billion in 1990.

Texas officials estimate that there was an undercount of roughly 500,000 people in 1990, costing the state $130 million over 10 years in federal funding for programs such as education, Head Start, housing and medical benefits.

The number of Hispanics has continued to grow over the past decade. Arturo Vargas, executive director of the National Association of Latino Elected and Appointed Officials, said Hispanics could see increased representation in Congress.

"We have the chance to pick up a couple more Latino seats," Vegas said.

One of those seats could be in South Texas, where population growth could mean another congressional seat once 2000 population figures are adjusted for redistricting. Growing states, such as Texas and California, would likely see more congressional representation.

Texas now has 30 House representatives and California has 52.

Gonzalez said that in addition to congressional seats, Hispanics are nationally poised to win more elections to state governments, city halls and school boards coast to coast.

To underscore the importance of an accurate census, various Hispanic- and minority-rights groups have launched public relations campaigns to inform minorities that they need to stand and be counted.

A number of cities and neighborhoods are developing their own campaigns "because the Latino community is so diverse," said Marisa Demeo, a regional counsel for the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund.

To ensure that Hispanics are counted in the next census, the organization has launched a national outreach effort called "Make Yourself Count!"

Miss America Pageant changes the rules

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — In a stunning departure from tradition, the Miss America Pageant has lifted its ban on women who are divorced or have had an abortion.

The board of the Miss America Organization voted last month to drop the 49-year-old rule. The change takes effect next year.

Fear of violating New Jersey's discrimination laws spurred the change, according to court documents obtained Monday.

Since 1950, contestants have had to swear they had never been married and never been pregnant in order to vie for the rhinestone crown and thousands of dollars in scholarship money.

The new rules would require simply that they sign a document saying "I am unmarried" and "I am not pregnant and I am not the natural or adoptive parent of any child."

That would open the door to divorced women, women who had had abortions and women who had children who later died.

Pageant chief executive Robert L. Beck sent new contracts to state pageant directors in August notifying them of the change. Beck and other pageant officials declined requests for comment.

Beck, who took over the top job last fall, told the state pageants to have contestants in this year's pageant — scheduled for Saturday at Convention Hall — sign the new contracts as a condition of competing for the title of Miss America 2000.

The state pageants went to court to fight the change, and the Miss America Organization agreed to back off for this year. But the board approved the change for next year.

Childbirth Classes for Expectant Teens
Expectant teens tend to have different concerns than older mothers. Many are not comfortable in a class with older couples. Also, the healthcare needs for younger women are different than those of older expectant mothers. That's why its very important that pregnant teenagers get comprehensive prenatal care and instruction.
At the Birthplace our goal is to obtain better outcomes for babies and their mothers. This includes shorter, more comfortable labors with fewer complications, and greater satisfaction.
Mary Ellen will assist a laboring young woman throughout the entire labor, providing emotional support, practical comfort measures, and help to make the birth experience a positive memory with rich rewards and feelings of accomplishment.
Early Pregnancy Classes
One weekly meeting anytime duringthe first and second trimester.
Cost: $5
Lamaze Classes
6 weekly meetings during the eighth and ninth months.
Pizza Wrap-Up Party at last class!
Labor Support
At the time of delivery.
Classes start
Monday, Sept. 20, 7 - 9 p.m.
The cost is $30 for the 6-week Lamaze classes. Sign up as early in your pregnancy as possible.

Money can be lost if census miscounted

By George Torres

Although many members of the public may think that census taking is unimportant, it can have a huge impact on their lives ... much more than they probably realize.

The census often determines how much money is spent on education, child welfare and other local, state and national agencies. The census can also contribute to many other things that affect the American people ... decisions such as which communities get state help, whether to build more schools, and where to offer transit service and day care centers, according to representatives of the National Education Association and the National Association of Counties.

That's why local officials worry that some members of their communities are not counted when a census is taken. It means a loss of money.

And not being counted does happen, especially when it comes to young people.

More than half of the 4.4 million people missed in 1990, for example, were younger than 18.

The Census 2000 Initiative released a study showing that in 1990 census-takers missed 228,360 children in Texas.

This under count of 4.5 percent tied Texas with Florida, Mississippi and Louisiana for the worst among the 50 states. Although locally Odessa had 2.8 percent and Midland has 3.0 percent of children under counted, other cities across Texas were substantially higher. The census counts omitted 6.1 percent of children in Houston, 5.9 percent in Dallas, 5.8 percent in San Antonio and El Paso, 5.6 percent in Corpus Christi, 4.7 percent in Arlington and 4.6 percent in Garland.

"It seems likely that given the size of the state and the length of time, we are probably easily talking about millions of dollars," said Debbie Graves Ratcliffe spokeswoman for the Texas Education Agency.

The under count traditionally is highest among minority children.

In 1990, for example, the under count for Hispanic and Black children was two to three times greater than Anglo. In Ector County the minority under count for children was 2.69 percent and in Midland County it was 2.99 percent. That translates into the potential loss of hundreds of thousands of dollars for the two school districts over a 10-year period.

Terry Tschauner, from the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission, said, "It's amazing how the census information plays a huge role in the distribution of federal and state funds. For instance, the Census 2000 information available in 2001, will impact redistricting for the next nine years. It's vitally important that everyone is counted."

The result of the large number of under count of children nationally can be related to a number of things. Children from minorities, for example, are often missed, as are those from distressed big-city neighborhoods. Likewise, children living with relatives other than parents are sometimes missed. And, large families illegally living in small quarters are often likely to be missed.

Charlene Romero Wurtz, local Community Partnership Specialist for the Census Bureau, is addressing this problem with the creation of two new programs. The programs will be school concentrated with The Census in the School Program and a census educative coloring book.

"The Bureau felt that it was lacking in educating everyone about the census," Ms. Wurtz said.

The Census in the School program will educate students from kindergarten to 12th grade. It will be broken down in sections kindergarten to 4th grade, 4th to 8th grade, and 9th to 12th grade relating to math, social studies, and geography sub-

Music — The international language

Two music groups plan trip overseas

By Matt Josefy
Staff Writer

Music may truly be the international language, as it is the wave that will carry the Lee High School Chorale and StrictLEE Strings overseas.

The first week of June 2000, 24 members of StrictLEE Strings and approximately 50 Chorale students, including members of the ensemble Origin, and approximately 25 parent sponsors will carry their performances to England, Ireland, and Scotland.

"I've never been to England. It's gonna be awesome," junior Chorale member Chris Hurt said.

"I want to meet people of a different nationality. It will expand my horizons," Chorale sophomore Weslee Reeves said of her expectations.

Directors Paula Edwards of Chorale and Karen McAfee of StrictLEE Strings are pooling their efforts that will involve both separate and combined performances during the trip.

Ms. McAfee commented, "You know how hard it is to get people to do things together, so this is great for us."

Erin Horne, senior bass player, "I think it'll work quite well. I've heard the two groups playing together before and it sounded great. Strings and voices just sound good together."

Ms. McAfee has been teaching orchestra since 1982, and this is her fourth year of directing the strings ensemble. This will be StrictLEE Strings first international appearance.

Chorale last went overseas in 1996, when members did an Austria and Germany tour.

"We knew we would go overseas again; it was just a matter of time. This is an opportunity to go overseas and experience a different culture and expe-

City planners recognized for achievements

By Ian Heald
Staff Writer

The city of Midland's planning department has been awarded the Certificate of Achievement for Planning Excellence by the Texas Chapter of the American Planning Association.

The Texas chapter has recognized the department for increasing awareness of professional planning, recognizing planning departments which meet professional requirements, enhancing neighborhood and citizen recognition of planning efforts, encouraging the funding of professional training for commissioners and staff and aiding in economic development and community image.

This is the second year of the Texas chapter awarding certificates of achievement to various Texas cities. Fourteen cities were recognized; Midland was the only one from West Texas.

Midland Planning Development Coordinator Cameron Walker said that without the cooperation of the Planning and Zoning Commission, the City Council and the public, achieving continual successes in planning for Midland wouldn't have been possible. He said it was an honor that Midland's planning division was one of the very few recognized in Texas.

"It speaks well for the staff and the Planning and Zoning Commission. We've had a professional organization of planners, peer review on an annual basis and strategic and long-term planning that's really focused on the city's master plan."

The Texas cities were judged on a set of 10 criteria in which a point system was applied to determine the best city-planning programs.

David Gattis, president of the Texas Chapter of the American Planning Association, said Midland had been recognized for a variety of reasons but pointed to Midland's "excellent training, certification and planning and the city's ability to adopt a master plan for the city's future."

DWI victims hope sharing their stories will help others make wiser choices about drinking

By Ian Heald
Staff Writer

Don't drink and drive!

That was the message at the STOP DWI meeting held Monday night at the Midland Police Department. Once a month for the past five years MIPs (Minors in Possession) and DWI violators have participated in the monthly meeting where state troopers and family members of past DWI accident victims warn those in attendance (roughly 60 people each meeting) of the dangers involved in driving drunk.

Three members of STOP DWI — Bill Houghton, Nita Williams and Faye Higgins — each shared with the class memories of family members they had lost in car accidents with drunk drivers.

"We just tell our stories," says Houghton. "We don't point fingers. Some get counseling afterward, some just don't care. We wouldn't do this if we didn't think it could make a difference."

State Trooper John Barton specializes in safety education and in teaching drug and alcohol awareness. He brought in a pair of fatal vision goggles — goggles that simulate various states of drunkenness in order to prove how much one's judgment can be impaired when drunk.

"The first thing to go when you're drunk is judgment," he said handing the goggles to one of the students seated in front of him. After the student failed to grab a pen or walk in a straight line Barton asked "if you can't do these simple tasks, then why are you going to operate a 2000 pound vehicle, endangering your life and the lives of others? It's not a perfect world but this is one thing you can control. The biggest thing that's going to get you in trouble is your ego."

'We just tell our stories. We don't point fingers. Some get counseling afterward, some just don't care. We wouldn't do this if we didn't think it could make a difference.'

— Bill Houghton, a member of STOP DWI, who has lost a family member to an accident with a drunk driver

"If we just get through to one of you this evening," said State Trooper Carey Matthews "then the impact will be great."

Ms. Higgins has been involved with STOP DWI since its inception, five years ago.

"We operate on donations," she said. "Then we invest all the funds back into programs — literature, billboards — anything that can help."

Ms. Higgins said Stop DWI doesn't have an official location or much overhead.

"We operate out of our homes," she said. "I'm a trained victims advocate. We're out there for any victims, even if it's a fender bender. Anyone who has questions or has been involved in an alcohol related car accident, we're there for them. Free of charge."

Ms. Higgins said minors who attend the meetings are affected most by the presentation.

"The minors take it more to heart, I think. The presentation is very effective with them, and that's where we want to start. Some kids said it changed their life."

Anyone seeking additional information can call STOP DWI at 699-8783.

Warren Beatty should have Faye Dunaway as his running mate

More rambling thoughts ...

— Warren Beatty for president? I don't think so.

Area briefs

Sports complex Web site

The Citizens for a New Sports Complex launched a website today, heralding the advantages of a baseball stadium and a football/soccer stadium.

The site — www.midlandsportscomplex.com — lists the reasons behind the proposal and answers common questions.

"We've always maintained that we have a good shot at getting it passed but we think the crucial thing is that people are educated on all the facts. A website is a good chance for people to sit down and read about it in their own time," said RockHounds General Manager Monty Hoppel, who also is a member of the citizens group.

jects. The goal of the program is to teach the history of the census, how it is done, recognizing the census form, and to provide parents information about the census. The students will even conduct a mini-census of their own schools.

The coloring book is centered on children from headstart to sixth grade. It will come both in English and Spanish and will provide the children will info ation on how and when the census is taken. It will be a fun way for children to get familiar with the importance of census taking, Ms. Wurtz said, adding "Most people think of the census as an invasion of privacy, but it's not. It is information on community needs."

CITY: Official says planning success because of cooperative relationships

(From 1B)

Marcus Johnston, director of engineering and development, attributed Midland's planning success to the cooperative relationships held with the Planning and Zoning Commission and City Council. He also pointed to the importance of the annual training session that brings together key division heads, engineers and commissioners.

"We've been very careful in protecting our neighborhoods and businesses from incompatible land use. We've conducted big studies to ensure consistent zoning and quality of business. Zoning makes sure you have compatible land uses and you protect property values."

Johnston said Midland's number one priority has been to protect those neighborhoods and businesses as the city grows.

Front brings North Texas first big rain in months

DALLAS(AP) — Early-morning thunderstorms dumped nearly an inch of rain on the Dallas-Fort Worth area on Monday, knocking out power in some areas and slowing morning commuters.

A slow-moving cold front moved through North Texas late Sunday, bringing rain and cooler temperatures to the northern part of the state.

A week earlier, on Labor Day weekend, Dallas saw the end to a 56-day dry streak, getting 0.3 inches of rain at Dallas-Fort Worth Airport.

"But it's been a while since we've received significant amounts of rainfall like this," National Weather Service meteorologist Roland Nunez said Monday.

North Texas received as much as two inches of rain overnight and reported nickel-sized hail.

Lightning struck several transformers in the Dallas area early Monday, knocking out power across the city, said TXU spokeswoman Gyna Bivens.

"We did have quite a few outages," Ms. Bivens SAID. "We started getting calls shortly after midnight. But everything is manageable."

As of Monday evening, power had been restored to 95 percent of the areas affected by the storm. TXU would not say how many customers lost power.

Rodney Lockett, sales manager for the Sewell Cadillac Oldmobile Infiniti dealership in north Dallas, said several employees blamed their tardiness on weather-related problems such as snarled traffic and alarm clocks that failed because of power outages.

But the rain didn't affect business, he said.

"Spotty rain like we're having doesn't have any effect on car sales," he said. If anything, it encourages business by lowering temperatures, he said.

The Dallas Police Department responded to 35 minor traffic accidents and 27 major accidents Monday morning between 7 a.m. to 9 a.m., spokesman Chris Gilliam said. It had not been determined how many of the accidents were weather-related, he said.

Rainy conditions could continue for a day or two, but forecasts call for clear skies and warmer temperatures later this week, Nunez said.

Lackland trainee dies 2 days after heat stroke

SAN ANTONIO (AP) —An 18-year-old Lackland Air Force Base trainee died Sunday, two days after he collapsed from heat exhaustion during a six-mile march that he was reportedly forced to make.

Airman Basic Micah Schindler of Cincinnati died at 5:50 p.m. from complications resulting from heat stroke, police confirmed. He was in the fifth week of a six-week basic training program, according to an Air Force statement.

Air Force officials say the march was part of routine basic training. The Air Force Safety Board was scheduled to meet Monday to review the circumstances surrounding Schindler's death.

A noncommissioned officer told the San Antonio Express-News on Saturday that Schindler couldn't keep up with other trainees at the Medina Annex. The man, who asked that his name not be used, said a training instructor had been scolding the recruit to keep pace.

Trial of second accused killer gets under way in dragging death case

BRYAN (AP) — Murder defendant and white supremacist Lawrence Russell Brewer was so proud of his participation in the gruesome dragging death of a black East Texas man last year that he wrote about it weeks later, prosecutors said Monday as Brewer's trial got under way.

"I'm the goddamned hero of the day," he wrote to another inmate while being held at the Jasper County Jail for the June 1998 Byrd slaying.

In the July 1998 letter to an inmate at a state prison, he referred to "rolling a tire," with a witness describing "tire" as a derogatory jailhouse term for a black person.

"Well, I did it," Brewer wrote in the letter, which was intercepted by a deputy. "And no longer am I a virgin. It was a rush and I'm still licking my lips for more."

Defense attorney Doug Barlow, who declined to make an opening statement to the jury Monday, said Brewer was writing about sex and not a murder.

A Texas Department of Criminal Justice gang intelligence officer, however, insisted the message was in prison code.

"To me, it sounds like he's stating he's physically assaulted a member of the black race in one form or another," William Kirk said.

An innocent plea to the capital murder charge was entered Monday for Brewer, 32, the second of three white men charged with killing James Byrd Jr. by chaining him by his ankles to the back of a pickup truck and then pulling him for three miles along a bumpy country road.

"He sees himself as a hero, a star, that he's really accomplished," Jasper District Attorney Guy James Gray said in an opening statement to a jury hearing Brewer's case. "It's really a kind of weird mind-set."

A prison inmate who shared a cellblock wing with Brewer testified about a conversation with Brewer in which he hoped to hear remorse or regret for the Byrd slaying.

"He said 'No,"' Jesus Moran, serving time for burglary and theft, testified. "He would try to do it so he could get completely away with it.

"If it was up to them, they would like to take the whole black population and shoot them behind the head — men, women and children — and get rid of them."

Brewer, from Sulphur Springs, along with John William King and Shawn Allen Berry, both 24 and from Jasper, are accused of abducting Byrd, 49, and killing him the early morning of June 7, 1998, after they offered him a ride in Berry's pickup truck.

James Byrd Sr. sits alone with his thoughts while surrounded by friends and family before the start of the trial of Lawrence Russell Brewer Monday at the Brazos County Courthouse in Bryan.

Byrd's shredded torso, minus a head and right arm, was left on the road between a black church and black cemetery.

King, the first to go to trial, was sentenced to death in February by a Jasper County jury.

Brewer's trial was moved about 150 miles west to Bryan where a jury of 12 whites and two Hispanics is hearing the case. Two of the jurors are alternates.

If convicted, Brewer also could be sentenced to death.

"For some reason these guys write a lot and talk a lot," Gray told jurors. "Some of the letters this man has written will be presented to you."

Brewer, convicted of cocaine possession, and King, a convicted burglar, had met while in the Texas Beto I Unit prison. Gray said Brewer was the top officer, what he called an "exalted cyclops," in a white supremacist prison group known as the Confederate Knights of America.

"You'll see Mr. Brewer wrote to Mr. King: 'I will school you,"' Gray said. "King, when he came in, this guy was the mentor, the guy who took him under his wing.

"You'll also see some documents," Gray continued. "They talk in terms of spreading ... their message. The pattern you'll see develop is a thought process that begins in an isolated environment that becomes very extreme and the thought to spread that process."

Prosecutors have said Byrd's abduction and murder, which shocked the nation, were intended to give publicity to a new white supremacist group, the Texas Rebel Soldiers. The murder also was intended as an initiation rite for Berry, a friend of King's, prosecutors have said.

Jasper County Sheriff Billy Rowles was the first witness for the prosecution, telling how he was summoned to the road northeast of Jasper to what he initially thought was a hit-and-run accident.

He described the discovery of body parts scattered about the road and finding footprints at what appeared to be the scene of a scuffle.

"I didn't go down that road too far before I knew this was going to be a bad deal," he said.

Among documents entered into evidence Monday was an oath in which Brewer declared his allegiance "in the presence of Almighty God and those Klansmen here assembled" to the Rebel Soldiers group, pledging service to the Aryan race.

The oath, which he signed, also was marked by a bloody fingerprint inside an interlocking design of three K's, a symbol of the Ku Klux Klan. The documents also showed he had recruited and sponsored others into the group.

rience different audiences," said Ms. Edwards, who has been directing for 10 years.

Ms. Edwards anticipates numerous benefits for the students. "A lot of them have not been outside of the U.S. To experience a different culture is life-changing. Not only does it teach a tolerance for other ways of doing things; it makes them appreciate the good fortune we have to be able to live here in Texas."

"Plus, going at a pretty high pace through the time we're there with concerts and sight-seeing teaches flexibility, an invaluable lesson," she said.

Junior Sara Lauzon is "really excited even though I know it's a lot of money to raise.

"I've never played with the choir before, but I've heard it done. It will be something new for the audience too," the violinist said.

"It's one thing to go to New York, in your own country, but to go to some totally different country where you can see part of your heritage and family line is so much better," junior Matt Kirchner said, referring to opportunities the choir has had in the past.

Some of his relatives are English, which will add to the experience.

"It will be a lot of fun to see what other people outside of Midland think about your music," he said.

"I've never been so psyched about a life-changing event. I can't wait to experience being on my own. We are preparing ourselves by raising the money," junior John Mason, said hinting at the downside of the expenses involved.

"(Fund raising is) not a big ball of joy," senior singer Thomas Reynolds said.

Kirchner's parents are co-presidents of the Choir Booster Club, and have estimated that the trip will cost students of both groups $2,500.

"With a lot of hard work we can do it. It will be worth it to give these students an experience they will never forget and will shape their lives," Pat Kirchner, his mother said. "This gives the students a broader perspective, and they can learn things by traveling that they would not have an opportunity to learn anyway else."

She, like the majority of the group, has never been overseas.

The current push is that of selling general memberships to the choir and strings group's booster clubs.

In return for a donation of $25 or more, choir donors will get their name in the official program and the chance to reserve tickets for Broadway Review and Magical programs.

According to Mrs. Kirchner, the real benefit is "the opportunity to support the fine arts ... and good kids doing good things."

Will Kirchner said that general contributions to the choir are tax deductible.

As for the contribution of his time, it was an easy decision.

"We moved in two years ago. The choir was an excellent place for our two kids to be involved. They run with a very good crowd and learn life-long skills. For me, this is an opportunity to return something to the community and be involved in my kids' lives," Kirchner said.

Vickie Reynolds, co-chairman with her husband Ronnie of fund raising for the choir, said "For a lot of these kids, this would be the only way they would get to go. We've separated them into buddy groups of six kids to motivate each other to raise the money. Most of them have already had garage sales."

Other fundraisers in the works are selling HEB gift certificates, Aunt Bee's Candles, and flowers — poinsettias at Christmas and spring flowers later on. These are in addition to the performances that are expected to bring a sizable amount of money.

Similarly, the strings have divided the amount up into monthly payments, to be raised through garage sales, Albertson's gift certificate sales, a raffle for a Camaro, and the option for businesses to sponsor special mini-concerts for a designated amount of money, in addition to their annual ham and turkey sales.

The orchestra's main upcoming event is the Hauntcert, October 28, which will include a costume contest for children and a major raffle.

"The money is for them, so we have to get them fired-up and motivated. We won't be going without any of our members, so they all need to raise their money," orchestra fund raising chairman Phyllis Blocker said.

Though fund raisers are not always fun, junior Chorale member Brandon Campbell said, "The fund raising efforts are increasing unity throughout the choir, and I'm gonna have a blast. This is the biggest trip of my high school career."

CASA DE AMIGOS
35th Anniversary

In 1993 I was asked to volunteer and serve on the board of Casa de Amigos. Even though I did not know much about Casa, I gladly accepted. Never did I know what a honor it would be! I owe a lot to Casa for allowing me the opportunity to be part of one of the strongest teams (family) in the Permian Basin.

The board, staff, volunteers and clients of Casa de Amigos are truly unique as we have all worked together to meet the needs and accomplish our goals. Casa is a solid agency that cares. The cornerstone of Casa is its outstanding director, Lael Cordes-Pitts. Without her and the hard work of the staff, there would not be a Casa. Countless hours are spent inside and outside the doors of Casa helping people in Midland.

Monty Hoppel

One of the strong points of Casa is it is fiscally responsible, and even though the primary focus of the agency is in education, health/dental, social and senior services, Casa's doors are open to anyone. What I love about Casa is that it gives guidance and rekindles pride. It helps people help themselves by giving a helping hand instead of a hand out.

Casa is one of the Midland's great success stories as it celebrates its 35th Anniversary. In the past six years, Casa has kicked off an endowment program, started a Reach Out Tennis program and developed an effective volunteer program. I urge you to learn more about Casa de Amigos. We need volunteers and, of course, contributions. Thank you Casa de Amigos for letting me serve in your house. You have helped me understand the needs in our community. I am blessed to have "experienced" Casa the last six years and I look forward to serving many more.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY for Tuesday, Sept. 14, 1999:

Stay anchored in the here and now rather than thinking too far into the future. Break past educational barriers; travel and explore different lifestyles. Taking seminars, going back to school and meeting new people become a lot easier by late winter. Work can be unpredictable and may often get on your nerves. Start an exercise program or a stress-reduction plan. If you are single, "spring fever" might take on a new meaning to you. Late winter/early spring brings a new and different person into your life. If attached, share your foibles and fears. Plan a special trip together. SCORPIO enjoys your company.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
★★★ Unexpected behavior sends you into a tizzy. Think before you say anything difficult or testy. Pressure builds; others take your words more seriously than you intended. One-on-one relating is key to resolving issues. Take the first step. Learn to forgive and forget. Tonight: Moving right along!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
★★★ Hold your ground. Affirming your boundaries in a way another cannot hear causes more problems than you really want. Be clear, yet be indulgent and understanding of a loved one. Tonight: Accept another's idea of a good time.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
★★★ Pace yourself. You might be more in the doldrums than you realize. Getting solid answers proves to be difficult if you challenge a coworker. Unexpected news affects you deeply. Let your tone reflect your loving intentions. Let others know you care. Tonight: Bring extra work home.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
★★★★ A friend pushes you way beyond the limits of your self-control. Enjoy spending a little on a loved one and/or yourself. Your sense of direction helps you understand how to creatively cover all bases. A child shows you how much he cares. Tonight: Whooping it up!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
★★★ Follow through with a difficult associate at work. You cannot give up just yet. Stay centered when dealing with this person. Don't lose your direction. Give others a lot of rope, especially a family member. Stop and purchase something special for a loved one. Tonight: Head home.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
★★★★ Make an additional effort. Don't let another discourage you with harsh words or a change in plans. Know what you want when dealing with a difficult, challenging friend or associate. Tonight: Run errands, then stop for a visit on your way home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
★★★★ A difficult associate or partner pushes you hard. You might have inadvertently created a difficult situation. Honor what another says, but don't feel that you must agree, especially if it involves your funds. Join in with friends. Tonight: Curb spending.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21)
★★★★★ You feel good. Put your interests first when dealing with a partner who is never pleased with you. You are in the limelight; others look to you. Be in touch with another's need to flatter you, and enjoy the moment. Your magnetism speaks. Tonight: Whatever makes you smile.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21)
★★★ Understand another's position. Remain sure of yourself with a testy co-worker. Fatigue could be an issue here. Make sure you are taking good care of yourself. Someone at a distance really cares; help him find the right avenue to express this caring. Tonight: Take some time off.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
★★★★ Lighten up about what is going on with a loved one or child. You really don't have any control. Stay focused on your goals and needs. Attend meetings. Stay optimistic. Remain sensible, even if a partner pushes you. Tonight: Opt for togetherness.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18)
★★★ Take the lead. From your point of view, another is being difficult. Worry less. Understand where others are coming from. A partner or potential sweetheart is very indulgent. Make time for this person, or let him be more a part of your public life. Tonight: In the limelight.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20)
★★★★ Take an overview, even when another is trying your patience. Getting down to the nitty-gritty won't serve you. Relax and focus on work. You hear interesting information. Be sensitive to a coworker who might have a crush on you. Tonight: Relax to music or try a new restaurant.

Opening lead: Two of ◇

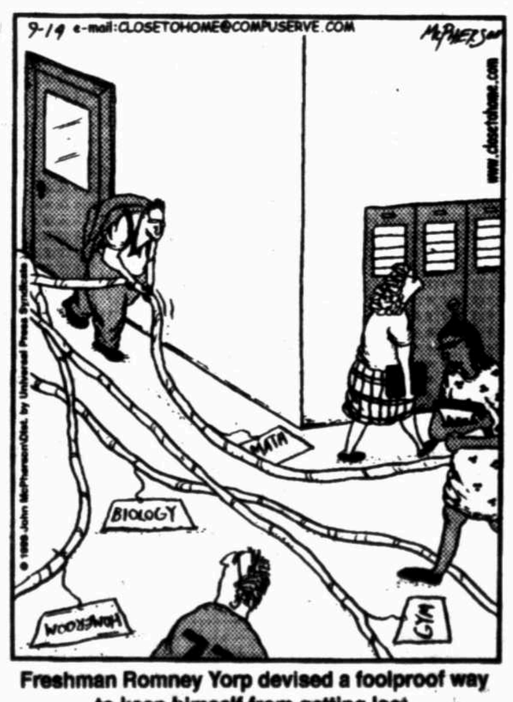

The greatest difference between rubber bridge and duplicate is the importance of overtricks and undertricks. Almost as critical is the principle of sacrificing. This deal is from a national pair championship some years ago.

West's two-diamond bid was an attempt to get a spade preference, but it backfired when North doubled to show diamond length. East might have done better to confirm spade support rather than cue-bid diamonds, although that would not have deterred South, Paul Soloway, from bouncing into five diamonds, which West doubled.

West led a low trump taken by dummy's nine. Declarer immediately led a club, and East rose with the ace. When the smoke cleared, declarer had lost one spade, two hearts and a trick in each minor for a penalty of 500, far cheaper than the 620 or more East-West could have collected for making game in a major. That gave North-South a top score on the board.

Would this also be a good sacrifice at rubber bridge? Only if coin of the realm means little to you! While the loss of 500 points is less than North-South would incur if their opponents make game, the problem is that, since East-West are still vulnerable and North-South are not, the former remain 2-to-1 favorites to win the rubber. Paying 500 points under those circumstances is throwing good money after bad.

PEOPLE TODAY

This time it wasn't Margaritaville for Buffett

Jimmy Buffett joined other pilots over the weekend for the International Seaplane Fly-in.

GREENVILLE, Maine — Jimmy Buffett traded in his margarita for more traditional picnic fare when he joined nearly 4,000 people at the International Seaplane Fly-in.

Three years ago the singer nearly died after crashing his plane into Nantucket Harbor, but he still climbs into the cockpit. He's said the crash made him a better, more cautious pilot.

Buffett, 52, is best known for his hit song "Margaritaville." He dropped in Saturday to have a hot dog with pilots.

Proceeds from the annual fly-in benefit a number of causes, including the Maine Aviation Historical Society.

THESSALONIKI, Greece — Former Democratic presidential candidate Michael Dukakis was honored Monday with a gold medal from the mayor of this port city in northern Greece.

Dukakis, a Greek-American and former governor of Massachusetts, was invited to inaugurate a chair in public policy named after him at Thessaloniki's Anatolia College.

Dukakis took the opportunity to praise traditional rivals Greece and Turkey for helping each other after earthquakes struck both countries.

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Belgian Crown Prince Philippe on Monday presented his new fiancee to the nation in a chaotic media ceremony on the grounds of the royal palace.

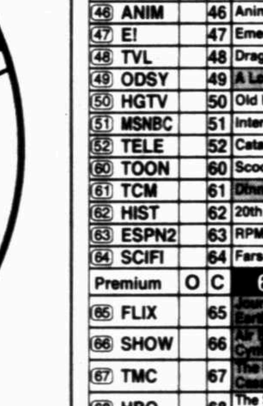

Scores of television crews and photographers pushed and shoved security officers as Philippe and Mathilde d'Udekem d'Acoz strolled hand-in-hand across a sun-drenched lawn of the royal palace at Laken, on the northern outskirts of Brussels.

The couple's engagement was announced last Friday. Philippe, 39, told reporters on Monday he was "enormously touched" by the outpouring of public support for him and his fiancee, a 26-year-old speech therapist.

They are to marry Dec. 4 in Brussels.

DHARMSALA, India — The turn of the millennium will be "just another day and night" for the Dalai Lama, unless mankind resolves to end the kind of suffering going on in East Timor and other trouble spots.

Dalai Lama says millennium won't be special unless mankind resolves to end suffering in the world.

Tibet's exiled spiritual leader, opening an international conference Sunday on science and spirituality, said compassion must lead to action if the next era is to be any different.

"When we see these sort of unfortunate things, just to feel sorry ... that is not sufficient," he said. "The new millennium is nothing special, just another day and night."

The Dalai Lama has lived in exile in Dharmsala since 1959, when he fled Chinese rule in Tibet.

THESSALONIKI, Greece — Emir Kusturica, the award-winning Sarajevo-born director, said Monday he'll put down his camera for a short while and pick up a guitar.

Kusturica said he will first tour Greece with his No Smoking Band until Sept. 27. He will then hold concerts in Switzerland, France, Poland and again in Greece.

Kusturica, who was honored as best director for "Black Cat, White Cat" at last year's Venice Film Festival, said he decided to breathe new life into his old band.

Kusturica also made "Underground," a movie about the war in his native Yugoslavia.

ALBANY, N.Y. — She may be changing her address and thinking about getting a new job, but an aide says Hillary Rodham Clinton is sticking with the face she's got.

Spokeswoman Marsha Berry on Monday denied tabloid reports that Mrs. Clinton is eyeing plastic surgery.

DEAR ABBY

Mom's faithful support is met indifferently by her kids

DEAR ABBY: I found your response to the twins whose divorced father would not continue child support payments or pay for higher education to be factually accurate, but a bit narrow in its vision.

Van Buren

My wife left her home state 10 years ago for a much better job. After a child custody battle that almost bankrupted her, she was forced to leave her 8-year-old son and 6-year-old daughter with her ex-husband. Despite a court order, her son refused to fly up to see her after the first few visits and was rarely available when she flew there. Football, basketball, friends -- all held more importance than his mother. Despite her never missing a holiday gift, I can count on one hand the number of phone calls or thank-yous she has received. Care to guess how many times they forgot her birthday?

When it came time for him to choose a college, my wife offered to assist with tuition if he considered an Ivy League school or the school from which she and her former husband graduated. She was chastised for trying to "force" him to attend a college he did not wish to.

Perhaps the twins should examine how they treated their father while the child support was paid consistently every month. Sounds like Dad held up his end. Maybe they should examine whether theirs was held up equally well.

By the way, do you remember that classic letter you answered many years ago with, "How old will you be in four years if you don't?" Thanks to that answer, my wife graduated from medical school three years ago at the age of 42, and she hasn't regretted ANY of her decisions since she decided to get divorced. She's one smart lady, and I'm immensely proud of her. -- BEEN THERE, DONE THAT

DEAR BEEN THERE, DONE THAT: Please extend my belated congratulations to your wife. Your pride in her achievements is more than justified. It's sad that her son missed out on knowing his mother better, because she's a remarkably accomplished woman. He would have been enriched had the relationship been encouraged, and I don't mean monetarily.

DEAR ABBY: I fully agree with your response to the young man who felt his father should continue to pay child support while he and his twin brother were in college. If this "adult" was so concerned about his mother having to work two jobs so he could go to college, he should take responsibility for his own education.

Your suggestion to take fewer hours of classes and get a part-time job was excellent. May I offer another route? JOIN THE MILITARY. They're always hiring. Not only do you get excellent training and a paycheck, you can get up to $40,000 for college. Also, while you're on active duty, the service you choose will pay 75 percent of the tuition cost for every class you take.

I am in the Air Force and took advantage of the education benefits and went to night school. Through different programs, I was able to get a bachelor of science degree for less than $2,000 out of my own pocket. Plus, that young man's mother will be so proud to see her son in uniform doing something for himself instead of depending on her. --PROUD TO SERVE, NAVARRE, FLA.

P.S. By the way, Abby, I am NOT a recruiter for the Air Force.

DEAR PROUD: You may not be an Air Force recruiter, but I'm willing to bet your letter will result in more than a few inquiries, if not enlistments. Thank you for the reminder that the armed forces offer educational benefits to their members.

To order "How to Write Letters for All Occasions," send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

Fort Davis Cyclefest to host cyclers from all over nation

From Staff Reports

This Saturday and Sunday the Permian Basin Bicycle Association will sponsor the Fort Davis Cyclefest. Saturday morning, riders from all over the nation will tour scenic areas in the Davis Mountains on bicycle rides ranging in length from 4 to 100 miles.

Ride headquarters is the Prude Guest Ranch, where most riders will begin. Most riders usually attempt a clockwise ride around the 76-mile Davis Mountain Scenic Loop. This ride has been characterized by writer George Serva in "A Guide to Bicycling in Texas" as "the most spectacular ride in Texas." Other riders will ride mountain bike trails at Prude Ranch. Riders may register in advance at Peyton's Bikes in Midland. Participants will enjoy a Saturday night spaghetti dinner at Indian Lodge followed by entertainment.

Sunday morning there will be two hill-climb races. The short hill-climb will start at the McDonald Observatory Visitor Center at 9 a.m. and the long hill-climb, which will offer cash prizes, will start near the Solar Energy Park approximately 7 miles northwest of Fort Davis at 8:45 a.m.. Both races will finish at the Observatory parking lot at the top of Mount Locke. Racers must register in advance, or at Prude Ranch Sunday morning at 8 a.m. to participate.

For additional information, call Gary Covington at 683-3881.

Sunday's Oil Report has the news which you've waited for all week.

Violence in the Public Schools:
The Role of the Media and Entertainment Industry

The University of Texas of the Permian Basin is pleased to announce:
Jack Thompson, J.D.
7:30 p.m., Thursday, September 16, 1999
at UTPB's Gymnasium, Main Campus
Admission is Free
Mr. Thompson stands at the forefront of the debate over the role that popular culture, media and entertainment play in desensitizing youth to trauma and aggression, and causing youth violence. He has appeared on Crossfire, Nightline, Good Morning America, Today, CBS This Morning, 60 Minutes, ABC World News, 48 Hours, Oprah and Donahue. He presently represents the parents of three young students who were killed by a classmate at a school in Paducah, Kentucky, in December 1997.
Mr. Thompson's timely presentation has been arranged by UT - Permian Basin's College of Arts & Sciences and the School of Education Advisory Councils as part of their annual Distinguished Lecture Series. Gailey kept his cool during Cowboys' rally

By Jaime Aron
AP Sports Writer

IRVING — Other than preferring a baseball cap to a fedora, Chan Gailey's sideline demeanor is pretty similar to the stone-faced stoicism of Tom Landry.

But as the Dallas Cowboys erased a 21-point deficit to beat the Washington Redskins 41-35 in overtime Sunday, Gailey turned Jimmy Johnson-like — whooping, hollering, backslapping and even jumping with joy. Gailey was still riding that emotional wave Monday as he discussed how the season-opening victory, and the way it happened, will help the team over the next 15 games.

"We talk about don't quit, you can come back, if they can score 20 in the third quarter you can score 21 in the fourth quarter, but until you do it and see it and feel it and it happens, you're not sure," Gailey said. "Now, they realize they can. I'm not sure you can put a value on that.

"For the rest of the rest of the year, we can say, 'We're not out of it.' We have proof. It gives you that extra sense of confidence."

Cowboys coaches had to pull out all their comeback cliches after Dallas gave up 32 straight points, turning a 14-3 lead into a 35-14 deficit going into the fourth quarter.

Then came the stuff coaches preach can happen but hardly ever does: a 70-yard touchdown drive, a recovered onside kick, a 66-yard touchdown march, a 90-yard touchdown drive without any timeouts that was helped by four defensive penalties, the game-tying extra point ricocheting in off the left upright, a botched field goal by Washington and, finally, a 76-yard bomb from Troy Aikman to a wide-open Raghib Ismail for the victory.

The touchdown triggered a wild celebration that didn't include Gailey. Amazed by what he had seen, Gailey stood bent at the waist, clutching his knees until he regained his composure. He maintained it until halfway through his news conference Monday, when he was explaining what the comeback showed him about his players.

"I learned I'm excited about going to war with the guys we've got on our football team. I'm excited about that. I want to say a lot more," he said, pausing, "But I'm not going to say it."

Aikman's performance in the fourth quarter and overtime stiff-armed two of the biggest knocks against him: that he can't throw the long ball and he can't rally the Cowboys the way Roger Staubach did.

None of those critics were in the Dallas huddle. Teammates believed in Aikman the way the Denver Broncos knew John Elway would carry them. He responded by erasing a bigger deficit than Staubach ever did, matching Danny White's team-record recovery in 1984 against New Orleans.

"There was never a sense of panic," Gailey said. "He knew what we were able to do and what we

No Elway, no way for Broncos

■ Griese doesn't embarrass in debut, but Marino and Dolphins steal show with 38-21 win.

By Dave Goldberg
AP Football Writer

DENVER — John Elway wouldn't have had it any other way.

If someone had to spoil his retirement party, it might as well be Dan Marino, the last quarterback left from that illustrious class of 1983. With major help from the special teams, who blocked a punt and a field goal to set up 10 points, the Miami Dolphins beat Denver 38-21 Monday night, spoiling Brian Griese's coming out party as Elway's successor in the Broncos' first game in pursuit of a third straight Super Bowl title.

It also put a damper on the halftime ceremony in which Elway's name and number were placed in the Broncos' Ring of Fame.

Marino, who was 15-of-23 for 215 yards as he began what might be his final quest for an elusive Super Bowl ring, had a 12-yard TD pass to rookie fullback Rob Konrad and a 4-yarder to O.J. McDuffie. Karim Abdul-Jabbar and another rookie, J.J. Johnson, had 1-yard TD runs and Olindo Mare added a 37-yard field goal as the Dolphins ended Denver's 24-game regular season home winning streak that extended back to December 1996.

Griese, selected over Bubby Brister by coach Mike Shanahan to start in Elway's place, wasn't bad, finishing 24-of-40 for 270 yards and throwing TD passes of 61, 11 and 4 yards to Ed McCaffrey, the last coming with 34 seconds to play. He also was sacked with about four minutes to play by Rich Owens and fumbled with Jason Taylor recovering in the end zone for the Dolphins' final score.

But his arm didn't present the fear factor Elway's did, allowing Miami to play eight men close to the line of scrimmage to shut down Terrell Davis, who finished with 61 yards on 19 carries. Late in the first half, for example, Griese underthrew a wide-open McCaffrey, who had to come back for the ball and dropped it.

Griese started off like another Elway, hitting McCaffrey between Brock Marion and Shawn Wooden for the 61-yard score on the first series of the game.

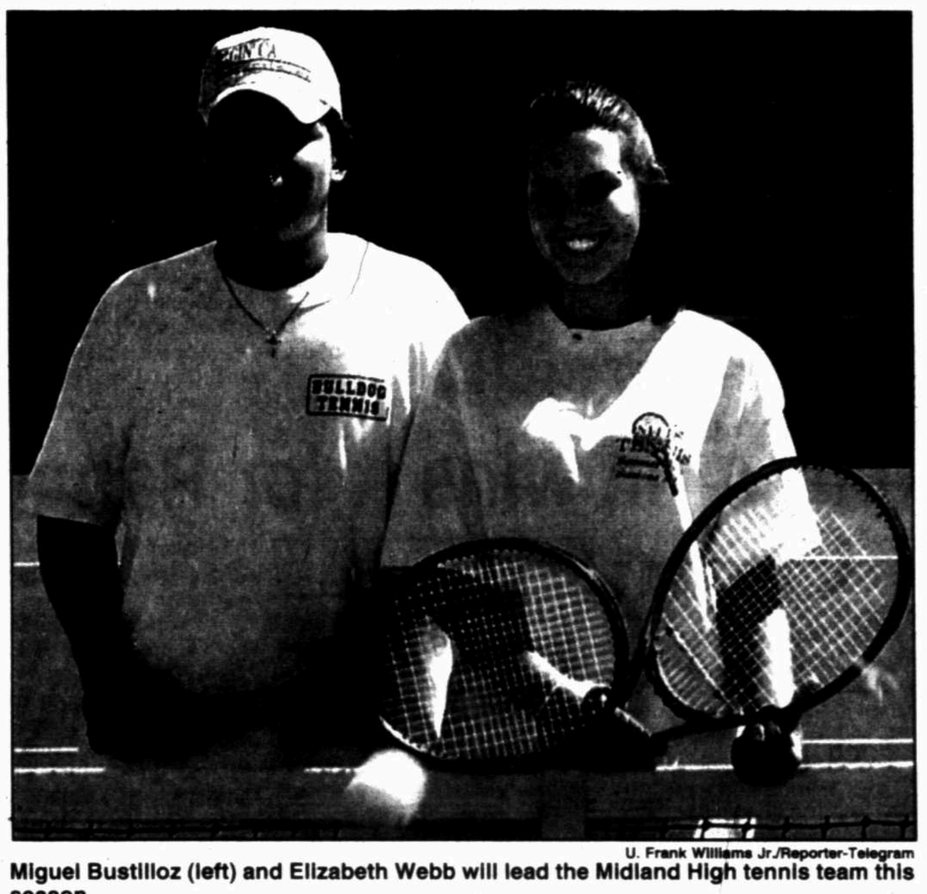

The Broncos held their 7-0 lead into the second quarter and looked about to go ahead 10-0. But Lorenzo Bromell blocked Jason Elam's 44-yard field goal attempt and Terrell Buckley returned it 43 yards to the Denver 36. Four plays later, Abdul-Jabbar took it into the end zone to tie the score.

MHS, Lee: Youth will be served

Local tennis squads open 4-5A season today with plenty of talent but questions regarding youngsters

Young but dangerous should be the way to decribe both the Midland High and Midland Lee tennis teams this year.

Both MHS and Lee have some veteran talent but still lack the overall experience to really tell how good each can be in 1999. However, there is no doubt that each team has unlimited potential and has enough firepower to make the District 4-5A race very interesting this year.

District team tennis competition for both schools begins at 4 p.m. today when the Lee Rebels head to the Midland High Tennis Center to take on the Bulldogs in what could be a barometer for both squads. This year a mixed doubles match was added to team competition for a total of 19 matches. The mixed doubles match was added in order to break ties.

"I think MHS has its best team in four or five years," said Lee coach Steve Buck. "They (Bulldogs) match up real well with us. They have a real strong girls team with an awful lot of experience."

MHS coach Tom Heiting said he is a bit nervous facing the Rebels, especially their boys team.

"Lee's top two boys are probably the best or some of the best in the district," Heiting said. "I know they're a little younger on the girls side but they're all pretty skilled players. We definitely have our work cut out for us which is different from the past years."

After losing 14 seniors from last year's third place district team, the Bulldogs have a youthful look to them, although there is not much drop-off in talent.

"We're pretty young," Heiting said. "We've done pretty well so far in the matches we've played. We've been competitive. Some of our players need to get used to playing the seasoned veterans of high school tennis."

Heiting said he doesn't have a single boy playing with varsity experience. Two of the top six players are freshmen. Leading the boys at the No. 1 spot is freshman Marcos Valdez, who tore up junior high competition.

Junior Miguel Bustilloz is at No. 2, sophomore Jess Gilmour plays at No. 3, freshman Jonathan Webb is at No. 4, junior Kelson Gist plays at No. 5 and Saul Morales is at the no. 5 spot.

On the MHS girls' side there is a bit more experience. Junior Drew Branum is playing at the No. 1 spot, followed by senior Dana Giles at No. 2, senior Elizabeth Webb at No. 3, Emily Leeton at No. 4, sophomore Ashley Shannon plays at No. 5 and freshman Ashley Vasicek at No. 6.

Lee's experience lies on the boys' side where probably two of the best players in the

Lee's McNutt can do almost anything

How important is Clint McNutt to the Midland Lee football team?

"If we had to pick right now, he would be our MVP," Lee head coach John Parchman said.

Doreen

Considering the talent on the field for the Rebels, that is a pretty big compliment, but McNutt is that type of player.

In the third quarter of last Friday's game, "Lee's MVP" (McNutt) lined up under center, throwing many for a loop. McNutt, primarily a running back, has played fullback, tailback and wingback on the offensive side of the ball, but not quarterback until that game.

But there he was, taking snaps against El Paso Franklin's first team defense.

"I am glad I did it," McNutt said. "I got the pressure away from me and the nerves out of my system, in case I have to do it again."

Parchman says McNutt at QB may not be a one-shot deal.

"Probably at least at this point in the season, he would be next in line to be our QB," Parchman said. "He brings things to the table that would create problems for a defense, too."

O. so the guy can play a little quarterback, what is so special about that? Nothing, except it was his seventh position he has played this year. Along with the four on offense, McNutt has returned punts and kicks and played middle linebacker.

"I like all of the positions. I don't have any favorites," McNutt said. "The work doesn't bother me. If I am able and physically capable. There is no reason why I shouldn't."

McNutt is first and foremost an offensive weapon — one of the premier all-around weapons in the league. Last year, he totaled 1,183 yards rushing and 463 receiving.

Loss of Williams is major blow to Permian offense

By Stewart Doreen
Assistant Sports Editor

■ 4-5A Report

It doesn't take a great deal to get the Odessa Permian faithful riled up. After all they have seen six state champions and have almost unrealistic expectations year after year.

So seeing all-state wide receiver Roy Williams all dressed up with nowhere to go, there is going to be some grumbling, especially when Permian comes up short on the scoreboard.

Friday night, Permian came up way short, losing to Allen, 28-7. Williams, who did dress out, didn't play. He is nursing a sprained ankle suffered in a Game 1 win over El Paso Irvin.

Let the grumbling begin.

There are going to be some who say that because Williams dressed out and looked to be ready to hit the field, he should have played.

There are others who say "nope." One of those is Permian coach Randy Mayes, and in Mojoland, he has the first, final and only vote.

"I think you have to weigh it like everything else," Mayes said. "Most people that comment on the game are looking at it from an outsider's point of view."

After the Allen game, Mayes said he wasn't going to put in Williams until the time was right. He wasn't going to risk the whole season on one game.

Unlike college, not every game in high school affects whether a team will be playing in the postseason. In high school, just district games count.

Hampton joins Lima as latest 20-game winner for Houston

Associated Press

HOUSTON — It only seems like an Astros pitcher gets his 20th win every night.

Mike Hampton joined teammate Jose Lima in the 20-win club, and the Houston Astros set a club record by winning their 11th straight game, 13-2 over the Philadelphia Phillies on Monday night.

■ NL Roundup

"I just want it to continue another two months," said Hampton (20-3), who won his 11th consecutive decision since a June 24 loss to Cincinnati. "I think it's my best year, it's been the most consistent year and that's what you shoot for, consistency."

He allowed two runs and six hits in seven innings with six strikeouts. Some say he has a good chance to win the NL Cy Young Award.

Houston maintained a three-game lead over second-place Cincinnati, which beat Florida 7-4 earlier in the day.

"It's very satisfying for all of us but especially for Hampy," Astros manager Larry Dierker said. "He did it in his own style, getting ground balls, getting double plays when he was in trouble, helping himself with the bat and running the bases."

Lima (20-7) got his 20th win Saturday against the Chicago Cubs. The last time teammates won 20 in the same season was in 1993, when Atlanta's Greg Maddux (20-10) and Tom Glavine (22-6) did it along with San Francisco's John Burkett (22-7) and Bill Swift (21-8).

Houston, which previously had six 10-game winning streaks, sent the Phillies to their 10th straight loss, their longest skid since an 11-gamer from June 24-July 4, 1997.

"I had my worst day as a professional against Randy Johnson, but Hampton was just as good and he brings some offense," said the Phillies' Rico Brogna, who was 0-for-4. "As far as I'm concerned, he's the best left-handed starter we've seen this year."

Philadelphia starter Joe Grahe (0-3) left after three innings with a blister on his right index finger. He allowed three runs — two earned — and two hits.

Grahe started in place of Curt Schilling, who missed his turn because of discomfort in his right shoulder. Kevin Jordan's RBI single put Philadelphia ahead in the first, but Jeff Bagwell singled home a run in the bottom half.

Sacrifice flies by Carl Everett and Ken Caminiti gave Houston a 3-1 lead in the third. Craig Biggio's 54th double — the most in the majors — drove in another run in the fourth, and Hampton singled in a run in the fifth. The pitcher is hitting .288 (19-for-66) with nine RBIs.

Bob Abreu had an RBI groundout in the sixth, but the Astros made it 7-2 in the bottom half on Daryle Ward's RBI double and Tony Eusebio's run-scoring infield single.

Houston scored five runs off Steve Schrenk in the seventh with just one hit. Everett hit an RBI grounder, Schrenk walked Caminiti and Glen Barker with the bases loaded, and Ricky Gutierrez hit a two-run single.

Reds 7, Marlins 4

CINCINNATI — Mike Cameron and Greg Vaughn hit solo home runs as the Reds overcame a two-run deficit to win their seventh straight over the Marlins for a four-game sweep.

Mets 6, Rockies 5

DENVER — David Veres' wild pitch allowed Mike Piazza to score from third with the go-ahead run in the ninth inning, and New York won for the eighth time in nine games.

Brewers 4, Cardinals 3

ST. LOUIS — Rookie Kevin Barker hit a tiebreaking two-run homer in the fifth inning to lead Milwaukee.

Padres 3, Braves 0

SAN DIEGO — Woody Williams took a shutout into the ninth inning and also hit an RBI single as San Diego handed Atlanta its third straight loss.

Diamondbacks 5, Pirates 1

PHOENIX — Hanley Frias hit his first home run of the season and Erubiel Durazo hit a three-run shot into the Bank One Ballpark swimming pool.

Broncos honor Elway at half

By Aaron J. Lopez
AP Sports Writer

DENVER — John Elway gave Denver one last Mile High memory.

On the field where he won 105 games, Elway was inducted into the Broncos' Ring of Fame on Monday night and watched as the No. 7 jersey he wore for 16 seasons was retired. Accompanied by his wife, Janet, and their four children, Elway turned his 15-minute tribute at halftime of the game with Miami into an emotional dedication to the fans who watched him grow from an immature quarterback to a certain Hall of Famer.

"I'm so happy that the Baltimore Colts traded me here, you can't believe it," Elway said, his voice wavering. "I'm going to miss you, but I'm not going to be far away because I'm going to be a Denver Bronco forever."

Unlike his retirement speech in April, Elway remained fairly composed as he addressed the crowd of 76,000 at Mile High Stadium. He walked onto the field to Billy Idol's "Rebel Yell" and flashed a thumbs up to about 100 men dressed in white No. 7 jerseys.

"Sometimes there is a player that becomes so important to us and so much our hero that his number and name become synonymous," Denver owner Pat Bowlen said. "There will never be another No. 7 on the Broncos."

Tears formed in Elway's eyes as his name was unveiled on the facade of the stadium's northwest corner.

Elway, who retired after winning his second straight Super Bowl title, is the 16th member of Denver's Ring of Fame and the first inductee since Louis Wright was inducted in 1993.

The Broncos waived the mandatory five-year waiting period for Elway's induction.

Kelly's hit wins it for Rangers

Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Roberto Kelly singled home the go-ahead run and the Texas Rangers scored four unearned runs in the 10th inning to beat the Kansas City Royals 8-4 Monday night.

Ivan Rodriguez went 2-for-5 with a two-run homer and three RBIs for the Rangers, who remained 5 1/2 games ahead of Oakland in the AL West.

With 104 runs scored and 102 RBIs, Rodriguez becomes the eighth catcher in history with 100 runs and 100 RBIs in a season. His 31 homers are one short of the AL record for a catcher, set by Terry Steinbach in 1996.

With one out in the 10th, Juan Gonzalez reached on third baseman Joe Randa's throwing error. Todd Zeile singled off Jose Santiago (2-4) and Kelly followed with his RBI single.

Zeile scored when first baseman Mike Sweeney booted Lee Stevens' grounder for an error. Kelly came home on Brad Rigby's wild pitch and one out later Tom Goodwin added an RBI single to make it 8-4.

■ AL Roundup

John Wetteland (4-4) pitched two scoreless innings for the victory.

Rodriguez put the Rangers ahead 1-0 with an RBI double in the first inning, then added a two-run shot to center field in the fifth off Jose Rosado for a 4-1 lead.

After Rey Sanchez's RBI groundout made it 4-2 in the fifth, the Royals tied the game in the seventh. Jeremy Giambi led off with a single and advanced to second on Sal Fasano's walk. After a sacrifice bunt, Johnny Damon hit an RBI groundout and Sanchez had an RBI single.

Blue Jays 4, Yankees 2

TORONTO — David Wells pitched a four-hitter to beat his former team for the first time in four starts this season, as the Blue Jays beat New York to hand the Yankees their fourth straight loss.

Indians 11, Red Sox 7

CLEVELAND — Kenny Lofton returned from a strained right hamstring to homer for the first time since June 11, driving in three runs to lead Cleveland.

Boston's lead over Oakland in the wild-card race slipped to two games.

Athletics 8, Devil Rays 3

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — Jason Giambi, Randy Velarde and Olmedo Saenz homered as Oakland won its fifth straight.

Miguel Tejada had a two-run single during a five-run, third inning against Bobby Witt.

Orioles 5, Mariners 4, 10 innings

BALTIMORE — Cal Ripken homered and drove in three runs, and B.J. Surhoff scored the winning run in the 10th inning on a throwing error by Jose Mesa.

Tigers 3, White Sox 2

CHICAGO — Rob Fick had a three-run homer for his first hit of the season, and Dave Mlicki won his eighth straight start to lead Detroit.

Angels 6, Twins 5

MINNEAPOLIS — Mo Vaughn homered in his fourth straight game and drove in three runs as Anaheim won for the fifth time in six games.

MIAMI: Rout stuns Denver

(From 1C)

Then Marino took the Dolphins 80 yards in seven plays, highlighted by a 40-yard pass to Tony Martin, the new speed receiver signed as a free agent. Marino capped that one with a 12-yard pass to Konrad, all alone in the right flat.

On Miami's next possession, Greg Jeffries partially blocked Tom Rouen's punt, setting up Mare's field goal with one second left in the half making it 17-7.

Johnson scored to cap the opening drive of the second half, 65 yards in nine plays that give Denver a 24-7 lead. Griese's second TD pass cut it back to 10.

But then Miami middle linebacker Zach Thomas sacked Griese on a fourth-and-1 at the Dolphins' 40. Marino then completed passes of 11 yards to Troy Drayton, 20 to Martin, 14 to McDuffie and 4 to McDuffie for the score that made it 31-14.

TENNIS: Abilene High appears to be favorite

(From 1C)

district return in senior Trent Broach, whom Buck calls a "Division I type recruit", and junior Marshall Viney, both of whom help to field a very strong Rebels' boys team as either a doubles team or as singles players.

Broach and Viney make up Lee's respective No. 1 and No. 2 players. At No. 3 is junior Gabriel Corrales, while the No. 4 spot will probably go to freshman Ben Richmond. The remaining Nos. 5 and 6 spots will be battled between seniors Javier Molinar, Justin Rich, Rush Moody and Steven Fly.

The Lee girls, on the other hand, aren't as experienced as there are five freshman playing among the top six thanks to some veteran players moving from Midland because of the economy.

"They're getting better every week," said Buck about his girls. "Just because they're young they might have a hard time starting district. But the boys can carry a good load before the girls come together. The girls have improved a whole bunch from the first one (match)."

The only senior listed among the top six is Beth Ann Kahlich, a veteran of the 4-5A wars.

"If we're going to do anything this year, she's going to have to step up and provide a big leadership," said Buck about Kalich. Buck also mentioned senior Alison Carroll and junior Juli Hodgen, as players who are also going to be asked to step up as leaders.

The five freshmen stepping up to the varsity level this season are Amber Raindl, Stacey Moore, Emily Buck, Landon Viney and Megan Boyd.

"We've got some talent in that freshman group," Buck said. "We're definitely the youngest team in the district. Most of our kids are just 14 years old. They're babies. The good thing about that is you've got them at practice until their mommas come to get them."

As for the rest of the district, Abilene High appears to be the pre-district favorite as the Eagles have a No. 2 ranking in the state. San Angelo Central is the other 4-5A ranked-team at No. 17.

Other than those two teams, the district race appears to be wide open.

"I think the one dominant team is Abilene High," Heiting said. "San Angelo Central is ranked high. From there, we'll see. You also have to look at Abilene Cooper."

"There are five teams that could win this district," Buck said. "We're going to have some luck along the way but we've got a very good chance and we hope to play the spoiler role."

'FORCED TO SELL'
THIS SATURDAY CARS AND TRUCKS WILL BE SOLD FOR AS LITTLE AS $99.00

ODESSA, TX - The largest independent used car and truck dealer in West Texas has just announced plans to repeat the largest one-day used vehicle sales event in Odessa's history. This event will take place Saturday, September 18, 1999. The sales location at 6101 E. Hwy 80 has been selected because of it's enormous capacity. This General Fleet lot (#6) will accommodate more than 500 cars in a single location. "We have more vehicles in stock than ever before. We have rental (program) cars, luxury cars, travel vans, diesels, crew cabs, duallys, inexpensive school cars, work cars, commercial trucks, and fixer-up cars, trucks, and vans. I've been given orders to sell some $2000.00 cars and trucks for as little as $99.00 just to move them. We haven't been taking cars to the big auctions and now they are stacked up everywhere. "I have been ordered to move excess inventory", said Joey Lee. The general manager went on to say, "I will sell some vehicles for $1000.00 to $3500.00 less than they would normally be priced."

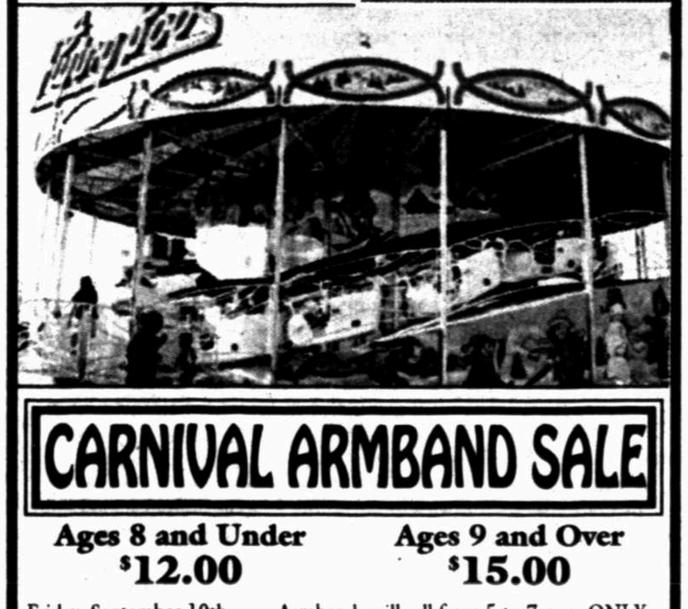

General Fleet Broker Inc's inventory has grown tremendously because of an influx of trade-ins acquired from new car dealers. These cars and trucks are usually wholesaled to other dealers or sold at closed dealer auctions. Some of these vehicles will be sold AS-IS, but most have been inspected and reconditioned to the highest standards and therefore are eligible for all of our normal used vehicle warranties and services policies.

Rather than pay auction fees and transportation bills, the management of G.F.B. has elected to have a public liquidation sale in Odessa. In an attempt to sell 100 cars and trucks in one day, General Fleet Brokers will have all vehicles on display at 6101 E. Hwy 80 (Loop 338 & E. 80) by 8:00 a.m. Saturday. Buyers will be given a chance to look at all vehicles before the prices are put in them at 10:00 a.m.. Whoever is sitting in the vehicle when the price is put in place will be given the first opportunity to purchase the vehicle at the posted sale price. This radical approach to moving inventory should make it simple and quick for anyone wishing to purchase a great vehicle at a very low price. Choose a vehicle, drive it, if you like it, you already know the price. "No haggling necessary and G.F.B. has over 30 different finance programs and can finance anyone" said Todd Robinson, Finance manager at G.F.B. No prices to negotiate. Pick a vehicle, get it financed and delivered fast. This sale is being advertised some with a few giveaways; a free car, tv, vcr, boom boxes etc., but we rely primarily on word of mouth which Todd Robinson says is the best form of advertising. "If you can and do, sell someone a good quality used car at a good fair price, they are sure to tell others where they purchased it," says Todd Robinson, expressing the philosophy of General Fleet Brokers Inc. This opportunity is for one day only. The vehicles will be on display at E. Hwy. 80 & Loop 338 in Odessa. For assistance call 915-550-2886.

Decision on arbitrator delayed

NEW YORK — As baseball prepared Monday for a big week of meetings, lawyers for owners and umpires again pushed back picking an arbitrator for their grievance.

The American Arbitration Association's Philadelphia office has given the sides a list of 15 arbitrators, and owners and umpires will take turns striking names until one remains. He becomes the arbitrator for this case.

Owners and umpires asked the AAA to find out how busy each of the 15 arbitrators is during the next 30-60 days. The arbitrator will decide whether owners legally accepted the resignations of 22 umpires earlier this month, or whether to order owners to rehire the 22.

Owners will try to convince the arbitrator that he has no authority to decide the case, claiming decisions of league presidents are final when it comes to hiring and firing umps.

Baseball's meetings begin Tuesday in New York, when owners and players hold their annual session on international play. Sandy Alderson, baseball's executive vice president of operations, said the meeting will look at plans for the 2000 and 2004 Olympics and for a possible World Cup.

While professionals are being allowed in the Olympic baseball tournament for the first time, the 30 major league teams are providing only those players who are not on 40-man rosters. A World Cup would take place during the offseason and include major leaguers.

On Wednesday, the focus shifts to Cooperstown, N.Y., for two days of owners meetings that will be dominated by franchise sales.

Owners are expected to approve the sale of control of the Cincinnati Reds from Marge Schott to Cincinnati businessman Carl Lindner and they may approve the proposed sale of the Oakland Athletics to a group headed by former team executive Andy Dolich. Proposed sales of the Kansas City Royals and Montreal Expos also are on the agenda, but their status was unclear going in to the two-day session.

Owners also will be briefed on the legal fight with umpires, whose strategy of mass resignations collapsed, and NL president Len Coleman's intention to resign. Coleman concluded a proposed restructuring transferring umpires, player discipline and scheduling to Alderson would leave league presidents merely figureheads.

4-5A: Missing receiver hurts Mojo's attack

(From 1C)

With District 4-5A teams having five games to prepare for district, there seem to be few reasons to risk further injury, especially to a player like Williams, who is one of the nation's top recruits at wide receiver.

So, there are reasons to sit a player like Williams out. Of course, that street goes in both directions.

"Anytime you lose a player of Roy's ability, it will have an effect," Mayes said.

The effect it had on Permian Friday night was a negative one. Friday night, Permian receivers caught passes for 84 yards, the same number Williams totaled one week earlier against Irvin.

Williams, who also returned a kickoff for a TD in Game 1, was also not there to spread the defense out and take pressure off No. 2 receiver Desmond Hill.

All totaled, Permian passed for those 84 yards and rushed for 159 more. The Panthers also scored seven points, 29 less than the output against Allen in 1998. It wasn't their best day and had most claiming that without Williams, Permian can't win.

Mayes doesn't know about that.

"The people we have in there now are very capable," Mayes said. "They will be fine."

Having to play without Williams against teams like Allen might make this a better team when he does make his return, whenever that may be. Mayes says Williams is doubtful for this week's game against Amarillo High. In week 4, Permian plays a good Temple team, which beat Abilene High this past weekend.

"It has got to (make us better)," Mayes said.

Permian fans hope so.

Elsewhere around he district.

At Midland High: The Bulldogs have started the season at 2-0 for the third time this decade. It didn't happen without a cost. David Browning's group lost junior tailback Courtland Cook for the season. Through two games this season, MHS leads the district in points scored (99), turnover margin (+4), fewest points allowed (10) and fewest yards allowed (a 118.5 average) in a game.

At Midland Lee: The Rebels, the No. 1 team in the state and nation, dominated Northwest El Paso the past two weeks by an 84-14 score and now turn their attention to the east. Lee, who is averaging a district best 495.5 yards a game, goes to the Metroplex to play Arlington Martin. That is the Rebels' last significant road trip this season. Why is Lee a safe No. 1 pick in the state and nation? The Rebs play five of their last seven games in Midland. The other two are in Odessa, where head coach John Parchman has never lost a game.

At Abilene Cooper: Cooper coach Randy Quisenberry was worried about Waco High's defensive linemen with single-digit numbers on their jerseys, and now we know why. Cooper rushed for 12 yards in the 24-7 loss. The Cougars have rushed for 69.5 yards per game. That has got to get better before the 4-5A season hits.

"No doubt about it," Quisenberry said of the running game being a worry. "It is a blocking thing. Plus, we had to throw some much because we were behind.

"We just haven't come together. When we play a good football team and don't play well, those are the kinds of things that are going to happen."

At Abilene High: Arturo "Sneezy" Beltran had 107 yards rushing. Kevin Goodman passed for 191 and the AHS offense scored two TDs in the last four minutes of Friday night's game with Temple. However, the Eagles woke up too late in the 21-14 loss. AHS never gave itself a chance with two dropped TDs passes and three turnovers. This week, AHS hosts Euless Trinity, which beat AHS 49-24 last year and is one of the top teams in the Metroplex.

"The execution of what we did the first half has to get better," Abilene High coach Steve Warren said. "We kept our defense on the field the whole first half and were 3 of 12 on third down attempts (for the game). We have to do better than that to be successful."

At Odessa High: Not many teams will win a game after committing three fumbles, one interception and a missed extra point. Odessa High certainly didn't Friday night in a 32-18 loss to Lubbock Coronado. The Bronchos looked good with 338 yards in total offense, but the mistakes killed Jim Carson's OHS team.

Quis could have been there: When Cooper coach Randy Quisenberry takes his team to North Mesquite, it could be a very interesting situation — not between two quality programs but one team (North Mequite) and the man (Quis) who turned down the opportunity to coach the program. Quisenberry turned down the North Mesquite job before the 1998 season, and this past off-season moved to Cooper. Quisenberry doesn't see this as being a factor, but North Mesquite is 0-2 and coach Buster Leaf might need all the motivation he can use.

"I don't know if that will be a factor. I don't know if those kids will be aware of it," Quisenberry said. "I guess it will depend if Buster chooses to make it one."

Notes: Lee kicker Matt Segulja tied a District 4-5A record for most field goals in a game with three... MHS won in an even-numbered week for the first time since the second week in 1997... District 4-5A was 2-4 in week 2. The only winners were from Midland... All four losing teams had registered wins in week 2 1998... 4-5A is 10-4 for the season...Permian's 28-7 loss was not Mojo's most decisive at Ratliff. In 1994, Permian lost 34-7 to Amarillo High.

This Week's Games: Midland Lee vs. Arlington Martin (at Duncanville High School); Midland High at Lubbock Monterey; Abilene Cooper at North Mesquite; Abilene High vs. Temple; Odessa Permian at Amarillo High; Odessa High vs. El Paso Coronado.

City MVPs
Midland High
Offense

Tony Joseph: The sophomore running back again played beyond his years, rushing for 111 yards and two touchdowns on 23 carries. The sophomore, who has 325 yards and five TDs in two games, should see even more action after the season-ending injury to junior Courtland Cook.

"He came in there under difficult circumstances against a good football team," MHS coach David Browning said. "He grew up a bunch when Courtland went down. He will continue to grow and will be successful. He has a chance to be a good back."

Defense

The whole MHS defense: There was a lot of talk that this would be MHS' best defense in a long time and the Bulldogs are backing it up. Against Andress, MHS allowed just 11 yards rushing and 86 passing. That is 97 overall.

"It was a team effort. You just can't pick one guy," said Larry Curry, a MHS defensive coach.

Midland Lee

Justin Painter. The junior offensive lineman led all Lee offensive linemen, grading out at 90 percent in the win over El Paso Franklin. Painter, a 6-foot, 270-pound left guard, is part of a formidable left side with 330-pound tackle Steve Subia.

"He has been a good player for us, going on two years for us," said Lee coach John Parchman of Painter. "He is starting to rise to the top. The last couple games he has been solid."

Defense

J.R. Brown. Lee has needed some players to step up this season, and Brown, a junior safety, answered the ball Friday night. Brown had 10 tackles (two for a loss), one interception and graded the highest on Lee's defense.

"He's a young guy who played with us some last year in spot situations," said Parchman of Brown. "He has come on as a starter, and I think we found the right place for him to play. He is doing everything we thought he could do."

Big 12 enjoys huge weekend

By Chris Newton
Associated Press Writer

Outpassing, outrushing and outblitzing most of their opponents this weekend, Big 12 Conference members outscored the opposition by a whopping 300 points.

But many coaches were offering advice and condolences to Baylor coach Kevin Steele, whose team could have beaten UNLV Saturday by taking a knee late in the fourth quarter. Instead, the Bears ran a play and fumbled, allowing UNLV to return the loose ball for a touchdown and steal the game, 27-24.

"It was a mistake and I regret it," Steele said of the last play. "Everybody wants to know, 'What where you thinking?' Well, we were trying to create a situation where we're pushing the offense towards its potential. The kids wanted to score. We had been moving the football. We are trying to create a mental toughness that gives our players the edge to finish the job. That having been said, it was a mistake and I regret it."

But other than Baylor's (0-2) last-second loss, coaches around the Big 12 were assessing the conference's dominating play this weekend and re-evaluating their chances.

Texas Tech's Spike Dykes said he was just happy his team played hard without injured running back Ricky Williams, who stayed at home during Tech's 38-17 victory over Louisiana-Lafayette. Williams' replacement, James Easterling, rushed for 114 yards and two touchdowns.

"We didn't have long to worry about the loss last Monday," Dykes said. "Easterling came to front as a runner and had an especially good game. He played better than he has ever played."

Tech improved to 1-1.

Coach Mack Brown's Longhorns (2-1) trounced Rutgers, 38-21, under the leadership of quarterback Major Applewhite. Applewhite threw for 244 yards and two touchdowns.

No. 16 Kansas State's Bill Snyder said the team's 40-0 victory over Temple provided a chance to rethink his lineup.

"This game gave us an indication of where we are at this particular point in time," Snyder said. "There has been some concern and an evaluation of personnel. If we find that someone is playing better than someone else, this is the time to give them the chance to move up the depth chart."

Kansas State improved to 1-0.

Oklahoma State's Bob Simmons said he may consider encouraging his quarterbacks to stay behind the line of scrimmage a little more often.

DOREEN: McNutt does it all for Lee

(From 1C)

After two games this season, he leads Lee is receiving yards and points scored. He is also second in rushing.

"Over 1,000 yards rushing and almost 500 yards receiving, that would put him in there with anyone we have had," Parchman said. "People would be foolish to load up and try to stop anyone else."

With all his offensive talent, McNutt — who stands 6-foot and 185 pounds and runs a 4.5, 40-yard dash — is versatile enough to have coaches thinking about using him on defense, where Lee returned only one full-time starter from last year.

"You may see him there before it is over," Parchman said. "We work him about 45 minutes to an hour each day at linebacker. We get him involved in the defensive game plan and he could step in there and do a good job for us."

McNutt enjoyed playing defense against El Paso Coronado. It was his first time to play defense since the ninth grade.

He hopes it isn't the last.

"I like offense — don't get me wrong — but defense is great," McNutt said. "Defense is great, and getting to play both ways like I did against Coronado is great. I get to see both views of the game from both sides of the ball."

McNutt is all about versatility. If the district had a utility player of the year award, the voting wouldn't be close. That is how great a football player he is.

When asked if he could play just one position, he said, "I say he is the head coach. It is his call. I will play where they need me."

That is the type of attitude he brings.

What kind of a football player is Midland Lee senior Clint McNutt?

"He's a football playing dude," Parchman said.

That may be the ultimate compliment.

were trying to do."

On the final play, the Redskins expected the Cowboys to run on third-and-2 from their 24. Gailey gambled with a bit of reverse psychology.

"You've got to make some of those calls sometimes," he said. "I thought our defense was starting to get back into it and we could still win even if we didn't make it there. I felt the reward was worth the risk."

Ismail's catch was the longest of his career and the longest touchdown Aikman had thrown in the regular season since an 80-yarder against Washington in the 1993 opener. It gave Aikman his first five-TD game since high school.

"I think this says a lot for the organization, it says a lot for the coaches and players to have guys that keep battling and keep playing," Aikman said. "You don't want to get 21 points down every week, but I think the way we were able to come back says a lot."

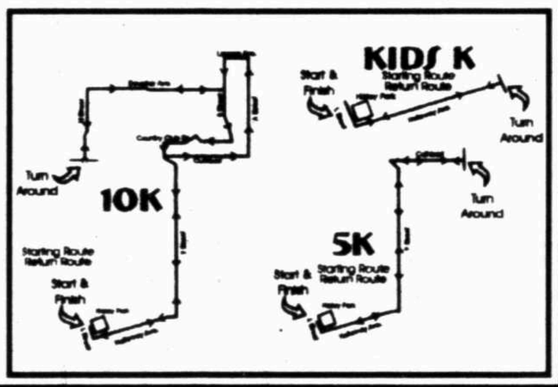

Gailey rewarded the team by giving them Monday off in addition to their usual Tuesday break. The Cowboys have an extra day anyway because their next game is Monday night at home against Atlanta.

September 25, 1999 8:30 a.m.
Haley Park ("L" & Holloway)–Midland, TX

The Tejas race course is a sizzling, fast and flat, modified "keyhole" race course. Cool late September mornings combined with the beauty of historic Old Midland make this an ideal course to set a personal best or just enjoy a leisurely stroll. A pre-race event that includes Mayor Bobby Burns reading a proclamation for the Leukemia Society and starting the race, a historic Confederate Air Force fly over and other fun and surprises for people of all ages! A post race "Party In The Park" will be a great way to enjoy the beginning of fall with friends and family. Everyone will find something to enjoy on the Tejas race course! Have a safe and fun run or walk!

Crude at new high

Crude oil futures surged Monday to their highest level since early 1997, topping $24 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange amid signs once-flush U.S. inventories are still in free fall.

Crude prices have doubled this year after plummeting to a 12-year low in December.

After increasing throughout last week, crude saw a sixth straight price rise Monday as investors anticipated that the upcoming American Petroleum Institute report would show yet another decline in U.S. inventories.

Adding to that expectation were figures showing an 8 percent decline in monthly activity at the Louisiana offshore oil port — confirmation that less oil is flowing into the United States.

The last API report put U.S. stocks at 311 million barrels. Inventories have averaged 3-million-barrel drops in recent weeks. If that pace holds steady, it would mean the total could drop below 300 million level by early October.

Stocks lower

NEW YORK — Stocks ended a lackluster session with mixed results Monday as investors stepped back from Friday's rally in technology shares. The Dow industrials struggled to a slight gain, but most stocks ended lower as the dollar sank to a new three-year low against the Japanese yen.

After shifting in a narrow range for much of the session, the Dow Jones industrial average rose 1.90 points to close at 11,030.33.

Broader stock indicators were lower. The Standard & Poor's 500 fell 7.53 to 1,344.13, and the Nasdaq composite index fell 42.29 to 2,844.77.

Singer bankrupt

NEW YORK — Snags in the overseas market have forced the world's largest maker of sewing machines into seeking bankruptcy protection.

Singer Co. NV, which is based in Hong Kong and no longer makes sewing machines in the United States, blamed a decline in the international sewing market for its filing of Chapter 11.

Singer's retail and production businesses will continue operating without interruption while it develops a reorganization plan. The Chapter 11 filing, made Sunday night, includes Singer's parent company, most of its U.S. subsidiaries and the holding companies for Singer's foreign businesses.

Worker assistance

The Texas Workforce Commission has announced that all workers of Dawson Geophysical Co. who lost their job due to lack of work on or after July 19, 1998 are eligible for Trade Adjustment Assistance. Under petition TA-W-36,622, which was certified on Aug. 11 and expiring August 11, 2001, workers who were partially separated from employment with Dawson Geophysical will also qualify for assistance.

The commission also announced that all workers of Hillin-Simon Oil Co. who lost their jobs due to lack of work on or after July 1 are also eligible for assistance. Under petition TA-W-36,619, which was certified Aug. 5 and expires August 5, 2001, workers who were partially separated from employment with Hillin-Simon will also qualify for assistance.

Assistance is available to workers who lose their jobs or whose hours of work and wages are reduced as a result of increased imports and can include training, a job search allowance, relocation allowance and other reemployment services. Weekly trade adjustment allowances may be payable to eligible workers following their exhaustion of unemployment benefits.

Total Fina wins battle to merge with Elf

By SUSANNAH PATTON
Associated Press

PARIS (AP) — French oil company Total Fina came out the big winner Monday in its 2-month-long takeover battle for rival Elf Aquitaine, creating the world's fourth-largest oil company with a sweetened $54.2 billion offer.

Total Fina and Elf both have been under pressure to increase in size amid rapid industrywide consolidation. The combined group, however, will still be much smaller than oil behemoths Royal Dutch Shell AG, BP Amoco PLC and the planned combination of Exxon Corp. and Mobil Corp.

With the successful offer, Total Fina chairman Thierry Desmarest managed to avoid a drawn-out fight like the one that recently stymied Banque Nationale de Paris's plans for a three-way banking merger.

Desmarest will run the new company. Elf chairman Philippe Jaffre, who had launched a counterbid to Total's original July offer, will resign.

"Everyone has got something to be pleased about in this except Jaffre," said Henri-Daniel Samama, analyst at the Paris brokerage house Exane.

The two oil groups had been at a standoff since Total Fina initially launched an unsolicited $44 billion all-stock takeover bid for Elf in July. Elf resisted the hostile offer, coming back with its own $53 billion cash-and-stock counterbid to acquire Total Fina.

Elf said on Monday, however, that its offer for Total Fina is "no longer necessary" and that both companies would drop legal cases contesting the original bids.

Total Fina is itself a product of the industrywide consolidation, the result of Total's acquisition of Belgium's Petrofina.

Total Fina and Elf said they would remain "on an equal footing" after the merger, but analysts said Total is gaining effective control.

"It's a clear victory for Total, which will dominate the new group," said Hughes de la Presle, an analyst at Standard and Poor's in Paris.

In one reflection of Total's victory, the newly merged group's chemicals division won't be spun off, as Elf had proposed.

On the oil side, the companies' geographic strengths are complementary and the merger will further bolster the group's presence in Africa and the Middle East, analysts said. For example, Total is strong east of the Suez and Elf is a major presence in West Africa.

The deal caps a summer of intense merger activity in France, where two of the country's largest banks have agreed to join forces and two retail powerhouses also said they would link up.

French bank BNP is merging with rival Paribas despite failing in a tender offer to gain control of its primary target, Societe Generale. And French supermarket group Carrefour revealed plans last month to acquire rival Promodes in a move to create the world's second-largest retailer.

In the wake of the merger activity, French Finance Minister Dominique Strauss-Kahn welcomed the Total Fina-Elf merger Monday, but said the deal would be scrutinized regarding potential job cuts.

Desmarest said in a news conference Monday that the friendly oil merger will generate savings of at least $1.6 billion and that Total Fina planned to reduce the combined group's work force by 3,000 over three years through natural attrition rather than layoffs.

Christmas gifts of the Rich and Frivolous

Neiman Marcus lists preservation as this year's choice present

By DAVID KOENIG
Associated Press

DALLAS (AP) — As Steve Magnes draped a $450,000, 181-carat diamond necklace over the bare shoulders and neck of model Kris Lezetc, the Neiman Marcus executive predicted the piece will practically sell itself.

"I'm sure we're going to sell it. It's unique. In fact, if we had to make two of them, we probably could," winked Magnes, the vice president of precious jewelry for the luxury retailer.

The briolette necklace is just one of many extravagant items in Neiman's Christmas catalog, which was unveiled Monday at the company's flagship downtown Dallas store. The 134-page book is a veritable Santa's list for those wealthy enough to avoid the riffraff at Nordstrom.

Discerning shoppers can pluck one of 50 fully equipped 2001 BMW X5 sport-utility vehicles for $57,995 — the vehicles usually sell out — or create a home arcade with a $96,000 Venturer S2ei road simulator. An 1822 manuscript of Clement C. Moore's "The Night Before Christmas" can be had for $795,000.

What new Internet tycoon wouldn't want a $35.25 million Boeing business jet? If those stock options haven't been exercised yet, it can be leased for 100 hours a year for $5.9 million.

The catalog dates to 1915 and has become a publicity-generating harbinger of the upcoming season. It also serves to raise money for charity — some purchases generate donations to organizations such as UNICEF, Habitat for Humanity and the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation.

Model Kris Lezetc wears a $450,000, 181-carat diamond necklace Monday in Dallas. The briolette necklace is just one of many extravagant items in Neiman Marcus' 1999 Christmas catalog, which was unveiled at the company's flagship store.

Neiman continued its practice of suggesting the perfect his and hers gifts, and sought to break away from such mundane past offerings as airplanes, dirigibles, submarines and mummy cases.

This year's his and hers: a $200,000 gift to The Nature Conservancy and a $35 donation to save one acre of rain forest.

For shoppers on a budget, the catalog has a variety of offerings under $1,000, ranging from Manolo Blahnik ladies pumps ($815) and a Donna Karan New York strapless tube dress ($780) to a nylon golf bag ($860) and a battery-powered children's sports car ($475).

If even those offerings are too pricey, there's always the book itself for $6.50. Dreaming about the goodies is free.

Negotiations between UAW, automakers eerily silent

By JUSTIN HYDE
Associated Press

DETROIT (AP) — This year, it's hard to tell whether talks between the United Auto Workers and the Big Three automakers are in high gear or park in advance of tonight's expiration of contracts.

There's little information about proposals, progress or what issues still need to be decided for contracts covering 407,000 workers. The UAW hasn't even said which company will get first crack at a new contract.

"The UAW can play almost any game it wants," said retired Michigan State University labor professor Dale Brickner. "The process has just changed dramatically."

Talks resumed Monday at General Motors Corp. and DaimlerChrysler AG after negotiators worked through the weekend. While lower-level talks are under way at Ford Motor Co., the UAW has indicated that talks with Ford are behind those at the other automakers because of Ford's plan to spin off its Visteon parts unit, a move the UAW opposes.

In the past, the union has extended contracts past the deadline. No extension has been made yet, but experts said a strike seems unlikely.

In comparison to past negotiations, there's much less information available from either side about the state of negotiations. Neither side discusses the content of the talks, and leaks have been sharply reduced.

Brickner said that is probably due to lessons from last year's UAW strike at two GM parts plants in Flint, Mich., which lasted 54 days and shut down most of GM's North American production. After trading barbs during the strike, both sides promised to improve communications.

The UAW has also altered the structure of the talks. In previous negotiations, one company was chosen as the target, and its contract set the trend in wages and benefits that other automakers were expected to follow.

But this year, UAW President Stephen P. Yokich has not announced a lead company, saying last week that GM and DaimlerChrysler offered good first proposals. According to union newsletters, these proposals include guarantees of lifetime employment for some workers.

Labor expert Harley Shaiken, a professor at the University of California-Berkeley who follows the UAW, said the strategy is unusual but could help the union.

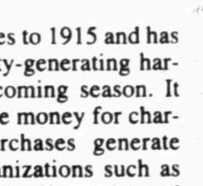

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Investors treading water with gold — a long-term loser

BY ERIC TYSON

Q: What is your opinion about the gold market now? Do you see a turnaround for this long-plagued investment?

A: I don't make predictions for various financial vehicles and certainly not the gold market. However, I will say that if you seek long-term returns well above the rate of inflation from your investments, you should shun gold.

Anderson

Gold is a long-term loser. Over the decades, the increase in gold prices has just kept pace with inflation. Therefore, after paying taxes on these meager gold returns, an investor would actually net an after-tax return below the rate of inflation.

Precious metals tend to perform better during periods of high and unexpected inflation, such as what happened in the United States in the late 1970s and early 1980s. Interestingly, with the recent inflation scare that sent interest rates rising during the second quarter, gold barely budged in price.

Q: I am 54 years old, retired and need to withdraw an annual income from my IRA, which is fully invested, mainly in technology equities managed by a professional manager. Three financial advisers suggest they manage the funds by investing them in mutual funds with more stability than I presently have. The downside is their charge for managing our funds and the low potential return (around 12 percent) they say I should expect. How do I best determine where to invest our funds for a stable yield yet strong return?

A: At your age, having all of your holdings in technology equities seems quite risky to me. While portions of the field have high growth rates and have done well in the stock market in recent years, the market value of some of these stocks relative to the company's earnings (as measured by price-earnings ratios) is quite high.

I think investing in diversified mutual funds makes good sense. At your age, you should consider investing about one-third of your money in bond funds if you seek a reasonable current yield from a portion of your portfolio. I also recommend that you invest at least a third of your stock holdings overseas.

You have conflicting investment objectives when you say that you seek, "a stable yield yet strong return." If you want a decent current income from your investments to live on, then you must tradeoff some long-term return potential.

Also, your total return expectations are unrealistic -- perhaps like many investors in recent years, you've been spoiled by 20 percent-plus annual returns. You say that with funds, you have "low potential return" of "around 12 percent." The stock market historically has returned 10 percent annually, so you shouldn't expect 12 percent annual returns or think of them as "low"!

Q: I just purchased stock in Wal-Mart. Why was it down in the last month?

A: If you asked this same question of various market pundits and prognosticators, they could come up with myriad explanations ranging from slower than expected clothing sales at the company's stores to the pattern of sunspots over this time period.

Ultimately, the only thing we know for sure if a company's stock price declines is that more people wanted to sell than to buy.

My question to you is -- if you did your homework and you see value in Wal-Mart as a long-term investment, why do you care what Wal-Mart did last month? Your investment in a stock should be for many years. If your research indicated that the company and stock look attractive for future years, a decline should have encouraged you to buy more rather than worrying about why it declined over such a short time period.
