Late Clinton campaign blitz includes El Paso

Demo leaders think visits will win state for president

EL PASO, Texas (AP) - The inferiority complex can be given a rest for now.

El Paso, which many often feel is left out of the political loop because of its isolation, is now eagerly awaiting the spotlight that will shine on the city when President Clinton visits Friday.

The buzz began when the trip was announced last week and has gradually grown as preparations got under way to receive Clinton, the first sitting president to visit the city since Ronald Reagan in 1984.

"We're very excited and very eager," Manuel Cortez said while picking up tickets to the presidential rally planned at the El Paso International Airport. "We want to see Mr. Clinton and give him our support."

Democratic Party officials expect 15,000-plus people at the afternoon gathering. The president will also attend a rally later in the day in nearby Las Cruces, N.M., which has never hosted a president.

The visit is part of a late Clinton campaign blitz in Texas, where polls show the president is in a dead heat with Republican challenger Bob Dole.

Clinton also will visit San Antonio on Saturday, Hillary Rodham Clinton is scheduled to be in the Rio Grande Valley on Friday and Vice President Al Gore was in Galveston Thursday.

The last Democratic candidate to do so was Jimmy Carter in 1976.

"I think the trips we're running will finish the job and give Clinton enough to go over the top," said Texas campaign chairman Garry Mauro, who is the state's land commissioner.

But the El Paso stop is also intended to make up for his missing the city during the 1992 campaign. "He wants to remedy that," Mauro said. "He just insisted he wanted to come personally."

Clinton's decision quickly brightened spirits in El Paso, a city that has sometimes adopted an outcast mindset because many believe it is ignored by both state and federal governments. Political activists have lamented the lack of clout wielded by the city of more than 500,000.

Although it has long been a Democratic stronghold - El Paso County was one of the few Texas counties to back Clinton in the last election - a Democratic presidential nominee has not visited El Paso since the 1960s.

"It really deserves this visit," said Lou Knightly, a school librarian planning to attend the rally.

Mayor Larry Francis said the president's visit affirms El Paso's significance.

"The fact that he picked our city to come visit shows that we're important," Francis said. "It shows that the citizens of this city represent an important part of the fabric of this country."

But since it is purely a political function, Francis doesn't expect it to have any great impact on the city. There won't be any opportunities to discuss pressing issues such as drug trafficking, environmental problems or illegal immigration, he said.

Clinton opponents said the city would be better off if those topics were on the agenda.

"We've had presidents come in the past, but they were working," said Ed Elsey, chairman of the El Paso Republican Party. "Those are the types of visits that we need in El Paso. We need them to understand the border."

In other campaign developments:

- Former Gov. Ann Richards, campaigning in Brownsville for vote Democrats, urged women to follow Democratic. "The two communities that we are most responsible for are children and older people. This Republican Congress has been the most destructive government force that I have ever observed to those two population groups," she said.

- An anti-smoking group, the Smoking and Tobacco Action Campaign, said 32 Texas candidates for the U.S. Senate and House had pledged to reject political contributions from the tobacco industry.

"There is no constituency here in Texas for the tobacco industry," said Bob Mahan, founder of the group.

College Night

Students and parents had the opportunity on Thursday night to visit representatives from more than 30 colleges as part of the Hereford Independent School District's annual college night. The event was held in the HISD Administration Building.

Payroll jobs increase, but economic growth slowing

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - After a one-month pause, businesses resumed adding workers to their payrolls in October, helping to keep the unemployment rate steady at 5.2 percent, very close to a seven-year low.

The Labor Department reported today that payroll jobs climbed a strong 210,000 last month, led by the biggest increase in service sector jobs in five months. In September, payroll jobs had actually declined by 35,000.

Today's unemployment report was the last major economic indicator to be released before voters go to the polls next Tuesday.

In New York, the Conference Board reported that an index of future economic growth gained 0.1 percent in September, the smallest of eight consecutive advances and another indication that the economy may be slowing.

The small improvement in the Index of Leading Economic Indicators follows a 0.2 percent increase in August and an identical

Troopers nab $1.3 million at traffic stop

SULPHUR SPRINGS, Texas (AP) - It took three hours to count the money seized by state troopers in a routine traffic stop this week.

Two bundles of cash added up Wednesday to $1,302,517 - the largest such seizure in Hopkins County history.

The cash was hidden inside the walls of a van stopped for failing to stay in a single lane on Interstate 30 eight miles east of this Northeast Texas town.

When Texas Department of Public Safety troopers Todd Brackhahn and Bruce Roberts asked the van's two occupants to search the vehicle, they noticed what appeared to be alterations in its interior.

Brackhahn asked the driver if he could look inside the van's walls.

"He just kind of pulls the wall back and two bundles of money fall out," said DPS Sgt. Donnie Willingham.

Sheriff's officers who used a drug dog to search the van further said the cash may have been used in a narcotics transaction.

The van's occupants, from New York and El Paso, were released without charges after signing a statement that they had no knowledge of the cash. District Attorney Frank Long said he would apply for forfeiture of the funds.

0.2 percent gain in July.

GOP presidential candidate Bob Dole on Wednesday had seized on a sharp slowdown in overall economic growth in the July-September quarter to warn that the economy is not performing as well as President Clinton claims and contend that a recession could well be looming.

The White House was certain to point to today's unemployment report as evidence of their claim that the economy is continuing to advance with strong employment growth and no inflation pressures.

The government reported that workers' average hourly earnings, which are closely watched for any signs of wage pressures, showed no change at all in October.

This development was likely to cheer financial markets as further evidence of an absence of inflation.

Many private economists believe that evidence of a moderation in economic activity will keep the Federal Reserve from raising interest rates through the rest of this year and perhaps well into 1997.

For October, the Labor Department reported that 119,000 jobs were created in service industries, the largest advance since May.

The strength was led by an increase of 62,000 jobs at retail stores, an increase of 38,000 in employment at recreation centers.

Manufacturing employment was up 6,000 in October but this increase followed a big decline of 59,000 jobs in September. Job losses continued in motor vehicles and electronic equipment but these losses were offset somewhat by gains in other industries.

Kevorkian charged again with assisting in suicides

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP) - Dr. Jack Kevorkian was charged Thursday with assisting three suicides since June - a defeated prosecutor's last-ditch effort to put the retired pathologist in prison.

Kevorkian, ever defiant, surrendered to police and was arraigned on 19 charges brought by Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson, including three counts of assisting in suicides - a common law felony.

"This is the end of it," Kevorkian declared.

"Either Thompson dies or I die. And I mean by that, really, we've got to get out of this for good and this has got to die as a legal issue. Or I die, one of the two," Kevorkian said. "I don't care which way it is, but it's going to end now."

Thompson, who failed in two previous attempts to convict Kevorkian, filed the new charges even though his term ends Dec. 31. He lost a primary to a candidate who accused him of wasting tax dollars pursuing Kevorkian.

Thompson said he expects his successor to carry out the case.

"You do not have a right under the law in the state of Michigan to assist in a suicide," he said.

But some experts in criminal procedure weren't sure how Thompson could compel his successor to follow through. "My initial reaction would be once his term's up, it's up," Edward Sosnick, chief judge of Oakland County

Circuit Court, told the Detroit Free Press.

Kevorkian, 68, an advocate of doctor-assisted suicide, has acknowledged being present at 44 deaths since 1990.

A magistrate originally set a $20,000 bond barring him from assisting in suicides. Kevorkian, who has accused authorities of using "Gestapo" tactics against him, raised his right arm in a mock Nazi salute and exclaimed "Heil" as he was led from the courtroom.

"That is so offensive," said assistant prosecutor Neil Rockind, who had family die in the Holocaust. "I find that absolutely atrocious. That is so outrageous."

District Judge Edward Avadenka changed it later Thursday to a

HHS seniors, college reps, get together

Many Hereford High School seniors soon have to decide on which college to attend next year.

During "College Night," Thursday in the HISD administration building, college recruiters tried to attract local students to their schools.

The event was sponsored by the Texas Association of Collegiate Registrars and Admissions Officers.

Since many students have never been to visit a college campus, HHS senior counselor Sara Pesina said, college recruiters bring the campus to the students.

"College Night" provides students the opportunity to obtain first-hand information from several colleges, she said.

In choosing a college, some things seniors should consider are:

- Academic advising programs.
- Career counseling services.
- Average class size.
- School activities available for students.

Recruiters also made available admission applications, financial aid applications, campus brochures, stickers and pencils.

Recruiters from Abilene Christian University, Amarillo College, Angelo State University, Baylor University, Centenary College, Clarendon College, Frank Phillips College, Hardin-Simmons University, High Tech Institute/Bryman Medical Institute, Howard Payne University, McMurry University, Methodist Hospital School of Nursing, Midwestern State University, Navarro College and Oklahoma Panhandle State University represented their colleges at "College Night."

Also, Schreiner College, South Plains College, Southern Methodist University, Texas A&M University, Texas Christian University, Texas Tech University, University of North Texas, University of Texas, Vernon Junior College, Wayland Baptist University, West Texas A&M University, Air Force ROTC, U.S. Military Academy, University of Mary-Hardin Baylor and College of Devry.

Booths staffed by representatives from College First, First American Bank and Panhandle Plains Higher Education Authority, Inc. offered information on financial aid.

UW drive makes leap; total reaches $82,528

The United Way of Deaf Smith County fund-raising campaign has taken a giant stride toward reaching its goal with collections almost doubling in the past two weeks.

The UW campaign total was $82,528 Friday, or 62 percent of the goal of $132,000. Two weeks ago the total was $43,038.

The Pacesetters division led the big increase as volunteers brought in more than $25,000 the past two weeks to push the total to $51,258, or 93 percent of its goal of $55,000.

Other divisions showing big increases over the last report were agriculture, business and industry, commerce, professional, and public/federal/state.

Businesses and individuals who have not been contacted and want to help reach this year's goal are asked to call Karen Sherrod, executive director of United Way, at 364-5220.

Houston-Area House Seat Boasts A Medley of Candidates, Philosophies

WASHINGTON (AP) - It's a crowded political scene in Texas' 25th District, where 11 candidates are jockeying to represent the Houston-area seat in Congress come next January.

None of Texas' 30 House races boasts more candidates than the 25th, which offers the voters a veritable smorgasbord of political philosophies - from conservative Republican all the way to the Socialist Workers Party.

The torrent of candidates was unleashed following the decision in August by a trio of federal judges to redraw the lines of the 25th and a dozen other Texas districts to solve a long-running redistricting dispute. The judges threw out the March primary results in the 13 districts, ordering a special election on Nov. 5.

Should no one candidate emerge with a majority of the vote - which seems quite likely in the 25th - the top two candidates advance to a runoff on Dec. 10.

The 25th's incumbent, freshman Democrat Ken Bentsen, has been a bitter critic of the judges' plan.

Jury Convicts Woman in Children's Shooting

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) - A woman who claims to be insane was convicted Thursday of shooting her two sons, killing one, during an early morning rampage at the family's home.

Olga Marciela Torres, 41, faces up to life in prison for murder and a maximum of 20 years in prison for attempted murder in the Aug. 7, 1995, shootings. The punishment phase began Thursday.

Prosecutors alleged she shot her children at close range with a .380-caliber semiautomatic handgun while they slept. Steven Ray Torres, 9, died of wounds to the head and chest. Willie Joe Torres, 12, survived after surgery to repair a chest wound.

Mrs. Torres had pleaded innocent by reason of insanity. Defense attorneys argued she had been despondent for years because of her divorce and inability to find employment.

"This person is sick. ... There is no reason why she could have done this except that she was sick," defense lawyer Sandra Zamora said in closing statements Wednesday.

Woman Once Accused of Racism Wins Defamation Lawsuit

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - A former teacher once accused of racism by a 12-year-old student has won a $36,550 award in a defamation lawsuit against the League of United Latin American Citizens and the mother of her accuser.

Lisa Bagby, who now lives in Dallas, was accused in 1991 of insulting the intelligence of Hispanic students.

After the accusation, LULAC state director Rosa Rosales and Janie Adame, the mother of the girl who made the accusation, held news conferences to denounce the teacher.

The San Antonio School District conducted an investigation that included a survey of Ms. Bagby's students but failed to substantiate the allegation.

Ms. Bagby, who also is Hispanic, said the allegation stemmed from a discussion she had with one of her classes about the importance of completing assignments. She said she made reference to the high incidence of dropouts in the Hispanic community, but made no racist comments.

Hill Country Torrent Doesn't Give Aquifer Big Boost

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Heavy rain over the Hill Country this week apparently did little to replenish the Edwards Aquifer, which is hovering well below its normal water level as a drought drags on.

Significant amounts of rain fell on the largest exposed area of the aquifer's recharge zone, said Rick Illgner, general manager of the Edwards Aquifer Authority in San Antonio.

"We had some really good rain in the area. But what we're seeing is very little rise over on this end of the aquifer," Illgner said Thursday. "I'm a little surprised. I thought we'd see a little bit more."

The Edwards Aquifer is a natural underground water reservoir used by about 1.5 million people in this region. It is the sole source of drinking water for the city of San Antonio.

The aquifer level at the San Antonio test well was 643.2 feet above sea level Sunday. After Monday's rains, it rose to 643.9 feet on Tuesday, but by Thursday it had dipped to 643.4 feet, Illgner said. The current level is about 20 feet below average for this time of year.

APALA sets up Election Day hot line

By JENNIFER BROWN
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - An old-fashioned "Wanted" ad appeared in a Texas newspaper recently offering $1,000 reward for information about people who are not U.S. citizens trying to vote.

Latino groups pointed to this and other such efforts Thursday as intimidation tactics aimed at scaring away newly naturalized citizens, some of whom may not understand the details of the most basic American right.

"Recent immigrants are trying to participate in the American Dream by voting in this election and there are groups trying to intimidate them and humiliate all immigrants at the polls," said Matthew Finucane, executive director of the Asian Pacific American Labor Alliance.

APALA is one of several groups sponsoring an Election Day hot line to fight voter intimidation and harassment - problems they say have been exacerbated this year by charges that the Clinton administration pushed to improperly naturalize thousands of immigrants to bolster voter turnout.

"If people have been naturalized in error, then there needs to be un-naturalizing going on," said Lisa Navarrete, spokeswoman for the National Council of La Raza, a Washington-based group that lobbies for Hispanics' rights.

"But let us be clear: These efforts are political, not just to embarrass the Clinton administration but to smear the reputation and character of the 1.2 million new citizens," she said at a news conference announcing the hot line.

Bilingual operators will staff the hot line for the entire time polls are open on both coasts to answer questions and refer callers to attorneys or the Justice Department. Among possible complaints are harassment, arbitrary and illegal checking of citizenship status and lack of Spanish language assistance when required by law.

The hot line is necessary, Latino leaders say, because of an atmosphere of intimidation created by Republican allegations that thousands of new citizens were improperly naturalized.

"Aliens with criminal records ... have been granted U.S. citizenship so they can vote," said an ad for GOP presidential nominee Bob Dole that was released Thursday. "Bill Clinton's White House has been caught in a broad-scale vote grab ... forcing through over a million applicants for U.S. citizenship."

All week, the House Government

Reform and Oversight Committee has been reviewing criminal records of 50,000 newly naturalized people to see whether any had violations warranting denial of citizenship.

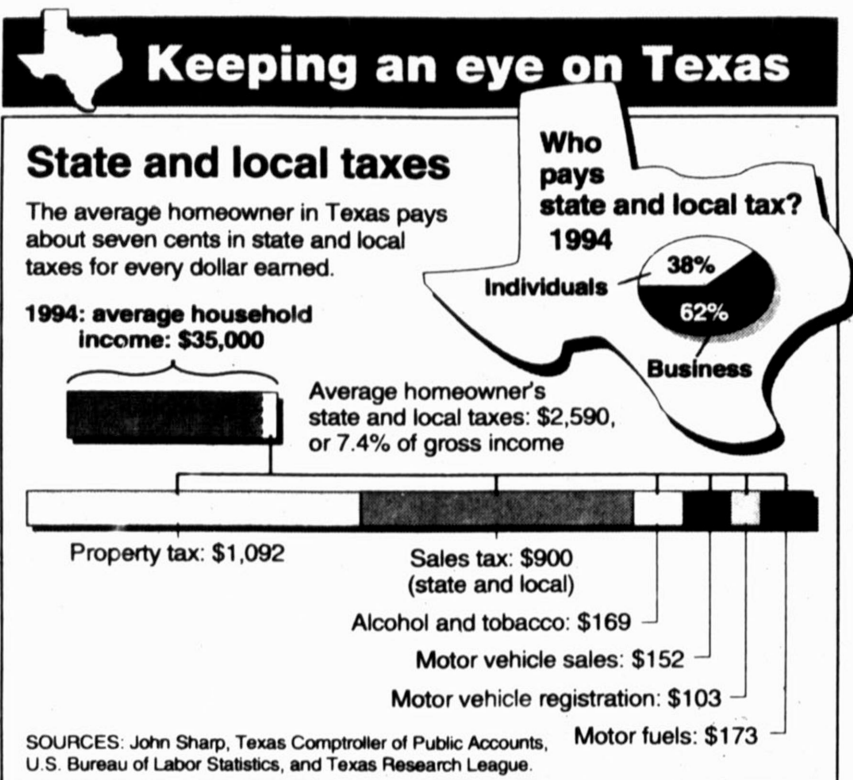

After reviewing 20,000 files, the committee said Thursday about one-third, or 6,666, showed at least one conviction and about 5 percent, or 1,000, had felony convictions that would disqualify an individual for citizenship.

Earlier this week, the committee sent letters to the governors of California and five other states with big immigrant populations warning that a review of records "confirm our fears" that aliens with dangerous criminal backgrounds have become citizens.

Both the Immigration and Naturalization Service and the FBI have warned that the files contain only raw data and often do not reflect the charges' final outcome of charges.

The first letter went to California Gov. Pete Wilson on Monday. The others went to the governors of Arizona, Illinois, Texas, Florida and New Jersey on Tuesday.

Jewell cleared, looks for new place of work

ATLANTA (AP) - Cleared as a suspect in the Olympic Park bombing, Richard Jewell is now looking for work, and he's already got a couple offers.

Jewell, 33, has been offered jobs at a grocery and as a security guard at a radio station. "Richard is beginning his adjustment," lawyer Wayne Grant said Thursday.

Jewell, a former deputy sheriff, wants another job in law enforcement. But he has said that might be impossible because his reputation has been damaged.

Jewell, a security guard at the park, was a suspect in the July 27 bombing, which killed one and injured dozens. The FBI notified him last week that he was no longer a suspect, and Jewell held a tearful news conference Monday to discuss his ordeal.

His job offers are from WKLS, an Atlanta radio station, and Harry's Farmers Market, a chain of grocery stores. Jewell's lawyers would not specify the kind of job the grocery has in mind.

Meanwhile, Rep. Bob Barr, R-Ga., said Thursday he will call for hearings on the FBI's handling of the investigation when Congress reconvenes in January.

TWA crash investigation costs more than $23.9 M

SMITHTOWN, N.Y. (AP) - Investigators of the TWA Flight 800 crash are spending nearly four times the $6 million Congress set aside for the probe, a federal budget source said.

The $23.9 million price tag does not include the cost of the FBI and other law enforcement agencies that have hundreds of employees around the world working on the case, said a federal budget source who spoke to The Associated Press on condition of anonymity Thursday.

With just $6 million already provided by Congress and another $764,000 from the National Transportation Safety Board's emergency fund, the NTSB will have to go back to Congress for at least $17,191,800 before Dec. 1.

"No one is willing to own up to the blame as to why (only) $6 million was requested," the source said. "It's embarrassing for the chairman to have to ask for more money."

Red tide spotted on coast

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) - The red tide bloom is all but dead on the Texas coast, a biologist says.

Ken Rice, a biologist with the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, said Thursday that he flew in a plane along the coast from Matagorda Island to South Padre Island and saw red tide only in one small spot in Aransas Bay near Rockport.

But he said the remnants of the algae will keep people from harvesting shellfish in many areas.

Red tide is a microscopic algae. Its cells reproduce quickly in warm, still water, turning it a reddish color and killing fish.

Tens of thousands of dead fish have washed up on Coastal Bend shores since red tide began blooming in the Gulf of Mexico in September.

KEVORKIAN

removing bodies without permission of the medical examiner and attempting to assist a suicide, Thompson said.

Thompson said the charges involve 10 deaths from June 20 to Sept. 7.

The prosecutor said Kevorkian associate Neal Nicol and Dr. Georges Reding, a psychiatrist, also were charged with conspiracy to assist suicide, assisting suicide and removing a body without medical examiner's permission.

Thompson also served Kevorkian with a notice on Tuesday requiring him to explain why he should not be held in contempt for violating a 1991 court order barring him from assisting in suicides.

The order was sought by prosecutors after Kevorkian attended the death of Janet Adkins, the first person known to have died in Kevorkian's presence.

The order specifically prohibits Kevorkian from supplying machines, equipment and drugs, or from "conducting any acts" that help people die.

The U.S. Supreme Court in early October turned away Kevorkian's challenge to the 1991 injunction.

Kevorkian and his attorney have said repeatedly Kevorkian won't be deterred by court orders or laws against assisting suicide.

If found in contempt, Kevorkian could be jailed for 30 days in each of the four deaths cited in the notice. He also would be subject to a $250 fine in each case. A hearing is set for Wednesday.

Judge rules in favor of Medicare patients

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Medicare patients enrolled in health maintenance organizations have the right to prompt hearings if they are denied medical services, a federal judge ruled in an order expected to have nationwide impact.

The federal Health Care Financing Administration, which oversees Medicare, has legal responsibility for overseeing HMOs under contract to provide care to Medicare patients, Judge Alfredo Marquez ruled.

The federal government had contended that HMOs were privately owned and that it could not be held accountable for their actions.

"Existing reconsideration procedures followed by HMOs fail to secure minimum due process for Medicare beneficiaries," Marquez wrote. "Notice and informal hearing requirements set forth by statute and regulations are all but ignored."

There are 38 million Medicare patients nationally, with some 4 million enrolled in HMOs, according to the Social Security Administration.

Each of the plaintiffs contended that they suffered serious consequences from a system that did not allow for a timely opportunity to appeal denial of services.

One woman who suffered from diabetes complained of pain in her foot but received no response from her doctor with the health maintenance organization. She subsequently lost her leg to the knee to amputation.

Then, after her discharge from the hospital, the HMO refused her home health care, even though she needed intravenous medication at home.

A second patient was refused an ambulance after suffering a broken back at home, forcing her daughter to drive the woman to the hospital.

A third was turned down for physical therapy, hip surgery, and two others were denied nursing home care payments.

Marquez ordered lawyers for the plaintiffs to draw up a proposal to meet the need for prompt and appropriate hearings when services are denied.

Ann Landers

Dear Readers: I've received a great many heartwarming "how-well-met" letters and wish I could print them all. Here are a few of my favorites:

Dear Ann: I was a 41-year-old widow and thought I could never love again. I refused to be fixed up with several eligible men and spent my evenings reading and watching TV. When the TV broke, I called in a repairman. He fixed the set and we talked for an hour. When I asked for the bill, he said, "No charge if you will agree to continue this conversation over dinner next week." I agreed, and we were married six months later. -- Jackson, Miss.

From Pinehurst, N.C.: I met Al in Greenland in November 1945. I was an Army nurse, and he was an Air Force captain. It was love at first sight. Al left Greenland on Valentine's Day 1946, but we promised to stay in touch. When we met again in New York, we knew we were meant for each other and decided to take the plunge now and get to know each other later. It sounds reckless, but we were married the following day in the Little Church Around the Corner. Al and I will celebrate our 50th soon. Our four wonderful children are giving us a great big party.

Fort Worth, Texas: After a string of disastrous blind dates, I said, "Never again." Then a woman I worked with announced that her brother was coming to town and asked if I would like to go to dinner with him. I said, "No, thanks." When she took his picture out of her wallet and handed it to me, I quickly changed my mind. We've been married 26 years, and I'm still nuts about him.

Chicago: My twin sister and I went to the T.S. Martin department store in Sioux City, Iowa, to select wedding veils for our double wedding. I was engaged to marry a UCLA law student from Los Angeles. My sis was engaged to a fine young student at the University of Minnesota.

The newly arrived manager of the millinery department was a super salesman who had just been transferred to Sioux City from Grand Rapids. His name was Jules Lederer. He sold me not only the wedding veil but himself. The double wedding went off on schedule on July 2, 1939.

My sis is still married to her Minneapolis sweetheart. Jules and I parted after 36 years. Most of those years were wonderful. -- Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Have many women complained to you that after being married 50 years or so, their husbands no longer seem interested in talking to them? I have often wondered if I am the only one.

Small talk between us is non-existent. Whenever I initiate a conversation, my husband answers, "Yes" or "No," or something else that only takes a one-syllable reply. This is not a man who is non-communicative, Ann. He thoroughly enjoys talking to the neighbors and makes engaging comments to waitresses, sales clerks, gas station attendants and strangers at sporting events. But I get the silent treatment.

I have become silent myself, noting that my efforts go for naught. Is there any solution, or should I be grateful for the peace and quiet? -- Lonely in Leesburg, Fla.

Dear Leesburg: Your signature tells me more about your marriage than your letter. If you really want to improve the relationship between you and your husband (and it certainly sounds as if it could use improvement), I suggest that you see a counselor for guidance. There's a serious glitch somewhere that needs exploration.

John Paul II marks golden anniversary of ordination

VATICAN CITY (AP) - At heart that a benign tumor the pope had removed four years ago was returning. Rumors had spread that John Paul's weakened condition was due to a cancerous tumor, and this talk fed speculation he might even resign.

Instead, the word these days at the Vatican is of a "tireless pope," as the official newspaper L'Osservatore Romano recently put it. John Paul's aides stress that he intends to keep traveling, a key part of his strategy of making the world his parish.

Recovering from an appendectomy, the latest in a series of ailments in recent years, John Paul skipped his regular general audience Wednesday but went to his apartment window to speak to pilgrims and tourists in St. Peter's Square about the anniversary. He said he still recalled "with emotion" his ordination by then-Archbishop Adam Sapieha on Nov. 1, 1946.

"I ask you to join me in thanking God for the many graces which he has given me in my ministry as priest, bishop and successor of St. Peter," he said in Italian before repeating the remarks in five other languages. John Paul's voice was stronger than in his other appearances since the Oct. 8 operation. But his left hand visibly trembled, an ailment that has led to speculation that he suffers from Parkinson's disease.

The Vatican was clearly relieved by a biopsy during the pontiff's recent surgery, which showed no sign that a benign tumor the pope had removed four years ago was returning. Rumors had spread that John Paul's weakened condition was due to a cancerous tumor, and this talk fed speculation he might even resign.

Henderson gives advice on how to get children to take medicine

BOSTON (AP) - Florence Henderson, who helped raise six TV kids, took a page out of Mary Poppins' book in giving advice on how to get children to take their medicine. In short, a spoonful of sugar.

The "Brady Bunch" star appeared at the American Academy of Pediatrics convention Monday with a list of tips to make taking medicine more fun for children.

"There are so many young parents that are both working and they're tired, they're exhausted. A lot of them need a lot of encouragement," Henderson said.

Henderson advises parents to splash medicine over ice cream or use thick-flavored syrup or jam to disguise bitter tastes.

"If it is a treat, mix it in," Henderson said. She devised the list with a New York City doctor.

Ready for regionals

Members of the Hereford boys' cross country team work out on the track at Whiteface Stadium. The Hereford boys' team and individual girl Jamie Harrison will compete at the Region I-4A Meet Saturday in Lubbock.

Herd runners aim for state meet

By JAY PEDEN
Sports Editor
It's a long way to Austin, but a few Whiteface athletes hope to run the first few miles of the trip on Saturday.

The Hereford boys' cross country team will compete in the Region I-4A Meet Saturday morning in Lubbock's Mae Simmons Park, and Jamie Harrison will run individually in the girls' race. The top three teams and top 10 individuals get to advance to the state meet Nov. 9 in Round Rock, which is just north of Austin.

Hereford coach Martha Emerson said she thinks that both Harrison and the boys' team have a chance to advance.

Harrison has been there before. She was a member of last year's Herd girls team that finished second at regionals and 10th at state. She's peaking this year; the senior's fourth-place finish at the District I-4A Meet was her highest this year.

"We feel like she has a chance to be in the top 10," Emerson said. "She was 11th at regionals last year, and I think she's improved as we've got into (this) season." Harrison's race starts at 8 a.m. The boys go off at 8:30.

The boys who'll run for Hereford are Tommy Mather, Sergio Saenz, Adam Hernandez, Brandon Coleman, Miguel Huerta, Miguel Carrillo and Inez Lopez. Jason Stark will go as an alternate.

"I think they have a chance," Emerson said. "El Paso High is ranked No. 1 in the state, and they must be good."

"Lakeview and Andrews beat us at Levelland, but we didn't have Tommy or Sergio running," she said. Hereford's top competition probably will be Canyon, which edged Hereford for the I-4A championship.

"I feel like Hereford, Canyon, Lakeview, Andrews, (El Paso) Bowie and El Paso High are the top six teams I know about," Emerson said, adding that she didn't have much information on the teams from near Fort Worth.

"The whole team's just going to have to run their best race of the season to have a chance at the top three spots," she said.

Hereford freshmen blow out Palo Duro

The Hereford freshman football team stayed undefeated with a 30-8 pounding of Palo Duro Thursday in Amarillo.

They played in what Herd coach James Salinas called a "mud bowl," but that didn't stop Hereford from connecting on three touchdown passes of 35 or more yards.

"We had some big plays that were the keys to the ball game for us," said Salinas, whose team improved to 9-0.

The freshmen were struggling in the first quarter, Salinas said, until Andrew Ramirez hit John Paul Cardenas for a 45-yard TD pass. Seth Pietsiek ran for the two-point conversion.

Hereford went on to score one touchdown in each quarter.

In the second, Ramirez threw to James Miller for a 35-yard TD, and Greg Ewing ran for two points.

In the third, Cardenas caught another TD pass from Ramirez, this time for 50 yards. The extra point failed.

In the fourth, C.J. Vallejo ran 17 yards for a score, and Nick Whatley ran for two points.

Palo Duro broke up the shutout by scoring a TD with 30 seconds left, Salinas said.

The Hereford junior varsity team went to New Mexico Thursday and suffered through a 30-0 loss to Clovis.

Hereford committed six turnovers, coach Joe Cabezuella said.

"We had a bunch of mistakes," he said. "It was kind of wet, and it was hard to hang onto the ball offensively. The kids kept battling back, but we kept shooting ourselves in the foot."

Longhorns rule 4 starters ineligible for Baylor game

By CHIP BROWN

AUSTIN (AP) - As if Texas didn't have enough to worry about, having lost four of its last five games with a defense that hasn't stopped the run and an offense prone to costly turnovers.

Now, the Longhorns (3-4, 2-2 Big 12) will meet Baylor (4-3, 1-3) on Saturday with three-fourths of its secondary and a star receiver on the sidelines for disciplinary reasons.

NBA marks 50th birthday with retro game in Toronto

By CHRIS SHERIDAN
AP Basketball Writer

The NBA begins its 51st season tonight, and one of the games will feature the New York Knicks playing a team with "Huskies" written across their chests.

No, you didn't miss another round of expansion over the summer.

But you might have missed the announcement about retro uniforms.

The New York Knicks and Toronto Raptors will be wearing old-fashioned uniforms to commemorate the NBA's 50th anniversary. It will be the first of 22 games this season in which teams wear replicas of uniforms from the league's past.

The Raptors, instead of wearing their usual red, white and purple outfits, will be wearing plain white jerseys with "Huskies" written across the front in blue letters.

New York will wear uniforms with light blue lettering outlined in orange against a blue background.

"Really? I didn't know. This is the first I've heard of it," Knicks coach Jeff Van Gundy said Thursday. "I'm always the last guy to know."

The Golden State Warriors, Washington Bullets, Detroit Pistons, Philadelphia 76ers, Boston Celtics, Los Angeles Lakers, San Antonio Spurs and Seattle SuperSonics will also wear retro uniforms occasionally during the first half of the season.

It's an interesting twist to a season that promises to be a curious mix of old and new.

Shaquille O'Neal will be wearing the purple and gold colors of the Lakers, and The Forum in Inglewood, Calif., will be packed with celebrities again tonight when Los Angeles plays the Charles Barkley-less Phoenix Suns.

That game, too, will be televised nationally in the U.S. on cable. It's one of 97 - not counting the All-Star game - that will be shown on NBC, TNT or TBS this season.

O'Neal's free-agent move to the Lakers, who gave him a $120 million, seven-year contract, was the biggest story in a summer filled with personnel changes around the league.

Barkley has moved over to the Houston Rockets, who have only two players remaining from the team that won the first of its two consecutive championships in 1994.

The Rockets open at home against the Sacramento Kings on the busiest night of the entire season, with 14 games scheduled. The Charlotte Hornets are the only team that won't be playing.

In other games, it's Chicago at Boston, Cleveland at New Jersey, Milwaukee at Philadelphia, Washington at Orlando, Atlanta at Miami, Indiana at Detroit, San Antonio at Minnesota, Dallas at Denver, Seattle at Utah, the Los Angeles Clippers at Golden State and Portland at Vancouver.

Another 10 games will be played Saturday night and four more Sunday.

The moves of O'Neal and Barkley are just two of dozens that teams made in an effort to catch up to the Chicago Bulls, who return basically the same team that won a record 72 games last season before winning their fourth championship in six years.

After missing most of the exhibition season, Scottie Pippen will be in the starting lineup alongside Michael Jordan, Dennis Rodman, Luc Longley and Ron Harper.

The newest face on Chicago's bench will also be the oldest. Robert Parish, who on Wednesday was named one of the 50 greatest players in NBA history, will coax his 43-year-old body out for another season of the sport he used to play alongside Larry Bird, Rick Barry, Gus Williams and Jo Jo White.

Among the players who were traded or switched teams for lucrative contracts worth tens of millions of dollars are Dikembe Mutombo (Atlanta), Rod Strickland (Bullets), Larry Johnson (Knicks), Anthony Mason (Hornets), Kenny Anderson (Trail Blazers), Ervin Johnson (Nuggets) and Sam Cassell (Suns).

LONGHORNS

Mike Adams, cornerback Bryant Westbrook and safeties Tre Thomas and Chris Carter ineligible after learning that an agent paid for their lunch during a weekend meeting.

The players will be held out of practices and the Baylor game unless the NCAA rules otherwise, Texas coach John Mackovic said, adding that even if they are reinstated, they won't start the Baylor game.

Leroy Sutherland, the university's compliance coordinator, submitted findings from an internal investigation in a letter to the NCAA late Thursday.

Texas athletic director DeLoss Dodds said he hoped to hear something from the NCAA by midday today.

Bill Saum, an NCAA enforcement representative, said, "We will review their investigation and the results of their investigation."

University officials concluded on Wednesday that the players did nothing wrong when they met with agent Mike George at a lunch Sunday arranged by former Longhorns linebacker Winfred Tubbs, now with the New Orleans Saints.

But school officials received records from the luxury hotel where the meeting took place indicating that, while Tubbs signed for the meal to be charged to his hotel room, George paid for Tubbs' room, according to Sutherland.

Student-athletes can meet with an agent, but NCAA rules prohibit them from accepting gifts from an agent or agreeing, verbally or in writing, to have an agent represent them before their eligibility is exhausted.

"They said they knew they could not receive anything from George but didn't think it was an NCAA problem to visit with him or receive the meal from Tubbs," Sutherland wrote to the NCAA.

The players each paid the total value of his lunch - $30.31 - to the Neighborhood Longhorns Program, a community service program that provides benefits for at-risk youth, Sutherland said in the letter.

"Many times in cases like this, the NCAA expects restitution, which the players have made," Mackovic said. "In cases like this, many times the players are suspended for a one-game basis."

"I don't know if they (the NCAA) will do that, or more, or whether or not they will feel the argument is in favor of the players from the standpoint of having every reason to believe a former teammate was in fact buying them the meal," Mackovic said.

Tubbs, who has an unlisted phone number in New Orleans, said through Saints spokesman Rusty Kasmiersky late Thursday that he paid for the players' meals. Tubbs, a linebacker at Texas in 1989-93, declined further comment.

Tubbs told the Austin American-Statesman in Wednesday's editions: "I pride myself on not doing anything illegal and I know for a fact this guy (George) did not do anything illegal. It's totally innocent. I don't know who blew this up, but it ticks me off."

George, who represents Tubbs and former Longhorns defensive end Tony Brackens, now with the Jacksonville Jaguars, couldn't be reached immediately for comment. George was interviewed by school officials.

According to Texas' investigation as outlined in Sutherland's letter, "George said he didn't know if Tubbs paid for the meals directly or charged them to his room. He did acknowledge that he had reserved his and Tubbs' room with his own credit card, but that Tubbs was supposed to have paid for his room with his own credit card."

Clinton leads enough states to win second term, still fights hard

By JOHN KING
AP Political Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton entered the campaign's final weekend leading in more than enough states to win a second term, but was locked in a tight race with Bob Dole in the Mountain West and across the South, according to a 50-state Associated Press survey.

Benefiting from leads in Pacific states and the industrial belt stretching from New Jersey to Illinois, Clinton was clearly leading in 25 states and the District of Columbia with a combined 314 electoral votes - 44 more than the 270 needed to win the White House, according to the AP review.

Dole could bank on fewer than a dozen states and 100 electoral votes. The review involved state polling data and interviews with campaign and party officials. Ross Perot's support was approaching double digits in many states, but he was still a distant third everywhere.

"Bob Dole is the underdog," GOP Chairman Haley Barbour said Thursday in a considerable understatement. "But he can still win."

As Dole sought a dramatic comeback, and Clinton bid for an Electoral College landslide, the key in the closing days was a dozen tossup states in which neither candidate could claim a comfortable lead.

This group included several traditional Republican strongholds that have eluded Dole throughout the fall: Florida, Arizona, Indiana, Virginia and South Dakota. Other battlegrounds included Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Nevada, Montana and Colorado.

Republicans put Louisiana on this list, too, though Democrats said Clinton's lead is comfortable there and nationally. "I cannot remember approaching Election Day with a map that has been so positive and so truly national for a Democratic presidential campaign," said Clinton deputy campaign manager Ann Lewis.

Perot's higher profile in the final days appeared to be bringing him additional support, and bringing Clinton down a few points in many states. But Dole was still below 40 percent in many state and most national polls.

"I still talk personally to a lot of grudging voters," said Oregon pollster Tim Hibbitts. "I see (Clinton's) margins here narrowing as he suffers some bleedout to Ross Perot and Ralph Nader."

Republican pollster Ed Goetas said he still saw Clinton on track to win but predicted he would again fall short of 50 percent, because of Perot and Nader's Green Party candidacy.

Dole vowed to prove the skeptics wrong, and said that beginning at noon Friday he would campaign virtually non-stop for 96 hours in pursuit of 270 electoral votes. "I will give it all I've got," he vowed at a Miami event.

It will take quite a bit. Even if Dole won every tossup state, he would still be short of victory.

Dole seeks a climatic victory, embarks on a 96-hour campaign

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer
MIAMI (AP) - Bob Dole, looking for a dramatic climax for his uphill presidential campaign, announced a 96-hour, virtually nonstop final push through 15 states beginning Friday. "I want to shake up this race," he declared.

Trailing badly in the polls with five days to go, Dole also appealed Thursday to Ross Perot's supporters in his most direct terms yet.

In what could be viewed as a concession that he could not win a three-way race against Clinton, Dole said, "I can beat one candidate. I can't beat two. So don't vote for Ross Perot."

Aides said that after an overnight stop in Columbus, Ohio, on Thursday night, the only hotel pauses before Election Day would be brief, 90-minute stops every 24 hours so Dole and his entourage could freshen up.

Dole will both fly and take long bus trips as part of the coast-to-coast plan, aides said.

"Where's the map?" Dole asked aboard his campaign plane, indicating he was ready to go. "Gonna wear you out," he told reporters.

The dramatic travel gesture - which would dwarf the 30-hour, 10-city blitz that Clinton himself did in 1992 - came as Dole and his strategists struggled to find a way to invigorate his campaign.

The race has been frozen for months, with Clinton holding a double-digit lead in the polls.

Dole compared the final effort to his wartime fighting in Europe.

"The last time I fought 'round the clock for my country was in 1945 in Italy," Dole said. "Beginning at noon tomorrow, I will once again fight 'round the clock for America's future."

The trip is to take him to 15 states in roughly this order: Ohio, Michigan, Kentucky, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota, Colorado, Nevada, California, New Mexico and Kansas, with side trips to New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Tennessee and Indiana.

"I will not rest until we have made my case to every worker, every family, and every voter," Dole declared. "I am determined to make every hour of this decisive election count."

The Republican challenger said he would take his campaign "from the factories of Ohio and Michigan, through the bluegrass of Kentucky, in the towns and neighborhoods of the Midwest, across the Rocky Mountains, through the cities and streets of California."

Earlier, Dole shared a stage with former President Bush at a rally in a refurbished theater in Tampa.

"What it's about is leadership," asserted Bush, who was defeated by Clinton in 1992. "I believe in keeping the White House above partisan politics and away from these puny, terrible disputes we're seeing."

Bush was to be on some of the bus stops in Ohio and Michigan on Friday, as was former GOP President Ford.

Perot will spend $29 million for TV blitz in election home stretch

By KATIE FAIRBANK
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Billionaire Ross Perot has money to burn in the waning days of the presidential campaign and he's using it to blitz TV viewers and pop up at rallies around the country.

Perot saved about 75 percent of his more than $29 million in government financing to use during the election home stretch.

Television viewers are being inundated with 15-second spots from Perot, airing nationally during prime-time sporting events and on various cable shows.

Perot, who for several months made only weekly public appearances, is attending campaign rallies daily now, hitting hard on President Clinton's ethics and the need for an outsider to reform the political system. He had appearances planned Thursday in New York and Illinois.

"We're right on track now with our paid programming, advertising and appearances," said campaign coordinator Russ Verney, attributing Perot's recent uptick from single digits in national polls to his stepped-up campaign effort.

A Los Angeles Times poll earlier this week put Perot's support at 12 percent nationally, and a CNN-USA Today-Gallup tracking survey had him at 11 percent.

Analysts say it's all too little, too late.

"If he goes from 6 percent to 12 percent, he's still at 12. He's a lot weaker than four years ago and he didn't have much prospect then," said Earl Black, a Rice University political scientist and longtime Perot watcher.

Perot's 15-second ads superimpose, or morph, a series of photos of young supporters extolling the candidate into a final image of Perot himself.

Until now, Perot hasn't run many short commercials. Instead, he has devoted his dollars to half-hour broadcasts. The longer programs feature Perot lecturing on the national debt and biographical material on the Texan.

There are more infomercials to come.

Four of the 30-minute ads are scheduled for election eve, two to air on CBS and NBC, the other two running back-to-back on ABC at a cost of $1 million.

Perot has challenged Clinton to join him during the hourlong show to explain questionable foreign contributions to the Democratic Party and various ethical matters - an offer the president immediately rejected.

"I don't want to be rude or abusive, but I do want you to have the facts before you go to the polls the next day," Perot said after announcing the proposed appearance during a campaign stop in Philadelphia.

The two half-hour broadcasts will deal with the various ethics questions about the Clinton administration, said Perot's running mate Pat Choate.

Alaska politician punches man, threatens his mom

By JIM CLARKE
Associated Press Writer
ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) - This is rough-and-ready Alaska, the Last Frontier, so when politician Michael Wiley received an anonymous mailing accusing him of cheating on his wife, he did what many would expect of a true Alaskan.

He went to the home of the man he was sure wrote the flier and punched him in the head. And for good measure, he allegedly threatened to hit the guy's mother, too.

And that's not necessarily the strangest of Alaska's political contests this year.

The Democrat running for U.S. Senate, for example, is convinced a conspiracy led by a powerful senator landed her behind bars and caused her husband to flunk the bar exam 22 times. And a candidate for the Legislature has admitted to adultery.

Which brings us to the case of Seward politician Louis March, he of the sore head, who is suspected of anonymously accusing much of his city's political establishment of carrying on extramarital affairs.

For responding with his fists Sunday night, Wiley was hauled off to jail and charged with criminal trespass and three counts of assault. (He allegedly hit March twice and threatened once to slug his mother). The misdemeanor charges carry up to a year in jail and a $5,000 fine each.

"There's no way I should have done that," Wiley told the Anchorage Daily News after his wife bailed him out for $2,000.

Wiley, a member of the governing body in Kenai Peninsula Borough, isn't running for anything. He was just lumped in with the others named in the anonymous flier.

March swears he had nothing to do with the mailing. Seward City Manager Ron Garzini, who isn't running for anything either but was accused of carrying on an affair with the city clerk, said there's no doubt that March was behind the flier.

March is a political gadfly running for a state House seat on the Alaskan Independence Party ticket, which was founded to get Alaska to secede from the Union. He's no stranger to pamphleteering in Seward.

the accusations came from March. The familiar tone and typeface, the all-capital letters, the paragraphing - all point to March, Garzini said.

As for Wiley, "he's just a regular guy and I don't think he's used to this kind of politics," Garzini said. "If you start picking on people's families, you're going to bring out a different side of them."

Then there's the Democrat challenging four-term Republican Sen. Ted Stevens.

Theresa Obermeyer, a former Anchorage's school board member, blames Stevens for her husband's failure to pass the Alaska bar exam.

Obermeyer also contends Stevens had her sent to prison because she dared challenge him. It's true that Obermeyer spent 30 days in federal custody this summer. But that was for allegedly taking a swing at a security guard at a federal building where Stevens was attending a meeting.

(Obermeyer was already on probation for a courthouse scuffle that began at an earlier meeting when she tried in a loud, grating voice to bring up her husband's trouble with the bar exam.)

Stevens has suggested Obermeyer seek psychiatric help.

Obermeyer won the Democratic nomination by collecting a little more than 3 percent of the votes cast in the state's open primary and beating six other Democrats. The state party and Democratic Gov. Tony Knowles have disavowed her.

"I'd call it the flip side of noncompetitive politics," said Gerald

Study: being grumpy a health risk for older men

By JAY JORDEN
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Kicking the dog, breaking furniture and other forms of expressed anger by the grumpiest of older men can be hazardous to their own health.

Such extreme anger increased risk of coronary heart disease two to three times above their relaxed counterparts, the veterans' study at Harvard Medical School found. And the angrier they are, the higher their risk.

A seven-year follow-up study found 59 cases of coronary heart disease among 559 of the angriest men in a group of 1,305 Veterans Administration patients. Dr. Ichiro Kawachi, assistant professor of medicine at Harvard University, said Thursday.

and grief. All have been subjects of previous research.

Two 1994 studies showed that men with high levels of anxiety were at four to six times the risk of fatal heart disease than men who had no symptoms, Kawachi said.

A study earlier this year found the risk of a heart attack is 14 times higher than usual on the day following the death of a parent, child, grandparent or other close relative or friend.

"Other studies already show that younger men and women with higher levels of hostility are at risk of heart disease and heart attacks," said Williams, director of Duke's Behavioral Medicine Research Center. "Becoming a grumpy older man may have its cost as well. This puts older men on notice."

By contrast, he said, only eight cases were reported by the 199 men who had no anger symptoms. Anger was quantified through a written survey, according to new study results in Friday's edition of the American Heart Association journal Circulation.

"We're talking about extreme anger here," Kawachi said. "From the kinds of questions we asked the subjects, some felt like exploding, others were constantly irritable and grouchy - still others would hurt furniture and even other people. This is not the common, garden-variety irritation that we might feel."

Such anger, he said, triggers the body's "fight or flight" mechanism that releases stress hormones into the bloodstream and slows the progress of platelets, which form clots that can begin a heart attack.

Another team of Harvard scientists in 1995 had found that the risk of having a heart attack two hours after an anger episode was 2.3 times greater than for a person who had not been angry.

The new study of men ages 46 to 90 demonstrated "a more long-term increase in risk of coronary heart

Hawkins man gets 436 years for assault

TYLER, Texas (AP) - A Hawkins man who pleaded guilty to luring girls into a dirt bunker under his home and then sexually assaulting them has been sentenced to 436 years in prison.

State District Judge Tommy Wallace sentenced Don Ingle Jr., 23, on Wednesday for multiple charges of sexually assaulting children and fined him $60,000, Wood County Criminal District Attorney Marcus Taylor said.

The case was set to go to trial Tuesday. After the jury panel had been seated, Ingle changed his plea to guilty on all six counts.

"Normally we don't expect them to plead guilty in cases like this. But it's good when they do and it's especially good for the victims because they don't have to go through all the details in front of a jury," Taylor said.

"Is there a probability he will ever be out on parole? I don't think so."

Some of the assaults involving teen-agers occurred in a bunker big enough for several adults, according to testimony from victims and Ingle's statement.

He apparently would lure youths down through a tunnel that led to the bunker while they played hide-and-seek. The tunnel entrance was concealed by a dog house, Taylor said.

There are more of them than us. —Herb Caen

Writing Want Ads that really sell!

Unsure how to write a Classified Ad that will get results? Follow these pointers and you'll soon have an empty space in your storage room and cash in your pocket.

For starters, look at ads which offer the same item/products. Get a sense of going rates and ideas for how to make your ad stand out. Once you're ready to write, begin with exactly what you're selling: "Dining room set, maple, six chairs." Then, remember these hints:

--Give the price. A newspaper consultant says 70 percent of classified readers won't respond to an ad with no price.

--Use key words to describe what you're selling. The key words for a car are make, model, year, body style, color, mileage and price. If it's a house, key words are location, type of construction, number of bedrooms and baths, and condition.

--Don't use abbreviations. It's tempting to abbreviate and save money if ads are billed by the line. Brand ads are billed by the word, so spell them out so readers won't be confused trying to figure out abbreviations.

--Don't be misleading. Think accurate and factual when you write. Be sure to include a phone number and the best times to reach you.

Texas couple, Arkansas senator killed in accident

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) - A Texas couple was killed Thursday in a traffic accident that also injured an Arkansas state senator and a son of U.S. Rep. Tim Hutchinson, R-Ark.

The accident happened at 2:45 p.m. Thursday on U.S. 71, south of Brentwood, Ark., and involved four vehicles, according to Arkansas State Police spokesman Wayne Jordan.

The couple was identified as Jack C. Watlington, 69, and his wife, Reba Watlington, 66, of Center, Texas. Their son, Christopher Watlington, 29, also of Center, who was at the wheel, was injured, according to a state police report.

The couple was killed when their car was hit head on by a car driven by Hutchinson's son, Timothy Hutchinson, 22, of Fayetteville, Jordan said.

State Sen. Fay Boozman, 49, of Rogers, Ark., was a passenger in Hutchinson's car, Jordan said.

The congressman was campaigning on the other side of the state at the time of the crash.

Both the younger Hutchinson and Boozman were injured and taken to Washington Regional Medical Center in Fayetteville. Chris Krueger, a hospital spokeswoman, said Boozman was in serious condition and the younger Hutchinson was in fair condition.

Jordan said Timothy Hutchinson was driving south on U.S. 71 and Watlington was driving north. Jordan said Hutchinson's car crossed the center line and hit Watlington's car. He said a tractor-trailer behind Watlington's car hit Watlington's car, then hit a tractor-trailer behind Hutchinson's car.

The two truck drivers were not injured, Jordan said. Jordan said police haven't determined why Hutchinson's car crossed the center line. A state police report said it was raining at the time.

While campaigning in northeast Arkansas for a U.S. Senate seat, the elder Hutchinson learned of the accident.

He appeared pensive and distracted after he got the news during a bus tour stop in West Memphis, Ark. The candidate and his wife said a prayer on the bus with Alonza Giles of Warm Springs, Ark., a friend traveling with them.

Hutchinson wasn't initially aware of the fatalities and didn't know the extent of his son's injuries. He said Boozman had a collapsed lung. He said his son and Boozman were driving to Little Rock, when the accident occurred.

The congressman and his wife changed their campaign plans to be with their son, deciding to fly to Fayetteville on Thursday night. Hutchinson also canceled his campaign plans for Friday.

Both the younger Hutchinson and Boozman were injured and taken to Washington Regional Medical Center in Fayetteville. Chris Krueger, a hospital spokeswoman, said Boozman was in serious condition and the younger Hutchinson was in fair condition.

Xena meets Leno, again

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) - No horse for the Warrior Princess: This time, she was carried to Jay Leno's stage by two musclemen in loincloths.

The last time Lucy Lawless, star of TV's "Xena: Warrior Princess" showed up for "The Tonight Show

With Jay Leno," her horse lost its footing and fell as she was taping a skit Oct. 8. She was hospitalized for a week with a broken pelvis.

"I fractured some bones, but I'm on the mend, well and truly," she told Leno on Wednesday.

New heart drug better than aspirin

BALTIMORE (AP) - A new drug is more effective than aspirin in reducing the threat of a heart attack caused by blood clots - but more so for women than men, researchers at Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions said Thursday.

The drug, integrilin, is as safe as aspirin and does a better job, according to reports on the research in November issues of the journals Circulation and Clinical Cardiology.

Researchers found that female patients admitted with unstable angina who were given integrilin intravenously for up to 72 hours had fewer and shorter episodes of ischemia, or reduced blood flow to the heart, than those who only took aspirin. Male patients showed negligible improvement with integrilin.

"The data was absolutely amazing," said Dr. Pascal Goldschmidt, author of the Clinical Cardiology report.

Clinical trials were conducted on 227 hospital patients - both men and women - admitted with unstable angina.

About 570,000 patients are hospitalized each year with unstable angina, said Dr. Steven Schulman, author of the Circulation study.

Angina attacks are often caused by blood clots formed by platelets. Aspirin has been shown to keep platelets from clumping and standard hospital therapy calls for one aspirin a day, Schulman said.

Researchers gave the patients either aspirin, high-dose or low-dose integrilin for up to 72 hours. Reduced blood flow to the heart occurred in 10 percent of the high-dose group, 20 percent of the low-dose group and 21 percent of the aspirin group.

Women receiving aspirin had eight times as many reduced-blood-flow attacks as women receiving integrilin, the research showed. The attacks averaged 80 minutes for the aspirin patients, compared to 10 minutes for the integrilin recipients. Men showed no significant difference in attacks between high-dose integrilin, low-dose integrilin, and aspirin.

After patients stopped receiving integrilin there was no increase in clotting, and there was no difference in the amount of internal bleeding among aspirin and integrilin patients.

Dr. David Sane, a cardiologist at the Bowman Gray School of Medicine in Winston-Salem, N.C., said aspirin would be hard to replace because it works, has acceptable side effects, is widely available and cheap. However, in some cases, drugs with better clot-reducing capabilities may be lifesavers, he said.

"The whole pharmaceutical industry is geared up to produce these drugs," said Sane, who didn't take part in the research.

Ongoing experiments will determine whether integrilin actually reduces heart attacks.

Unlike aspirin, Sane said other new anti-platelet drugs cannot be taken regularly for long periods of time because they are more likely to cause bleeding as a side effect.

Goldschmidt suggested the need for clinical trials that separate men and women, instead of analyzing them together.

Texas Crop Report Armyworm infestation plagues grain

COLLEGE STATION (AP) - After a dry summer and wet fall, producers in Central Texas thought they had a decent crop in the ground, but now producers are losing small grains, hays and hay grazers to armyworm infestations, reports the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Doug McCollum of Stephenville, Erath County Extension agent, said the small grains came up well this year, but now they are being threatened by the infestations of armyworms.

"Our winter oats and wheat is a month or two along. They came up pretty good," said McCollum. "But now the armyworms have hit and they are stripping our best fields first."

Producers have been fighting armyworms for the past month trying to salvage their small grains and hay.

"In the last month, the armyworms have been stripping the leaves off the coastal bermuda grass and sorghum," McCollum said.

James Robinson of Overton, Extension entomologist, said the armyworm is normal for this time of year. When it feeds, the armyworm larvae strips the foliage and then moves on to the next available food which could be any kind of small grain or grass.

"The fall armyworm is most often found in pastures and hay meadows in late summer and fall," Robinson said. "The quality of forage has a lot to do with it. If you have a good quality, you've probably got armyworms."

County agents are advising producers spray the fields they want to save and let cattle graze the rest.

McCollum said, "If you are trying to get another cut of hay then it depends on the quality. If you need the hay, spray. If not, let the cattle in to compete with the armyworms."

McCollum said most of the spraying has been done by air and helping winter pastures. Harvesting pine trees.

EAST TEXAS: Moisture short to adequate. Pastures in fair condition; hay harvests near completion. Seeding of winter pastures increased due to recent rains. Oat planting under way. Pecan harvest under way. Good progress in fall vegetables.

FAR WEST TEXAS: Moisture very short. Pasture conditions declining. Ranges in good condition. Some supplemental feeding required. Sorghum crop looks excellent. Wheat crop short. Chili harvest continuing. Alfalfa being cut and baled.

WEST CENTRAL TEXAS: Moisture short to adequate. Range and pasture conditions good to excellent. Livestock condition fair to good. Fall gardening near completion. Peanuts range from poor to excellent. Armyworms have slackened up on damage to small grains.

PANHANDLE: Moisture short. Ranges good, but declining. Livestock in good condition. Sugarbeet harvest continues. Wheat planting almost complete; stands good and will benefit from snow. Corn harvest almost complete; yields above average.

SOUTH PLAINS: Moisture short to adequate. Wheat, oat planting continues. Cotton harvest continues as weather allows; bolls opening. Sorghum harvest under way. Soybean, sugarbeet and sunflower harvest under way as weather permits.

ROLLING PLAINS: Moisture short. Pastures and ranges in good condition. Hay being put up for winter. Livestock in good condition. Peanut harvest nearly complete. Cotton harvest continuing. Wheat planting nearly complete.

NORTH TEXAS: Moisture adequate to short. Pasture and range conditions good. Final cutting on hay complete. Need stock water. Sweet potato harvest continues. Pumpkin harvest is down. Fall moisture SOUTHEAST TEXAS: Moisture short to adequate. Pastures in good condition. Cattle market depressed; feeding continues. Sorghum harvest complete. Cotton harvest nearly complete. Moisture has been helpful to oats and wheat. Soybeans harvest complete.

SOUTHWEST TEXAS: Moisture short to surplus. Fall pastures and ranges gaining momentum. Rainfall helping to revive small grains. Rain has slowed the peanut harvest. Livestock in good condition. Goat breeding season almost complete.

COASTAL BEND: Moisture short to adequate. Pasture, range conditions declining due to short soil moisture. Wheat, oats being planted. Peanuts, pecans, soybeans being harvested. Cool, wet weather hindered field efforts.

SOUTH TEXAS: Moisture adequate to surplus. Pastures and ranges in very good to poor condition. Sorghum harvest under way with drying field conditions. Citrus harvest continues with better quality fruit available this season. Vegetable plantings reduced.

ALASKA

McBeath, a political science professor at the University of Alaska Fairbanks. "Because nobody credible wanted to challenge Stevens, we got stuck with a screwball who happened to make a significant number of charges to raise her name recognition and get the nomination."

In Anchorage, meanwhile, state Rep. Eldon Mulder, a Republican running for re-election, has admitted to adultery, a brief indiscretion during a state-funded trip to Colorado in 1994. He confessed to his wife and she forgave him, but his lover's marriage dissolved. That angered the woman's father, who got word to Alaska about Mulder's behavior. The adultery is only part of Mulder's trouble. The 1994 trip to Denver cost taxpayers more than $900, and he spent most of the time taking a real estate class for himself. He has offered to reimburse the state.

None of this behavior bodes well for Alaskans already depressed by the prospect of spending the next five months in the cold and dark.

"It's early in the winter. One can only imagine what's going to happen as we get deeper into the winter months," said Paul Jenkins, an editorial writer for Voice of the Times.
